Marion Barry

Barry's released

SCALP LEVEL, Pa. — Former Washington Mayor Marion Barry was released from prison Thursday after serving six months for possessing cocaine, and told supporters who greeted him he's a stronger man. About 300 people rode buses from the nation's capital to meet Barry after his release from a federal prison at nearby Loretto. They held a revival-style prayer meeting in his honor in a motel parking lot. "I come out of prison better and not bitter. I come out of prison stronger internally than at any other given time in my life," Barry told the crowd. Barry, 55, dodged questions about whether he would run again for office, saying his personal life takes priority.

Life prison terms

FARMVILLE, N.C. — A small-town day-care operator was sentenced to 12 consecutive life prison terms Thursday as children who testified they were molested by him watched from the front row, clutching dolls and teddy bears. "I am innocent. I have not done these things," Robert F. Kelly Jr. said before Judge D. Marsh McLelland ordered one life sentence for each victim, ages 4 to 7./12A

Food, folks, fun

BEIJING — Chinese venturing into Beijing's first McDonald's restaurant on opening day Thursday faced some puzzling moments, but the novelty and the taste drew raves even if the food seemed a bit pricey. A huge inflated Ronald McDonald tied to the roof swayed in a stiff wind as company officials and Beijing dignitaries opened the chain's largest restaurant./9A

Mobil cuts 55 jobs from Midland office

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

Mobil said Thursday it has laid off 55 employees at its Midland office as part of a restructuring plan announced March 25, when company officials said the work force would be reduced by 23 percent.

A spokeswoman for Mobil Exploration and Producing U.S. was unable to confirm that another 29 workers had taken voluntary separation packages, which would bring the total job loss in Midland to 84 — one of the biggest cuts among Mobil divisions.

Ripples of anxiety sweep Californians

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hundreds of aftershocks sent ripples of anxiety through Southern California on Thursday, hours after a strong desert earthquake caused isolated damage and dozens of injuries.

Earthquake experts cautioned there was a slight chance Wednesday night's magnitude 6.1 tremor could be a precursor to the long-dreaded "Big One."

"We're long overdue for one — a 7.0 or greater

Scientists find clues in cosmos

■ Astronomers discover evidence they say supports big-bang theory of the birth of the universe.

By John Noble Wilford
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — In a momentous discovery supporting the big-bang theory for the birth of the universe, astronomers looking back toward the beginning of time have detected broad wrinkles in the fabric of space, the first evidence revealing how an initially smooth cosmos evolved into today's panorama of stars, galaxies and gigantic clusters of galaxies.

The scientists detected faint temperature fluctuations in microwave radiation echoing from the supposed instant of creation. Though the temperatures fluctuate by no more than a hundred-thousandth of a degree, they signal primeval variations in the universe's topography a mere 300,000 years after its explosive birth.

The variations in topography were large enough, scientists said, to create the gravity needed to attract more and more matter into increasingly expansive clumps. These variations had been predicted by theorists but were never observed until now.

The discovery, made by scientists analyzing satellite data, is being hailed as one of the most exciting and important

NASA: Satellite meets its goals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NASA's Cosmic Background Explorer satellite has now achieved two of the three goals of its $400 million mission to study the "big bang," says the spacecraft's chief scientist.

Researchers believe the gargantuan explosion created the universe 15 billion years ago, bathing the heavens in an "afterglow" of cosmic background radiation.

Last year, in a discovery that received little public attention, COBE showed that the wavelength or "color" of the radiation was consistent with what the big-bang theory predicted, said John Mather, project scientist at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

On Thursday, scientists announced COBE met its second goal: detecting the oldest structures in the universe, thereby explaining how matter first started clumping together in the young universe to produce galaxies and stars.

Scientists now hope it will achieve its final goal: detecting the very earliest stages of galaxy formation, Mather said.

COBE was launched from Van-

Arco program provides model for council retreat

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff writer

A new philosophy has taken hold of the Midland City Council's annual spring planning retreat.

"We've been inspired by Arco Oil and Gas," Mayor Carroll Thomas said. Ideas from the company's training program, already in use by city supervisors, will be implemented by the council as well.

Kept at home this year because of tight budget times, the retreat will span three days. It begins May 8 with an afternoon session, continuing on the evening of May 15 and extending all day May 16.

■ Three-year-old 'doesn't want to remember' ordeal of parents' murder-suicide, girl's grandmother says.

By Renee Haines
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — Little Cassandra Burke ignored reporters, only pausing to paste colorful stickers on their hands on the Pasadena Police Department lawn she had made her playground.

"And I have some more," the 3-year-old girl promised after emptying her sheet of animal stickers, oblivious to the hushed talk among adults around her.

"It's painful, and she doesn't want to remember," her grandmother, Laura Graves, 53, of Houston, explained. "When she wants to talk, she'll talk."

The relatives of Cassandra Elaine and her 9-month-old sister, Elizabeth Ashley, had gathered to make public their thanks for the many calls about the welfare of the children orphaned by the murder-suicide of their parents.

The bodies of Patrick Burke, 24, and Sabrina Burke, 23, had been discovered Sunday afternoon in their mobile home in Pasadena. She was shot once in the chest before he shot himself in the head. Autopsies indicated they had been dead at least 48 hours before the discov-

UNIVERSE: Astronomers discover evidence to support big-bang theory developments in cosmology in this century.

"What we have found is evidence for the birth of the universe and its evolution," said Dr. George Smoot, an astrophysicist at Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory and the University of California at Berkeley, who led the research.

"This is really a breakthrough, a revolution, in our understanding of the early universe," said Smoot, announcing the findings here on Thursday at a meeting of the American Physical Society.

The nature of the matter creating the density "ripples" has not been determined. But the ripples themselves were created immediately by the original big bang. There would not have been time, the scientists said, for the texture to have changed under normal physical processes.

The big-bang theory holds that the universe began in a single cataclysmic explosion and has been expanding ever since. The concept was first proposed to explain the discovery in the 1920s that distant galaxies are receding from view at enormous speeds, as if they started moving away from the same location a long time ago.

The theory gained its strongest previous confirmation, and wide acceptance, in 1964, when Dr. Arno Penzias and Dr. Robert Wilson of Bell Telephone Laboratories detected the hiss of microwave radiation in their radio telescope. It was the glow presumably left over from the big bang, existing everywhere and uniformly in cosmic background.

Astronomers assumed that as their instruments improved they would begin to see texture in this radiation, but to their dismay, when the Cosmic Background Explorer satellite, called COBE (pronounced COH-bee) by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in 1989, it found not the slightest hint of any initial variations out of which stars and galaxies could have developed by normal gravitational processes in the approximately 15 billion years since the big bang.

Where were the density fluctuations that seeded the development of large structure? It was the question astronomers have strained to answer for the last 28 years. The credibility of the big-bang theory itself seemed to be at stake.

Describing the results as "unbelievably important," Dr. Michael Turner, an astrophysicist at the University of Chicago, said, "They have found the Holy Grail of cosmology."

Dr. Joseph Silk, an astrophysicist at the University of California at Berkeley, said: "They've really opened up the dark ages in cosmology. They've found the missing link in the evolution of large structure in the universe."

Dr. Edward Wright, a cosmologist at the University of California at Los Angeles, exclaimed, "The big-bang model is alive and well, very well!"

Noting that Penzais and Wilson won the Nobel Prize in physics for their discovery in 1964, Dr. Stephen Maran, an astronomer at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., said: "If their measurements are as sensitive as they say, this is a Nobel-class result. It was even more difficult than detecting the microwave background."

Smoot and his colleagues said the findings not only strengthened the case for the big-bang theory, but also for two subsidiary hypotheses about the pace of the early universe's expansion, the inflationary model, and about the existence of the so-called "cold dark matter," invisible subatomic particles believed to constitute as much as 90 percent of all the matter in the universe.

