J. D. GRAY ATTENDS SEMINAR AT SOUTHWESTERN

J. D. Gray, superintendent of schools, was one of those invited to attend the Fifth Annual Southwestern Seminar and Great Lectures Series at Southwestern University, July 5-7.

The seminar was sponsored jointly by the University and the Department of Religion and Public Education of the Texas Council of Churches.

A grant from the Damforth Foundation in support of the seminar made it possible this year to invite more to participate than in former years.

Gray was invited as the guest of the sponsors, and lodging and meals were furnished on the campus for those who were thus invited. About 50 were invited to the conference—college and secondary school personnel. Gray left here last Friday and returned Sunday night.

MAN RECOVERING FROM INJURIES

Delmar Leon McLean of Corpus Christi is recovering in Kleberg County Hospital in Kingsville from injuries received in a head-on collision Saturday night.

A hospital attendant said McLean had a broken leg and lesser injuries and was responding satisfactorily to treatment.

Texas Highway Patrolman Glenn Krueger said McLean was driving a car which collided with a truck-trailer about 10 miles south of Sarita on Highway 77.

BARRETT FOURNIER, SR. JOINS LOCAL PERCH CLUB

Barrett Fournier, Sr., a regular summer vacationer from San Antonio, has joined the Perch Club.

He fell in L. E. Nelson's basin, fully clothed with a cigarette in his mouth and hat on his head. As he came back to the surface, he made contact with his floating hat and still had the very wet cigarette in his mouth.

His Soreness was a good excuse for not bowling his average the following Friday night in Aransas Pass.

School Board Meeting Short

In one of the shortest meetings in some time, the Aransas County Independent School Board approved bills, attended to routine business and was ready for adjournment about 9:30 p.m.

Supt. J. D. Gray secured approval for installation of two vapor lights between the new junior high school and the administration building. He also informed trustees that the new 72-passenger bus ordered earlier this year had been delivered, and sought permission to sell a 1953 International but now in use. This approval was given.

Gray told the members of the board that two new sections of portable bleachers authorized at the last meeting has been ordered, and would be here for the opening of school. In the meantime, he said, the old bleachers moved from Rockport High School field were being demolished.

He also reported that repair of the gymnasium floor at the present high school was becoming more of a problem than had been suspected previously, and said that architect Lynn Evans and another consultant were being called in on the project as consultants.

Remodeling at the high school and at Rockport Elementary is proceeding according to schedule, Gray said, and the buildings will be in first class shape for the fall term of school.

A preliminary study of the budget is scheduled for July 30.

St. Vincent De Paul Society to Host Quarterly Meeting

Rockport's Sacred Heart Conference of the St. Vincent de Paul Society will be host to the quarterly meeting of the Corpus Christi Particular Council. The meeting will be held next Sunday, July 14. About 50 members are expected to be in attendance.

The Most Rev. Adolph Marx. D. D., J. C. D., Auxiliary of the Diocese of Corpus Christi and Chaplain of Particular Council will celebrate Mass at 7 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church. Following the Mass a breakfast meeting will be held at the Key Allegro Restaurant. The Honorable John D. Wendell, County Judge of Aransas County, will address the meeting, discussing cooperation between local government agencies and private groups interested in social welfare.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society is a group of Catholic men dedicated to the ideal of serving Christ in "the least of His brethren" by rendering material and spiritual assistance to those in need. Usually the local conference is made up of members of one parish, and all members of the parish contribute to the work of the conference through a collection taken each month. The conferences of an area join together to form a particular council so that one conference may aid another and all conferences may coordinate their efforts and meet larger needs.

The Corpus Christi Particular Council operates a Salvage Store and maintains a warehouse to which local conferences may refer the people they serve from which they may requisition clothing, furniture, household items, etc. Both the Salvage Store and the warehouse have facilities for reconditioning articles which are donated.

The Sacred Heart Conference in cooperation with the Sacred Heart Mothers Club operates a Thrift Shop, believing that people would rather purchase things they need at minimal prices rather than have them given to them. Both the men of the St. Vincent de Paul Society and the women of the Mothers Club are grateful to the people of Rockport who have made their Thrift Shop a very successful undertaking.

Navigation District Bonds Sold, Bids Asked On Cove Launching Ramp

The Navigation District, in a special meeting, negotiated the sale of $400,000 in Navigation District bonds to the First Southwest Company of Dallas, Texas. These are the bonds voted earlier this year for various projects, the first of which is construction of a concrete launching ramp at Cove Harbor.

Bids on this will be opened Friday, Aug. 11, at 11a.m.

The work includes the construction of a boat ramp slab, concrete sheet piling, timber bulkhead, timber guard posts, timber fenders, parking area pavement and other miscellaneous items.

Plans, specifications and bidding documents for the work may be obtained on and after Thursday, July 11, from the office of Lockwood, Andrews and Newnam, consulting engineers, Corpus Christi, or at the office of Aransas County Navigation District No. 1 Rockport.

SEWER ISSUE DUE HEARING

Landowners in the Lamar area will have their chance to voice objection to sewage treatment facilities of a resort motel at the Lamar townsite in Aransas County near the Copano Bay causeway.

