PAPAL WAVE — Pope John Paul II waves to a massive crowd at Limerick racecourse Monday, shortly before departing for Shannon airport and a flight to the United States. The Pontiff said mass for the 400,000 crowd, at the last stop on his three-day tour of Ireland.

Pope stands firm against abortion

SHANNON,, Ireland (AP) — Pope John Paul II ended a triumphal 2½ day pastoral tour of Ireland today and flew to Boston, the first stop on a six-day visit to the United States.

An Aer Lingus Boeing 747 carrying the papal entourage took off from Shannon Airport in the west of Ireland 19 minutes behind schedule at 1:49 p.m. local time, 8:49 a.m. EDT.

He told the Irish in an airport departure statement: "I thank all the people for the warm and loving reception in which they manifested their keen sense of humanity and their lively faith."

In a final open-air Mass in nearby Limerick, the pontiff urged Roman Catholics to resist growing pressure for the church to liberalize its stand against abortion and divorce.

Only hours before he spoke, terrorists in Northern Ireland refusing to heed the pope's call for peace, raked a British army Land Rover with gunfire, forcing it to crash and slightly injuring two troops.

The pope departed from Shannon Airport, west of Limerick across the River Shannon, where he had helicoptered after celebrating Mass in Limerick. Thousands wept openly as the papal helicopter lifted into a leaden sky, a light drizzle falling over Limerick, the multitude singing "The Rivers of Babylon."

"Pope John Paul will have no respite. America waits," said the commentator for the live coverage on the Irish television broadcast as the helicopter near Shannon Airport.

The Polish pontiff addressed an estimated 400,000 Catholics from Ireland's traditionally conservative southwest who gathered at Limerick race track.

The Mass at Limerick was cut short after communion, a priest announced, because the pope "is very tired" and "has a long journey ahead of him." A flight of pigeons was released to mark the end of the ceremony.

VICTORY OF SORTS — Panamanians rip up U.S. flag on the Canal Zone border Sunday night after tearing it down. Early Monday, thousands of Panamanians prepared to march into the territory after the U.S. turned the Canal Zone over to Panama.

U.S. turns over Panama Canal Zone to Panama

BALBOA, Panama (AP) — The United States turned over the Panama Canal Zone to Panama early today amid the clamor of church bells and a shower of fireworks as hundreds of thousands of Panamanians prepared to march into the territory.

The bells began pealing at midnight Sunday as the 646-square-mile zone officially became Panamanian property after 76 years of U.S. jurisdiction. The fireworks erupted from atop 650-foot Ancon Hill, where a 150-foot flagpole was erected for the hoisting of a giant Panamanian flag today.

The flag, which will be floodlit at night, will be visible for miles, including from ships waiting in Panama Bay to enter the canal.

Thousands of Panamanians spent Sunday night partying in the downtown area of the capital. They included busloads brought in from the provinces for the symbolic march of possession into the zone today.

The country's 1.8 million people were told it was their "patriotic duty" to participate in the march. The capital's streets were decorated with posters exhorting "Everyone to the Zone." About 250,000 marchers were expected.

Many of the American civilians in the zone, known locally as Zonians, were worried about the march.

"My dad said we should stay inside today and that we should get everything off the patio," said 10-year-old Matthew Haught.

Canal pilot Jack Waters, who lives near the marchers' route, said he wasn't sure whether he would go to work today.

"I'm supposed to take a ship through today. I'm worried about my family. There's no way you can control a crowd like that," Waters said.

The marchers were to enter the zone by along Fourth of July Avenue, which the Panamanians call Avenue of the Martyrs because 24 Panamanians died in battles with U.S. troops during anti-American riots in 1964.

The rioting, triggered by Panamanian unhappiness over the 1903 treaty that gave the United States the canal zone "in perpetuity," led President Johnson later in 1964 to commit the United States to negotiating new pacts with Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian strongman.

Under the new treaties which President Carter and Torrijos signed in 1977, the Canal Zone government went out of existence at midnight Sunday and the 35,000 Americans living in the zone are subject to Panamanian laws. Panama takes over most basic services in the area, along with the operation of the ports and railroads and becomes landlord for 996 houses in which canal company employees live.

A new U.S. government agency, the Panama Canal Commission, will operate the canal until the year 2000.

The United States also retains five military bases occupying 109 square miles of the zone and manned by 10,000 troops until the year 2000, and the headquarters of the U.S. Southern Command will continue to be located there.

The head of the command, Lt. Gen. Dennis P. McAuliffe, was relieved Sunday by Maj. Gen. Wallace H. Nutting on Sunday, and McAuliffe retired after 35 years in the army to become the new Canal Commission's chief administrator.

Tests proved skunk killed last Wednesday was rabid

Another case of a rabid animal has been reported in Big Spring, making it the third case of confirmed rabies in the city limits this year.

This time, the carrier was a young skunk, which according to Paca Poss, chased her 4-year-old daughter, April Williams, from the back fence of their residence to the back porch last Wednesday night. The residence is located at 13th and Runnels, not far from downtown Big Spring.

The skunk, described as a baby skunk by Mrs. Poss, was destroyed by her with a .12-gauge shotgun, preserved on ice and taken to a local veterinarian the next morning. Results returned from the Public Health Department in Austin confirmed that the aggressive skunk had been stricken with rabies.

There are, according to Mrs. Poss, a large number of cats and stray animals in the 13th and Runnels vicinity. According to Assistant City Manager Bill Brown, Joe Terry of the State Health Department in Lubbock is coordinating efforts to determine if any other problems may now exist in that area.

This latest incident follows the Sept. 20 confirmation of rabies carried by a cat that scratched a woman on N. Scurry St. The woman is undergoing a series of rabie injections. An investigation of that area, according to Brown, has turned up no other dangers of human exposure to the disease.

Earlier this year, a fox was confirmed to have rabies in the South Highland area.

Citizens are again reminded to have their pets vaccinated, keep them contained in the yard or restrained on a leash, and to warn their children against attempting to pet or play with unfamiliar animals.

Digest

Taxes hurt more than inflation

CLEVELAND (AP) — Taxes hurt the American consumer more than any othe economic indicator, including price inflation, Industry Week magazine reports in this week's issue.

In the decade since 1968, total taxes increased 155.3 percent, IW said. "In that time, consumer prices rose 87.5 percent."

The magazine says the big jump has been in state and local taxes, which have risen 187.5 percent since 1968 while federal taxes increased 139.9 percent. The magazine said that taxes paid in 1978 "exceeded the total U.S gross national product of 1963."

Quiet neighborhood marred

NORWALK, Ronn. (AP) — A quiet, predominantly white neighborhood was marred for the second time in two weeks when an 8-foot-high cross was set ablaze at a black couple's home.

Firefighters were called shortly before midnight Saturday to the home of Hugh and Sheila Spigner. The cross had been draped with clothing, leaned against the house and ignited, authorities said. The Spigners were alone in the house and were not injured.

Police said the weekend incident probably was not relatd to a Sept. 20 cross-burning on the lawn of another black Norwalk family. Two teen-agers were arrested in connection with that incident.

GM head softens opposition

DETROIT (AP) — The head of General Motors Corp. appears to have softened his opposition to federal help to the ailing Chrysler Corp.

GM Chairman Thomas Murphy, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday said only that the government should "be prudent" in aiding Chrysler. He said GM would not lobby against aid to its competitor.

Shortly after Chrysler said it would seek government help, Murphy said he thought it should not be granted, and was denounced by United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser.

Hot rod rally to melee

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP) — A hot rod rally in this mountain resort town erupted into a bottle-throwing melee after traffic stalled at a downtown intersection, and 250 persons were arrested, police said.

"It wasn't a riot," Police Chief James Kelly said Sunday. "Most of them are good people, but you get them drinking and they get excited and you have problems."

Cause of crash being probed

CINCINNATI (AP) — The wreckage of a giant Army skycrane helicopter that crashed and killed four people was being prepared today for reassembly to determine what caused the accident.

"There seems to be no doubt that there was a rotor blade lost in flight," Hoffman said. However, he said he did not know what caused the blade, one of six on the aircraft, to come loose.

Castro contends Carter made up story about Soviet troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter cleared his schedule today to work on tonight's speech dealing with a brigade of Soviet troops in Cuba, a controversy that Cuban President Fidel Castro contends Carter invented to bolster his own political image.

So he would have more time to devote to his speech, Carter postponed until Tuesday a scheduled afternoon meeting with President William R. Tolbert, Jr., of Liberia.

Carter worked Sunday on the speech, apparently with his wife, as they wrapped up a weekend in the seclusion of Camp David, Md. The administration, meanwhile, maintained its virtual silence on the issue.

Carter returned this morning to the White House, where he will make the nationally broadcast speech at 9 p.m. EDT. He made the 65-mile trip from Camp David by limousine instead of helicopter because of rainy weather.

The president's public schedule of activities today showed no meetings planned with foreign foreign policy advisers.

He scheduled the address after negotiations with Soviet officials apparently had broken down, with the Russians refusing to budge on Carter's insistence that they change the "status quo." Those talks resumed unexpectedly Sunday but White House spokeman Dale Leibach said he.

The Soviets say the force — which U.S. officials say has 2,000 to 3,000 soldiers, 40 tanks and artillery and armored personnel carriers — has been stationed in Cuba since 1962 with the full knowledge of previous American presidents and is not a combat brigade.

White House spokesman Dale Leibach said he did not believe Carter had summoned any speech writers to the presidential retreat, indicating he was working on the speech alone with his wife.

But while Carter remained secluded, administration activity related to the Soviet brigade continued in Washington.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin held an unscheduled meeting at the State Department Sunday afternoon.

However, the administration maintained its virtual silence on the entire Cuban issue with State Department spokesman David Nall declining to give any indication of the purpose of the 84-minute meeting or even which side had instigated it.

Later, Vance met at the White House for three hours with other top administration officials including Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and presidential national security admiser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Leibach said that meeting had been scheduled previously to discuss the president's speech and was not specifically related to the Vance-Dobrynin meeting.

As Carter and administration officials worked on their response to what U.S. officials insist are Soviet combat troops in Cuba, Castro "challenged" Carter to tell the truth about what the Cuban leader portrayed as "an invented crisis" and "a comedy."

Carter scheduled tonight's address to the nation after negotiations with Soviet officials apparently had broken down, with the Russians refusing to budge on Carter's insistence that they change the "status quo."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko returned to Moscow last week after meeting in New York with Vance, gaving no indication that the Soviets would soften their position.

The Vance-Dobrynin meeting Sunday came as a surprise since no U.S.-Soviet meetings had been scheduled after Gromyko's departure. News agencies were notified of the meeting only after it had begun.

"If President Carter tomorrow (today) says that there has been a change in the number, the nature or in the function of the Soviet military personnel in Cuba since 1962 — he will be telling a great lie," Castro said in an interview broadcast on the CBS News program "60 Minutes."

