A Brutal Game—Such Is Politics—Officer-Holders Die—Some Pass in a Day—

POLITICS IS HELL FOR WINner or for loser. Business is business. For many months Texas has been in the throes of a political campaign that exceeded in bitterness any that had been staged since the Hogg-Clark campaign of more than a quarter of a century ago. That campaign was fought on economic issues.

There were great constructive measures which divided the people. There has never been a campaign in the history of Texas since the days of Stephen F. Austin, where religious or racial prejudices were uppermost until this year. None of the great questions which are disturbing the people and the world for that matter, the vast problems whose solution are necessary to save organized government itself, controlled thousands of voters in their choice of candidates from the highest to the lowest office to be filled by the people.

It goes without saying that the runoff campaign was one almost approaching savagely in its many phases and never equaled in the annals of Texas for vituperative denunciation and the vile abuse.

POLITICS IS A BRUTAL, NAY a beastly game, when it is played as the game has been played in the run-off campaign which closed Saturday.

It was not one-sided. It was a 50-50 proposition but the truth should be told. The two contenders for the highest office never descended to the level in gutter mud slinging of some of the speakers who addressed audiences in the principal cities and towns of Texas.

It has been said that gentlemen never roll in the gutter or go to the gutter for their arguments either in political or religious debates or in the legislative halls of common wealth and country. But the pressure has been lifted and the agony is over for the present at least. The people are the masters. They own the offices and they pay the cost of government principals live on forever.

OFFICE HOLDERS DIE IN A day. Principals, based on the fundamentals never perish. Ideals can not be slain. Justice can not be mobbed or murdered. There are questions of taxation before the people. There are questions or issues before the people which must be met by all Texans and problems which must be solved by the sane and the sensible justice loving people of the state. Rancorous political campaigns stagnate business. They retard progress. They deaden industry. They sow the seeds of hate and revenge. They make it impossible to obtain just and wise laws. They make ugly wounds and they leave lasting scars. This isn't a sermon. This isn't a criticism. It is a logical review and conclusion of perhaps the bitterest political battle in the history of Texas and men everywhere say that the end is not yet.

MARK YOU THIS WAS ONLY A primary contest and yet, the democratic party has been almost torn asunder by the factions and the extraordinary methods which have been introduced into democratic primaries for the first time in the history of the Lone Star state.

There are no birds in last year's

Ferguson's Entry Into Fight Puts Unusual Angle to Campaign And to History of Politics in the State

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 26.—One of the bitterest campaigns in the memory of old politicians in Texas ended tonight when the polls of the democratic run-off primary closed at 7 o'clock. Discussion of the ku klux klan, and injection of personalities increased the bitterness and the feeling of the participants.

The klan question promises to continue an issue until the November election. The republicans have put a full state ticket in the field and in their platform denounced the klan and declared it controlled a large part if not all of the democratic party machinery in the state. The democrats hold their state convention in San Antonio Sept. 6, and will adopt a platform then.

Whether the vote was heavy or light was unknown early this evening, as reports were conflicting. Some of the larger cities reported the vote was expected to be less than July 22, or first primary, while several of the smaller cities reported indications of a vote equalling or greater than that in the first primary, complish it by repeal of the Esch-

HARDING STILL HOPES FOR PEACE

Reluctant to Take Over Roads

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, August 26.—Although congress is to be asked to authorize government operation of railroads and coal properties, President Harding has told his advisors that he will exercise the authority thus granted only in case of an eventual industrial crisis which he does not now foresee.

Despite the apparent deadlock in both the rail and anthracite strike, the president is described as still confident a way will be found to protect the interests of the general public without resort to governmental direction in both industries.

Mr. Harding is said to consider it advisable that if congress is to recess it first should clearly define his powers to act, and legislation looking to that end is being prepared for submission at the capital early next week.

This policy of preparedness was received with approval among many of the majority leaders in congress, but was followed by evidences of reluctance among others to go further than is provided in the industrial in-

MAYFIELD GETS GOOD MARGIN IN WICHITA COUNTY

Ferguson Runs Good Race in County Precincts

In spite of strong support from rural boxes, "Farmer Jim" Ferguson, candidate for U. S. senator, trailed Earle B. Mayfield by almost 8,000 votes in Wichita county, the final vote, according to The Record News returns, being 3,602 votes for Mayfield, as compared with 2,816 votes for Ferguson.

Ferguson also received marked support in sections of Wichita Falls, where the labor vote predominates, carrying several boxes. At that, Ferguson ran a closer race than any other state candidate in the county. Bentley, candidate for state superintendent of public instruction being second. Bentley was defeated here by a margin of almost 1,100 votes, the final count being, 3,434 for Marrs, 2,397 for Bentley.

T. W. Davidson, of Harrison county, snowed Col. Billie Mayfield, Jr., of Harris county, under in the race for lieutenant governor here. Davidson received 3663 votes as compared with Mayfield's 2,488. Col. Mayfield is editor and owner of "Mayfield's Weekly," published in Houston, which is said to be a strong ku klux paper.

C. V. Terrell, of Wise county, easily won the democratic nomination for state treasurer against George C. Garrett of Dallas county. Terrell received 3,751 votes, more than any other candidate in Wichita county, while his opponent, George G. Garrett, polled only 2,078 votes.

This was semi-official information reaching San Antonio Saturday and was given credence in many quarters.

The report made public in San Antonio Saturday stated that Gen. Murguia left San Antonio Thursday by automobile accompanied by his secretary and Gen. Candido Aguilar, Brig. Gen. 31 Con Men Still Held Behind Bars

By Associated Press

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 26.—Thirty-one alleged members of the "confidence ring" raided Thursday night are still lodged in jail tonight. Only two of the original 33 arrested and held by District Attorney Phillip S. Vancise on a blanket charge of conspiracy to operate a confidence game have been able to raise the $25,000 set by the court as the amount of each individual bond, these two, Lou Bolnger and A. W. Duff, are at liberty.

J. Homer French, alleged leader of the "ring" who is also wanted under an indictment in Miami, Fla., was added to the list of arrests today when he was brought to Denver from Estes Park, Colo., where he was taken into custody last night.

Ford Bitterly Scores Wall Street For Causing Industrial Crisis

By Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 26.—Industry, the country over, "must throw up his hands in surrender" within a few weeks, if the rail and coal strikes continue, Henry Ford declared today in announcing the decision of the Ford declared today in announcing the decision of the Ford Motor company to close its plants here and in many other cities on September 16, because of the fuel situation.

Mr. Ford held financial interest responsible for the industrial tie-up, declaring the "money barons" were manipulating the labor unions and that public officials, state and national, were impotent in the crisis.

The strikes would end, he continued "when the majority of the people are cold and hungry enough to resort to drastic action."

Continuance of these disturbances to the economic life of the nation is due simply to the "greed and avarice of Wall Street," Mr. Ford asserted, adding that these interests, 'dominated the railroads, coal mines and public utilities of the country."

The deadlock in strike negotiations indicated, he declared, the existence of "a plot to unload the demoralized and run down railroads onto the government at their own price and mulct the people through excessive coal prices."

The announcement was the most severe blow that industrial Detroit has sustained since the industrial depression of two years ago. It means, according to Mr. Ford, that 75,000 men employed in the Highland Park, River Rouge and Dearborn plants of the company here will be without work. Thirty thousand others now working in the various assembling plants scattered throughout the entire country will be thrown out of employment. How long the machinery in the Ford plants is to be stilled will depend entirely upon the coal supply of the future, the Detroit manufacturer said. The statement issued by Mr. Ford announcing the proposed shut down was the story of his losing fight during the last few months to insure supply sufficient to keep his workers at their machines.

RECORD NEWS MAKES HISTORY IN GIVING ELECTION RETURNS

More than 1,000 Wichitans received the first election news in front of the Record News last night, where results of the election in Wichita county were flashed on the screen.

Exactly 1 hour and 17 minutes after the polls throughout the county closed, the total vote of the county had been flashed on the Record News screen, thereby establishing a new record in the collection and totalling of votes here. There are 23 polling places in the county, many of them miles from Wichita Falls. Yet the totals for 15 boxes were known at 7:41, precisely 41 minutes after the polls were closed.

At 8 o'clock, the totals of 21 boxes were given the huge crowd standing in front of the Record News office. At 8:07, there were 22 boxes complete. Returns from the 23rd and last box were received by the Record News at 8:15, one hour and 15 minutes after the polls closed. Two minutes later the total returns for every race in the county had been flashed upon the screen.

This established a new record for election service in Wichita Falls, and was more than an hour and a half faster than such news had even been furnished here before.

In addition to its bulletin board, where complete results were shown as fast as they were received, the Record News broadcasted the returns by radio from station WKAF every 30 minutes up to 10 p. m. for the benefit of its out of town readers, as well as Wichita Falls people having radio receiving outfits.

The Record News, through its able staff of reporters and assistants throughout the county, has developed an organization for the convenience and information of the public never before equalled in the history of the city.

The Record News is proud of the new record established, but it is still more proud that the citizens of Wichita Falls rely on it for the accurate news of big news events first.

This is only a sample of the service given by YOUR GROWING RECORD NEWS, every morning in the year.

18 HURT IN KATY WRECK AT BELLS

Freight Crashes in Katy Flyer

By Associated Press.

DENISON, Texas, Aug. 26.—Eighteen persons were injured, three seriously, when a freight train crashed into the rear end of the Katy Flyer train of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road at Bells, 14 miles east of here at 9:15 o'clock tonight. The three seriously injured persons were brought to Denison in ambulances.

The flyer was pulling out of the Bells station when the freight running extra, smashed into it. The impact threw nearly all of the passengers in the rear coach out of their bearths. The freight engine did not, however, telescope the Pullman coach. None of the cars were derailed and the track was blocked only a few hours.

Struck By Glass.

The eighteen persons injured were struck by flying glass and bruised from the jolt of the impact.

W. F. Benion, 30, of Commerce, is thought to be the most seriously injured. A list of the other injured could not be obtained tonight.

Fireman McFerrin of the freight train, was the only member of the train crew injured. He suffered a broken arm when he jumped from the engine.

The cause of the crash could not be ascertained tonight. The freight train was on a siding five miles back when the passenger train passed it. The passenger was running five hours late.

Miners Ready to Parley With U. S.

By Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 26.—The United Mine Workers are ready to negotiate a satisfactory wage agreement with governmental representatives should the federal government take over the anthracite mines, in case no agreement is reached with the operators, John L. Lewis, president of the union said tonight in a statement relative to the possibility of such action by congress.

With a deadlock existing between the miners and operators for peace in the hard coal fields where a suspension has been been in effect since April 1, Mr. Lewis said that the anthracite consuming territory will be seriously embarassed for lack of fuel during the coming winter and describing the possibilities of such a situation as "appalling."

Poincaire Rejects German Offers

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Premier Poincare has rejected the eleventh hour guarantees offered by the German government, and independent measures by France against Germany seemed assured tonight after failure of the reparations mission to obtain in Berlin the basis of a compromise acceptable to France.

In well informed French circle, it is considered reasonably certain that the reparations committee will grant a moratorium for the rest of the year, with the final German proposals as an additional guarantee.

"Scab" Starts Fight In Shawnee Streets

By Associated Press.

SHAWNEE, Okla., Aug. 26.—A street fight between women over use of the word "scab" and the arrest and detention of an alleged communist following an incendiary talk he is accused of having made to a group of striking railroad shopmen, were developments in the strike situation here tonight.

Deputy United States Marshal W. D. Fossett, in charge of guards at the two railroad shops, strengthened his lines tonight to prevent a recurrence of the bomb explosion of last night inside the guard lines about 100 feet from the C. R. I. & P. shops. No property damage resulted from the explosion.

MURPHY WINNER BY 30 VOTES ON COUNT BY PRESS

Avis and Mrs. Miller Elected With Safe Majorities

W. W. (Pat) Murphy leads in the horse race, according to The Record News returns, complete for the county. It can be called nothing else, and an official count will be absolutely necessary to determine the result of the sheriff's race.

Running neck and neck in the first primary which was won by Smith by only a few votes, both candidates for sheriff repeated their performance yesterday. Fred Smith, present sheriff, received 3,189 votes; Murphy received 3,219.

A heavy vote for Murphy in Burkburnett, Electra and Iowa Park was what told the tale. Smith had a comfortable majority in Wichita Falls but failed to carry many of the outlying boxes, although the vote was comparatively close.

At 8 p. m., when a total of 15 boxes was prepared, it showed Smith leading by more than 100 votes. This was after the heavy Burkburnett vote for Murphy had been totalled, but the Electra returns had not yet been received. At 8:50, the two candidates were neck and neck, and stayed so until 8:47 when The Record News completed its total canvass of the county, which showed Murphy leading by 30 votes.

Other county races were also close, J. D. Avis leading J. D. Parnell in the race for reorsentative, place No. 2, 111th district by only 90 votes. The total vote in the race, accordiue to The Record News' unofficial count, was Parnell 2,975; Avis 3,065.

Mrs. R. L. Miller led in the race for county clerk by a more comfortable majority, having 3,250 votes to Miss Elizabeth Hall's 3,010.

In the seventeenth district Blanton received 23,388 votes and his opponent, Oscar Callaway, has 14,763 votes in the incomplete returns from fourteen of the nineteen counties in the district. Blanton is leading in every county except one, Comanche, Callaway's home county.

Klan Stages Big Demonstration In Dallas Over Mayfield Victory

By Associated Press

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 26.—Celebrating the lead of the ku klux klan candidates in the run-off primary election, a parade was staged by the Dallas ku klux klan tonight. Some of the paraders were in automobiles and some were walking. They wore no masks.

Headed by an automobile carrying an electrically lighted "fiery cross," the parade wended its way through the crowded downtown streets. As the klansmen passed a bulletin board displaying election returns, a picture of Earle B. Mayfield, candidate for the democratic nomination for United States senator, was flashed on the screen. He has the backing of the klan. Instantly cheering went up in volumes.

The klan candidates are leading in all of the Dallas county races, the total vote of 23,228 at 11:30 o'clock tonight showed. The klan candidates for state offices also carried the county by safe majorities.

Earle B. Mayfield received 15,689 votes in the senatorial race against 6,822 for James E. Ferguson, his opponent.

Col. Billie Mayfield Jr. was leading T. W. Davidson by 1,452 votes in the lieutenant governor's race. Mayfield is the klan candidate. Ed R. Bentley, who also has the klan indorsement, was leading S. M. N. Marrs in the race for superintendent of public instruction by 2,580 votes.

The klan candidates for criminal district attorney, and the two state representatives places, were also leading by safe majorities.

Lead of 67,943 Seems to Assure Ferguson Defeat

Incomplete Returns From 206 Counties Give Mayfield 272,041 and Ferguson 204,098; Davidson Wins in Lieutenant Governor Race; Marrs Has Lead Over Bentley

COPYRIGHT, 1922, BY TEXAS ELECTION BUREAU.

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 27.—Three of the four state races in the run-off primary were definitely settled by returns compiled by the Texas Election Bureau up to one o'clock this morning. Earle B. Mayfield has been nominated for United States senator; T. W. Davidson for lieutenant governor, and C. V. Terrell for state treasurer. Marrs has a comfortable, but not decisive lead for superintendent of public instruction.

The lead of Earle B. Mayfield for United States senator, when 476,139 votes had been tabulated was 67,943. In 206 counties, 38 complete, Mayfield had 272,041 and Ferguson 204,098. The late returns indicated the vote was heavier in parts of the state unheard from before, and that it was possible the senatorial vote might go to 600,000. There were 618,000 votes cast in the gubernatorial race July 22.

The returns received up to 1 o'clock indicate that Ferguson was leading in El Paso, Galveston, Bexar and Bosque counties, while Mayfield was ahead in Dallas, Tarrant, Harris, McLennan and Wichita counties. It was not believed that Ferguson would overcome Mayfield's lead in the unheard from precincts.

In the race for superintendent of public instruction, Marrs had 218,779 and Bentley 205,702.

Davidson apparently had a safe lead for lieutenant governor over Billie Mayfield Jr. Davidson's vote was 254,514 and Mayfield 173,961.

Terrell maintained his early margin over George S. Garrett for state treasurer, having 235,371 votes to Garrett's 180,372.

The vote incomplete for congressman in the fourteenth and seventeenth districts, and for judge of the court of civil appeals was:

Congress, district 14—seven counties reported out of 21: Cunningham, 12,416; Hertzberg, 16,057.

Congress, district 17—17 counties reported out of 19: Blanton, 25,419; Calloway, 15,484.

Civil appeals, district 3—20 counties out of 31 reported: Baker, 29,800; Blair, 26,085.

Civil appeals, district 5—12 out of 15 counties reported: Taylor, 35,112; Jones, 36,775.

PASTY RING, PASTY LOVE

Mildred Soemo and Neal Littler.

A woman can change her mind and—that's her prerogative—but if a man exercises the same privilege, well—

Neal Littler, Chicago pie king, did and now he's the defendant in a $25,000 suit for balm to soothe the pangs of an aching heart.

The heart belongs to Miss Mildred Soemo who charges that her soul has been filled with mental anguish since she found that the engagement ring Littler is alleged to have given her was paste.

Coincident with the discovery that the ring setting, 2.7 carats by volume, was a pasty imitation, came the fear that perhaps her alleged fiance's intentions were of like material.

According to Miss Seomo the trouble all started over a common, everyday lover's quarrel. She was wearing the 2.7 percent—no carat—diamond Littler is alleged to have given her.

Suddenly she changed her mind. No wedding bells. Littler snatched the ring. "'S all off," quoth Miss Soemo, changing her mind.

But in the course of a day or two the spat had gone the way of all lovers' quarrels and back came the ring. Miss Soemo again wore it.

Then for some reason Miss Soemo began to wonder and wondering she hied herself to a jewelry store.

Alas and alack. She learned that Littler also had changed his mind. At last if he hadn't changed his mind he'd changed the diamond, Miss Soemo charges.

She charges the jeweler told her the stone was paste and worth but little more than a same sized piece of Littler's pie crust.

Then on went her little bonnet and Miss Soemo betook herself to a lawyer's office. The breach of promise action is the result.

"His love was paste like his ring," Miss Moemo declares. "Instead of explaining he sent me back the ring with a paste diamond instead of the real one. I couldn't forgive him after that."

And so it seems there are some things that even love can't forgive.

KLAN ISSUE—

counted. Democratic nomination is equivalent to election in Texas.

Mayfield is generally credited with being the klan candidate and Ferguson opposed the klan. Mayfield has the endorsement of the Anti-Saloon league, and Ferguson is an advocate of light wines and beers.

Other issues between them were less sharply drawn. They agreed that transportation rates should be lowered, but Mr. Mayfield would accomplish it by repeal of the Esch-Cummins act, while Mr. Ferguson said to abolish the interstate commerce commission. The federal reserve system was attacked vigorously by Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Mayfield said it possibly needed some changing.

Mr. Ferguson appealed particularly for tenant farmer and labor votes. Mr. Mayfield declared he was as friendly to those voters as any one. Mr. Mayfield also appealed to the women to vote for him and Mr. Ferguson devoted much time to telling why he thought the women should vote for him (Ferguson).

Fergusons' Career Stormy

In addition to the issues between the two senatorial candidates, Mr. Ferguson's race is one of interest, regardless of whether he is nominated, because of the conditions surrounding his candidacy. He has had a long and stormy political career in Texas and was impeached when governor in 1917, having been charged with receiving personal profits from state funds and with interference with the board of regents of the state university. Part of the judgment in the impeachment case was that he should never again hold office in the state of Texas. In his campaign just closed, he appealed for vindication.

Early in the senatorial campaign, this year, Mr. Ferguson was uncertain as to the attitude of the state democratic committee toward his candidacy. He and Mrs. Ferguson both announced they were candidates for the nomination for the senate and Mr. Ferguson said if the state committee refused to permit him to be a candidate, Mrs. Ferguson would be a candidate and he would campaign for her. The committee accepted both applications and when Mrs. Ferguson attempted to withdraw, members of the committee intimated that it was too late. However, her name was withdrawn at the first primary.

At the time of accepting Mr. Ferguson's application, the state committee attempted to declare that the voters at the democratic primaries this year should take a pledge that they had supported the democratic candidates two years ago. This was taken by Mr. Ferguson as attempting to keep his supporters from voting for him, as two years ago he was the candidate of the American party for president.

Mr. Ferguson termed the committee's action as giving him "a high-powered automobile, but taking away the gasoline." Many county committees refused to heed the pledge requirements and it was applied in few, if any cases.

Mayfield and Ferguson received the highest votes of six candidates in the first primary, polling about 300,000 between them. The other four polled about 300,000. The question to be decided by the count of today's vote is which man got the most of the 300,000 votes cast for the others July 22. Frequently the run-off primary, however, has not drawn as great a vote as the first primary.

State offices for which democrats selected their candidates today were for lieutenant governor, state treasurer and superintendent of public instruction. The candidates were:

For Lieutenant Governor: Col. Billie Mayfield Jr., klan candidate, and T. W. Davidson.

For State Treasurer: C. V. Terrell and George S. Garrett.

For Superintendent of Public Instruction: Ed Bentley, said to be the klan candidate, and S. M. N. Marrs.

MURPHY—

f justice of the peace, precinct 1, place 2, with a vote of 2,178 to 2020 for C. J. (Dad) Arrington.

In the race for constable, precinct No. 2, W. P. Blair leads with a vote of 330, only 14 votes ahead of H. L. White.

W. W. (Pat) Murphy, successful candidate for sheriff, last night announced his appreciation for the support he had received in the election, both to those who tendered their vote and those who worked in his interest.

Mr. Murphy holds no ill feeling for those who did not see fit to cast their ballot in his favor and promises to make the best sheriff possible for Wichita county.

None in 15th

In the fifteenth district the republicans in convention decided not to nominate a candidate to oppose the democratic nominee, John H. Garner. Also in the sixth district no nominee was put up to oppose Luther Johnson, the democratic nominee. The republicans in this district did not meet in convention and have no reasons for not meeting.

vestigation aand control legislation already pending.

In every move they made to advance the pending legislation today the congressional leaders met with opposition and delay, although they remained confident that all the emergency mesaures introduced with administration backing would be enacted into law. However, it was indicated that further consultation would be necessary to whip the whole scheme into shape. In the senate the Borah bill for a fact-finding commission in the coal industry, similar to one already passed by the house, met with such prolonged attacks that it finally was agreed to lay it aside entirely until a vote has been taken on the bonus bill, probably late Tuesday.

Provision in the measure for an inquiry into the advisability of nationalizing the industry met with the most stubborn opposition.

KANRAD WHEAT YIELDS SHOWN

Baylor Man Makes 20 Bushels

Kanred wheat beat other varieties in almost every instance, according to M. B. Oates, agricultural agent of the Ft. Worth & Denver. Its showing is so remarkable that it has not been possible to find a single instance where kanred has dropped in yield below other varieties when the conditions were equal. Reports continue to come in which prove the superiority of kanred.

Following are the latest reports on yields of kanred wheat:

Bob Machen, Red Springs, Baylor county, made 20 bushels to the acre on his kanred wheat which tested 61. His turkey red made 14 bushels and tested 60.

Walter Siddons, Seymour, made 15 bushels per acre on kanred and 11 bushels per acre on turkey red.

J. M. King, Oklaunion, had kanred wheat and soft wheat and both made the same yield, yield being only 4 bushels per acre. He states that his kanred wheat was on thin land and came up in January. It was all sowed late.

WRITES OBITUARY; DOES SOON AFTER

(By International News Service.)

PARIS, Aug. 25.—Correctness was a life passion with Dr. Jacques Bertillon, for thirty years director of the statistical bureau of the city of Paris and the uncle of the founder of the Bertillon system, who died four years ago.

Especially was he insistent that facts about him or quotations from him published in newspapers should be absolutely precise. He was the more severe on this subject in that he was a former Parisian newspaper man.

Editorial desks of local dailies were astonished to receive from Bertillon recently his own 'obituary," together with a note in his handwriting: "When you receive this I shall no longer exist."

Wonderingly several editors telephoned his home.

"Monsieur Bertillon just died," a hushed voice told them.

"Benny" has pulled a stunt that makes the "movies" look pretty tame.

Someone dared him to let a train run over him. That was all "Benny" needed. He climbed an embankment, laid between the rails, and the train came chugging along. The engineer saw "Benny" and attempted to stop the train but couldn't make the brakes work fast enough. When the train finally stopped the engineer saw "Benny" tearing down the tracks a mile a minutes, yowling his lungs out. Scalding hot water from the engine dropped on "Benny's" face and neck.

DUNDEE, Scotland, Aug. 25.—"If Englishmen have laughed at me, by gosh I have made them pay for it," said Harry Lauder at a city reception.

"I have saved some of the sixpence. I have given some of them away. I think I have lost some of them, but we Scotsmen are all right.

"They twit Scotsmen about thrift, but it would have been better for the world today if it had studied thrift.

NOTED FRENCH LEADER DIES

Lifting body of "Jules Guesde" from hearse at Pere-Lachaise cemetery

"Jules Guesde," famous French socialist leader, who died recently, was given one of the most impressive funerals of its kind held in France in recent years. In spite of his extreme views he was respected by all political leaders because of his honesty and truthfulness. Great crowds attended the funeral and followed the body to Pere-Lachaise cemetery, where the body was cremated.

