Stalin Says Germany Won't Be Destroyed

GIs, Others Join Giant Celebration Marking Victory

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, May 9—The Soviet Union will not "destroy Germany or its people," Marshal Stalin declared tonight in a blunt, matter-of-fact six-minute victory broadcast.

Speaking from his study in the Kremlin, around which a million or more Russians crowded in a noisy, happy holiday mood, the Soviet leader climaxed his nation's greatest celebration.

Fifty-four minutes after he finished speaking, 1,000 Moscow guns fired 30 volleys into the cold, clear spring sky, fingered by thousands of searchlights and arching rockets.

V-E Delay Explained

"The Soviet Army and the Army of the Allied command have forced Germany to fall," Stalin said, explaining the Reims and Berlin double surrender ceremonies.

"Being acquainted with the wolfish habits of the Fascists who regard every document as a blank piece of paper, we did not have grounds to believe in the act. However, this morning when the German Army put down her arms and began to surrender this was not a simple piece of paper but a real capitulation. . . . The Soviet Union is rejoicing in victories although it does not intend either to destroy Germany or its people."

The Soviet leader, paying tribute to his people's war efforts, said "great sacrifices in the name of liberty and fatherland were not in vain."

Planes Shower Flares

After the tremendous artillery salute and pyrotechnic display, Red Airforce planes swooped and circled over the gay scene, their roaring motors adding to the din of victory. From the planes showered multicolored flares.

More than 100 bands and orchestras played in the squares and parks for the thousands who frolicked through the night.

Joining with them were the nationals of others of the United Nations including many Americans. (The Russian V-E day celebration was climaxed by an address by Marshal Stalin announcing Germany's surrender and ordering a triumphant victory of 30 salvoes from 1,000 guns.)

In a great spontaneous tribute to the United States thousands assembled in front of the American embassy during the afternoon shouting: "Long live America. Long live Truman. Long live the memory of Roosevelt. Long live the American people."

Captured Goering 'Marked' By Nazis

KUTZBUEHEL, Austria, May 9 (AP) — Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, whose Nazi air force once frightened the world, and Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, German commander-in-chief on the Western front, have surrendered to Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's American Seventh Army.

Goering, a self-professed fugitive from the wrath of Hitler, surrendered near here last night with his wife and six-year-old daughter and was flown today to Gen. Patch's headquarters. Details of Kesselring's capture were not immediately given.

Sentenced To Execution

The first of the top Nazis to fall into American hands, Goering said he was sentenced to execution by Hitler on April 24 when he suggested that he, Goering, take over the crumbling Reich.

He declared that his air force followers shot their way through SS troops who were guarding him at Berchtesgaden and spirited him away to a hideout in the area. It was with relief, apparently, that the Nazi leader surrendered last night to Brig. Gen. Robert Stack, assistant commander of the U. S. 36th division.

Another of the original Nazis to fall into the 36th division's hands in the mop-up of this area of Austria was Gen. Ritter von Epp, who commanded a brief defense of Munich but fled before American forces broke into the city.

Goering readily posed for photographers and talked freely of his final clash with Hitler, whom he described in a speech as late as 1943 as the "greatest German in history." He wore several medals, including the Grand Cross of

Rapid Movement Of Troops Seen

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP) — Approximately 2,837,000 troops will be moved out of Europe within nine months, the Army disclosed today.

Within 12 months, the Army expects to have out of Europe 3,100,000 troops, leaving only an occupation force estimated at 400,000.

The majority of these soldiers will come to the United States for redeployment to the Pacific area or for discharge from the Army. The others will be routed direct to the Pacific.

45,000 This Month

About 45,000 soldiers, including many who have been prisoners of the Germans, will be returned to this country by air and surface ships during this month.

U. S. troop ships not required in the Pacific, many British troop ships, more than 400 converted cargo ships and 800 transport planes will be used to transport the troops. Gross said that by using captured enemy passenger ships the movement of troops may be speeded up by as much as 60,000 men during the second three months of the redeployment and by 117,000 men during the third quarter.

Disposition In U. S.

Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of Army Service forces, told the news conference that once the troops arrive in this country they will be sent to 22 Army personnel centers distributed throughout the United States. Wherever possible, the soldiers will be sent to the personnel center closest to their

Some Restrictions On Factories Lifted

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP) — The War Production board today eased restrictions on the manufacture of experimental models of civilian products.

It lifted the $5,000-a-month cost limitation on individual plants and ruled that such models now may be used to promote sales and create consumer demand. Also removed was the restriction on exhibition of these models to the trade and the public.

At the same time the Surplus Property board cautioned that narrowing of the war to one front will now result in a "flood" of cheap surplus merchandise.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow.

JUST ANOTHER CRIMINAL

LONDON, May 9. (AP) — The British Press association said today that although Admiral Karl Doenitz, successor to Hitler, implied that he might have a finger in the future government of Germany "he is not likely to be recognized by us as anything better than one of the war criminals."

Draft Calls To Continue To Be Large

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 9—President Truman today signed into law the bill extending the Selective Service act one year, and it was officially announced that draft calls "will continue to be large."

The latter announcement came from the Office of War Mobilization, which said:

"Deferments for men under 30 will continue to be relatively few and will become fewer as more veterans return to industry and the farms."

Protests Restrictions

President Truman, in signing the draft law extension, made plain he would have vetoed, if he could, a section forbidding the use of 18-year-olds in combat without six months training. He objected that this "places added restrictions on the War and Navy departments in their management of the fighting forces."

"I signed the legislation only because the immediate extension of the selective service act is of compelling necessity in the continuance of military operations against Japan," he said in a statement.

The bill extends the draft act for 12 months beyond May 15, 1945, or until the end of the Pacific war, whichever comes sooner.

In a report on "phase two" of the war, Fred M. Vinson, head of the Office of War Mobilization, said the exact size of the induction calls ahead cannot be calculated at this time.

Spread Service Burden

Release of men with long and hard service, he said, will require a higher level of calls because of the desire to spread the burden of military service among the largest possible proportion of the population.

He said that almost every soldier in this country, except those who have already been overseas or who are physically disqualified already is earmarked for foreign service.

At the present time, Vinson's report continued, about 1,400,000 are in training to go overseas. However, "only part of the needs can be met from the ranks now in the United States."

This means, he said, large numbers of troops will go direct from the European theater to the Pacific.

Some To Get Furloughs

Other troops will go to the Pacific by way of United States and have opportunities for furloughs before proceeding to their new destination. More than half of those to be transferred, including the great bulk of the combat units, will be allowed to come home first.

Demobilization of the 1,300,000 men the Army expects to release during the coming year, he said "will begin promptly," but the Navy does not plan to demobilize until Japan has been defeated.

"The soldiers to be released through the cut in the size of the Army will be selected from among

Davao Gulf Island Seized; Okinawa Casualties 16,425

577 Marines And 2,107 Soldiers Listed As Killed

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Thursday, May 10. — American casualties on Okinawa total 16,425 through Monday, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said today.

Japanese casualties for the same period — beginning with D-day April 1 on Okinawa and a week earlier in the Kerama island group nearby—were 36,535, Nimitz announced earlier.

American casualties were 2,107 soldiers and 577 Marines killed; 10,402 soldiers and 2,800 Marines wounded, and 501 soldiers and 38 Marines missing.

British Fleet Units Damaged

Nimitz's last figure on American casualties, as of May 3, was 2,337 killed, 11,432 wounded and 514 missing—a total of 14,283. That figure was not broken down into Army and Marine casualties.

Two unidentified units of the British Pacific fleet suffered "minor damage" yesterday in a Japanese retaliatory air attack after the British sent carrier planes to assault Miyako and Ishigaki islands in the Sakishima group, of the southern Ryukyu chain. British pilots destroyed two planes in the air and one on the ground as they attacked airfield installations.

Supported by heavy naval and aerial bombardment, doughboys on Okinawa "continued to move south" yesterday, Nimitz said without any details, after having been held to no gains Tuesday because of adverse weather. Associated Press correspondent Vern Haugland reported from Okinawa that heavy rains had bogged down vehicles.

Jap Lines Battered

Carrier aircraft, Marine Corsairs flying from Okinawa fields and ships' guns continued to pour their bombs, rockets and heavy shells into Japanese fortifications along the Naha-Yonabaru secondary defense line Tuesday. It was the fourth straight day battleships and cruisers had bombarded Nipponese strongpoints.

As previously reported by Haugland from Okinawa, Nimitz said "every gun ashore and every gun afloat which bore on the enemy on Okinawa fired one round simultaneously in recognition" of V-E day.

Army Mustang fighters, presumably from Iwo Jima, in "substantial force," destroyed two Japanese planes and probably destroyed five more in low level strafing attacks on Kisarazu airfield and Tateyama naval air station southeast of Tokyo Tuesday. That was poor hunting, so next day they returned and destroyed a small cargo vessel and a locomotive and damaged a train and a number of small craft.

Island Fields Pounded

Army Liberators bombed airfields on Marcus and Truk islands yesterday. Liberators and Navy search privateers destroyed five planes on the ground and damaged three in low level attacks on Marcus. This attack ran into intense antiaircraft fire and two American planes were lost. Survivors of one were rescued. Liberators also bombed Truk the same day and Marine Corsairs and Hellcats attacked installations in the Palaus.

U. S. Pacific fleet headquarters yesterday reported the third straight day of heavy naval shelling of the Japanese pillbox and cave line on the southern Okinawa front.

Presence of the Third Marine amphibious corps on the Okinawa line, along with the 24th Army corps which has borne the brunt of the fightingg there, also was revealed in the communique, indicating a strengthening of the American position for greater offensive weight.

Some Restrictions On Civilians Lift

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The government notified its civilians today they must remain in virtually full war harness until Japan is beaten, but abolished immediately the racing ban and midnight curfew on entertainment places.

"Some reconversion" to civilian good production was promised at once by War Mobilization Director Fred M. Vinson.

But he laid down the policy that nearly all the economic controls imposed for the two-front war-rationing, high taxes, wage and price ceilings, many manpower and production controls — should be maintained in force until the last shot is fired in the Pacific.

Dire Struggle Ahead

Vinson warned at a news conference of a dire struggle still ahead, predicting that Japan would not surrender unconditionally without a "successful and complete invasion" of her homeland.

This means that "a great part" of the war workers force must stay on the job and that munitions production will finally stabilize at not less than two-thirds of the present huge armament rate, Vinson stated, in his first meeting with the press since he became director of the office of war mobilization and reconversion.

The Army will reduce strength by 1,300,000 men in the next year, but slowly at first. The Navy will not be cut, he said. Draft calls will continue to be heavy and deferments for men under 30 "will continue to be relatively few."

Probably 1,500,000 war workers will lose their jobs in the next six months, Vinson predicted, perhaps 3,000,000 more in the following half year. But reconversion should soak up most of them, leaving 2,500,000 unemployed in twelve months compared with today's 1,000,000 jobless.

On the optimistic side of the picture, he forecast:

A few new passengers cars coming off assembly lines in six to nine months, and immediate start on moderate numbers of refrigerators and washing machines.

An increase in gasoline rations perhaps amounting to 50 per cent for A-card drivers; just when, he could not say. Commercial users, and perhaps B-card motorists, will get an increase too.

In a report released at the news conference, entitled "the war—phase two," Vinson gave the War Production board encouragement to start gradual its relaxation of industrial controls as soon as armament cutbacks permit—"generally speaking," he stated, "materials and manpower no longer

Drive Opened To Reach Yank Group Isolated By Japs

By FRED HAMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANILA, Thursday, May 10— Samal island in Davao gulf was invaded and virtually cleared by the 24th Infantry division Tuesday while on the Mindanao mainland the Japanese near Davao city fought bitterly, apparently intent on a bloody stand.

The invasion of Tarakan island, off Borneo, neared completion as Australian and Dutch troops seized Api hill and closed in on the Djoeata oil field.

Tarakan city, in the middle of the rich Pamoesian oil field was totally in Allied hands. Derricks had been destroyed but the wells appeared salvagable.

