Guerrillas Launch Rhodesian Attack

Blacks Hold Key To Today's Election

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Nationalist guerrillas blew up oil storage tanks and launched attacks on at least five polling places as Rhodesians prepared to vote today for the nation's first black-majority government.

The military reported one million gallons of diesel fuel and thousands of gallons of gasoline were destroyed in a rocket attack Sunday night at the Caltex storage depot in Fort Victoria, about 175 miles south of here.

Army Brig. Gen. Peter Rich said the attacks on polling places began Sunday night, but only one site suffered minor damage.

Rich said two guerillas were killed by security forces. "The polling places will be operating normally..." he said.

On Monday night, guerrillas fired about five mortar rounds at a bus depot in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, a military spokesman said. No injuries were reported.

The raids threatened the government's effort to encourage a solid turnout of black voters to prove the elections deserve international recognition.

Black and white Rhodesians, in the face of the guerrilla attacks and nearly worldwide ostracism, are to begin five days of voting today in elections that may decide the fate of a bi-racial internal settlement aimed at ending 90 years of white rule.

The Patriotic Front forces of guerrilla leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo are pledged to sabotage the voting, which will decide the 72 black members of Rhodesia's first majority parliament.

The guerrillas oppose the elections because whites are promised continued control of the police, security forces, judiciary and civilian administration, plus 28 seats in the 100-member parliament and four Cabinet posts. White Rhodesians voted last week for their parlimentary representatives. A good voter turnout was seen as crucial to international recognition of the elections. So far, not a single country has recognized the voting, although several hundred foreign reporters and government observers, some official and some unofficial, are here.

The black nationalist leaders, who have been waging a six-year guerrilla war against Prime Minister Ian Smith's government, have denounced the vote for limited black rule as a sellout to the black majority. Three percent of Rhodesia's 7 million citizens are white.

Whites, who are fleeing the country at a rate of some 2,000 a month, say recognition of the new government elected this week in fair elections and a lifting of sanctions on exports to Rhodesia is their last hope.

The attack on the oil storage facility apparently involved six guerrillas who used a Russian-manufactured rocket, the military said. The depot, whose petroleum is precious to a country burdened by United Nations sanctions that restrict imports, was patrolled only by guards employed by the company.

No injuries were reported in the attack. Observers said the incident could force officials to divert some soldiers to guarding petroleum depots instead of protecting the nation's 2,000 polling places.

The military reported Monday the deaths of 22 persons in the ongoing guerrilla war, including a woman killed by a land mine as she drove in a military-escorted convoy through guerrilla-infested territory. Officials did not say whether the guerrillas killed in the polling place attacks were included in its daily figures.

Death Toll Reported

Security forces said they killed 11 insurgents and six "terrorist collaborators," while suffering one death among their forces. Three black civilians allegedly were killed by guerrillas.

To preserve order during the five days of balloting, the bi-racial transition government has mobilized 90,000 regular and reserve troops. The government also has continued frequent raids into neighboring states, where many of Rhodesia's black nationalis forces are based.

"There are thousands of guerrillas in the country at present, but few are fighting," said the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, a black member of the biracial government.

"They are just waiting to see a black government installed, then they will lay down their arms," said Sithole, whose party is involved in the elections.

The government has predicted most of the 11,500 guerrillas believed to be in Rhodesia will wait to see whether the elections are fair before taking action.

But in the past week, the government launched its boldest ever series of attacks on guerrilla bases in neighboring black states.

LCHDBoard Backs Tiny Baby Unit

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

FINANCIALLY speaking, the neonatal intensive care unit of Health Sciences Center Hospital may never show a profit — but the Lubbock County Board of Managers agree the expense of keeping the unit open is justified by the number of lives saved.

LCHD heard a cost analysis of the widely publicized unit for premature infant care at Monday's regular meeting of the Board of Managers. Discussion of the unit's cost and the subsequent report came after board member Jack Flygare said the district must find out "how much money we're losing over there."

Flygare had suggested the unit might have to be eliminated — no matter how badly it was needed — if the cost of operation became too much for the hospital.

Members Come To Defense

Several board members came to the defense of the unit as the report came before the group, saying the cost analysis was requested for information purposes rather than as a prerequisite to shutting down the facility.

"There was no intent to shut down or terminate the neonatal unit," Gwen Stafford said. "We simply wanted to know what it was costing us."

"We bit the bullet on this thing a long time ago," Joe Stanley said. "We knew it wouldn't be a money-making proposition."

The unit only has been collecting about 48 percent of the charges needed to cover the costs of the operation. Health Sciences has lost $384,426 in operation costs since the unit opened in February, 1978.

Infant Mortality Rate High

Dr. Michael G. Blackburn, director of the division of neonatology at Texas Tech University School of Medicine, made a plea for the unit's continued operation, saying Lubbock County had the highest infant mortality rate in the state before the unit opened.

Before the neonatal unit and hospital opened in February 1978, Lubbock County had the highest infant mortality rate in Texas and the tenth highest in the United States with 18.7 deaths per 1,000 births.

But with the operation of the technically sophisticated facility for babies who need special care at delivery and immediately after birth, the infant mortality rate

City Group To Help Wichita Falls Down Post-Tornado Road

By SYVLIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LUBBOCK civic leaders who nine years ago helped Lubbock rebuild from the rubble of the 1970 tornado are extending a helping hand and the voice of experience to Wichita Falls city fathers.

Following Tuesday's tornado which left 44 dead in Wichita Falls, Lubbock shares a tragic link with the North Texas city.

Because of that unique link, many of those who helped Lubbock on its way to recovery in 1970 plan to go to Wichita Falls on Friday to share how Lubbock came back from what could have been the death knell for the city.

Jim Granberry, who spent his two years as Lubbock mayor working on recovery from the tornado, plans to go to Wichita Falls with City Manager Larry Cunningham, Chamber of Commerce executive vice president John Logan and Lubbock National Bank president Wayne Finnell who was Chamber of Commerce president during the recovery period.

Also planning to make the trip is engineer Arnold Maeker who acted as liason between the Lubbock City Council and the Citizens Advisory Committee named by the council following the tornado.

Both Maeker and Granberry said they would recommend the Wichita Falls City Council name a similar broad-based citizens committee to help formulate a recovery plan for the city.

Lubbock's CAC solicited input from citizens about "what needs to happen and fed it back to the city council," Maeker said.

Road Made Easier

"It set the pace in a lot of ways for our recovery. It offered sound advice and was able to get input the council wouldn't have gotten," he said.

Maeker said he doubts the fruits of the recovery effort — the civic center, library and Canyon Lakes Project — "would have come about except for the broad-based input gained from the people through the CAC."

"It would be real easy to say everything worked out here and it was no big deal," Maeker said, "but people who do that are not taking into account things likely to have taken place."

If the community had taken an attitude that the tornado "set us back 10 years, we could have been defeated by it," Maeker said.

"The CAC in effect said, we can make the city better by virtue of this and not make it a thing that could hold us down."

However, Maeker said "we would have welcomed something like this (trip) when we were in the throes like (Wichita Falls)."

Maeker said he would have like to have heard in 1970 that there was reason to have hope for a brighter future, despite the seemingly bleak prospects of recovery from such a devastating tornadic blow. .

Apparently, some Wichita Falls citizens agree. Logan was contacted by someone from the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and Finnell was contacted by a fellow banker in the ravaged city asking "if we could do something like this," Maeker said.

Granberry, who had been mayor for 19 days when Lubbock's tornado struck, said, "I certainly have a lot of sympathy for their mayor."

Ford Family Series Begins In A-J Today

WHAT WAS it really like in the White House during the administration of President Gerald Ford?

As press secretary to first lady Betty Ford, Sheila Rabb Weidenfield was directly involved in the daily personal lives of the Ford family while they were in the White House.

In what is the truest and most intimate account of this family, she recounts events with the intimacy and immediacy of a diary — events which until now have been documented only be rumor and speculation.

In a new book, "First Lady's Lady," Weidenfield describes her confrontation with White House physician Dr. William Lukash because of her mounting concern over the drug-induced rollercoaster moods of Mrs. Ford.

She relates candidly and graphically the antics of the Ford children — Jack's confession of pot-smoking and his hobnobbing with rock stars; Susan's flirtations with a married man; and Steve's romancing in the White House's "Queen's Bedroom."

Thunderstorm Outlook Lingers Over Region

ISOLATED clouds building over the South Plains and Panhandle since Monday afternoon will continue to threaten area residents with a 20 percent chance for rain this afternoon and a 30 percent chance tonight.

After temperatures climbed into the upper 80s in most South Plains cities, including a reading of 88 in Lubbock, thunderclouds began building and spreading to the north of the area.

Little more than a trace of moisture was reported in most area cities after dusk Monday even though thunder, lightning and looming clouds were reported by radar and area residents throughout the region.

A cloud in southeast Hale County about 4:30 p.m., poured about .75 of an inch of rain on the Petersburg area, prompting National Weather Service official to issue a flash flood warning for parts of Hale, Floyd and Crosby Counties.

Three to six inches of rain flooded FM 789, just north of Petersburg, and pea size hail also was reported in that area.

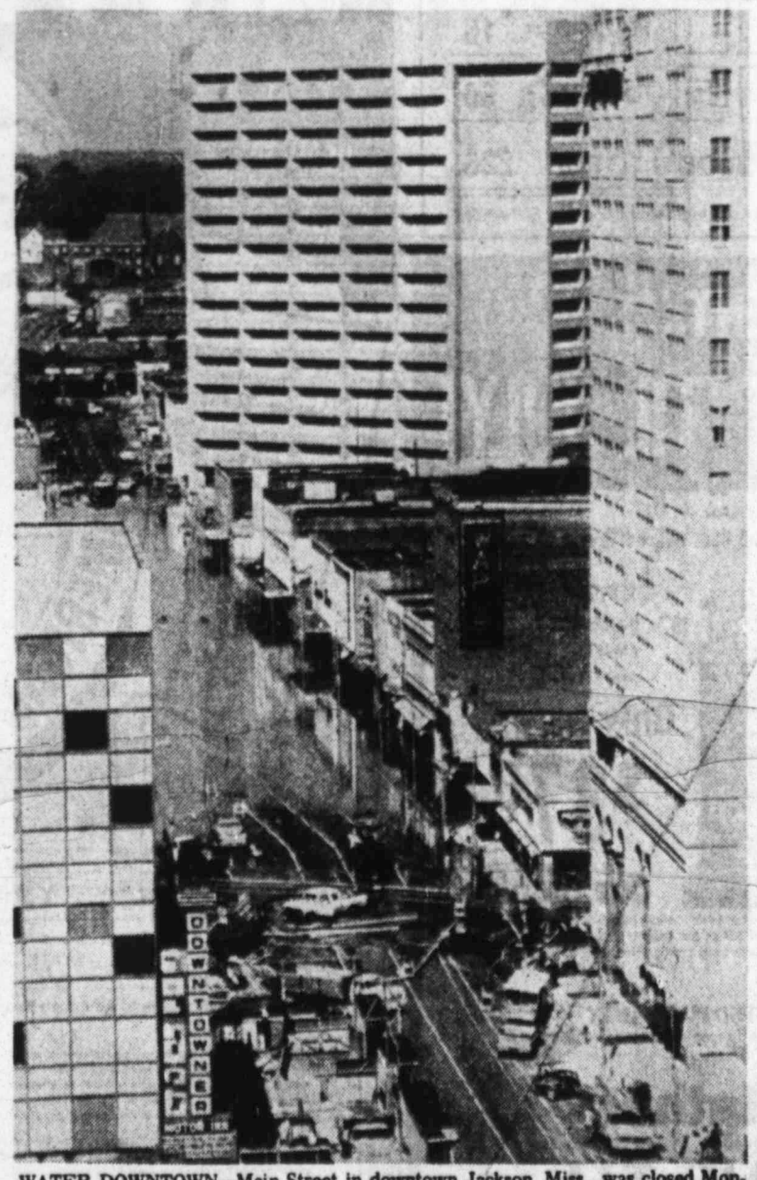
Other communities across the South Plains reported only a sprinkle except for Cotton Center with .7 of an inch of precipitation and Abernathy with a reading of .3.

Temperatures today and Wednesday should reach to near 80 as gusting southerly winds blow 15 to 25 mph. Overnight lows are expected to be in the upper 50s.

A chance for showers remain in the forecast Thursday and Friday but fair conditions are expected for most of West Texas on Saturday.

Temperatures should be slightly cooler by Saturday with highs in the 70s and lows in the 50s.

Elsewhere, the worst Pearl River flood in history surged deeper into the heart of Jackson, Miss., Monday, sending water to the eaves of some homes in the suburbs and forcing officials to seal off the downtown area. An estimated 17,000 persons were driven from their homes due to the flooding.



WATER DOWNTOWN—Main Street in downtown Jackson, Miss., was closed Monday as floodwaters from the Pearl River edged higher. A large portion of the city was closed as workers fought to keep the water from advancing to even more businesses. An estimated 17,000 persons have been driven from their homes and the mayor ordered police to seal off the downtown area. (AP Laserphoto)

Late Penalty Notices Await Those Who Lag On Filing Tax Forms

By RHONA SCHWARTZ
Avalanche-Journal Staff

TODAY IS April 17 and as you sip your morning cup of coffee it hits you: you forgot to file your income tax return.

Before panic sets in, gather all your tax information and mail in your form today, advises David Flores of the IRS Collection Division. You'll then have time to gather some money before the Internal Revenue Service bill arrives.

Taxpayers who don't owe any money also should go ahead and file, Flores said. There will be no late penalty for these people, who still will collect the money owed to them.

Late payers face both a late filing penalty and a penalty for not sending in their money, according to Flores.

The IRS will assess a late filing penalty of up to 25 percent (5 percent for each month up to five) on every $100 owed. The penalty for not paying is one-half of 1 percent for each delinquent month, or 6 percent per annum, Flores explained. The first month begins today and runs through May 17.

Interest, Flores added, also is charged daily against the unpaid balance of the tax.

More Money Going Home

"A lot more people are going to end up owing this year because they didn't realize the withholding rates went down," Flores said. "They had more money going home with them during the year."

Late filers also should be careful to avoid making the two most common tax form errors: incorrect Social Security numbers and illegible names.

"People have been making transposition errors, resulting in incorrect Social Security numbers on their forms," says Carlos Rojas of the local IRS office. "Also they are putting illegible names on their forms (and) are not using the peel-off labels."

These mistakes will cause the forms to be sent back to the local IRS office. The local IRS staff then must contact the taxpayer for the correct information, delaying processing of the forms.

Monday Volume Heavy

Monday's volume of last minute income tax filers was heavy but not unusually so, said both IRS and post office workers.

The traffic snaking around the main post office Monday looked "horrible," one supervisor observed, but he added, "most just had that little IRS letter to mail."

No extra personnel were needed to handle the last minute tax forms, he said.

Persons who filed Monday for an automatic 60-day extension should remember they have until midnight June 15 to get their tax affairs in order.

In order to apply for a second extension, one must have a specific reason, such as an accident, a death in the family or some other reason why all the needed tax information cannot be assembled in time.

Extensions Have Bounds

The time limit for a second extension ranges from 10 to 90 days, according to the IRS, but the limit normally will not extend past Oct. 15 for any reason.

For those who just procrastinated in completing their tax forms, they should mail them off now, Flores stressed. Taxpayers who owe money may call the local collections office at 762-7424 for more information and to let the IRS know they are going to file a return.

Taxpayers needing personal help should come to the IRS front desk between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. in the Federal Building.

Those coming in person need to have with them some identification and a copy of their return, Flores said.

Magazine Editor Defies CIA Order, Publishes 16 Words

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The editor of Oregon Magazine defied a CIA order to censor 16 words from an article about spying on Idi Amin in Uganda and started the presses rolling Monday for the May edition.

"If the federal government really wants to censor these words, it should immediately seek a restraining order, because it is our intention to go ahead and publish them as originally scheduled," said Tom Bates, the 35-year-old editor of the magazine.

Oregon Magazine has a circulation of 46,000 and publishes news for and about Oregon.

The 16 words are part of a 7,000-word article entitled "I Was Idi Amin's Basketball Czar." It is a humorous account of how ex-spy Jay Mullen set up a basketball team as a coverup for his activities in Uganda. Mullen now lives on a farm near Medford, Ore.

John Greaney, associate general counsel for the CIA, met with U.S. Attorney Sidney Lezak Monday to determine whether to request an injunction against publishing the words.

Lezak's office refused to comment on what was discussed, referring all calls to the Justice Department in Washington. Justice Department spokesman Mark Sheehan in Washington said the agency will not talk about the case.

Bates said he submitted the article to the CIA March 23 as required in an agreement the federal agency has with all its former agents. Bates said he didn't hear from the CIA until last Tuesday, and Greaney didn't arrive with a list of deletions until Thursday night.

"We were astonished at the extensive list of deletions they brought in Thursday night," Bates told a news conference Monday.

"Oregon Magazine feels it has cooperated as fully and reasonably as possible with the CIA's last-minute demands."

The editor said he agreed to 28 separate deletions, but drew the line at the remaining 16 words, which are contained in two clauses in consecutive sentences.

"I think there's a First Amendment question here," Bates said. "I think there is a question of reasonableness. And I think it's unusual because this is probably one of the few nice articles written about the CIA."

Bates said the CIA believes the 16 words would have "a so-called killing effect on their relations with certain governments and in the world in general."

"People would just shrug their shoulders if they knew what those 16 words were," he said.

Bates said the magazine agreed to any deletions that might endanger lives in Uganda.

"This isn't the sort of article we'd risk anybody's life over," he said.

Committee Decides LP&L Has Repaid City Debt

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock Power and Light has more than repaid its $1.8 million outstanding debt to the city, a study committee decided Monday in response to accusations that taxpayers are subsidising the utility.

The committee, charged by the City Council with analyzing the municipally-owned company's operation, decided after reviewing financial statements that LP &L's debt has been cancelled by excess money transfers from its revenues to the city's general operating fund.

The committee, which lacked a quorum by one member, also voted to recommend to the City Council that future financial statements for LP&L note the debt essentially has been covered.

According to staff figures, LP&L borrowed $500,000 from the general fund in 1969 for the purchase of a gas turbine. In fiscal year 1971, the general fund advanced an additional $1.9 million to the electric revenue fund.

