Senior center open at its new location

BY LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

It's official. The Big Spring Senior Center is now occupying Dora Roberts Community Center.

"We will continue to serve our senior citizens with daily lunch meals served in the beautiful Lakeroom as well as continue our meal delivery to our home bound seniors," said Debbie Wegman, city of Big Spring community service director. "The Fireplace Room will house the daily domino games in the mornings as well as Bingo several afternoons per week. We hope that all of our senior citizens will take advantage of our facilities and come out daily for food, games and friendship."

Citing building issues with the old structure and financial considerations, city of Big Spring officials announced earlier this year the program would relocate from the old facility on Simler Drive to Dora Robert Community Center building at 100 Whipkey in the Comanche Trail Park.

The announcement met with some hesitation and resistance from some in the community with several people writing letters to the editor to the Big Spring Herald against the move.

"I think the move is going great," Wegman said. "Both Monday and

GOC to hold annual fundraiser Saturday

By JULIE BASS
Staff Writer

The Guardians of the Children (GOC) announce their fourth annual fundraiser will be taking place this Saturday from noon to midnight.

This fundraiser will include barbecue plates with brisket, sausage and all of the trimmings for $10 per person, a fun run, chicken bingo and several other fundraising activities.

"The fun run isn't actual running. The players will have to ride somewhere, like Stanton, and a person there will tell them how many cards they get. It should be a lot of fun and keep people busy," said Greg "Smoke" McAlister, road captain and treasurer of the GOC motorcycle club.

There will be some local talent helping to entertain as well. The Cowboy: Guy Will Zant and the Outlaw: Justin Kaczyk will be performing, as well as the Texas Outlaws.

"There will be food, games, music and all sorts of fun," said McAlister.

The Guardians of the Children is a motorcycle club that specializes in children's welfare. Some of its members are firefighters, police officers and teachers. They help foster children and children that are in difficult situations.

"We are more hands on. We

Marcy Place staff to serve breakfast to first responders Monday

BY LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

The staff and residents of Marcy Place want area first responders to start their week off with a full stomach.

The senior assistant living center will be providing breakfast for all area law enforcement officers, EMTs, firefighters and all other first responders on Monday, from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. in gratitude for their service to the community, said Erica Cervantes, community relations manager.

"We want to show our appreciation to our first responders," Cervantes said. "Sometimes some of our residents have to use their services, and we want them to know they are appreciated."

A full breakfast is slated, Cervantes said, with fresh pancakes, sausage, biscuits and gravy, fruit and piping hot coffee.

Marcy House is an assisted living center with apartment-style habitations and is located at 2301 Wasson Drive.

Lyndel Moody can be contacted at 263-7331, ext. 234.

Wind ensemble performs tonight at Howard College

BY LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

The Madera Wind Quintet will will perform at 7 p.m. tonight in the Hall Center for the Arts located on the Howard College campus, 1001 Birdwell Lane.

The group is the second feature artist for the college Music Department 2015-2016 concert series.

The Quintent was established in the fall of 2008 by students and alumni of the University of North Texas. Based in Denton, Texas, Madera performs a variety of quintet literature, including standards of the genre as well as new works.

Members of the group are

Jorge Cruz Jr. on bassoon, Amy Thiemann on flute; Jason Paschall on oboe; Angela Winter on horn; and Rachel Yoder on clarinet.

Tickets are $5 at the door, free for all Howard College students, or a Season Ticket for $50 for the general public and $40 for HC employees are still available. The evening's performance sponsored exclusively by the First Presbyterian Church of Big Spring.

"We are so excited to have this amazing group visit Big Spring," Wills added.

More about the group can be found at their website: www.maderawindquintet.com/.

Syrian general says Russian strikes aid ground offensive

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria’s top general on Thursday said Russian strikes had helped government forces launch a “wide-ranging” offensive in central and northwestern Syria, where al-Qaida’s affiliate as well as other insurgents had advanced toward key government strongholds in recent months.

Gen. Ali Ayoub, the Syrian chief of staff, said in a rare televised statement that the Russian strikes have facilitated an expanded military operation to eliminate “terrorists” — a term the Syrian government uses to refer to all armed opposition to President Bashar Assad.

The Syrian ground push got a boost after Russian warships launched cruise missiles into Syria from the Caspian Sea on Wednesday, bringing new military might into the nearly five-year civil war. The strikes have alarmed the U.S. and its NATO allies, particularly Turkey, and the alliance’s defense ministers were to meet later Thursday.

Russian officials say the 26 cruise missiles hit the provinces of Raqqa and Aleppo in the north and Idlib province in the northwest. The Islamic State group has strongholds in Raqqa and Aleppo, while Syria’s al-Qaida affiliate, the Nusra Front, has a strong presence in Idlib. Activists in Raqqa said at least one of the missiles landed in an open area in the nearby town of Tabqa, causing a huge explosion.

Russia says its intervention is aimed at helping the Syrian government defeat the Islamic State group, but local activists and U.S. officials say the strikes have also targeted Western-backed rebels.