The Texas Water Pollution Control Board scheduled a public hearing for July 17, at 1:30 p.m. on waste disposal facilities of the Sea-Gun Motel and Marina, owned by the American Liberty Oil Co.

The hearing was scheduled after a number of letters were received expressing fear that waste disposal into the bay might contaminate the water.

Pollution board engineers said that the motel is planning a sewage treatment plant to replace septic tanks previously in use.

Simon G. Michael, of the Rockport School of Fine Arts and Earl Ward returned last Sunday from a trip to South Dakota, where they visited the sculptor, Lincoln Borglum, at his studio for two weeks.

Borglum is now engaged in a gigantic work, a statute of Christ some 175 feet high, to crown one of the granite mountains in that area, where he worked as a young man with his father, the great Gutzon Borglum, and where he completed the vast Black Hills monument after his father's death

Rotary District Governor To Be Here Tuesday

Dr. T. Lawrence White, of Edinburg, governor of district 593 of Rotary International, world-wide service organization, arrives here Tuesday July 16th to visit the local Rotary club, one of the 36 clubs in his district. In addition to addressing Rockport Rotarians at their Ladies' Night Meeting, he will confer with Delmar Hiller, president of Rotary Club of Rockport, and other club officers on Rotary administrative matters and service activities.

Dr. White is Dean, School of Arts and Sciences, Pan American College in Edinberg and is a member and past president of the Rotary club of Edinburg. He was elected a district governor for 1963-64 at Rotary's 54th annual convention in St. Louis, Mo., last June. He is one of 272 district governors responsible for supervising the activities of more than 11,500 Rotary clubs with a total membership of 535,500 Rotarians in 129 countries around the globe.

"The visit of the governor," the president of the local club said, "is a time for examining the effectiveness of what we are doing to achieve Rotary goals in community improvement, in youth work, in raising the standards of our business and professions, and in doing what we can as a Rotary club as individual Rotarians to help further international understanding."

As the governor of this Rotary district, Dr. White supervises the organization of new clubs in his area. Last year, more than 300 new Rotary clubs were organized in 46 countries, with clubs being formed for the first time in the West African country of Sierra Leone.

Before assuming his duties as district governor, Dr. White attended an eight-day meeting at Lake Placid, N.Y., held to assist Rotary governors to meet the duties of their office.

The Rotary Ladies' Night meeting dinner will be held at Key Allegro Island Club at 7:30 p.m.

BARBECUE CHICKEN DINNER AND BAKE SALE PLANNED

The members of the Rockport Church of God are planning a chicken dinner and bake sale combined Saturday, July 13, in the Fellowship Hall, beginning at 11 a.m.

The menu will consist of chicken, potato salad, beans, pickles and onions, bread. There will be homemade pies and cakes to take home for Sunday dinner.

The public is invited. Plates will be sold for $1.25.

Youth, Sponsors Agree On Dance

The Youth Building will remain open and there will be a dance there this Saturday night from 8 p.m. until midnight, pending further developments expected from a meeting to be held next Monday night, July 15, between members of the youth organizations and directors of the Aransas County Sponsors Association.

Young people and students of the area, seriously disturbed over the announcement made two weeks ago by the sponsors that the building would be closed, arranged a special meeting with the directors of the Association, and discussed the problems that had led to closure of the building.

One of the knotty points resolved in the discussion was dresses versus shorts, at least during the summer.

Various young people brought out the point that one reason for lack of attendance at dances and similar functions in the Youth Building was the fact that shorts, etcetera, had been barred. They pointed out that in public dances held elsewhere in this area, there was no such prohibition, and that many young people went to such dances in preference to ones at the Youth Building.

Young people from out of town, they said, came here for the summer without bringing formal clothes with them, and were not always prepared to abide by the rules as laid down.

After considerable discussion the directors of the sponsors association agreed to dispense with these results, provided that the young people use reason in their dress. A motion was adopted that the clause "no shorts" in the rules be eliminated, and that the words "casual clothing" be substituted.

Another point of discussion was

BUCK ARMINTROUT KILLS CORAL SNAKE

Buck Armintrout came in to the Pilot Tuesday morning with a coral snake he had killed that measured 27 inches.

These little, brightly-colored snakes keep turning up from time to time, and are no child's playtoys. The poison that they carry attacks the nerves and can be fatal to anyone bitten. They are cousins to the African and Asiatic cobras.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Cawthon, former residents of San Antonio before moving to Rockport two years ago, are the new owners of Georgia's Package Store. They bought the business from Oscar Lee.

New Community Contest To Help Obtain Industry Announced By CP&L

A new community self-improvement program, designed to help South Texas cities become more effective in attracting new industry, has been announced by Central Power and Light Company.

The long-range program, called "Arm for Industry" will consist of an annual contest to determine the South Texas town most attractive to industry and a comprehensive evaluation of the industrial of each community which participates in the contest.

A$1,000 prize will be presented by CPL each year to the community which is the most attractive to industry.

W. C. Price, CPL Industrial Development Manager, said that the new program is a new approach to industrial development with every assurance of success in providing additional payrolls for participating communities.