What Makes a Wild Woman Wild? Toledo Cops Chase Far to Learn

TOLEDO, Aug. 25.—Police here got a new version as to what a wild woman is when they were compelled to chase all over town in an attempt to arrest Helen McCarty, twenty four for driving a machine while she is alleged to have been intoxicated.

With her bobbed auburn hair flying in the breeze, honking her horn, shrieking wildly, racing at forty miles an hour in the south end and making pedestrians scatter, Miss McCarty was finally brought to a standstill when the police machine was driven in front of her own, according to officers.

The patrol wagon was called and she remonstrated against riding in it by kicking out glass in the rear door on the way to the station.

In police court she answered not guilty to all charges and claimed police had a grudge against her.

"What's your name?" asked Judge Young.

"That's none of your business," she shouted.

The judge then fined her $25 for driving while she is alleged to have been intoxicated and $15 on a disturbance charge. She refused to pay and told the court to go where it's hot. She was taken to the detention home to think it over. Unless the fine is paid she will have to go to the workhouse.

French Warship Sinks in Bay

By Associated Press.

L'ORIENT, France, Aug. 26.—The battleship France, 23,000 tons, one of the prides of the French navy, struck a rock off Quiberon bay in the darkness of early morning today and went to the bottom in 75 feet of water.

All but three of the 900 officers, men and crew were rescued from rafts and boats launched from the battleship before she took her final plunge. The wrecked warship, which was one of four battleships of the first line, was returning from night maneuvers to her anchorage at Port Haliguen, when at 1 o'clock this morning she ran on a hidden rock lying 25 feet below the surface. A great gash was torn in the steel hull of the dreadnaught. She remained afloat an hour, giving the crew enough time for hurried escape in boats. Then the doomed craft slowly settled, turned on her side, and went down. She lies on the bottom and is considered a total wreck.

DOES IT PAY TO OWN YOUR OWN HOME IN WICHITA FALLS?

The answer is absolutely YES. Aside from the question of the improved status of citizenship, of the Home Owner as compared to the Renter, the answer is YES from a cold dollars and cents standpoint.

With the exception of the homes built during the inflated cost years of 1919 and 1920 there never was a home built in Wichita Falls that could not be—

Sold at a Profit

THE DAYS OF INFLATED AND FALSE VALUES ARE OVER IN WICHITA FALLS. You can now build in perfect safety, feeling assured that you can acquire your home now on a basis that will compare favorably with costs for the next several years.

Lumber has advanced considerably since January 1 and further delay may mean a higher cost for your home. We built houses in December, January and February that would cost $300.00 more per house to duplicate today.

We Have Houses to Fit Every Purse

On Pearl Street we can sell or build you a house at a very moderate price, or if you want an expensive home we can go as far as you like.

We own the lots in the 2300 block on Yale Street in the Sibley-Taylor Addition. You will be surprised to find how small a sum you can own a home for on one of these lots.

Any Salaried Man Can Own a Home On Our Easy Payment Plan

If you own your own lot, or prefer to buy a lot in some other section of the city, remember we will build you a house on your lot, permitting you to pay out the entire cost in monthly payments, with 8 per cent interest. If you have any idea of ever owning a home, you now have one of the most favorable opportunities you will ever have to secure same.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

nest. What happened yesterday is ancient history. What will happen tomorrow concerns all the people. What will happen in the future concerns those who come after us. Politics is politics. Business is business. This republic has endured for a hundred and forty-six years. It will endure for a hundred and forty-six years to come.

In the long run, the safe and the sane of American citizenry will direct the ship of state and the governmental affairs for the American people. It will be conducted along constitutional lines. It will be a government of law and order and liberty and justice. These are the principles which never perish. These are the ideals which shall abide in the hearts of free men and women until time shall be no more.

THERE ARE BREAKERS before the American people but the ship of state will ride into harbour as proudly as in the days of yore. There are barriers which bar the car of progress and enlightment but these barriers will be kicked aside in future as they have in the past. There are mighty problems to be solved by the wisest men and women of America but the solution of these problems will come as problems were solved in other years.

There are emergencies and crises to be met but they have been met and conquered by the ever marching onward peoples throughout all the ages. Texas is an imperial common wealth. It's millions of men and women are not filled with hate nor bigotry. There are biggots and fanatics everywhere but they are never in the majority in this land of ours.

ALL DENOMINATIONS HAVE them. All political parties have them. All societies and all organizations have them. If it is true that God made us all of them, then he made biggots and fanatics of religion and politics and he must have made them for a purpose.

There is one flag. All Americans would bow to.

There is one constitution. All Americans should revere, it.

There is one republic. All Americans should love it.

There is one destiny. All Americans should seek it.

There is one God. All Americans should obey his commandments.

There is one future. All Americans should strive to shape it.

There is one grave and all men who are born of women shall fill it.

Face the future. Bury the past. Close up the ranks and work for Texas, the common wealth the fathers won with their swords and the heritage which they passed on to those who came after them with an abiding hope and a prayer to the God on high that posterity would keep the faith and make this the foremost and the freest of all the commonwealths of the American Union.

WANTED, 1 MAN, A GIRL, CASH

Phyllis Reed

(By Central Press)

CHICAGO, August 26. — Lost, strayed or missing, one man, one cute little show girl and $100,000.

Police here are on the trail of the elusive trio, but to date haven't even come close to catching up with a single corner of this triangle.

Raymond W. Ferguson, builder of "New Idea Homes," is the missing man. Phtyllis Reed, Marigold Gardens show girl, is the missing piece of feminity, and the "hundred thou"—oh! that was deposited with Ferguson by trusting home builders, according to police.

Police do not believe that Miss Reed is involved in Ferguson's financial afafirs, alleged to be in a tangle, but they believe she might be able to give information as to his whereabouts.

At the Marigold Gardens her companion show girls say they have heard nothing of Miss Reed for some time. Police are quite sure they haven't heard anything of Ferguson.

The investigation into Ferguson's affairs started at the request of E. C. Hart, president of the Fidelity bank, in which Ferguson carried an account. This came after Mrs. Donald McAllister had become snuspicious of Ferguson and refused further payments after giving the "home builder" $1,200 down.

"He had the most beautiful Harvard accent, and he swore in beautiful Bostonese," says Mrs. McAllister. "It was his accent which first attracted me, but I did think his swearing was a little bit incongrous with his intellectual pretensions. That's what made be suspicious."

Police believe that Ferguson may be in Utica, N. Y., to which city his baggage was traced, or in Ilion where his wife's relatives live.

El Paso, Tex., 8-10-22.

Self Cleaning Spark Plug Co.,
Wichita Falls, Texas.
Gentlemen:

Thought it would be of interest to you gentlemen to know of the performance of my Cadillac automobile on a long run with W-K Spark Plugs installed.

I had them put in my car in Santa Ana, California, leaving early in July for the east via the northern route through Colorado, seeing the sights as we came along. We reached Amarillo a few days ago, having made approximately four thousand miles with an average gasoline consumption of fourteen miles to the gallon. I call this some saving, and will use nothing but W-K Plugs in the future. You may use this letter if you so desire.

They are all that you claim and more, are a real investment.

Yours truly,

BURBANK'S RIVAL

(By International News Service.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 25.—Luther Burbank has a rival!

D. W. Barrick, civil war veteran, of Sawtelle, is celebrating the second greatest event of his life.

The first event was when he marched "with Sherman to the sea," and the second is that he has succeeded in making prunes grow on apricot trees.

Two years ago the veteran soldier grafted prunes onto two apricot trees and, while the fruit will not be ripe until next month, both trees are literally "full of prunes."

BESCHER OUT

A message from Manager Salm late last night stated that Bescher was out of the game yesterday with a bad leg. The injury is not serious and the slugging outfielder was used as a pinch hitter in the Crab opener.

"Boys still fighting. Will win. Stay with us," was the manner in which the message was closed.

GULFIES GRAB CITY LOOP FLAG

Lourcey's Double in Ninth Counted Two Runs

By DON WILDON

When Dourcey, star Gulf company catcher, poled out a two base hit in the ninth with two men on he overcame a one point lead and beat the Texas company in the second game of the series, 6 to 5, winning the city league championship for the Gulf. Yesterday's game was the second one to be taken in succession by the Gulf and gave that team the necessary two games to take the pennant.

The game was a pitching duel, neither hurler having any marked advantage. They were both in perfect form and showed some of the prettiest pitching seen in the park this this year. Although both teams have hard hitters they seemed helpless and were unable to connect fairly. The hits on each side were scattered and if there was any difference Connelly had a little the better of the breaks and shoved a slight advantage.

Maloney was the outstanding star in the field and accepted several chances that seemed impossible and handled them all in fine style. He made hard catches that were far out of the reach of the ordinary amateur player and threw the ball hard and true on every catch.

Kizziar came into the lime light in the eighth when he fielded a hard grounder and as he did, lost balance and fell but threw the ball to first and cut off the runner. He played a jam up game in every way and hit hard every time.

The Texas company lost several chances to win the game by errors and fumbles. Biggs let the Gulf make a double play in the eighth by running into second when a slide would have made it. Had he been safe the next man would have scored him. All the Texas men were wild on bases and ran them as if they hardly knew the home plate from the outfield.

Harris of the Texas company had a bad day in the field and missed several fly balls that should have been easy outs.

In the eighth, with the Gulf one score in the lead, Gordon of the Texas nine, came to bat and drove to deep left for two bases, scoring two men. Then when the Gulf came to bat they were cut off from a run by one of the prettiest pieces of baseball of the game, when Biggs threw a perfect peg to home, cutting off the tying run.

The last half of the ninth inning saw the Gulf a point behind and it looked like a hopeless task to win but two men got on, one by a walk and another with a hit and Lourcey came to the plate with two men down. He watched a couple go by and then leaned into the next for a two bagger, winning the contest by one run.

SKIRT SAVES LIFE OF WOMAN FANATIC

(By International News Service)

ROME, Aug. 25.—Sofia Citarico was saved by a skirt.

Sofia, who was suffering from a religious mania, jumped into the street from an upper window of her home, after announcing her intention to "give herself to the Lord."

A minute after her jump Sofia arose from the pavement and walked away, her heavy skirts having acted as a parachute broke the fall.

BRENNAN TOO FAT

Bill Brennan as he appeared recently at his first training session in Chicago.

Bill Brennan, the husky gent who gave Jack Dempsey a grueling fight for rounds two winters ago, is booked to fight Dempsey again Labor Day at Michigan City. Brennan arrived in Chicago the other day to sign articles and establish training quarters. Judging by this photo, taken of him then, he has a lot of fat to shake off before he meets the champ.

IOWA PARK MEETS BRADLEY'S CORNER

The strong Iowa Park team will meet the Bradleys Corner nine at Iowa Park this afternoon in what promises to be a snappy contest. The two teams have met once before, at which time the Iowa Park crowd took the long end of a close score. The team from the Corner is especially anxious to take today's game and wipe out the former defeat.

The Iowa Park aggregation is rated as one of the fastest in amateur base ball and has an enviable record of wins. Only three games have gone gainst them this season and these were at the hands of the two leading clubs of this district. The team is probably stronger now than at any time this year and is determined that they will drop no more contests before the season closes.

The Bradleys Corner club, although not the possessor of such a record, is a fast outfit and can give the Oilers a good game. They have not played for several weeks, but have put in several days of hard practice and promise to make the game today an interesting one, with all the speed and pep that is necessary.

PATE WINS IN REGULAR SHOOT

Cooper Beats Leslie For Trophy of Last Week

Joe Pate took the high score honors in the regular weekly gun club shoot Friday afternoon, when he broke 50 straight birds. He played right through the two frames without a miss breaking every bird fairly and not dusting them.

The shoot was featured by several excellent scores but Pate's perfect record made the second time any shooter has broken 50 in a row shooting both frames the same day. Deatherage was a close second but missed tying the record by one shot when he missed his pigeon completely.

Several shooters were tied for last week's spoon and when the shoot-off was held Friday, it was necessary to shoot through two frames before the tie was broken by Cooper who defeated Leslie. In the first shoot, Dempsey who had tied last week, fell down and was dropped from the lists. Then Cooper and Leslie shot and Cooper took honors.

The six men who will represent the local club at the Grand American event at Atlantic City in September shot several rounds in practice for the event.

The scores: Pate, 50; Deatherage 49; Daniels 49; Ward 46; Landon 46; Maer 45; Cooper 45; Greenburg 42; Dempsey 42; Leslie 42; Adams 42; Langford 40; Youngblood 39; 39; Bailey 37; Boardman 35; Burgess 33; Kiddy 30; Culver 29; White 28; King 24.

Doubles: Ward 23; Greenburg 22; Daniels 22; Adams 20; Pate 20; Deaherage 18; Lourcey 11; Dempsey 9.

Delaware PUNCH
It's the Real Punch

OTHER "PUNCHES" ARE IMITATIONS, AND LACK PUNCH DELAWARE HAS

Delaware Punch is one of the most popular drinks in Wichita Falls—at the soft drink stands, at the ball games, at athletic meets, there is a steady and insistent demand for Delaware Punch. The secret of its popularity lies in its delightful and inimitable flavor and its thirst-satisfying qualities.

Its popularity has led others to put on the market a beverage purporting to be an imitation of Delaware Punch.

The word "imitation," however, means a copy of an original thing. But these alleged imitations of Delaware are copies of the word "punch" only. There is no similarity in the quality of the drink.

There is only one Delaware Punch—do not accept an imitation.

NEW YORK, August 26. — The New York Americans see-sawed back into the American league lead today by a half game, easily winning the third game of the series with St. Louis, 9 to 2. New York made it's runs in lots of one and two, scoring in every inning but the first and third. Mays bruised several fingers on his right hand while stopping Gerber's hot drives in the seventh, and lost some of his effectiveness, St. Louis hitting him for two doubles and three singles in the last two innings. Sisler carried his batting streak to his 25th game when he singled in the sixth inning.

TIGERS TAKE COSTLY GAME

WASHINGTON, August 26.—Detroit defeated Washington in a loosely played game today, 8 to 5. It was a costly victory for Detroit, however, as their hard-hitting outfielder, Harry Heilman, in a collision at first base with Brower, had his collar bone broken and is probably out of the game for the rest of the season.

Summa Boosts Mark With Spurt In Recent South Texas Games

Homer Summa continues the undisputed pacemaker for swatists of the Texas league, according to averages released Wednesday, having boosted his mark almost a dozen points during the past week due to a sprint taken in the Houston and Beaumont series.

Summa is rapidly approaching the league record for a season's safeties and has yet ample time to raise the future mark several degrees.

In addition to showing the way to hitters, Summa is likewise the leading run-getter of the loop, having spiked the rubber no less than 117 times since the opening gong.

Homer Ezzell added one stolen base to his total, making 52,, equaling the record of Fred Henry set up in 1921.

Clarence Kraft still leads the home run hitters with 24, but has not yet seriously threatened the record set by Hack Eibel last year.

Eight Spudders besides Summa are above the .300 mark and Manager Salm can and does daily place a team of regulars in the field who are in the "golden glow."

Pitching Averages

Lefty Ross has taken charge of the top of the pitcher's column with his nice string of wins, and only one loss charged, that being his first appearance in the league when he was bumped by the Spudders when he lost the second game of a double bill in Aathletic park while the local guard were taking five straights from the Cats.

Wheeler shows the best strikeout average for the season, though he is tied in number with Jack Knight of Galveston. Wheeler has pitched 57 fewer innings than Knight.

Paul Waethel has already passed his 20th victory for the season.

Five Spudder hurlers are above the 500 mark in games won, with Keene, Wheeler and Ruth bunched near the top. Mokan and Perdue are in the select company now composed of but 30 members.

FEW BOOTLEGGERS TRIED IN COURT

(By International News Service.)

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 25.—Only a few bootlegegrs in Atlanta are ever caught and of those few 85 per cent get off with a "small license fee," according to a report prepared by the commission on civics of the Christian council of Atlanta and submitted to the Evangelical Ministers' associaton.

The average monthly fine for the month of June in the city criminal court, where misdemeanor cases are tried, was $52.85, according to the report, which characterized this sum as a "license fee."

"What are we coming to?" the report asks, reciting that in a total of 167 liquor cases disposed of in the court during June fines were imposed on 101 and chain gang sentences on 19.

Presuming those forfeiting their bonds to be guilty, the report continues, there was only 15 per cent of those found guilty who were punished other than by license fees averaging $52.85.

Former Aggie Star To Coach Squad

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 26.—Coach Guy Lookebaugh has arrived here and issued first call for pigskin warriors who will defend the local high school in state circles.

School officials are complimenting themselves on their selection as well as the material with which he will work.

Several members of last year's squad are waiting for the opening of practice and new material which contains many promising prospects will augment the already strong aggregation.

The following schedule has been announced:

September 22, Grandfield at Frederick.
September 29, Frederick at Mangum.
October 6, Snyder at Frederick.
October 13, Frederick at Lawton.
October 20, Walters at Frederick. (tentative.)
October 27, Frederick at Hollis.
November 3, Waurika at Frederick.

GIRL STRANGLED WITH SMALL ROPE

(By International News Service.)

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Inadvertently strangling herself to death with her own skipping rope was the remarkable fate of Marguerite Martin, of Epinal.

It was learned at the inquest that after skipping with her schoolmates she fastened one end of her rope to a gate, the other end she then wound around her neck to play. A strong wind resulted in the gate swinging to and fro, and the girl was swung off her feet, dying later of strangulation.

COYOTES WAIT FOR FIRST SIGNALS

Coach Jones Arrives Tomorrow to Begin

By DON WILSON

Organized practice of the grid men of the Wichita Falls high school will start this week under the direction of Coach Jones who will arrive in the cit ytomorrow. He has not set the city tomorrow. He has not set work bu in a communication to members of the team stated that he would arrive Monday and would issue a call within the next few days.

The team had been practicing for several days under the leadership of Captain "Hunky" Walker and are in the best of condition for regular work, according to him. Every afternoon for the last week a number of last year's letter men have reported at the high school grounds where they went through light exercises and practiced handling the ball.

When they report for regular work there will be nine of the star team from last season who will wear the moleskin. Besides Captain Walker there will be the complete back field and four of the old line, and with this number as a foundation the new mentor should build a team that will take any contests they might enter. Never before in the history of the school has the outlook been so bright at the beginning of a football season and never before has there been such a host of material available from which to pick a winning eleven. The new coach will have no classes or other duties to interfere with his work on the field, as have previous coaches and he can give his entire time to the molding of a team that should be the strongest ever put out by the local school.

Under Coach William Viner's direction last year the back field was developed into the fastest bunch of ball carriers that has graced the local gridiron and they will report in a body to the coach of this season's club. "Shorty" Chewning at quarter, was one of the fastest men in the line-up and directed the team in the manner of a veteran. His signals were given in a clear voice and he had the pep and nerve that held his team mates' confidence and carried the eleven to more than one well-earned victory. He will be back at his old position this year with two years' experience behind him and will, probably be at the helm another season.

Kenley will report back for his place at full back and will be a hard man to oust from the position. On the defensive he is a veritable battering ram and when his opponents had the ball it was seldom that one got by him. He was one of the fastest away with the ball it was time to men on the line-up and when he got start counting six more points for the red and black.

Moore and Brashear will be back at the halves with Stringer giving them a hard race. Moore was a player of no mean ability and was a demon when called through the line. His favorite stunt was to dive the opposing line and come up running and he was a man with absolutely no fear and the skill of a college star. Brashear was not in every game but was rated as one of the fleetest open field runners in the back field, slipping through the opposition with lightening side steps and carrying the ball far every time. The fastest man on the team was undoubtedly Stringer. He carried the pig skin farther over than any man that has ever played on a Wichita team. His judging of passes was of the best and when the ball entered his arms it never left them. He has the record of never having been caught by a runner coming from the fear and he has yet to find a high school man that can cover ground any faster than he.

With this machine in working order. Electra and other teams in this district are due to meet the fastest and hardest hitting aggregaion that has been seen here in many a year. There will be plenty of material on hand to furnish a brick wall line and if the team fails it will not be for lack of men. Coach Jones comes to Wichita with a record both as a coach and as a player that shows him to be a real football man and thoroughly capable of putting out a winning team.

REPUBLICANS ADMIT FAILURE TO CARRY OUT PROMISES AND PROMPTLY BLAME DEMOCRATS

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—The chief feature of republican propaganda is a plea in confession and avoidance, according to the professional democratic view here. Many republican now admit that they have not kept their pre-election promises, but offer the excuse that the democratic administration left such a "mess" on their hands that they have been unable to do more.

This alleged pretense, made for the purpose of enabling republican leaders and the republican press to dodge the issue of broken promises to the people, is being challenged by Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic national committee. After referring to the "mendacious campaign" conducted by these same republican "best minds" in 1920, "in reckless disregard of truth and morals, which they are now seeking to repeat," Chairman Hull says:

"Under the rules of testimony in any court of justice these authors of every species of criminal deception in 1920 are not this year entitled to be believed upon any political subject. But let us see what kind of a 'mess' the recent democratic administration did leave to its republican successors."

Chairman Hull then points out how the republican congress of 1910-1920 bitterly partisan and vindictive, did obstruct, delay and defeat the great reconstruction program of the democratic administration for the early settlement of all post-war problems ,and to this extent created a mess which the present republican administration inherited.

Chairman Hull then gives in detail a picture of democratic prospertiy which the democratic party bequeathed to the republicans, which they, the republicans, now refer to as a "mess." He says:

"Let us see further just what sort of a 'mess" the democratic administration did leave to its successor. The country was enjoying unparalleled prosperity during 1919 and 1920 under democratic rule. Every laborer was employed at full time at the highest wages ever received in time of peace.

"Farmers in every section were never more rich and prosperous. They had accumulated nearly thirty billions of wealth and savings under the eight years of democratic control, during which, sound and reciprocal foreign market conditions, enabling the farmers readily to sell every ounce of their surplus products at top prices, were maintained. The manufacturing and mining and other great industries had increased their volume of production more than 30 per cent, and their annual income more than fifteen billions of dollars. Their increased property values and profits amounted to tens and tens of billions of dollars. The ablest bankers, business men and economists were predicting an uninterrupted period of unprecedented prosperity.

"Our internal commerce, aggregating eighty-five billions of dollars in 1920 had far more than doubled, while our foreign commerce, aggregating thirteen billion five hundred millions of dollars in 1920, had more than trebled. Every smoke stack was smoking and every factory humming. America had become the world's banker and the world's storehouse of foodstuffs, manufacturers and raw materials. A great merchant marine had been built up. The nation had achieved a most glorious was record under democratic leadership. America had leadership sound policies and programs, both domestic and foreign, during the democratic administration, which was the envy of the world.

"All these great outstanding heights to which America climbed in her financial, commercial, economic, military and social achievements from 1913 to 1920. These big facts, which speak for themselves, and which the most ignorant citizen clearly remembers, are lasting and indestructible evidences of the so-called 'mess' which the present republican administration inherited from its democratic predecessors."

FAST CONTEST PROMISED TODAY

Legionnaires Face Ponds Team on Ball Lot

Wichita Falls ball fans will have a chance to see a real hard fought amateur contest Sunday when the American legion nine meets the Ponds Laundry team at the Athletic park. The clubs are old enemies and when the first ball is pitched at 3:30 there will be two teams lined up that are capable of staging a first class brand of base ball. Every man in both line-ups is a veteran of many contests, and the meeting should bring out many stellar plays.

Women and children will be admitted free and a nominal charge will be collected from others. The game will be called at 3:30 sharp and will be played in strict league fashion with a capable umpire ruling the field.

It is understood that the teams have posted a large side bet on the outcome of the contest and with this additional incentive every man on the field will put his best into the game. Men of authority state that the purse is of a size to inspire the laziest to hard work and that the winners will divide the sum among themselves after the game.

P. Raley will go on the mound for the Ponds Laundry and should make it a hard matter for the Legionnaires to get on base. His hurling has been especially effective against city league teams the last few weeks and the legion batters will face a real ball tosser when he goes in the box.

The American legion will be well represented in the box also, with Wafford carrying the heavy end of the work. Waffords hurling has been one of the features of the year's record in amateur circles and he is rated as one of the cities' strongest pitchers.

The teams as they line up will display eighteen of the most successful amateur ball players in this part of Texas. As they line up they are:

QUITS SCHOOL BOARD WHEN KIDS FINISH

MERIDIAN, Miss., Aug. 25.—Gus C. Kendall, school board member, has resigned.

Reason—the last of his children has grown old enough to quit school.

In his place a woman has been named by the city council, the first woman to win such a position in Meridian. She is Mrs. John G. Minniece, choice of the civic club.

She won against a man backed by Mayor Parker. The mayor's choice was Monroe Keeton. He received only the mayor's vote, and the mayor then moved to make the election unanimous.

SAN ANTONIO—One of the largest sales of cotton planting seed in the history of the cotton industry, according to cotton men here, has been consummated when Pat S. Groan of Corpus Christi purchased from S. A. Stufflebeme of the Kasch seed breeding farms of San Marcos a solid trainload of 15 cars of Kasch improved pedigreed seed for $42,000. The seed was purchased for farmers of Neuces county and delivery is to be made in November in time for next season's planting.

BIRMINGHAM — Wages of coal miners in the Alabama field will be increased 20 per cent September 1, according to announcements here following a meeting at which practically every mine operator in the state was said to have been represented. Twenty-six thousand men will be affected by the increase, it was said.

