Ford Writes Veto

Chances for Compromise Dim on Price Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford already has written his veto message on a bill to extend domestic oil price controls, virtually eliminating chances for a last-ditch compromise with Congress, Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb said today.

Sources said the veto is expected to be sent to the Democratic-controlled Congress early next week where a close vote is forecast on whether to override. Deconrol could boost gasoline prices by at least three cents per gallon.

Zarb's brief statement at the White House came as Ford arranged to meet later with Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who has called on Ford to sign the six-month price control extension on 60 per cent of the nation's domestic oil.

"It's already been written," said Zarb when asked about the veto message.

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., meanwhile, promised today to support the presidential veto but appealed to Ford to seek "gradual" rather than abrupt decontrol of the oil prices.

"I believe that you should veto the extension of controls now before you, and I shall support your veto," said Curtis, chairman of the Senate Republican Conference.

"However, in the interest of all persons concerned, I believe that another attempt at gradual decontrol would be in order. I do not think the extension of controls for the purpose of developing a workable decontrol plan should be for much more than 45 days."

But, any compromise on an extension, said Curtis, should be with the stipulation Congress enact a windfall profits tax and demands that the oil companies plow money back into energy exploration.

But White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Thursday the time for compromise is over.

"The controls are going to die, one way or the other," Nessen said. He predicted Ford would take no action on the bill until after Labor Day.

The price controls expire at midnight Sunday unless the bill is signed. Energy experts say decontrol will cause gasoline prices to go up at least 3 cents a gallon.

Both Democrats and Republicans say a congressional override battle would be close.

Two decisions by the Federal Power Commission Thursday along with other pricing proposals by the 16 governors who met with Ford would cause consumer gas prices to increase as much as 6 per cent during a predicted natural gas shortage this winter.

Removing present federal controls on gas prices would let interstate distributors and consumers bid more successfully for gas now sold on the uncontrolled intrastate market. Gas now is burned for many low-priority purposes in states with abundant gas supplies.

Rules To Affect Election

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and several of his potential Democratic contenders got some bad news from the Federal Election Commission. But for Alabama Gov. George Wallace, the news was good.

The FEC took a series of actions at its weekly meeting Thursday that have a major impact on the 1976 presidential election. It:

— Agreed when Ford campaigns around the country for local Republicans, the cost of his travel and living will count against either the campaign spending limits of the President or of the local candidate.

— Passed a guideline making it difficult for a number of Democrats to qualify for federal campaign funds.

— Said there is nothing in the law to prevent Wallace from getting up to $150,000 in royalities from permitting his picture to be used on T-shirts, watches and other campaign souvenirs. But commission members said they thought this would violate the spirit of election reform.

No formal ruling was made on presidential travel expenses. But commission counsel John Murphy said the law clearly requires the expenses be charged to Ford or to the local candidate, depending on which benefits from the presidential appearance.

A formal ruling was delayed to determine if costs could be divided between the president and the local candidate.

The FEC said in a draft ruling, however, Ford's campaign would have to pay only first class airfare for himself, plus his personal living expenses.

The commission also said that before a candidate can qualify for federal campaign funds, he must deduct the amount he spent on events such as cocktail parties, chicken dinners and rock concerts to raise his money.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Rep. Morris Udall said they have raised the $5,000 in each of 20 states in contributions of $250 or under needed to qualify for federal funds. But both have used cocktail parties to raise the money and could fall below the threshold when those costs are deducted.

The ruling also may affect candidates who have said they qualify. Ford, Wallace, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash.

Wallace, who has spent $3 million on direct mail fund raising which has brought in about $4 million, would not be affected.

Israel Agrees To Sign Kissinger's Peace Pact

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel will initial the interim peace agreement with Egypt negotiated by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, a government official said today.

It was the most direct statement thus far by an Israeli official that Kissinger's nine-day efforts to negotiate a cornerstone pact on which to build a Middle East peace will be successful.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said in Alexandria Thursday night his country is ready to initial the agreement.

The official told reporters at the Foreign Ministry daily briefing he believed Israel will probably initial the document following a Sunday or Monday cabinet meeting.

The pact — a two and a half page document written in eight clauses with no preamble — still has to be worked on by Kissinger and negotiators, the official said.

But he said the difficulties are not anything that could be called insurmountable.

One detail still to be agreed upon is how many watchdog early warning stations will be set up by American volunteers in the U.N. buffer zone between Egyptian and Israeli forces in the Sinai Desert, he said.

The official said six such bases were being discussed and that at least two of them would be manned.

The remaining stations would be unmanned electronic bases to report any military violations by either side.

He said the Israelis took for granted the agreement will mean Israeli cargo can move through Egypt's Suez Canal. The official said that if Israeli cargo could move through the waterway, he saw no reason why Israeli passengers could not also make the trip.

Kissinger plunged into a daylong round of negotiations with Israeli leaders this morning and canceled tentative plans to fly to Egypt tonight. He told reporters he will fly to Alexandria Saturday morning.

He said he may go on to Saudi Arabia Saturday afternoon. Diplomats said this was significant because a senior U.S. official aboard Kissinger's plane said Thursday the secretary probably would go to the oil country only after the bargaining was completed.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said negotiations on the new pact are 95 per cent complete, the national radio said today.

Shortly before the opening of today's negotiating session, the Israeli negotiators autographed photographs of the Jerusalem conference table with the men around it.

They were doing this to have souvenirs of the Kissinger negotiations, indicating their belief events were reaching a conclusion.

However, Kissinger's apparently successful shuttle diplomacy may all be for nothing if Congress refuses to let Americans monitor the new agreement.

A senior U.S. official in Kissinger's party told reporters Thursday Israel would probably refuse to sign the agreement if Congress turns down a provision to send American civilians to the Sinai Desert.

The pistol-carrying volunteers would operate a string of electronic surveillance stations in the U.N.-patrolled buffer zone between Israeli and Egyptian forces.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield has expressed opposition to the provision, but Kissinger has predicted Congress would approve the pact.

Kissinger is tying up the loose ends of a military disengagement agreement that Egyptian and Israeli diplomats take for granted will be initialed Sunday or Monday.

Weather

Clear to partly cloudy skies are forecast for today through Saturday. Highs will be in the lower 90s, and the lows in the 60s. Wind warnings are in effect for area lakes.

Locals Question Price Question

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Several area agribusiness leaders and Gray County officials today expressed surprise that former Congressman Bob Price has questioned a request that this county be considered for emergency disaster loan designation.

Price, in a recent interview with The News, said he was afraid it would jeopardize eligibility for federal crop insurance.

And he is concerned about the country's reputation.

"I was surprised that Bob, after being in Washington almost 10 years, would question the request," said Rex McAnelly, past president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and manager of Moody Farms Feedlot. "He (Price) should know that the squeaking wheel gets the grease."

Foster Whaley, Gray County extension agent, said it is unfortunate that the whole county must be declared a disaster to help a few who need it.

"But it might mean the difference between a few Gray County farmers remaining on the land rather than being driven to an overcrowded city," he added.

The efforts of certain county leaders to obtain the disaster designation were with the same thought in mind, Whaley emphasized.

McAnelly says "it is very essential that we have sufficient credit to sustain agriculture."

Price said Gray County has as good a wheat crop as it has ever produced, and added that he felt that emergency financing is available without a national emergency designation.

"Hollering 'wolf' all the time could mean that should we get into a drought or a big problem, authorities (state and national) would say those people are always hollering 'wolf'."

The written request that Gray County be declared a national emergency disaster area was made by Gray County Judge Don Cain.

Judge Cain said this morning that he sent Gov. Briscoe several statements regarding financial needs of this area including one from the First National Bank of Pampa and one from Canadian Production Credit Association saying that some of the county's farmers will require more credit than financial institutions will be able to lend.

"The designation, as I understand it, would enable those who suffered losses to borrow up to that amount at 5 per cent interest," the judge said.

The request was sent to the governor on Aug. 19, but Judge Cain said today commisioners court has received no word on it.

Whaley's comments this morning included:

"In early June a most devestating hail, a small tornado and heavy flooding hit the Southwest part of the county. About 26,00 acres of wheat was damaged from 10 per cent to total destruction. Along McClellan Creek to the east, thousands of acres of land were inundated and many miles of fences and improvements were destroyed.

"The highway leading north of McLean was closed because of heavy damage to the McClellan Creek Bridge. Many wheat farmers in the Grandview area received total destruction. Many of these farmers made total destruction in 1974 because of the devastating drought.

"Because of these two disasters in a row over quite a scope of Gray County, certain county officials felt that a disaster designation might be the difference between these small, marginal and family type farmers continuing or being forced to quit.

"As I understand it, the only benefit to be derived from a disaster designation is the fact that the Farmers Home Administration can make loans to those individuals who can't obtain credit elsewhere. And even then the loan cannot exceed the extent of their loss. Without disaster designation this type of loan could not be made.

"Mostly everyone in Gray County was highly in favor of the disaster designation given Lefors after the severe tornado. This made the individual Lefors residents eligible for a host of benfeits that has meant the difference between a lot of Lefors rebuilding in Lefors or migrating to Pampa and other overcrowded cities."

UN To Study Pot

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Scientists financed by the United Nations are trying to sort out the varieties of marijuana and their effects on smokers. The University of Mississippi is supplying them with the pot.

But would-be volunteers can forget it. A U.N. spokesman says the marijuana will be used worldwide — but for research in smoking machines only.

For the past two years a consultant group, financed by the U.N. fund for drug abuse control, has suggested guidelines as to information still needed on the effects of marijuana, or cannabis.

The group of scientists from Algeria, Australia, Britain, Brazil, the Netherlands, Greece and the United States says the pot study may turn up hundreds of chemical compounds in addition to a number of different methods of smoking.

Scientists decided that to make the research uniform they needed standard marijuana cigarettes. That's where the University of Mississippi comes in. The cigarettes will be supplied by the school's research institute of pharmaceutical sciences, school of pharmacy.

The report said hundreds of varieties of marijuana may exist and that different kinds of cigarettes and varied methods of smoking "may influence the chemical pattern of smoke and subsequent biological effects."

USDA Recalculates Soviet Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department today cut by another 5 million tons its estimate of the Soviet Union's drought-ravaged grain crop, but made no change in its forecasts of Russia's import needs.

Officials said their forecast of the 1975 Soviet crop, lowered to 180 million tons Aug. 11, was reduced again to 175 million tons on the basis of new and lower estimates of harvested acreage provided by the Soviets under an information exchange program.

To help make up for the drought damage to the crop which is now about 41 million tons below initial Soviet goals, the Moscow already has ordered an estimated 16.5 million tons of grain from Western countries — including about 10 million tons from the United States.