He pointed out that the program would help South Texas cities help themselves in the field of industrial development.

In the final analysis, only the citizens of a community can accomplish improvement needed to attract industry. The new plan will help individual cities discover ways in which to become more attractive, he said.

Judging for the contest will be on the basis of statistical information and on-site inspection of the town by members of an impartial judging team. Judges for the annual contest will be the Executive Director of Texas Industrial Commission, the president of the Texas Industrial Development Council and the Executive Director of the Texas Manufacturers Association.

A community's attitude toward industry, availability of sites and raw materials, schools, recreational activities, shopping and transportation facilities, civic pride and the efforts being made to attract new industry are a few of the points that will be considered in choosing the winning community.

Price said the CPL will provide an incentive for communities to add to their natural assets, and make community and municipal improvements in order to become more attractive to industry. By attracting industry, he pointed out, an area can broaden its tax base, increase employment and improve its economy.

The program will focus nationwide attention on the winning communities, and cause industries to investigate the possibilities of location here.

The CPL industrial development manager said that similar programs in other areas have resulted in both community improvement and the attraction of new business and industry.

Booklets describing the new industrial development program in detail are being sent to all South Texas cities served by CPL, Price said.

Rockport Publicity Gets Around Widely In B&PW Magazine

Rockport publicity continues to spread, this time through the magazine "Texas Business and Professional Woman" published by the Texas Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., and going to all members throughout the state.

The July, 1963 number devotes almost half a page to four women from Rockport under the heading of "In County Government" and says:

"Three members of the Rockport B&PW Club hold elective offices and fourth member is a chief office deputy.

"Mrs. Virginia Shivers was elected to the office of sheriff of Aransas County in the November, 1962, general election, defeating eight men to gain the office for the balance of her husband's unexpired term. Sheriff Arley Shivers passed away in October, 1962, and the Aransas County Commissioner's County appointed Mrs. Shivers to the office until the next general election, which was less than a month away. She announced on a write-in ticket and won her office for the next two years. Sheriff Shivers is only the third woman to be elected to the office of sheriff in the State of Texas.

"Mrs. Ettoil Harrist Eller was re-elected in 1962 to the office of County Treasurer, having served in this capacity since her first election in 1950—the first woman to be elected to a county office in Aransas County. Mrs. Eller is a charter member of the Rockport Club and has served in all positions in the club except president.

"Mrs. Margaret Weber has been in the Tax Assessor-Collector's

Bill Crist Once Theater Operator

Bill Crist retired in 1947, after 32 years with the War Department as supervisor of armed forces across the country.

His career as owner and manager of theaters and vaudeville houses kept him around the tops in the entertainment field, and some of the stars still in the big time.

He knew all of them, because they all played when he was manager of the Pantages Theater in San Francisco. Among those he named were Elsie Janis, Sophie Tucker, Fifi Dorsay, Fred Allen and Amos and Andy.

He remembers the day when Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy came to the Pantages. Bergen told Crist and the stage engineer that he wanted a bright head spot light; that he used a lot of facial expressions and wanted the crowd to see them, and that he had never been able to get enough head spot.

Bergen went into his act, and the light was cut down smaller and hotter, and as it was the heat began to melt the vantriloquist's make-up and he finally yelled for them to cut down on the light.

What he didn't know, according to Crist, was that the lights in that particular theater were closer to the stage than most.

Crist was born in Brooklyn, but when seven, moved to Lynchburg, Virginia. After eight years there his family moved to California, where his father operated a machine shop in San Francisco.

He was living in Oakland, across the bay from San Francisco, during the big fire and earthquake of 1906. As a member of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, he helped fight the fire for two days.

He said the department had a small, two-wheeled hose cart and an old horse named Bismarck, and recalls that they had been at the fire only a few hours before the hose was all torn or burned.

There were humorous aspects to the fire, he said. Melted glass and debris, and even the ground, so hot that their shoes would last only a few hours. Then the firemen would find a shoe store, get several pairs which they tied around their necks then go back to fire fighting.

The firemen got one of their biggest scares when looking for shoes. They had located some good ones in a basement store and were looking for the right sizes when someone yelled that the building was going to be dynamited.

Once, Crist said, the firemen watched militiamen called out for police duty as they gave a looter a thorough going over. We were doing almost the same thing, and the only thing that saved us from similar treatment, he said, was our fire hats and badges.

Crist and the other firemen got along all right, but their horse had a rough time. There was no water to be found (all the mains had been ruptured by the quake), and the firemen got along on beer, champaign and wine, but Bismarck, when offered some in a bucket, merely stuck his nose into the liquid and blew suds everywhere.

One meal eaten during the fire is recalled by Crist. The firemen found a grocery store and loaded up on crackers, sardines, bread and other comestibles and went to what was left of the square to eat. There was a huge canvas there covering something, but they went on with their meal until someone happened to roll the canvas back and discovered that it was a shroud for the bodies of people killed by the fire.

"We finished eating that meal somewhere else," he said.

Crist happened to get into the theater business by accident. A younger brother fell while swimming and was paralyzed. While staying with his brother at the hospital, Crist started going to the movies to pass the time. There he became acquainted with the projectionist and spent hours watching him work. One night the projectionist failed to show up and the theater manager asked Crist if he could run the machine. He did.