DETROIT—The Ford Motor company plants at Highland Park, Dearborn and River Rouge, suburbs, will close down September 16 because of lack of coal, it was announced by Henry Ford. The suspension will affect upwards of 50,000 workers in the three plants and indirectly several hundred thousand others throughout the country.

WASHINGTON—Coal loadings for the first four days of this week amounted to 73,768 cars, an increase of 35 per cent over the loadings for the first four days of last week, the Association of Railway Executives has announced. The taotal represented the largest number of cars loaded with coal for any four day period since the coal strike began April 1.

Reports received by the association from the various railroads showed that 18,784 cars were loaded Thursday, an increase of 615 cars over Wednesday.

WASHINGTON—The Miami-Barbadoes cable of the Western Union Telegraph company has been opened for business after its use as a direct line of communication between North and South America had been blocked for more than eight months by a controversy between the company and the United States government.

RENCHMAN KEEPS FATHER'S BODY

(By International News Service)

PARIS, Aug. 25.—A modern mummy can be seen in a tiny mountain village near Puy de Dome. A noted French archaeologist of eighty odd years found it very hard to part with his dead father completely. So he obtained permission from the civil and religious authorities to preserve the body in rectified spirits of wine. The body lies in a zinc box specially constructed with a thick glass window and is kept in a little chapel, where the son comes every day to pay his dead father a visit. Reports infer that the body is in an almost perfect state of preservation.

INSANITY PLEA AVERTS DIVORCE

(By International News Service.)

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 25.—No matter how cruel a husband or wife may be, if the offending spouse is insane divorce cannot be obtained in Georgia.

This, in effect, was the ruling of Judge W. D. Ellis in superior court here in proceedings brought by Mrs. Susie Moody, who sued W. W. Moody for divorce, alleging that while insane he mistreated her.

Judge Ellis sustained a demurrer to the petition on the ground that if it admitted Moody was insane it then showed no cause for action, "there being no legal cruelty possible of commission by an insane person."

The case will be appealed to the supreme court.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The continued reactionary movement in foreign bonds, presumably in response to the recent downward trend of exchange and disturbed political and economic conditions abroad was the outstanding feature in today's relative dull bond market. COTTON MEETS SMALL GAINS

Selling Pressure Is Evident

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26.—Pressure to sell in a moderate way was in evidence in the cotton market today, although there were periods of steadiness, one in the early session, and another in the late trading, the latter following the issuance by the weather bureau of the warning of the first hurricane of the season, located on the Caribean Sea and apparently taking the path usually taken by such storms that head for the Gulf of Mexico. No great amount of buying was done on this warning but the market had more resistance to selling after it was read to the ring and closed at net losses on the day of 5 to 12 points after having traded down to levels 13 to 18 points under yesterday's finals, October closed at 21.50 after selling as low as 21.44.

Early fluctuations were uncertain. Small declines opened the session after which there was a rally to advance over yesterday's close of 6 to 11 points, October rising to 21.68. This rally was due mainly to further unfavorable weather in the belt, drought in the eastern division and some little rain in the central and eastern divisions. Realizing by longs met the hard spot and much of this sort of selling was done throughout the day, supplying a good part of the offerings.

	High	Low	Close
October	21.68	21.44	21.50
December	21.73	21.47	21.55
January	21.62	21.40	21.47

NEW YORK COTTON

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, August 26. — An early decline in the cotton market was followed by rallies today with December selling up from 21.80 to 22.13. This bulge was probably promoted by reports that there were indications of a tropical disturbance south of Jamaica moving northwestward. A possibility that it might develop a threat of some sort over Sunday was considered responsible for scattered covering. The rally, however, was not fully maintained, with December closing at 22.04 and the general marekt closing steady net 3 points higher to 9 points lower.

The market opened barely steady at an advance of 2 points on May, but generally 12 to 25 points lower with October selling at 21.70 and January at 21.80 or into new low ground for the present movement.

The decline below the 22c level brought in considerable buying believed to be partly for trade account and partly in the way of covering for over the week end.

There was also buying on very bullish crop advices from the Carolinas, Georgia and Texas, but advances were held in check by continued nervousness over European finances and domestic labor troubles. October sold up to 22.02 on the late forenoon advance and January to 21.98, or about 20 to 33 points from the lowest.

Advices from Texas reported a very low condition and a tendency to scale estimates of the crop for that state down to below 3,000,000 bales. Sales of print cloths in the Fall River market for the week were estimated at about 200,000 pieces.

House Declares War on Bugs

Special to The Record News.

WASHINGTON, August 26.—War on "bugs" around the capitol was declared today by the house of representatives.

By a joint resolution passed after a rollicking debate the house authorized the capitol architect to proceed to the extermination of "insects" wherever found.

Representative Garner, democrat of Texas, misreading the resolution in a way to make it apply only to the senate office building, made a parliamentary inquiry as to "whether the senate is the only place where there are bugs."

"Oh, no," replied Representative Ireland, republican of Illinois, in charge of the measure, "there are a few in the house."

The resolution was sent over to the senate just in time for its arrival to interrupt a speech by Senator Reed, democrat of Missouri, against what he called "theoretical" provisions of the coal investigation bill. "Now that is something practical," remarked the Missouri senator, when the house messenger announced the action of the house.

LITTLE TRADE IN GRAIN MART

Oats Break Near Day's Close

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Trading in all grains was inconsequential today and prices ranged within narrow limits. A late feature of the short session was the sharp break in oats, this cereal being affected more by an absence of buying power than any important selling. At the finish wheat was 1-2c lower to 1-8c higher with September 1.01 7-8 and December 1.03 1-8 to 1.03 1-4. Corn advanced a shade to 1-8c and oats were down 1-4c to 3-4c. Provisions were irregular.

Trade in wheat was without much feature. On the whole, prices held fairly well and there was some buying on the reported advance at Liverpool for futures. The rail strike news was construed as a bullish feature for the immediate future.

Corn averages higher on continued bullish crop reports from Kansas and Nebraska, and local bulls were cautious as they feared the heavy country sales on any material bulge.

Oats were rather dull and in them reflected the action of corn.

Provisions were under pressure in sympathy with sharply lower cables from Liverpool.

Public Utilities Show Strength On Stock Market

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26. — Conspicuous strength of public utility and industrial shares, several of which registered sensational gains, featured today's relatively dull half holiday session of the stock market. Consolidated gas was pushed up in remarkable fashion in the last half hour, showing a net gain of 9 points at one time, but reacting slightly on the close. Liggett & Myers advanced 10 points on a very small turnover, and American tobacco broke through for a new high on a net gain of nearly 3 points. North American and Eastman Kodak also established peak prices on advances exceeding 2 points each.

Rails were subjected to fairly heavy selling pressure in the early dealings, but they recovered somewhat later, generally closing with small fractional declines. Possible seizure by the government of railroads unable to provide adequate facilities probably was responsible for some of the selling in nthe rail list, but no extensive liquidation took place.

Recent strength of gas shares was attributed in some quarters to the prospect of increased use of gas for fuel this winter because of the coal shortage. The recent advance in North American undoubtedly was in response to the annual report which indicated that $22 per share had been earned on the company's stock in the last 12 months.

Total sales were 327,000 shares.

RIVER WILL BE CLOSED SEPT. 5 AND DREDGE'LL START LATER

Boat Will Get Busy When Water Supply Is Finally Assured

Work on the irrigation project has reached the point where the engineers in charge are centering their efforts on closing the river to collect water for floating the dredge.

It was originally planned to float the dredge September 5, but at this time there are said to be reasons to believe that the dredge can not be put to work on that date.

The expected rains have failed to come in time to put water enough in the river to float the dredge by the date set, and unless heavy rains come between now and that date then there will be some delay. On the other hand it may be that when the steel sheeting is driven into the bed of the river it will cut off an undercurrent and bring to the surface a sufficient amount of water to help raise the required eight feet for the dredge to work in.

It is expected now that the river will be closed on or about September 5 and that then when enough water is stored the dredge will start work.

Reports from the damsite colony are to the effect that a radio receiving station is being installed to pick up concerts for the workmen and their families. This station will pick up the concerts from Wichita Falls, Dallas and other points. It will be a big feature for the 500 or more persons in the camp.

41 Local Dairies Represented In New Producers Creamery Co.

One of Wichita's youngest and most promising business organizations is the Producers Creamery company at 104 Pecan street, an organization formed recently, and 41 local dairies are represented as producers and stockholders.

This company has only been operating three weeks and yet the entire available supply of creamery products is being produced and sold. More than 1,650 gallons of milk and cream are used in the various products of the plant daily, and it all comes from local dairies. The past week the company started the manufacture of butter and the response of the public has been so generous that the company is now being forced to extra efforts to supply the demand. One of the outstanding features of the company is the high grade and complete equipment of the plant. All milk sold is first run through patented aerating machinery that thoroughly removes all basteria and foreign substance, thereby raising the milk to a higher standard of quality and assuring pure milk for family use.

R. W. Skidmore is president of the company; R. M. James is vice president and general manager; R. C. Priebe is secretary-treasurer and assistant to Mr. James.

WIFE BOASTS OF SLAYING

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Will a mother's love save her son from possible imprisonment or even execution and send herself to the electric chair instead?

That question has arisen here as a result of the murder of Miss Bertha Katz, shot to death in her apartment while her mother looked on helplessly.

Mrs. Minnie Reisler, the victim's sister and wife of "John the Barber," well known in sporting circles, boasts that she killeid her sister because she was a love pirate—because she stole the love of Reisler.

But police refuse to accept Mrs. Reisler's boastful confession.

Mrs. Reisler's mother, Mrs. Jennie Katz, denies her daughter's statement that she killed her sister because she that Mrs. Reisler son, Morris, fired the fatal shot.

According to police, Mrs. Reisler, her two sons, George and Morris, and her brother, Max Katz, broke into the sleeping room occupied by Mrs. Katz and her daughter. Five shots were fired, three taking effect.

In the hospital before she died Bertha said Morris Reisler had shot her. When police arrived at the apartment Mrs. Katz, hysterical, was shouting that Morris had killed her daughter.

But the gun was found in Mrs. Reisler's coat pocket.

On the way to the station Mrs. Reisler shouted:

"It's a lie that my Morris shot her. I did it. I hope she dies. If she doesn't die I will choke her. I waited long for this.

"Eight years ago I told my father that I was going to kill her and he didn't tell me not to. It was my intention to kill them both (referring to her husband and Miss Katz) but he ran away before I could get a shot at him. Then I got disgusted.

"Bertha and my mother accused Morris because they had it in for him. They thought they could hurt me worse by accusing him than by accusing me. They helped me break down the door but they didn't know I had the pistol."

But police aren't convinced. They are inclined to believe the charges of Mrs. Katz and the dead woman. All four are under arrest and face trial and the—electric chair.

Reisler became known as "John the Barber" while running a barber shop on west Thirty-sixth stret years ago. Later he took to bookmaking and managing pugilists. He once was Jack Dempsey's manager.

CASING PULLED IN SWAN CO. WELL

Reports that the Swan Petroleum company's test on the Peterson, three and a half miles northeast of Iowa Park is showing for a producer in a sand below 2,100 feet are incorrect, according to a statement from the company's office Saturday.

Reports that have been published during the week regarding the striking of a deep sand here have come from the field, from apparently well-founded sources.

The company management stated that casing is now being pulled and that the test was abandoned as dry two weeks ago.

BEGIN SURVEY OF TUCUMCARI-SEYMOUR ROAD

ROAD OPENING CELEBRATED IN GRAND FASHION

Melon Party and Other Features are Planned

Burkburnett's going to step out and entertain all of Wichita county a week from tomorrow, or to brand the day better in your memory, Monday, September 4, Labor Day.

And Burkburnett's got a real reason to proclaim itself host to all this neck of the southwest. On this day the two great county highways connecting the town of Burkburnett with Wichita Falls and with the Red river boundary line to Oklahoma points will be finished and formally opened to the public.

Progressive Burkburnett is so wide awake to the potential possibilities of these paved thoroughways that it is going to stop at nothing less than an all-day entertainment where neighbors from the end of the county will mingle with each other and join hands in greeting groups of neighbors from other parts of Wichita. Its going to be a grand day of gladhanding and good fellowship.

Sam Spence, secretary of the chamber of commerce, says its going to be such an important day that it is hardly necessary to invite the officials of Wichita Falls, Iowa Park and Electra as they're all onto their jobs and they'll know a live thing when they see it and be on hand pronto.

However, he has extended a general invitation to the citizens and officials to take part.

The big celebration is for the opening of the Burkburnett-Wichita Falls concrete road, connecting the two cities and the river bridge road, connecting the Main street pavement with the Red river bridge into Oklahoma.

The merchants of Burkburnett will offer unusual bargains on Saturday, Sept. 2, known as "dollar day" in Burkburnett to forecast the big celebration.

The following is the program arranged for Labor Day:

9:30—Big labor parade and decorated floats. County officials and representatives of each city will take part in parade.

11:00 a. m.—Formal opening Wichita county highway No. 2. Address by W. V. Crawford of Waco, president Texas highway association.

2:00 p. m.—Shetland pony diving exhibition. Rider and pony will dive head foremost from 40 foot platform into 10 feet of water.

2:30 p. m.—Baseball business men vs undefeated farmer boys from Possum Hollow.

4:30 p. m.—Baseball game at Hardin park. Maskat shriners vs Magnolias. The shrine band will be at the park and furnish music.

8:00 p. m.—Mammoth street dance

Free watermelon will be served throughout the day. There will be plenty of music, games and fun of all kinds. Make your plans to visit Burkburnett both Saturday and Monday, Sept. 2 and 4.

Farmer Union Grows

CHILDRESS, Aug. 26. — The growth of the farmers labor union in Texas and Oklahoma has been phenemenal in the last few months, according to farmers of this section. It is said that the union is now becoming a dominant political factor in Oklahoma and that it has several hundred thousand members in Texas. Furthermore, it is said that many large business men in the sooner state are looking upon the growth of the "f. l. u." as they term it in Oklahoma as a factor that must be reconed with, that it has great potentiality and wields the sceptre of power not only politically but economically.

Horse Races Come Back Favorite West Texas With $10,000 in Purses

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Aug. 26.—More than $10,000 in purses have been hung up in three west Texas fairs for horse races this fall, making this pastime the greatest ever held in Texas and directing the eyes of the horse race fans to west Texas.

The San Angelo fair and carnival association is offering about $4,500 for its five-day racing events, October 17 to October 21, inclusive. The west Texas fair at Abilene is offering a total of $3,625 for winning horses during its races September 25 to September 28, inclusive. Childress is offering several thousand dollars.

Not even the Dallas state fair or the Houston fair association has anything so large as this to offer to horse racers this season, says the west Texas chamber of commerce. E. E. Lowkle, superintendent of races for the San Angelo fair, declares that the association has made every arrangement to give the people of the southwest the very best in this sport and has assurance that many of the finest turf runners of the country will enter their animals.

Grady Kinsolving of the west Texas fair is quite as enthusiastic over prospects of the Abilene race meet, declaring that man yentries are being made and hundreds upon hundreds of turf sports will be present.

On Wednesday, Sept. 27, the winner of the one mile west Texas derby at the west Texas fair will pull down one thousand berries. At the San Aneglo fair the one mile St. Angelus hotel stake of $1,000 will be awarded by the association to the winner in the race to be run October 19.

WORK TO SPEED ON RAIL LINE

Men Closing Gaps to River

Men and teams working on the Byers-Waurika railroad are closing in the gaps this side of Red river this week and by the latter part of the week they will move to the Oklahoma line and work will be under way on the bridge across the river as well as on the track laying.

Hot weather has made progress slower than was expected, but with the heat wave apparently broken, work is expected to speed up early this week.

The delay has not been serious and the plans to have the road in operation by Christmas are not expected to be thwarted by the small delays.

Legion Backs Bonds

SEYMOUR, Aug. 26.—If the hospital bond issue for $100,000, called to be held September 31, carries, the Silas Baker post of the American legion will request that the institution be known as the Baylor County Memorial hospital to commemorate the heroism of the eight Baylor county boys who gave their life in French battlefields.

It is believed the issue will carry by a large majority. The larger property owners are said to favor it. The people in general are for it. The American legion is encouraging the proposition.

Banqets for Traveling Men Planned by Stamford Chamber

STAMFORD, Aug. 26.—Banquets for traveling men members of the traveling club of the west Texas chamber of commerce will be served at both the San Angelo fall fair and the west Texas fair at Abilene, according to announcement made today by E. E. Lowrie, manager of the traveling men's department. Traveling men will also form a section of the procession which will parade the streets of San Angelo and Abilene during the gala occasion, it was reported here today.

The traveling men's auxiliary of the organization, which was organized in February of this year, is already becoming a strong and influential department, which has already succeeded in aiding the traveling men in their vocations and bringing about better road and hotel conditions for the knights of hte grips. The membership has been increased considerably and the treasury shows a handsome sum on hand available for use in connection with benefits to be sought by them.

At the Plainview convention the traveling men wore regalia of a special and pleasing appearance which differentiated them from among the other members to show that they were men of the road who were doing their best to put west Texas on the map. West Texas has its glories that traveling men like to expatiate upon to all strangers with whom they come in contact.

BAYLOR RODEO WILL RING WITH INDIAN WAR WHOOPS AND SPARKLE WITH WEIRD DANCE

By HAMILTON WRIGHT

SEYMOUR, August 26. — The Baylor county fair and Rodeo is this year offering more money in premiums in its arena than any other fair in the state of Texas, R. E. Baskin, secretary of the Seymour chamber of commerce, declared to the correspondent today.

In the cowboys' world's championship bucking horse contest the entrance fee is $25 with a purse of $1,550; day money for three days, $75, $50 and $25; finals, $500, $300 and $200. A purse of $650 is offered in the wild steer roping breakaway contest on the three days. In the steer-riding contest a purse of $410 is offered. In the calf roping contest $650 has been put up. In the goat roping, a purse of $650 is ready for contestants.

Secretary Baskin declared that the "amateur" stuff will be dispensed with. Absolutely the best riders, the most ferocious steeds and animals will be impressed into the rodeo features to make the occasion the most talked of ever attempted in the southwest.

"Indians!"

"Gee, yes, we're going to have them by the hundreds," said an official of the fair to the writer today. Comanches and Kiowas are coming. Thei rbizzarre war dances will give the fair visitors some of the thrills our forefathers endured during their pioneer days without the fear that accompanied their lives."

The big fair this year is to be held from September 19 to 23. The cowboys reunion will be one of the great features. One and one-half fares on railroads into Seymour have been authorized by rail officials.

County Agent McGowan is very enthusiastic over the outlook for the livestock and agricultural exhibits.

BOY SCOUTS GAINING GROUND IN REVIVAL STAGED HERE

By R. WILLIAM ARCHER

Arising from the ranks of an almost defunct organization in this city the boy scouts, somewhat depleted in number, but rapidly gaining ground, are staging a revival in Wichita Falls that promises to put them on record as a strong order here.

The organization had 16 troops in its ranks originally, but had practically disbanded when Scout Executive J. Chester Powell came here to take charge three months ago. Yesterday, it was the emphatic statement of the scout executive that there is now 50 per cent of a normal membership back in the revived organization, which is functioning at the present time with an ambition to become a strong boy scout group.

Much work has been accomplished by the new scout executive, his short record shows, while if the plans he now has under way materialize, the local boy scouts will go on record as having achieved a big undertaking during the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

During the three months that Mr. Powell has been at the helm of the boy scout movement in this city, a total of about 150 merit badges have been awarded the members for achievement of the various tests, this being considered a big advancement in the organization. There are 68 tests in all that the merit badges cover, including advanced first aid treatment to injured persons, public health, civics, auto mechanics, life saving, etc. Twenty-one of the regular 68 tests are required of a scout before he can become an eagle scout.

Five Eagle Scouts

Mr. Powell asserted yesterday that there are at the present time only five eagle scouts in Wichita Falls, four of whom received their badges since Mr. Powell has been executive here. Edgar Ellis, Wade Bartlett, Lee Clark, Jr., and Harold Naylor have been awarded eagle scout badges since Mr. Powell's advent in Wichita Falls, while Will McClure received his badge prior to that time, the records show.

Wade Bartlett and Edgar Ellis, probably hold the record for having attained the greatest number of scout badges here, both having received 33 merit badges each. Six or eight of the local scouts, according to Executive Powell, need to complete only one or two more tests before they can become eagle scouts, and it is asserted that these tests will be completed within a short time.

The local scouts have had only one general camping trip this year, this having been conducted at Cash, Okla., while one of the troops, No. 6, conducted a week's camping tour of its own.

Mr. Powell is planning a big day at the Texas-Oklahoma fair for the scouts, this day having already designated by the fair officials as scout day. During the day's entertainment, Mr. Powell will put the scouts through their various tests, while field demonstrations, prizes to be given for building bridges, log cabins, radio sets, etc., which will be placed on exhibit at the fair will hold a conspicuous part in the scout program.

The local scouts have perfected a unique organization, and claim one of the largest orchestras in the state of Texas, a 32-piece band which plays at regular intervals and which will

2,440 Cars Pass Over 67 Miles Of County Paving on Each Day

Traffic on the Wichita county highways is probably heavier than it is on any other strip of paved roads in the state of Texas, J. M. Isbell, county engineer, declared yesterday.

Mr. Isbell, interested in the amount of traffic that is conducted on the county highways, 67 miles of which will soon be opened entirely, recently conducted a census on all classes of traffic over the roads, gleaning the information that in one day an average of 2,440 automobiles, 157 trucks, six motorcycles, 66 horse-drawn vehicles and eight horsemen pass over the roadways in this county.

"This traffic is heavier than on any other section of state highway No 5, which is located through north Texas from Texarkana to Texline, and running through Paris, Dennison, Henrietta, Wichita Falls and Amarillo," Engineer Isbell declared, drawing this conclusion from the statistics which he had gathered.

The daily traffic by actual census, not including Sundays, is shown to be 2,411 automobiles, 172 trucks, six motorcycles, 69 horse-drawn vehicles and one horsemen.

The Sunday traffic, according to the statistics gathered by Mr. Isbell's investigation, shows an increase of 207 automobiles and a decrease in the number of trucks that pass over the roads.

The following table compiled by the county engineer is the actual traffic on Sunday, August 20, and shows the averages gathered from midnight to midnight, a complete day period:

NOTED TURNS ON MIDWAY BILL AT BIG EXPOSITION

Wortham to Bring Best Attractions To Wichita

One of the big headliners of the Wortham shows to be in Wichita Falls during the Texas-Oklahoma fair, September 30 to October 4 inclusive, will be Misses Violet and Daisy Hilton the "English Siamese twins." They are even more remarkable, in ways than the original Siamese twins and since the death of the originals they are attracting world-wide attention. The two twins were born in Brighton England but when not with the show they now live on their farm near San Antonio where they are interested in the raising of cotton.

The two twins, joined together by nature near the base of the spine and who cannot be separated without death to both, are very attractive young girls 16 years old. They are refined and as interested in the ordinary things of life as are other people. They play musical instruments, one of them can operate an automobile but the other can not because she would be on the wrong side of the car and at all times they appear cheerful. The Wortham shows as a whole have the best attractions that can be found and the cleanest shows in the country. Speaking of the Wortham attractions the following comment recently appeared in the Southwest American:

"All the Wortham Shows are alike, in the one important respect—they are all clean, un-to-the minute shows. The old carnival game is past, worn out, discarded. Wortham was one of the men who helped cast it aside. He saw the drift of public opinion years ago—and he decided not to follow the drift, but to help lead it. As a result, the Wortham Exposition Shows are what is known as "Repeaters"—that is, they are always welcomed back in towns where they have shown. The "girl show, per se;" the "Wild West" the "dance hall" the gambling games are barred from the Wortham shows, and the Wortham show trains. Legitimate attractions make up the amusement end of the shows, while straight out games of skill add the only modicum of the old carnival spirit. And Wortham has found that his first impression was correct—that the clean show pays."

Wichita Falls wallowed in delight Saturday. Hardly had the day started when clouds gathered from the north and a brisk breeze blew up before the noon hour carrying the temperature down in the eighties.

What heat there was got knocked sky west and crooked when a light rainfall came at noon. It is reported that considerable rain fell in Oklahoma in the northern section of this county.

The maximum heat for the day here was at noon, just before the rain when the thermometer registered 96 degrees. It then dropped back to 86.

CITY IN GOOD SANITARY SHAPE

Water Connections Are Big Help

The sanitary condition of Wichita Falls at the present time shows an advancement and improvement over conditions of the past of a large degree, a statement made public by Dr. A. H. Douglass, city chemist, yesterday asserts.

The improved conditions, Dr. Douglass ascribes in his statement, is helped by the water connections here and the co-operation of citizenship here.

His statement follows:

"As a whole the sanitary condition of the city is much improved over that of a year ago.

"The public in general is paying more attention to the cleaniness of premises—such things as the cutting of weeds and care of garbage and trash.

"However to one unaccustomed with the former conditions as a whole, a survey of the alleys would indicate that no improvement could have possibly been made in certain sections. In a measure this is true, but those sections where transient and irresponsible people live are decreasing fast and are being replaced with a responsible and permanent class of desirable citizens who have some appreciation of the importance of sanitation and from whom it is much easier to obtain co-operation.

"The extension and improvement of the water service and the enlargement of the sewer service are public improvements which have added very materially to the betterment of conditions. The public in general does not realize the value of the constant vigilance that is maintained on the safety of the water supply. Bacteriological tests are ever on the lookout for the slightest sign of dangerous pollution and at the first indication of the presence of such the necessary precautions are taken to render the supply safe. Following the history of other cities, we too, will enjoy an increased freedom from typhoid and similar diseases as the water and sewer facilities are extended.

