Teachers as students

These Hereford school teachers recently studied a new curriculum program known as HOSTS (Helping One Student To Succeed). Helping with their initial work with the HOSTS program was Mary Ellen Anderson, standing, who teaches the language arts curriculum to teachers. HOSTS will be introduced this year at West Central and Northwest schools. Taking the class were, seated from left, Doris Cagle, teacher, and Aurora Jackson, aide, both at Northwest; and Amelia Pesina, aide, and Carolyn DeLozier, teacher, both at West Central. Watching at left is Scott Turner, supervisor of federal programs.

New science teacher hopes for enthusiasm in classes

BY LINDSEY RADFORD
Summer intern writer

Hoping she won't have to dodge spit-wads and paper airplanes, Kim Villarreal enters the classroom this fall with the determination and desire to teach.

At the beginning of her college studies at Hardin-Simmons University, Villarreal did not recognize her desire to teach.

"When I began college I left my options open. After taking several classes which allowed observation in the classroom, I realized teaching was what I wanted to do," said Villarreal.

A bachelor's degree in education allows Villarreal to follow a childhood pastime.

"I always enjoyed playing school with the neighborhood kids. Now it's no longer make-believe," she said.

Although certified to teach both science and English, Villarreal this year will work in the science department.

"Eventually I hope to move into English. It is an area I truly love," she remarked.

She plans to enroll this month in classes at West Texas A&M University in pursuit of a master's degree in English.

"My future plans are to become a college-level English professor," Villarreal said.

"I was in a fortunate position. As a substitute I quickly learned how much planning must be done outside the classroom to ensure success in the classroom," emphasized Villarreal.

During her internship at Cooper, the teacher encountered a sizzling experience.

"We had one small fire in the chemistry room when a student misunderstood how to gently heat something," said Villarreal.

The new teacher agrees most students dread chemistry rooms.

"My goal is to see students hate science a little less and begin to enjoy it as the year progresses," she said.

"Those students who are turned off from science at an early age miss the excitement and opportunities a career in this field can provide," said Villarreal.

To beat the lecture blues, Villarreal plans to implement labs with hands-on activities.

"This is really only possible with small classes, such as the ones I will be teaching," said the teacher.

The average class size is expected to be 25 students.

When Villarreal enters the classroom on August 18, she wants to earn the respect of her students as soon as possible.

"I've commonly been mistaken for a student. It's important, therefore, to make your expectations as clear as possible," said Villarreal.

The 24-year-old believes being successful as a teacher includes getting students enthusiastic about their work.

"Expectations can never be too high once a student is excited about learning," she said.

Taken under the wing of a veteran science teacher, Dorothy Szydloskie, Villarreal is now familiar with the teaching curriculum and formats followed by the science department.

"Miss Sid is especially good with first year teachers. The entire department works together to guarantee all topics are covered," Villarreal said.

While entering a new classroom presents several challenges, so do a new home and environment.

Villarreal and her husband, head baseball coach J.J. Villarreal, left friends and family in Abilene to begin a new life in Hereford.

"Moving was a big transition for us but we've really enjoyed Hereford," she said. "We've been amazed by the general friendliness within the community."

Despite the move to a smaller town, the young couple appreciates the size.

"It's wonderful to see a community equally supportive of athletics and academics," said Villarreal. "We are happy to make our home in Hereford."

Classes last half day for first three days

Teachers report Monday; students start Wednesday

The last official weekend of Summer Vacation 1993 is just about over and it is time for students in the two county public school districts to hit the books again.

Classes officially begin in the Hereford and Walcott districts on Wednesday.

However, teachers begin work on Monday.

In Hereford, the first staff work day will begin at 8 a.m. Monday in the Bull Barn with a half-day session for everyone.

It will be held through 12:45 p.m., with lunch included.

After that, the teachers will work on their own campuses until 4 p.m. Monday, and all day Tuesday.

Students report on Wednesday morning for class.

However, both Walcott and Hereford students will only be in class half a day the first three days of the year.

Classes here will dismiss at noon, with lunch served after that.

At Hereford High School, students will attend all seven class periods for about 30 minutes each.

Then on Thursday, HHS students will attend first through fourth period, while on Friday they will attend fourth through seventh periods.

Classes at Hereford's three private schools begin later in the month.

St. Anthony's School teachers a required to report for work on Monday, but students will not report until Thursday. As in the public schools, St. Anthony's students will attend half a day Thursday and Friday.

The school is still accepting registration for four-year-old kindergarten through sixth grade.

Nazarene Christian Academy teachers are required to report on Wednesday.

That school, too, has some openings left. It has classes in K4 through seventh grade.

Community Christian School also begins classes later this month.

Representatives of the school could not be reached for additional information.

Merrick lauded as leader in business

From a modest beginning, a Hereford business has grown in the last 25 years to capture respect of a great many human beings and, maybe, an even larger number of dogs.

From Merrick Petfoods in Hereford, giant trucks fan out into New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado and, of course, Texas, to deliver the tasty morsels that tempt even the most finicky-eating dog.

And, the home-owned business has expanded its borders beyond the United States, shipping products to Japan.

Mayor Bob Josserand last week paid tribute to Garth Merrick and the Merrick businesses when he signed a proclamation recognizing their civic and economic contributions to the city. The mayor declared Monday, Aug. 16 as "Garth Merrick Day."

The story of Hereford Bi-Products and Merrick Petfoods began in 1968 when Garth Merrick came here with his father, Lee Merrick, because the latter had seen a story in a national magazine about the beef boom in Hereford.

They brought with them experience in dog food manufacturing, also, but the immediate business 25 years ago was to set up a beef bi-products processing plant.

When the Merricks came here, they were surprised that in the middle of the cattle feeding industry, there was no business in Hereford for dead animal removal.

Garth Merrick recalled in an interview a few years ago that the business started on a "real shoestring budget." He said they had "three beat-up pickups and five acres of land with a quonset barn."

The business grew to substantial contribution to the economy of Deaf Smith County, though, through hard work and loyalty of many employees who have long work history with Hereford Bi-Products.

Lee Merrick decided later to go back to Wisconsin to continue a dog food processing operation that he had established earlier. Garth Merrick assumed the helm in Hereford and has continued to seek new ways to expand the business.

Businessman commended

Hereford Mayor Bob Josserand signs a proclamation for observing "Garth Merrick Day," in recognition of the businessman's contribution to Hereford. Looking on are Merrick, center and two longtime employees of Hereford Bi-Products, Sammy Murillo, left, and Robert Murillo, who have 19 and 21 years, respectively, of service.

Local Roundup

Heart fundraiser scheduled

The Deaf Smith County division of the American Heart Association will hold a "Rock and Roll Jamboree" from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. The fundraiser involves participants rocking in rockers or rolling in wheelchairs to raise funds pledged by local residents. Pledges may be made at the event Wednesday or by calling Mark Collier at 364-2141, or Rita Bell at 364-2435.

Immunization schedule noted

The Texas Department of Health has announced its August immunization clinic scheduled for Hereford. Vaccines against polio, diphtheria, lockjaw (tetanus), whooping cough (pertussis), measles, rubella, mumps and HIB (hemophilus influenzae type B) will be offered. Charges are based on family income and size and ability to pay. Funds are used to help keep the clinic open. Regular clinics will be held from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursdays. Remaining clinics for the months will be held Aug. 19 and 26. The clinics are held in the Health Department offices, 205 W. Fourth St., Suite B.

Commodity distribution set

Panhandle Community Services will distribute commodities on Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Bull Barn. Items to be distributed are butter, peanut butter, corn meal, pinto beans, raisins, apple juice, refried beans and peaches. New applicants must provide proof of residency and identification. Senior Citizens are to enter through the east door. Everyone is encouraged to bring sturdy sacks or bags. Anyone wishing to volunteer may contact the agency at 364-5631.

Hospital board meets Tuesday

Directors of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District will hold a regular meeting Tuesday, beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the board room at Deaf Smith General Hospital. Items on the agenda include: adopting the tax rate; review of Methodist agreement; discuss proposed name change of hospital to Hereford Regional Medical Center; review of general, professional liability and directors and officers insurance; physician credentialing; discuss Dr. Howard Haysom's contract; quality management report; administrator's update; medical staff report; operations and financial reports.

HISD board to meet

The Hereford Independent School District board of trustees will hold back-to-back meetings on Monday to discuss a variety of money-related matters. First, they will gather at 6 p.m. at the Smith Building, U.S. 385 and 15th Street, for a tour of the facility. Due to attend will be district architect Larry Harvey. The district is considering purchasing the former grocery store, with the tour set to show trustees what the building looks like and to allow Harvey a chance to discuss possible remodeling. At 7 p.m., the board will meet in the board room, 136 Avenue F, to hold a budget workshop and consider a compensation plan put together by the Texas Association of School Boards. Trustees also will consider vehicle bids and hold an executive session to discuss the Smith Building purchase and the salary of Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt.

Commission agenda posted

An agenda for a regular meeting of the Hereford City Commission at 7:30 p.m. Monday lists consideration of a variance on a sidewalk regulation, of a request for funding for juvenile detention center, of an interlocal agreement for solid waste disposal with the City of Amarillo, of an architect for a new swimming pool, and of an advisory agreement with a fiscal agent.

College registration set here

Amarillo College will hold registration on Wednesday at Hereford High School for classes being held here. Registration will be from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. Courses being offered this semester include Accounting Principles I, Anatomy and Physiology I, Computer Concepts, Computer Concepts lab, Freshman Composition I, Government of the U.S., History of the U.S. I, Principles of Nutrition, General Psychology and Reading Techniques I and II. Continuing education classes in How and When to Avoid Probate, Federal Estate Tax and State Estate Tax and Basic Conversational Spanish. Late registration will be from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. Aug. 30 at HHS. For more information call the HISD offices, 364-0606, or the Amarillo College Registrar's Office, 371-5030.

PROCLAMATION OF THE CITY OF HEREFORD

WHEREAS, Mr. Garth Merrick is a citizen of Deaf Smith County and a benefactor of the City of Hereford through his businesses, and

WHEREAS, Mr. Merrick and Merrick Pet Foods and Hereford Bi-Products are integral parts of this community; and

WHEREAS, the Livestock Industry of Deaf Smith County is appreciative of Mr. Merrick and his contribution to the industry and this community; and

WHEREAS, the City of Hereford and the Deaf Smith County Livestock Industry would like to formally congratulate Mr. Merrick for 25 years of service and support; and

WHEREAS, it is fitting and proper that Mr. Merrick be congratulated and recognized for his efforts;

I, ROBERT D. JOSSERAND, MAYOR, OF THE CITY OF HEREFORD, do hereby proclaim this the 16th day of August, GARTH MERRICK DAY in Hereford and invite our citizens to recognize and congratulate him for his contributions.

Set to my hand this the 16th day of August, 1993.

ROBERT D. JOSSERAND, MAYOR

MERRICK---

Six years ago, Merrick Petfoods, Inc., was launched, manufacturing a quality product. Beef 'N More is a high protein blend that the manufacturer says has more beef than other dry dog foods.

The product came to the attention of a Japanese distributor several months ago and in April, the first shipment of the pet food to go to a foreign country went to Japan.

In April, also, Merrick announced an agreement to put products into the nationwide distribution system of Alpo which decided to close a plant in Mexico.

The pet food manufacturer, besides the investment in plant facilities and equipment, operates trucks for distribution in Texas and contracts transportation services in nearby states.

Garth Merrick was born in Nashville, Tenn., the son of Lee and Lucille Merrick, and spent his young life in Kentucky and the Midwest where his father operated pet food plants.

They later moved to Greeley, Colo., where young Garth finished high school. He attended Vancouver City College in Canada and Colorado State University.

At one time, the Merricks operated a dog food plant in Chilliwack, British Columbia, where they processed livestock from an Indian reservation and bi-products from meat packing houses as well as operating a dead livestock service.

Last April, State Senator Teel Bivins of Amarillo and Texas Agricultural Commissioner Rick Perry joined in hailing the Merrick operation when the deals with Alpo and Japan were announced.

Garth Merrick said his firm purchases more than $4.5 million worth of raw agricultural products each year. Texas producers provide more than 95 percent of the total and 60 percent come from the High Plains, including 35 million pounds of corn, corn by-products, wheat and wheat by-products.

Since their arrival in Hereford 25 years ago, the Merrick family has settled into the life of the community. Garth Merrick and his wife, Susan, are parents of four children, Noelle, Sloane, Teel and Tyler. They participate in all phases of the First Church of the Nazarene.

Pope urges youth to seek solidarity

DENVER (AP) - Pope John Paul II told U.S. bishops they must strengthen the church for the coming century, then urged a gathering of youths to "commit yourselves to the struggle for justice, solidarity and peace in the world."

"These are the days in which the light of the Gospel must shine before them with a particular brilliance," the pontiff said in a Mass on Friday with about 450 bishops, including nearly all 300 or so from the United States.

He challenged them to take special care of young Catholics, then sent them throughout the city to evangelize "the church of today and tomorrow."

Residents to welcome new doctor, family, to Hereford

Dr. and Mrs. Kent Walker will be honored with a community welcome-reception Sunday(Aug. 15) from 2 to 3:30 p.m. at the E.B. Black House, 508 W. 3rd St.

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce health and education committee is sponsoring the reception and invites all interested residents to attend and welcome the doctor and his family to Hereford. He and his wife, Janet, have eight children--five of whom live at home.

Dr. Walker, a specialist in family practice, recently opened his medical office in the Hereford Medical Clinic, 801 E. 4th St. His training and background include extensive experience in family practice(including obstetrics), emergency medicine, sports medicine, and industrial/occupational health.

Dr. Walker has a BS degree in zoology from Idaho State University. He received his doctor of osteopathy degree at the University of Osteopathic Medicine and Health Sciences, Des Moines, Iowa. He served his internship at Michigan Medical Center and served an orthopedics residency at William Beaumont Army Medical Center at Ft. Bliss.

Dr. Walker was an all-state football player during his high school days in Idaho and has maintained his interest in sports throughout his life.

HISD not on list of schools warned about test scores

Hereford Independent School District Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt said Friday that the district has not received a letter of concern from the Texas Education Agency.

A story in Friday's Amarillo Daily News listed Hereford as one of the area districts to receive a letter from TEA expressing concern over low passing rates on the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test.

However, said Greenawalt, the district has received no notification from TEA that the agency is concerned with the low passing rate of its students.

Greenawalt said he had been concerned that TEA would send a letter of concern over TAAS scores at Bluebonnet Intermediate School, which are the lowest in the district.

TEA sent out the letters -- which caution districts that have schools where fewer than 20 percent of students passed the TAAS test -- to numerous districts around the state, urging them to work to improve test scores this year.

Bluebonnet, Greenawalt said, had more than 20 percent of its students pass the TAAS test.

Greenawalt said his office has received no letter of concern and that TEA had notified districts that the letters would be received a week before the list of districts and schools with low TAAS scores was released to the media.

The Associated Press in a story in Friday's Hereford Brand reported that some schools were incorrectly listed as having low ratings.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

The peak years of mental activity must be between the ages of 4 and 18. The 4-year-old knows all the questions and the 18-year-old knows all the answers. So, it must be the job of parents and teachers to focus on getting those questions and answers on an even keel!

Students eager, or not so eager, to begin school attended the seventh and eighth grade orientations Thursday night and received schedules. Those unable to attend the session have received their schedules on Friday or they can go by Monday or Tuesday to do so.

Do not purchase supplies for classes until you have attended classes on Wednesday and Thursday. This will prevent buying items not needed or wanted on the HJH campus. Junior Historians will be selling pens, pencils and folders at school for those who desire to purchase them there. An announcement will be made each day during the first week of school relating to supplies.

Students will be dismissed from school at 12:45 p.m., after lunch, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of the first week of school.

New teachers at HJH include Linda Mason, ESL; LaDonna Stebbins, Super Lab; Angela Wilhelm, Resource; Sherry Walker, Art; Kelly Priest, Computer Literacy; Matthew Coplin, English; Marion Goodin, returning from leave, Art; Elizabeth Hernandez, Bridge Aide; Debbie Gaitan, CCC Lab Aide; and transfers from other buildings Gerry Taylor, CCC Lab Aide; Beth Parsons, Reading; Billie Hale, Special Education Aide; and Grant Davis, Social Studies and coach.

New social studies texts, American history last year and Texas history this year, include much more on geography skills and knowledge than texts have in the past. This emphasis is due to the fact that national studies have proved that students and adults have limited knowledge of geography. An extended study of geography on these grade levels will enhance knowledge from K-6, and hopefully better prepare them for their higher education.

Geography Bee preparation will begin in early September. Information for a poster contest for National Geography Awareness Week will be available in early September, also. The theme this year is "Geography: Water Matters-Every Day, Everywhere, Every Way."

Several students have already begun plans for history fair projects. Plans are to begin work on the research for these projects as soon as possible.

Borrowed from Jim Kern's Build the Fort Today, which is recommended reading for every parent and teacher, is a thought to carry with you ... "For all those who love kids: When we who love the children stop listening to them or to giving them attention, someone else listens and that someone else takes our children away from us." Think about it!!

Hereford Bi-Products

The company that was adding value long before "added-value products" became industry buzzwords.

IN 1968, with modest assets that included three rickety pickups, 5 acres and a quonset barn, a young entrepreneur began a business venture that today employs 400 people, purchases more than $4.5 million worth of raw agricultural products a year and now is exporting its products to Japan.

Congratulations Garth Merrick and Hereford Bi-Products as you observe your 25th successful year.

Thank you for 25 years of service to this community and surrounding area!

The annual Back to School section is included in today's edition of The Brand. We believe it will be of interest to a majority of our readers, since much of the activity in a small community revolves around the school. This special section is made possible by local businesses, and we hope you will consider patronizing these folks o0o.

With school getting underway soon, it seems an appropriate time to share with readers a letter we received from George Ochs, principal at West Central. He included an article from a professional educator's magazine. It was titled "Schools Reflect the Communities They Serve," and was written by Harold Zuckerman who has 38 years experience as a teacher, principal, superintendent and school board trustee.

Here are excerpts from the article:

"Once again we hear from critics of the public education system, pointing not to the failure of children to learn but to the schools failure to teach.

"Except for the special child who amy or may not succeed even with extra help, any student who wants to learn and succeed has it within his power to get the best education available in any of our public schools. Students are succeeding in the same classrooms occupied by those who are failing. How can anyone place all the blame on the teachers and the schools?

"Most often, those who do poorly lack the desire to succeed in school, lack the discipline to stick to the job o learning, lack the real support of parents, lack the self-discipline to pay attention, lack the self-esteem to set high personal expectations, lack the food to keep from being hungry or the home to keep from being out in the cold, lack a home environment that values education or the child, lack the goal of success, lack the ability to master some subjects, etc., etc. They drain the energy and resources of the teacher, the administration and the school.

"These are things that the school must deal with before a child can be taught. The shame and the blame belongs to politicians, communities and homes; it is not what teaching and learning is all about. Most teachers know how to teach; they know what to teach, and they know when to teach it.

"The child learns who comes to school motivated, focused and directed... The schools only reflect the communities they serve

"I remember when school had a more important place in the lives of parents, students and the community. Teaching was exciting, even with 48 students in a class. The child usually came prepared to learn, and behavioral standards were set and enforced by the home and community. A student came to school to learn. Those who didn't were easily identified and the parents were held accountable.

"The administrator and the teacher must work to hold the tide with the children who lack counseling, disciplining, motivating, training, manners, values, standards, and the will to learn. It is most often, "I won't read," rather than "I can't read." I do is far more important than I.Q.

"Under the circumstances where we are mandated to do everything for every child, schools daily perform miracles in their work with children. Teachers are teaching, and responsible students are learning."

In his letter, Ochs stated: "I share with the author the belief that our teachers know how and what to teach. They are committed, hard-working professionals. Education is available and happening for any serious-minded student who wants to learn. There is no lack of effort on the part of Hereford teachers to meet the educational needs of children."

Hereford Bi-Products is observing its 25th year in Hereford, and you'll find a mayor's proclamation and several congratulatory ads in today's newspaper. With a modest start in September of 1968, Garth Merrick has expanded a tail-gate dog-food business into one of the largest and most sophisticated beef by-products factories in the Southwest--and perhaps the nation.

The expansion of Hereford Bi-Products includes the highly successful establishment of Merrick Petfood, Inc., as a division of the company. Obviously, Merrick's success is woven around good management and hard work, but his modest approach to the business was made evident in a feature article in The Brand four years ago:

"I just can't say enough for those who have stayed with me throughout the years...it may have been my ideas that got it started but it was the dedicated people around me that put it into motion."

He is now one of the largest employers in the county with more than 400 people on the annual payroll that is estimated to surpass $5 million. Merrick has a fleet of more than 100 pickup and delivery trucks and 25 refrigerated units which daily move processed products across the nation.

The Merrick headquarters, just off Hwy. 60 east of town, frequently catches the attention of local folks and tourists who stop to view the wildlife grazing on the well-kept landscape. Llamas and zebras highlight the roadside menagerie, which also has had such exotics as buffalo, Longhorns and ostriches through the years.

Merrick's 25th anniversary caught us by surprise when some friends decided to salute him this week. With more notice, we're sure others would have participated in extending congratulations to Merrick and his company.