Spokesmen said U.S. experts believe Soviet officials will offset the additional cut in expected production disclosed today by using reserve stocks, reducing consumption, and lowering exports to traditional Soviet customers in Erastern Europe.

Remember the Sticker?

The spectacle of armed policemen (Wall Street Journal, August 21) on strike in San Francisco, along with the accompanying violence, was a chilling reminder of the bumper sticker that read: "When Guns Are Outlawed, Only Outlaws Will Have Guns."

To be sure, noted the Journal in its editorial, "San Francisco At Bay," police strikes that were once thought to be unthinkable are now shown by experience to be something less thhhan an urban disaster.

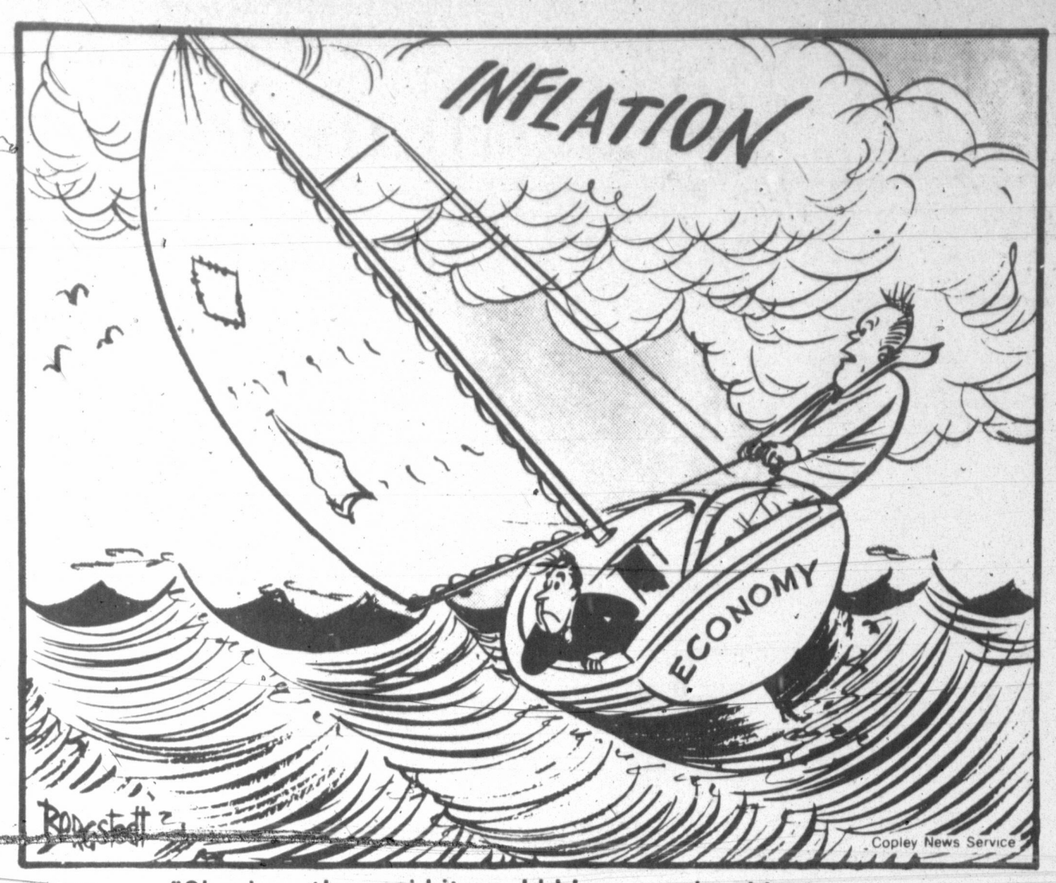
"In Albuquerque, the crime level even fell after the police went on strike, which suggests that some towns have reached the state where citizens are safer without their police than with them."

But, continued the Journal, there are other disturbing factors. In Michigan, for instance, where state police voted to join the Teamsters union at the same time that the missing Jimmy Hoffa called attention to the Teamsters longstanding ties with organized crime. "We are not suggesting," wrote the Journal's editor, "that this means the Michigan state police will soon be working for the mob, but the thought of policemen signing up with a union that has been tainted with crime is not at all reassuring."

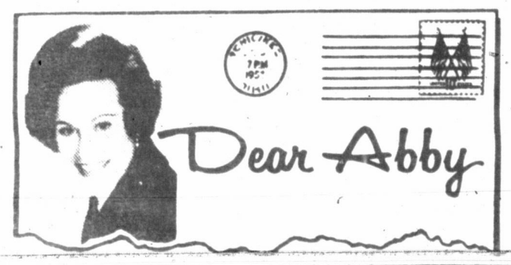
And it is useful to dig beneath the surface, the Journal went on to add, because the significance of all this is that public employes, long thought to be the minions of the established upstanding, property - owning, law - abiding community, appear to be switching to the other side. "They are becoming alienated from the establishment they were hired to protect. Their demands for more money" (evoked by governmentally - generated inflation), "better pensions, and a greater voice in decisions that affect them give the establishment cause to wonder if their minions are trying to become the masters."

The bankruptcy of New York City was cited by the Journal as another example of so - called public servants, going the union route, demonstrating an inclination to take over. Following the heavy use of union muscle in the 1960s, "New York is saddled with pension costs and other expenses that it will not be able to pay, whatever the bright promises of its leaders. When people say the city has been destroying its tax base, this is simply another way of saying that the city is becoming increasingly inhospitable to those property owners, merchants, traders, bankers, investors and manufacturers who give it its reason for being."

Little did they realize — those "educators," those "moulders of public opinion" who went along with Marx and his warfare on the concept of private property — what a Pandora's Box of disorder and violence they were opening.



"Shucks... they said it would blow over by this time."



If Hair's Unwelcome Daughter May Split

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 21, and she's a very good girl who's never given us a moment's worry.

The trouble is her steady boyfriend, who is 23. I don't doubt that he is a very nice person, but he looks like a wild man from prehistoric times. He has a big bushy Afro and a beard to match. Only his eyes and nose show.

I asked my daughter once, "How do you kiss him goodnight? Isn't it hard to find his lips?"

Abby, I'm just about ready to tell her that either her boyfriend has to get rid of all that hair, or I don't want her to bring him around me.

She is our only child and we don't want to lose her love. Please advise.

ALLENTOWN, PA.

DEAR ALLENTOWN: Accept the young man as he is. And if you don't quit hassling your daughter about her boyfriend's hair, you won't see hide nor hair of either of 'em.

DEAR ABBY: We have four grown children. Three are married, and the fourth is leaving for college soon. We are faced with an important decision. Should we sell our big home? Or should we keep it so the children can come and visit us and bring their families? (Two live out of town.)

Our home is very saleable, and we could realize a nice profit. It's awfully big for Dad and me to rattle around in, plus the yard is a lot to take care of.

Dad and I are thinking we might enjoy an apartment, so that if we feel like taking off for a little vacation, we can just turn the key and leave. Also, perhaps later on, we might want to retire to a warmer climate.

Are we selfish for thinking of giving up our house? Perhaps some readers who have experienced this predicament will write in and give us the pros and cons.

"TO SELL OR NOT TO SELL"

DEAR TO: I'll ask. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I are to be married in eight weeks. We've been engaged for two years. We've made all the arrangements, reserved the church, talked to the minister, bought my gown and addressed the invitations. The only thing we haven't done yet is mail them.

My question is: Should we mail the invitations? The fact is that my fiance is still seeing the girl he went with before we became engaged.

He says he loves me, and wants to marry me, but he wants to keep seeing this other girl a little while longer. I tried to explain that if he wants to keep seeing her, she must be very important to him, in which case we should call off our wedding.

He tells me I'm wrong—that I'm the one he loves, but my heart tells me he is only going through with the wedding because he doesn't want to hurt me.

I am too much in love to think straight. Please help me. I asked my mother, and she says I should go through with the wedding. Should I?

TORN

DEAR TORN: No! Better a broken engagement than a broken marriage later. Your fiance is conning you.

CAUTIOUS OPTIMISM

Ford goes slow on decisions on economic policy for 1976

By BENJAMIN SHORE
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — For the next few months, every dollar you spend, save or invest, every hour you work, every job you get or lose and many other economic indicators will be studied closely by Congress and the Ford administration before they decide what kind of economic policy would be best for 1976.

There is agreement that the recession has bottomed out, that the rate of inflation is diminishing and productivity is rising. But there is no agreement yet on what kinds of economic adjustments are necessary.

Congressional Democrats want to continue this year's personal income tax reduction to keep stimulating the economy by getting more dollars into consumers' hands.

But the Ford administration wants to wait until later in the year before deciding.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, recently told the congressional Joint Economic Committee that there is an inflationary danger in overstimulation.

"Once you embark on a stimulative policy," he said, "it is very difficult to put that back in the box."

And Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, joined Greenspan in warning Congress to avoid tinkering that could feed the fires of inflation.

Testifying before the House Banking and Currency Committee, Burns said the increase in June of the rate of consumer price increases "is a warning that the menace of inflation is still very much with us."

But Burns declined to make any predictions about the road that lies ahead for the nation's economy. Although the Federal Reserve Board sets national monetary policy, Burns refused to predict unemployment, inflation and growth of the gross national product, which are the factors that go into setting monetary policy.

The Ford administration remains cautiously optimistic about the nation's recovery from its severe economic illness, but it so far is displaying disinterest in changing the present method of treatment.

President Ford's go-slow attitude was carefully spelled out in a speech July 11 to a group of Chicago businessmen, to whom he said the nation's economic health depends on growth, investment and more productivity, not on "pump-priming" stimulation by the government.

Mr. Ford made clear that the thrust of his economic policy would be restraint and moderation.

Accordingly, his chief economic spokesmen in recent days have called for not continuing the personal income tax reduction into 1976, but for changing tax laws to stimulate investments that will help industry expand in a way that will produce more jobs and more productivity.

Many Democrats believe the government should step up federal programs to create jobs, but Mr. Ford clearly will oppose, probably through vetoes, any such spending legislation.

In that Chicago speech, Mr. Ford accused the Congress of "playing with fire" and said:

"I will not spend the American people into more headaches and heartaches for a hollow victory — a short-term period of economic resurgence that might last a year or two."

Election-year politics will create major pressures on both sides of the economic fence. Mr. Ford's commitment to "a firm and steady course in economic policy" will mean unemployment will remain relatively high longer than the Democrats believe is acceptable.

But Mr. Ford says Americans "are tired of siren songs and would appreciate some simple straight talk," and this would seem to set the lines for the economic debate of the next few months.

A major plank in the administration's economic platform is corporate and investment tax changes that would attract more money into industrial expansion channels.