By September 1975, LP&L had repaid about $600,000 of that advance, leaving its total outstanding debt to the general fund at about $1.8 million.

However, committee members noted, from 1957 to 1978 LP&L has transferred $6.5 million from its revenue to the general fund.

That, they agreed after lengthy discussion, means the municipally-owned power company actually is almost $4 million.

That, they agreed after lengthy discussion, means the municipally-owned power company's debt has been more than repaid by $4 million.

The $6.5 million total was computed on the currently used annual transfer rate of 8 percent. The 8 percent figure, which means that percentage of LP&L's operating revenue is transferred to the general fund, has only been used since 1975.

Before then, all LP&L revenue after costs was transferred to the city's general fund, which committee members say meant lower city taxes for all residents.

The committee's decision to recommend deletion of the debt note in future financial statements was to "make it more understandable to the taxpayer," chairman Arnold Maeker said.

The committee decided to meet twice more to finalize its recommendations about LP&L's future to the City Council.

A subcommittee will write the receommendations based on the entire group's answers to questions involving LP&L operations.

The full committee then will finalize the receo recommendations and recommend them to the City Council.

Included will be recommendations about future LP&L expansion, whether LP&L should continue to operate, and whether the power company should inter-connect with another utility firm.

Authors To Present Oil Paper At Tech

A five-author team from the Texas Petroleum Research Committee at Texas A &M University will report on the "Response of Wasson and Levelland Crudes to Nitrogen and Carbon Dioxide" Thursday and Friday at the 26th annual Southwestern Petroleum Short Course at Texas Tech University.

The authors are Mitchell Reece, Craig Greive, Mark Nugent, Tim Murray and Paul B. Crawford.

"Laboratory studies have been made to determine the oil recovery by displacing the Levelland and Wasson crudes by carbon dioxide at various pressures," their abstract states.

"For the case of the Wasson crude it has been found that a slug of carbon dioxide equal to 10 percent of the hydrocarbon pore volume pushed by nitrogen resulted in an oil recovery of 96 percent of the original oil in place. The use of a slug of carbon dioxide of 5 percent hydrocarbon pore volume pushed by nitrogen resulted in an oil recovery of 90 percent."

The paper will be delivered with additional research results and the economic factors involved in the recovery method.

The short course is sponsored by the West Texas petroleum industry in cooperation with the Department of Petroleum Engineering at Texas Tech. Between 400 and 450 representatives of production and refining industries in the Southwest are expected to attend, according to Texas Tech Professor Duane A. Crawford, chairman of the event's board of directors.

Poultry Production Continues Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Agriculture reports that the supply of chickens and turkeys is continuing to increase. Large supplies may help hold down prices, making poultry an attractive substitute for increasingly expensive beef.

Department experts urge shoppers to look for the USDA grade shield when buying poultry. Grading is voluntary and the shield tells you the processor has paid to have a government inspector check the wholesomeness and quality of their product. The top rating is U.S. Grade A, which is given to birds that are fully fleshed and meaty and attractive in appearance.

To find the most tender birds, however, look for younger ones, according to the department. These may be labeled as Rock Cornish hen, broiler, fryer, roaster or capon depending on the age of the chicken. Young turkeys may be labeled as such or as fryer-roaster, young hen or young tom.

Older, less tender, birds may be preferred for stewing, baking or pressure cooking, the experts said.

The frostline in tropical regions is 6,000 feet above sea level.

Deputies Seek 17-Year-Old Suspect In Shooting Of Cabbie

Sheriff's deputies late Monday were seeking a 17-year-old Lubbock youth in connection with a Sunday night shooting which left a 28-year-old cab driver in critical condition.

Hank Eugene Dubey, of 1615 29th St., was in West Texas Hospital Monday suffering from gunshot wounds in the shoulder, wrist and upper right arm.

Deputies were seeking a young Mexican-American, charged Monday morning with attempted murder in connection with the incident. The Criminal District Attorney's office recommended a $25,000 bond.

Dubey, employed at Yellow Cab Co., said he was shot about 10:30 p.m. Sunday by his passenger, after the young man asked him to pull to the side of the road so he could relieve himself.

The driver said when he stopped his cab about two miles east of Loop 289 on East 19th Street, the passenger, who Dubey said was acting peculiarly, pulled a pistol and began shooting.

Reports indicate Dubey, after being shot, began wrestling with the suspect, attempting to get the weapon, and that both men fell out of the car. Dubey said he thought the man had lost his pistol and that he got up and started running east on 19th Street. The gunman then drove off in Dubey's taxi, reports show.

Reports indicate the victim ran about a mile to a house, where authorities were called.

Sheriff's Capt. Alton Hobbs said the driver was not robbed, "But apparently he (the suspect) shot him for no reason."

The cab, with a passenger-side window shot out, was found early Monday at North Zenith Avenue and Erskine Street, according to a Yellow Cab Co. spokesman.

Dubey talked to lawmen only briefly about the incident, and Hobbs said the victim would not be questioned further until his condition improves.

Dubey did say he picked up the suspect at a residence in the 1900-block of East Amherst Avenue. Cab company call sheets show Dubey drove his fare to a residence in the 2100-block of Eighth Street, back to the East Amherst house, and then on to a liquor store on East 19th Street.

However, reports indicate the cab driver was shot about a mile west of the liquor store.

A cab company dispatcher told deputies Dubey's original destination after picking up the suspect was Avenue Q and Seventh Street, but that the passenger apparently changed his mind and requested to be driven to the 2100-block of Eighth Street.

Two men contacted deputies about 1 a.m. Monday and said they were at the East Amherst Avenue residence when the suspect came up and asked to use the phone to call for a cab.

One of the witnesses, however, refused to sign a written statement until he had consulted his lawyer.

One of the men said the young Mexican-American was allowed to use the phone, and overheard him request a cab to drive him to Avenue Q and Seventh Street. The suspect waited at the residence until the cab came, according to reports.

Deputies learned the suspect once lived in a house in the 1800-block of East Second Street. But when they went to that location, they were told that the man had recently moved.

Dubey's attacker was last seen wearing jeans and a blue short-sleeve shirt. He was described as armed and dangerous.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I agree with your reasoning that six-month U.S. Treasury bills are now better investments than insured six-month savings certificates issued by banks and savings and loan associations — because six-month T-bills and six-month certificates now pay the same interest and, more important, the interest on T-bills is not subject to state and local income tax.

I do believe, however, that there is inconvenience involved in buying a T-bill. To do so, I would have to go to a Federal Reserve bank and make a bid. Right?

A. No. You can do it all by mail. The U.S. Treasury auctions off three-month and six-month T-bills most every Monday — Friday, if Monday is a bank holiday. One-year T-bills are auctioned off about once a month.

At each auction, large investors bid for the bills being sold — specifying the prices they are willing to pay. You could do that. But, if your bid is too low, you won't get a T-bill.

So, most ordinary investors submit "noncompetitive tenders" to buy bills at the average price at the particular auction. All noncompetitive tenders for $500,000 or less are automatically filled. T-bills come in minimum denominations of $10,000 and in multiples of $5,000 above that.

You can obtain a "tender form" and literature explaining how to submit it from a Federal Reserve bank or branch. There are 12 Federal Reserve banks and 26 branches around the country. Ask your local commercial bank for the address of the Federal Reserve bank or branch serving your area.

Fill out the tender form. Send it and a certified check for the amount of the T-bill you want to buy to the Federal Reserve Bank or branch. You'll become the owner of a T-bill at the next auction.

T-bills are "discount securities." At the auction, you buy a T-bill at a discount — below face value. When the bill matures, you get a check for the full face value. And, on the day you buy the bill, the Federal Reserve bank sends you a check for the difference between the purchase price and the face value. That's your interest.

Yes, this procedure is a bit complicated. Nonetheless, because of the high yields now available on T-bills, more and more people are doing this. If you don't want to handle the details, ask your local bank to submit your tender for you. Most banks will — for a fee of about $25.

Q. U.S. Treasury bills are no longer issued as certificates but are kept in "book-entry" form. The owner just gets a receipt. At first, I thought this was just fine — for safety purposes.

But, now, I find that I cannot use my T-bills as collateral for a loan. Doesn't this make T-bills less attractive?

A. Not for most people. Because T bills are short-term securities — with maturities of three, six or 12 months — the vast majority of people who buy them simply hold them until they come due.

If you want to put up T-bills as collateral for a loan, your T-bills must be held by a commercial bank which is a member of the Federal Reserve System or by some other finakcial institution — such as a brokerage firm — which has a book-entry account at a Federal Reserve Bank.

The same rule applies, if you want to sell a T-bill before it reaches maturity.

The lesson is simple. If you think you might have to sell your T-bills before they come due or use them as loan collateral, have your bank or broker buy them for you. And expect to pay a fee for that service.

Otherwise, buy them yourself and have your own book-entry account with the U.S. Treasury Department.

Texan Suspect In Clovis Woman's Death

MULESHOE (Special) — Authorities here late Monday sought a Levelland man for questioning in their attempts to determine whether a woman found dead near the New Mexico state line was the victim of a hit-and-run driver or murder.

The woman, identified as Florencia L. Segura, 29, of Clovis, N.M., was found about 1:30 a.m. Monday on FM 1760 about 13 miles west of here.

The Clovis Police Department Monday issued a teletype for Texas officers to be on the lookout for a Levelland man driving a 1972 or 1973 green Ford Gran Torino with Texas license QHV 319.

Bailey County Sheriff Dee Clements said the body, discovered Monday by a truck driver, was taken to Albuquerque, N.M., for an autopsy. Asked whether officers felt the woman was struck by a car or murdered, Clements said, "We haven't decided."

But it didn't look like the woman had been shot or that a struggle had taken place, the sheriff added.

Clements said the woman was last seen about 11:30 p.m. Sunday when she left a dance hall in Midway, a town about halfway between Clovis and Portales, N.M.

It had not been determined Monday what the woman was doing in the area where she was found. Clements said the victim was not in a car, and the nearest house from where she was found was about a mile away.

The sheriff said the woman appeared to have suffered massive head injuries.

Clovis police Sgt. Leon Morris, who went to the scene, said it appeared to him that Miss Segura was the victim of a hit-and-run driver. "We now think it was a hit and run accident," Morris said.

Human Error 'A Real Dog'

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN--Through a rare human error in the State Health Dept. laboratory here, officials in six Texas cities were notified they had a rabies problem on their hands.

As a result, 30 persons unnecessarily began the long and involved innoculation procedure to avoid contracting the disease.

"It was one of those flukes," says Lon Gee, assistant deputy commissioner of health. "It has never happened before and we are sure it will never happen again."

The cities involved are Victoria, Bay City, Dayton in Liberty County, Hallettsville in Lavaca County, Bryan and San Angelo. Health officials in those cities sent severed heads of animals to the Health Dept. in Austin to be examined for rabies. The Health Dept. sent back word that the tests were "positive."

The error, according to Gee, occurred during a two-hour period of March 20. The goof was discovered a week later, but by then 30 people around the state had already begun the rabies vaccination process.

The error occurred, said Gee, after two severed animal heads were sent to the Austin laboratory in a single container. "We ended up with one more head than we had identification slips for," said Gee.

This started a series of errors in the labeling sequence. In all, the error affected the test reports on about 15 heads that were sent to the department.

"Fortunately they were all 'false positives'. There were no 'false negatives'. That's what really keeps you awake at night," said Gee.

But the biggest problem was in Bay City. The state was rabid. In Bay City alone, 23 persons who had handled the pup began taking the rabies shots.

In Victoria, there persons began the innoculations.

One person each began taking the shots in Hallettsville, Bryan, San Angelo and Dayton.

Lubbock Man's Probation Revoked

In accord with its policy to seek probation revokation for any probation violation, the criminal district attorney's office Monday won revokation against a 20-year-old Lubbock man for failure to pay probation fees and report to probation officers.

Hendry Eugene Diaz of 3413 28th St. was ordered by Judge John R. McFall in 237th District Court to begin serving a five-year sentence for delivery of heroin.

Diaz was put on probation after being charged in August 1975, and prosecutors claimed he reported and paid fees for eight months and then ceased to perform that required condition for two years.

"We've been instructed by (Criminal District Attorney) John T. Montford to take all violations of probation before the district courts," Assistant Criminal District Attorney Mark McBride said after the Monday afternoon hearing.

OUR PLEDGE

We pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, under God, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

AN EDITORIAL:

We Met The Enemy--He's Us

PRESIDENT CARTER's declared war on inflation truly is a test of the nation's moral fiber. One wonders if we're fully prepared to meet that test—or whether we're proceeding on the assumption that the war against inflation is one that can be won without casualties.

There were plenty of occasions during World War II when we might have decided to give up or postpone our drive for victory in favor of some other objective. Had we yielded to that temptation, the course of subsequent history would have been an unhappy one for us.

The inflationary enemy we face now is an even tougher one than the Axis powers were in 1941. But we have done nothing to effectively check inflation as it has grown progressively stronger during the past 15 years.

OUR LEADERSHIP occasionally has adopted an anti-inflation program—only to abandon it at the first sign it might hurt.

President Carter these days is speaking in firmer tones than we have been accustomed to hearing. And that is reassuring. All the same, we would be more reassured if he would tell us frankly what we really may come to expect in this war against inflation.

Some of it is likely to be unpleasant and our determination to carry through may be shaken if that comes as a surprise.

One could feel more certain of ultimate victory over inflation if the President had told us forthrightly that his program of fiscal and monetary austerity creates a risk of recession—and we must accept that risk if we are to beat inflation at its own game.

Instead we get reassurances from the President and the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board that they will find a nice middle ground in fiscal-monetary policy sufficiently restrictive to curb inflation without pinching anyone.

OVER THE past quarter century there has been only one instance of an anti-inflation program that has had any lasting success. That was President Eisenhower's effort in the boom period of 1955-57 to curb the inflation which had reached the then alarming annual rate of 3-4 percent.

His program centered on fiscal and monetary austerity and eschewed government intervention in private wage or price making. This approach led to recessions in 1957-58 and 1959-60 and a long period of what seemed like slow growth economically.

In actuality, what it did was restore price stability. Between 1957 and 1964 the price of finished goods rose at a rate of only 0.5 percent per year. After two decades it's a fair conclusion that we can't have an effective yet painless anti-inflation policy.

As in World War II, the only thing worse than the hardship involved in winning the war against inflation would be the hardship involved in losing it.

AN EDITORIAL:

Not Much Bang For A Billion

THE CARNEGIE Commission, after surveying the present and potential of noncommercial radio and television, is broadcasting a clutch of recommendations for restructuring each to better serve the public and "help the creative spirit to flourish."

Annual funding would be increased from the current level of less than $500 million to around $1.2 billion by 1985, with half to come from federal appropriations.

A major source would be fees raised from licensing commercial broadcasters. Facilities would be expanded to reach 90 percent of the American population.

As the Carnegie Commission sees it, the result would be a communications service for the viewing and listening publics that "can illuminate the dark corners of the world and the dark corners of the mind."

WELL, MAYBE. At the very least, the report's authors certainly are flourishing creatively. Without doubting their sincerity or dismissing the basic conclusions, questions can be raised concerning some points and assumptions.

It should not be forgotten that the creative spirit has been known to flourish in commercial broadcasting, particularly in the early days when money was in shorter supply and commercial considerations were for that very reason no less imperative.

Much that came out of that era is now considered classic, e.g., the long-run "Omnibus," perhaps yet to be excelled in bringing culture to a mass audience.

As for today's audiences, the Nielsen-computed multitudes who respond to the appeal of Charlie's Angels may not in the least care to have the dark corners of the world, let alone their minds, "illuminated" at whatever cost.

THE ULTIMATE cost of pouring vast numbers of public dollars into expanded creative effort could be simply the subsidization of what continues to be a viewing elite. And in the process, public broadcasting, for all its faults, might lose something of present value, that is to say, its diversity.

There is a variety and freshness in programming originating from Boston and Philadelphia that the networks lack and public broadcasting might lose if restructured and centrally funded.

Carnegie proposals stress careful insulation from government control, but this could be easier in the stressing than the achieving.

Inadvertently, the commission may be taking the same attitude for which the networks are often criticized, i.e., money is the remedy for shortcomings, particularly in programming. But experience shows us it rarely works that way.

ART BUCHWALD:

Don't Fault Margaret On Off-Court Scores

WASHINGTON—In Margaret Trudeau's discreet book, "Beyond Reason," she reveals that she fell in love with another man when she visited New York with her husband, Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, to attend the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament.

Without naming the person, she describes him as a Southern gentleman, who was tremendously handsome, charming, a terrific dancer and a passionate person.

Since I was at the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis party that year, I feel I owe it to the people of Canada to issue an unequivocal denial that I was the chap who played a role in breaking up the Trudeau marriage.

It's true that Margaret and I did dance that evening and, while she may have been smitten with my savoir-faire, I did nothing to encourage her to think there was the slightest chance of our having a more intimate relationship.

FRIENDS WHO know about my personal indiscretions will testify that I have never made a pass at the wife of a head of state in all the years I have been playing tennis.

There are many reasons for this. One is that I know how easy it is for a woman who has to attend one official function after another to fall hopelessly in love with somebody like myself.

But I am also aware that she is not falling in love with me but with my tremendous serve and my defensive lob.

It's hard for many women to believe that off the court I am just like anybody else, and while they fantasize about my vicious backhand and unbelievable drop shots, I still put on my sneakers one foot at a time.

It's true that while we tangoed Margaret did reveal to me that all was not going well in Ottawa between her and Pierre. But I thought she was talking about tennis.

MANY WOMEN who play tennis find their husbands are not up to the game and they tend to look for happiness in someone with a faultless overhead. A smart player will not be taken in by this flirtation. The stakes are too high.

If I ever decided to have a fling with the wife of a head of state, it could be so time-consuming that I might easily let my volley shots go to pot.

Many people have asked me, "Well, if you weren't the person at the RFK party, then who was it?"

It's hard for me to say. There were at least 200 people at the party, 50 of whom could fit the description.

The Southern gentleman part of it is a red herring, because most Canadians think anything below the Canadian border is south.

ALSO, MARGARET could be disguising the man with whom she fell so madly in love. For all I know it might have been Buddy Hackett or Rosie Grier or Howard Cosell.

I do recall that during one fox trot Margaret asked me, "Who is that beautiful senator sitting with Ethel Kennedy?"

"That's Jack Javits of New York," I told her. Yet when I think back on it, I don't believe Jack and Margaret said two words to each other all night.