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

Do you remember this time of year when you were a child?

You know, those last precious days before school started, when you could come and go as you pleased, play where you wanted and stay up late at night.

For me, growing up on the campus of a private high school in Albuquerque, summer meant we could roam the campus from front to back and side to side.

You see, during the school year, my parents prohibited us from going past the health center, which marked the demarkation from the residential side to the educational side of the campus.

The only exception to this was we were allowed to walk through campus on our way to or from school.

I remember a lot of my days there -- in fact, I bet I had it better than most kids, because we had a built-in neighborhood chock full of kids whose parents taught at the school.

We played baseball, rode our bikes in the streets, caused trouble and pestered our parents nearly to death.

Because the campus streets were closed to the public, they had very little traffic and those cars that did drive around did so at extremely slow speeds.

Among my most vivid memories of growing up there involved me and the other neighborhood kids.

There was the time right after I learned to ride a bike that I missed a turn and plowed into the fence surrounding the football field, scratching body and bike alike.

There was the large mound of dirt in the field behind my house, where we played various military-type games.

Mr. Martinez (who was superintendent for many of the years we lived there) had a garage next to his house. It's gone now, torn out to make a road when the new library was put in the middle of the old road.

That garage had a hole in the back and was where the chaplain's son took me for my first try at smoking cigarettes (not a particularly pleasant experience and probably a major reason why I never started smoking).

I'm sure you all have favorite memories of your childhood and summer vacation.

I hope this spurred your memory a little.

Now tell your kids all about (and leave out the part about walking 15 miles uphill through the snow in your bare feet!).

Well, on to other subjects.

I happened to be looking at a publication I saved for some reason and was struck by how many acronyms were used in it.

Of course, it was put out by the U.S. government, which creates more acronyms than it does laws each year.

(In fact, I wouldn't be surprised one day to hear the Presidents Clinton nominated someone to the NOICOCA (National Office In Charge Of Creating Acronyms.)

The paper I was reading happened to be the OCRWM Bulletin, which is put out by the U.S. DOE.

In it is a story of a recommendation by the GAO, a response by OCRWM to NWTRB, a description of the MRS facility, quotes from a letter from the OMB, something about MPCs and an opportunity to host people from FSU.

OCRWM -- Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management.

DOE -- Department of Energy.

GAO -- General Accounting Office.

NWTRB -- Nuclear Waste Technical Review Board.

MRS -- Monitored Retrievable Storage facility. It will cost $15.7 million.

MPC -- Multi-Purpose Canisters, which are a concept that will be developed at the MRS facility.

OMB -- Office of Management and Budget, Leon Panetta's department at the White House.

FSU -- No, not Florida State University, but the Former Soviet Union.

Makes you wonder what our English language is coming to, doesn't it? I mean, now we quote sentences by initial, we make verbs into nouns (such as, "Let's network") and we hide true meanings behind cutely-worded phrases.

Still, now that I think about it, I bet I could come up with a few acronyms for government offices that, if they don't exist, will probably be created by the Presidents Clinton.

For example:

OSABSRGSOD -- The Office of Special Appointments Based Solely on Race, Gender, Sexual Orientation or Donation.

FCAVASD -- Federal Commission on Aid to Victims of AIDS in the Saharan Desert (Which, incidentally, contains an acronym within an acronym. I get double point value for that one!).

FDP -- Family Dissolution Panel.

CAHMRWSHS -- Commission for the Acceptance of Homosexuals as Minorities and Relegation of WASPS to Sub-Human Status (Again, another acronym-within-the-acronym).

HRCOWGPM -- Hillary Rodham Clinton Office of Waste Generation and Paperwork Manifestation.

Anyway, I think you get the idea.

Well, that's all for this week.

HAGWADBAI -- WYSBBYCIBYD.

(Which is the acronym for: Have a good week and don't be an idiot -- wear your seat belt and buckle your children in before you drive.)

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Did anyone else notice or was it just me? In the Wednesday, Aug. 4, edition of The Brand, we were told how our superintendent of schools wants to raise all teacher salaries 4-5 percent regardless of their performance. Last year, a 3 percent raise was hotly debated and finally passed with Mike Veazey commenting he hoped the increase would be linked with performance. I guess not, Mike.

Our students' test scores are up in some areas, down in others and still usually well below state averages, which are themselves bad enough.

So why are we doing this anyway? Well, because the very important-sounding Texas Association of School Boards did a very important-sounding study and said we should. And, apparently we are supposed to make future pay raises automatic so we don't get the chance to vote on it anymore. How convenient.

Hasn't anyone seen the studies which show some of the states with the lowest teacher salaries also have the highest test scores.

Now don't get me wrong. There are teachers out there who deserve a pay raise. However, there are also a few teachers and administrators who are over paid and maybe shouldn't even be in the profession. How about we give raises based on student performance!

As far as our starting teacher salary being at a certain level, has anyone figured into the equation how affordable housing is here? With double digit school tax increases in the last couple of years helping to keep our home prices in the basement, prices are much cheaper than other areas.

Now this isn't the end of what our tax-and-spend superintendent wants us to pay for. He is recommending we buy the Smith building on N. 385. Is this going to be used for administration offices? That place is huge on the inside. How many new administrators could we fit in there?

We could add this to another building we really don't need--the old junior high. Oops! I forgot. It has a very important-sounding name now--the Stanton Educational Service Center.

The Smith building could be a big asset to the community, but why don't we let the county and/or the city buy it and sell the Bull Barn and the existing community center to use as a big down payment. We could have all kinds of special events there and the school system could still use it, too.

If you haven't taken a good look at this nation's education establishment lately, you should. The system does not have the students best interest in mind, it simply wants to be bigger, control more money and have more power. Just as the president of the NEA said a few years ago, "We will represent the kids when they start paying union dues."

There is a group we elect to represent parents and students. Take action and call your school board representatives and let them know how you feel about pay increases with no accountability and buying buildings which will lead to more waste. Better yet, come to the meeting Tuesday and tell them yourself. You can make a difference.

Dear Editor:

I want to call your attention to an important publication recently released by The Heritage Foundation. "Index of Leading Cultural Indicators," written by William Bennett, it is a comprehensive statistical portrait of behavioral trends over the past 30 years.

It shows, for example, that while population has increased 41 percent since 1960, violent crime has increased 560 percent; illegitimate births have risen more than 400 percent; divorce rates hae quadrupled; the percentage of children living in single-parent homes has tripled, and the teenage suicide rate has increased more than 200 percent.

As a member of The Heritage Foundation, I am eager to see the facts in this document given wide publicity. Only if we admit we are in a crisis of values can we begin to reverse our cultural decline.

You may already have received a copy of the index. If so, I urge you to keep it on hand and use it as a resource. If you haven't yet seen it, you can obtain a copy by calling the Heritage Foundation office.

Demos claim they're not out to soak rich, punish success

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - While Republicans claim to have recaptured taxes as an issue, President Clinton's Democrats protest - perhaps too much - that they aren't out to soak the rich or punish success.

That draws some early lines for the 1994 congressional campaign, when the Clinton economic program is sure to be a central issue.

Clinton's advice to House and Senate Democrats nervous about the impact of their votes for the tax increases in his deficit-curbing budget:

"... If you go home and look your people in the eye and tell them you were willing to put your job on the line so they can keep their jobs, I think they will understand and reward you with re-election."

The political message fits an improving economy, in which more people are keeping jobs or finding new ones. Public opinion polls on the plan Clinton has just signed into law reflect skepticism that it will enhance economic performance. One year in a five-year program may not be enough to prove its impact, but the trend in the economy next fall will be credited or blamed on it anyhow.

Sen. Bob Dole, the minority leader, said Republicans regained standing as the low tax party by unanimously opposing the plan, which raises upper bracket taxes retroactive to Jan. 1. That and subsequent spending curbs are designed to reduce prospective deficits by $496 billion over five years.

Republicans, especially on the right, complained that George Bush gave away his best issue and theirs when he agreed to a tax increase as part of a 1990 deficit reduction plan.

Reclaiming it now isn't risk-free. Republicans are also accused of being the party of the rich. While the polls reflect mixed judgments on some features of the economic plan, a Washington Post-ABC News survey reported 73 percent support for increasing the rate on families with incomes over $180,000.

Clinton said that fairly distributes the tax burden on people who got the biggest breaks under Ronald Reagan.

There also is a practical advantage. It doesn't affect many voters.

"Ninety-nine percent of all West Virginians will not pay more in income taxes," Clinton said at a Charleston rally celebrating passage of the plan.

Sen. George Mitchell said just before the Senate vote on Aug. 6 that only 3,800 families in his state of Maine had incomes high enough to be subject to higher income taxes. "... If every senator looks at his or her state, you'll find about the same thing," he said.

Clinton said in advance he wasn't trying "to soak the rich or promote class warfare," but to fairly redistribute the tax burden. That was a daily campaign promise, certainly no surprise.

"We don't want to punish success, we want to reward it," he said after the bill passed Congress on Democratic votes, with none to spare. But he said for all Americans to have a chance to succeed, the deficit has to come down, and it's only fair that those best able to pay do so.

But the last Democratic senator to sign on, grudgingly, said the sacrifice for deficit reduction should have been more equally divided.

"... It is not shared sacrifice for us to brag that we are only raising taxes on those who earn over $180,000 a year," said Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska. "It is political revenge."

Republicans are bearing down now on the retroactivity of the income tax rate increases, saying they want that repealed. They don't have the votes to do it.

The administration approved the Jan. 1 effective date, although Clinton said on Aug. 3 that he'd supported moving it up six months. He said Congress made it retroactive to offset other changes that were vital to getting the votes for passage, and it was better to do that than risk defeat.

Secretary of the Treasury Lloyd M. Bentsen says it's fair the way it is.

"We're not going to change that, in my opinion, because once again, it affects only 1 percent of the people," he said, "people who have done the best during the '80s. ..."

Despite fame, horned toads laying low

By TERRY LEE JONES
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

IRVING, Texas (AP) - He has been buried alive, introduced to the president, cast in films, turned into jewelry and given away as a freebie with fill-ups at gas stations.

But after all those experiences in the public eye - and perhaps partly because of some of them - he hasn't been seen much lately.

He's the horned toad, that sleepy-eyed eater of red ants that many Texans remember from their childhood, when a popular pastime was to rub the critter's belly.

"In my time, Texas was just crawling with them," said June Rayfield Welch, 65, a history professor at the University of Dallas who recently wrote a tiny tome on the toads, which are really lizards, not amphibians.

"They were more of a Texas symbol, really, than the longhorn. But I think that many Texans living now have never seen one. I haven't seen one in 25 years."

Welch's fondness for the "splendidly ugly" little creatures, which state wildlife officials list as a threatened species, prompted the Brownwood native to write "O Ye Legendary Texas Horned Frog!" (Yellow Rose Press; $10.95).

The book, loaded with humor and offbeat Texas history, is a 104-page attempt to educate Texans about the toad, which is threatened largely because insecticides have decimated the red ants the horned toad lives on.

Virtually anyone who has ever seen a horned toad has a soft spot for the animal, Welch says.

"They're not cuddly, but they will relate to you," he said. "One of my mother's buddies had a large horned frog that lived in the vegetable garden, and the family would carry him jars of large red ants. . . . If she was a little slow getting the ants down to him, he would crawl onto the toe of her shoe and look up at her.

"It was that ability they had. They weren't pets, but they were petlike. They're so vulnerable."

Vulnerable - despite horns on their heads and spikes all over their bodies, which is why some predators find them hard to swallow.

Although the lizard can bite, it usually doesn't: It prefers to swell to twice its size or squirt blood from its eyes, Welch said.

The blood-spurting is an unsettling ability scientists once dismissed as a Texas tall tale but now accept, though they aren't sure why the animal does it. Neither are they certain why the toad does push-ups to attract the opposite sex.

The lizard may be shy, but it made a convincing monster when its dimensions were magnified years ago in a science-fiction movie or two. And Fort Worth's Texas Christian University long ago deemed the animal tough enough to be the school's mascot, a nod to the days when the toads swarmed the athletic fields of TCU's old Waco campus.

No discussion of the horned one is complete without mention of Old Rip, Texas' most famous lizard and the center of endless debate, Welch said.

Rip was buried alive in 1897 in a cornerstone of the Eastland County Courthouse, 100 miles west of Fort Worth. He was put there by a county clerk who was curious about old-timers' claims that horned toads can survive for years without light, water or air.

Thirty-one years later, when the courthouse was demolished, the cornerstone was pried open and a toad uncovered - alive and kicking, albeit feebly.

"There's no question that a live horny toad came out of the cornerstone that February morning in 1928, when 2,000 people gathered around to see if it would," Welch said.

"The question is, had it been there 30 years?"

Zoologists snort at the idea, saying it's hard enough to keep a horned lizard alive in captivity under good conditions. But Welch's book also quotes people who deride "smart--aleck scientists." They tell of quarrying limestone or digging wells and finding entombed toads that hopped away when the rocks were broken open.

In Rip's case, "there was witness after witness that said there were a metal seal and several layers of brick on top of that cornerstone," Welch said. "Preachers were there to make it authoritative, and they even made the preachers take off their coats so they couldn't have anything up their sleeves.

"One preacher told a fellow: 'I see something in there. Can you pull it out?' He pulled out something that looked like a dead leaf. And then it started moving .. "

Rip made headlines across the country, and Will Wood, son of the county clerk who dropped a toad into the cornerstone, took the animal on an extended tour, including a brief visit with President Calvin Coolidge.

Then tragedy struck: Within a year of his emergence from the cornerstone, the toad died of pneumonia, the victim of a norther that hit Eastland.

But long after Rip was embalmed, his memory lived on. Eastland, never much of a tourist attraction before, pulled out the stops and used horned toads as a marketing ploy, with gas stations giving complimentary toads to customers who filled up their tanks.

Even today, the body of Rip - or an impostor - is displayed in a show window in the courthouse, "a West Texas Lenin," Welch said.

But some Laredo companies went too far capitalizing on Old Rip, Welch said. They made jewelry by putting baby toads into a substance to form a mold, burning them to ashes and then pouring metal into the mold, much as a statue is cast.

When a horrified Texas Sen. Joe Christie, a onetime Eastland resident, learned about that in the 1960s, he worked for legislation to protect the horned toad, Welch said.

These days, anyone who captures, kills, injures or sells horned toads for any reason other than propagation or research may be fined or jailed.

Recently, an Austin-based group called the Horned Lizard Conservation Society was formed to study the animals, relocate them in the dry, dusty areas they favor, and even breed them.

Welch is keeping his fingers crossed, hoping for a comeback of the crusty creatures.

"It may be the year of the dinosaur," he said. "But for Texans, the lizard of choice is the horny toad."

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) - The Rev. Billy Graham is withdrawing his 1991 endorsement of a hot line that teen-agers can call for explicit advice about sex, his son says.

One message on the North Carolina hot line, called Straight Talk, advises callers that "masturbation is a good and safe substitute for having sex with another person." Another message urges tolerance of homosexuals.

"My father appreciates anybody who is trying to help young people," Franklin Graham said Wednesday. "However, as a Christian and evangelist, he supports those who are using a biblical basis to reach young people."

The elder Graham was not immediately available for comment through his headquarters in Minneapolis.

THE NEGOTIATIONS ARE IMPORTANT

When buyers are asked to list the factors of negotiation when purchasing a home, most buyers list price as the top factor. However, money is not always the most important. A buyer also should be concerned with financing, the possession date, and the inclusion of extras such as appliances or furnishings included in the sale. The seller also should think about what they are willing to leave in the home as sales incentives. After these things are listed, offers and counter offers are made on what stays and what goes. This way both parties can introduce ideas into the negotiations and enhance the outcome for both parties. The most important part of house hunting is the negotiation process! And with the variety of financing available today, the assistance of a professional real estate agency and agent is very beneficial to both the buyer and seller. We are here to help!

Haney: Herd should succeed with JV alumni

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

One starter returning on offense, one on defense.

That's the ominous fact about the Hereford Whitefaces that gets included in every pre-season football publication.

"Our lack of starters seems to be a concern to a lot of people," said an outwardly unconcerned Danny Haney, who is starting his third year as head coach of the Hostile Herd.

Sure, Haney would probably like to have 22 starters back every year, but he knows the cupboard isn't exactly bare.

First, there's that returning starter on defense: 6-foot-5 Mark Kuper. He was a first team all-district selection at defensive end last year. He also shared duties at tight end, and he'll continue to do that this year.

The returning starter on offense is guard Ben Celaya. He's not big for an offensive linemen, but he makes his blocks anyway.

The other returning lettermen are quarterback Elias Reyna, linebacker Gabriel Medrano, running backs Chad Carlile and Justin Wright. Medrano, Carlile and Wright all saw extensive action on special teams last year.

The bulk of the 1993 Herd will come from last year's 9-1 junior varsity squad. Moving up to varsity is a job the JV players were trained to do, Haney said.

"We depend a great deal on the JV to develop our players and have those people ready to play when they're seniors," he said.

"Our JV players have to go into their senior season assuming a starting role on the varsity level," Haney said, adding that if they're not going to play regularly on varsity, they'll be placed on the JV to make sure they get a chance to play.

"We try to make JV as important as anything we do," he said.

Haney said that while JV experience is helpful, it is not the same as varsity experience.

"You cannot duplicate varsity football," he said. "Experience is what these boys need, and through the scrimmages we play and through the non-district schedule they'll get that experience to where, by district, these players are ready to go and take us on to the playoffs...hopefully."

Except for Kuper and a few others, the Herd doesn't have many really big players. Haney said that can be overcome.

"This team isn't as large as it has been--not as large as the last four years--but it's not what you'd call a small team," he said. "We average 185 or 190 across the line, and that's plenty for a high school player. What we don't have is really large people that weigh 250, 260 pounds, but that's not a prerequisite to being a good high school team.

"The parts of a good high school football team are tradition, heart, desire and how hard it plays. That makes up for lots of size. All that dovetails: tradition, heart, desire, and an understanding of how to play the game. That's something we work on throughout their career, from seventh grade through their senior year."

Haney got a good look at his personnel options in an intrasquad scrimmage held Friday night.

"What we looked for tonight (Friday) was improvement in execution and playing hard," Haney said. "I saw improvement from the last scrimmage (on Monday), and our execution was much crisper."

The Herd still has work to do, though.

"It's not so good that we don't need to practice," he said. "We're still going to practice."

The Whitefaces have two weekends before the start of the real season, and they'll use those weekends to scrimmage against two of the better teams in the area: Plainview and Amarillo High.

Hereford will go to Plainview this week for scrimmages against the Bulldogs. The freshmen and sophomores will meet at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, and the juniors and seniors will meet at 6 on Friday.

Haney will set the varsity roster after the Plainview scrimmage, he said.

Amarillo High will come to Hereford for the final tune-up. The sub-varsity teams will meet at 5:30 Aug. 26, and the varsity squads will meet at 6 Aug. 27.

Hereford's non-district opponents are the same as last year: Tascosa, Palo Duro, Monterey, Frenship and Levelland. The Herd starts District 1-4A play Oct. 8, when Borger comes to town.

"Our district is going to be very competitive," Haney said. "All the teams have upgraded their schedules. They play the Amarillo Highs, the Plainviews, the Vernons."

Haney bristles at what Dave Campbell's Texas Football magazine says about District 1-4A: "Once again this looks like the weaker of the two Panhandle district." Texas Football ranks two teams from District 2-4A, Plainview (No. 3) and Estacado (No. 13), as two of the best in Class 4A.

"There are teams in our district--us, Pampa, Dumas, Randall, Borger--that can play with anybody," Haney said. "I think what people say about this being a weak district is not an accurate assessment."

When asked to name a district favorite, Haney shows his confidence.

"I think we're the team to beat--I've got to feel that way" he said, chuckling. "(But) I think Randall and Pampa both have above average teams. Borger is an unknown quantity, and I think Dumas will be stronger."

Borger is an unknown quantity because of the off-season death of head coach Stocky Lamberson--he's replaced by Marty McClintock, an assistant under Lamberson--and because they have nine starters coming back on each side of the ball from an 0-10 team.

"They've got great talent," Haney said. "If they get it turned around, they'll be good."

Randall and Dumas have similar outlooks. Each has only three starters returning from a strong offense, and each has most of the starters back from a weak defense--nine for Randall, eight for Dumas.

Randall, the runner-up in 1-4A last year, has 21 returning lettermen, by far the most in the district. The Raiders are led by Alan Cornelius, a 1973 graduate of Hereford High School in his second year at the Raider helm. In his first year, he took them to a 7-3 record and their first playoff game ever.

Dumas has finished tied for second place in the district at 3-2 each of Ron Rogers two years as head coach, and both times the Demons have lost out on the tie-breaker.

Pampa, led by coach Dennis Cavalier, returns five starters on offense and three on defense from a 3-7 team (3-2 in district).

Caprock went 3-7 last season, winning three more games than it did the year before. Coach Preston Smith has five starters back on each side of the ball.

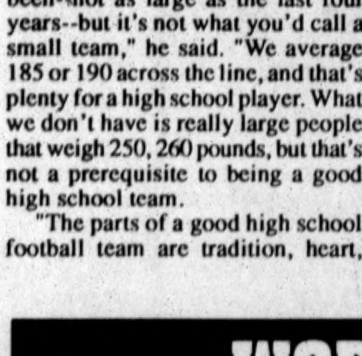

Haney has confidence in the Herd tradition, but adds that there's a lot of work left to do.