In the inflationary model, advanced a decade ago by Dr. Alan H. Guth of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the universe underwent a brief episode of extremely rapid expansion less than one-trillionth of a second after the initial explosion, then settled down to a relatively sedate pace of expansion. During inflation, tiny variations in energy from the big bang would become exaggerated, setting up the conditions favoring the evolution of large-scale structure.

The cold-dark matter theory, much favored by cosmologists, had suffered several setbacks recently from observational evidence suggesting that there is more large-scale structure than it can explain.

Some such exotic matter is required to provide the gravity responsible for galactic accumulations of stars and otherwise inexplicable motions of galaxies. But the dark matter has yet to be directly observed, though its presence, theorists said, should be indirectly determined through temperature difference in the background radiation.

"There is going to be a gold rush to check out our measurements," Smoot said.

denberg Air Force Base on Nov. 18, 1989. It was carried into a 559-mile-high, near-polar orbit by a two-stage Delta rocket with nine strap-on boosters.

It was NASA's last unmanned rocket. All subsequent NASA payloads have been launched on space shuttles, Air Force rockets or privately owned rockets.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration stopped buying unmanned rockets in the early 1980s. After space shuttle Challenger blew up in 1986, killing seven crew members, the agency admitted it relied too heavily on the shuttle. But then-President Reagan ordered NASA to stop launching commercial payloads and give such business to private industry.

After its launch, the 4,850-pound COBE deployed its antennas and solar power panels to reach its full 16-by-28-foot size.

Total mission costs include $150 million for the spacecraft, $70 million for the rocket, $160 million for personnel and $20 million for operations and data analysis.

Theory contends beginning of universe was explosive

N.Y. Times News Service

For more than a quarter of a century, the big bang has been the creation theory favored by nearly all scientists.

In the beginning, according to the theory, the universe was infinitely hot, infinitely dense. Its exact nature then is unknown and perhaps unknowable. The age of the universe is also unknown; creation has been estimated at as much as 20 billion or as little as 10 billion years ago.

In any event, the big-bang theory holds that it began explosively, with a rapid expansion of radiation and matter in its most fundamental, subatomic form. Three pieces of evidence support this explosive beginning: observations that the universe is expanding; detection of electromagnetic radiation, called microwaves, left over from the initial explosion, and an inventory of the relative abundances of the chemical elements in the universe.

In an incredible split-second sequence of events, the newborn universe cooled enough to form neutrons and protons and then these fused to form atomic nuclei.

Some scientists say there was then a brief period of rapid expansion or inflation. Such an inflationary early universe was postulated to account for the evolution of large galactic structures in such a relatively short time.

Direct observations of the expanding universe extend back to no earlier than the first 300,000 years, the boundary for detecting the microwave radiation from the big bang.

Detection of this radiation in 1964 established the big bang as the reigning theory of creation, but the lack of evidence for early structure had created problems for the theory.

QUAKE: Aftershocks make Californians worry about 'Big One'

(From 1A)

. . . so we're advising communities . . . to be on their toes," said Lt. Ben Nottingham, spokesman for the Los Angeles County Office of Emergency Management.

Authorities estimated damage from the quake at up to $1 million in the Morongo Basin, which includes the communities of Joshua Tree and Yucca Valley about 100 miles east of Los Angeles.

"There are no two-story buildings out here and that could contribute to the low damage figures," said Sgt. Ben Boswell, commander of San Bernardino County's disaster preparedness division.

The state Office of Emergency Services advised authorities in six Southern California counties to be on alert even though the probability of a great earthquake — one registering at least 7.5 on the Richter scale — decreased rapidly with each hour.

By Thursday, the U.S. Geological Survey said the chance of such a shaker had fallen to less than one in 20.

Hundreds of tiny aftershocks were felt Thursday near the epicenter. Five registered more than 4.0 on the Richter scale, said Linda Curtis, a USGS spokeswoman.

Some people weren't taking any chances. Paul Hughes, manager of a Hughes supermarket in Pasadena, said sales of bottled water Thursday were brisk.

"The water's just flying out of here," he said. "As a matter of fact, we're adding an additional pallet of bottles . . . to make sure we have enough on hand."

Wednesday's shaker struck at 9:50 p.m. and was centered about 110 miles east of Los Angeles near Palm Springs in Riverside County. A magnitude-4.6 quake shook the same area 2½ hours earlier.

"It was like something hit the side of the wall," said Ed Bowlin, a 26-year-old security guard at the Hyatt Regency Suites in Palm Springs. "It was like, this is your Earth Day wake-up call."

The quake rocked buildings from San Diego to Santa Barbara, 200 miles up the coast. Residents as far away as Las Vegas and Phoenix reported feeling the temblor.

"I lived in San Francisco for 39 years and I never felt one this strong," said Vi Richardson, 62, who was lying in bed on the top floor of the Circus Circus Hotel in Las Vegas when the quake struck. "I thought (it) never would stop shaking."

Back in California, 15 people were taken to Hi-Desert Medical Center in Yucca Valley with minor injuries. Ten were treated and released and five were admitted with injuries ranging from a broken ankle to cuts and bruises, said Theresa Graham, a hospital spokeswoman. All were listed in good condition.

Desert Hospital in Palm Springs said it treated and released 10 people.

Building inspectors from throughout the region were in the field Thursday assessing the quake's toll on property.

Eighteen buildings in Joshua Tree were damaged, including a coffee shop and hair salon that were ordered condemned, said Jeff Mellinger, a San Bernardino County fire spokesman.

The Red Cross set up an emergency shelter at a church in Joshua Tree for displaced families. Twenty-nine people spent the night at the shelter Wednesday, said Red Cross spokesman John Walters.

"Most were just afraid to go back into their homes," he said. "They said they felt safer here with other people."

A Twentynine Palms convenience store lost part of its roof, and four fire stations in the Morongo Valley sustained minor damage. An undetermined number of residential buildings also sustained damage.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

An earthquake of 6 on the Richter scale can cause severe damage. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage.

Clouds bring highs in 70s

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the upper 70s and northeast wind at 10 to 20 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the upper 40s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Saturday should be fair with a high in the upper 70s.

After an overnight low of 52, Thursday's high reached 89 compared with the record high for that date of 98 set in 1989. The record low for that date is 37 set in 1968.

STATE

Temperatures reached the upper 80s Thursday across wide areas of Texas under mostly sunny skies, with forecasters expecting scattered rainfall in southern sections by the start of the weekend.

A cold front lingered in the eastern Panhandle, keeping conditions breezy across North Texas. Meanwhile, a dry line stretched from Childress through Abilene and into Southwest Texas.

High temperatures ranged from the mid-70s in Tyler and Longview to 88 at San Angelo.

Winds were generally from the west at 5 to 20 mph, with gusts to about 25 mph. In South Texas, weak high pressure over the eastern half kept southerly winds flowing off the Gulf, spreading moisture inland.

Patchy dense fog was expected along the coast through this morning. Widely scattered showers should develop in eastern parts of South Texas today, and over the south tonight and Saturday.

Fair skies and lower temperatures were expected in North Texas through Saturday.

NATION

Unseasonably cool weather struck parts of the Northwest on Thursday. Snow fell in the Upper Midwest.

Low temperature records were set in Astoria, Ore., where it was 34; Boise, Idaho, 25; and Yakima, Wash., 25. Spokane, Wash., tied its 50-year-old record of 28.

Snow fell across east-central and northeast Minnesota into northwestern Wisconsin.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered over Maine, the central Gulf of Mexico coast, eastern Colorado, the Nebraska panhandle, western South Dakota and south-central Montana.