Protect Flank of Drive

Elements of Maj. Gen. Roscoe Woodruff's 24th division occupied Samal island to protect the flank during the drive up the western coast of Davao gulf. The landing was unopposed and few, if any, Japanese were believed on the island.

Samal, about 22 miles long and 10 wide, is the main island inside spacious Davao gulf.

This was announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who reported that on the Mindanao mainland a bridgehead had been established across the Talomo river north of Mintal in a drive against firm enemy positions.

Thus the Americans opened a battle to liquidate the Japanese force penned in a triangular area west of Davao city and reach a Yank battalion apparently still isolated in this sector.

Japs Penetrate Lines

Field dispatches reported yesterday that a Japanese counter-attack penetrated the American lines and almost ringed the battalion near Mintal. Some reinforcements were reaching the Yanks over a little-used trail. There was no further word today on how the battalion was faring.

"Strong pressure is being exerted on enemy positions in the Talomo river area," MacArthur reported.

Inland on Mindanao, one column of the 31st division advanced seven miles eastward from Kibawe while another, progressing northward, engaged an enemy force near the southern Maramag airstrip.

Medium bombers and light aircraft dropped 100 tons of explosives in close support.

Bombers and fighters hit Judat airdrome and important installations at Brunei bay, Miri and Bandjermasin on the Borneo main-

Polish Row Shifts To Big 3 Capitals

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—Knotty issues involving international trusteeships and regional security systems became the big hurdles before the United Nations conference tonight as a Polish problem shifted toward Moscow, London and Washington.

A British - American - Russian controversy over revamping Poland's government still is going full-tilt. But it faded from the San Francisco scene with the departure for Moscow of Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov.

Area Guardianships

Here at the Golden Gate, British and American delegations at a conference trying to draft a charter for keeping the world at peace are having their differences over international guardianships for areas seized from the enemy in this war and the last one.

But dozens of nations are jumping into an even broader dispute over whether a world organization should have complete power to settle localized threats to peace or whether regional groups of nations should handle them.

On that, the American delegation may have to seek guidance from President Truman. What worries the Americans is that the United States is committed to the Act of Chapultepec under which the American republics say they will take care of any threats to peace in this hemisphere — with armed force, if necessary.

Might Weaken Agency

Yet they are reluctant to see a whole series of such regional peace-enforcement agencies set up on a basis that would weaken the effectiveness of a world agency in dealing with conditions jeopardizing peace.

American delegates were toying tentatively tonight with com-

McWhorter Said Quitting OPA Job

The Morning Avalanche learned upon good authority late yesterday that the resignation of Owen McWhorter as head of the legal division of the West Texas district of Office of Price Administration has been formally submitted and will take effect on May 19.

Mr. McWhorter, asked for a statement, declined to comment. A longtime Lubbock lawyer, he has been chief legal officer of the 71-county district centered in Lubbock since inception in October of 1942.

Expected For Come Time

Mr. McWhorter's resignation has been expected in OPA and other circles for the past several weeks and marks the fourth such action on the part of high officials of the district office. There has been sharp differences of opinion between Lubbock district officials and heads of the six-state regional office in Dallas on matters of policy for some time and a "blow-up" in El Paso, forced by the Dallas officials, brought the matter to a head. Resigning at that time were District Director Howard Gholson, Supervisor of Boards Earl Kerr and Rationing Officer Ely Fonville.

The Morning Avalanche also learned yesterday that cracks in the crumbling OPA foundation here likely would be widened by at least one more resignation, perhaps others. The office now is being temporarily administered by J. Bryan Miller, regional executive officer because of illness of Mr. Gholson whose resignation does not become effective until May 12.

Other Offices Affected

Other resignations have been rolling in from other district officers in the Dallas region, it was learned, with charges being made that Dallas regional officials are seeking to man districts with "career bureaucrats" and "get rid of" persons from private businesses and the professions.

Top executives at Dallas are Will Orth, regional director, and Charles Braun, operations officer. Both are longtime government employes and both were WPA executives in previous years.

Substitute Bill On Tech Funds Offered

The Texas Technological college bill now en route to free conference committee in the Texas legislature is a complete substitute by Senator Sterling Parrish of Lubbock for the original senate bill which was substituted in turn for the house bill when it came up before the senate.

This was reported Wednesday by the Associated Press.

The original house recommendation was $955,601 for 1946 and $873,865 for 1947. The original senate bill called for $797,657 for 1946 and $780,146 for 1947.

The Parrish amendment raised the senate appropriation recommendation to $874,009 for 1946 and $856,509 for 1947, a difference of $76,363 for each year.

These differences remain to be adjusted by conference committee. The House has refused to accept senate amendments and has asked the senate for appointment of committee. This formality has not yet been accomplished but is expected to be soon.

America Cheered By Huge Russian Throng

MOSCOW, May 9 (AP) — Thousands of wildly-celebrating Muscovites gathered in front of the U. S. embassy this afternoon shouting "long live America" in the greatest spontaneous tribute to the United States ever staged here.

"Long live America! Long live Truman! Long live the memory of Roosevelt! Long live the great American people!" they shouted.

Officers, non-coms, privates, and members of the diplomatic staff flocked out of the embassy, joining the demonstration. Russians kissed them, beat them on the backs and lifted them into the air.

Over 400 B-29s Lash Oil Plants

GUAM, Thursday, May 10 (AP)—More than 400 Superfortresses—the largest B-29 fleet ever to attack Japan—bombed important naval oil storage areas on southeastern Honshu and airfields on Kyushu today.

Honshu is the main Japanese homeland island. Kyushu is the southernmost of the home chain.

The daylight strike on Honshu hit the Tokuyama and Otake fuel storage and manufacturing areas on the island with the objective of destroying a major source of Japan's vital supply of aviation fuel.

Four separate targets were bombed in this first raid on oil supply areas of Honshu. Three were near the town of Tokuyama, 48 miles southwest of Kure on the inland sea. The other was the big Tokuyama naval fueling station.

Synthetic Fuel Factory

Also hit was the Tokuyama synthetic fuel factory, near the naval fueling station. This is considered the Japanese Army's leading fueling center. The two were regarded as a single target.

The Otake oil refinery—one of the largest in Japan—was hit.

Another target was the Oshima oil storage area—the largest known oil storage unit in Japan proper.

Bombs were dropped visually in this first Superfort strike in force on Japanese oil resources.

While the bulk of the Superforts flying on the largest daylight mission yet undertaken by Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay's 21st Bomber command struck the oil area targets, one B-29 detachment hit four airfields on Kyushu and on southern Shikoku nearby.

Senate Revises Pension Plan, Offers Adjournment Date

AUSTIN, May 9 (AP)—The Senate today changed its mind on writing into the constitution restrictions on qualifications for old age pension recipients, and sent to the House a recommendation that the 49th legislature finally adjourn May 24.

The adjournment proposition played a second fiddle to a bitter fight on the old age assistance constitutional amendment. Backtracking on the question of tightening restrictions for old age pensioners drew from Sen. Jim Taylor of Kerens a sharp protest that the net effect would be more persons on the rolls, additional cost to the state, and benefit to no one.

Taylor, at the morning session, had offered an amendment which he said was "designed to keep dead beats off the pension rolls." This was adopted at the morning session, which recessed just short of a final vote on the resolution calling for submission of the proposed constitutional amendment.

Then, at the afternoon session, Sen. Alton York of Bryan who previously had supported the Taylor proposition, amended it to strike out the restrictive portions, and the amendment was adopted.

Before the Senate was its own committee version of a House-passed resolution calling for submission of a constitutional amendment placing a ceiling of $20 on the amount of state money that could be appropriated for individual pension grants. That amount now is $15.

As finally approved 21 to 6 by the Senate and sent back to the

Beattie Relates Stormy Events Shortly After Capture By Nazis

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Edward W. Beattie, jr., veteran United Press war correspondent, has reached Paris after more than seven months as a prisoner of the Germans. Today he tells, in the second of his series, of what happened to him after he was captured.)

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE, Jr.
United Press War Writer

PARIS, May 9.—My prison camp dairy told me it was Sept. 13, the second day of my captivity.

The Germans had locked us up for the night in the old French barracks at Chaumont-Sur-Marne. I had tried to get some rest, lying on an ancient mattress spread on the floor.

The Germans routed me out of the barracks at 3 a. m. but let my fellow prisoners sleep. One of the guards told me they had picked me because I spoke German.

John Mecklin, of the Chicago Sun, awakened just as I was leaving and asked me in a startled voice where I was going.

I said that I didn't know. I repeated assurances of yesterday that nobody had anything to worry about because the German Army would certainly not turn military prisoners over to the Gestapo.

I hoped I was right, but I was not very sure just where newspaper correspondents were as a class — especially those who were not exactly popular around Berlin for the past several years.

In any event, everything was all right up to the present. We felt our way through the pitch darkness, showing only the dimmest sort of a light.

Motley Convoy

I was perched on the tailend of a troop carrier of ancient vintage in the midst of a convoy composed of every sort of confiscated civilian vehicle. There were even ponderous charcoal burners and half ordinary internal combustion cars being towed by others fortunate enough still to be in working condition.

This was a sorry sort of military transport and was sufficient tribute to the Allied war power. We crawled at probably a five-mile an hour pace through the thick woods. Frequently we stopped.

Heavy Prussian voices argued violently and more delays halted the brokendown column. I got a certain amount of private amusement from the well known spectacle of a lot of Germans — who are all born traffic cops—berating each other on the road.

Nazis Hate Maquis

There were enemies along the road, hidden in the tall trees, and the German guards had submachine guns and light machineguns trained into the blackness. They hate the Maquis.

But the fellow on my right warned me that he would have to shoot me if I tried to escape and the little Austrian on my left told me in a whisper.

"It was nicer before the Germans came."

He actually pleaded with me not to do anything which might provoke fire.

As we reached our goal, three Mustang fighter planes suddenly dived out of the blue sky and raked the tailend of our sorry column four times. Fortunately, we already had been in town and could take refuge around a corner of a building.

Makeshift Ambulances

I don't know what the casualties were but the ambulances—also makeshift — began shuttling around.

Apparently I was going to live with a headquarters guard company. Most of them were middle-aged men who would be nowhere near the front in any other Army.

This battle group, commanded by a certain Gen. Ottenbacher, consisted of partly regular Army, partly SS, plus all sorts of Luftwaffe ground personnel. One of them told me that we would be thrown back into the channel within two days!

The troops were armed with the weapons of all nations, including many Sten guns and American-made revolvers and semi-automatic rifles, especially dropped for the Maquis.

Didn't Fight Fair

The Germans said the Maquis didn't fight fair because they are apt to shoot them from behind. I pointed out that the Germans had been known to use fifth column tactics themselves and nobody seemed to have heard of it.

I got some sausage, cheese and brown Army bread at 11 a. m., some meat with noodles at 1 p. m., and bread and sardines at 6 p. m., plus some watery ersatz tea.

It was not too bad as such fare goes but it was not exactly front-line fighting diet.

RESINOL SOAP and OINTMENT

Do You Know

HOW TO SHAVE?

MANY MEN shave all their lives, yet never learn how! They simply smear a little lather or brushless cream on their face, grab a razor, and shave. Result: scratch, scrape, pull—an irritated skin—an unsatisfactory shave—and much unflattering comment about blade, razor, soap or whatever!

TO SHAVE PROPERLY, the first requirement is adequate preparation. Wash your face thoroughly with hot water and ordinary soap to remove the grit, oil and perspiration that ordinarily coats the face, and to soften the hair. Use good hot water—the time required for proper softening decreases rapidly, the hotter your water is. Then rinse the face thoroughly.

Now apply a good shaving soap (rubbing the lather in well with fingertips) or, if you prefer, a brushless cream. These preparations further emulsify the natural oil of the skin and permit the hairs to be wet more thoroughly. Allow from two to three minutes, or even longer for these simple tasks, and your shave will be quicker, easier, and more satisfactory.