Testifying before the House Ways and Means Committee on the administration's proposals for 1976 tax changes, Treasury Secretary William Simon put major stress on a $15 billion income tax reduction for corporations, shareholders and savers.

Simon acknowledged that a major political obstacle to such a tax change is the congressional resistance to a plan that seems to favor industry and wealthy investors, but not the low- and middle-income wage earner.

Simon said the Congress and the public would have to be convinced that permitting American industry to accumulate expansion capital will have a substantial, long-term "trickle-down" effect on employment.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Congressman Makes a Point

By WILLIAM RUSHER

A young congressman from Buffalo has introduced a bill which, whether it passes or not, ought to be remembered by a grateful nation as a shining example of just how constructive a conscientious legislator can be.

All too many congressmen (and I am not excluding senators, who after all are congressmen too) are merely grandstand players, eagerly associating themselves with splashy happenings that they calculate will enhance their "image." A good current example is Senator Frank Church (D. - Idaho), who accepted the chairmanship of the special Senate committee investigating the CIA back when it seemed sure to provide him with favorable nationwide publicity every day for at least six months. (That was before the Republicans handed him an exploding cigar in the form of a proposed inquiry into CIA assassination plots against foreign leaders — a delicate subject indeed for a friend of the Kennedys. But that's another story.)

Then there are the nit - pickers — senators and representatives who engage in a certain amount of useful criticism but who are essentially lightweights. Here the current titleholder is Senator William Proxmire (D. - Wis.), who is having a lot of fun in garnering a certain amount of welcome publicity with his Golden Fleece of the Month awards: miscellaneous examples of typical governmental inanities such as $50,000 grants to study the love life of the European newt, etc. Badgering of this sort is helpful, but not truly important.

Even if a congressman seriously wants to be constructive in a major way, the blunt truth is that he will waste his fragrance on the desert air unless Mike Mansfield and Robert Byrd in the Senate or Carl Albert and Tip O'Neill in the House — the Democratic bosses of the two bodies — decide to get behind his idea and push it. A back-bench Democrat may hope that lightning will strike; but a Republican, naturally, can forget it.

So the achievement of Congressman Jack Kemp is all the more remarkable and worthy of praise. Kemp is the football hero who went on to Congress five years ago as a youthful Republican from Buffalo. Since then, he has earned a reputation among connoisseurs of political horseflesh as one of the ablest younger members of the House.

On May 21 this year Kemp introduced the Jobs Creation Act of 1975. In doing so, he was joined by nearly eighty other members of the House, all of whom were proud to act as co-sponsors of this genuinely constructive idea.

Kemp's basic point is that true prosperity rises only as private investment of capital increases. Only this can provide jobs, increase wages, improve efficiency, reduce costs to consumers, expand the over-all amount of goods and services available, and provide the return on investment that makes further investment possible.

Yet capital investment in America today is falling far short of what would be needed to restore and maintain national prosperity. Government programs, financed by taxes, will only make matters worse.

Who Runs State — UN Backers or Kissinger?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, AUG. 29 — There is something mightly peculiar going on in the State Department!

Either Secretary Kissinger was indulging in empty grandstanding rhetoric when he lashed out at the United Nations, or State Department bureaucrats are blithely ignoring him.

Whatever the case, despite Kissinger's widely - fanfared harsh recriminations and threats to crack down, the bureaucrats are vigorously pressuinrg Congress to vote $189.5 million as this country's contribution to the budget of the UN Development Program (UNDP).

Startling as that is, it's only part of this amazing contradiction — which can hardly be going on without Kissinger's being aware of it, regardless of what he unctuously declaims.

The proposed huge handout to UNDP is $64.5 million more than the U.S. gave last year.

Further, UNDP is a major source of income of the International Labor Organization (ILO) and the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) — both of which have been formally blacklisted by Congress from receiving U.S. funds.

The ban against ILO was overwhelmingly imposed only this month; against UNESCO in December 1974.

Last year, UNDP dishes out $37.5 million to ILO, and $32.9 million to UNESCO.

In other words, notwithstanding Congress's explicit prohibition aginst contributing to the Communist - dominated ILO and the Arab - African - Communist - controlled UNESCO, State Department bureaucrats are blandly doing just that through the back door by ladling out millions to UNDP.

This not only doesn't make sense, it's downright illegal. But that's characteristic of bureaucratic machinations.

Calling The Turn

The U.S. is by far the biggest source of UNDP funds — just as it is for the United Nations as a whole.

Since 1946, this country has contributed more than $1.125 billion to UNDP.

Ten years ago, the U.S. was putting up 40 per cent of the UNDP budget. In the last five years it has handed out nearly one - half billion dollars.

In glaring contrast — Russian grants have never exceeded 1 per cent; last yaer it amounted to $3.566 million. Red China has given even less; last year $2.2 million.

And the oil - rich Arabs, a domineering force in UNESCO, ILO and the UN General Assembly, put up all of $3.991 million last year.

UNDP is the principal agency of the United Nations for administering its various economic, social and humanitarian programs throughout the world. To a considerable degree, all these activities are duplicated by the Agency for International Development (AID) — this country's multi - billion - dollar foreign aid program.

In practical effect, UNDP duplicates what AID is doing — or vice versa, with U.S. taxpayers heavily forking over to both.

Calling Halt

Rep. Lester Wolff, D.-N.Y., International Affairs subcommittee chairman, is spearheading a determined bipartisan fight to kill the proposed $64.5 million increase for the UNDP budget.

That drive is boing vigorously backed by the AFL-CIO — primarily responsible for the July 1 ban voted by Congress on funds for ILO.

AFL-CIO president George Meany goes even further than Wolff. He wants to cut off all funds for UNDP, on the forcefully - voiced ground it is no longer worthy of financial support. He told the House International Affairs Committee:

"American taxpayers are carrying the major burden of support for UNDP, which in turn finances the ILO and UNESCO, where meager Communist and Arab contributors have uprooted the constitutions of those agencies for their own selfish national and regional political ends. This must not go on any further.

"The time has come to halt underwriting by American taxpayers of UN agencies and programs which no longer serve the purposes for which they were established, which have become instruments of political warfare against our country and other democratic states, and which function in a manner inimicable to the interests and ideals of the people of the U.S."

Despite Wolff's repeated efforts, he has been able to get no explanation from State Department bureaucrats for the reason for the $64.5 million increase in the U.S. contribution to UNDP's budget.

All he has succeeded in getting out of them is that "costs are going up."

"If costs are going up," says Wolff, "then there should be just a normal cost increase. At the most, it shouldn't be more than 12 per cent, or less than $15 million. But they are asking for upwards of four times that amount, and I just don't get it — especially in view of the fact that the bulk of the proposed increase would go to ILO and UNESCO, which have been officially blacklisted by Congress.

Rightfully or wrongly, Secretary Kissinger is increasingly being credited as expertly adept at that.

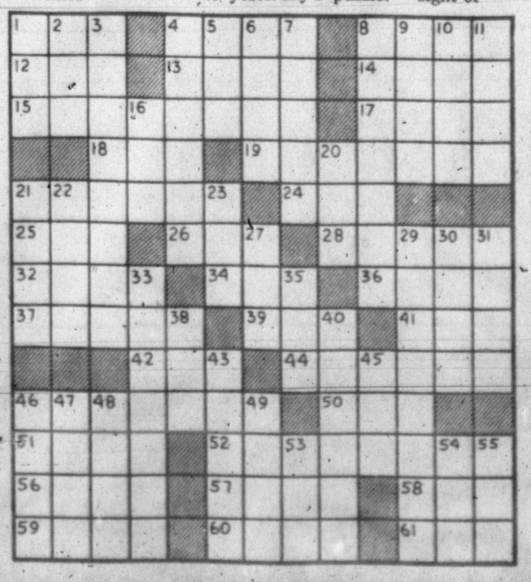
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



Drivers Licenses—Big Business Here

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

The issuance of Texas drivers licenses is big business in Pampa — an estimated 2,000 persons called this month at the local office, 1313 N. Hobart.

Of that number 642 received a permit of some type to drive a motor vehicle.

The cost of a Texas Operator's license is now $7 for four years — an increase of 300 per cent over the 50 cent license fee in 1941.

Texans to 1936 would be astonished to know that the Texas Department of Public Safety now maintains active driving records on more than 7 million operators of motor vehicles through licenses.

In April 1936, the first drivers licenses were issued in Texas. Each driver was required to possess an operator or a chauffer's license. But there was no cost to the operator.

The Texas Legislature designated the county tax assessor collectors as agents to handle the issuances without examinations. Provisions called for payment of a five cent fee to the tax collector from the Operator and Chauffer License Fund for each licensed issued.

It was the 46th Texas Legislature that passed the present drivers license law in 1941, and for the first time prescribed an issuance fee of 50 cents for operators; one dollar for commerical, and $3 for a chauffers license.

Records show that on Sept. 1, 1971, 32 experienced patrolmen were transferred to the driver license division. Those men relinquished their enforcement duties on Nov. 1, 1941, to become specialists in drivers licensing under the supervision of four sergeants.

The Pampa office at 1313 N. Hobart is open from 8:30 to 12 and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Betty Mackie, Pampa clerk for the past eight years, says one of the biggest problems today is obtaining a birth certificate for those who want a license and apparently have no knowledge of where the birth certificate might be filed.

As for the pictures on the drivers license, officials comment that just about all say their picture makes them look like a convict. But the pictures have impoved, she adds. "We now tell people to smile."

In addition to driver license renewals and testing, an estimated 50 motorcycle licnese are administered.

What about the future of licensing?

Ms. Mackie predicts that someday tests will be administered when a license is renewed. Today, the law calls for only a vision check and a new picture.

That isn't all — one day over the counter issuance of a driver license is likely, whereas today applicants are given a temporary permit, she said.

Applicants here have many questions including: "Do I have to get my picture made?"

Men and women alike hesitate and borrow a comb, and sit just long enough for the camera to click.

However, future forecasts still calls for a drivers license — and there are no predictions that it will ever be eliminated.

In 1950, the Texas Department of Public Safety adopted a mechanical process of license issuance. This procedure providies for a notification service to holders of Texas licenses some 30 days prior to the expiration date.

Two years later, in 1952, drivers license fees were raised to $1 for operators, $2 for commerical, chauffers licenses remained $3.

In 1954, the fees were increased to $2 for operators license, $3 for a commerical and $4 for chauffers. In 1961, fees took another jump to $3, $4.50 and $6 respectively.

The present four year license issued for operators begin in 1968 with a $6 fee. Commerical licenses fees for a two - year period were $9, and chauffers licenses were $12 for 24 months.

In 1971 present fees were adopted including $7 for a four year operators licensing; $10 for a two - year commerical and $13 for a two year chauffers license.

