Vol. 89 No. 10 Pub. No. 122800

After being fired on Dec. 20

Rich is back without Bud

James Rich, who was fired from his position as Street Superintendent for the city on December 20 by City Manager Buddy Foster, was reinstated Monday.

Rich became the second city employee who was terminated last year to be back on the job in January. Colorado City Police Department's Sgt. Tim Atkins, who was also fired by Foster on Dec. 20, was back in uniform last Wednesday.

Sammy Contreras, who is chairman of the city council's Personnel Regulation Committee, made the accusation that led to Rich's firing in December.

In a hearing to discuss Rich held on Dec. 28, Contreras said that he had seen the city employee drinking a Budweiser beer while in a city vehicle travelling on the landfill road north of town.

Rich denied this stating that he had been at Collum's Restaurant at that time and under questioning by City Attorney Tom Rees, said he never drank a beer on city time or in a city vehicle.

Contreras said Monday that he had never been after Rich's job and they had discussed certain conditions under which Rich could come back to work for the city.

Foster said Monday that Rich is coming back on many of the same terms that Atkins did but admitted conditions were somewhat different in this case.

"He has the same title, same pay and same benefits as he did in December," said Foster.

Buckingham to leave Supt.'s spot in Loraine

Gary Buckingham, who is in his second year as the superintendent of the Loraine schools, resigned in a special meeting of the LISD trustees Monday night.

Buckingham has accepted the position of superintendent of the Eden ISD effective March 1.

4,649 registered so far You must register by Friday to vote in March 8 election

The deadline for registering to vote or to update voter registration is this Friday, Feb. 4 at 5 p.m. at the Tax-Assessor's office at Second and Hickory Streets.

According to state law, anyone wishing to vote in the March 8 primary must be registered by Feb. 6. However, it should be noted that that date falls on a Sunday.

Tax-Assessor Mike Burt said envelopes postmarked Sunday, Feb. 6 would certainly be accepted.

Anyone who is 18 years of age, a citizen of the United States and has no felony convictions may register to vote.

There are three ways to vote in the primary elections: early voting, mail balloting and voting on the election day.

The early voting period is from Feb. 16 to March 4. Votes must be cast in person at the county clerk's office on the first floor of the courthouse from 8 a.m. until noon and from 1:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m. All precincts are eligible to vote early.

The mail ballot deadline is March 1. Voters may call the Tax Assessor's office and have a ballot mailed to them or go by the office and pick one up. Voters are required to give a reason for mail balloting. The four acceptable reasons are 65 years of age or older, confinement in jail, disability or expected absence from the county on election day and during the tax assessor's regular office hours for the remainder of the early voting period.

The third way to vote is by going to the designated precinct voting locations on March 8.

COLD WEATHER FAVORS INSIDE WORK AT THE WALLACE UNIT: Snow and ice made working on the inside of the Wallace Unit a lot more comfortable Monday as most outside work was curtailed. Here a worker for Dean Hagler Co., the painting contractor, prepares the ceiling in one of the housing units. Work is remaining right on schedule according to TDCJ supervisor Frank Toland.

Ground is to be broken soon on unique home for students

Ground is to be broken soon for a house in Colorado City that for some will be a "dream home".

While it may not meet many people's expectations for the home of their dreams-after all, it is going to be built at the Middle School, it could hold the key to the future for special education students in the Colorado Independent School District.

The CISD is building a 1,600 square foot "home" in which special ed students will be taught life skills in order to become as self-sufficient as possible when they leave the public school system.

The construction will be funded by 100% federal money which is earmarked for special education.

This is the first such project in Texas and hence it is taking some time to get approval of the plans said Supt. Don Nimmo. Local architect Ron Goebel is working with the district and designed the home. It will be located adjacent to the greenhouse at the Middle School.

"Hopefully, we'll be breaking ground in about six weeks," added Nimmo.

Curriculum Director Kitten Arthur said this facility will address a need that is currently not being met in the district.

"The life skills curriculum (LS) is exactly as it says - life skills," said Arthur. "Students will attend the LS building for the majority of their classes where they will be taught basic math and communication skills necessary for living in the real world."

