FIND SKULL OF MISSING TEXAN

John L. Knight, Of Dallas, Is Thought To Be Located In Arizona Desert, Dead

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Jan. 12.—Mystery which has veiled the disappearance of John L. Knight, prominent Dallas business man, since July 1921, when he was crossing the desert in Arizona, was solved today with identification of the skull found on the desert recently as that of the missing man. Identification was established by Dr. Harrison B. Cave, dentist, through dental work done for Mr. Knight. The skull was received in Dallas yesterday.

Seen Four Years Ago
Knight was last seen the last of July 9, 1921, at Buckeye, Arizona, when he left to cross the desert in automobile. His abandoned machine was found a few days later several miles from the main road. The skull, found Christmas Day, was near the spot where Mr. Knight's handbag and overcoat were found 18 months ago. The handbag was intact and had apparently been unopened, discounting, officers said, the theory of foul play.

Eight Arrested
Eight persons have been arrested in connection with the case since the nationwide search for Mr. Knight began but basis for charges were always insufficient. Investigation of the case will be conducted by Arizona authorities; it was indicated.

TWO CONFESS TO MURDERING INDIANS

CONFESSIONS IN OSAGE CASE MAY END JURY PROBE

JOHN RAMSEY AND BUDDY ADMIT PARTICIPANCY IN DEATH PLOTS

(By Associated Press)
GUTHRIE, Okla., Jan. 12.—With confessions of Ernest Burkhardt and John Ramsey in connection with the "Osage reign of terror" reported in the hands of federal attorneys the crop of rumors attendant upon the grand jury session here grew apace today.

Jury May End Work.
There were reports that the alleged confessions had so scrambled the plans for a long inquiry that the jury would wind up its work tomorrow and that anything left to be cleaned up would be placed before another federal grand jury to meet next Monday in Oklahoma City.

It is apparent that many witnesses have left the city. The majority of those who came to testify and those who came to look on has dwindled and the city has regained its normal appearance.

Federal Men Silent.
Federal authorities have refused to confirm the reports either that confessions have been made or that an end of the jury session was imminent. The unconfirmed rumors, however, persisted. The confessions are understood to be connected with the killing of Henry Roan, an Osage, whose life was insured for $25,000 in favor of W. K. Hale, "King of the Osage Hills." Hale and Ramsey were indicted Saturday on charges of murder in connection with Roan's death.

ALUMINUM MEN TO SHOW BOOKS TO PROBERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Senate investigators of the case against the Aluminum company of America, in which Secretary Mellon is a heavy stockholder, were told today by assistant Attorney General Donovan that the company had agreed freely to a full examination of its books by the department of justice.
Mr. Donovan made this disclosure in resuming before the Senate judiciary committee his story of the department's part in the case. Under instructions from the Senate the committee is inquiring why the department did not institute contempt proceedings against the company after the federal trade commission had accused it of violating a court decree against certain trade practices.
"We are now examining the company's record," Mr. Donovan said today.

COOLIDGE THINKS MEXICO CAN END FUSS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—President Coolidge still is convinced that the Mexico City government will find a way to fill its obligations in regard to protection of rights of American citizens from the provisions of the new land bill.

It was said today at the White House that the desire of the administration was to be helpful to Mexico in every possible way and that the President recognized the complete right of Mexico to enact any legislation it saw fit regarding domestic matters.

It was pointed out, however, that where such enactments had a retroactive effect upon interest acquired in Mexico by American Nationals the Washington government could not fail to take cognizance of that aspect of Mexican laws.

Martin Jury Not To Be Completed Today

FORT WORTH, Jan. 12.—(AP)—With court opening delayed until 2 p. m. out of respect to Judge Ben M. Terrell, who was buried this morning, prospects for completing today the jury to try W. A. Martin, in connection with the daylight hold-up of the Krum State Bank last summer were considerably lessened.
Despite the fact that other courts were closed yesterday, Judge George E. Hovey convened his court with the explanation to the special veniremen that "should" be "dismissed" them. They would have to be reassembled at great expense to the state.

NEW COLD WAVE ENVELOPS WEST

Father Winter Makes Hurried Dash Across Continent; Eastern U. S. Suffers

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Father Winter is making another one of his flying dashes across the continent.
Packing his grip with a prodigious quantity of snow and icy winds he hopped-off from Manitoba on a bee-line for the central west, left some snow in his wake, and then scurried on east, where he snows his worst.

Snow and colder weather were predicted for the entire northwestern section of the United States with cold waves noted for portions of Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, and Northern New England. Even the Southland will get a taste of the passing wave, although most of the Tuesday forecasts for that area call for only slightly colder weather.

The cold snap will be short lived, however, as rising temperatures are expected Wednesday in the central states and the far east. Already the mercury has started to rise in parts of Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, and the Dakotas.

Among the low temperature marks registered last night were eight below at Omaha, Neb.; Duluth and Moorhead, Minn. minus 4; Charles City, Iowa, 2 below, and Minneapolis zero.

Fire Bugs In Fort Worth Admit Crimes

FORT WORTH, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Signed possession of Jack Sullivan, arson investigator for the Fort Worth fire department, are expected to result shortly in arrest and indictments of a number of real estate and business men, believed responsible for at least 15 incendiary fires here in 1923. Man's Body Located Floating Near Pier

HOUSTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—E. B. Wilson, department store employe, whose body was found floating beside a pier at the turning basin yesterday, apparently walked off of a wharf, fell into the ship channel, and was drowned.

Justice Campbell Overstreet's verdict today bore out that conclusion after physicians had failed to find marks of violence on Wilson's body.

Wilson disappeared ten days ago with $110 in his pockets.

(By Associated Press)
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12.—An unknown member of the bandits, who massacred passengers and guards on a train running between Guadalajara and Mexico City has been killed in a fight with federal troops. Eight others who were captured were immediately executed. All the loot secured by the bandits has been recovered and the bandits are believed to have been entirely dispersed. This announcement was made early today by the war department here.

Dispatches from Zamora, state of Michoacan, previously said several bandits passed through that city fleeing from federal troops and that later they were surrounded.
Murdered Passengers.
Later Saturday night murdered passengers and guards, 40,000 troops started scouring the mountain regions of the states of Guerrero, Jalisco and Michoacan. They were under orders to bring in the bandits, dead or alive.
Just how many persons met death when the bandits opened fire on passengers and killed the train guards or who perished in the burning coaches which the bandits set on fire is uncertain. Twenty bodies have been removed from the debris. Estimates of the fatalities run as high as fifty. C. M. Wynkoop, of Berryville, Va., a representative of the Buick Motor company, who was a passenger on the train, gave a graphic account on his arrival here.

Women and Children Killed.
As darkness fell 20 men with rifles stationed themselves at the doors and immediately began firing on passengers in the second and third class coaches. No mercy was shown. Women and children were brutally shot down, the same as men. All the soldier guards were slain.

It was a perfect nightmare of incredibly wanton bloodthirstiness, said Mr. Wynkoop.
When the horror had been completed the bandits, with an expert aim in the cab of the engine ran the train through Yurucaro. Here they looted the town, cut the telegraph wires, and murdered other Mexicans. The foreign passengers were forced to leave the train, which was taken up the line a short distance and set on fire, but not before the express and baggage cars had been looted of valuables. These were placed in the engine, which

CONFERENCE IS TOTAL FAILURE

Operators And Miners Do Not Reach Agreement And Confab Is Ended

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The anthracite joint conference which resumed negotiations December 29, adjourned today without reaching settlement and without setting any date for renewal of negotiations.
The conference had been hopelessly deadlocked over the principle of arbitration. The operators insisted to the end upon complete arbitration while the miners insisted that if they accepted any arbitration it should be only on the basis of increasing wages and without reduction.

Lewis Makes Comment.
Immediately after the conference broke up John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, called newspaper men and dictated a statement, saying:

"As predicted in my statement yesterday made to the conference the mine operators were determined to break up the conference without an agreement.

"The mine workers are prepared to continue the struggle for any period necessary to induce the operators to make a lasting peace which will preserve for our people the rights of free men."

The operators after the adjournment gave out a statement saying: "After many days of conference we find there is no change whatever in Mr. Lewis' attitude. He absolutely refuses to consider any constructive policy. In a few words, his position is that he will rule or ruin."

"The operators have been trying to reach a sound settlement based on reason and justice," the statement said. "Mr. Lewis insists that force alone shall rule. Until his attitude changes, further discussion is useless."

