ARSON CHARGE AFTER TRAGEDY AT RHOME, TEX.

60-Year-Old Man Trapped In House When Walls Fall

11 PERSONS ESCAPE

Girl Suffering From Shock Following Attempted Attack

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 10.—H. F. Jones, 60 years old, of Alvord, is dead. He was burned to death.

The home of W. H. Miles, four miles northeast of Rhome, 23 miles northwest of Fort Worth, is in ruins, destroyed by a fire believed to have been of incendiary origin. Elizabeth Miles, 18 years old, is suffering from shock sustained when an attempt was made to attack her in her room prior to the fire. Anver Dean, 39 years old, an old friend of the Miles family, and an employe of a neighboring farmer, is being held in the Wise county jail at Decatur, charged with arson.

The little town of Rhome is stunned and County Attorney Gettys and Sheriff Workman of Wise county, are conducting an investigation of he mysery which surrounds the tragedy.

According to information received in Fort Worth from County Attorney Gettys, Eliabeth Miles, who was sleeping in a room on the lower floor with her 16-year-old sister, was aroused about 3 o'clock this morning when a man attempted to pull her out of bed. She screamed and her assailant fled. As he ran through a back door, he was seen to strike a match and in an instant the house was a mass of flames. Gasoline or a similar highly inflammable liquid is believed to have been scattered over the floors and furniture.

W. H. Miles, his wife, two daughters, his 21-year-old son and five or six cotton pickers including Jones, were sleeping in the house. Several of the cotton pickers made their escape from the blazing structure when they leaped from windows on the second floor.

Jones, whose charred body was found in the smoldering ruins at daybreak, is believed to have perished when the stairway and a portion of the upper floor collapsed, cutting off his escape.

Soon after the fire, County Attorney Gettys and Sheriff Workman were summoned from Decatur, 23 miles away.

Following an investigation they arrested Anver Dean, 39 years old, who is employed as a cotton picker by a neighbor of Miles.

According to County Attorney Gettys, Dean has been a friend of the Miles family for 14 years and has been in Rhome for the past month, during which time he has been attentive to Elizabeth Miles. It is said that Dean and the girl and Miles had a quarrel about three weeks ago.

Dean made a sworn statement after being locked up in which he asserted that he was in Fort Worth Sunday and left here Sunday night, arriving in Justin, 10 miles from Rhome at 10 o'clock. He says he was met by a friend at Justin, who drove him to the farm house where he was employed.

He further asserted that he went directly to bed and did not know anything of the tragedy until he was arrested.

Near Jury Now In Murder Trial Against Tom Ross

By The Associated Press.

ABILENE, Texas, Sept. 10.—Eleven jurors had been selected late today in the trial of Tom Ross for the alleged slaying of H. L. Roberson, cattle inspector, at Seminole last April.

District Judge W. R. Ely, presiding, over-ruled a defense motion to postpone the case until the court of appeals had acted on the appeal in the Lubbock trials. Ross was sentenced to 35 years and Milt Good, co-defendant, to 20 years, in their trials at Lubbock on charges of slaying W. D. Allison, Roberson's companion. The case was transferred here from Lubbock.

Ross was in the court room today. Officers searched all persons who entered the room for concealed weapons. A special venire of 125 men had been called.

Persons from all over west Texas are here for the case, the majority as spectators, and many prominent cattlemen are among them.

MEETS HIS FATE LASHED TO MAST OF SINKING SHIP

By The Associated Press.

SANTA BARBARA, California, Sept. 10.—A tragedy within a tragedy was enacted about the destroyer Delphy which went ashore 75 miles north of Santa Barbara Saturday night with six other destroyers of the battle fleet.

This tragedy resulted in the death of Seaman Pearson, whose given name and home naval officers at the scene of this wreck were unable to give.

As the Delphy crashed bow first into the rugged rocks near Arguello light Pearson was thrown down a ladder and both legs were broken. His comrades went to his rescue and succeeded in taking him on deck. There he was blinded by bursting fuel pipes. Nearly crazed by pain and desperation he resisted the efforts of shipmates to rig up a breeches buoy to rescue him.

The vessel began to break up and his comrades forced to lash him to a mast in the hope of returning later to take him off.

Other injured were taken ashore and just as the last man, except Pearson, was safe on the main land the Delphy broke in two and slid beneath the waves with Pearson crying piteously for help.

CONTRACT IS LET FOR MORE ROAD

Will Mean Improved Road From Wichita Into Byers

Another link in Wichita county's ambitious good roads' program was given finality by the county commissioner's court Monday when the contract for the completion of the three and a half mile ungravelled strip on the Charlie road was awarded to the R. B. Stroup company whose bid was $24,597.97.

The awarding of the contract was given on the promise that work of connecting the roads would begin immediately and be compelted as soon as possible. The completion of the strip means a gravelled improved road from Wichita Falls to Byers in Clay county. For some time the question of closing the unimproved gap on the Charlie road has been discussed and the disposal of the project means that Wichita Falls has another excellent road coming from a rich territory directly into the city.

Other bids received by the county commissioners were those of G. C. Burgess of Iowa Pack, $25,930.49 and of Wallace and Riley of Wichita Falls $25,629.98.

SERIES OF SAFE CRACKINGS MAY BE CLEARED UP

Believe Connection Exists Between Them and Altus Attempted Robbery

TAKE FINGER PRINTS

Men Captured After Dropping Loot in Drug Store Robbery

A probable solution to the series of burglaries which for three weeks last month was practically a nightly occurrence, resulting in about 15 Wichita Falls business houses being entered, will result from the arrest at Altus Friday of two men who attempted a daylight robbery of a drug store there and were later captured.

The two men held for the Altus burglary attempt gave their names as Jimmy Denton and E. M. Smith, and said they were from Wichita Falls. The local police department was notified at once, and Detective Chief Dave May set about at once to see if there was any connection between the Altus affair and the Wichita Falls series of burglaries.

Detective on Trail

Detective John Boone left Saturday night for Altus and spent Sunday there investigating the case. He found the two men whom Sheriff J. L. English said had entered the Altus drug store about noon, while only one clerk was on duty. One of the men engaged the clerk's attention by looking at some safety razors. The other went to the back of the store on pretense of using the telephone.

While in the rear one of the men is said to have taken a sack full of money totaling $300 from a safe. A customer came back to use the telephone, and the would-be burglar, frightened, threw the money sack down and fled. His companion followed, and they fled in a Ford car parked in front of the store. The men and the car were captured at the next town, 15 miles away.

Got Fingerprints

Detective Boone took finger prints of the two men and questioned them closely about their stay in Wichita Falls. One of the two is known to Wichita police as a suspicious character. The fact that no stores have been burglarized since the two said they left Wichita Falls is another

DESTROYER DEATH LIST NOW IS 29

By The Associated Press.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Sept. 10.—The death list in the disaster, which sent seven naval destroyers crashing on the rocks of Point Honda, 75 miles north of here Saturday night, had increased to 29 tonight, according to a message from a correspondent of the Santa Barbara Morning Press.

Treachery Of The Sea And Air Blamed For Destroyer's Wreck

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—Treachery of the sea and air were the main factors in the wreck of seven of Uncle Sam's sea hornets, destroyers of the Pacific fleet, which pitched at 20 knots an hour onto the jagged rocks of La Honda, 75 miles north of Santa Barbara Saturday night, according to the belief of naval experts here. Twenty lives and seven warships paid the toll.

Four hours previously the Pacific mail liner Cuba had piled up on San Miguel Island, 35 miles away, and the air was filled with radio messages telling of her plight and directing the work of rescue.

In the meantime destroyer squadron 11 of the fleet was cruising south in a heavy fog, 10 clean-cut craft, breasting a choppy sea in column formation and steering behind their leader, the Delphy, deed reckoning and wireless compass directions from shore.

The shore directions are said to have become garbled with the flood of air messages on the Cuba wreck and the speedy destroyer squadron was left to the fog—and the sea.

Twenty Miles From Course.

Then the evil genius of the latter added its quota to the sea fighter's dilemma and cross currents swept the flotilla out of its course to fling seven of the leading vessels into the La Honda cliffs an estimated 20 miles from the ocean lane they believed they were following.

The Delphy crashed first and within a few moments six of her sisters, Chauncey, Young, Woodbury, Fuller, Lee and Nicholas, were impaled with her on the rocks. A heavy surf swung them back and forth against the reefs, pounding the frail sides of the navy's speed boats into sieves. The Young turned over and imprisoned 19 of the crew below decks in berths that became their tombs. Three of the Delphy's company also went to sailor's graves, while three more of their shipmates went adrift on a raft. Their fate still is in doubt.

The Woodbury rammed another crag and listed heavily. The Fuller joined her on the seaward side of the same rock. The Lee grounded close inshore and the Nicholas came to her end a few yards further out, with her bow pointed landward.

As the Delphy touched bottom and a moment later crashed, her hrill siren split the fog in warning to the remainder of the squadron. The whistle blast probably saved eleven of the flotilla but six of the leaders of the column behind the Delphy were too close to avail themselves of the warning and plunged forward to their doom. The other destroyers of the flotilla had taken a different course.

"Show Me!" Says Paris Judge In Hosiery Suit; and Star Does

Mlle Marth'a Chenal.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Dignified lawyers with weighty arguments but a flimsy case—over chiffon stockings—weren't making much headway in a trial here.

A hosiery concern was the defendant and Mlle Chenal the plaintiff.

Now the fame of the hosiery concern's products had spread throughout the length and breadth of the land. And so had the fame of Mlle Chenal's shapely understanding.

That's what caused all the fuss.

But when delivery was made she discovered that the hosiery evidently had been intended for a sideshow fat woman.

She remonstrated with the shopkeeper and he—perhaps due to poor eyesight—intimated that her legs, the legs which have been hailed as the most beautiful in France, were unusually stout, an insult than which there could be none whicher.

So Mlle. Chenal engaged a corps of venerable lawyers and went to court.

And her lawyers, venerable but without young ideas, orated at length on this precedent and that until the court went to sleep.

Perhaps he received his inspiration in a dream, but in any event the learned judge got an idea.

Maybe he was of Missouri descent. At least he assumed all his judicial dignity and ruled:

"Show me."

Mlle. did. The learned judge gazed long and thoughtfully. Then he gazed some more.

And Mlle. Chenal won the verdict.

Shoots Wife and His Mother-in-law—Barricades Self in House—Moonshine Blamed.

By The Associated Press.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Sep. 10—Walter C. Cochran, 40 years old, said to be crazed as a result of drinking moonshine whiskey, held two score of police officers and deputy sheriffs at bay for four hours this afternoon while barricading himself in his home here after fatally shooting his wife and seriously wounding his mother-in-law and two officers.

He finally was captured after a barrage of shot-guns was directed against the house and a dozen tear bombs were thrown inside by police officers from St. Louis, who were summoned to the aid of the local department.

OKLAHOMA KLAN BOWS TO EDICT OF GOV. WALTON

Organization Not to Hold Masked Assemblages, Heads Decide

GRAND DRAGON BITTER

Troops Were in Readiness To Enforce Unmasking Edict

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 10.—Bowing to Governor J. C. Walton's edict against masked assemblages, state officials of the ku klux klan issued an order here early tonight forbidding klansmen in Oklahoma to hold masked parades or meetings.

The decision of the klan officials to abide by the executive's decrees was announced by N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Oklahoma realm of the klan.

Troops Were Ready

It came when preparations were under way by Governor Walton to use troops, if necessary, to prevent a series of klan demonstrations scheduled over the state this week, the first of which was advertised for Bristow tonight.

Adjutant General B. H. Markham had been instructed early in the day to hold national guard units in readiness for movement to the counties in which the klan parades were planned.

"The klan is for law and order first, last and all the time. Because of this fact, any parade or masked meeting of any kind in the state of Oklahoma absolutely is forbidden," said the statement of Jewett.

Masked assemblages were placed under the ban by Governor Walton on the ground that they would lead to disorder and riot. In forbidding the appearance in public of masked men, Governor Walton, in a statement issued Saturday night, asserted that the train of floggings and other mob outrages in the state led to masked organizations. He named the ku klux klan as being responsible for virtually all the mob activities in Tulsa county, which is under martial law.

Jewett's Statement

"While there is no law appearing on the statute books of Oklahoma which forbids meetings of this kind, rather than force martial law upon the citizens of this state, I thought it best to forbid any parades until after these affairs have been straightened out," said Grand Dragon Jewett.

Jewett's statement came on the heels of an announcement of H. W. Evans, imperial wizard of the klan, that the national organization would take no action in the Oklahoma controversy over masked demonstration, but would leave the matter entirely in the hands of the state realm.

"It would appear that it is the desire of Governor Walton to force martial law upon the counties of this state," Jewett said. "It is evident that he would be delighted to find some opportunity to enforce his authority.