"I'm not denying that there's Soviet military personnel in our country, I'm saying that it is exactly the same military personnel organized in the same way as 17 years ago," Castro said.

He said Carter was making an issue of the Soviet troops partly to enhance his re-election chances.

"I challenge Carter to explain to the U.S. people and the world public opinion the truth and to say when" this post was established in Cuba, Castro said.

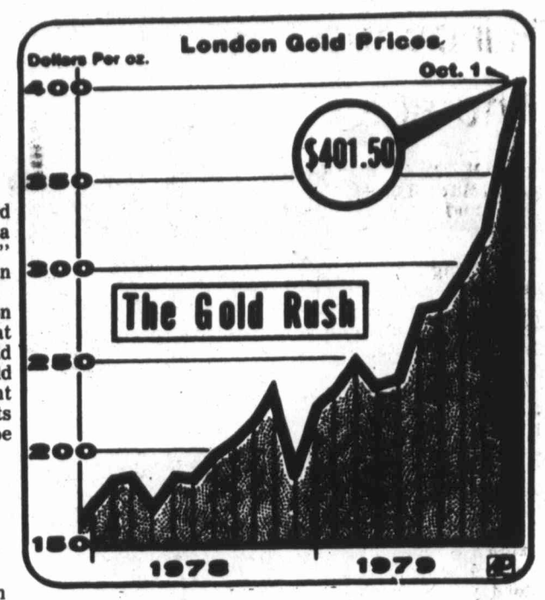

He added that although he would not popose a meeting with Carter, he would "have no objections to having a contact with President Carter or anyone he appoints" if Carter initiated such a meeting.

He also said his nation would "not be intimidated" by any increase in U.S. military presence in the area of Cuba that Carter might announce.

Also Sunday, Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, the senior Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said a Soviet brigade in Cuba could become a "roadblock" to ratification of the SALT II arms limitation agreement with the Soviets if the situation continues to be "blown up and agitated."

"In short, everybody went for a political joy ride and it turns out to have been a great mistake because the United States cannot afford to have itself painted into a corner in this situation," said Javits, speaking on CBS' "Face the Nation."

He said the Soviet Union should change any combat troops into support units and the United States should demand a "significant promise" that Soviets combat troops will never be placed in Cuba.

Gold breaks $400 in London, Zurich today

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold shattered the $400 an ounce-barrier in Europe Monday, hitting $414.75 an ounce in London and and $406 in Zurich as the dollar dropped to its second-lowest point ever against the strong West German mark.

After starting the week stronger, the dollar also sank to an 11-month low against the Italian lira in Milan. In Frankfurt, the dollar was trading at 1.7365 marks, only 0.008 marks above the low point in the dollar crisis at the end of last October.

In Hong Kong the gold price had retreated on profit-taking to $394.38 and the price fell back in early London trading to $395.25, down from $396.25 at the opening and from $397.50 late Friday. But it surged ahead in later trading and the afternoon fixing price was $414.75.

In Zurich, the new record came after the morning price had eased to $395.00, down from $396.50 Friday.

Only weeks ago, gold was changing hands at $300 an ounce, but it rose more than $18 in one day alone — last Thursday — as part of the steady upward surge toward what the market regards as the psychologically important $400 area.

The dollar started Monday morning on a firmer note in Europe and the Far East, clearly helped by statements after the U.S.-German meeting.

15-year term is handed down

United Way critics think so

Charity often compulsory?

NEW YORK (AP) — It is fall, and as part of the American ritual, industry is distributing United Way payroll deduction forms to its employees, the easier for them to make their charitable contributions.

Suppose you don't give. Will it matter that your refusal might hinder promotion possibilities of your boss, who heads the office effort? Or might embarass the company president, who heads the local UW drive?

The United Way, or as they say, the "put all your begs in one ask-it" approach, usually wins support from local business because, among other things, it supposedly ends the nuisance of repeated requests.

Under UW aegis, local institutions are allocated certain sums from one community appeal, generally led by a prominent local executive whose charitable instincts sometimes run second to his sense of competition.

That being so, say United Way's critics, charity is often compulsory rather than voluntary. Consider this segment of letter from an angry West Coast executive to his laggard subordinates:

"...frankly, our results look terrible. I have bent over backwards seeing that you be given maximum salary treatment. Next year is another year. Will you please sit down and reconsider your pledge?"

All this is from "Charity U.S.A.," which Times Books soon will have in bookstores, and which is bound to kick off more controversies this fall than there are football games or charity kickoff drives.

After five years of dogged research and interviews, Carl Bakal, author and social critic, bluntly writes that UW, the biggest fund raiser, "most sacred of charity's sacred cows," is "giving sour milk.'

One of his strongest accusations is that the money collected is often routed routinely to established, acceptable, middleclass, usually white charities, while newer causes have to fight for small change.

The office of William Aramony, UW's national chief executive, was told of Bakal's reference to sacred cows and sour milk. It reflected, called back and suggested the author's view was the sour factor.

"What is sacred about United Way," said Aramony's office, "is the belief in voluntary, private initiative and a pluralistic society," a society that it said has "room for authors with poor taste buds."

Other charities are likely to react less charitably; some may compare it to another bovine product.

The author found charity to be a peculiarly American habit, one that might even be the largest industry, but one that is often inefficient, unfair, involuntary, frequently irrelevant, and sometimes corrupt.

Readers might be apalled, but engrossed, too. In telling the story of 400 charities, Bakal covers America — health, wealth and culture — with anecdotes, interviews, and personal experiences in a manner reminiscent of John Gunther and his "Inside" books. His comments are incitive.

Rhodesian commandos kill 500 guerrillas

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe Rhodesia (AP) — Zimbabwe Rhodesian commandos destroyed the main base of Robert Mugabe's black guerrillas and killed 500 of them during a four-day raid into Mozambique that ended today, the Argus Africa news service reported. Argus publishes several South African newspapers.

There was no immediate comment from military officials in Salisbury, who said a communique likely would be issued later today.

Mugabe's men and Joshua Nkomo's guerrillas in Zambia, joined in the Patriotic Front alliance, have been fighting a nearly seven-year-long war for control of Rhodesia and are now engaged in slow-moving peace talks with Zimbabwe Rhodesian leaders in Britain.

Argus quoted military sources as saying the commandos initially met spirited resistance in their attack on a base 25 miles inside Mozambique, but pushed on and "cleaned out" the base.

The sources said some whites were seen among the camp's defenders, apparently a reference to military advisers from communist countries. The sources also said three Mozambican army tanks of Russian make briefly intervened in the battle but pulled out when they drew fire.

Rhodesian deaths were put at three by the sources.

The goal of the attack was to prevent any escalation of the guerrilla war inside Rhodesia if the London peace talks involving Mugabe, Nkomo, Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa of Zimbabwe Rhodesia and white former Prime Minister Ian Smith break down, Argus said.

HE'LL SUPPORT CARTER FOR RE-ELECTION — Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Andrew Young said Sunday in a press conference in Nassau that he plans to support Carter for re-election in the upcoming presidential campaign. Young added that he is certain Carter will come out the winner, despite Carter's poor showings in recent polls.

Caylor slides are displayed

Gerri Atwell, curator, presented a 15-minute slide show with taped descriptive narration by Joe Pickle on H.W. Caylor paintings to the Federal Retired Employees Association last week at Kentwood Senior Citizens Center.

This slide show includes all of Caylor paintings which are housed in the museum, both originals and reproductions. Anyone wishing to have this slide show for group meetings is invited to call the museum at 267-8255 and make arrangements with Mrs. Atwell.

Museum visitors during the last week who are visiting friends and relatives in Big Spring included Margaret Martin of Canyon who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Aurora Etheridge; Jean Dublin Kemper, Phoenix, Ariz., who is visiting her sister, Dorothy Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ingles of Franlin, N.J. and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Blackwood, Rockville, Md., cousins to Dorothy Garrett and Jean Kemper; and Marsha Spruill, Flagstaff, Ariz., visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Spruill.

There were also visitors from Oklahoma, North Carolina, Missouri, Florida and Minnesota.

The extent of service and the casket you select will be priced and established for you, now at today's prices. The full amount can be set aside in a trust fund at your bank, payable when the need arises. The trust can (if so arranged) even earn a high rate of interest. Your lawyer or banker can assist you in this, along with the counsel and forms we provide.

There's also the No-Payment form of funeral pre-arrangement in which you simply specify what kind of service and casket you will want. You keep a copy in your family records, as do we, so that at death, your family can act according to your wishes. In this type of pre-plan, no money is deposited — just your wishes. Another unseasonably warm day expected

By The Associated Press

Clear skies prevailed across most of Texas today as forecasters predicted another unseasonably warm day.

Some thick fog developed along the upper gulf coast during the early morning hours, reducing visibility to near zero.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from the upper 40s in the western mountains to near 70 in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and northeastern and south central portions of the state.

The forecast called for fair skies over the state with high temperatures in the 90s prevailing over most sections. Some cooling was expected in the Panhandle due to a cold front approaching from the north.

WEATHER FORECAST

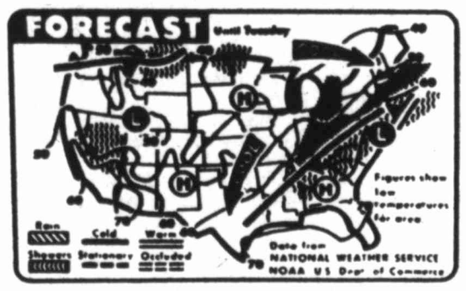

WEST TEXAS — Fair through Tuesday. Cooler in most sections by Tuesday. Highs near 80 in the mountains, mid 80s in the Panhandle and near 102 in the Big Bend. Lows mid 40s in the mountains and north to low 60s in extreme south. Highs Tuesday 80s in most sections except mid 90s in the Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST

WEST TEXAS — Fair Wednesday becoming partly cloudy most sections Thursday and Friday. Warm Wednesday turning a little cooler northeast Thursday and over most sections Friday. High Wednesday 80s north to 90s south cooling to 70s north, 80s central and 90s southwest by Friday. Lows in 40s north to 60s south through Friday.

Groups plan for program

A joint involvement between Lakeview Kindergarten, under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Nanny and Mrs. Bernice Daniels, and the Coahoma Kindergarten, taught by Mrs. Sandy Wanner and Mrs. Bo Fryar, has been in progress for two years now. Last year, Coahoma classes came to Lakeview for a picnic lunch and Lakeview students went to Coahoma for a program.

Friday, the groups performed for each other at Lakeview School. The occasion was a planned project, outlined in the Lippencott Book Series which Big Spring schools use. At the conclusion of the first book, dealing with various shapes, the climax is a parade. The second Lippencott book deals with circles and culminates in a picnic.

