It was announced at the sale that young Farley had undergone a third operation earlier in the day and that his condition still was critical. His father through Earl Gartin, auctioneer, later sent word that he and his family appreciated the spirit shown by buyers in purchasing the animal.

Complete list of sales of calves, pigs and hams will appear in the Sunday Avalanche-Journal.

Southwestern Livestock Commission company, Los Angeles, bought H. V. Brown's reserve champion for 20 cents, for Hilton hotel and Lubbock hotel.

President Likely To Have Rail Dispute On His Hands

WASHINGTON, March 30. (AP) — President Roosevelt is likely to have the railroad wage controversy back on his hands when he returns from his Easter vacation.

Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of transportation, announced today that while the differences between the carriers and the union workers were not irreconcilable, he was unable to settle the dispute "as long as there is possibility of appeal to higher authority."

Firms With Voided Contracts Are Ruled Out

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 30. (AP) — Moving back toward private transportation of the airmail, the postoffice department today invited bids for temporary airmail contracts over 21 routes covering 1,800 miles.

Reiterating that companies whose contracts were annulled could not bid and that such companies as were represented at the 1930 conference must expel those who represented them at that gathering, Postmaster General Farley's advertisement reestablished the 45 cent maximum rate of pay per airplane mile which operated prior to the cancellation. The maximum range is from 41 to 45 cents.

Requirements Liberal

Requirements for passenger equipment are more liberal than formerly. Under the old plan exact seating arrangement and other requirements were often included, but now the phrase "passenger equipment" is the most stringent used. The minimum speed provision now is 110 miles an hour as contrasted with the 100-mile an hour provision formerly laid down.

The bids are returnable April 19 and are to be opened at noon on April 20. The twenty-one routes for which bids were asked include the fifteen announced earlier in the week and two additional. Some of the fifteen were broken up for bidding purposes.

Two Extra Routes

The two extra routes announced today were:

Chicago to New Orleans via Peoria and Springfield, Ill., St. Louis, Memphis and Jackson, Miss., approximately 920 miles; and a 201 mile route from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Pueblo, Colo., via Denver and Colorado Springs.

The department also announced that four additional temporary routes are under consideration. These would run as follows: Fargo, N. D., to Seattle, via Jamestown, Bismarck, Mandan and Dickinson, N. D., Glendive, Miles City, Billings, Butte and Missoula, Montana; Spokane and Wenatchee, Washington, approximately 1,286 miles; Fort Worth, Texas, to Los Angeles, Cal., running through Abilene, Big Spring and El Paso, Texas; Douglas, Tucson and Phoenix, Arizona, approximately 1,328 miles; Detroit to Milwaukee, by way of Lansing, Grand Rapids and Muskegon, Mich., around 257 miles; Newark, N. J., to Chicago, through Buffalo, N. Y., Detroit, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Battle Creek and Kalamazoo, Mich., and South Bend, Indiana, approximately 794 miles.

Plans For Revamping Senate Amendments Are To Be Made

WASHINGTON, March 30. (AP) — House advocates of the Bankhead compulsory cotton control bill today considered plans for revamping senate amendments.

A decision was made by the cotton group to insist the bill be sent to conference early next week in the hope that an adjustment can be reached between house and senate conferees.

As Chairman Jones (D-Tex.) began a study of the senate changes, which he said virtually wrecked the bill, there was talk about asking President Roosevelt to use his influence in getting senate Democratic opponents in line.

Net Closes On Insull; Arrest Looms Quickly

Turkish Government Believes It Can Legally Turn Former Chicago Man Over To United States Authorities

Fugitive Guarded

Insull Reported To Have Attempted Suicide By Trying To Jump Into The Bosphorus; Orders Awaited

(By The Associated Press)

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 30. — The announcement that the Turkish government believes it can legally turn Samuel Insull over to American authorities brought to a climax tonight the 74-year-old fugitive's long battle against extradition to the United States.

Insull himself, weary and sick from court fights in Greece and a subsequent dash toward the Black Sea, was reported to have attempted suicide by trying to jump into the Bosporous. He was placed under a heavy guard.

Arrest Is Possible

The government, acting on an American request for the arrest of the former Chicago utilities operator, decided his case comes under a provision of the penal code making possible his arrest for American authorities.

The final scenes in the Insull drama were scheduled for tomorrow:

First, his removal from the Greek tramp steamer Maiotis, which brought him here two days ago after his flight from Greece, to a hotel under a heavy guard of officers.

Has Legal Right

Second, verification by the Istanbul penal court that accusations against him are neither political nor military, and that the Turkish government therefore has a legal right to turn him over to American authorities.

Third, the Turkish government's exercise of that right.

The Maiotis was given the freedom of Istanbul harbor—this change from a transit status making it easier for the Turkish government to exercise jurisdiction — and the former Chicago utilities operator was held a virtual prisoner while his extradition to the United States was considered.

Order Expected

Orders from Ankara, the capital, for his actual arrest or for the release of his vessel, the Maiotis, were expected hourly.

American Ambassador Robert P. Skinner, on instructions from Washington, asked Turkey to seize Insull. The cabinet debated the request last night and a meeting of the Turkish national council was called for tomorrow.

In the meantime documents were awaited from the United States.

A desire for fresh vegetables and other provisions may have led Insull into the trap. Fearing scurvy, the former Chicagoan was said to

Taxes And Tariffs Given Preference By Congress; Other Measures On List

Bunny Gets Mad And Chases Dog

FERNDALE, Wash., March 30 (AP)—If a rabbit chases a dog, that's news.

Friends of Walter Powell, rancher, today told about the rabbit that chases his dog. It seems, they said, that the shepherd pup and the rabbit often drink at the same spring, then apparently become angry. The rabbit nips the young dog on the leg, then tries to bite his nose. Yipping and howling, the dog runs for a hole, with the rabbit in pursuit. The dog stays holed up until the bunny leaves.

Record For Progress Said Unequalled By Other Sessions

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 30. — The twin trouble-makers — taxes and tariffs were marked for "preferential" consideration today by work-worn congressional leaders as they looked over the unfinished business of what many regard as the most productive session in years.

Two dozen major bills behind them—14 of them already on the statute books—senate leaders pronounced the record to date unequalled and counted at least half a dozen other big bills in the "passed" column in the six weeks remaining before their tentative adjournment date. The senate takes up taxes Monday while the house considers sugar control legislation. The tariff comes next in the senate.

Measures Listed

Without definitely guaranteeing ultimate approval, Democratic chieftains pencilled the following measures as most likely to get through before the "sine die" gavel falls:

The $330,000,000 revenue bill to be taken up by the senate Monday; already passed the house.

The reciprocal tariff measure to be considered by the senate finance committee in about 10 days; passed the house.

The modified stock market regulation bill still before house and senate committees.

Relief Bills Up

Municipal and corporation bankruptcy relief bills now in senate; both passed by house.

The communications commision bill with probably slight additional authority over cable, radio, telephone and telegraph as now held by interstate commerce and radio commisions.

Federal reserve or government loans to industry, before senate and house committees.

Permanent air mail legislation.

Bonus To Be Left

Bills checked by leaders as most likely to be knocking at the door at adjournment include the cash or any other kind of soldiers' bonus payment, the more so now because the veterans have won a signal victory over the president in another direction; the Copeland food-drug-cosmetics bill, the world court, sil-

Increases For Wage Earners Are Promised

U. S. Steel And General Electric Join Trend To Higher Salaries; Thousands Are To Be Affected

(By The Associated Press)

Wage increases of 10 per cent for 140,000 employes of the United States Steel corporation and for between 30,000 and 40,000 employes of the General Electric company, announced yesterday, brought to at least 400,000 the number of workers who have been promised such pay boosts within the last four days.

Industrial leaders estimate the increases—adding to the buying power of the employes involved—will approximate roughly $4,000,000 a month. They will be effective April 1.

100 Per Cent Represented

About 90 per cent of the 400,000 workmen to benefit are employes of the steel industry, which unless a few of the smallest companies have been missed, is 100 per cent represented in the increase. One company, the Alan Wood Steel Co., of Conshohocken, Pa., went beyond the 10 per cent, and declared a boost of nearly 17 per cent.

General Electric's increase affects all employes on hourly rates of pay and all salaries of $2,600 a year or less.