Rain was scattered over the northern Rockies, with rain changing to snow in northeastern Wyoming.

Rain also extended over southern Wisconsin into northern Illinois and eastern Iowa.

Snowfall included 1 inch at Winter Park, Colo., and 2 inches at Hibbing and International Falls, Minn.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

MOBIL: Company lays off 55 employees

(From 1A)

Mobil employs 800 in the Midland Division and has 300 employees at the Midland office. All of the cuts were in the Midland office. Mobil said a study to make the company more profitable and competitive concluded the Midland office should be redueed to 245-250 employees.

"These include non-represented workers only and do not include union employees," said Darlene Taylor, spokeswoman for Mobil. "Those separations will be determined within the next two weeks."

Closing of the Denver office under the restructuring resulted in 70 layoffs. The Oklahoma City office, which also was closed, had 42 separations. Mobil employed 150 at its Denver Division and 100 at the Denver office. Of the 350 Oklahoma City Division employees, 150 were in the Oklahoma City office.

Mobil will centralize its exploration to Dallas, and most of the remaining employees from Oklahoma City will be transferred to Dallas. Denver employees will be transferred to Dallas, Houston and Bakersfield. But some of the business that had been handled by the Denver Division will now be transferred to Midland, Ms. Taylor said.

She said outplacement services would be made available to employees separated at Midland and other locations.

"Midland will remain a major producing office and division to Mobil," Ms. Taylor said.

RETREAT: Arco inspires council planning session

(From 1A)

Deputy City Manager Mike McGregor said the first session will be conducted by Ken Thompson and Dale Dunn of Arco.

City department and division heads have been attending the oil company's leadership training program in recent months. It promotes the ideas of cooperation, employee self-esteem and more worker input, hoped to generate increased productivity.

Thompson, senior vice president of the company's western district, and Dunn, human resources manager, got council support early this month to continue teaching those philosophies to city employees. It is offered free by Arco.

Assistant City Manager Susan Thorpe said at the first session of the retreat, the council and city managers will attempt to develop a long-range "vision" for the city.

Thomas said that represents a departure from past years' sessions.

"The major change is going to be, instead of the council setting specific goals, we'll be looking at more overall objectives we want to achieve," Thomas said. "Then workers will come up with ways to accomplish those."

At the following week's two-day event, the council, with consultant Chris Hartung and city department heads, will form strategies for action, Ms. Thorpe said.

Hartung will guide the group through several hours of reviewing the past year's accomplishments. Then an entire day can be devoted to planning.

Thomas said city workers will be asked for ideas to accomplish the objectives.

"These are the people who should have a better feel for areas where savings can be realized," he said.

In past years, the council itself has dealt in specifics about capital projects and cuts.

This year, inspired by Arco's philosophy, Thomas said the city is trying to begin changing the way it operates, hoping to increase the government's effectiveness and lower its costs.

"It's going to take a while for us to get adjusted to this new way of thinking," he said.

Thomas' term as mayor ends June 1, but he will participate in the planning session along with all current council members.

Conducting the retreat locally, at the Petroleum Club, rather than out of town as in past years, is estimated to save the city $2,200 in hotel and meal costs, McGregor said.

TODDLER: Girl won't talk about parents' deaths

ery was made.

The children were found unharmed inside the locked trailer, Cassandra having fended for herself and her infant sister in a bedroom separate from the one in which the bodies of their parents were found.

"We are proud and amazed that Cassandra cared for her little sister, Elizabeth," said their aunt, Kim Graves, 30, Sabrina Burke's sister and a telephone company employee in Houston. "She found cereal, crackers and several yogurt cups, which she fed to Elizabeth with a baby spoon."

A doctor's visit showed the two girls suffered only "a modest amount of dehydration," said Kim Graves. "They are in good health."

'We are proud and amazed that Cassandra cared for her little sister, Elizabeth.'

— Kim Graves

Cassandra will begin seeing a counselor, according to her grandfather, John Graves, 54, a marketing and sales manager for Micon-Powell in Houston.

"In the beginning, she said some things we don't want to repeat," he said, without elaborating.

He and Laura Graves, who took turns hugging and holding the two girls, said they will rear their only grandchildren.

"There's nothing harder than to outlive your children. It has been very difficult," John Graves said. Sabrina Burke was the youngest of their four children.

Pasadena police had not determined a motive for the murder-suicide, and the victims' relatives had no answers either.

"We don't believe we'll ever know. We're going to go forward with the children and concentrate on their happiness," said John Graves, a Beaumont native who moved to Houston from Illinois a month ago to start his new job.

"It wouldn't do any good if we did know," his wife added. "A tougher thing I'll never go through. But people have cared. We do appreciate all the caring and the prayers."

A Cassandra and Elizabeth Burke Education Trust Fund has been set up at Texas Chiropractic College, 5912 Spencer Highway, Pasadena, Texas 77505, where their father was a student and their mother was a secretary.

The two, who had been married four years, will be buried together at Forest Lawn Cemetery in Beaumont, John Graves said.

HOSPITAL: Board hopefuls target taxes, indigent care

who is a former president of the district's board.

In a conservative climate, Coffman said, "You can't be opposed to maintaining quality health care, and you can't be a strong advocate of increasing taxes."

And the "secret of good management," he said, is to determine the exact measure, the ideal balance, between care and cost.

Coffman said that management is his forte.

"I will very definitely speak my mind," Coffman said. "And I have enough management expertise in my working history that I think I can add something from the management side of the equation."

Coffman said he would propose "efficiency measures and cost-saving measures" in his niche in overseeing hospital management.

"I would like to take a very, very comprehensive look and take a comprehensive audit of what's going on down there right now on everything from admissions to discharge," Coffman said.

While promoting excellence in hospital care, Lawrence said he wants wasteful spending cut out and seeks wise spending.

He said that it makes sense for some members of the hospital board to be physicians. "However, I also think taxpayers need to be represented on that board" even though only about 5 to 7.5 percent of Memorial Hospital and Medical Center's $140-million operating budget comes from taxes, he said.

"Perhaps the other candidates see themselves as being taxpayer representatives, and that's fine," Lawrence said. "I intend to be the eyes, ears and mouth of the taxpayers if I am elected. If we could maintain the current level (of taxation) for sometime, I think it would be a step in the proper direction."

Currently, the hospital district's effective tax rate is 17.96 cents per $100 valuation based on a $3.7-billion tax base. At that rate, hospital tax revenue would be about $6.6-million in the 1992-'93 fiscal year.

Two board members, Dr. Stephen Wiesenfeld and Dr. Shelton Viney, are physicians. Wiesenfeld, the board's president, is an allergist. Viney, a surgeon, is retiring from the board.

Running unopposed for Viney's District 3 post on the board is his wife, Jo Ann Viney.

Running without opposition for the District 4 post on the board is Jean Pittman, an interior designer and pilot who was first elected to the District 5 slot in 1991. However, due to the recent legislative redistricting, she now lives within District 4 and was forced to seek re-election to the board.

Other members of the board are a landman, a lawyer, a retired school teacher and a minister.

Now in retirement, Coffman said he would have the time to serve on the board and study management.

Coffman said he would "like to look at what they (managers) are doing (and) why they are doing it." And if there is a way procedures can be improved or eliminated to make the hospital more efficient, those improvements need to be made, he said.

"I would like to get a lot of input, guidance, direction, information (and) complaints ... from the people who are paying the bills — the patients, the taxpayers, the donors who make major contributions, the insurance carriers," Coffman said.

"I would like to devise some kind of a mechanism to get feedback from those people" and to analyze the results to effect "cost-savings and whatever measures that might be expedient" in running an efficient hospital, he said.

Coffman cited the hospital's obligation to care for the indigent with taxpayers' funds.