Combining the two, Lakeview invited Coahoma to see its parade for which the students made and decorated hats, paper vests and rattle-type instruments. Each school's students brought a sack lunch for a picnic.

Coahoma returned the entertainment by bringing its circus which had been performed earlier in Coahoma at the high school auditorium.

Coahoma mothers made the costumes and an elaborate back drop of a circus tens. The outstanding acts ranged from a snake charmer and tight rope walkers to singing dogs, all performed to music.

The two groups plan a later get-together in April or May, possibly with both groups becoming involved with the Coahoma high school rodeo.

Parents were invited to attend both the parade, held in the Lakeview gym, and the circus.

Closer look

Problems still there

By SCOTT CARPENTER and JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements probably wished last week he were back in the Soviet Union.

He came home from an agriculture-oriented trade mission to Eastern Europe to find many of the same problems we left behind three weeks earlier.

His welcome-back-to-reality initiation came in El Paso, where he was pushed and taunted by Mexican-American activists outside a League of United Latin American Citizens' reception.

The demonstrators called Clements a racist and contended that some LULAC officials had prostituted the interests of Mexican-Americans.

The following night the governor drew tough questions from news reporters on a Public Broadcasting System television show. Questioning centered on the Gulf of Mexico oil spill and SEDCO, the drilling company that Clements founded and that owned the rig at the spill site.

The next morning he encountered the same type of questioning at his first Austin news conference in several weeks — and obviously didn't like it.

Clements reiterated that he has no direct connection to SEDCO (his stock in the company is in a blind trust and his son Gill runs the business) but he doesn't believe any suit against the company will be successful.

The governor also accused the news media of playing up negative effects of the oil spill and not reporting sufficiently the current clean state of the beach.

Clements then demanded that the reporters ask about some other subject, and surprisingly most did. If Richard Nixon had been able to control news conferences like that, he might have served out his second term.

Gov. Clements doesn't have the same problem with his lieutenant governor that California Gov. Jerry Brown does.

Whenever Brown leaves the state his second-in-command tries to undo his programs and plans. This has provoked a legal fight over the powers of the lieutenant governor when the head man is out of the Golden State.

Things are more gentlemanly in Texas. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby quietly held the reins of power in Clements' absence, and then left on a trade mission of his own to China.

A Texas Senate interim study committee will look into ways of reducing bureaucratic paperwork.

"We must call a halt to this paperwork monster which is a source of confusion and frustration to us all," committee chairman Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston said in a news release last week.

The news release consisted principally of quotations by Ogg about that committee and a committee on charitable organizations that the senator also heads.

It was printed on paper, of course, and placed in capitol press offices along with the dozens of other news releases state officials crank out daily in hopes of free publicity.

Cast members rarely change in power football

Although professional football has captured the imagination of people who love controlled violence, interest in college football is at an all-time high. It's not easy to understand why.

Unlike the college people, the play-for-pay brain trusts devised a scheme whereby through the draft a weak team can become a contender in the short space of two or three seasons. Witness the success of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

THE NFL PLAN is so good, it has become the envy of big league baseball, where some teams have never been able to establish parity, no matter how well they come off in their version of a draft or how much money they invest trying to buy talent from another team.

College football, however, does not strive to emulate either its professional cousins or baseball. It goes with the same old power trust year in and year out. The haves get richer, the have-nots fight for the crumbs.

The have-nots co-exist because, in exchange for a banner gate that might enable them to stave off bankruptcy for a year or two, they approach their so-called big tests with macochistic resignation. In short, they are willing to take their lumps, some times by such horrendous scores as 60-0 and 72-7, to stay their hour of execution.

Year in and year out, the national championship (so-called) is passed around among the likes of Southern California, Alabama, the University of Texas, Oklahoma, Ohio State, Michigan, Penn State and Notre Dame.

Those teams recruit mightily, yet the NCAA rarely blows the whistle on them for recruiting violations. If some institution gets stung for romancing sought-after talent, it invariably is the likes of a school like Shiloh Southern or Highland Heather. The NCAA can get downright indignant with those schools which are without political muscle.

IF POWERHOUSES like Oklahoma or USC are getting a lot of support in the voting for the hardware that goes within the honor of being Numero Uno, and coincidentally are playing vapid opponents, chances are each does nothing to lessen the slaughter taking place on that particular day — fearful a small (though decent) score might cause the poll participants to stampede and and not vote them as the leaders of the parade.

From time to time, some sanity returns among college administrators. They, if only half-heartedly, come out for one-platoon football or restrictions on the number of scholarships any school can give. Invariably, they are shouted down by the alumni of the schools which dominate the ratings.

The Ivy League got tired years ago of beating its collective heads against the wall in hustling for hired guns. The Yalies and the Princetons still play respectable ball and they don't recruit nine months a year to achieve their successes. The other schools should take note.

Commercials...Ugh

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

The subject of body language has sold many books over the past few years. If you cross your arms in front of you, or your eyes look in the wrong direction, it supposedly says something about all of us. If you scratch your head, it means you are thinking, your head itches or it is just something to do at the moment.

Except for one thing. A local commercial that is running for a shampoo says tht if you scratch your head, something everyone does sometimes in their life, it means, according to the commercial, dandruff.

Sick, isn't it?

IF THE COMMERCIAL reaches people the way the compnay wants, everyone will feel self-conscious about scratching their head. And not only that, according to the commercial, if you scratch your head, since it always means dandruff, even if nobody sees it, people will ASSUME you have it an do not want to socialize with you.

Sick, isn't it?

I question some of the commercials that are on the air now, for very personal products. But if it is done with some taste, it doesn't annoy me the way, the commercial mentioned above does. Something as simple and practical as shampoo making gullible people feel self-conscious is disgusting.

The latest American Express commercials have people believing if their traveler's checks are not their company's, they can't get a refund. After many complaints, American Express had Karl Malden retape the ending, saying other companies will give a refund. But the basic commercials are the same, and very insulting.

THERE ARE some great commercials on the air that probably take more time and money to make than some of the television shows, but there are not enough.

There is one commercial that I love because I get a good laugh out of it everytime I see it.

It is for Southwestern Bell. A family is moving into their new home and as they are unpacking they find messages all over from their former neighbors telling them not to forget to call.

The happy family thinks it is great and call their former neighbors to tell them they saw the messages. Everybody is laughing and having a good time. This is all done to catchy music in the background.

Only one problem. I have never known Southwestern Bell to get anyone's phone in on moving day. The average family has to wait a little while, just long enough to redecorate their new home twice.

Infield practice

William F. Buckley, Jr.

WASHINGTON — Sources close to the Robert Vesco investigation believe they have largely solved the mystery, although some jigsaw pieces are still missing. Their version of the case would appear to implicate the White House in a criminal conspiracy.

Vesco was a financial freebooter who skipped the country to avoid criminal prosecution. He wanted the Carter administration to drop the charges and halt extradition proceedings against him. In return he offered to transfer stock, worth an estimated $12 million, to some Gerogia fixers.

A $10,000 ADVANCE was paid to Spencer Lee IV, an Albany, Ga., buddy of White House stalwarts Hamiltmn Jordan and Richard Harden. On the eve of President Carter's inaugural, Lee flew to Costa Rica to discuss the deal with Vesco.

An understanding allegedly was reached, and Lee flew to Nassau where he helped form a dummy corporation to launder the anticipated payoff. Then he flew to Washington where he huddled with Harden on Feb. 8, 1977.

The White House has put out the story that Harden, upon learning that Vesco was willing to pay "a large sum of money" to get his legal troubles fixed, persuaded Lee to pull out of the conspiracy. Both participants have stuck to this version.

But Justice Department sources say Lee agreed to take a lie detector test, the results of which indicated he'd lied about this. Telephone records also show that he did not cut off his contacts with Vesco but remained in touch with him for another year.

On Feb. 15, 1977, according to the White House account, Harden met with the president to brief him about Lee's involvement with Vesco. Carter supposedly said that Lee should go to the attorney general if he believed anything illegal was involved.

But again, the polygraph machine indicated that Lee did not tell the truth about the purpose of Harden's meeting with the president, according to our Justice Department sources.

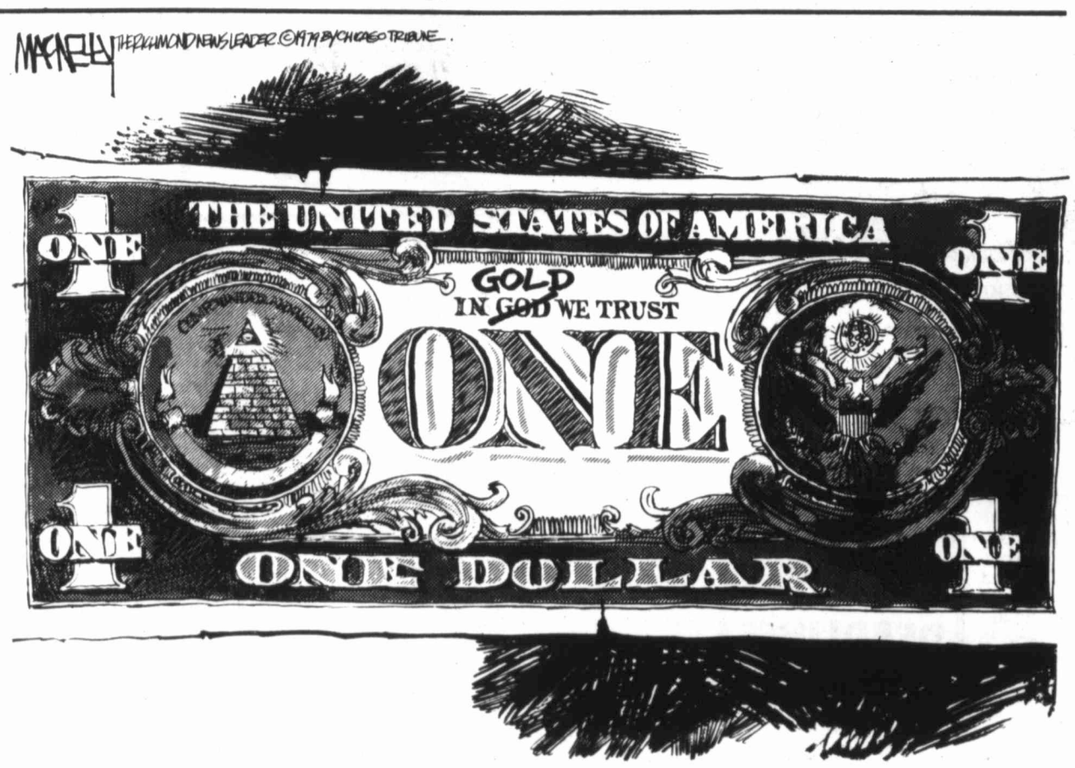

Invesgitators believe Lee enlisted Harden in a scheme, if not to fix Vesco's problems, at least to impress Vesco that something was being done for him. Harden went to the president, the investigators suspect, to arrange entree for Lee to the Justice Department.