"Since he has apparently declared war on the klan and issued his edict that there shall be no more parades in mask or public assemblies of klansmen, were we to follow our constitutional rights under the laws of this state, and our country, it would give him much pleasure to invoke martial law, thereby casting a shadow and disgrace upon the great state of Oklahoma.

"This action has not been taken because of any fear on the part of the ku klux klan of state troops, but because of fear of the consequences that might arise through disobedience to this despotic edict.

"The method of procedure which will follow this order, which has been submitted to the various klans throughout the state, will be governed solely by the future actions taken by Governor Walton."

By The Associated Press.

HOLDENVILLE, Okla., Sept. 10.—Five years imprisonment at hard labor with bowed head, George Crump, Jr., heard these words pronounced in district court here today by his cousin, Judge George C. Crump.

Young Crump had confessed stealing the judge's motor car last August while the jurist and his family were spending their vacation in Colorado. The youth waved all his rights and requested his cousin to attach the penalty.

Judge Crump hesitated and then with deliberate tone, spoke the words that will send young Crump to the penitentiary.

FLOOD EXPECTED IN SOUTH TEXAS

Rio Grande Out—Warnings Sent to All Towns Below Roma

By The Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 10.—Flood warnings were sent all towns below Roma, Starr county, late today as a result of a big rise in the Rio Grande followhg torrential rains in the lower Rio Grande valley, and in the vicinity of Monterrey, Mexico, according to an announcement made by J. H. Garbo, weather observer in San Antonio.

The river at Rio Grande City, about thirty miles north of Roma, was 20 feet high, or five feet above flood stage. At San Benito, the river on a 22.9 foot rise was nearly two feet above flood stage of 21 feet. Mission reported a twenty-foot rise.

Reports received from Monterrey, Mexico, were that 10.5 inches of rain had fallen there and the streets were flooded. All rivers and creeks on the Mexican side were far out of their banks and crops were damaged. Most of this water is flowing into the Rio Grande through Salado and San Juan rivers.

By The Associated Press.

RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas, Sept. 10.—The Rio Grande was at a 22-foot stage today, one-fifth of a foot higher than yesterday. The swollen waters of the San Juan rivers in Mexico, which empties into the Rio Grande here, is causing the flood waters. The San Juan is reported slowly rising.

By The Associated Press.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 10. The Rio Grande bank is full at Brownsville but serious floods are not expected. Another rise at Rio Grande City was reported today as a result of heavy rains on the headwater of the San Juan and Salado rivers in Mexico. Levees in the lower Rio Grande valley have broken in several places, but are being repaired. Arroyo Colorado, near Harlingen and Arroyo del Tigre on the Mexican side of the river are carrying off large volumes of the flood waters relieving pressure on levees on the American side. Three hundred feet of the new levee on the Mexican side was cut this afternoon, to direct greater volume of flood water into Arroyo del Tigre, and relieve pressure on the Matamoros levee.

Girl Chooses Forgery Rather Than Turn To The Easy Life

"I know I did wrong, but I had to do it or sacrifice the only thing I have left, my soul," a pretty 19 year old girl, high school graduate and with a year's college training, told Assistant County Attorney Kunz as she signed a confession for forgery early Monday afternoon.

The girl, who said she had separated from her husband because he mistreated her and then hated to go back to her people, told her story slowly and without emotion. She related how she came to Wichita Falls six weeks ago with just a little money and hoped to find work. She said she walked the streets and for a long time found nothing she could do. Finally with her money all gone and still without work she was driven to desperation.

"Oh, I could have done like so many girls have had to do and gone the downward path, but I made up my mind I would do anything before coming to that. Men made apparently flattering offers because I am young and had no money, but I would not listen to them. I got hungry and still looked for work. Finally, I wrote a check for $3 and signed my former husband's name. This worked so well I signed some more and this tided me over. I intended to made them all good when I found work. I got a job as waitress in a restaurant today and the officers came after me," the girl told the assistant county attorney.

"I am sorry I forged the names. It is terrible, but I still have the consoling thought that I did not yield my soul when I was hungry and heartsick," the girl said as she signed the confession that might send her to the penitentiary.

OIL PROMOTERS CHARGED IN NEW U. S. INDICTMENT

Government Claims Quartette Stated Affairs Were Inspected

CHARGES ARE DENIED

Case to Be Fought to a Finish Say Companies Involved

By The Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Sept. 10.—Claims that United States government and post-office inspectors frequently inspected the affairs and methods of the First National Oil company were made in literature sent through the mails by the company in the course of a stock selling campaign, according to allegations contained in a federal indictment made public today.

The men named in the indictment are Robert C. Russell, Leo C. Hamblet, R. D. Hamblet and John H. Cain. All are under bond.

The government alleges in the indictment that the defendants incorporated the First National company under a Texas charter and with $300,000 paid up stock, when the oil leases and royalties which were made the basis of this capitalization had been purchased on credit for $34,500.

It is also alleged that Leo C. Hamblet was to receive one-third of the proceeds from stock sales, with the exception of 4,000,000 shares, which he assigned to the First National company to be sold for promotion expenses.

The company owned only one-third of one half of eleven-sixteenths of the Martin lease at Breckenridge, which was made the basis of much of their literature, it is charged.

The First National company drilled at least one well on the Martin lease in the Breckenridge field and was also interested in Gulf Coastal operations.

Leo C. Hamblet, speaking in behalf of himself and his associates in the First National company today, declared

"I want to enter a sweeping denial of the charges contained in the federal indictments. We had no intention to defraud anyone.

"If we had been in the oil business as a stock scheme we might have gotten something out of it. The records will bear me out in the statement that we did our best for our stockholders.

"We intend to fight these cases to a finish."

Car Turns Over Twice; Local Boy Seriously Injured

As the result of an automobile accident which occurred on the old Lake Wichita road about five miles from town yesterday afetrnoon, Jack Story, 16-year-old High school senior, lies in the Wichita Falls General hospital in a critical condition. He is suffering from a fractured skull, a broken shoulder and possible internal injuries sustained when the sedan in which he was riding with friends overturned.

Following the accident he was rushed to the hospital where he underwent an operation on the base of his skull, and late last night his condition was reported as serious. He has regained consciousness but physicians are still in doubt as to his recovery.

Story, at the time of the accident, was riding on the running board of the car, an Essex sedan, driven by Jerome Kennedy, with Story and Duncan Robinson as passengers. According to Kennedy the injured boy had stepped to the running board of the car with the intention of crossing to another car which raced alongside. Suddenly the Essex hit a rut and the two machines drew apart, Story still clinging to the Essex, which according to occupants of the car, was speeding at the rate of more than 40 miles an hour over a bad dirt road.

"The car would only make 48 miles an hour," said Kennedy, "and it was wide open. When we hit the rut I tried to put on the brake, but we were going so fast I could not stop the car. I guess I am too light to handle it. I threw it back onto the road and it hit another rut, going off on the other side in spite of my efforts to stop it. We hit the ditch and turned over twice. Later we found that the car flew 30 feet from the place it left the ground until it landed across the ditch. The car turned toward the side away from Jack, and rolled over twice, stopping again in an upright position. Jack was thrown across the ditch some 20 feet and we found him unconscious."

The boys in the other car rushed the boy into town and to the hospital where his injuries were attended. The others in the car were only slightly cut by flying glass. Story regained consciousness following the accident, and asked concerning the fate of his friends.

Before he went on the operating table, possibly not again to see his friends he spoke to them and said, "Don't blame the boys. It wasn't their fault."

Late last night the injured boy was resting easily and physicians in attendance say he has a fair chance to recover.

WICHITANS SEE ECLIPSE OF SUN

Clouds on West Coast Prevents Science Getting Data

The eclipse of the sun Monday afternoon was for more than two and a half hours a phenomenam which was noted intently by probably 90 per cent of Wichita Falls' population. The Record News being given the especial privilege of viewing the strange event through a special astronomical lens, probably the only one in the city, through the courtesy of A. M. McPherson.

An effort to closely tabulate the variating change of the sun was made and the highly sensitized machine began recording the eclipse at 2:25 Monday afternoon. Slowly the sun entered into the change and after an hour anyone whether aware that the eclipse was due to arrive or not, would have noted the change.

One strange thing coming from the eclipse was the fact that where the sun came through openings in the trees, the shadows which it cast on the ground were in direct ratio to the progress of the eclipse—that is, resembling cresents. Later, half-moon silhouettes were cast in the shadows as the sun's rays penetrated through the tree branches. The eclipse reached its crest at 3:25, when five-eighths of the sun's surface was obliterated. The eclipse passed at 4:41 o'clock.

Although scores stood about the streets gazing through colored glasses and improvised smoked glasses, hundreds of others seemed unaware that an eclipse was in progress.

Some dodged out of buildings, glanced about and rubbed their eyes, unable to understand the cloudy effect.

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 10.—Scientific observation of today's eclipse of the sun generally failed, according to reports received here, except possibly in the case of naval aviators who flew above the clouds and fog at San Diego and took photographs of the phenomenon.

Clouds or fog obscured the view at the time of totality at all points from Santa Barbara, California, to Ensenada, Mexico, four scientists had made preparations to study the eclipse. These points included Avalon on Santa Catalina Island, San Clemente Island, San Diego, Mount Wilson and Point Loma. Scientists who came from all parts of the world and who had worked months on their plans took their defeat gracefully.

MAD MAN FIGHTS

Policeman Shot.

Schilling, whose home is near that of Cochran, attempted to enter the house when he heard the shooting but was shot down by Cochran. Deputy Petri, arriving a few minutes later, with a posse, was shot as he tried to reach the wounded officer, but was able to run for shelter.

Several other officers rescued Schilling while a barrage from revolvers and shot guns was directed at all windows.

Attempts at strategy failed in efforts by police to reach the dying wife, however. Every time anyone made an attempt to go near her, Cochran unloosed a rapid succession of shots. He fired about seventy shots in all but never exposed himself to the bullets of police besieging the house. Approximately 1,000 residents, crouched behind corners of buildings or in other places of concealment, viewed the fusillade.

Cochran Uninjured.

Cochran escaped serious injury, although he was beaten by officers, who cornered him in the kitchen after they had filled the house with fumes from tear bombs.

The crowd attempted to take him away from the officers as they brought him from the house, but a tear bomb was exploded, the crowd dispersing.

The Cochrans had lived in Belleville for six months, having come from Fort Worth, Texas, according to neighbors. Mrs. Cochran's last words at the hospital were a request to notify her brother, R. C. Hall, of Fort Worth. Cochran was said to have boasted to neighbors that he formerly was a member of the Texas rangers.

When Cochran was taken to the county jail, he was unable to give a coherent account of the incident, but raved in apparent mental agony and at times broke down and cried.

The wife had given birth to a child six weeks ago. The child was taken away from the house by John Ingler, who was delivering ice at the home when the shooting began.

The house and its contents were shattered by the fusillades.

SERIES OF SAFE

reason officers feel they may have a clue to the local burglaries, according to Detective Chief May.

On arrival back here Monday, Detective Boone took the fingerprints of the men he had obtained at Altus, and compared them with prints taken from various safes and burglar tools in connection with local burglaries. All these fingerprints were sent, copies of each, to Dallas and Gainesville, where they will be examined by Bertillon experts. Should the prints correspond, there will be no doubt but the men held at Altus are connected with the local burglary series, May said yesterday.

The fact that the burglaries have stopped for the past two weeks has not deterred the police department from continuing an investigation and trying to locate the thieves, May said Monday. "We not only want to see that no more burglaries are committed, but we want to catch those who are guilty of the ones we have already had," the detective chief commented.

CITY RECORDS KEPT IN TENT
That Was Back In The Early Days

Can you imagine Wichita Falls when the court records were kept in a tent and a goods box and the whole sum of $3 a month paid a man as salary for doing this?

This ancient history which looks ludicrous in the face of the fact that Wichita Falls now is the sixth largest city in the state with more than 50,000 inhabitants, has been verified. The records of the county clerk are the authority and these cannot be questioned.

Way back in 1882 when Wichita county had been in existence as a county only nine years, the county judge and county commissioners had a meeting. The fact that the county dads had a meeting 41 years ago is not unusual. It can be imagined that the meeting of the commissioner's court in those days was a mere matter of form. The county was young and the deed records for this section had up to nine years before been kept in Clay county.

Had no Autos.

The county dads did not drive in automobiles. They did not come in on paved streets and found no paved streets when they got here. They did not find a town. The commissioner from precinct 2 did not pass any oil fields. Instead of garages the commissioners found livery stables or probably just a livery stable.

The records for 1882 show that the commissioners finally got to town one spring day. Whether they rode horseback or drove in a buggy or wagon, the minutes do not disclose. Like old Mother Hubbard who went to the cubbard the most important part is that "She Got There." So the thing that makes this story possible is that the commissioners finally Got There.