The revelations in Mrs. Trudeau's book came as a surprise to all of us who have had anything to do with the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament.

Because the party precedes the tournament and is held on a Friday evening, Ethel Kennedy has a strict rule that anyone playing in her tournament has to be in bed with lights out by midnight.

I CAN understand why many people would suspect that I was the great love in Margaret's life, as it seems likely that she would fall for the top-seeded celebrity in the tournament.

But anyone who knows how much I love tennis will tell you that if I have the choice of a romance with the wife of the Prime Minister of Canada or being in top physical shape to play the next day, I will always be asleep by 11 o'clock.

Abernathy Man In Favor Of Constitutional Session

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

I want to take issue with your April 5 editorial opposing the Constitutional Convention.

You say this convention could cost the taxpayers up to $30 million. If we had this amendment in question already in force it would save us $30 billion this year alone, not counting all the years to come. This proposed amendment has worked in Texas for all these many years, so why are you opposed to the nation having one like it?

The truth of the matter is, the news media are scared to death that such a convention would put a bridle on their activities. The Roman Holiday the news media have had on the Three Rivers problem is a sample. They have delayed Nuclear Power by at least 10 years by their over-exposure of the accident!

Another thing—a lot of people who are grinding their own axe, say that they are afraid the delegates would go wild and add all kinds of amendments to the constitution. Why don't you tell the people the truth? This convention can only agree on a proposed amendment. To be legal it would have to be ratified by 38 states and if 38 states ratify any amendments the convention passes. This is what we like to refer to as Democracy.

Geo. B. McAllister, Rt. 3, Abernathy

(EDITOR'S NOTE: We oppose the constitutional convention for the reasons stated. We also thought there was some irresponsible handling of the Three Mile Island incident.)

Critic's Opinion On Tech Play Draws Sharp Retort

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Bill Kerns' scathing review of Cliff Ashby's "Pancho!," playing at the University Theatre at Tech, cries for some response.

It is not as if Kerns' observations are unfounded—I agree that the play is either too long or needs a second intermission, at least, and one needs to be a scholar of Mexican history to comprehend completely the references to the likes of Diaz, Madera, Huerta, Obregon and Caranza.

Nevertheless, the play is historically accurate, and it presents a very convincing portrait of the title character. Kerns, however, seems to expect this premier production to emerge full-grown and with the maturity and refinement that a Broadway production has years to achieve.

Even in its infancy, the play exhibits a tremendous amount of ambition and promise, and in places it rises to brilliance. The transition from the cantina to the first battle scene, for instance, is one of the finest pieces of staging I have seen in a long time.

Kerns is certainly one to speak of banality in Sylvia Ashby's song lyrics. Kerns must have stepped to the men's room during the "Fruits of the Revolution" sequence. The slides of trees hanging heaving with human corpses drives home the musical metaphor with a force that is unforgettable.

"Pancho!" is not "Macbeth," and Cliff Ashby is not Shakespeare, but neither is Bill Kerns a critic of notable renown.

Suffice it to say that the play did not deserve the panning Kerns chose to give it, and I hope Ashby will continue to polish the play and produce it elsewhere. It has too much potential to pass into oblivion after its short run on the local stage.

Dallas Reader Sees New Cotton Fabric As Boon

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

The Wall Street Journal records a major breakthrough. It states that a certain firm has perfected a 100 percent cotton wrinkle-proof fabric.

Couldn't have come at a better time—just when cotton will again be King due to high cost of petroleum products. I expect we'll all go back to cotton stockings, too. I hope the South Plains will prosper greatly!

Lillian Rountree, Dallas

Crosby Reader Has Some Ideas On Energy Crisis

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

There's an energy shortage. It's creating havoc with our balance of trade, inflation in America and the popularity of Jimmy Carter. We, the American people, have been told that we must conserve energy and pay higher prices. Uncle Sam is doing his part. Federal employes will no longer be able to park free!

If President Carter is really serious about saving energy, he's overlooking two very obvious, notorious wasters of energy that have been created by the federal bureaucracy and the courts.

The production of unleaded gasoline requires more crude oil per gallon than leaded regular. Uncle Sam says we must use this punchless fuel and run it through our catalytic converters in order that we might breathe pure air. Some parts of our country, I'll admit, have dirty air. But, air pollution in Crosby County? In any part of windy, sparsely populated West Texas and Eastern New Mexico? Yet, my pickup must meet the same "clean air standards" as an automobile driven in New York City.

Another notorious energy waster is forced busing for racially balanced schools in the city. Almost all Americans accept the fact that all kids are entitled to equal educational opportunities. If our nation had abundant fuel supplies, I could support forced busing. If Uncle Sam is really serious about easing our fuel shortage, hundreds of barrels of oil could be saved daily by eliminating this particular method of achieving racially balanced schools. We all know that other methods are available for achieving the same goal.

Crosbyton is in the process of developing, with the help of the federal government, a solar powered electrical plant for the city. The next phase calls for federal expenditures of $1 million. But, once again, President Carter is guilty of double talk. His budget calls for cutting allocations for this project by 90 percent, which, in effect, kills it. Yet, on nationwide television he talks of increased federal expenditures for the development of solar energy projects.

Mr. President, you confuse me.

If a country boy from Crosby County, Texas, can come up with ideas that would work, and save a great deal of our petroleum usage, surely the energy experts in Washington could come up with a comprehensive program that makes sense and is workable. They haven't done so yet. Why not? America needs to know.

David Wigley, Rt. 1, Crosbyton

LCCPC Pledges To Work With New 'Crime Line'

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Here is an open letter to The Hon. Dirk West.

Dear Mayor West:

We are writing you this letter so as to clear up any misunderstanding that may have come about from an article in The Avalanche-Journal of April 11, 1979, concerning the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council meeting Tuesday, April 10.

In fact, the Board of Directors of the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council did unanimously vote to endorse your recently announced Crime Line, Inc., and do congratulate you for your initiative in establishing this useful tool for reducing crime.

We recognize that this Crime Line can be invaluable in eliciting information leading to the arrest and prosecution of criminals.

Furthermore, the Council feels that our two programs complement each other and that together, they will provide Lubbock with a real opportunity to do away with this blight that plagues all of us.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Tigress In Tank

THERE'S A survey floating around that says the American people are resigned to paying sky-high prices for oil and gasoline and can't work up much excitement over any talk of crippling fuel shortages.

Well, no pollster surveyed me. I'm not resigned to $1-a-gallon gasoline, which I suspect will be only the beginning, and I can work up plenty of excitement over fuel shortages.

As far as I'm concerned, the OPEC robbers are temporarily lousing up my life.

Their latest price gouge might, as everybody seems to think, have been a lot worse. And I know they're entitled to charge whatever we'll pay. But their timing is terrible.

Or else mine is.

TO BE PERFECTLY honest, our way of life didn't suffer overmuch during the oil embargo of 1974-75. We dutifully turned the thermostat down...wore a lot of sweaters...kept a heavy hand on the light switches...and didn't burn up more than a tank of gas a month.

We never do. Old Dad rides the train to work: everything in our village is only a mile away; and we drive our non-gas-guzzling compact to summer vacations close to home. There were lines at the local service stations, but we weren't in them. For longer trips, we climb into airplanes.

Now all that's about to change. After years of being under-consumers, we are getting ready to join the group that gobbles up gasoline. And at the worst possible time.

The closer Old Dad gets to that fixed-income retirement status, the less kindly I feel toward the oil barons who keep jacking up their prices—and inflation—in their version of "as the world squirms."

TO BEGIN WITH, there's the projected move to the sun belt, where mass transit is almost nonexistent and the wide-open spaces empty gas tanks with alarming frequency.

Also, I am not looking forward to the five-figure tab I'm afraid the movers will lay on me, especially with the price of fuel heading up. I'm giving serious thought to throwing a giant garage sale and starting over in a three-room tent. There can't be much demand for tents in the Middle East any more.

Sofas and refrigerators and beds aren't the only things that have to head out. There's the matter of Granny, Gramps, daughter, three little granddaughters, three goldfish, a zillion toys, and one very large dog who gets carsick on a trip around the block.

Think we can move this clan in one automobile? No way.

SO THERE'S a two-car caravan headed across the country smack in the middle of the summer when everybody else and his mother-in-law will be headed someplace on vacation and most gas stations will be closed on weekends and we won't dare run the air-conditioners because that eats up gas and the kids will get hot and fight a lot and the dog will throw up all over everybody.

See why I'm mad at the sheiks?

There's more.

After years of campaigning, I have convinced Old Dad that it's now-or-never-time to visit Greece and Italy.

If we wait any longer we won't have any git-up-and-go for donkey rides, cathedrals and museums, not to mention the scratch for air fare. (He says we don't have it now, but he always talks like that.)

SO GUESS what? The airlines are hit by a sudden fuel shortage, that's what. Thanks to the latest OPEC outrage, they are being forced to raise fares and cancel flights and you wanta take any bets on who might not get to Rome this year?

Not that I am against President Carter's decision to phase out price controls on domestic oil.

As near as I can understand it (and I'm still having trouble with "new new oil"), it's the only thing that will convince the oil companies it's no longer wiser to let their oil stay in the ground.

I guess I have to believe him when he says this will lessen the sheiks' grip on our throats by (1) cutting imports, (2) reducing consumption, (3) increasing domestic production and (4) forcing us to get going on solar energy.

Anything that could add 740,000 barrels a day to domestic output can't be all bad. And the President says he's "going to the wall" to keep the oil lobby from pouncing on Congress "like a chicken on a June bug" against his proposed tax on "windfall profits."

Although I have to confess I don't see how you encourage production by raising prices if you take the raise away in taxes.

THE PRESIDENT refuses to believe, he says, that Congress will make "a few already rich companies billions of dollars richer" in a "massive rip-off of the American people." (He has more faith in Congressmen than a lot of us, but maybe he's got a secret weapon we don't know about.)

The final blow, though, is the news flash that the folks in charge of switching us over to the metric system are thinking about selling gasoline in liters instead of gallons.

Something about it being cheaper to reset the gears on gas pumps to compute liters than to cope with $1-a-gallon gas.

What that means is that, instead of $1 a gallon, we'll be paying 26 cents a liter, and won't that make us all feel better?

HERE'S TO the Pole named Casimir Funk—clink!—who coined the word "vitamin." A biochemist, he, working in London in 1912, He figured out that what was in rice hulls that prevents beriberi was a class of chemical compounds called "amines."

Onto that, he tacked "vita" to get something that roughly meant "amines essential to life." And eventually, the word was shortened up.

It's against the law in France to chop down any tree that's at least 30 years old.

The word "fiesty," notes our Language man, comes from an aged word that means small dog.

Cancer Research Aimed At Weak Link Of Cell

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of stories dealing with cancer research grants in Texas. April has been declared "Cancer Control Month" nationwide. For further information on cancer questions, call 762-0825. Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society, Area 1 Office, 1902 Ave. M, Lubbock, 79405.)

HOUSTON (Special) — The cancer cell's most vulnerable point is being exploited by biochemists at M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute here to find ways to produce more effective anti-cancer chemicals.

Dr. E. Colleen Moore, associate professor of biochemistry at the institute and University of Texas, is exploring new ways to block an enzyme which is active when cells are about to divide. Her work is supported by an American Cancer Society research grant.

The enzyme is called ribonucleotide reductase. It stimulates action of vital links in producing DNA, the master genetic material that "blueprints" cell production.

Several compounds have been found that block the DNA machinery through effects on the nucleotide enzyme. Some are in clinical use or undergoing preliminary tests, such as hydroxyurea and ARA-A, which have shown some results, but their effects are limited.

Now Dr. Moore is delving more deeply into the biochemistry of the cell, experimenting with rat liver cancer cells to find out how the enzyme mechanism actually works in DNA production. Because the enzyme is most active at a stage of cell division known as the "S phase," just prior to the cell dividing, this particular mechanism will be explored. The cell's vulnerability may depend on how timely anti-cancer drugs are applied.

Also to be probed is what actually happens in the cell when the anti-cancer drugs take effect. A new technique for measuring the enzyme effects has been devised.

These studies should produce knowledge of cell reproduction useful in chemotherapy of cancer.

Farmers To Plant Less Corn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers intend to reduce corn plantings this spring by less than 1 percent from last year when they harvested a record crop of the grain, a key ingredient for producing the U.S. food supply, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said farmers intend to plant 79.2 million acres of corn, compared to about 79.7 million acres in 1978.

It said also farmers plan to boost soybean plantings 7 percent to 68.8 million acres from 64 million acres in 1978. Last year's soybean harvest also was a record.

The prospective crop plantings were indicated in a survey April 1 of 44,000 farmers across the country, the report said.

Corn is the leading U.S. grain and, as feed, is vital for the production of meat, milk and poultry products. Soybeans are the source of vegetable oil and high-protein meal used in feed.

No forecasts of actual crop production were included in the report. Most of the crops will be planted in the next couple of months and will be harvested in the fall.

Cotton farmers said they plan to boost their plantings to 14.4 million acres, up 8 percent from less than 13.4 million acres last year.

Increased plantings also were indicated for durum and other spring-planted wheat. Winter wheat farmers also boosted their plantings last fall for the 1979 harvest.

But the report said farmers intend to plant fewer acres of some other crops, including sorghum, oats, barley and rice.

In a similar report last January, the department said farmers intended at that time to plant 1.2 percent more corn this spring and 3.5 percent more soybeans. Cotton plantings were indicated at 6 percent greater than last year.

Farmers currently are eligible to enroll in acreage set-aside programs aimed at curbing the production of wheat and feedgrains, primarily corn.

A similar set-aside program was in effect last year, requiring farmers to take part of their cropland from production in order to qualify for federal price supports on their crops.

Wheat production in 1978 dropped to 1.8 billion bushels, the first harvest in four years of less than two billion bushels.

But last year's corn crop, aided by nearly ideal weather, soared to another record of 7.1 billion bushels, up by more than 10 percent from 6.43 billion in 1977, the previous high.

Soybean output also climbed to another record last year of 1.84 billion bushels, up 4.5 percent from 1.76 billion bushels in 1977.

Cotton production, beset by poor yields and a smaller acreage, dropped 25 percent to 10.8 million bales last year from 14.4 million bales in 1977.

Although the U.S. grain stockpile is the largest since the early 1960s, export demand has been brisk and prices generally have held up relatively well.

The farm price of wheat in March, according to the department's preliminary figures, averaged $3.01 a bushel at the farm nationally against $2.67 a year earlier. Corn was even with a year ago at $2.15 a bushel, while soybeans were $7.08 a bushel, compared to $6.20 a year earlier.

Another reason for grain prices holding up despite the huge supply is the government's reserve program. Farmers have about 1.3 billion bushels — mostly corn and wheat — stored under the program, locked off the market for up to three years or until prices rise enough to trigger release of the grain.

An increase in livestock feeding also is a big factor in the demand for grain, with pork and poultry expansion providing larger markets for feed grains and soybean meal.

The survey showed that farmers intend to plant 4.38 million acres of durum wheat this spring for the 1979 harvest, up 7 percent from last year.

Plantings of other types of spring wheat were indicated at 14.8 million acres, up 4 percent from 1978.

Last December the department said winter wheat producers planted 51.5 million acres last fall for the 1979 harvest, an increase of 8 percent from a year earlier.

Other crops in the latest planting survey and their acreages included:

—Sorghum 15.6 million acres planted for 1979, down 5 percent from 1978.

—Oats 15.04 million acres, down 8.2 percent.

—Barley 8.64 million acres, down 13.5 percent.

—Flaxseed 837,000 acres, down 6 percent.

—Rice 2.94 million acres, down 4.4 percent.

—Sugarbeets 1.17 million acres, down 10.8 percent.

—Sunflowers 4.9 million acres, up 75.3 percent.

By major producing states, the survey of 1979 plantings and the acres compared as a percentage of 1978 plantings included:

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC., headquartered at Lubbock, is "pulling all stops" to maintain sufficient federal funding for the High Plains Boll Weevil Control Program to assure its successful continuation in 1980.

The agricultural section of the Carter administration's proposed budget recommends that $211,000 be cut from the 1980 appropriations bill for all West Texas boll weevil control operations.

That appropriation in 1979 is $1,125,000. Out of this comes the cost of trapping operations and chemical treatments in the Presidio-Pecos-El Paso area, plus "administrative costs" up and down the USDA chain of command.

This leaves approximately $750,000 in spendable funds for the High Plains program.

"THAT'S A LITTLE OVER 81 PERCENT of the total appropriation," explains Ed Dean, field service director for the PCG.

This may mean that more than 81 percent of the proposed $211,000 cut — more than $170,000 — would come from the High Plains program.

And since every dollar of federal funds is matched by a dollar from High Plains producers, Dean points out, the total program loss would come to almost $350,000.

The threat of this funding loss, Dean says, comes at a time when more money — not less — is needed to treat expanded acreage in the weevil control zone and offset the effects of inflation.

THE HIGH PLAINS PROGRAM SINCE 1964 has been an effective barrier to weevil infestation across the entire High Plains and farther west.

The PCG initiated the program after entomologists in 1963 warned that unless controlled, boll weevils in a few years would make High Plains cotton production much more costly if not economically impossible.

In a letter to Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, the PCG noted that cotton acreage in the weevil control zone has increased by about 75 percent, insecticide costs have almost doubled, and labor costs have jumped 70 to 75 per cent under the constantly escalating minimum wage.

DEAN AND PCG EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT Donald Johnson will continue the organization's efforts April 23-25 with personal visits to the offices of Whitten, Texas congressmen, senators and others.

"High Plains producers and the government together since 1964 have spent literally millions of dollars to keep weevils out of West Texas, New Mexico and Arizona cotton," Dean emphasizes.

"And we are doing all we can to make the people in Washington realize what a real tragedy it would be to endanger the future effectiveness of the program for the sake of a few thousand dollars in 1980."

THE USDA'S COTTON PLANTING INTENTIONS estimate of 14.4 million acres, released after the market closed Monday, was considered bearish by floor traders, commission house analysts and cotton merchants, Reuters reported.

The estimate compares with expectations of 13.7 million to 14.3 million acres, with most centering around the previous report in January of 14.1 million all-cotton acres (when adjusted for all producing states) or only slightly beyond.

Analysts said the market could open around 50 to 100 points lower today.