AND NOW, the last requirement of a good shave—the blade you use. There are many satisfactory blades on the market, but one is quite unique and offers a great advantage over usual blades. This blade is hollow ground. Usual blades are ground like a jackknife, like this /\. The hollow ground blade is /\ ground like a barber's razor like this /\. Due to hollow grinding, this /\ blade is not held rigid by the razor guard. The slight "play" at the flexible edge permits the blade to follow facial contours effortlessly without "bearing down". And it's "bearing down" that irritates tender skins and wears out delicate blade edges prematurely.

So men, prepare your face properly, use plenty of time and water, get yourself some of those hollow ground blades and—learn to make shaving a pleasanter, easier task.

Soviet Doubtful On Argentine Situation

LONDON, May 7. (AP) — The Moscow radio charged today that "the Farrell-Peron military clique ruling in Argentina cannot be regarded otherwise than as Hitler's reserve brigade."

"The hasty invitation of that South American country to the San Francisco conference cannot evoke anything but a feeling of anxiety," it said.

Williams Addresses Petersburg Class

PETERSBURG, May 9.(Special) —Jeff Williams of Chickasha, Okla., who is widely known as a speaker, will deliver the address at commencement services opening at 8:45 o'clock Friday night at Petersburg High school, Supt. Sidney Reeves has announced.

Williams is a lawyer and is past president of Rotary International.

Diplomas are to be warded to 31 members of the class by Kenneth Robinson, school board representative.

Miss Juanita Bell will deliver the valedictory address and Arthur Hegi, high ranking boy, will deliver the salutatory address. Miss Jo Dell Pharr is salutatorian of the class.

Supt. Reeves said that, "Many critics rank Williams as one of the leading speakers of the United States and his services are widely sought throughout the nation as a speaker at various occasions, and it is thought that a large crowd will take advantage of the opportunity to hear the Oklahoman." The public is invited to hear his address, he said.

Norway's Quisling Is Placed In Jail

OSLO, Norway, May 9 (AP) — Vidkun Quisling, whose name became a synonym for treachery in this war, was taken to the Oslo jail today from his estate outside Oslo, and will be arraigned publicly in court some time this afternoon under Norwegian law.

The Norwegian Nazi chief, broken by the swift events which toppled his five-year grip on Norway, drove up to the Oslo police station in a bullet-proof car with six of his cabinet members.

(Dispatches from Oslo yesterday said Quisling had been in his lavish suburban home "Gimle," guarded by homefront men.)

The Norwegian home forces rounded up 400 other Quislings throughout the capital.

Quisling was assigned to a cell in the famed Moellegatan 19 prison, from which hundreds of his own political prisoners have been released since Germany's capitulation.

The first outbreak of violence occurred in Oslo during the night when two Norwegians and a German sailor were killed in a skirmish outside the office of the newspaper Aftenposten.

Authorities said a drunken Nazi sailor tossed a hand grenade at homefront soldiers, killing a civilian and an Oslo policeman.

The German sailor was killed in the resulting exchange of shots.

Herbst Recounts Service Overseas

Negro boys, properly trained and with proper leadership, make as good soldiers as white men according to Joe Herbst, Texas Tech student who served as a captain in North Africa, Sicily and Italy. Herbst, addressing the Rotary club at the Hilton hotel Wednesday noon, asserted that officers must develop a feeling of confidence and loyalty between the troops and their commanders.

Herbst, who was commanding officer of negro troops in an Engineers battalion, has resumed his studies at Texas Tech since his discharge from the Army. He was introduced by Ely Fonville, program chairman.

Herbst recounted some of his experiences with the troops in England and Africa and Sicily, declaring that the colored soldiers carried themselves through many a difficult situation purely on their sense of humor.

The Junior High school girls' choral club, directed by Mrs. Elois Elliott, entertained with a number of songs at the outset of the luncheon. Miss Nell Verna Lemond accompanied at the piano.

R. E. Fry, Floydada; W. G. Smith, Houston; Bill Blakeney, Abilene; W. S. Doss, Seminole and Jimmie Rankin were visiting Rotarians. Pfc. Bill Tilson of the Marines and Lt. Ed Karper of the Navy were also guests along with honorary member, Capt. Walter Howard.

Cliff Dean was introduced as the Junior Rotarian for May.

Miller Asks Support Of Price Control

J. Bryan Miller, acting district director of the Office of Price administration, in stressing the cost of the continuance of war in the Pacific has asked the public to continue its support of the price control system to battle inflation that might come with high bidding and competition for the civilian goods that shall continue on the "scarcity list."

"In the months immediately ahead, OPA will have a heavier load of work than at any time in the war period," said Miller.

Planning to remove controls in an orderly manner as supplies mount to meet demand, Miller reminded that the large amount of war bond savings will add to the pressure on the control offices.

Demand for civilian goods will remain high, and perhaps grow, and "insofar as we are able to determine now, it will mean the continuation of major rationing programs, certainly through 1945 at the very least . . . many until final victory in the Pacific," Miller declared.

Nazis Fight Nazis In Segeburg Battle

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, May 9 (AP)—Germans fought Germans in the small battle of Segeburg 25 miles north of Hamburg today.

More than 300 fanatic SS Marines had turned the forest there into a little redoubt, declaring themselves against German civilians who surrendered.

The territory was made out of bounds for British troops, and German soldiers were sent into the redoubt by their commander to clear it out.

Keitel Arrogantly Stomps Out As His Surrender Plea Unanswered

NEW YORK, May 9. (AP) — After signing the articles of surrender during the rafication ceremonies in Berlin today Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German general staff, shut his portfolio, arose and marched out, CBS correspondent Howard K. Smith said.

CBS said Smith attended as the only representative of American networks.

Smith said Keitel was the personification of Prussian and Nazi arrogance. Keitel carried the baton presented to him by Hitler and alone of all the German officers in the room wore the gold badge of honorable Nazi service to Hitler, Smith said.

Portion Of Broadcast

Following is Smith's broadcast in part:

"The greatest V-E day of all happened yesterday in, of all places, Berlin.

"The Russians demanded that, in addition to the articles of surrender signed three days ago in Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters, the commanders of all three German armed forces meet them for ratification of that surrender in the capital of Germany. This morning I have just come back from Berlin after watching the new signature last night in Marshal Zhukov's headquarters in a suburb in eastern Berlin.

"The event was dominated by the tangible presence of two men—Gregory Zhukov, Russia's greatest and perhaps one of the world's greatest, military commanders, and Hitler's field marshal, Wilhelm Keitel, the personification and, if humanity is luckly, the last gasp of Prussian militarism. It was humiliation for Field Marshal Keitel to stand before, as the Prussians call them, "a proletarian from Red Russia," and beg surrender. He fought back with all the arrogance he was capable of.

Carries Engraved Baton

"He entered the dining hall of the German Army engineering school, where the ceremony took place, and saluted stiffly with the field marshal's baton given him by Hitler and bearing the engraved swastika of Hitler.

"Keitel was nervous and irritated. He kept bobbing his monocle into his eye and out again. He signed the documents of capitulation but as soon as he had done so and resumed his chair he began gesticulating and arguing with the interpreters.

"Quickly the rumor circulated about the room that Keitel wanted to withdraw his signature. Keitel was requesting 24 hours more before the surrender went into effect. He claimed he did not have time to inform his troops of the terms of capitulation.

"Finally, the interpreter went over to Marshal Zhukov and stated Keitel's case. But there were three men listening, the three men who, more than any other, have crushed Berlin. Gen Carl Spaatz, commander of the American Strategic bombers, was one. Chief Air Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder of the RAF was another and Zhukov, who took Berlin, was the third. Not one of them gave any sign of wishing to answer.

Limit In Humiliation

"When Keitel saw that he slammed shut his portifolio, containing the signed copies of the surrender. He stood stiffly, saluted bruskly with his baton, and marched out of the room. It was the last word in humiliation for a Junker and a Nazi.

"To watch the ceremony, eight correspondents from supreme headquarters arrived in Berlin by airplane yesterday at noon. A haze covered the city. The haze came from smoke still smoldering from fires, but through it you could easily see mile after mile of roofless, jagged holes of houses.

"Seeing Berlin on the ground was one of the most amazing experiences of my life, I left Berlin the day of Pearl Harbor. It bears not the slightest resemblance to the Berlin I knew. It's the most enormous, almost terrifying wreck of concentrated destruction in history."

Japs To Keep Up Fight To Finish

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9 (AP)—The Japanese government announced today the collapse of Germany "will not bring the slightest change" in Japan's determination to fight to the finish.

This was reported by Tokyo radio which simultaneously announced new preparations to meet an invasion of the home islands.

Broadcasts recorded by the Federal Communications commission said the Army simplified its "air defense conscription in order to prepare for the possibility of our mainland becoming a battlefield." Another said barricades would be constructed throughout the nation "in the event of an enemy landing on Japan proper."

The "official statement" on Japan's war policy was adopted at a special meeting of the full cabinet, called by Premier Adm. Baron Kantaro Suzuki, and approved by Emperor Hirohito. It followed the tenor of reported Tokyo newspaper editorials saying Japan's determination was "absolutely unaffected" by Germany's surrender.

Regrets Nazi Surrender

The "official statement" said:

"The imperial government of Japan expresses its deep regret on the surrender of Germany, which shared the common objective with the imperial government of Japan."

"The objective of the war of the imperial government of Japan, of course, lies in the interest of her self-existence and self-defense. This is the unwavering confidence of the imperial government of Jajan and the sudden change of the war objective of the imperial government of Japan.

"... Japan will devote her total effort toward the complete destruction of the unjust ambition of the United States and Britain. . ."

There is bitter, costly fighting ahead. And beyond that, an equally important job—building a sound, solvent post-war America—guarding against the pitfalls of economic strife, depression and unemployment—holding fast to the principle of private enterprise which has made America great.

Here is a job in which every one of us has a share. And there is no better time than now to pledge our diligence and vigilance to the unfinished work ahead.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

WE wish it could be possible for us to take a long reach into history and see the way in which events of the past month will be recorded. Since April 12, date of the death of President Roosevelt, so many epoch making events have taken place we find ourselves in a whirl of confusion. How about you?

Which of these events will be important enough to warrant several paragraphs—the death of Mussolini, seizure of the Reichstag, suicide of Hitler, capture of Berlin, end of war in Italy, fall of Hamburg, collapse of the Nazi party? We are too close to discern but it would be interesting to see how a true historian presents it to the next generation.

RATIONING SHOES

AN area salesman for a famous brand of women's footwear told us Uncle Sam is disappointed in the way American women and young girls have responded to rationing of shoes. Their actions have defeated the purpose. It's estimated there are millions of pairs of shoes in closets today that either are not worn at all or are less than one-fourth worn.

According to the salesman few women have let shoe stamps become invalid in their books or in anyone else's they could beg or barter for. As a consequence there are many more stamps in existence than shoes.

HOUSEWORK FATIGUE

A WOMAN'S work is never done! From the time she gets up in the morning to the time she gets the children safely tucked in bed at night, the average housekeeper is on the run these days. Often, even after the youngsters are slumbering soundly, the mother is still busy with lunch box preparations or planning a covered dish luncheon for her needle club or church class or writing letters.

Some of the fatigue of housework may be lessened by sound planning we are told. The following are worthwhile suggestions by noted health authorities on how it can be done:

Plan work in advance to distribute it evenly through the week.

Make as liberal use of labor-saving devices as possible.

Learn the way to do each job with the minimum of strain, and do it the same way each time.

Place related equipment in the same place to eliminate dashing to and fro on one job.

Have plenty of light where it is needed.

War Is Said Long Way From Finished

AUSTIN, May 9. (U.P.) — Two naval officers today told Texas House members that a long time will be required to defeat the Japanese.

Commander Jerry A. Steward, 26 years in the Navy and a former resident of Fairfield, Freestone county, said he spent three years in a Jap prison camp. He wore three rows of decorations, and praised Red Cross aid to Americans in the prison camp.

Lt. Fred Harris, Dallas, a former member of the legislature, has served in both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

"We're a long ways from through—it's a slow process," said Harris who also wore numerous decorations.

At Iwo Jima, Harris said the enemy was so close at night that "when you reached out and felt the man next to you, if he had buck-teeth he was a Jap and you killed him."