In Harden's presence, Carter wrote a note to Griffin Bell, then the attorney general: "Please see Spencer Lee from Albany when he requests an appointment." Bell has claimed that he never saw the note and that Lee never sought an appointment.

BUT THIS WAS followed by two developements: (1) In June 1977, the administration abandoned attempts to extradite Vesco from Costa Rica; and (2) a month earlier, the president appointed Lee to a judicial nominating committee to help select federal judges.

There is no evidence that these moves were made with any intention of aiding Vesco. In fact, a Justice Department memo suggests that the extradition attempts were abandoned in favor of a different strategy to seek Vesco's expulsion from Costa Rica.

But Vesco had reason to believe that Lee was getting results in Washington. The financial fugitive went ahead, therefore, with the transfer of the $12 million stock. This was achieved, in typical Vesco style, through a complex financial maneuver in Panama, using straw men.

Antibiotic colitis a medical rarity

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Why don't doctors tell their patients that taking too much antibiotic can cause colitis? This happened to me a few years ago after taking antibiotic shots for the flu. Anyway, a few months later I read an article stating that too many antibiotics will cause colitis. I wish I had read that article earlier. — F.D.

Colitis is inflammation of the large bowel (colon). What you say is true, but such a complication is a very special and uncommon problem with antibiotics. When it happens it is a serious situation. Many antibiotics have been implicated.

The problem is the use of antibiotics when there is a special kind of bacterium in the bowel at the time. This is called "colstridium difficile" (difficile being the Latin word for "stubborn"). It comes by its name honestly, because it is an organism that is not affected by antibiotics. In fact, it grows in spite of that medicine. One reason for that is that other normal organisms are killed by the medicine, further inviting growth of the "difficile" bacterium. A vicious circle arises, and I'm sure this is the rare occurrence you experienced.

Untoward reactions are possible with all drugs. It is virtually impossible for the doctor to list each and every potential side effect, although in this litigation-conscious society more doctors are finding it necessary to do so. It is this potential for side effects that makes it so important for patients not to pressure their doctors for useless shots just for the sake of shots. This is especially true of antibiotics, which should be reserved only for bacterial infections. Colds and flu are due to viruses, not bacteria, and antibiotics have no effect against viruses. Yet, some patients feel cheated or improperly cared for if the doctor does not whip out a syringe to give them a comforting poke.

Dear Dr. Donohue: This is more of a complaint than a problem, but can you tell me why women seem to find it harder to lose abdominal flab than men do? One reason I can think of is that women bear children and men don't. Several childbirths can weaken abdominal supporting tissue and make whatever flab there seem more pronounced than in men. Additionally, females have fat depositions in "depots" in the abdominal wall. A good reason, incidentally for women to have good post-natal care and exercise those abdominal muscles after childbirth.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I want some information on growth. I am a male, 16, and 5 feet 6 inches tall. I have a brother who is 23 and 5 feet 9 inches. I've heard about hormone shots I can get while I'm still growing. I'm anxious to be tall. I've written before, but got no answer. — E.B.

This is a case of a little information being worse than none. The growth hormone is produced by the pituitary gland. People who, for one reason or another, do not produce sufficient growth hormone remain abnormally short. However, if your hormone production is sufficient, which it most likely is, then additional amounts would not help you grow taller. Heredity plays the major role. Forget the growth problem and concentrate on becoming a good little guard. Your 5 feet 6 inches is far from being abnormally short, and you can expect a few more inches of growth naturally.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What exactly is a hamstring muscle and why do you hear of so many athletes having problems with it? — B.P.R.

The hamstring muscles are those located in back of the knee. They are subject to much strain in many sports. The knee is not the most efficient joint in the body, or at least it seems to fall short of efficiency when we put it to many uses required in some sports.

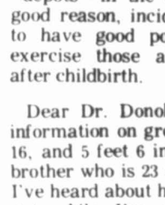

For a better understanding of colitis and other intestinal ailments, their causes and treatment, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When sleeping face down on my arms I usually wake up and find that the area from my hands and fingers to the middle of my upper arms feels numb. Can this lead to permanent damage of the tissues? — A.R.

You are putting pressure on either the blood vessels or the nerves, or both, in your arms. A somewhat similar condition called "Saturday night paralysis" disappears as circulation is restored and pressure removed from the nerves. Saturday night paralysis most often happens to those who have had a bit too much fermented juices and fall asleep in an unusual position on Saturday night, hence its name.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung problem, write to Dr. Donohue for a copy of his booklet on "How to Control Emphysema," care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: One of your answers recently said that everyone will live after death — some in heaven, and some apart from God. I disagree. I think those who don't go to heaven will simply be dead and won't know anything. — B.E.

DEAR B.E.: This view (called "annihilationism" since those who hold it believe we will simply be annihilated at death if we do not go to heaven) is not, I believe, in accordance with the Bible. The Bible says, "Man is destined to die once, and after that to face judgment" (Hebrews 9:27). Jesus also spoke frequently of life after death. In speaking of the final judgment of the righteous and the unrighteous, for example, he said that the unrighteous "will go away to eternal punishment, but the righteous to eternal life" (Matthew 25:46).

I know it is not easy for any of us to face the reality of hell and final judgment. We naturally shrink from it because we know it is terrible. But the Bible teaches the reality of hell as well as heaven, and we must not let our own opinions or feelings take the place of God's Word.

However, we should remember several things. Remember that if we go to hell it will be because we have deliberately refused to obey God. We will go there because we deserve to go there, not because God somehow takes delight in sending us there. The Bible says that God "is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance" (2 Peter 3:9). Remember also that God has provided a way for us to go to heaven. We need not fear hell or judgment. God sent His Son to make our salvation possible. By faith in Him and by trusting what He has done for us on the Cross, we can be saved. Have you committed your life to Him? If not, I urge you to accept Christ as your personal Savior and Lord. "God has given us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He who has the Son has life; he who does not have the Son of God does not have life" (1 John 5:11-12).

Did it exist?

Jack Anderson,

A couple of chaps from the BBC have been over here on the nether side of the pond doing a radio documentary on the awful effects of McCarthyism on America's China policy, and at the interview they came directly to the point:

"Looking back to the '50s, Mr. Buckley, what do you have to say about the disastrous effects on our China policy brought about by McCarthyism?"

I asked: What disastrous effects?

AFTER THEY HAD composed themselves, they informed me that, among other people, they had interviewed the great Professor Owen Lattimore, and that he agreed that the effects of McCarthyism had been diastrous. Lattimore, they pointed out, was one of the principal victims of Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

I had handy — I travel with a copy of it, even when I swim — the book, "McCarthy And His Enemies," which I wrote with Brent Bozell back in 1954. On page 158 is reproduced the jacket copy from a book called "Solution in Asia," which was Owen Lattimore's handbook published in the late '40s, for China policy.

Quote: "He (Lattimore) shows that all the Asiatic people are more interested in actual democratic practices such as the ones they can see in action across the Russian border, than they are in the fine theories of Anglo-Saxon democracies which come coupled with ruthless imperialism . . . He inclines to support American newspapermen who report that the only real democracy in Chian is found in Communist areas." I announced that I found objectionable then, as I find now, 30 years later, the suggestion that Stalin was a practitioner of democracy, that Mao Tse-tung was leading a democratic movement, and false the prophecy that all would go well in China (Lattimore's "Solution") if we backed Mao instead of Chiang Kai-shek.

Well, the BBC said, didn't I find it inexcusable that Henry Luce refused to publish in Time Magazine certain dispatches from Theodore White during that period?

NO, I SAID, not "inexcusable." Because as Theodore White himself reveals in his latest book, he had going there for a while a considerable romance with the Maoists, and Luce distrusted the objectivity of Mr. White's reporting on the subject.

Isn't it typical of the damage done to reputations, what happened to Theodore White?

Theodore White, I said, happens to be one of my favorite people. But I think he too would agree that it is institutionally hazardous to side with an unpopular cause. For instance, Teddy White probably suffered more for writing evenhandedly about Sen. Goldwater in 1965 and about Richard Nixon in 1969 than he ever did at the hands of Henry Luce. So badly was he treated for his Republican heresies that by the time 1975 came around, he was instructing his publisher not to send advance copies of his books to The New York Review of Books, which can cut off a writer's head much more effectively than McCarthy ever did.

"Well, isn't it fair to say that Henry Luce had become an agent of Chaing Kai-shek?"

Only, I said, in the sense that it would be fair to say that a decade earlier Luce had become an agent of the British government in urging U.S. involvement in the struggle against Hitler. Another way to put it is that in 1939 Henry Luce espied an identity of interest between the American people and the British people in opposing Hitler, and in 1949 an identity between the American people and the Chinese people in opposing Mao Tse-tung.

Well, didn't McCarthyism delay our current reconciliation with China?

No. What made possible our current "reconciliation" with China was the dispute that began, three or four years after McCarthy was dead, between China and the Soviet Union.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

We read Eileen McGuire's column "Not the Point" and do believe that she missed the point!!!

The purpose of the letter from the "Concerned Citizens" was not to discount the children but to show that Miss Diaz would not be in such a deplorable situation if she had used some common sense. Miss Diaz's problem as it appears to us, stems from indifference, not ignorance. You don't have to be a genius to comply with Welfare's minimum standards of keeping the children clean, dressed, and fed and the home reasonably clean. After all, soap and water are cheap and elbow grease and concern are free!

In regards to birth control, there are agencies available for counseling. If language was her problem, there are many pamphlets on the subject which are published in Spanish and can be obtained in these agencies. If she did not feel comfortable at an agency we are certain her parish priest would have been available for counseling.

Is it really true that in Miss Diaz's present "poverty stricken environment" that she has no other choice than to continue to procreate, sit home without a job, and draw her checks from the government? According to the last paragraph in Miss McGuire's "Around the Rim," it must be true!!!

Miss McGuire said that the Herald readers had more education than Mary. It appears that we have a better education and more common sense than one particular Herald staff writer. It is evident that all of Miss McGuire's articles, especially Thursday's "Around the Rim" are "much ado about nothing."

Miss McGuire seemed extremely concerned that Miss Diaz was being judged according to the morals of the middle class. Might we point out that the one person who strove to uphold those very same morals was an individual who came from, lived in, and died in poverty, Jesus Christ. And might we add — He didn't sit around waiting for His welfare check!!!

In complete agreement with concerned citizens.

Mrs. A. Hernandez,

Dear Editor:

Last Sunday afternoon my family and I flew into your city by private plane to visit friends.

We would like to express our appreciation for the courteous and friendly greeting and the good service we received at your airport.