The major part of the afternoon's program was the impressive installation service of the new officers of the Missionary society for the coming year. The officers marched into the living room to music given by Mrs. A. B. Ellis at the piano and stood in line while Rev. An unusually large number was present with several visitors, and two new members joined that was quite pleasing to the Auxiliary.

COUNTY ASSUMES CONTROL OVER LIBRARIES

The Lubbock county free public library came officially into being here Tuesday morning following action of the commissioners court late Monday afternoon when Mrs. J. J. Smelser, well known local woman, who has been connected with the library here since it was founded several months ago through the efforts of various ladies clubs in the city, was selected as librarian.

In connection with the action taken in regard to the local library, the court also authorized official opening of the former municipal library at Slaton as a county institution, and placed the work there in the hands of Miss Francis Blundell, who has been in charge of the institution there under city management. Miss Blundell is a graduate of high school, and has taken two or three years work in college, also special training in preparation for the work of a librarian. The library there, however, will be under direct supervision of the local institution, and a fully accredited certificate for the state library board is not required of Miss Blundell, it was announced by county Judge Nordyke Tuesday morning.

The two libraries came under county supervision legally January 1, this year, but in actual fact did not become a part of the county government until the action of the court on Monday afternoon.

The libraries were established through the efforts of ladies clubs, and were operated as city institutions for many months. Then about the middle of last year, the commissioners court was presented with a petition signed by a majority of property owning taxpayers of the county asking that the institutions be taken over by the county. This action was voted unanimously by the commissioners soon afterwards to take effect January 1, this year.

It is the plan of the commissioners court to open a similar institution at Dalhart in the near future, Judge Nordyke told the Daily Journal Tuesday.

Menus for the Family

By SISTER MARY

Breakfast — Orange juice, cereal cooked with raisins, crisp graham toast, waffles, sirup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon — Veal timbales, stewed potatoes, apple and celery salad, ginger cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner — Baked spareribs, potatoes baked with meat, buttered parsnips, jellied cabbage salad, jelly, whole wheat bread, lemon sponge, milk, coffee.

A light meat course is suggested for the dinner menu since meat is also served at noon. The veal timbales take care of meat left from the veal pot roast used in the preceding dinner.

Try "stewed potatoes" the next time you serve pork chops. They will "go right to the spot."

Stewed Potatoes.

One dessertspoon lard, 1 dessertspoon butter, 1 teaspoon flour, 1 medium sized onion, 4 cups sliced potatoes, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup boiling water.

Melt butter and lard and stir in flour. When smooth add onion finely minced. Stir until blended and add the potatoes which are uncooked. Add boiling water and cover the pan closely. Cook 20 minutes. The potatoes should be tender and the water all cooked away. Just enough water to prevent burning is used. Season with salt and pepper when half cooked. Serve in a hot dish and sprinkle with minced parsley.

FORMER KING OF GREECE MIGHT COME HERE

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—George II, once King of Greece, who long has been the center of sensational political intrigues in the Balkans, may seek a haven of refuge in the United States.

For some time he has been considering buying land and building a residence at the Floranada Club, north of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, on the east coast. Friends here say he will use the home which is already designed, as a winter residence.

Brother in Chicago

Last night Prince Paul, his brother, who is now in Chicago, confirmed news of King George's plans and intimated that the royal exile is tired of petty Balkan politics, and would be glad to find escape from them in America.

King George is now at Florence, Italy, to take part in a service to commemorate the anniversary of the death of his father, King Constantine, who died at Palermo, January 11, 1923.

News of the former king's intention first came through the American British Improvement corporation, which some time ago, announced that it planned to establish an "American Riviera" in Florida, to rival that of the old world.

PLANS OF DAWES ARE ATTACKED SAVAGELY

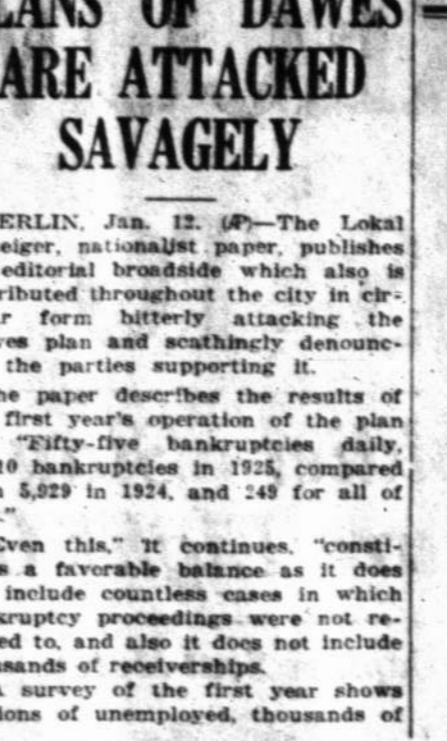

BERLIN, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Lokai Anzeiger, nationalist paper, publishes an editorial broadside which also is distributed throughout the city in circular form bitterly attacking the Dawes plan and scathingly denouncing the parties supporting it.

The paper describes the results of the first year's operation of the plan as: "Fifty-five bankruptcies daily, 11,510 bankruptcies in 1925, compared with 5,229 in 1924, and 549 for all of 1922."

"Even this," it continues, "constitutes a favorable balance as it does not include countless cases in which bankruptcy proceedings were not resorted to, and also it does not include thousands of receiverships."

"A survey of the first year shows millions of unemployed, thousands of

BILLY EVANS Says

Shortly after the close of the 1932 baseball season, Connie Mack announced that he was through dabbling with big priced minor league recruits.

Until a few years ago Mack was regarded as the one manager in the minors who really developed his own players.

As a matter of fact the greatest years of Mack's career as a big league manager date back to the days when he got 'em young and made stars out of them.

His great teams of 1910, 11, 12, 13 and 14 were composed of players picked by Mack from the academies, minors and colleges at practically no expense.

After he broke up his brilliant team of 1914, he came upon sad days and for about seven years held down the cellar position in the American league. He met with no great success in developing youthful stars.

Then he changed his tactics, went out into the open market and paid heavy prices for highly touted stars, but met with only varying success.

MACK'S POOR LUCK

Perhaps it was the failure of "Lefty" Groves that soured Mack on the big league. The minors never boasted a greater phenom than the Baltimore star, but he failed the Athletics.

Had Groves performed anywhere near up to expectations last season the Athletics would have won the American league pennant. He had a world of stuff, but lacked control and you can't get the side out giving bases on balls.

Mack has had other disappointments since Groves. He has had no great luck with several other highly touted and very costly minor league stars.

Sam Hale cost him over $50,000 and while he is still with the Mackmen at times showing flashes of greatness, Mack hasn't realized on the investment as he should.

When you speak of Paul Strand Comble gets a headache. The big noise in the Pacific Coast league, a 400 batsman, Strand looked just the man to make Mack's ball club. Connie parted with close to $75,000 for him. He didn't do him $75 worth of good.

Therefore it is easy to see why Mack has weakened on the big figures when you mention some minor league star to him and tout him to set the majors on fire.

CASE OF MCGRAW

It is beginning to look as if John McGraw might be ready to accept the same point of view as Mack.

No man in baseball has spent more money than McGraw on the highly touted phenoms of the minors. While he has had some good luck, there has been plenty of it with a reverse English.

Only recently McGraw traded two players who cost him close to $125,000 for a veteran pitcher who has seen service with four big league clubs.

I have in mind the deal with Philadelphia, which sent Jack Bentley and Wayland Dean from the Giants to the Phillies for Pitcher Jimmy Ring.

Not in years has there been such spirited bidding for two minor league stars as was waged for Bentley and Dean. Now these two youngsters are sent elsewhere, the Giants in return getting a veteran pitcher who has perhaps passed his peak.

All of which merely goes to strengthen the belief that has long existed that one can take nothing for granted in baseball. You must deliver.

Choosing Up

Choosing up sides is a serious business with these youthful aspirants for baseball fame at the Coral Gables Military Academy in Florida, especially so when they are being coached by no less a personage than Stanley Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, and of the Coral Gables city diamond team. The two kids certainly look in earnest. We're betting on the blue fellow with the white shirt.

DEPUTY BROWN TO SEEK SHERIFF'S OFFICE HERE

The sheriff's race in Lubbock county is beginning to take on the air of developing into a real contest, and on the heels of the announcement that H. L. Johnston, present incumbent has withdrawn from the race, the Daily Journal Tuesday morning was authorized to announce that O. H. (Ollie) Brown, who at present is office deputy and jail keeper under Sheriff Johnston, will seek the office subject to action of voters in the democratic primary in July.

