SCHOOL BILL HALTED

Opponents of $2,500,000 Made By Senate in Setting Out 1,000,000 Rural Aid

AUSTIN, May 30 (AP)—A $2,500,000 bill to increase state and federal assistance to rural schools and to provide for the construction of school buildings was defeated today when the senate passed a bill to appropriate $1,000,000 for the same purpose.

E. W. Camp Elected Head Tech Alumni At Farewell Banquet Of Senior Class

Including their unstinted support toward the betterment of the institution in future years, members of the first graduating class of the Texas Technological college closed the first commencement exercises of the school with the organization of the Texas Tech Alumni and ex-students association as they gathered for their last meeting as a class at a banquet in the Lubbock hotel last night.

Another son, George, confined at the Oklahoma penitentiary for 25 years for slaying Perry Chocolate, Sequoyah county officer, also was unable to be at his mother's bedside during her last moments.

If I only could see Matthew I would die happy," Mrs. Kimes said yesterday as she knew the end was near.

Mrs. Kimes died this morning after two years of suffering from cancer.

Kimes' Mother Dies Without Seeing Son

Since her condition became serious three weeks ago, officers have kept close watch over the Kimes woman in the belief that Matthew would come home to see his mother.

DECORATION DAY RIOTS KILL TWO

FOLLOWERS OF MUSSOLINI FALL WHEN ATTACKED IN GOTHAM STREETS

NEW YORK, May 30.—Two black shirts of fascism killed large in New York's municipal day.

Two men were killed in the morning, reportedly by political adversaries, and in the afternoon there was a minor riot at Times Square when the adherents of Mussolini pursued through the streets three men who attacked one of their number.

Attacked With Comrades

The men killed were Joseph Carol and Nicholas Amoroso. They were in their way to join the parade with twenty comrades when they were attacked at 138th street and third avenue.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

THIS HAS HAPPENED
T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, selects three girls from his establishment to come into his home as his wards for one year, because his belief is that they have worthy ambitions which he wants to further. Billy Wells is the only one of the three that is sincere. She wants to become a concert violinist. NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON like to enjoy his generosity.

Billy is infatuated with DAL ROMAINE, nephew of Mrs. MEADOWS, the hostess, but she fears he is "playing" both her and Winnie Shelton. In spite of this infatuation, Billy tenderly remembers CLAY CURTIS, her benefactor, who has disinterested himself and is living in the Wells home in the poor part of town, working in the Truman factory by day and writing music by night.

The girls, unknown to T. Q. learn that he intends to adopt one of them when the year is over and to gain his affections, a series of intrigues follow which strangely involve not only the girls, but Mrs. Meadows, EDDIE BANNING (Nyda's sweetheart), and the other girls. Billy loses interest in her music and has a breakdown, and goes away for a month.

She believes she has routed Romaine from her heart but on her return finds his spell as poignant as ever. Billy comes back with Nyda, Romaine starts her with the remark: "You haven't a thing in the world to fear from Nyda Lomax."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIV
The first Sunday in June, the newspapers of Lubbock carried page stories which were destined to set the great Curtis department store into a ferment of excitement, jealousy and suspicion.

"Cinderella Girls" off for Europe with T. Q. Curtis was the way one newspaper had put it. The other had said: "Modern Midas and foster daughters off for European jaunt."

The T. Q. Curtis party included the millionaire, Mrs. Meadows and the three girls—Nyda Lomax, Winnie Shelton and Billy Wells. After two weeks of pleasantly frantic shopping in New York they were on board a luxurious seagoing hotel, bound for Liverpool.

In that conference in the library, which T. Q. had in his purpose of outlining his suddenly conceived plan, he had explained his motive in giving them a summer in Europe.

"I feel that all of us need a change, that perhaps there has been too much of the same thing, and I thought I would rather give them a change of scene rather than to have them stay in the city. I want you to be comfortable—and so much comfort in most of our lives. Here you are never allowed to forget that you are Cinderella girls. I want you to have (three) weeks of the best of the best, and your viewpoints, I know, are grinded wryly, that that is an old-fashioned reason for going to Europe, but I have a feeling that if you girls can get away from Colfax, see the world that lies outside learn other valuations, which were given you first by poverty and then by sudden luxury, you will be better able to cope with life after this year is up."