The young lady on the radio was most efficient and the two flight men were waiting to park and tie our plane down. We especially want to say thank you again, to R.E. McClure for inviting us in the office and calling our friends of our arrival.

Big Spring citizens are to be commended for providing personnel and facilities so far above that found at most airports. Our visit was very enjoyable.

Chrysler first-- but not last

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world automobile industry is entering one of its most difficult periods and more companies, like Chrysler, will be fighting for their lives, according to a new study.

Decreased oil supplies, demands for more efficient vehicles and saturated markets are forcing auto makers into a new era that offers some of them little hope for survival, researchers from Worldwatch Institute said in a study released this weekend.

The private, non-profit research group concerned with global issues said, "Demands for more efficient cars are forcing automakers to spend billions of dollars in designing and producing a new range of vehicles.

"The auto industry, in effect, is having to boost capital expenditures at a time of recession and depressed earnings," the report said.

This, combined with inflation and an uncertain oil future, means "the automobile industry in both industrial and Third World countries is entering perhaps the most difficult period in its history," said authors Lester R. Brown, Christopher Flavin and Colin Norman.

Brown said the top 10 companies control 80 percent of world auto production and the remaining firms — numbered in the dozens — scramble for the rest.

The world fleet has grown to more than 300 million cars — more than one-third of them in the United States — and 30 million new cars are made each year, he added.

Flavin said in an interview that virtually all the auto companies in the world took a beating in 1974-75 because of the first oil crisis and world recession.

"The smaller companies got into the most trouble because a higher unit volume gives more of an economic buffer than a small one," he said.

For American companies, retooling to produce smaller, more efficient cars, and simultaneously trying to meet government pollution and fuel economy regulations, has added additional strains that larger firms can better cope with.

"You need assets to continue research and development projects required for later generation cars," Flavin said. "So if you are General Motors, you can spread out the costs better than Chrysler because of volume sales."

Of the top 10 auto producers worldwide, only No. 7 Chrysler is in serious trouble, Flavin said. Chrysler is asking the government for a $1 billion bailout.

"I think the world auto demand can support the top 10 companies if they are well managed, but many of the others will be in trouble," Flavin said.

Ranked by size, the other major producers are General Motors, Ford, Toyota, Nissan (Datsun), Volkswagen-Audi, Renault, Ford Europe, Peugeot-Citroen and Fiat. The other major U.S. company, American Motors, is only No. 25 in world production.

Suing nuns

Sisters of Loretta taking on coal company

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — There's one in Russia on a peace mission. Another is a lobbyist in the Colorado Legislature. Still another works on an Indian reservation. And together they're taking on one of the largest coal companies in the South.

Like the Gulf Oil Corp. before it, the Blue Diamond Coal Co. of Knoxville, Tenn., is finding out that the Sisters of Loretto mean business.

The Sisters of Loretto, an order of nuns founded 167 years ago in Kentucky, want the coal company to be more "socially responsible" in mine safety, labor relations and pollution control. To that end, they filed suit Sept. 19 at Chancery Court in Wilmington, Del., where Blue Diamond is chartered.

More than a year ago, the Sisters quietly began buying what few shares were available in the privately-held company. But Blue Diamond refused to list them as stockholders-of-record. It also asked the Sisters to sign affidavits stating that they were not participating in a conspiracy against the company.

In the suit, the order and 13 other stock-holding religious groups and social activists are seeking to be listed as Blue Diamond stockholders and to have the affidavit declared illegal.

For Blue Diamond, the stakes are high. Should the company lose the suit, there is a possiblity that it would have to open up its books to public scrutiny for the first time in its 64-year history.

For the 735 Sisters of Loretto it's just one more in a long history of battles.

In 1812, three frontier teachers founded the order in the middle of Kentucky. It was the first order without ties to Europe established in America.

The name, originally Friends of Mary, was changed to honor a famous shrine in Loretto, Italy. And, as the frontier moved west, so did the Sisters of Loretto.

Today they can be found working as teachers, nurses, social workers and activists in more than 20 states.

Although the headquarters was moved to Denver in 1970, the Mother House — the spiritual headquarters — is still in tiny Nerinx, Ky., about 50 miles south of Louisville.

About 110 of the sisters, mostly retired, live there surrounded by 300 acres of wooded farmland and 19th century buildings.

"Our order isn't very structured," said Sister Cecily Jones, communications director. "The everyday routine is left up to the individual Most of the sisters live in ordinary houses and wear ordinary clothes, rather than habits."

The Sisters of Loretto were reorganized in 1970 along democratic lines. They elect a president every four years and hold annual assemblies.

"Our history has given us a greater need to change," said Sister Mary Swain, the order's finance director. "It's pert of the frontier tradition."

That frontier spirit has also motivated the order to seek changes in society.

One of their weapons is money.

The Sisters give all the money they earn to the order, which gives them living expenses and invests the rest in a retirement fund.

"We are not speculators, so the investments have to give a good return," Sister Swain explained. "But we also feel that we have to be socially responsible."

To be socially responsible means promoting reforms in a company by introducing resolutions at annual stockholder meetings.

They have used that method on several companies, but the most successful effort invovled Gulf Oil Corp. In 1976. they introduced a resolution calling for Gulf to stop all political contributions to South Korea.

After meeting with the sisters, Gulf agreed to forbid the contributions.

The order hasn't been able to use the same method against Blue Diamond because the company refuses to register them as stockholders, even though they own 81 shares.

Under federal law, corporations with 500 or more registered stockholders must open their books and policies to public scrutiny.

Blue Diamond, whose stock is largely controlled by its founding family — the Bonnymens of Knoxville, Tenn. — has never offically gone over the 500-stockholder limit.

But the sisters and their allies believe they have indirect evidence to prove differently.

In January 1978, Blue Diamond sent out a letter to stock holders offering to buy all their stock at an 11 percent premium. The letter noted that the company had 513 stockholders as of September 1977.

Ralph Dye, vice president and corporate secretary, said he wouldn't comment on the merits of the nuns' suit.

"I don't know what they want, except to harass us and make a nuisance out of themselves," Dye said in a telephone interview.

"Our decision to sue didn't have anything to do with the union," Sister Swain said. "Our concern is with the safety of the miners, but we are not working with the UMW in any way."

Pope to arrive in Boston today

Crowds brave misty weather for glance

BOSTON (AP) — Despite a chilling mist and the threat of steady rain, scores of spectators, the vanguard of an estimated 2 million people, kept an all-night vigil near the Boston Common, waiting for a spot to see Pope John Paul II at the start of his tour of six U.S. cities.

Officials predicted the pope's visit would more than double Boston's population as special trains and buses carried in pilgrims. Much of the city — groomed and draped with papal flags — was closed late Sunday to most traffic.

Teams of police and National Guardsmen began clearing the specially-marked motorcade route earlier in the weekend.

An afternoon papal Mass at the downtown park, once the spot where Puritans pilloried and hanged Quakers, was expected to attract between 400,000 and 1 million people — and at least one demonstration — to this city of 640,000. Another 1 million people were expected to line the 20-mile route of the Pope's motorcade.

Cold, rainy weather did not deter many who waited through the night for the Common, roped off by police Sunday, to re-open at 7 a.m.

"We wanted to have the experience first hand. It's something you can't grasp on television," said Wayne Bates, 19, who with Jim Standring, 17, set up camp on a street corner within sight of the red carpeted altar.

Standring and Bates arrived equipped with sleeping bags, doughnuts and fruit juice. They planned to stay awake until the Common opened.

"We'll sleep when we get the spot we want," said Standring.

Black state legislators said they would lead a march from the city's Roxbury section to the Common to protest Friday's shooting of a black high school football player in predominantly white Charlestown.

Darryl Williams, 15, was paralyzed from the neck down in the shooting. Three white youths were arrested Sunday in connection with the incident.

"We could not in good conscience allow the person who is responsible for peoples' moral and spiritual lives to be unaware of what is happening here," said state Rep. Mel King, protest leader.

King, who said he believed the shooting was racially inspired, said the demonstrators would carry banners in hopes that John Paul would read them.

After the pope's visit to to Boston, he will visit New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Washington and Des Moines, Iowa.

Cardinal Humberto Medeiros, the leader of the 2 millionmember Boston Archdiocese, and first lady Rosalynn Carter were to greet the pope at the airport.

His Boston schedule included a motorcade through the city's predominantly Italian-American North End, South Boston and predominantly Irish-American Dorchester, and a prayer service for 2,000 New England priests.

The Mass on Boston Common was scheduled for 5 p.m. The pope was to spend the night at the cardinal's residence, then leave Tuesday morning for New York.

HUG FROM THE POPE — Pope John Paul II stoops from his throne on the specially built altar at Limerick racecourse Monday, to hug Paul Hickey, and Liz Power, who had presented him with flowers. The Pope held a mass for an estimated 400,000 people, at the last stop on his three-day tour of Ireland.

Girl scouts to sell calendars this month

October is Calendar Month in the West Texas Council of Girl Scouts. Girls will sell the 1980 Girl Scout calendar for 80 cents each. The troop earns the profit for the troop budget for program supplies and activities of the girls.

The 1980 calendar bears the new Girl Scout logo: three faces of girls, silhouetted with a trefoil design in green above "Girl Scouts" in blue.

October is also where the future begins in Girl Scouting for all Girl Scout adult and girl members in the nation.

One out of every ten girls in the United States between the ages of 6 and 17 is a Girl Scout. They are led by Girl Scout volunteers — adults who are prepared for the future and making sure that the nation's daughters are, too.

Membership is available to any girl or adult who wishes to become a member whether in a troop group or as a non-troop affiliated member by registering with the West Texas Girl Scout Council and paying annual national membership dues of $3. The payment of the membership dues automatically covers the girl or adult with basic accident insurance.

Each member automatically becomes a member of the largest voluntary organization of its kind for girls, the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts, with 100 countries involved.

Girls can enter and progress in Girl Scouting at any one of four levels: Brownie, 6-8 years; Junior, 9-11; Cadette, 12-14; Senior 14-17.

PINS, PATTERNS AND PEOPLE — The earliest patterns commonly used for women's clothing were simply shaped blocks of paper. Some sophistication was added for shaping in the period from 1830 to 1860. In the exhibit, "Pins, Patterns and People," at The Museum of Texas Tech University the tools as well as the patterns and garments of various periods are on display.

Early dressmaking methods exhibited at Tech museum

LUBBOCK — The linsey-woolsey described in history books, a goffering iron like the one the first Queen Elizabeth's dressmakers must have used for her neck ruffs, and patterns for the elegant dresses of an earlier America are on display at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

"Pins, Patterns and People" is an exhibit of early dressmaking tools, materials and patterns, but the exhibit also demonstrates dressmaking methods. A progression of sewing machines, showing one of the earliest models along with a modern computer model, is on display.