Specific areas of instruction include: grooming skills, dressing, hygiene, first aid, social interactions, housekeeping, laundry, clothing awareness and repair, meal preparation, cleaning, etiquette and general shopping skills.

And to make grocery choices, develop general restaurant skills, how to make fast food choices and how to select food in a cafeteria line, develop transportation skills, how to operate coin-operated machines, health care facilities, go to the post office, bank, barber/beauty shops, etc.

Arthur said the goal is to have the students produce actual products or services such as washing, drying and folding laundry, hosting special community meetings, assembly of small items, yard work, horticulture sales, etc.

The facility itself will contain three bedrooms - one furnished as an actual bedroom, one furnished as a hospital room and there will be one large open area workroom. In addition, the facility will contain a living/dining area, a large kitchen, one bathroom and a study area that will serve as the teacher's office.

The entire facility will be accessible to the handicapped.

The students will be responsible for minor maintenance.

Home Health Agency continues growth

Home health care agencies are one of the fastest growing fields in health care in the United States and Mitchell County Home Health reflects that trend locally.

CHS football district stays same

Colorado High School football fans will be seeing the same district foes as in the past as the UIL realignment did not change the district.

The much-awaited announcement came as no surprise to Wolves' head coach Mark Howeth as he had stated earlier that this was the most logical thing for the UIL to do.

The realignment usually sends coaches throughout the state scrambling for non-district foes and Howeth was no exception.

"We'll open with Coahoma in the fall," said Howeth, "and then we'll play Merkel. Stanton will be our fourth game of the season and I'm still working on the third and fifth to round out the non-district opponents."

The district games will be against Reagan County, Crane, Kermit, Midland Greenwood and Sonora.

LORAINE PERSONALS

I believe last week I said Easter would be our next holiday but we have Valentine's Day and maybe another holiday or two before this month is over. I make lots of mistakes in everything I write about, anyway. I am sorry about all those things and will try to improve sometime or other.

We had another Super Bowl last Sunday and it almost changed the time and place for everything. I think everyone changed their time for meeting. At the Baptist Church time was changed for evening service and they had a Super Bowl luncheon, etc. but then I guess we don't have to stay in a rut all the time.

Anyway, we Cowboys won by a big margin and that's what I wanted out of Super Sunday. Our guys came out real well after they finally got started but the beginning looked kinda shaky.

Saw in the paper a few days ago where the economy is getting better at a fair rate of speed. Sounds good, doesn't it; I hope the fellow knew what he was talking about. It seems we need some improvement in our state of being kinda fast if we are to have a chance for things to pick up. Maybe this is our chance. Hope so, anyway.

I guess you saw where Iva Armstrong is back in the hospital. It seems that one or both of them are in the hospital all the time. I sure do wish they could both get well fast. I know that can't be much fun with both of them hurting from one thing or another. Maybe one day they will both be well for a short while.

My sister is better, I am delighted to tell you. If she can hold out for a while then maybe she can stay that way for awhile this time.

Inez Webb seems to be getting a little better. Maybe she can climb out of her deal and soon be stronger for a while.

I had a report from Gene Britton and Cub Narrell this week which said both were doing much better and we were glad to hear about that. Also Wayne Oliver might be better; well, I think he is. We sure have some bad sickness in our end of the country. We're glad to hear that a lot of them are better.

I hope you heard the story in Sunday's paper about Effie Wheeler's being named North Loraine Family & Community Education Woman of the Year. She began doing club work in 1969. She has held various offices in her club every year all this time and is really a worker, besides being a very dear lady and is loved and appreciated by all who know her.

It seems like the basketball girls are doing fairly well. They played Tuesday, January 26 to the score of Hermleigh 60, Loraine 29. Girls scoring were Butler 12; Atkins, 8; Trout, 4 and Henderson, 5.

On January 26, in the game between Westbrook and Loraine those playing and scoring were L. Atkins, 12; Butler, 10; N. Atkins, 3; Gonzalez, 13 and Henderson, 7. Westbrook scored 55, Loraine 45.