The Texas upland acreage was estimated at 7:6 million, up from 7.2 million in the January projection and from actual plantings last year of 6.950 million. This is in line with projections by close students of the Texas crop.

By regions, the planting intentions were estimated at 6,215,000 acres in West Texas (crop reporting districts of 1-North, 1-South, 2-North, 2-South and 6 and 7), 600,000 acres in East Texas (districts 3, 4, 5-North and 5-South, and 785,000 acres in South Texas (all the rest of the districts).

The initial

Initial reactions of traders on other U. S. crop intentions were neutral on corn and slightly bearish on soybeans.

Cattle Futures Show Sharp Increase

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 17 to 92 points higher led by June Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales totaled 34,055 lots. The market rallied from an early loss of 12 and climbed 135 before meeting resistance. April set a new historic high.

All other contracts rose to new season's highs on record high cattle and beef. Strong stopping of deliveries was also a factor in aggressive buying.

Deliveries total 266 thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 110 to 110½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a record high. Cash cattle were up 50 cents to $2.50 with the best top $77.50 per hundredweight, which is a record high. Omaha's top was $77.25.

Slaughter was 97,000 head. About 13,400 head are expected today at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed 92 to 150 points higher led by August at the daily limit. September was up a like amount earlier. Volume totaled 4,538 cars.

Prices were higher from the start and posted new season's highs across the board to the highest in more than one year. Strong demand for cash cattle and beef along with an outlook for a constructive cattle on feed report sparked aggressive demand.

There have been 354 deliveries thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $5 with the best top $149 per hundredweight at Louisville. Receipts at the major terminals are expected to total 1,900 head today.

Hog futures closed 40 higher to 27 lower on 4,677 lots. Distant June was up the most with July off the most. Earlier distant April gained 60.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain futures fell today on the Chicago Board of Trade before the release of an Agriculture Department survey of farmers' planting intentions this spring.

Soybean futures fell 4 1/2 to 9 cents a bushel as traders continued a selling spree that began last week, partly in anticipation that the report will show that farmers plan a largerthan-expected soybean crop this year.

Analysts said technical or chart-related selling encouraged some of the decline. Although an industry group reported domestic usage of soybeans at a continuing high level of 19.6 million bushels, there was talk that a government report would show last week's soybean exports at a low level for the third consecutive week.

Corn futures drifted slightly lower, despite reports of buying by commercial interests and long-range forecasts of continued cool, wet weather in the Corn Belt. Some selling came in sympathy with the decline in soybean prices, and on cautious selling ahead of the planting intentions report.

At the close, soybeans were 4 1/2 to 9 cents lower, May $7.25 3/4; wheat was unchanged to 1 3/4 cents lower, May $3.36 1/2; corn was 1 1/4 to 2 cents lower, May $2.53; and oats were 1/4 to 1 1/4 cents lower, May $1.42.

MORE FIREWOOD PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $380,000 federal project will be carried out in four New England states to help small farmers and other landowners increase their production of firewood, the Agriculture Department said Monday. The pilot project in Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont is intended to produce 80,000 cords of wood over a two-year period which, if used in fuel-efficient stoves, could replace 240,000 barrels of heating oil.

Crossword Puzzles Attract Many

BY JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

You'll know one when you see one, because a crossword puzzle buff will merely scan the front page before rummaging through the rest of the paper in search of the puzzle.

There is no doubt as to the popularity of the crosswords: recently 170 puzzle-lovers showed up in Stamford, Conn., for a weekend tournament. Contestants arrived from as far away as Santa Monica, Calif., and Sioux Falls, S.D., and competed against each other and the clock for a first prize of a mere $250.

Incidentally, the winner of the Stamford tournament was a teacher of English, Mrs. Miriam Raphael of Port Chester, N.Y., who had never before competed in a professional contest. To win, she completed the last, and largest, of the puzzles without an error in 18 minutes.

Perhaps no one can better judge the increased interest in crossword puzzles than Margaret Petherbridge Farrar, considered the "grand dame" of the American crossword puzzle. Mrs. Farrar, 82, was the editor of the first crossword puzzle book in 1924 and first crossword puzzle editor of the New York Times (a post she held from 1942-1969).

Recently in a Los Angeles Times interview, Mrs. Farrar said she definitely felt there is a very real revival of interest in crossword puzzles.

However, Mrs. Farrar saw a dark side to the interest in puzzles. "I'm afraid people are taking time to do more puzzles because these are hard times and people are worried. Doing a puzzle can rescue you from other problems."

Mrs. Sammie Hawthorne of Lubbock, who was recently caught doing a crossword puzzle while riding a local bus, says she has been working on the puzzles for years.

"Even before I retired," she said, "I'd have my breakfast cup of coffee and do the daily puzzle before going to work. Although I have more leisure time now and could do the puzzle anytime, I still try to complete it before noon. You notice, of course, that despite my shopping trip, I'm still determined to finish."

What is the lure of filling in blanks denoting strange word usages, 'plays on words,' mythology or puns?

No one seems to know, but if you are among an estimated 50 million Americans who at least casually or occasionally try the crosswords, then be assured you are perfectly normal.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Please believe me, this is no joke. I am a 26-year-old male and have never slept with a woman. Don't get me wrong. I'm not gay. I've just never taken the time or had the desire for a sexual relationship. I guess you can say I'm a virgin.

I'm a Christian singer and have been worried about myself. I've talked to close friends and they have suggested I masturbate. I haven't done it because it goes against everything in me. I take pride in my virginity and wouldn't have it any other way. I love God and want to live for Him. I need to know, Ann, would masturbation kill my virginity? Please print this letter. In this day and age of open sex, I feel like a freak. Is there anybody else out there like me? — Peoria

Dear Peoria: You are probably "asexual" — which means your sex drive is so low it is virtually non-existent.

Masturbation does not kill virginity, but why do it if you have no sexual urges that require a release of tension?

You are not a freak. There are other adult virgins around — both male and female. These people don't have sex and they don't miss it.

Dear Ann Landers: Because of physical disabilities, including failing eyesight, I'm unable to drive and have great difficulty getting taxis in this area. I have been relying for some time on a friend to take me out once weekly for my groceries.

While I respect her kindness, I'm beginning to resent her constantly changing either the day or the hour that she promises to come. She will phone and say she'll pick me up Thursday afternoon and I'll be all ready an hour in advance. Then she'll call and say she can't make it until Friday morning.

On Friday I'll be all ready to go, and she'll call and say she can't make it until late in the afternoon. This means I must change other plans, at great inconvenience.

I'd like to tell your readers that if they want to do a friend a "favor," stick to the original promise except in the case of severe illness or dire emergency. A favor is not a favor when it can't be counted on. — No Name, No Town

Dear N.N.N.T.: It sounds as if your friend goes to a great deal of trouble to take you grocery shopping. Obviously she has other responsibilities.

Even though it's difficult to get a taxi in your area, I suggest you try it for two or three weeks. I'll bet after you pay for a few rides you'll be a lot less agitated when the woman calls and says she's going to be late, or she can't make it until the following day.

Dear Ann: I'm 29, and have been married to a wonderful man for five years. We own our home and have a beautiful life together. So what is my problem? My mother.

We fought 24 hours a day. When I turned 19 I moved out to keep my sanity. Mother never forgave me for "deserting" her and embarrassing her in front of her friends. If they only knew the beatings she gave me, the screaming and grief I left behind. No one would believe it.

I've tried so hard to get my mother to like me. Last Mother's Day I sent her flowers. She threw them in the trash can in my presence.

Why is it that this late in life I miss not having a mother? Last week, I went to the zoo alone. While watching the gorillas (they're fascinating), the maternal instincts were so touching, I cried. I've been depressed ever since.

Why can't my mother forgive me for leaving home, even though I'm willing to forget those 19 years of grief? Why do I keep trying to get her to like me? My father and I have a wonderful relationship. Please help. Am I — A "Child" At 29?

Dear 29: One who has not been adequately loved by the principal person in his or her life carries the scars forever. But understanding why the love was not forthcoming will free you from your prison of sadness.

Please get counseling. It will help you see that the cause of your mother's inability to love you is not due to a deficiency in you — but in her.

Food Hints Recycle Gourmet Leftovers

After a gala party hostesses are sometimes faced with the problem of what to do with elegant and expensive leftovers, such as half a bottle of champagne, a few tablespoons of caviar, bits of imported cheeses and some slivers of smoked salmon.

Admittedly this is not the sort of problem that one encounters every day, but there should be better ways of disposing of leftover champagne than pouring it down the drain. Here are some suggestions to utilize luxurious leftovers:

Champagne can be added to a recipe for chicken in cream sauce. Simply reduce the amount of liquid called for and replace with an equal amount of champagne up to one cup.

Cheeses can be reincarnated cleverly after they've been whittled down from substantial wedges to small irregular shapes. With Roquefort, for example, you can use everything but the red sheep seal on the wrapper. In addition to crumbling it in salads, you can mash it with equal parts of sweet butter and use it in two ways: cold, as a spread with toast fingers to accompany cocktails; and hot, by spreading over steaks and hamburgers during the last few moments of grilling. Roquefort can also be added to an omelet.

For a delicious lunch to take to the office, wrap small individual portions of one or more cheeses in transparent film, add a crusty roll or an assortment of crackers, a crisp apple and some grapes and a container of fruit juice or white wine — and your noon hour will be enhanced.

Cavier can add a continental touch to deviled eggs. Simply mash the hard-boiled egg yolks with mayonnaise and a bit of finely minced onion. Stuff the eggs and add a dab of caviar to each. Baked potatoes served with a generous dollop of sour cream and teaspoonful of caviar on top add elegance to an ordinary meat-and-potatoes meal.

Smoked salmon has a short refrigerator life, but leftovers can be quickly consumed as an accompaniment to scrambled eggs for a Sunday brunch.

The possibilities for using these elegant leftovers are almost reason enough to plan another dinner party.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: My mother is 88 years old and suffered a slight stroke. Since then she has been unable to speak clearly. She tries hard to express herself, but the best she can do is mumble, and we are not able to understand her. Is there anything that can be done for her? — H.C.

There's no medicine for this. Strokes involving the left side of the brain in right-handed people frequently damage the speech area. It is called "expressive aphasia," and many readers will appreciate your frustration (and hers).

This calls for monumental patience and careful therapy. The harder a patient tries, the more difficult speech becomes. Most aphasic patients have no lessening of mental capacity and understand every word said. The only thing you can do is try to help your mother retrain the speech muscles. This involves relearning pronunciation the way a child learns to say the alphabet.

Here are some tips:

* Select times when she is least tired.
* Make her know that you understand the physical problem.
* Make lessons brief.
*Choose quiet times (when you and she are alone and relaxed)

A certain amount of physical therapy involving speech muscles may help. Check with a rehabilitation center about this. Results are often disappointing, but can be rewarding in some post-stroke patients.

Involve her in family events, such as a ride in the car or an evening meal, without forcing her to participate conversationally. At such times you might be pleasantly surprised at what she will come out with. Each stroke patient presents an individual problem. The amount of progress (or lack of it) may reflect the character of that person before the stroke. This does not change with stroke. It's important to start therapy and continue doggedly, even if there is no progress, if only for the psychological benefit to the patient. See my booklet, "Stroke: Hope and Help," which may help your understanding. For a copy send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have a question regarding a "cleansing program" I'm into. Part of it consists of a coffee enema each morning, which is retained for 15 minutes. I developed atrial fibrillation during this time. I also am drinking four ounces of water with lemon juice every hour for eight hours daily. Could this program be contributing to my atrial fibrillation? — Mrs. J.C.A.

Fibrillation is a rapid, irregular heart beat. Atrial fibrillation means the tremor is in the muscle of one of the upper chambers of the heart (atrium).

I have no idea what else is involved in this nutty "cleansing" program but if coffee enemas are part of it anything can be imagined. The high price of coffee alone should be enough to make you drop out and let your body do its own cleansing. After such a "treatment" you probably need a physical examination, especially with your heart symptoms.

If you already had a tendency to fibrillation, it is possible the coffee enema might have aggravated it because the caffeine absorbed by the colon can have a similar stimulating effect as when drunk.

Dear Dr. Ruble: What is otosclerosis? What medicine, if any, helps it? — N.A.

"Oto" refers to the ear and "sclerosis," of course, to hardening. But otosclerosis is not exactly a hardening; instead the tiny bones of the middle ear become "spongy." A certain amount of this occurs with age. If it affects the stapes (STAY-peez), a critical bone of the middle ear, hearing can be severely reduced. Surgery helps, and is reported to be successful in from 90 to 95 percent of patients. The bone can either be freed to vibrate normally, or it can be removed and replaced with an artificial structure. Sodium fluoride has been used and is said to help recalcification and stop the spongy development of the bone, but there's no proof this is so. In otosclerosis the normal bone calcium is lost and is replaced by the spongy tissue. This can grow over the area and cause the stapees to become fixed in position.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Does freezing foods harm their nutritional value? — J.L.

Not greatly, but there may be some decrease in vitamin content.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his booklet "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Jack Ford's White House Antics Revealed By Press Secretary

(Editors Note: This is the first in a five-part series on Betty Ford. It is written by Mrs. Ford's press secretary about the life of the Ford Family while in the White House. These stories are taken from the book, "First Lady's Lady," by Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld.)

By SHEILA RABB WEIDENFELD

"Petunia and the President had some fun in bed last night!" Nancy Howe gushed raucously as I tried to sink unobtrusively into the floor of the passport office. We were getting our passports for a trip with the Fords to Martinique next week, and Betty Ford's personal assistant Nancy Howe was treating the man doing the processing to an earful. "She told me when he came back from the Oval Office, she was wearing her adorable blue robe, and she said ..."

Would it make the man more or less interested, I wondered, to find out that "Petunia" was Nancy Howe's nickname for the President's wife? "We had such fun talking about it all this morning," Nancy giggled. "Petunia and I had our tea and we..."

Everything is "we" with Nancy Howe and her Petunia, and most "we" anecdotes are adolescent. She does not understand the difference between funny and silly. If she is telling the passport office about the Fords' sex life, what on earth is she telling the cocktail party circuit?

For two years, one month, and three weeks, I served as First Lady Betty Ford's Press Secretary. The job offered unprecedented satisfactions, unbearable frustrations, and a firsthand look at the world's most prestigious office building: The White House, Washington, D.C.

My first responsibility was to project Betty Ford and her four children to the public as effectively as possible. And in the process, I learned a lot about the White House — both the place and the state of mind that goes with it.

There are two sides to the White House: his and hers. The West Wing houses the Mess, the President's executive staff offices, the press room. The East Wing is for the First Lady's staff: my office, the social secretary's office, and so on.

The difference in decor between East and West is striking: masculine for the boys, feminine for the girls. My office is positively dainty. Small, beautifully upholstered Victorian couches, delicate tea tables, muted gold carpeting, long draperies — all done in a kind of "Conservative Chic."

NOVEMBER 4, 1974

Today I met with Dr. Lukash, the White House physician, who wanted to explain to me that Mrs. Ford was starting chemotherapy treatments today. The treatment involves nothing more than taking a series of pills, but, he said, there may be side effects. Some people feel nauseous or lose hair. The chemotherapy is just a precautionary measure; nothing new has been detected.

I was grateful for the details he gave me, because the reporters are, quite naturally, preoccupied with her health. They are constantly sizing up her appearance. Lately they have been saying she looks thin. She does, but because she has been conscientiously dieting. She told me that a few years ago she decided to stop worrying about gaining weight, and just grow old gracefully. When she tipped the scales at 139 pounds, she decided such growth is not graceful and vowed she would never reach 140. She never did; she lost 10 pounds in two months, and has now lost a total of 30 pounds. She is no longer actively dieting, but she is very careful about what she eats.

DECEMBER 4, 1974

East is East and West is West. Granted. But it is counterproductive to have a cold war going on within the White House.

When I came here, I saw myself as a liaison between the press and the First Lady. But I soon found myself fighting with the West Wing every step of the way. Aren't we all in this together? Isn't the East Wing married to the West Wing?

President Nixon may not have been a terrific President, but Pat Nixon was the best First Lady possible. She was seen and not heard.

But Betty Ford is an unusually compassionate, warm woman, a real mother figure, and if ever the country needed to know there was such a presence in the White House, it needs to know that now.

JULY 1, 1975

"We've worked it all out," the Secret Service agent told me with pride. "Jack will be sitting in the front row. As soon as the Rolling Stones finish, he is to jump right up on the stage before the rest of the crowd so he has less chance of being trampled."

"Less chance? That is some maneuver. What kind of advice is that?"

"He's going to jump on stage anyway."

"How do you know?"

"He always does. Sheila, there are two sides to Jack Ford. He goes bananas at these rock concerts. He smokes and he listens to the music and he goes bananas. Just like all of them."

Smokes. Smokes what? Smokes what!

"Hey Sheila," said grinning White House photographer David Kennerly, "did you hear our great idea? Jack's going to take Mick Jagger and Bianca out on the Sequoia after the concert tonight. There'll be about four or five of us. What do you think?"

("Dad, can I have the keys to the Presidential yacht? I just want to get stoned with the Stones." What is this ridiculousness? Am I crazy or is everyone else?)

"Uh, David, really, I don't think it's so hot..."

"Why?" His grin fades. He is confused. He is sincere. He is really asking me why.

"It's too cool, David, too pat. They're taking advantage of him because he's the President's son, and he's taking advantage of being the President's son. If he wanted to do it privately, okay, but—"

"It's going to be private. Just four or five of us. We wouldn't be telling anyone."

"Who's going?"

"Me, Jack, Mick, Bianca, Tom Zito, the rock reporter for the Post—"

"Now wait a second! You're taking the Post's rock reporter and you expect it to be private? You expect him to spend an evening like that and not write anything about it?"

"Sheila, he—"

"And just tell me something else. Is Jack going to—uh—a—relax?" (Why am I unable to say it out loud?)

"What do you mean, 'relax'?"

(Say it, Sheila!)

"Will he—smoke?"

(There, I said it!)

"Smoking grass? Smoking dope? Is that what you're talking about?"

"Yes."

"You mean that it wouldn't be so good to read in the papers that the President's son is smoking dope on the Sequoia."

"Yes! Look, David, I don't care what is done in private" (just don't tell me, please don't tell me) "but isn't it absurd to make it a public issue? I mean if he's for the legalization of marijuana this is the last way he should handle it. Not only won't he get it legalized, but his father won't get re-elected."