And so they went to Europe. It was a dazzling experience for all of them, but of the three Billy was the only one who had had a previous background of reading and education which fitted her to appreciate it. The three girls were drawn into a sort of armed-truce intimacy during the trip, for T. Q. and Mrs. Meadows (who were with them) became too friendly with other tourists. Their very kindness in strange countries brought them together as nothing else could have done. T. Q. a little lost and ill at ease away from the store, was wistful and gentle. Billy sometimes reproached herself bitterly for not having told him when she had accidentally learned his secret—that he intended to adopt one of three girls when the year of probation was up. But it was too late now to tell him.

There were half a dozen adventures during the summer which threatened melodramatic consequences. On the boat going over, for instance, Billy saw Winnie in the arms of a man who was later exposed as a card sharp. Nyda conducted a hectic affair with a charming, dissolute, young-old Frenchman who after the Curtis party left, made Paris to Vienna, and from Vienna to Naples, but there he suddenly switched his amorous attentions to a fat middle-aged American widow who was reputed to be worth many millions.

Billy herself did not escape the threat of romantic complications, for an apple-cheeked young English man pursued her, in a most gentlemanly but determined fashion, over half of Europe, finally abandoning romance for a more concrete acquaintance in Monte Carlo. Three days after the Curtis party left, Monte Carlo Billy read in a London paper an announcement of his engagement to Liddy Angela Struthers, a tall, honest-eyed, plain girl who had appeared not at all interested in the young Englishman's budding romance with the blue-eyed little American. When she had seen the two together in Paris.

During the course of the European tour, which extended over a period of four months, the millionaire department store owner took a native pleasure in presenting his lovely wards with bits of not too expensive but exquisite jewelry. In Paris he surprised and delighted them with platinum dinner rings, set with their favorite stones; a ruby for Nyda, an emerald for Winnie and a sapphire for Billy. The jewels were neither large nor flashy, but the combined cost ran into thousands of dollars which T. Q. had amassed with so much shrewdness and hard work.

In Rome he added short strands of pearls, well-matched pearls. In Berlin he allowed them to choose any beautiful wrist watches, studded with pin point diamonds and chips of emeralds and sapphires. His pleasure in giving the things almost exceeded the pleasure with which the girls received them.

And all during those enchanted four months the struggle between Nyda and Winnie, each to make herself more indispensable than the other to T. Q.'s happiness, did not abate. The odds from the first had been in Winnie's favor, for he was naturally a cuddler and a little mad, for the role set so poorly on her shoulders. But it was not without a secret feeling of triumph that Billy realized that it was she who had become his real friend. It was Billy whom he chose as his companion for walks and tours of the museums and art galleries, for she was the only one of the three not too indolent or ignorant to take a genuine interest in sight-seeing. And she grew to love him during those hours of comradeship, not tentatively or with much misgiving, but to love him as if indeed he were a friend.

There were bitter quarrels between the three girls, of course, vulgar quarrels during which they hurled recriminations and accusations, for they could never quite forget that they were contestants for a handsome prize. But in the end they were too busy and too excited by their new experiences to spend a great deal of time in quarreling, and no matter how hard they worked to gain marks of his special preference, none of them had been able to break down T. Q.'s rigid impartiality.

The name of Dal Romaine was never mentioned between them, nor by T. Q. Curtis, but Mrs. Meadows spoke of him frequently to Billy, and the girl had the unpleasant conviction that she did not allow the other two girls to forget him either. Billy had agreed with Dal, on parting from him in Colfax, that it would be better if they did not try to write frequently.

"More heartaches and misunderstandings come out of a long-distance correspondence than could ever be explained away," he had told her practically, while his eyes and voice caressed her. "But—I will not let you forget me." And he had kept his word. There were roses and a cablegram from him awaiting her in London, in Paris she received a long, whimsical letter, sparingly but thrillingly studded with terms of endearment. But her joy in it was almost destroyed when she saw an equally bulky envelope, with Winnie's name inscribed on it, in those tiny, printed characters.

In Rome a Hindu, fearfully and wondrously marbled in his native dress, stopped her outside the Vatican one day and introduced himself as an intimate friend of Dal Romaine. With the added explanation that Romaine had instructed him to see her and give her a note from him. The two had tea together. Billy self-consciously aware of the intense interest of a number of American tourists, but enthralled with the tales which the high-caste Hindu told her of Romaine's life in India. The note was a short poem, written in Dal's copperplate characters, in a language which was utterly foreign to the puzzled girl. The Hindu translated it for her, smiling inscrutably into her eyes as he spoke the odd words of love which Dal had dedicated to her.