Clinton subject to hack attempts from China, Korea, Germany

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton’s private email server, which stored some 55,000 pages of emails from her time as secretary of state, was the subject of attempted cyberattacks originating in China, South Korea and Germany after she left office in early 2013, according to a congressional document obtained by The Associated Press.

While the attempts were apparently blocked by a “threat monitoring” product that Clinton’s employees connected to her network in October 2013, there was a period of more than three months from June to October 2013 when that protection had not been installed, according to a letter from Sen. Ron Johnson, R-Wis., chairman of the Homeland Security and Government Affairs Committee. That means her server was possibly vulnerable to cyberattacks during that time.

Johnson’s letter to Victor Nappé, CEO of SECNAP, the company that provided the threat monitoring product, seeks a host of documents relating to the company’s work on Clinton’s server and the nature of the cyber intrusions detected. Johnson’s committee is investigating Clinton’s email arrangement.

Clinton has not said what, if any, firewall or threat protection was used on her email server before June 2013, including the time she was secretary of state from 2009 to 2013 and the server was kept in her home in the New York City suburbs.

A February 2014 email from SECNAP reported that malicious software based in China “was found running an attack against” Clinton’s server. In total, Senate investigators have found records describing three such attempts linked to China, one based in Germany and one originating in South Korea. The attacks occurred in 2013 and 2014. The letter describes four attacks, but investigators have since found records about a fifth attempt, said officials who were not authorized to discuss the matter publicly.

VW’s US CEO to face tough questions in congressional hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Volkswagen’s top U.S. executive is expected to face tough questions on Capitol Hill as the emissions-rigging scandal enveloping the world’s largest automaker appears to be deepening.

Volkswagen of America CEO Michael Horn is scheduled to testify Thursday before a U.S. House subcommittee investigating last month’s admission the company had installed on-board computer software designed to cheat on government emissions tests in nearly 500,000 of its four-cylinder “clean diesel” cars starting with the 2009 model year.

An advance copy of Horn’s prepared remarks provided to the committee Wednesday revealed VW’s plans to withdraw applications seeking U.S. emissions certifications for its 2016 model Jettas, Golfs, Passats and Beetles with diesel engines. That raised questions about whether a so-called “defeat device” similar to that in earlier models is also in the new cars.

By withdrawing the applications for the 2016 models, VW is leaving thousands of diesel vehicles stranded at ports nationwide, giving dealers no new diesel-powered vehicles to sell. It wasn’t immediately clear when VW would refile its application, but Horn’s testimony said the company is working with regulators to get certification.

It was also unclear late Wednesday exactly what the newly disclosed device does. EPA spokeswoman Liz Purchia said VW recently gave the agency information on an “auxiliary emissions control device.” The EPA and California Air Resources Board are investigating “the nature and purpose” of the device, she said.

Attacks continue, Israel bars ministers from Jerusalem site

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli troops shot and killed an Arab who stabbed four Israelis with a screwdriver on Thursday amid new Israeli-Palestinian violence that prompted the Israeli prime minister to bar Cabinet ministers and lawmakers from a sensitive holy site in Jerusalem’s Old City that is at the heart of the latest tensions.

Three new stabbings — in Jerusalem, in the West Bank and another in Israel’s economic hub of Tel Aviv — left several people wounded and an attacker dead.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli soldier shot and killed an Arab attacker after he stabbed and wounded four Israelis with a screwdriver, including a female soldier near a busy Tel Aviv road, Police spokeswoman Luba Samri said. The attacker’s identity was not immediately known.

Earlier, Samri said a Palestinian teenager stabbed a 25-year-old Israeli in the neck in Jerusalem, wounding him seriously, before police arrested the attacker. In the West Bank, an Israeli man was seriously wounded when a Palestinian stabbed him in the stomach. Israeli forces were searching the area for the assailant after he fled the scene.

It was the latest violence in a week in which bloody attacks left four Israelis dead. Including Thursday’s incident, six Palestinians have been killed in the unrest.

House GOP to vote for new speaker, but won’t be last word

WASHINGTON (AP) — Divided House Republicans are meeting to vote on a new speaker as the front-runner, Majority Leader Kevin McCarthy of California, faces a fresh challenge from the hard-line conservatives who forced outgoing Speaker John Boehner to resign.

Thursday’s closed-door, secret-ballot election will produce a GOP nominee for speaker, but it will not be the final word. That won’t come until Oct. 29, when the full House votes in open session for speaker.

Many of the conservatives who oppose Boehner are eager to deny McCarthy, the outgoing speaker’s ally and deputy, the chance to advance. Members of the hard-right House Freedom Caucus announced Wednesday they would be backing a different candidate, GOP Rep. Daniel Webster of Florida, a little-known longshot.

Webster, who served as speaker of the House in Florida, is unlikely to deny McCarthy a majority vote in Thursday’s session. But if the several-dozen Freedom Caucus members stick together on the House floor later this month, they could prevent McCarthy from getting the 218 votes he’d need to prevail.

SENIOR

Tuesday we’ve had more people for lunch than they have had recently in the old building. We’ve had some new people come and most of the people who went to the old facility have made the transition to the new building. There was some hesitation for some, but I think overall things are going really well.