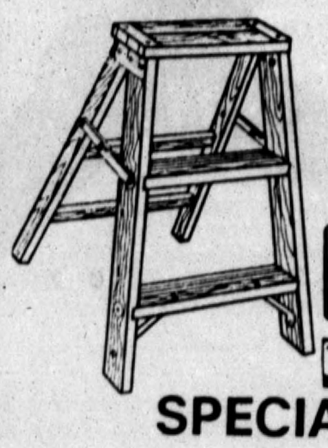

"These young players, first year varsity players--how well they assume their roles, how well they develop, how well they come together as a team, how well they play in non-district--all that goes into what happens in district," he said.

Sackmaster
Mark Kuper (right, white jersey) sets up quarterback Elias Reyna for an unidentified Whiteface to knock him down. Kuper, an end, is one of two starters the Herd returns from last season.

Herd spikers reload for another playoff run

Last season, the Hereford High School volleyball team went to the state tournament for the first time in school history.

Coach Brenda Reeh doesn't flinch too much when asked how she's going to top that.

"Topping it is getting down to the state tournament and winning it all," Reeh said. "Anything less seems like its a disappointment, but it's awful tough to beat being one of the top four teams in the state."

Another trip to the state tournament may be too much to expect from a team that lost nine seniors, five of which were starters. But...doesn't that sound familiar? Last year at this time, Reeh was trying to find replacements for seven graduated seniors, five of which were starters. Reeh found enough replacements for a state tourney berth.

Maybe she will this year, too, but the state tournament is a long way off. The 1993 Lady Whitefaces will have to learn to play together first.

"What this group will have to focus on is not so much winning in the early season, but day-by-day improvement," Reeh said. "We're very inexperienced, especially at the hitting positions. In fact, we don't have one returning starting hitter, so that's where we're going to focus a lot of attention to begin with.

Fortunately for the young hitters, Hereford's one returning starter is setter Kara Sandoval: a fourth-year varsity player, a first-team all-district selection and holder of the school record for assists in a season (728).

"The thing that'll help the hitters is having Kara setting," Reeh said. "Her experience in where to place the ball--that consistency--will help our hitters improve."

Joining them will be four girls from last year's successful junior varsity team: seniors Katie Young, Melissa Berend and Audrey Tijerina, and junior Brooke Bryant. A quartet of sophomores--Heather Hodges, Tarabeth Holmes, Aimee Alley and Deanna McCracken--made the initial varsity roster, as did freshman Danielle Cornelius.

The roster could change, Reeh said.

"It's a unique year," she said. "I can't remember a time when we've been looking at so many kids. We've got a number of kids who deserve a shot at a varsity position. I think it'll be a year where someone starts out on the JV and in three weeks gets moved up.

"We're not going to keep any underclassmen (on varsity) and keep them sitting on the bench. We're going to play them. We'll either play them on varsity or move them to JV where they'll get more playing time."

Some of the youngsters will get thrown into the fire of a varsity match.

"What's going to be tough for most of the kids is many will be moving from a freshman or non-starting JV level to the varsity level, and that's going to require a lot of mental toughness. We're going to ask--demand pretty quick maturity out of some of them," Reeh said.

"I think a very important factor in looking at the entire season is the first month of tournaments and pre-season. Lots of inexperienced players just need lots and lots of court time."

The Lady Whitefaces were to scrimmage Brownfield and Lubbock High Saturday in Brownfield. They'll start the season for real when they host Brownfield at 5:30 p.m. Monday in Whiteface Gym.

Hereford is scheduled to play in three tournaments, in Lubbock, Amarillo and San Angelo. Hereford also has matches scheduled against several of the area's toughest opponents: Amarillo High twice and Tascosa and Coronado once each.

The Herd starts District 1-4A play with a trip to Dumas Sept. 25. Dumas, Hereford's opponent in the last three regional finals, has won the last two district titles outright. Reeh expects the rivalry between the Demonettes and the Lady Whitefaces to continue, and she expects the district's other teams to be improved.

Dumas lost setter Summer Giffin, which will hurt, but they return an improved Jenny Robinson, a 6-foot-2 junior. She looked awkward at times last year, but she's reportedly grown out of that.

"Dumas' tradition of winning will kick in and they'll be the team to beat in the district this year, I think," Reeh said.

Borger, which finished at 6-4 in district play last year, could challenge Hereford's and Dumas's stranglehold on the district.

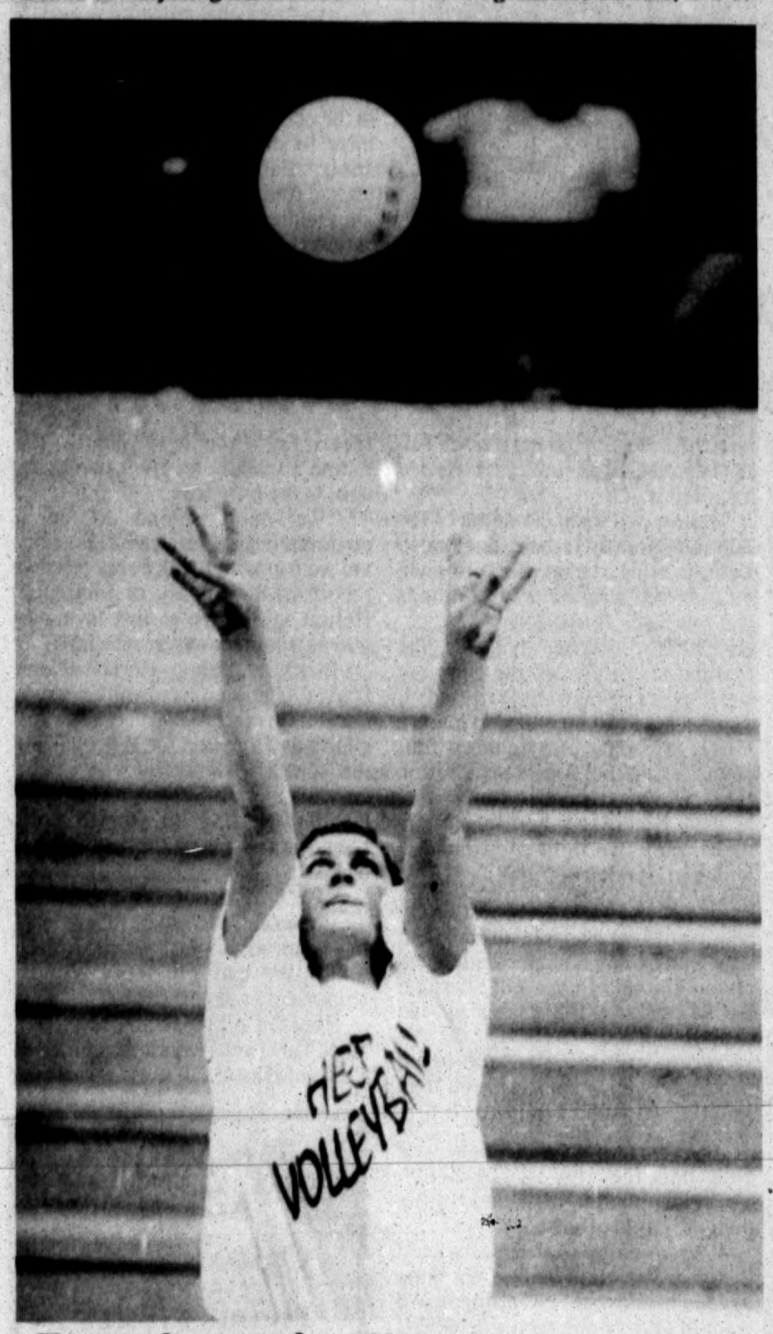

"Borger will be tough," Reeh said. "They had several young kids on varsity, as well as a strong JV team."

Reeh also said that Caprock has some strong hitters coming back, and that Randall had a strong JV last year.

"We say every year the District 1-4A is one of the toughest, but it is true--it holds true year in and year out," Reeh said. "We won't have a district match that we can just sit back and relax."

When it's over, Reeh expects to have another good team on her hands.

"We have more height than we had last year so we should become a better blocking team," she said. "We've got two key defensive players returning (Brock and Evers, each with more than 100 digs last year), so that should be a good foundation in the backcourt. And with an all-district setter--the leadership skills that Kara possess ought to help us gel quickly."

Experienced setter

Setter Kara Sandoval will be the glue that holds the young Hereford volleyball team together.

Longhorns look for young players to fill holes

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Youthful enthusiasm will have to quash inexperience for the Texas Longhorns to end their two-year bowl absence.

Underclassmen and even true freshmen will play key roles in filling voids on the team, namely at quarterback and the secondary, as the Longhorns look to improve on a 6-5 record in coach John Mackovic's second season.

After two successful recruiting hauls, there is no question about talent, only chemistry.

"Last year, we had a new coach, a new offense and it was a matter of getting adjusted to that," said running back Phil Brown, one of only four seniors who were starters last year, excluding kicker Scott Szeredy. "This spring was a lot smoother transition.

"We are young, but we have a lot of talent and things are coming together well. I think we will be able to play with anyone this season," Brown said.

Texas won't have to wait long to see if youth is a help or a hindrance.

The Longhorns open Sept. 4 at Colorado, return home to face Syracuse and then travel to Louisville. A much improved Rice team visits Austin before the annual jaunt to Dallas to face Oklahoma at the Cotton Bowl.

Last year, the Longhorns won five straight games after consecutive losses to open the season but failed to gain a bowl berth when they dropped three of their last four.

The spiral began with a 23-14 loss at Texas Christian on Nov. 7, the Longhorns' first loss to the Horned Frogs in 25 years.

"We had a lack of concentration and just got a little complacent with where we were," Brown said. "We let some games sneak by us. We can't let that happen this year. We just have to really keep focused, We can't look past anybody."

Mackovic is counting on the talent he has returning at wide receiver and on the defensive line. But he does not hide that freshmen could contend for starting jobs in the secondary and even at quarterback.

"I think we have some excellent freshmen who very likely could end up playing," Mackovic said. "Things should be very competitive as fall practice winds down."

The frontrunner to guide Mackovic's complex, pro style passing game remains a mystery. Gone is Peter Gardere, the only quarterback in UT history to beat Oklahoma four times.

Vaunted prep star Shea Morenz, who redshirted last year after an ankle injury, and senior Chad Lucas battled for the job in spring practice with no clear favorite emerging. They will be pushed by highly regarded freshmen James Brown and John Dutton.

But make no mistake, there will be only one quarterback.

"It's been a long time since I shuttled quarterbacks," Mackovic said.

Whoever gets the job will have solid passing targets in Lovell Pinkney, 6-foot-5, and speedster Mike Adams, who shared the team lead with 20.8 yards per catch last year.

Brown, the team's leading receiver with 31 catches for 361 yards a year ago, is a sure-handed threat out of the backfield.

The Longhorns lost leading rusher Adrian Walker to graduation, but Brown and a slew of others who saw considerable playing time last year should ease the loss.

Sophomores Curtis Jackson and Anthony Holmes and senior Gerald Crawford will likely provide the running punch to the Longhorns' pass offense.

Senior tackle Troy Riemer (6-6, 275) and sophomore tackle Blake Brockemeyer (6-6, 274) anchor an inexperienced yet talented line. Junior center Trent Elliot (6-3, 267) and sophomore guards John Elmore (6-5, 275) and Jay Boulware (6-4, 260) are expected to step in for departed seniors.

"I don't know if there will be any major changes offensively," Mackovic said. "We like to balance the game with both the run and pass, but we always have a generous portion of the pass."

On defense, senior middle linebacker Winfred Tubbs is the leader of an athletic and speedy front seven that will alternate between a 4-3 and a 3-4 scheme by allowing certain players to rush from a standing position.

Tubbs, however, will likely miss the season opener with a cut tendon in his wrist.

"We did experiment in the spring with some 3-man line and four linebackers versus the 4-3 all the time and I think that gave a couple players some flexibility in the things that they can do," Mackovic said.

Defensive coordinator Leon Fuller is depending on his line to provide some breathing room for his fledgling secondary.

Junior cornerback Joey Ellis is the only returning starter. Senior safety Van Malone and junior cornerback Victor Frazier are expected to challenge for starting spots.

But freshmen Bryant Westbrook, Tre Thomas, Quinton Wallace and Chris Carter are likely one of the country's top defensive backfields of the future.

"Ellis is going to have to play well at the corner and we are still going to have to decide on the other three spots," Fuller said. "I think we have signed four young backs who might get the chance to play."

Rice finds perfect quarterback

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The marriage of a quarterback and an offensive system helped the Rice Owls achieve their first winning season since 1963 and coach Fred Goldsmith doesn't expect the honeymoon to end this season.

The quarterback is Bert Emanuel, who started last season in obscurity and finished as the fourth most efficient passer in the nation, helping the Owls to a 6-5 record that included talk of a bowl game.

"He made tremendous strides, that's how he ended up the All-Southwest Conference quarterback," Goldsmith said. "He takes the heat off everybody else on the offense. He's so difficult to defense."

Emanuel, who transferred to Rice from UCLA and then sat out a year, wasn't ready at the beginning of last season. But Goldsmith liked the way Emanuel and offensive coordinator Mike Heimerdinger worked together.

"Bert is 100 percent better than at the beginning of last year," Goldsmith said. "He really wasn't ready to take over. It took awhile to adjust some things we did to help him.

"I thought Mike Heimerdinger did a great job of adjusting to Bert's talents and Bert adjusted into the system," Goldsmith said. "It was a beautiful marriage."

Rice had a chance to play in the John Hancock Bowl last year before they lost 61-34 to the Houston Cougars in the final game of the season. They want to go a step farther this season and Emanuel is their ticket.

"Last year, about mid-season when Bert Emanuel worked his way into the lineup, I think we became a balanced team," Goldsmith said. "We really used his talents, the talents of Jimmy Lee, Ed Howard and some of the other receivers. We diversified quite a bit."

Emanuel emerged as the Owls' offensive leader, blending his talents with running back Trevor Cobb. Emanuel was the top rushing and passing quarterback in the SWC. He rushed 680 yards and had the top efficiency rating.

Emanuel starts this season with six other returning starters and only one loss on the offensive line, guard Mike Appelbaum. Still that's an area of concern for Goldsmith with no Cobb back to make his own running room.

"This year we have to have improvement in our offensive line to make it easier for the other running backs to give us that solid running game," Goldsmith said. "You must have that solid running game to win."

Cobb rushed 1,386 yards last season, averaging 126 yards per game.

"Yoncey Edmonds or Spencer George must come in and fill those shoes at the running back position," Goldsmith said. "We still want to be balanced. We don't want to go completely the other way (passing)."

Linebacker Emmett Waldron and cornerback Scan Washington will be headliners in the Owls defense that returns six starters. Defensive tackle Corey Seymour returned last season from 1991 knee surgery and had a good season. He's expected to improve more this season.

"Defensively, we'll be improved, we don't lose many people," Goldsmith said.

Brynton Goynes will replace Matt Sign at nose guard and Larry Izzo will step in at outside linebacker for the graduated Alonzo Williams.

"They were highly recruited and will be tremendous athletes for us this year," Goldsmith said.

New UH coach wants to modify run-and-shoot, improve defense

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - About the only thing that hasn't changed with the University of Houston football program since last season is concern over one of the nation's worst defensive units.

New athletic director Bill Carr wants to upgrade the school's shaky academic image and new coach Kim Helton wants to phase out the run-and-shoot offense that has been the Cougars' identity since 1987.

But the hand-wringing continues over a defense that ranked 104th in the nation with 35.5 points allowed per game among 107 NCAA Division I-A schools. The offense scored 34.4 points per game, ranking No. 7 nationally.

Eight returning starters, headed by end Allen Aldridge and linebacker Ryan McCoy, give Helton hope for slowing down opposing offenses.

"We'll be a four-man front but I want a lot more variation in it," Helton said. "Last year, at times we had excellent defensive formations, we had them outnumbered by a man but we didn't get it done up front.

"At times, our linebackers weren't good and at times the defensive front wasn't good. Overall, I think the secondary was pretty good. On occasion, they were made to look bad by the length of time the ball was handled."

Big changes also are slated for the run-and-shoot offense, which has launched the Cougars to a book full of NCAA records since Jack Pardee installed it.

Helton will keep elements of the run-and-shoot this season but he also wants to bring a change to a pro-style offense that will include tight ends and two-back formations.

"We're going to use the run-and-shoot part of the time but we're going to take the Buffalo Bill approach a little bit and also make a bigger player at one of those four wideout position at times," Helton said.

"We'll play two-back offense at times; play two tight ends and two wide out options at times."

But the era of passing stats in the stratosphere apparently left with John Jenkins, who resigned in April.

The Cougars will rely on the four wide outs this season, but Helton already is planting the seeds of his own pro-style offense.

"We're going to definitely do it this year," Helton said. "We hope to open up against USC doing it. We want to take on the flavor of a NFL offensive team."

Klingler will lead the converted offense and Smith, Ron Peters and Keith Jack are back as starting receivers. Freddie Gilbert, the nation's leading receiver two years ago, is the only loss.

"We don't intend to be a conservative football team but neither are we trying to break every passing record in the history of football," Helton said. "We're just trying to win as many games as we can."

Tackles Jimmy Herndon and Darrell Clapp are returning starters but Helton must replace both starting guards and a center. Joe Wheeler gets the center assignment with Clapp moving to right guard and Kenny Robbins starting on the left side. Herndon and Truett Akin will be the tackles.

"We brag about our offense but the offense also has to be responsible for 46 turnovers last year," Helton said. "We can get better by just eliminating our turnovers."

Houston plays at Southern Cal, hosts Tulsa and plays at Michigan to start the season.

Property Tax Rates in

This notice concerns 1993 property tax rates for City of Hereford. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:

Last year's operating taxes	$ 991,061.98
Last year's debt taxes	$ -0-
Last year's total taxes	$ 991,061.98
Last year's tax base	$ 237,125,831.00
Last year's total tax rate	$ .42	/$100

This year's effective tax rate:

+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 225,176,252.00
= This year's effective tax rate	$ .4385	/$100

In the first year a hospital district or city collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, it must insert the following lines unless its first adjustment was made last year:

– Sales tax adjustment rate	$ -0-	/$100
= Effective tax rate	$ -0-	/$100

This year's rollback tax rate:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for transferred function)	$ 987,503.21
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 225,176,252.00
= This year's effective operating rate	$ .4385	/$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$ .4736	/$100
+ This year's debt rate	$ -0-	/$100
= This year's rollback rate	$ .4736	/$100

A hospital district or city that collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, including one that collects the tax for the first time this year, must insert the following lines:

– Sales tax adjustment rate	$ -0-	/$100
= Rollback tax rate	$ -0-	/$100

Petty's widow strives to keep unique studio intact

By CHUCK McCUTCHEON
Albuquerque Journal

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) - No one would have turned away Vi Petty if she had ever wanted to cash in on rock 'n' roll's memorabilia market.

But as clothes worn by the Beatles, guitars played by Jimi Hendrix and almost anything having to do with Elvis Presley were drawing considerable interest on the auction block, Petty held onto an entire recording studio near downtown Clovis full of collectable treasures, including unreleased songs written by and equipment used by Buddy Holly.

The studio's new overseer plans to continue, and perhaps even expand on, Petty's passionate belief that Clovis should retain its piece of pop music history.

Kenneth Broad, a Portales minister recently given the task of managing the estate of Vi Petty and her late husband, producer-arranger-musician Norman Petty, says he considers it important to keep the restored studio open as a shrine for Holly's fans.

Not only that, he says he'd like to someday open it for regular tours and maybe turn it into a working recording studio again if he can find the $5,000 he estimates would be needed to upgrade the building.

"We're trying to keep it just the way she wanted it," says Broad, a friend of the Pettys for nearly 20 years. "This is the last studio of its kind. We could sell things and get a lot of money out of it if we were greedy ... but that would take away from what's unique about this place."

The Norman Petty Studios are open during the Clovis Music Festival, an annual summer tribute to Petty and local musicians. It remains a popular attraction, with more than 100 people visiting during a single day of last month's four-day festival.

During the rest of the year, anyone wanting to see the place has to call in advance to make sure Broad or someone else can show them around. There's no admission fee - just a wooden box near the entrance for donations.

Before Vi Petty's death in March 1992 at age 63, she often led the tours at the little gray building on Seventh Street.

She took visitors through the front entrance, past the drink machine where Holly would buy Cokes with borrowed dimes and into the engineering booth that hardly anyone other than her husband entered back when it was a working studio.

From there, she led visitors into the recording area. Displayed there are such items as Holly's microphone and Fender guitar amplifier.

Along the way, she showed the room where Holly and other studio guests stayed, its furniture still intact. And she'd talk about Norman Petty, who died in 1984; about the 1978 film, "The Buddy Holly Story," which she considered an inaccurate distortion of the singer's life; and about the time she met Paul McCartney.

"She didn't have anyone in mind that could tell the story for her," Broad says. "She wouldn't have been satisfied to have anyone tell it. She didn't even want to be on tape; she always wanted to do it face-to-face."