On January, Loraine boys won 66 to Hermleigh's 43. Scoring were Wooddell, 12; M. Moore, 4; Crawford, 27; Lopez, 8; Finley, 9; Starling, 4 and Cooper, 2.

Loraine boys also won 107 against Westbrook, 73. Those scoring were Wooddell, 10; M. Moore, 12; Crawford, 21; Lopez, 22; Finley, 12; Starling, 4; K. Moore, 5; Gomez, 6; Aguilar, 2.

and Benites, 3.

Be sure you remember that it won't be long until it will be too late to register to vote, so let's see if we can't get all that done before election time so there won't be slip-ups when we should be marking a ballot.

According to state law, anyone wishing to vote in the March 8 primary must be registered by February 6 but that date falls on Sunday, so registration or updates must be done by Friday, February 4. Go to the tax assessor's office on Second and Hickory Streets during regular office hours.

Anyone who is 18 years of age and has no felony conviction may register to vote.

There are three ways to vote in the primary election. Early voting, mail balloting and voting on election day. The early voting period is from February 16 to March 4. Votes must be cast in person at the county clerk's office on the first floor of the courthouse. You must also note what precinct you are voting in on March 8.

I was asked to tell all you people that there will be a bridal shower for Mr. and Mrs. Shawn Finley on the 19th of February from 2 until 4 p.m. There are some selections at Corky's in Colorado City, also Eddie's in Colorado City and Dillard's in Abilene. The shower is at Royce and Neysa Beights.

While I have the election on my mind don't let it slip up on you. We have several choices, so vote for the people you think will do the job best.

We had another ice storm or snow, whichever it may be called. Now that the sun is shining it really does sparkle and shine. It is really too pretty to admire it much. It hurts your eyes after awhile. Anyway, I am sure it will help a lot in the killing of insects and the water was really needed.

See you same time, same place next week.

Taxpayer group gives Stenholm high marks

A survey released by the National Taxpayers Union (NTU), a taxpayer watchdog group, ranked Congressman Charles Stenholm in the top quarter of the House for his efforts to reduce spending during the first session of the 103rd Congress.

Through the use of the Congressional Budget Tracking System (CBTS), a state-of-the-art computerized information system, the NTU compiles a running tally of the cost of every major spending initiative the member has sponsored or co-sponsored, including tax cuts. This presents the public with a picture of what the deficit would be if the member's legislative initiatives were enacted.

Out of 434 members of the House, with number one being the biggest spender and 434 being the most fiscally conservative, Stenholm was ranked number 328. The survey, coming at the halfway point in the 103rd Congress, focuses on what the fiscal impact would be following enactment of legislation sponsored by the members. The NTU ranked Stenholm first in deficit reduction at the end of the 102nd Congress.

"Deficit spending is one of the most serious problems facing our nation today," said Stenholm. "And while the deficit is finally beginning to inch down for the first time in many years, much more work remains to be done. I intend to remain in the forefront of deficit reduction efforts."

As a member of the House Budget Committee and the lead sponsor of the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, Stenholm is known in Washington as "the spiritual godfather of fiscal austerity among House democrats."

Novacek helps youths

Five hundred campers ages 8 to 18 in helmets and pads on a summer afternoon are dispersing after an awards ceremony on closing day. Many wear t-shirts that read, "I Survived the Jay Novacek Football Camp." The kids and their parents head to countless cars. The scene is perfect camp chaos, siblings and dirty laundry, trophies and high-fives and a few tears of goodbye. Standing in the midst of the chaos, leaning against his pickup on the campus of East Texas State University is serene Jay Novacek, talking softly and earnestly with a father.