“The domino players have a nice place to play and the Lakeroom is a very pleasant to enjoy lunch,” she continued.

“The senior dancers met for the first time Friday and they increased their crowd. Change is hard for everybody. It’s going to take some adjustment. Even our staff has to make an adjustment, but I think this is a positive move for everyone.

The Senior Center will occupy the kitchen, dining room, Lakeroom and Fireplace room each day from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., Wegman said. The Senior Dance group will meet two Friday nights each month to enjoy dancing in the Ballroom.

“The Ballroom and Classroom will be available daily for regular rentals and the portion used for the Senior Center will still be available for rental during the evening hours and weekends,” Wegman said.

However, with the senior program housed in the Community Center, large day programs that need to use the entire facility such as the Empty Bowls luncheon will not be able to use the Community Center, Wegman said.

“We may lose some rentals but it’s not significant enough to not have done this,” she said.

At this point, the city will be considering options on what to do with the old facility, Wegman said.

“This move will save the city funds by eliminating the upkeep at the Simler location and using the Dora Roberts Community Center during the hours that is normally was vacant,” Wegman said. “It will also gives citizens the opportunity to walk in the park and enjoy the beautiful lake view from the Lakeroom. We hope to expand the services and activity opportunities in the coming months.”

For more information or to share ideas about expanding services, call Wegman at 264-2516 or the staff of the Senior Center at 267-1628.

have birthday parties every quarter for all of the kids that had a birthday during that time, we have a Christmas party for the kids and we are there for them when they need us,” said McAlister. “If they are having trouble in school, we will go to the school and get them; if they have to go to court, we will sit in the courtroom so they can focus on us and feel safe instead of looking at the perpetrator.”

The children that the GOC work with and monitor receive vests that say “Lil Guardian” so that they can be recognized. This also gives them a sense of belonging.

The mission of the GOC states: “The mission of the Guardians of the Children is to recognize and react to child abuse and educate the public to do the same. To serve as advocates to provide stability to families in crisis, and be an answer to the prayers of an abused child or teen for courage, support and protection.”

“We are a ‘not for profit’ organization and can do one big fundraiser a year. This fundraiser will raise the money we need for the birthday parties, the Christmas party and funds to go towards helping the abused and neglected children,” said McAlister. “It should be a fun time and we look forward to seeing everyone there.”

PASTOR/PROPHETESS TERRI COLEMAN

Pastor Terry Coleman Co-labors with her husband Apostle Leroy Coleman at Dominion Christian Center located in Toledo, Ohio. She is a powerful woman of God used by God to teach and preach prophetically in the uncompromising word of God. God has given her an anointing to break the shackles and strongholds that the enemy has placed on the lives of God’s people. She preaches with authority only given by God through a lifestyle of prayer. Prophetess Coleman is used by God under a yoke destroying anointing to usher his people into the deep as she ministers from the office of a psalmist. When she sings the oracles from the throne of God, the atmosphere is saturated with the anointing to push your spirit into another place in the Father. Pastor Coleman has been authorized by God to take his people into higher heights and deeper depths of worship where liberation is guaranteed to take place.

Rangers' Gallardo living out his dream

(AP) — Yovani Gallardo grew up watching the Texas Rangers, often going to their ballpark and dreaming of one day pitching in big games for his local team.

“Even with my cousins, it’s one of those things we always talked about, having that goal for myself to put on the Ranger uniform and pitch important games,” Gallardo said. “Obviously the one goal that we all have as an athlete, to win the World Series. This is the first step.”

When the Rangers open their first AL Division Series since 2011, Gallardo (13-11, 3.42 ERA) will be on the mound Thursday in Toronto. “To start Game 1, it’s a big accomplishment,” he said.

Gallardo was 10 years old when the Rangers made their playoffs debut in 1996, winning the first of three AL West titles in four seasons.

By time they made their only World Series appearances in 2010 and 2011, Gallardo was pitching for the Brewers. Milwaukee took him in the second round of the 2004 amateur draft out of Trimble Tech High School in Fort Worth, less than 20 miles from the Rangers’ ballpark.

The Brewers traded Gallardo to his home team last winter for an infielder and two young pitchers. Gallardo started the opener, which like his first playoff appearance for the AL West champs was on the road.

“I like the body of work, I like the groundball, I like the veteran pitcher in that slot,” first-year Rangers manager Jeff Banister said of Gallardo starting the playoff opener. “He’s been a guy for us all year that has grinded out innings for us, has kept us in ball games. He’s put us some consecutive innings of zeroes also.”

Texas was 2-4 this season against the Blue Jays, with Gallardo getting both wins against the AL East champions. Toronto had six hits and hit .136 in 132/3 scoreless innings against the right-hander.

Gallardo was 1-2 with a 2.08 ERA in five playoff games for the Brewers. His first was his start in the 2008 NL Division Series opener against Philadelphia and Cole Hamels, the ace left-hander who is now his teammate and the Rangers’ scheduled starter for the second game in Toronto.

“I pretty much remember everything,” Gallardo said.

Texas Rangers starting pitcher Yovani Gallardo works against the Toronto Blue Jays during the first inning of a baseball game in Toronto on Saturday, June 27, 2015.