"Right now, the indigent-care costs are about 7-million bucks," Coffman said. "And the taxpayer picks up about $6 million of that."

The hospital's so-called "profits" pay for the shortfall.

"If you put the entire (indigent) bill on the hospital, what this means is that the fee-paying patients' bills are going to have to be jacked up," Coffman said. "It's just that simple."

He lamented that the biggest loss at the hospital is in Medicare and Medicaid reimbursements which, he said, amount to about a $24 million deficit. "The cost for treating Medicare-Medicaid patients exceeds the rate schedule that (federally-funded) Medicare-Medicaid will allow."

Coffman said hospital management has got to make sure the hospital's operations are totally in tune with any federal health-care reform package and be aware of the positive or negative impact of that reform.

While Lawrence's focus is on the tax burden on the Midland citizenry, he said he is "not so naive to believe that we can let our health care deteriorate or stagnate in the community.

"I realize that society has an obligation to take care of the less fortunate — indigents," he said.

Lawrence said he would "like to see the hospital adhere to the strictest guidelines (on indigent care) that the state will allow. Perhaps the guidelines are more liberal than what they ought to be."

And to price indigent care at hospital cost rather than at the standard rates would be less of a burden to the taxpayers, Lawrence said. "I suppose it would be somewhat detrimental to the hospital in some regard because their profits would not be as great if they charged indigents at cost."

Lawrence said he does not want to be "perceived as an enemy of the hospital. I had rather be seen as an advocate of the taxpayer. A person can do things for the good of the hospital and the taxpayer at the same time.

"I don't anticipate going ... against the grain on everything the hospital wants to do," Lawrence said. "That is not necessary. It is certainly true the hospital serves the community and does a very good job of it."

But Lawrence did express concern over what he perceived as the hospital's growth rate "considerably outpacing the growth of the rest of the community."

And he said the hospital management should clearly define purchases and should closely control expenditures.

"I don't understand why the hospital puts so much money into advertising," Lawrence said. "If the hospital is doing well enough to be expanding at the rate they are, why are they advertising? And if the hospital needs more business because they don't have enough business at the present time, why are they continuing to expand at the rate they are?"

Guadalajara authorities evacuate neighborhood

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Fearing more explosions, authorities Thursday evacuated a neighborhood near a working-class district wrecked a day earlier by sewer-line blasts. The government said at least 176 people had died, half of them children.

Moving quickly to control potential political damage, President Carlos Salinas de Gortari gave his attorney general 72 hours to determine who was at fault for Mexico's deadliest explosion since 1984.

Guadalajara's sewer system chief, Alberto Limon, stepped down, the state government announced late Thursday. The governor earlier blamed Limon and two other city officials for taking no action on residents' complaints of leaking gas.

Authorities said the likely cause of the blasts was either volatile hexane leaked by La Central cooking-oil company or spilled gasoline from the national oil company, Pemex. Officials from both companies denied responsibility.

Jorge Alexandre, a senior La Central manager, said the firm had a system to control hexane seepage and leaked only traces of the chemical in the worst of times. It would have taken tons of hexane to cause a blast of Wednesday's proportions, he said.

While denying blame for the explosions, Pemex suspended natural gas deliveries to industrial customers in the Reforma district and closed its gas stations there as a "safety precaution," said the company's director-general, Francisco Rojas.

About a half-mile from a Pemex storage facility in the city, along Lazaro Cardenas boulevard, workmen and safety officials Thursday afternoon found an underground pool of gasoline next to a Pemex pipeline.

But men with copies of the layout of sewers and pipes in the area said the leaky pipe did not appear to be connected to sewers where the blasts occurred.

The casualty count from the explosions remained uncertain. The state attorney general, Leobardo Larios Guzman, said the death toll was 202. The Red Cross said 184 were dead.

Jalisco's state health minister, Dr. Palemon Rodriguez, said 176 people died, half of them children. Gov. Guillermo Cosio Vidaurri said 1,361 people were injured. The first damage estimate was $300 million.

Salinas said the government would carry "to its utmost consequences the investigation of the causes of the tragedy and the circumstances that produced it."

Weeping survivors thronged the Reforma district, where the explosions destroyed 20 to 25 square city blocks, hurling cars and trucks into the air and blowing up adobe houses. About 15,000 were left homeless, officials said.

At a makeshift morgue in a sports stadium, relatives wailed as they looked at a list of names of the dead identified so far. Every few minutes, an announcement from a speaker told the bereaved the government would pay for funeral costs.

Relatives tenderly wrapped the bodies of their loved ones and put them in plain wooden caskets. Hundreds of people accompanied many of the bodies to the Mazquitan Cemetary, where about 120 graves were dug.

With the grief came anger: residents demanded to know why the government failed to act promptly on reports of fumes.

"If they knew, why didn't they tell us?" asked Ramon Guerra, 22, who helped pull the bodies of his aunt and his 6-year-old nephew from the ruins of their home.

In addition to Limon, the state governor identified those to blame as city Fire Chief Jose Trinidad Lopez Rivas and municipal services director David Aftimos Partida.

Cosio Vidaurri said, "It was a situation in which an evaluation had to be made and for some reason the necessary precautions were not taken."

But he backed off an earlier vow to charge the three men with criminal negligence.

In a preventive measure, Mayor Enrique Dau Flores ordered the evacuation of a section of the Alamo district east of Reforma after residents complained of fumes. The area is surrounded by about 40 factories, including a Pemex plant.

In the explosion zone, hundreds of workers, wearing masks to protect against dust and fumes, used specially trained dogs to search for bodies.

But late in the day, crews moved in with heavy equipment to clear debris, suggesting there was little hope of finding anyone alive.

Army trucks were everywhere. Hundreds of soldiers stacked victims' broken belongings; from one wrecked house came children's toys and a set of illustrated encyclopedias.

Relief officials set up a blood donation station and rushed in purified water.

Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city with 3 million people, is 350 miles northwest of Mexico City. It is a popular tourist destination with a colony of retired Americans across town from the blast area. The U.S. Embassy said it had no reports Americans were injured.

Afghan rebel leader agrees to temporary council

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Radical guerrilla leader Gulbuddin Hekmatyar offered moderate rebels a compromise Thursday, saying he would accept an interim rebel council that would rule until elections within a year.

Hekmatyar, who previously had demanded the immediate establishment of a strict Islamic state, also proposed that neither he nor his bitter rival, Ahmed Shah Masood, serve on the council.

But even as he made the offer unarmed rebels opposed to Hekmatyar openly moved into and around the Afghan capital for the first time since the civil war began 14 years ago.

It was a sign of the growing cooperation between moderate rebels and government forces a week after President Najibullah was ousted and a power struggle began among rebel groups.

Hekmatyar has threatened to attack Kabul unless the government surrenders to him. His forces are believed strong enough to block an accord for a rebel-led government that included Masood, but not powerful enough to seize power alone.

Moderate guerrillas are trying to stitch together an Islamic council that could govern until elections in this mountainous country. The crumbling government has agreed to surrender power to either a moderate rebel coalition or a neutral interim government, but not to any single guerrilla group.

At a news conference in Islamabad, Pakistan, U.N. negotiator Benon Sevan pleaded for rebel leaders to set aside differences and form a government to take power in Kabul.

"What they agree to in the morning, they reject in the evening as if it were signed in invisible ink," said Sevan. "Time is running out fast. Afghanistan cannot afford a new war."

More than 2 million people have been killed and 5 million have left the country because of fighting between a succession of pro-Communist governments and Muslim groups formerly armed and financed by the United States and Saudi Arabia.

Hekmatyar, leader of the radical Hezb-e-Islami guerrilla faction, has rejected any role in a council that includes Najibullah's Watan Party or Masood, a moderate who is the country's most powerful rebel commander.