The Texas Department of Public Safety now issues more than two million licenses annually and conducts 800,000 examinations.

The field personnel today includes six captains, 14 lieutenants, 32 sergenats, 288 drivers license troopers 288 driver license improvement troopers and 260 drivers license clerks.

Says Utility Rates May Be Too High

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A member of the new Texas Public Utilities Commission says there is a good possibility utility companies in the state are overcharging consumers.

Alan R. Erwin, 30, appointed last week by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to serve on the threemember commission, said he will not be able to say definitely Texans are being overcharged until the commission is in operation and rates can be studied.

"I think there is a definite possibility they are," he said. "When you consider a number of the most profitable utilities in the country are in this state and this state doesn't have utility regulation, there must be some correlation."

Erwin, Garrett Morris of Fort Worth and George Cowden of Dallas will take office as utility commissiners Monday, the date the law creating the commission takes effect. But the commission does not begin regulating utility rates for another year.

As director of the Office of State-Federal Relations in Washington, Erwin studied utility commission operations in various states and concluded there is a need for regulation.

"The problems are obvious," he said. "Utilities by their very nature are monopolies, and in a monopoly situation there is no competition to bring prices down to what they should be.

"Our job is to be a substitute for competition. If we function properly, we're going to be like the other utility company in town."

Erwin said he hopes the commissioners can enroll in a University of Wisconsin course on utility regulation before they begin regulating Texas rates. They'll also have to find expert staff members to study rate structures and proposals.

Hoffa's Mother Dies Thursday

DETROIT (UPI) — Viola Riddle Hoffa, mother of missing former Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa, died Thursday without knowing her eldest son had been missing for almost a month. She was 85.

Doctors at Plymouth General Hospital in Detroit attributed death to natural causes but a close family friend said Mrs. Hoffa died of "a broken heart," apparently because she had not seen her son.

"This poor woman died because of the tragedy," said Murray Chodak, law partner of Hoffa's son, James P. Hoffa. "She died of a broken heart."

Chodak said Mrs. Hoffa was "very, very close to her son" and asked about him every day. He said the family decided not to tell her about Hoffa's disappearance July 30 because "they were hoping against hope he would show."

Mrs. Hoffa had been a patient at a suburban Detroit nursing home for more than two years and was admitted to Plymouth General a week ago.

She married John Hoffa in 1909. Their son, James Riddle Hoffa, was born four years later. Mrs. Hoffa was widowed in 1920.

The Hoffa family had serious financial problems when John Hoffa died and Mrs. Hoffa began taking in laundry to support her children.

The children, James, Billy and Nancy, now Mrs. Nancy Hawker of Utica, Mich., picked up and delivered the laundry for their mother.

Funeral arrangments were incomplete.

Strike May Cripple Nation's Coal Industry

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Wildcat pickets kept a large part of the nation's coal industry shut down today in a crippling strike that appeared likely to last at least through the long Labor Day weekend.

"There's no way they are going to go back to work before next Tuesday," said a mine official in southern West Virginia, the hotbed of a three-week old walkout which has idled more than 60,000 coal-workers in several states.

There were scattered reports of some mine operations reopening in Pennsylvania and Kentucky but no major return-to-work trend.

"There are no changes in the situation as we see it," said a spokesman for Consolidation Coal Co. in Morgantown, W. Va. "Our mines are all closed."

A miner in eastern Kentucky said, "A lot of guys, probably most of 'em, want to get back to work. But when they do, they don't want publicity because when the word gets out, next thing you know we have more pickets."

Numerous back-to-work orders were issued by the courts. Some miners, trying to obey the orders, reported for their work shifts only to be turned away by pickets.

A key figure in the walkout, United Mine Workers official Sim Howze of Logan County, W. Va., was released from jail after serving six days of a 90-day sentence for defying a judge's injunction and promised, "I'll do all I can to obey the court order."

U.S. Judge K.K. Hall, who issued that order and freed Howze when he promised to try to end the strike, Thursday raised to $600,000 the fine against the UMW. Hall threatened to add $100,000 each day his back-to-work order is defied.

The strike mushroomed from a local protest Aug. 11 over the firing of a Logan County miner into a demand throughout the Appalachians for the right to strike over local grievances without fear of court injunction.

By Thursday it had idled about 40,000 in West Virginia, 6,000 in Pennsylvania, 5,000 in Kentucky and smaller numbers in other states, including Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee, Indiana and Illinois.

Union loyalty to the strike was divided.

Frank Clements, UMW international executive board representative from Alabama, said the walkout was led by "left-leaning" members in West Virginia trying to control the union.

But another UMW official said the injunctions could not stop the strike. "There's no way it will work. The federal judges have stepped into it much too deep and they can put a million-dollar fine a day on the international union and it still will not stop us."

Woman Injured In Accident Thursday

An automobile accident with injuries, a theft and a burglary were all reported Thursday night to the Pampa Police Department.

Melba Ellen Moffitt, 53, of 525 Powell, was injured in a two car accident shortly before 6 p.m. Thursday in the 1400 block of E. Browning.

She was treated at Worley Hospital and released. Driver of the other vehicle was Dexter Anthony Turner, 16, of 1125 Christy.

Leggs Fruit Market at 408 S. Ballard was entered by breaking a wooden panel on the sliding door.

An undetermined amount of money was taken from the soft drink machine. Several bottles were taken from the machine and placed on the floor. Drawers were pulled from a desk and items were taken from a shelf.

Auto exhaust headers, valued at $30, were taken from the back yard of a local residence, the report listed.

Attorney Files for Seat On Railroad Commission

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The first candidate to officially file for a seat on the Texas Railroad Commission says he hopes his candidacy will encourage incumbent Commissioner Ben Ramsey to retire.

There has been speculation that Ramsey, 71, will leave the commission before election day to allow Gov. Dolph Briscoe to appoint someone who could then run as an incumbent. But Houston attorney Terence O'Rourke, 28, said he wasn't concerned about the rumors.

"There is always the rumor that the present incumbent is so old he's going to retire," said the Democrat. "I've found out the only way to make him retire is to get out there early and campaign. I think it's going to take somebody stronger than Ben Ramsey to beat me."

"In the months to come, the people of Texas will face some of the most deliberately punitive legislation to come out of the Congress of the United States since the days of Reconstruction. Punitive legislation that would or could destroy the energy industry in our state and the economy that depends on it."

O'Rourke said the Railroad commision should have fought the federal legislation, but had not done so. He also said consumer affairs would not be neglected if he were elected to the commision.

O'Rourke is a former assistant attorney general and legislative aide to members of the "Dirty 30" coalition in the 1971 legislature. He also represented Frances Farenthold in her $2.5 million campaign practices suit against Briscoe which was settled last year.

Threatens Communists

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The moderate military commander of Portugal's central region, which includes Lisbon, warned the Communist-backed government today he would use his troops to prevent a new dictatorship.

The statement by Brig. Franco Charais, who has kept his units on "maneuvers" since last weekend, was the first time a senior military officer has openly threatened the Communists with armed action.

The statement issued by Charais' headquarters said, "We have been preparing our units so that they can be turned into a guarantee that a totalitarian regime will not be reinstalled in Portugal."

He appealed for public support in his efforts.

The government-run national radio reported today that President Francisco da Costa Gomes would probably replace Goncalves with Adm. Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo, the 57-year-old commander of the Portuguese navy.

Political sources described Pinheiro de Azevedo as a hardline Communist supporter and a strict disciplinarian determined to restore governmental authority in the face of widespread anti-Communist rioting.

However, they said he is less contentious than the tough-talking Goncalves.

School Board Finalizes $4.5 Million '74 Budget

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

The Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees approved the final revision of the 1974 - 75 school budget at a called meeting at 5:30 p.m. Thursday in Carver Center.

The newly approved budget ammendment listed school expenditures for the 1974 - 75 school year as $4,508,137.

Trustees were surprised that a final tally showed $385,584 left in the operating fund instead of the $177,823 expected.

However, pointed out board president Curt Beck, the money included funds to be spent for school buses ordered last year. The three buses have not yet arrived.

Most of the excess is money labled for capital outlay, Beck explained.

He added that he hoped some of the funds, however, could be used to help balance the 1975 - 76 school budget so the board would not have to borrow so much money at the end of the year to make ends meet.

At its Aug. 19 meeting, the trustees voted to borrow the $398,550 necessary to meet the 1975 - 76 school budget which is $5,377,683.

At the same meeting, the group of men warned taxpayers that they were postponing a tax increase only until they could fully study the new school finance bill and ways to equalize district taxes. School administrators predicted that next year the board will have to raise an additional $1.1 million for the 1976 - 77 budget. The increase will cover financial demands of house bill 1126 and repayment of the loan.

The new bill will cost the local school district at least a half million dollars this year for salaries alone.

The trustees Thursday also approved the reappointed Don Lane as delinquent tax attorney for the district for two years.

"We anticipate vigorous prosecution of delinquent taxes," Beck said. He added that the collection of the taxes and tax equialization were the board's primary projects this year.

The board also accepted the resignation of Carol Ann Cline, junior high art teacher, and appointed Ruth Ann Noe as seventh grade English teacher.

Mrs. Payne, Gordon To Attend Meeting

Mrs. D.D. Payne and Joe Gordon of Pampa will represent Texas at the summer business meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Board President Joe Watt of Sheridan, Wyom., said the Cosmopolitan Hotel in Denver will be the headquarters for the meeting planned for August 30.

In addition to Watt, those coming from Wyoming will be Mrs. Herman Werner of Casper and W.B. Ludwig of Laramie.

Miss Freda Hambrick, Jasper Ackerman and Robert C. Norris, all from Colorado Springs, will serve as co - hosts for the meeting. Attending from Oklahoma will be William G. Kerr, Edward L. Gaylord, John E. Kirkpatrick, J.B. Saunders III and Cowboy Hall Managing Director Dean Krakel. Other directors that plan to attend include Albert K. Mitchell, Albert, New Mexico; and Harold Schafer, Bismarck, North Dakota.

"Several key issues and many operational decisions regarding the 17 state western - owned shrine will be discussed at the meeting," Watt stated.

Mrs. Payne was the first woman elected to serve on the Cowboy Hall Board of Directors and her generosity towards the Hall has been great. Joe Gordon's legal advice and recent work on the newly established trust fund has been invaluable, Managing Director Krakel stated.

Where Are All The Jar Lids?

United Press International

Lids, lids, whose got the canning lids?

Not us, say the manufacturers.

Not us, say the distributors and retailers.

And certainly not us, say hundreds of thousands of Americans who are attempting to beat high prices by canning home-grown produce but cannot find the lids needed for the job.