Early handmade pins, treasured by seamstresses because of their cost, are included in the exhibit. The half-muslins in the exhibit were constructed by students of clothing and textiles in Texas Tech University's College of Home Economics. Half-muslins are half of a garment made of cheap muslin fabric. Before patterns were standardized, women cut patterns from old garments and constructed half a garment of cheap fabric to be sure the pattern would fit. Once sure that the pattern was correct, it would be used on the silk or other finer fabric that the woman intended to wear.

The history of the sewing machine also is chronicled in the exhibit. It was invented by Barthelemy Thimonier of France in 1830, but workers who feared it would steal jobs destroyed his equipment. The American, Elias Howe, improved on Thimonier's design in 1846. Issac Singer patented refinements on their inventions, and his machine became famous. It was not common for home use, however, until after the American Civil War.

Patterns for men's garments came before patterns for women's wear. Betty Mills, curator of costumes and textiles at The Museum, explained that so many men served in the military and sizing was necessary for supplying uniforms, so men's sizes were standardized early. Women's dimensions were less well known.

Ebenezer Butterick, however, is credited with developing the first sized patterns for women, and these were introduced in 1863. The idea caught on and magazines, like "Harper's Bazar," published pattern supplements in each issue. These were large pages of intermingled lines. The dressmaker would have to decide on one of the numbered lines, trace the pattern and then construct the garment.

The exhibit ends with a 1979 disco dress made especially for the show.

Admission to Museum exhibits are free. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 1 to 4:30 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Time to leave nest

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 19-year-old girl who has an alcoholic father who never allows me to go anywhere. On top of that, I'm always working around the house doing all the cooking, dishes, washing the clothes and cleaning.

If I walk out of the house my dad gets upset because he thinks some guy might look a me.

I still don't have a job and don't know when I will get one with the way things are at home.

I have a chance to get out of the house and live with an aunt in another city but I don't know if I should. Please give me some guidance. — Carrie, Windsor, Ontario, Canada

Carrie: It's about time you tried to fly on your own. Yes, move in with your aunt and look for a challenging job.

But don't forget your parents. Keep in close contact with them by letter, phone and whenever possible, visit them.

Dr. Wallace: While in high school, I dated a certain girl for over two years and we planned to get married after graduation.

We didn't set a date but we decided to wait until she completed one year of college.

Well, after the one year was up, she told me that she decided that she no longer wanted to get married and that she couldn't be happy with me.

This came as a big shock to me because I thought everything was just fine. Needless to say, I was very hurt and there was nothing I could do to change her mind.

She did say that she still wanted to be friends but every time I call her or ask her to go somewhere, she says she is busy.

In the last few months I have seen her only a couple of times. I still love this girl and I want to keep seeing her but I don't know if I should. What should I do? It's very hard to be friends if we never talk or see each other. — Steve, Mt. Pleasant, Texas

Steve: Stop torturing yourself. It's over, even the friendship. Almost always the two people involved in this type situation never remain friends. It just doesn't work out that way.

Bedside Manners

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the newlywed signed FRUSTRATED, who couldn't wait for her husband to be released from the hospital to have sex, reminded me of a similar incident.

Years ago, when I was on night duty at a hospital, a woman patient rang her bell and asked if I'd mind standing guard.

RETIRED RN, MILWAUKEE

DEAR RETIRED: At least she asked.

DEAR ABBY: I was once in the same predicament as FRUSTRATED, and my husband and I were ready to climb the walls. Then we spoke to his doctor, who wrote my husband a "prescription" and gave it to the head nurse. (We still have the "prescription" in our scrapbook.)

One nurse entered our room out of curiosity, but we felt justified in telling her to stay out — that it was doctor's orders that we were not to be disturbed for two hours.

SAVED BY UNUSUAL PRESCRIPTION

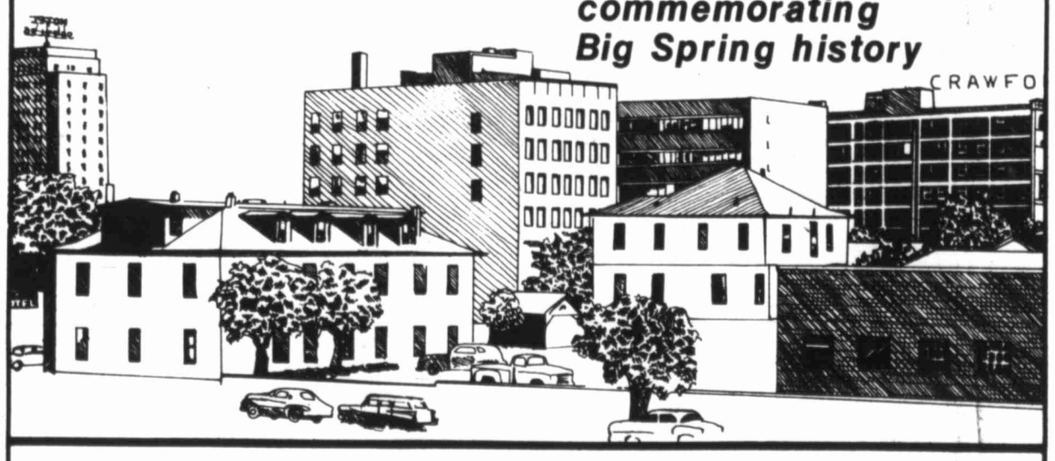

DEAR ABBY: As an RN in a Houston hospital I have seen some mighty strange goings-on. I recall a complaint from a woman who was sharing a double room with a pretty young girl who had broken both legs in a skiing accident. It seems that the girl (with both legs in casts, yet!) had frequent visits from her husband, during which time they carried on as though they were in a private room. When I confronted the young girl with her roommate's complaint, she said, "If she's such a prude, she can turn the other way."

Information best weapon against inflation

By The Associated Press

Information can be a shopper's best weapon in the battle against inflation. How wellarmed are you?

Here are some of the questions in a recent survey on economics and consumerism conducted by the National Assessment of Educational Progress among 17-year-old high school students. The answers are below, along with the teen-agers' responses. See how you measure up.

1. It is legal: (a) To advertise a $4,000 car at $90 per month without including credit terms? (b) To keep, without obligation, unordered merchandise you get in the mail? (c) For a chain store to charge different prices in different neighborhoods? (d) For supermarkets to raise prices on the day welfare checks are issued?

2. Which of the following statements are true? (a) Advertising may help increase sales and lower prices for a new product. (b) Companies that advertise more always produce better products. (c) Production costs are less than advertising costs for some items.

3. Which is the best buy: (a) A four-ounce bag of potato chips at 22 cents? (b) a six-ounce bag at 28 cents? (c) An eight-ounce bag at 48 cents? (d) A 20-ounce bag at $1?

4. Which is the biggest deduction from the average pay check? (a) Federal income tax. b)b) State tax. (c) Social Security. (d) Sales tax.

5. Who is most likely to benefit financially during a period of rapidly rising prices? (a) A person on a fixed salary. (b) A homeowner with a long-term mortgage. (c) An individual on a fixed retirement income. (d) A person who has loaned $10,000 at today's loan rates. (e) Someone who owns a paid-up life insurance policy.

6. What is the cost of a bottle of soda if a six-pack costs $1.20 including a five-cent deposit on each bottle?

Now the answers.

1. Only (a) — advertising the car at $90 a month without giving credit terms — is illegal. Forty-three percent of the 17-year-olds mistakenly thought the practice was legal; 41.1 percent knew it was illegal; 15.4 percent said they didn't know the answer and the rest didn't reply. More than half the youngsters thought it was illegal for supermarkets to raise prices the day welfare checks come out; 30 percent thought different prices in different neighborhoods were illegal; and just under 50 percent thought that they had some obligation if they kept unordered merchandise they got in the mail.

2. Both (a) and (c) are true. A majority of the 17-year-olds got the right answers. But about one in five erroneously said that companies that advertise more always produce better products.

3. The answer is (b). Only 40 percent of the teen-agers were right.

4. Federal income tax — (a) takes the biggest bite. Just under half the youngsters answered correctly.

5. The answer is (b). The homeowner will be repaying his or her debt with "cheaper" dollars, worth less than when they were borrowed. Only 14 percent the 17-year-olds got the ri answer.

6. Each bottle costs cents. More than half of t students — 55 percent either gave the wrong a swer, didn't know or didn reply.

Pokes pound Bengals, get back on track

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Although the Cincinnati Bengals can't be confused with the Pittsburgh Steelers, the Dallas Cowboys will take Sunday's 38-13 pounding of the Bengals as a sign they are back on the Super Bowl track.

There was an honest-to-goodness pass rush, which had been missing, three interceptions that led to touchdowns, and a tough-running Tony Dorsett, who gained 119 yards.

"This game gives us confidence," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "We were losing some confidence after that Monday night game."

Dallas took a 26-7 thumping from Cleveland Monday night and hadn't played particularly well in three victories, resorting to fourth-quarter Roger Staubach come-from-behind passes for victory.

Rookie cornerback Aaron Mitchell, safety Randy Hughes, and rookie lineman Bruce Thornton intercepted passes and the Cowboys cashed them for touchdowns.

Hughes ran his interception back 68 yards to set up the first of two Scott Laidlaw touchdown runs, and Mitchell lugged his 36 yards to put Dallas in position for the second of two Staubach touchdown passes.

Hughes said, "The defense as a whole didn't play as well as we're capable, but we'll get better."

Mitchell said, "It was like a dream ... I wanted to score bad, to take the pressure from the offense and for my own sake too."

Defensive end Larry Cole said the Cowboys, "talked all week" about improving the pass rush. Dallas got to Ken Anderson three times and rookie Jack Thompson once.

"We worked on our techniques and got back to the fundamentals," said Cole. "We feel we'll beat anybody if we don't beat ourselves."

Dorsett, who had been booed because of his fumbling, said "I feel like I'm back where I was last year when the season ended. I haven't been concentrating on not fumbling because that takes away from my running ... that's not what they pay me for."

Dallas built up a 21-6 halftime lead on touchdown runs of 3 and 1 yards by Laidlaw and a three-yard Staubach-to-tight end Billy Joe DuPree TD connection.

The Bengals, who only had two Chris Bahr field goals as an offensive punch in the first half, got back into the game on a 10-yard scoring pass from Anderson to Don Bass.

Then Mitchell made his interception, Staubach hit Tony Hill on a nine-yard TD pass and the rout was on.

It was the Bengals' fifth loss without a win.

Anderson, starting his first game in two weeks because of a sore back, played the game with a flak jacket under his jersey for the first time.

"I was pleased with Kenny coming back off his injury," said Cincinnati Coach Homer Rice. "Our defense hasn't been playing well. The intensity isn't there. We're not getting the pass rush we did last year.