Trying to counter the moderates, Hekmatyar proposed a military government comprised of rebel commanders who have been based around Kabul during the war. That would exclude both Hekmatyar and Masood, whose forces are based farther away.

He said the revolutionary council would take over until nationwide elections could be held in a year.

The proposal was made during a meeting with a provisional vice president, Mohammed Rafei, at Hekmatyar's stronghold in Logar Province south of Kabul. It was the first publicly acknowledged meeting between the two.

The Kabul government said Hekmatyar's proposal was unacceptable.

However, Rafei told reporters: "This is a proposal. It needs to be discussed and reviewed by various commanders and various leaders."

There was no immediate reaction from Masood.

Hekmatyar's suggestion came as thousands of Masood's fighters moved closer to this capital of 1.5 million people. Sources in Masood's organization said the rebels now control territory to the northern and northwestern city limits.

The rebels — known as mujahedeen or Islamic holy warriors — also were seen deep inside the city, where bazaars were bustling again after nearly a week of tension. At least two Masood fighters were seen in the city money market with bumper stickers on their jeeps reading: "I Love Jihad (holy war)."

Also Thursday, the International Red Cross evacuated nearly half its 75-member contingent after a field nurse from Iceland was killed by a Muslim fanatic.

"I have to take into consideration the security of my staff," said Lauren Corbaz, head of the Red Cross in Afghanistan. "It is a temporary closure. We will wait for the situation to be calm."

On Wednesday, a Hekmatyar loyalist stuck the barrel of his rifle through the window of a Red Cross vehicle evacuating war casualties outside Kabul and killed 39-year-old Jon Karlsson.

As he fired, witnesses said the gunman shouted: "Death to all kafirs (non-Muslims)!"

Groups sign cease-fire accord

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (NYT) — After a month of mounting civil war in the former Yugoslav republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the leaders of the republic's three main ethnic groups signed a new cease-fire agreement Thursday and agreed to resume negotiations under European Community sponsorship in Lisbon on Monday.

But the European Community leaders who negotiated the new accord had barely left Sarajevo, the republic's capital, before the fighting that has raged there for the last three days began again. The resumed talks would discuss the republic's future.

After the nightly curfew at 10 p.m., reporters in the city said, Serbian gunners in the mountains overlooking the city resumed artillery bombardment of the old Muslim quarter and sustained bursts of artillery and machine-gun fire could be heard from the area of the airport on the city's western edge.

The leaders of the three main groups that make up Bosnia and Herzegovina's population of 4.3 million — Muslim Slavs, Serbs and Croats — signed the new cease-fire commitment at the airport after a day of negotiations with a European Community delegation.

The delegation is led by Lord Carrington, the former British foreign secretary, who is chairman of the European Community's conference on Yugoslavia, and by Joao de Deus Pinheiro, the foreign minister of Portugal, which holds the community's rotating presidency.

In a document prepared by the European officials, the three groups vowed "to respect fully and unconditionally" an earlier cease-fire accord that was signed on April 12 and immediately ignored.

62-year-old has test-tube conception

ROME (AP) — A 62-year-old woman has become pregnant after a test-tube conception, her doctor said Thursday, and she apparently would be the oldest person to give birth if she delivers successfully.

Concetta Ditessa, a housewife from a Calabrian village in southern Italy, is due to give birth to a boy in August and has had no complications, Dr. Raffaele Magli said in a telephone interview from his office in Naples.

He said she was impregnated with an egg from a 30-year-old woman that was fertilized with sperm from Mrs. Ditessa's husband.

The Guinness Book of World Records says the latest age for a birth that medical authorities consider documented is 57½. According to a birth certificate, Ruth Alice Kistler of Glendale, Calif., was that old when she gave birth to a daughter in 1956.

News of Mrs. Ditessa's pregnancy brought criticism from Italy's health minister, Francesco De Lorenzo.

"A woman of that age does not have the proper physiological conditions to procreate," he said.

However, he noted, there is no law setting an age limit on such procedures and it is up to an individual doctor to decide.

According to news reports, a bout with tuberculosis left Mrs. Ditessa sterile. Her previous attempts to become pregnant by artificial means were unsuccessful before she came under Magli's care in 1990, the reports said.

McDonald's new Beijing outlet gets rave reviews

BEIJING (AP) — Chinese venturing into Beijing's first McDonald's restaurant on opening day Thursday faced some puzzling moments, but the novelty and the taste drew raves even if the food seemed a bit pricey.

A huge inflated Ronald McDonald tied to the roof swayed in a stiff wind as company officials and Beijing dignitaries opened the chain's largest restaurant. The 28,000-square-foot outlet has 29 cash registers and seating for about 700 people.

Several hundred Chinese gathered to be among the first served at the two-story restaurant near Tiananmen Square.

The mixed reviews started just after the first patrons sat down to eat.

Railway worker Sun Jianhua thought a Big Mac made a "pretty good breakfast," but said he needed to eat something a little more substantial for lunch and dinner.

Others had more basic quandaries. Some were baffled by the straw dispensers. One man sat dumbfounded over his meal, amazed that it could cost the equivalent of $4.30.

And one businessman wondered why the restaurant didn't serve stir-fried dishes.

But the Beijing Evening News gave the opening an overall positive rating. "Even though it's very windy, it doesn't blow away the curiosity and enthusiasm for unfamiliar things," the newspaper said in a front-page article.

A group of college students from the northeast city of Shenyang, 390 miles from Beijing, gave the ice cream raves but none ordered a full meal.

"We're students. We can't afford to eat like this all the time," said Zhang Shaojun, 22.

But even for people with jobs, the prices seemed high.

"It's very delicious, but I can't come too often," said Jiang Chun, 24, a Beijing office technician. "It's too expensive."

China has two other McDonald's, both in the southern city of Shenzhen near Hong Kong. The new Beijing outlet is the first that brings the chain's fare to the heart of the world's most populous country.

Noel Kaplan, McDonald's senior vice president for the Asia-Pacific region, said the company expects the Beijing restaurant to serve 10,000 people daily.

McDonald's plans to open at least 15 restaurants in China over the next few years with total investment of about $50 million.

De Klerk proposes interim council

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — In a plan that would guarantee South Africa its first black leader, President F.W. de Klerk proposed Thursday to hold multiracial elections for an interim presidency.

Saying the plan contains "the backbone of democracy," de Klerk provided the greatest detail yet on how he envisions moving from white domination to power-sharing with the 30 million black majority.

He told Parliament each political party would be able to nominate one candidate for a ruling Executive Council.

The top three to five vote-getters in national elections would sit on the council, with the chairman serving as state president. Chairmanship would rotate every six months, de Klerk said.

A multiracial election would give the black majority voting rights for the first time and guarantee popular black leaders, such as Nelson Mandela, a seat on the council and thus the presidency.

There was no immediate comment from Mandela's African National Congress, the largest black movement. A phone call to an ANC spokeswoman was not returned. David Dalling, one of five white members of Parliament who this week joined the ANC, said neither he nor his four colleagues was prepared to comment on behalf of the ANC.

The ANC has traditionally opposed calls for a coalition government, saying a party that wins a majority should rule by itself.

The ANC and several other political groups negotiating with the government must agree before any transitional plan can go forward. Leading black and white parties have been working on a new constitution and plan to make a progress report next month.

De Klerk did not give a time frame for his proposal but has said an interim government should be installed within a few months.

"We do not wish to leave South Africa without a responsible government at any time during the process of democratization," he told Parliament.

Both pro- and anti-apartheid politicians in Parliament rejected the idea.

Colin Eglin of the liberal Democratic Party called the concept "novel, interesting and probably unacceptable," saying a rotating presidency would lead to a power struggle.