Jack walked in as we were discussing it.

"Sheila thinks this is a bad idea," David explained. "She's lukewarm about it."

"I'm not lukewarm about it," I corrected, "I'm cold about it."

"It's turning into such a big production," Jack said, "I don't know if I want to do it anyway."

"Right! What do you want to make a big production out of it for? Do something spontaneous — like just all go out for dinner afterwards."

"It'll be too late."

"Okay, then tomorrow. Do something just to have fun. I'll tell you quite frankly, Jack, I dont know you very well. But I do know that you have a lot of different interests, and all I see these days is one. I suppose it's a neat thing to do, to be the President's son and entertain Mick Jagger, but it seems a bit contrived to me."

I think I was persuasive, but I worried about it all day. On the one hand, I felt like the squarest person in the world. On the other hand, I felt like the only sane one. Smoking pot in public. The President's son. Few things would have more potential for explosion. Finally I couldn't stand it anymore. I called David Kennerly.

"Tell me something, David...Do you think...I mean, if it's so important ...could Jack...before the concert...before he leaves...so that then during the concert itself...I know I'm neurotic, but...Yes, David, please tell Jack to get stoned before he goes to the concert!"

David laughed. "Sheila, look, don't worry about it."

More easily said than done.

JULY 2, 1975

I was in the West Hall waiting for Mrs. Ford to finish dressing for a ceremony when Jack and David walked in. They wanted to let me know that Jack had consented to an interview for Andy Warhol's Interview magazine. Bianca Jagger and Warhol would do the interviewing.

"Does this have to be your first press exposure, Jack? Interview Magazine is a statement in itself. Wouldn't you rather talk to a more general publication first?"

"No. I think the Interview idea is good. I really don't think I should go conventional at first."

"I think you have to think about your impact. You have to be careful, Jack. If you're going to be in Washington, if you're going to be working on your father's campaign, you have to have a solid public image. I think you're being used by these people. What you should be doing is using them — using the press to your own advantage. Before you do an interview, you should think about what qualities are your best qualities and how you can play up those qualities. You have to actively prepare for being interviewed. Now when is this one with Bianca and Warhol going to take place?"

"Right now."

"What?" (Here I am about to watch Mrs. Ford receive 50 long-stemmed roses while elsewhere in the White House Jack Ford is making his public debut.) "Just wait a few minutes until I finish."

"I don't think I can."

I ran upstairs as soon as it was over. Jack had said something about the Truman Balcony. I opened the door and rushed out. Empty. The door slammed behind me and I realized I was locked out — locked out on the Truman Balcony with its airy charm and splendid view. A nice place to reflect, but I was not pensive, I was imprisoned. I became frantic; the door wouldn't open. I was pulling and twisting the knob and about to shout for help when I saw Jack, David, Andy Warhol, and Bianca Jagger walking calmly toward me. Jack must have given the guests the grand tour first. ("This is the Yellow Oval Room, and this is my mother's Press Secretary screaming for help.") They had trouble opening the door from the inside, too, but finally it opened.

Bianca was decked out in a yellow floppy hat with a bow and a yellow see-through dress that revealed the presence of little bloomer undies with lace on the bottom.

I sat in on the interview. No, to be fair I actively intruded in the interview. Intentionally.

"How do you like being in the White House?" they asked Jack.

"Oh," complained Jack, "it's very difficult. It's very hard to relax. I have all these Secret Service agents around."

"I can't imagine it being any different for you, Bianca!" (Yes, it was my voice I heard.) "I mean you have a bodyguard too, don't you?"

Soon Bianca was complaining about her bodyguard and gossiping about how much money Cher spends on her clothes and makeup.

Bianca had brought her own makeup with her (in an enormous tool case that her makeup man carried into the White House).

Presidents' Snores Interest Reporter

APRIL 9, 1975:

"Does either the President or Mrs. Ford snore?" the reporter from the Wall Street Journal wanted to know.

It had been a long day; I was tired. This was silly. "What?" I asked. (Perhaps I had misunderstood.)

"Yes," she said with a chipper laugh, "I know it sounds silly, but it is really historically fascinating. Thus far I have uncovered the fact that 20 out of 35 Presidents snored. Let me see now, Washington, yes, Washington snored. They think it was due to his denture problems. Both Adamses snored, as did Van Buren, Fillmore, Pierce, Buchanan, Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Arthur, Harrison, McKinley, Taft, Cleveland, Hoover, both Roosevelts..."

Clip 'n' Cook

OATMEAL MOLASSES LOAF

2 cakes compressed
or 2 pkgs. dry yeast
½ cup lukewarm water
1 1/3 cups milk, heated
1 cup hot water
¼ cup shortening, soft
4 tsps. salt
1/3 cup molasses
7¼ to 7¾ cups sifted
all-purpose flour
2½ cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour hot milk and hot water over shortening, salt and molasses in a large bowl. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 2 cups flour. Add softened yeast. Stir in oats. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough.

Turn out dough on a lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and elastic, 8 to 10 minutes. Shape dough into a ball, place in a greased large bowl and brush lightly with melted or liquid shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; cover and let rest 10 minutes. Generously grease two 9x5x3-inch loaf pans. Sprinkle bottom and sides of each pan with 2 tablespoons oats. Divide dough in half; shape to form 2 loaves. Place in prepared loaf pans. Brush lightly with milk; sprinkle each with 2 tablespoons oats. Cover; let rise until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350-degrees F.) 40 to 45 minutes. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

SAVE MONEY

During the next few months, save energy and money, advises Pat Seaman, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Turn off the home heating system as soon as possible and wait until very warm weather comes to use the air conditioning, she recommends. Let the sun in for warmth and open windows to cool the home, she concluded.

THE LOOK OF SILK — The double-breasted silk look of this suit features a coat of tan and white stripes with peaked lapels, flapped pockets and a center vent. The plain front trousers are flared. The six-button style is fine for Spring.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

In packing away my favorite baby clothes to give to my children when they may someday have children of their own, my question is: "How do I pack them so they don't turn yellow with age?" — Mari King

Now don't laugh but I've been told on more than one occasion they could be packed in blue tissue paper to prevent the yellowing.

I have to confess, though, I haven't tried it so can't vouch for its accuracy.

Maybe some of you readers would know from experience if this works or may know of a more surefire method. We surely would be interested in hearing it if you do. Just write to me, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. We'll pass it along. Love you much. — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

Thanks for making our lives easier. I can see all kinds of things going on around here, just because of you...

Jar rings hanging on the clothesline to put hangers on so they don't blow off; bobbins in a bottle in the sewing machine drawer; buttons to hold up hose when supporter buttons give out and on and on and on...

To coin a phrase, "What will you think of next!" — Aunt Mary

Can't take all the credit! As I've said before, the ingenuity and imagination of my readers' hints never cease to amaze me and I love all of you dearly for sharing with me and each other. — Hugs, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I found a good way to use up those fabric toilet seat covers which always seem to be left over when the rest of the set is worn out.

Run a cord or elastic through the casing to fit over your dust mop. Does a good job of picking up the dust and is easy to launder. — E. Taylor

DEAR HELOISE:

When I have large dinners to cook, I always keep a small bowl or pan of mild soap suds on the sink. Use it for quick removal of grease, flour, dough, etc., that gets on one's fingers while cooking.

Saves getting faucet handles dirty when turning the water on and off. — Mrs. M.B.

DEAR HELOISE:

Seems as if there's always a list of people I want to remember with a note — and don't get to it. I found an excellent solution.

Address and stamp envelopes, enclose stationery, and place in a conspicuous place, along with a pen.

Any free minute, it's little effort to pour out the words you care to.

Suddenly, it's ready for the mailbox. — T. McJ.

DEAR HELOISE:

I find that very nice salads can be made from canned vegetables. Use mixed vegetables, beets, peas or string beans or almost anything you like — asparagus is very good. Drain thoroughly and add mayonnaise or your favorite dressing.

Quick and delicious! — Dr. Catherine

DEAR HELOISE:

Although our washing machines all have lint filters in this day and time, we know they only catch so much.

The drain hose from my washer empties into a sink in the washroom which was forever getting stopped up.

But thanks to our plumber, I now have the problem solved.

Cut off panty hose (at the knee) and slip the leg over the drain hose, securing with a rubber band.

No more clogged drain. And I only change it about once a month. — Mrs. Gerard L. Elkins

MINK PHOBIA

LONDON (WNS) -Sonny Solomon, 19, was first on line outside Debenham's store on Oxford Street when it was announced that one $6,000 mink coat would be sold for $600 just in time for Christmas. Sonny bought it and gave the coat to his mother as a holiday gift, but now he has sold it for $3,500 — at her request. "She was afraid to wear the coat outdoors even during this coldest winter in 15 years," he said. "There are too many muggers around these days." Sonny bought his mother, Mrs. Toby Solomon, a new table and chairs for the family dining room as replacement for the mink.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON—MICHAEL REED

NEW YORK—Daytime television audiences are just begining to recover from the dialing trauma wrought by last month's decision by NBC to reschedule its serial lineup. Now, CBS has announced that it will shuffle two of its soaps beginning April 23.

"Love of Life" will move from its morning slot to 4 p.m. E.S.T., while "The Young and the Restless" will be seen at 1 p.m. E.S.T., instead of its current noon time period. Most affiliate CBS stations will thereby be pitting "LOL" against ABC's "Edge of Night," while "Y&R" will be in direct competition with NBC's "Days of Our LIves" and ABC's "All My Children." The 28-year-old "LOL" hasn't been scheduled against another soaper for a least a dozen years, and "Y&R" has never faced serial competition in its six-year run. Tuning in tomorrow will pose tough decisions for many daytime viewers, but the ratings outcome should be dandy. Choose up sides now, folks.

SHORT TAKES:

CARLA DRAGONI was given the heave-ho as M.J. Carroll on "The Doctors" when actress Kathy Glass became available for the part following Kathy's contract-negotiation fiasco with "One Life to Live," where she played the role of Jenny Vernon. Kathy took over as M.J. and now Carla has found employment with "All My Children" as Betsy Kennicott, Dan's sister. At least a few of Kathy's fans switched channels when she joined "The Doctors," which hasn't disappointed Kathy's admirers. Her new character is encountering much the same problems with cad Colin that Jenny suffered on "OLTL" with similarly devious Brad Vernon. Apparently, there's never too much of a good thing on soaps. Also new to "AMC" is Louis Edmonds as conman Langley Wallingford, who's out to skin a prominent Pine Valley citizen.

THE MAILBAG:

I'm a fan of "Days of Our Lives" but I'm confused about Stephanie's relationship to others on the show. I saw her at the grave of Brooke Hamilton's mother as though she were Brooke. — L.H., Venice, Fla.

You must have missed quite a bit of the show since it's been established that Stephanie and Brooke are one and the same. Everyone thought Brooke died two years ago in a car crash. But the body found was that of a hitchhiker. Brooke had survived, wandered around in a daze and underwent plastic surgery before returning to town with her "new" identity. Of course, anything can happen on soaps and Stephanie just might turn out to be the hitchhicker who has deliriously assumed Brooke's personality. But, as of now, audiences have been led to believe that Stephanie is a "resurrected" Brooke, although no one is aware of it in the story.

Are the actresses who play Erica and Christina on "All My Children" related? — E.T., Lubbock, Tex.

Susan Lucci (Erica) And Robin Strasser (ex-Christina) are not related, although they do resemble each other.

On "Love of Life," what happened to the first actress who played Sarah, Vanessa's mother? — K.O., St. Paul, Min.

Joanna Roos, the original Sarah, decided not to renew her contract with "LOL" last winter when she was informed the character would be heavily involved in upcoming storylines. Joanna grew weary of the commute between her New Jersey home and "LOL's; Manhattan studio, so Valerie Cossart was cast as Joanna's replacement.

I'd like to know what happened to Miriam, the head nurse at the hospital on "As The World Turns." She was tough but lovable and I miss her — J.M., High Point, N.C.

Marion Connelly, not Miriam, was the name of the head nurse. She disappeared from the scene last fall during one of the show's "housecleaning" maneuvers. Since audiences loved Clarice Blackburn's interpretation of the role, however, the character may return in the future. Clarice, meanwhile, has kept busy writing and acting in off-Broadway productions.

The essence of successful rubber bridge play is to go after your contract and to work on overtricks once your contract is safe. Match point duplicate is a different proposition.

A match point player wins the first club and takes a diamond finesse. Should that diamond finessse work, he would be sure of 11 tricks and hoping for 12. The way the cards lie, the diamond finesse loses and the clubs are so located that the defense will add four club tricks to that one diamond trick. He will be down one for a rather average score since other declarers will fall into that same trap.

The rubber bridge player decides he wants to win the rubber. He lets East's jack of clubs hold the first trick and his nine of clubs hold the next one. At trick three he plays a club honor. West can do nothing better than to take his ace for the third defense trick. Later on South loses the diamond finesse, but that is the fourth and last trick for the defense

Idalou Man Robbed At Gunpoint

A 30-year-old Idalou man told police he was robbed early Monday by two pistol-wielding men who confronted him in a club parking lot in the 1800-block of Broadway.

Migal Garcia Jr., who said his wallet containing $35 cash was taken, said one of the men ordered him to put his hands on top of his car and "don't give us any trouble." After taking the victim's wallet, the two men ran in a northeast direction, reports show.

Garcia said the men, whom he described as young Mexican-Americans, were carrying blue-steel pistols.

A 31-year-old Lubbock housewife told police she was raped late Sunday by a man with pink curlers in his hair.

The woman said that about 10:30 p.m. she was walking west in the 3000-block of East Broadway toward her home when the suspect, described as a black man between 19 and 21 years old, began walking alongside her and asking questions.

The woman said he grabbed her from behind in the 900-block of Idalou Road, told her he had a knife and warned her, "Don't scream or I'll kill you." She said she attempted to resist, but was struck several times and dragged into a nearby vacant lot.

The man allegedly forced the woman to disrobe and lie on the ground. She said that after the suspect raped her, he ran east on Idalou Road.

Reports show the woman walked to her home and told her husband what happened. The attacker was described as between 5-feet-7 and 5-feet-9, and wearing a black leather coat, white striped shirt, white shorts and tennis shoes.

Police may have prevented a shooting about 12:45 a.m. Monday when they arrived at a club in the 700-block of Amarillo Highway and apprehended a man as he was about to walk into the nightspot with a .38-caliber pistol in his hand.

One of the officers arriving at the scene saw the suspect's weapon. Reports indicate the policeman drew his revolver and yelled at the man to drop the gun and put his hands in the air.

The officers asked the man's name and address, and he replied, "I don't know."

Security guards in the club told police the man and his wife had gotten into a fight inside the nightspot and were escorted out. Once outside, the man allegedly pulled a gun and the guards and the man's wife ran back into the club and called police.

In a recent break-in, Tom Hooser, manager of Heath's Furniture, said thieves apparently rammed their car into an overhead door of the business and removed a safe containing $3,683 worth of checks. The burglary occurred sometime between 3 p.m. Sunday and 8:15 a.m. Monday.

Mark Wayne Putman, manager for Tom Galloway Repossession Co., told police someone drove off in a $5,600 sports car from the firm's storage lot sometime between 5 p.m. Friday and 10:30 a.m. Monday.

Melvin Nickell reported that burglars carted off $4,000 worth of wood from a storage lot at 4700 Cedar Ave. sometime late Sunday or early Monday.

Five Alderson Junior High eighth-graders, ranging in age from 13 to 15, told police that someone took their wallets and other assorted items, valued at $108, from an office while they were in gym class Monday morning.

Jerry B. Nichols, owner of a car dealership, said someone took a $2,300 pickup truck from the car lot at 2101 Clovis Road sometime between 6 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Monday.

James E. Swafford of 5429 Ave. D told police that someone took an $850 motorcycle from his driveway sometime late Sunday or early Monday.

Ronnie Lee Weems said someone took a $1,500 soft drink machine from a driveway at 1311-B Jarvis St. sometime over the weekend. Weems told police he was in the process of moving the machine from a service station on Fourth Street to another location when the theft occurred.

Burglars reportedly took $300 worth of meat and a portable TV set from Sarah Alice Johnson's place at 2614 Weber Dr. sometime between 9:30 a.m. Sunday and 6:40 a.m. Monday.

F.C. Lowrie of 2628 22nd St. said thieves took $350 worth of tools from his garage sometime during the past week.

A married couple was reportedly assaulted Sunday night in front of a restaurant after the husband demanded an apology from one of the assailants for pinching his wife.

Reports indicate the couple was walking into the restaurant when a man who answered to "Ray" came up and pinched the 20-year-old Lubbock woman. The husband, 26, attempted to get the man to apologize. The man refused, and he and his two companions began beating on the husband, according to police.

The woman said she ran to her car and that "Ray" followed her and tried to get into the vehicle with her. She said she picked up a tire tool and swung at the man, then threw the tool to her husband.

The three men fled after the husband struck one of his attackers in the forehead with the heavy steel instrument. The couple then drove to the police station and reported the incident.

The suspects were described as white men in their late teens or early 20s. One of the attackers reportedly was short, thin and had brown hair. The other two had blond hair, and all three were wearing jeans.

County Sheriff Accused Of Poisoning Ex-Inmate

Former Brownfield agribusinessman Lonnie E. "Chick" Clark, currently serving time in a federal prison, has filed a $25 million lawsuit claiming he was poisoned while a Lubbock County Jail inmate two years ago.

Clark, 46, convicted on 37 counts of falsifying government documents in order to get increased cotton price support payments, filed suit in federal district court here against the Justice Department, the Agriculture Department, the CIA and Lubbock County.

Clark claims in the suit, prepared and filed by himself, that "the United States Justice Department, its agents, Lubbock County and Sheriff H.J. Blanchard (sic) caused the plaintiff to be poisoned on purpose or through their negligence."

The county sheriff then and now is C.H. Blanchard, who is the brother of former State Sen. H.J. Blanchard.

Clark claims he was poisoned in his jail cell April 10, 1977, and was unconscious for several days afterward in a Lubbock hospital. His condition then was diagnosed as a heart attack suffered two days after he was sentenced in federal court here to three years in the penitentiary and fined $190,000.

He was listed in serious condition for several days at West Texas Hospital.

The federal government last June filed a $9.4 million lawsuit against John H. Thomas and Clark for alleged losses resulting from fraudulent cotton price support schemes.