“Cole and I were just talking about that the other day. We’re out there shagging, just talking about the ‘08 season.”

Hamels pitched eight scoreless innings with nine strikeouts as Philadelphia won that game.

The Phillies went on to win the World Series as Hamels was voted MVP.

The last playoff start for both Gallardo and Hamels came in 2011 against St. Louis. Hamels beat the Cardinals in the division series, by Gallardo lost to them in the NL Championship Series.

St. Louis went on to beat Texas in a seven-game World Series.

Since throwing 81/3 scoreless innings at Toronto on June 27, Gallardo hasn’t pitched more than six innings in any of his 17 starts.

“Of course, I want to go nine innings every time out, but yet again, I just understand, they’re big games, important games, and we’ve got a great bullpen,” Gallardo said.

“They’ve done a great job throughout the year, especially the second half. ... I feel pretty confident with the guys coming in behind me. They’re going to come in and close the door down.”

Pirates stopped by Arrieta, fall to Cubs 4-0 in NL wild card and shutout for second year

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates spent all summer breathlessly and relentlessly chasing the St. Louis Cardinals while simultaneously trying to fend off the Chicago Cubs.

The first-place Cardinals proved just out of reach.

Turns out, Jake Arrieta and the rapidly maturing Cubs were too.

Arrieta overwhelmed the Pirates in a 4-0 victory in the NL wild-card on Wednesday night, ending #Bucktober nine innings after it began much in the same way Madison Bumgarner and the San Francisco Giants did last fall on their way to a World Series.

“Two years in a row we’ve drawn a tough bull,” Pittsburgh manager Clint Hurdle said.

The Pirates landed just four hits against Arrieta — or a handful less than the number of haymakers utility infielder Sean Rodriguez landed on an unsuspecting water cooler following his ejection in the seventh during a benches-clearing dustup after Pittsburgh reliever Tony Watson plunked Arrieta with a fastball.

By then Arrieta was firmly in control and the Pirates were in the final minutes of a spectacular 98-win season that evaporated under a steady stream of Arrieta fastballs.

“It burns. It stings,” said Pittsburgh starter Gerrit Cole, who gave up four runs in five innings. “All the negative things you could come up with, that’s how it feels right now.”

Arrieta struck out 11 without a walk to send the Cubs to the NL Division Series in St. Louis starting on Friday.

“I’m exhausted. I haven’t felt this way all year,” said Arrieta, who led the majors with 22 wins. “This atmosphere, the energy was unbelievable. Tried to use it to the best of my ability. They were loud, they were really loud.”

Dexter Fowler homered and scored three times for the Cubs. Kyle Schwarber added a towering two-run shot off Cole as Chicago raced to an early lead and let Arrieta do the rest.

“There was a lot of different things going on out there,” said Cole, who had pitched brilliantly down the stretch to help the Pirates to the second-best record in the majors. “I just couldn’t find that rhythm, that consistency to be able to sequence and make some pitches.”

The largest crowd ever at PNC Park failed to rattle Arrieta or one of baseball’s youngest teams. First-year manager Joe Maddon’s club played with swagger and confidence and looked right at home while snapping a nine-game playoff losing streak that dated to the 2003 NL Championship Series.

Pittsburgh was knocked out after narrowly missing their first Division title in more than 20 years. The Pirates team.

Hurdle shelved slugger Pedro Alvarez — whose 27 homers led the team but whose 23 errors made him a defensive liability — in favor of the more sure-handed Rodriguez to start the game. Hurdle pointed to the athleticism Rodriguez brought as a major factor, figuring the Pirates would need to get creative to score against Arrieta rather than hope Alvarez runs into the kind of mistake Arrieta has avoided nearly all season.

It didn’t work out that way.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead two batters into the game when Fowler led off with a single, stole second and scored on a single to left by Schwarber.

The two hooked up again in the third. Fowler singled with one out and Schwarber turned an 88 mph slider from Cole into a massive two-run shot that appeared destined for the downtown Pittsburgh skyline before disappearing over the stands in right field to make it 3-0.

Hurdle inserted Alvarez for Rodriguez in the bottom of the third. Alvarez went 0 for 3 with three strikeouts.

Arrieta retired 10 straight at one point, his only real wobbles coming in the sixth and seventh. Pittsburgh loaded the bases with one out behind a single, a hit batter and an error.

Starling Marte’s sharp grounder, however, rolled right to Addison Russell at shortstop. A double play and Arrieta and the Cubs were pumping their fists on the way back to the dugout.

Another double play in the seventh and the visiting clubhouse began preparations for a raucous celebration.

For the Pirates, their offseason begins earlier than expected yet again.

“The loss tonight doesn’t define this year we had,” centerfielder Andrew McCutchen said. “One loss, granted we’re out of it. It doesn’t mean we didn’t do a lot of things well this year, 98 wins is really, really good.”

Just not good enough to head to St. Louis.