"The general food situation has been very much improved. The merchants are paying more attention to the care of their stocks and are not carrying a surplus of those goods which deteriorate rapidly in hot weather.

"Better care is being taken of meats in the shops and the facilities for local killing have been very much improved.

"Last year the city was overrun for a time with what might be termed "bootleg meat," i. e., it was of very uncertain origin and much of it was suspected as being stolen and some was so proven. This year the meat supply is practically 100 per cent legitimate and slaughtered under very sanitary conditions.

"The help from the Retail Merchants' association has been directly responsible for a great improvement in the egg situation. The retailers report a noticeable increase in egg sales and more satisfaction to their customers.

"Formerly this city had been considered a good market for damaged canned goods, but evidently the destruction of several hundred cases of such goods last year had the desired effect for the people in that business have not cared to accept such a loss this year. The condemnation of canned goods this year has been practically nothing.

"The improvement in the milk supply has not kept pace with the improvement in the other lines of food stuffs. There has been a general tendency among the dairies toward an improvement of equipment and in some individual dairies there has been a noticeable improvement in the methods, so that taken as a whole there has been some betterment of the supply. However, it is expected that the recent acquisition of the local plant by a combination of dairymen will result in a marked improvement of the quality of the bulk of the milk being placed on the market.

"Of the local agencies which should be credited with the dissemination of information on public health matters perhaps the Civic league and the schools are about equally deserving. the league working more on general sanitation, while the school teaches more along the lines of personal hygiene—both of which are essential."

Goodner in Childress

CHILDRESS, Aug. 26.—The Goodner Wholesale Grocery company of Wichita Falls, owner of a chain of wholesale houses, is contemplating the establishment of another branch house in this section, with Childress as the objective point. President Goodner informed local business men a few days ago.

NEW ROUTE FITS IN STATE GEOGRAPHY POWELL DECLARES

BY HAMILTON WRIGHT

SEYMOUR, Aug. 26.—"The Texas Panhandle & Gulf company, proposed from Tucumcari, N. M., to Seymour, Texas, will become a reality as it fits into the railway geography of the state," declared Colonel C. H. Powell before the Seymour Luncheon club Thursday.

"I am not asking for a cent of bonus or for any other purpose," said Col. Powell in explaining his presence at Seymour at this time.

"I am merely here to secure the co-operation of the chamber of commerce and farmers in compiling information for a general questionnaire in regard to the number of acres of arable land in the particular territory, the amount in cultivation, the production, potential tonnage of such a territory for the Panhandle & Gulf railway.

"When this matter has been secured I shall proceed to put my proposition before the proper capitalists much interested in this project and shall appear before the interstate commerce commission with my array of general information to convince that body of the necessity of such a line being built.

"I am sure that the least hitch will be encountered in getting the permission of that body to build the line.

"Of course, the matter of securing finances to constructo such a line is apparently a difficult one, but when facts and figures are compiled to show that such a route can be made a profit-maker from the start capital will quickly interest itself. In fact I am even now securing the co-operation of capitalists who tell me that they will be glad to assist me in the construction of the line when I have made the surveys and secured the information that will be brought from the replies to the questionnaires."

The surveying gang is expected to reach Paducah next Monday. Mr. Powell informed the correspondent. The force started from Tucumcari several weeks ago and gradually has passed over the territory to be traversed by the proposed railway.

"It is the largest and most fertile body of agricultural land in the United States which has not yet been provided with a system of railway," declared Mr. Powell.

At its northern terminus it will penetrate into the greatest coal fields of the United States and on its route southward it will traverse a section that has been little developed, but which offers rare opportunities to the farmer, manufacturer and developer."

The proposed Texas, Panhandle & Gulf railway starts at Tucumcari and runs to Seymour, Texas, where direct connection would be had with the Gulf, Texas & Western giving a straight line into Fort Worth. Among the towns which would be stations are Barnecos, Grady, Trenton and Holline, N. M.; Dimmitt, Nazareth, Tulia, Silverton, Quitaque, Gasoline, Turkey, Paducah Benjamin or Crowell and Seymour.

Powell declares that the "caprock" may be ascended on a one-tenth of one per cent grade just west of Quitaque. Otherwise the road will be one of the easiest constructed that could be imagined. "I am informed by E. J. Noonan consulting engineer on this route, that if a car of coal were started rolling after reaching the top of the 'caprock' east of Tucumcari, it would of its own momentum not stop until it reached Fort Worth."

A prospectus of the route has been prepared by the consulting engineers.

Pecos Cuts Wages

PECOS, Aug. 26.—An echo from the world war brought home in stentorian notes is found in the action of the city council in reducing the salaries of its hired hands, in some cases cutting altogether the salary of members of the city force, such as the aldermen. Some of the cuts are reflected in salaries of treasurer, from $30 to $20; cleaners from $140 to $110 per month; mayor's salary from $50 to $25; salary of secretary from $135 to $100.

WILSON POLICIES STILL WINNING FOR DEMOCRATS

Looks Like Victory In 1924 If Party Can Heal Sores

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Results of primary elections held in many states within the last few weeks would seem to dispose of the idea advanced in some quarters that the democratic party, after its experience at the polls in 1920, will find it necessary to abandon the old Wilson policies and principles, and present a new platform for the approval of the people.

On the contrarty the indications are that the party is firmly adhering to the Wilson program, in spite of the fact that it went down to defeat fighting for it at the last election.

The elements of the democratic party have advocated an abandonment of what they denominate "Wilsonism," meaning the causes for which the party stood during the years from 1912 to 1920. They compromise those who were never in accord with the last democratic president on public matters; and those who delivered the tremendous defeat administered the party two years ago was the result of these policies, and that, for the sake of expediency, a different program should be outlined for the coming campaign.

Another element of the party believes as firmly as ever that the policies advocated by President Wilson and adopted by the democratic party was right and that it is the duty of the party to continue its battle for them, and under the same old flag. They feel that eventually these principles will be successful, and that this is no time to change the party's course, even though the democrats lost two years ago.

The issue between these two classes has been sharply drawn in several of the primary elections, and the results have been watched with an interest greater than that in the mere question of which candidate would win. The democrats of several states have been called on to pass on democratic policies, through the nomination of those friendly to the Wilson program, or otherwise. And the result, while it has showed that the party is by no means unanimous in standing by its war-time leader, has made it clear that there can be no abandonment of the Wilson principles and policies by the democratic party at this time.

No Big Change in Missouri

The most conspicuous example of the party standing by its war-time leader and his policies was in Missouri. Senator Reed won out in that state and got the democratic nomination. He had been bitterly opposed by not only the former president, Woodrow Wilson, who had tried to prevent his nomination, but the forces of the former administration were actively engaged in behalf of Breckenridge Long, a former member of the Wilson administration.

But, while Reed won out, the vote was so close and the fight made by the Wilson element of the party was so vigorous that the result shows

Vernon Graveyard Entered in Dead Of Night and Bones Are Dug Up

Vernon has a mystery in the desecration of the grave of N. M. Key, one of the best known pioneer citizens of that country, who died and was buried in 1890. What object any person could have had in digging into the grave and removing some of the bones is puzzling residents and the officers are making a thorough investigation.

The report of the desecration of the grave of Mr. Key as reported in the Vernon Record follows:

"Officers and citizens are searching for a motive for the uncovering of the grave of N. M. Key and the removal of a portion of the bones from Ansley cemetery, 26 miles southwest of Vernon, on Tuesday night of this week. N. M. Key was the father of immediately upon learning that the immediately upon learing that the grave had been molested yesterday, Mr. Key went to Ansley cemetery and made investigations. It was evident that the grave had been uncovered and then refilled.

"Prosecuting the investigation further, Mr. Key and friends opened the grave again and found that a major portion of the bones had been removed. The skull, the spinal column and the larger limb and arm bones were gone. There were unmistakable evidences of recent desecration. Cowboys in the community report that the grave was robbed Tuesday night.

"N. M. Key, a pioneer in Wilbarger county, died Dec. 16, 1890, now almost 32 years ago. He was buried the following day at the Ansley cemetery with Masonic honors, Masons from Vernon conducting the services. A daughter had died and was buried on the same plat of ground a week before. This grave was unmolested. N. M. Key died from typhoid fever.

"In reopening the grave to make sure of the nature of the desecration it was found that the casket had rotted away, the body totally decayed and only parts of bones left to show the resting place of this early day settler. The leather shoe soles were intact, a cuff button, a Masonic emblem and parts of the hair remained. The casket handles were found.

"Mr. Key and helpers have gone to Ansley cemetery today to exhume the fragments of the body of his father and the body of his sister with a view of moving them to East View cemetery. The desecration of the father's grave is a source of distress to Mr. Key and his many friends, none of whom can account for the act."

September Will Awaken Social Spirit After Heated Season Here

Talk of Weddings Is Revived as Favorites Return From Colorado

WITH the mercury hovering around the 100 mark as it has been now for at least a month, more often over, that than under, and with many Wichitan still lingering in cooler climes waiting for the temperature at home to change for the better, social activities of a formal or elaborate nature have been at a low ebb.

Many informal affairs such as mornings at bridge, luncheons, teas, dinners, dances, evening picnics and swimming parties formed a little island "Delight" in the placid stream of the summer social life the past week, which proved altogether charming and will long be remembered by local maids and matrons and by the group of out of town visitors who furnished inspiration, but on account of the informal nature of the affairs, hostesses requested that many not be published, therefore Wichita Falls is seemingly duller socially than it really is.

THE approach of September, which means the opening of the fall season and cooler weather, is perilously near the several weddings of interest to large numbers of friends are announced to take place the first part of the month which are already being heralded by the usual number of showers with whispers of more to follow. The middle of the month will also find many Wichita Falls' boys and girls leaving for various schools. Among them will be Misses Elvia Killingsworth, Helen Snider, Gertrude Melat, Fay Boyd and Marguerite Fisher, who will enter Ward-Belmont, Miss Eleanor Allen who will go to Southwestern, Miss Etta Werschoyle will go to Carr-Burdett, and L. R. Verschoyle will enter Brown high school at Dallas. The list will be considerably swelled when many of the young people return from summer vacations taken with their parents in the mountains or at the seashore.

Mrs. Robert Hamilton won the high score membership favor, a cut glass vase, Mrs. Oberwetter won the second high favor, a hand-painted fringe score. Mrs. A. M. Lewis made the high score among the guests, a tray holder; Mrs. C. C. Randle was consoled for the membership low score, with a dainty hand-embroidered guest towel; Mrs. P. A. McMurdy made low among the guests and was given a unique pencil holder.

At noon, a delicious luncheon was served consisting of Napoleon salad on lettuce leaves, ice tea, toasted crackers, olives, apricot ice cream and angel food cake to Mesdames Wilson, Randle, West, Oberwetter, Hamilton, Gamble, G. H. Hampshire, A. M. Lewis, McMurdy, Leggett and Orville Blake.

MISS MANN HONORED WITH BEAUTIFUL SHOWER.

Among the many delightful events given in honor of Miss Josephine Mann whose marriage to Ralph A. Holmes is announced to take place September 5, none have proven more enjoyable than the surprise party and shower given by Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Packer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Taylor, 1402 Burnett street Friday evening.

A pretty idea was carried out by the hosts when Miss Josephine Mann and her sister, Miss Judith, were invited out to the Taylor home supposedly for dinner, the guests arriving late, found very much to their surprise, the lawn beautifully lighted which, with the flowers, moon and trees, furnished a beautiful setting for the group of young women dressed in their dainty summer frocks.

Interesting games were played throughout the evening and the bride-elect was presented with a book for future reference which contained advice written by the guests on "How To Manage a Husband." In presenting the honoree with the shower of gifts, another clever idea was introduced in the form of a game when she was asked to take a shopping tour around the world stopping at each city and receiving a souvenir ending her trip at Washington, D. C. (her home.)

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served at a late hour to Misses Josephine and Judith Mann, Hazel Bristow, Irma Durnal, Dorothea Dorpat, Mitta Jane Higgins, Una Stelle, Katherine Brothers, Lena Wilson, Chic Popplewell, Carrie Webster, Mina Sievert, Florence Jackson, Evelyn, Mary and Annette Cofield, Ethel McDowell, Maude Thomas, Eza Dawson and Mesdames Hipp, W. O. Davidson and Emelia Coyne.

The object of the affair was to show their appreciation and affection for their leader which they very effectually did by the presentation to her, of a lovely tea set. SHE'S 1 IN 1,000,000

Sheila Terry

The flighty flapper who would trifle with the affections of a generous swain—perhaps a dozen of them—showing her intense regard by accepting all his favors, including jewelry, flowers, and all the other doodads so dear to the feminine heart, only to give him the well-known frigid scapula when it comes to a trip to the altar, had better have a care.

In fact, several cares, just as many as she now has Johns on her gift list for—

Sheila Terry, vaudeville actress, is now twinkling her toes before the footlights to pay for the high cost of wooing.

Sheila captivated one Bennie Rubin, out Frisco way, and Bennie fell hard, according to all reports.

There's no limit on campaign expenses when seeking election as a husband and Bennie went the limit. Suppers, jewelry, candy, flowers and all the rest.

But when the votes were counted Roy Desley was the lucky candidate. Bennie claimed someone had stuffed the ballot box.

So he sent an itemized bill to the janitor for $150, courtship expenses, he termed it. But campaign expenses by any other name are just as bitter.

But Sheila, married and happy, merely took her fountain pen in hand, affixed Sheila Terry to a check for $150 cold, round dollars, and meditated for some time on the high cost of wooing.

That's why she's dancing now to bring the old bank account back to where it was before she paid her own courtship costs—

And flippant flappers had best have a care.

Your eyes periodically deserve the thorough examination that skill and modern scientific refracting instruments and equipment can give. We are fully prepared to test your eyes for glasses. Faith Optical Co., 815 Scott avenue.—Adv.

SOCIETY GOSSIP

Timely Little Talks Over the Teacups An Individual on the Inside Impresses Her Opinions on Friend People Peggy Piedmont Meets During Week

DEAR KITTY:

Speaking of paradoxes, (which we were not doing) consider the world-old cry of "The King is Dead. God Save the King." It's the way of things, farewell to one, welcome to another. And so this week I've been hearing regretful praises of one and eager welcomings of another, both of whom I want to tell you about. My historic paradox is a trifle unfortunate, I'm afraid, Kitty, but it's such a pleasantly philosophical one that it always occurs to me to even in much happier circumstances.

You know, of course, of Miss Josephine Mann and her splendid work for the Y. W. C. A. during the past two years. But you haven't heard that she has resigned as acting general secretary of the organization, nor about the universal regret that is being felt since that resignation was necessarily accepted. She came here two years ago as business and employment secretary for the Y. W. and all of the organization knows how splendidly she handled that work. Then, when Mrs. Margaret Du Bose, then general secretary, left last year, Miss Mann was called upon to fill her place, and only the girls and young women she has worked with know how invaluable she has proved herself in that capacity.

With the younger girls, especially, she has been greatly loved, and the development of the girl's clubs during her administration is the most convincing evidence of her efficiency. In other words, Kitty, they'll miss her here, the organization and the girls, and both have been eager to express their feeling of loss, for the society editor has been busy with stories of parties and club meetings and dinner parties honoring this beloved leader.

AND yet, there's the other half of the paradox which is doing overtime today which welcomes the new leader. She is to be Mrs. Iva E. Austin, one of the best trained secretaries the Y. W. boasts. She's coming September 1. During the summer she has been in training in New York city and she comes here immediately from the city where work and study have been mixed. Her experience has been wide, the greater part of it having been in Laurel, Mississippi where she has put in six years of work which has been very highly recommended. She is eminently fitted, by training and by experience to fill the position here and will be welcomed as an asset. And you know as well as I do, how extremely important that position here. If you have ever watched a general secretary at work with the most pressing and vital of problems, always demanding instant and pratically infallible decisions, you know what are the requirements for a first class secretary are. There aren't many of them to be had among all the women of the world, Kitty.

And while I'm telling you of our most valuable acquisitions in personnel let one tell you more of Elthel Allen Nelson whom I have already introduced as one of our most distinct acquisitions in the musical world. Mr. Nelson is to give a recital soon and I've been hearing some expert opinions of his skill as the plans for the concert develop. Mrs. Bruce Greenwood has told me of her opinion of his high artistic ability. She is especially interested in his recital and is more than enthusiastic at the town's success in interesting such a man! It was through some friends of his here and through reading the stories that have gone about the world about Wichita Falls that he was induced to come. From Paris, under Eugene Saury and New York under Fonoroff, and from the experience of many years teaching as well as study, he has come to give his services to Wichita Falls and leading musicians here have at once recognized his value. Miss Annette Walsh is to accompany him in his recital which will be given soon in the Wichita club rooms. He will play many of his own compositions along with other selections.

And while musical circles are astir with new arrivals and plans for the season to come, there is talk of a musical conservatory to come. Two of the foremost musicians here are planning together I know. I can't tell you all about it now but I have hopes that the next year will bring about a centralization of the music teaching resources of the city to the advantage of teachers and students alike. Give us time, Kitty, and Wichita Falls will become the cultural center of the state and more.

By the way, we've a promising young painter here who is worthy of much recognition. At parties and such things they know about her for she has much to do with the beauty and success of such affairs. She is little Mary Elizabeth Featherstone, just thirteen years old. Her mother's guests are enthusiastic about the delightful cards and other specimens of the little girls work. Mary Elizabeth is just a merry little girl now and not at all concerned with her career. She paints for the delight of it and because she can do it so very well. There her thoughts stop, but the years promise to bring more earnestness.

And now, Kitty, I must say a rather serious farewell for the original Peggy is at home again and eager, as I know you are, to resume a correspondence which must be a delight to both of you. Beginning, "Peggy Piedmont" has been a big job for me, for Peggy herself had set such a very, very high standard of accomplishment. I have tried not to let her standard suffer, but people have expected so much of this real Peggy, that the sub has found the water very deep. I have been discovering just how valuable and how very well liked Peggy is, Kitty, and I know that these many friends who have inquired for her and offered such very flattering compliments during the absence will welcome her return.

With the best of wishes,

—PEGGY PIEDMONT.

"What's All This D—Fuss About," Corpse Demands

LONDON, Aug. 25.—The recovery of a "dead" man during a remarkable brain operation is described by Sir William MacEwen, regius professor of surgery at Glasgow university.

The man was practically dead, according to MacEwen, having ceased to breathe before his admission to the hospital. But an operation was begun, nevertheless, artificial respiration being resorted to. No anaesthetic was used.

The trouble was a large abscess, and two ounces of pus had been removed, when natural breathing suddenly re-started. The staff, with white, drawn faces from their arduous work, were still standing around the man they had drawn from the brink of the grave when he suddenly recovered consciousness and exclaimed: "What's all this damned fuss about?"

"It had a stratling effect on the staff," comments MacEwen. "The unseeing eye which had been open all the time suddenly saw."

ASKS MORE POWER FOR LABOR BUREAU

(By International News Service.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 25.—The solution of industrial unrest in Illinois would be materially forwarded by the granting of more power to the state department of labor, according to George B. Arnold, director of the department.

Arnold plans to ask the next general assmbly for an amendment to state laws that will give his department the power to call witnesses to testify in labor department hearings. The department now holds mediation hearings in labor controversies, but has not the authority to force witnesses to appear.

AIR TRAVEL DECLARED SAFE

Accidents Due to Faulty Laws

The outstanding achievement of commercial aviation in the United States since the war has been the demonstration by the Aeromarine airways that air travel is safe. The importance of this fact is not alone interesting to those who are engaged in aviation, but in a much larger way to the public which has become timid owing to accidents caused by unregulated flying, irresponsible fliers, and uninspected aircraft.

Without a subsidy, operating over the open sea from Key West to Havana, a most difficult route, and over the Detroit to Cleveland airway, these flying boats have, during three years, carried eleven thousand paid passengers, making over a million passenger miles flown without a single mishap to any of them. Such an accomplishment is convincing proof that the air is safer than the road and that all aviation needs to become a great transportation system is proper supervision and maintenance. The operating personnel of aeromarine airways have given this and the result has been a perfect record.

Regularity of schedule has also been attained. The air liners have made no difference to these sturdy craft. Safety, and certainty of the time of arrival have made these lines attract the thousands of passengers that have learned the advantages of air travel. The maintenance of the ships of this company is of the highest order and this is doing more to attract patronage than merely the pleasure of air travel. Aside from the safety and utility, the scenic features of flying over water have been enjoyed by every passenger. The comforts afforded travelers in these air limousines while floating through the air over beautiful stretches of water, has made this link of a most attractive and thrilling experience.

Business men have awakened to the fact that aircraft can play an important part in their business. Instances are known of orders being secured by salesmen because they reached their customers first, by flying. An executive in Cleveland was needed in Detroit for an important conference. In ninety minutes he was there. It would have taken him five and a half hours by the fastest train. Such a service, when understood, will be as much a part of business procedure as the railroad expense voucher is today.

The increased cost of an improved method of transportation has always been an obstacle at first, but it is soon understood. Compare railroad fares. To go on a train running at sixty instead of fifty miles an hour, the public has been willing to pay a heavy excess fare. But the great expense of upkeep of roadbed and rolling stock has shown the railroads that they have reached their maximum speed. Now comes the air traveler who requires speed—not fifty or sixty miles an hour, but ninety to a hundred and over. The air is the only possible way to attain it. Even were it practicable, the rates the railroads would have to charge for such a service would have to exceed the present air tariff. Those who have ridden on trains running seventy miles an hour and experienced the discomforts of vibration and the ever present feeling of danger of a faulty rail can best appreciate the slogan "Speed with Safety."

All commercial aviation needed was just what the Aeromarine organization has demonstrated, that there is safety in regulated flying, that the high speed of aircraft can be used in business where the saving of time often means a gain of thousands of dollars in business, and that the cost is not as much as any other carrier would have to charge were it to insure travel at similar speed.

CHANDLER SIX SPECIAL ROADSTER.

The khaki-topped Special Roadster with a maroon body just announced by the Chandler Motor Car company is a colorful car of the more intimate two-passenger type.

Distinctive features are curved aluminum protecting bars on the rear deck upon which the top rests when lowered, individual cast aluminum steps, and barrel-type head and cowl lamps.

We Take It That Mr. Hopkins Likes Marmons,—At Least It Seems So

C. C. Hopkins, president of Lord & Thomas, one of the largest advertising agencies in the country, has driven cars for 20 years, but not until his last purchase has he found what he believes to be the ultimate in motor cars. He tells of it in this fashion:

"I drove a steam car over 20 years ago when the automobile was new. Since then I have owned many gasoline cars, some of them fine and costly, but I never had the desire to drive one myself. The steam-car troubles of early days had quelled my enthusiasm.

"Then a friend invited me to his mountain camp and drove me there in a Marmon. For a week he drove me over mountain roads, and pointed out the joys of driving. His own enthusiasm, he said, had sold 28 Marmons to his friends.

"That started my desire for a personal car, and it grew. Then one day I saw a Marmon Special Speedster—the most beautiful car on the street, deliver me a car like that I would come and get it.

"That car has made me an automobile enthusiast. I can hardly keep out of it long enough to do my work. I drove 1,000 miles in the first two weeks, and I shall make it 10,000 before the summer is over.

"I know there are costlier cars than Marmons, and I own a couple of them. But for a personal car, where pride of ownership, speed, power and luxury count so much, no car I know is in it with this Marmon."

NEW PEERLESS WILL BE AN "8"

Collins Makes No Other Statement

The new Peerless will be an "eight"—that much has been admitted at the factory in Cleveland during the last week with reference to the new car which R. H. Collins and his associates will announce to the public the last of next week.

All during the last several days, writing men, members of the trade and consumers innumerable have besieged the factory in vain efforts to beat the other fellow in obtaining the first authoritative description of the widely discussed new car.

But, Mr. Collins answer was always the same: "We are going to tell the public all at once, next week to be exact"—until one more aggressive interviewer than the rest said:

"Is the rumor true that you have definitely abandoned the eight cylinder principle in the new models?"

Then, the storm broke in typical Collins fashion.

"Rumor—it's a silly falsehood from start to finish. Where did you hear it? Who started it?" he demanded in the same vigorous way in which he always denounces baseless rumor which, because he so frequently does the unexpected thing, has time and again been current about about his policies.

"Certainly, we are going to continue the eight cylinder principle," he added. "Why shouldn't we continue it? We haven't found anything which, for the purposes required, can surpass it. When we do find a more efficient principle for the type of car we are building we shall certainly adopt it. But, the new Peerless is an 'eight.' You may be sure of that."

"Every City in United States Will Have a Motor Camp," Says Executive

"The time is not far distant when every city in the country will have a municipal motor camp.

"The fact that 300 cities now have municipal motor camp sites constitutes one of the greatest tributes to the automobile as a factor in helping American citizens see their country first."

Thus C. J. Nephler, general sales manager of the Oakland Motor Car company, sums up the benefit of the automobile as a means of trans-continental travel as well as the shorter summer trip, which have grown in vogue tremendously in the United States.

"The 300 cities having municipal motor camp sites are performing a service for trans-continental motorists, and for those taking shorter automobile trips, that was hardly thought of 10 years ago. In addition to these 300 cities, dozens more are planning camps for the 1922 season.