Thomas, a 46-year-old Houston businessman, was convicted last year, sentenced to three years and fined $129,000 on charges like those filed against Clark.

H-Bomb's 'Father' May Enter Race

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Nobel prize-winning physicist Edward Teller says he is "giving serious consideration" to a request by Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., that he run against California Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston in 1980. Cranston is approaching the end of his second six-term in the Senate.

Teller, 71, a senior research fellow at Stanford University's Hoover Institution and best known as "father of the H-bomb," said in a recent interview he had not made up his mind about running and did not know when he would make a decision. But he added:

"I respect Cranston, but I am very opposed to his stand on vital policy questions." For example, he said he is against Cranston's energy policies, including Cranston's opposition to nuclear energy.

Local Union, City Contractor Granted Extension In Strike

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A laborers union local and a city contractor have several days to settle a dispute based on charges filed with the National Labor Relations Board before formal proceedings are begun, an NLRB official says.

Peter Maydanis of the NLRB office in Albuquerque, N.M. said a preliminary investigation of unfair picketing charges filed by Page & Wirtz Construction Co. against the union has been concluded and an absence settlement has been issued.

Laborers International Union Local 1253 and the construction company now have until the close of business Wednesday to advise the NLRB as to whether they will comply with the settlement, said Maydanis.

Page & Wirtz filed a complaint last Wednesday stating that the union had picketed two New Mexico hospital construction sites without proper notice as required by the National Labor Relations Act.

Maydanis said the settlement agreement offered the two parties requires in part that the union post a notice in its "principal place of business," (the union office) notifying employees that they must cease picketing at the two hospital sites "until and unless given appropriate notice."

He said the posted notice also must inform union members that the union will not strike or picket a medical care facility without notifying the facility in writing "not less than 10 days prior to such actions."

Section 8G of the NLR Act provides that notice of a strike at a health care institution must be made in writing 10 days prior to the action, and that notification "shall state the date and time that such action will commence."

Jack Wirtz said Thursday that the union notifed the hospitals of their intent to picket, but "they didn't wait 10 days and they didn't state the date and day" that picketing would begin.

Union spokesman Abel Gonzalez said, however, that the provision applies only to hospital employee unions and that the laborers "are not affecting any body in the hospital."

Maydanis said the NLRB will file formal charges against the union if it does not choose to comply with the settlement agreement.

Gonzalez said Monday he had received notification of the charges filed by Page & Wirtz and said he was awaiting legal advice on how the union should proceed in the matter. He said there has not yet been any decision on whether picketing will continue.

Wirtz was not available for comment on the matter.

In other strike-related activity, Gonzalez said Monday that the union doesn't "need the help" of the Brown Berets whose spokesman said that the group would act as a security force to protect strikers.

Gonzalez said the Brown Berets and other community groups that announced support of the strike Thursday did so of their own volition. He said he did not specifically ask for the assistance of any groups.

He said "we've had beautiful cooperation from the police department" and said of the Brown Berets' offer to assist the strikers, "We don't want to make a racial issue out of it."

"We're big enough to handle our own problems," said Gonzalez.

In another development, union spokesman John Wallace from the Fort Worth office said that he will be in Lubbock today and "will be available" should any contractors wish to meet with him. "I'll be more than willing to meet and negotiate," he said.

Lubbock Youth Jailed After Shooting

A 17-year-old Lubbock youth was being held in Lubbock County Jail late Monday in connection with the Saturday night shooting death of Curtis Pegues.

Police arrested the suspect about 9:35 a.m. Monday at his lawyer's office. The man was taken to the police department and jailed at 12:45 p.m.

Pegues, 23, of 1913 E. Colgate St. was fatally shot at a club in the 300-block of Idalou Road shortly after 9 p.m. Saturday. Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack ruled the death a homicide.

Autopsy reports show Pegues suffered five bullet wounds — one to the heart and four to the chest area.

Witnesses said Pegues was at the front of the club when two men entered. Moments later, they said, two shots were fired. Pegues and the two suspects ran outside and Pegues collapsed, witnesses said.

Board Shows Large Drop

NEW YORK (AP) — Talk of more credit-tightening by the Federal Reserve sent stock prices into a broad decline Monday, pinning the Dow Jones industrial average with its largest loss in more than six weeks.

The widely recognized average of 30 blue chips fell 10.05 to 860.45, for its biggest decline since it dropped 14.12 points last Feb. 27.

The daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange showed more than three losers for every stock that gained ground.

The Federal Reserve's policy-making Open Market Committee is scheduled to hold its monthly meeting Tuesday. In view of the surge in the inflation rate so far this year, many analysts were predicting that the Fed would decide to exert new upward pressure on interest rates.

Anticipation of such a move depressed the bond market last week, and put a damper on the stock market's recent rally.

The committee doesn't disclose its decisions until about a month after they are made. But Wall Streeters were set to begin watching the behavior of the money markets Tuesday for evidence of the central bank's intentions.

New York (AP) — Monday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Israelis Outraged At Dayan Comment

JERUSALEM (AP) — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan whipped up a storm in Israel Monday with a remark suggesting that Israel may have to consider giving up the occupied Golan Heights if it wants peace with Syria.

Israel radio reported that other ministers in the Cabinet were outraged and that at least one planned to ask for Dayan's resignation.

Dayan has denied that he advocated the evacuation of the strategic plateau in exchange for a peace treaty.

The fuss started when Dayan spoke Sunday before a group of Israeli settlers from the West Bank. The settlers asked if they will have to move, as the Israelis in the Sinai must do after the occupied territory is returned to Egypt under the provisions of the recent peace treaty.

West Bank, Golan Different

Dayan said that unlike the Sinai and the Golan Heights, the West Bank has never been recognized as the sovereign territory of another state.

He was quoted as saying that Israel will "have to decide: the Golan Heights without peace with Syria, or peace with Syria without the settlements on the Golan Heights."

The 444-square-mile area, captured by Israel in the 1967 war, was used by the Syrians as a gun platform to pummel Israeli farms in the valley below.

There are about 25 Golan Heights settlements. Most are cooperative agricultural outposts, but a large urban center is being built in the center of the plateau to serve the surrounding settlements.

No negotiations with Syria are in progress. Israel has said it might consider minor frontier changes, but will not allow the Syrians to return to their old fortifications.

Remarks Draw Fire

Because Dayan serves as Prime Minister Menachem Begin's right hand man in formulating policy, he became the target of a barrage of criticism for his remarks.

Begin reportedly called Dayan into his office for what was believed to be a clarification of the matter, but a spokesman for the prime minister denied that was the reason for the the visit.

The state radio quoted a member of the Labor Party opposition, who said the statement "pulls the rug from under our feet" in any future talks with Syria.

Settlement Advocate Irate

Yaacov Tsur, head of a settlement movement with affiliates in the Golan, charged that he government was "playing with our settlements" and that Dayan was inviting U.S.-Arab pressure on Israel to evacuate the area.

It was not the first time Dayan's off-the-cuff manner put him in hot water.

Two months ago he created a furor by saying that Israel "cannot deny the position or value in the conflict" of the Palestine Liberation Organization. The guerrilla group is widely looked upon here as a band of murderers and the statement won him a public rebuke from Begin.

The comments have isolated the former war hero in a political wilderness with no power base of his own.

A former defense minister under Labor Party governments, Dayan left the party and was a one-man faction in parliament when Begin wooed him into the cabinet two years ago.

Despite Dayan's shaky political status, he is acknowledged as Begin's idea man and the originator of the plan for Palestinian autonomy in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. The idea provided the room for maneuver that Egypt needed to conclude its peace agreement with Israel.

Financial Problems Plague LCHD Board

has dropped to 10.8 percent per 1,000 births.

Although the unit costs more money than it is bringing in to operate, Blackburn told the board, "I don't agree with the term 'loss' — it's 'expenses'. That's just how much it costs to take care of the problem in this area."

Flygare, however, persisted in saying the unit might be too expensive when compared to the operation of the hospital as a whole:

"We cannot operate the hospital in the hole for any particular service," he said. "I still think we're going to have to keep a close tab on it (the unit)."

EMS Rate Boost Okayed

In other business, the board voted into immediate effect a rate increase for the area's Emergency Medical Services. The base charge for a complete trip will jump from $45 to $60 — an increase of more than 28 percent.

Rates for oxygen, making a late run, the county charge and incubator charge also will increase.

Lubbock City Council members voted Thursday to allow the hospital district to increase rates for the service.

Board members also voted to start negotiating with the city to pay rent for the use of a soon-to-be abandoned fire station at 30th Street and Texas Avenue. The hospital district plans to use the facility to house an EMS substation.

EMS studies indicate the average response time for calls from the southwest quadrant of the city are growing longer. LCHD board members are making plans to locate another substation on 50th Street to help shorten the response time for that area.

Hospital district board members will soon be taking bids (or contributions) on a trailer to house EMS attendants on the 50th Street property.

Discussion continued, as it has in several recent meetings, on the hospital's shaky financial situation. After reviewing the past month's expense sheets, the board was told there is a consistent pattern of losing money through lack of bill of financial loss evident in the records.

$1 Million Loss Feared

Members were told that if the hospital continued as it has for the first three months of this year, the hospital district would lose nearly $1 million by the end of the year.

Hospital administrators are in the process of hiring new managers in the ailing business office — seat of many of the hospital's financial problems. But administrators and board members are hoping to move toward a more profitable patient mix to shore up the operation's paying patient level.

"We don't know the impact of of a change in patient mix," Executive Director Gerald Bosworth said. He said hospital costs might still be affected by factors which have nothing to do with whether all the patients are paying there bills.

LCHD workers don't have a chance to offset costs as long as Health Sciences Center Hospital patients are paying higher rates there than at neighboring hospitals, he continued. The hospital has only opened about 50 percent of available beds due to a shortage of nurses.

And that 50 percent bed occupancy is keeping costs high , Bosworth said.

Tax Base "Too Small"

Bosworth suggested that the hospital's tax base is still too small to cover all costs. He said, as he has mentioned at other meetings, that an increase in taxes would help curb hospital costs.

Of the $940,000 the hospital district expects to lose by the end of the year, $540,000 goes toward paying the salaries of resident physicians. Board member Joe Stanley said passage of a bill in the Texas legislature which provides for state payment of resident physicians, would go a long way in paying the bills.

However, the hospital district also will be $4 million short of this year's budgeted funds. The state legislature alotted the district $4 million each year during the hospital's first two years of operation. But that money will not be alocated next year.

"That still leaves us $4 million we have to make up somewhere," board member Joe McIntyre said.

Social Security Financing May Face Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trustees of the Social Security system said Monday that a recession could jeopardize the system's ability to pay retirement benefits on time beginning in 1983.

And, the trustees cautioned that the system's financing is still precarious enough that newly increased Social Security payroll taxes cannot be reduced unless Congress also is willing to either reduce benefits or tap other sources of revenue.

The trustees, in their annual report on the health of the retirement, survivors and disability insurance system, said Social Security could face problems in paying retirement benefits starting in 1983 if the nation falls into a recession this year.

The trustees described it as simply a monthly cash-flow problem; there might not be enough in the till at the start of each month to send out the checks. But the problem would be resolved each month as payroll taxes gradually came in. The problem would clear up by 1992 because of the higher payroll taxestaking effect automatically throughthe 1980s, they said. But the system cannot afford a cut in those tax increases, enacted by Congress in 1977to keep the system solvent.

Social Security Commissioner Stanford G. Ross told a news conference the basic conclusion of the report is that the system is sound and "in good financial shape for the next 50 years."

The Social Security trustees — Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. — said the cash flow problem beginning in 1983 could be avoided if legislation were passed to allow shifting some Disability Insurance trust funds to the Old Age Survivors Insurance trust fund.

Yugoslav Aftershocks Hamper Rescue Work

DUBROVNIK, Yugoslavia (AP) — Aftershocks hampered rescue work, and tourists jostled for scarce airline tickets Monday while residents along the shattered Adriatic coast slept outside for a second night following an earthquake that killed 136 persons in Yugoslavia and Albania.

The government said it feared the number of dead could increase, because some of those injured were in serious condition and it had not received reports on casualties from some outlying villages.

The Yugoslav government said Monday 101 persons died in the quake that hit the Montenegro tourist region Sunday morning. Belgrade radio had reported 200 persons dead in the quake and as many as 1,000 injured.

There was no update to a report Sunday that 35 persons died in Albania.

Seven special charter flights jammed with mostly German and Yugoslav vacationers left Dubrovnik in the last two days from the area's only major airport, an official of the Yugo-tours agency at Dubrovnik Airport said.

"The tourist season in Montenegro is almost ruined," said the official, who declined to give his name. "The earthquake caused great damage to most of our hotels."

Officials said they recorded 150 aftershocks following the earthquake which destroyed buildings along a 60-mile strip of coastline in southern Yugoslavia's Montenegro tourist region and in Albania. They reported one major aftershock at midday Monday, forcing a halt to rescue efforts as a few already-weakened structures collapsed.

Thousands Sleep Outdoors

Rescue workers, hampered by shortages of relief supplies, labored to provide aid for tens of thousands who were to sleeping in the open air for a second night, fearing additional earth tremors.

Drinking water was in short supply, with pipe systems destroyed and springs polluted. Cistern trucks made water deliveries into the stricken area.

President Tito, who had been staying in his south Adriatic residence at Igalo in the Montenegro region when the quake hit, returned to Belgrade Monday after touring the devastated area.

(The British Foreign Office in London said it will send $160,000 worth of medical and other supplies to the stricken region in response to an aid request from Yugosalvia.)

Yugoslav authorities said the number of persons injured in the quake was at least 1,000. There was no update to an Albanian report Sunday of 350 injured.

No Foreign Deaths

There were no reports of foreign victims among the dead. But tourists interviewed at Dubrovnik, where they were brought by bus and ship from the disaster area, said it was a miracle that no foreigners were killed when hotels in the Montenegro resort area collapsed.

The Seismological Institute in Belgrade said Monday the quake registered 6.5 on the Richter scale, revising previous reports setting the intensity at 7.2. The 50-second shock was the strongest ever recorded in Yugoslavia, though the toll was far less than the 1,000 deaths recorded when a quake hit Skopje, 100 miles to the east, in 1963.

Thwarted Hijackers Bomb Airport Crowd

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Thwarted in an attempt to commandeer an Israeli airliner, Palestinian terrorists threw a gasoline bomb and a grenade into the crowded lobby of the airport here Monday.

Police said 12 persons, including one terrorist, were wounded by the bombs or in a gunfight that followed.

Belgian police and security guards of Israel's El Al airline captured two of the terrorists and said one or two others fled into panicked crowds and escaped.

According to police, all the wounded were Belgians except for the one terrorist. They said five persons suffered wounds in the bomb-grenade attack and seven, including the terrorist, were wounded in the shootout. The terrorist and one victim was hospitalized, while the others were treated and released, police said.

Belgian Defense Minister Paul Vanden Boeynants said the terrorists hurled the fire bomb and small grenade from a mezzanine into the crowd below.

Authorities quoted the captured terrorists as saying they were from the Palestine Liberation Organization and the El Al airliner was their intended target, PLO officials in Beirut, Lebanon, said they knew nothing about the attack and denounced it.

Belgian state radio said the terrorists belonged to the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, one of many groups under the umbrella-type leadership of the PLO, while airport authorities identified them as being from a new group called "Black March."

Mahmoud Labadi, the official PLO spokesman in Beirut, told reporters, "We denounce such attacks. We had noting to do with it." He also said he had now knowledge of any Black March guerrilla group.

Group Opposes Mideast Accord

G Airport authorities said they understood the terrorists took the name Black March from last month's signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace pact in Washington.

Police did not identify the terrorists but said they carried bogus Lebanese passports. They were described by some witnesses as being about 30 years old.

Authorities said the terrorists carried written demands that they be flown out of Belgium and would have presented them if their hijacking attempt had succeeded.

The plane, flight 334, had arrived from Tel Aviv via Vienna and already had loaded passengers for a return flight when the terrorists struck.

El Al Proceedures Credited

Airport authorities said the usual EL Al security precaution of parking its planes a good distance from the terminal foiled the original intent of the attack. El Al planes are considered a choice target by Palestinian terrorists.

Police closed roads leading to the airport, stranding hundreds of persons on Easter Monday, a holiday in Belgium. After a search of the 10-story terminal building, the airport resumed normal operations.

In Tel Aviv, Modechai Hod, managing director of the airline, refused to confirm Belgian reports that El Al agents, who are specially trained to ward off Arab terrorism attempts, had returned fire in the terminal.He said there was no evidence the attack was specifically aimed at El Al passengers. "It wasn't an El Al area (of the terminal) and the people weren't El Al passengers," he said.

A Belgian businessman in the terminal during the 2 p.m. attack said, "I heard two explosions behind me. Then there was smoke everywhere and everybody hit the floor."

The businessman, who asked that his name not be used, was at the airport to pick up his children from the flight.

Mario Possamai, a journalist with the Canadian Press news agency who had just arrived on a flight from Toronto, said he heard a burst of gunfire and saw smoke coming from the hall leading to the arrival area.

He said heavily armed police were swarming through the area when he got there, and that there were several appeals for doctors over the public address system.

Several ambulances arrived at the terminal as did two large field hospital vans.

Congressional Junkets Abroad Cost U.S. $240,000 At Easter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overseas trips by members of Congress this Easter recess will cost American taxpayers more than $240,000, an Associated Press survey shows.

At least 115 members of Congress — nine senators and 106 members of the House — currently are on the road in their quest for knowledge of world affairs.

There is no way of determining exactly how much the trips will cost but air fares alone, assuming all are traveling tourist class on commercial airliners, would top $180,000 just for some of the most popular one-destination trips.

Living expenses are expected to add anywhere from $60,000 to $86,000 to the tab. Congressmen get up to $75 a day while overseas and most trips during this recess period range from 7 to 10 days.

The calculations do not include air fares and living expenses for staff aides, Defense Department guides and others considered essential on such missions. There was no estimate as to how many aides were on the trips.

The Easter trips attracted more congressmen than did similar trips at the end of last year's congressional session when at least 59 House members and 29 senators journeyed abroad.

Asked why so many congressmen are going overseas when President Carter is urging energy savings, Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., — who is on an 11 day trip to China — said:

Policeman Kills Wichita Falls Curfew Truant

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — A policeman shot and killed a young man who ran when officers enforcing a curfew in this tornado-devastated city ordered him to stop early Monday, authorities said.