On arrivel the county dads were not bothered with a bunch of road bond questions. The matter of the disposition of the automobile tax moneys and the road and bridge fund was conspicuous for its absence. There was one important thing to come up at that meeting in 1882, however.

Four File Books.

Business had been so good in the county since its nine year existence there were four file book to be kept. There was no courhouse and something had to be done to keep the record books. Apparently there were few houses in that part of the country. J. H. Barwise had a box and tent. He would take care of the records for $3 a month. After some discussion the commissioners voted to give Mr. Barwise the job of taking care of the records seeing as how he had a box and a tent he wasn't using.

Incidentally J. H. Barwise was none other than Judge Barwise who became one of the leading attorneys of this section a number of years. Judge Barwise is still living, more than 90 years old, and resides at the home of his son-in-law, Judge A. H. Carrigan, of this city.

How It Was Found.

The tent, box, record books and $3 apportionment history of 1882 came to light recently when Mrs. Alma Y. Miller, present county clerk began to make a file of all the minutes of the county commissioners' court. The matter of appropriating the sheriff $3 to buy shackles is also recorded.

From 1882 to 1923 is a long jump. From a tent, the county clerk's office is now the largest in one of the largest and best courhouses in Texas. Mrs. Miller employs 10 deputies regular and sometimes has several more working. There are now 300 record books on file as compared to the four in 1882. It would take a circus tent to hold them and probably more than $3 a month wage to look after them.

The city that got to growing as soon as "Faith" got on the job.

COTTON IN NEW $5 JUMP ON MONDAY

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10.—The cotton market showed as much strength as ever today after an easy opening and all months in the contract market went to a new high level for the season. October rose almost 100 points or $5 a bale from the early low, first trading off to 26.80, then advancing to 27.75. A private crop estimate of only 10,250,000 bales, including linters, was responsible for much of the buying.

The jump was attributed to further reduction in the crop estimate contained in a report published by a Memphis authority. The crop condition as of September 8 was placed at 49.7 and the yield was estimated at 10,240,000 bales or more than half a million bales less than that of the government indication August 27.

First prices were lower under heavy realizing and southern selling, but offerings were quickly absorbed by an excellent demand for both trade and speculative account, which was said to be due to a fear that the shortage in supplies would be even more serious than previously estimated.

Heavy realizing of profits on long contracts and much hedge selling met the market, causing a fairly wide reaction. At 11 o'clock October stood at 27.20. Prospects of continued dry weather over most of the district appeared to be bringing in new selling.

The men and families who have been working in the country south of Fort Worth are about ready to move to west Texas. TEXT BOOK WRANGLE TO COME UP AGAIN

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 10—The state board of education will meet next Monday to consider further the text book controversy, it was announced today, after action was postponed. State School Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs this afternoon submitted to the attorney general's department a letter asking for an opinion on authority of the board to rescind the action in setting aside approximately $1,500,00 for text books.

If such action is held illegal, an effort will be made to have the board apportion another $1 to the public schools. It was requested the opinion be delivered before Monday.

New lines for new seasons. So the strictly tailored suits go to long lengths to be fashionable by adding inches to the coat and length to the narrow roll collar.

The sport and three-piece costume suits favor the short straight box coat that fits rather snugly at the hips and fastens with a gesture at the side.

Millinery--
The woman's crowning glory is her hat. Not every woman appreciates how very important is the selection of her hat, how it strikes the note for her costume, how it affects the shade of her eyes, the color of her hair, and the contour of her face.
Beautiful models from Knox and other well known makers grace the millinery department these days, and we encourage a discriminating selection by the almost unbelievable variety of our hats. Your most becoming shape, your most pleasing shade awaits you.

Val Lace Yoke

Dainty under things and night clothes are always "things of joy" to most women. Expensive, it is true, but worth the price is the opinion of the feminine purchaser. The sight of this simple gown of softest crepe de chine would unloose the purse strings of even the most economical buyer.

It is gathered onto a yoke of ecru val lace several inches deep. A wide band of the lace lines the armhole. A cluster of pink silk rosebuds add a festive touch to each shoulder.

Although the younger set have taken to pajamas while robes like this are being shown the nightgown will never be passe.

FRIED POTATOES

EIGHTEEN

He was leaving after a visit, and was driving into town with his host. He was 18, extremely youthful in face, sturdy and developed, fine, manly.

His host was 65—an old friend of the boy's father. He too was sturdy and developed, brisk, busy, interested, alive. Together they stepped out to meet the morning. The host's white house made a charming background for the shining car; there were faces at the door between the pillars; farewells were being spoken.

It was an informal household, no servant was about, and the host, brimming with kindliness for the young guest, caught up easily one of the bags strapped and standing at the entrance.

"Now then!" he said robustly. Instantly a hand was on his elbow, a courteous voice in his ear.

"That's too heavy for you, sir."

The bag was taken from his hand by Eighteen.

The host relinquished the bag, said nothing, strode down the steps and into his car, Eighteen beside him. And then, at the door of his car into which he leaped every morning, once more the hand on his elbow, Eighteen was helping him into the car.

He had meant to have a talk with the boy on the way to town. Out of his experience and anecdote, he had innocently taken thought to give the boy a bit which would amuse him, perhaps serve him without making him aware that he was being served. He had looked forward to the hour's drive with this youngster.

But a change had come over the morning. It was not so bright or so buoyant—he himself sat sunk in the cushions, suddenly silent and rather tired. "That's too heavy for you, sir," and a hand on his elbow to help him in—these had transformed his day.

And there wasn't a bit of necessity for this. At 65 this man was alive and strong, vital and keen. Eighteen knew this perfectly well. What then was the matter? Only this: That Eighteen had been more concerned with being polite himself than with really considering the feelings of the other fellow.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Egg Plant Fritters—Put egg plant into cold, salted water; boil until very tender changing water once while boiling. Drain, skin and mash well, mix with butter, salt and an egg with two or three tablespoons flour. Drop by spoonfuls into hot fat.

Escalloped Onions.—Slice onions into buttered baking dish. Pour over them one pint of milk in which has been melted one tablespoon butter. It may be thickened slightly with one tablespoon of flour. Season with salt and paprika. Sprinkle with bread or cracker crumbs and bake in oven one hour.

Elderberry Pie—Mix one cup sugar with yolks of two eggs, add one cup sour cream, two cups uncooked elderberries, two tablespoons corn starch; cook on stove until thick. Pour in baked shell, same as for lemon or chocolate pie and pour over the two beaten egg whites and brown.

SEASONABLE RECIPES

Elderberry Filling—One-half bushel elderberries on stems; two lemons, four cups sugar, one teaspoon each of cloves, cinnamon and allspice and four cups of water. Stem elderberries, slice lemons very fine; add water, sugar and spices. Cook 10 minutes. Seal airtight.

To Can Plums—Prick each one so that the skins will not crack; cover with water, cook until sterilized and can. As each can is opened turn off the juice, add sugar and cook for jelly. Put the plums into hot syrup made from two cups sugar and one pint of water. When cool serve as sauce. This sauce is much more mild than when the plums are canned with sugar.

Peach Pie—Line a deep pie tin with a good rich crust. Bake a light brown and let cool. Two cups sliced peaches, three-quarter cup water, three-quarter cup sugar, three tablespoons cornstarch, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half pint cream. Put peaches, water and sugar on to boil; add cornstarch; boil until it is clear; add salt and vanilla. Pour into pie crust. When cool and ready to serve beat the cream, sweeten and flavor and spread over pie.

SUGGESTIONS

To Cut Pie—To cut custard, cream, lemon or any pie that has meringue on it, stick the knife blade in cold watre just before cutting each piece. The blade will come out clean and each piece of pie will look much better.

Kitchen Brush—When dressing a turkey or goose, cut the wing off at the joint and you will find that the long stiff feathers make an excellent brush for the stove and all around kitchen use.

Heart and Home Problems Solved

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl of 13 and have had a habit of biting my finger nails until about three months ago. All of my nails have grown out except both of my first finger nails. They won't grow although I don't bite them. I used to bite them more than any of the rest. How can I make these nails grow and look nice?

CURED OF A HABIT.

In time the nails of your first fingers will grow, just as the others have done. To hasten the growth and improve the condition of the nail, apply vaseline at night. It will make all the nails of a more velvety quality if you apply it.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: My life has been a very hard one. I was left an orphan at eighteen months of age, taken and raised by foster parents. My foster mother seemed to like me well enough, but was jealous because my foster father took so much interest in my wants and needs. To make a long story short, she made me marry at the age of 13 to a fellow who was only 17. He had all kinds of bad habits and treated me very cruelly, beating and whipping me and making all kinds of false accusations against me. I was young and did not have the confidence in myself to think I could make my own living.

There were seven children born to us in a period of ten and a half years, the length of time I lived with him. Finally on account of broken health and his ill treatment I was forced to leave him and give up my little children, three girls and one little boy. The other three were dead. No one else will ever know what a heartbreak it was to me to give up my sweet little children. They are all in good homes now, but I cannot help but worry about them.

I married again and I have a good husband and love him dearly. We have two very sweet little girls. Before I married my second husband I told him all about my former life and said I would never live with a man who left me more nights and drank. He told me I would never need to worry about him on that score, for he believed a married mans place was at home nights with his family and that he did not bother with drink.

I am worried now because he has got so he will make any kind of excuse to get away at night and is gone almost every night. Last night it was 12 o'clock when he came in and his eyes were red, showing he had been drinking.

I stay at home all the time, day and night and try to do all in my power for him. I have begged, pleaded, cried and even showed anger, but it does no good. Please tell me what is best to do.

BROKEN-HEARTED WIFE.

Nine times out of ten it does no good to beg, plead and cry in order to keep a man from going out nights. You might just as well let him go without demanding excuses, because then he does not feel the necessity of lying and he does not feel that he sold his freedom when he married.

Probably your husband wants friends and he gets tired of staying at home all the time. I would suggest that you tell him to invite his friends to your house for the evening. Let the men have a good time doing what they want to. You might serve coffee and sandwiches during the evening.

If you find your husband cannot be happy at home and makes your life with him miserable, probably your only course is separation. Such a thing will be hard because you have suffered so much already. Doubtless you could find work in the home of some widower where you would be permitted to take your two children with you. I am so sorry that this marriage is not bringing you happiness.

"FOR RICHER—FOR POORER"

Why worry about your sweetheart's financial condition when you are in the early stages of young love?

Suppose he has got his way to make in the world, and suppose he is going to work his way through college. When he comes out he will perhaps be more worthy of your love than the son of rich parents.

If he has selected a girl to love who has been used to luxuries all her life, he feels within himself that he has the power to earn these things for her.

He has self-confidence and pride, and if he loves the girl that lives in the finest house on his street—this proves that he has ambition.

Don't think what a "nerve" he has to admire you, if you are a rich man's daughter; all men in the last analysis are taken for "richer or poorer, for better or worse."

COOLIDGE AND MEXICAN RECOGNITION.

Added to the already long list who see a marked influence on business conditions in this country because of the recognition of Mexico by the United States, is none other than President Coolidge. Being at the head of the nation, President Coolidge probably is better acquainted with the real meaning of this important step than the most of us.

As Coolidge sees it, it is an added guarantee of peace and will stabilize economic conditions here. We quote, in part, a letter written by the president to Charles Beecher Warren and John Barton Payne:

"The accomplishment of this fine piece of work * * * is a notable achievement at this time," he said in a letter to Mr. Warren.

"It is more than the settlement of a long standing, complex and difficult series of differences between the republic of Mexico and our own country. It is a demonstration that patience, good will and the purpose of peace can overcome the most discouraging obstacles between nations which sincerely wish amicable and mutually helpful relations.

"I have all confidence that it will mark an important step in the progress of Mexico."

To Judge Payne he wrote:

"These differences for years constituted a menace to the peace and welfare of both countries and seemed at times to defy all efforts at adjustment. Its usefulness to the cause of peace in our continent, its example to the world and its service to the immediate material interests of both countries, make it truly notable and entitle you to the gratitude of your countrymen."

And Texans should not forget that this matter is more important to the state of Texas probably than to any other state in the union. As has been said before, Texas is held in as high esteem by Mexico as the United States itself, and Texas is geographically the gateway to Mexico.

EVERYBODY'S HAPPY.

The coal strike, which most of us had reason to fear, has passed into history. This is no longer news, but it has its interesting side. There seemed little chance for the operators and the miners to get together. Both sides blamed the other. It looked like a deadlock.

Then one man, Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania, brought the warring factions together. It didn't take very long to do it either. He started out by saying there would be no strike and invited the operators and the miners to meet with him and thresh the thing out. They did.

The result is that the miners are satisfied and the operators are satisfied. The miners get an increase in wages and an eight-hour day.