The Bethlehem Steel corporation, second largest in the industry, announced the wage boost for its 60,000 employes last Wednesday. The Republic Steel corporation, third

Investigation Of Tragedy At Longview Is To Start

LONGVIEW, March 30. (AP) — Statements of Fire Chief L. A. Mackey that the $250,000 Longview hotel, in which three persons lost their lives, 19 were injured and five still were missing after a disastrous fire last night, was "little more than a fire trap," tonight spurred officials to an investigation of the tragedy.

District Judge W. C. Hurst ordered the Gregg county grand jury to begin an inquiry Monday and the Longview fire commision will begin an investigation tomorrow. It will seek to determine if the building had enough fire escapes.

Demos Plan Small Party But Decide They Might As Well Pull Good One

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 30.— The largest gathering of Democrats in Washington since the 1932 Jackson Day banquet will sit around the festive board at the Willard hotel tomorrow night and above them will be a figurative sign:

"Politics barred between soup and demitasse."

After that, it's anybody's guess what they will talk about. Newspapermen were not invited.

The invitation committee was Vice President Garner, who may or may not be there, depending on the turn of a slight fever he had today; Speaker Rainey, and Senators Robinson of Arkansas, Pittman of Nevada and Tydings of Maryland.

It started out to be a little party of 100. The guest list has now grown to 260. Who will be there will not be disclosed until tomorrow night just before the banquet.

All members of the cabinet are certain to be participants.

The party's presidential candidates of 1928, 1924, and 1920—Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis and James M. Cox were invited.

"There is no political significance at all in the dinner," Senator Tydings said today.

He was the third gubernatorial office seeker here this year.

Mr. Russell, uncle of Mrs. John D. Mitchell, 1901-B Twenty-Fourth street, left Friday afternoon for Plainview, where he will campaign before returning to his home.

"I would like to bring to the office of governor of this state that dignity, respect, and esteem that it deserves and must have for Texas and its people to maintain progress in the march of time," the candidate declared.

Opposed To Repeal

He said he was "unalterably opposed to the repeal of the prohibition amendment of our state constitution." He also opposes submission of the repeal question.

Support of the national government in dealing with the agriculture and unemployment questions was promised, a 50 per cent reduction of ad valorem taxes favored, and he suggested drafting of a new constitution and submitting it to the people for their consideration.

Civil Works Ended Friday

Million And A Half Persons Quit Work But Majority Of Them Will Report On Monday As Usual

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 30. — A million and a half persons laid down picks and shovels today to bring to an end the civil works administration.

For several weeks something like 300,000 persons will be employed in winding up the activities of the organization that was built up almost overnight to put four million persons to work to help tide them over the winter.

Close Before May 1

Those still employed will be clerks, auditors and research workers on projects which must be completed but Harry Hopkins, the relief administrator, said they must finish their task before May 1.

Hopkins said the civil works program turned loose approximately $1,000,000,000 in cash that reached into every county. The federal government supplied about $600,000,000 and states, counties and local communities the remainder. Of the total about $750,000,000 went in wages to the workers.

Report For Work

Despite demobilization of civil works, the million and a half discharged workers, in most instances, will report for work Monday as usual. Their status, however, will be changed. Instead of working on jobs for wages, without investigation by social service workers they will have the status of workers on relief rolls.

Each will be investigated and his earnings limited to actual budgetary needs. If he needs less than 54 hours work monthly, he will be put on direct relief rolls, if more he will be allowed to work up to 24 hours weekly for the prevailing wage in his community but not less than 30 cents an hour.

Days Of Wild West Echo In Hotel Slaying

Gun Fight Staged On Eighth Floor Of Amarillo Hotel On Friday; Follows A Quarrel Over Cattle Deal

Threats Are Told

Man Is Shot Down With His Own Gun; Door Is Riddled By Bullets; Three Of Slugs Crash Into Busy Street

(By The Associated Press)

AMARILLO, Mar. 30.—Wild west days of the cow country echoed here today in a gun duel which left Gerald Knapp, 28, of Dixon, Ill., dead, and W. S. Cline, 39, of Omaha, Neb., critically wounded.

The gun fight, which took place on the eighth floor of the Amarillo hotel—headquarters for cattlemen for more than a quarter-century—was the culmination of a dispute over a cattle deal.

Shot With Own Gun

Knapp, who came to Amarillo three weeks ago on his honeymoon, was shot down with his own gun, according to a statement the wounded man made to Chief of Police W. R. McDowell. The gun, Cline said, had been taken away from Knapp by friends when the argument started.

"I'm coming back and kill you," Cline said Knapp declared as he stormed from the room. "I'll get another gun."

Cline said Knapp returned a short time later and stepped into the room shooting. Cline told McDowell he then seized the gun which had been taken from Knapp a few minutes before and returned the fire. Cline was alone at the time, and there were no witnesses.

Door Bullet-Riddled

The door to Cline's room was bullet-riddled, and the room and the corridor outside showed bullet marks. Three bullets pierced the screen of an open window and crashed down into busy Polk street.

Hotel guests said the shots were fired with machine gun rapidity. Both of the guns were automatics, one a 32 and the other of .380 caliber.

Mrs. Knapp, who said she and Knapp were married at Rockford, Ill., March 3, knew of no former trouble between the men. She met Cline for the first time last night. She was havnig a dress fitted in a downtown shop when notified of her husband's death. The pretty, youthful bride said she heard cursing when she passed the room shortly after noon. Several men were in the room then.

"When I started down town again about 3 p. m., my husband crossed the street behind me and waved," Mrs. Knapp said. "That was the last time I saw him alive."

Cline said he authorized Knapp

Awards Given At Court Of Honor

Seventy-four awards went to Boy Scouts and leaders at a March court of honor in the courthouse last night.

Troop 2 again won both the attendance and the mothers' attendance contests. Troop 4 topped the court of honor ladder and led in the total number of merit badges received in 1934.

A new organization, troop 13, made an unusual showing by winning second place in general attendance, fourth on the court of honor ladder, and the same place in mothers' attendance.

Troop 6 was second and troop 8 third on the ladder. Troop 6 was third and troop 8 fourth in attendance, while No. 4 was second and No. 4 third in mothers' attendance.

Troop 4 won a fire-by-flint-and-steel contest over members of troop 7. Troop 4 was only four merit badges ahead of troop 8 in that contest.

From The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE BEAN WILSON
Avalanche-Journal Woman's Editor

THERE may have been something significant in that list of badges awarded to Girl Scouts the other evening at a court of awards. For in all the list only one girl received a needlewoman's badge. Comparatively few, too, received the cook's badge.

One might, without much effort, decide that these girls are much more interested in outdoor pursuits than they are in the traditionally domestic ones. One might even justify the number who received cooking badges by remembering that it is a part of a camper's business to know how to prepare meals while he is away from home.

Of course, girls may believe that they can learn cooking and sewing and housekeeping from their mothers and that these other things — camp craft, first aid, driving cars, riding bicycles and nature study — are more important to them as Girl Scouts. Laymen such as I associate Scouting with outdoor activities anyway, even though there are badges and awards for all of those things domestic.

There are plenty of arguments for the viewpoint that one may hold, yet there is the possibility that there is something significant in that lone badge to a needlewoman — a sort of sign in woman's progress.

CAN BE DONE

GETTING a job has been one of the big problems during the last few years, yet from Mrs. Jouett Shouse, who has helped to establish the only clearing house in the country for information on professional opportunities for women, there comes the statement that it is not impossible for the intelligent college woman to find a job if she really wants one.

This clearing house is the institute of women's professional relations, a privately endowed research group which has headquarters at women's college of the University of North Carolina. Mrs. Shouse helped in establishing it and now aids in directing it.

And here's the kernel of her remarks. She thinks first that a young woman seeking a job must know exactly what she wants and that it is equally important that she have the proper appearance and a professional attitude.

A lot of schooling apparently does little good but it will have to be proved to this column that an education isn't a great help both in giving one an idea of what he wants to do and in providing this very necessary professional attitude.

And, as to the appearance, that is another thing that just about places a woman. You don't have to wear stiffly tailored suits and starched shirt waists to look like a professional woman these days, thank goodness, but you do need to know something about what is good taste and what is bad in the business world. Every few days one picks up a magazine or a book or a newspaper in which advice is offered to business women and prospective business women on how to dress, how to handle telephone calls, what to say and what to leave unsaid in an office, how to meet the customers and a thousand and one other such things.