Gary Tollett knows "the story" to which Broad refers.

"There's a lot of memories floating through this building," says Tollett, a 60-year-old salesman from Arizona City, Ariz., who visited Clovis during the festival.

As a young man trying to break into music in 1957, Tollett and his wife Ramona sang on Holly's classic "That'll be the Day." That song, along with such Clovis-made Holly hits as "Peggy Sue," "Maybe Baby," "It's So Easy" and "Everyday," influenced countless bands.

Holly's music, which Norman Petty produced before the two split over money disagreements in late 1958, was unlike anything being played at the time. It had drums and a rhythm-and-blues backbeat added to country-derived material, and featured such now-common studio techniques as overdubbing. It made Holly a huge success until his death at 22 in a plane crash in 1959.

Norman Petty, a Clovis native who formed a musical trio with his wife and friend Jack Vaughn, built his studio in the early 1950s. He installed state-of-the-art equipment and soon began drawing musicians from West Texas and New Mexico.

Among the most prominent was Roy Orbison, a Texan who traveled west to record his first hit, "Ooby Dooby." A friend of Orbison's at the time, David Bigham, remembers the first time he saw the studio in 1957.

"This seemed like a big city place to us," says Bigham, of Odessa, Texas.

Bob Linville, who also knew Orbison and Holly, says Holly's vocal backup singers were leaving for Houston, and Holly asked if the two men could help him out.

"We kept saying, 'When is this Petty guy coming in? We want to meet the old goat,'" Linville recalls. "Well, it turns out he had been there all along. We thought he was just a kid. He'd heard us sing, though, and he hired us."

As The Roses, Linville and Bigham became regular singers for Petty, which they learned could be an exhausting experience. They say the producer was a tireless perfectionist who cared more about finding the right sound than watching the clock.

"The longest session we did was 18[hours," Linville says. "For 'It's So Easy,' we must have gone half the night. But that was the beauty of it. There was no time limit."

Linville and Bigham ended up singing and touring with Holly for a year until Holly's death.

Norman Petty kept the studio going until the early 1960s, when he began working from a larger place in downtown Clovis that remains open today.

Over the years, the old studio was used a storage area. After her husband's death, Vi Petty cleaned and restored it to its former glory.

"It looks the same now as it was then, except the color of the walls then was pink," says Linville.

He laughs. "You know, everything in the 1950s was pink and gray."

Like others associated with the Pettys, Linville and Tollett say they welcome talk of opening the studio for recording again or having regular tours.

"The more Buddy Holly fans or fans of Norman Petty get to see this place, the better off it is," Tollett says. "It's a well-kept secret now."

Can you pass back-to-school shopping test?

Back-to-school time usually means back-to-spending on new wardrobes for growing, trend-conscious children.

According to a 1992 MasterCard survey of parent with school-aged children, Americans buy over 45 percent of their kids' wardrobes in time for back-to-school and spend an average of $277 per child. With more kids insisting on buying the latest, hottest brand names worn by their friends or favorite celebrities, parents face an ongoing dilemma--how to please their kids and dress them head-to-toe without spending a fortune!

Here is a list of items kids will be looking for this season:

-5-pocket, denim jeans in deep, rich colors.

-Hooded, plaid flannel shirts.

-Thick-soled "work" boots.

-Crochet-style tops and vests.

-Jeans, jackets and related western attire.

-Cotton and rib-knit bodysuits.

-Colorful backpacks and favorite licensed accessories.

Electric fish, such as the electric catfish, electric eel and electric ray, are capable of producing from 45- to 600 volts of electricity.

Denim mill employs 500 workers

Cotton enters plant in bales, goes out in cloth

LITTLEFIELD--West Texas is known as a forerunner in cotton production. So what better place to process and manufacture the crop than in the heart of cotton country?

One of the world's largest denim plants is located in Littlefield, where it employs more than 500 persons. The American Cotton Growers Denim Plant is a division of Plains Cotton Cooperative Association and produces approximately 28 million linear yards of denim each year.

The Great Plains Agricultural Council forestry committee had the opportunity to visit this impressive manufacturing plant while at their annual meeting in Lubbock. The GPAC is an alliance of land grant universities, several federal and state agencies and others involved in the economic and environmental productivity of the Plains.

The Littlefield denim mill is in operation 24 hours a day and ships 98 percent of its cloth to Levi Strauss & Company throughout the world. The plant currently serves 25,000 cotton producers in Texas and Oklahoma, said Lance Broadhurst, personnel director.

Broadhurst said there are four general stages in denim production.

The initial stage is opening and blending. This deals with the baled cotton fiber being opened and separated into small tufts and then blended together. Carding is next, removing foreign matter from the cotton fibers and transforming the fiber into a web and then a rope-like form known as sliver.

Once the individual slivers are formed, a single uniform sliver is made from all the individual slivers. This additional blending cleans the fibers and prepares them for yarn formation.

Broadhurst said the individual slivers are laid down in the groove of a fast-spinning rotor and twisted into yarn. A spinning machine automatically repairs any broken ends in the fibers and removes full packages of yarn after they are completed.

The second step in production of denim is warp preparation. Individual strands of warp yarn, which is the length-wise yarn in a fabric, are gathered in a rope form and found onto a "log," forming a ball warp.

The indigo dye range is the largest machine in the plant, handling 20 ball warps at the same time. The yarn goes through sulfur dye, wash boxes, indigo dye vats, over a skying device (to allow for denimoxidation), through additional wash boxes, over drying cans and, finally, coiled into tubs.

Broadhurst said that 60 percent of the denim is dyed blue for the front side of jeans and 40 percent is dyed white for the backside. The dye process takes seven hours and 15 minutes.

The tubs are transferred to the next stage of warp preparation, long chain beaming process. This separates the dyed yarn into individual strands and winds them onto a large section beam for slashing.

Slashing takes 10 section beams, coats them with a starch solution and winds the yarn onto a loom beam. The starch solution is applied to enable the yarn to withstand tension and abrasion it will be exposed to in the third stage of weaving.

Broadhurst said the weaving stage interlaces the warp (length-wise indigo yarn) and the filling (natural-colored cross-wise yarn) producing 100 percent cotton denim of 14.5 ounces per square yard.

The last stage of production is finishing. The finishing range brushes and singes the cloth before the cloth enters a finishing solution. The fabric then is pulled to the proper width, skewed, dried and rolled for the compressive shrinkage process.

The shrinkage process reduces the amount of shrinkage that a finished garment will have after being washed. Approximately 14 percent shrinkage in the warp yarn takes place.

After the yarn dries, the cloth is rolled onto an A-frame. Every yard of cloth must pass rigid inspection and be carefully weighed and measured to ensure the proper quality and size.

The Littlefield denim mill was constructed in 1975. It has since served to provide thousands of jobs for South Plains residents and was a major step in the development of a more efficient off-farm system.

From the cotton crop in the field to the pair of blue jeans in the closet, West Texas is home to a multi-million dollar business which encompasses more than just farming.

Keeping an eye on Texas

Texas: A fruitful state

In 1992, the value of Texas' watermelons, cantaloupes, honeydew melons, peaches and citrus was almost $80 million, almost two percent of total crop cash receipts.

Special project initiated

NEW YORK (AP) - Merging skills with community service, 59 Hunter College students this semester will serve as interpreters for non-English-speaking patients in New York City.

"Hunter students speak scores of languages and dialects, from Turkish to Tagalog," says Jan Poppendieck, director of the Center for the Study of Family Policy, which started the Hunter College Community Interpetation Project. "I wanted to find a way for them to earn recognition and college credit while using their language skills to help others."

Interpreters will describe symptoms to health care professionals, says Suzanne Michael, project director. They also will help promote preventive care, such as immunization.

Project participants will join one of two groups.

One will be made up exclusively of Spanish-speaking students, who will receive two weeks of intensive training in interpretation. They will work the equivalent of one day a week at Bellevue Hospital during the semester and earn six college credits.

The other group - fluent in Spanish, Chinese, Creole, Russian and Arabic - will work a half-day each week at child care clinics around the city and receive three credits.

All will build their medical vocabularies and sharpen their interpretative skills through doctor-patient role playing. They'll also attend seminars about delivering health care to a culturally diverse population, learn about interpreting as a career, and write term papers about their experiences.

The Hunter project, thought to be the first of its type in the nation, is being financed by the New York Community Trust, the Fund for the City of New York, and the Aaron Diamond Foundation.

The term "To bark up the wrong tree," or to pursue a false lead, is derived from hunting--sokme say specifically nocturnal raccoon hunting, in which dogs often lost rack of their quarry.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Are commercial frozen vegetables cooked before they're frozen? After I defrosted a package of broccoli and added it "raw" to a salad, it tasted like it had been lightly cooked. — P.K., Waco, Texas

Yes, they are ever so lightly cooked. We checked with a leading frozen-food manufacturer and were told that vegetables are blanched before freezing.

Blanching means the veggies are put in rapidly boiling water for a short period of time, then put in cold water to stop the cooking process.

This helps keep them fresher longer. — Heloise

ONION PEELING

Dear Heloise: The best way I know to avoid tears while peeling and mincing an onion is to hold a saltine cracker between your lips or teeth. It really works. — Elizabeth Renee, Ketchikan, Alaska

NYLON-NET PUFF

Dear Heloise: I have discovered another use for the versatile nylon-net puff.

It cleans mushrooms and celery beautifully and doesn't bruise them. Celery is cleaned in all the little ridges so you are sure there is no pesticide left on either of these vegetables.

I have benefited from so many hints. I hope mine will help other people. — Mrs. C.L. Bauer, Memphis, Tenn.

I'm sure it will, and thanks for sharing your idea with us. With summer here, barbecuing is again popular. I have compiled a pamphlet chock-full of down-home barbecue recipes including some great grilled veggie recipes. To receive a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) envelope to: Heloise/BBQ #4, PO Box 795001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: Often I use small plastic containers for food storage and in my husband's lunch.

When it comes to running them through the dishwasher, I put them upside down on the rack as usual but also into a produce mesh bag that is tied to the rear of the top rack by the closed end of the bag. This stops them from flipping over, and I don't end up standing at the sink washing them out by hand. — Gina Russo, Austintown, Ohio

Dear Heloise: I've found that the best way to get that last bit of salad dressing or jelly out of the jar is to use a long-handled wooden spoon.

Also, the easiest way to store those thick condensed soups is to use a fork instead of a spoon. — R.S., Trevor, Wis.

Local youth compete in 1993 Bake Show

Deaf Smith County 4-Her's participated in the 1993 4-H Better Bake Show held recently at the Hereford Community Center. The district contest will be held in conjunction with the Tri-State Fair with judging on Sept. 20 and awards to be presented Sept. 25.

The purpose of the bake show is to promote the use of the Panhandle's number one agricultural product-wheat; to encourage youth to learn specific baking skills; and to promote good nutrition by preparing and eating whole grain products.

Senior participants included: Moriah Olson, first place product; Karon Harder, second place product; and Cady Auckerman, first place project record.

Other junior participants were Amy Bell, Lenzy Ham, Ashley Bridge, Ann Weaver and Betsy Weaver.

The 1993 4-H Breads Project was sponsored by Ford and Westway Extension Homemakers Clubs and Deaf Smith County 4-H Parent Leader Association.

Funk, Backus wed Saturday afternoon

During a mid-afternoon wedding ceremony Saturday, Brandee Funk of Canyon became the bride of Larry Paul Backus of Amarillo. The marriage was held in St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Hereford with Father Darryl Birkenfeld of San Jose Catholic Church officiating.

The couple's wedding date marked the bride's parents' 28th wedding anniversary.

The bride is the daughter of Terry and Vicki Funk of Canyon and the bridegroom is the son of Fritz and Connie Backus of 119 Oak St.

The church was decorated with two candelabra trimmed in greenery and the altar was accented with three floral arrangements of red roses. Pews were marked by standing candles adorned with burgundy bows.

The bride's sister, Stacy Funk of Canyon, was maid of honor and John Simnacher of Hereford was best man.

Bridesmaids included Juhree Christy, Laurie Lamb and Laquita Scroggins, all of Canyon, and Nicole Hicks of Umbarger.

Groomsmen were the groom's brothers, Wade, Russell, Bob and Glenn Backus, all of Hereford.

Ushers were Drue Gault, Mark Artho, Darren Jones, Ricky Backus and Randy Hochstein.

Candles were lit by John and Jolee Ayers. Lectors for readings were Scott Weaver and Kelly Clenney.

Sharon Cramer accompanied Mila Gibson and John Blackburn as they performed principal wedding selections. Featured were "Ave Maria," "Trumpet Voluntary", "Glory and Praise To Our God," "On Eagle's Wings" and "Wedding Song."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin and schiffli lace gown fashioned with a fitted bodice encrusted heavily with sequins and pearls. It was also designed with a scalloped neckline, V-shaped back and a detachable train.

The waist-length bridal veil was adorned with beads and flowers.

She carried white lilies accented with baby's breath. Her jewelry consisted of two strands of white pearls and matching pearl earrings.

Cake was served by Amy Alford, Amee Cabe and Jennifer Brown.

Tables were covered with burgundy cloths and the bride's three-tiered wedding cake was created with a fountain. Also, served was the Calvin and Hobbs groom's cake.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo following a wedding trip to Jamaica.

The bride is a graduate of Canyon High School and is currently a second semester junior nursing student at West Texas A&M University. She is employed by Northwest Texas Hospital.

The groom is a graduate of Hereford High School and Texas Tech University where he received a bachelor's degree in industrial engineering. He is currently employed by Mason Hanger Silas Mason.

Same safety tips advised for school-age children

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) - Remember mommy telling you not to cross the street by yourself?

That advice still holds for your own children, says Dr. Mark D. Widome, professor of pediatrics at Penn State's Milton S. Hershey Medical Center. But safety concerns of children both traveling to and in school are even more complex. He advises:

- Children under 7 who walk to school - usually kindergartners and first graders - should be assisted in crossing the street.

- Children of any age should be cautioned to cross where there are crossing guards. If the route requires crossing elsewhere, the parent should let the child know which streets they can cross alone and which require supervision.

- Before allowing a child to ride a bike to school, parents need to observe and evaluate the child's riding skill. Most parents overestimate their children's biking abilities, Widome says.

- Riders should wear bike helmets. If they are old enough to ride in the street, they should ride with - not against - traffic.

- Skateboarders should never ride in the street; they should wear bike helmets and knee and elbow pads.

- If your child goes to school on a bus, he needs to know to stay away from buses when he's not actually on the bus. Schools should carefully select bus stop locations. Widome adds schools should replace all buses made before 1977, when safety standards regarding bus construction went into effect. Newer buses have uni-body construction, improved fuel tanks, and high seat backs to compartmentalize students in a crash.

- Playground injuries can be minimized by covering the surfaces with energy-absorbing materials - six inches of shredded tires, sand, pea gravel, or mulch.

- Caution children to stay away from dumpsters.

- Children who are overweight and in poor physical shape are at risk for heat exhaustion and illness on the athletic field. All students should be permitted to drink as much cold water as they want in hot weather.

- Inside the school, don't ask children to help move large, folding cafeteria tables, high carts used to transport film projectors, and televisions, or other large furniture.

Composer George Frederic Handel died in 1759.

Information available for those wanting to live abroad

So you want to live and study abroad?

Some sponsoring colleges and universities arrange single-fee packages including tuition, room, and board. Direct costs to the student usually include airfare and spending money. For specifics, check each college program. These are some typical ones:

- Hartwick College, Oneonta, N.Y. Hartwick and Chaing Mai University in Northern Thailand have launched an exchange program covering both students and faculty, providing month-long study tours. Even freshmen will be accepted for the program, with expectation of return visits in their junior or senior years.

- St. Norbert College, DePere, Wis. St. Norbert students can spend nine weeks teaching in Belize, England, Ireland, Soctland, Wales, Australia, New Zealand or the Virgin Islands.

- Webster University, St. Louis, Mo. This school has four European campuses - in London, Geneva, Vienna and Leiden the Netherlands - where both undergraduate and graduate students can pursue degree programs. Studies range from the humanities to business, and since the student body includes people from all over the world, the campuses have a strong international atmosphere.

- Linfield College, McMinville, Orc. Linfield sponsors intensive-study courses in January at various locations abroad. Some of the courses scheduled for 1994 include Jane Austen (London and Bath); Healthcare in Australia (Melbourne, Sydney and Brisbane); and International Financial Markets and Institutions (London and New York).

- Queens College, Charlotte, N.C. Any full-time student in Queens' college of arts and sciences is eligible for three-week study tours to places like Britain, France and Italy through its International Experience Program.

- Drury College, Springfield, Ill. Architecture students at Drury must take part in an international design study program to get their degrees. These summer institutes last six weeks and cover subjects such as urban architectural design, architectural conservation, and history. Previous programs have been in Florence and Edinburgh.

- Eckerd College, St. Petersburg, Fla. Eckerd offers full-year exchange programs with two Japanese universities - Kansai-Gadai University near Osaka and Nanzan University in Nagoya. Eckerd students also may study at Ewah Women's University in Korea.

Study club meets for summer party

Members of the La Madre Mia Study Club met recently for a summer party at Don and Betty Taylor's "Ponderosa" located north of McLean.

The outdoor lunch was prepared by Don Taylor and was served under a grape arbor.

Following the lunch, the afternoon was spent touring the ranch and visiting.

Club members present were Carolyn Baxter, Ruth Black, Francyne Bromlow, Kay Hall, Gladys Merritt, Bettye Owen, Nancy Paetzold, Marline Watson, Nicky Walser, Mary Beth White, and special guest, Cynthia Hoover of Arlington, Betty Taylor's daughter.

LONDON (AP) - Salman Rushdie made a surprise appearance before 72,000 rock fans at a concert by the band U2.

The author's voice was piped over the speakers Wednesday night at Wembley Stadium, and he appeared to be talking by telephone with lead singer Bono.

"I'm closer than you think," he said, and walked on stage.

Rushdie has been under guard since 1989, when the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called on Muslims to kill him for his novel "The Satanic Verses." Khomeini called the book blasphemous.

The British writer went into hiding but in recent months has been making more and more public appearances.

The concert also featured live pleas for help, via satellite, from three people representing different factions in war-ravaged Bosnia.

Residents' granddaughter marries Saturday evening

Lubbock residents, Kellie Ann Sims and Michael Claiborne Lowder, were united in marriage early Saturday evening in St. Luke's United Methodist Church in Lubbock.

Officiating for the ceremony was the Rev. Les Hall of Wilmore, Kty., the bride's former youth minister at St. Luke's United Methodist Church in Lubbock.

The bride is the daughter of former Hereford residents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Sims of Lubbock. She is also the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Mercer and Mrs. Fred Sims, all of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Sue Boyd of Crosbyton.

The bride walked down the aisle of white satin and greenery to an altar decorated with mixed white English garden flowers. The church was aglow in candlelight and draped with greenery.

Melanie Ramsay of Lubbock served as maid of honor and the bridegroom's brother, Steve Lowder of Chicago, Ill., was best man.

Bridesmaids included Christi Wiser and Carrie Frizzell, both of Austin; Kelli Smith of Greenville, the bride's cousin; and Ann Lowder of Chicago, Ill., the groom's sister-in-law.

Serving as groomsmen were the bride's brother, Charles Sims of Lubbock; Bryan Vincent, San Angelo; Ron Bellamy, Houston; and Jay Lowder of Chicago, Ill., the groom's brother.

Guests were escorted by the bride's cousins, Adam and Arik Housley of Napa, Calif., and Ryan Henry and Karl Edwards, both of Lubbock.

The groom's cousin, Kelsea Blackstock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Blackstock of Lubbock, was flower girl. The bride's cousin, William Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davis of McAllen, was ring bearer.

Monica Nell of Lubbock, accompanied by Mrs. Jim Cribbs of Lubbock who played the organ, sang "Heirlooms," "I Will Be Here" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a delicate hand-cut lace gown of white bridal satin. It was fashioned with an off-the-shoulder neckline and a lavishly beaded appliqued re-embroidered lace bodice that dipped to a basque waistline. The stovepipe sleeves featured open lace appliques and hand-cut lace, and a decorated oversize bow marked the back waistline. The gown's skirt swept into a chapel-length bridal train.

The bridal veil of soft tulle gathered onto white satin rosettes with pearls set upon the petals. Flowers were centered in the back of the satin rosettes with pearls and baby's breath cascading down.

The bride carried a full cascading bouquet of casa blanca lilies, champagne roses and white dendrobium orchids tied with French white ribbon. She also carried a handkerchief that belonged to her great-grandmother and was carried by her mother at her wedding. She wore a diamond necklace that was worn by the groom's great-grandmother.

The bridesmaids wore long sheaths of black crepe designed with white Venise lace portrait collars. They carried bouquets of casa blanca lilies tied with white French ribbon. The flower girl carried a basket of mixed white English garden flowers.

Monica Nell of Lubbock served cake and Nedra Bray, also of Lubbock, poured punch. Stephanie Smith of Lubbock presided at the groom's table.

The background music at the reception was provided by Kelly Bell, pianist.

The bride's table was covered with a white bangueline cloth swagged with white floral satin. Punch was served from a silver and brass bowl. Complementing the three-tiered bridal cake, accented with fresh mixed flowers, was a bouquet of mixed English garden flowers in a brass stand setting on the hors d'oeuvre table.