Billy was reading a long, affectionate letter from Constance Bradley one morning while the party sat at breakfast together on a hotel terrace in Florence. "See all, you really must hurry home, Billy dear. Old Colfax is positively seething with excitement. There is a most marvelous—soothsayer or fortune teller or seer or clairvoyant—whatever you want to call him—who actually knows all, see all, know all, of the vaudeville fortune tellers always claim. He is a thrilling handsome, and mysterious East Indian—by the way, had you noticed that Dal Romaine looks like a Hindu himself?—and he reads crystals with the most amazing accuracy. I'm quite frightened of him, but I keep going back—everyone in our crowd does. The man must be making a fortune. Every one goes to him—even the most conservative old money backs in town. Hurry on home and have your fortune told."

Billy stared at the letter incredulously. This from Constance! Constance who was so wise and cool and remote! Her heart was beating so heavily with a strange, terrifying excitement that it was almost a minute after he had spoken before she realized what T. Q. Curtis had been saying.

"Well, pack your duds, girls. I've got a cablegram from home. The store needs me. When can we be ready to sail, do you think, Mrs. Meadows?" (To be Continued)

Billy learns that Clay Curtis is progressing wonderfully with his music while she is standing still. In the next chapter she calls on the strange fortune teller.

PROMISE DETAILS ON NEW FORD CAR

HENRY FORD WILL GIVE OUT FACTS CONCERNING NEW MODEL AUTO SOON

DALLAS, May 30. (Special)—Complete information concerning the new Ford automobile, announced several days ago through Henry Ford at Detroit, will be available within the next few weeks, officials of the company have promised. The great interest with which the public is anxious to receive details and he will turn all efforts to reach that end.

"The Model T Ford car was a pioneer," said Henry Ford. "There was no conscious public need of motor cars when we first made it. There were few good roads. It car blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads everywhere. It is still the pioneer car in many parts of the world which are just beginning to be motorized. But conditions in this country have so greatly changed that further refinement in motor car construction is now desirable and our new model is a recognition of this."

"Besides the Model T itself, another revolutionary element which the Ford Motor Company introduced twenty years ago was the idea of service. Some of the early manufacturers proceeded on the theory that once they had induced a man to buy a car they had him at their mercy; they charged him the highest possible price for necessary replacements. Our company adopted the opposite theory. We believed that when a man bought one of our cars we should keep it running for him as long as we could and at the lowest possible cost. That was the origin of Ford service."

"The Model T was one of the largest factors in creating the conditions which now make the new model Ford possible. The world-wide influence of the Ford car in the building of good roads and in teaching the people the use and value of mechanical power has been twenty years ago only the advantage of an automobile. It had a harder time winning public confidence than the airplane has now. The Model T was a great educator in this respect. It had stamined and power. It was the car that ran on. It broke down the barriers of distance in local sections, brought people of these sections closer together and placed education within the reach of everyone. We are all still proud of the Model T Ford car. If we were not we could not have continued to manufacture it so long.

"With the new Ford we propose to continue in the light-car field which we created on the same basis of quantity production. We have always worked, giving high quality, low price and constant service. We began work on this new model several years ago. In fact, the idea of a new car has been in my mind much longer than that. But the sale of the Model T continued at such a pace that I have never seemed to be an opportunity to get the new car started. Even now the business is so brisk that we are up against the proposition of keeping the factory going on one model while we tool up for another. I am glad of this because it will not necessitate a total shut-down. Only a comparatively few men will be out at a time while their departments are being toolled up for the new product. At one time it looked as if 70,000 men might be laid off temporarily, but we have now sealed that down to less than 25,000 at a time. The lay-off will be brief, because we need the men and we have no time to waste."

The telephone operator is one of the most interesting persons in the United States," says Colleen, who spent several hours daily for three weeks in a Los Angeles main exchange, practicing for the part.

she plays in the picture. "She must be fast thinking and fast-acting. She must have the disposition of a saint and unlimited self-control. In fact, she must be a very nice and a very unusual person."

A large capacity for trials and tribulation is demanded of the operator in "Orchids and Ermine" by its author, Carey Wilson, and Colleen Moore affirms every demand in her usual effective way. Jack Mulhall heads the supporting cast. Al-Dick-Bartell directed the picture which John McForemch produced for First National.

A Texas director recently amputated a leg by the light of his automobile. Some more reckless motorists have done it without lights.