Crist said he managed to run the thing for three nights before they found out what had happened to the regular man. He had been involved in an automobile accident and was laid up for three months, during which time Crist ran his projectors.

Crist went back to Oakland and, fortified by the experience, finally bought a theater in Barkley. He used one of his sisters as a pianist, another in the box office, and a brother at the door, while Crist himself ran the projector.

That was about the time that theater circuits were forming, and Crist saw the handwriting on the wall and sold out.

He went back to Oakland and got a job with the Turner and Banker System and from there went on to the Pantages in San Francisco. He became manager during World War I, and it was then that a man from the War Department asked him to go to work for the government.

H took the offer and stayed with it 32 years, the last 24 with offices in Dallas.

During World War II he had 286 army theaters to care for, all the way from Pensacola, Fla., to San Luis Obispo, in California. In 1947 he retired, and since then, to use his own words, he has done more physical labor than ever before as a guide on party fishing boats.

The San Patricio and Aransas County 4-H councils will hold a dress revue at Sinton on Saturday, July 13, in the cafeteria of the E. Merle Smith Junior High School. The revue starts at 7:30 p.m.

TOE THE LINE — For these two choir boys, it's the straight and narrow path, as they walk down a Rome street.

CONTROLLING LURES

Spin-fishermen can control the flight of their lures as easily as can bait casters—but with their fore fingers.

When the spinning lure takes off too fast, point your forefinger down and let the outcoiling line slap against it.

After a few casts, your accuracy will improve greatly.

SHOTGUN SLINGS

Sportsmen in the U.S. might well take a tip from hunters in Europe and attach slings to their shotguns.

Slings can be fixed so they are easily carried in the pocket when not needed. Then, should it be necessary to wade streams, travel over rough country, or perform other stunts that call for free hands, sling can be quickly attached.

Such a carrying strap can come in mighty handy for other purposes also.

TO CATCH A MOLE

Anybody who wants to catch a mole (a most peculiar desire), can do so, say the experts. Just dig a hole straight down through the mole's tunnel, wide enough to sink a gallon-size tin bucket.

When the mole makes his usual rounds, being blind he will drop into the bucket and can't get out.

ALCOA REQUESTS BLANKET ENGINEERS PERMITS FOR COPANO, MESQUITE BAYS

Alcoa has requested permits of the U. S. Engineers for work in both Mesquite and Copano Bays.

In Mesquite Bay the work would be done on State Tracts No. 14, 15, 17 and 18 located central to a point approximately 15 miles northeast from Rockport.

In Copano Bay, work will be on State Tracts No. 18, 19, 20, 30, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 107, 108 and 121 all central to a point approximately seven and one-half miles northwest from Rockport.

Alcoa requests amendment of a Department of the Army blanket permit to authorize the erection and maintenance of structures and appurtenances thereto to be used in connection with the drilling of wells at the above locations, for the production of oil, gas or other minerals and for producing, storing or transporting oil gas or other minerals therefrom. The dredging of channels, canals and basins, the placing of shell mats and the installation of pipelines within the area.

The work at a well site would consist of placing a shell mat, sinking a 40 by 170-foot drilling barge, driving six 3-pile clusters and six single piles. Erecting a drilling structure having a maximum top elevation of 162 feet at mean high tide and erecting a protective structure.

Office, heater and separator platforms connected by walkways and having a deck elevation of 15 feet above mean low tide would be erected in the bay and would be in an area approximately 32 by 250 feet.

A pipeline would be placed a maximum of 150 feet from the separator platform to a flare riser. Pipelines would be placed 1½ feet below the bed of the bay except through shell reefs where they would one foot below.

Pipelines would be jetted, plowed, disced or placed by similar methods whereby there would be a minimum displacement of the bed and no spoil deposit would remain. The spoil from channels and basins would be placed in the bay in mounds with the points of discharge at least 1,000 feet apart and would usually have a top elevation of six feet at mean low tide.

DUPLICATE BRIDGE FINNERS NAMED

Winners at duplicate bridge last week were Mrs. Dorothy Meadows and Mrs. Ria Guffin, first; Homer Faber and Mrs. Helen Yeager, second; third, George Dickey and C. C. Crabb.

Duplicate bridge is played each Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Islander Club, on Key Allegro.

Corvair 700 Club Coupe
The hardest part about parking a Corvair is finding a nickel
That may be a slight overstatement, but such jauntiness comes easily when you're a Corvair owner.
And you can usually back it up—as easily as you can back up a Corvair. You'll find yourself doing that occasionally, if only to adjust the brakes—they're self-adjusting. That's all there is to it, and that's a good example of how delightfully easy Corvair is to own, drive and maintain.
But since we began by talking about driving, let's stick with that awhile. A large factor in the fun of driving a Corvair is the location of its engine in the rear. Why the rear? It gives Corvair extra traction on any road surface. It provides a nearly flat floor for more useable interior space. Best of all, it produces steering so light, so responsive, you wonder why no other American-made car thought of it.
Corvair's engine is also air cooled, we might add, which means there's no anti-freeze or water for you to add. Ever.
All that pleasure from something so practical almost makes you think Corvair is unique among American cars. Which isn't surprising, because it is!