All of which goes to show that labor disputes can be settled by arbitration. No one ever gains anything permanent through a strike. Strikes cost money. And the cost, in proportion, quite frequently is greater to the laborer than to the employer. We predict that the day will come when labor will oppose a strike as strenuously as capital. This may make the going a little hard for the radical, but it will be manifestly better for the laborer who is really worthy of his hire, and they are the great majority.

SORRY TO SEE MAURICE GO.

We are grieved to learn that Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian poet, is going to quit writing because of his disgust with present day writers. Not that we can't get along without Maurice. There are other poets, even if one of them did write the words to "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

Our disappointment regarding Maurice arises from the fact that he should let a situation such as he sees "get his goat" instead of sticking on the job and trying to hold first place over some of these would-be-writers of today, whose work, according to Maeterlinck, "smells to heaven."

We are inclined to agree with the Belgian author insofar as some of the present-day literature is concerned, but it saddens us to see him fade away into the wilderness just because he can't control the situation. And great as he has been in his world, when he takes up the life of a hermit as he plans to do, it probably won't take us fickle folks long to forget him. Because he insists on eliminating himself.

THE BLESSING OF WEALTH.

It is the custom of a lot of folk to sit around and wish for wealth. The system is all wrong. In the first place, wishing for wealth doesn't get it. You have to go out and meet money at least half way, and quite often you have to tree it and take a pot shot at it.

When this comes to pass, wealth is a blessing. If it were not for the lure of money, there would be more loafers than there are. So long as the money is yours and you really have earned it, instead of being a curse, it probably will prove a benefit to you and those with whom you deal.

A Parisian rag picker inherited a fortune and then dropped dead when the glad news was broken. Perhaps he was too old to obtain real satisfaction in the spending of the money. There are men who do not know how to buy joy or place the nimble dollar where it will produce the most kicks or thrills.

WHERE THE SHOE PINCHES.

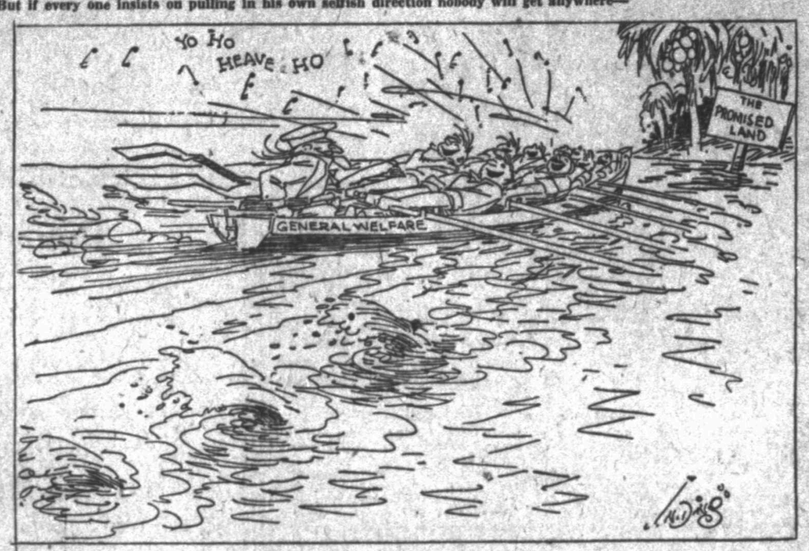

Senator Magnus Johnson is for the federal reserve system, but opposed to all the men who manage the system. He wants the banks to pay less interest to depositors so that interest rates to borrowerers may be reduced. Magnus is a borrower. He has a mortgage on his farm.

Henry Ford has $246,000,000 in banks subject to check. And this makes the professional politicians crazy.

Everyone Has a Perfect Right to His Own Bloc in the Government, of Course

But if every one insists on pulling in his own selfish direction nobody will get anywhere—

While a little pulling together will bring us all to land with one-tenth the effort.

THE BRIGHT SHAWL

But his remonstrance had the effect designed: and after an imperturbable silence asked him if tomorrow, he wold take her driving to Los Molinos. He hesitated, uncertain of the wisdom of such a proceeding, when her hand again stole into his.

What, anybow, in the face of that direct request, could he do but agree? They must have, she proceeded since he hadn't a private equipage, the newest quitrin he could procure, and a calesero more brilliant than they should pass on the Calzada de la Reina!

After all he would be but keeping up the useful pretence of his worldliness: yet, looking forward to the drive with her, an hour in the scented shade of the captain-general's garden, he was aware of an anticipated pleasure.

CHAPTER XXI
The Promise of a Ruby

The need for caution was reduced to a minimum, it shrank from existence; naturally he wouldn't talk to Pilar de Lima of politics, he could not be drawn into the mention of his friends, of any names connected in the slightest way with a national independence. It was possible that she had been selected, thrown with him, for that very purpose: but there his intelligence, he thought, his knowledge of intrigue, had been under estimated, insulted.

No: Pilar, de Vacs, Spain, would gain nothing, and he would have a very pleasant, an oddly (stimulating and exciting afternoon. The excitement came from her extraordinary personality, an intensity tempered with a remoteness, an indifference, which he specially enjoyed after the last few tempestuous days.

Being with her resembled floating in a barge on a fabulous Celestial river between banks of high green bamboo. It had no ulterior significance. She was positively inhuman.

He met her, with an impressive glittering carriage and rider, past the heat of afternoon. She was accompanied by a duenna swathed in a heavy black mantilla. At the Jardin Bontaico he commanded the carriage to halt, and followed at a conventional distance by her companion, they entered the gardens. Pilar sat on the edge of a pool, with one hand dipping in the water. A hundred feet away from them the chaperone cast her replica on the unstirred surface of the water.

"I should like one of those," she said, indicating a floating flower.

"It's too far out," he responded, and she turned her slow scrutiny upon him. Her eyes were the green of a stone.

"That you are agreeable is more important than you know," she said deliberately. "And de Vaca—" she conveyed a sense of disdain. "What is it that he wants so much from you? How can it, on this little island, be important? I must tell you that I am not cheap; and when I was brought here, to see a boy, it annoyed me. But I am annoyed no longer," her wet fingers swiftly left their prints on his cheek. "Oporto and the English court—I understood that; but to dig secrets from you, an innocent young American!"

"You see," he said, "I was, to some extent, connected with the death of Santacilla, an officer of the regiment of Isabel, and they may still be looking for information about that."

She assured him he was wrong. "It is Cuba that troubles them. It's in their heads you are close to powerful families here and in North America, and that you are bringing them together, pouring northern gold into the empty pockets of the revolution. I saw at once, before I met you, that I should waste my time, and I was going away at once . . . until you walked into the restaurant. Now it will amuse me, and I shall take the domlons I get and buy you a present, a ruby, and when you see Capt. de Vacs you will wear it and smile and he will know nothing."

"You mustn't buy me anything," Charles protested earnestly; "I can at least understand that, how generous you are. If you are unfamiliar with Cuba, perhaps you will let me inform you. I came to Havana, you see, for my lungs. They were bad, and now they are good; and that is my history here. The reason I am here with you is because you seemed to me, in yourself, so far away from all that. Your mind might be in China." He went on to make clear to her his distrust of women. "But you are different; you are like a very lovely statue. What you really are doesn't matter; I don't care; I shall never know."

"You are you, and I am I," she answered. "We might even love each other with no more: that would be best—it is the more that spoils love."

"What do you know about that?"

But, relasing into immobility, she ignored his question. They rose, leaving the Botanical Gardens for the Quinta. It was the first time for weeks that Charles had been consciously relaxed, submerged in an unguarded pleasure of being.

Pilar might be honest about de Vacs and his purpose, or she might be covering something infinitely more cunning. It would bring her nothing.

Then, with her airy skirt momentarily, caught on a spear of bearded grass, he saw, below her knee, under the white stocking, the impression of a blade, narrow and wicked. La Clavel had carried a knife in that manner, but in Pilar its stealthy, subdued gleam affected him unpleasantly. It presented a sharp, mocking contrast to all that, in connection with her mind, had been running happily through his mind.

"I thought you were a moth, soft and white," he told her, "but it appears that you are a wasp in disguise—I hope it won't occur to you to sting me."

Serenely she resettled her skirt. "Did you look for a scapular? Young men's eyes should be on the sky." Then she put an arm through his. "It was never there for you . . . a moth, soft and white. But I do not care for that." Her gliding, magnetic touch passed, like the fall ofa leaf, over his cheek. The feeling of detachment, of security, was pierced by a more acute emotion, a sensation that resembled the traced point of her knife.

She asked, nearing the place where they were to meet the quitrin, when she might see him again; and mechanically he suggested that evening, after the music in the Plaza de Armas.

CHAPER XXII
Andres a Victim

Andres listened, censoriously, to Charles' account of his afternoon.

"She is a little devil, of course, with her gartered steel, but she amuses me. I have the shadow of an idea that she was truthful about de Vacs; and the ruby would be an excellent joke."

"I cannot approve of any of this," Andres decided: "it has so many hidden possibilities—the Spaniards are so hellish cunning. To be candid with you, I can't understand why they have neglected you so long. Drop this Chinese water lily: their stems are always in the mud."

"On the contrary, you must see her," Charles Abbott insisted. "I've explained that she can't hurt us; and we may get something floated the other way." He was aware of an indefinable resentment at Andres' attitude; his love for him was all that prevented the acerbity of a voiced irritation.

Yet, when the regimental band was leaving the diminishing strains of its quickstep, Andres joined Charles and Pilar. In the gloom, she was specially potent, like a fascinating and ironic idol to innocence; and Charles Abbott was pleased by Andres' instant attention. He dropped behind to light a cisar, and when he came up to them again he had the illusive sense of a rapid speech stopped at his approach. Andres Escobar's countenance was lowered, his brow drawn together . . . it had been Pilar de Lima, surprisingly, who had talked.

Some Cubans agthered about the table when, later, they were eating ices; and, ganing Pilar's consent, he left with the indispensable polite regrets and bows.

He was vaguely and thoroughly disturbed, uneasy, as though a grain of poison had entered him and were circulating through all his being. This condition hadn't existed in his contact with Pilar until the appearance of Andres; yes, it came about from the conjunction of the girl, Andres and himself; spilled into the clarity of their companionship. Andres' and his, her influence had already darkened and slightly embittered it . . . had affected it, Charles added; she was powerless to touch him in the future; he put her resolutely, completely, from his thoughts.

When he saw Andres again, after the interval of a week, his heart was empty of everything but crystal admiration, affection; but Andres was obscured, his bearing even defiant.

"Why did you ever bring us together?" he exclaimed. "She, Pilar, has fastened herself about me like one of those pale, strangling orchids. I can give you my word, kissing her is like tasting a sherbet; and yet I can't put her out of my mind. I get all my thoughts, my feelings, from her as though they passed in a body from her brain to mine. They are thoughts I detest. Charles, when I am away from you, I doubt and question you, and sink into an indifference toward all we are, all we have been."

So Goes It

By H. H.

An epidemic of crooked neck has broken out in Wichita Falls. It is understood the epidemic is general throughout the western part of the country. The cause: Partial eclipse of the sun.

One bird, upon looking at the phenomenon through a smoked glass, expressed disappointment at not being able to see Venus, who, according to his information, was supposed to be hanging around in that vicinity. After looking for her he said disgustedly: "The old girl hasn't showed up. Isn't that just like a woman."

Another man is reported to have had his tonsils badly sunburned while watching the eclipse.

A Pennsylvania man decided to commit suicide, but being a level-headed citizen he sent a note to a policeman friend of his just before starting to the river. The policeman arrived just in time. Moral: Always send a note to a pence officer before deciding to end it all.

Reminds us of a man in Dallas who was headed for the Trinity river with similar intent. Drowning yourself in the Trinity isn't an easy task except during or imediately following a flood, but there was water enough on hand at that time. We forget why this man wanted to kill himself. Probably because he figured he'd rather drown himself in the Trinity water than drink it, but that doesn't matter.

When he arrived at the river bank, he threw a farewell kiss to the world he was leaving and waded in. When the water was about waste deep, a policeman appeared on the bank and wanted to know what it was all about. The man replied that he was going to kill himself. The cop said "You'll do nothing of the kind", and drawing a gun ordered the despondent one ashore. He came.

Now if he really wanted to kill himself wasn't that a good opportunity? Some folks don't know opportunity when they see it.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

A New Use for a Tea Cart.

One Mother Says:

My old tea cart took on a new lease on life when I moved it into the bathroom to use as a table for the baby's bath accessories. The top makes a good stand for soap, boric acid solution, powder, pins and fresh clothing, while the lower shelf is used for discarded clothing. It is easy to wheel into the nursery if I need it there, and saves many steps each day. (Copyright, 1923, Associated Editors)

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A DIFFERENCE

Lloyd George—a master of the rules
By which great men achieve ambitions—
Declares that in the Sunday schools
Are trained the ablest politicians.
Of how the British statesmen go
About their work we have no notion,
But such a system would not go
For very long this side the ocean!