Doughboy, Bayonet To Replace Tanks

By TOM REEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 9. — The tank carried the load in the European war; in the Pacific, it will be the doughboy and his bayonet.

That is the Army's view of the task ahead.

War department authorities, turning immediately from the jubilance of V-E day to the grim business of eliminating the Japanese, informally sized up the problem this way:

Europe was tank country.

The Pacific is totally different. The home islands of Japan do not lend themselves to tank warfare. It is questionable whether even the broad plains of China, do.

The principal tank weapon against the Japanese will be—in fact, already is—the deadly flamethrower on wheels. It has turned out to be the best disintegrator of pill boxes after anti-tank guns are knocked out.

But in a campaign where the terrain is overcome by the yard instead of by the mile, it is the foot-slogging doughboy with his rifle and bayonet who must carry the burden.

News Censorship Is Relaxed After V-E

WASHINGTON, May 9. (AP) — News censorship will continue under relaxed restrictions resulting from the end of the European war.

Censorship Director Byron Price last night announced elimination or modification of several sections of the voluntary code that has governed publication of war news in the United States since January 15, 1942. The code soon will be rewritten in shorter form.

Basic military information still is subject to authorization by competent authorities.

Price said "the end of German resistance alters security requirements materially although it by no means erases the need for, or importance of, voluntary censorship."

Supreme Court Rules For Watkins On Deed Involving Hockley Tract

A majority of the Texas Supreme court judges in Austin Wednesday decided for F. G. Watkins in their opinion interpreting meaning of a deed from Bob Slaughter conveying 80 acres of oil land in Hockley county to Watkins.

"The judges decided the deed conveyed but one-sixteenth of the usual one-eighth oil royalty, but Justice John Sharp, dissenting, thought it conveyed a full one-sixteenth royalty," the United Press reported from Austin, adding:

Ruling Made on Intent

"The decision was not on particular wording in the deed but on intent gained from the deed as a whole. The decision reverses the judgments of a trial court (72nd) of Lubbock county and the court of civil appeals at Amarillo."

Durward D. Mahon, who represented Watkins and who argued the case on appeal before the court six weeks ago, said significance of the decision to Watkins was that he as grantee would receive an additional seven-sixteenths of the usual one-eighth royalty on two producing oil wells; and that "the case established the proper construction of the instrument (deed) and similar instruments that have been relied on several years."

He said that the effect on the grantor would be this: "He would receive only 1/128th gross production instead of 1/16th of gross production, or one-half of one-eighth royalty."

Much Significance

Mahon said there probably would be far-reaching significance attached to the decision, that immediate legal repercussion might be expected; surely, that those owners who had not signed "division orders" would modify their demands.

He said thousands of proven acres, owned by hundreds of individuals, and worth in oil resources an incalculable sum were affected by the court's decision.

The original petition in the case, styled F. G. Watkins and wife against Sue Alice Slaughter and husband, was filed in Hockley county and the cause was moved by agreement to Lubbock county for trial, which was May 11, 1944. It recited, in part, that the deed referred to was recorded Jan. 1, 1932, in Hockley county, "together with 15/16ths interest in the oil and gas and other minerals under same, together with the right to lease all of said land for oil and gas, and reserving only to grantor (Slaughter) 1/16th interest in said oil and gas."

Pleadings Set Out

Pleadings further said: "That it was intention of parties to said deed and contract that . . . Slaughter, grantor . . ., should grant to . . . Watkins . . . 16/16ths of the oil and gas and other minerals . . . with the right to execute oil and gas leases covering all the minerals in said land and to receive 15/16ths of all the oil and gas royalties provided for in said lease, together with all of the bonuses and rentals, and the grantor was to retain only 1/16th interest in the oil, gas and other minerals and to receive only 1/16th of the royalties provided for in oil and gas leases executed by grantee. . ."

Watkins prayed for "judgment construing the deed and contract to grant to plaintiff 15/16ths of all oil, gas and other minerals under said land, the right to lease same for oil and gas and retain all of the bonuses and rentals and to receive and be entitled to 15/16ths of all oil and gas royalties provided for in said oil and gas leases and that said Bob Slaughter . . . have only 1/16th of the minerals subject to any oil and gas lease placed thereon by plaintiffs and being 1/16th of the oil and gas royalties provided for in said lease or leases. . ."

Meaning Of Language

In his petition for writ of error on behalf of Watkins, Mahon recited stipulations on which the case had been tried and pleaded that "the sole question for determination by this court is the construction to be placed upon the above quoted language and whether . . . the reservation so owned by defendants is 1/16th of the gross minerals as a royalty or 1/16th of the usual 1/8th royalty."

He recited that the trial court had construed "the above reservation as reserving to grantor a non-participating, perpetual royalty interest, equivalent to 1/16th of the gross minerals heretofore and hereafter to be produced from said tract of land, which 1/16th of such gross minerals shall be delivered to defendants . . . as a royalty."

Affirmed On Appeal

The court of civil appeals affirmed the lower court's holding on Oct. 9, 1944, and overruled petitioner's motion for rehearing Nov. 13, 1944.

In his prayer, Mahon submitted that "the judgment of the trial court and of the court of civil appeals is erroneous in respects herein shown and therefore prays that this court grant a writ of error to the court of civil appeals to review its decision, and that upon final hearing this court will reverse the judgment of both the trial court and the court of civil appeals and render this case in favor of petitioner."

That was what the supreme court did—reverse and render in favor of Watkins.

12 Missing After Torpedo Hits Ship

BOSTON, May 9. (U.P.)—Eleven merchant seamen and one navy man are missing and believed dead in the torpedoing of a merchant coal carrier by an enemy submarine May 5 off the Rhode Island coast, the navy announced today.

The S. S. Black Point, a bulk collier owned by the Sprague steamship company of Boston, had a complement of 41 merchantmen and five navy members of the armed guard when the torpedo struck. The vessel sank almost immediately, and its 34 survivors were picked up within 45 minutes by three Allied merchant vessels in the vicinity.

None of the sunken ship's crew sighted a submarine before, during or after the attack. However, the chief officer and master of two Allied ships that participated in the rescue were quoted as saying they saw the torpedo as it hit

The 396-foot craft was homeward bound on its regular Norfolk, Va., to Boston run when it was struck at 5:40 p. m. Capt. Charles E. Prior, 38, of Belfast, Me., master of the vessel, said the torpedo hit the aft starboard side and the explosion took the entire poop.

System Planned To Protect Tire Supply

A Wednesday announcement from the Office of Price administration disclosed that a tighter system of record-keeping is to be effected June 1 designed to protect and extend the nation's small supply of tires.

Tire dealers will be required to maintain current records and to take a monthly inventory to establish accountability for tires and tire certificates. New bookkeeping and inventory forms, together with detailed instructions on their preparation to limit bookkeeping to the minimum necessary to assure proper compliance, will be mailed soon by the OPA offices.

New requirements are intended to aid the OPA enforcement agencies in uncovering illegal tire certificates dated before December 1, 1944, and the requirement that manufacturers turn in certificates monthly to OPA verification centers.

Those dealers failing to receive new forms through the mail will be able to obtain these at OPA regional and district offices as well as from tire manufacturers and dealer association offices.

Junior Red Cross Matter Is Settled

Two children who allegedly represented themselves as accepting donations for the Junior Red Cross were interviewed by Mrs. Nancy Green, assistant juvenile officer, and the matter was settled.

One boy was 9 and one was 8. The 9-year-old collected about $2 several days ago and the two collected $2.40 Tuesday afternoon, it was reported. In cases where they could locate those who had given the money, the parents returned the gifts.

Only one drive for junior Red Cross donations is conducted annually and that is by public school teachers, Red Cross officials announced. Children are not authorized to receive the donations. Mrs. E. E. Louthan, city chairman of the junior Red Cross, said teachers receive donations delivered by students each fall and present them to Miss Stella Thurman, finance chairman for the annual drive.

Legislators Start On Cut-Salary Basis

AUSTIN, May 9 (AP) — Beginning today secretaries and certain other employes of the Legislature earn more per day than members.

Under the Constitution the pay of members drops from $10 to $5 after the 120th day which was Tuesday. The pay of secretaries and some other employes was set at $6 per day when the session began and the rate remains unchanged.

Bar Membership Plea Is Refused By Court

AUSTIN, May 9. (U.P.) — The Texas supreme court today refused the application of Harold M. Hankamer, former state representative from El Paso county, to force George Templin, clerk of the Texas supreme court, to issue him state bar membership.

Hankamer was convicted of conversion of funds of an estate in 34th district court in El Paso and given a three-year sentence. The court judgment included disbarment as a lawyer. He later was pardoned in full and contended the pardon restored his right to practice.

Supreme court Commissioner W. M. Taylor in the opinion adopted by the court today wrote:

"In our opinion the pardon and restoration of citizenship did not reinstate petitioner's privilege to practice, nor restore his former office as an attorney."

He said the governor's power to pardon is limited to criminal cases and that disbarment is a civil proceeding.

Hankamer had contended that the inclusion of disbarment in the El Paso court's judgment was summary and irregular. The opinion today said his remedy is by appeal to the 34th district court for re-instatement.

After conviction Hankamer removed from El Paso to Houston.

TAYLOR TO McALLEN

McALLEN, May 9 (AP)—B. N. (Bill) Taylor will arrive here from Port Arthur May 10 to assume his duties as newly named McAllen city manager, Mayor Allen Vannoy said. Taylor, city manager at Port Arthur for five years, earlier served 12 years in a similar post at Longview.

Baseball Booster Club To Organize

Be an Adult Baseball Booster.

The American Legion junior baseball program needs help from John Q. Fan, and the Adult Baseball Booster club is the way for the average fan to give the kids a pat on the back, and a boost in the bank.

The fastest growing sport in West Texas provided the only baseball in Lubbock last season. Indications are that the kids, with a year of experience behind them, will provide better baseball this year. But a program of this nature takes the full share of all the fans in Lubbock.

Cards have been printed for membership in the Adult Baseball Booster club, and larger cards, suitable for framing and placing in the office or home, and for larger donors, are being prepared.

Last season, countless fans at the junior games expressed a desire to help the sport along, and from the fans themselves came the idea of the ABB.

The money raised in this manner will go to defray the expenses of the sport, and provide improvements in playing equipment, grounds and to finance the season's play.

Legionnaires will launch the sale of tickets Tuesday morning, it was announced by H. J. McCabe, chairman of the American Legion Junior Baseball committee. Several other leading backers of the leagues will also have the tickets for sale.

There is no set price on the club membership, and it will be left to the fan to judge his own limits of helping the junior baseball program continue to grow.

Trackmen Brag About Race Betting Purse

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP) — Thoroughbred racing, which swings into action Saturday after an absence of over four months in the United States, reached its financial peak last year when $1,209,973,122 was wagered, of which approximately $56,000,000 went to the treasuries of 17 states.

New York, which in recent years attracted about 25 per cent of the total betting in the country, broke all records as $410,230,402 poured through the pari-mutuel machines and state received close to $28,000,000 during the 189-day period.

Longhorns Near Baseball Crown

AUSTIN, May 9 (AP)—The University of Texas Longhorns got a firmer grip on the 1945 Southwest Conference baseball championship here today as they came from behind to trounce the second-place Southern Methodist Mustangs, 7-4.

Although he allowed ten hits, big Sam Lay went the route to win his first victory.

SMU jumped into a 4-0 lead in the first five innings, paced by Harry Teal, who collected three hits, including a double, and drove in half the Mustangs' runs.

Then in the fifth Lay singled, Don Wooten walked, and Jack Lindsey drove them both in with a rugged single. Captain Zeke Wilemon's single scored Lindsey, and after Wilemon had gone to third on an error he chalked up the tying run on Leroy Anderson's base knock.

Skelton Napier relieved Shaw at the end of the fifth with the score tied and became the losing pitcher when he allowed Texas to load the bases and score the winning run in the sixth and two more for good measure in the eighth.

The two teams play here again tomorrow.