SAM HOUSTON STAMP ANNOUNCED

Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough announced this week that the Post Office Department would issue a commemorative postage stamp honoring Sam Houston, the soldier whose deeds are written bold in Texas history.

Houston was first president of the Republic of Texas after he had commanded the Texan army in the battle for independence from Mexico.

The five-cent Houston stamp is one of only four commemoratives honoring men that will be issued this year. Others being honored are Montgomery Blair, Postmaster General under Lincoln; Cordell Hull, Roosevelt's Secretary of State; and John Muir, the naturalist.

Sam Houston is among the most colorful men that a colorful era produced.

He was born near Lexington, Va., March 2, 1793, moved with his family to Tennessee, where he left home to live with the Indians. Chief Oolooteka adopted Sam as his son.

Houston later returner to Tennessee civilization, then moved westward into the area of present-day Arkansas, then into Texas. When Texans fought for independence, Houston was commander in chief of the army that defeated Santa Ana in 1936. He served two terms as president of the Republic of Texas and was a strong advocate for Texas statehood. When Texas entered the Union in 1945 Houston was a first United States Senator of the new state, serving until 1859 when he became Governor of Texas.

In an ironic climax to the Texas hero's career he was deposed as Governor in 1861 because of his loyalty to the Union, when the war flared.

He died in 1863 at Huntsville, Texas.

AUGUST DRAFT CALL FOR 552 TEXANS

Austin.—The quota for Texas draft boards in August calls for 552 men, Col. Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director said Tuesday.

The state's August call of 552 compares with a quota of 349 for July and 187 for June. The August call is the state's share of a national quota of 12,000 men, all for the Army.

Col. Schwartz also announced pre-induction physical and mental examinations for 1,500 men in August.

Local board quotas for the August call already have been figured and sent to the state's 137 local boards.

The August quota will be filled with men who are at least 22 years old on Aug. 1, except volunteers and those legally termed delinquent under the draft law, who may be younger.

All males are required to register under the draft law on their 18th birthday of within five days thereafter.

They don't know what housework is!

Don't blame Grandma for being indignant. She didn't have it so good as today's homemakers. In her day it was true enough that woman's work was never done.

But the modern housewife does her job better and quicker, with lots of time for leisure. She gets a big lift from dependable, economical natural gas and the many marvelous gas appliances.

She cooks the family's meals automatically on a modern gas range. She gets plenty of hot water instantly for laundry, dishes and baths . . . thanks to a gas water heater. A silent gas refrigerator-freezer keeps foods safe and fresh. Gas heating and air conditioning keep her home comfortable all year long.

Natural gas takes the "work" out of Housework.

Only natural gas does so much for so little

History Of James C. Fulton Family Told

The Fulton family, after which the little community just north of Rockport was named, has always been a legendary one, but Colonel George and his wife are comparatively well-known, through many newspaper articles, while his son, James C. Fulton is not, although one of his granddaughters—Mrs. Gladys Gibson, still lives in Rockport.

The following account, taken from a contemporary source, tells of his son. Taken from L. E. Daniell's book, "Personnel of the Texas State Government, with Sketches of Representative Men of Texas," published in Austin, it says:

"James C. Fulton, son of Colonel George W. and Mrs. Harriet G. Fulton, was born in Baltimore, Maryland, the grandson of Governor Henry Smith, on January 2, 1848, and educated in Cincinnati, Ohio, and Covington, Kentucky, making civil engineering a special study. He also served as a machinist until he had mastered that trade. He came to Texas in December, 1868, and located at Live Oak Point. He now (1892) resides in the town of Rockport.

"He established a planning mill there in 1881, and has since been engaged in the manufacture of doors, sash, blinds, etc., and in 1890 added a lumber yard to his mill, His plant is the largest of its kind, save one, in the state.

"Mr. Fulton is a stockholder in, and secretary of the Coleman-Fulton Pasture Company, a stockholder in and President of the Ocean View Hotel Company, and Vice President of the First National Bank of Aransas Pass (Editor's note: As Rockport was renamed Aransas Pass about this time, and as the present town of Aransas Pass wasn't founded until much later, it is probable that the bank referred to was in Rockport. There are old maps showing Rockport when it was named Aransas Pass, and one of these is in the the editor's possession.)

"He is a Royal Arch Mason, and a member of the Knights of Honor and Ancient Order of United Workmen. Mr. Fulton is a Randall Democrat, but, while feeling a lively interest in public affairs, is in no sense of the word a politician and has filled no other office than that of County Commissioner of Aransas County.

"He was united in marriage to Miss Fances Dunlap of Goliad. They have six children: Hattie Smith, George W., James C. Allie, Henry Smith, and Fannie Fulton, aged (at the time of the article,) respectively eighteen, twelve, nine, six, three and one and a half years.

"Mr. Fulton is one of the most enterprising and public spirited citizens of Rockport, and has done his full part in bringing about that tide of prosperity that is now bearing Rockport forward to the position of a thriving city.

"He is polished and courteous in manner, and a gentleman who is liked and admired by a large circle of friends."