The girl who is job hunting may think these things are of little importance and that if she combs her hair and polishes her nails and wears her party dress she is sure to make a hit with some hard headed business man. Some times she will get a job but until she learns that there is such a thing as professional attitude and correct appearance and behavior she isn't likely to even look in on success.

It is good to know that there are people who still think one can get a job if she tries and it is encouraging to know that she thinks these qualities—knowing what you want, how to appear and act—are the important things.

This column still thinks one's appearance just about determines whether she shall spend her life answering the telephone behind a switchboard or get a chance at being private secretary to the head of a concern.

Appearance is such a subtle thing. Some women seem to be born with a sense of fitness in clothing. They can, with the least effort and expense, always appear to be appropriately clothed for the occasion. While some others can spend a lifetime and a fortune and yet never appear as they should. However, there is the consolation that some study and effort will give almost any of us a fair appearance.

Marian Martin Pattern

PATTERN 9689

It's remarkable what a skilfully designed cape frock will do for the woman of more generous proportions. Her figure will appear more gracious and slender, as can be seen by the lovely model sketched today. The cape is large, and flares softly over a full bust and stout arms. The bodice and simple skirt offer a slender effect through the waistline and hips—and notice how the back skirt is varied for added interest. An effective model in print or monotone —in voile, chiffon, a sheer cotton, lace or silk. Use lace or a dainty bit of net for vestee.

Pattern 9689 may be ordered only on sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards 39 inch fabric and 1-6 yard 7 inch lace.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Order your copy of the new Marian Martin spring pattern book—a practical Spring sewing guide, offering stunning models for all occasions for grown-ups, juniors and youngsters, and for the woman who needs slenderizing lines. Price of new book, fifteen cents, book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

The Risen Christ

Text: John 20:1-16

International Uniform Sunday School Lesson For April 1

By Wm. E. Gilroy, D. D., Editor Of The Congregationalist

THE story of the resurrection of Jesus is told by different writers and in different ways. Some have seen in these different narratives conflicting evidence, and they have made the differences a basis of doubt.

It is not much more reasonable to say that it is these very differences that destroy all idea of collusion, all notion that the disciples were making up "cunningly devised fables," and were agreed about telling the same thing?

What we have in these resurrection stories is the simplest narratives as they came out of the experiences of the disciples and as they developed in the early church.

The resurrection of Jesus would not be a miracle, if we could explain it, and if we knew all about it. The one great clear fact that does stand out is that, at the very hour of the disciples' deepest gloom, when with great reluctance they were turning back to their homes and to their old lives, the disappointed followers of a sublime hope that they were reluctant to give up, there came to them the clear assurance that Jesus was not dead, but was living.

WITH that conviction, there was the revival of their faith that quickened them into newness of living and sent them forth with a new power to establish the Christian Church and to build upon the great foundation of Christ himself the power and influences of Christianity.

Who that reads these narratives, and that considers all that these experiences had to do with the founding of the Christian religion, can doubt the reality of the experience? It is not ours to explain, but we are brought face to face with these mystic, spiritual experiences in which the disciples had a clear vision of their risen Lord.

The most beautiful of all the narratives is that concerning Mary Magdalene, coming early in the morning, while it was yet dark, to the sepulchre where Jesus was burnled, and finding the stone rolled away. Mary had come, apparently, rather in love and in loyalty than with any clear faith that she would find things changed.

WHEN she found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre, instead of waiting, she came running to Simon Peter and to the "other disciple whom Jesus loved," probably John himself, making known to them her amazing discovery.

Peter and John immediately ran to the sepulchre, but even zealous Peter was outdistanced by the loving John, who arrived first. John looked in, but did not enter the tomb. Impulsive Peter went all the way, and discovered that the body of Jesus was gone.

The disciples went to their homes. We wonder with what thoughts in their hearts. But Mary, still mystified, still with her love and loyalty, rather than with any clear hope, stood outside of the sepulchre weeping. It was then that she had the vision of the two angels and, turning from the tomb, saw Jesus standing there, though she knew not that it was Jesus.

Why did she not know him? Was it still somewhat dark, and because of the darkness that she did not recognize him? She supposed that he was the gardener, and that perhaps he knew where the body had been taken.

It was then that Jesus spoke her name, and at the sound of his voice she understood, and she said, "Master."

What more can any of us say than that?

Thirteenth Anniversary Of Red And White Stores Observed Over Plains

Thirteenth anniversary of the founding of the co-operative movement is being observed today and tomorrow with special sales by Red and White stores of Lubbock and the South Plains.

The Red and White stores' plan of operation was conceived by S. M. Flickinger of Buffalo, N. Y. in 1921 to meet the demand for a wholesale-retail co-operative organization. It spread into several cities and in the course of a few years the plan of home-owned, home-operated stores spread throughout the United States and Canada.

Each Store Home-Owned

Each Red and White store is owned and operated by the store owner, who has affiliated himself with a number of smaller independent stores in his city and are serviced by a local wholesale grocer. Co-operative advertising is used. Red and White foods are featured.

There are approximately 50 stores on the South Plains, all individually owned in twenty towns. The Red and White organization was created here in May, 1931. The H. O. Wooten Grocery company is wholesale distributor for the group.

Members of the South Plains advisory board are: W. E. Holder, L. G. Haynes and Tom Pearce, Lubbock; W. R. Graeber of Post, B. L. Davis of O'Donnell, L. F. Hudgens of Brownfield, J. F. Houston of Levelland. The advertising committee is composed of: Merritt Clark, Leroy Price and D. V. Ross of Lubbock.

Subsidiaries Affected

First of the companies to reveal the increase was the Corrigan-McKinney Steel Co., of Cleveland. The 20 or more other companies then followed, several on each of the succeeding days.

United States Steel's action affects the following subsidiaries:

Carnegie Steel company, Illinois Steel company, American Steel and Wire company, American Sheet and Tin Plate company, National Tube company, Lorain Steel company, Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, Columbia Steel company, American Bridge company, and Universal Atlas Cement company.

Among other companies which have announced 10 per cent wage increases in the last four days are Wasburn Crosby, Inc., of Minneapolis and Chicago, the Pillsbury Flour Mills company and the Russell-Miller Milling company.

That the steel industry, with its wage increase announced, will now take steps to raise prices is forecast by numerous of its leaders. Trade publications predict notice of the advance will be given within the next few days.

Congress Race Gets Interest

Campaign In 21st District Is Gaining Momentum; Several Other Candidates Expected To Enter Race

BROWNWOOD, March 30. (AP)—The race for representative in congress for the new 21st district is underway weeks in advance of the summer campaign and is fast gathering interest.

C. L. South of Coleman, district attorney for the 35th judicial district (Brown, Coleman and McCulloch counties), was the first to announce as a candidate and has visited all the counties in the district.

Culberson Deal, who has been manager of the board of city development at San Angelo, was the second man in the race. His announcement was closely followed by that of E. E. (Pat) Murphy, who resigned as committeeman of the 16th American Legion district to enter the race. Murphy ran for congressman-at-large in 1932.

District Judge Carl Runge of Mason, stated to friends a few days ago that he would soon announce for the place. Several other candidates are expected to announce for the "free for all" race.

The 21st district is one of the largest in the state and candidates for congress must cover a lot of territory during the campaign. The district includes 27 counties with an area of more than 31,000 square miles and a population of approximately 260,000. Poll tax payments in the district for 1934 were 62,567, according to figures obtained from county tax collectors.

Counties comprising the district are: Brown, Sterling, Coke, Runnels, Coleman, Irion, Tom Green, Concho, San Saba, McCulloch, Mills, Lampasas, Schleicher, Menard, Mason, Llano, Kimble, Gillespie, Real, Kerr, Kendall, Bandera, Sutton, Edwards, Kinney, Uvalde and Val Verde.

Man Tells About Stealing Cotton

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 30. (AP)—The way Charles J. O'Bannon stole cotton from warehouses — a deputy sheriff quoted him as confessing today—was a revolving door proposition.

He rolled the bales out a back door at night, then went to the front office the next morning and arranged to store or sell it, Deputy Sheriff Conner said.

O'Bannon, 29, of El Dorado, Ark., did not know how many 500-pound bales he stole in this manner, the deputy said. But Edgar F. Wells, superintendent of the federal compress and warehouse here, said thirteen were missing from warehouses here and at four other cities in the state.