Mr. Brown has been engaged in enforcing the laws of state and county since 1910, when he was elected sheriff of Young county. He held this for four years, after which he served as City Marshall and tax assessor and collector of Newcastle, which place he held for eight years.

He then accepted a commission as Chief Deputy under the sheriff of Young county, at Graham, from which he resigned in May, 1922, and in June of the same year, he took a similar commission under sheriff Johnston here, where he has been since.

Mr. Brown has proved during his two and a half years here that he believes in enforcing the law to the letter as far as it is humanly possible, and promises that he will be no respecter of persons if elected to office in this county.

World To Protest Prices On Rubber

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—A world-wide protest against restrictions on crude rubber shipments from British colonies is to be made by organizations in 23 countries, including Great Britain, Ernest Smith, general manager of the American Automobile association, told the House commerce committee today when it resumed hearings on the subject.

British manufacturers and automotive organizations, Mr. Smith said, have insistently requested relief from increased prices in that country. He contended there was danger in use of tires containing reclaimed rubber.

American consumers will pay $515,000,000 more for tires in 1932, Smith said at the present rate of increase. This he based on a probable average increase in price from 45 to 65 points in the crude rubber used in a tire. He estimated $5,000,000 more tires, and $7,000,000 more small tires would be used in 1932 than are used now at an increased price to the consumer of $11 and $4 per tire, respectively.

Restrictions applying to cotton in the United States "not in retaliation, but in emulation" of the British rubber control, was advocated by Representative McKee, Democrat, Oklahoma.

Defending his plan, Mr. McKee said he endorsed operation of British rubber control "in principle." The cotton industry, he added, "must have governmental aid or die."

DALLAS MAN ASKS PLACE ON STATE COURT BENCH

DALLAS, Jan. 12. (AP)—Severely criticizing the system of reversing cases by the higher courts on technicalities and taking as his campaign slogan, "Swifter Justice and Fewer Technicalities," Lee P. Pierson, Dallas attorney, today formally announced candidacy for a place on the Texas court of criminal appeals, subject to the Democratic primary of 1932.

The continual reversing of cases, giving encouragement to the lawless element in one of the reasons "life is cheap in Texas," Mr. Pierson said.

"The hi-jacker with his pistol in one pocket and his technicalities in the other is a grave menace. There should be rules of law, but a technicality is not a rule of law, but a loophole by which criminals escape the punishment they deserve. The jurors can use every possible effort to enforce the law and send criminals to the penitentiary, but if our higher courts continually reverse cases, because of technicalities, crime will not be checked in Texas."

Congress Action Declared Illegal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—Representative John W. Langley, of Kentucky, convicted of participating in a conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law, was denied an appeal today by the supreme court.

Unless he now can obtain from the court a rehearing he must begin serving his two year sentence in the Atlanta Federal penitentiary.

ABUNDANT FOOTBALL MATERIAL IS AVAILABLE FOR TEXAS COLLEGES LIST OF HIGH SCHOOL STARS SHOWS

PORT WORTH, Jan. 12. (AP)—Abundant football material for Texas colleges to draw on in the next year or two is represented in a list of high school stars compiled here from lists submitted by leading coaches, officials and observers following the close of the intercollegiate season.

The position for which the largest number of stars, proportionately, was designated was the generally unsung job of center. Ten men from as many schools were credited with filling the position in exceptional fashion, while backfield men, of whom there were four on each team, averaged less than eight nominations to the position. Only six quarterbacks, the football pilots of every team, were listed.

The positions, men and their schools follow:

- Centers—Giles, Beaumont; Alexander, Waco; Terrell, Sherman; Barlett, Dallas Forest Avenue; Rodgers, Cleburne; Reynolds, Cisco; Rees, San Antonio Breckenridge; Shipp, Ranger; Stewart, Strawn; Snovall, North Dallas; Cox, Breckenridge.

- Fullbacks—Belden, Sherman; Grist, Cisco; Cooper, Ranger; Baker, Beaumont; Rhead, Waco; Chis, Fort Worth North Side High; Bounds, Abilene; Crews, San Angelo; Gatours, Austin; Hayes, Marshall.

ROAD MEN IN BIG MEET PLAN FOR HIGHWAYS

CHICAGO, Jan. 12. (AP)—A gigantic plan of roadbuilding in Canada, the United States, Mexico, Central and South America was the objective of road builders opening a convention here today.

Speech making vied with an exhibition of $3,000,000 worth of road making machinery and materials brought here on 257 freight cars.

William H. Connell, acting secretary of the Pennsylvania department of highways, declared that the road building industry was in its infancy, with only 450,000 miles of the 3,000,000 miles of roads in the United States paved.

Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad, said, "When we take into consideration the extensive traffic derived by the railroads by the transportation of road building materials, and machinery, automobile, gasoline and various allied products we can feel that the railroads have gained more than they have lost through the growth of highway transportation."

GOOD BOOKS IN DEMAND

Chicago booksellers broke all sales records in 1924, and not only were the sales larger than in any preceding year, but the demand for "serious" books also showed an appreciable increase. Biographies, autobiographies, history, science and poetry found new popularity.

No doubt this is equally true of other cities, towns and villages. If Chicago is selling more books than it is highly probable the nation's consumption of bound literature is increasing. Publishing statistics for 1925 bear out the belief that during the past decade the demand for good reading in the United States has increased more rapidly than the country's population. This fact is none the less satisfying because there has been a corresponding increase in the consumption of popular novels.

No doubt the 1925 sales record was partly due to the general prosperity of the country. Except among a small minority, books are still a luxury in this country. Books are more often bought with surplus earnings than with savings or money needed for the physical necessities.

One gets an exalted idea of the economic condition of the nation from the large numbers of "serious" works advertised in the literary reviews and magazines at prices ranging from $5 to $20 a volume. Thousands of these books were sold last year to American readers. If all were purchased by the wealthy, the wealthy are here in great numbers. If many found their way into the hands of the salaried and wage-earners, the nation's prosperity has not been exaggerated.