Mrs. Gibson, the daughter of A. L. Bruhl and the late Harriet (Hattie) Smith Fulton Bruhl, lives with her father in the home her grandfather purchased from Judge Moses, first county judge of Aransas County. Today it is known as the Bruhl home, and is a familiar sight to people in the area.

James C. (her grandfather) and Mrs. Fulton, (her grandmother) are buried in the family plot in the local cemetery; her uncles, James C., Jr., and Henry Smith Fulton are buried in Corpus Christi, as is one of her aunts, Mrs. Roy V. Olsen (nee Allie Fulton.)

Another aunt, Mrs. James Y. Brown (nee Fannie Fulton) still lives in Corpus Christi, as does an uncle, Alexander Robert Fulton, who was not born when Daniell wrote his article.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mosley and Mrs. Evelyn T. Cloberdants of San Antonio, were guests of Mrs. Mosley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Scott last weekend.

Mrs. Jimmie Frandolig returned Monday after an eight-day visit with her mother, Mrs. A. N. Noles, of Rotan, and other relatives. Mrs. Noles, who has been seriously ill, is improving slowly.

BEER IS A NATURAL
From nature's light grain comes sparkling, light beer . . . Texas' traditional beverage of moderation — it's light, sparkling, delicious.
And naturally, the brewing industry in Texas considers it noteworthy that it contributes more than twenty million dollars to the state in excise taxes each year plus additional millions in licenses and permit fees. Jack McCabe and Sammy Donaldson caught 50 trout and reds up to three pounds.

Mr. Pierson, Houston, caught a nice string of reds and trout; Mr. Barron and party, 19 trout weighing up to 3½ pounds; Rudy and Adolph Kieke, San Antonio, 40 nice trout and reds; Joe Jupe and R. Lock, San Antonio, 25 nice trout; Mr. and Mrs. Warren and grandson Glen, 33 trout, drum and gafftops. John Ferguson and sons, 100 trout.

The Sandollar Good Luck Pier in Fulton has had many fishermen among the tourists this season. Due to the late night hours, it has been impossible to list the catches made, but the clean water has brought in many trout.

Mrs. O. W. McCurdy, Sr., of San Antonio had quite a thrill landing her first salt water fish, a 23 pound drum, which she caught on a crappie hook.

Markus Ploeger and Levis Shows of Yoakum, brought in several trout, a 12 pound drum and a 3½ pound flounder.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Lumpkin and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sivore of Houston, took home three ice boxes of dressed trout and flounder, besides giving many trout away. During their week's stay at Pierce Courts, they had two good days of floundering from the pier—15 in all, with five of them weighing 4 and 5 pounds.

Mrs. Williams and daughter, Cathy of San Antonio, spending a weekend in their trailer home at "The Dunes," had a well filled stringer of 28 trout.

Dave and Cecil Barrow and families of San Antonio and Synder, guests of Sandollar Motel, have spent three days in the bays and gulf and reported 18 kings and 200 trout, caught, the two largest trout weighing 4 pounds.

The women couldn't be much happier over the way the 28th annual Deep Sea Roundup at Port Aransas is progressing.

After the second day of fishing Wednesday, tiny, suntanned Mrs. George (Molly) Hixon held the lead with four sailfish. She got three—yep, three—Wednesday to go with a single fish opening day.

Going into the final day, however, she's just a fish ahead of Mrs. James J. Blakeney of Corpus Christi, who also whipped three sailfish Wednesday.

Another Corpus Christi contestant, this one a man, held third place, but only by a shade.

Clay Caldwell landed his second fish Wednesday on 12-pound class line to beat out, on points only, Mrs. Kyle Vick Jr., of Rockport. Mrs. Vick used 20-pound class line and the point system gives greater points for lesser line. Each has two fish.

The second day was sailfish-mad. There were 23 boated and lots and lots of them lost. And kingfish were bothersome for many fishermen. There was one tarpon—the first in two years—and there were shark and ling and bonito and wahoo.

Norman Howard, who started his tarpon fishing from the pier and jetties and now works from an outboard, landed the only tarpon.

office of Aransas County since 1950, serving as a deputy until she was elected Tax Assessor-Collector in 1960, when the tax office was separated from the sheriff's office. She defeated two opponents, both men, to win her office without a run-off in the Democratic primary of 1960; was sworn into office in January, 1961, and has two more years yet to serve of a four-year term. Mrs. Weber is a charter member of the Rockport club and has served as corresponding secretary and recording secretary.

"Mrs. Ruby Hart is chief deputy in the District-County Clerk's office, having served under three clerks, starting in 1949 under the late James Clark Herring, and also serving under Mrs. James C. Herring as she served out her husband's unexpired term. Mrs. Herring is also a member of the Rockport club. Mrs. Hart has served in various offices in the Rockport club, including two years as president, and has been the club's delegate to several state conventions."

Elsewhere in the same publication, under the heading "Rockport Honors Charter Member," the magazine says:

"May 5th was celebrated as Katie Lee Clarke Day by the Rockport club as a special salute to the club's charter member, Miss Katie Lee Clarke, who has just completed her 50th year of teaching and is retiring from the teaching profession."