Arrested at Conway yesterday, O'Bannon was quoted by Conner as saying he would hide in a warehouse and at an opportune time, roll a bale of cotton out to the loading platform. The identification tags would be removed and the next morning O'Bannon said he would go to the warehouse office and arrange for storage or sale of the cotton.

He is held for federal authorities.

Three Oklahomans Are Held In Jail

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 30. (AP) — Three Oklahomans, Howard Kirkpatrick, 29, Sulphur, Okla., David Kirkpatrick, 25, Oklahoma City, and Cecil Cox, 36, of Tishomingo, Okla., were held in jail at Little Rock today for safekeeping after they were arrested here in an early morning raid yesterday on charges of operating an auto theft ring.

Police said all three have wide criminal records, and each has served a term in Oklahoma, Texas or Ohio prisons.

Chief of Police Joe Wakelin said today he believed a powerful auto theft ring had been broken up with the arrests.

Officers lay in wait for the men at a lakeside tourist court until early morning and so completely surprised them that no resistance was offered.

Local officers said Cox was sentenced in 1925 to twenty years in the Oklahoma state prison for car theft, Howard Kirkpatrick was sentenced in 1932 to serve ten years in the Texas state penitentiary at Huntsville for robbery, and David Kirkpatrick was sent to the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, from New Mexico on a car theft charge.

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, March 30. (AP) Trade in hogs at the various midwestern markets was uneven today. The tendency on early rounds was stronger with a fairly broad shipping big weights and medium grades generally showed little improvement and were barely steady. Better grade 180-350 lb. averages ranged from 3.40@4.50 at all markets and the highest price around the circuit was 4.50 at Chicago. Aggregate receipts at eleven markets today were 51,000 and on Friday of last week 6,810 were received.

Trade in fed lambs around the circuit was featured by an active and generally strong to 25 higher market, with the bulk moving at 10 to 25 higher rates. Other classes of sheep were in light supply and prices were quotable steady. At Chicago, 9.40 was realized for choice 89 lb. lambs to small killers with the bulk at all points 8.85@9.25. A small lot of spring lambs averaging 63 lbs. reached 12.50 at Chicago. Two cars of fresh shorn lambs of Texas origin, scaling 79 lbs., went at 7.10 at Omaha. St. Joseph 107-lb. slaughter ewes sold at 5.50.

Trade in cattle continued the slow trend established on earlier sessions this week. A meager supply of all classes was offered, with nothing choice on sale. Plainer grades of steers, which comprised most of today's receipts, were quoted weak to 15 lower. Other classes of cattle were unchanged.

Relief Body Pays No Rent For Its Office Building

BY R. W. BARRY

AUSTIN, March 30. (AP)—The Texas Relief commission does not pay rent for the approximately six floors of a nine-story public office building it occupies. However, the owner of that building pays no taxes and relief money goes to help defray expenses of the utilities and elevator service.

Relief officials estimated that their 350 employes and equipment occupied about 70 per cent of the building space. Complaint was made there was not sufficient room.

Organization Growing

How that relief organization grew! From a handful in the governor's reception room on the second floor of the capitol, it steadily expanded until legislative committee rooms were filled. When the legislature came along the relief commission of course, had to get out. The organization still is growing and some of its auxiliary activities have been switched to buildings other than the one occupied by the main staff.

The state park board, which has had its desks and personnel scattered around the rotunda near the supreme court chamber and offices, has been moved to a space in the old courthouse building now owned by the state and which always occupied Texas-owned ground.

Annoying To Justices

It was somewhat annoying for the supreme court justices and attaches to trip their toes at times against chairs and desks of the park board as they filed solemnly and dignifiedly into the bench to hand down opinions affecting rights and property interests of litigants.

Park board workers also were distracted because there always were hurrying persons about bound either for the office of the clerk of the supreme court or the court of criminal appeals directly across the rotunda.

No More Isolation

IF IT did nothing else, the labor dispute at Detroit gave all of us an object lesson in the solidarity of our modern industrial civilization.

This solidarity is a thing which has come upon us in spite of ourselves. We didn't will it; most of the time we have hardly so much as thought about it.

It took the discovery that a strike of auto makers in Michigan could tie up the entire national recovery program to make us realize that it exists.

And the fact that it does exist is bound, sooner or later, to make a profound change in our method of running our society.

WE have talked a great deal, in these 1900 years, about the brotherhood of man; but so far we have treated the idea as the Levite treated the man who fell among thieves—we have looked at it respectfully and then passed by on the other side.

Now we are being forced to discover that this is an idea which, in the sheerest self-defense, we must turn into a working reality.

We may not feel like brothers, but we must act like them. Are we our brother's keepers? We might as well be, for he is ours.

WHEN an argument between the workers and bosses in a few Detroit factories can threaten to disrupt the recovery program of the entire United States—can imperil the happiness, the security, the very livelihood, that is to say, of rubber workers in Ohio and textile operatives in North Carolina and machine shop employes in Rhode Island and lead miners in Colorado—then the complete and inescapable interdependence of the people of the nation is too plainly demonstrated to admit of any more argument.

We no longer have any "local" troubles. You may live in California or New Hampshire; industrial relations in Michigan are a painfully direct concern of yours.

Something has happened to us, while we have been arguing and disputing. It is high time that we realized it. We are all in the same boat nowadays; no one can rock it without disturbing all of us.

MORE CORDIAL RELATIONS

What Secretary of State Hull and Foreign Minister Hirota, of Japan, said to each other in their exchange of diplomatic notes matters little in itself but the spirit in which the two nations received the notes is of first importance since it has a direct bearing upon the future relations between Japan and America.

If Secretary Hull impressed the Japanese with his sincerity and convinced them that he spoke for all the American people and if Minister Hirota's notes were received in the same spirit by the American people it augurs well for the future peace of the Pacific. But if both peoples took the usual view and accepted the notes with a grain of salt, it would indicate that they have lost all faith in each and look upon one another with suspicion. Such are the beginnings of international quarrels and quarrels lead to war.

There is no doubt about the sincerity of the American profesisons for the perpetuation of the 80 years of unbroken peace between the two countries. The United States has no cause to go to war with Japan, but the American people are not so sure that Japan may not some day give cause because of her imagined need to be mistress of the Pacific. It has long been an obsession with the Japs that Uncle Sam is waiting for an opportunity to gobble up not only Japan but the entire Orient. A very imaginative people, those Japanese.

However, both diplomats stated a lot of truths. The two nations are not dangerous competitors in world trade, since they do not export the same kinds of goods, and they are, moreover, good customers of each other. For every economic reason they should continue their reasonably pleasant relations.

The test of virtue is to decide that dancing is sinful before you get stiff with rheumatism.

THE DAY OF BURIAL

"And when even was now come, because it was the Preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath, there came Joseph of Arimathaea, a councilor of honorable estate, who also himself was looking for the kingdom of God; and he boldly went in unto Pilate, and asked for the body of Jesus. . . . And he bought a linen cloth, and taking him down, wound him in the linen cloth, and laid him in a tomb which had been hewn out of a rock: and he rolled a stone against the door of the tomb." The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By George Durno

DURING the past troubled week a responsible NRA official has been privately telling his friends his fears that the country is on the verge of the greatest epidemic of strikes in our industrial history.

It's unfortunate the official's name can't be revealed but his views were not for direct quotation. Suffice it to say he was long actively identified with organized labor before joining the Blue Eagle forces here. His opinions command respect in official Washington—as elsewhere.

As himself still a union man what he fears is that labor will overplay its hand far enough to turn public sympathy away from its cause. It goes without saying that would be suicidal to American Federation of Labor plans to unionize all important industries.

Labor leaders have found themselves on the anxious seat in recent days. They have tried to play statesmen in Washington—at the same time keeping rein on their ranks back home.

This is always a difficult job. It's all the more so when the men to be represented are novices but recently organized.

Veteran union men will tell you that the first urge of new recruits is to strike. They want these boons at once, and they usually have an idea the way to get 'em is the walk-out.

FOES: Further, labor recognizes a formidable foe in the opposite corner—a fact made vividly clear in the last forty years.

No grass is growing under the feet of the industrialists. They have overwhelming resources at their command and a firm conviction that now is the time to swing them and beat down organized labor.