The Commerce Department tried to solve the problem, working out a program under which Goodwill Industries Inc. would handle nationwide distribution of available replacement canning lids, to be used with reusable canning jars. It ran out of 2.8 million lids in a week, obtained another 100,000 and finally announced last week, after less than a month of operation, that some 238,000 persons who ordered lids would get their checks back.

The Agriculture Department also got into the act. It called on state directors of agriculture to work out state-by-state allocations for canning lids with distributors and retailers.

The Wisconsin Agriculture Department says more than 21 million canning jar lids had been shipped into the state as of Aug. 1.

"We just can't figure out where all these jar lids are going if the companies' figures are correct," said Norman Kirschbaum, a spokesman for the department, "but we will make every attempt to monitor the supply in an effort to make the jar lids available where they are needed the most."

Distributors say they're shipping out lids as fast as they can and retailers in most parts of the country say lids are snatched up by buyers as soon as they appear on the shelves.

The USDA has warned against experimenting with canning lid substitutes — including bathroom caulking — saying such make-shift lids could lead to food spoilage and development of sometimes-deadly botulism.

The nation's two top manufacturers of canning lids — Ball Corp., of Muncie, Ind., and Kerr Glass Manufacturing Co., of Los Angeles — say they're producing lids as fast as possible but can't keep up with demand.

"We can't step up production any more than seven days a week, three shifts a day," said Vern Schranz, Ball corporate secretary and public relations dirctor.

"We estimate total demand at about 2 billion (lids) but all companies combined will probably come up with about 1.6 billion," Kerr President William A. Kerr told a California Department of Consumer Affairs hearing.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By Fred Karpin

As a generalization, when one overbids, he arrives at a poor contract which, in order to be fulfilled, frequently requires raking a gamble. Such was the case in today's deal, which was played in a duplicate game. Our South declarer, however, evidently didn't see the necessity for taking one specific gamble — and it cost him his contract, for the gamble would have turned out successfully.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠.

On West's opening spade lead, declarer "automatically" played low from dummy. In so doing, he obtained a guarantee that he would win a spade trick whether East (in theory) played either the queen, the ace, or a low spade. East won the trick with the queen, and returned a spade to East's ace. West then made a third spade lead, a club being discarded from dummy as South won the trick with his jack.

Unable to reach dummy to take a diamond finesse, South next cahsed the ace of diamonds, and followed up by leading another diamond to East's king. When play had ended, South was down a trick, for all he could make were two club tricks, three diamonds, two hearts, and one spade.

South failed to recognize that he had to try for four diamond tricks to fulfill his contract; and that, to accomplish this, he had to get to dummy to take the diamond finesse. At trick one, he should hav put up the board's king of spades, hoping that West was leading away from the ace (admittedly East could have had the spade ace, in which case declarer might lose the first five spade tricks).

With the king winning, the nine of diamonds would be led next, and the fineese taken against East's hoped - for king. Then would follow the diamond queen, and another successful finesse. A third finesse would then bring in four diamond tricks.

Mrs. Trimble Leads Group Bible Study

Mrs. David Hutto, chairman of the Jackie Shaw Bible Study group of First Baptist Church presided during the 9:30 a.m. Wednesday meeting of the group. Mrs. Ed Langford, 1926 N. Faulkner, was hostess.

Mrs. Hutto reminded the group of the general meeting of Baptist women to be Wednesday at the church. It will be a luncheon and study at 12 o'clock noon.

The mission action project for the month of August was to bring good, used winter clothing and school supplies for the Rio Grande Riverministry.

The Bible lesson from second Kings 11 and 12 was taught by Mrs. O.G. Trimble. Mrs. Langford gave the closing prayer.

Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Jerald Myers were welcomed as guests.

Members attending were Mmes. Gary Clark, David Ford, Trimble, Hutto, Allen, and Langford.

The next meeting of this group will be Sept. 24 in Mrs. Hutto's home.

New Plant For Taos

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Gov. Jerry Apodaca said today Le Grillon, Inc., a Dallas clothing firm, has announced it will move its design and manufacturing operations to Taos.

"I think the businessmen of Taos deserve a great deal of credit for their work in attracting this new plant," Apodaca said. "This is a very good example of public and private sectors cooperating in efforts to bring an economic boost to our state."

The governor's office said the firm, which sells women's clothing and sportswear under the "Oscar Lalla" label, would locate its operations at the Taos Mini Industrial Park. The governor's office said training programs for employes would begin in January.

Ford Will Speak To GOP Women

Mrs. B.R. Nunn, 1719 Grape, will serve as delegate representing the Top O' Texas Republican Womens Club at the 18th Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Republican Women. More than 30000 women political leaders from throughout the nation are expected for the meeting, scheduled for the Dallas Convention Center, Sept. 11-13.

Mrs. Scott Nisbet, 1206 N. Russell, has been elected alternate for the local club and will be a hostess for the reception honoring NFRW officers in the International Ballroom, Fairmont Hotel, Sept. 11.

Highlighting the three - day meeting will be an address by President Gerald Ford on Saturday morning, Sept. 13. Preceding the address on Friday, Sept. 12, will be an appearance by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, and former California Governor Ronald Reagan will address the delegates following a gala banquet on Friday evening.

Others who have accepted the Federation's invitation to appear on Saturday morning include United States Senator John Tower of Texas; Governor Kit Bond of Missouri, Chairman of the Republican Governors' Association; and former Texas Governor John Connally.

Luncheon speaker for Saturday will be United States Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the GOP's 1964 presidential nominee. Highlighting the luncheon on Friday will be an address by Frank Shakespeare, former director of the United States Information Agency and now president of RKO General Broadcasting, Inc.

Mary Louise Smith, chairman of the Republican National Committee, will open the first general session on Friday, Sept. 12. Presiding will be Connie Armitage of South Carolina, president of the Federation (NFRW). The NFRW, with some half - million members, is the largest political organization for women in the United States.

Convention business includes election of officers for the 1976 - 77 term and adoption of resolutions stating the NFRW position on major issues.

All interested men and women are welcome to be guests at the convention. Fully registered guests may attend all general sessions, workshops and food functons and may register by sending their registration check with full name and address to NFRW Headquarters, 310 First Street, S.E., Washington, D.C. 20003, by Sept. 3. Details of the registration may be secured by calling Mrs. Nunn (669-9548) or Mrs. Nisbet (669-2333).

Mae, Bogey Are Part Of the T-shirt Craze

By GINA LUBRANO
Copley News Service

Humphrey Bogart was on sale at one store, while in another, Mae West cooed her famous line, "Why don't you come up 'n' see me sometime."

Mae and Bogey, whose names have been in lights and whose pictures have been in publication throughout the world, are now part of the T-shirt craze.

Plain white T-shirts are about as old-fashioned as wringer washers nowadays. And although the plain ones remain standard stock in most department stores, it's the ones with the designs that are making the cash registers ring and ring and ring.

Don Dill, manager of a Woolworth store, expects sales of decorated shirts to reach $50,000 this year for his store alone. The shirts are even bigger business in Hawaii, where it's common to anticipate $100,000 in annual sales, he said.

Woolworth stocks all kinds of T-shirts. One line, complete with washing instructions, has olfactory designs. There's one that gives off the aroma of pizza, another the fragrance of flowers and others smell like strawberries and tangerines.

To get a whiff of the design, you scratch it with a fingernail and then sniff to your heart's content.

Dill said the Woolworth line includes shirts that cater to tourists and ones that can be personalized.

The predesigned ones that can be personalized with a name or a saying are big sellers.

Woolworth and other stores have machines that transfer designs and letters onto plain white T-shirts through a heat process.

T-shirts that already have designs on them can be personalized. Take the one of the male chauvinist pig. That can be personalized with the name of your favorite MCP.

Dill's personal favorite is the one that appeals to surfers and others who love the ocean. It's a great big wave.

One young woman used a T-shirt to do some personal advertising. She had it imprinted with her name and telephone number.

Some of the mass-produced T-shirts are imprinted with sayings that border on the suggestive. Others expound popular philosophies and Madison Avenue-inspired sayings.

"Love makes the world go around," proclaims one shirt. Another one duplicates the same sentiment, but adds music to it.

"Try it, you'll like it," urges a T-shirt, inspired by a television advertisement. There's also "It's not nice to fool mother nature," an admonishment that usually sends thunder and lightning crashing and flashing across the television screen.

Some T-shirts are ecology and conservation minded. "Don't be fuelish," advises one.

"The devil made me do it," says one flip shirt.

Other shirts include a plump belly dancer and a man and woman on a swing that makes one think of Tarzan and Jane. Some shirts have flapper designs, but they must have not been big sellers because they were on sale at reduced prices at one department store.

Motorcycles also are a popular theme for T-shirts. Members of clubs have their shirts personalized with the name of the club.

Even with all the designs in stock, even with the personalized shirt, the all-time popular is Mickey Mouse, Dill said.

"Mickey Mouse is stronger than ever," he said. The shirt appeals to all ages, from toddlers to young women in their 20s.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My comfortable chair sits right by my floor furnace register in the summer.

When I knit or crochet, I am always dropping my needles down into the register and cannot retrieve them easily. So I measured my register, cut a piece of nylon net one inch larger each way and placed it neatly over the register and tucked it down under the edges.

No more lost needles! And I only have to change the net once each fall.

O. M.

* * *

Only people who have had the experience of dropping items down a floor furnace register will appreciate this hint.

The nylon net will save all kinds of things from being dropped down the floor register and the nylon net is very inexpensive, too, when it becomes necessary to replace it.

Dear Heloise:

I would like to add something about cleaning out and rearranging your kitchen cabinets.

I utilize that space in the back of my kitchen cupboard by using a carton.

I put all my pots and pans in a 17" x 12" x 7" deep box. All I have to do is pull out the box and there are my pans.

It saves a lot of bending and searching for those way in the back.

Dear Heloise:

My family loves the popular bundt cakes and so do I—except when they want to stick to the pan.

Several months ago I discovered if you grease your pan heavily with shortening and use sugar instead of flour, the cake never sticks and they come out so crispy and yummy on the outside and so moist on the inside.

I've not had a single failure and I get many compliments.

Dear Heloise:

When you get a melon or cantaloupe that's as flat as pumpkin, don't discard it.

Cut it up and add equal amount of peaches, sugar them well and let stand overnight or several hours.

Drain well (you can drink the juice), and the melon is as good as the peaches.

I add cubes of watermelon, white, green, or purple grapes cut in half, bits of oranges or any fruit, and little marshmallows and serve on lettuce, with or without a dressing.

Dear Heloise:

Now that we are finding ways to recycle so many things, here is one for the many addressed return envelopes one receives in the mail.

Cut a piece of colored paper, the size of the printed area on the envelope.

Paste it over the printed area. Stick a gummed label over it to use for writing the address on.