Fort Ewell Guarded Nueces Crossing

In a remote pasture, between Cotulla and Freer, close to the Nueces River, stands all that is left of one of the earliest and most colorful military posts—old Fort Ewell—which guarded the stage road between San Antonio and Laredo.

"El Fortin," the Coquat ranch vaqueros call the spot which is marked with a stone placed there during Texas' centennial year, and Bob Coquat, on whose place the marker stands, has circled it with barbed wire to keep cattle from rubbing it down.

Besides it, leading from the old ford on the Nueces towards the border, are the remains of the road over which the mail coaches rumbled. And, somewhere in the surrounding prickly pear, are the unmarked graves of the post cemetery.

Yet, time was when Fort Ewell was spic and span. For two years, between 1852 and 1854, it was garrisoned with three companies of mounted riflemen, commanded by Captian and Brevet Major J. S. Simonson, who has been breveted major for gallantry at Chapultepec and brigadier general for long and faithful service in the army.

It was not a post which men sought. General Dabney Herndon Maury, while yet a lieutenant, was serving at Fort Inge, and in his memoirs said:

"In the course of a few months, I was promoted to be first lieutenant of B Company, then stationed at Fort Ewell, the most unhealthy and comfortless of all our frontier posts."

The post was on an elevated site surrounded by a salt flat. When Colonel W. G. Freeman inspected the place, a year after it was founded, there were a commissary warehouse, a blacksmith shop, and two sets of adobe quarters for some of the men, all erected by the labor of the troops.

The warehouse and blacksmith shop were covered with canvas; one set of company quarters, used as a quartermaster's storehouse, was shingled, and the other building stood open to the weather for lack of roofing material.

However, their arms were in good condition; Company E had a hunting knife not furnished to the other two, but all of the troopers had rifles. Only forty Colts were provided for a company; this did not give one per man. The rifle could not be loaded without dismounting nor fired with accuracy from the saddle. It was desirable, Freeman said, that a gun possessing the qualities attributed to "Sharp's" carbine, should be substituted for this cumbrous arm.

Supplies came from Corpus Christi and San Antonio. Corn was 80 cents a bushel; hay was between $25 and $30 a ton. The post required from 2500 to 3000 bushels of corn and about 75,000 pounds of hay a month.

Freeman didn't like the post. He said: "I had an opportunity of judging personally of its discomforts, for a rainstorm of a few hours' happening to come on at the time of my inspection detained me there nearly five days, and even then I was compelled to swim my animals to get away. The country was flooded for twenty miles in every direction, and so rapid was the rise of the waters that the herders who were out with the troop horses saved themselves and their animals with some difficulty, and one or two horses were drowned."

Frank Dobie says that before "bob wire played hell with Texas," a rough bunch of Mexicans hung around El Fortin which the military abandoned in 1854. When they were not stealing horses or waylaying travelers, they occasionally looked for a legendary iron safe, that Comanches once took from a carreta and dragged out into the tall sacahuisue grass.

No buried treasure legends are connected with old Fort Ewell itself, but down the river a little ways, on Los Olmos, stands Estambel Hill, and Peg Leg Tumlinson, who used to live around Fort Ewell, once had a map, given him by an old Mexican don, pointing the way to one burro load of gold.

Fort Ewell itself became a stage stand, a county seat, and a post office. And, while O. Henry was at the Dull Ranch, fifteen miles away, he used to ride in for his mail at Fort Ewell. From those rides, and from his ranching associations in the area, came the framework of a number of stories of the Nueces country.

"But," says Dobie, "long ago the stage stopped running, the storekeeper and his post office moved away, the wooden bridge across the Nueces rotted down, and the road became a cow trail."

The first court house ever to be built in La Salle County stood near the site of the monument. A wooden building, it was later moved across the river to the Rancho de la Mota; today Fort Ewell is merely a cleared space in the South Texas brush where memories cluster about a monument and an abandoned cemetery.

Editorial

What this country needs is an ombudsman, a built-in, constitutional watchdog who protects citizens against officialdom—a kind of national complaint department who watches the bureaucrats to be sure they don't ride roughshod over the taxpayer.

Sweden, which invented the office 150 years ago to protect the common man against the throne, has two of them that are proving their worth time and again against the newest rulers of that country—the government employee.

With the growth of bureaucracies and welfare states, the idea has been copied by others. Finland voted one oikeusasiamies (Finnish word for ombudsman) to power in 1920; Denmark chose one in 1955; the one in Norway came into being in 1962.

Usually a former lawyer, college professor, or both, or a judge with neither a political or financial ax to grind, the total cost of the office in these countries has been around $100,000 annually.

The watcher of this watchdog of public interest is, of course, the newspapers. But officially, it is the parliaments of the countries in question that chose the ombudsman for a four-year term, and to which he makes a detailed annual report.

This report is a statement of what the people don't like about their government, together with recommendations for new laws or changes in old ones to eliminate the causes of complaint.