"Hundreds of additional camp sites are supplied on national and state forest reserves and on privately owned grounds.

"Official figures show that 598,000 campers used these municipal sites in 1921, whereas hundreds of thousands more camped in the state and national reservations.

"Just in proportions as these camp sites increase, just in that proportion will cross-country touring and in general long automobile touring increase. It is not only profitable for the communities to foster these camping sites, but it is profitable for the country as a whole to have our citizens see our own country.

"Another great advantage of the automobile tour is the fact that persons making such a journey will visit the little by-ways, the little out-of-way spots and thereby gain a better knowledge of the country than visiting the large centres only, when traveling by other means of transportation. And the health features of being outdoors in an automobile is not the least of the benefits.

"That this form of traveling has gained tremendously may be gleaned from the fact that nearly 7,000,000 passengers were carried in motor cars in 1921 as compared to a little better than 1,000,000 carried on steam railroads."

Congress Urged to Pass More Stringent Anti-Theft Measures

A nation-wide movement to interest congress in adopting an amendment to the Federal Automobile law which now makes it a felony to take stolen car across a state line, has been started by the National Auto Anti-Thief association.

The proposed amendment would prohibit the export of any auto until, and forbidding any steamship line to issue its bill of lading for the transport of any auto, whether or not boxed, until its motor and factory numbers are certified by an inspector of customs as intact (and recorded); and further certified not to be on the list of stolen autos required to be kept posted in the office of the collector of customs of each port of entry in the United States.

All trade organizations affiliated with the motor car industry throughout the country and every automobile club are urged to use their influence with their own congressman to secure the adoption of such an amendment to the present federal law in order to close an important outlet of professional automobile thieves in exporting their spoils to confederates at foreign ports.

HUDSON HAS NEW SUPER 6

Several Changes in Body Design

A new seven-passenger sedan, containing all the recent Hudson improvements of body and motor design, including the new Super-Six motor, and several additional new features, is announced by the Hudson Motor Car company. Dealers in practically all parts of the country are already displaying it. The new sedan is being produced in strict conformity with Hudson details of fine manufacturing precision. Its price is $2,295, f. o. b. Detroit.

Several changes have been made in the body as compared with the previous sedan, according to Lloyd Weaver of the Lloyd Weaver company, local Hudson-Essex dealer. The new model is three inches longer, is lower and of lighter weight. Both front and rear seats are wider. All body panels are aluminum.

More Length.

The increased length has been given to both the front and rear compartments, especially between the rear and auxiliary seats. Additional space has been given the driver, and the front seat, designed along the general lines of the touring limousine, makes the driver's position even more restful than heretofore. The contour of all other seats has likewise been changed to afford greater comfort. The rear seat is deeper.

Even better centilation than on previous models is provided for by a larger cowl ventilator, equipped with a deflector. The rear window glass is also larger. The triangular panes of glass which form part of the windshield add to the distinctiveness and, together with the wider door glasses, afford the driver a greater range of vision.

AUTO THEFT FOUGHT.

About 750 chambers of commerce, board of trade and trade organizations and about 300 automobile clubs have been nominated as associates of the National Auto Anti-Thief association. The joint co-operation of all for the enactment of legislation for the more uniform protection of car owners in the various states by concentrated effort carefully directed on uniform lines should be productive of good results.

The Only Thing We Don't Understand Is Why These Birds Ever Wanted to Go

Shipwrecked Seamen Bring Back Tales of Romance from Tiny Isles in South Seas

By Associated Press.

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 26.—A sunny coral isle in the south seas where lazy palms fringe the coral atolls and the women, young and beautiful, out-number the men more than 14 to 1, where thirty cents lasts a month; this is the story told of Tagawa an islet of the Ellice group, by Captain J. A. T. Olsen of the American schooner Henriette, wrecked July 16 in those latitudes.

Captain Olsen and the members of his crew are in Honolulu today with the British steamer Hauraki, which picked them up at Tagawa and is taking them to San Francisco.

And the captain's tale runs as follows:

Get This, Boys

"Tagawa is the only habitable island of the Ellice group. Its population consists of 190 persons, of whom 12 are men."

Our schooner, the Henrietta, was swung off her course and onto Nukualili reef by heavy seas.

"We struck at night and at dawn saw native men, clad only in loin cloths, pushing an outrigger canoe into the water. With their assistance we made the shore safely.

"Our coming was hailed with joy by the natives, who pass their existence in a state of isolation. The women outnumber the men 14 to 1 or more and some of them are beautiful. Their ages range from 12 to 18 years and there are only a few older.

Ye Gods

"The chief of the tribe, a husky Samoan, turned over his grass hut palace to the mate and myself as our private quarters.

"He also tendered me one of his daughrers with a beautiful dark haired girl with a lovely figure as a servant. Other pretty girls were assigned to the mate and to members of the crew to wait on them.

"I had only thirty cents in my pocket when I landed, but money was no object. Many dinners were given in our honor and native maidens in grass skirts performed hula dances.

"All the inhabitants of the island are christians and lead upright lives.

No Wonder

"We had a hard time getting away. The women wanted husbands and they pleaded with us and coaxed us to stay. Owing to the isolation of Tagawa most of the men of marriageable age have left it.

"Our twentieth birthday on the island Mate T. P. Benson sighted the masts of the steamer Hauraki. We put out in our boat and signalled repeatedly, finally catching the attention of those aboard.

"We were not worrying for if the Hauraki had not sighted us we would have been taken off the island by the London missionary society boat which calls at Tagawa twice each year."

Captain Olson and seven others of the crew of the schooner will leave for the mainland tomorrow on the transport Henderson.

WILSON—

clearly that it will not do, so far as Missouri is concerned, to try to change the party platform and eliminate the Wilson policies from it in the coming general election.

Perhaps the next hardest fight in recent democratic primaries, in which the question of the Wilson policies, or some other ideas, was an active issue, was in Mississippi, where Mr. Wilson wrote a letter denouncing former Senator Vardaman, a candidate for the democratic nomination for senator. The vote was so close in the state that a second primary will be necessary to determine the nominee, but Senator Vardaman is one of the two who will be on the second primary ticket. This means that the Wilson vote—that which stands unswervingly under his banner and follows his leadership—is too strong in that state to be ignored.

In Virginia, where Senator Swanson was up recently for renomination and opposed by former Governor Westmoreland Davis, Mr. Wilson wrote a letter commanding the political course of Senator Swanson and he was overwhelmingly nominated.

In West Virginia, M. M. Neely, who as a congressman during the war period, has stood behind the president through thick and thin, never failing in his support, and has since commended the former president's career on every occasion, w. " nominated by a substantial majority over Mrs. William G. Brown, whose attitude toward the former president was almost the same as Major Neely's, but who had not had the opportunity to make it known as he had.

In Ohio, Senator Pomerene, whose vote was ever in accord with President Wilson's policies during the latter's administration, was renominated by a heavy majority over John J. Lentz, who was backed by the labor element, and in spite of the opposition of the Anti-Saloon league, whose strength in Ohio has been manifested many times and beyond contradiction.

In Nebraska after the bitterest sort of a fight, Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, who led the fight in the senate for the ratification of the Versailles treaty, when it was under consideration, and was one of President Wilson's stauncehest supporters in the senate, won out for renomination, with a big vote to spare.

In Kentucky, every member of the house of representatives who haas been a supporter of the Wilson policies was renominated, although some of them had fights on hand.

Not all the states have held their primaries; and there has not been any contest between Wilson and anti-Wilson candidates in all the states which have held primaries. But whenever "Wilsonism" has been the issue in the democratic primaries, it has either won out or maintained such a standing as to make it manifest that the party can not abandon the policies and principles of the former president, because of the demand by the voters that they be kept to the front.

On the other hand the opposition to the Wilson candidates, those who have been backed by the former president and who represent his policies, has been sufficiently strong to show that the party is by no means unanimous with regard to giving them continued support.

Unless conditions change greatly within the next two years, the outlook for a democratic sweep of the country in 1924 is good. But the primaries which have been held show a divided democratic party, which cannot hope to win, under the most favorable conditions, unless it heals the old scores and unites its warring elements to battle against the common enemy.

FARMERS LIKE PRETTY CARS

Willys-Knight Finds Much Favor

There is one thing upon which the tastes of city man and farmer coincide much more closely than city folks realize, and that is the motor car. The man who thinks that the farmer does not appreciate smartness and beauty in automobiles, lacks completely in an understanding of those who run the country's biggest business.

The popularity of high class cars among farmers proves that the farmer does car for smartness and beauty. This accounts for the increased farm demand for Willys-Knight cars. As an example, the Willys-Knight car showed the greatest percentage of increase in registration in 1921 over 1920 in the rural communities of Illinois of any make of automobile and 1922 is showing a proportionate increase over 1921. The same condition exists in rural communities in other states.

It was scrutinized by the writer. It contains quite a lot of engineering reports showing the probable cost of construction, gradients, photographs of business streets in towns that will be traversed, and general information as to crop production and acreage yet susceptible to be cultivated.

Col. Powell declared that as soon as the surveyors had compelted their work he would immediately go to his home in Chicago and after some preliminary work would present his petition to the interstate commerce commission for permission to build the line.

"Then," he said significantly, "I have some friends, including Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, to whom I can bespeak my proposition with a great deal of encouragement."

Powell was very optimistic over the outlook for Fort Worth to become a great city and said that any railroad projected from the plains sections could not build to any other city save Fort Worth without repeating the serious and disastrous performance accomplished by unwise railway builders, such as those who started the Orient lines.

Wichita Falls and Iowa Park. At the present price of gasoline, this jorney in a day would cost $456.96, or $166,790.40 per year.

Actual tests at the University of California, according to Mr. Isbell, and at Cleveland, Ohio, developed the fact that it requires 33 per cent more gasoline to operate motor cars over a fine smooth dirt road than over concrete pavement. Based on this consumption of gasoline we would have a net saving in gasoline of 4½ cents per trip, which aggregates $116.87 per day or a saving of $42,657.55 per year on paved highways.

Saving the cost of construction in 10 years, Mr. Isbell said, by taking into account the saving in the cost of tires, tubes, repairs and depreciation, the difference in cost of operation alone would pay for the construction in five years. This calculation he said, does not take into consideration the great saving in time that paved highways means to a county, or state, or the ability to increase loads that such pavement always means.

If the daily motor vehicles, he said, that pass over Wichita county highways were placed in a single line, 10 feet apart, they would constitute a column of cars 64,025 feet, or 12 1-4 miles long.

Mr. Isbell estimated the value of motor vehicles using the paved highways each day at $1,550,000.

CINCI DRUG EVIL BEATS BOOZE TRAFFIC

(By International News Service.)

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 25.—The whiskey evil in Cincinnati is a minor thing compared to traffic in drugs, according to Harry A. Abrams, assistant U. S. District attorney, who has been conducting the prosecution of narcotic peddlers here. In commenting on the annual report sent to Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty from the district attorney's office here, Mr. Abrams said:

"The outstanding feature of the report is to be found, not in the liquor prosecutions, but in the efforts that are being made to stamp out traffic in narcotic drugs. The drug trifficker's ring in Cincinnati is a far greater menace than any so-called 'whiskey ring.'"

HAWAII TO HAVE BIG SUGAR YIELD

(By International News Service.)

HONOLULU, Aug. 25.—Hawaii's sugar business gives every promise of experiencing a very prosperous year, despite the pessimistic predictions which were freely made earlier in the year.

Word to this effect comes from practically all of the Hawaiian plantations, where growing conditions are reported as having been so good during the spring and early summer that the cane is now in excellent condition.

It is now expected that the 1922 cron will run considerably over the estimated amount, which was about 500,000 tons of raw sugar. The 1923 cron will probably be even better it is thought.

PRODIGAL JUDGE EMPRESS OFFER

Its Called Greatest of Year

The greatest picture of the year has been termed "The Prodigal Judge." It is based upon Vaughan Kester's famous novel and was shown in this city for the first time at Empress theater on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

An all-star cast headed by Jean Paige and Maclyn Arbuckle assured the spectator of seeing the best in the line of acting. Years ago when Vaughan Kester was approached to put this famous novel into a stage version he said the only man who could play the role was Maclyn Arbuckle, and after featuring the production and seeing the work of this talented American actor upon the screen the spectator is inclined to agree with the author. In fact, when Maclyn Arbuckle was approached to play the part someone said:

"Do you think you could impersonate the Judge?"

"I cannot impersonate him," said Arbuckle, "for I am the Judge."

And certainly Arbuckle is the judge A better, cleaner, more effective performance cannot be conceived. Yet the judge without his Mahaffy would be like Damon without his Pythias. Mahaffy is in the hands of Ernest Torrence. He is the exact opposite of the judge. The judge is optimistic; Mahaffy is pessimistic. The judge is corpulent; Mahaffy is lean. The judge is jovial; Mahaffy is grouchy. The two form a strange combination, and yet in good times and in bad, through all sorts and conditions, they cling together. And then added to the pair comes Hannibal, a role assumed by Charles Eaton. This child actor is worthy of the name of child prodigy. He certainly shows unusual talent and handles a difficult role in masterly style.

The three guardsmen, as they might be termed, march through scene after scene of the picture, captivating hearts and turning blues into joy by their strange adventures and pleasing actions.

A love story is interwoven in the plot, and Jean Paige, whose work as a screen player is well known, has the role of Betty Malroy, around whose life much of the story centers. She has several strong, dramatic scenes, especially at the time of the fatal wedding and her escape from the houseboat. It is a type of role that suits Jean Paige because it emphasizes her personal charm and sweet innocence, which have been emphasized by her previous screen productions and are of a type which has brought her into the limelight.

Earl Fox, as Bruce Carrington, is exceptionally well cast. And Arthur Carew, as the shrewd, crafty, evil villian Colonel Fentress, is well selected.

Every member of the cast was picked because he or she was notonly a type, but a player capable of handling the scene. The production is produced upon a large scale, requiring several hundred players for several of the scenes.

The dedication of the county fair, the scenes on the Mississippi river and the perilous chase through the reeds are a few of the big, dramatic moments of this production. The scenic backgrounds and atmosphere of the period and give the production a touch of realism impossible to obtain otherwise.

HER FASCINATING HUSBAND

The most fascinating man lives in Michigan. In her divorce petition his wife says: "My husband is so alluring that women flock about him when he appears in society, send him notes, flowers and candy and beg to hold his hand." The facts may be slightly exaggerated. Where one of the members of a matrimonial partnership is inordinately jealous fiction becomes truer than fact and a divorce suit is likely to follow.

BETTY RETURNS IN NEW FILM

"Bonded Woman" Is Her Latest

Bonded by a debt of gratitude and love—such is virtually the meaning of the unusual title of "The Bonded Woman," Betty Compson's latest Paramount picture, directed by Phillip E. Rosen, which has been declared to be the best in which this popular star has been to date.

Albert Shelby LeVino wrote this play for the screen from a story by the late John Fleming Wilson. There are virtually two leading men, played by John Bowers and Richard Dix. The one is a rough but big-hearted first mate, with a craving for drink; the other, a ship owner, polished and a man of the highest character.

When the mate saves the life of Angela's father (Angela being the role interpreted by Miss Compson) she feels an intense debt of gratitude Later this ripens into love; but when he is accused of theft, she believes that he is unworthy of her. Also, he is a drunkard. The other man loves her and she promises to wed him, but at the last moment realizes that only with the first man can happiness lie, and goes in search of him.

A wreck is contrived for the ship of which he is now master and the man and woman are cast away upon an island, which he reforms and becomes a man among men. The dissipated ship owner realizes the facts, and when his rival is exonerated of the theft by the confession of the real thief, appoints him one of his sailing masters ,thus proving his own character.

Sheer romance, thrilling situations and powerful emotional moments, as well as strongly depicted characters, render this one of the finest pictures Miss Compson has appeared in for some time. "The Bonded Woman" comes to the Olympic theater next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. John Bowers and Richard Dix portray the leading roles in support of the star.

CHARLIE PAYS FOR HIS WHIMS

Works Whole Year on One Film

Artistic temperament must be given a new meaning. Cases of it that have occurred from time to time, among world famous geniuses, grand opera singers particularly, have always been destructive in some way.

Shows have been spoiled. Plans have been knocked awry. Fortunes have been lost. Lives have been wrecked. All by the inexplicable urge which has been called artistic temperament.

The fact that scientists have accepted artistic temperament as the manifestation of emotions, which are as strangely wonderful in their way as the physical attainments of the artists possessing such a temperament, has caused managers to put up with it for the same reason that a circus manager has extra strong cars to transport elephants. It is a part of the game, and has to be taken into consideration in dealing with geniuses.

To associate Charlie Chaplin with artistic temperament is a thing that is not generally known, but it is a fact that he recently threw away at least $1,000,000 in salary to play a dramatic role in a feature production!

It was artistic temperament in the nth degree. It was at a time in his career when the sort of comedy that had made him famous was the most popular form of amusement that could be presented to the American public. Yet Chaplin for the first time in his motion picture career was independent, and he gave up an income of nearly $3,000 a day to answer the urge of artistry that had called him ever since he went into moving pictures.

He spent a full year in gratifying his artistic temperament. The result is "The Kid," which will be the First National attraction at the Gem theater, Saturday. It is the greatest picture the comedian has ever done, and absolutely different from anything he has ever done.

Beauty Contest Winner, Coming To Strand, Advises Other Girls

"Ever since I was so fortunate as to win the 'Fame and Fortune' film contest," said Virginia Brown Faire to the inquiring interviewer, "I have been besieged with letters from loads and loads of girls—girls who want advice—girls who wonder whether or not it is advisable to enter a motion picture contest. To which I have answered and always will answer: By all means. Every opportunity which presents itself should not be overlooked by one who wishes to accomplish something. Opportunity is a terribly impressive looking word to me but the meaning of it is even more impressive. It embraces so many things.

"When I first grasped the big opportunity I was seventeen and I really wondered what I would do should I be rewarded for my courage in reaching for opportunity's forelock. I had had no experience—no knowledge of the technical end of the great undertaking I determined to follow up. I just knew that the rewards presented something most fascinating and were just about what I wanted.

"I entered the 'Fame and Fortune' contest and won it. The next thing to do was to face the glaring lights of the studio. I had no idea of makeup and when the ghastly, yellow grease paint was spread over my face I wanted to protest. You see yellow gives the best results to the screen, via the camera. I quickly found that the best way to learn things was to keep silent and listen. If there was anything that puzzled me, and I wanted to know the whys and wherefores, I didn't hesitate to ask.

"In the studio they made a test of me—not just a straight series of poses, but an actual scene conceived by the director from an old photoplay in which a famous feminine star had appeared. I suppose in that way they could judge as to my 'screening' as well as my acting and take the comparison into account as well.

"If the truth be known, I was frightened out of my wits. I frankly told them so because I was quite sure that they couldn't help but find it out. I didn't know what to do, and I knew nothing about camera technique. But they reassured me, and after a while I began to get used to the lights and the clicking camera, the lack of an audience and the jumbled scenes. After getting experience in a number of pictures, I determined to keep my eyes open for the really big opportunity.

"Of course, you know the West Coast is crowded with picture people and news of big productions spreads very rapidly. A newspaper could not spread it faster than these words of mouth. I had heard that Pathe was about to start production on the celebrated Rudyard Kipling story, 'Without Benefit of Clergy,' which comes to the Strand Monday. James Young was to direct it, and Randolph Lewis, who had given technical aid to the great novelist in London was to carry out the author's ideas in the screening."

MAY USES BIG TOY COLLECTION

Favorite Playing at Olympic

Thousands of dollars worth of toys, ranging from teddy bears to animated dolls, were hauled to Paramount studio for the production of May McAvoy's new picture production, "The Top of New York." The collection would have proved a delight to the average child and it is safe to say that never in the history of the screen has so ample a collection of toys ever been shown in a motion picture in this or any other country.

In this picture Miss McAvoy has the role of a poor girl of the tenements who clerks in the toy department of a great New York department store. During the Christmas rush the little salesgirl appears as an animated doll to attract buyers to the doll section. For these toy shop scenes an exact reproduction of a huge modern department store toy section as it would be at Christmas time was constructed.

There are shown literally thousands of toys, teddy-bears, camels, elephants toy furniture, tiny autos that run by winding a spring, and hundreds of other things equally fascinating to child eyes. The piece-de-resistance, however, is a large doll house from which comes the animated doll.

But being an animated doll is not the whole of Miss McAvoy's characterization in this production. The toy shop scenes form only a portion of a swift-moving plot that progresses rapidly from one dramatic incident to another, discloses the pathos of life among salesgirls at Christmas time, and includes strong "punch" scenes on top of a tenement roof, a rather unusual locale for photoplay material.

"The Top of New York" will be shown at the Olympic theater next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It will be a great event for the kiddies as well as older folk.

Wilbarger Home Demonstration Agent Realizes Success

RURAL FOLK SEE EFFECT

Miss Goodfellow Is Organizer

By ERIC G. SCHROEDER

Up in Wilbarger county, Mary, Ruth and Nell are bountifully, even lavishly prepared for the opening of school with pretty new frocks; Mrs. Jackson and her neighbors have their fall hats made and laid away on closet shelves; there are rows and rows of fruit and vegetable jars in pantries for miles around; and little Fred, the junior member of the family, is gleefully rattling a toy bank wherein repose his profits from a bouncing, fat porker he has recently sold. In the barnyards are chickens of purebred strains, in the lots are yearlings with pedigrees.

Not that the situation was ever thus in Wilbarger however. The era dates back a span of years which might almost be counted upon the fingers of one hand to the time when the home demonstration department made its initial bow to rural folk here.

Since its advent country residents have profited immeasurably. New articles of wearing apparel are now as common in the outlying districts as on the main thoroughfare of town. There has been and still exists an unprecedented interest in better butter, better eggs, better poultry, cattle, and hogs, and above all, a stimulation of the instinct of thrift and conservation. School houses have been "dressed up" along with those who occupy them, there are new drinking fountains, pianos and electric lights.

Many Clubs Organized

Ten women's clubs, organized under the supervision of the extension department of A. and M. college, exist in Wilbarger county today and included in their rosters is a membership of 500 women. Two years ago there were but three organizations of this kind engaged in more or less haphazard work.

The women hold meetings twice a month, and during the winter many of their activities are associated with the schools in the various districts. Hot lunches for the little ones have been one of the most striking improvements instituted by the women, and there have been as well many programs rendered for the purpose of raising funds to make some much needed purchase.

Conservation of fruits and vegetables has become one of the most vital undertakings of county women, and thousands of dollars, otherwise expended in town or at the village grocery during the year, have been thus saved. The matters of child nutrition, gardening, and the raising of better poultry have likewise been granted widespread attention.

Miss Goodfellow Instructs

Two hundred and sixty-four hats have been made by Wilbarger county ladies since March 1 under the able supervision of Miss Eula Goodfellow, home demonstration agent, and the savings on each are estimated conservatively at five dollars, or a total of $1,320. The headgear is not of dowdy, ill made appearance, but has all the snap and style of that furnished from the state's leading milliners.

Fourteen beeves have been canned in the county since February 1, and at no demonstration were there less than fifteen members of the respective clubs present. Lunches are brought, the occasions taken advantage of to further the neighborly spirit of the communities' residents, and a dual result thus achieved.

To "prove the pudding" Wilbarger women have entered their specimens of workmanship in competion with the best in the state, and Mrs. I. M. Smith of Oklaunion, a home demonstration club member, last year took first place on an article of sewing at the Dallas fair. Mrs. H. A. Blevins of the same community won honors in butter making, and as a result of her experience receives from ten to twenty-five cents a pound more for her product than do her competitors.

Much Community Interest

Public spirited enterprises have been promoted by the women in their ambition to improve the economic and social welfare of the entire county. A cooking school conducted last winter, the second annual event, was patronized largely by club women and the products on display mostly the result of their baking. A butter demonstration last February, presided over by J. Lyan Thomas of A. and M. college, revealed exceptional talent on the part of those submitting samples. A style show in May, conducted in the district court room, was replete with attractive suits, hats and aprons and was patronized by women from all parts of the county.

While their elders have been thus engaged, there has been no idleness on the part of boys and girls under the supervision of the home demonstration agent. Pig and poultry clubs are yielding excellent profits, many girls are being taught to make their entire wardrobes, and several have already won statewide distinction as a result of their skill.

Miss Kamal Butler of Oklaunion won first place at the Dallas fair last fall on a complete school outfit, Miss Vynetta Little of Harrold won state honors in poultry judging at A. and M. college last summer, Miss Jimmie Whitzel won the premier award for first year work at the state fair, and Miss Helen Richie the honors for third year work.

Many to Compete

All efforts are being bent at the present to perfect articles for the Wilbarger county fair in September and later for the state fair at Dallas. To this end a community fair will be held by one community, Oklaunion, eight miles east of Vernon, at which the various departments of extensive expositions will be represented.

Miss Mary Sue Maddox was the first home demonstration agent of Wilbarger county, and was later succeeded by her assistant, Miss Celia Thompson. Miss Ona Wilcox, now Mrs. Moss Lovelace, was the third agent in charge, then Miss Edith Lacy, now of New York, and two years ago there came into office Miss Eula Goodfellow, present supervisor.

The Big Idea

Last Friday and Friday night there ged on the banks of Beaver ateen miles south of the city without precedent in this was fellowship en- hel and

Baylor county home demonstration members as a means of promoting good will and of furnishing relaxation from the rather arduous duties of the past year. There were songs and speeches, pep rallies, demonstrations by the district agent, Miss Bess Edwards, and a veritable landslide of good things to eat. Miss Phebe K. Warner, special writer for a leading state daily was asked as the guest of honor.