The men our Sunday schools turn out
Form few political connections;
They'd not know how to set about
The job of carrying elections.
We do not speak of candidates,
For in the broad expansive borders
Confining these United States
The boss it is who gives the orders.

And we have never known a boss,
A commonwealth, or precinct ruling,
Who'd not have been a total loss
In any sort of Sunday-schooling.
For things these people need to know—
The gruff short words, the scrowling faces—
To Sunday school they need to go,
But other and quite different places.

Lloyd George, we have no doubt, is right;
Beneath the calm and placid steeple,
An Englishman may find the light—
By which to lead and rule his people.
But here we follow different rules
Imposed by different conditions,
They've either better Sunday schools,
Or we have far worse politicians.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. McPHERSON
Consulting Engineer
Kahn Bldg., Eighth and Indiana

Into what sized farms should the surplus lands on the Irrigation project be divided?

CONCLUSION.

This is the last article of the series in which a study has been made to determine, as nearly as may be, from such evidence as was at hand, the size of the farm that should be sold here so that the farmer buying could pay out and make a living.

As we have seen in previous articles, for general farming purposes raising crops that now seem to have the greatest money-making possibility a man should buy from 80 to 110 acres.

While if dairying is to be his main occupation, and we allow for such items as barn and house lot, garden, orchard and berry patch, he should buy from 80 to 100 acres.

If a man is sold too large a tract of land, he is apt to fail for lack of capital, lack of supervision and other influences that have tended steadily on all other irrigation projects to reduce the size of the irrigated farm unit. Successful irrigated farms of large acreage are very rare.

On the other hand, if a man buys too small a farm, it means that despite his most strenuous efforts he may fail on account of not being able to produce crops enough to pay. In other words, his tract of land is not large enough to allow him to put in all of his time efficiently.

The present land owners are interested in knowing whether or not the man who buys his farm from them will be able to pay for his purchase. There is no way of determining this definitely; the human equation contains too many variables, but certainly the buyer should not knowingly be handicapped by having a farm of such size as to prevent him from operating it at its maximum efficiency.

WHAT TODAY MEANS

By MARY BLAKE

VIRGO

The entire day is affected by two minor aspects of slightly adverse nature that are in evidence. Although they are not important they suggest care in all matters, to avoid misjudgments and misunderstanding. The evening is highly favorable for amusement and long desired reconciliations will be realized especially the bringing together of sweethearts long estranged.

A child born today will be erratic and nervous, but with a clear, fine mind of great strength.

If this is the anniversary of your birth it will be difficult to tell your general character as you are probably the type of person whose idea of self is already fixed and permanent, whether true or false. You are not necessarily conceited but at the same time there is just enough of self-esteem in you to stimulate what you want to be if your accomplishments fall short of your ambition.

For the majority of people born this day it will be well to try the stage as a profession, for the world will always be a stage to them anyway, and it is always sound economy to make a virtue of what might otherwise be a vice.

You are courageous and fearless. Often it might be to your own detriment, as your actions are frequently against your better judgment, and you are probably a person who is given to misgiving your-self for impetuous mistakes.

You are strongly disposed in all matters of taste and just as strong in your likes as your dislikes. If a thing pleases, you cannot have too much of it but if it displeases, you will not tolerate it for a second. You are somewhat belligerent in temperament and it is easy to irrate you either on a point of personal interest or of public policy.

You are however, easily led into doing what somebody wants you to do if the other person plays up to your vanity and flatters you.

Your greatest fault is the probability that it will take most of your life time to develop your will power to the point of self control. Remember "he that rulest his own spirit is greater than he that taketh a city."

"DALLAS DAY" AT STATE EXPOSITION

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 9—Dallas has accepted Thursday, October 4, as Dallas day at the Texas State Exposition in Austin, according to a telegram received Saturday from Charles Saville, manager of the Dallas chamber of commerce.

Dallas merchants and jobbers are making preparations to stage a large trade excursion to Austin on that day and will advertise the State Fair at Dallas while making this trip. Practically all of the merchants in Dallas who have been approached on the subject have given their approval and signified their intention of sending a delegate.

Another big trade excursion will come to the Texas State Exposition on Wednesday, October 3, from Waco, as Waco merchants have accepted that day and are making preparations to send down a special train.

Governor Pat M. Neff will open the exposition with a formal proclamation, and he has sent a telegram to the president of Mexico, asking him to be present at Austin's big fair.

U. S. HOMES LEAD IN CONVENIENCES

There are 17,000,000 people in the world who live in electrically lighted homes, according to statistics just compiled from an electrical survey covering the first three months of 1923. This is 0.5 per cent of the total world population.

Among the nations, the United States stands first in the actual number of people living in electrically illuminated dwellings, and second in the percentage of its population living in such homes. There are 39,000,000 people living in homes having electric service in this country, which is 36.5 per cent of the population, says the Texas public service information bureau.

The other nations in the order of their numerical standing, with the number of people in each who have electric lights in their homes, are as follows:

Japan, 23,000,000; Germany, 8,810,000; England and Ireland, 7,800,000; France, 5,000,000; Italy, 4,500,000; Canada, 3,200,000; Sweden and Switzerland, 1,600,000 each.

On a percentage basis the standing is as follows:

Canada, 38.2; United States, 36.8; Japan, 29.9; Switzerland, 25.9; Sweden, 17; England and Ireland, 16.9; Germany, 14.5; France, 13.6; Italy, 11.8.

Some interesting figures are given as to the distribution of the world's telephones, of which 64 per cent are in the United States, as against only 25.4 per cent in the whole of Europe. In round numbers there are 22,000,000 telephones in the world; and of these more than 14,000,000 are in the United States, less than 6,000,000 in Europe and the remainder scattered through the other countries and continents.

May Increase Taxes

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 9.—Cherokee county is not limited to a $1 tax rate, if higher taxes are necessary to create a sinking fund and to pay interest on bonds of road districts, the attorney general's department held in an opinion to M. C. Chiles, county attorney, at Rusk.

The opinion also covered the new salary law for county commissioners. As the county's valuations are between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000 the commissioners are entitled to a salary of $1,200 per year, it was held.

Buy It In Wichita Falls

Are you proud of your town? Have you faith in Wichita Falls? Do you believe in making it a better place in which to live?

If you answer these questions in the affirmative, you should demonstrate your faith in Wichita Falls and in its enterprise by patronizing home merchants. For they cannot make Wichita Falls a good city without your help. It pays to trade at home.

Wichita Falls' Foremost Exclusive Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Store

The store which is now known to the women buyers of Wichita Falls and its trade territory as Kimberlin-Smith was established in October, 1919, by Sam Kimberlin, and operated under the name of "Kimberlin's." This popular ready-to-wear store was then located at Tenth street and Indiana avenue.

Mr. Kimberlin operated the store until February, 1922, when the stock was sold by him. In September of the same year the company was re-organized, Mr. W. P. Smith joining Mr. Kimberlin in the enterprise.

The new store was established with a complete stock of exclusive Ladies' Ready-to-Wear, and is now located at 820 Indiana avenue.

Both of the men. who have occupied an active place in commercial circles in Wichita Falls, served their country during the World War. They were in the same company, ranking as first lieutenants, and saw eleven months' service overseas. They were the only two of six officers with that company who returned home after the war. Mr. Kimberlin was in command of his company while it was in France.

The Kimberlin-Smith Company has one of the most complete stocks of its kind in this section, featuring the best in materials and workmanship in the lines offered. Style, Quality and Materials are stressed in this store, and it is to these things that the popularity of the institution is largely due.

Mr. Kimberlin and Mr. Smith are strong advocates of the policy of trading at home. They believe that such a policy, if strictly adhered to, not only works for the benefit of the community in general, but is a great aid to the individual residents of this city.

BY DON WELDON.

The Spudders found Marshall too much for them and after he went in for Red Lucas in the second frame, they were unable to score, losing to the San Antonio Bears, 7 to 5. Marshall hurled fast ball throughout the seven innings, allowing only two hits and striking out three men to end the game in the ninth frame.

The game from the start was ragged, with both the Bears and the Spudders off form, and before three innigs were over both the starting pitchers had been relieved. Osborne stayed until the Bears got to him for enough runs to win, when Kunz relieved him.

Scoring started early and three runs marked up for the visitors in the first inning gave them a good lead. They started pounding Osborne hard and he was unable to handle them. The first two balls pitched resulted in a run.

Bears Score

Fuller hit the first ball to left for a single and Todt followed by pounding the first ball delivered to him to deep center for three bags, scoring Fuller. Boone walked and Simons hot drive was too fast for Osborne who knocked it down and retired the runner, Todt scoring. After Meyers struck out Galloway's grounder got by Weiss on a bad hop and went for two bags, scoring Boone. Kohlbecker made the last out flying to Coombs.

The Spudders took the big end of the count in the second inning, running up a score of five runs before Red Lucas was driven from the mound and relieved by Marshall. Tanner started the smathing with a single and scored ahead of Cotter who hit a home run over the score board in right center field, the highest spot in the fence. Berger duplicated the feat of a home run by sending the ball over the left field fence for the circuit. Barrett flew to right and Bischoff was safe on Gross' error in handling an easy ball. Bischoff stole second before Osborne struck out, and scored on Bescher's single to right, and Bescher took second on the throw to the plate. Bescher was scored by Coombs with a double to left, and after Marshall relieved Lucas on the mound Weiss went out to the outfield.

The Bears got to Osborne again in the third inning and made up for lost time by scoring three runs for a lead which they kept for the remainder of the season. Boone walked and was forced at second by Simon. Meyers got on first on an error by Berger, and on a wild pitch Simon scored and Meyers went to third. Kohlbecker walked and stole second and Meyers and Kohlbecker scored when Gross singled through the box. Marshall struck out.

Kunz Good.

Kunz, who went in at the end of the third inning for the Spudders had better luck than Osborne and was able to hold the visitors to four hits and one score in his part of the meelee. In the last inning, however, he let a run across. Fuller was out on a bunt, and Todt doubled to center, followed by Boone who walked for the fourth time of the game. Todt scored the last run of the visitors when Simon singled to center field, and Meyers hit into a double play, Barrett to Berger to Cotter.

Marshall, who had had the Spudders in the palm of his hand throughout the seven frames he worked ended the game with a bit of sensational pitching, striking out Barrett, Jonnard and Kunz in succession.

The Houston Buffs are billed with the Spudders today and tomorrow before the final series of the season when the Spuds meet the Galveston crew for five games in four days.

ERRORS GIVE GAME TO PITTSBURGH

CINCINNATI, Sept. 10.—Donohue's wildness and support in the infield, enabled Pittsburgh to score six runs on one hit in the fourth inning today and easily defeat Cincinnati 8 to 0. Errors by Fonseca and Caveney were costly and Donohue forced in two runs with passes after filling the bases. As a result of the victory, the Pirates advanced to second place in the league race. Grid Men Out In Uniform At High School

Fifty high school and Junior college football candidates reported for practice Monday in full football togs after a week's practice in track uniforms. The men got down to real work and the dust was flying high in the air at the Austin school grounds as ambitious players made their dives for the ball.

The men have been busy for the past week working in track suits and all declare that all stiff muscles are working to perfection and all are looking forward to nothing less than a district championship again this year. Several of the letter men who have been late in reporting showed up Monday and took their turn with the ball.

Another severe jolt was handed the weakened line last week when Cliff Waggoner, one of the three letter men of last year turned in his uniform and decided not to play football this season. Waggoner, due to other duties that will take up his time, declared he would be unable to play and with this declaration there was lost to the team one of the best ends in North Texas.

With the first scheduled game coming September 29 the men will be put through some stiff practice until that time.

From present indications it looks as if Ben Howle will be the logical person to do most of the Coyotes' kick off work this season. William Walker, captain of last year did the work to perfection during the past season but as he will be with the Junior college team Howle is busy working every afternoon in educating his toe.

In all probability Baldwin will do most of the punting this season but should he become disabled "Roudy" Curtain could use his toe to a good advantage.

Wills Fails To Stop Firpo-Dempsey Fight With Law Suit

NEW YORK, Sept. 10. — With the removal today of all legal obstacles that have beset the path of the Dempsey-Firpo heavyweight title match, work was rushed ahead on the additions to the Polo Grounds arena, advance ticket sales boomed and the champion and his challenger put redoubled energy into the finishing stages of their training campaign for the battle next Friday night.

The threatened entanglements were brushed aside in supreme court when Justice Hagarty denied the application of Harry Wills, negro challenger, for a temporary injunction against the championship struggle. Wills charged that he had been unjustly discriminated against by the state athletic commission and that his challenge to Dempsey more than a year ago had been ignored, but the court ruled that he had put forward no basis for interference with the forthcoming bout.