Officer Jay L. Wright fired the shot that struck the man in the back after the victim reached into a pocket, police said. Wright and partner, John J. Bailey, said they thought the man was armed.

The officers said in a report that two suspects were ordered out of a car in downtown Wichita Falls, where an 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew has been in force since a tornado hit the city last week.

The other man remained in the auto. He was not charged.

Friends of the victim, who was in his mid-20s, said he did not speak English, according to Police Sgt. James Shelton.

Police Chief Curtis Harrelson said no weapon was found and that he has ordered an investigation. However, Wright will keep his job pending the probe, the chief said.

The curfew was established after a tornado hit this North Texas, killing 44 persons and causing more than $200 million damage. To date, 25 persons have been arrested for looting and 32 for curfew violations.

The victim, who was dead on arrival at Wichita General Hospital, was carrying pocket change and a temporary Social Security card issued several years ago to a Daniel Sosa, police said. Authorities were trying Monday evening to establish positive identification.

Meanwhile, residents, digging out from under an estimated 10 million cubic yards of rubble, resumed burying their dead Monday. Funerals were held for eight of those killed in the city of 94,000 persons.

West Coast Weekly Wins Top Pulitzer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Point Reyes (Calif.) Light, a weekly newspaper with one full-time reporter and a circulation of 2,700, won the 1979 Pulitzer Prize for public service Monday for its investigation of Synanon, the controversial West Coast drug and alcohol rehabilitation center.

The Philadelphia Inquirer won a fifth straight Pulitzer — for the international reporting of Richard Ben Cramer from the Middle East. It was one of three Pennnsylvania newspapers to win a 1979 award.

For the third time in 37 years, the Pulitzer Prize for editorial cartooning went to Herbert L. Block, better known as Herblock, of the Washington Post. It was the Post's fifth straight Pulitzer.

In the arts, John Cheever's collecton of 61 short stories written since 1945 and entitled "The Stories of John Cheever" won the prize for fiction.

The drama prize went to Sam Shepard for his play "Buried Child," a study of a disintegrating family in rural Illinois.

Robert Penn Warren won his third Pulitzer, this one in the poetry classification for "Now and Then: Poems 1976-1978." He won the poetry prize in 1958 and the fiction award in 1947 for "All the King's Men."

The prizes, established by the late Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the now-defunct New York World, were first awarded in 1917. Individual winners receive $1,000, while the public service award carries a gold medal for the winning newspaper.

This year's prizes were awarded under a revised set of rules. Eleven nominating juries submitted their selections in alphabetical order, rather than in order of preference as in the past.

The previous Advisory Board on the Pulitzer prizes became the Pulitzer Prize Board and made its selections from among all nominees as before, but without the former preferential pressures.

"The board is no longer advisory to anybody and juries are not the final decision makers," said William McGill, president of Columbia university, which administers the awards.

Th first Pulitzer awarded in the new feature writing category went to Jon D. Franklin of the Baltimore Evening Sun.

In the category of general local reporting, the prize was won by the San Diego Evening Tribune for its coverage of last Sept. 25's in-flight collision of two airplanes, the nation's worst aviation disaster. It occurred 28 minutes before the newspaper's first edition deadline.

The prize for national reporting was awarded to James Risser, Washington bureau chief of the Des Moines Register, for a seven-part series on pollution by farmers. He won the same prize in 1976 for a series on grain inspection.

The Pulitzer Prize for History was won by Don E. Fehrenbacher, a Stanford university professor, for his book, "The Dred Scott Case; Its Significance in American Law and Politics."

Block, who is popularly known as Herblock, is pictured in his Washington office Monday after it was announced that he is the winner of a Pulitzer Prize for one of his editorial cartoons. 64-Year-Old Widow Returns To College

CINCINNATI (AP) — Like many other female students who reside on campus at Edgecliff College, 64-year-old Cathy Nally lives in Sullivan Hall. Her room, however, is on a floor occupied mostly by offices.

"After 11 kids, stereos, noise and confusion, I wanted to be able to concentrate on my studies," she explained.

Mrs. Nally decided last summer to go back to school. Her husband died four years ago. After that, she concluded that "something was missing" from their home near Toledo, where she and her husband had lived for 30 years and raised 11 children.

Mrs. Nally, who graduated in 1937 with a degree in sociology and education from Mary Manse College in Toledo, now is taking piano and voice lessons and theology classes at Edgecliff.

TALKS TO RESUME

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union will resume talks April 23 on banning anti-satellite weapons, the U.S. Arms Control and Disaramanent Agency said Monday. The talks in Vienna — the third in a series that began last June — are aimed at reaching an agreement to ban so-called "killer satellites," which can destroy orbiting craft, such as spy and communications satellites.

Stack Of Slim Jims Deleted From Ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Goodmark Foods has agreed to change some of its advertising for Slim Jim meat snacks at the request of the council of Better Business Bureaus.

The council's National Advertising Division had questioned an ad suggeting children sit down with a stack of comic books and a stack of Slim Jims. It said this might suggest that a "stack" of the snacks is an appropriate amount to eat at one time.

Congress To Pare Budget, Hance Says

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Except for an increase in defense spending, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance predicts his colleagues in the 96th Congress will be "very tight-fisted" in appropriating federal funds for next year's budget.

In a speech to the Southwest Lubbock Rotary Club, of which he is a member, Hance said he expects Congress to slash the $29 billion deficit budget submitted by President Carter by up to $3.5 billion.

"You're seeing a very tight-fisted Congress — many programs are being cut," the Lubbock representative said.

The prospects are good for passage of a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget, he said, adding that a House vote to force representatives to vote on the issue in September failed by only two votes.

The public is "overwhelmingly behind" such an amendment, he said, and a similar congressional vote is expected in September again.

Hance favors the constitutional amendment over a constitutional convention because "all kinds of things could come up at a convention."

"It could change our form of government overnight," Hance said, while a constitutional amendment would be voted on by Congress and submitted to the states for ratification.

Hance said he is "hopeful" the amendment can be ratified within 18 months.

Congress probably will approve some increase in defense spending, he said, because of a feeling the U.S. has slipped behind Russia in the arms race.

The freshman congressman said he has spent "80 percent of my time fighting federal agencies" since taking office and has taken that fight to the floor of the House.

He is co-sponsoring legislation with Rep. Elliott Levitas of Georgia to permit Congress to set aside rules and regulations of federal agencies.

"Over the past 25 years, the agencies have taken over," Hance said. The agencies "interpret the law and the end result is we have almost direct conflict with the intent of the law (in the regulations adopted)."

"We're moving in the direction to do something about it," he said. "We've got to get control of the country again" from agencies which have "not been accountable to anyone in the past."

Hance said he is leading the fight for the Democrats in the House against public financing of congressional campaigns.

Although he supports some spending limit on candidates, Hance said he opposes the proposal to provide $90,000 in federal funds for each congressional candidate.

Hance also told the Rotarians that the national media had sensationalized coverage of the Three Mile Island nuclear accident.

"If you see (the movie) 'China Syndrome' or listen to (NBC's) Tom Brokaw, you'd think the plant will kill everyone on the East Coast," he said.

"There is greater loss of life with other forms of energy, yet no life was lost on Three Mile Island," he said.

Congress has recessed for Easter and Hance plans to spend the coming week speaking to constituents throughout the 19th District.

Madison To Get New Mayor Today

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Joel Skornicka, a 42-year-old University of Wisconsin administrator, will be sworn in today as mayor of Madison, taking over from Paul Soglin, the former student activist once known as the "hippie alderman."

Soglin did not seek a fourth two-year term in the non-partisan post.

Skornicka, who edged out former Soglin aide James Rowen in the April 3 election, has been a public employee for nearly 20 years, and had worked in the chancellor's office on the Madison campus of the university since 1970.

"I've been able to move into new areas as the years go by," he said. "But suddenly, I saw myself: I'm 42 years old, it's time to maybe take a job at something else, take a change in career type of pattern."

Skornicka says that as mayor he will try to control spending without sacrificing services, and he says of his predecessor "Generally, I've been very pleased with the way Paul's handled things. I respect his sensitivity in human services areas."

Soglin, however, has not been as kind in his comments about Skornicka, declining to congratulate him on his election victory.

Ponies, MHS Reach For Lead

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

While Coronado coach John Dudley was wondering where the Mustang baseball team was going to practice Monday afternoon, a continuous shaking at the coach's office door caused Dudley to look out the window and form a smile.

In walked basketball coach Barry Arnwine, and when he learned about Dudley's problem, he jokingly thanked Dudley for not practicing in the gym.

There definitely was a relaxed atmosphere in the Coronado field house, while it was business as usual at Monterey on the eve on the showdown to decide District 4-AAAA's first-half champion at Lowrey Field today. Coronado needs only a split, while the Plainsmen have to sweep the twinbill. The action will begin at 2:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, in 4-AAAA Lubbock High is at Hereford, while Plainview takes the day off.

The rest of the city competition includes Borger at Dunbar (Mackenzie Park), while Estacado visits Dumas in 1-AAA affairs starting at 4 p.m.

"I don't think not having a field to practice on will have any bearing on the game," said Dudley. "There's a JV game on the high school field and Chaparral Field (The Mustangs' second home) is also tied up. We'll take some hitting practice, however, near the high school park."

The Mustangs will throw Gene Segrest (6-0, 2-0) and Russell Johnson (4-1, 2-0), while the Plainsmen will counter with Kent Potts (6-2, 2-2) and Steve Coleman (5-1, 3-0).

Both teams will bring 15-5 overall records into the competition. Coronado sports a perfect 5-0 district mark, while the Plainsmen stand 4-2 (loving single games to LHS and Plainview).

"Of course it's not an idle situation for us," said Monterey coach Bobby Moegle. "We have to take two to tie. I might change my mind about who to pitch tomorrow. But right now, it'll be Potts and Coleman."

Moegle is well aware that Coronado will pitch Segrest in the first game and feels that the Plainsmen's chances will depend upon keeping the score down.

"We're going to have to get a good pitching effort," said Moegle. "Segrest isn't going to give up that many runs, and our only chance is to stay close."

To accomplish that effort, the Monterey mentor has made some changes in his lineup.

Around the infield, Brett Dixon will be at first, Randy Ledbetter at second, Stan Zelner at shortstop, with either Randy Pinkerton or Potts at third. The outfield, from left to right, will be Bart Burgess, Andy Barron and Tom Bevins. Kelly Smith will handle the catching duties.

"I've had David Faulkner in right field," said Moegle. "But he's just a sophomore, and since Segrest is such an overpowering pitcher, I don't think it would be fair to him."

The Mustangs will try to win the first-half title with Jim Wells at first, Jimmy Johnson at second, Donald Ewing at shortstop, and Bryan Brock at third. Robert Ledbetter will be in centerfield, and Dudley will chose from Donny Arter-

SEE ANYONE YOU KNOW? — A field of almost 8,000 persons pushes and shoves and jostles each other in trying to get away from the starting position in Monday's 83rd edition of the Boston Marathon. RRC To Honor Raiders

Rex Dockery, who watched as his troops surprised teams from the West Coast to the Gulf Coast last fall, will step up as main speaker tonight as the Red Raider Club honors Texas Tech athletes at its annual all-sports banquet.

The fete will begin at 6:30 p.m. at Lubbock Coliseum with about 1500 persons expected to attend.

Dockery will share the spotlight with a series of special honor winners in the various sports.

Chief among the awards will be the Pete Cawthon Award for the best all-around football player, and the Polk Robison Award which goes to the outstanding basketballer.

Last year, for the first time since the Cawthon award was originated in 1962 to honor the Raiders' colorful football coach of the 1930s, there were co-winners, linebacker Mike Mock and running back Billy Taylor.

Mike Russell was the Robison award winner last year.

Also to be given tonight will be the Dell Morgan Award (shared last year by linebacker Gary McCright and quarterback Rodney Allison) and the Donny Anderson Sportsmanship Award (won by center Terry Anderson in 1978).

The outstanding swimmer, as well as the annual Arch Lamb Spirit awards in every sport, the JT King Award for the most improved footballer in spring training, the finalists for the outstanding baseball player, all-Southwest Conference performers in the various sports, and all SWC champions, such as indoor track champ James Mays, will be recognized.

Master of ceremonies will be Field Scovell of Dallas, a former Tech Regent.

Members of all athletic teams and their coaches will be recognized, along with Raider scholarship recipients.

Dockery is the third Raider football coach to be invited to speak. Previously, Jim Carlen and Steve Sloan addressed the banquet.

Last fall, his first year as head coach, Dockery led the Raiders to a 7-4 record, after being picked as low as last in the SWC in preseason polls. Included in the seven wins was a 22-21 verdict over Cotton Bowl-bound University of Houston.

For his direction, Dockery was named Coach of the Year in Texas as well as the SWC.

Continuing Battle

SELDOM DOES A football coach get to watch a game from the stands. If he's not pacing the sidelines, chewing on grass stems — real or artificial — he's scribbling furiously in the press box, playing the role of scout.

But, Saturday, Rex Dockery pulled a rocker up to the window of his office and watched out the window as his troops traded touchdowns, blocks and growls across the line of scrimmage. The outlook, he admitted later, was generally to his liking.

Since watching last year from the press box, Dockery has seen his talent cupboard stocked more to his liking, thanks to a hefty recruiting year in February of 1978. There is even more on the way — if the on-paper credentials are credible. But, the latest recruiting crop is not something one can depend upon; it is not even on campus.

But, after watching Saturday's spring game, Dockery can call upon more help than a year ago, from the triggermen on to other areas. After the game, he mentioned several pleasing areas, including depth at several spots, after four weeks of spring work.

Tech Team Hosts Frogs

The Texas Tech tennis team is coming off one of the toughest losses in its recent history, and coach Mark Hamilton is hoping that he can turn that adversity into a victory when Tech hosts TCU at 2 p.m. today on the Raider courts.

Last Tuesday the Raiders dropped a 5-4 dual match to Rice in a meet that saw 11 tie-breakers in nine matches.

But, even in defeat, Hamilton has hope.

"Rice has beaten TCU," he said. "So we're hopeful that we can pull a surprise (on TCU). Of course TCU and Arkansas are both ranked in the top twenty in the nation."

Hamilton's concern with the Hogs is understandable The Raiders face Arkansas on Saturday in Tech's final home meet of the season. That match is slated for 1:30 p.m. at the Tech courts.

Tech will still be looking for its first Southwest Conference victory today as the Raiders currently own a 0-4 SWC slate and are 9-12 overall.

The Raiders will need repeat performances from Doug Davis, David Crissey and Randy Clayton to fare well against the Frogs. Those three all won their singles matches against Rice. And it is especially important that Davis do well.

"We're hoping that Doug Davis can make a good showing and possibly get an invitation to (the NCAA) nationals," said Hamilton. "Tut Bartsen (the TCU coach) is on the selection committee, so if Doug could look good, maybe he'd have a chane."

But the Raiders are going to need strong performances from everyone today. They especially need an improvement in their doubles play to contend with the Frogs.

Against the Owls, after splitting the singles 3-3, the Raiders dropped the top two doubles matches and were eliminated from the match.

"It won't be easy," said Hamilton Monday and it wasn't the first time this year he's said that. "But we hope we can give them a battle."

Rodgers Whips Hill, Seko In Boston Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — Favorite son Bill Rodgers wore down Japan's Toshihiko Seko on "Heartbreak Hill" less than six miles from the finish and went on to a record-shattering victory Monday in the 83rd Boston Marathon.

"There's only one thing missing," Rodgers panted afterward, "that's a medal in the Olympics."

Rodgers, a 31-year-old former school teacher, now a sporting goods store operator, whipped through rain and 42-degree cold from suburban Hopkinton to Boston in 2 hours, 9 minutes, 27 seconds, the fastest marathon in American history.

He said the last 10 miles were bitterly painful — because he had to go to the bathroom and even considered making a "pit stop," but did not.

While breaking the course record of 2:09:55 seconds he set as a virtual unknown in 1975 and bettering his winning time of 2:10:13, Rodgers avenged a defeat by Seko in the Fukuoka International Marathon in Japan last December.

The 23-year-old Japanese college student stuck with Rodgers most of the way. The strategy worked, but only for a while. Virtually abreast after 20 miles, Rodgers opened the throttle on the first of three hills. He cleared the second hill about five yards in front and headed for Heartbreak, a famed burying ground for many runners in the 26-mile, 385-yard classic.

Although Seko appeared to be running easily, he was unable to keep up with Rodgers' blistering pace.

"I really poured it on," said Rodgers. "I only run best when I have someone to chase."

Rodgers charged 15 yards in front halfway up Heartbreak and continued to widen the margin. He cleared the hill without difficulty, then sidestepped a spilled police motorcycle and breezed the rest of the way, running at an almost unbelievabe pace on the heels of a police escort, with sirens wailing.

"I could taste that third wind," Rodgers said after being crowned with the traditional laurel wreath and receiving first prize of a gold, sunburst medal.

"I didn't want someone to take it away," he said. "I'm good going down hill and I poured it on."

"My legs weren't numb on the third (Heartbreak) hill," Seko said through an interpreter. "I like warmer weather. This was Bill Rodgers' weather. If you take away the hills, it's an easy course."

Rodgers made up time after going over Heartbreak, then downhill to the fifth checkpoint. He was 17 seconds off the record at that point, 21.6 miles from the start.

Wearing a stocking cap and gloves against the almost steady drizzle and cold, Rodgers led by more than 50 yards. Then, he picked up the pace even more as he passed his sporting goods store and gradually extended the lead to 100 yards, 150 yards, 200 yards.

He looked back only once — about two miles from the finish.

With the record in sight, Rodgers raced down the stretch with arms extended in a victory salute.

Seko was second in 2:10:12, followed by Robert Hodge of Hanover, Mass., a former student at the University of Lowell.

Veteran Tom Fleming, a two-time Boston runner-up from Bloomfield, N.J., surprised the whopping field of some 7,800 qualified starters by grabbing the lead and holding it for 15 miles. He faded and had to hang on to finish fourth in 2:12.56.

Gary Bjorklund of Minneapolis, who took the lead from Fleming but surrendered it to Rodgers, was fifth in 2:13:57.

Rounding out the top 10 were Bobby Doyle of Cenral Falls, R.I., Randy Thomas of Wellesley, Herman Atkins of Everett, Wash., and Richard Mahoney of nearby Weymouth.