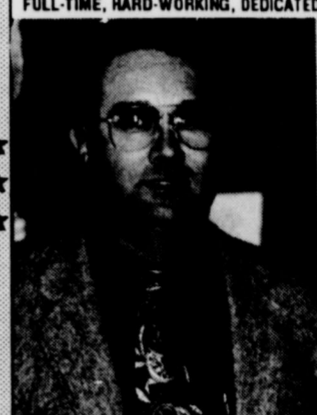

The boys have come to Novacek's camp for a week to learn football from Jay and his Dallas Cowboy teammates. While he's had them in what might be called a weakened state, infatuated with Troy Aikman's arm, Ken Norton's muscle and Michael Irving's speed, Novacek has tried to give the kids some life advice when they weren't expecting it. "It isn't enough for pro athletes to be good role models," Novacek tells the man. "Winning the Super Bowl was a great feeling but if we can help one kid turn his life around through my camp it is better than winning the Super Bowl." "The main theme behind the camp is for each player to have a great time, meet a lot of Dallas Cowboys and to learn a lot of football," Camp Director Chuck Bollweg said. "But our main goal is to instill a positive attitude through football in every camper. We instruct our coaches very heavily to make sure that no matter what the player's skill level, they will leave camp feeling good about themselves."

This June, Novacek will again head a teaching team of 50 coaches and 10 to 15 of his Dallas Cowboy teammates to teach young players football. "Jay's camp is not a figurehead camp," Bollweg says. "Jay stays at the camp 24 hours a day and the Dallas Cowboys come to camp to work with the athletes. They get right down in the dirt with the young players every practice." The campers range in ability from novices to All-American high school players and are divided into groups according to age, size and ability. Information on the top 30 high school players is mailed to over 500 college coaches in hopes of finding them a scholarship. Anyone interested in the Novacek camp can phone 1-800-466-6888 for additional information.

CHIEF LONE WOLF

BY JIM BAUM

If the pistol had fired, 23-year-old Gus Armstrong would have been shot dead. No way the gunman could have missed. But the weapon only clicked and Armstrong, now 79 years old, is alive and able to tell about his brush with death. He calls it "The Great Colorado Drug Store Robbery."

The year was 1937. Colorado Drug, as was the custom then, had closed for the Colorado High School football game. Armstrong remembers the night in question because the Wolves beat Loraine by one point in a knock-down, drag-out contest. "It was customary for us to close up during the home football games," Armstrong remembers. "As soon as the game was over, we rushed back down to open up the drug store." Colorado Drug was a popular spot after games for the pep squad, the band and football fans in general.

Armstrong, along with druggist Clarence Nesbitt and a customer, Nick Farrar, all arrived about the same time back at the drug store. As soda jerk, it was Armstrong's responsibility to get some hot chocolate prepared. The other two men went to the back of the store.

Meanwhile, Armstrong says he "fixed five or six cups of hot chocolate and put them on the machine." Then he checked the cash registers and found both were empty. "I went running back to get the money out of the safe and we had a half bat wing swinging door, and I hit it at the same time a guy jumped around in front of me and jammed a gun against the door."

"Lay down," the gunman hissed. Over the door Armstrong could see Nesbitt and Farrar lying on the floor. "I thought for sure they were dead," he said. Without taking time to think, the young soda jerk decided his best bet for survival was to dive for a nearby side door. Unfortunately, Nesbitt had not had time to unlock that entranceway.

Quickly, Armstrong was on his feet running behind the prescription room with the gun-wielding badman right behind him. "I got around as far as I could go and I heard that gun click. I said, 'Don't shoot.' He said, 'All right you so and so, get back in there and lay down like I told you to.' So I did."

Moving fast, the bandit helped himself to all the drugs in the store safe. Then, sticking his pistol in his belt (concealed by the coat), he told the three men to stay on the floor for five minutes or he would kill them. "He said he would be waiting outside the door watching," Armstrong remembers. The gunman walked past a growing crowd of impatient customers and disappeared outside.

Once again, the five foot seven inch Armstrong was on his feet. He raced outside and sounded the alarm to a crowd of bystanders. "Did you see that guy that just went out? He just robbed us," Armstrong yelled.

In the distance the drug store employee could see the robber driving off in a new car. And miracle of miracles, someone had jotted down the car's license plate number. It seems the gunman attracted attention as he backed out in his car. He had hooked his bumper on the fender of a car belonging to Marie Johnson (Hale). The robber then pulled up and backed off again.