Venus Favors Love as a Verb

Venus crosses into Virgo beginning a transit that highlights love's more helpful qualities. For those who have been infatuated, the love-sickness will start to fade away as those who love make their affection tangibly evident. Proof tends toward the practical because that is mostly what's needed these days. The takeaway: Love is a verb.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Are your spirits lifting for no apparent reason? Other people are thinking fondly about you, and through mysterious channels this has a way of lifting your spirits. They like you more than you might have guessed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). There is little more satisfying now than reaping the rewards of efforts you made so long ago that you can barely remember them now. If you're on a waiting list, get ready, because your name is nearing the top.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You know what your weakness is, but they don't. All they see is a person building on inherent strengths. Keep this up, and you'll be promoted inside of this year.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Maturity is your strongest asset now. The thing that made you feel afraid, squeamish, embarrassed or uncomfortable when you were younger will be the springboard for today's power move.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). It won't feel quite as necessary to give intensely passionate energy to your endeavors as it might have felt yesterday. What makes sense is to embrace the gentler side of life -- to focus less on doing and more on being.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). It's fun to be a part of something, but not when the meetings and administration take up more time than the actual endeavor that's bringing you all together. Reevaluate your involvement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Chances are you're not sure what to do. Make the choice that's going to leave you with the most options later. The others may not like that you're hedging your bets, but ultimately it will work to your advantage.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). When you invest yourself in something, you are giving more than money could ever buy. You are seeding your investment with a life force that will extend beyond you in ways you can't anticipate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The thing you wish you were doing is not the thing required of you. It's the norm for most people, but if you really want those long stretches of hours to devote to what you love, you'll find a way to make it happen.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It might not technically be your problem, but if you can easily solve it, you'll generously do so. As for the more complicated problems of others, you're better off not to get involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Imagine that everyone is cheering for you. It's not exactly true, but you do have enough fans to push on to greater heights if you'll only connect with them and let them encourage you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Most people aren't mind readers, but some people are. You'd be surprised what a certain very perceptive person can sense about you without you saying a word.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 8). On the day you were born, the sunshine streamed into your soul. This year you radiate that same brightness and warmth into the souls of others. The next three weeks show you promoting what you love and making a difference. Your glass-half-full attitude will get you hired or appointed in November. Sagittarius and Taurus people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 40, 21, 24, 39 and 11.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: Hi, Holiday. I've been divorced for 19 years and have only had a handful of relationships since. I haven't dated AT ALL in four years and wonder whether there is an imaginary bubble around me that I can't see. Lately, I am feeling it more than ever. My birthdate is October 15, 1962. Is there hope for me, and if so, when?

-- Wishing I Were a Mermaid and Could Swim Away

Neptune, ruler of all escapist mermaids, transits in a retrograde direction for about five months out of every year. The current retrograde of Neptune will last until November 18. You'll feel that imaginary bubble around you bursting around that time, and you are more likely to let your dream of the world merge with someone else's. In the meantime, there's no reason you can't operate a decent romance from inside your bubble. It provides a protective layer between you and the object of your affection. In some ways, this is an ideal situation! It's so much easier to flirt when you believe you can't be hurt. Online dating will be quite lucky if you set up your profile well. Pisces, Scorpio and Cancer are fantastic partners for you.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: On this birthday, Bella Thorne graduates from child star to young adult sensation with a full list of film commitments to celebrate the transformation. Look for her in the upcoming horror flick "Amityville: The Awakening." Born when the sun and Mercury were in Libra, Thorne's stars are excellent for working with others, strong partnerships, art, balance, politics and design.

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I read you on Facebook and hope you can help. My husband and I have been married for two years, after living together for five. We have four beautiful children. Things were going well until we moved into our new home. It's as if we suddenly became strangers. We barely spoke to each other. He kept a lot of secrets and lied about everything.

I started snooping around and found out he was having two online affairs. I confronted him, and he became angry, as if it were my fault. He made me feel terrible, so I let him walk all over me and was miserable. He claims these "affairs" were the same as looking at pornography, but he's wrong. I know one of these women, and they were both sending him text messages and racy photos. Last month, he cleared out half of our bank account and won't tell me where the money went.

After that, I told him he had to stop or the marriage was over, so he trashed his phone and now he rarely gets online. But I can't help thinking, given the chance, he would do it all again. I love him and our family and believe in keeping our marriage intact, but I just don't trust him anymore. Should I leave him or give him another chance?

-- Confused and Worried Wife

Dear Confused: When trust disappears in a marriage, it takes a great deal of effort -- from both parties -- to regain a foothold. You have four children together. Your husband has apparently trashed his phone and rarely gets online, and, as far as you know, he is no longer carrying on with other women. These things would justify giving him another chance.

But he still hasn't explained or replaced the missing money (this is a huge red flag) and, obviously, you don't fully believe that he will remain faithful down the road. This is why counseling is so important. Please ask your husband to go with you to see a professional who can help him understand why his behavior is so damaging, and work on ways for you to trust him again. As always, if he refuses to go with you, go alone.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Know the Difference Between You're and Your," who worked part-time as a proof-reader and media relations contact for a good friend who didn't like to have her grammar or spelling corrected. I agree with your suggestion of tact, instead of the writer's apparent "I'm right, you're wrong," approach. A spirit of camaraderie and mutual support is always helpful.