Entire families came to sleep out under the stars and make merry at the rather unusual jubilee. There was an exchange of ideas, a renewal of acquaintanceships; there was an exemplification of the real spirit backing the work of the rural home—that of love demonstration as well as home demonstration.

Comeback of Kemp-Munger-Allen Pools Looking Sure Now

PRIME GETS BIG WELL IN 1620

350 Barrel Flow from New Well

Possibility of a genuine "comeback" for the Kemp-Munger-Allen field looms large, with the developments of the past week.

The Prime Oil company's No. 3 Munger was completed for a 350-barrel well in the 1620 foot sand and with more favorable conditions for operating the old pool, for more than a year a steady producer of small pumpers from the 1700-foot sand, would doubtless be again lively with new drilling for the 1600-foot sand.

However, under the curtailed drilling program in force in the entire district, there have been several new tests started around the Prime and Franklin wells on the west side, Kemp Munger-Allen Oil company is also planning a test for the 1600-foot sand in the almost exact center of its 500-acre lease.

The Kemp-Munger-Allen lease has had only the east side developed, because of early failures on the west side. However, other companies brought in nice producers on the west side, and lately the discovery company has been edging out location at a time until the center of the lease has been reached.

The Prime Oil company has a second 1600-foot well on the sand. South of this lease the Cline Oil company is rigging up on No. 10 South of the Cline Oil company, Waggoner and Green are reported preparing to put down a well to the new sand depth.

Other operators with property in the vicinity of the new strike are watching further developments.

The Kemp-Munger-Allen Oil company's No. 16 has completed successfully a month's fishing job, and is now preparing to complete in the 1,700-foot sand. The No 17 is also on the sand and standardizing. The No. 18 is the new location for the 1600-foot sand.

The shallow pool on the Nance tract, several miles northwest and across the river from the Kemp-Munger-Allen has its first completion reported in several months. The Ryan Petroleum corporation's No. 8 Nance is a 50-barrel well in the 1400-foot sand.

The deep test of Kemp, Randall and others southwest of the Culbertson pool, John and Jeff Waggoner ranch, between the K. M. A. pool and the South Electra field, is bailing and expects to get a test of the 1900 foot sand within a short time.

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company and T. F. Hunter in the 1500 foot producing pool, are engaged in testing out deeper sands.

The Camp Oil and Gas company's No. 1 John and Jeff Waggoner is reported completing in the 1500 foot sand.

KOSSE GUSHER IN ACTION

The Kosse gusher is Colonel A. E. Humphreys' latest contribution to Texas oil history. The new well, which came in with a phenomenal production, opens up much new territory in the general Mexia district and this is the first picture of the well in action to be published in northwest Texas.

The Prime Oil corporation, with headquarters in this city, are among the holders of close-up acreage to the new well, and this Wichita Falls company is planning to be among the early developers.

Dry Weather Slows Operations During Week in Archer County

Operations in Archer county have been showed up by the dry weather, particularly in the new pool opened by the Hampton and Freeman well on the Ferguson, but this section now has water, it is reported, and the drilling now under way will have no more delay.

The No. 2 Ferguson of Hampton and Freeman is being put on the pump, showing up for about the same size well as the No. 1, when drilled into the sand the first of the week.

J. L. Staley and the White Oil corporation are also drilling close to the new wells, and on the Kemp and Kempner land.

ELECTRA DROPS IN PRODUCTION

Drouth Felt By Many Operators

Another week of drouth, with the greater part of operations in the South Electra field shut down still, and other sections of the field forced to husband their water supply, has shown its result in the decrease on new wells, and also in decreased production, since Electra this past week, or the first time in months, showed a decline instead of an increase in production.

The drop was less than 1,000 barrels, and less than could have been expected, with the shut down, and the lack of incentive to keep production at a maximum, which this meant extra effort and expense.

Electra was not completely lacking in news, however, with seevral points of important development in the area of new drilling. Some of this news was of a disappointing nature, but important, notwithstanding.

When the Hockaday and Shaw well in section 34, drilled to the 160-foot sand the latter part of last week, showed up for an even better producer than at first expected, this new west side extension, something like a mile from the present west outline of production in the main pool, became an attention center.

Four new locations were made immediately around the new producer, and the discovery well of the pool, the McCallister, Brown and Grisham just west of the new well. These tests will be drilled as soon as conditions will permit.

Within the next day or so there will be definite developments from the McCallister, Brown and Grisham, No. 2, section 34, now cemented on top of the 1800-foot sand. Two producing levels would give this newly opened pool added importance.

Just south of the discovery well the Gulf Production company's No. 1 is preparing to test the 1620 foot sand. A test of the 1560 foot sand last week in this well was a disappointment.

McCallister, Brown and Grisham are building the derrick for the No. 3, between their No. 1, and the Hockaday and Shaw well. The No. 2 of Hockaday and Shaw is to be drilled as soon as advisable, and the Texhoma Oil and Refining company is preparing to offset the Hockaday and Shaw well on the south and Riner and Bailey are reported preparing to offset on the north.

The test being drilled by the Panhandle Refining company, in section 27, about half mile southwest of the McCallister, Brown and Grisham well failed to get production in any of the several sands around in this section, and has been held up with a fishing job below 2,000 feet for several days.

No Wells Near Sand Last Week In Section 31 Are Completed

Operations in section 31, and the Texas company's Waggoner wells in the east of the Harvey-Cullum wells, and the Allingham tests in section 32, are reported in the same stage as at the close of last week, on account of the water shortage. None of the wells on or near the sand last week has been completed, and new wells are being held up in drilling for the same reason.

In the northwest corner of the section C. R. Troxel and associates are reported preparing to drill a new well to the 1,000 foot sand, found in one of the earlier tests, but not developed.

This new test will be northwest of the John O'Neil lease, where the No. 1 recently was completed for a 300 barrel well in the 1900 foot sand, a half mile west of the Harvey-Cullum producers in the southeast corner of the section.

Texhoma Abandons

In section 13 the Texhoma Oil and Refining company has abandoned its No. 1 Waggoner, as dry below 2,200 feet. Several different sands were encountered in this test and all were given a thorough test, but failed to show commercial production. This rig is being moved down to section 34, where the Hockaday and Shaw No. 1 is to be offset.

On the Grace Jennings, about half way between the 1900-foot producers on the Jennings and the Beaver Electra refinery grounds, the National Oil Fields association No. 1 is reported dry around 2,150 feet, and to be abandoned.

This section of the field, around the refinery and up towards the east limits of Electra begins to look rather unfavorable, with the Gulf Production company's failure to get a producer of their No. 3 Douglas, north of the road from the refinery, in the 1900-foot sand, and the reports that Green and Dales' No. 3 is having serious salt water trouble.

Possibilities of the sand taking a north and east trend were indicated in the completion of the Humble Oil and Refining company's No. 2 Douglas for a 150 barrel well, north and east of the Gulf's two producers. The Gulf dry hole is the far west test on the Douglas.

The outcome of the two tests being drilled by the Camp Oil and Gas company on the Douglas, east of the Gulf's lease, and on the edge of the road will have considerable bearing on further developments here.

The Gulf's No. 4 Grace Jennings, was completed last week, south of the road and east of the Beaver-Electra refinery, for a 250-barrel well in the 1900-foot sand. The No. 5 is drilling.

Green and Dale are preparing to drill their No 4 on the refinery grounds and Kruger and others, south and west of the refinery, have made location for their No. 2 Grace Jennings, according to reports.

75 BARREL WELL IN

In the old Clara pool the Aldine Oil corporation's No 2 C. Birk, three miles west of Clara, is reported a 75-barrel pumper in the 1840 foot sand.

The Sunshine State Oil and Refining company's No. 2 Holtzen, also in the Clara district, is reported abandoned around 2,050 feet.

Catering to a Hot Weather Appetite

PEOPLE are usually fussy about their food in hot weather. They have less appetite than usual. The wise housewife knows she can not tempt the family palate with rich, heavy or highly seasoned food; she must serve crisp, delicately flavored, cooling dishes.

Above all, the food must be fresh; kept fresh in a well iced refrigerator.

Milk and butter must be cold, the vegetables crisp, meats' purity thoroughly protected.

Using cracked ice on the table makes a heap of difference. A few cents' worth buys a dollar's worth of satisfaction when the thermometer hovers around 90.

Don't Fear the Terrors of Summer Time

Summer days can be made more comfortable by the use of PURE CRYSTAL ICE.

Using a little cracked ice on the table to keep the butter hard, the salad or fresh vegetables crisp, or the drinking water cool—makes the meal much more appetizing, on a warm day.

Summer drinks must be cold to be refreshing, and a great many frozen dainties are possible for dessert if you keep ice.

On hot days nothing will cool off a room as quickly as a piece of ice in or near an open window, the air chills in passing the ice and soon makes the indoor temperature more comfortable.

FIFTH SAND IN SOUTH ELECTRA

Several Completions Despite Drouth

The main south Electra pool is showing the effects of the water scarcity in lessened operations, like the remainder of the field, though the past week recorded several nice completions, in several of the numerous sands.

The 1400-foot sand was extended some distance to the south by the Planet Petroleum company's No. 7 Waggoner-A, in the south end of the pool, which was completed for a 50-barrel producer in the sand at 1420 feet. This gives the south end of the pool its fifth developed sand, the 1900, 1500 and 700 foot sands found in the original south Electra pool, in section 6, having all been extended down south to the Waggoner by good producers on the Planet, Shamrock, Griswold, Cline and Carteret leases. Location has been made for the No. 8-A of the Planet.

The Planet had a nice 1900 foot completion on its Burnett lease, the No. 61 coming in at 1930 feet for 300 barrels.

On the Hobbs-Gladiolus Burnett lease the No. 73 is reported the best well of the week, making 400 barrels from the sand at 1940 feet. The No. 65, same lease, is a 250-barrel producer in the same sand, according to the reports.

The Carter et al No. 11, Burnett, in section 5, east part of the original shallow pool, is reported a 30-barrel well in the 680-foot sand.

In the southwest side of the pool the Carteret Oil company's No. 7 Waggoner has been completed for 40 barrels, sand 1520 feet.

The No. 2 Burnett of the Hartford Trust company, in section 5, is reported a 25 barrel pumper in the 1800 foot sand.

The No. 27 Burnett of Thomasson and Mallory, also in section 5, is a small well in the 1780 foot sand, making 40 barrels on the pump.

Radicals Defy Police; Demonstrate

MUNICH, Aug. 26.—Nationalist associations in defiance to the police held a demonstration protesting against "the Berlin settlement" of the defense laws. During the affair there were conflicts between nationalists and communists.

Demonstrants formed a long parade and attempted to cross the Isar river to reach the vicinity of the provincial diet building. The police succeeded in pushing them back and prevented their passage. Later, the nationalists made a demonstration outside the buildings occupied by the allied missions and also at the building occupied by the socialist newspaper Munchener Post. A report was current that a coup d'etat against the government of Premier Liechenfeld was imminent but it lacked confirmation.

SIGN TANTALIZES HOUSE GUESTS

KEY WEST, Fla., Aug. 25.—Evidently they believe down here that advertising is advertising, just as some people believe that pigs is pigs. In one of the local restaurants located less than a block from the main street there is a large poster with the words: "Prepare to Meet Thy God." No matter where one sits in the restaurant he cannot help but see this poster with its cheery message. And no matter how good the soup tastes or how tantalizing is the aroma from the roast, the dinner cannot help but sit and eat and wonder. Possibly the proprietor believes that forewarned is forearmed.

Petroleum Products Exports Drop For 12 Months Ending In June

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—During the 12 months ending June, 1922, there was an appreciable decline in the volume of exports from the United States of the chief classes of petroleum products except crude petroleum, as compared with the preceding 12 months, according to the fuel division of the department of commerce. Exports of gasoline and other light producets declined 14 per cent, gas and fuel oil 14 per cent, and illuminating oil and lubricating oil 3 per cent each, while crude petroleum increased 7 per cent. June exports of crude petroleum were 39 per cent above those for June, 1921. Canada took 29,177,576 gallons of crude oil exported during June, and 204,754,307 gallons of the 12 months' exports the remainder going chiefly to Germany and Cuba.

Exports of illuminating oil during June were somewhat above those for May, 1922, and for June 1921, although still 22 per cent below the April figure. Shipments of this item to the United Kingdom during the 12 months ended June declined 22 per per cent and those to China 19 per cent. Notable increases in the exports of illuminating oil during the last 12 months' period appear in the figures for Egypt, Italy, Germany, and Argentina, shipments to these countries showing advances of 127, 95, 73, and 45 per cent respectively.

Lubricating oil experts during June were nearly 10,800,000 gallons above those for the corresponding month of 1921, and 1,400,000 gallons above the May figures. The principal changes in the volume of exports of this class of products for the 12 months ending June were in the shipments to Germany and France, which increased 104 and 26 per cent, respectively, and in exports to Sweden, Australia, and the United Kingdom, which registered decreases of 75, 50, and 25 per cent, respectively.

The movement in gasoline and other light products, which had declined in May, showed a still further decline in June, although shipments were considerably above those for June, 1921. The principal features of the 12 months' exports of this class of products were decreased shipments to France, Italy, the United Kingdom and South American countries, and increased exports to Japan, the Netherlands, and Belgium.

Gas and fuel oil exports for June showed a decline of about 9,700,000 gallons from the May figure and were nearly 9,000,000 gallons less than those for June, 1921. Shipments of this item to France, Italy, the United Kingdom, and Canada registered decreases during the 12 months ending June as compared with the previous 12 months, while exports to Belgium, Denmark, Mexico, Japan and the Philippines showed marked increases.

Deeper Drilling Tests to Tell Story Of Carson-Hutchinson County Future

By HENRY HALL.
Staff Correspondent.
Special to The Record News.

PANHANDLE, Texas, Aug. 26.—Since the Carson-Hutchison county district has proven to be an oil producing district, little excitement is caused locally by the bringing in of an additional oil or gas well.

The general opinion is that the main production has not been encountered, as wells drilled to date indicate an average daily production of 500 barrels, and each well drilled south and east of the giant gusher, indicates increased production as they are completed further from the dome in northwest Carson county. It is possible that the production may be decidedly increased by deeper drilling, since wells producing from the sand have only drilled into the pay a distance of five feet and the probability is that they will not be drilled deeper until pipe lines are run into the field. The depth of the pay sand is unknown.

Carson County.

Humble No. 2 Burnett, section 38, block 3, lost hole, account collapsed casing. Texas Co., No. 1 Burnett, section 114, block 5, 2,800 feet, three million feet gas. Three million feet of gas cased off at 2,500 feet. This well is one mile nort'i of Gulf producer and is expected to reach pay within a week. Gulf No. 1 Wynn, 3,300 feet drilling in section 97, block 7, log indicates that no oil should be found until 3,600 feet is passed. Oil sand at 3,100 feet. "Life Institute" Disciple Stricken

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Mrs. W. W. Talcott, disciple of A. J. Moore's life institute, today was grief-stricken as a result of the disappearance of her husband. Mr. Talcott recently complained against Moore, who was fined $100 on charges of obtaining money by deception in connection with his religious movement.

Talcott disappeared Thursday. He previously had instituted an inquisition into his wife's sanity. Physicians declared her sane.

The lake was being dragged for the body of a man who leaped off an excursion steamer yesterday. The police suspected the man might have been Talcott, but his wife was unable to identify a hat left behind as the man jumped from the deck.

Movie Trio Enact Real Shooting Story

By Associated Press

EDGEWATER, N. J., Aug. 26.—County police today questioned Mrs. George Cline in an effort to obtain more information concerning the shooting last night of John Bergen, a motion picture actor, by George Cline, the woman's husband, just as a duel was to have taken place.

Cline, a location manager for a motion picture concern, admitted the shooting, according to the police, who say he claimed his wife had told him that several weeks ago Bergen had attacked her. Cline said the police added that after his wife told of the attack, which happened while the trio was in Saranac Lake, he telephoned Bergen and asked him to come to the house. Bergen admitted the attack, police say Cline told them, and was then told he would have to fight a duel.

Cline's story was, the police assert, that as he was going upstairs ahead of Bergen to a room where they were going to "shoot it out," Bergen tried to shoot, and Cline fired in self defense.

For Your Home Life

Natural gas contributes as much to the satisfaction of your home life as any one factor.

Think what it would mean if before every meal you had to build a fire. Think what it would mean to handle coal or wood, with the resultant smoke, grime and ashes. Think what it would mean to wait while the flames come up to a point where they are of value to you.

Convenient and Quick

Then think of your convenience. Turn a valve, touch a match to the gas, and you have instantly, at any minute of the entire day, a hot flame ready for your service.

Maybe one out of ten families in the United States may enjoy this privilege. Perhaps of these ten, two may have all the gas they need all the time.

It is a privilege the people of this community enjoy that gives them real advantages over the people of other communities. Assuch it deserves your consideration and your efforts to retain its blessings.

CHIEF TO PROBE BOY WHIPPING

No Arrests Made on Second Day

Although no arrests have been made in connection with the case, Chief of Police J. W. McCormick asserted yesterday afternoon that he hopes to make some arrests in the near future in connection with the alleged beating given Herbert Click, a Vernon youth who claims to have been whipped and robbed of his money here Thursday afternoon by "union men on strike."

Click told his first story of the occurrence Friday morning, in a room in the Alpine hotel where he had taken refuge, he said, from "the two men who whipped me and threatened my life."

According to the lad's narrative, he was seduced into a woods 13 miles from the city, where he was beaten with a club and a jug, and then robbed of his money.

The two men who whipped him, he said, claimed that he "was a scab."

Vernon Sure of Lee Road Routing

Special to the Record News.

VERNON, Texas, August 26.—Vernon now feels sure that the Lee highway will be rounted through this city. Word has come from Austin that there is very little doubt but this route will be accepted.

The people of Vernon have worked hard to get the highway ever since they first learned there was a chance. They raised a large amount of money and they have done everything possible to bring the famous highway here as they know it will mean more than anything else to this city. With practical assurances that this route will be chosen there is general rejoicing among those who have taken such an active part in the work.

SUCH PAINS AS THIS WOMAN HAD

Two Months could not turn in Bed Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Finally Restored Health

Seattle, Washington. — "I had dragging pains first and could not stand on my feet, then I had chills and fever and such pains in my right side and a hard lump there. I could not turn myself in bed and could not sleep. I was this way for over two months, trying everything any one told me, until my sister brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it regularly until all the hard pain had left me and I was able to be up and to do my work again. The hard lump left my side and I feel splendid in all ways I know of many women it has helped." — Mrs. G. RICHARDSON, 4640 Orcas St., Seattle, Wash.

This is another case where Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought results after "trying everything any one told me" had failed.

If you are suffering from pain, nervousness and are always tired; if you are low spirited and good for nothing, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"You Can Keep Well by Saying So Every Day"

How the "Apostle of Auto-Suggestion" Has Created a Furore in France and England by This Doctrine and Its Application After an American Woman "Discovered" Him.

Lord Curzon, Who Says That M. Coue Cured Him of Insomnia. Lord Curzon Married Mary Leiter of Chicago.

EVERY day, in every way, I grow better and better!

Ten words, simple of utterance, simple of understanding, as easy for the child as for the grown-up. Yet they spell out the entire formula by which Emile Coue, president of the Lorraine Society of Applied Psychology, attracts to his humble abode in Nancy thousands who hope to be cured of diseases of the mind and body.

Coue was "discovered" to the English-speaking world by Lady Beatty, wife of the famous naval hero of England, and her announcement to the fashionable set that she had been cured of serious illness by the exponent of thought suggestion attracted the attention of England and America.

Lady Beatty is the former Ethel Field of Chicago. She induced M. Coue to visit London. His lectures were attended by huge crowds and the London police had difficulty keeping them in order so anxious were the sick to see the "healer." Serious excitement was caused in the Special Neurological Hospital at Tooling when M. Coue tried his theory on some shell-shocked soldiers. It stimulated their minds so greatly that some of them became violent and Lady Beatty and others who accompanied her to see him effect the cures had to leave suddenly.

M. Coue's followers, who number into the thousands, are convinced that he can cure them of anything that comes within the meaning of the word disease. But M. Coue has a slightly different explanation of these cures. He treats all, he admits, with lectures. He proudly receives the thanks of those who say he has cured them. But he smiles when they say this and declares that he merely taught them to cure themselves by stating "the truth," that the imagination is superior to the will. For all is imagination in M. Coue's system of therapeutics.

Smacks of Faith Healing.

Children have been taught that will-power was the greatest asset and that too much imagination might injure one's chances of success. But M. Coue says he discovered that the imagination is vastly superior to the will-power and that one can cure himself of disease by just imagining he is well and repeating his simple formula each day, twenty times, morning and evening, to stimulate the flow of thought.

The thing smacks strongly of faith healing. At his last public appearance in London, at which hundreds were present, M. Coue told a paralytic who had lost his power of balance to run down the aisle and go home. And the man did. Careful investigation proved there was no charlatanism about it.

It is said that M. Coue discovered the superiority he claims for imagination over the will after reading a pamphlet on auto-suggestion written by an American. He also convinced himself that suggestions could be given another person without using hypnotism. The mere closing of the eyes renders the mind of another fertile for the reception of an idea, he declares.

It is highly probable, however, that had he not won the attention of Lady Beatty, wife of Earl Beatty, First Lord of the Admiralty, by effecting for her a cure of a disease which had long interfered with her social activities, M. Coue would still be the humble cottager of Nancy, administering to a few neighbors, but hidden from the limelight of international attention he has received since Lady Beatty announced him as her protege.

For M. Coue has been practising his cure for twenty-two years. Residents of Nancy knew of him and his work and went to him for treatment and were cured. Visitors to the place heard of him also, and were convinced that M. Coue was somewhat different. He impressed some with the idea that what he had done was to give to the world the scientific explanation of the superior power of the imagination over the will. M. Coue's theory admits that the mind is more powerful than the body, but seems to go further, his admirers say, in that it draws a fine distinction between and carefully defines the difference between will and imagination.

Lady Beatty is the daughter of the late Marshall Field of Chicago. Consequently her indorsement of M. Coue attracted much attention in the American colonies in England and France. Recently Lord Curzon, who married Mary Leiter of Chicago, visited M. Coue. He declares he has never suffered from insomnia since.

M. Coue receives no pay for his treatments. They are given in lectures, twice a week, in his home just outside Nancy. But because he can only treat a comparatively few by this method he directed the compilation of a book now published in America by Dodd, Mead & Co., called "The Practise of Auto-Suggestion." C. Harry Brooks is author of this work, but M. Coue directed its writing and wrote the preface to it. This is M. Coue's prescription for all human ills:

"On getting into bed close your eyes, relax your muscles and take up a comfortable posture. Now repeat twenty times, counting by means of knots on a piece of string, the general formula:

"'Day by day, in every way, I grow better and better!'

Treatment by Rote.

"The words should be uttered aloud, that is, loud enough to be audible to your own ears. Say it simply, without effort, like a child absently murmuring a nursery rhyme. Do not try to think of what you are saying. On waking in the morning, before you rise, repeat the formula in exactly the same manner."

The book also tells how one may cultivate particular suggestions. It reads:

"In order to formulate particular suggestion, go to a room where you will be free from interruption, sit down in a comfortable chair, close your eyes and let your muscles relax. In doing so you allow the unconscious tide to rise to a sufficient height to make your particular suggestions effective. Now call up the desired ideas through the medium of speech. Tell yourself that such and such ameliorations are going to occur.

"If you are suffering from any severe pain, such as toothache or headache, sit down, close your eyes and assure yourself calmly that you are going to get rid of it. Now gently stroke with your hand the affected part and repeat at the same time as fast as you can, producing a continuous stream of sound, the words: 'It's going, going, going * * * gone!'

"Keep it up for about a minute, pausing only to take a deep breath when necessary, and using the word 'gone' only at the conclusion of the whole proceeding. At the end of this time the pain will either have entirely ceased or at least sensibly abated.

"If the pain has ceased, suggest that it will not return; if it has only diminished, suggest that it will shortly pass away altogether. Now return to whatever employment you were engaged in when the pain began. Let other interests occupy your attention.

"It is no exaggeration to say that by this process any pain can be conquered. It may be, in extreme cases, that you will have to return several times to the attack. But do not be discouraged; attack it firmly and you are bound to succeed.

"The same procedure is equally effective with distressing states of mind, worry, fear, despondency. In such cases the stroking movement should be applied to the forehead."

To those who attend his lectures M. Coue habitually demonstrates the supposed superior power of the imagination over the will by a simple but convincing experiment. He says to them:

"Clasp your two hands tightly together until they tremble; then try to part them while thinking that you cannot do so. The hands remain firmly locked together until the moment you think 'I can open them' and they part easily."

M. Coue teaches that all thoughts which are received on the unconscious mind make an impression there that in time brings about a reality. If you keep on repeating a formula that you are not sick in a short time you will not be sick. Only, it is better to repeat the formula in such a way that its saying is unconscious, that is, the conscious mind does not follow or pay any attention to the words as they fall from the lips. "Repeat like a parrot," says M. Coue. "Do not think what you are saying. The more mechanical the manner in which you utter the words the better for you."