"I ran to the police station. Dick Hickman was there. I told him what had happened and they took off and chased that guy to Westbrook." Unfortunately, the robber eluded lawmen and word was flashed to area agencies giving a description of the car and its license number.

Later the vehicle was found in Lamesa and Armstrong was taken there to identify items found in the car. While looking in the back seat, "I found one of those little three-for-a-quarter pictures that we used to get in carnivals and it was him!" Armstrong handed the photo to Sheriff Dick Gregory and the sheriff from Lubbock. Instantly the Lubbock lawman said, "That's Cotton Huddleston. He's the most wanted desperado in the state of Texas!"

It was learned later that Huddleston stole another car in Lamesa and headed for Roswell, New Mexico. Eventually the bandit was apprehended but it would be several days later. As lawmen closed in on his hotel room, the fugitive bailed out a window and managed to hop across several rooftops before being captured.

Huddleston even continued to fight for his freedom when taken to the police station. He whipped out his concealed pistol and at point blank range pulled the trigger as he shot at two officers. Unbelievably, just as the gun failed to fire when he shot at Armstrong, the weapon only clicked.

The armed robbery trial of C.H. Huddleston was held in Colorado City. Armstrong remembers it vividly. "From jury selection to sentencing, the trial was over in less than two hours," Armstrong states. He was the only witness called to the stand. Huddleston was given 50 years in the state penitentiary. The convicted man had previously been sentenced to 232 years for other crimes. In addition, he had managed to escape from prison three times!

At the conclusion of the trial, Armstrong approached the felon with a picture he had of the gunman and asked him to autograph it. Huddleston readily complied. Then Armstrong posed a question: "Were you really going to shoot me that night?" And the robber replied, "Yeah. I pried the lock off a liquor store with that gun and it jammed the cylinder." As Huddleston was being led away he made one last threat to Armstrong. "I'm going to be seeing you again," he vowed.

Several years later Huddleston and another inmate broke out of prison. Lawmen finally tracked them to the South Texas town of Three Rivers, where both men were shot and killed in a shootout. Ironically, by then, a resident of that community was none other than a former Colorado City soda jerk ... Gus Armstrong. He says he had no idea Huddleston was on the loose.

Looking back on the experience, Armstrong says the entire episode was "memorable." And he still has the genuine autographed Cotton Huddleston photograph!

YES needs families to host students

Are you interested in dynamically expanding your horizons by discovering a new culture while sharing your own culture with someone from another country? Would you like to nurture a young person's understanding of the United States and develop your own family's knowledge of a foreign country? You can do all of this by becoming a host family for an international exchange student.

The Youth Exchange Service (YES) needs families interested in hosting 15- to 18-year-old students from all over the world. These "cultural ambassadors" arrive in the United States with excellent medical-accidental insurance, their own spending money and a good grasp of the English language. Host families are asked to incorporate the student into the family as a genuine member of the family, including room and board normally reciprocated by the student's own chores or responsibilities.

Students are scheduled to arrive in August for the one year program and December or January for the second semester program. Host families are also eligible for a $50 tax deduction for each month that they host the student. For more information regarding a wonderful opportunity to open your heart and home to a foreign student, please phone 1-800-848-2121.

OUTDOORS

BY RANDY BULLARD
GAME WARDEN

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has made some great strides in the last few years, particularly when it comes to providing better fishing and hunting for the avid sportsman. Even more state parks, wildlife management areas and public lands have become available for wildlife viewing, camping and a much cheaper means of hunting. All of this could soon be jeopardized.

According to Dr. Rudy Rosen, director of fisheries and wildlife for the department, efforts are being made in Washington, D.C. to divert funds from the Pittman-Robertson Act to fund care for victims of violent crime or to institute health care reform.

The Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Program named Pittman-Robertson for the Congressional sponsors of the 1937 Act, imposes a federal excise tax on guns and ammunition. The tax was instituted at the request of sportsmen and the sporting arms industry. Revenues fund wildlife conservation work done primarily by state wildlife conservation agencies. It's a classic "user pays, user benefits" program.