"Nothing could be worse for South Africa before it has developed a common nationhood," he said.

Ferdi Hartzenberg of the pro-apartheid Conservative Party, which favors separate homelands for blacks and whites, predicted the plan would fail.

"There is only one way to achieve freedom for all people of South Africa, and that is by partition," Hartzenberg said.

De Klerk did not say how long the Executive Council would rule, but in the past he has said an interim leadership could be in power several years.

The ANC also wants an interim government but envisions it ruling only long enough to oversee elections for an assembly to draft a new constitution.

De Klerk also repeated plans for an elected two-chamber Parliament that would give blacks representation for the first time. The ANC has rejected the plan because it would effectively give whites and other minorities veto powers.

The ANC has traditionally opposed calls for a coalition government, saying a party that wins a majority should rule by itself.

In his speech, de Klerk lashed out at the ANC, saying it was hampering political progress by riding "the hobbyhorse of apartheid" and ignoring government reforms.

"Reconciliation and racial harmony are not promoted at all by an ANC that will not let apartheid die," he said.

Since de Klerk came to power in 1989, he has abolished major apartheid laws and legalized opposition groups such as the ANC.

But the ANC blames his government for political violence in black townships in which more than 11,000 people have died since 1984.

OPEC calls for extensive study of global warming

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — OPEC and other oil producers expressed concern late Thursday about efforts to limit use of their fuel to ease the threat of global warming.

After a day-long meeting, OPEC issued a statement calling for extensive studies on the causes and effects of global warming.

OPEC President Jibril Aminu warned the oil industry could come under an "almighty onslaught" at the Earth Summit sponsored by the United Nations in June in Brazil.

Aminu, the Nigerian oil minister, said worries about global warming may be motivated more by political than scientific factors.

Carbon dioxide emissions — a major byproduct of the burning of oil and other fossil fuels — have spurred fears of a possible rise in the earth's temperature.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is worried Western nations will succumb to pressure on environmental issues and develop alternative energy sources.

Rick Orman, Alberta's energy chief, said there was "a common producer concern" that the oil industry was being unfairly singled out as the culprit in global warming.

"There are other 'greenhouse gases' that should be examined," he told reporters.

OPEC Secretary-General Subroto said reputable scientists differed in their assessment of the change in the world's climate.

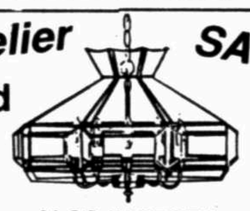

He said studies should be undertaken "to reduce the scientific uncertainties" about global warming.

Christmas in April needs your help!

Volunteers with hammers, saws, paintbrushes and other tools will be out in full force Saturday for the 21st "season" of Midland's unique volunteer housing repair project for the elderly and the handicapped — Christmas in April.

The program has been highly successful with repairs being made to literally thousands of homes during the past two decades. Smiles on the faces of the proud recipients tell the story year after year. For them it's a dream come true. They're excited about the help which many of them could not afford if it were not performed by volunteers with materials purchased by donations from caring individuals.

This program, renowned across the nation for its Christian compassion and low-cost approach to relieving dangerous, potentially life-threatening conditions in the homes of the elderly and handicapped population, gets Midlanders involved in their community and various segments of the populace pulling together toward a common goal. That's one of the "fringe benefits" of the Christmas in April program that has also been recognized by the numerous other communities around the nation who now hold their own Christmas in April programs.

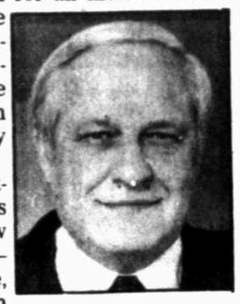

Of course, the program, which in Midland operates year-round now, relies heavily on the work of volunteers. But the other requirement for the success of the program is the financial contributions of thousands of supporters who, while they may not possess the skills or the ability to participate in the annual workday, still want to participate in the program and do so by making a monetary contribution. They are the unseen volunteers who although not present at the work site, constitute a vitally important part of the Christmas in April program.

Make a contribution to the Christmas in April program this year — either monetarily or by volunteering to work on one of the many projects scheduled for repairs Saturday.

Gadhafi presents challenge for Bush

WASHINGTON — Col. Moammar Gadhafi summoned us to Tripoli 13 years ago this month for an interview in a tent. "I like to see the sky," he said, explaining our unusual surroundings. "It helps me think better than when I am surrounded by walls."

Anderson

During our tent meeting with Gadhafi, his face seemed somehow divided against itself — the upper half fierce, with a trace of anguish in the eyes; the lower half disarming, almost lost in thought, with a wisp of a smile playing across the lips that spoke softly. Gadhafi had an amazing ability to smile and scowl at the same time. President Bush, like his predecessors, will be spending much time in the coming months studying this inscrutable man. What Bush discerns may determine questions of war and peace this election year.

Gadhafi seems to serve up tests for every American president. Despite his resolve in Desert Storm, Bush is apparently no exception. Bush's determination in rolling back state-sponsored terrorism will be put to the test in the way he responds to Gadhafi. Lesson one for administration officials: The strongman of this North African nation has always relished pressure from the United States, as if taking on a superpower enhances and exalts him with his own people, almost bestowing a mythical quality.

Moreover, CIA reports show that there has actually been more Libyan-sponsored terrorism against Americans since Ronald Reagan sent 18 warplanes to blast Tripoli in 1986 in retaliation for suspected terrorism.

Gadhafi has shelters and bunkers to protect him from military threats, but he's defenseless to one weapon: oil. While a bombing strike would be politically popular and militarily simple, intelligence experts believe that the only way of tightening the noose on Gadhafi is the imposition of an international boycott on Libyan oil.

But first, Bush might have to go to war diplomatically with U.S. allies — not to mention powerful American corporations. Using the oil weapon would inflict a direct hit on the Libyan economy, which derives 90 percent of its earnings from petroleum imports. Bush would incur heavy political fire from Italy and other European allies, who buy the bulk of Libyan oil, not to mention some of the most powerful American oil companies that conduct business internationally.

Bush would also be rolling the dice: Does he want to risk a deeper recession as a reward for dislodging Gadhafi?

The first shot across Gadhafi's bow was the recently passed United Nations sanctions that halted arms sales, cut off air flights to and from Libya, and in some cases, expelled Libyan diplomats around the world. Bush administration officials see these initial sanctions as a way of sending a warning to Gadhafi that his reign of state-sponsored terrorism is at an end.

CHARLEY REESE

Government housecleaning begins at home

It won't do us much good this year to throw the rascals out unless we throw the rascal out of ourselves.

Many people think that if they elect new faces, their problems will be solved, but that is a form of scapegoating. The old faces in government are one problem to be sure. We ought to change them. But the faces in our mirrors are another problem. We ought to work on them, too.

Reese

It isn't just the government that has lived beyond its means. Many corporations and Americans in the private sector also live beyond their means. In fact, probably if you had to name just one cause of the present recession, it is that burden of debt the private sector assumed during a spend-now-pay-later decade of the 1980s.

It isn't just politicians who have grown corrupted by a love of luxury. Most Americans now think they are entitled to practically everything. It is not at all unusual to see young couples in their 20s start married life with a standard three-bedroom, two-bath house fully equipped, two cars, and all the toys — as well as with the mountain of debt necessary to acquire this stuff.

If we as a people are spendthrift, it is unlikely we will find frugal congressmen and senators. If we as a people are basically dishonest, as a great many surveys seem to indicate, it is unlikely we will find honest public servants. If we as a people are selfish to a fault, it is unlikely we will find selfless public servants.

We the people are the river. If the river is muddy, you cannot withdraw buckets of clear water. In other words, we aren't going to find anybody to serve in public office but ourselves. Therefore, to undertake really true reforms, we must reform ourselves.