Ban Lifted On Race Tracks Over Nation

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP) — The Kentucky Derby probably will be run June 2, and horses will be galloping on other tracks before this week ends as the result of today's removal of the racing ban.

War Mobilizer Fred M. Vinson abolished the prohibition at a news conference in the White House, stating that it was effective "at once" as one of the readjustments following Germany's surrender.

Thus ended a four-months furor that swept the nation over the only complete shutdown of a sport during wartime.

Other headliners in turfdom's "triple crown," the Preakness and Bermont stakes, will be held June 9 and June 23, respectively, if the derby falls on June 2.

Unlike the sudden shutdown which caught racing unawares, the sport was prepared for Vinson's announcement with many preliminary arrangements already made. Horses have been conditioning and most tracks are in good shape.

The War Manpower commission gave racing an additional boost by stating that its "zero" employment ceiling for tracks will be removed. This regulation permitted the hiring of only essential maintenance workers.

Vinson called attention to existing transportation restrictions, which will remain in effect, and referred inquiries about the shipment of horses to ODT officials.

The ODT later issued an order permitting such shipments. Several hundred cars specially suited to transporting horses are available and are little used for other purposes.

FOXX IS SICK

PHILADELPHIA, May 9 (AP)—The Phillies hopes of solving their problem of infield jitters received a rude jolt late last night when Jimmy Foxx was ordered to bed.

Manager Fitzsimmons said Foxx "is under doctor's orders for at least 48 hours. We don't know what's wrong with him, but his baby just got over pneumonia."

BROOKLYN, May 9 (AP) — Brooklyn pounced on Harry (The Cat) Brecheen for four runs in the sixth inning to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-4 today as rookie Vic Lombardi gained his second triumph of the season.

The Brooks were held scoreless until the sixth when they batted Brecheen off the mound, sending four runs over the plate on five hits, including a double by Frenchy Bordagaray and a triple by Dixie Walker. Bud Byerly, who relieved Brecheen yielded two runs in the seventh, both tallies being brought in by a double by Walker.

The defeat was Brecheen's first against two victories while Lombardi evened his record at one victory and one defeat.

It was Hausmann's first of the season and No. 5 for Ott whose lifetime total of 494 now equals that of the late Lou Gehrig.

DETROIT, May 9. (AP) — Paul (Dizzy) Trout gained his fourth victory of the season today as the Detroit Tigers defeated the New York Yankees 4-1 in the first of a three-game series.

It was Trout's fourth victory of the year compared to one loss while it was the first defeat for the Yankee rookie righthander. It was also Trout's seventh straight over the Yankees, who have not beaten him since August 24, 1942.

The Bengals broke through a tie score in the fifth to tally three times on four hits to capture their 10th game in the last 12 played by the rivals in Briggs stadium, before 7,547 fans.

Scene Of Polish Argument Shifts

promise. One of them was along lines of an Australian proposal to cancel the power of a single big nation to block regional efforts to adjust international disputes.

Molotov boarded a Moscow-bound plane in midmorning. No sooner had he left than the British and American foreign ministers got together with W. Averell Harriman, U. S. ambassador to Russia, and Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, Britain's envoy to Moscow.

FIRST MAJOR ACTION

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9 (AP) — A United Nations conference committee voted tonight to let an international assembly recommend measures for "peaceful adjustment of any situation" likely to impair the welfare of friendly relations among nations.

This was the first major action of any conference working group. It still must be ratified by a conference commission and the full conference itself.

Review Whole Question

Apparently they reviewed the entire question of broadening the Polish government. And apparently, also, Harriman and Kerr got their instructions on how to procede on this issue from now on. They were leaving tonight for Moscow by way of Washington and London.

Sitting in on the conversations in Stettinius' Fairmont hotel penthouse was Charles E. Bohlen, State department Russian expert and liaison man with the White House, who also is flying back to Washington.

It was learned that the British and Americans still have received no reply from the Russians to their demand for a full explanation of the arrest of sixteen Polish underground leaders. They are reported standing firm on their insistance that this explanation be provided, with Britain and the United States maintaining a united front.

Reply Expected Soon

A Russian reply is expected within a few days, however. Stettinius and Eden are known to feel there can be little, if any, progress on complete adjustment of the Polish issue until it comes along.

Then new discussions could proceed in Moscow between Molotov, Harriman and Kerr.

Conference delegates heard, too, that Prime Minister Churchill was urging Eden to return to London because of the situation raised by Germany's surrender.

But with the second large-scale issue of trusteeships over dependent lands still unsettled, Eden is reported to be delaying his departure until later in the week.

Answering calls of top statesmen for speed, conference committees went through a whirl of day and night sessions. Ten of the dozen committees were hard at work. One was reported to have decided that a new world court should continue as did the old one to sit at The Hague.

Lesser lights from other countries sat in on the session handling regional arrangements, but Latin Americans assigned their foreign ministers or chiefs of delegation to its deliberations.

land. Three coastal ships were sunk and there was widespread destruction to shipyards and runways.

The entire waterfront at Labaun island, offshore, was left ablaze. Labaun is off the northwest coast of Borneo.

A Japanese destroyer, a subchaser and two freighters were sunk as heavy bombers ranged from Sumatra to Shanghai and into the North China sea. Fortifications and communications on Hainan island were severely pounded.

On Northern Luzon

In the northern Luzon ground fighting, four infantry divisions carried on mopping up operations in the Benguet and Caraballo mountains. Three of the divisions are menacing the bitterly-defended Balete pass.

Japanese forces on Mindanao, major island of the southern Philippines, have changed from a strategy of general retreat and turned to fight in the Davao sector.

In the first strong opposition offered since Maj. Gen. Roscoe B. Woodruff's 24th division landed on the Moro gulf east coast 18 days ago and pushed 140 miles eastward to Davao city, the Japanese punched through thin Yank lines, established defense positions and opened up with artillery.

Troop Deployment

home.

Within a week after arriving in this country, Somervell estimated, the soldiers should reach home for furloughs, or permanent release, as the case may be. Furloughed men, on completion of their leaves, will go back to the personnel centers, will be formed into groups and sent to assembly points for reassignments and special training.

The personnel centers to which the troops will go after reaching this country include:

Fort Bliss, Tex., serving Arizona, New Mexico and western Texas; Fort Sam Houston, Tex., serving eastern Texas.

SOME TROOPS IN ITALY ALREADY TRANSFERRED

ROME, May 9. (AP) — Some American combat troops already have been transferred direct from Italy to the Pacific war zone, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commander of U. S. forces in the Mediterranean area, disclosed today.

Only a relatively small number of the troops in this area will be demobilized and these probably won't leave Italy for several months, McNarney said in a V-E day broadcast.

Most of the soldiers in Italy, the commander said, would be needed either for European occupation assignments or for more campaigning in the Far East.

The movement to the Pacific theater, he said, would be via the United States.

LEADERS DRIVEN DOWN

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP)—The stock market reacted from recent highs today in a late burst of selling which drove leaders down fractions to more than 2 points.

The downturn came in the last 20 minutes of trading and was attributed to an expected technical correction after advances which had sent some pivotals to 8-year highs. Profit-taking accounted for part of the decline.

Transfers of 1,490,000 compared with 1,580,000 the preceding day.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was down .6 of a point at 64.5. Of 796 issues traded, 634 were off, 172 up and 172 unchanged.

Bethlehem, Chrysler, J. I. Case, Eastern Air Lines and International Harvester lost more than 2 points.

Bonds were irregularly lower and commodities were mixed.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP)—The cotton futures market fluctuated in a narrow range today as traders turned cautious pending clarification of price control legislation and the government cotton program next season. Liquidation and hedging was about offset by mill buying against textile awards and local covering.

Final prices were unchanged to 30 cents a bale higher. Tightness in spot cotton, an unfavorable weekly weather report and continuing heavy war textile needs were strengthening factors. However, the fact that prices have advanced to the CCC buying levels for the staple under the purchase program discouraged aggressive demand for futures. Wet and cold conditions in many parts of the cotton belt continued to retard planting operations and crop growth, the weather report indicated.

Soviet Celebration

bers of the State department joined in the wild tribute and were hugged and kissed by the Russians. The demonstration was touched off anew when George Kennan, U. S. minister, hung out the Soviet flag beside the United States flag which was at half staff for the late President.

Throughout the early morning and all day the center of the celebration was the vast Kremlin square where the people shuffled over the old cobblestones shouting "long live Stalin. Long live victory." American GI's danced over the ancient stones with pretty Russian factory girls released from their duties to celebrate the victory over Germany.

One American corporal, after about an hour's celebrating, gasped:

"Boy, oh boy. If I'd played post-office every day until I got into the Army, I wouldn't have been kissed as many times as I've been kissed today."

News Spreads Quickly

The first word the Russians had of the end of the conflict with Germany was at 1:10 a. m. this morning when Uri Levitan, star announcer for the Moscow radio, came on the air with the glad tidings.

Although most of Moscow's residents were asleep the news quickly spread. Lights snapped on in residences and people—many in night clothes—tumbled out into the streets shouting and dancing. Some knelt on the pavement and prayed.

The announcement of the war's end was quickly followed by a special order decreeing today a holiday.

MOURNING ENDS MAY 14

Returned Troops Of Army To Fill Camps

DALLAS, May 9. (AP) — Brig. Gen. C. B. Rucker told a conference of Eighth service command personnel officers today that posts and camps in the five states of the command would again fill with thousands of troops as overseas units returned to be retained for duty elsewhere or inactivated and separated from service.

Rucker, chief of staff of the command, opened a conference at which problems brought by victory in Europe were discussed. The meeting will last through Friday. A similar meeting with emphasis on hospital personnel problems will be held next week at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

"Just as the impetus was placed on training and supply for troops prior to their departure for overseas service, similar emphasis will be placed on handling and processing personnel upon their return to the zone of the interior," said Rucker.

He said that this activity for the command was already beginning, with redistribution stations and personnel centers being filled and expansion of hospital and convalescent facilities under way.

States in the command are Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico.

House, the proposed constitutional amendment would place a ceiling of $35,000,000 annually on the total amount of state money that could be spent annually for old age assistance, the needy blind, and dependent children. It would place the ceiling on individual grants of state money at $20, in line with the House version.

The House must concur in the Senate changes to its original resolution before the constitutional amendment can be submitted to a vote of the people.

The question of adjournment was dumped back into the House when the Senate adopted by a voice vote a resolution calling for a May 24 quiting date. This was in the form of an amendment to a House-passed resolution calling in effect for a recess from May 22 to Sept. 11.

The amendment placing the ceiling at $35,000,000 annually instead of $30,000,000 as originally set in the Senate substitute, was by Sen. Penrose Metcalf of San Angelo. It was adopted by a vote of 14 to 11.

The Senate also refused by a vote of 14 to 11 to advance the House bill creating a board of naturopathy for special consideration tomorrow.

Passed were bills of local application including the creation of a new district court in Smith county and extending jurisdiction of the Ninth District court.

The House made little progress on a $29,200,000 rural school aid bill which will be pending business tomorrow.

The Senate has approved a $28,000,000 rural aid appropriation and ultimately differences between the House and Senate versions will be ironed out in a free conference committee.

Nazis Fight Each Other

An Associated Press dispatch from the British Second Army said a fierce battle was being waged at Segeberg, 25 miles north of Hamburg, in a wood where 300 fanatic German SS troopers and Marines were battling German soldiers.

The dispatch said the territory had been made out of bounds for British troops and no British troops had been molested. German troops were sent into the area by their commander with orders to clear it out.

Prague was occupied by the Germans March 14, 1939, in one of the Hitler strokes that culminated in history's most devastating war.

Goering Captured

the Knights Cross, Germany's highest decoration, but complained that he lost more than half his medals when Allied planes bombed the House where he was held prisoner at Berchtesgaden.

Both Goering and his wife, the former actress Emmy Sonnemann, appeared to be in good health, though German's former No. 1 hostess wept frequently.

The former air marshal, who several times in recent weeks had been reported dead from various causes and who was succeeded in command of the luftwaffe last month by Gen. Ritter von Grein, said he was in Berchtesgaden April 24 when Allied armies were threatening to cut Germany in half.