The ombudsman receives the complaints of distressed or angry people and investigates them carefully. If he decides they have a case, they get quick action. He has enormous power. He can seize government files, call anyone in the country on to the carpet—even the prime ministers in Denmark and Sweden—and prosecute to obtain the punishment of any official guilty of wrong doing. In Finland, over the years, four cabinet ministers have been penalized by the ombudsman.

Although he cannot reverse court decisions, in Sweden and Finland the ombudsman can find fault with a judge and bring suit against him. The effect of such action is usually a new trial for the individual. In the past 18 years, some 18 judges have been prosecuted by the Swedish ombudsman. One was fined $1,000 for calling a witness a liar, and for saying to another witness that she looked like a girl of loose morals.

In the final analysis, the power of the ombudsman rests with the public, which, thanks to faithful press coverage, knows from day to day what he is doing. If he reprimands a post office clerk for being rude or a policeman for being tough to a citizen, the newspapers publish the rebuke and the readers cheer. The ombudsman is their man, the people feel—their inside track for getting to and fighting the powers that impose upon them if not checked.

The ombudsman has struck many a blow in behalf of the average citizen. One prosecuted a doctor who refused—in a land of nationalized medicine—to go to a sick man, and a policeman who high-handedly forbade a taxi driver to pick up fares at the railroad station. And not long ago another reprimanded Civil Service authorities for having dismissed a woman because she had become pregnant. That, said the ombudsman, was well within her rights, and, what is more, she was entitled to time off and compensation while she had her baby. Furthermore, they should cease asking improper personal questions of candidates for jobs, this being an infringement of their right to privacy.

The ombudsman's work has begun to arouse interest in other countries. West Germany has already set up an office to deal with military matters only. Recently in Great Britain a report was presented to Parliament on the possibility of setting up a Parliamentary Commissioner's office to serve along similar lines. The first of the British countries to plan specifically to appoint an ombudsman was New Zealand, in 1961. Its interest in the idea was sparked in 1959 by the New Zealand Minister of Justice, Josia Hanan, who had heard Danish ombudsman Hurwitz read a paper on the subject at a United Nations seminar in Ceylon.

Small wonder that such interest is spreading. For the office of ombudsman affords individual citizens everywhere a kind of personalized representation in, and protection against, the vast impersonal force of 20th Century government.

the frequency and kind of dances to be held.

Most of those present agreed that they much preferred a live orchestra to a record hop, and felt that such an orchestra would be supported. Many of those who took part in the discussion took the stand that members of the group had been going to public dances where the admission was considerably higher than at the Youth Building because of this. It was explained that one reason for the lack of such dances had been the lack of attendance.

Charles Vermillion, president of the sponsors association, told the students that for the three months prior to closure of the building, attendance at the dances had not been enough to pay running expenses of the building, let alone pay for an orchestra.

However, the students voted to try a dance this Saturday night with "The Clues" furnishing the music, and with admission set at $1 a head, pending the meeting called for next week, at which a larger attendance is expected.

The directors attendant at the meeting made it perfectly plain that as far as they were concerned, they hoped the young people themselves would take over the operation and financing of the Youth Building. The directors said they felt that this was necessary in order for the teenagers themselves to get the most out of the set-up, and to learn to meet their responsibilities.

Evidently the statement that the building would be closed caused some of the young people of the community to realize that they would have to do something themselves if the facility was to be kept open, for there were 30 or more there to take part in the meeting.

Other matters discussed during the evening, but put off until Monday, was a change of name for the building and young people's group, increased participation by junior high members, cost of the patio back of the building, debt still owing on this, which amounted to $567.23, the requirement in the rules that members sign in and out, age of those attending, and frequency and kind of dances to be held.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Benitez of Aransas Pass and the groom is the son of Mrs. Trinidad Garcia of Rockport.

The double ring vows were read by the Rev. Thomas Meany before an altar decorated with white gladioli and carnations.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Chantilly lace and white nylon organza. The fitted bodice was styled with a square scalloped neckline accented with seed pearls. The long lace sleeves came to points at the hands. The white nylon organza and lace skirt fell to a chapel length train with a full, pickup over skirt caught with hand-made lace roses.

A pearl and crystal crown held her veil of English illusion which was edged with lace.

Her cascade bouquet of pearls and crystals was tied with white silk ribbon and love knots.

Miss Ceclia Benitez was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Viola Benitez, Miss Maria Meza, Miss Sophia Davila, Miss Dolores Melancon, Mrs. Marie Elena Rodriguez, Mrs. Juan Lopez of San Antonio, Mrs. Pedro Esquivel and Mrs. Ramon DeLeon. Martin Pena Jr. or Rockport served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Angel Rangel, Joe Ruiz, Jr., Johnny Rodriguez, David Pena of Rockport, Hilario Flores, Juan Lopez of San Antonio, Pedro Esquivel and Roman DeLeon. Ringbearer was Bart Greer of Rockport.

For her daughter's wedding the bride's mother chose beige dress with matching accessories and the groom's mother chose a dress of white with white accessories. Both wore white carnation corsages.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Flamingo Club with a wedding dance following that night.

The bride's table was skirted in white net over white taffeta with pink hand-made roses in the drapes of net around the table.

Following a wedding trip to Mexico, the couple will live at Fort Hood where the groom is stationed with the U. S. Army.