The proximity of the title struggle today found an overwhelming majority of critics of the opinion that Dempsey would quickly end Firpo's title aspirations and win by a knockout. Experts, on the other hand, have shown a growing tendency to recognize the danger in the South American's remarkable strength, his stamina and the devastating power behind his right hand punch. Dempsey's superior speed and generalship and his acknowledged hitting power were the factors regarded as likely to turn the scales in the American's favor. The tendency to accord Firpo more than a fighting chance, however, was reflected in the general gradual lowering of betting odds. One large wager was reported today at 2 1-2 to 1 on Dempsey as compared with the number recorded several weeks ago at as high as 4 to 1 to the champion.

Experts rate Firpo with his unusual fighting powers as far more formidable than any of Dempsey's oponents in the last few years—Miske, Brennan, Carpentier, and Gibbons.

Fans crowded the approaches to ticket offices at Madison Square Garden today. It was announced that the cheaper reserved sections had sold out. There seemed little doubt that Promoter Rickard's estimate of an attendance in excess of 80,000 and a total "gate" of $1,250,000 would be fulfilled.

Johnson Beaten In First Day Of Play For Tennis Singles Title

By The Associated Press.

GERMANTOWN CRICKET CLUB, PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10. — A single upset marked the first day's play in the 42nd annual tournament for the lawn tennis championship of the United States in singles, which began this afternoon on the courts of the Germantown Cricket club.

Robert Kinsey of San Francisco, provided the startling reversal of form when he completely outplayed and defeated in straight sets Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia.

Johnson, a finalist two years ago, in the national championship against Tilden and a star of 15 years' standing, fell before a master exponent of the chop stroke, a form of play originated by the Philadelphian.

The master was helpless in the hands of the pupil who ran Johnson ragged by his perfect control of chop stroke and abler handling of the ball close to the net.

Approximately 7,000 persons, the largest first-day crowd in the history of national championships, saw the field of 64 selected players, representative of seven countries, melt away through the elimination play of the first round or by default, to a field of 32 players, who will begin the second round tomorrow. Dusk was settling over the courts when the last match was completed.

YANKEES MAKE IT THREE GAMES

Beat Boston Handily; Ruth Ties Williams In Homers

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The New York Yankees made it three straight from Boston, winning easily today, 8 to 1.

Ruth again tied Williams for the season's home run honors, when he hit his thirty-fifth homer.

Sam Jones, who recently pitched a no-hit game against Philadelphia, almost duplicated the feat today, when he did not allow a hit until the seventh. Including a game on August 21 with Washington, Jones has pitched 16 2-3 innings without allowing a hit, which is believed to be a record. Score:

RUSSIANS FIND NEWER RITUALS

Substitute Communist Rites For Abandoned Church Ceremonies

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—Love of ceremony is too human a trait to permit of its abandonment even in Russia in the three principal events of family life, birth, marriage and death. Certain communist "rites" are therefore finding their way into the family lives of Russian peasants and workmen as a substitute for church ceremonies.

These conclusions are brought out in an article by Leon Trotzky, the Russian war commissar. In some cases they contradict the previous ruling theory among communists in Russia, that, as Trotzky puts it, "the workers' state had disclaimed church ceremony, having announced to its citizens that they had the right to be born, marry and die without any ceremony whatsoever."

"The life of a laboring family is too monotonous for this, and the monotony reacts upon the nervous system," Trotzky writes. "Therefore there is a craving for the church and its ceremonies. The workers' state already has its holidays and processions, its sights and parades, its new symbolical pleasures, and the new state theater."

Instead of naming their children after some saint, many workmen now are choosing names indicative of revolutionary ideas, or after personages. "Octobrina," after the October revolution, and "Ninel," which is Lenin's name spelled backward, are two of the new names for girl babies. In place of christening they are now "half-joking inspections" of new-born babies by factory comittees, and special protocols are drawn up including the new comer among the free citizens of the Soviet Republic. The entrance of a pupil into school is also marked by a special holiday in in the workers' family, with the participation of trade unions and guilds.

So far as marriages are concerned, Trotzky says "life does not want to connect itself with the mere marriage, theatrically unadorned."

Cremation is the proper system of disposal of the dead, but there must be ceremonies, for "the requirement for outer appearances of feelings is both mighty and lawful."

Trotzky advocates the development of moving pictures as an antidote for both the church and the saloon.

New U. S.-Mexican Water Treaty Is Needed At Once

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 10.—Treaties between the United States and Mexico for water rights on the lower Rio Grande river must be forthcoming within the next few years, or this nation will lose much of the irrigation possibilities of the stream, according to John A. Norris, chairman of the Texas Board of Water Engineers.

Divisions of water is already provided for on the Rio Grande above El Paso under treaties previously arranged between the two nations, but no arangement has been made to devide the waters in the lower section, Norris said.

Mexicans are showing an increased interest in irrigation and power developments on the Mexican side of the river, the state water engineer reported. It is estimated that two-thirds of the water supply of the Rio Grande comes from the Mexican rivers. Much of this water is already utilized for power purposes and would be lost to use in the American side if large irrigation projects are launched as proposed in Mexico, it is believed.

"American interests below El Paso have virtually reached their limit in utilizing waters of the Rio Grande without storage facilities", Norris said. "In the lower Rio Grande section, there are at present approximately 200,000 acres under irrigation. Irrigated lands, together with those for which facilities are being provided, will practically exhaust the ordinary flow of the river and further extensions must, of necessity, depend upon stored water."

"The lower Rio Grande section has possibilities of irrigating 1,000,000 acres and more than 10,000,000 acres on both sides of the river below El Paso can be irrigated, if storage of water is provided," declared the water engineer.

Reservoir sites on the lower river show prospects for storing an unlimited supply of water for power and irrigation purposes, the state engineer declared. An inspection tour of the section to locate prospective sites for reservoirs has just been completed. The board of water engineers is cooperating with the International boundary commission in collecting data toward the storing of water.

Evangelistic Revival On.

An evangelistic revival under the direction of the Floral Heights Baptist church began Monday night under a big tent at Tenth and Kemp streets, Evangelist R. G. Baucom, of San Antonio, doing the preaching and Mrs. Baucom in charge of the music.

A large attendance is expected at the services by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Loving and the public is invited to attend.

GOLF ADDICTS ON INCREASE HERE

Golf addicts are on the incrtase in Wichita Falls as the reports of the municipal golf club for the past week-end show that the passing of summer is not slowing down the enthusiasm at all.

Saturday there was a total of 75 paid admissions to the municipal golf course and 65 Sunday. These were in addition to the members who have season tickets. The course now has 13 holes and five more are expected to be added next spring to make room for the new comers.

After today regular meals will not be served at the golf club as Manager John Bartovich is leaving for California. Hamburgers and cold drinks will continue to be served, however.

Plans for a series of trips to advertise the Texas-Oklahoma fair were made by the members of the trade extension committee at a meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce Monday afternoon, with J. C. Mytinger, chairman.

Daniels, captain; Henrietta and Abilene Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 26 and 27, by chartered Pullman, J. C. Mytinger and John W. Thomas, captains.

The fair will also have representation in Decatur and Bowie, and if the trips meet with the succes that always attends that Wichita Falls excursions, the surrounding towns will be well in attendance at the fair.

Those present at the meeting were J. C. Mytinger, chairman; John W. Thomas, C. U. Daniels, R. E. Shepherd, O. O. Adkins, E. S. Godner, R. E. Nolen, Geo. Wilson, J. W. Chatham and Hubert Harrison.

SCHOOL SURVEY TO GET EXPERT MAN

That one of the leading educational experts of America will have charge of the educational survey of Texas schools to begin next December 1, and continue for a year as provided for by the last legislature, was decided by the state educational commission at a call meeting at Austin, Saturday. Burl Bryant who is one of the 12 members of the commission, said on his return Monday.

Bryant said it was the opinion of the 12 commissioners at the Austin meeting that since the legislature had set aside $50,000 for the survey, that an out of state man of recognized ability should be assigned the important task. Dr. Angell president of Yale, Dr. Judd of Chicago university and Dr. Nichols Murray Butler, president of Columbia, were among the dozen experts mentioned for the job.

Bryant said the expert, if a college president, will be asked to take a year's leave of absence and direct the Texas school survey. The educational commission will allow the survey director to choose his own staff, with the commission retaining the right of rejecting the names of any not considered qualified for the task.

Dr. Brooks, president of Baylor university, Dr. Horne, president of Southwestern university and Gus Taylor, banker of Tyler, three of the 12 commissioners, were appointed a committee to present names of possible directors when it has its next meeting at Austin, Sept. 22, next.

Hard-Worked County Tax Collector Has New Idea

Yes, we have no bananas—but we will have lots of them if all the Ford cars are painted yellow after next January 1, according to Guy Raley, county tax collector.

The county tax collector's mind was running on cars yesterday, when he spoke about the possibility of a bright, yellow coat being applied to all Fords. Raley had just registered the fifty-ninth car for Monday, one of the busiest days for auto taxes during the year. Also by next Saturday 18,000 cars will have registered —with the year only three-fourths gone. Of that number, 10,000 of the cars have been Fords.

For that reason, Raley said if all the Fords were painted yellow, they could be arranged in bunches and sold like bananas.

Another record for the county tax collector's office Monday, besides the unusual number of cars registered, was that $1,811.75 tax money was received during the day.

University Club Luncheon.

The University club which has not had any meetings during the summer months, today begins its regular Tuesday noonday Kemp luncheon and all members, former members and citizens interested in the work of the club are expected.

The officers and program committee advise that proceedings will start when the session meets, and that all program packages will then be opened and the bottles of mirth and good cheer uncorked. Thus far no definite statement will be made as to what they may contain, but all are informed that there will be good fellowship and renewed interest for activities for coming year instilled in all who attend.

The president for current year is Judge R. O. Kenley, secretary-treasurer, John P. Marrs, and first vice president, Julian Bobo, all of whom expect to make the coming year break the records. All are invited to come out and bring their friends.

C. of C. Meet.

The publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce will meet this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce with P. A. Rogers, chairman, to discuss special publicity for the Texas Oklahoma fair.

AGNES DARRAH IS PLACED IN JAIL

Refuses to Tell Whereabout of ex-Chorus Girl's Baby

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Agnes Darrah, who claims she is critically ill, was ordered jailed or placed in a hospital under guard by Judge Hal S. Lattimore, Monday for contempt of court in refusing at the "court of inquiry" Saturday to reveal the whereabouts of the missing baby of Mrs. Zelma Adams.

The inquiry was being held to obtain evidence in a $50,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Adams, former chorus girl, against Mrs. Cora Gregory, owner of a local maternity home. Mrs. Ad... contends that the baby, born at the home, was given away without her consent and that she has not since been able to locate the child.

FAIR VISITORS TO GET REDUCED RATES

The Missouri, Kansas Texas railroad lines are working for the Texas-Oklahoma Fair and exposition to be held here Oct. 1 to 7, inclusive, according to H. G. Smith, division freight and passenger agent.

All points served by the M. K. T. in Oklahoma and Texas will have a reduced rate for visitors attending the fair. Posters and circulars are being mailed out to the agents along the line and the railroad company officials have written letters to the agents instructing the posters and circulars be posted in a prominent place in the stations.

"The Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition is a wonderful thing for Southwest Oklahoma, North, and Northwest Texas. I know of no better way to show the appreciation of the M. K. T. railroad to farmers and ranchmen than to reduce the rates on passenger fares so that they may come here and see the educational wonders and inventions that will aid them in raising and marketing their cattle and agricultural products," said Smith to a number of other railroad executives, yesterday afternoon.

In a recent schedule and time table the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition is listed as one of the 'Coming Events' of the southwest and is given as much prominence as the Oklahoma State and Texas State fair and is listed by the railroad as being on a basis equally as important as the two other largest fairs held in the southwest.

New Citizens Revere Memory of Lincoln

By The Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 10.—Of the thousands of pilgrims who annually visit the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, the most enthusiastic and most welcome, according to H. W. Fay, custodian, are the immigrants who are just about to become American citizens.

Crowned heads, ambassadors, famous generals, prime ministers, and presidents come by the score to lay wreaths on the sarcophagus of the martyred president. And men and women from more humble walks of life come too.

"Many times a year the foreign born coal miner comes to Springfield from neighboring towns to take out his first citizenship papers," said Mr. Fay, "and he is the most reverent visitor of all. I like to tell men like that about the martyred president."

There has never been any disorder at the tomb within the memory of the present custodian. "Everybody who comes here is quiet and reverential," he said. "I have never had to ask a visitor to remove his hat."

Burkburnett School Opening.

The 1923-24 session of the Burkburnett public schools opens Monday morning September 10th, with an enrollment of over 2,000 pupils and a faculty of 65 teachers. Most of the latter have spent the summer season in normals and universities in Chicago; Columbia, New York; Denver, and Canyon City and other summer school points.