Call Maddens Adolf

He said he called Hitler by telephone and reminded him of his statement that if anything happened Goering was to take command. Hitler, he said, flew into one of his characteristic rages and screamed that Goering had signed his own death warrant. Three days later, on April 27, Goering said he was seized by SS troops and notified that he had been ordered executed. Only his subsequent rescue by loyal members of the luftwaffe saved his life, Goering declared.

He said he last saw Hitler in Berlin on April 22, when Russian forces were hammering at the outskirts of the capital, thus bearing out at least in part German broadcast announcements that the fuehrer was directing the city's defense. He said he believed Hitler is dead and has been since April 24.

Arrangements for Goering's surrender began three days ago, when Col. Berndt von Braunchitsch, a son of the German general, passed through American lines and told his mission to Gen. Stack and Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, commander of the 36th division.

Draft To Continue

fathers and those who have had the most extended and arduous service," Vinson said. "It is the Army's intention to release additional men by holding Selective Service calls at a level above that necessary to replace men lost through battle and normal attrition."

To Release 2,000,000

Vinson said that the release of men because of sickness, wounds, age and other factors, plus those made through the cut in the strength of the Army and the excess of draft calls over replacement needs, "will result in release from the Army during the next year of about 2,000,000 officers and men."

He said that adjusted service rating scores, based on time in the Army, time overseas, combat credit and parenthood would form the basis upon which demobilization will proceed.

To mount the final phases of the war against Japan and occupy conquered territories, the Army plans to maintain the total force of 6,968,000 for a year and the Navy to maintain an authorized strength of 3,389,000, beginning June 30.

House Wants Voice In Making Treaties

WASHINGTON, May 9. (AP) — The House of Representatives today emphatically asserted its belief it should have an equal voice with the Senate in making treaties.

It passed, by a roll-call vote of 288 to 88, a resolution submitting to the states a constitutional amendment requiring ratification of treaties by a majority vote of both the Senate and the House.

The constitution now provides for treaty ratification by a two-thirds vote of the Senate, with the House having no voice at all.

There were indications, though, that the House action may be futile, since the Senate judiciary committee, which will receive the legislation, already has announced it will not consider any constitutional amendment proposals until after the war.

Labor Law Section Is Held As Valid

AUSTIN, May 9 (U.P.)—A section of the Texas labor regulation act prohibiting aliens or felons to be officers of unions was held valid today by the third court of civil appeals here.

In a former ruling on the law, generally known as the Manford act, the court had omitted a ruling on that particular section. Today's ruling was in response to a motion.

The ruling by Judge J. H. Baugh is subject to an appeal to the state supreme court by writ of error. If refused there an appeal can be taken to the U. S. supreme court.

The Texas law, so far as the attorney general's department has been able to find, is the only state labor law containing this particular feature.

Stevenson Sets May 13 As Mother's Day

AUSTIN, May 9 (AP)—Gov. Coke Stevenson has set by proclamation May 13 as Mother's day and May 20 as "I am an American" day.

Stevenson said May 13 held particular significance this year since it will not only be nationally observed as Mother's day, but has been designated by President Truman as a day of "thanksgiving and prayer for divine support to the end of the present struggle and guidance into the way of peace."

The purpose of "I am an American day" the governor said is to recognize citizens who have attained their majority or have been naturalized within the past year.

Texans Among Goering Guard

(By The Associated Press)

Seven Texas veterans of Salerno and Cassino were in the detail guarding Hermann Goering, fat German reichs marshal captured by the 36th (Texas) division, a dispatch from headquarters of the Sixth Army said Wednesday.

The Texans were Sgt. Richard Snell, Houston; Sgt. Lester Leggett, Fort Worth; Cpl. Robert Neal, Lufkin; Pvts. Filomena Pena, Taft; Everett Coody, Center; James Farmer, Fort Worth, and Don Parsons, Hillsboro.

Surrenders To Stack

Goering surrendered personally to Brig. Gen. Robert Stack, assistant commander of the 36th, on a road east of Kitzbuhel Tuesday night, Associated Press correspondent A. I. Goldberg wrote.

Goering indicated he did not know what was in store for him, told his captors: "Guard me well."

Mrs. Goering, the former actress Emmy Sonneman, and their child, was also taken. She cried frequently.

The 36th division also captured Gen. Ritter von Epp, erstwhile defender of Munich and governor of Bavaria, and Goering's aide, Col. Berndt Brauchitsch, son of a German general.

The same division on May 1 took Field Marshal von Rundstedt captive and has in the past fortnight also captured Adm. Nicholas Horthy, former regent of Hungary, and Field Marshals List and von Leeb.

Troops Divergently React To V-E Day

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE U. S. SECOND INFANTRY DIVISION, In Czechoslovakia, May 8 (Delayed)—American tankmen and doughboys ranged along the last fighting front of the European war thought first of their God, their kin at home and then of celebrating when they heard of the German Army's surrender.

At command posts all along the front and by tanks still in battle position along the Czechoslovak hills they clustered by the scores and hundreds to hear Prime Minister Churchill formally announce the cessation of hostilities.

Here was the way some of the Americans, many of whom had been decorated for heroism in action, felt at the German capitulation:

Lt. John W. Hadaway, San Antonio, Silver Star, Bronze Star with two clusters and Purple Heart: "I am damn happy it's over. It has been a hard road from Normandy to Czechoslovakia and I hope we can all get home soon."

Staff Sgt. Dewey E. Lee, jr., Waco: "I am going to church and thank God I am still alive stop Then I am going to have a hot bath and clean clothes dash that will be real celebration in itself stop Then I want to go to picture show showing how to get out of the Army."

Pfc. Eidmer Davis, Wannsboro, Texas: "I'm pretty happy about the whole thing and I hope to get good and stinking drunk."

Many soldiers said they just wanted to go to church, write home, talk over the campaign with their budies, perhaps have a few drinks and go to bed.

Among them was Pfc. Byron L. Rogers, Breckenridge, Tex.

Cpl. Foster B. Dulaney, Winters, Texas, said: "It doesn't change my day much. I'm still in the Army."

AAF Vets Will Get Retraining In U. S. Before Meeting Japs

Army Air Forces personnel scheduled for redeployment in the Pacific with new types of equipment will undergo a retaining period within the continental United States before they see action in the Pacific theater, the War Department announced today.

The retraining period is slated only for those units which will be given new types of equipment. One example is the retraining of some B-17 and B-24 crews in the B-29.

Crew Training Slated

Although military security does not permit announcement of the length of the retraining period, it is anticipated that the longest such period will be required by heavy bomber crews slated to change to very heavy bombardment aircrift. The fact that the very heavy B-29 requires larger crews than the familiar B-17s and B-24s, in addition to the intensive transition training required for pilots and co-pilots for this airplane, makes necessary a longer period of retraining than will be required for personnel falling in medium bomber and other categories.

Some Vets Already Back

Heavy bomber crews from the European Theater have for some time past been returning to the continental United States for retraining in B-29s and the flow of crews to the Pacific is continuing without interruption as redeployment continues. Retraining of crews for light bombers such as the A-26, and other new or modified aircraft, is in progress in this country and will continue.

The announcement was released through the AAF Training Command and the Lubbock Army Air Field public relations office.

pre-empted for war will be freed from civilian production."

Transportation problems may grow worse as the movement of troops and supplies shifts westward. The restrictions on conventions, curbs on railroad operations, and travel priorities on the airlines must continue.

48-Hour Week Holds

The 48-hour week will remain in force in war plants, being dropped gradually elsewhere as the labor market loosens, but the machinery of labor ceilings, job referrals, and other manpower controls will stay in effect in shortage areas.

Food shortages show no sign of improvement, and rationing of foodstuffs must continue indefinitely, Vinson said.

Household goods like electric irons and stoves will come into increased production within three to six months, Vinson predicted, and some civilian radios should be available within the year.

Lumber shortages will limit the manufacture of new furniture and the building of new homes, but Vinson forecast construction of 250,000 to 400,000 new houses and apartments in the next twelve months.

Cooper Wants Fair Hearing For Kennedy

NEW YORK, May 9. (AP) — In response to a telegraphic request from San Francisco signed by Helen Rogers Reid, vice president of the New York Herald-Tribune, that he make a statement, Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, said:

"The observance of all obligations voluntarily assumed is, always has been, and will continue to be a cardinal principle of the Associated Press and its employes. But there will be no prejudgment of Edward Kennedy by me. I have not as yet had the advantage of a personal meeting with him or the military authorities to obtain the detailed information that I should like to have. Any implication that any prejudice whatever is indicated by this statement would be entirely unfair."

A Limit To Our Food

We Can't Feed Half A World

LATEST American citizen to return from conferences abroad with the statement that the U. S. populace "must pull in its belt tight" in order to feed starving Europe is Samuel Rosenman, former New York judge and an advisor to the late President Roosevelt. Rosenman is only one of several to trek to Europe and come back with the same statement.

Everyone knows there are millions of Europeans who have been underfed for years because of the ravages of war.

Everyone knows, too, that the U. S. must give up all the extra food it possibly can in order to feed those hapless people.

But what none of our "food couriers" have mentioned upon return from Europe is that not even the U. S. has enough food for our own fighting men; numerous of the fighting men of our Allies; hungry Europe AND our own home front needs, to boot.

The order of our responsibility, of course, is to our own fighting men; then to whatever Allied fighters are actually engaged in combatting our mutual enemies; then to our own people here at home. Whatever food there is left then may go to other places where it is needed.

The U. S. simply does not raise enough food to feed half the world. It should be, and doubtless is, willing to feed as many hungry people as it can, but it is unthinkable that our generosity be pushed to the point where want in civilian Europe is alleviated to the detriment of our own people.

After all, we didn't bring the war on. We only supplied the strength that made the difference between victory and defeat to our Allies, and between continued enslavement and liberation of the occupied countries.

On Taking An "Inventory"

STUNG to the quick by claims that the passing of Camp Barkeley had left it a "ghost town," Abilene brought into its pleasant midst one Burt Blanton, and industrial and economic engineer, who "took inventory" on what the Taylor county capital and its supporting territory have on tap for future development.

Probably Engineer Blanton didn't tell many Abilene business men anything they didn't already know. But he probably correlated all the facts and laid them out so they could better be seen and studied. As a result, Abilene prepares to swing into the postwar era with its route of progress well marked or, to put it ungrammatically, "knowing where it's at."

Although Lubbock, having a larger, better territory than Abilene, faces the future bolstered by countless signs which augur well for continued growth and progress, it might be a good idea if we "took stock" here, too.

If Abilene, which long ago reached the permanent status of a "good little city," (albeit with little chance for greater economic or population laurels) was comforted by its survey, Lubbock doubtless would be astounded at the scope of its own great resources.

Such a survey is something for our civic leaders to think about.

It's A Job For Us All!

DURING this war the men and women of the American theater have done a good job of providing entertainment for the nation's fighting men. Ninteen plays and eight musical comedies have been sent overseas on tour by the U.S.O. Camp Shows in the last year alone. Seven more plays and seven more musicals are now being prepared for foreign duty.

This is one undertaking which will see no slow-down now that victory has been won in Europe. As the Army has made plain by issuing a rush order for 20 to 36 plays and six to eight musical comedies for delivery to Europe within the next 90 days, the need will be greater than ever in the days ahead.

The explanation for this is clear. Millions of fighting men whose main job is done will remain in Europe waiting to get home. For many this period of waiting will be the most trying period of all. One way to help them through it will be to provide plenty of recreation and entertainment and it is good to see that the Army recognizes how important this is.

There is no doubt that the American entertainment world will respond gladly to the call. But the task of maintaining the morale of soldiers waiting in Europe is not theirs alone. It is one in which everyone can share by keeping up the flow of cheerful letters which will mean as much and more to men waiting to get back to their homes and families as they do to men in battle.

The One Minute Sermon

When thou shalt vow a vow unto the Lord thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it: for the Lord thy God will surely require it of thee: and it would be sin in thee.

But if thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee.