Daily Market

NEW ORLEANS COTTON New Orleans, May 30.—(A. P.)—The cotton market rose to new high levels for the season today with prices 15 to 17 points above Saturday's close. The main bullish influence was the dry weather over Sunday and private reports of continued drought and low temperatures in west Texas. These levels caused liquidation near the end and the close was steady at net gains for the day of 5 to 11 points.

Liverpool was better than due and opening trades here were 12 to 17 points up. The market continued to advance after the call, October trading to 17 1/2 and December 17 1/2, 15 to 17 points above Saturday's close.

The absence of the weather map and other official weather reports due to the memorial day holiday caused some nervousness near mid-afternoon and the market eased off 11 or 12 points, with July at 16 1/2, October at 15 1/2, and December 17 1/2.

In the afternoon, however, noon reports of the dry weather in west Texas caused buying and prices rallied almost to the highs, but in the late trading the market eased off on liquidation, brought about by the unwillingness as to the response New York may make of the advance tomorrow and prices lost 7 to 9 points, but closed steady at net gains for the day.

Exports for the day totaled 3,572 bales.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK FORT WORTH, May 30. (AP)—Lance cattle receipts today caused trading in that division of the market to be slow. The tone of the market, however, was steady. Hogs were about 5 cents higher and sheep steady to 10 cents lower.

Receipts called for 7,000 grown cattle, 3,000 calves, 1,500 hogs and 2,500 sheep.

COOLIDGE PAYS HIGH HONOR TO AMERICA'S DEAD

WREATH OF LILIES IS PLACED ON TOMB OF THE UNKNOWN

HE URGES PEACE

CITIZENS MUST ABIDE BY LAW TO PRESERVE U. S. DEMOCRACY

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 29.—America's war dead were honored today by President Coolidge on behalf of the nation and with the nation.

As in past years Mr. Coolidge attended the memorial day exercises at Arlington national cemetery given under patronage of the grand army of the republic offering "the affectionate remembrance of honor and acclaim" for the soldier dead of all wars and placing a wreath of lilies on the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Speaks in Amphitheater In the marble amphitheater which was unoccupied from rain threatening clouds overhead the president spoke to the assembled representatives of patriotic organizations, soldiers, sailors, and the armed forces of the United States to the preservation of peace.

Mr. Coolidge pictured the nation in a new position in world affairs and he warned that it should give attention to law observance if it is to maintain this position and its own institutions.

"We can be a model force in the world," he said, "only to the extent that we establish morality in our own country. If we are an industrial, scientific nation, we can neither maintain nor improve our position unless we are an effective influence for good in the world."

Must Abide By Law "We have made our place in the world through the union and we have flourished as a people because of our success in establishing self-government. But all of these results are predicated upon a law-abiding people."

Immediately after the address the president and Mrs. Coolidge accompanied members of the amphitheater to the tomb of the unknown soldier, resting on the hill overlooking the Potomac river and beyond, Washington. Mr. Coolidge placed a wreath of lilies on the marble slab then stepped back and stood for a moment with head uncovered.

Mrs. Coolidge then laid a white rose beside the wreath and with the president stood silently a moment before returning to the capital.

Other Wars Represented In the group also were the representatives of this country's earlier wars and the official representatives of other nations.

TECH'S FIRST GRADUATES GIVEN DEGREES MONDAY

Frank Lockhart, winner of the 1925 event, was going to repeat his victory of a year ago but after leading for 237 miles, he threw a rear wheel and was forced out of the race to the disappointment of the great throng.

around Indianapolis previous to today's race.

Had Luck Dogs Stapp By a strange twist of fate Earl Devore of Los Angeles, an old timer in major league racing, grabbed second place and his prize of $10,000 due to the misfortune of Babe Stapp, who when having second place within his grasp, was forced out of the race with only two laps to go because his motor began to sputter.

Third place went to Tony Calatta of Kansas City, who graduated into the racing business by acting as a riding mechanic to famous drivers. Gotto got $5,000 in cash for himself.

Lockhart Forced Out For a time it appeared as if Lockhart's services were offered to Souders as a relief pilot but Souders promptly decided that he started the race and would finish it. Souders made only two stops at the pits for three minutes, twenty-four seconds, only to take on oil, gasoline and water, and the second time to change tires.

ROAD BOND

Saving Is Shown It was pointed out by the committee, using federal government figures, that with the amount of automobile and truck traffic in the county, the difference in upkeep cost, gasoline and tire costs between paved and dirt roads will pay for the difference.