"Despite the loss, I think we're going to get things turned around and I know we had better. I don't think we're an 0-5 football team."

Campbell rested, Browns bested

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers threw away their old come-from-behind script, rested Earl Campbell and unleashed rookie defensive end Jesse Baker Sunday.

The result was an early lead the Oilers never lost, three touchdowns by Campbell, one and one-half sacks by Baker and a 31-10 victory over Cleveland.

The Browns' loss and Philadelphia's 17-14 victory over Pittsburgh knotted the Browns, Oilers and Steelers in a tie for the American Football Conference Central Division lead, all with 4-1 records.

"We forced them early to play catchup and you are talking to one who knows what that means," Oiler Coach Bum Phillips said. "I mean to tell you, that's a hard way to play a football game."

A week earlier, the Oilers had to rally from a 24-0 deficit against Cincinnati before earning a 30-27 overtime victory.

The Oilers introduced a new act Sunday, taking a 24-3 lead in the second quarter on a pair of two-yard touchdown runs by Campbell, a 34-yard interception return by cornerback J.C. Wilson and Toni Fritsch's 11th consecutive field goal, a 28-yarder.

Campbell, suffering from a foot bruise, scored his third touchdown on a one-yard run early in the thrid quarter and retired for the rest of the afternoon with "only" 76 yards rushing on 18 carries and three touchdowns.

The Oiler defense, which entered the game with 19 quarterback sacks, pilfered the Browns' backfield five times for 52 yards in losses. Baker got one sack outright and shared another with middle guard Curly Culp.

The rookie from Jacksonville (Ala.) State now has eight sacks to lead the Oilers in that category. Elvin Bethea led the Oilers eight sacks for the entire 1978 season.

Cleveland got on the scoreboard with a 46-yard field goal by Don Cockroft in the second quarter and the Browns trailed 24-10 at the half on a 46-yard pass from quarterback Brian Sipe to Dave Logan to set sp a one-yard touchdown run by Sipe 34 seconds before intermission.

"We had a lot of things go our way," said Oiler center Carl Mauck, who recovered two Oiler fumbles. "Maybe they were looking ahead to Pittsburgh but I don't see how they could do that since we were in the playoffs last year."

With Campbell taking a second-half breather, other Oiler runners got a chance to perform. Starting fullback Tim Wilson carried four times for 46 yards and Rob Carpenter rushed 57 yards on 11 carries.

Cleveland played the game without Greg Pruitt, the team's leading rusher, who was sidelined with a leg injury.

"I told Pruitt on the field after the game that I wished he had been in there," Phillips said. "I would rather beat them any time than have him play but I wish he had played because he add so much more to their game."

Browns defensive tackle Jerry Sherk said the Oilers mixed their plays well. "They ran when we thought they would pass and passed when we thought they'd run," he said.

Bears meet Cougars

By The Associated Press

The University of Houston opens defense of its Southwest Conference title Saturday night in the Astrodome against the Baylor Bears, who only seem to be able to play when it's against league brethren.

Baylor has upset Texas A&M and Texas Tech in the young SWC football flag chase to earn a tie with Southern Methodist atop the league ladder.

Texas, the team picked by pre-season forecasters to succeed Texas, also starts its title run at home against the shellshocked Rice Owls.

In other SWC games this week, Texas A&M and Texas Tech meet in the "elimination bowl" in Lubbock and unbeaten Arkansas travels to Fort Worth to play winless Texas Christian.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman was pleased with fullback David Barrett but not that happy with his team in a 49-10 rout of West Texas State Saturday night.

"When Barrett catches on to a few things people are going to get tired tackling him," said Yeoman of Barrett, who came into the game in the second quarter and scored three touchdowns and finished with 90 yards on 12 carries. "But we'll have to play better football than that overall."

Baylor whipped Texas Tech 27-10 behind quarterback Mickey Elam, who gained over 100 yards rushing, a first for a Bear signal caller.

"We're a long way from being as good as the team (Houston) we will play this week but I don't think we're going to finish seventh like everybody picked us," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "We're a million miles from the Cotton Bowl but a lot closer than some people.

"We don't have a lot of depth but we may have more talent than the 1974 team that made it to the Cotton Bowl. I still think it might be possible to get to the Cotton Bowl with one loss."

Texas whipped Missouri 21-0, eighth-ranked Houston mauled West Texas State 49-10, and fourteenth ranked Arkansas downed Tulsa 33-8 as three SWC teams remained unbeaten.

SMU fell from unbeaten grace 24-17 to Tulane, Oklahoma beat Rice 63-21, Texas Christian was upset 21-14 by Texas-Arlington, and the Texas Aggies downed Memphis State 17-7 in other games involving SWC teams.

The SWC is now 14-8-1 against outside competition.

STOPPED — Texas Tech's Ron Reeves (12) is dropped for a two-yard loss by Baylor's Thomas Brown Saturday in Waco, Texas. Reeves dropped back to pass but the defense caught him for a loss.

Medley wins local tourney

Ron Medley took advantage of his handicap to sink a birdie on the first extra hole and lead his team to victory in the annual Member-Guest Golf Tournament at the Big Spring Country Club Sunday.

Medley and his partner, Bill Schutzenhoffer, tied with the first day leaders, Hal Battle and Audry Gill, both of Midland, with 36-hole scores of 114. Battle and Gill settled for the runnerup spot.

All alone in third place was the tandem of Kent Morgan and Paul Morgan. They pieced together a 117.

Fred Luft and Roger Cutcher won fourth place in a playoff with Kenny Brown and Steve Rose after the two duos had tied in regular play with 118s. Ken Perry and Montie Miller also finished with a 118 but lost early in the playoff.

Walter Wheat and Pete Cook formed a two-some that wound up with a score of 119, tying Ray Mize and Duane Glover for that spot. In at 120 was the tandem of Tommy McCann and Steve Whitesides.

Scores ranged up to 134 in the tournament. Ten more teams entered this year's tournament than last year.

Starr's job on the line?

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The New England Patriots, a team Bart Starr says may have the best talent in the National Football League, will showcase their skills on national television for the second time this season tonight.

Perhaps unfortunately for Starr, the Patriots' opposition will be Starr's team, the Green Bay Packers, 1-3 and in their worst physical shape of the season.

Criticism of Starr, in his fifth year as Packer coach and general manager, has been building. The club had been expected to challenge for the National Conference Central Division title.

The Patriots lost 16-13 in overtime to defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh in ABC's first Monday night NFL telecast this season, and since then have beaten the New York Jets 56-3, Cincinnati 20-14 and San Diego 27-21.

The Patriots rank third among the NFL's 28 teams in offense and second on defense. The Packers are 27th and 23rd, respectively, although Starr is hopeful the national exposure will motivate his players to perform at a peak.

"Anytime you're featured in the Monday night game before a national television audience it's an honor, and it's an honor to be playing the Patriots," Starr said. "They're right up there with the real elite.

"But we feel we're up to that challenge, and we feel our players will respond accordingly," he said.

To stay with the Patriots, the Packers will have to compensate for a wave of injuries that have sidelined several of their best players for varying periods since training camp started.

NFL Action

Jets 33, Dolphins 27

Richard Todd threw a 71-yard scoring bomb to Wesley Walker with 2:21 left to play that gave the Jets the cushion they needed to beat previously unbeaten Miami. Walker's only reception of the day gave New York a 33-20 lead, and Miami cut the final margin to six points when Bob Griese found Nat Moore in the end zone from 6 yards out on the final play of the game.

Tom Newton had a pair of 1-yard scoring runs for New York, and the Jets got the first six points of the game when Donald Dykes blocked a George Roberts punt and Johnny Lynn found it in the end zone with less than two minutes gone.

Eagles 17, Steelers 14

Philadelphia moved to a 17-7 lead on 1-yard TD runs by Leroy Harris and Wilbert Mongtomery and a 48-yard field goal by barefoot kicker Tony Franklin, then held on to hand Pittsburgh its first loss.

The Steelers had gone ahead in the first quarter on a 7-yard scoring run by Sidney Thornton, but two Terry Bradshaw interceptions and a pair of lost fumbles helped keep Pittsburgh off the scoreboard again until late in the game.

Bradshaw capped an 80-yard, six-play drive with a 37-yard scoring toss to John Stallworth with just 1:12 left.

Chiefs 24, Seahawks 6

Ted McKnight scored on runs of 23 and 84 yards, and rookie signal caller Steve Fuller tossed a 3-yard scoring pass to Mike Williams as Kansas City crushed Seattle. McKnight's 84-yarder and the Fuller TD aerial came in the fourth quarter as the Chiefs blew the game wide open.

McKnight finished the game with 147 yards on just 12 carries.

Chargers 31, 49ers 9

Dan Fouts threw for 251 yards and two touchdowns, helping to keep the Chargers atop the AFC West, a game ahead of Denver and Kansas City. Fouts completed 26 of 34 passes with one interception.

The lone bright spot for winless San Francisco was the 89 yards rushing by O.J. Simpson, who went over 11,000 yards rushing in his career.

Redskins 16, Falcons 7

Mark Moseley kicked three field goals, the longest 53 yards, and Joe Theismann passed for 233 yards to lead Washington to its fourth victory in a row. John Riggins scored Washingtons's only touchdown on a 1-yard plunge in the second quarter. That score was set up in part by Theismann's 41-yard pass to Danny Buggs, who had 10 receptions for 134 yards.

Vikings 13, Lions 10

Rick Danmeier kicked a pair of field goals and Chuck Foreman scored on a 2-yard run for Minnesota. Foreman's touchdown with 2:03 left in the third quarter snapped a 3-3 tie, and Danmeier's 31-yard field goal gave Minnesota a 13-3 lead early in the fourth quarter.

Detroit cut the gap to three points when Jeff Komlo connected with Rick Kane on a 10-yard scoring pass later in the final period.

Bills 31, Colts 13

Joe Ferguson threw three touchdown passes to rally Buffalo from a 6-0 deficit
nd hand Baltimore its fifth straight loss. Ferguson had scoring aerials of 24 yards to Frank Lewis, 47 to Lou Piccone and 9 to Reuben Gant.

In all, Ferguson passed for 317 yards and Lewis caught three of his passes for 120 yards.

Saints 24, Giants 14

Chuck Muncie ran for two touchdowns and Garo Yepremian extended his record of consecutive field goals without a miss to 18 as New Orleans kept the Giants out of the win column.

The Giants pulled to within three points, 17-14, in the fourth quarter on an 11-yard scoring pass from rookie Phil Simms to running back Ken Johnson, but Muncie's second TD, a 3-yarder with 41 seconds left, put the game out of reach.

Loraine tops Sands

Loraine scored in the opening period when Jerry Darnell went in on the sixth play of the series after Sands had fumbled away the ball on its own 11. Loraine then converted on a kick.