Tactics employed by the big bosses have some of the union officials a little hysterical—which doesn't help the situation any.

It wasn't for fun that the steel industry hired one of the highest-pressed of modern press agents to cinch you and me on the proposition that the employer's cause is more righteous than the worker's.

But this is a comparatively minor feint. The business of offering shorter hours without pay reduction—as the auto manufacturers did last week—has the union leaders swinging wildly.

Newly unionized workers are prone to forget lofty principles in the face of such tempting bait and trot back on the payroll.

It cost the employer nothing to break a strike in this way provided all the big plants in his particular industry go along. Cost of the manufactured product simply increases and the consumer foots the bill.

INSULL: The complete inside story of how this government slowly but surely cast a net around Samuel Insull will make dramatic reading one of these days.

No spider ever displayed more infinite patience in weaving a web than did Uncle Sam to snare this particular fly. It took months to set the trap so there'd be no loopholes.

One by one the State department worked on all the nations, big and small, having no extradition treaties with the United States. Where possible such treaties were hurriedly negotiated. Elsewhere friendly agreements were reached that Insull would not be permitted harbor on the excellent—though technical—ground that his passport was invalid.

Then came the final move after the millionaire fugitive had sailed from Greece in his chartered schooner.

This was a bill jammed through congress in record-breaking time and immediately signed by the president. It simply increased the authority of all American consular officers in countries where we have extraterritorial rights to permit arrest of fugitives from our justice. Thus the last of those little countries bordering the Mediterranean were made too hot for Insull.

That stroke of Mr. Roosevelt's pen on the bill automatically condemned the aged financier to arrest wherever he might be permitted to land—or to exile on the open sea in his dingy schooner.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

THE government's action in heading off the threatened Delaware & Hudson strike was far more significant than appearent on the surface.

D & H had worked out an ingenious system to avoid overtime payments to its employes. Naturally the employes kicked. Lenor Loree—presiding genius of the railroad—is well known for his hard-boiled attitude toward labor. It looked like a deadlock—with probable disastrous implications for spreading labor trouble on other roads—until the government stepped in and appointed a committee to look into the merits of the case.

The committee reported that labor was 90 per cent in the right. Thereupon Washington ordered a settlement virtually on labor's terms. That didn't sit so well with the D & H management but the government permitted a glimpse of the club concealed in its sleeve and the road decided discretion was preferable to valor. What was this potent club? Simply the threat of official backing for the strike which would be called unless the settlement was accepted.

You can imagine the effect of that on the labor problems of other railroads. It's understood here that many leading rail executives fairly blistered the wires urging D & H to yield for their sake as well as for its own. Combined federal and railway pressure did the trick. New York insiders say this is one settlement that's going to stay settled.

MORGAN: Last week the Academy of Political Science held a shindig here. The featured speakers were Ogden Mills, Owen Young, Professor George Warren and Governor Black of the Federal Reserve board. Their remarks were practically carbon copies of what each has said several times (at least) before.

A fifth speaker—whose talk received minor attention even in the local press—was R. C. Leffingwell, a high ranking partner of J. P. Morgan & Co. His comments were neither hackneyed nor evasive. The best sources rate his speech as ten times more important than those of the four headliners put together. Bear in mind that Morgan partners don't express their personal views publicly if they conflict with those of the firm.

PROGRAM: Here's the gist of what Mr. Leffingwell had to say and it can be taken as mighty close to the official Morgan viewpoint.

He approved dollar revaluation and stressed the point that we were "driven off gold"—thereby flatly contradicting one of the sound moneyites' pet theories (as per Professor Sprague).

He talked almost like a member of the Committee for the Nation about the desirability of a stable wage and price level and how necessary it was to go off gold to check ruinous price deflation.

He believes a return to the old gold standard is impossible and wants to use gold in the future merely as a common denominator for the settlement of international balances (as per Frank Vanderlip).

He wants cheap money and broad credit expansion (in line with the Treasury's present plans). He favors a balanced budget, but—"the government cannot and must not let people starve."

His only criticisms of the present system were a mild suggestion that currency and credit control be given back to the Federal Reserve rather than vested in the Treasury and an equally gentle warning against the possible deflationary effects of too drastic permanent reforms.

ENDORSEMENT: Four-fifths of Mr. Leffingwell's speech might well have been delivered by the president himself. In effect it was a public endorsement of the monetary new deal by the House of Morgan and as such will have an important effect on local financial circles.

79 YEARS ON THE JOB

Johnny ("Soda Ash") Horan, who is now 96 years old, has been in the employ of the Milwaukee road since April, 1855. During his long service of nearly eighty years, he has worked in nearly every position connected with the maintenance and operation end of railroading and has been a boiler inspector for the last forty years. The name "Soda Ash" was tacked on when he discovered that washing soda was an effective cleaner for boiler tubes. His son William, age 68, recently celebrated his fiftieth year of service with the same company.

Married Flirts

by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married on the same day as LILA ROTALING and DEREK BLISS, but Lila's wedding is a society event while Gypsy's is very simple.

While Lila lives in luxury, Gypsy has to struggle to keep expenses within Tom's income. She keeps her job teaching until she learns she is to have a baby. After DAVID'S birth she is extremely busy, caring for him and for her home.

Tom is frequently away in the evening and Gypsy suspects he is interested in VERA GRAY, who works in the same office.

Lila confesses to Gypsy that she intends to divorce Derek and marry MARKO BROUGHTON, richer and older.

A few days later Gypsy, calling at the office, sees Tom going to lunch with Vera. She goes home heartbroken and refuses to listen to his explanations.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

People lived with broken hearts, Gypsy reminded herself. They went on ordering food, bathing babies, making beds, mending stockings. She wasn't the only woman in the world to whom this shattering thing had happened. It was—well only that she had thought she and Tom would be different. They had started their marriage with a fine resolve to make it go; succeed at it, no matter what else happened. They had friends, a fond family, enough (though not much) money, little interference. Now, with the second year of the adventure half finished, she was disillusioned, tired and heartsick and Tom was frankly interested in another woman.

"It's all wrong," Gypsy told herself stubbornly and angrily. "The whole system is wrong. The man is free and the woman tied, as soon as children come along. Naturally he's attracted to the sort of girl he knew before marriage—footloose, always welldressed and groomed and scented. He sees his wife in her old dressing gown, weary and headachy and overworked. They haven't money enough for outside amusements. He gets bored . . ."

At this stage of her reflections she usually began to cry. She cried a great deal these days when Tom wasn't around. When he was at home they were coldly, stifly polite to each other. The promise of the earlier April days had faded and now it rained, coldly, steadily, unfeelingly, for days. Gypsy was distracted. It meant staying indoors with the baby. His endless small garments were never dry. There were always limp lines of damp things stretched high in the kitchen. To crown it all Elsa fell ill and telephoned she would have to stay in bed for a week.

Gypsy struggled with it all — dishes, wash, meals, mending. Sometimes she straightened a weary back to look about her in puzzlement. Was this really she, Gypsy Morell, this tired woman with the circles under her eyes? She was never really rested now. When Tom politely urged her to get another maid temporarily she gave him a lifeless look, a bitter smile that was more cutting than words. She did not call the agency. It assuaged some deep anger in her, this battle with the work and her own weariness.

"I can't go on like this; I can't," the girl whispered to herself one dreary afternoon. April twilight was closing in and rain pelted against the windows. Several blocks away the fog horns brayed ceaselessly. The grocery order had been late. David had a cough and she had been attending him.

Suddenly the whole thing was too much for her. The thin shell of composure which she had been building up for the past week cracked and she began to cry wildly, bitterly, in the silence and gloom of the little apartment. Everything was hateful, dreary, impossible!

The bell rang and she looked about in a frenzy, snatching at a handkerchief to mop her eyes. She was a fright; she could not possibly see a caller just now. But when the summons sounded again long habit drove her to the door to answer it. Probably, she thought, it would be the little tailor around the corner.

Hunt Gibson stood in the doorway, lean, rangy, his soft hat in his hand, the collar of his ulster turned up. "I've been trying to get you by 'phone," he began. Then, in a concerned voice, "Gypsy, what's the matter, child? Anything wrong?"

It was too late now to slide out of the situation. She made a little gesture of surrender. "Come in, Hunt." She swallowed a sob. "Nothing much. Just having a good oldfashioned fit of the blues."