We demand that government balance its budget. Then we should do the same thing. Buying on credit is the private sector equivalent of deficit spending.

We demand that government adopt spending priorities. Then we must do the same thing. We have to divert some of the income we're spending on consumption to investment and savings.

We demand that government be more productive. We, too, must become more productive. We should demand that our children work hard on their studies or else hand them a shovel and tell them to get out of the classroom and become the ditch-diggers they're qualified to be. We parents, too, should work hard and seek new ways to be more productive.

A great many of the problems — social, health and economic — boil down to morality, or rather lack of it. Promiscuity is the chief factor in the extent of the AIDS epidemic and the numbers of pregnant teens. We are just learning the hard way what past civilizations have demonstrated — immorality is impractical because it doesn't work.

Corporate takeovers for purposes of plunder, insider trading, junk bonds, high-leverage developments, and stockholder rape by chief executive officers are not legal problems that can be solved with legislation. They are moral problems.

Even legislative corruption — the selling out to special interests — are in part a result of public apathy, which is civic immorality, as well as the individual's immorality in selling the public trust for private gain.

When people become immoral, legislation cannot save them. Socrates noted:

"Virtue is not advanced by written laws, but by the habits of everyday life; for the majority of men tend to assimilate the manners and morals amid which they have been reared. Furthermore, where there is a multitude of specific laws, it is a sign that the state is badly governed."

So let's throw all the rascals out — those who occupy public office and those who reside in our own hearts.

Charley Reese's column is distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

This may be the year for reforming system

If you blinked last week, you probably didn't see Howard Phillips announce for president as the radical candidate.

I mean, none of this wimpy Ross Perot stuff about eliminating waste, fraud and bureaucracy. Howie Phillips, former Harvard student council president, longtime conservative activist, independent presidential candidate, would roll back federal spending to where it was in the Dark Ages — 1987. Yahoo! As a self-styled "confrontational" president, he would veto "all federal income tax collections (which only cover about 35 percent of federal spending) and reduce spending by 35 percent." Hip, hip, hooray!

Murchison

We wouldn't need the income tax then, or the IRS, whose appropriation Phillips would veto. Citizens could keep, and invest, their hard-earned money while the government lived on revenues from business and Social Security collections.

You don't believe it's going to happen? Alas, I don't either, if only because Howie Phillips, who is trying to run an independent campaign with a bankbook no thicker than Ross Perot's shirt cuff, isn't going to get elected dogcatcher. On the other hand, would you have thought we'd be talking in this presidential campaign about shutting down the IRS? This is what happens in times of profound discontent. Business-as-usual goes by the boards. One gets down to fundamentals.

You don't get much more fundamental than Howard Phillips. While George Bush is promising to expand student loans for college, Phillips is talking of actions that would probably get the whole education department abolished. Last month, Bush vetoed $3.6 billion in government programs — an Arkansas poultry center here, a Vidalia onion storage facility there; two submarines sunk by the veto accounted for 90 percent of the savings. Phillips has in mind cuts 130 times larger than Bush's — and, more to the point, a basic reordering of the way we taxpayers think about government and government about us.

The irony behind all the public fury at our congressmen is that these, our loyal servants, thought they were serving us. They voted to spend money on what we told them we wanted.

I don't mean we told them collectively, as a whole people. We told them singly: the varied voices of varied constituencies. The farmers wanted subsidies, the jobless jobs, the highway builders highways, the retirees larger Social Security checks, the impoverished food stamps and medical care.

Today, in retaliation, we throw at our benefactors anything that's handy. We claim they shouldn't have given us what we wanted, because it's breaking the country. Well, it is. Government — national, state and local — sops up one of every three dollars we earn, and the percentage is rising, not shrinking. This drags down the economy: makes it less productive and resilient.

Taxes, we used to say, represent the price of civilization. No more. The tax code today is a penalty on honest work and a cause of social division. The more money the government diverts, the higher the blood pressure of those who worked to earn the money. Even if they themselves get a kickback, in the form of a subsidy or benefit payment, they reason that others get more. The harder they work, the righter they are about that. Taxpayers and tax-eaters angrily glare at each other, each calling the other selfish, misanthropic, sexist, racist.

When will CAF help city?

I think our city fathers have sunk pretty low to prostitute the city for $30,000 to have the Coca-Cola and Confederate Air Force (CAF) logos painted on the airport water tower. I didn't realize things were that bad.

I'll never understand why that $30,000 Midland receives from Coca-Cola for advertising rights will go to the freeloading CAF and not into the city treasury. I can't believe how the City Council has allowed the pompous CAF to lead them around by the nose.

They obtained a special highway spur (I know it's mostly paid by the state, but Midland had to back the project, and it's still my tax dollars) and now a $30,000 gift to them. I would be in interested in knowing how many secret deals or arrangements have been conceded to them, like perhaps no, or even dirt cheap, water bills, special or no city taxes, things like that we common taxpayers don't need to know about.

I sure hope the council's being mesmerized by them works out for the benefit of Midland someday — that is if we can afford the luxury.

Parking presents problem

As a predominantly night-class student of Midland College for the past nine years, I have always been annoyed by a particular problem for those of us who attend classes in the Allison Fine Arts Building (across the circle from the Chaparral Center). We have to share parking with attendees of the center.

Students pay hard-earned money for the privilege of attending classes. We also pay for the right to park in the appropriate lot adjacent to our class building. Chaparral Center has ample parking of its own to accommodate almost any event.

However, it seems that some individuals are unaware of the parking space available on the east side of the center or are just too lazy to walk! When they drive up to realize that the front parking lot appears to be full, they simply turn into the lot for students of the Allison Fine Arts Building and make themselves at home. This action causes students, who normally have ample parking on this lot, to have to park on another building's lot (causing problems for them) or over on the east side of the center. A number of other ramifications can occur when this chain of events is set into motion: students are late to class, overflow parking on another building's parking lot, parking tickets due to parking in restricted areas, etc.

I realize that the revenue generated by events at Chaparral Center is vital. I have attended events there myself, and when necessary, parked on the east side and walked to the front door! I offer no clear-cut solution to this problem, but hope that bringing the situation to the attention of the school officials and the public will help.

I am sure that most of the people who attend events at the center, and who have never attended classes at the college, are unaware of the problems they pose by taking the first available parking space. Perhaps this letter will touch some of those who were heretofore unaware of this situation. After all, recognition of a problem is half of the solution!

Candidates have want list

The Presidential Candidate Want List has just come out for the 1992 election.

President Bush says he wants to fight another Desert Storm in the Middle East to boost his morale and gain the acceptance of the American voters.

Bill Clinton says he wants to fight the Vietnam War again to boost the support of voters.

Pat Buchanan wants to fight the Civil War again.

And all Jerry Brown wants to do to help his campaign is revisit the 1960s.

Jurors sentence day-care owner to 12 life prison terms

FARMVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A small-town day-care operator was sentenced to 12 consecutive life prison terms Thursday as children who testified they were molested by him watched from the front row, clutching dolls and teddy bears.

"I am innocent. I have not done these things," Robert F. Kelly Jr. said before Judge D. Marsh McLelland ordered one life sentence for each victim, ages 4 to 7.

Some of the children yelled "I hate you" as guards escorted Kelly to a police car to begin the trip to Central Prison in Raleigh.

"See you in a million years," yelled a young girl.

Kelly, 44, will not be eligible for parole for 240 years. Prosecutors urged the sentence.

"There is no reason he should be restored to the community at any time," District Attorney H.P. Williams Jr. told the judge. "There's no punishment you can impose on this man that's commensurate for the injuries he has imposed on them."