Since 1938, states have each received a share of more than 2.5 billion for wildlife. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department receives slightly more than $7 million annually for wildlife and safety.

Senate Bill 868 and House Bill

2276 would take all taxes collected on handguns and handgun ammunition and divert these revenues from wildlife conservation and hunter safety programs into a victims care fund. Other proposals targeting Pittman-Robertson's revenues would fund health care reform. The total amount at issue is $61.5 million, which is a meager pittance when compared to the vast needs in health care and victim compensation. However, the impact to Texas would be a yearly loss of more than $2 million for wildlife conservation and $600,000 for hunter safety and education.

Wildlife conservation would be drastically curtailed, such as management of wildlife lands and species like white-tailed deer, bighorn sheep and turkey. Public access for wildlife viewing and hunting on state wildlife lands would be reduced and many popular programs to improve wildlife populations statewide would come to a halt. Wildlife-associated recreation in Texas is worth an estimated $2 billion to the state economy.

The cuts could eliminate many important firearm and hunter safety programs. This loss could lead to increased injury because of a lack of proper training for new and young hunters, the opposite intent of the well meaning legislation.

While aid to victims of crime is a worthwhile cause and health care reform is desired by many, devastation of a proven wildlife conservation and safety program seems the wrong way to go.

Texas has much to lose if Pittman-Robertson falls prey to Washington's search for solutions to the perplexing problems of crime and health care. Surely other avenues are more appropriate and more likely to have a significant effect. Congress should continue the search, leaving Pittman-Robertson funds to continue improving wildlife and hunter safety as they have for more than a half century.

heifers, breeding sheep, goats, commercial steers and breeding rabbits.

The four market animal categories (steers, lambs, barrows and poultry) represent animals raised by the exhibitor as food sources. Top animals in each of these categories are eligible for their individual market auctions. Total money paid in 1993 at the four junior show auctions exceeded $3.5 million.

"The most significant part of our livestock show is the junior show," said Steve Woodley, Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo manager. "It represents Texas youth and their commitment to education, discipline and agricultural development."

A unique addition to the open livestock show this year will be the Rattie Show. Emus, ostriches and rheas will be exhibited on Friday, March 4 and a sale will be held Saturday, March 5.

In addition to the upcoming livestock show competition, the International Livestock Congress will be held February 23-25 at the Sheraton Astrohall Hotel. The school focuses on lectures and seminars delivered by agricultural experts from throughout the world.

Rodeo fever gets into high gear on February 5 as the Go Texan Stampede is held downtown. Houston residents living in the HISD area will be able to participate in washer pitching, horseshoe pitching and dominoes competition. Winners will represent Houston at the Show's Go Texan contests held Saturday, February 19. The Houston Post is sponsoring this event.

Also on Saturday, February 5, the Show's team penning and hay hauling competitions will be held at the Washington County Fairgrounds in Brenham, Texas.

Returning to the horse show arena is the International Cutting Horse Contest, featuring competitors from several nations. This contest helps kick off the upcoming Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo beginning Wednesday, February 17. The National Cutting Horse Association World's Championship Finals is scheduled for Thursday through Sunday, February 17-20. The Media Championship Cutting Horse Contest will be Thursday, February 17. The 1994 Horse Show also will feature competition from six different breeds.

Barbecue cookers as well as the general public can enjoy the World's Championship Bar-B-Que Contest beginning Thursday, February 17 at 2 p.m. in the northwest corner of the Astrohall parking lot. The contest continues Friday, February 18 beginning at noon. The $5 admission in to the contest includes barbecue samples plus coupons for other food and fun products from booths throughout the contest.

The 56th annual rodeo parade will have the streets of downtown Houston decked out with more than 6,000 trail riders, marching bands and colorful floats. The parade will begin immediately following the Conoco 10K Rodeo Run.

Starting at 9:45 a.m. downtown, this year's race is expected to draw more than 4,500 runners. All entry fees will be donated to the Show's scholarship fund. Since the race began in 1988, a total of $348,000 in entry fees has been donated to the Show.