That which is gone out of thy lips thou shalt keep and perform; even a freewill offering, according as thou hast vowed unto the Lord thy God, which thou hast promised with thy mouth.—Deuteronomy 23:21-23.

MIGHTY 7 WARTOON

Death's Bright Diamonds

By Lionel Mosher
(Copyright, 1945, NEA Service, Inc.)

THE STORY: Nick Trent, Army pilot, is buzz-bombed out of the war. On the boat home a mysterious stranger named Booker makes him a vague money-proposition which he turns down. Pat Hudson and Charley Strand, old friends, greet him at the dock. While Nick is waiting for Charley later that afternoon in the lobby of the Parker House, Booker reappears, introduces Nick to exotic Magda Calavestri. On parting, Calavestri presses a valuable diamond amulet into his hand and whispers "Tonight." Nick has dinner at the Hudson's, where he has a set-to with Eric Woolf, German-born friend of Pat's whom he has never liked.

A SENSE OF UNEASINESS

I had reached Arlington Street before something made me turn around. It was the quiet time before the theater crowd got out, and the streets were almost deserted. About a hundred yards behind me someone was just lighting a cigaret. The match flared in the darkness and then went out. I saw him toss the match into the gutter and, as I crossed the street, I kept him on the edge of my vision. Now I felt the gold amulet in my pocket and wished that it was back in Calavestri's bag.

The night light in the lobby of the Commonwealth Apartments gleamed dimly. The interior of the automatic lift smelt of cigarets. At my floor I swung the safety gate shut with a clang, crossed the hall, and put Charley's key in the lock. The door was unlocked. There was a gentle squeak from the hinges as I swung the door inward and snapped on the light.

"Charley?" I called not too loud, but there was no answer. I knew he had gone to the theater, but I though he might have got in early. I had a pervading snese of uneasiness. I started for the bedroom when the telephone rang. The sound of the bell rasped on my taut nerves.

"Nick." It was Pat's voice and there was a note of anxiety in it. "I've been trying to get you for the last half hour."

"I just got in. What's wrong?"

"Nick. You won't think I'm being silly." Her voice broke in a nervous laugh. "I've a horrible feeling something oddly unpleasant is brewing. After you left, Eric couldn't wait to get out of here."

At that moment I happened to glance into the fireplace and a cold needle thrill ran along my spine. In the grate lay a burning cigaret, its smoke curling innocently up the chimney. Then Pat's voice came over the wire.

"Nick! Are you there?"

"Yes. I'm here."

"I thought something might have happened."

"No. Nothing's happened."

"You haven't seen Eric?"

"No. Why shoud I?"

"I don't know." Pat said uncertainly. "Somehow I got the impression that he might have seen you at the Club."

"No, Pat." My eyes were glued on the open door to Charley's bedroom. I could feel a cool draft of air coming along the floor. "Look, Pat. You've got the wind up about nothing. Go to bed and I'll call you in the morning."

After I had hung up, I went toward Charley's bedroom. The door was half open and I could hear a soft scraping sound. There was something covert and stealthy about that sound. I hesitated. Then resolutely I stepped into the doorway and snapped on the light. My Gladstone lay open on the floor, its contents spilled about by someone who had made a hurried search. The window by the bed was open and the shade, blowing gently against the window frame, made the soft scraping noise.

I went over and looked out the window. There was a stone coping less than a foot wide and three stories from the ground. A catwalk that the intruder might have navigated to escape detection, if, as I suspected, he had been trapped by my arrival. Thoughtfully, I drew back and was about to close the window when I noticed something in the street below—just a faint shadow in the fringed glow of the streetlight. A darker spot in the semi-darkness where the autumn leaves drifted past the light to the sidewalk. The shadow was a man. He stood withdrawn into the dimness and I could see the glow of his cigaret.

I closed the window, drew the shade, and snapped off the light. Then I went back through the living room, crossed to Charley's study, and, without turning on the light, looked down into the street again. The figure had left the shadows and was crossing the street toward the entrance of the apartment. I watched him until he disappeared. Then I stepped over to the hall door and listened for the sound of the elevator. A minute passed. Then two. Nothing happened.

I went back into the bedroom, put my things back into my suitcase, and all the while my common sense battled with my intuition of danger. I still had Calavestri's amulet in my pocket. Finally, I got my hat and coat and started for the door. I was just going to take a walk around the block and have a cigaret.

I pushed the elevator button and I heard the car toiling slowly upward over three floors. The light from the car appeared, made a broadening square on the frosted glass door. I swung back the outer door and had my hand on the grilled inner gate. I stopped there. I stared into the car. It is odd how clearly one sees what he would rather not look at.

On the floor in a curiously huddled heap, one hand trailing limply in a fur muff, was a woman. Her fur tippet had slipped back, revealing blue black hair and on the fur trimmings of her suit were dark matted stains. It was Magda Calavestri.

Her throat had been cut from ear to ear.

Navy Court Probing Mysterious Blast

CAPE ELIZABETH, Me., May 9 (AP)—A Navy court of inquiry today was investigating a mysterious explosion which shattered a Navy eagle boat and took the lives of 49 men three miles offshore April 23.

Surviving were "the lucky 13," only members of the crew of the patrol ship PE-56 to escape.

They told vivid stories of the sudden blast which came at 12:14 p. m. during a noon lull in target practice maneuvers.

Naval authorities said that of the 49 men lost only two bodies were recovered. The other 47 were listed on Navy records as "missing" and presumed to be dead.

Among the missing were:

Zug Chesley Phelps, signalman first class, USNR; father C. E. Philps, Box No. 516, Haskell, Tex.

Elliott Massey Shinn, quartermaster, second class, USNR; father Malcolm Cornelius Shinn, Livingston, Tex.

WAR DAMAGE ESTIMATED

LONDON, May 9. (AP)—Sir John Anderson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told Commons today that a "safe" estimate of the war damage to Britain would be well over $4,000,000,000.

Looking At Life - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

SOME time ago a New Jersey executive committed suicide because, according to the note he left for his wife, he could not get along on his salary of $9,000 a year.

"Each year cost me several hundred dollars over my salary," he complained in the note.

There were three people in the family—husband, wife and one child—and they couldn't get along on $9,000 a year, $750 a month!

How about you people who get along on $200 and $250 a month?

How about you people with $4,000 and $5,000 incomes who own your homes, send your children to college, have money in the bank and own war bonds?

And how about you $35 and $40 a week people, who are married on that salary and manage to make ends meet?

I am sorry, of course, for anybody who is unhappy.

But I can't feel quite so sorry for anybody who can't be happy on $9,000 a year.

I made $75 a week when I got married.

I remember I borrowed the money for the marriage license and for the wedding supper.

But I was happy, and my wife tells me she was.

But do you know why we were happy?

First of all because we were young and in love.

That's condition number one for happiness—at least the being in love.

But number two was because we didn't give a tinker's damn about the Joneses.

We always figured that if people didn't like us as we were, they could go to blazes, as far as we were concerned.

If Mrs. Jones wore a mink coat and my wife had to wear cloth, that was all right with us. At least we bought my wife's coat for cash.

* * *

AND it's a funny thing how many friends we had in those days. Most of them were just as broke as we and just as happy.

A lot of our friends were theatrical and newspaper people and artists.

Our dreams were never of money and beautiful clothes and homes in Florida, but of making good in our professions and becoming somebody worth-while.

Oh, we knew that with fame came money, but we never thought of that. We used to have wonderful feasts of frankfurters and hamburger sandwiches, and at 2 o'clock in the mornings we used to go to what we called the "wagon" for our coffee and doughnuts.

On Sundays we took long trolley rides and got a lunch or a dinner somewhere for fifty or sixty cents a piece.

And with it (now go ahead and bawl me out again) went a glass of beer—and a good time was had by all.

We didn't have an automobile in those days, and I'm just thinking that if we were in the same situation now, we wouldn't have to worry about gasoline and tires.

Well, fate has been pretty kind to us. We have a car and a home and some money in the bank. And we have plumber's bills, and the wind blew one of my trees down, and my wife has sinus trouble and I need some new shirts and can't get them, and taxes have to be paid, and my Montgomery Ward stock went down another point.

But so what? The trolleys and buses are still running, and they are still selling "coffee and" at the wagon and I still have the same good wife and Deuce, my little dog.

And that guy committed sulicide over $9,000 a year!

Douglas To State Post?

Jurist Looms As Likely Choice

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

A quiet canvass of distinguished Democrats deemed capable of filling the office of Secretary of State, who also stands in direct line of succession to the White House discloses that the most likely prospect is Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme court of the United States.

It may be more than coincidence that the red-headed jurist now under consideration for elevation was, besides Harry Truman, the only other man whom Franklin Roosevelt, in his letter to the Chicago convention last July, named as an acceptable running mate after he bowed to the Democratic leaders' decision to ditch Henry Wallace.

President Truman will take his time in choosing a successor to Edward R. Stettinius, jr., present State department head, especially in view of the criticism heaped upon him for his Argentine pirouettings in San Francisco. It may be quite a while before the Chief Executive makes a change in the diplomatic establishment.

TUCKER

In filling this key position, he must keep in mind the selectee's ability to deal with foreign affairs. But, even more important, he must realize that he will be picking a possible White House occupant. Therefore, it is expected that he will proceed with more than his natural caution.

The President and the wearer of the black robe became close friends and co-workers when Mr. Truman, then a senator, headed a senatorial investigation of railroad finances and securities. As a former chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, Justice Douglas gave invaluable advice and assistance to that inquiry.

Mr. Douglas came to admire the Missouri man because of the latter's refusal to pull his investigative punches at the behest of powerful Democratic politicos here and in the Middle West. The jurist has frequently said that he would not quit his comfortable and well-paid job on the bench, although judicial restrictions grate his gregarious spirit. But he would respond to this call.

On numerous counts the judge appears to be a "natural" for the place. As an attorney and professor, he always took a keen interest in international law and problems. In his day the SEC dealt with questions of world finance and diplomacy as they affected the U.S.A.

CAREER: Inasmuch as postwar difficulties will have an economic even more than a political flavor, he has the education, training and background for the State department assignment.

Although no rabid radical—Wall Street approved his handling of SEC—he would be eminently satisfactory to liberal factions still skeptical of the new President's basic philosophy of government. He would make a helpful Vice Presidential candidate in 1948 when, as everyone already suspects, Mr. Truman will head the Democratic ticket.

Geographically, Justice Douglas appears to have chosen his homes with a public career in mind. He was born in Maine, Minnesota, but he grew up and had his early education in the state of Washington. He was a poor boy, and, until he went on the court at $20,500 a year, he was a poor man. Before coming to the capital in 1936 as an SEC member, he taught at Yale university, but lived some time in New York City.

His political sponsor was the late Sen. Frank Maloney of Connecticut. He is only 46 years old, and everybody likes him for his brilliant mind, his ebullient spirit and his Horatio Alger life. He and the haberdashery store-to-White House Harry Truman are two of a kind.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

OUR San Francisco delegation is demanding that certain ideals be made concrete in black and white as amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks proposals.

We are asking the nations to promise operation of the suggested world organization in keeping with the principles of justice and international law and for safe-guarding human rights.

Many New York authorities on foreign policy believe that without a broad moral code, subscribed to by all signatories, security alone could become merely the safety of an armed camp in which new evils would grow. But if the states pledge themselves to these principles—general though they be—progress can be made toward righting wrongs and attaining the goals of the Atlantic Charter.

LEMAN

The United States is now so powerful that for a time we need not fear any aggressor.

If our citizens suspect that the world league will be only an instrument to maintain the status quo they may prefer to act independently in foreign affairs rather than be a party to a meaningless debating society.

The protection of our shores will be the foundation of our military policy. But we have always fought for something more than just self-interest. There is a bit of the crusader in every American.

The word freedom means more to us, perhaps, than to any other nation. It played an important part in the Revolution, in the Civil war, in the Spanish-American war and in the two struggles with Germany. Much of the mistrust of the Soviet Union comes from the Communists appearing to impose their system on smaller states without their consent.