Now put a stamp over the righthand corner where the permit stamp is and you have an attractive, decorated envelope.

This is a good rainy day project for the children.

Alice Snyder

Dear Heloise:

I made a marvelous discovery just the other day which I thought others might like to know about.

While I was in the yard I noticed many weeds which had just about taken over the place.

I had a claw hammer in my hand. I gently bent over and began to pull the weeds with the hammer.

I found that if I got the main stem between the claws, the pest came up easily since the ground had been wet with recent rain.

From now on this will be my tool for getting rid of those large, pesty weeds. No more dirty hands and sore fingers festered from thorns.

Jesse White

Dear Heloise:

Several years ago someone sent in the hint which you published, saying don't throw away your children's outside swing set when they have outgrown it.

Take the children's equipment out of the frame (usually it's worn out by then) and hang a porch swing.

This idea was for me because the house in which I was raised had a large front porch and swing which the family used extensively.

Everyone who uses our swing comments what a great idea and I tell them I learned it from Heloise!

A Heloise Fan

Since it has been some time since this idea was printed I thought some of our new readers may not know about this idea.

New holes won't even have to be drilled to fit the porch swing on most of these frames.

Gaston To Lead Church Rallies

Special evangelistic rallies are scheduled at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, beginning Sept. 3 through Sept. 7, at 7:30 p.m. (except Saturday) with Evangelist Leo Gaston of Springfield, Mo., presiding.

Gaston, a noted Bible expositor as well as a camp meeting speaker, emphasises his preaching is an appeal to a deeper Christian life and a preparation for last day events as related in the Bible.

He will be accompanied by his wife who will compliment his ministry with special singing in each service.

The schedule services at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly for Sunday are: Sunday School, 9:45 a.m.; Morning Worship, 10:45 a.m. (Pastor Gene Allen; sermon title will be "God's Plan for living the Christian Life"); Youth Outreach Rally, 5:45 p.m.; and Sunday evening evangelistic rally, 7 p.m.

NOTICE
The Fifth Sunday Gray County Singing Convention is scheduled for Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. at Freewill Baptist Church, 324 Rider.

Hobart Baptist Congregation Slates Speaker

Robert Hensley, who served as a missionary to Brazil the past 11 years, will be preaching at both 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services Sunday at Hobart Baptist Church, 1100 W. Crawford.

Hensley presently serving as executive secretary of the Goias Baptist Convention of the State of Goias, Brazil, is on furlough and lives in Borger. He is married and the father of three daughter. Hensley is a graduate of WaylandBaptist College and Golden Gate Seminary in California.

President Ford's Still Open Door

After President Ford's honeymoon with the American people a year ago, a number of observers began to feel that the doors of Ford's promised "open administration" were swinging shut.

But one group that doesn't share that view is the religious community.

"This President's style is very unusual — we've never had anything like it before," according to Mary Cooper of the National Council of Churches' Washington office.

In January, Ford ended a virtual lock - out of mainline church leaders from access to the administration — brought about primarily from the churches' overwhelming opposition to the war in Vietnam — and met with the leadership of the 31 member National Council.

In the half year since that meeting, according to NCC officials, there have been more Ford invitations to the council than occured during the whole of the previous decade.

In addition, Ford held an unprecedented meeting with a group of the nation's Roman Catholic hierachy, led by Archbishop Joesph Bernardin of Cincinnati, president of the National Confrence of Catholic Bishops.

The Catholics, who originally approached the White House to make known their views on the world food crisis, wound up spending an hour with Ford and two Cabinet members on the wide range of issues including refugees, illegal aliens, parochial schools and abortion as well as the food issue.

Bernardin, at the time, characterized the meeting as "positive and cordial."

The refugee problem — the resettlement of Vietnamese who fled South Vietnam when the Thieu government collapsed last April — has been the catalyst for much of the administration - church interaction.

Churches have been the leading voluntary agencies in the resettlement process and thus have had to work closely with administration officials.

High level NCC officials have been invited to White House briefings on the refugee resettlement program and National Council president W. Sterling Cary has been named to Ford's advisory committee on refugees — something that would have been unheard of during the term of Richard Nixon.

The open door policy of the administration, however, does not mean that all is sweetness and light.

NCC officials make it clear White House or administration policies are frequently at odds with official church positions on issues.

The Rev. Jovelino Ramos, assistant general secretary for the Commission on Justice, Liberation and Human Fulfillment, for example, told of one White House session where he was "glad I had the opportunity" to hear the administration's plan to solve the unemployment problem.

Then he added: "The truth of the matter, transparent in the awnsers to this question which was raised many times, is that the administration has no plan at all."

The original 5,533-acre site for the Army's sprawling Fort Carson on the southern edge of Colorado Springs, Colo., was purchased in 1942 for $36,500.

Directors, Youth Set Program

Dave and Rhonda Englert, District Youth Directors of the Foursquare International Organization of Dallas, will conduct services at 7:30 p.m. today and Saturday and Sunday at 11 a.m. at Foursquare Gospel Church, 704 Lefors.

Danny Casey of Texas Tech University, and Kathy Casey, of Amarillo College, will be conducting youth ministries at the services.

Evangelist Is Pulpit Guest

The Pampa Church of God, 1123 Gwendolen, will hold an Old Fashion Revival Meeting with Evangelist Dennis Boggs of Alabama, guest speaker.

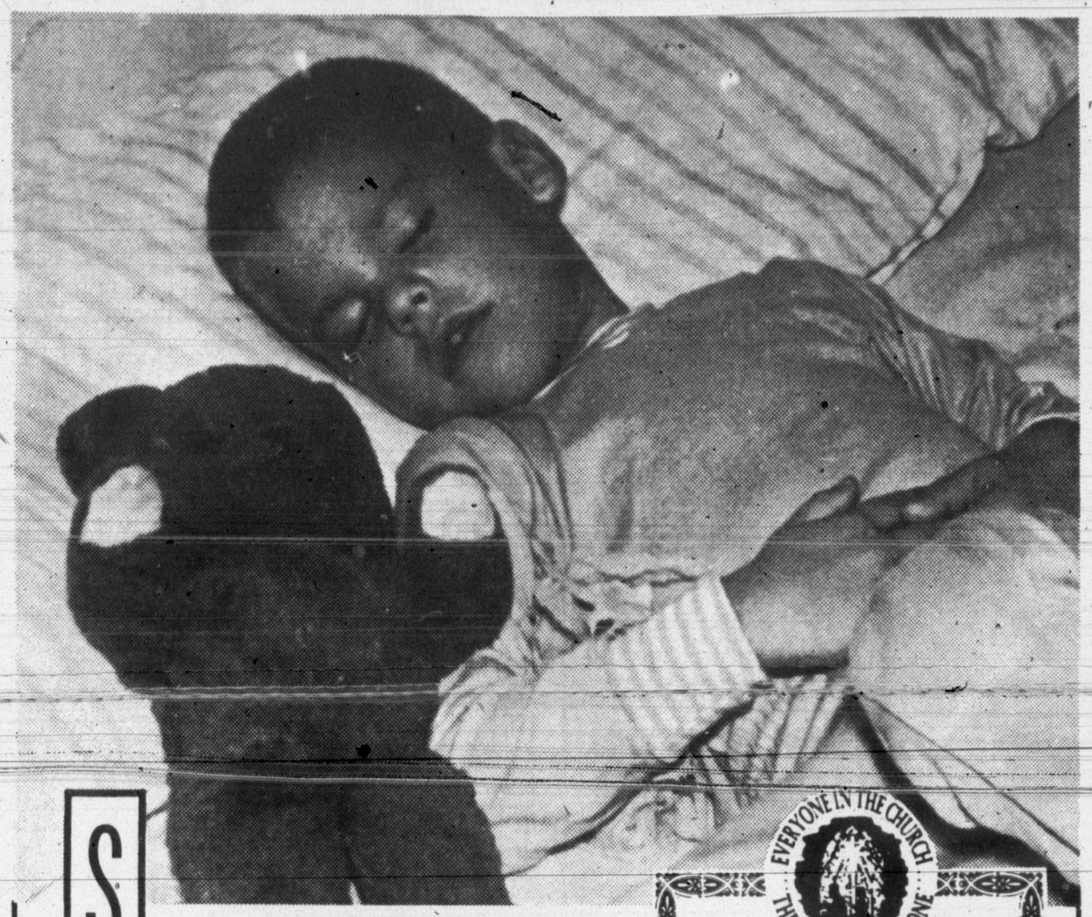
The revival begins Sunday, Aug. 31 and continues through Sunday, Sept. 7, nightly at 7:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. Sundays.

Special music has been scheduled for the weekly event.

An investment in Your Future

...ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"



SAFE AND SECURE

How confidently he sleeps. Mother and Daddy are in the next room. Teddy Bear is right beside him.

We, also, desire a feeling of confident security. We want to do good and live with honor in this life, free of the fear of falling into sin. God wants this for us, too. And He sees and knows how hard we try.

In the New Testament, Jude writes, "God is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy."

Pledge yourself to Him and attend church this week.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH — THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Harvesters To Meet State-Ranked Brownwood

Pampa High's football team will start off its fall season with a challenge, scrimmaging state AAA power Brownwood starting at 8 p.m. today in Aspermont.

Brownwood, ranked eighth in the state by Texas Football Magazine, replaces Vernon, also a AAA team, this year as Pampa's pre-season opponent.

The teams are expected to play game situations in the first half and a controlled crimmage, with no kicks, in the final two quarters.

Pampa opens its season next week at home against Hereford, while Brownwood will meet Abilene Cooper.

The Lions of Coach Gordon Wood, who has built Brownwood's football program into one of the winningest programs in the state, will field its biggest team ever under the current coaching staff.

"We've got a good-sized team," Wood said. "It's probably the biggest team we've had.

"We've got about 36 or 38 boys and we'll be looking at all of them. We're extremely green. I've only got about four kids that have played any varsity ball at all."

Wood, like Pampa Coach John Welborn, indicated a victory in the scrimmage is not as important as evaluating personnel.

"It's not important who wins. It's important to learn and try to correct mistakes. We don't approach mistakes like a lot of people — if we dont learn, we don't win."

Brownwood, said the coach, is inexperienced but has good depth in the backfield. "We have two backfields — neither one of them are great. There's no difference in them — we have a lot of depth in the backfield."

Jones Withdraws; Field Still Strong

Big eight golf champion Tom Jones will not play on the annual Top O' Texas Golf Tournament because of another commitment but the field at Pampa Country Club still has enough talent to be considered one of the top amateur tourneys in West Texas.

Jones won a first-round match in the U.S. Amateur so the Oklahoma State University champion will not be able to make his scheduled tee off time in the Top O' Texas, which begins a three-day stint Saturday.