LYNCHINGS IN 1925

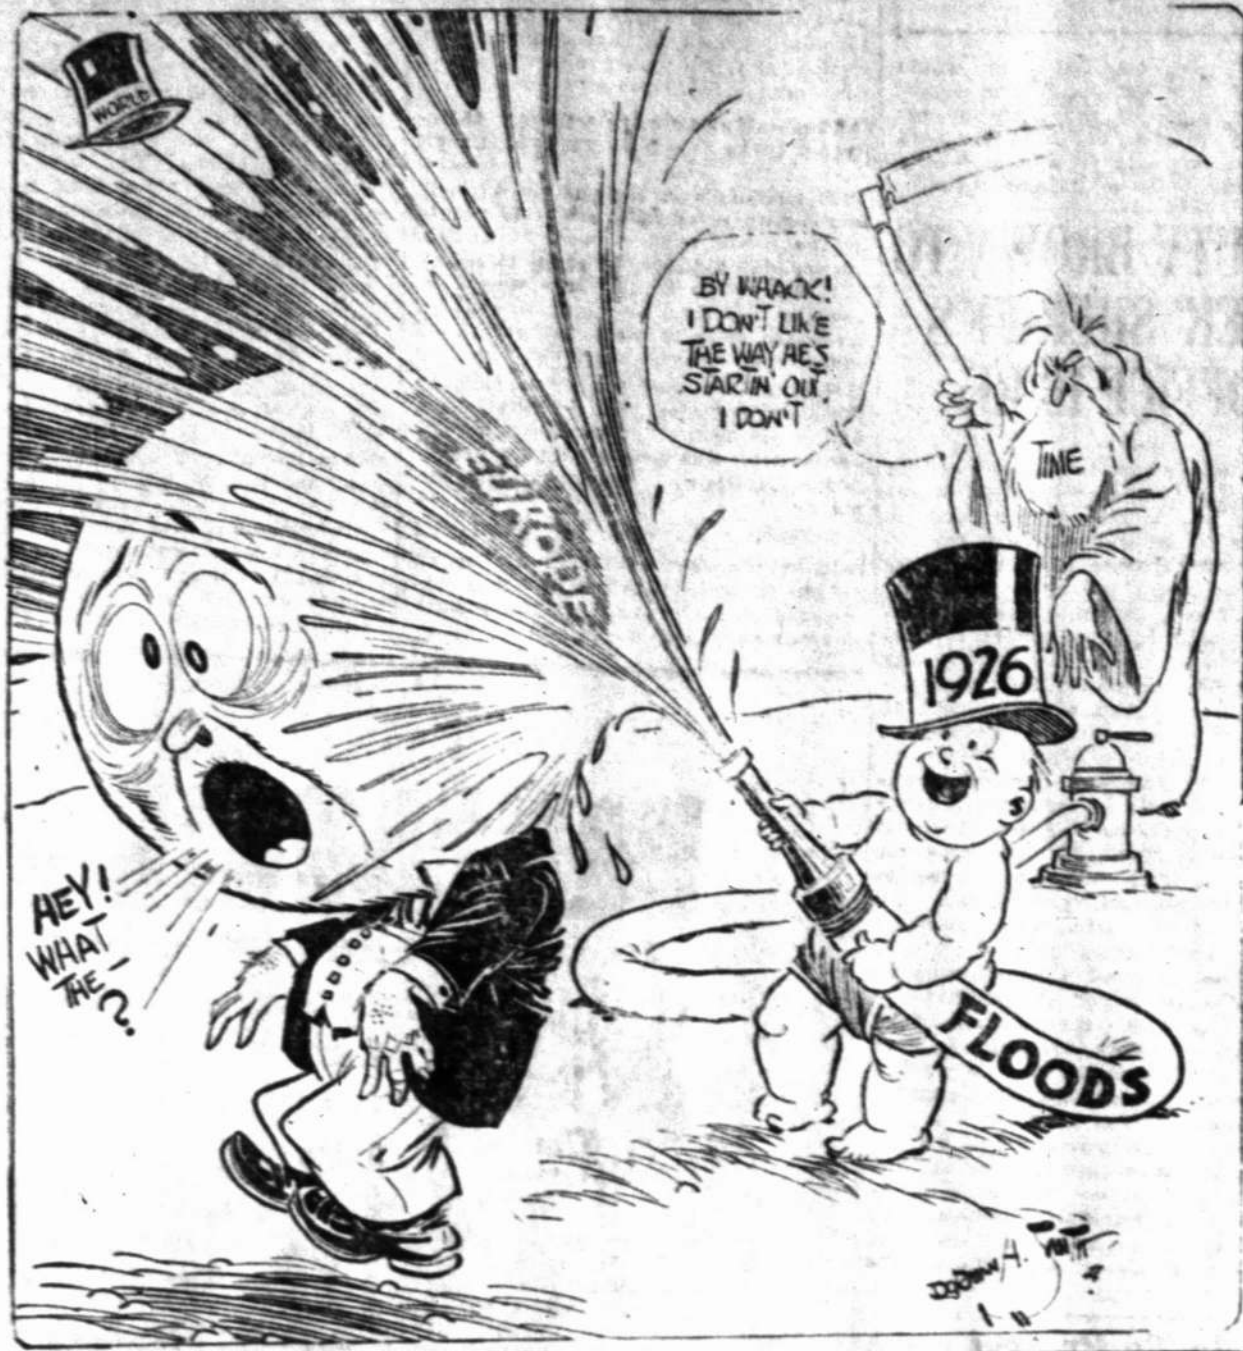

The record of 16 lynchings in 1925 exactly equals that of the previous year. If there be regret that no better record was made, there is still the satisfaction that this number is far below that of any year preceding the last two, since records have been compiled. While this lawless practice has not been eliminated, it has been reduced greatly from what it was but a few years ago. Thus progress has been made.

A hopeful phase lies in the number of attempted lynchings frustrated. In 29 instances officers prevented the efforts of mobs from succeeding and of these 22 were in southern states. Of more importance is the number of prosecutions of those participating in mobs. Of 41 persons indicted for part in lynchings 16 on conviction received sentences ranging from 30 days in jail to eight years in the penitentiary, while five others received suspended sentences dependent on good behavior. This is greatly in contrast with the course pursued formerly when it was the rule for mob members to go entirely unpunished. A livelier sense of what justice demands and what is required of the commonwealth under such circumstances is manifest in the south.

All but one of the lynchings last year were in the south and all were negroes. Mississippi, with six, has the unenviable distinction of having been the grossest offender. In fairness to the latter it may be said that the officers appear to be proceeding with vigor against the sheriff and members of a mob which recently lynched a negro who had been acquitted of murder by a white jury.

The fellow in Pittsburgh who hanged himself because he couldn't beat his wife at checkers, made the wrong move.—Wilmington Evening.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

AMERICAN NEGRO HEADS LIBERIAN ARMY

By CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — An American has been given command of the Liberian army. An Afro-American at that.

What's more, he's a good soldier. The War Department in Washington testifies to it and the War Department knows, for he's served under the stars and stripes since 1915.

The new head of the Liberian military establishment is Hansen Outley, late sergeant in the 8th United States cavalry, World War veteran and all that.

Outley was in Washington recently, getting himself discharged from the 8th, securing a passport and winding up his other American affairs, with a view to a long stay abroad.

This is the first time an American negro has been handed an army command and War Department folk were a lot interested, as they were at the Department of State, too.

Outley has a first class military record and his superiors were glad to fix matters to enable him to accept his Liberian offer, though sorry to see him go.

Originally General (formerly sergeant) Outley is from Houston, Texas. He worked as a chauffeur and electrician before enlisting in the 349th Field Artillery at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., in September, 1915, when he was 23 years old.

During America's participation in the World War he had a hand in all the fighting on the St. Die sector and the fact that he won his way to a sergeant's speaks for itself.

After the war he was shifted to the cavalry arm and was stationed at Ft. Riley, Kans., when he received Liberia's call.

Most of the strife and bitterness in this world is caused, not in contests for truth and right, but in defense of prejudices and outworn doctrines. It is a fight over sending cherished idols to the junk heap or embracing some new and untried scheme or doctrine.

We all make mistakes, of course, but some of us are too prone to respond to enticements.

SPINSTERHOOD

BEGIN HERE TODAY
BARBARA HAWLEY is 25, self-willed and talented. Wanting to see life, she breaks with her fiancé, BRUCE REYNOLDS, an architect, and gets a job on the Telegraph.
BOB JEFFRIES, police reporter introduces her to JEROME BALL, rich about town. The three are at a roadhouse when a drunken man kills himself. Barbara connects LYDIA STACY, wealthy widow with the case by the means of a red scarf dropped by the suicide's unknown woman companion.
Mrs. Stacy likes Bruce, who is with a realty firm promoting Vale Acres. He ignores her advances so she refuses to invest in the firm and tells ANDREW McDERMOTT (managing editor of the Telegraph) that the firm is crooked.
Manners, Bruce's partner, abandons. Publicity is given the affair, for which Bruce blames Barbara.
McDermott's daughter, Fancy, is in love with Jerome Ball. When Barbara's invalid mother dies, Barbara takes an apartment with Fancy and tries to cure the girl of her infatuation for Ball. Fancy accuses Barbara of wanting Ball herself.
VIOLETTA CRANBY, factory girl, wins Bruce through Barbara's "levelers" column. When they are married Barbara plunges in to work to try to forget. McDermott sends her to cover a National Federation of Women's Clubs convention. Barbara sees Manners and wires McDermott. Manners is taken back to the city and incriminates Bruce.
Fancy Weds Jerome Ball. Barbara is lonely. A child is born to Violetta and Bruce. Then comes a letter offering her $75 a week to work for "Footlights," a New York theatrical periodical.

by, perhaps, from your standpoint. But from mine, it's rather important that I shall be free from the thoughtless grind. In fact, it's the nicest thing that's happened in a rather dull year."
"You're quite sure you are not acting on the spur of the moment, Barbara?" McDermott's face was grave. "I've rather counted on you, you know?"
Barbara melted somewhat. "I know you have, Mr. McDermott. And that's the only thing that makes me sorry to leave the Telegraph. You have been consistently good to me."
"But Mr. Wells chose this morning of all mornings to practice his sarcasm upon me. And it wasn't a good morning to do it. That's all. I come down late today, for only the second time in the year I have been here. I meant to come in and talk to you about leaving. There are reasons why I cannot be satisfied to spend another month in this city."
"But when I got here, I found this." She pulled the gray envelope out of her pocket and tossed it on his desk. "And then Mr. Wells blew off, so the whole affair was settled and done with, quite easily." Barbara shrugged her shoulders and turned to the window.
McDermott picked up the envelope and drew out the letter. His eyes narrowed as he read it and he glanced at Barbara's back once or twice. Then he folded it up again and put it in the envelope.
"Well," he said "it looks as if matters had shaped themselves pretty much. I suppose your heart is set on going?"
Barbara's eyes shone. "Of course, it is. I've been wanting a change of scenery for weeks. And the offer is most attractive. It means Broadway and Fifth Avenue and the center of things. It also means the last of your very fine city editor!"
McDermott shook his head. "I'm sorry, Barbara, that you should have left under unpleasant circumstances. Wells is a nervous dyspeptic, labor-