M. Coue has had wonderful results with children, his admirers declare. Youngsters with bad habits or childish ailments are speedily cured by M. Coue's lectures, their parents assert. The juvenile mind is very impressionable and, because of this, the children find no trouble in impressing themselves that they are not ill or not dull in the classroom, and what they say out loud to themselves, following M. Coue's instructions, soon becomes reality, the children tell their parents.

WICHITA AND CHRISTIANITY

WICHITA FALLS is a successful business town. It is known far and wide as a city in which wondrous strides of progress have been made. Business here generally is on a substantial basis and is growing steadily.

There may not be many people who have paused to think the matter over, but it nevertheless is a fact that a good portion of Wichita Falls' business progress is undoubtedly due to the fact that there are so many christian men in business here. A christian man who conducts his business on a christianlike basis will succeed where others fail. A good man in a good business is a blessing to humanity.

Robert L. Cross is a truck manufacturer of considerable note. He has made money where many other people in his line of business have not. Writing in the Christian Business Man for September he has this to say regarding taking God into business partnership with you:

"A discussion of 'What Christianity Means to Business' is considered a difficult one to handle. When we take into consideration the fact that ninety-seven per cent of our businesses fail, we see that the men of the business world are confronting a serious problem. In the face of the great number of failures, it would seem very discouraging to any man to start in business, relying on his mortal ability alone, as his chances of failure are about ninety-seven to three.

"God is in us and he has a part in all of our activities. Every mistake that we make, every failure that comes to us, is a direct result of trying to leave God out of that particular transaction.

"My own experience of business miracles wrought by christianity has been so recent and so convincing, that I cannot relate how much christianity has meant to me in my business.

"But I had turned the business over to God, and I refused to worry, for I knew that he would take care of it. And through God's help, we overcame every obstacle, and in times of most urgent need, money came to us as if it had dropped out of the blue sky.

"Occasionally, some of our former associates asked: 'How is it that you have not gone broke, or are not in the hands of a receiver?'

"I can answer, in all sincerity, that I know it to be a positive fact, that divine mind took care of that business. I am just as certain that God will cause any business to succeed, if he is taken into partnership in it."

THE HOTTEST SPOT

DEATH VALLEY is the hottest spot on earth. John Edwin Hogg in Popular Science monthly for September, says that American capitalists are going to throw the valley open to tourists in the winter time by erecting a chain of first class hotels disclosing to travelers a magnificent panorama whose scenic marvels have hitherto been locked from visitors by the hot hand of death. Death Valley is 187 feet below sea level. Temperatures up to 160 degrees in the sun and 134 degrees in the shade, the highest ever recorded on the face of the earth, have been registered at the United States weather station in Death Valley this summer.

Right in the mouth of this hell of heat is located Furnace Creek Ranch, owned by the people who mine and ship the worlds chief supply of commercial borax. Only one white man has ever spent more than two summers at the ranch. Scientific records of Death Valley rainfall reveal that the average annual precipitation is a little less than three-tenths of an inch.

Its sum total is scarcely more than most of us consider a light fog. Average moisture content of the air is less than one-hundredth of one per cent. Writer Hogg says the winter climate of Death Valley is delightful. There are only a very few days from the latter part of October until the middle of May when the sun does not shine. During these months the temperature seldom rises above 70 degrees nor does it fall lower than 20 degrees above zero. Winter climatic conditions are similar to those found in the Grand Canyon except that in Death Valley snow is unusual. Now the valley is to be commercialized to tourist travel by the railroad and the hotel builders.

THE BALLAD OF HARD-LUCK HENRY

By ROBERT W. SERVICE

(From the "Ballads of a Cheechako. Copyright by Barse & Hopkins. Published by special arrangement with the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

ILLUSTRATED BY HUBERT MATHIEU

Now wouldn't you expect to find a man an awful crank
That's staked out nigh three hundred claims, and every one a blank;
That's followed every fool stampede, and seen the rise and fall
Of camps where men got gold in chunks and he got none at all;
That's prospected a bit of ground and sold it for a song,
To see it yield a fortune to some fool that came along;
That's sunk a dozen bed-rock holes, and not a speck in sight,
Yet sees them take a million from the claims to left and right?
Now aren't things like that enough to drive a man to booze?
But Hard-Luck Smith was hoodoo-proof—he knew the way to lose.

'Twas in the year of nineteen four—leap year I've heard them say—
When Hard-Luck came to Hunker Creek and took a hillside lay.

She flitted sweetly through his dreams, she hanuted him by day,
She smiled through clouds of nicotine, she cheered his weary way.
At last he yielded to the spell; his course of love he set—
Wisconsin his objective point, his object Margaret.

With every mile of sea and land his longing grew and grew,
He practiced all his pretty words, and these, I fear, were few.
At last, one frosty evening, with a cold chill down his spine,
He found himself before her house, the threshold of the shrine.
His courage flickered to a spark, then glowed with sudden flame—
He knocked; he heard a welcome word; she came—his goddess came.
Oh, she was fair as any flower, and huskily he spoke:
"I'm all the way from Klondike, with a mighty heavy poke.

When suddenly he paused and held aloft a Yukon egg,
For there in pencilled letters was the magic name of Peg.

You know these Yukon eggs of ours—some pink, some green, some blue—
A dollar per assorted tints, assorted flavors, too.
The supercilious cheechako might designate them high,
But one acquires a taste for them and likes them by-and-by.
Well, Hard-Luck Henry took this egg and held it to the light,
And there was more faint penciling that sorely taxed his sight;
At last he made it out, and then the legend ran like this—
"Will Klondike miner write to Peg, Plumhollow, Squashville, Wis."

That night he got to thinking of this far-off, unknown fair;
It seemed so sort of oppertune, an answer to his prayer,

And lo! as if to make amends for all the futile past,
Late in the year he struck it rich, the real pay streak at last.
The riffles of his sluicing-box were choked with speckled earth,
And night and day he worked that lay for all that he was worth.
And when in chill December's gloom his lucky lease expired,
He found that he had made a stake as big as he desired.

One day while meditating on the waywardness of fate,
He felt the ache of lonely man to find a fitting mate;
A petticoated pard to cheer his solitary life,
A woman with soft, soothing ways, a confidant, a wife.
And while he cooked his supper on his little Yukon stove,
He wished that he had staken a claim in Love's rich treasure-trove;

I'm looking for a lassie, one whose Christian name is Peg,
Who sought a Klondike miner, and who wrote it on an egg."

The lassie gazed at him a space, her cheeks grew rosy red;
She gazed at him with tear-bright eyes, then tenderly she said:
"Yes, lonely Klondike miner, it is true my name is Peg,
It's also true I longed for you and wrote it on an egg.
My heart went out to someone in that land of night and cold;
But oh, I fear, that Yukon egg must have been mighty old.
I waited long, I hoped and feared; you should have come before;
I've been a wedded woman now for eighteen months or more.
I'm sorry, since you've come so far, you ain't the one that wins;
But won't you take a step inside—I'll let you see the twins."

WATCH THIS RUSSIAN

A RUSSIAN has invented a new locomotive able to travel 7,500 miles without stopping. His name? Ivan Mahonin. His home is at Petrograd, he is 33 and he is negotiating for the sale of the world rights in his invention to an American syndicate.

At the age of 24 he was already the best known inventor in Russia. His new engine is an electric locomotive with power derived from a special motor for which gasoline is the only fuel. It is not a water consumer. It makes no noise and no smoke. No third rail and no overhead wires are needed.

This locomotive is capable of pulling 70 freight cars at maximum speed of 90 miles an hour. Other features are no overheating, 80 per cent reduction in personnel and one-fifteenth the cost of running a steam locomotive. Thomas A. Edison is not the only inventor pebble on the big beach.

Henry Ford isn't the only efficiency scientist in the building world. According to the European correspondents Ivan Mahonin has discovered an absolutely new principle in locomotion—the endless manufacture of electricity in enormous quantities from comparaticely small reservoirs of gasoline. They say that the invention will one day revolutionize railway travel to the same degree that the automobile revolutionized road travel. And, think of it, it came out of Russia! Men of vision predicted that the Russia that is damned as an outlaw among nations today will be the most powerful of all nations long before the closing years of the twentieth century.

GIVE HIM A HEARING

OIL and gas men are to have a day at the Texas State fair. Why not invite Senator J. W. Harreld of Oklahoma to attend the fair and tell the tale of just how 21,000 independent oil producers are to be gobbled up by the trusts, which he says are protected by a republican administration?

WHY SCORN MEXICO?

GOVERNOR HENRY J. ALLEN of Kansas has made up his mind to send soldiers to Kansas City unless the police restore order in the railroad strike and prove within 24 hours that they can maintain the peace.

Governor Allen is a man of his word. He has the industrial court act behind him. This is his slogan: "Every man in Kansas has the right of protection and will be protected." Governor Allen has another slogan: "The scab is a hero. He has American manhood."

He isn't a hero after he has been brickbatted and put out of commission. Coming nearer home, Mayor E. R. Cockrell says that the city of Fort Worth is not in need of rangers or soldiers for the reason that the police department of the city is able to handle the situation at all times.

Well, who whipped the woman who worked as an overall maker? Who threw her into an auto, carried her to the country, stripped her and lacerated her with a leather strap? Who are the masked men who are doing the flogging of strikers and strike breakers the country over? Who are the men who removed 27 spikes from the rails and ditched an express train of the Michigan Central? Who are the outlaws of Herrin? What is Governor Len Small of Illinois doing to avenge the Herrin massacre?

According to the American Bar association, there were 9,500 murders committed in America in 1921, and 85,000 murders committed in the ten years leading up to 1921.

Are we civilized or are we savage? Is the gunman the dictator? Is the red handed assassin above the law? In the good old days of Texas the sheriffs and the rangers handled all delicate situations. They put the outlaws away. They put the cattle rustlers away. They put the road agents away. They put the dangerous gunmen away. What are the sheriffs doing now? What are the police chiefs doing? And lastly, why point the finger of scorn at Mexico?

A RISING POWER

A FARM-LABOR newspaper has been established in Bowie county to be devoted to the interests of industrial and agricultural workers. Bowie county is the home of Col. Gus Shaw, one of the pillars of the Southern Tariff association and in the good old days one of the stalwart leaders of the democratic party. Colonel Shaw is a banker and a planter and a grower of long staple cotton. Some years he markets 500 or 600 bales of long staple grown on his own lands. Two years ago he declared that the federal reserve board, by its deflation policy, had brought poverty and misery to the farmers of the south and he is said to have voted a republican ticket for the first time in his life. Now the farm-labor forces in Colonel Shaw's district are organizing for direct political action. Another significant announcement appeared the other day in the press of the state.

All the union farmers of Grayson county have decided to join with the labor unions of Sherman and Denison in a Labor day celebration to be held in Sherman next month. Grayson is one of the big cotton producing counties of Texas. But cotton is not all that Grayson produces. It has produced a very large crop of tenant farmers and wherever tenant farmers are numerous poverty is the next door neighbor and the organizers of the farm-labor party are not forced to make long-winded arguments to win enthusiastic converts to their cause.

NEFF FOR PRESIDENT

COL. LEE J. ROUNTREE of Bryan grabbed the center of the stage at Waco for more than one fleeting moment. He asked all who thought Governor Neff would make good presidential timber to stand flat-footed. According to the Waco correspondents, or the correspondents who had gathered at Waco, "all stood to their feet." When it comes to conservation and control of the resources of Texas, Colonel Rountree is there with both feet.

BUYING BEER AGAIN

JOHNSTOWN is on the map. Johnstown is an ancient Pennsylvania city. Many years ago an immense dam miles above the city gave way and the Johnstown flood followed. It was a great disaster of its kind. Hundreds of lives were lost and millions of dollars in property were swept away.

Johnstown has a mayor. Cauffiel is his name. Seven years ago Johnstown was very wet and its people were very thirsty. Rev. Billie Sunday invaded the place. Mayor Cauffiel caught the spirit. He fell for the Rev. Billie's spiritual eloquence and he ordered every member of his police department to hit the sawdust trail or hand in his resignation.

This gave Mayor Cauffiel the center of the Johnstown stage and a first page position in the American press. Now he has grabbed the center of the stage again. In a single day he became a first pager to the hundreds of millions the civilized world over who did not know that Johnstown was on the map or Mayor Cauffiel had an existence. How did he do it? He said that the water of Johnstown was unfit for use. He said that the worms and the bugs literally swarmed in the water and he issued an order to all the breweries to reopen their vats and all the saloonists to reopen their places of business and to sell regular beer as long as the drinking water of Johnstown was too rotten for domestic purposes or to quench the thirst of the people. This order became effective Saturday.

Breweries reopened their vats. Saloonists reopened their doors. All legitimate business was entirely suspended. Most of the people had a jolly day of it. There was no demand for water for drinking purposes. Near beer was not in evidence. Real beer flowed unrestrained. An unfortunate district prohibition enforcement officer was dismissed by wire by the chief of the state gang of sleuths and the mayor of the city told all concerned to "go ahead as far as I am concerned." Why should this lifting of the lid of Johnstown create a country-wide sensation?

Alfred D. Lasker is the chairman of the American shipping board. He has big fleets of American passenger vessels on the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans. These ships are seagoing palaces of pleasure. To work them at a profit Chairman Lasker permits his captains to operate bars on the ships and to sell whiskys and wines and beer to all the passengers. This makes Uncle Sam the most collosal bootlegger of all the ages. Here at home there is an army of prohibition officials or agents forever on the alert for a man that may have a pint or a half pint on his hip or the farmer or near farmer who may turn his corn into what some men call liquid delight and others call liquid damnation. All the rich are permitted to travel abroad on American ships and drink at the bars of ocean palaces which fly the American flag.

Mayor Cauffiel may land in jail. He gave orders for the brewers to get busy and violate the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act because the water was bad. His brewers are certain to be jailed. They know the law, but they took a chance. His saloonkeepers are certain to pay the price. A great man like the mayor of Johnstown cannot set the laws of the land aside.

This can only be done by Chairman Albert D. Lasker of the American shipping board who sees to it that the passengers on his ships are not served intoxicating beverages until they are beyond the three-mile limit. But isn't it a mockery of law and justice that Uncle Sam jails those who fracture the Volstead act on dry land and then sells all brands of liquors to the outgoing and incoming passengers on his ocean palaces of pleasure? Consistency is a jewel that must have been lost about the time that Noah built his ark.

POWDER AND PATRIOTISM

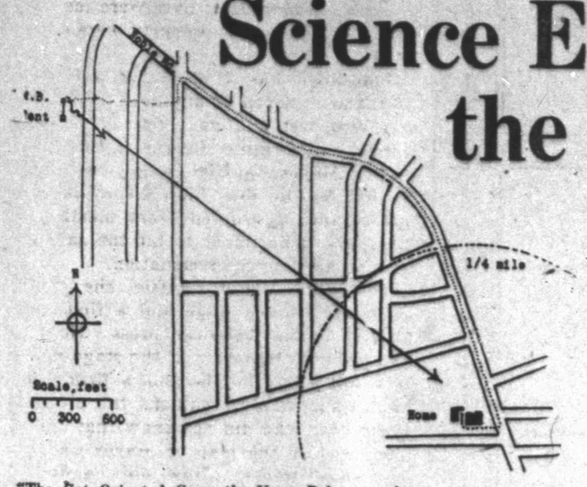
HON. POWDER MAKER DU PONT has been renominated for the senate by the republicans of Delaware. Hon. Powder Maker Du Pont is neither a statesman nor an intellectual. He is worth a hundred million dollars and is the most important manufacturer of powder unhung or unshackled. He is the boss of the republicans of Delaware and he is going to do his best to win a term of six years in the American senate to protect the constitution and the tradition of the fathers and to see to it that the American flag remains unsullied and unspotted.

He has the money to do it; he has the time; he has the inclination.

All his publicity agents say so and they recognize their master's voice as long as their names are retained on his patriotic payroll. What this country needs in the senate to protect American honor and to uphold the rights of the farmers and the working men are powder manufacturers and gun makers who are committed to the doctrine that war is savagery and that the time has come for the Golden Rule to be the guide of the nation and its people.

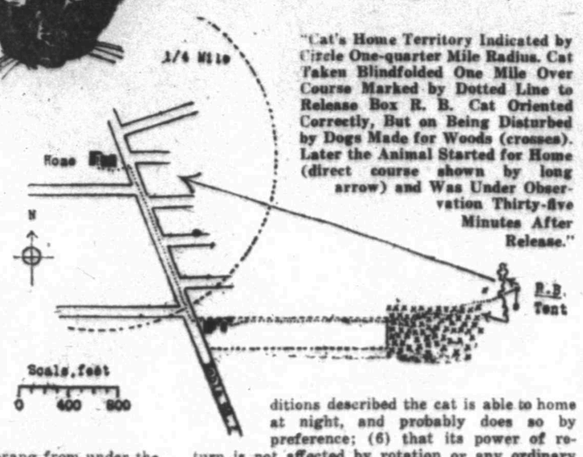
New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

Science Explains Why the Cat Comes Back



"The Cat Oriented Correctly Upon Release and Moved in a Direct Line for Its Home Until Lost to View. This Animal Was Under Observation Six Minutes After Release."

The Diagrams Show the Courses Taken by Two Lost Cats in Finding Their Way Home.



"Cat's Home Territory Indicated by Circle One-quarter Mile Radius. Cat Taken Blindfolded One Mile Over Course Marked by Dotted Line to Release Box R. B. Cat Oriented Correctly, But on Being Disturbed by Dogs Made for Woods (crosses). Later the Animal Started for Home (direct course shown by long arrow) and Was Under Observation Thirty-five Minutes After Release."

WHY and how does the cat come back? Nearly everyone at some time or another has found it necessary to get rid of an unwanted feline. The animal was put in a gunny sack, perhaps, and taken many miles from home and turned loose amid strange surroundings—a practice, by the way, that is contrary of the humane laws. But often on returning home you'd find the same cat there ahead of you, bedraggled somewhat may be, but there, nevertheless, on the doorstep and grinning as if to say: "Well, here I am back again!"

Under such circumstances just how does a cat find its way back? Lately scientists have been turning their attention to finding the answer to this question.

Varied and voluminous as the literature of the cat is found to be, especially in the fields of anecdote, general natural history and anatomy, its homing ability has never been previously tested under experimental conditions, though accounts of this notorious power abound in many languages; from time immemorial it has been said that the cat, like the bad penny, always comes back.

Prof. Francis H. Herreck of Cleveland, writing in The Scientific Monthly, gives a highly interesting account of experiments that he made to ascertain the cat's ability to find its way home. These experiments do not admit of the usual methods of control; they can be multiplied indefinitely, but they cannot be exactly repeated, since the variables in each case, of which fear is but one, cannot be predicted and are bound to influence response.

In the first experiment casually made the cat was taken in a gunny-sack over an irregular course, mainly by electric car, down a series of hills to a point on the University Campus in the City of Cleveland, 4.6 measured miles from its home in Cleveland Heights; there it was given a dish of milk and the liberty of two rooms, in one of which a window had been slightly lowered at the top. This was on the morning of a Monday, and at 5 o'clock in the afternoon it seemed to be quite at home in its new quarters; on Wednesday morning, about 40 hours later, it suddenly appeared on the back porch of its house and gave its usual signal to be admitted.

In order to reach its home this cat had traversed an unknown country, consisting of city or suburban streets and allotments, had crossed the gulley of the Belt Line Railroad, probably by one of its bridges, and ascended in the path of greatest resistance a series of terraces to a height of 400 feet. That its home neighborhood could have been reached by exploratory movements, on the trial and error order, or by chance alone seemed highly improbable; the only known facts were that it made a homing attempt and succeeded.

Prof. Herreck decided to test the homing power, at the next opportunity, in the following way: (1) To take the cat, as before, under such conditions that the possibility of orientation through the receptors of sight, hearing and smell would, in all probability, be completely eliminated; (2) to convey it successively in different directions, and gradually increase the distance at each test, and (3) to release it at a uniform time at dusk, in unknown territory, and under conditions of as free behavior as it was possible to obtain.

The experiments to follow were made with another individual, a female with kittens which were about ready to be weaned; she had been adopted by a neighbor, and her previous history was not known; she was a large and powerful animal and had become such an inveterate hunter of birds and young chickens that her life had been declared forfeit.

Seven successive returns were made by this cat from points varying from one to three miles from its home, she was secured in a sack, carried to the release station by motor car, and placed under a wooden box which was weighted with stones; the box was raised at the moment of release by a cord operated from a green observation tent 75-100 feet away, and the cat was given its freedom at about the same time in the evening.

In the first test the cat sprang from under the box, came to attention, as it were, for a moment, facing in the direction of her home region, which lay a few points north of east; she moved slowly for a short distance on this course, mewing almost continuously, then turned more to the north, and after going a few rods suddenly veered and made for cover in a piece of woods, 400 feet to the south, passing within a few yards of observation tent.

At this juncture a farmer's boy appeared on the scene with two dogs, which were soon on the trail, but she out-distanced them and in a moment was safe in a tree; here the cat was left to her own devices, and all that is known of her subsequent movements was that by 6 o'clock on the following morning she was again at home with her kittens. That she returned the same night, and with little delay, is almost probable. The grass in the field where this test was made was not at that time very tall, and the cat could be readily seen by one standing erect. Whether the bend in the curve marks the point at which the cat first sensed the approach of the boy and the dogs may be doubtful, but there is no doubt that this change in her course was due to a sudden impulse to find cover.

Other experiments were made and in each case, Prof. Herreck says, the cat's behavior, immediately after her release, was observed from the distant tent. As a rule she immediately headed toward home, without any attempt to trace backward the course taken by the automobile. When she failed to pursue the right course it was on account of taking alarm at the approach of human beings or dogs, except in the case of her last successful return. In this case a test was made to determine whether the cat's ability to find her way home was or was not due to familiarity with the place where she was released, such as might have been acquired in the course of previous rambles.

The cat was put under complete anaesthesia by chloroform, and conveyed by motor-car, as before, one and one-half miles east by north of its homesite. Somewhere toward the end of the journey she recovered from the anaesthetic so as to appear quite able to take care of herself when let out of the bag. The animal was accordingly set free, without using the blind, in a field 50 feet from the highway. She made at once for this road, in a direction opposite that of her home, and would have gone beyond it but for a gorge which blocked her path; then she moved beside the road, very nearly back-tracking for several rods over the course which the automobile had taken, and disappeared in the cover of bushes.

The cat returned home, as in all the previous experiments, but only after an interval of 60-70 hours; that is, to home under these conditions from a distance of one and one-half miles, which ordinarily was accomplished the same night, or at most in from eight to ten hours, now required eight times as long. This could hardly have been the case if the cat had awakened to find itself in familiar territory. To hazard a conjecture Prof. Herreck says he is inclined to believe that in this case the cat, finding itself on strange ground, with all relations with its home-region broken, wandered about until its lost orientation was by chance restored through the discovery of familiar objects.

From his experiments Prof. Herreck draws the following conclusions: (1) That the returns were made from unfamiliar territory; (2) that success did not depend upon chance; (3) that the cat did not return over the course taken by the motor car on the journey out, or according to a so-called "law of reversal," as suggested by Darwin, and revived by Bonnier and Regnaud; (4) that the homing power in a more or less direct line is independent of the sense-receptors of vision, hearing and smell; (5) that under the conditions described the cat is able to home at night, and probably does so by preference; (6) that its power of return is not affected by rotation or any ordinary treatment, barring possibly anesthetization, which the animal may receive, prior to or during the journey to the point of liberation.

What a "Heat Stroke" Is and How It May Be Avoided

THE "heat stroke" is regarded by physicians as by far the worst of hot weather troubles. It is not an accident peculiar to any one age, but, on the other hand, stout, middle-aged people undoubtedly suffer more severely from it than agile youth. Moreover, the after-effects tend to be worse in older than in younger victims.

It is itself something of a mystery, physicians declare. There are all manner of theories to explain it, and until recently it was generally supposed to owe its origin directly to the temperature of the air. More recent work, however, has suggested that this may be an inadequate explanation. For it has been observed that heat stroke is rare in well-ventilated places or windy places, no matter how hot these may be.

The modern tendency, as a medical contributor to The London Times points out, is to look for the mechanism of disease in the individual rather than in his surroundings. We no longer seek to avoid the awkward question: "Why is it that Mr. A., who was subjected to the same conditions of heat as Mr. B., did not develop any symptoms?"

Again, we are ready to attempt to answer the other difficult question: "Why is it that heat stroke may be more frequent at a place with a moderate temperature than at a place with a high one?"

"The truth is that here, as in other medical problems, two entirely different sets of conditions are involved," says this authority. "Not on any one of these, but on the relation existing between them, depends the arrival of disaster.

"The groups may be divided into (1) personal factors, and (2) factors of environment. Let us admit at once that some people are more prone to heart troubles than others. These will necessarily suffer in conditions in which persons better equipped to withstand temperature will go unscathed. Again, let us admit that the term 'heat' is a bad one in this connection. For what matters is not so much the heat as the 'cooling power' of the atmosphere.

"Now, cooling power itself depends on many things. If, for example, our skins are full of blood we shall cool much more quickly than if the blood is flowing deeply under the skin—always provided that the rate of blood flow is maintained at an active level.

"The pump in a motor car is as vital a part of the cooling mechanism as the radiator itself, because on the efficiency of the pump depends the rate of water flow through the radiator and so, also, over the engine.