The groom's table and cake were trimmed with mixed greens. The German chocolate cake was garnished with chocolate dipped strawberries, white crystal grapes and lemon leaves. Coffee was served from a silver coffee service.

The couple will make their home in Houston following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico.

Out-of-town family members attending the wedding included Mrs. Bill Grigsby of Rock Hill, S.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Travis Caraway, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Keene, Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Keene, Brent and Jessica, and Mr. and Mrs. Randy Smith, all of Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur John Housley, Adam Housley and Arik Housley, all of Napa, Calif.; Mrs. Art Housley, Sonoma, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Feagan, Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davis and William, McAllen; and Mrs. Gerald Hamby, Hereford.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Texas in Austin where she was active in Phi Beta Chi and the American Marketing Association. She is employed by Deluxe Corporation in Houston.

The bridegroom attends Rice University in Houston where he is a candidate for graduation in December. He serves on the Jones College Cabinet and is a member of the Rice Rugby Team.

Prenuptial courtesies extended to the bride were a lingerie shower, hosted by high school classmates, and a miscellaneous shower. Both were held in Lubbock. A bachelorette party, which was hosted by college classmates, was held in Austin.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the County line and the bridesmaids' luncheon, hosted by the bride's aunt and cousins was held at Lakeridge Country Club.

NEW YORK (AP) - Jack Kemp is drawing on his experiences as a quarterback and a congressman for a book on his political philosophy and his plan for revitalizing America's cities.

"I want this book to be much more than a personal memoir," he said in a statement Wednesday. "I want this book to spark a real debate over which ideas and policies will lead our country in the 1990s."

The former Buffalo Bills quarterback served nine terms in Congress before taking over as housing secretary for the Bush administration.

Kemp is also considered a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1996. The book, published by Random House, is due out in the fall of 1994. Details of the book deal were not disclosed.

Anglican clergyman William Archibald Spooner was born in London in 1844. Spooner, who became Warden of New College, Oxford, gained a reputation for transposing words or parts of words - errors that became known as "spoonerisms." Spooner died in 1930, but spoonerisms - such as the one Harry von Zell committed on radio when he introduced the 31st president of the United States as "Hoobert Heever" live on.

Auxiliary meeting scheduled Tuesday

King's Manor Auxiliary will hold its summer meeting at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Lamar Room of the Manor. The program feature will be a presentation by Joe Weaver of the Deaf Smith County Library staff of his latest first-person view of history, this time of Texas lore.

The meeting is open to everyone who would like to hear Weaver's impersonation of a Texas Ranger, cowboy and Confederate veteran, in costume. He will tell in their words of some historical highlights. He calls the monologue "Texas Under Four Flags."

It has been given this year in schools in Hereford and also at Canyon. Last year, Weaver earned audience approval for a similar look at history, that time in the costume of a member of Columbus' crew on his voyage of discovery, telling in his own words of the long trip.

There will also be a business meeting of the Auxiliary directed by Ruby Stevenson, president. Reports will be given on current projects of the Auxiliary to make life more pleasant for Manor residents.

SAN FERNANDO, Calif. (AP) - Rick James' girlfriend was a victim of abuse by the funk singer, a prosecutor said as the woman pleaded guilty to assault.

James, 44, and Tanya Anne Hijazi were charged with beating Mary Sauger, 34, of West Hollywood after she met the couple in a hotel room on Nov. 2 to talk about a record label he established.

Miss Hijazi, 22, pleaded guilty Wednesday to assault and agreed to a prison term of four years.

"She's pleaded guilty because she appears to also be a victim here, a victim of physical and mental abuse by James," Deputy District Attorney Andrew Flier said.

Residents' daughter married here July 31

MR. AND MRS. JASON BRADSHAW

Carrie Dawn Skelton of Austin and Jason Derek Bradshaw of Fort Lewis, Wash. were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, July 31, in the First United Methodist Church of Hereford. The Rev. Joe Wood of the church officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Donnie and Grace Skelton of 218 Ave. B. and the bridegroom is the son of Phyllis Alvarado of Arlington and Butch Bradshaw of Clyde.

The church was decorated with two spiral candelabra trimmed with greenery. Family pews were marked by peach bows and a wedding banner and communion banner were displayed. A Bible was placed at the altar.

The bride's cousin, Stephanie Skelton of Longview, was maid of honor and the groom's grandfather, Ted Richardson, was best man.

Serving as bridesmaids were Jessica Schuder and Babara Blocker of Austin. Groomsmen were the groom's brothers, Jim Bradshaw and Gary Bradshaw.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore an elegant white satin gown fashioned with a wedding ring collar, fitted bodice, long sleeves with lace appliques, a basque waistline and full skirt which swept into a chapel-length train. A designer's bow marked the back waistline and lace appliques adorned the skirt. The hemline was edged with delicate scalloped lace.

The bride wore a veil of illusion belonging to Jessica Schuder as something borrowed. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses and carnations with baby's breath and greenery tied with candlelight ribbons.

She also carried a handkerchief which was worked into the bridal bouquet. It belonged to her great-grandmother. In keeping with bridal tradition, the bride wore in her shoe coins marking the bridal couple's birthdates.

Bridal attendants wore knee-length suits of peach satin. The jackets were trimmed across the shoulders with cream lace. The maid of honor carried roses: two peach roses and one long stem white rose with baby's breath, greenery and candlelight ribbon. Each attendant carried one peach and one white long stem rose accented with baby's breath, greenery and candlelight ribbon.

The groom's cousin, Kayla Richardson, invited guests to register at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Leigh Sanders of Austin served the bride's cake and the groom's aunt, Debbie Richardson, served the groom's cake. Punch and coffee were poured by Stephanie Taylor of Austin.

The bride's cousin, LaFawnda Mays of Friona, assisted with the rice basket and family members and friends assisted with the reception.

The bride's bouquet was used as the centerpiece for the bride's table and the three-tier bride's cake, made by Kyle and Jessica Schuder, was topped with bridal figurines. A German chocolate cake was placed on the groom's table which was centered with a floral bouquet of peach and white carnations.

Leaving on a wedding trip to Vancouver, Canada, the bride was attired in a blue and white knee-length dress. The couple will make their home in Tacoma, Wash.

The bride is a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School where she was involved in several school organizations including the National Honor Society and band. She was a drum major her senior year. She is currently a junior at St. Edwards University in Austin. Before leaving Austin, she was a branch manager for Horizon Savings and Loan.

The groom graduated from Hereford High School in 1989 where he was involved in several organizations including NHS and band. He is currently a specialist in the United States Army serving at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Vaccine celebrates anniversary

Today's parents no longer live in fear that their children will contract polio, a disease that once disabled thousands of children and young adults. Thirty years ago, the oral polio vaccine became available in the U.S. Currently, young adults know little about polio.

According to a survey conducted by the National Easter Seal Society and Lederle-Praxis Biologicals, only 26 percent of adults under age 30 know or have met someone with polio, compared to 53 percent over age 50.

"It's critical that new parents in their 20s and 30s understand that polio wasn't a threat to them because they were immunized, and that they must take the same precautions with their children," said James E. Williams, Jr., president, National Easter Seal Society.

Polio affects spinal cord motor nerve cells, which can lead to paralysis, muscle weakness and arthritis, among other serious medical consequences.

Children should be immunized against polio at two, four, six (optional) and 15 months of age and again between four and six years old. The oral polio vaccine is available from Lederle-Praxis Biologicals.

In 1893, J. Frank Duryea drove the first gasoline automobile in the United States, at Springfield, Mass.

The destruction of the 200-year-old Order of the Knights of Templar began in 1307. The leaders of the order were burned at the stake in 1314.

Cummings is best speaker at Toastmasters meeting

Joe Don Cummings was named best speaker during the Hereford Toastmasters Club meeting held recently at the Ranch House. Linda Minchew was chosen best topic speaker.

Wayne Winget, who served as presiding officer, led the pledge and Joe Weaver gave the invocation.

Jigger Rowland was wordmaster and the chosen word was conducive.

Weaver served as topicmaster and topic speakers were Winget, Dave Kimmel, Barndt, Sharon Cramer, Dan Hall and Linda Minchew.

Jigger Rowland spoke on "People Building People" and Joe Don Cummings spoke on "Og Mandino."

Barndt gave the reading and Weaver told the joke. Charles Minchew was general evaluator.

Special guest was Dan Hall.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: They may never let me back in the state of Iowa, and I would not blame them.

I made a major gaffe that has produced a ton of mail, most of it from the Midwest, where I was born and raised. A reader who asked about "cow-tipping" said cows sleep standing up. My authorities responded that although cows can doze off while standing up, they actually sleep lying down.

Several weeks later, I printed a letter from a reader who informed me that cows cannot lie down because of the way their front legs are construct-ed. It turns out that the writer of that letter was handing me a line of bull. Here is a sample of what I have bene hit with for a solid two weeks.:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a cattle breeder with 60 years of experience, I feel qualified to respond to "No Bull in Texas"

I don't know if Texas has different breed of cows, but the ones in Iowa lie down to rest and sleep, and they have no trouble getting up from that position, unless they are sick or injured.

As for college kids who go "cow-tipping" for fun, this is total nonsense. It would take a whole fraternity to tip over a cow, and even then, I doubt they could do it. SIgn me--A Fellow Iowan

DEAR FELLOW IOWAN: You are right about cows lying down, but wrong about cow-tipping. That's for real. It takes four or five students to do it, but it's quite a sport on several campuses. And thank you for not sending me any photographs of your herd lying down. I already hav at least 200 pictures of cows sleeping, and I do not need any more evidence. The next letter is from Wisconsin:

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's Wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER

Estrogen, exercise and extra calcium are important in keeping bones strong.

Estrogen, exercise and extra calcium are "like independent legs of a three-legged stool, they all work together, but they cannot substitute for one another," according to Dr. Robert Heaney, M.D., professor of internal medicine at Creighton University in Omaha.

A recent Australian study of postmenopausal women found that a combination of exercise, plus calcium, slowed bone loss, while a combination of exercise plus estrogen actually increased bone. But exercise alone was not effective.

Children, teens and women in their thirties can lay down bone and build an early defense against osteoporosis by increasing physical activity and getting enough calcium.

Experts believe that intake of calcium should be higher than the RDA recommendation of 800 milligrams a day for adults to reduce the risk of osteoporosis. The National Institutes of Health and the National Osteoporosis Foundation recommend that adults consume 1,000 milligrams of calcium daily. Because estrogen conserves calcium, the recommendation of postmenopausal women who don't take supplemental estrogen is 1,500 milligrams.

Drinking three to five 8-ounce glasses of milk daily is the best way to meet recommendations, according to experts. Eating calcium-rich non-dairy foods and low-fat dairy products can help women who do not like milk, are lactose intolerant or are concerned about calories, fat and cholesterol.

Studies show that most women do not get enough calcium-rich foods to meet the RDA. Therefore, a calcium supplement may be needed.

When selecting a calcium supplement, there are a few things you should know:

-Many supplements do not dissolve enough to be absorbed by the body. Most calcium tablets now meet disintegration or dissolution standards. The U.S. Pharmacopoeia (USP) that set federal standards for the composition and quality of drugs and vitamin supplements.

-Stick with brand name products or large chain-store brands. Look for labels stating the supplement meets USP standards or has passed a 30-minute dissolution test. Avoid supplements made with bone meal or dolomite. These may be contaminated with lead.

-Dosage--The number of tablets you'll need to take depends on the type of calcium a supplement contains. Calcium carbonate is the most widely used supplement because it contains the most calcium per tablet--more than other sources, such as calcium lactate, calcium gluconate or calcium citrate. Calcium carbonate is more convenient and less costly. Check the label to find out how much calcium each tablet contains.

-Timing--How well you absorb calcium may depend on when you take it. Calcium is best absorbed when it's taken in divided doses rather than all at once. If you're taking calcium carbonate, be sure to take it with meals. Stomach acids secreted while you eat help to absorb the calcium.

It is never too early to help prevent osteoporosis from developing later in life. You can help deter this disease by:

-Eating foods rich in calcium as part of a well-balanced diet. Consider a calcium supplement or fortified juice to meet your daily needs.

-Exercising regularly, emphasizing weight-bearing activities such as walking, aerobics or racquet sports.

-Not smoking or drinking excessively. It can reduce calcium absorption.

STURGIS, S.D. (AP) - Waylon Jennings, one of country music's "outlaws," said before performing to a biker-heavy audience that he looks upon motorcycle enthusiasts as today's cowboys.

"I've been around bikers and Hells Angels, and I kind of look at them as modern-day cowboys," he said before performing Wednesday at the Bentshoe Festival, near the Sturgis Rally and Races, a gathering of bikers. "I've found it's kind of a matter of territory - don't mess with theirs, and they won't mess with yours."

Jennings, 56, has one boast no other biker at the rally can top - he has the Aerial motorcycle once owned by rock pioneer Buddy Holly.

Jennings toured with Holly in 1959 and was booked on the fateful flight in which Holly was killed, but gave up his seat to the Big Bopper. He said he doesn't ride the British-made bike much because it's "all backward."

KEEPING YOUR GLASSES LOOKING GOOD

Now that you've made an investment in a good-looking pair of prescription glasses or quality sunglasses, it makes good sense to protect them and keep them looking good. Here are a few tips:

- Use a case of your glasses whenever you're not wearing them.
- Clean off dust or lint from the glasses with a soft cloth, and use a lens cleaner to remove smudges and oils. Don't use fingernails to pick off a spot on a lens.
- Remove glasses gently with two hands. Pulling them off with one hand will strain a hinge and may cause the temple to break off.
- Similarly, don't wear glasses on top of your head; the temples will stretch out of shape.
- Never place glasses face down on a table or other surface. And never put them in a bag or pocket without a case.
- If our glasses have plastic frames, be careful not to leave them on the dashboard of your car on a sunny day.

Between The Covers

By JOE WEAVER

Where did the summer go? Just a few days ago, it seems, we were wondering what we were going to do for the Summer Reading Program and now school will be starting this week. For some that will mean more time to read, and for others it will mean less. Some of you have been asking about the videos donated by Silver Screen. Many of them should be out this week.

That brings up another point. Sometimes you ask for a book and we'll tell you we have it, but it is not processed yet. I know that's frustrating, not being able to check out a book that we have in the facility, especially when it takes a while. Now I know that you're probably not the least bit interested in what goes on "behind the wall" here, but I'm going to tell you anyway.

First, we have to get the book, and there are a variety of ways. Some are given to us, some are ordered from traveling salesmen, and some are sent "preview," or "on approval." The lion's share, however, are ordered from a distributor, generally Baker and Taylor. (The books with the green slips across the bottom are leased from the same company, with an option to buy later). We first have to decide WHAT we want to buy, judging from patron's needs and interests. Then we decide what we can afford among the hundreds (thousands?) of books published annually.

The order is then placed, shipped, and received. After the invoice arrives, we check to see that it matches what we received. We write the name of the supplier in it, and place it on a cart "behind the wall."

There the title is searched in the computer records. If the record is there, the book is barcoded, covered, and a date slip placed in it before it goes on the shelf.If a book is not of a specific nature (reference, how-to, most cook-books) it is placed on a shelf to be selected as one of the twenty new books (ten fiction, ten non-fiction) that "go out" each week.

If the title is not in the computer records, then pertinent information about that book must be entered on a form and sent to the Harrington Library Consortium offices on the campus of Amarillo College. There, HLC employees enter the data into the computer record and notify us that the "no-hit" is not a "hit," and can be processed normally.

If you are thoroughly confused, don't worry. I still don't completely understand the process after two years of explanations. There are many places for a delay to occur, but generally, when we get it in our hot little hands, we get it right out.

If you or your child likes Ninja Turtles, you need to come by and look at the display by David Kaesheimer and will be going to kindergarten at St. Anthony's this year. He has been collecting Ninja Turtles since he was two. Michelangelo is his favorite, but he apparently enjoys them all. David and his older sister Jennifer enjoy frequent trips to the library with their mom. (I once heard their Dad tell the Kiwanis that you couldn't find a better value in town than the golf course, but I set him straight!)

New fiction books this week include The Hammer of God by Arthur C. Clarke, John Saul's Guardian, and a best seller by Susan Isaacs--After All These Years. Non-fiction includes Fame In The 20th Century (A companion to the PBS Series), Origami Animals, and The Sixties.

See you at the library!

Annual Bippus Community Homecoming held recently

The Annual Bippus Community Homecoming was held recently at the Bippus Community Church.

Mrs. Charles Higgins presided over the reunion with assistance from Joe Weaver and Mrs. Jimmie Bradley, program chairman. The music and group singing were conducted by Charlene Pietsek and Mrs. Ernie Baird with Weaver delivering the message. A special was presented by Don Evans and Mary Farris.

A memorial service, presented by Mrs. Jerry Homfeld, honored those who had been deceased since August 1991: Tom Hall, Norman Jacobson, Virginia Chapman Hays, Edwin Banks, Gene Brock, Juanita Perrin, Laura Bradley, Elaine Pinnell, Herbert Bippus, Robin Fortenberry, Jack Weaver, Lola Landers, Murl Brown, Joe Brownlee and Hobby Williams.

During the memorial service, Mrs. Homfeld read "When I Must Leave Thee" followed by group singing, "Precious Memories" and "Amazing Grace." Weaver recited the memorial prayer.

Mrs. Jimmie Bradley recognized a special group. Traveling the farthest distance were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Farris of Amarillo; oldest woman present, Sue Thweatt; oldest man present, Carl Hagan; youngest boy, Caleb Pietsek; youngest girl, Ann Weaver; youngest teenage girl, Kristy Homfeld; oldest teenage boy, Matthew Baird; and the largest family represented, the Jack Weaver family.

Mrs. Higgins expressed regrets of those who were unable to attend: Mrs. Birdie Dodson, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Draper, Anna Kovacs, Mrs. Gene Brock, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kirby and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Higgins.

A business meeting was conducted with Mrs. Ernie Baird reading the minutes.

New officers were elected: Mrs. Charles Higgins, president; Joe Weaver, vice president; Mrs. Jimmie Bradley, assistance vice president; and Mrs. Ernie Baird, secretary.

Following the lunch, the afternoon was spent participating in group singing, playing games and other activities.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Don Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Farris, all of Amarillo; Sue Thweatt, Carl Hagan and Don Fortenberry, all of Friona; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Homfeld and Kristy and Roy; Chris Burns of Adrian; Kenneth Homfeld; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Weaver and Ann and Betsy, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Baird and Matthew and Trevor, and Charles Higgins, all of Hereford; and Mary Dorris of Clovis, N.M.

The next Bippus Homecoming will be held the second Sunday of August 1995.

Survey pinpoints water crises

There's help on the way for millions of Americans without adequate water and waste water services.

A national survey conducted by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association shows that the nation's rural electric cooperatives are poised to play a major role in developing central water and sewer facilities. Most rural Americans are not connected to central water and sewer systems. In some areas, more than 90 percent do not have adequate water and sewer service.

Without these services, experts report, rural areas face human health problems and a dead end in trying to create jobs and expand and attract industry. The survey results reveal how massive the challenge is. Using cooperative know-how and innovative technologies, however, rural electric cooperatives are willing and able to take on the job, according to Bob Bergland, NRECA executive vice president.

The survey revealed the depth of the problem. With 402 of the nation's 1,000 rural electric cooperatives responding, nearly 50 percent said they plan to seek information and funding to develop water and sewer systems in their service areas.

"Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy has asked us if we can expand our role in rural communities into water/sewer service. We accept this challenge. It's a natural expansion of our community development efforts and we're working on legislation that will make rural electrics eligible for water/sewer financing programs," says Bergland.

A dozen rural electric co-ops are already operating water utilities and more than 120 co-ops met at NRECA's headquarters recently to learn more about how they can help their communities develop water/sewer services.

According to John Neal, NRECA Administrator of Energy Research and Development, rural electrics and uniquely positioned to develop small rural water/sewer facilities. "electric co-ops have a long history of involvement in the communities they serve," he explained, "It's a win-win situation for co-ops and rural consumers."

CLEVELAND (AP) - Dennis Barrie, the museum director cleared of obscenity charges for an exhibit of Robert Mapplethorpe photographs, has a new job: director of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum.

Barrie was named Wednesday as the third director of the oft-delayed museum. It was supposed to be finished in 1988 but has been plagued by problems with location and money. Ground was finally broken in June.

"I have a high-culture background, but I've always been very interested in pop culture," said Barrie, who lists Sting, U2, Peter Gabriel and The Who among his favorites. "It's one of the most potent forces in the world."

Barrie, 46, resigned in 1992 after 8-1/2 years as director of Cincinnati's Contemporary Arts Center.

CLIMBING THE LADDER

(First of Two Parts)

One of my wise friends defines success a having as much money when you retire as your friends wish they had. He tells a little story about a farm implement dealer who retired with a million dollars in the bank. That, my friend said, was a real success.

My friend went on to say that he ask John Deere man to what factors he attributed his success. The retired dealer said it was due to 35 years of hard work, paying strict attention to costs and expenditures, dealing with integrity, and to the recent death of a great-uncle who left him $994,000.

I realize that some of you may not agree with my wise friend's definition os success. I'm not sure that I agree with a description of success that equates the worth of an individual with the size of their bank account. Personally, I've known some "no accounts" that had a lot of money.