I'd also like to recommend that "Know the Difference" buy a copy of "The Chicago Manual of Style" and try to get her boss to agree that the experts will settle all bets. -- Marty in SoCal

Dear Marty: This is an excellent suggestion. The CMOS is one of the most widely used guides for American English.

It was first published in 1906 and the latest edition can be found in hardcover or online. Using such a guide would defer grammar and spelling questions to a respected authority and remove some of the rancor between friends.

Opening lead — king of spades.

Declarer is not expected to play every hand as though all 52 cards are exposed, but, despite this, he should only rarely fail to get the most out of a hand.

The nature of the game is such that sound reasoning is usually well-rewarded. If declarer realizes after a hand is over that he went down in a contract he could have made, he should review his plays objectively to see whether he could reasonably have found the winning line of play.

As soon as dummy comes down, declarer can see that a successful finesse in either diamonds or clubs would allow him to discard his spade loser and make the slam.

Choosing one finesse over the other is not just a matter of luck, even though theoretically there's a 50-50 chance that West has either king.

The deciding factor is that opting to take the diamond finesse is better because it can be preceded by the play of the ace of clubs, which has a chance of catching the singleton king in either opponent's hand.

This possibility should not be ignored because, mathematically, when four to the king of a suit are missing, the king will be singleton about one time in eight.

Of course, if the king does not fall on the ace, declarer has the diamond finesse in reserve, and in that way he gets two chances to make the slam instead of just one.

Tomorrow: Test your defensive play.

This Date In History

Today is Thursday, October 8, the 281st day of 2015. There are 84 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On October 8, 2005, a magnitude 7.6 earthquake flattened villages on the Pakistan-India border, killing an estimated 86,000 people.

On this date: In 1869, the 14th president of the United States, Franklin Pierce (puhrs), died in Concord, New Hampshire.

In 1871, the Great Chicago Fire erupted; fires also broke out in Peshtigo, Wisconsin, and in several communities in Michigan.

In 1890, American aviation hero Eddie Rickenbacker was born in Columbus, Ohio.

In 1918, U.S. Army Cpl. Alvin C. York led an attack that killed 25 German soldiers and captured 132 others in the Argonne Forest in France.

In 1934, Bruno Hauptmann was indicted by a grand jury in New Jersey for murder in the death of the kidnapped son of Charles and Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman told a press conference in Tiptonville, Tennessee, that the secret scientific knowledge behind the atomic bomb would be shared only with Britain and Canada.

In 1956, Don Larsen pitched the only perfect game in a World Series to date as the New York Yankees beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in Game 5, 2-0.

In 1957, the Brooklyn Baseball Club announced it was accepting an offer to move the Dodgers from New York to Los Angeles.

In 1967, former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee died in London at age 84.

In 1970, Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn was named winner of the Nobel Prize for literature.

In 1982, all labor organizations in Poland, including Solidarity, were banned.

In 1998, the House triggered an open-ended impeachment inquiry against President Bill Clinton in a momentous 258-176 vote; 31 Democrats joined majority Republicans in opening the way for nationally televised impeachment hearings.

Ten years ago: An Associated Press Television News crew covering the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina videotaped three New Orleans police officers beating retired teacher Robert Davis. (Two of the officers involved were fired; one of them, Lance Schilling, committed suicide, while the other, Robert Evangelist, was cleared of battery and false imprisonment and reinstated to the police force.)

Five years ago: Imprisoned Chinese dissident Liu Xiaobo (lee-OO' show-BOH) won the 2010 Nobel Peace Prize, prompting a furious response from China. British aid worker Linda Norgrove, who'd been taken captive in Afghanistan, was killed during a U.S. special forces rescue attempt, apparently by a U.S. grenade. Gen. James Jones announced he was quitting as President Barack Obama's national security adviser. Albertina Walker, the Grammy-winning singer from Chicago known as the "Queen of Gospel," died at age 81.

Thought for Today: "Don't let yesterday use up too much of today."

Will Rogers, American humorist (1879-1935).

Academic Star Student of the Week

Chris Dominguez
Coahoma High School

Coahoma High School senior Chris Dominguez is in the top 10 percent of his class. Along with his academic success, he is involved in football, powerlifting and track at the high school. His hobbies include hanging out with his youth group at Holy Trinity Catholic Church and his friends.

Chris is an outstanding young man who shows great character at Coahoma High School, according to his high school principal Charlotte Stovall. He leads with confidence and a contagious smile. Chris continually demonstrates a strong work ethic and plans to attend Angelo State University after graduation.

He is the son Irene and John Dominguez

Congratulations Chris!

BSJHS Pep Rally

Steer pride was showing at the Big Spring Junior High School Tuesday as the faculty, staff and student body held its first pep rally of the year for the school’s athletes. Three more are scheduled for the month and are held during 8th period. Those dates are Oct. 13, Oct. 20 and Oct. 27.

Abusaab, Sonic-Drive In donate to area college sports programs

Special to the Herald

ODESSA — A local businessman recently donated funds to support two area colleges athletic programs.

Sonic Partner Mike Abusaab of Big Spring once again, for the seventh straight year, continued his support of scholarships for Odessa College student athletes.