Also scheduled for Saturday, February 19 at the Astrohall complex are the finals dominoes, horseshoe pitching and washer pitching contests. Winning quilts from the Go Texan quilt contest also will be on display in the Astrohall's west wing through March 6.

Again this year, the Astrohall will have an expanded milking parlor with milking demonstrations scheduled daily throughout the Show. The parlor also will feature special commentaries by Sam Houston State University professors and video presentations explaining the milking process.

Budweiser brings a spectacular exhibit to the 1994 Show with the Bud Pavilion located in the new Astrohall Plaza area at the west entrance to the Astrohall. The pavilion will feature a tent with special activities, the pig races and the famous Clydesdale horses. The horses will be appearing in a daily show parade.

Running pigs take to the track during the special pig racing event, held daily at 10 a.m., noon and 2, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 p.m. in Astrohall Plaza.

Also, the exciting Wild West Show returns this year in the Main Arena of the Astrohall at 6 p.m. Sunday, February 20 through Sunday, March 6.

Another fun family highlight will be three petting zoos, located in the South Annex, in Astrohall Plaza and at the Astroarena's Southeast Entrance.

Spectators can once again take advantage this year of the Coors Light Rodeo METRO Express shuttle bus service from four satellite parking sites: the parking lot at 9009 West Loop South located across from Meyerland Mall, Gulfgate Mall, Northline Mall and the West Loop Park and Ride at Loop 610 and Braeswood. MITCHELL COUNTY
AMBULANCE SERVICE

Q. What is the difference between an EMT, EMT-I and Paramedic?

A. An EMT is trained in the areas of basic life support such as CPR, bandaging and splinting and airway control (mouth to mask or bag valve mask ventilation).

An Intermediate (EMT-I) has additional training in I.V. therapy, advanced airway techniques (tracheal intubation) and shock management.

The paramedic builds on these skills by learning to treat cardiac emergencies with cardiac drugs and defibrillation. The paramedic is also trained to use various emergency drugs in many different emergency situations and works directly under a doctor's supervision by direct radio or cellular phone contact.

Age is no reason to avoid exercise

Age is no excuse for avoiding exercise, says an expert in physical conditioning at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

If fact, some common health problems related to aging can be reversed with simple exercise, says Dr. Alan Herd, a professor of medicine at Baylor.

Simple activities, such as walking, can prevent and lessen the effects of heart disease, stiff joints and low energy.

"Walking is economical, easy and usually does not require a medical clearance," said Herd.

Herd also recommends "chair" exercises for people over age 65. He says a daily routine of these simple calisthenics can improve range of motion in most joints and make getting around easier.

"Chair exercises are easy and can be done at home," Herd said. "Either while seated or while standing with the hands on the chair back for support, slowly rotate and flex all the major joints and the torso."

Books about chair exercises are available at many book stores and libraries.

Other ways to work the joints while improving cardiovascular health and muscle tone are swimming and water aerobics.

Herd says exercise should be stopped any time there is pain. Angina (chest pain) should be taken seriously but does not necessarily mean there is a heart attack. If it occurs, stop the activity and stand or lean against something for a few minutes, then call your doctor.

Many stressful exercises such as running, tennis or rowing can put a strain on the cardiovascular systems of people who do not exercise regularly. Anything other than simple calisthenics, walking or chair exercises should be discussed with a physician.

Herd is living proof that exercise can benefit people of all ages. He is 62 years old and runs about 30 miles each week, a level of exercise he reached by gradually increasing his effort over many months.

Ambulance Service Agreement approved

The new ambulance service agreement, which was approved by the Mitchell County Hospital Board in late January, was approved by the county commissioners Tuesday morning.

The city had approved a similar agreement on Dec. 17.

This agreement defines the percentage each taxing entity will own on new capital purchases with Mitchell County and the hospital owning 39.5% and the city 21%.

The city will contribute $1,220 monthly while the county will contribute $2,135 to the service each month. The hospital district will contribute $2,745 monthly. Each party will also contribute monthly to a capital fund to be used for capital improvements or purchases with the county and hospital paying $296.25 each month and the city paying $157.50.