Federal figures show that all factors included, in trucking it ordinarily costs approximately 12 cents per mile to operate, over dirt roads. On paved roads this cost is reduced to 2 cents per mile, the three cent difference, citizens here could well afford to have the good roads and not pay out more money than they are doing at present.

Various members of the class paid final tributes to the faculty, school and fellow classmates. E. M. Barnett, president of the class, gave a toast to Alma Mater; Mary Dale Buckner to Dean Gordon; H. H. Carroll to President Horn; Kay Ingram to Mr. Dohoney and Neil Camp to the future classes. Just at the close of the meal the members rose and with bowed heads in a moment of silence revered the memory of R. C. Harrison, late faculty member and a man who was dear to the hearts of many of the class.

The first milestone in the history of the school was passed yesterday morning as Dean Gordon conferred the bachelor of arts degree to fourteen members of the class in the first commencement exercises of the college. Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of Oklahoma university, addressed the group speaking on "Qualitative and Quantitative Education." More than 1000 students, townspeople and out-of-town visitors were present at the program which began at 10:30 and closed shortly after 12 o'clock.

Attired in full academic dress and preceded by President Horn and Dr. Bizzell, members of the board, the faculty and class formed an impressive procession into the hall.

Mrs. Mary Dale Buckner, of Lubbock, was awarded the first degree to be given by the college, she having drawn the lucky number prior to the presentation. Clifford R. Jones, of Spur, chairman of the board of directors, made the presentation.

Dean Gordon then conferred the degrees upon the following: Mary Alexander, Lubbock; Elva M. Barnett, Lubbock; Mary Dale Buckner, Lubbock; Edmond W. Camp, Lubbock; Claude S. Denham, Shallowater; La Thayer Green, Lubbock; Esther B. Groves, Lubbock; Annie Wood Howel, Lubbock; Kathleen Ingram, Lubbock; Charles W. Ratliff, Lubbock; Pauline Roach, Clarendon; Devor J. Roberts, Ennis; Lucy Trippett Montgomery, Amarillo; and Mary Hope Westbrook, Sike Springs.

Members of the August class are: Alice Alverson, Lubbock; Rose Beth Bennett, Arlington; H. R. Carroll, Lubbock; Edith Carter, Lubbock; R. T. Groves, Lubbock; Willie Mae Hawthorne, Lubbock; Martin B. LEGION HEARS ACTIVITY REPORT

MANY MATTERS TAKEN UP IN REGULAR MEETING HERE MONDAY NIGHT

Reports on the money sale conducted last Saturday and the Fifth Division convention of the legion the previous Saturday, together with a discussion of the future program of the local post and the disabled men in general occupied the regular meeting of Allen, Third Post of the American Legion here Monday night.

Dr. G. H. Axt, who was in charge of the money sale reported that approximately 2,500 poppies were sold in Lubbock, Slaton and Abernathy last Saturday, and that more than $200 will go from here into the Legion Endowment Fund for care of orphans of war veterans as a result.

The report of the convention revealed that it had been self-sustaining in every respect, and that the legion here paid its way in offering one of the most successful conventions in the history of the organization in the state. It was announced in connection with the disapproval of the disabled men that veterans now carrying disability of less than ten per cent from the government, a re-rating scale will be offered after July 1, this year, if the disability dates for four years standing or over up to the date of re-rating.

A committee was instructed to secure pictures of the two Allen boys for whom the local post is named, both of whom were killed in action in France, to have the pictures framed and properly displayed in the hall. The two boys' brothers, advanced from Lubbock, although they did not live here at the time of enlistment.

The New Orleans weather bureau reported that changes in the water level in Point Coupee parish indicated that the flow from the Atchafalaya was insufficient to maintain flood levels set up in the first two or three days following the break in the dyke. On the opposite side of the Atchafalaya, a dike stretched across the length of the basin. Down Blaine into the Texas basin. Water was rippling steadily along the lower extremities of the dike as if made its final dash to the Gulf of Mexico.

Flood Levels Reducing At the same time drainage of the water into the Atchafalaya basin gradually was reducing the flood levels in the Texas basin where thirteen northeastern Louisiana parishes have been inundated. The fall was slow, however, since the banks in the Mississippi levees at Cabin Tree and Winter Quarters continued to feed water into the northeastern corner of the basin, more the 100 miles north of Baton Rouge.