However, I've never met anyone who would choose poverty and failure over success. Most folks I know prefer wealth, success and respect from their peers. Be that as it may, I'm certain we all have differences in how we define success.

Defining Success

Roy L. Smith said, "Success isn't measured by money earned but by service rendered." Elbert Hubbard wrote, "Some men succeed by what they know; some what they do; and a few by what they are." Ben Sweetland said, "Success is a journey, not a destination."

Even wise philosophers have different definitions success. However, we probably can agree on one point: We should not base our level of success solely on the end result. The true measure of success should consider how much progress we make in our journey toward our destination.

Perhaps I can illustrate this point with an example or two., Take for instance, a physically disabled person who overcomes adversity to live a reasonably normal life and support a family. This person may be a much greater success that a physically gifted athlete who earns millions from tennis shoe endorsements. Another example might be a poor person who through hard work rises above that poverty to become completely self-sufficient. That individual's success may soar above the rich son's rise to become president of his father's company.

Success, when considered in this light, is personal. It is a process of striving for what you really want to achieve. It is climbing the ladder to a point where you can enjoy thoroughly what you are doing and are compensated adequately for doing it.

Success is to reach a point of fulfillment with one's own life. Will Rogers said, "All there is to success is satisfaction."

One Rung at a Time

What about those of us who are not satisfied with our position in life? How do we climb the ladder success? What can we do to attain respect, wealth, honor, fame or whatever we feel would satisfy our innermost longings? How do we achieve the fulfillment of our dreams?

We climb the ladder of success one rung at a time. And, as the old English Proverb says," He who climb the ladder must begin at the bottom." While the answer may appear simplistic, it is accurate.

Next week we will share how some very successful people view success. We will show you how to set your ladder on a firm foundation. We will give you five common rungs found on every successful person's ladder. Don't miss "Climbing the Ladder" Part II.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 48-year-old female and am having a problem losing weight. I weigh 170 pounds and am 5 feet 4 inches. I watch what I eat, do aerobics and step exercises and walk two to three miles four times a week.

When I was in my 30s, I took an over-the-counter diet pill called Dexatrim for several years to control my weight. I have been off them for seven or eight years. This is when I gained 40 pounds. Could my metabolism have changed from taking the diet pills so many years? I was thin all my life until about 40, when I gradually started gaining weight. I had a hysterectomy when I was 26 and my ovaries removed at age 29. I take Premarin every day and Dyazide daily for high blood pressure.

DEAR READER: People often attribute a change in their health to some specific event, as in your case having used Dexatrim. That is a mistake in logic. The two things, gaining weight and having used Dexatrim, are coincidental and I would not think the Dexatrim, that you must have stopped when you were about 40, was a cause for your gaining weight. Stopping it may have been a factor, because you may have increased your calorie intake at that time.

Also, people gain weight or body fat at specific phases of their lives. Young girls develop the body-fat deposits characteristic of the female figure when they reach puberty. That is controlled biologically by a person's genes. Many women seem to have a similar change at mid-life, say, 40 to 50 years of age. This period coincides with the time most women enter the menopause, and that is why the menopause is often blamed for the weight gain, when in fact it may be unrelated. If you are programmed to increase body fat at age 40 you will do so unless you employ heroic efforts. And that is not always good for a person's health either. The effort turns many middle-aged women into middle-aged versions of anorexia nervosa, usually seen in young girls who want to be excessively thin.

For a better understanding of body weight and what can be done about it, read my new Special Report 144, Sensible Weight Control, that I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/144, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. The guidelines and diet in the report may help you with a program that will help. It is important for you to lose weight because of your high blood pressure. There are medical reasons to lose weight and having high blood pressure is one of them.

DEAR DR. LAMB: The enclosed wrapper from a Quaker Oatmeal packet states the heart pumps 15,000 gallons of blood a day. According to my calculation this figures to be about 10.4 gallons per minute, give or take a drop or two. Can this possibly be true? It sounds like an awful lot to me.

DEAR READER: No. But the packet actually labels that statement as "fact or fiction." The reverse side says that in your lifetime your heart will pump enough blood to fill 13 giant cargo ships. Well, that may depend on how long you live.

In the adult at rest, an average amount of blood pumped by the heart is about 1 gallon a minute — not 10.4. Even the heart of the best endurance athlete will not pump more than about 30 liters (7.5 gallons) a minute during exercise, and this cannot be sustained for a long time.

The bottom line is that the statement that the heart pumps 15,000 gallons a day is "fiction" not "fact."

DEAR DR. LAMB: I lost my spleen several years ago and was wondering if there is any vitamin or drug I should be taking for my blood.

DEAR READER: The first question is how and why you lost your spleen. If it was from an injury, as in an automobile accident, that is quite different from having it taken out for a number of medical conditions.

The spleen filters the blood and entraps old blood cells which are destroyed within the spleen. When the spleen is overactive, it sometimes destroys too many cells and that is one reason for a splenectomy. It also plays an important role in your immune system. Anyone who has lost his spleen needs to be sure that his vaccinations are current. Often they need to be repeated because of the poor immune response in these individuals. For example, the pneumonia vaccination, even if effective initially, will usually need to be repeated within five years.

_____ Property Tax Rates in _____

This notice concerns 1993 property tax rates for HOSPITAL. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:

Last year's operating taxes	$ 869,754
Last year's debt taxes	$ 190,922
Last year's total taxes	$ 1,060,676
Last year's tax base	$ 482,125,465
Last year's total tax rate	$ .2200	/$100

This year's effective tax rate:

+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 473,459,360
= This year's effective tax rate	$ .2240	/$100

In the first year a hospital district or city collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, it must insert the following lines unless its first adjustment was made last year:

– Sales tax adjustment rate	$ -0-	/$100
= Effective tax rate	$ -0-	/$100

This year's rollback tax rate:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for transferred function)	$ 869,754
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$ 473,459,360
= This year's effective operating rate	$ .1837	/$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$ .1984	/$100
+ This year's debt rate	$ .0379	/$100
= This year's rollback rate	$ .2363	/$100

A hospital district or city that collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, including one that collects the tax for the first time this year, must insert the following lines:

– Sales tax adjustment rate	$ -0-	/$100
= Rollback tax rate	$ -0-	/$100

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Not only is she "Forever Your Girl." Paula Abdul told jurors they had also made her the "happiest girl in the world" by rejecting a backup singer's claim that she deserved more credit on Abdul's debut album.

Yvette Marine had sued Virgin Records for $3 million in 1991, claiming her voice was electronically combined with Abdul's to create lead vocals on several songs on the 1988 album.

Abdul, who wasn't a defendant, arrived in federal court immediately after the verdict Thursday, crying and hugging jurors.

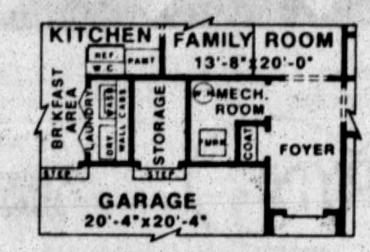

"I'm just overjoyed to get this over with," she said. "I haven't slept in I don't know how long. Now I can get on and work without anything in the back of my head."

The 31-year-old pop star had insisted Marine had no part in the lead vocals. Marine had sought unspecified royalties and credit for her work on the album.

FLOOR PLAN

A conservative 50' 6" width expands into a comfortable home plan arrangement. Although the total square footage is only 1,488, many modern amenities are provided.

There is a separate foyer, formal dining room, more than adequate breakfast nook and kitchen, garage access, laundry area and an enormous family room with vaulted ceiling and fireplace.

The cottage exterior is constructed of combined brick and horizontal wood siding. The roof design is both gable and hip.

The plan is Number 479 and includes only 1,488 square feet of heated space. It is a computer generated plan. All W. D. Farmer plans are furnished with special construction details for energy efficiency and are designed to comply with FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Question/Answer

Q. Our house sweats inside when it's cold outside. The windows steam up terribly on winter days. Water runs down the sill to the walls and all the way to the baseboard. The house is framed with R-30 insulation in the attic. Other homes in the area have the same problem. They were all built in 1954. I know storm windows would help but they're expensive. Do you have a cheaper solution?

A. We've run into excessive humidity in the house for years now, and it appears that yours is a classic case. To cut down on humidity, an exhaust fan in the bathroom and kitchen venting damp air to the outside is a must.

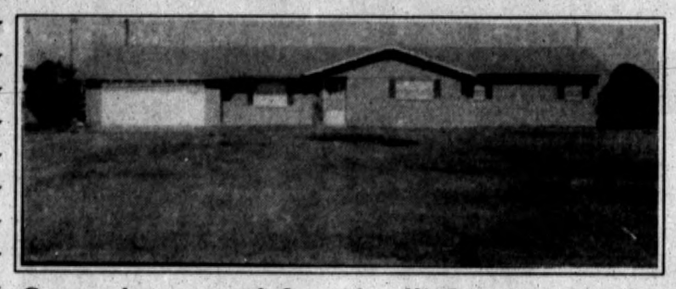

Although storm windows may appear as an unwanted expense to you now, stack their cost against the value of your house. This makes them appear relatively inexpensive and they should save their cost in fuel bills in a few years.

Condensation is caused by warm moist air coming in contact with the cold glass in your windows. Storms should help to keep the window glass from becoming so cold that condensation forms. This can prevent serious damage to the walls by staining, plaster damage and wood rot over a long period of time.

Jamb liners lower costs in renovation

Old, worn-out double-hung windows are the main source of drafts and energy loss in many older houses. Replacing even a modest double-hung window may cost as much as $250, but it can be renovated for a fraction of the cost using a jamb liner kit, which typically costs about $50.

Years of opening and closing, the settling of the house and effects of the weather take their toll on a window. Wood sashes are durable, but the jambs they ride in wear out. The sash becomes loose in the jamb, and large gaps develop in the center meeting rail, allowing air to leak between the jamb and the sash and between the inner and outer sash.

Although the damage done to the window may have been years in the making, the renovation takes only a couple of hours per window.

Jamb liner kits made of vinyl or a combination of aluminum and stainless steel provide fully weather-stripped channels for old sashes to ride in. These replacement jambs, teamed with a high-quality exterior storm window, give the window a heat-loss efficiency equal to many double-glazed replacement windows.

The new replacement jambs have weatherstripped tracks that fit old window sashes snugly. Friction holds the windows open, eliminating the need for sash weights. This makes it possible for you to insulate the sash-weight compartments, and stop another source of air infiltration.

The jamb liner must be at least as long as the existing window jamb is high. The manufacturer of your jamb liner may have specific instructions about measuring for the liner. For instance, one manufacturer asks that you measure the glass area of your window and then consult a chart to determine the correct size of the liner to purchase.

If you have a nonstandard site-built window with one or more different-size sashes, measure the distance inside the window channel between the bottom of the sash (not the window sill) and the top of the sash. Purchase a jamb liner kit that is at least as long as, or longer than, this measurement.

To install the new liners, first lubricate the edges of the jamb weatherstripping with the silicone lubricant provided in the kit. Next, place the windows in the jamb liners and check that the angled bottom of each liner faces down. Slide the windows together to the center of the jamb liner, then place the bottom of the liner into the old jamb.

Raise up the jamb liners and windows so the pointed end of the liners are as far forward as possible in the old jamb and rest against the outer stop. When the liners are fully upright, temporarily secure the top of the jamb liners with a nail or screw - but don't drive the fastener home.

Slide the windows up and down, and check their fit in the jamb. They may be difficult to move at first, but the jambs will loosen after some use. If everything checks out, fasten the jamb liners to the old jambs with a nail or screw driven through the top of the jamb. The inside stop holds the jamb in place, so these fasteners are needed only until you install this stop.

Installing spring-loaded jamb liners allows the sashes to be removed for cleaning and repair. This job is only a little different than installing standard replacement jambs. These jamb liners are made from aluminum with a stainless-steel wear strip. They are not available in vinyl.

The spring-loaded channel is screwed or nailed to the left side of the existing jamb. A jamb liner is snapped into place on top of this, and a standard jamb liner is installed on the right jamb.

Durable finish needed on woodwork

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Newsfeatures

Window sills, door trim, crown moldings and baseboard require a durable protective finish. A good, long-lasting paint job on woodwork and trim involves careful brush work - and that takes a little practice.

It's worth the effort, though, to learn how to prepare and paint woodwork correctly because it really brightens a room. Done properly, a good paint job lasts for many years and withstands repeated cleanings.

In any painting project, first prepare the surface by cleaning and patching it, then paint it. If you're painting the walls and woodwork, begin by patching the walls and the trim so all surfaces are smooth. Paint the trim first, then paint the walls. It's easier to wipe a little paint off woodwork than to get trim paint off a wall.

Wash the woodwork with a solution of water and Spic 'n' Span or trisodium phosphate (TSP). If phosphate cleaners are banned in your area, use a good household cleaner. Rinse the woodwork and let it dry.

Latex or vinyl (water-based) paints are the predominant choice for the home painter and are best for walls. However, latex semigloss and enamel (glossy) are not as abrasion resistant as oil-based paints (especially important on the window sash, handrails and sills) and can't be cleaned as many times as oil-based paints.

Latex trim paints dry quickly, and this makes it difficult to avoid lap marks - even for the most experienced painters. These paints dry to a softer and more flexible film than oil-based paints. Objects placed on latex paint can stick in place if left a long time, even after the paint has dried.

On the plus side, latex paint is easy to clean up. Spills wipe up with water, and brushes can be quickly washed in the sink. And because it doesn't contain petroleum-distilled solvents, latex paint is less of a threat to the environment.

Oil-based paint provides a tough, durable finish that's ideal for woodwork. It dries slowly to a hard surface. The paint comes in four levels of gloss: flat, eggshell, semigloss and gloss. You clean up oil-based paints with paint thinner (also known as mineral spirits).

Most trim paints cover between 350 and 400 square feet of surface per gallon. Painters allow about 8 square feet of paintable area for each window and about 25 square feet of area for each door. Extra paint is needed for the window's trim or casing and its jamb.

Upkeep reduced with vinyl

For many a homeowner, home improvement time every few years means getting out ladders, shopping for paint and paintbrushes and spending a weekend or two painting the house.

Hiring a contractor means you don't have to spend time shopping for the equipment. But, you still have to put up with the sight of ladders and scaffolding all over the place.

"There is a way, however, to do it once," reports a trade organization, Vinyl Siding Institute. "Re-side with vinyl and it will all but take care of itself."

Vinyl siding can eliminate painting. So the cost, bother and time involved in painting and re-painting is eliminated. It also updates the looks of a home while reducing the costs of upkeep and maintenance.

About the only care it requires to remain new looking for years is an occasional rinse with a mild detergent and water.

Since it has color throughout, scratches won't mar the appearance. Designed to last many years, vinyl siding won't corrode, peel, pit or rust.

Available in a range of colors to blend or contrast with other exterior colors, vinyl siding comes in horizontal or vertical styles and in smooth or woodgrain textures.

A full line of matching accessories, such as shutters, gutters, downspouts, fascia, soffits and other trim can further reduce the cost bother and time involved in maintenance of a home.

Vinyl siding

The clean, attractive appearance of solid vinyl siding is appealing to some homebuyers. Its use on this house assures the owner of years of durable service with little maintenance. About the only care required is an occasional rinse with a mild detergent and water.

According to George Bernard Shaw: "A life spent in making mistakes is not only more honorable, but more useful than a life spent in doing nothing."

Flashing will prevent water seepage in roof

Flashing is used to prevent moisture from entering under the roof covering wherever two or more planes of a roof meet or wherever the roof meets a vertical surface.

It is also used along edges of roofs and other windows or doorways to direct moisture away from the house exterior and structural framing. Roll roofing material is widely used for flashing, particularly along ridges and hips, and at valleys.

However, the most durable flashing materials are sheet aluminum, copper or galvanized steel. All are sold in rolls especially for the purpose.

Chimney flashing is usually in two parts: the base (or step) flashing, which wraps completely around the base of the chimney and extends several inches under the roof covering, and the cap (or counter) flashing, which covers the top edges of the base flashing.

Flashing should be inspected at least once a year, as it is a prime location for roof leaks. Look for cracks and separations where the flashing meets the chimney, vent stack, dormer and abutment walls, and where roof planes meet at valleys.

Sometimes damaged flashing is discolored. Very old flashing sometimes develops pinholes which are hard to see. So, if possible, check the roof from below for leaks.

To maintain and repair flashing, coat all flashing seams periodically with asphalt roofing cement, especially at chimney and vent stack seams. Apply the cement using a small mason's trowel and smooth the contours of the cement so that it does not form hollows and ridges where water may collect and eventually lead to leaks and damage.

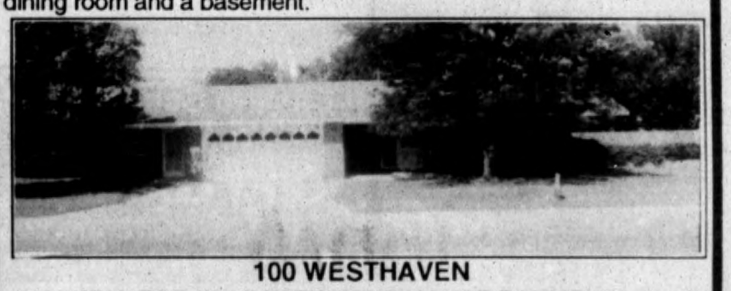

Metals in contact with certain acid-containing woods, such as redwood and red cedar can also corrode. When purchasing flashing, exterior wood shingles or siding, and fasteners to match, check with your building materials supplier for advice.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	.15	3.00
2 days per word	.26	5.20
3 days per word	.37	7.40
4 days per word	.48	9.60
5 days per word	.59	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $4.15 per column inch; $3.45 an inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

NOTIFICATION OF FmHA'S FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT

The Farmers Home Administration(FmHA)has received an application for financial assistance from Hereford Seniors Community, Ltd. The specific elements of this proposed action are construction of a 28-unit FmHA Section 515 rural housing apartment complex in Hereford, Texas on 2.015 acres in the northwest sector of the city, accessible from Jack Griffin Avenue.

FmHA has assessed the potential environmental impacts of this proposed action and has determined that it will not significantly affect the quality of the human environment. Therefore, FmHA will not prepare an environmental impact statement for this proposed action.

Any written comments regarding the determination should be provided within 15 days of this publication to Mr. L. George Ellis, State Director, FmHA, Room 114 Federal Building, 206 East 5th, Amarillo, Texas 79101-1559. FmHA will make no further decisions regarding this proposed action during the 15 day period. Request to review the FmHA environment assessment upon which this determination is based or to receive a copy of it should be directed to the above address.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that the City Commission of the City of Hereford, Texas, will conduct a public hearing on Thursday, September 2nd, 1993, at 7:30 p.m. at the City Hall, 224 North Lee Street, Hereford, Texas 79045, and the purpose for the public hearing will be to consider a project which has been proposed by the Deaf Smith County Hospital District.

The Deaf Smith County Hospital District has requested the city of Hereford, Texas, to convey to the Deaf Smith County Hospital District the following described property, to-wit: Lot No. 1 in Block No. 10 of Whitehead Addition to the Town of Hereford, Deaf Smith County, Texas. The property was originally conveyed to the City of Hereford, Texas, to be used as a park for the benefit of the public, and the property is located immediately to the East of the current Hospital facilities.

The Deaf Smith County Hospital District intends to construct health care facilities on the property. The health care facilities will house the Hospital's physical therapy department, and the majority of the health care facilities will be leased to physicians who are members of the Medical and Dental Staff of the Hospital.

At the public hearing, the City Commission will consider and determine whether (1) there is no feasible and prudent alternative to the use or taking of such land; and (2) the project includes all reasonable planning to minimize harm to the land as a park, recreation area, scientific area, wildlife refuge, or historic site, resulting form the use or taking. This notice is given pursuant to Chapter 26 of the Texas Parks And Wildlife Code.

DATED: August 2, 1993.

By CHARLES BOISSEAU
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON (AP) - Tucked away in Houston's north side barrio, Gilbert Moreno's aging tortilleria is dark, cramped and stifling in the midmorning heat.

The ceiling is sagging in places, threatening to "come down on us," he admits.

But physical appearances can deceive when it comes to the promise of the tortilla business.

Sales at Moreno's company, La Monita Mexican Food Products, are growing 20 percent a year, and two shifts are needed to keep up with demand, Moreno said. The operation makes up to 1.6 million tortillas a day at three small tortilla factories.

"We're out of space," laments Moreno, 55, who is forced to use his Mercedes as an office when shuttling between plants. He plans to consolidate all the operations into a large, modern facility in November.

La Monita is one of more than a dozen tortilla factories in Houston, including several that have grown to employ 100 workers or more.

They are trying to keep up with the booming tortilla business, which is being fueled by a regional and national love affair with Mexican food and a rise in immigration from Mexico and Central America.

Tacos, burritos and tortilla chips - long mainstays in Houston and the Lone Star State - are becoming as familiar as hot dogs, hamburgers and french fries in places like Peoria, Ill.

And, as profits get bigger, bigger companies are becoming interested in taking a bite of the market. Experts predict a consolidation will sweep the industry in the coming years, shaking up what had been the domain of mostly family-owned mom-and-pop operations.