A taxi driver stepped out of the elevator and the telephone operator called Barbara. By this time a group had gathered about her desk, to offer congratulations and say good-byes. She was tying her books and papers with cord and talking excitedly.
Miss Badger paused to speak to her. "Isn't this rather sudden, Miss Hawley? I noticed that you had an argument with Mr. Wells this morning, but I didn't suppose he would dare do anything drastic, on Mr. McDermott's account."
Barbara smiled provokingly. "You notice a good deal, don't you, Miss Badger? Perhaps you will notice some of my work in the Footlights Magazine after Monday." She turned back to the laughing group around her.
"Goodby, everybody. And when you come to New York, call me up and I'll show you the town." Then to the society editor, "You'll be sure to remember to do that, won't you, Miss Badger?" She got no answer.
The taxi whirled Barbara through the familiar streets of the city. She looked out at them half wistfully. Elm street, too, looked unexpectedly homelike to her that night. Every building was stamped upon her memory, every urchin playing in the streets formed a part of a picture that had meant home to her for many months.
Barbara struggled out of the taxi with her load of books and papers and paid the driver. So strong was the sense of her worldly rise upon her that she flipped him three times the normal amount, and ran up the steps lightly, in spite of the heavy load.
She had forgotten to order groceries for dinner. After a moment's contemplation of the larder she decided to dine in solitary grandeur at the neighborhood tea room, just around the corner, and to spend the evening in packing the things that she meant to take with her.
She returned from dinner still in a rosy haze of excitement.
She had not made her bed in the rush of the morning; so she began gaily to straighten the sheets. Under the pillow she came upon the folded copy of the Telegraph, the hospital column on top.
"Reynolds—Bruce and Violetta, a son, born Monday at the local hospital."
Barbara raged through the short paragraph and laughed shrilly. Then she stuffed the paper in the waste basket under her desk and snapped her fingers.
"First of all, she packed her wardrobe, laying aside many garments as unfit for her new grandeur. There would be ample chance to shop on Fifth Avenue.
Then she went through her books and papers. Most of these would have to go with her. She slipped them in a corner of the room.
The dressing table drawers had accumulated many trifles that must be sorted. Barbara sat down on the floor beside the table, to go through their contents.
Gloves, ribbons, handkerchiefs, broken buckles, cosmetics—a nondescript collection came to view. Patiently she sorted the articles, throwing them into boxes.
The lower drawer was reached at last. The paper that lined it was old and yellow. Barbara picked it up curiously. It was an issue of the Telegraph dated November 23 of the year before. Her lover's column was on top.
She glanced at it. Be sympathetic and above all, be feminine.
"If you love him, Violetta, do not be afraid to give your heart entirely to him. Love is the most important thing in the world to a woman, if not to a man."
Barbara crumpled the paper in her hand and threw it aside. A piece of cardboard had been slipped beneath it in the drawer. She drew it out and turned it over.
Bruce Reynolds smiled at her from the photograph. In spite of the photographer's care in retouching, a lock of hair seemed about to stand upright on the crown of his head.
With a sharp intake of breath, Barbara grasped the picture in both hands.

Barbara pulled a piece of cardboard from the bottom of the drawer. She turned it over. Bruce Reynolds smiled at her from the photograph.

(Now Go On With The Story CHAPTER XLIV)

BARBARA read the letter several times. Wells looked up and saw her for the first time.
"Miss Hawley," he called sharply. She laid down the letter and went to his desk. "At what hour are we to expect you down from now on?" he asked curtly. "If you will just let me know, I'll try to plan the editions of the Telegraph to conform. As matters stand now, I imagine the first edition is rather too early for you. And the paper shouldn't be allowed to interfere with your beauty sleep, of course."
Barbara was silent a moment. Then she spoke quietly. "You needn't expect me down any more, Mr. Wells. The Telegraph not only interferes with my beauty sleep. It interferes with my happiness as well.

"If you have any assignments for me today, I'll take them. But there will be no more after today."
The city editor looked at her sullenly. "Very well," he said "You will cover the retail merchant's convention today." He turned back to his assignment book. The color had risen in his usually alid face.
Barbara turned away, her eyes blazing. McDermott was coming through the gate from the elevator. He nodded a good morning to her and smiled. Barbara did not smile back.
When he had gone into his office and closed the door, she followed him. He was taking off his coat and rolling up his sleeves.

"Well, Barbara, what's up?" He took a corncob pipe out of the desk drawer and filled it lazily. If he saw the fury in Barbara's eyes he made no sign.
"I've just quit the Telegraph," Barbara struggled to keep her voice steady, but it shook in spite of her.
McDermott did not lay down his pipe. Instead he put it in his mouth and puffed leisurely several times before he looked at her. When he did, his eyes were cool.
"So?" he inquired.
Barbara bit her lips. "Yes," she said and made for the door.
McDermott smiled when her back was turned. But he called after her. "How important is this flare-up, Barbara?"
She turned back. "Not particular-ing under family troubles just now that make him hardly accountable. He knows your worth as a reporter, and I would wager that he is repenting to the bottom of his heart at this moment. But, of course, you would want to go anyway. So suppose we call it settled."

Barbara smiled at him. "All right," she replied, "but Mr. Wells is not the only one who has personal troubles to mar his temper. Everyone on his staff has them, too."
The excitement in her eyes rather emphasized the circles about them. But he asked no questions. Instead, he held out his hand. "Here's the best of luck. You've been a good bet for the Telegraph, Barbara."
There were tears in her eyes and her lips were quivering. "Thank you," she said, and fled.
In the outer office, she was conscious that Wells' eyes followed her anxiously. But he did not speak to her again.
With a heart lighter than she had known for many months, Barbara went out of the office on her way to the Hotel where the retail merchants were holding their annual convention.
A wire from the Footlights Magazine was on Barbara's desk when she returned from the convention. "Can you come at once?" it said.
Barbara rang for a messenger and sent the answer. "Will report Monday," she said.
Barbara went through her desk that afternoon, collecting her personal property from its drawers and piling the other things in neat groups on top. She asked the telephone operator to call a taxi for her.
"You're not leaving, are you, Miss Hawley?" asked the girl, eyeing the dismantled desk.
"Yes," answered Barbara happily. "I'm going to New York." Byers heard the reply and came hurrying over. "Are you really, Babe? Congratulations!"
"It's because you let me do some of your play reviewing that the offer came," said Barbara. "I think I'm mighty lucky."
Wells was passing. He paused for a fraction of a second, as though to speak, but went on to his desk.

TODAY'S MARKETS

Cotton Markets

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 12. (AP)—The cotton market opened steady in sympathy with better cables than due. Little trading showed gains of 4 to 8 points and prices advanced slightly after the call, March trading to 19.39, May to 18.89, and July to 18.50, or six to seven points above yesterday's close. The market soon eased off about five points from the early highs and trading became very narrow, prices showing no definite trend.

The market continued narrow and uninteresting during the afternoon, fluctuating within a few points and steadily within the previous range, although May made a new high at 18.94, only a single point above the high of the morning and July advanced to 18.56, or two points above the earlier high. Prices soon eased off again to about the same levels ruling at noon.

The market continued very narrow all morning being influenced by a few trades either way. Prices rallied moderately, making new highs on some short covering. March trading up to 19.37, May to 18.93, and July to 18.53, or 8 to 12 points above the early lows. Spot advices were rather favorable. Following the slight spurt the market relapsed into dullness with prices near the highs.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 3 points, and sold about four to nine points net higher in early trading on covering by near months shorts with some trade and commission house buying, encouraged by steady Liverpool cables. March sold up to 19.76 and October to 18.12, or four to seven points net higher, with the market quiet but fairly steady at the end of the first hour.

Reports of a firmer basis on low grades in the South probably brought in a little buying toward midday, when the market sold up to 19.92 for March and 18.16 for October, or 7 to 12 points net higher.

No fresh trading or new features developed in the early afternoon. The market was very quiet, March selling around 19.87 at 2 o'clock when prices were about four to nine points net higher.

BIDS REJECTED BY COMMISSION ON COURT HOUSE

New bids in connection with the repainting of the inside of the Lubbock county courthouse and jail buildings will be received at the office of the county clerk for a period of one week. It was announced here Tuesday by County Judge Chas. Nordyke following action of the commissioners' court in regular session Monday afternoon in rejecting all bids filed with the court for the work.