The new $160,000 high school building is ready for the opening and will add much to the progress, beauty and relief of the congested conditions of previous school years.

The 1923-24 session finds Burkburnett with one of the best equipped schools in the state of Texas.

R. H. Henry is the president of the school board and J. E. Woodward, superintendent of the Burkburnett schools.

First Fall Luncheon.

The Members' Council of the Chamber of Commerce will hold the first meeting of the fall season Friday at a 2:00 o'clock luncheon at the Kemp Hotel. T. P. Duncan, chairman, will call for reports on various phases of civil work, and representatives of the Civic League will be present to outline the plan for a city wide clean up which they are conducting before the fair.

Plans for winter work will be discussed and a fall civic program will be launched. The Members' Council will co-operate with the Civic League in an attempt to clean up vacant lots, trash heaps and unsightly alleys before the out-of-town visitors begin to arrive.

Taxes Low on Channel Islands.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The channel Islands are getting better and better every day from the point of view of the earthly bachelor. Here there is no income tax, no corporation tax, only a nominal state tax, no early closing laws, no prohibition, and now the legislature has refused to pass a bill which would allow women over the age of 30 to sit as members of the house of deputies.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—There was a sensationally rapid and excited jump of approximately a cent a pound in the cotton market here right after the opening today. This carried October up from 27.50c to 28.50, or 90 points above the closing quotations of Saturday, and all months made new high records for the season. The higher prices attracted a great deal of realizing, however, and after the more urgent demand had been supplied the market reacted to 27.80c for October, or 70 points from the best.

That delivery closed at 27.85c with the general market closing barely steady at net advances of 13 to 25 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 35 points on November and 5 to 10 points on other months under heavy overnight selling orders from commission houses and the south. It almost immediately turned strong on reports that a prominent Memphis authority estimated the crop condition as of September 8 at 49.7, and the indicated yield at only 10,240,000 bales, based on the government acreage figures. This further reduction of over half a million bales in ideas of the crop evidently increased the fear that supplies would fall short of requirements, and for a time it seemed that not only shorts, but trade interests and speculative buyers were competing for a limited supply of contracts. Inside of half an hour December had advanced to 28.17 and January to 27.72, making net gains of 72 to 90 points on the active positions, an advance of not less than 438 points from prices ruling shortly before the last government crop report in the case of December contracts.

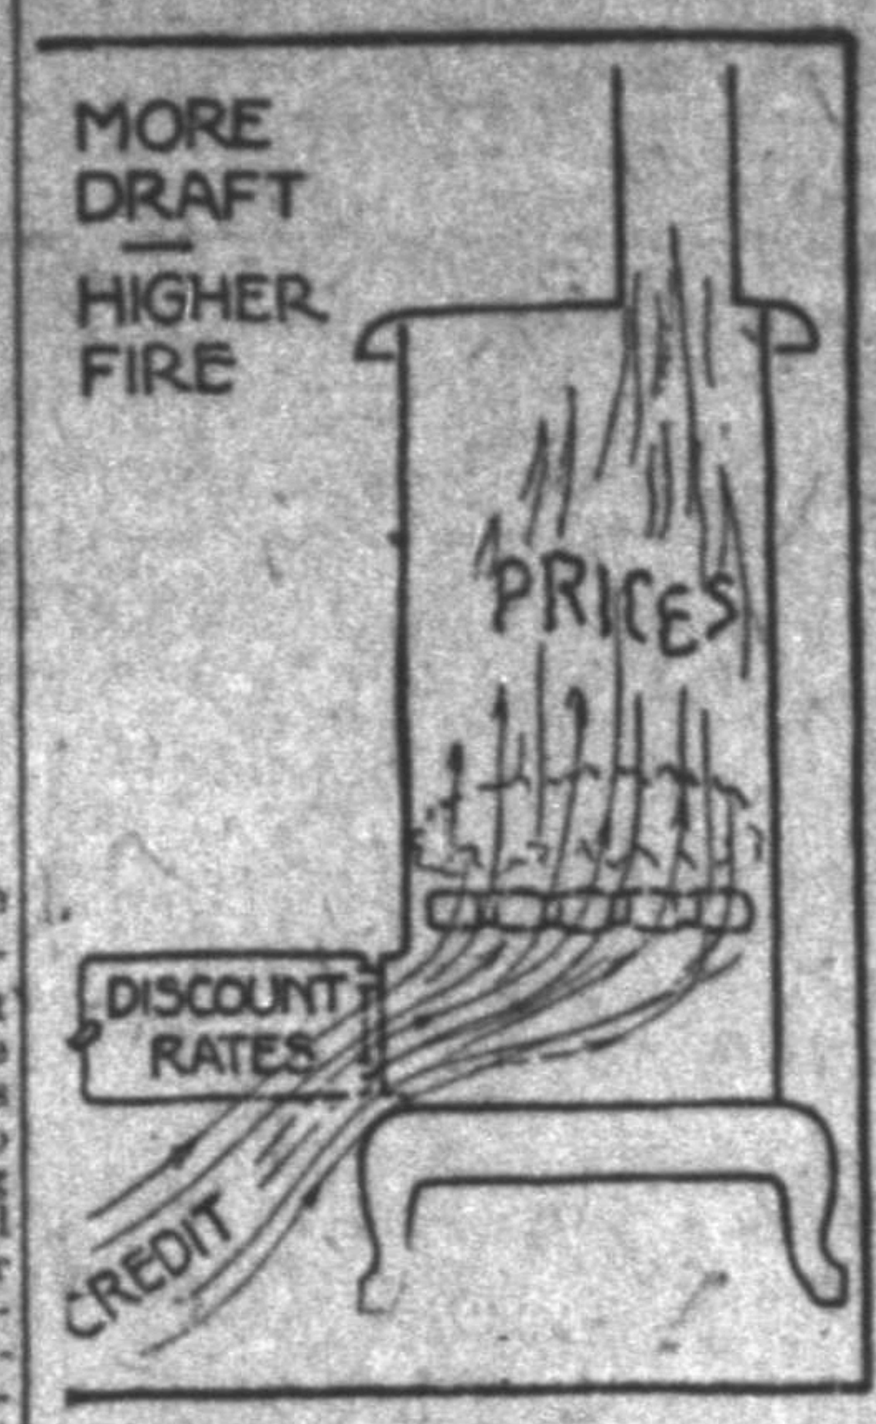

Realizing became very heavy at the new high level of prices, and the afternoon reactions were accompanied by reports of an easing spot basis and increasing new crop movement.

Exports today, 683 bales, making 353,757 so far this season. Port receipts, 23,536. United States port stocks, 285,000 bales.

MONEY At Work

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

The federal reserve banks raise the discount rate to prevent hard times.

Too much bank credit is accompanied by rising prices and expansion; followed by over-extension.

A collapse and depression is the result of over-extension.

One way to stop over-extension is to make it difficult for the business man to get unnecessary credit.

Therefore, the discount rate is raised, not to make money for the reserve banks, but to stabilize business.

Fort Worth Livestock

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 10.—Fort Worth receipts were moderate, for the most part Monday. The estimate called for 3,000 head of cattle, 2,000 calves, 3,500 hogs and 3,000 sheep.

In the cattle division salesmen made good progress, the general market showing a good, steady trend. On calves, there was an upward turn of fully 25c and the trade was very brisk. Stockers and feeders remained quotably unchanged.

The trade was featured by the sale of a car of choice yearlings at $9.50. The best steers here sold at $7, and the top on calves was $6.50.

Receipts of beef steers was not large, and quality made a fair average only.

The only good yearlings here were those bringing $9.50. Cutter cows sold around $2.00 to $2.65, and canners went at a general range of $1.50 to $1.75. Fat cows in small drafts ranged around $4.25 to $4.50. Bulls were wanted at a range of $2.50 to $4.50. Calves sold at a range of $6.00 to $6.50.

Hog receipts were unusually liberal, but the market was steady. One car sold to a packer at $9.10, and several deals were made at $8.90. Most of the day's run cleared at $8.65 to $8.90. Quality made a fairly good average. Shippers' top was $9.20.

Good pigs sold at $6.00 to $7.00. Receipts were below trade requirements.

Around 3,000 head were marked up in the sheep house. Prices were called about steady. Some choice lambs sold as feeders at $11.00 to $11.10. Fairly good wethers brought $6.50.

STOCKS STILL ON UPWARD TREND

Rally Attributed to More Favorable News From Foreign Shores

Financial Features.

Total stock sales 621,000 shares. Twenty industries averaged 93.31, net gain .38. High 1923, 105.38; low 86.91. Twenty railroads averaged 80.31; net gain .21. High 1923, 90.63; low 76.78.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Stock prices continued their upward movement in today's quiet session. The rally while not extensive, was attributed to the more favorable foreign news, including reports that Germany was preparing to cease passive resistance in the Ruhr and that Italy and Greece was ready to accept the peace proposals of the council of ambassadors.

Copper shares showed the most consistent strength, buying being based on the Ruhr news and the fact that August shipments exceeded those of all other months this year except January and March. Utah advanced 1 7-8 and Anaconda, Kennecott and American Smelting 1 to 1 5-8. United States Steel closed fractionally higher, but some of the independents lost ground.

Baldwin, Studebaker, American Woolen and most of the other industrial leaders closed fractionally higher. Some short selling took place in the oil shares, but most of the native issues offered good resistance, Cosden being particularly active and closing nearly a point higher.

Some confused movements took place among the specialties, Woolworth and Kresge advancing 6 3-4 and 7 3-8, respectively. Jones Brothers Tea opened 3 points higher, cancelled nearly all its gain and then moved upward again, closing at 50 5-8, up 1 3-4. DuPont dropped 3 points.

Rails showed mixed changes, Southern railway being the most active, closing 3-8 higher at 34 7-8.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent but advanced to five before the close. Time money was somewhat more active with 5 1-2 per cent the ruling rate. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Strength of the continental allied currencies was the feature of the foreign exchange market. French francs advanced 10 points to 5.67 cents. Italian lire advanced 9 1-2 points to 4.41 1-2 cents and Belgian francs advanced ten points to 4.65 1-2 cents. Greek drachmas moved up 12 points to 1.95 cents. Demand sterling was quoted at $4.53 7-8.

COTTON USE SHOWS HEAVY INCREASE

The world consumption of cotton for the year ending July 31 last was given at 20,950,000 bales as compared with 20,047,000 for the previous corresponding 12 months. World stocks at the beginning of the season were 9,536,000 bales as against 14,752,000 for the preceeding year, while the stocks at the end of the season were 6,460,000 bales as compare to 9,536,000.

The world survey was made by the department of commerce in co-operation with the department of agriculture and included some unspinnable cotton as to which statistics were not available.

Of American cotton the supplies in all countries August 1 amounted to 15,431,000 bales as against 17,460,000 for the year ending July 31, 1922. Stocks of American cotton in all countries August 1 were 12,450,000 bales as against 13,393,000 a year ago. Production of American cotton on August 1 was estimated at 9,760,000 bales as against 7,954,000 last year.

LITTLE CHANGE IN WHEAT MARKET

Range Held Inside Narrow Limits—Await Report On Crops

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—In the absence of any aggressive selling and with no broad demand, the wheat market held inside of narrow limits today, awaiting the government crop report due after the close. The report as to wheat proved to be less in favor of the bulls than had been expected. Wheat prices closed steady at a range varying from 3-8c to 1-2c net decline to 3-8c advance, with December $1.06 to $1.06 1-8, and May $1.11 1-8 to $1.11 1-4. Corn finished at 1-4c off to 1-8c gain. Oats lost 1-8c, and provisions extended from 10c setback to a raise of [illegible]c.

According to the government figures, the 1923 domestic yield of wheat is about 4,000,000 bushels larger than the trade has of late been looking forward to, but there was no suggestion of this in the current gossip today and the course of the market appeared to be governed by other factors.

Cool weather exerted only a transient bullish influence on oats and corn. The government report, both as to corn and oats, was about as expected.

Provisions were without important changes.

Cottonseed Oil Advances.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—There was another big trade in the cottonseed oil market today, with advances of 45 points in some deliveries following the jump in cotton. Heavy commission house buying was supplied by active profit-taking sales, and the late market was a little easier, closing 1 to 37 points net higher. Sales 40,800 barrels. Prime crude nominal; prime summer yellow spot 11.00 to 11.50; September 11.30; December 10.48; March 10.57, all bid.