He was beside her in the living room now. She had switched on a lamp and motioned him to the big chair.

"Don't mind me," she said, smiling and blinking. "I was sitting here like a mole, all in the dark, feeling sorry for myself. I don't know—the rain gets me."

"It has been a dismal day." His deep drawly voice gave her a warm, comforted feeling. She was ashamed, terribly ashamed, to be found so. She must look a fright—her face all streaked with tears, her curls an unruly mop.

"If we had a fireplace," she went on inconsequently, "I don't think I'd mind it so. At home on rainy days we always burned logs and it didn't seem to matter so much."

"That's right. A fire is a comfort." He went on quietly to tell her of long days of rain in the

R. L. Ewing Questions John F. Turner On City's Water Rate; Turner Urges Voters To Ask Candidates Questions

Editor Avalanche: About the time for the City election to warm up I see that you are running a continued story written by Mr. John F. Turner of 920 Avenue M, Lubbock, Texas, and I will say in one of his articles he defended the high water rate of our city. Mr. Turner of the above address setting out in his rose garden surrounded with the sweet odor of the honey-suckle and the sprinkling water through the city meter makes things refreshing as an early spring rain. John sets there in the midst of all this and cares not for the expense of the water trinkling out throughout his beautiful lawn and rose garden, while Mr. Turner enjoys the luxuries of life, along with the money men of our country, but he must realize that at least ninety per cent of the people do not live in luxuries, and I will say that it seems as though John has passed the stage where he can give a thought to the hardship placed upon the poor thirsty child.

In another article he says that 1600 families who rent from the land lord pays no taxes or expense of our government other than through utility bills. With this many families this would represent a population of about 8,000 people and from the tone of Mr. Turner's letter these people can leave our city if they are not satisfied with the high water rate. We have heard this suggested before but would the business men and landlords of Lubbock be in favor of that many people leaving our city, for the bull-bats to live in our fine houses and the goat-heads take our beautiful lawns and the value of our property drop to nothing. I would like to ask Mr. Turner if his articles are sponsored and paid for by the city and do they favor eradicating these 8,000 people?

Last Sunday Italy had an election. Mussolini gave the names of his ticket and instructed his people and when the vote was counted over ninety-nine per cent followed his instructions. Now Mussolini of Lubbock only says with the pen to vote to keep Lubbock marching forward. We ask him on our bended knees to tell us just who to vote for and if you do not rush this information, I will vote for Ross Edwards, A. J. Richardson and Bill Price and there might be several thousands do likewise.

Yours very respectfully,
R. L. EWING.

Will Giants Repeat? Soothsayers Say No; Dope Indicates They Can

Top Division Teams To Run A Close Race

Cubs, Cards And Pirates Are Stronger; Phillies, Braves Already Counted Out Of The Race This Season

By EDWARD J. NEIL,
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 30. — The mortifying lesson Bill Terry and his inspired Giants taught the experts last season doesn't seem to have taken.

With the battle lines in the National League tightly drawn again, the Cubs, Cardinals and Pirates strengthened, the Braves crammed with hope, the Reds reorganized, and only the Phillies and Dodgers counted out of the pennant picture, the eyes of the soothsayers are wandering again from the team that confounded them by winning the world championship from the Senators last fall.

The Team To Beat

Every angle of the 1934 race points to another of those mad scrambles, filled with knock downs and knockouts. There is no questioning the fact that the Giants with a grand pitching staff in Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher, Freddy Fitzsimmons, Leroy Parmelee and Dolfo Luque, inspired leadership from Terry, light but timely hitting and a tight defense, is the team to beat.

The rub comes when the experts crawl out from under their charts, stained with carbon and the lead of their pencils, to prove that it can be done, that the supreme good fortune and benign fates that rode with the champions last summer can't possibly be expected to have settled permanently at the Polo Grounds.

The main opposition is expected from the Pirates, runners up last year, a powerful, all-round organization that folded in the stretch only because the pitching caved in. This year, in addition to the Waner boys and Freddy Lindstrom in the outfield, infield belters such as Gus Suhr, Arky Vaughn and Pie Traynor, the pitching that consisted chiefly of Larry French in 1933 has been bolstered by the addition of Red Lucas, one of the wheel-horse right handers of the circuit.

The Giants are reaching out to meet this danger, as proved by the fact that Terry traded his fleet center fielder, George Davis, for George Watkins, of the Cards, fast and a long distance hitter, but the champions' chances have been dimmed by the typhoid fever germs that will keep Gus Mancuso, brilliant plugging catcher, out of action at least a month. The healing of Travis Jackson's ailing knees, though it forced weak-hitting Blondy Ryan to the sidelines, is some recompense.

Klein Should Help

The Cubs have strengthened their bid with the purchase of Chuck Klein, all round hitting champion of the league, and the development of a fine rookie right hander, Dick Ward, to team with Lon Warneke and the veterans Guy Bush, Pat Malone and Charley Root.

In addition to Virgil Davis, slugging catcher obtained from Philadelphia for Jimmy Wilson, the Cards have picked up another Dean among pitchers, this one silent Paul, brother of Dizzy. The Cards boast a pitching staff that rivals that of the Giants, more hitting power, scrappy leadership as long as Frankie Frisch and Pepper Martin are around, and lots of defense.

The bid of the Braves that loomed so dangerously last season has been seriously hurt by the crippling of Rabbit Maranville, the aged second base marvel, but Bill McKechnie will have the use of Hal Lee and Pinky Whitney all season, and running true to form he has picked another crack pitching unknown right out of the hat in Clarence Pickrel.

Although the Cincinnati Reds' new owners have aided Bob O'Farrell in a complete reorganization of the club, nothing much is expected of them this year while Casey Stengel, succeeding Max Carey in the Brooklyn pilot seat, can hope only to maintain the humorous features of the Dodgers in the traditional manner.

With Klein and Davis missing, likeable Jimmy Wilson will have the entire sympathy of the league in Philadelphia — and not much else.

REDS TAKE LICKING

BARTOW, Fla., March 3. (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, who have won seven out of eight exhibition games with major league clubs this season, took another licking from a minor outfit today. Rochester of the International league defeated them, 4 to 2. The Columbus Redbirds previously had turned the trick.

A HITTING PITCHER

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 30. (AP) Manager "Red" Harvel is hopeful that the Oklahoma City Indians have a "hitting pitcher" in Mike Pociask, big southpaw from the Nebraska State league. The new hurler swatted them right and left in today's workout.

Regular fielders' practice will begin Sunday.

Cincinnati Reds Get New Deal; Bear Watching

New management, new owners and considerable new talent make the 1934 Cincinnati Reds easily the most thorough made-over team in the National league. Paul Derringer (left) bulwarks a pitching staff for which Manager Bob O'Farrell has high hopes, while Catcher Ernesto Lombardi (right) is counted on for batting punch along with Harry Danning, Burt Shotton and Bottomley. Field strategy will be in the hands of (left to right, center) Coach Val Picinich, and Manager O'Farrell.

Raise Baskets? Basketball Rules Makers Debate

ATLANTA, March 30. (AP) — There must be some experimenting before the nation's chief basketball men will sanction two-foot [illegible] goals.

Arguments on various proposed changes [illegible] today's session of the national basketball coaches' association, but they put off action on recommendations to the rules committee until the annual meeting tomorrow.

F. C. (Phog) Allen, chief of the move to raise goals from ten to twelve feet, told the coaches that, although he favored the elevation, there should be further research before definite action.

John Bunn, Stanford, chairman of the coaches' research committee, reported in a letter to the convention that elevation of the basket would cut field goals made from scrimmage by two-thirds. Bunn said the advantage of tall men was lessened by a new level, since they could get the ball under the basket as easily as heretofore.

The Pacific coast team's coaches who conducted extensive experiments with the aid of Stanford students reported more long shots and less roughing when raised baskets were used.

Windham Due To Encounter Much Trouble Monday

If press reports from Florida and the lower end of Texas are correct, Woody Windham, coming little Abilene slugger, is due to meet a tartar when he steps up against Howard Scott, San Angelo lightweight, in the National Guard's ten round main event Monday night.

Scott is just back in Texas after a successful invasion of Florida fistic circles, and the San Angelo scrapper is right now one of the most sought after lightweights in Texas.