There evidently was some misunderstanding on the part of contractors in offering bids for the work, the judge said, for not only were the figures of some much out of line, but as explained by these contractors, their figures were based on entirely different measurements to the ones as explained at the session of the court. It is probable that another meeting of the court will be held in about a week when bids on the job will be opened again and an effort made to reach an agreement with a contractor, the judge said.

COUNTY'S POLITICAL POT BOILS AFTER JOHNSTON'S DECISION TO WITHDRAW FROM SHERIFF'S RACE

FIVE MEN CONSIDER RUNNING TO SUCCEED "BUD" JOHNSTON, WHO FOR NEARLY FOUR YEARS HAS BEEN EFFICIENT OFFICER HERE

Deputy Sheriff O. H. Brown, who has been one of Sheriff Johnston's most efficient aides and who is in charge of the Lubbock county jail, announced to the Journal today that he would enter the race. Mr. Brown is former sheriff of Young county.

The announcement of the withdrawal from the race for county sheriff by H. L. (Bud) Johnston, present incumbent, made here late Sunday, has put fire under the political pot in this county, and as a result, rumors in semi-official quarters of the county government have it that the voting public will be faced this year by a crop of candidates never equalled in the history of the primary in Lubbock county.

Close followers of the situation point to the possibility, and some think it very probable that at least six or eight men will announce shortly for the place now held by Mr. Johnston. Some of these, perhaps the majority of them, have planned to enter the race but for various reasons, have not yet seen fit to announce their candidacy, as the present incumbent is the only one who had made public announcement of his intention to seek the office.

Five Expected to Run.

It is rumored here that there are at least five Lubbock men who are seriously considering "throwing their hats into the ring," with the probability that these may be added to by at least two men from Slaton, sister city of Lubbock in the lower edge of the county, but no definite statement had been made by any of these probable candidates this morning. One of two of them, when questioned by the Daily Journal, stated that they had not yet reached final decision in the matter.

The announcement of the withdrawal of Sheriff Johnston apparently has met with a wave of disapproval, especially among the law-abiding citizenship, for it is realized that he has reached as high a point in law enforcement in this county as the best of his predecessors, and has gone beyond the average public official.

Johnston States Reasons. He cited two reasons for his actions. One of them was the severe handicap under which a peace officer is now called upon to enforce the law, referring in particular to the new search and seizure law, passed by the last session of the state legislature. This law sets out in part that an officer cannot search for or seize any contraband property, regardless of the nature of the case, without first securing a warrant properly signed and executed by certain officials. The law refers in particular to enforcement of the prohibition statutes. In other words if an officer knows beyond any doubt that a certain individual or group of individuals has in possession for sale purposes a quantity of liquor, they are not privileged to make arrests or seize the goods without a warrant, except at the risk of their job and a penitentiary sentence.

Another reason he assigned was that he is holding the office at considerable financial sacrifice for his services are very much needed in connection with his extensive ranch holdings in this and adjoining counties. Developments in connection with his

LEGION POST TO SPONSOR TROOP 3 OF BOY SCOUTS

PLANS LAID TO LAUNCH A MEMBERSHIP DRIVE IN NEAR FUTURE

Allen Brothers Post No. 348, of the American Legion, the unit of the national organization that is located in Lubbock, has joined in the "Big Brother" movement of the Boy Scouts, and during 1926 will be sponsor to Troop 3 of the local scouts, aiding the young Americans in every way possible, and in turn receiving the aid of the scout troop in the many undertakings of the legion for the year.

This decision was reached Monday night at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Post after the matter was explained by Oscar F. Sensabaugh, scout master of troop 3. Mr. Sensabaugh pointed out that members of the legion here could be of much assistance to the scouts, and the scouts in turn could be of a great deal of assistance to the legion.

Will Aid in Campaign.

And this assistance on the part of the scouts already is beginning to manifest itself for scoutmaster Sensabaugh last night offered the troop for service during the membership campaign of the legion that is to be launched here in the near future. It is probable that the scouts will be asked to make an ex-service men's census of this city, so that the membership committee of the legion, which was appointed at the meeting may have something definite to work upon.

The membership committee is composed of Chas. Whitacre as chairman, K. L. Riggs, A. B. Slagle, Lattie Hankin, Herbert Stebbins, Fred Blanton and Earl Merrill, of Stillwater. This committee has not yet mapped out a definite program of activity, chairman Whitacre stated, but this will be done within the next few days, and an effort will be made to enlist every ex-service man in the county not already connected with a legion post, with the local post.

Refuse Show Contract.

It was the opinion of the post that no movement that is the least bit "shady" will be sponsored through the year, and as evidence of this, a unanimous vote was polled against entering into a contract with the John L. Wortham shows for bringing of the Wortham shows here in April. It was explained to the meeting that the Wortham shows had made the local post quite an interesting proposition as far as finances are concerned, but it was the sense of the membership that this nature of entertainment would not be given under auspices of the legion, not that the Wortham shows are of low order, but that nothing of this nature will be entertained.

In line with the year's program, Col. Clark M. Mullican offered a few suggestions in regard to holding interest of the ex-service men in the legion, explaining that this had always been the great problem, not only with the local post, but with every other individual unit of the national organization. The primary purpose of the legion, Col. Mullican told the gathering, is to perpetuate the memories of the late war, and to offer an inviting place where ex-service men may gather to "fight the war over again."

Interest is Big Problem. He explained that the legion may be a source of untold benefit to the city and county in which it is located, but stated that the big problem before the local post is to keep enthusiasm at a high point, so that man power may be available for the various undertakings. He suggested that the semi-monthly meetings be made into luncheon sessions, similar to other clubs of this nature, and that a certain time be set aside for the business sessions. His suggestions were met with delight among the membership, and probably will be put into force soon.

As a fitting climax to the enthusiastic meeting, the "sacred ceremony," known only to the local post, was entered, and the legion "loving cup" from which all drank with a toast, was presented, and brought much merriment, especially among visitors.

Successor will be watched with a great deal of interest by the entire populace of the county, and announcements seeking the office probably will begin to flow within a few days.

CORN BELT FARMERS AIR THEIR GRIEVANCES BEFORE PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S POLITICAL HELPERS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — The corn belt farmers brought their grievances to Washington Mon. and both the Coolidge administration and leaders in Congress bestirred themselves to provide some method of farm relief.

Secretary Jardine, of the agriculture department, who recently endorsed in principle surplus marketing bill, drafted by seventy members of Congress, called into conference a group of agricultural editors and other prominent in farm organizations, and sought their advice as to details of the troublesome surplus crop problem.

House Is Called. At the same time the House agriculture committee was called to hear opinions of other westerners and the Senate agriculture committee as its first meeting since Congress convened, began to piece out the beginnings of a relief program of its own.

Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, in 1920 candidate for the republican presidential nomination, and four years later the party's first choice for vice president, was a central figure in today's succession of conferences and an influence of recognized potentiality in all of the relief preparations. For several years he has devoted his major effort to the question of improving the condition of western agriculture and his views are being sought eagerly by those of all political faiths both in and out of Congress.

Mr. Lowden came to Washington to attend a meeting of the national council of cooperative associations, beginning tomorrow under the chairmanship of Judge Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville. Many other leaders of the cooperative movements also are in the capital.

Today's activities ran the whole scale of outstanding farm problems. For the time being the subject of immediate consideration before the congressional committees was the cooperative market bill, which a powerful group of western senators and representatives, some of them republican stalwarts, have pronounced wholly inadequate to meet present conditions.

Mr. Jardine's conference was devoted primarily to the surplus crop question, but his conferees did not neglect the opportunity to present to him the full force of the complaint of the agricultural west against many elements of present day industrial and agricultural tendencies.

Before coming to Lubbock he was for a time a deputy U. S. Marshall in Oklahoma. He has announced that he will retain his present place, at least for a time, and will continue his same spirit of co-operation with county officials for suppression of law violations that has so marked his administration.

Local Retailers Meet Tonight In Regular Session

The regular monthly meeting of the local Retail Merchants association will be held tonight in the offices of the organization in the municipal building. It was announced here Tuesday morning.

The announcement carried an urgent appeal that all members of the association attend the session, for matters of much interest to each individual member will be presented for discussion. The meeting will begin at 7:30.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — The corn belt farmers brought their grievances to Washington Mon. and both the Coolidge administration and leaders in Congress bestirred themselves to provide some method of farm relief.

Secretary Jardine, of the agriculture department, who recently endorsed in principle surplus marketing bill, drafted by seventy members of Congress, called into conference a group of agricultural editors and other prominent in farm organizations, and sought their advice as to details of the troublesome surplus crop problem.