Defending champion Dick Weston of Miami, three-time champion John Farquhar of Amarillo and Pampans Eddie Duenkel, Dob Hudson, Max Hickey and David Parker are among the top players entered.

Others with a good shot at the title include several college players. Britt Harrison of Oklahoma state, a recipient of Amarillo Globe-News High School Most Valuable Player award; Steve Long of Australia and Texas Tech, and Harry Turner and Lynn Blovins of the University of Oklahoma are considered strong contenders.

The championship flight will play 18 holes of medal play Saturday and Sunday and 36 holes Monday. First flight will play 18 holes each day of the tourney, while Flights 2-11 will play match play Saturday and Sunday and 18 holes of stroke play in the final round.

The course will be closed today for practice and each day of the tournament.

Weston won last year with a 283 total, one stroke ahead of Jones and three in front of John Zett of Amarillo. The final round was played in cool, windy weather.

Dallas, Oilers Ready For Tilt

HOUSTON (UPI) — It's only an exhibition game but the coaches of the Dallas Cowboys and the Houston Oilers are talking as if a playoff berth instead of the Governor's Cup is at stake.

"Houston's always given us a tremendous battle," said Cowboy coach Tom Landry, his team desperate for a win Saturday night after losing three preseason tries. The Cowboys have won eight of 10 total meetings with Houston.

"You're dreaming if you think Dallas, just because they're 0-3, isn't a good football team," said first year Oiler head coach Bum Phillips.

"They need a win, so I look for quarterback Roger Staubach to play the whole game like he did last week."

Phillips will counter with No. 1 quarterback Dan Pastorini, who will try to avenge a brutal 10-0 loss to Dallas in the 1974 regular season.

That loss was only one of two in Houston's final eight games. And the Oilers have begun this preseason with two wins, despite the lack of a running game.

The Governor's Cup is awarded annually to the winner of the Oilers-Cowboys matchup and Houston fans lined up early Thursday to get the few remaining tickets. By 3 a.m. the line had formed for the last 300 tickets and more than 600 fans were turned away.

Those tickets were from the allotment of 10,000 the Cowboys could not sell, indicative of the 0-3 record.

Staubach said their problems were problems of transition.

"It has been a period of adjustment with seven veterans gone and young players trying to replace them," he said. "For us this is a critical season, replacing veterans in the defensive line and offensive backfield."

Cycle Racing Big in Pampa

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Wayne Caswell doesn't participate as much as he once did but the 25-year-old part-owner of Sharp's Honda in Pampa is still a serious member of one of the growingest sports groups on the country.

Caswell, classified as a Junior-Expert professional motorcycle racer, competes about twice a month, which isn't often for a racer, but his and other local racers' past accomplishments have earned Pampa much respectability around the Panhandle and Tri-State area racing circuit.

"Nowdays, I race about twice a month," Caswell said. "With running a business here, I don't have time to travel."

Caswell has won numerous races and has aquired enough professional points to earn him a Junior-Expert rating, which is one step above a novice and one step below an Expert. After gaining an expert status the pro racer strives to acquire a National Number card, which places him among the top 100 riders in the nation.

Those in the national Number class make motorcycle racing a profession. "Most of the people that travel the cicuit make their living at it. They work in a bike shop when they get a chance but mostly they just travel and race," Caswell said.

Caswell, because of job commitments, probably will never become a National Number of Expert but he is quick to point out there are several young riders in Pampa who have the potential to become sucessful professionals.

"There are a lot of other boys in town that are awfully good riders. Probably something like 70 per cent of the wins in the Panhandle are done by Pampa people.

"It's the competitive spirit. These guys are serious. We got a lot of talent here in town; the guys really apply themselves."

One of the younger-racers is Monte Meers, a senior at Pampa High. Meers, a Novice, has 26½ points but hopes to pick up enough to classify him as a Junior-Expert when he competes in Oklahoma City Sept. 20-21.

His father, H.L. Meers, owns Meers Oil Company, another motorcycle shop in Pampa. "I'm Monte's race mechanic," he said.

Meers (the father), like Caswell, attributes the success of local racers to the competitive nature. "The competition is so fierce," he said.

Monte has run in Panhandle moto-cross races but now limits himself strictly to short-track and half-mile races, the professional and semi-pro (Amarillo Speed Bowl) events.

"We feel like this track racing is a little bit higher grade racing," H.L. Meers said. "That's where more money's to be made and it's a better organized race circuit. It's easier on the man — not as dangerous — and on the equipment."

Caswell on the other hand occasionally will complete in a moto-cross race.

"I'll do it very little," Caswell said. "It's just for fun when I do and it helps me keep in condition and keep my reflexes up." One youngster in Pampa specializes in moto-cross races is Terry Weatherford, sponsored by Brister's Kawasaki.

Tom Overstreet, owner of Brister's, keeps his protege's bike in good running condition. "I'm sponsoring him. We foot the bills," Overstreet said.

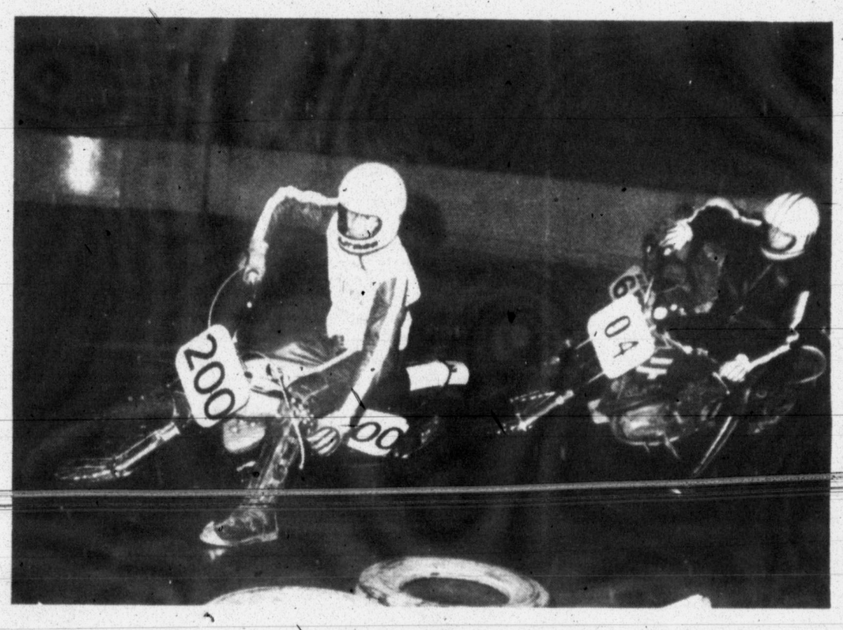
"It does help sell motorcycles. If he continues to place in the top four or five, it's good advertising for Kawasakis."

Weatherford is one of around 25 Pampans competeing in amateur moto-cross races. Another is Thad Slaton, owner of D&S Suzuki.

Pampans, whether it's in moto-cross, semi-pro professional races, are coaught up in motorcycle racing and the reason the sport is so attractive to the racers is hard to determine, says Overstreet.

"I don't know if it's the excitement of it or the thrill of competition or saying, 'I've got bike that will outrun your bike.'"

Caswell may know the reason. "I think the big thing is the inter-city competition. We have a shop rivalry in the moto-cresses, where a guy tries to beat another brand bike, and alot of personal rivalries, where a guy wants to be the best moto-cross rider in Pampa."



Easy Rider

Monte Meers, 17, of Pampa is part of a large group of local people involved in motorcycle racing. Here, Meers competes in a race inside the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum. Meers is classified as a Novice professional by the American Motorcycle Association.

Pampa Cars Among Field At Speedway

Two cars driven by Pampans will be entered in Saturday and Sunday night races at Amarillo's Southwest Speedway.

Races will start at 8 p.m. The Pampa cars will be entered in the Hobby Stock class.

Gary Wilson of Pampa will drive car No. 47, while Jimmy Youree will be behind the wheel of No. 14.

From Panhandle, Doug Smith and Daryle Ogletree will drive Nos. 54 and 36, respectively.

It's All American Week

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (UPI) — A herd of cattle lazily graze on a newly cut pasture. Overhead a single-engine plane prepares to descend on the town's mini-runway.

In the middle of town, pickup trucks and Cadillacs alike splash their way through rain-filled chuckholes on their way to the track.

It is All American week and the small town of Ruidoso Downs is getting ready for the world's richest horse race — the $1 million All American Futurity.

Nestled in the heart of the Sacramento Mountains, Ruidoso Downs became the birthplace of the All American Futurity 17 years ago and while the town has remained pretty much the same, the popularity of the short race grows each year.

Monday, another field of 10 2-year-old quarterhorses will be going to the post for the 440-yard race which offers horse racing's biggest payoff, a $330,000 check to the winner.

But the profits of the Labor Day weekend do not belong only to the horsemen. The town and its people also get their share.

Hotels are sold a year in advance for the All American weekend.

The All American began with a purse of $129,000 in 1959 and grew with a speed surpassed only by the competing quarterhorses. Three years ago, the purse peaked at $1,030,000 and would have gone higher had not the track decided to put the excess money into the All American Derby, a race for 3-year-olds which is already nearing the half million dollar mark.

Moral: Don't Befriend Snake

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Eulogio Guillen saw the small brightly colored snake in the front yard of his home. He reached down to pick it up and the coral snake —one of the deadliest snakes in North America— bit him twice on the hand.

Guillen, 45, went to the Brownsville Medical Center and walked into the emergency room still carrying the snake.

"It just struck out at me and nearly bit me," male nurse Richard Garza Jr., 25, said. "He (Guillen) picked it up and it bit him again on the right index finger."

Despite the three bites, Guillen was reported in good condition at the hospital Wednesday night where he was being held for observation.

"He's doing alright," said a spokesman. The spokesman said Guillen was showing no bad symptoms from the poison and might be released today.

The Gladys Porter Zoo, which provided serum for treating Guillen's bites, identified the eight inch long reptile as a coral snake.

Louis DiSabato, director of the San Antonio Zoo, said coral snakes were not unusual in South Texas. He said despite the deadliness of the snake's venom there are few fatalities if the bites are treated promptly.

DiSabato said because the corals are small snakes, they must find a vulernable spot — such as between the thumb and forefinger — to bite a human being and the bites when treated promptly seldom are fatal.

"You have to be either very sick, awfully small, awfully susceptible to certain venom and get a full dose of venom to die quickly," he said.

Garza said Guillen apparently made no effort to kill the snake after it bit him about 7:30 a.m.

"Evidently he didn't even attempt that," the nurse said. "He carried it in his hand. When it lunged at me, I was suddenly about a half a block away."