Rodgers became the first to win the Boston run two years in a row since Belgium's Aurele Vandendriessche in 1963-64. Canada's Jerome Drayton, who won here two years ago in 2:14:46, was just one second slower this year, but had to settle for 11th place.

Overall, 54 runners were clocked in less than 2 hours, 20 minutes, a good time in any marathon.

Joan Benoit, a Bowdoin College senior from Brunswick, Maine, set a women's Boston record in dominating a field of more than 500 in 2 hours, 35 minutes, 15 seconds. Patti Lyons of Boston was second in 2: 38.22.

In a special wheelchair race for 20 handicapped athletes, including four women, Ken Archer, 30, of Akron, Ohio, rolled to victory in 2:38.59.

burn, Sam Law and Jeff Turner to fill the other two spots. Allen Harp will handle the catching with Ricky Powell the designated hitter.

"If the wind blows, it'll be blowing out," said Moegle. "That's going to help the offensive production of one of the teams, and with Segrest throwing it's not going to be us. Ideal conditions would give us a much better chance."

And since Segrest's name has been the main topic of conversation, the senior righthander has had a sore shoulder for the last couple of weeks.

"It's much better," said Dudley. "I think the improvement stems from the warm weather and that we haven't needed him to pitch for awhile.

"Monterey has a lot of people that can make things happen," said the Mustang coach. "But I feel that we will have to keep (Randy) Ledbetter, Barron and Pinkerton off the base paths. Those three usually start rallies for them."

Both teams will enter the doubleheader injury-free. Coronado' Powell was suffering from the flu Saturday, but that's the closest any member from either team got.

"We don't have any excuses," said Moegle

Lubbockite Pleased With Distance Time

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

What's the difference between Bill Rodgers and Ed Smith?

Well, on Monday it was about an hour and 16 minutes — not to mention another 15 or so years on Smith's calendar.

While Rodgers was stealing all the headlines with his record-setting time in the Boston Marathon Monday, Smith, a Lubbock lawyer, was capturing a little personal glory for himself. And it's doubtful that Rodgers could have felt any better about his performance than Smith did of his.

"I crossed the line at 3:26," said Smith of his first Boston Marathon. "But that was taking into consideration the fact that we had to walk for about four minutes just to get to the starting line — after the gun went off. Then for about the first seven miles we could barely run at all."

Smith's problem was understandable. A record-crowd of nearly 8,000 runners entered the event, and the start was considerably hampered for those in the back. Still, it was the Boston Marathon and Smith was bubbling about the race Monday night.

"The people out here are just fantastic," he said in a telephone call from Boston. "It was about 40-45 degrees today and there was a slight drizzle all afternoon, but they stood out there for the entire course and cheered you on.

"And the girls at Wellesley are everything people have said they are," he added.

The 46-year-old lawyer said he finished the grueling race in surprisingly good shape.

"That slow start turned out to be a blessing in disguise," he said. "Because I wasn't nearly as tired when I finished as I had been in the other two Texas marathons that I've run in.

"It was kind of funny," he related. "Because as I was going up Parkway Hill, at the 21-mile mark, I suddenly realized that — hell, I'm not even tired. So from there I just poured it on. I must have passed at least 500 people in the last five miles."

Smith won't know for sure how he placed for some time, but Marathon officials are putting all the official finishers into a computer program. With 8,000 runners, that can take some time. Still Smith will get the certificate that goes to all runners who finish the race in less than 3½ hours — and that was his biggest goal.

Other local runners who competed in the event were Don Andress and Sigmon Hutchinson. However, Hutchinson, who grew up in Lubbock, is currently working in South Carolina. The 26-year-old runner finished in 4:10:15.

Efforts to locate Andress were unsuccessful Monday.

"I started behind about 90 percent of the other runners," said Smith. "And I know I finished a little better than that. I held my own most of the way, before that spurt in the last five miles.

"The television stations up here have been saying that they (Marathon officials) were going to knock off some time for those people in the back of the pack that had to wait to start the race. But I don't know how they can do that."

If they do, Smith will have inished just over an hour behind the record-setting Rodgers.

Now if you break that down into minutes and years, Ed Smith gave up a measly four minutes for every year of seniority he had on Rodgers. And that isn't bad.

"Oh it was a wonderful experience," he said. "I was wearing my West Texas Running Club shirt, and all along the way people would holler, 'Come on Texas. Way to go, Texan.'"

The people of West Texas couldn't have said it any better.

In 1934, Paul Runyan led all pro golfers with earnings of $6,767, but in 1978 Tom Watson was tops with $362,428.

points about three quarterbacks, a position of importance as well one with a high injury rate.

Competition at that position was one of the objectives for the spring, and from the spring game, it appears that Dockery reached his goal of developing that.

Ron Reeves, the freshman from Monterey, went into the spring as No. 1, after having won the position last fall by guiding the Raiders to a 7-4 season.

Richy Ethridge watched from the sidelines last fall as a red shirt sophomore, and he jumped into the battle in the spring. Randy Page, who came to Tech as a quarterback out of Oklahoma City but was used as both wide receiver and in the secondary last fall, wanted a shot at his former spot.

Tech coaches obliged, and his performance Saturday indicated he is in the picture.

"I did some things right, did some things wrong," commented Page Monday. "I think I learned a lot this spring, but I have a lot of technique work to do.

"I had a good first week, then we had the spring break, and when I came back, seems like it took me about a week and a half to get back into it. I don't like the I (formation) as much as the veer; for one thing, we ran the veer my senior year in high school, and I feel better about it.

"But, I did a few things right. I threw pretty well," then he grinned, "until those last two (which were intercepted.)"

REEVES FINISHED THE day with three touchdown passes (eight of 15 overall) and 126 yards passing. He also rushed 12 times for 65 steps, including a 39-yard TD run in leading the Reds to a 31-7 victory.

Page hit seven of 13 passes for 77 yards and one score, but he sustained those two late interceptions when the secondary knew he would be throwing. Page did finish as the game's leading rusher, however, with 126 yards on 17 carres; his longest play measured 36 yards.

Page was operating in the same backfield with James Hadnot, "so, we don't didn't need but two plays: James left, James right."

Ethridge hit on five of eight passes for 37 yards, while alternating time with Page on the White team.

• • •

LATER THIS WEEK, Dockery and his staff will sit down and evaluate the spring and spot the players for No. 1 or No. 2 positions for next fall's opening workouts.

One would expect Reeves to be No. 1, off his work last fall, as well as in the spring and in Saturday's windup. Page, for his work the past month, is a good bet for No. 2.

But, the trio of Reeves, Page and Ethridge gives Dockery something for preparing for next fall — even before two more recruits, blue-chipper Mark James of Corpus Christi and Jim Hart of Irving, check in.

"There are a lot of things I need to work on, my technique mostly, because of missing the work (at quarterback) last fall," said Page.

Competition, however, will make all quarterbacks better, which, Dockery realizes, will make his team better.

Frank ('Call Me Fuzzy') Adds Spice To Tour

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The new Masters champion Frank Urban Zoeller ("call me Fuzzy") has hit the pro golf tour like a fresh breeze.

Loose, glib, a marked departure from the general mold of serious, business-like young lions, he has captured the fancy of the golf world with his uninhibited spirit as well as his shot-making skills.

"Fuzzyisms" may become as much a part of the golfing lexicon as the "Hagenisms" which delighted fans in the 1920s and the "Trevinoisms" almost half a century later.

Until he won his first tour tournament at San Diego earlier this year and then added the prestigious Masters with an 8-foot birdie putt on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff Sunday, the 28-year-old Zoeller had been known principally on the tour as one of its longest hitters and wildest after-hours swingers.

"I have never led the tour in money winnings but I have many times in alcohol consumption," he said.

Zoeller's counterpart of the Roaring '20s, Walter Hagen, who won four PGA championships in a row, used to blow an entire winner's purse at the bar. Once he appeared at the first tee in a tuxedo, having had no time to change after an all-night party and another time he called out to the Prince of Wales (later King of England): "Hey Eddie, hold that flagstick while I make this shot."

Zoeller was asked after his Masters victory by how many shots he had missed winning tournaments in previous years.

"I don't know," he replied. "All I know is I am big on doubles (double shots)."

Fuzzy's nightlife habits have mellowed somewhat since he married his childhood sweetheart from New Albany, Ind., Diane, who is expecting their first child in two weeks.

"I thought I might fly her here so we could have the first child on or near the 16th green," he said.

Fuzzy said that if the child is a boy he will be named Beau Christopher but if a girl, Donny Noel. "I wanted to name her Hidy Ho, but Diane thought that was corny."

Like Trevino, the Merry Mex, Fuzzy whistles and hums around the golf course and carries on a steady conversation with his spectators. ("It keeps me loose. If anybody says anything to me I always say something back.")

The first of the year's Grand Slam event winners refers to himself as a "young limber back," a reference to his unharnessed power off the tee. He is rated with Jim Dent as the longest hitters on the tour.

"I don't let it all out anymore," he said. "For me, it was either shorten my drive or starve. I used to hit it much longer, which the fans loved, but I found if you make a drop and are hitting three, you don't make much money."

Discussing the relationship between his once unharnessed game and the exacting Augusta course, Zoeller commented: "I found those pine trees out there don't move."

Lakers, Seattle Open Series

By The Associated Press

Few basketball players have achieved as much, yet been subjected to as much criticism, as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

So it was only fitting that Los Angeles' towering center should hit the winning shot in the Lakers' first-round National Basketball Association playoff series against the Denver Nuggets.

"That was the shot we wanted to take," said Abdul-Jabbar, whose eight-foot sky hook with 12 seconds remaining gave the Lakers a 112-111 decision over the Nuggets Sunday in the deciding game of their best-of-three mini-series.

Abdul-Jabbar finished with 29 points and 16 rebounds in the Lakers' first victory ever in Denver. The win propelled them into the Western Conference semifinals against the Pacific Division champion Seattle SuperSonics, beginning tonight.

The other Western Conference semifinalists, the Kansas City Kings and Phoenix Suns, also open their best-of-seven series tonight while the Atlanta Hawks play at the Washington Bullets and the Philadelphia 76ers are at the San Antonio Spurs in the second games of the Eastern Conference semifinals. Washington and San Antonio won those series openers.

Washington, the defending NBA champion, overpowered Atlanta 103-89 in their series opener, but the Hawks aren't ready to give up.

"They're an intimidating team because they're big," said Atlanta guard Armond Hill, "but we're not afraid of them."

"We didn't back down because of their physical strength," observed Hawks Coach Hubie Brown. "They didn't manhandle us."

Chaparrals Host UTEP

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

This time last week Lubbock Christian College baseball coach Larry Hays was sweating.

His Chaparrals had been beaten three of four games at home by Texas Athletic Conference foe Texas Wesleyan, and the troops were dog-tired from having played 52 games in 39 days.

He's breathing a lot easier now. What's responsible for the miracle cure? A bunch of forfeits by TWC and a couple of postponed games this weekend.

Because it had used ineligible players and had to forfeit either six or 10 games (depending on the outcome of a hearing with the conference commissioner this week), TWC dropped from 10-2 in conference play to either 0-12 or 4-8.

Then the Rams lost three of four games to Dallas Baptist over the weekend, leaving them either 2-14 or 5-11.

And LCC, mired deep in a battle for second place last Tuesday, is sitting pretty, three games out front of the pack.

The Chaps got another break this weekend when Midwestern State couldn't leave Wichita Falls because of the tornado. That gave the Chaps from last Tuesday until today off, the longest vacation they've had this year.

Today, the Chaparrals will take on UTEP in a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m. The two teams will play a single game Wednesday, also starting at 1 p.m.

But Hays worries that maybe it was a little too much of a good thing. "I wanted a layoff, but that's a day or two more than I wanted," he said.

"But who knows? This might give us an edge. Our pitchers really needed a break, and it definitely will help our hitters."

Today's game will face off pitchers John Ross (5-3 on the year and a 4.12 ERA) and Kevin Burke (6-0 and 3.56) against some tough UTEP hitters.

The Miners stand 20-14 on the year, but that's deceiving. They took three of four from Oklahoma earlier in the year and split a doubleheader with LCC to open the Chap season.

Leading hitters for UTEP are leftfielder Bill Roberts (.383), third-baseman Mike Brooks (.441) and right fielder Dan Featler (.449).

Topping the Chap lineup are first baseman Tim Leslie (.457), second baseman Steve Brigante (.352), third baseman Kenny Toney (.352), centerfielder Brady Brashear (.319), shortstop Bobby Doe (.318) and outfielder Richard Bowles (.324). The heavy-hitting Chaparrals are clipping along at a .309 pace as a team.

Lowe Birds Win

Pigeons entered by Keith Lowe captured the first two places in the Lubbock Racing Pigeons club's weekend race from Austin.

The winning bird flew the 330 miles in 1171 yards per minute or nearly 40 miles an hour. Nine lofts shipped 114 birds in the race that saw Tony Izzo's bird finish third and Mike Fox's entry was fourth.

Lee's Two-Hitter Stops Chicubs 2-0

By The Associated Press

Bill Lee flirted with a perfect game in his home debut with the Montreal Expos but he was just as content to take a 2-0, two-hit shutout over the Chicago Cubs in the National League game Monday.

The 32-year-old lefthander, acquired by the Expos during the winter, saw his bid for perfection broken up by Barry Foote's sinking drive with one out in the sixth inning, when second base umpire John Baird ruled that rightfielder Ellis Valentine trapped the ball.

Chicago's only other hit was an infield single by Bill Buckner in the ninth inning.

"I don't want to start at home like that," said Lee about his flirtation with a no-hitter. "After you pitch a no-hitter in your first start at home, what else is there to shoot for? It's all downhill after that."

The victory kept Montreal in first place in the East division. Lee got the only run he needed on a first-inning home run by Warren Cromartie, his first of the season.

INDIANS 4, BOSOX 3

Toby Harrah's two-run homer, the first home run by a Cleveland player this season, highlighted a three-run fifth inning that helped the Indians edge the Boston Red Sox 4-3.

WHITE SOX 8, JAYS 4

Alan Bannister, Lamar Johnson and Bill Nahorodny each smacked two-run doubles as the Chicago White Sox exploded for seven runs in the seventh inning to beat Toronto 8-4.

TIGERS 10, ROYALS 4

Steve Kemp, Aurelio Rodriguez and Alan Trammell drove in two runs each Monday to lead Detroit to a 10-4 rout of Kansas City.

Kemp had a two-run single in the second inning and later added a double and a single.

Three Killed, Cash, Food Stamps Taken

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — Robbers shot up a Purolator Security Inc. branch office and an armored truck early Monday, killing three guards and fleeing with $1.79 million in cash, checks, jewelry and food stamps, authorities said.

Negotiable securities — which have become harder to dispose of in recent years — and an undisclosed amount of cash were left behind, police said. Authorities did not say how much the securities were worth.

Earlier reports quoted an investigator, who declined to speak on the record, as saying as much as $30 million to $50 million in negotiable securities was taken.

Securities include corporate stocks and bonds, bank certificates of deposit and government Treasury notes and bonds. Some negotiable securities are payable to the bearer, which means they can be sold by anyone. Others are registered and bear the name of the owner, whose signature is required to make a sale.

At least two thieves armed with high-powered rifles waited behind the Purolator garage and fired through a garage door after the 4 a.m. arrival of an armored truck carrying money from Hartford for delivery to several New York City banks, police said.

Eleven bullet holes were visible in a garage door and another bullet pierced the truck's windshield, authorities said. Several window panes were knocked out of a rear door to the garage, behind the truck, and silver change was scattered in the driveway near the door.

Two of the slain guards were in the truck, police said, and the third was on duty at the office.

Police said the bodies were found at 7:15 a.m. when an employee arrived for work. The area was cordoned off while Hartford and Waterbury police and the FBI searched for evidence.

Hartford police spokesman Gordon Damon identified the dead guards as Leslie Clark, 36, of Plymouth, William West, 52, hometown unknown, and Hartford policeman Edward T. Cody, 46, who had a part-time security job with Purolator.

U.S. banks and brokerage houses rely on a central computer system called AutEx to check whether securities offered for sale have been lost or stolen.

The AutEx system was mandated by the federal Securities and Exchange Commission in 1975, and last year was responsible for the recovery of $9 million in missing securities, said AutEx spokesman Mike Mazzola.

However, registered securities may be used as collateral for loans, and may not be checked during the time they are kept in a bank vault pending repayment of the loan.

"A few years ago, it may have been easy to go to a bank and pledge (a stolen security)," said a securities industry source in New York, "but the banks are becoming more careful."

Negotiable securities may also be sold overseas, where regulations are less strict, but more foreign banks are participating in the AutEx system, Mazzola said.

One of the nation's most famous thefts was a 1950 holdup in which $2.8 million, including $1.2 million cash, was taken from a Brink's Inc. Boston express office.

The largest cash robbery in U.S. history occurred last December when $5 million in U.S. currency and about $800,000 in foreign currency and jewelry was stolen from a Lufthansa Airlines cargo terminal at Kennedy International Airport in New York.

Previously, the nation's largest cash robbery was a 1962 heist involving a U.S. mail truck near Plymouth, Mass., that netted thieves $1.55 million.

Tulia Raises Rates For City Services

TULIA (Special) — In order to balance the city's new budget, Tulia City Council, in a called meeting, raised sanitation, water and sewer rates. Effective April, the new rates will be reflected in the May 1 billing.

Sanitation rates will increase from $3 to $4. The base water rate will rise from $3.25 to $4 for the first 3,000 gallons. Residential customers' sewer rates will increase from $2.50 to $3.50 while commercial rates will increase the same percentage.

In other business, the council approved the installation of a 7,000 LP gas storage tank at Young and Ellis Butane and new zoning for a 15,000-square-foot office and warehouse building to be built by Mid-Plains Telephone Cooperative in the 400-block of North Hale.

CABBIES FORM CO-OP

DENVER (AP) — Starting Monday, the 900 drivers and 100 other workers hired by the firm that ran Yellow Cabs in Denver and Boulder are running the business themselves through an industrial cooperative. For $2 million, the Yellow Cab Cooperative Association bought the Metropolitan Transportation Co. The co-op is now charging members a $40 initiation fee for a vote in the enterprise. The fee will go toward the estimated $40,000 in legal fees.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.