Today's activities ran the whole scale of outstanding farm problems. For the time being the subject of immediate consideration before the congressional committees was the cooperative market bill, which a powerful group of western senators and representatives, some of them republican stalwarts, have pronounced wholly inadequate to meet present conditions.

Mr. Jardine's conference was devoted primarily to the surplus crop question, but his conferees did not neglect the opportunity to present to him the full force of the complaint of the agricultural west against many elements of present day industrial and agricultural tendencies.

Before his conference with the farm editors got under way, Secretary Jardine went to the capitol to appear as the first witness before the House agriculture committee. He gave his approval to the Haugen bill to establish a division of cooperative marketing in the Department of Agriculture.

Cooperative marketing, he said, was fundamentally sound, but he added: "The cooperatives have not been cooperating. They have been fighting among themselves more than the farmers have. There must be cooperation among the farmers and their organizations and the department stands ready to help."

Mr. Jardine declared some way must be found for agriculture "mortality." Representative Doyle, democrat, Illinois, said billions were invested in the marketing of livestock in Chicago, and this interest has not "been considered." He asserted the Chicago interest had been "left to shift for themselves."

The secretary said there was no discrimination in the present bill against any agency of agriculture.

Representative Ansell, democrat, Louisiana, asked whether the purposes of the bill could be accomplished without creating any more bureaus.

"We have ninety-three here now," he said. He suggested that the secetary could organize the work without legislation. "Possibly I could," replied Mr. Jardine. "but I think Congress should stand behind the cooperative movement. The best minds on cooperative agriculture have been consulted and they consider this bill the wisest solution of this problem."

Reduction In Costs Of Nitrates Are To Be Made, Report Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—Material reduction in nitrate costs can be made by operating the government Musco Shoals properties, R. F. Bowler, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, told the House Interstate Commerce commission today.

Testifying at the committee's inquiry into crude rubber monopolies, he said the nitrate costs could be paid down below that of Chilean nitrates if the shoals property were operated. He added the reduction in costs would not be fifty per cent, as some people have contended, but would constitute a "material decrease."

Ask Reduction Of U. S. Cotton Output

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 12. (AP)—The committee of the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners decided today to request spinners in the American section of the industry to further curtail production, beginning January 25, by reducing working hours by seventeen and a half hours a week. This would reduce the working week in this section to thirty-one and a half hours.

PLACE OFFICER IN OWN PRISON

Charge Police Chief Aided in Escape Of Missouri Bank Robbers; Other Held

(By Associated Press.)
 HILLSBORO, Mo., Jan. 12.—Chief of Police L. W. Hurst, of De Soto, Mo., is in the county jail here charged with having aided with the escape of bandits, who robbed the American bank of De Soto of $10,000, December 20.

Arrest Follows Confession.
 An alleged confession by William Perkins, on whose farm the bank loot is alleged to have been divided, led to the arrest of the police officer Saturday. Hurst, according to De Soto authorities, denies sharing in the loot but admits ownership of a rifle found in Perkins' home and which Perkins declared was loaned by Hurst to the bandits for use in the hold-up.

Two Others Held.
 Two other men, both of Blytheville, Ark., are being held here, while a third is in jail in the Arkansas town under another charge.

Perkins, in his confession, admits receiving $1,000 in liberty bonds and $50 in cash from the robbery, but says he does not know whether the police chief received any of the money.

SOCIALISTS OPEN CAMPAIGN IN FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 12. (AP)—The workers of France must gain control of the government, either by legal or illegal means, Leon Blum, leader of the socialist party, declared today at the resumption of the socialist national congress.

The congress was expected to vote late today on the question of socialist participation in future governments. A non-official count yesterday showed a majority against such participation.

"Socialist participation in power cannot be shared," M. Blum declared in his address. "There must be complete possession of power by the working classes—a conquest which cannot be limited to legal means, but achieved by revolutionary methods if need be."

"Certainly it would be preferable to assume, however, by legal means but all means are legitimate to secure power for the working classes."

There are laws that can and must be modified. Thus I am for a conquest of power within or without legal methods, but once this power is secured it must be exercised within legality.

L. C. C. BILL GETS APPROVAL OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—The principle of the Smith bill for regional representation on the Interstate Commerce commission was approved today by the Senate Interstate Commerce commission.

A sub-committee was appointed to work out details as to the number of regions in which the country should be divided for purposes of making future appointments. Senator Smith, of South Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee and author of the bill, is chairman of the sub-committee.

The proposal first was made some months ago, when southern senators were opposing the appointment of James M. Woodcock, of New York, on the ground that the nomination was being deprived of regional representation. Mr. Woodcock's nomination again is pending, along with that of Richard V. Taylor, of Alabama, but the solution thus suggested is not satisfactory to some southern leaders.

NEW RAIL LABOR LAWS BOOSTED BY SPEAKER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—Declaring that the public, as well as the railroads and their employees should be protected in any new railroad labor legislation, a delegation of the National Manufacturers' association today told President Coolidge the pending labor bill should be amended.

John E. Edgerton, of Nashville, Tenn., president of the association, and spokesman for the delegation, described the measure agreed upon by the road executives and their union employees as "helpful and constructive," but said it was defective so far as shippers are concerned. The bill should be more specific, he declared, in the powers of the commission, which the President would be authorized to appoint as a last resort to bring about settlement of a railroad labor controversy. This commission would be a part of the machinery which would displace the present railroad labor board.

Mr. Edgerton said it should be clearly set forth that during the thirty-day period of the commission's inquiry neither party to the controversy should engage in a lockout or strike.

TALPA, Texas, Jan. 12. (AP)—A. S. Bell, 50, prominent farmer, was shot and killed Sunday night dying after being rushed to a Ballinger hospital. His son, Jesse, 18, is being held at the county jail on a misdemeanor charge. Cause of the shooting has not been learned.

The elder Bell surrendered to the authorities a year and a half ago, following the shooting of Dr. S. L. Ballard, 55, at Coleman, in a shotgun and pistol duel, believed the sequel to an Martin is under 99-years sentence for the slaying of Deputy Sheriff R. B. Parsons at Denton. W. J. Sewell, also, is under five years sentence for the same slaying.

The case being tried here grew out of the raids by state rangers on the Yancy Story ranch near Denton last summer.

TELLS NEW PLAN TO SUPPLY RUBBER

PLANTATION IN INDIES AND PHILIPPINES IS SUGGESTION

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Because of the demand of American consumers for cheaper rubber, W. O. Rutherford, president of the American Rubber association, suggests that plantations be secured by American interests in the Philippines and in Dutch East India. Such acquisitions, he has informed the directors, now meeting here, should not be construed as reprisal because of Great Britain's restrictions on its rubber output but as good business. Already the Firestone Tire and Rubber company has taken an initial step toward development of American plantations by obtaining from the Republic of Liberia a 99-year lease on 11,000,000 acres of land and a 20,000-acre plantation. Officials are planning to spend $100,000,000 in developments. The Firestone interests also have rubber developments in Mexico.

Summers Tells Views.
Leland L. Summers, chairman of the foreign mission of the war industries board during the war, has different views than manufacturers. In a statement today he said that remedies proposed by Secretary Hoover to aid the foreign trade situation were worse than the disease and would place American industry under the government's thumb. Mr. Hoover, discussing monopolies of raw materials, including rubber, by foreign groups, advocated among other steps, development of the products in other countries. Mr. Summers said the British control of rubber was not unfair and that the present situation would soon be relieved by the development of the Dutch rubber trade. Mr. Summers paid tribute to the fairness of Winston Churchill, British secretary, for his fairness to the colonies and said it was impossible that proper overtures to him would not receive courteous consideration.

BRIAND CABINET IS TOTTERING IS REPORT

ENTIRE NATION WONDERS HOW LONG PRESENT GROUP TO LAST

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, Jan. 12.—How long will the government of Aristide Briand last? This question was being asked by the average Frenchman today coincident with the opening of the regular parliamentary session of 1925. Rarely has a French statesman been called upon to face a situation of such uncertainty and confusion.

M. Briand's principal asset is prestige enhanced by recent triumphs in the diplomatic field and which it is considered will make the chamber hesitate to overthrow him too summarily. The socialist national congress, with Leon Blum, leader of the socialist party, a prominent figure, sat far into last night discussing the question of socialist participation in the government. As expected it voted against participation unless the party was allowed to choose portfolios and dictate the policy of the ministry. The vote was 1,766 against 1,321.