Major companies like Tyson Foods and ConAgra have entered the business, and big firms are beginning to acquire smaller operators.

To survive the expected wave of consolidation in the years ahead, many of the estimated 400 U.S. tortilla companies may be forced to expand operations, increase marketing and improve product quality, experts say.

"Tortillas used to be viewed as a commodity, and brand wasn't important," said Irwin Steinberg, executive director of the Encino, Calif.-based Tortilla Industry Association. "But now brand is becoming important because of the marketing expertise of the larger companies."

Of course, there's good reason tortillas - a staple in virtually all Mexican dishes - are getting attention from investors these days.

Mexican food is the country's fastest-growing ethnic food, with more than $2.2 billion in sales in 1992 - a year when Mexican sauces made history by dethroning ketchup as the king of condiments.

Americans now eat more tortillas than bagels, English muffins or pita bread. Tortilla sales have quintupled in the last decade to more than $1.5 billion in 1990, according to the Tortilla Industry Association. Sales are growing 15 percent a year and will reach $3 billion in 1995, the group predicts.

* Doctor of Osteopathy degree, University of Osteopathic Medicine and Health Sciences, Des Moines, Iowa
* Internship, Michigan Medical Center
* Orthopedics residency program, William Beaumont Army Medical Center at Ft. Bliss, Tx.

Dr. Walker began seeing patients in Hereford August 2. His training and background include extensive experience in family practice (including OB), emergency medicine, sports medicine, and industrial/occupational health.

A native of Idaho where he garnered honors as an "all-state" football player, Dr. Walker began his training in the United States Army where he first trained as a basic medical specialist. He continued taking specialized medical training, including a three-year stint on the European campus of the University of Maryland in Frankfurt, West Germany, where he completed an associates degree in pre-med studies, before going on for his advanced degrees.

As a physician in the Army, Dr. Walker was able to practice sports medicine, industrial medicine, and family practice. He dealt with the types of injuries soldiers in training might receive and healed injuries from accidents on the job, such as might occur in civilian life. His practice also included caring for the soldiers' dependents, so he delivered babies, cared for newborns and young children, and doctored the whole range of illnesses a family might encounter.

He and his wife Janet have eight children, five of whom live with them.

HISD to offer free, reduced meals for eligible students

Hereford Independent School District this week announced its policy for providing free and reduced price meals for children served under the National School Lunch and Breakfast Programs.

The regular price for lunch and breakfast is $1 and 50 cents at primary and intermediate schools; $1 and 75 cents at junior high; and $1.25 and 75 cents at high school.

The household size and income criteria have been identified in application forms distributed to all households with a letter informing residents of the availability of the free and reduced price meals for their children.

Generally, if a person gets food stamps or AFDC for a child, that child can get free meals. If the total household income is the same or less than the amounts on an Income Chart on the application, the child can get free or reduced price meals. A foster child may get free or reduced price meals regardless of income. The reduced price is 40 cents for lunch and 30 cents for breakfast.

Household size and income ranges from one at $12,895 annual income to eight and $44,752 income.

Applications have been distributed to households, and they are also available at the principal's office in each school. To apply, households must fill out the application and return it to the school.

Applications may be submitted anytime during the school year. The information households provide will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility and verification of data.

For further information, or to make a formal appeal for a hearing on the decision of the application, parents may make a request, either orally or in writing, to Don Cumpton, assistant superintendent, 136 Ave. F, 364-0606.

In the operation of the child feeding programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated againsts because of race, color, sex, national origin, age or handicap.

Pointers for parents

As the new school year begins, plan to spend more time with your little ones.

What to do? Let the school-tool experts help make the back-to-school season safe and fun for everyone.

-Kids love to put things in their mouths. Before working on any project make sure the art supplies you use are safe. Choose products which indicate on the package that they meet the standard ASTM D 4236 code.

-All kids love to paint...buy what a mess. Use washable markers which easily wash out of clothing.

-Don't use old art supplies. You may not know what's in them and they may contain toxic ingredients.

Decision-making in early childhood helps to adjust

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Youngsters whose parents let them "fly" early have the least trouble adjusting to college life, says a psychologist at Rochester Institute of Technology.

"Parents who encourage independence in their children and offer them chances to make up their own mind progressively throughout childhood really are best preparing them for life on their own - which begins for many with the freshman year in college," says Dr. John Mitchell, counselor, psychologist and associate professor at RIT.

Freshman living away from home for the first time are dealing with culture shock, he says. There are different clothes and lifestyles, loss of the known peer group, a need to make new friends, cross-cultural living with roommates in a small space, lack of privacy, and homesickness added to the responsibility of academic work.

"There are so many issues that new students face," says Mitchell. "The longed-for freedom can become a lousy experience, especially for kids not used to making up their minds in different circumstances and new settings."

Those who fare best, he says, are the youngsters who have been brought up to feel good about themselves and confident in their decision-making skills. While not immune to "chaotic-looking" periods, they emerge as unique individuals.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) - Ohio teen-agers are getting the straight poop about college life from the experts - students currently on campus.

Who else would think to advise the prospects to bring quarters and posters? University of Dayton senior Mike Franks, a member of a volunteer student panel which travels around the state, points out to future freshmen that they'll need plenty of quarters for doing laundry, and that the posters will cover bare walls nicely.

UD students travel in small groups to high schools, dispensing advice about both the serious and practical sides of campus life. Junior Letitia Golf also has led groups of students who visit the university, as well.

"They want to know how tough it really is," she says. "I tell them it's difficult, but it's not so hard that you have to study 100 hours a day. But it's not one big party, either. A lot of students have that misconception, that you get to hang out all day."

Those who visit the campus usually want to see how people interact, how the food is, and what the sports facilities are like, she says.

Panelists advise prospects to visit both local and out-of-town schools before choosing a college. And while they're visiting, the panel adds, they should stop in and try out the cafeteria.

Residence life can be enriching

Here's the key, Sir or Ms., to your new home, the dormitory.

And let us introduce you to your new roommate, selected by the residence office matchmaker with more care than usually lavished on a royal marriage.

Together you will embark on your first experience of independent living - with separate bank accounts.

You do know how to budget and balance a bank account, don't you? And you're aware that you and your mate are responsible for your own laundry, housekeeping, and decor? That you will be learning to get along with each other and your neighbors?

Picking Roommates

Heed Greg Kneser, associate director of residence life at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., who says that more students leave college for non-academic reasons than academic ones, with poor roommate relationships ranking high on the list of causes.

He offers this advice:

- Get housing preference forms filled out as soon as possible after you learn you've been accepted at a school. Be honest with yourself in answering questions about housekeeping styles, sharing tendencies, music preferences, smoking and drinking habits. That way, the residence staff will have a better chance to find you a compatible roommate.

He adds a caveat: Answer the questions yourself, without help from your parents. "I tell parents not to even look at completed preference cards."

- Don't pick your best friend as a roommate. Rooming together will put new stress on the friendship when both parties find their household and personal habits don't mesh full time. Instead, request rooms nearby, so you and your friend can see each other often without living together.

- If there's someone you'd prefer not to have as a roommate, say so in a note attached to the preference questionnaire. Reasonable requests of this type usually are granted - though not regarding sexual or racial preferences.

- Contact your new roommate before school starts so you can avoid duplicating household items. Kneser points out it's also a friendly gesture to start the relationship on a positive note.

- Once you've taken up residence, learn to appreciate your roomie's differences. Talk about issues which could cause potential problems, such as having visitors and sharing belongings. If conflict does arise, nip it in the bud by talking it out instead of letting your anger build.

Handling Money

Now that you're living independently, you'll be coping with those things that always had been taken care of by Mom and Dad - phone bills, parking fees, meals, school supplies and books, entertainment, and so on.

Plan a budget that covers the entire academic year, advises David Miller, director of financial aid at The College of Wooster in Ohio.

"As obvious as it may seem, some new students do not realize that they have to buy books for the second semester, too, not just the first," he says. "They need to figure those second semester costs into the budget and remember to have enough money left at the end of the year to pay their last telephone bill or even their ticket home."

Miller says money management is a critical factor now that overall education costs are so high.

The first thing to find out when planning a budget is what's covered in direct fees to the college. Many schools include extra-curricular events on campus and some services in their overall fees.

Investigate whether your school provides free telephone service, what the parking fees are, and whether different meal plans are available.

Miller has some money-saving advice:

- When you can, buy used textbooks, either from the campus bookstore or from students who have completed courses you're about to take. If you can get course reading lists ahead of time, you may discover some titles available at libraries on campus or in your hometown.

- Choose meal plans that fit your eating habits. If you're a late riser, don't pick one that includes breakfast. "Don't pay for meals that you aren't going to eat, but don't skip meals that you have paid for. If your plan includes weekend meals, pass up the chance to go to the pizza shop on Saturday night, and eat in your dining hall."

- Make long-distance calls during off-hours to get the best rates. "Even better, resurrect the art of correspondence and use stamps rather than the phone," Miller says.

- Pick up extra money with a job. You might find a temporary or part-time position if you can't find or don't want a full-time job. Miller says that most campuses have a clearinghouse for jobs, or you can go out and find work on your own.

- Do your own laundry, either on campus or at a nearby laundromat, rather than subscribing to the college linen service.

- Finally, Miller advises, do everything you can to complete your degree as early as possible. "Students can begin by choosing a place where it is possible to finish in four years, where they can get all the courses needed to complete the degree in that time. Then they can even think about summer school or other opportunities that might enable them to accelerate their progress."

Housekeeping

What should you bring to set up housekeeping in a dorm room?

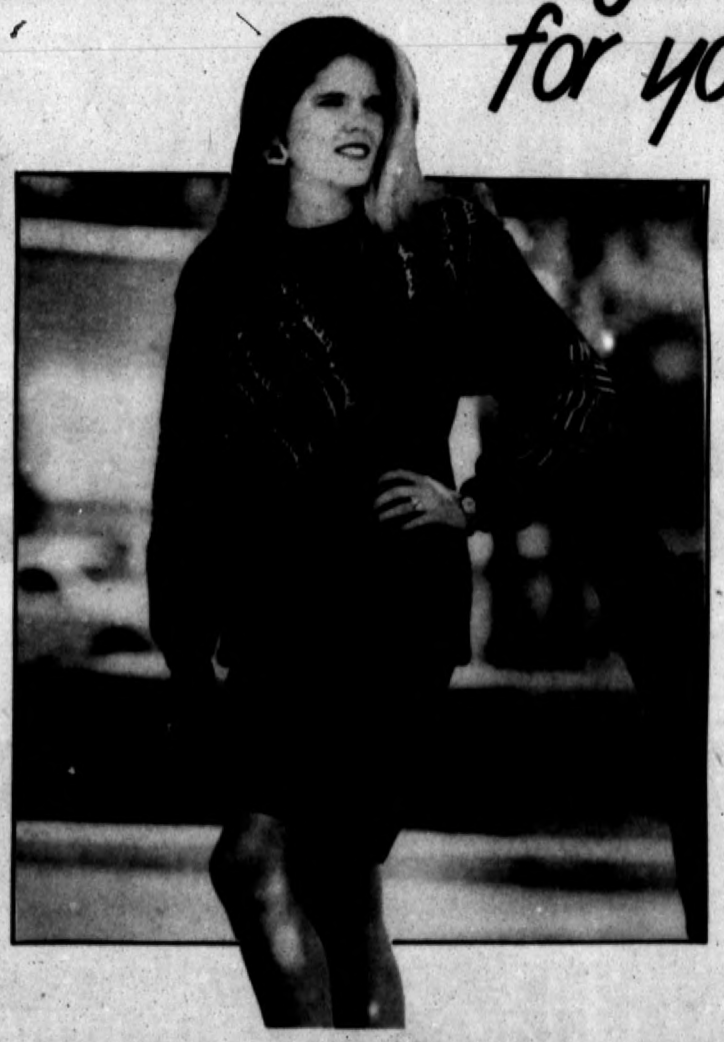

It's not summer camp, points out the housing department at Clemson University in Clemson, S.C. Bring clothes for all seasons you expect to be on campus - not just enough to last until the first home break.

Dress in stripes for fall

By FRANCINE PARNES
For AP Special Features

Stripes are a fashion staple that look fresh in any season and, with direction, look good on almost everyone.

They can be as neat as a pinstripe, as cheerful as a candy stripe, or as bold as an awning stripe.

"Stripes are clean. They're smart, they're crisp, they're easy," says Karen Kane, Los Angeles sportswear designer. "They're what people are looking for in summer, and they're the great no-brainer."

Well, not quite. There are a couple of things to get straight. One is to make sure the stripes match at the seams before you buy. And before you try, remember that horizontal lines make you look wider, while vertical accentuates height. So make those stripes work for your body type.

"Stripes going up and down draw your eye in those directions," says sportswear designer Andrea Jovine. "I'd call my vertical-striped dress an 'anybody dress' - anybody can wear it.

"But if the stripes are wrapping around your body, you have to have a pretty terrific figure because they have a tendency to make you look wider and draw your eye across."

The stripes on Ralph Lauren's skinny navy and white midriff tees go 'round, but he designs with the sylphlike body in mind. They're a fresh go-with for Lauren's silk drawstring pajama pants. Other updated looks for summer stripes include Adrienne Vittadini's coral and white low-waisted flare pants in silk or linen and Bill Blass' long sheer evening skirt in black and white.

For fall, the perennial pinstripe takes on a new attitude. Linda Allard, who designs for Ellen Tracy, made wool pinstripes into a sleeveless jacket, oversized shirt and long slim skirt.

"It's the modernized pinstripe - yet still a very polished look for someone in business," Allard says.

Todd Oldham stripes up some strange combinations for his early fall designer and bridge lines. For example, he turned British regimental stripes into a multicolored patchwork pattern on a silk vest.

"When you think of regimental stripes, you mean those diagonal stripes you'd see on a men's necktie," Oldham says, "but when we patchwork them together, it becomes very novel, very untraditional."

For his new take on bell-bottoms, he offered them up in stripes of juicy, fruity hues, along with fitted vest and jacket.

While Oldham likes multiple colors, Jovine likes multiple widths.

"What's fun is mixing the stripes, the little ones with the big ones," says Jovine. But she offers this advice: you can carry a bolder stripe on top, while a narrower stripe is more flattering for pants.

Jovine's resort line includes rayon and cotton knit separates in a mix of awning and fine stripes and unexpected colors such as peacock or prune with white.

"Stripes are useful for all those people who don't like patterns and won't wear florals or plaids," says Cho, president of New Image Inc., an image consulting firm in New York. "They're great for people who need some texture and balance in their outfits."

Then, consider the message you want to send. Both color and width have something to say. Navy and white stripes evoke a traditional look, black and white is sophisticated and red and black is considered sexy. Red and white is sporty, and awning stripes and rainbow stripes are playful and bold. They fare best on the weekend.

"They're crisp and give a message of energy and activity," Cho says. "They should be starched and pressed to look their best."

For a power play, try banker's stripes or chalkstripes.

"They're a look of sophistication, authority and self-confidence," Cho says. "They signify that the wearer has her head in the right direction for work."

Encourage children to use math

By actively engaging children in meaningful math activities early on, they will not only see the relevance of mathematics in their daily lives, but they will also continue to enjoy the challenges that further study has to offer.

Educators stress the need to dispel the myth that math is difficult and, aside from arithmetic, irrelevant to everyday living.

In the past, parents have felt they couldn't help their children because they would not understand the math their children were doing - a problem with "New Math." But there are simple ways by which parents can encourage their children to use math in their daily activities. Among them:

- Let children help with simple measurements and calculations when preparing a recipe.
- Encourage children to keep a "running total" of their allowance when saving to make a special purchase.
- Read the sports stats together from the daily newspaper.
- Let children figure out how much change they'll get back when making a store purchase.

Parents: Grungy look is hot

By The Associated Press

The extended outlook is for continued variations of jeans, overalls, T-shirts and sweats - funked up with patches, logos, and chunky jewelry and accessories - with occasional breaks for a dainty dress or two, a suit or a classic sweater.

- Some of the prettier items on the market come from the granddaddy of coveralls, Oshkosh B'Gosh, which manages to merge feminine details with practical basics. There's the Whispy floral cardigan sweater in acrylic, which can be worn with floral print paperbag denim pants and a white cotton blouse with an embroidered collar. Or a button-front jumper in dobby navy check plaid which has apples woven in and can be worn with coordinated socks, hat and a screen-printed T-shirt with bows. Both sets are in sizes 2-4 for toddlers and 4-6x for girls.

- A classic pinafore in checked Viyella, paired with a white blouse trimmed in matching tartan ruffles, can be found at Laura Ashley. Also offered is a vibrantly colored pattern sweater with Fair Isle details. Both in girls' sizes.

- For a young sophisticate, there's a mixed-pattern waiter's jacket in houndstooth check and plaid with black velvet shawl collar from Cherokee. It can be coordinated with a white blouse with a houndstooth check collar and a short pleated skirt in the check. Cherokee also features a pointelle sweater which can be worn over stretch twill stirrup pants in tartan plaid. These outfits are for big girls, sizes 7-14.

- Plain, unadorned jeans are still favored classics at school, and Rider suggests the straight stuff in colors, which can sometimes cross the line from informal to slightly dressier gear - such as khaki or forest green appropriate for social or academic functions or an after-school job. Rider also offers a variety of fit choices for different body types: Misses' sizes are for curvier figures; juniors for those with narrower hips; plus sizes for more ease through the seat and thigh; and petites for smaller-scaled figures.

- Kids can pick jeans in bright colors such as cherry red, grass green, cobalt blue, bright mustard yellow and chocolate brown as well as traditional blues from the Sasson line. They come in sizes 4-6x and 7-14 for both boys and girls.

- Or how about Bonjour's sherbet colors, brights and printed florals and stripes? Regulation five-pocket jeans in these colors can be matched with denim jackets and shirts. For a dash of grunge, Bonjour offers denims layered with separates of flannel shirts or flannel appliqued or ruffled onto denim. There also are denim shirts with flannel hoods, jackets with woven sleeves and other combinations.

- Closely related to grunge is street stuff like hip hop and other subcultural influences. J.C. Penney goes all out, or even far out, mixing and matching funky outsize denims, plaids and gizmos in layers in its Street Beat collection for kids of all ages. A boy's outfit might feature a T-shirt or waffled-weave thermal knit under a hooded plaid shirt and canvas coat, worn over a boxy denim vest and colored jeans; add a chambray shirt to wrap around the waist, a pair of work boots, a dash of salt and shake well. Not to be outdone, sister can wear baggy shorts buttoned over opaque tights and thick socks, a slim body suit, a big shirt and denim jacket. Both sexes come adorned in beads, dogtags, and bandannas.

Beginning school can be major adjustment for younger kids

BOSTON (AP) - Going to school, day care or kindergarten is a major transition for a child, so don't be surprised if your youngster doesn't want to go or wants to come home early the first day, says a Wheelock College professor.

"They don't yet have the coping strategies to adjust to this sort of dramatic change," says Nancy Lauter-Klatell, associate professor of early childhood education. Children under 7 years can't visualize what their new situation will be, and their fears are normal, she says.

Parents can help by preparing the child in advance, she advises.

For example, make a preview visit to the class and show the child what activities he will be taking part in and go over names of the people he will meet.

Start the new household routine several weeks in advance. Get the child up, dressed and at the breakfast table the way he will when school starts.

Read books like "Will I Have a Friend" by Hobans or Mister Rogers' "Going to Day Care" to the child. That will give him an opportunity to talk about his feelings.

Plan to spend some time at school once the session begins. Agree in advance with the teacher on the amount.

Even with these steps, children will take time to get used to the new situation, Lauter-Klatell says. This is especially true if the child tends to be shy, withdrawn, or resistant to change in routine.

Students advocate safety

Grinnell College students, stunned by the highway murder of senior Tammy Zywicki last August, have formed Fearless, a group advocating highway safety and elimination of violence toward women.

Zywicki was on her way back to school when her car broke down on Interstate 80 near La Salle, Ill. Her body was found several days late along Interstate 44 near Sarcoxie, Mo.

One of the group's projects has been to produce a motorists' guide with tips about what to do if your car breaks down, with emergency telephone numbers for all 50 states. It's available free with an SASE to Fearless, Box 13-73, Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa 50112.

Anyone interested in starting a chapter of the group should write to the same address.

Playground Safety

Maintaining surfaces and equipment at playgrounds is just as critical for safety as supervision of children, says the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

The organization says that in 1991 almost a quarter of a million children under 15 were treated in emergency rooms for playground injuries.

Injury prevention and playground maintenance tips are included in a AAOS flyer, available free by calling 1 (800) 824-BONES.

CARE Package for Teachers

A package of lesson plans, teacher resources, maps and student handouts about geography has been created by CARE, the relief organization, and several American social studies teachers.

GlobeTrek, aimed at middle and junior high school students, focuses on geography, mapping, ecology and world hunger.

"Students often memorize the names and locations of countries without learning much about the topography or the people who live there," says Robin Sedgwick, author of the package and curriculum specialist at Columbia University's Secondary Enrichment Program, Ex-Soviet and East European Resource Center. "We've come up with a package that shows how geographic location, culture and environmental resources affect people's ability to produce adequate food."

Sedgwick worked with Philip Peck, 1992 Klingenstein Fellow at Columbia Teachers College, and experts at CARE.