Although Abusaab was not able to attend the check presentation this year, he sent two local Sonic representatives to insure that OC received the funds. Sonic Partners, Al Hamad and David Laurel, presented the $2,000 check to the Odessa College Athletic Department for the Athletic Department Scholarship Fund.

“Our job at Sonic is to take care of our community,” Hamad said as he presented the check, “and OC is a major player in our community.”

OC Athletic Director Wayne Baker thanked Hamad and Laurel and said, “Mr. Abusaab and Sonic have been valuable partners with Odessa College, and each year this check represents another part of the total involvement they continue to have with OC.”

Also Mike and Sheila Abusaab and Hamad with Sonic Drive-ins invest $2,000 in the University of Texas Permain Basin UTPB.

“We believe in education.” said Mike Abusaab in a check presentation to David Watts, president of UTPB.

OC is a community college located in Odessa while UTPB is a four-year university connected with the University of Texas system and is also located in the city of Odessa.

The Abusaabs are long-time residents of Big Spring who own several Sonic franchises in the state along with owning KBEST media company.

Parents Corner What is your spark?

I was recently in a gathering of folks and someone in the group asked the question, what is your spark? I interpreted that to mean, what turns you on, or what lights your fire, or what are you passionate about, or what would you dearly love to do?

I will continue using the word ‘spark’ to identify this special feeling, which would be to develop a ‘burning desire’ for something to happen in your life. What is your ‘spark’? What could take place to make you have a desire to wake up each morning and fill your day with excitement, or the satisfaction of knowing that you are living life on your terms?

Think of it like this: your spark is something that comes from your beliefs, and can be enhanced by your skills, and accomplished by what you are able to provide. This spark may change over time. What your spark was ten years ago may not be your spark today. It may be best that you didn’t know it earlier because the knowledge you have acquired over time is what will enable you to recognize this special thing when it comes your way.

There is something out there that will resonate with your beliefs and align with your unique set of skills. So, what are our beliefs? Everything that we experience in life is what determines our belief system. These beliefs shape how we think, how we approach situations, and how we see things in life.

For instance, if you grew up with frugal parents who worked to make ends meet, you will have a different approach to your finances and career than someone who had a wealthy upbringing. Your beliefs are created from your past and form your opinions of the world.

It is important to pursue something that supports these beliefs, but also aligns with your current views. We must consider what motivates our decisions. If we end up basing all our decisions on what other people think is right for us, we’ll often end up feeling like we’ve missed our purpose.

Finding our spark comes from feeling like we’ve honored ourselves in our decisions rather than trying to be, or to satisfy someone else. We are the only ones that can make this call. This is something that’s unique to each of us, with no one scale to determine it, or to guide us to it.

So, if we are feeling exhausted or uninspired, it’s time that we consider reviving our spark and bring it out of its coma. In the same way a candle has a wick and the wick burns with oxygen, we need to fan our own flame with inspiration, and allow that inspiration to become the oxygen that lights our spirit.

Consider the following things and fill in the blanks with your initial thoughts. This will help you form a basis for your spark. I am passionate towards life when I think...I am passionate towards life when I feel...I am passionate towards life when I do...

What patterns of thoughts, feelings and behaviors do you “see” from your answers that are keys to your feeling passionate and confident in life? Which of your regular activities and tasks “lights up” your passion and self-confidence?

How can you expand the amount of time you spend on these activities and tasks, considering your present responsibilities, and how can others support your efforts to becoming the best person you can be at home and at work.

Your happiness in life is directly tied to the amount of time and energy that you spend in doing that which creates your ‘spark’. The sooner that you begin to pay attention to this and become proactive in pursuing these activities, the sooner you will recognize that the power to live a happier and successful life already exists within you!

Remember: Belief is the thermometer that regulates what we accomplish.

Bulldogs open district play against Ballinger

By Taylor Ellis
Sports Editor

In a matchup of two first-year coaches, the Ballinger Bearcats (4-1) will play host to the wounded Coahoma Bulldogs (3-3) this Friday night in a district opener.

The Bulldogs enter with many personnel questions coming off a bye week. In their previous game against Iraan, Coahoma lost junior Kody Barber and senior captain Kyler Franks, their two-headed monster in the backfield. Barber suffered a head injury and is listed as questionable, while Franks is dealing with a knee sprain that has him listed as doubtful. It has been confirmed that Franks does not have a tear of any kind.

“We’ve had our work cut out for us as a coaching staff,” head coach Fred Dietz said. “We’ve evaluated what we have and where we can move guys to fill needs.”

In Coahoma’s run-heavy spread offense, Barber and Franks have carried the load for the Bulldogs as they’ve continued to develop in head coach Dietz’s brand new air raid offense. In their place are two seniors, Britton Heath at quarterback and Zach Taylor at running back.

Heath came into the Iraan game during the second quarter and impressed his head coach with how he handled the situation.

“He’s done a good job of doing what we’ve asked of him. He’s a senior and one of our captains who has played receiver for us. He’s a good athlete and very capable of leading the offense,” Dietz said.

Taylor, who also started off the year at receiver, is a strong downhill runner similar to Franks. He possesses a high football IQ and is a good athlete.