Garza said it was the second coral snake bite in Brownsville in the past six months and the first victim also brought the snake in alive.

"The first one we got into a container real quick," Garza said.

25,000th Refugee

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (UPI) — Officials announced Wednesday 25,000 Vietnamese refugees have been processed through this relocation center and found sponsors in the United States.

Officials said the designation of the 25,000th refugee to find a sponsor belonged to one of a group of four bachelors, ranging in age from 19-22, who have been sponsored by the United Methodist Church at Patterson, La.

"We didn't actually tag one of them the 25,000th. He was one of the four in the group. They are traveling together," said Phyllis Young, State Department spokeswoman.

All four, Nguyen Hai Duy, Do Khac Si, Le Van Hon and Ly Hong Quang were in the South Vietnamese Air Force. Local television crews filmed their departure and several camp officials turned out to wish them well.

None have jobs yet, but all have experience working as carpenters, house painters and plumbers, Miss Young said.

Since Chaffee opened as a refugee relocation center May 2, 26,227 Vietnamese have left the camp, but not all for sponsors in the U.S. Some, who asked to be returned to Vietnam, were flown to Guam and others relocated in third countries, Miss Young said.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, AUGUST 30

Your birthday today: Involvement with forces larger than your individual ventures will cover puts you in line for broader responsibilities. Serious study is the result; self-improvement comes to the rescue. You may travel more than usual this year and next. Relationships drift along the same as they have been. Today's natives are self-sufficient, pay little attention to advice, and aren't always as prudent as conditions warrant.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: With everybody on the move, satisfactory progress is difficult even though this will be the best day of the long weekend. Don't get involved in any complex legalities.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: The most helpful people are the least willing to be discussed or introduced. Sidestep crowded situations, unfamiliar enterprises. Avoid any spending, except for necessities.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Although you're quick-witted and persuasive, look where you're going, and consider the implication of your remarks. Be skeptical of good news and bad. Informants are in error.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Intuition runs counter to what is said. Try for reasonable perspective on this pleasant but deceptive day. Don't grumble if called on to work or contribute to the general welfare.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: If you've been wise enough to set aside extra cash, be sensible and hang on to it. What seems urgent will soon not be. Minor changes must take long-range goals into account.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Don't try to outguess others. Mind your own affairs. Somebody you cherish and trust may misjudge and follow a wrong path. Adequate rearrangements can be made.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Expect delays. Bring materials with you for making good use of otherwise wasted time. Improvise and take alternate routes or shortcuts. Avoid business negotiations.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Almost any scheme expands into unrealistic proportions. Remember original ideas, and wait until regular schedules resume. If you must work today, keep it simple and under your control.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: It's not that anybody wants to mislead you, but nobody is sure of his course or what he has to deal with. Imaginative experiments help enterprises along at a lively clip.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Give people plenty of elbow room to turn around in. Make certain your resources remain intact for a future real opportunity. Don't go off on some odd tangent.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Haste, delay, and postponement are all intermixed in today's pattern. You'll have plenty of good, amusing companions, but let them fend for themselves. Don't spend above your budget.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Be content with others of equal responsibility. Cope with them and their confusion as best you can. Omit commercial deals entirely. Family members squabble over anything.

KILL DOWN

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Hunters in Texas killed 312,877 white-tailed deer during the 1974-75 hunting season, Parks and Wildlife Department biologists report.

"This represents a statewide drop in the harvest of some 15 per cent last season compared with the 366,033 whitetails taken in the 1973-74 season," said Charles Winkler, director of the department's big game program.

Texas hunters also killed 8,516 mule deer in the past season, a drop of 17 per cent from the previous year's kill.

CANOEING

NEW YORK (UPI) — Canoeing is the most fatal form of recreational boating, according to a new national boating survey from the U.S. Coast Guard.

The survey, prepared by Chilton Research Services, revealed canoes without motors caused 1.656 fatalities per million passenger hours, the highest of any type of boat. Comparatively, outboard motor boats were involved in only .546 fatalities per million passenger hours.

However, sailboats with auxiliary engines are most likely to produce nonfatal injuries. This type vessel was involved in .909 injuries per million passenger hours, while the rate was only .136 for motorless canoes.

Farmers of the United States — less than one per cent of the world's total — in a normal year grow 15 per cent of all food.

Drinnon's Champlin Service

High prices and exploding tires would make the average person think twice about operating a servie station but T.C. Drinnon, owner of Drinnon's Champlin Service, 901 N. Hobart, would never quit his business.

Drinnon's devotion to the gas business is evident in the amount of time he has put into service stations. "I started out on June 10, 1964," Drinnon said.

Since then, he's operated three stations — an Enco, a Fina and his present Champlin.

Also, since his start Drinnon has watched the price of gasoline grow from only a few cents to the present price of around 60 cents per gallon. "The way they talk, it's liable to go up another two or three cents by this weekend."

Drinnon is somewhat optimistic, though. "I don't look for it to get over 75 cents for another six to eight months."

His Champlin station has caused Drinnon a few headaches. One of those happened last month when a tire on a car he was working on blew off the rim, hitting him in the head.

Drinnon was hospitalized with a concussion and facial injuries. "They've got me on light duty for another 30 days."

Any other close calls? "That's the closest one but I think that's close enough," Drinnon laughed.

Drinnon's Champlin has its regular clientele pretty well established but the Pampa owner welcomes new customers. "Pampa is one of the finest towns in the state," he said.

The station is open from 6:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Texan Crowns Meany 'Cowpile of the Month'

COLORADO CITY, Tex. (UPI) — Labor leader George Meany has replaced Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz as the grand advocate of fuzzy-headed national economic policy, Texas Agriulture Commissioner John C. White said today.

"George Meany is now the champion contender for the 'Cowpile of the Month Award' for his opposition to the shipment of foreign grain sales," White said in a speech prepared for delivery at an annual farm tour luncheon sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

"This dubious award is usually deserved by Earl Butz, but Meany is the new champion.

"We are going to be covered up in wheat and other feed grains this year," White said. "Our farmers were specifically asked by Butz to produce all they could to meet the world demand — and they've done it. Now Meany is playing politics with these foreign shipments. His political demagoguery, if it succeeds, can demoralize and destroy our grain growing potential."

White said American farmers have produced about two-thirds more grain than the nation can possibly use at home.

White said Meany cites bread prices as a reason for labor refusing to load grain bound for the Soviet Union. But he said the farmer gets less than four cents for the wheat in a 37 cent loaf of bread, while labor gets 17 cents for the work that goes into each loaf.

Irish Revolutionary Dies at 92

DUBLIN (UPI) — Eamon de Valera, a fiery revolutionary who became the president and father figure of the nation he helped create, died today with the name of his beloved Ireland on his lips. He was 92.

"All my life I have done my best for Ireland," de Valera whispered to a nursing nun shortly before the end. "Now I am ready to go."

De Valera died in the Linden nursing home on the outskirts of Dublin shortly before noon. He was taken there last week with a heavy cold from the old folks home to which he retired two years ago.

A spokesman said "bronchial pneumonia and cardiac failure" killed the old revolutionary, last surviving leader of the Easter Rising of 1916 which led Ireland to independence from Britain.

His son, Maj. Vivon de Valera, was at his bedside, with two priests. De Valera's wife, Sinead, died Jan. 7 on the eve of their 65th wedding anniversary.

New York-born de Valera, who defied British troops at the head of a 130-man force in the Easter Rising of 1916, served two seven-year terms as president of the republic he helped create.

Frail and almost completely blind, he retired to an old folks home a few days before the formal end of his second term in 1973.

He caught a heavy cold there last week and was moved to a Dublin nursing home.

"Mr. de Valera died peacefully shortly before noon from bronchial pneumonia and cardiac failure," a spokesman at the Linden nursing home said.

De Valera dominated Ireland's political scene for more than half a century. He was a

"All my life I have done my best for Ireland," he whispered to a nursing nun shortly before the end. "Now I am ready to go."

His son, Maj. Vivon de Valera, was at the bedside. Two priests were in attendance. De Valera's wife, Sinead, a writer of children's books and two years his elder, died earlier this year.

New Trial Refused

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A district judge, who did not believe a defense witness characterized as "a senile, eccentric old man," has refused to grant a new trial for the convicted murderer of a Mormon missionary.

Robert Elmer Kleasen showed no emotion Thursday as District Judge Tom Blackwell turned down Kleasen's bid for a new trial.

The chief defense witness was Earl F. Albrecht, 69, who said he saw Gary Smith Darley and Mark J. Fischer alive more than 24 hours after the murder allegedly took place.

"I know that was the day. There was no question about that, I'll die knowing that," Albrecht said. He said he saw the two at a service station Oct. 29, 1974, although Kleason was convicted of murdering Fischer on Oct. 28 and dismembering his body with a taxidermists' bandsaw.

Albrecht testified for about two hours with the prosecution calling 21 witnesses to refute the testimony.

"Mr. Albrecht is a senile, eccentric old man who fabricated this," said District Attorney Robert Smith.

"The defense attorney has the duty and responsibility to grasp at straws," said Blackwell. "Especially when a man's life is at stake."

Stamps Made Permanent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the government puts a price tag on its new Christmas stamps it likely will be three cents more than last year as a result of the latest Postal Rate Commission action.

The commission Thursday dismissed a complaint that first class mail was subsidizing other mail as it fixed a higher rate after two years of deliberation.

The Postal Rate Commission, in a 4-1 vote, made permanent the "temporary" rates in effect since March, 1974. Under the law the Postal Service can impose a new temporary rate 30 per cent higher than the permanent base, after a three-month waiting period.

Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar said "the Postal Service cannot continue to operate if necessary rate adjustments cannot be made until long after they are needed.

Because of the uncertainty about when and how the commission would decide, the Postal Service had begun printing two special Christmas stamps without price designations on them.

Pythian Homecoming Set

Members of the Knights of Pythias Lodges and Pythian Sisters Temples will meet for the 39th annual Pythian homecoming Sunday at the Pythian Children Home at Weatherford. Registration will begin at 9 a.m.; the program will start 10 a.m.

Mrs. Inez Haynie and Mrs. Mary Francis Talley, Denison, are co-chairman of the affair. The ex-students of the home will hold their business meeting after the luncheon. All ex-students, Knights, Sisters, members of the Junior Order, and, Sunshine Girls and their families and friends are invited to be present. After the program a catered dinner will be served. Guided tours of the dorms and buildings will be conducted.

Gene Avery, administrator of the Children Home, will report on affaris of the home and Mrs. Diane Avery will present a group of the Pythian children on the program. Some members from Pampa will include Mrs. Bernice F. Keen, 1937 N. Faulkner, and Mr. and Mrs. B.B. Altman Jr.