The German atrocity disclosures merely climaxed the conviction of our soldiers and civilians that the American way of life and Nazi tyranny simply cannot endure on the same planet. It is not without significance that the prize photo of the war is that of the Marines raising the flag on Iwo Jima; it graphically symbolizes our fight for ideals.

RIGHTS: To the cynical statesmen of the Old World gathered at the Golden Gate our insistence on justice and human rights may seem somewhat hypocritical, for in parts of our land we deny them to negroes, Japanese-Americans and other minority groups.

But the bulk of our people does believe in those rights and wants them embodied in the constitution of an international organization. Then we shall do all in our power to establish them everywhere.

The New York experts point out that this does not mean we intend to be "Meddlesome Matties," trying to make all other nations conform to our political creed, any more than we would change our ways for those of the Kuomintang, the Kremlin or Buckingham palace.

But we can cooperate, and attempt to enlarge zones of teamwork through better understanding. Full information, freely disseminated, might do much to break down the road blocks to international good will.

A drawback to world solidarity is the unwillingness of some of the nations to let us in on things. Russia is accused of barring our officials in certain Balkan states, although the joint efforts of the United Nations cleared out the Nazis and Stalin promised multilateral action.

This secrecy gives the impression that something sinister is going on which Moscow does not want Washington and London to discover. If that is true, it is our duty to condemn wrong, whether committeed by the Wilhelmstrasse or the Kremlin. If it is false, the Muscovites are needlessly giving wedges to the Nazis, and to Russophobes who would pry our two countries apart. We should have the facts.

We are making quite a fuss over the Arabs strutting around San Francisco in picturesque robes and we are keeping Zionists out of their way. But let us not forget that Ibn Saud and his emirs make it almost impossible for Americans and Europeans to tour his kingdom. Non-Moslem journalists cannot enter Mecca or Riad, the capital, and are thus prevented from reporting the wretched conditions of the badly exploited subjects.

Overheard: "As far as I can see, short skirts for women are O. K."

USSR Essential To International Security

Reds Big Problem Of Conference

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO.—Understanding Russia still is one of the major problems before the United Nations conference.

Progress can be reported.

It must be said that Secretary of State Stettinius and our delegation, by and large, are making a very honest effort. They are acting with marked restraint, refusing to get too much excited by perplexing points of view and annoying incidents hard for the American mind to comprehend.

STOKES

It would be wise for the American people to do the same, the stake here in the future being what it is.

Foreign Minister Molotov, though he looks more like an amiable Buddha, yet has raised himself up constantly as symbol of Russia in the image of a jack-in-the-box. He pops out at unexpected times in a surprising, irritating and confusing way, just when it looks as if everything was calm and serene again. It was so in the case of the Russian arrest of 16 Polish leaders, the climax to a series of poppings-out—insistence at the outset on four presidents of the conference to satisfy Russian national pride, the early attempts to admit Poland without her compliance with the Yalta agreement, the fight on admission of Argentina.

British Play Smart Game

The United States and Great Britain, with the help of smaller nations and dependencies in their respective orbits of influence, rather rubbed Russia's nose in the dirt on the Argentine issue, overwhelming her. Whatver the efficacy at the time of that strategy—if it was efficacious—it has been realized since that it is not the best course, over-all, to set Russia off on one side, to isolate her, considering what this conference has set out to do. Since that time there has been a real attempt to avoid anything so obviously of that intent, difficult as Russia makes it with her sporadic surprises.

The problem of the United States is to maintain a balance among the Big Three at this conference, and to avoid anything like setting ourselves and Russia off against each other. Great Britain, in her quiet way, would appear to be seeking to promote something of this sort. She kept right close in our shadow, assuming a secondary role, but apparently quietly encouraging us to step out in front as champion against Russia. Great Britain has her own problems in Europe, which involve Russia very closely. She would like our backing and is playing cagily to have that general effect produced.

THE British are easier for us to understand. But it is recognized that it is not too wise for us to get too much in that role, or the international organization of nations we are trying to set up here may degenerate into a balance of power structure such as has existed before.

In trying to understand the Russians, to give them the benefit of every possible doubt, we are guided by a very practical consideration. It would be well for the American people to understand this. It is realized that we must have Russia in the world organization, that, for the long haul in the years to come, it is better to have her at the table when disturbing situations arise involving her than not at the table. President Roosevelt recognized that and was willing to make concessions to get Russia into this conference, as he did at Yalta.

Russia "Feels Her Oats"

Our representatives here, too, have come to understand the Russians better after dealing with them. They find their attitude a good deal like that of the United States some years ago, even after the last war. The United States considered herself a vigorous, self-reliant nation. Raised into the world by her own bootstraps, independent, on her own, not beholden to anybody else. Russia, which is really a new Russia, has proved herself under her new regime, feels her oats as a lusty nation. She is inclined, as we were, to be nationalistic, almost isolationist. She is big enough to protect herself now, as she has proved in the war, and does not feel that her whole salvation depends on a concord with other nations.

YET, at this conference, she has shown herself sincerely anxious to accept that relationship. She knows she is going to need our economic help, as she got it in the war, to help rebuild herself. It is our earnest endeavor to get her into the organization, for that is to our own interest. Mr. Molotov, in his latest press conference, probably his last this trip, was very emphatic in his predictions about the success of the conference.

Altogether the picture is now very encouraging.

If U. S. shoppers paid as little as five per cent above ceiling prices for everything purchased, the extra cost to American families would amount to $4,000,000,000 a year, or about $120 to each family.

Buses are overburdened as never before. A crisis is near. With more men, tires and gas going to war, present service can barely be maintained. Each day brings greater loads. When you must travel locally, let this be your creed:

1. Do Not Ride in Rush Hours, except to and from your job.
2. Have Exact Fare Ready, saves time and fuss.
3. Move Back When Driver Asks, speeds your ride.

This simple creed will work wonders.

THANKS FARMERS
IN BEHALF of our boys in the armed forces, we wish to thank you for the way you responded to our plea for large clean grade A eggs. Because of your patriotic cooperation, we have been able to get their eggs to them much faster than could have been possible otherwise. We still have many more war department orders to fill, and the government is looking to you to help us meet our increased quotas.
If you haven't heard of the way that you can make more money, and still be helping our soldier boys, ask your neighbor or we will give you the information. Your large clean grade A eggs are still desperately needed. Thanks again.

IRRIGATION FARM FOR SALE
CLOSE IN AND A BARGAIN
150 acres of fine land, located about 7½ miles out of Lubbock on pavement. A very fine irrigation well, fair improvements. This is a real investment. All mineral rights go. 88 acres produced 92 bales of cotton in 1944, and the feed crop was equally as good. The owner received over $3,000.00 in rents. Considering the distance from town, the possibilities of oil and the fine land, this is a bargain at $140.00 per acre. Mr. Investor, this is your chance to own a close-in farm.

Pope Voices Thanks For Peace In Europe

ROME, May 9 (AP) — Pope Pius XII, expressing thankfulness at the termination of the war in Europe, declared today his conviction that "if we want to build a lasting and a safe peace, it must be built on justice, comprehension and confidence."

Voicing gratitude to God for the arrival of peace in Europe, he prayed, also, for the end of the war in the Far East "according to justice."

The Pontiff stressed the need for speeding the work of reconstruction.

He advocated the release and return to their homes as "soon as possible" of all prisoners of war and internees, who could aid in the vast task of rebuilding wrecked Europe, and could help prevent continued "misery and hunger."

Speaking over the Vatican radio from his private library, the Pope said "at last the present war has ended after more than six years of suffering. A cry of gratefulness goes up from our hearts to our beloved God."

"We remember all those who have fallen in this war," he added "and we feel that the fallen are warning the survivors and expressing their hope that justice and equality of right among all states, big and small, strong and powerless, may be brought about after this war."

Impact Of Defeat Lies Heavily On Personnel Of Humbled Wehrmacht

By MALCOLM MUIR, JR.
United Press War Writer

ZELL AM SEE, Austria, May 8 (Delayed)—The impact of defeat struck a heavy blow on the German wehrmacht.

Here in this little village beside a Tyrolean lake—the headquarters of Field Marshal Albert Kesselring—is a tableau of humbled arrogance mixed with tears of relief.

The men who conquered and ruled a dozen lands with an iron fist wander aimlessly in silent groups. With uncertainty they salute the Americans roaming about at will even though U. S. forces are not scheduled to arrive for at least 48 hours.

Officers Appear Stunned

Decorated wehrmacht officers look stunned as they filed up to designated barrels and drop in their black-holstered luggers, mausers or long SS knives.

"All we have lived for is finished—kaput," said one artillery colonel as he stood before an official poster announcing the end of resistance effective Tuesday midnight.

"Here, take this—it will never be pointed again by a German hand," a black-uniformed Panzer major said, pressing a glistening luger into the hands of Capt. Sam Kesner, Dallas, Tex.

Kesner, together with Capt. Rhoman Clemm, of Wichita, Kans., and Everett, Wash., and four other officers made up the American party which carried Kesselring's surrender to Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of the Sixth Army group.

Went On Invitation

The Americans had entered the German lines despite the fact the surrender was not yet effective, at the field marshal's invitation to establish liaison between the victorious and defeated armies.

We had passed through the lines early yesterday, carrying the specific instructions of what unconditional surrender meant.

The Americans had been turned back Sunday by die-hard SS mountain troops, but the convoy got through the next day by making a roundabout 85-mile trip along alpine roads south of Salzburg.

It was late then and the instructions were sent to Kesselring by radio. At 11 o'clock this morning, Kesselring reported through his chief of staff that his half million troops of the First and 19th German armies would begin immediately to obey orders to stack weapons, clear all roads of German vehicles and gather at specified points.

Some SS Are Difficult

He said he regretted that certain SS units had proven difficult but he had "flatly instructed" the supreme SS commander in the area to make his men obey the command.

Kesselring also said he was sorry that the Germans were unable to provide food and lodgings for the American group comparable to those given his emmissaries by the Americans last weekend. But, he added, "that's what the war has done to Germany."

Falconry was carried into England by the Teutonic conquerors.

Conversion Bids On Tech Warehouse Set

Contracting bids for construction work on a warehouse which is to be converted into a Texas Tech campus union building, if sufficient funds are available, are expected to be received today in the business office of the college, according to W. T. Gaston, business manager.

The warehouse, a 36x90 feet shell of a building located west of women's dormitory No. 2, was built when Tech was cooperating with the Army Air Corps in training pre-flight cadets on the campus. The building has no floor or ceiling, neither is it wired for utilities.

Plans for the reconversion of this warehouse into a union building have been drawn up by W. R. Hedrick, college draftsman and superintendent of buildings and repairs. Besides finishing the inside of the building, the addition of two units, one 19x34 feet and the other 9x12 feet is included in the plans.

If constructed, the building will serve as a gathering place for campus students and other groups who desire to meet there, Gaston said.

ODT Officials Return Following Meetings

After attending separate meetings of Office Defense Transportation officials, N. F. Nelson, district director, and John J. Van Pelt, assistant manager, have returned to their offices.

Nelson was present at a five-day conference, Wednesday through Sunday of last week, held in Dallas by district directors from Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri. He returned to his office Tuesday morning.

Along with the district heads, P. N. Simmons, representative from the Washington, D. C. office, attended the meeting held to outline new procedures and activities of transportation specialists in each office.

Van Pelt also returned Tuesday from a meeting in Amarillo Monday. He met with Production Urgency committees and War Manpower Priorities groups.

"Consensus of the meeting, coming from WPB and other governmental agencies was that requirements would be relaxed somewhat on building materials for construction since victory has come in Europe," Van Pelt stated.

About 2,000 Apply For Canning Sugar

Approximately 2,000 canning sugar applications have been received by the Lubbock county war price and rationing board, George H. Wilson, chief clerk, said Wednesday.

The board started mailing out sugar coupons last week end and applications are being processed as quickly as possible. Applicants are reminded that all coupons will be sent through the mails and cannot be picked up at the ration office.

Applications are being issued at both city fire stations and applicants are asked to return the completed forms to the stations. Applications are issued and accepted at the stations only in the afternoons.

Maxinum canning sugar per person is 15 pounds or 120 pounds for a family.