"But the cooling power also depends on such meteorological conditions as the humidity of the air, the rate of wind movement, and the temperature. Thus, a high temperature may be more than counterbalanced by dry, quickly moving air; a low temperature, on the other hand, may be rendered insupportable by damp and stagnation of movement.

"It follows, therefore, that in the case of a stout person with a weak circulation, placed in conditions of heat, damp, and 'airlessness,' heat stroke is very likely to occur. It will be more likely if heavy, tight clothes are worn, and if full meals are eaten (for during digestion the circulation is normally slowed down). On the other hand, a fit, thin man should stand very high temperatures in dry and windy climates.

"We may turn this knowledge to account in various ways. We may, for example, attempt to improve the tone of our circulations by judicious exercise and attention to health generally. Again, we may thoroughly overhaul our summer wardrobes to insure that what ventilation there is will reach the surfaces of our bodies. Finally, we may postpone eating full meals till the cool of the evening.

"We may, too, so arrange our rooms that currents of air will flow through them even on the hottest days. This is easily managed when electric fans are available; but even in the absence of these a great deal can be accomplished by judicious use of doors and windows—the latter being blinded against strong sunlight."

Why the BIRTH of Each BABY Should Be REGISTERED

IN one of his five-minute health talks by radio, Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, New York state commissioner of health, emphasized the importance of vital statistics, which he terms "human book-keeping."

"A merchant who failed to keep books would probably soon fail in business," he said. "Yet many people wonder why, under the law, every birth, marriage and death must be put on record and every case of infectious disease reported. Such records are in reality human book-keeping and are fully as necessary as the keeping of financial records in business. Just as the merchant's books tell him whether he is making or losing money, so vital statistics will show whether a community is gaining or losing in health.

"Why is a birth record so important? Your boy or girl will need a birth certificate when he goes to school, and later to prove age, names of parents, place of birth, to obtain working papers, to prove citizenship, to take civil service examinations, to obtain passports, and to prove the right to inherit property.

"Records of births, marriages and deaths and infectious disease reports are of great value to health officers and other people doing social work, and to doctors and scientists in the study of causes of death and in the work of preventing unnecessary sickness and death.

"From the statistics which are obtained from these records we can figure the death rate of any place and whether or not the rate is going up or down; when it goes up the figures show the reasons, just as the books in a business office show the reasons for loss or profit. When physicians' reports show that a contagious disease like typhoid is increasing, steps can immediately be taken to find the source of infection and to check the disease. Vital statistics also give us an opportunity to judge the effects of public health work and the results in the saving of human lives.

"The birth of every baby should be placed on record, not only because it is the child's lawful right to have this done, but also to enable accurate accounts to be kept of the causes of infant deaths. Very great progress has been made in recent years in saving the lives of new-born children and this was made possible in part because statistics showed the causes of illness and the extent to which it was occurring. In New York state 20 years ago about 158 babies died for every thousand born, but conditions have improved so much that last year only 75 died out of every thousand births."

Are the Migrating Races Now Facing the Fate of Extinction?

THE northwestern Europeans who made the American nation what it is undoubtedly are dying out, just as the northern invading Germanic nations died out in Italy and Spain at the level of Philadelphia, according to Dr. Austin O'Malley of Philadelphia.

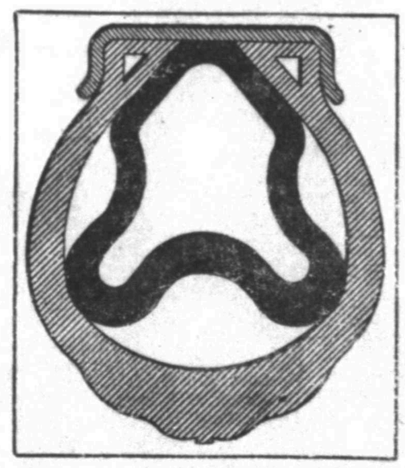
"The death rate of the Irish here is more than double what it is in Ireland—it is 16.5 in Ireland, but 34 here," Dr. O'Malley says in a contribution to America. "The German death rate at home in 1912 was 12.1, in New York in 1915 it was 24.3. The English and Welsh combined rate at home was 13.3, in New York it was 18.8. The southern European death rate reverses the order: The Italian death rate at home was 14.2, in New York it is 8.9; the Austro-Hungarian rate in Europe was 26.9, in New York it is only 7; the Russian Jews' death rate in Europe before the war was 30.9, here it is down to 6.4, and these are carefully arranged rates, not dependent on the age of the immigrants.

"All this evidently means that the northwestern Europeans die out in America, but the southern and southeastern Europeans are increasing astonishingly. Twenty-five years ago the writer studied a group of 50 Irish families living in Pennsylvania after they had been in this country 50 years, and then, instead of advancing numerically or even holding their own, they had retrogressed 86 per cent.

"The final result in the United States with the descendants of our European immigrants undoubtedly will be that the southern and southeastern European races will survive here and come to the top or drag all down to themselves, according to one point of view, while the Nordic races decay under the attrition of our southern sun, as they always decayed in southern Europe after migration like the exodus which brought these people to America."

A Tire That Repairs Its Own Punctures

THE Scientific American illustrates a most ingenious attempt to solve the problem of a puncture-proof pneumatic tire. The inventor says that rubber will flow, if given half a chance, and fill a puncture. He accordingly makes his tube with a circumference considerably greater than the inner surface of the casing for which it is designed. The extra rubber is taken care of, and it is made possible to insert the uninflated tube inside the shoe, by deep corrugations that are molded around the tube, as indicated in the accompanying diagram, which shows the uninflated tube in position in the casing. When it is now inflated, and forced by its contained air to conform to the shape of the casing, a pressure is set up along its outer wall which is claimed to be sufficient to close the hole made by any ordinary puncture, and keep it closed.



Cross Section of the Compression Inner Tube, Showing It Uninflated. When Filled with Air, the Wall Is Under Severe Compression and Tends to Close a Puncture at Once.

The "compression tube" is made in Tulsa, Okla., and has been in rather extensive use in the Southwest, with very good results.

BAREFOOT BATHING and FLAT FEET

BATHERS and vacation campers who stand around barefooted or in flat-soled sneakers are not taking the right course if they want to preserve their foot arches, according to physicians of the Reconstruction Hospital of New York City. These physicians say that girls who wear high-heeled pumps with beach suits have the right idea for avoiding weak or flat feet. Even children with a tendency to weak feet risk the probability of this painful disfigurement by going barefooted or in flat-soled shoes. Activity may save them, for it is improper standing for long periods without raised heels which breaks down the foot arches.

These timely hints for the summer vacation season are contained in a report prepared last week on the orthopedic work of the Reconstruction Hospital. This first hospital of nation-wide scope to deal exclusively with industrial disabilities has treated many cases of flat feet. In addition to surgical correction, where such is required, certain exercises are prescribed which assist in effecting improvement.

The simple, easily remembered rule emphasized for avoiding or correcting flat feet is: Wear heels and walk, toes forward, on the outer edges of the shoes. The "toes out" standing postures and walk is now held responsible by orthopedic authorities for many cases of flat feet.

To straphangers on crowded cars, the advice of the Reconstruction Hospital's orthopedic surgeon is: Stand pigeon-toed, throwing the weight of the body on the outer bottoms of the foot if it is necessary to stand for any length of time. It may look funny, but it relaxes the muscles which support the foot arches and which, if stretched too much, will eventually fail to do their duty.

Housewives should don low-heeled shoes upon rising to prepare breakfast, say the surgeons, adding that altogether too many women risk painful flat feet by putting on flat bedroom slippers to prepare the morning meal and then continuing to wear this footgear throughout the forenoon until the household chores are done. Policemen who stand at fixed posts, motormen and conductors, all classes of men who stand for a long time at their work are apt to suffer from this very real and painful affliction.

Are Man's or Woman's Clothes Healthiest?

WHO wear the healthier clothes, men or women? This is an open question. The loosely fitted skirt worn by women is undoubtedly more hygienic than trousers. Against this, however, the modern woman's skirt hangs from the hips, whereas man hangs his clothes from the shoulders—an easier and more natural method.

In the matter of coloring, man is more or less a slave to convention, whereas woman's summer clothes undoubtedly not only look, but are actually cooler.

In the winter-time, however, woman is, as a rule, not healthily dressed, heavy furs at one end of her hardly compensating for gossamer stockings at the other!

A great advantage from the point of view of health is that woman's garments are in the main washable. Neither for men nor women, health authorities say, is modern dress entirely satisfactory.

SUPERSTITIONS About the RUBY

THE ruby is most highly prized among precious stones because of its supposed talismanic power. The Hindus placed it before all other gems. One of its names in Sanskrit was interpreted as "king of precious stones."

It was the belief of the Hindus that an inextinguishable flame burned in the ruby and that the wearing of the stone would preserve one from all bodily and mental evil. Even in England in the 14th century it was believed by many that the ruby had power to preserve the wearer from perils such as injury by tempests and that this good effect was more surely secured if the stone was worn in a ring or bracelet on the left hand.

A peculiar superstition connected with the ruby in Burma, where the finest specimens are found, is that a ruby inserted in the flesh will render the owner invulnerable in war.

In the early centuries it was believed that some special sign should be engraved on a given stone. From an old list of these symbolic signs it appears that the "beautiful and terrible figure of a dragon" engraved on a ruby would give to that stone the power to augment the goods of this world and the blessings of joy and health.

Hindu writings, both ancient and modern, give expression to the belief that treasures offered to the images or shrines of the gods will bring good fortune to the donor. One of these ancient books says: "He who worships Krishna with rubies will be reborn as a powerful emperor; if with a small ruby, he will be born a king."

Real Lords and Duchesses Play Their Own Parts in the Movies

It's Quite the Thing Now and It Lends So Much Authenticity to the Films to Have Members of the Nobility Representing Their Own Set--- Anyway, They Were Tired of Seeing Themselves Caricatured, and, Then, Too, Some of Them Are Glad of the Salaries.

THE aristocracy of Europe—and America—has gone into the movies. When "his grace" or "her highness" flashes across the silver screen today the character is now often portrayed by a nobleman or noblewoman whose pedigrees would crowd the "cast" announcement on any ordinary screen.

Several explanations have been suggested as the cause of the nobility taking up motion picture acting as vocation, or avocation. One is that the bluebloods tired of seeing themselves caricatured by directors who in real life would call a duke "Duke," instead of "Your Grace," and might set a viscount ahead of a baron at a dinner table. Then there is the lure of it—the lure that is universal since the movies became so universal a means of expression. Impecuniousness, caused by the world war, in some instances, also accounts for the sudden rush of titled persons to become motion picture "stars."

Rupert Hughes, playwright, novelist and movie director, sees in it a mighty good thing for the "idle rich" and a certain change of idea that the average citizen now has regarding the home life of the upper classes. Mr. Hughes observes:

"In the past the life of the rich as presented on the screen has been a parody. The women have been caricatured as heartless, without love for their children, utterly selfish. The favorite picture of the society woman has been the much-befurred and much-bejewelled lady haughtily viewing the world behind her lorgnon and clasping a drooling lap-dog to her breast.

"The cheap, silly talk that the rich can't do anything is but the expression of an old worn-out idea. Because of the unusual intelligence of the fifty odd people, who, in the cause of charity, took part in our scenes today, we were able to accomplish two days' work in one. They moved about so simply and naturally, they followed directions so quickly and so expertly, they knew so well how to do the simple, graceful, natural thing, and, above all, they were so willing, so patient and good-tempered about the long hours in the hot sun, I marveled. It was because they are thoroughbreds.

"If we had been taking these scenes with the usual 'extras' it would have been a longer process. There would have been the wrangling and clatter about 'Where was I?' and 'What do we have to do it all over again for?' All of which means wasted time and frazzled nerves."

With Mrs. Lydig Hoyt as the standard bearer, American society, too, has taken up motion pictures as a very remunerative avocation.

Time was, only a few years back, when a sensation sprang from the announcement of J. Stuart Blackton that Lady Diana Manners, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Rutland, was to become a motion picture actress. That vast army of movie fans, who watch their favorites of the screen as closely as a suburbanite her neighbor's doings, openly declared that it couldn't be true. But it proved true and today Lady Diana is displaying her beauty on the silver screen in all parts of the world.

In one case, that of the Zichys, necessity was the stern compelling force which led them to the dictatorship of the movie director. Count Zichy eloped with Charlotte Gardiner Demarest, daughter of the wealthy Warren D. Demarests of Elberon, N. J. George Burton, millionaire and society man, was waiting at the church to marry her when the telegram was received announcing her marriage to Count Edward George Zichy de Zich et Vasonykee. But the Count was impecunious and the Demarest latchstring was taken in after the ceremony.

But the other nobles mentioned above were not forced to go into the movies, even though the remuneration attracted. The life appealed to them. An illustration of the allurement of the movies is the way in which Sir Frank and Lady Popham Young, Lady Sackville and the Duchess de Lante made their entrances. It all came about accidentally.

Associated First National Pictures was starring Guy Bates Post in "The Masqueraders," a play laid in historic London and in which members of the nobility frequently appear. Director James Young was frantically looking for likely-looking "aristocrats" for "atmosphere." And at that precise moment the quartet of bluebloods happened in. The result was that more as a lark at first than as a business proposition the four consented to be photographed.

Thus it came about that four most distinguished members of the nobility stepped into places at which a legion of shop girls are ever looking longingly. It is noteworthy that Lady Sackville is a descendant of Richard Coeur de Lion, and, probably, may some day take part in a screen play depicting the Crusades or some of the other spectacular deeds of her illustrious forbear.

Duchess Stella de Lante is a daughter of the Duke de Lante, head of an ancient Italian family, in whose ancestral villa at Rome are interior paintings by Michelangelo. She is the wife of Fenwick Oliver, an Englishman, but she retains her title by virtue of the Salic law which permits hereditary titles to descend to the female side of the house in certain situations. She has no brother.

Sir Frank Popham Young, the fourth member of the noble party which so suddenly entered the movies, having recently resigned his commission of lieutenant-colonel with the Royal British forces in India, had gone to Hollywood for the purpose of writing scenarios based on life as he witnessed it in India. But now he is wavering between remaining an actor, becoming a writer, or doing both.

The Hon. Lois Sturt, daughter of Lady Alington, made her advent into the movies through the good offices of Lady Diana Manners (Lady Duff-Cooper), appearing with her in one of Lady Diana's best films. She is now in Belgium "working" in new Belgian films.

Lady Cynthia Mosley is in the movies not for money or for excitement, but for propaganda purposes. But she is in them, nevertheless, adding her noble blood to the rich strain that already has been introduced. Lady Cynthia, a beauty of few peers, is interested in furthering the cause of equal suffrage rights for women and so she volunteered to appear in a film play depicting the situations she would remedy.

One of Our Most Beautiful Parks — Mountain, Lake and Glacier Vie With Each Other in Interest.

By KATHERINE LOUISE SMITH

If you would see an area of 1,400 square miles in the Rockies which contains more rugged mountain peaks, more glaciers, more picturesque lakes than anywhere else in America, come with me to that part of Montana which has been set aside for Glacier National Park. Legend tells us that many, many years ago great medicine men withdrew to this enchanted spot to hold councils of war. At any rate longer than the white man's memory goes this tract of snow capped peaks was the home of the Blackfeet or Piegan Indians, whose reservation today adjoins the park.

Today this is everyone's playground. The United States purchased it from the Indians and every year this rugged country which resembles the Swiss Alps grows more and more popular. Good automobile roads now supplement the railroad and this year the trip has become still more popular because it is now possible to pass from Glacier National Park to Yellowstone National Park and Rocky Mountain National Park, a part of the trip being on the beautiful mountain rimmed Flathead Lake. It is a magnificent country—this of the National Parks in our West. It is so new, so unspoiled, so awe-inspiring with its stupendous mountains. It is Nature par excellence. There is no Coney Island attraction, for it is worship of the great outdoors that brings people to the Glacier Park—part of the Montana Rockies, which is the ridge pole or roof of America.

One can stay one day or a season and some persons stay months in studying the glaciers, lakes and streams. The attractions are so numerous one never tires of his surroundings. A one day trip to St. Mary's Lake and Going-to-the-Sun chalets is popular and so is the five hour auto trip to Many Glacier Camp on Lake MacDermott, which brings within one's vision a combination of mountain peaks, lakes, glaciers and snow-capped summits.

Then, there is another trip to Two Medicine Lake Valley. Here are three lakes in a chain grouped around splendid mountains of which Rising Wolf is the monarch. On the way you can see Trick Falls and perhaps nothing in the park exceeds the Two Medicine Valley in beauty of mountain grouping. Another trip takes you to Cut Back Canyon. Only a short distance away is a most wonderful geological formation, a three-sided mountain from whose summit the waters flow north to Hudson Bay, south to the Gulf of Mexico and west to the Pacific Ocean. This is the Triple Divide and streams can be traced from this to three different oceans.

Beautiful Lakes

But it is Going-to-the-Sun Camp and Many Glacier Camp, which are the crowning glories of that part of Glacier National Park known to the general public. Two narrow ribbon like lakes—the St. Mary's Lake—lead from St. Mary's Camp to Going-to-the-Sun Camp. The Upper lake is ten miles long with mountains rising abruptly from the shore. At its end are the chalets where an hour or so can be spent viewing what is generally conceded to be the loveliest picture in the whole park. It is so beautiful that visitors to the park remember it as the crux of the whole trip. You see the blue waters of the lake and the stately outlines of the mountain called Going-to-the-Sun with snow clinging to its sides. Many side trips for horseback riders lead from Going-to-the-Sun Camp, the most important one being over Gunsight Pass and Sperry Glacier to Lake MacDonald on the other side of the park.

Lakes And Mountains

An automobile road leads from St. Mary's Camp to Many Glacier Camp at the head of the Swift Current Valley and on Lake MacDermott. This is another point of interest that should not be missed. The mountain heights on this trip are very spectacular and Many Glacier is a focal point for several worth while side trips. On the way the massive walls of the Continental Divide vie in interest with the beds of Alpine flowers, rushing cataracts and snow fed brooks. This rugged scenery is a prelude to the inspiring panorama spread out before one at Lake MacDermott, where some persons linger for weeks to breathe the mountain air and to take side trips to nearby points of interest. The most popular trail from here leads to Iceberg Lake. This blue water is about a hundred acres in surface and is filled with huge chunks of ice which break off from a neighboring glacier and float on the surface. Cracker Lake, Grinnell Lake and Piegan Pass are other objective points for day trips. Another day trip leads to Granite Park.

The western entrance is at Belton. Lake MacDonald, a mountain rimmed body of water, occupies the lower end of the valley. Sperry Glacier and Lake Avalanche are objectives of trips from here. Sperry Glacier was named after a professor of that name.

Much To Be Explored

These are the principal points so far easily accessible, but there is an immense area that few persons have as yet seen. Some day the whole will be as popular as the part now visited, even now enthusiastic mountaineers, equipped with camping facilities have taken pack horses and tents and spent months covering every trail. Glacier National Park although it has excellent automobile roads is essentially a trail park. Over five hundred saddle horses are kept for trail and camping trips and more horses are used here than in any other park.

The Glaciers

Of course the glaciers are the main attractions in this magnificent country though the mountains, lakes and meadows of wild flowers are close seconds in popularity. There are scores of glacial rock-bound remnants of massive ice sheets that helped shape the surface of the earth millions of years ago. Some of these glaciers are clinging to the Continental Divide. Since Agassiz's time glaciers have been fairly well understood and most persons know that, broadly speaking, a glacier is a river of ice or frozen snow. Possibly there are a hundred glaciers in this park ranging from a few acres to half a dozen squares miles. They really move though it is not apparent to the eye. In Glacier Park they head as a rule in large amphitheatres called cirques. These amphitheatres are frequently filled with little lakes and Iceberg lake is an example of a lake in a cirque.

It has been estimated there are three hundred lakes in this park. Many of them are long and narrow and in this respect they are different from the lakes which lie in cirques. The settings are ideal and the reflections give back an image of the surroundings.

Within the park are two parallel ranges of mountains eight to fifteen miles apart and every year geologists go to the park to study the order and succession of rocks, the "folding" and "faulting" and the stupendous work of mountain building which is revealed in an interesting manner. Tremendous forces must have been at work in this great mountain region.

Indian Legends

Certain persons have made a study of the names applied to mountains and lakes in this park. The Blackfeet Indians' names have been in many instances retained but some were named by early explorers. Hugh Monroe in the early days named St. Mary's River and St. Mary's Lake and the Indians called them "Good-Spirit Woman," referring to the St. Mary of the Catholic church. Chief Mountain which can be seen for a long distance has a legend of some length concerning an Indian chief who married a Piegan girl. In a big Indian war he was killed and his wife threw herself and child over the side of this mountain as a sign of her great grief. Her Chief was brought and buried with her at the foot of the mountain which ever since has been called Chief Mountain. Going-to-the-Sun Mountain is a corruption of Sour-Spirit-persons-face-who-went-to-the-Sun for the Indians tells a story of Sour Spirit, the mystic creator or maker of things, who taught them how to build the teepee and who had powers of magic. The Going-to-the-Sun Mountain shows a face on its front, and this the Indians say is the picture of Sour Spirit, who left it and returned to the Sun. From this came the name. Two Medicine River was a place where the medicine men of the Indians held dances and Rising Wolf Mountain was named after Hugh Monroe, the first white man to live with the Blackfeet and who was called Rising Wolf by the Indian tribe.

It seems impossible to disassociate the early history of this country from the present and perhaps this adds to the interest. In it one hears the call of the mountains. It is the last stand of the Rocky Mountain sheep and goat, it is the home of a vanishing race—the Blackfeet Indians—it is perhaps the most magnificent of all our parks.

"CHICAGO girl—raised in a convent." Thus in six words Leah Baird covers the brief years of girlhood before she entered the Academy of The Fine Arts in Chicago. After taking a course in dramatics she went on the stage for a short time. Then came pictures and Miss Baird has been in them ever since. She is at present engaged in a series of domestic dramas, two of which "Don't Doubt Your Wife" and "When The Devil Drives," are now being shown throughout the country. The third will be issued in September under the title "When Husbands Deceive." The fourth of her series is keeping this busy young lady engaged before the camera at the present moment—most of the time on a large sea-going yacht along the coast of California for the locale is laid mostly on the shores of a lazy tropical island.

The Dust Flower

It is a simple yet powerful love story, detailing how Letty, abused and ill treated by her stepfather, Judson Flack, rises from being a lowly flower along the roadside, covered with dust, into a noble and happy woman. The transformation is brought about through her unusual love story. To escape her step-father, she is about to drown herself when Rashjey Allerton, thrown over by the woman he loves, rescues her and proposes marriage to her. He had sworn to marry the first girl who would have him that he met after being jilted by Barbara Wallbrook. Under the guidance of Allerton's butler, who sees under Letty's rags the queen that she is, she blossoms into new womanhood and awakens in Allerton the love that she feels for him.

"A Self-Made Man"

"A Self-Made Man," describes the adventures of a young man who is sole heir to his father's fortune. The son drives a fast car and studies art with a capital A, but has little use for business. He breaks into the newspaper headlines because of his peculiar exploits, and his father, in an angry moment disowns him. Then his sweetheart turns him down. The future seems black, but events prove him to be a go-getter, and he comes out at the top of the heap.

"A Woman Of No Importance"

Was screened from Oscar Wilde's famous play of the same name. In case you forget the story—Rachel, after being betrayed by Lord Illingworth changes her name to "Mrs. Arbuthnot." Her nameless son, Gerald, meets his father without realizing the relationship. Illingworth engages Gerald as his secretary; and when he discovers that the boy is his son tries to make it up with Rachel. But instead of saying "Yes" to the delayed proposal, she very properly strikes him across the face with a glove and shows him how much less important he is than herself.

Fay Compton takes the part of Rachel, Milton Rosmer plays as Lord Illingworth.

"Top O' The Morning"

Geraldine ("Jerry") O'Donnell (Gladys Walton), a winsome Irish colleen, is happy in the thought that she is soon to visit her father and brother in America, but once there she finds that with a stepmother to face life isn't so rosy. Her stepmother makes her home life unbearable and she decides to run away. She accidently meets John Garland, a young American banker, who remembers her as a lass of old Ireland the summer before. He offers to take her into his home as governess to his little daughter, Dot, who has adored Jerry ever since meeting her in County Kerry. Separated from her father, afraid that her brother will be sent to the penitentiary for a crime he didn't commit, and presented with very little of the stuff of which happiness is made, Jerry learns a few things about life and incidentally becomes an American girl—and an American wife.

"A Tailor Made Man"

The plot deals with the fortunes of a dreamy young tailor's apprentice, who has ideas of industrial reform which he finally gets to a millionaire shipowner's attention by "crashing" into a swell reception in the fine apparel of a customer of the tailor shop. Follow then romances with three different girls in various stations of life, a conflict with agitators, a struggle against exposure of his double role by a jealous fellow tailor's apprentice, a great physical and moral climax, and a sudden, sickening drop into his old humble position. How love and appreciation soften the blow, completes the story. Charles Ray is at his best in this—his first super-special.

Harry Houdini

As is the case with many great men, the gift of being able to do many things, and to do each thing well, is Houdini's, who besides his achievements as a mystifier and the world's handcuff king, has also won wide recognition as an author. Besides many books he has also written the stories for the feature films in which he was starred, namely, "The Man From Beyond," "Haldane of the Secret Service," "The Grim Game" and "Terror Island," the last two written in collaboration with Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey.