Windham has never been defeated in a local ring, and only in one instance has he ever had to extend himself. So local fandom is hankering to see the self-confident Woody run into something tough, and the army officials believe they have signed up a tough article in Scott.

Scott's only reverses on his Florida jaunt was an eight-round draw with Darico Moreno flashy Cuban. He kayoed Bill Wolfanze in four rounds, spilled Johnny Alba in eight, and won decisions over Snag Trowbridge and Tony Leo.

The winner of Monday night's battle has been promised a shot at Cullen Williams, Texas junior lightweight title-holder.

Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette's negro sprint star, has won six consecutive National A. A. U. sprint championships — the 100 and 200 meters in 1932 and 1933, and at 60 meters in 1933 and 1934.

Football Rules Committee Changes Specifications Of Ball For 1934

NEW YORK, March 30. (AP) — A change in the specifications of the football for 1934 decreasing the circumference and making it easier to handle and forward pass was announced today by the National Rules committee through Secretary William Langford.

The short axis circumference has been reduced from the old measurement of 22-22 1-2 inches to 21 1-4 -2. No change was made in other specifications as to weight pressure, general shape, or the axis circumference.

"We covered last fall," Langford said explanation, "that various schools and one important conference ordering balls of smaller circumference than the specifications prescribed.

"A nation-wide canvass of coaches and athletic directors was made and we found popular desire for a change in ball. The new specification ball to meet the majority's wish.

"The ball undoubtedly will make the passer easier to grip and aid the forward passer. Whether that was the main behind the agitation I don't know.

There has been little real change in the ball, Langford said, since the early days of football the first rule on the subject specifying it should be a "prolate spheroid" of leather with a rubber bladder. With the standardization of play and equipment the present specifications were evolved.

Terry Takes Giants "Home" To Beat Nashville Outfit

DOTHAM, Ala., March 30. (AP) — Bill Terry, manager of the world champion New York Giants, brought his team back today to the town where he broke into professional baseball as a left handed pitcher 19 years ago, and with them polished off the Nashville club of the Southern association in an exhibition game, 4 to 3.

A crowd of 3,000 paid tribute to Terry, who lasted only a few weeks in the Georgia state league with Dothan, and here was handed the only unconditional release he ever received in baseball.

The Giants won today in the seventh after trailing 3 to 2. Harry Danning, rookie catcher, hit a home run to tie the count and the winning run scored on a single by Joe Moore and two errors.

League Matches Begin Tomorrow

First matches in the 1934 season of the South Plains Golf league will be played tomorrow at Lubbock Petersburg and Slaton.

Petersburg replaces Plainview in the league this season, the new entry coming in after two other clubs had considered or been considered for membership. The Spur club had been considered a replacement, but Spur officials announced last night that the club never had made official request for league membership and would remain in the Caprock Golf league this season. The Tulia club also had been considered.

Lubbock Meadowbrook plays at Lubbock Country club tomorrow. Littlefield goes to Slaton and Brownfield to Petersburg.

Connie Mack Leases One, Signs Two For Athletics

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 30. (AP) Connie Mack today began setting his Philadelphia athletics house in order in preparation for the start of the return to the Quaker City.

Those signed were Johnny Wingfield, a utility infielder, and Archie Martin, catcher.

Detroit Defeats Columbus, 9 To 4, In One-sided Game

LAKELAND, Fla., March 30. (AP) Collecting 15 hits in a one-sided contest, the Detroit Tigers beat the Columbus team of the American association here today 9 to 4.

It was the first big spree of the season for the Bengals. Greenberg and Owen collected home runs, while Owen and Cissell hit for triples.

The victory was costly, however, by the fact that Lloyd Hamlin, two right handed pitchers, were added to the casualty list.

TOLEDO DOWNS GALVESTON

GALVESTON, March 30. (AP)—Toledo beat Galveston, [illegible] to-day, to open a three-game series.

Myrick Bldg. Phone 1381

To The Voters Of The City Of Lubbock:

In my previous statements setting forth my views on the question of utility rates in the City of Lubbock, I told the people plainly that I was in favor of a material reduction in all utility rates in the City of Lubbock whether privately or publicly owned and I again pledge you that if I am elected as one of your commissioners that I will do all in my power to bring about a substantial reduction of these rates having in mind, of course, that the utility, like everyone else, are entitled to sell their products or service at a reasonable profit. My opponent Mr. John Roach, the present incumbent, is no doubt in favor of all of the present high rates that are being charged for utilities. If not why has he not taken some definite action as a commissioner to reduce these rates? I now charge him with being in favor of the present high rates and being opposed to a material, substantial reduction of the gas, water, and telephone rates.

My opponent Glenn Hess has resorted to silence as an answer to the people's demand and inquiry as to where he stands on these vital issues. I cannot tell you what his position is on these matters for he will not make a public statement or at least has not made a public statement setting forth his views. Neither do you know what his position is on these matters for he will not express himself.

I am not altogether in this fight for the purpose of winning an office for myself but I am also in this fight because of the opportunity it gives to bring about good government in Lubbock, which must be free from machine control. I charge that John Roach, and Glenn Hess are each in favor of the high Board of City Development Tax that was reduced by a vote of the people and if given an opportunity they would raise this tax to its former high rate. If I am mistaken and either of these gentlemen are not in favor of the former high Board of City Development Tax then I call on him to state to the people that he did not vote for the retention of this high tax.

Many important problems, problems of grave responsibility, will be decided in the future and will affect every man, woman and child in Lubbock. Do you want these responsibilities discharged by a man who will stand on his feet and tell you exactly how he feels about these problems or do you want them discharged by silent machine controlled men?

I charge that the recent advertisements appearing in the daily press with reference to a publicly owned gas system was inserted as propaganda for the purpose of causing the people of Lubbock to believe that they have a chance for cheap gas even though my opponent now in office may be re-elected. I anticipate further propaganda and advertisements along this line will be inserted in the newspapers between now and election day for the purpose of fuurther misleading the people and causing them to believe that they have a chance for cheap gas even though my opponent now in office is re-elected.

I have been asked by many if I am a World War Veteran. I did not serve in the army during the war, but immediately following, and at the age of 18, I enlisted in the U. S. army to serve in the army of occupation in Germany as a private and on my discharge from the army I was serving as Supply Sergeant.

It is common knowledge that the machine politicians who have been in control of some of the past administrations have openly employed city employees and city owned automobiles and their own automobiles, in conveying people to the polls who promised to vote for the machine candidates. These same politicians preach good government and cooperation, yet such conduct is in direct violation of the Penal Laws of this State and the charter of this City, and such persons employing such tactics are subject to a heavy penalty. I warn both the people and such politicians, against such practice and say that no good citizen will participate in the violation of this strict law. This is not only a violation of the law but an unfair advantage to those candidates not so fortunately equipped.

VOTE FOR TWO CITY COMMISSIONERS AS THEY ARE ELECTED AT LARGE.

Pledging you to a sound and economical administration of the duties of the office to which I aspire, I respectfully solicit your vote.

A. J. Richardson
Candidate for Commissioner
Place 1, City of Lubbock

THE SON OF TARZAN, No. 54

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The Swedes followed Kovudoo to a nearby hut. In the dim interior they saw the figure of a woman lying bound. "She must be a thousand years old, Kovudoo," said Malbihn and he turned away. "Wait," cried the savage. "It is dark in there. She IS young. I will have her brought forth." As Meriem came out into the sunlight her beauty fairly took the breath away from the Swedes. With difficulty they suppressed their astonishment when they recognized her.

There could be no doubt; this girl was the same who had been stolen from the Sheik several years before. "Well," asked Kovudoo, "is she not young and beautiful?" "She is not old," replied Malbihn, pretending no interest. "But even so she would be a burden to us." Meriem stood looking straight at the white men. She expected nothing from them—they were to her as much enemies as the blacks. She feared them all. Malbihn addressed her in Arabic.