NEW RECORD IN SCHOOL OPENING

City's Greatest Attendance Total—Conditions Crowded

Monday morning at 9 o'clock all the schools in the city opened their doors to the greatest attendance in the history of Wichita Falls, the estimate being 7,000. Conditions at the senior high school were in a crowded condition, and it is feared that when the Junior College and high school students convene at the same time Wednesday, conditions will reach a perplexing stage, due to the lack of room. Although an exact estimate could not be formed Monday, it is thought that the attendance at the high school building will be approximately 1,000, and inasmuch as the school will only accommodate 600 pupils properly, it may be necessary to rent a separate school building until the new building is completed. Every available room, including offices and small rooms, have been turned into class rooms in an effort to meet the demands of the pupils.

County Superintendent Burl Bryant said Monday that every school, with the exception of five, had been opened, and that the school would be opened October 1, following the closing of the active cotton picking season. He further reports that present indications show that the largest attendance in the history of the county will be recorded this year. The schools that were not opened Monday are County Line, Enterprise, Deep Creek, City View and Cooper.

Cantwell Makes Address

"You are the history makers of the Wichita Falls Junior College. Upon you rests the responsibility as to whether the Junior College will be a success. In the future the names of the students who are now listening to me should be inscribed upon an honor role because of the fact that you were the first students to compose the student body in the Wichita Falls Junior College." Superintendent J. W. Cantwell spoke briefly to approximately 75 Junior College students Monday afternoon.

In his talk, Cantwell told the students of the prominence that the junior colleges were attaining throughout the country, and of how the rest of the country was looking to Wichita Falls to observe the success of one of the pioneer cities in the movement to found a junior college.

Continuing in his talk, Superintendent Cantwell urged the college students to be satisfied with the crowded conditions that now existed, and promised that the new junior college building would be ready for occupancy by the first of the year.

Pamphlets were given to the prospective students in an effort to aid them in the selections of their courses. The pamphlets gave many interesting facts concerning the institution that is entering its second year's work, and were a great aid to the students.

S. H. Rider talked briefly to the students concerning their work for the present year, and urged them to exert every effort to make the college a success in Wichita Falls, as its success rested with them entirely. The students registered for their courses and will report Wednesday for their classes.

LADIES SELL 100 THRIFT TICKETS

Mrs. M. A. Bundy, 1511 Eleventh street and Mrs. E. L. Smith, 1913 Tenth street, each made sales of 100 thrift tickets yesterday. They are working on the First Christian church ladies' aid team.

The various women's clubs and church organizations are meeting with marked success in disposing of the thrift tickets and find the public anxious to buy at the reduction being offered.

The tickets are being sold by the various organizations for the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition association, who are letting the different organizations have the tickets at a reduction in order that the churches and civic clubs may derive a percentage for booths or other enterprises.

YOUNG GIRLS FILE ASSAULT CHARGES

Four statutory charges were filed in the justice courts Monday by the county attorney's department, three of them against married men, and all alleging assaults on girls ranging from 9 to 15 years of age.

Three of the charges were filed in Justice Gibbs' court and the other in Justice Gwinn's.

All The "Bad Boys" Have Entered School

Juvenile Officer Brailey said Monday that all the "bad" boys in town had entered school and he anticipated no great trouble the coming school term with delinquents.

"The boys have promised me they were going to try to study hard this year and make something of themselves and I think they will," the juvenile officer said.

SUNDAY TEACHERS TO HEAR ADDRESS

Mr. L. E. Waite, educational worker of the Broadway Baptist Church, Fort Worth, will deliver an address to the officers and teachers of the First Baptist Church Sunday school Tuesday evening, eight o'clock. Mr. Waite is an authority on Sunday school work, and his message will be heard by more than a hundred workers. T. A. Key, general superintendent of the local Sunday school, is anxious that every officer and teacher will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear the visitor.

20 OIL SCENES TO BE AT FAIR

Noted Artists to Contribute Pictures for Local Exhibit

Twenty oil field scenes will be sent here from the National Art association, Washington, D. C., and will be exhibited during the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition, Oct. 1 to 7, inclusive, according to word received from Mrs. Ed Lauderdale, Dallas, member of National Art association; Dallas Art association; and critic for Marshall-Field company, Chicago; and critic for the art exhibit at the fair, according to C. H. Verschoyle, secretary fair association.

The paintings are by artists of national and international reputation. They are regarded as the best collection of oil field scenes ever shown. Some of the paintings will be of scenes visited by local operators. The paintings are original and are said to be priceless.

W. L. Davidson, Oriental studio, 706 Tenth street, plans to exhibit several paintings from the eastern studios. Davidson will endeavor to bring here for the fair, some of the works of Maurice Braun, Silver Mine Colony, Conn.; Gustave Weigand and Robert N. Nisbet, National Academy, Washington, D. C., and Orland Campbell, McDougal Alley, Greenwich Village, New York.

Campbell is an artist of exceptional ability. His work has created much favorable comment throughout the art centers of Europe and America. He is of the new school, and is the first artist to master the gold and silver leaf in his work. The effect of silver and gold leaf brings out more distinctly the natural color of the subjects.

Oriental Exhibits

Davidson will have some rare and authentic exhibits. He expects to display several oriental rugs and tapestries that are both unique and unusual.

Mandarin coat pannels, old colored embroideries from the Ming dynasty real Chinese silk parasols, beautiful jades and corals, jewelry, linens, and some artistic hand tool finished silverware, will be among the Chinese display.

TESTIMONY HEARD IN SINGER SUIT

All testimony was received Monday in the case of C. M. Ward and wife against the Singer Sewing Machine company in the Eighty-ninth district court, and the final arguments will be given Tuesday and the case turned over to the jury. The parties are suing the company for $25,000 which they allege is the extent of damage incurred when a representative of the company is alleged to have caused the woman to suffer a nervous breakdown in attempting to collect a bill.

It is alleged that the woman was in a delicate condition at the time and the excitement injured her health.

Tots Crossing Tracks Brings Call Meeting

A call meeting of the citizens of Scotland addition was held last night at the Evangelical church to discuss the entering of a protest to the school board of the said district being placed in the Fannin School district. The addition is situated between the river and the railroad and in order to go to the school, many of the pupils are forced to cross the railroad several times per day. Many of the students are mere youngsters and the patrons of the school met in an attempt to remedy the condition.

A call meeting will be held Tuesday night at the same place at which time a committee will be appointed to go before the school board requesting that the Scotland addition be placed in the San Jacinto school district. In order to go to this school the pupils will only be compelled to cross the river at Burnett street thus eliminating the danger of crossing the railroad tracks.

School days.

Baseball season 'bout over.

The oil situation may be down but not out.

Signals! Punt formation! Football season coming up.

City and county tax rolls are about completed.

Many bales of cotton being ginned in the county daily. Prosperity.

Dr. Douglass, city health officer, says Wichita is better health month by month.

About time to discard straw hats and women's furs as cool weather is setting in.

Already nearly twice as many automobiles sold in Wichita county this year as last.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ebner returned Monday from California and Salt Lake City after a five weeks' vacation.

Tax rolls are not as popular as the more popular "jelly" and "bank" of the roll family but are more certain.

Lee Jackson, son of Commissioner J. P. Jackson, was here from Houston Monday visiting his father and friends.

The negro man who furnished the head for the woman's target said it wasn't a "smoothing iron boss, it was a sad iron."

The Kemp corner where the boys have been hanging out this summer to catch a little air is most popular during March of course.

Other Texas cities may have their gasoline reduction price wars but Wichita's rate goes on forever. "Consistency, thou art a jewel".

"Had your iron today?" is what that negro woman had in mind Friday night when she worked her lover's head over with a smoothing iron.

No such thing as "blue" Monday in Justice Gibbs' court as about 15 law violators left visiting cards in the form of $10 bills and checks.

Again Town Stuff asks the whereabouts of that committee that was going to see about getting some sure enough paving for Ohio and Indiana avenues.

Pumping of water from the diversion dam to Lake Wichita is continuing with about eight miles of the 30 mile distance already traveled by the stream.

The regular Monday night meeting of the city council was postponed until Wednesday night due to the absence of Mayor Collier and Commissioner Stayton.

The instance of the iron and the negro lover shows the value of advertising for what hasn't been asked for—the printed page time after time "Had your iron today."

Sheriff Pat Murphy made a trip to Vernon Monday and made some further investigations regarding auto and oil well supply thefts in this section.

The constable's department reports an unusual large number of arrests for the week end, 21 being arrested on charges of speeding. All appeared in the justice courts Monday.

When Gov. Walton of Oklahoma staged that big barbecue celebration after his election, everybody knew he was a good publicity man. His continued uncanny ability to make page one almost daily is but a mark of consistency.

An example of neighborliness and reciprocity will be shown by County Judge Sartin and the four commissioners of Wichita county when they call on Judge Vaden and the four Clay county commissioners at Henrietta next Wednesday.

It remains to be seen whether there is anything in a name in the prize fighting game. For instance, if "Angel" Firpo gets the treatment Dempsey followers expect, the Argentine will, if he's eligible, be an angel after the fight tomorrow night.

Mayor Frank Collier, City Attorney W. E. George and Burton Stayton, public utilities commissioner, are in Dallas attending a law suit in which the North Texas Gas company and the Lone Star Gas company are the principals. Wichita Falls and 20 other Texas cities are intervening in the suit.

Authority to advertise for bids for a new grader for the county roads was granted County Auditor E. P. Walsh Monday by the county commissioners. The new grader will have a 12 foot frame and 10 grader and the bids are to include rate prepaid to Iowa Park from wherever it is shipped.

Wichita Girls to Paris From London Via Plane

All tourists returning to Wichita Falls this month bring back interesting facts concerning their experiences on their trips, but probably Miss Elizabeth Brown, instructor in the Junior College, can relate more interesting facts than the majority of the travelers. Miss Brown spent three months during the summer in Europe, and while on her trip visited all the important places on that continent.

London, Paris, the battlefields of France and Belgium, Spain, Italy and the Alps were some of the places seen by her while on her travels.

According to Miss Brown, one of the most enjoyable parts of her trip was her journey from London to Paris by airplane. The trip was made in a very brief time, and had all the thrills that compose an air voyage, according to Miss Brown.

BOY CORN CLUBS IMPROVING CROP

More Than 35,000 Boys And Girls Enrolled This Season

Boys' corn clubs have done more to raise the standard of corn than any other factor. At fairs and expositions throughout the various circuits, corn clubs have been winning many premiums and cash prizes. This was due because of the interest taken by boys in the raising of the product for exhibiting purposes. The standard of the cereal has been greatly improved, according to Guy R. Jones, in charge of this feature at the Texas-Oklahoma Fair and Exposition, to be held here October 1 to 7, inclusive.

Corn clubs are one of the most successful projects for boys and girls in the state. There are more than 35,000 boys and girls enrolled in such clubs. They are raising more than $750,000 worth of corn this season, according to estimates made several weeks ago by Farm and Ranch.

Boys and girls of southwest Oklahoma and northwest Texas will have a large display of corn at the fair. Many of the entrees will be shown as individual displays, while other exhibits will be listed among those shown by the various cities and counties.

Cereal specialists and agricultural agents are of the opinion the fair here will have corn exhibits that will rank with such exhibit as are shown in the fairs and expositions of Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and other banner corn raising states.

Poker-Playing Negroes Each Draw Fines of $15

The Ethiopian urge to take a chance with Lady Luck is usually confined to backing the judgment with speckled cubes and a twist of the wrist, followed by articulatory movements which result in "Come on, Little Joe" and like expressions.

Five negroes varied from the game their race made famous, and were playing poker in a house in the negro quarter Monday afternoon. They were arrested by Deputy Constables Richardson and Humphreys. Arraigned before Judge Gwinn, they paid fines for gaming.

MORE JOBS THAN MEN, SAYS ARMY

Local Salvation Ensign Reports Business Very Brisk

"There are now many jobs open for those who wish to work," Ensign Corlis of the local Salvation Army stated Monday. The situation has changed materially to what it was a few weeks past according to the Ensign who is in charge of the employment bureau.

"Now instead of their being more men than jobs, there are more jobs than we can get men for", the Ensign stated.

The dormitory at the Salvation headquarters is filled to its capacity with women and a few men and the fall and winter work is starting off briskly, Ensign Corlis said.

Close Delivery Contract.

Middle States Oil corporation, adjusting its position in the oil business to meet the changed conditions during this season, has rapidly pressed the construction of its Wyoming and Montana facilities, looking to the marketing of oil in the region from St. Paul, Minn., to the northwest, and from Southern Arkansas fields marketing oil by water transportation through the New Orleans gateway, those methods avoiding the congested pipeline conditions to interior points, is just completing its plans for supplying a minimum of 12,000 barrels of oil per day to water points through New Orleans. In this connection it is stated that the estimated pledged total 12,000,000 barrels.

Checks Save Miles

A hundred years ago it was often necessary for a business man to travel many a rough mile with his money to settle an account.

Later it became possible to send his money by express. Today he merely sits at his desk and writes a check in settlement of an account at home or abroad.