The congress, however, decided that the socialist party could give support to a radical cabinet under certain conditions. The left wing of the party, the view of which thus prevailed, believes that if parliament continues as it was last month is bound to be a dictatorship of some kind sooner or later, and it desires to seize power before the right wing secures a chance to overthrow the radicals. M. Briand, at the present session has before him the program left over when the chamber adjourned for the Christmas and New Year holidays, the budget financial restoration, electoral reform and ratification of the Locarno pact.

Rest Of Ten Days Will Find Durant Well, Doctor Says
NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(P)—A week or ten days of absolute rest is necessary for W. C. Durant, president of the Durant Motor company, who was injured when the Overseas Express in Florida rammed his private car, killing two negro stewards and a trainman. Dr. John Erdman, who examined him last night, announced the automobile manufacturer had a long scalp wound, several bruises on the body, and a black eye. A possible concussion will be watched for, the doctor said, and the patient will be kept in bed.

Coolidge Says Corn Growers Are In Need Of Government Help
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(P)—President Coolidge was told today by C. H. Richeson, of Des Moines, president of the National Corn Growers' association that the farmers need government aid, in disposing of their surplus crops. Mr. Richeson said the corn belt farmers were attempting to improve their lot by cooperative organization along lines proven successful in marketing citrus fruits, cotton and tobacco. "If the government organized a cooperative market for the surplus products,"

PRESIDENT HOPES TAX BILL WILL GO THROUGH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(P)—President Coolidge is hopeful that the tax bill, virtually as passed by the House will go through the Senate without delay.

He was represented at the White House today as regarding the domestic proposal for a greater tax reduction as likely to produce party discord, if pressed on the Senate floor, and delay final action.

Should there be such a delay as to prevent making the new tax schedules effective in time for the March 15 payments, he would be inclined to blame it on the critics of the present bill in the Senate.

Mr. Coolidge believes there would be a wholesome effect on the country from a business standpoint, if the Senate showed an inclination to dispose of the bill in the same non-partisan fashion that obtained in the House.

He also is convinced that it would be unwise to go beyond the $320,000,000 reduction total of the House bill.

Hungarians Are To Prosecute Men Who Made Bogus Money

PARIS, Jan. 12.—(P)—Baron Frederick Koranyi de Tolcsva, Hungarian minister to France, just returned from Budapest, was received today by Premier Briand, to whom he delivered a message from Premier Bethlen, of Hungary.

"The Hungarian government, in accord with Regent Horthy," the message said, "is determined to pursue the investigation of the counterfeiters with pitiless energy. No one implicated therein, no matter how high a position he holds in Hungary, will be spared."

No one in the immediate entourage of Regent Horthy has been implicated in the counterfeiting plot, which had for its object the circulation of bogus French notes of the denomination of 1,000 francs, the minister said.

GERALD NYE GETS SENATE SEAT TODAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(P)—The Senate voted today to seat Gerald Nye as a senator from North Dakota. His right to a seat in the Senate had been challenged on the ground that the North Dakota governor did not have authority to fill Senate vacancies by appointment. This challenge the Senate upset by a vote of 41 to 33.

A majority of the Senate retractions held that Nye was not entitled to a seat, but three members of the committee filed a minority report taking an opposite view.

Twenty-six democrats joined with 14 republicans and one farmer-labor senator in voting to give Governor Sorlie's appointee his seat. Seven democrats and 32 republicans voted against it.

The new senator takes the place of the late Senator Edwin F. Ladd. Senators Mayfield and Sheppard, democrats, Texas, voted for seating Mr. Nye, who was administered the oath immediately after the vote.

was unopposed and driven away.

Mr. Wynkoop said he heard the bandits shout "We are not bandits, we are revolutionists." One of the Mexicans told him they were rebelling against President Calles. "You watch developments," he added, "the revolution is not over."

Most of the prisoners camped out Saturday night in the wrecked town of Yurucuar. Others walked through-out the night and finally reached Guadalupe. Mr. and Mrs. Wynkoop walked until they found a train for Mexico City. They suffered considerable hardship.

The other American on the train was a mining man from Panaucho named Bassett. Mrs. C. H. Charratt, wife of the manager of the Guadalupe branch of the Bank of Montreal and her five-months-old baby also were passengers. They arrived at Guadalupe unharmed.

Two Executed.

New Orleans Mayor Dies During Fifth Term As Executive

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 12.—(P)—Martin Behrman, 61, Mayor of New Orleans for his fifth term, died here today after an extended illness. Heart trouble was given as the cause. Early arrangements were made for a public funeral.

Mr. Behrman was born in New York City. His family moved here when he was one year old. He was left an orphan at the age of 12. He was elected Mayor of New Orleans in December, 1904, and held the office for sixteen years, being defeated in 1920. He was again elected in April of last year.

RATON ROUGE, Jan. 12.—(P)—Governor Henry L. Fuqua ordered flags over state buildings placed at half staff when advised of the death of Martin Behrman, Mayor of New Orleans. The governor issued a statement in which he declared that "Martin Behrman had great dreams for New Orleans, adding, 'no greater recognition can be given than for New Orleans to see that his vision comes true.'"

Parental Prejudice Against The Stage Is Melted Before Youthful Ambition Of Dallas Girl, Who Will Continue Career

(By Associated Press.)
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—Parental prejudice against the stage melted before youthful ambition and the spell of footlights last night and as a result Miss Ruth Laird, 18-year-old society girl of Dallas, may be allowed to continue with her stage career.

This was indicated by Mrs. Elizabeth Laird, her mother, and wife of a retired oil operator of Texas, after she had occupied a front seat at the opening performance of the show in which her daughter took part. Mrs. Laird had come to prevent her daughter from appearing in the show, but changed her mind at the last minute in deference to Ruth's earnest pleadings.

Man Away From School.
Miss Laird ran away from a girls' finishing school in Washington two years ago to study dancing in Paris. She objected to entering society as strongly as her parents objected to her going upon the stage. She returned a year ago and continued her dancing studies in New York.

After the performance last night Mrs. Laird said she would need "a few days to think it over," and admitted that perhaps it would be best for her daughter to continue with her dancing. Her only doubt was expressed in "but her father objects to the stage even more than I do."

Miss Laird, who had not seen her mother in more than two years until they met here yesterday, said that she knew that as soon as her mother saw her dancing and acting and understood her work she would see things differently.

Which, apparently, her mother did. Decision Final.
DALLAS, Jan. 12.—(P)—The decision of Mrs. Elizabeth Laird as to the presence of her daughter, Ruth, on the stage will be final in the family. A. S. Laird, local oil magnate, said today, when he learned of his wife's probable changed attitude toward the girl's stage career.

"I have been opposed to Ruth's going on the stage, but I'm only a man and I don't know much about those things, he said. 'I shall have to leave the matter to Mrs. Laird and whatever she does I shall approve.' If she believes it is all right for Ruth to remain on the stage I won't interpose any further objection."

Is Wealthy Girl.
Miss Laird is one of the richest girls on the stage. She has an interest in an oil kusher near Breckenridge which had produced $4,000,000, according to reports. The well is named "Ruth Laird."
Her father, a former school teacher, became wealthy when he struck one of the best paying gushers near Breckenridge. The girl attended the Uni-

HEAD OF COLONY FACES SERIOUS CHARGES

WOMEN DESERT FARM FOR SOCIALISTS; BABY IS CONTENTION

(By Associated Press.)
ALLENTOWN, Jan. 12.—April Farm, the colony sponsored by Charles Garland, millionaire socialist, was virtually deserted by its women members today and Garland was at liberty on $1,000 bail on a charge involving the parentage of a child born to one of the women members.

The flight of the women was revealed yesterday, when Sheriff Senebach, of Lehigh county, went to arrest Garland and subpoena Bettina Hevey, mother of the infant. The child was born last July 4 and it died of suffocation due to a throat affliction on October 17. The charge against Garland is adultery.

He Furnishes Bond.
At the farm was found six men, including Garland, but only one woman, Doris Benson. None of the colonists would reveal where the other women had gone. Garland readily accompanied the sheriff and after a hearing furnished bond.

The unfavorable publicity which the colony received when City Solicitor Stuart recommended that a charter be denied on the ground that its members did not believe in marriage and practiced free love, is believed responsible for the flight of the women. Garland has denied that he believed in or practices free love. He terms the colony an experiment in social science.

Wife Is Missing.
Investigators are seeking to learn the whereabouts of Mary Preston Wrenn Garland, the colony leader's wife. Her home is Deadham, Mass., and some Boston advisers are that she has left for Pennsylvania "to join her husband, whom she still adores." Another Boston source says Mrs. Garland is in the South.