The Mustangs came back after Scott Robinson blocked a punt on the 20 and it was recovered by Sands on the enemy ten. Three plays later, David Long went off tackle from the three for the tally. Sands failed to convert, however, and still trailed, 7-6.

Later in the second, Steve Blagraves tackled a Loraine ball carrier in the end zone. The two points would have given Sands the lead but Sands was off sides on the play.

Loraine added an insurance tally in the fourth when Junior Martinez gathered in a punt and raced 50 yards across the double stripes.

The Mustangs play Smyer, 6-0 loser to Wilson last Friday, this weekend.

Jesse Ybarra, David Long, David Hall and Dennis Martin were among standouts for Sands.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS®

"Thirty days hath September. How many days does October hath?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 2, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Look at your most unusual longings and think out ways to make them more a part of your life. Wait until later in the day to make changes on plans made during morning hours.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Find a better way to put new ideas across more effectively. Make plans for future amusements. Be happy with a loved one in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to make your position more enviable at home. Gain the backing of a bigwig. Take no risk where your reputation is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good day to get involved in new plans and expressions which are quite different from the norm. Take no risks where money is concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal time to get into reports, accounts, correspondence and handle them all well. Improve relations with a loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Have a long conversation with associates and plan the future more wisely. If you are pressured into a civic duty, get at it quickly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find a better way of handling that big work load and save time, energy and money. Show more affection for loved ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Your creativity is high so make good use of it. Try to build up your savings account. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Delve right into property, financial and home affairs and get much done. Study a new interest that can be lucrative in the days ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find the right way to understand others and get better results in the future. Make the contacts and visits that are the wisest today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are worried about monetary matters but logical thinking can soon improve matters. Find novel ways of adding to assets.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more energetic in going after your wishes and get better results. Take time to enjoy the company of good friends during spare time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get rid of difficult situations tactfully and replace with more ideal ones. Listen to what an adviser has to suggest and follow through.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have much ability at handling emergencies and dealing well with unusual and progressive people. Pay attention to the diet early.

Farm commodity price may be slightly higher

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm commodity prices are expected to average slightly higher this year than indicated earlier by Agriculture Department projections.

The statistics mean little to individual farmers, who are more interested in prices they get for what they actually produce. But the government figures do give an indication on how the farm economy changes from one year to the next.

For example, USDA economists now are predicting that the average of all prices — meaning those that farmers get for a long list of crops and livestock products — will be up about 14.3 percent from what they averaged over the entire 12 months of 1978.

A month ago, the experts were forecasting a gain this year of 13.3 percent. By comparison, the price index gained 8.8 percent in 1978 over 1977.

One reason for the slight boost in price prospects is an improved outlook for livestock, including poultry and dairy output.

"Prices for livestock and crops will average higher than last year despite large crops and increases in production of hogs and poultry," the USDA's outlook board said.

"While livestock prices dipped during the third quarter of 1979, the average prices (for livestock) ... are expected to be nearly 20 percent higher than in 1978, with the crop price index likely to average about 9 percent higher."

In total gross dollars, cash receipts from the sales of livestock this year are expected to total around $66 billion, compared to $59 billion in 1978. Crop receipts were estimated at $61 billion, up from $52.1 billion last year.

Total cash receipts from actual sales are put at $127 billion against $111 billion last year.

The USDA bookkeepers add another dimension to all this by including the "net change in farm inventories" from one year to the next. If a farmer has more wheat stored, for example, the increase in its value is taken into consideration.

Thus, when that adjustment is made, according to USDA statisticians, U.S. "gross farm income" this year is estimated at $142 billion, compared to $126 billion in 1978.

Democrats may change on poll issue in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Right now it seems sure that Texas Democratic leaders will join with Republicans in letting Texas voters have a say who will be the next U.S. president.

Recent reports that Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., is on the threshold of a presidential race apparently will cause Democratic leaders to change previous plans against a presidential poll.

"Yes, sir, it sure looks like we will have a presidential primary," says State Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg. "It is my feeling that if Kennedy gets in the race, the state committee will order a non-binding primary at its March meeting."

"You bet we want a primary if everything goes as we believe it will," says Billie Carr, National Democratic committee member and a prominent Kennedy booster. "It will really give Kennedy a hand to have a primary."

Texas Republicans already have a presidential preferential poll scheduled May 3, which is the same date the party will choose local and state candidates for the general election. The poll will be binding in that the presidential candidate getting the most votes will get the most delegates to the 1980 national convention to select the presidential nominee.

The Texas Democratic Executive Committee decided in July to choose its national convention delegates by state convention as it has been done in the past, except in 1976 when there was a one-time-only presidential primary. The committee vetoed proposals for a presidential primary tied to delegate selection but postponed a decision on a non-binding primary until March.

"However," Goldberg said, "we think that the sentiment expressed by voters in the presidential primary will be pretty much the same as that shown by delegates at the state convention. I think the convention will follow through with the presidential choices made in the primary."

The 1980 Republican state convention will be held June 21 in Houston, where the party faithful will choose 80 delegates to the Detroit convention according to the outcome of the presidential popularity poll. Each congressional district gets three delegates with eight at-large delegates selected statewide.

The state Democratic convention is June 20-21 in San Antonio, where 104 national delegates for New York will be chosen in senatorial district caucuses, plus another 48 chosen at-large.

A presidential poll in both primaries May 3 should increase turnouts for both parties.

In 1976, Democrats had 4.2 million voting in the presidential primary poll although only 1.52 million voted in the U.S. Senate race.

Texas Republicans had 375,000 voting in their 1976 primary but some GOP leaders are predicting a million-vote turnout in 1980.

Strong Texas sentiment for Ronald Reagan, John Connally and George Bush has been expected to attract many conservative Democrats to the GOP primary.

"Competition has not destroyed the Democratic Party in the past and it won't this time," Goldberg said. "We thrive on competition."

"We've noticed a funny thing," Mrs. Carr said. "Some of the conservatives who were cold on Carter and were talking about voting for Connally are having second thoughts. Some of them are deciding they better stay in the Democratic Party and support Carter against Kennedy ... I think the Democratic turnout would be significantly different if Kennedy is not on the ballot."

To receive communion from pope

West Texas farmer selected

NAZARETH, Texas (AP) — A bumper corn crop and an invitation to receive communion from Pope John Paul II made for a dilemma for farmer Jerome Brockman, a church deacon in this West Texas town.

Should he help his brother with the harvest? Or should he kneel before Pope John Paul II, one of 10 farmers selected to receive communion from the Polish prelate at a rural mass in Iowa during the Pope's forthcoming visit to the United States?

The dilemma was solved by a little prodding from Brockman's wife.

"I just told him that I'd kill him if we didn't go; that's all," said Margaret Brockman.

Brockman, along with nine other American farmers whose number includes a Southern Baptist, was selected by the National Catholic Rural Life conference to receive communion from the pope at an outdoor mass Thursday near Des Moines.

"To be perfectly honest, I wasn't going to go at first," Brockman said. "I even called some other people I thought might be interested in taking my place. My brother and I have about 500 acres of corn this year, and it looks pretty good. I just didn't think it would be fair to leave him here to do it all."

Brockman has no intention of turning the trip into a vacation. "Yeah, we're going, but we'll be coming right back to finish the harvest," he said Saturday. "From what I've heard about this outdoor mass, I'm figuring that one day might be about all the excitement we can handle."

Brockman's life in his town and his service to his churchspan nearly 50 years, and the Iowa celebration will mark his second anniversary as a deacon.

Nazareth is a predominantly Catholic community, and Brockman says it's likely to stay that way. "Nazareth doesn't change too much," he said.

"Most of the farms are fairly small, and most of the families are fairly large, so there's not too much of an influx of people to work here..."

Nor is there any religious controversy.

"We haven't thrown the Protestants out," Brockman laughed. "There just aren't too many around. Ours is still the only church in town, and some of the Protestants here come to our services."

For that reason, the sight of a Baptist at the mass won't be out of the ordinary for Brockman.

Gustave Rhodes, of Napoleonville, La., is the lone Protestant who will attend the Catholic ceremony.

Because he is not Catholic, Rhodes will not take the sacraments, but will step forward to kneel before the pope as a symbol of rural America.

DPS troopers withdraw from Atascosa County

JOURDANTON, Texas (AP) — Complying with local political pressure, the Department of Public Safety's six-man state trooper contingent beat a strategic withdrawal from an Atascosa County-owned office today, taking their "Texas Highway Patrol" sign with them.

County Judge O.B. Gates dismissed reporters seeking details on the move with a gruff, "No comment," and Sheriff Tommy Williams was unavailable.

County officials gave the DPS a "get out of town" deadline because they said two of the troopers were "harassing" local residents.

Williams said he would not accept prisoners from the two troopers without an order from a justice of the peace.

The pair are credited by superiors with cutting the county's traffic death rate in half by cracking down on drunken drivers. That crackdown has led to drunken driving charges against the sons of two local politicians.

Last week, county officials ordered the DPS to transfer the two troopers or be evicted from the office in a "log cabin" replica of the first county courthouse.

DPS Sgt. Bobby Harpole delivered the keys to the office to county officials this morning as the troopers withdrew.

DPS officials have said the two troopers will not be transferred, but will continue to work from their homes, as will the other four troopers assigned to the county.

Dollar may be phased out of international finance system

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Seeking to reduce the turbulence in world money markets, the International Monetary Fund appears ready to endorse a plan to reduce the amount of dollars in the international financial system.

U.S. Treasury Secretary G. William Miller and other finance ministers on the IMF's powerful Interim Committee are expected to approve in principle a plan to establish a so-called substitution account for dollars held by IMF member governments.

The committee meets here today, one day before the 138-nation IMF opens its four-day annual meeting. It is the first time the U.N.-sponsored financial organization is meeting in a Communist country.

Details of the substitution account would be worked out over the next several months to be ready for final approval next spring. If all goes well, the account could be in operation as early as mid-1980, IMF officials say.

Under the plan, IMF members could trade in government-held dollars for assets denominated in the special currency of the IMF known as Special Drawing Rights or SDRs.

The United States would pay interest on the dollars to the IMF, which would forward the interest to the countries that traded in the dollars.

Saudi Arabia, West Germany and Japan are the countries holding the largest amounts of dollars and would be most likely to use the account.

IMF sources say it is likely the account would start out with at least $20 billion, but that this could be expanded if it works properly.

Although $20 billion would absorb only a small fraction of the dollars held by foreign governments, it is hoped the amount would be large enough to help restore order to world currency markets.

Until recently, the United States opposed the trade-in, but changed its position a few months ago after it became evident the dollar faced exchange market pressures that could continue indefinitely unless something was done.

Jacques J. Polak, the IMF's chief economist, said Sunday that establishment of the substitution account would help to reduce the almost total reliance of the international monetary system on the dollar.