GlobeTrek costs $125 as can be ordered by calling 1 (800) 422-7385 or writing CARE Donor Services, 660 First Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016.

Electronic Field Trip to Belize

Live telecasts from Belize, including exploration of the rainforest, are scheduled Feb. 28-March 12, 1994, by the Jason Project.

"Jason V: Expedition Planet Earth," led by Dr. Robert Ballard, oceanographer and explorer, will be beamed by satellite to science students in 20 state and five countries. The expedition will show a walkway built in the forest canopy, exploration of coral bleaching and other reef-life, and a study of ancient Mayan culture through research into the ceremonial center of Xunantunich.

Don't bribe your kids to get better grades

By The Associated Press

Parents who bribe or bully their children to get good grades are undercutting themselves and their children, says a school psychologist.

"Bribes and threats say, 'we don't believe in you,' " says Lane Neubauer, who heads the counseling center at Beaver College in Glenside, Pa.

The result instead could be low self-esteem, lower grades, or just plain rebellion.

"Bright students can stop applying themselves just to get back at their parents," Neubauer says.

He adds that parents who tie grades to money rewards will find that children will stop trying to earn good grades if the money stops coming.

Neubauer says rewards should be made for the effort, not the grade itself. 'Children don't have a lot of control over their grades. They can study and do all their assignments but still not get high marks."

Withdrawing cash support may be appropriate if the parent knows the child is spending too much time partying at college, says Neubauer. "If the student is doing everything right - studying, attending classes and completing assignments - it's counter-productive. The student now has something else to worry about besides grades."

Anne Stewart, director of the Shenandoah Valley Child Development Clinic at James Madison University at Harrisonburg, Va., advises parents to switch their focus. "Parents need to show a sincere and ongoing interest in their child's school activities, not just when report cards go home."

A report card is simply a way to let the parent know how the child is doing or if there are any learning or behavioral problems. Stewart says the number of referrals increase when report cards come out - an appropriate response.

"Physical and verbal abuse is not," she says.

Even if the child's grade aren't all you hoped for, look for good things to praise, such as good attendance, she says.

Parental expectations can only lead to stress and test anxiety, says Patricia Johnston, a counselor at the Widener University Counseling Center in Chester, Pa.

"Keep grades in some perspective," she says. "If students hear that grades are the most important thing, then students will do anything to achieve them, including cheating."

Not that parents should rule out all rewards for good performance. "We often function better when we have praise, affection or money," observes Todd C. Reiher, assistant professor of psychology at Wartburg College in Waverly, Iowa.

He advises mixing the rewards. "Nothing should be given consistently so that the student comes to expect it. A reward could be extra privileges or lots of praise. It should not always be money."

The District of Columbia was established as the seat of the U.S. government in 1790.

If the Vesuvius volcano in Italy repeated its A.D. 79 eruption today and no warning were given or preparations made, it could destroy 500,000 homes and kill 200,000 people, according to National Geographic.

Child's first words can be encouraged

By MADELAINE J. WERNER
For AP Special Features

Although some adults may prefer that children be seen and not heard, most parents eagerly await their child's first words.

There are times, however, when children are not as eager to speak as their parents are to listen.

Cues from parents can often help toddlers, who understand language and can follow simple directions, but are lagging behind in speech.

Children learn speech by comparing their parents' words to their own. Parents can help in the learning process by using varied inflections, elongating vowels and pronouncing the end of words.

Playtime activities, which tend to invite imitative and responsive behavior, outings and household routines such as mealtime and bath time can be used to help bolster children's language skills. Some suggestions:

- During playtime, use two-word phrases to describe the action that is taking place. Follow the child's lead. Play with blocks or dolls if that interests the child.

- Sitting and looking at a picture book can be effective, but be sure to work on the child's level. Cue the child into the pictures by pointing out and naming the items shown.

- Face-to-face games, such as peekaboo or patty-cake, can be effective because they can cue children to imitate speech. Other activities that may encourage the learning process include playing with soap bubbles, balloons and musical toys.

When possible, give children verbal choices. For example, during mealtime, ask children if they want milk or juice while putting both containers in front of them.

Displaying choices shows children that using language can help them get what they want. Children also get the sense of having more control over their environment.

Make sure the words you use have specific meanings for children. For example, use "bye-bye" only when someone is actually leaving or "cookie" when a cookie is in front of them.

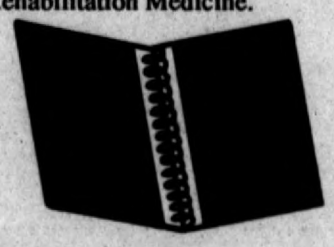

Use two-word phrases to verbalize children's actions throughout the day. Point to and name aloud objects among the surroundings. For example: "doggie barks." Speak slowly and make sure the child is focused on the objects or the actions occurring around them.

Praise children's speech even if the words are poorly pronounced. Repeat the child's words, using the correct pronunciation. This acknowledges children's efforts to communicate and reinforces proper pronunciation.

Parents should try to avoid putting undue pressure on their children to speak. Criticizing children about their verbal skills often leads them to believe speech is hard - and they can't do it well.

But a red flag should be raised if a child is unable to follow simple commands or speech does not improve within a few months. This could be a symptom of an underlying problem that requires medical attention.

Madelaine J. Werner is a speech-language pathologist and supervisor of pediatric speech-language pathology at New York University Medical Center's Rusk Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine.

Taking the time.

We'll be taking time for kids - both yours and ours!

We want them to know we care about all they do.

We want them to realize that each failure and achievement will be measured with understanding – an understanding of the effort which was put forth in making new strides.

The dawn of a new school year will signal plays, recitals, ballgames, suppers, open houses, conferences and more. We'll make time for them. We hope you'll take time too.

Roggin reveals 'Top Secret Television'

BY JOHN CROOK

Fred Roggin is trying to explain, by phone from Los Angeles, why NBC is not making rough cuts of his upcoming comedy special, "Top Secret Television," available for preview.

"It is so top secret that if we told you anything about it, or let you see it, we would have to kill you," he says with mock regret, then adds, "No, actually, we're not trying to keep you from seeing it. We're trying to finish it!"

The pieces fall into place when he reveals that the turnaround time for this special, from the time of the pitch to NBC, has been a hair-raising six weeks.

"We went to talk to NBC, they said, 'Okay, can we have it now?' and boom, we were off and running." During that time, there have been two title changes from the original "Totally Television" and one change of air date. Barring disaster, the hourlong program will air on Tuesday, Aug. 17.

"It's TV from around the world," he finally explains, opting to spill a few beans after all. "A lot of hidden-camera shows, game shows and home video shows. And it's kind of the funniest moments we could find from all kinds of TV."

Much of the material will be completely new to American audiences, he says.

"We [Fred Roggin Productions] have someone who works for us in Australia, basically, and covers Europe for us. And we've developed our sources through our syndicated show, 'Roggin's Heroes.' It's an expensive show to produce, because you have to buy the material."

After three seasons of "Roggin's Heroes," Roggin and co-executive producer Phil Olsman were looking to graduate to something new, he says.

"It's kind of the 'Next Generation' of clips shows," he promises. "It's got everything. Basically it just zips around the dial. The structure is going to be different. We have over 100 clips in an hour, which means it really flies."

Imposing order on the random clips are some briefly inserted parody segments introducing "Bad Vaudeville World," "Bad Music World" and "Naughty Animal World," plus a news segment. Originally, Roggin was going to do on-camera impersonations of Ed Sullivan and Ted Koppel.

"When we conceptualized the show, we thought that might be a good idea," he recalls. "After watching me try to be Ed Sullivan, we decided it was not going to be a good idea!"

A sports anchor and reporter for KNBC News in Los Angeles, Roggin is also the popular host of the well-received "Heroes" in syndication. He adds that, in the heat of finishing up work on "Top Secret Television," he really has had no time to decide what will be coming up next for him, and has no idea whether this special will become the first in an occasional series of programs for NBC.

"That's really up to the network," he says philosophically. "I mean, NBC obviously wants it to do well, and if we get it finished and it does do well, good things could follow.

"It has been... extremely hairy," Roggin says with a tired laugh. "You know, I'm also the local sportscaster here in Los Angeles, I do four newscasts a day, plus this. So, it's been an exciting time.

"I think what's up next is some time with my wife," he concludes.

Schweig's career climbs; life and times of Maynard

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I am highly interested in Eric Schweig, the gorgeous actor who starred in "Last of the Mohicans." Could you please tell me all about him, in addition to a way I could write to him? –Danette Tuten, Lufkin, Texas.

A: Schweig was born in Inuvik, Canada, on June 19, 1967. Adopted by a Canadian couple of German descent, he left home at age 16 and began his acting career in Ontario in a 1987 production of "The Cradle Will Fall." Before making his feature film debut as Uncas in 1992's "Last of the Mohicans," Schweig did voice work for commercials and appeared in TV series and music videos. The 6'2" actor, who was recently named one of People magazine's 50 most beautiful people, enjoys soccer, hockey, skiing and singing the blues but prefers to stay away from horses. Look for him in CBS' upcoming "Elysian Fields" and TNT's "Broken Chain." In the latter, he will be featured with "Mohicans" co-star Wes Studi. Write to him in care of his fan club at P.O. Box 5163, Vancouver, British Columbia V6B-4B2. For additional info on Schweig and other American Indian actors, an informative pamphlet entitled Native Americans in Media may be obtained by sending an S.A.S.E. to Mina Wihe Native American Historical Newsletter, P.O. Box 59072, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15210.

Q: A friend told me that long ago a member of his family married a young man in the Cole Brothers Circus. His name was Ken Maynard, and he caught the eye of a movie scout and starred in Westerns for several years. Could you give us some information on Maynard? It would mean a lot to our friend, and to us as well. –Ann VanDoren, Macon, Mo.

A: Born in 1895 in Vevay, Ind., Maynard cut his teeth performing as a trick rider for many renowned traveling troupes, including the Buffalo Bill and Ringling Brothers Wild West shows. He was a rodeo champion before his 1924 entrance into films, where his awe-inspiring riding and famous horse, Tarzan, made him a hit among youngsters. He is also credited with introducing song into Westerns several years before his contemporary, Gene Autry. Maynard's films include "Janice Meredith" (1924), "The Demon Rider" (1925), "The Canyon of Adventure" (1928), "Song of the Caballero" (1930), "In Old Santa Fe" (1934), "Boots of Destiny" (1937) and "Phantom Ranger" (1938). His brother, Kermit (nicknamed "Tex"), was also a noted actor and stuntman in the early days of film. By the late '30s, Maynard's waning popularity led him back to the rodeo arena. He appeared sporadically at state fairs, rodeos and as a bit player in movies for the rest of his life. A long bout with alcoholism and the death of his wife, a former circus aerialist, made for a sad end to a colorful life. In 1973, Maynard died alone, poor and malnourished in his trailer at age 77.

Q: I am trying to find a movie that stars Jodie Foster and Rob Lowe as siblings who work in their father's hotel. They have a younger sister who becomes a famous writer, and I believe she commits suicide. What is the name of this movie, and can I find it on video? –C.N. St. Romain, Lafayette, La.

A: "The Hotel New Hampshire" (1984), directed by Tony Richardson and also starring Beau Bridges, Wilford Brimley, Nastassja Kinski and a dead, stuffed dog, is available in most video stores. The quirky character study is based on the novel of the same name by John Irving, who also wrote "The World According to Garp."

Bell creates daytime dynasty

BY CANDACE HAVENS

William Bell has created three of the 11 daytime dramas on television today, and he was the head writer for three others. Bell (executive producer of "The Young and the Restless" and "The Bold and the Beautiful") knows daytime, and has worked in it successfully for more than 35 years.

"Y&R," Bell's most popular daytime drama, has been No. 1 in the ratings for more than four consecutive seasons, and "B&B" is not far behind. Bell attributes his success to consistent story lines and strong characters.

You won't find UFOs, angels or witches on Bell's shows. "We try to write characters that people can relate to, be furious with or, at the very least, become interested in," says Bell. "We want a strong emotional attachment between the audience and a character, because that is where it all starts. You must also have good stories to sustain the characters."

There is a low turnover rate of actors, writers and crew on Bell's shows, which helps give the programs the consistency viewers crave. There is nothing worse for soap fans than to turn on the TV and discover their favorite stories and characters are gone.

Bell's family is also involved in the business. His wife, Lee Phillip Bell, helped co-create "B&B," which his son Bradley is now producing. Bell's daughter, Lauralee, stars as Cricket Romalotti on "Y&R."

"Who better to be a part of all of this," says Bell, "than my family? While they were growing up, my children listened to my three-hour production phone calls. They learned everything about the soaps at a very early age, but they weren't really interested in working in the business until they were much older. I am proud of all of them – they are doing a hell of a job!"

In the soap world everyone knows it is taboo to offer Bell advice on his plot lines. So, does Bell ever listen to the suggestions of well-meaning fans?

"When I started writing," he says," I decided I had to do what I believed in, and if it was wrong, I would get out of the business. That philosophy has kept me from going crazy."

Andrews takes reins of 'CNN Newsroom'

BY SCOTT WHITE

At the ripe old age of 21, Brian Andrews already has a broadcast career spanning eight years. Today, the one-time Roswell, Ga., disc jockey sports the title of co-anchor of "CNN Newsroom," which he joined in July.

"Newsroom" is broadcast on the Cable News Network late at night so teachers can videotape it for use in the classroom. The program, along with attendant CNN classroom guides, is provided free to the nearly 27,000 enrolled schools.

"I had a friend who knew someone who worked at CNN," says Andrews in his big, radio announcer's voice, "and we took a tour one day. I thought, 'You know, that looks like a cool place to work. When I pay my dues, maybe someday I can get on there.' I dropped off a tape and resume, and didn't hear back from them for a while. Then I got a letter saying, 'How'd you like to work for us?'"

His three-year CNN tenure has included production and voice-over work, along with anchoring newscasts for CNN Radio.

"Everyone works together," he says of the news organization. "We're all news junkies, we're all die-hards. We love a good story, and it's a great place to work."

Whom does a veteran newsman like Andrews aspire to interview?

"I'd like to talk to Saddam Hussein. I still think there's a story there."

Wright defends 'Fastest Man' title

BY MICHAEL SCOGIN

Eight of the National Football League's quickest members go head-to-head for a $25,000 first-place prize, and, more importantly, a year's worth of bragging rights, when NBC presents the "NFL's Fastest Man" competition on Sunday, Aug. 15.

Commentators Don Criqui and Paul Maguire are on hand at the Empire Polo Club in Indio, Calif., for the eighth annual event.

In the competition, eight NFL stars run three 60-yard-dash heats, two participants at a time, all leading to the showdown in the final round.

Participants include 1992 defending champion Alexander Wright, a wide receiver with the Los Angeles Raiders. Wright is proof that speed alone is not an assurance of stardom in the NFL. Just a few months after winning the competition, Wright was released by the Dallas Cowboys and ended up, as so many discarded players do, as a Raider, where he caught only 12 passes for 175 yards and two touchdowns. Wright's speed was more evident in kickoff returns: He led the Raiders with 26 returns for 442 yards.

WEDNESDAY

Brad Johnson portrays "the bandit of Texas," the notorious sheriff of Plum Creek, Wednesdays in CBS' "Ned Blessing: The Story of My Life and Times." Brenda Bakke plays Blessing's friend Wren.

HIGHLIGHTS

Brad Johnson (left) stars in the title role in the CBS series "Ned Blessing: The Story of My Life & Times," beginning Wednesday, Aug. 18. Luis Avalos (right) plays Crecencio, Ned's sidekick. Wes Studi ("Last of the Mohicans") and Brenda Bakke also co-star. In the Western adventure, an elderly Ned Blessing – once known as "the bandit of Texas" – reminisces from his jail cell about his notorious life as the sheriff of the frontier town Plum Creek. In the pilot episode, Ned takes a stand against the murderous Borgers clan.

STAR NOTES

Greenspan chronicles drama of Olympics

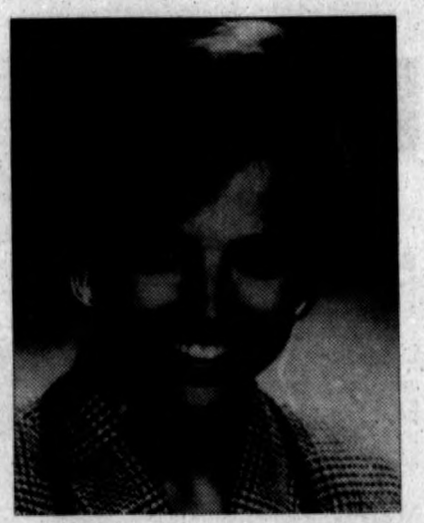

BY JOHN CROOK

Bud Greenspan, the acclaimed documentary sports filmmaker and historian, focuses on the human drama of athletics in "Barcelona '92: 16 Days of Glory," premiering Sunday, Aug. 15, on the Disney Channel. This special differs from Greenspan's coverage of the 1984 Olympic Summer Games in Los Angeles, and both the Winter and Summer games in 1988, in that it is on video, not film — the result of a Barcelona mandate. Greenspan admits he was not happy having to settle for a video feed, adding that he would never do that again. Viewers won't mind, though; this is a very emotional, dramatic film, and Disney subscribers won't want to miss it.

Sharon Stone, who managed to keep a straight face while telling reporters she had no idea the director was going to film "that shot" in "Basic Instinct," pays tribute to predecessor Jean Harlow in TNT's "Harlow: The Blonde Bombshell," premiering Sunday.

Forest Whitaker ("Bird," "The Crying Game") makes his directorial debut with "Strapped," a HBO Showcase production about guns and the inner city debuting Saturday, Aug. 21. Michael Biehn and newcomer Bokeem Woodbine star.

Katie Couric is co-host of "Now With Tom Brokaw and Katie Couric," premiering Wednesday on NBC.

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

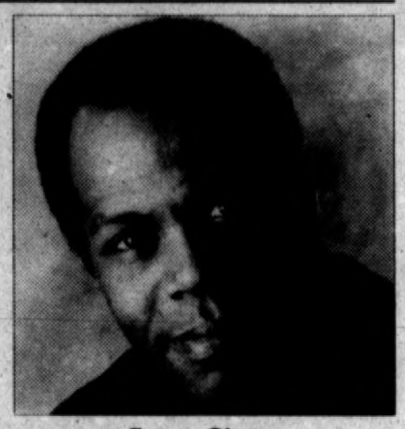

Danny Glover fronts A&E series; 'Dunces' comes to the screen

Danny Glover will serve as host for A&E's "Civil War Journal," a 13-part series focusing on great, largely untold stories from the war between the states. The first episode will air Wednesday, Sept. 8. ... Vanessa Williams better leave a forwarding address with the folks at Fox's "Melrose Place." She's leaving the series for opportunities in theatrical films, the first of which is a role in "The D.R.O.P. Squad," produced by Spike Lee. ... James Garner, who played charmer Bret Maverick in a popular television series over 30 years ago, will have a role in Richard Donner's upcoming big-screen reprise of the character starring Mel Gibson.

Actor David O'Neill will make his directing debut with the film version of Jack London's "Martin Eden." O'Neill also wrote the script. Charlie Sheen has signed on for a role, and Cary Elwes and Amanda Plummer are reportedly close to making commitments.

Tom Arnold will play Arnold Schwarzenegger's sidekick in "True Lies," an action film to be directed by James Cameron. The story concerns an elite anti-terrorism force.

Bruce Davison co-stars with Lesley Ann Warren in ABC's "Desperate Justice," currently filming in Phoenix. ... Jeff Bridges and Tommy Lee Jones head the cast of "Blown Away," a thriller about an evil explosives expert determined to exact his revenge

Congratulations to all the Emmy nominees, especially leader-of-the-pack "Northern Exposure" with 16 nominations.

ABC is adapting Caroline B. Cooney's novel "The Cheerleader" as an "Afterschool Special." Jeffrey Kindley will write the script. ... Twelve years after its publication, John Kennedy Toole's novel "A Confederacy of Dunces" finally seems headed for the big screen. Bumbershoot Productions will produce, with Steven Soderbergh ("sex, lies and videotape") set to direct. The film should be released in the fall of 1994.

FRIDAY

NFL preseason football comes to NBC in prime time Friday as John Elway and the Denver Broncos, with new coach Wade Phillips, play host to Dan Marino and the Miami Dolphins.

TRIVIA

Scotland was called Caledonia during its Roman occupation. British missionaries converted the land to Christianity by the 6th century.

TRIVIA

Oregon, the Beaver State, was discovered by Capt. Robert Gray in 1792. Famous Oregonians include Ernest Bloch and Linus Pauling.

The Hereford Brand
364-2030

One play could run you clear of home buying interference.

Financing, Down Payments, Price negotiations. Inspections. All obstacles that could block you from buying a home.

An expert agent can coach you smoothly through the entire home buying process. From using the sophisticated multiple listing service to find the home that fits your needs and your budget. To tackling financing options. Setting up and monitoring inspections. Negotiating price. And even maneuvering you through closing.

So when you need a skilled teammate, get someone who really knows the housing field--a real estate agent.

Read The Hereford Brand for more information about qualified agents. Every day, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And on Sundays the housing section examines the latest market trends and home buying opportunities.