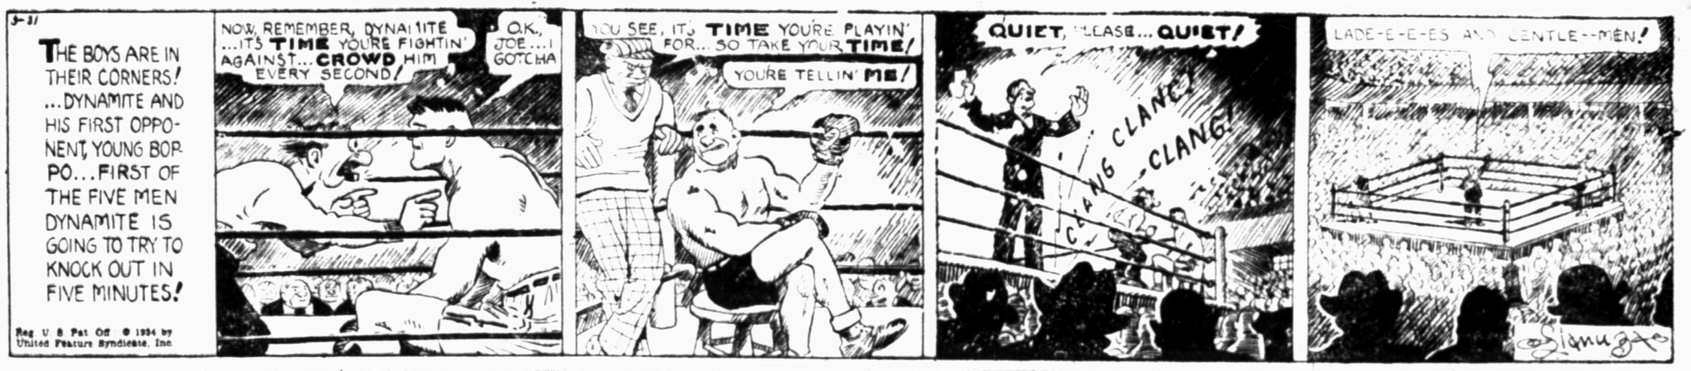

"Would you like to have us take you away from here?" he questioned. Slowly and dimly, as from a great distance, recollection of the once familiar tongue returned to her. "I should like to be free," she said, "and go back to Korak. But not with you." Balbihn turned to Kovudoo. "She does not wish to go with us," he said. "You are men," returned the black. "Can you not take her by force?" Malbihn appeared to be turning the matter over in his mind.

Then he answered: "It would only add to our troubles. No, Kovudoo, we do not wish her; but if you want to get rid of her we will take her away." Now Kovudoo knew he had made a sale, so he commenced to bargain. In the end Meriem passed into the possession of the two Swedes in exchange for six yards of calico, three empty brass cartridge shells, and a shiny, new jack knife from New Jersey. And all but Meriem were more than pleased with the bargain.

Leaders Quiet In Washington

Election Of James E. Ferguson To National Committee Causes No Talk; Jim Farley Holds Silence

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — The election of James E. Ferguson, veteran of many political battles in Texas, to the Democratic national committee is a subject that still stirs up little besides absolute quiet—for the record—in Washington.

Postmaster General Farley has shown no disposition to comment. Members of congress were interested but had nothing to say.

It seems to observers that Washington opinion may fairly be divided into two groups:

1—Those friendly to Ferguson, or at least not hostile, and who regard the election a friendly gesture to the governor's husband and not likely to have any political effect.

2—Those who foresee possible difficulty for Ferguson yet, taking the position the national committee is a judge of its own members and might decide to refuse to seat him.

In that connection, they point out that sources close to Farley said months ago that the administration was in no hurry to accept the resignation of Jed C. Adams, Ferguson's predecessor, because the prospect of a new committeeman selected by the Ferguson-controlled state committee was not welcome.

Meanwhile, the possibility of controversy in the reasonably close future seems remote since there has been no date set for the next meeting of the national committee and nobody seems to know when there is likely to be a call.

Thus it may be that if the issue comes up at all it may come in the next Texas party convention.

have men offering for election that are also successful, honorable men into whose hands the affairs of the city may be safely placed.

It is therefore the duty of every citizen who desires to see the present high class management of the city's affairs continued to not only go to the polls and vote but to urge their friends to do likewise.

Talk to the various candidates who are in the race for the city offices.

Ask them what prompted them to enter the field of city politics and see what your ideas are as to their sincerity and fitness. Ask them just how far they have gone in their private business affairs, if they have been successful, acquainted with handling big business in an able and economical manner.

Ask them if they have contributed to public affairs through the years that they have resided in Lubbock.

Ask them what leads them to feel that they are qualified to give to Lubbock a progressive administration.

The business of the city of Lubbock is the biggest business in the city and it is my business, your business and we have a right to get all the information we need from any man or woman who seeks a city office.

Acquaint yourself, also about the backing of the various candidates. See who is behind them and then decide into whose camp you want to pitch your tent. You can safely judge a man or woman by the company they keep.

If any man asks you to vote for him for city office and you find he has not been active in civic affairs over a period of years you had better think twice before giving him your support. And it stands to reason if he has not made a success of his private business he would surely fail to make good in public affairs.

The question that confronts each of us Tuesday is a serious one question, that if improperly solent may bring ruin to Lubbock, on the best managed cities in the tion today.

It is easy to find out how to right. And it is your sacred du do so. Mistakes in public affair costly and can and should be a ed.

tropics and of the various ways the men reacted to it. He was talking to give her time to pull herself together, Gypsy knew, and she was grateful to him.

Presently she found herself laughing shakily at one of his stories. It was amazing what a difference it made to have someone talk to you, simply and normally and amusingly. This was what she needed . . . a friend.

"I mustn't disturb your dinner hour," Hunt said at last. "I wanted you and Tom to dine with me and see 'Manhattan Mad' tomorrow night."

"I don't know." Gypsy began slowly. Her eyes lighted at the prospect. "Elsa's away, ill, and I've no one to leave the baby with. But perhaps I could manage . . . may I call you later?"

"Certainly. Hope you can make it."

"How's Sue?" Gypsy was making conversation, just to keep him, to fend off that dreadfully alone feeling.

"She's fine. I haven't seen her lately. Sue's a grand girl."

"Isn't she?" And then Gypsy was dreadfully afraid she was going to cry again, thinking of what good times she and Sue had had together a few years ago. What a silly little fool she had been, to think life could go on like that!

"What's wrong, really?"

She stared at him. "I don't know what you mean."

He was standing now, towering above her, looking very tall and protective. "Something's troubling you. I wish you'd tell me."

She essayed a laugh but it wasn't a very successful one. "I told you I had the blues."

"Umm . . ." He continued to regard her thoughtfully and Gypsy flushed, shifted her gaze from his intent one.

"Tell you what, if it's anything I can fix let me know." His handclasp, warm and electric, lingered with her.

"Thanks. I will."

The moment passed and as he turned to go they talked of commonplace things. Gypsy would call him before nine that night. Would that be all right? Perfect, he told her. And then he was gone.

Gypsy went about the business of getting dinner in a more cheerful frame of mind. What a genuinely nice person Hunt was! She did like him. She forgot her own troubles, real or imagined, to such an extent that when Tom cam soberly down the hall at 6:30 he heard her whistling.

He stopped to listen and the sullen look on his face faded. He let himself in quietly. Gypsy was setting the table. She had on a many-times-washed blue print frock and her hair was burnished like dark copper. She wheeled at his entrance and the whistling stopped. The shadow slipped down over her face once more.

Tom said, "Oh," rather foolishly and stood, staring at her.

"Hello." She was very polite very formal, very remote.

"Hello." The stubborn expressio she had come to know was like forbidding mask. Neither wou give an inch.

"Thought I heard music."

"Oh, I guess that was the rad next door."

She shook her head. "You now I never go to a theatre alone."

"Oh, but I'm going tomorrow night," she said. "I'm dining with Hunt and going to a play. You don't mind, do you?"

NRA Acts To Aid Druggists; Drug Code Further Changed

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — The NRA today acted to protect further individual retail druggists from chain store competition by modifying the drug code to further restrict low price sales.

The modification provided that selling drugs, medicine, cosmetics, toilet preparations or drug sundries below the manufacturer's wholesale dozen price would constitute an unfair trade practice, even though the actual purchase in large lots made the net cost to the retailer lower than the dozen lot limit.

An exception was made in the case of products not customarily sold in dozen or greater lots, for which the code authority was authorized to fix a comparable unit quantity.

The amendment also provided that any discount, free deal, or rebate which is made available to all purchasers of dozen lots or comparable quantities, shall be considered as part of the manufacture's wholesale list price.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — Vice-President Garner today denied published reports that he intended retiring from public life at the end of his present term.

"I have made no such announcement," he said.