Despite having two players in different positions, Dietz has not changed the game plan much.

“We trust both players to step in and allow us to continue to do what we do schematically. We will certainly have to make a tweak or two based on the opponent, but we are more focused on the Coahoma Bulldogs and executing our game plan.

Coahoma will face a soaring Bearcats team that has won three games in a row since posting a goose egg against Brady on the first weekend of September. Their offense starts with their dual-threat quarterback, who transferred from Crane high school where he was a second team all district quarterback last season.

Another key piece of the Bearcat’s offense is running back Clayton Crabb who was a 1,000-yard rusher in 2014.

The Bearcats and Bulldogs run a similar offense, spreading the field out and mostly running the ball.

“They put you in a bind with their formations and play the numbers game. They make you stay on your toes and you constantly have to adjust,” Dietz said.

Ballinger has hurt teams with the big play as of late, making tackling a premium for the Bulldogs. Ballinger has averaged 31 points per game over their three-game win streak.

Despite all the bad luck the Bulldogs have had recently with injuries, Coahoma was lucky that they had a bye week before district-play to get players ready. After a game against Iraan that wasn’t a true representation of who the Bulldogs are, they will look to take their first step towards a district championship Friday night in Ballinger.

Hit the road: Forsan makes trek to Anthony

Forsan faces seven hours on a bus and almost a 24-hour day, along with the opponent on the other side of the ball, Friday

By Taylor Ellis
Sports Editor

The Forsan Buffaloes (4-2) will travel more than 360 miles to face second-year district foe Anthony (3-3).

It will be one of the longest days of this team's life and, for many, the farthest West they have ever been. Anthony, which sits East of El Paso, features 14 returning starters from last season meaning many of the players will have a sour taste from the 51-0 loss they suffered when they made the long trek to Forsan.

The day will start around 8 a.m. when the team will load on to buses. There are several scheduled stops to allow the players to stretch their legs and eat throughout the day. Forsan plans to arrive at the stadium several hours before game time so they can ease into warming up.

"It's going to be an exiting adventure to say the least," head coach Jason Phillips said.

Forsan comes into the game beat up and battered. They finished last game with only two varsity offensive linemen, only one of which was in his usual position. On both sides of the ball Phillips has been impressed with the character and performance of his younger players.

"At first it's not an exciting time as a coach seeing kids go down and pulling younger guys up, but those guys are stepping up and making plays left and right," Phillips said.

With so many new faces the schemes have been watered down, but Phillips says that has actually helped his squad play faster.

"We've been going back to the basics especially in the passing game, which has really helped us balance the offense," Phillips said.

This is not a situation the Buffaloes are new to. A key way to prepare for has been giving the junior varsity players a substantial amount of reps during practice.

"We give our JV guys reps for instances just like this. We are pretty lucky to have such a deep and impressive JV squad."

Some might look at this long road trip as a nuisance, but Phillips things otherwise.

"It will be a good experience for us. If we are lucky enough to make the playoffs we will have more long trips ahead of us," Phillips said.

Though Anthony is considered the weakest of the five teams in their district, they will still provide a tough test for Forsan at home. They are a much improved football team showing more effort and athleticism then last year.

"Execution will be key. It's what kept this offense from finding the end zone in our two losses." Phillips said.

Running back Preston Alexander skips in to convert the two-point conversion, tying Big Spring with Andrews at 27-27 in the third quarter.

Big Spring sets sights on Snyder

In their district opener Big Spring faces what many believe is the weakest opponent in the district. They will still face a tough challenge against a much improved Tigers team.

By Taylor Ellis

Sports Editor

After two different but equally upsetting losses, Big Spring (2-3) looks to bury them and take a strong first step to a district championship. This Friday the Snyder Tigers (3-3) will travel 45 minutes to Memorial Stadium to battle the Steers in their district opener. Big Spring has not been able to play good offense and defense in the same game since their trip up to Hereford three weeks ago. Big Spring will look to bring a budding offense and stout defense together Friday night.

"The passing game was a bright spot last game despite some missed opportunities," head coach Phillip Ritchey said.

In the Andrews game quarterback Garrett Wington threw two touchdown passes to wide out Daniel Luna, and averaged 13.7 yards per pass. The first year quarterback has continued to develop as the year has gone on.

Last game was a promising, and if his timely completions can help alleviate the number of loaded boxes running back Preston Alexander sees, the Steers' offense could be as dangerous as it has been all year. Now is the time for that cohesion to emerge as the most important games of the season begin.

"We've been looking forward to this since the offseason. We need to not linger on a bad three to four minute stretch we had last game and focus on how well we played the whole game," Ritchey said. "This is like a whole new season and we get to start it off on the right foot come Friday."

Standing in their way is a Snyder team whose offensive line looks like they take college courses. Members of the line balloon up to 300 pounds and the defensive line is quite tremendous as well, meaning hard-nosed Alexander will have a more physical night than usual.

"They are bigger than us on both lines so we will have to beat them with speed and hustle," Ritchey said.

For Big Spring to have a chance at winning they must continue to stay opportunistic on defense. The Steers have five takeaways in the past two games.