Kelly owned and operated Little Rascals Day Care Center in Edenton with his wife, Elizabeth. He was convicted Wednesday of 99 counts of sexually abusing children at the center from 1987 and 1989, when it closed. He could have been sentenced to 40 life terms plus 590 years.

Mrs. Kelly and five others are charged with sexual abuse and await separate trials.

The prosecutor said he would have to review the other cases before deciding how to proceed. He said there could be pretrial hearings in a month.

Prosecutor Bill Hart said the sentence "does send a message that these cases can be successfully prosecuted."

Defense lawyer Jeffrey Miller said Kelly wanted to appeal the case.

"It's just sad to see an innocent man convicted and sentenced," Miller said after court adjourned. "It's a tragedy."

The case was the most expensive and longest in North Carolina history. Jury selection began July 22 and the 14 days of deliberations ended Wednesday, spanning 10 months. Cost estimates are about $1.2 million.

Parents were jubilant about the sentencing. Nine children wearing Sunday clothes sat on the front row. Four of them testified against Kelly.

"There's nothing that would be strong enough for the crimes committed, but it will at least keep him off the streets for the rest of his natural life," said Morris Small Jr., father of one victim.

Peggy Brooks said she was "glad that man's never going to get out of jail." Her son, who testified, chimed in, "Me, too."

Most of the jurors, including forewoman Katherine Harris, were among the 150 people who packed the Pitt County courtroom for sentencing.

"As far as the children, for them to get up there and say something like that, it certainly made me believe them," Mrs. Harris said.

"The children's testimony was pretty consistent," she added. "Once it all unfolded, it came together very well as a puzzle. It all fit together."

The trial was moved from Edenton, a town of 5,800 in northeastern North Carolina, to Farmville because of pretrial publicity.

The case gave rise to comparisons with the McMartin Pre-School case in Manhattan Beach, Calif. That involved an 18-month preliminary hearing and two trials — one of nearly three years — and cost more than $13.5 million, a U.S. record for a criminal proceeding. Raymond Buckey and six others ultimately were cleared.

As in the McMartin case, the Kelly defense had contended the charges arose from a hysterical reaction to rumors of sexual abuse.

Jurors sent to deliberate in Rodney King case

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — The volatile case of four white policemen charged with beating a black motorist was placed in the hands of a jury Thursday after a judge instructed them in laws dealing with excessive force.

The judge rejected a last-minute mistrial motion by a defense lawyer who said he had been "slimed" by the prosecutor.

Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg spent more than an hour reading jurors 81 legal instructions, including specific rules involving the charge of assault under color of authority in the beating of motorist Rodney King.

During deliberations, the jurors were being sequestered at an unidentified hotel.

Outside their presence, he refused to grant a mistrial after attorney Michael Stone accused Deputy District Attorney Terry White of launching a personal attack on him in final arguments.

"I feel that I've been slimed and I think the slime has landed on my client," Stone said.

"He clearly accused me of misrepresenting the evidence," said Stone, who represents Officer Laurence Powell. "He did it with great drama at a time when he was very emotional. He said, 'Can any of the people associated with Larry Powell tell the truth?'"

In response to the complaint, Weisberg expanded on a legal instruction that the attorneys' arguments were not evidence and should play no role in reaching a verdict.

Weisberg noted that Stone wasn't seeking apologies from defense lawyer John Barnett, who accused co-counsel of soliciting lies against his client, Officer Theodore Briseno.

White observed: "Mr. Barnett came as close as possible to saying that (defense lawyers) suborned perjury, which is a lot more serious."

The March 3, 1991, beating, after King was stopped for speeding, was videotaped by a neighborhood resident and broadcast nationwide. It led to a review of police brutality nationwide and raised issues of racism.

On trial are Briseno, 39; Powell, 29; Officer Timothy Wind, 31, and Sgt. Stacey Koon, 41.

On Wednesday, Barnett and White delivered their final arguments in tones of loud, righteous anger.

White stunned the courtroom when he left the podium and raced toward Powell.

"This is the man!" shouted White as he came within inches of Powell. "This man laughed! This man taunted! And he's denying it!"

Powell sat stunned, but his lawyer leaped up and objected. The judge calmly told White to return to the podium.

White later apologized to jurors for the outburst and ended his argument abruptly.

Barnett had launched into a tirade against the other officers on trial in his summation.

He accused them of "callousness and viciousness" and portrayed Briseno as the only man who tried to stop "the holocaust of batons, boots and blood."

Barnett said Briseno placed his foot on King to try to keep him still. The prosecution claims Briseno "stomped" King.

Wind's lawyer, Paul DePasquale, told the jury in measured tones: "All Tim Wind did that night was his job. He didn't joke. He didn't have fun. He didn't take any cheap shots."

"The circumstances here are consistent with the job the man was hired to do," said DePasquale. "He was part of the line between society and chaos. He wasn't a criminal."

Combest seeks cure for U.S. health woes

■ Congressman discusses health care problems with Midland and Ector County medical associations.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest (R-Lubbock) believes the first step toward curing what ails the crippled health care system in America is to throw out the aging senior congressmen and replace the many committee chairmen.

Thursday night, he spoke to members of the Midland and Ector County medical associations about possible health care reform movements. He admitted that he doesn't have any solutions.

"We need your input. The future of the medical industry depends on it," Combest said, during the speech at Mission Dorado Country Club. "I hope somebody knows what the answers are because I don't, I just know what they aren't."

Combest denounced a proposed national health care system several times during the meeting.

"I am vehemently opposed to a such a system. The government couldn't make it work. I see what the government does to a program when it gets its hands on it — it just wouldn't work," he said. "We must consider alternatives."

But Combest said he believes nothing will work until Congress puts on a new face.

"We need a serious makeover. I see 150 new faces being elected for the start of the 103rd Congress — that's about 1/3 of the house. I think it will be good. We definitely need to change the players," he said.

"It will help start relaxing government regulations. The senior congress members and committee chairmen are a large part of the intertwining of the problem," Combest said. "The government has over-regulated businesses so much that many of them are now taking their business overseas."

Combest suggested creating more tax incentives giving companies the ability to pay for health care.

"We also need to reform insurance to make it easier for a person to move from job to job," he said. "And we must look at why the cost of medicine is going up. There's no call for it, but nevertheless medicine costs continue to rise."

Combest's forecast of impending doom reverberated throughout the meeting.

"Medicine is on the verge of undergoing massive change, and I don't think it's going to be good. Eventually there will be major overhauls needed everywhere. The future doesn't look bright at all," he said.

Combest believes a "voucher system" would help the Medicare system.

"Medicare today is completely unworkable. There is way too much paperwork. It's a mess," he said. "The voucher system would help eliminate much of the red tape."

"Whatever the case, the health care debate will continue to be a very difficult political question — but one that will have to continue to be addressed," he said.

Combest is on a two-week campaign swing through West Texas. Earlier in the day, he visited Midland International Airport and toured several military planes that are currently being used for fire-fighting training purposes.

Survey: Gangs infest 12 cities across Texas

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Eleven Texas cities reported a total of 716 gangs with more than 13,000 members, according to a survey released Thursday by the state attorney general's office.

"Overall, gang activity in Texas has evidently increased," the survey report said.

However, changes in reporting procedures make it difficult to say exactly how much and where the increase has occurred, it said.

For the first time in this state survey, police gang specialists were asked to estimate numbers of gangs and members using uniform definitions, said Gray McBride, spokesman for Attorney General Dan Morales. Previously, local definitions were used for each city.

Cities that participated in the January 1992 survey, their general population, and their reported number of gangs and gang members, included:

■ Abilene (population 106,654): 25 gangs; 90 members.
■ Austin (465,622): 69 gangs; 571 members.
■ Corpus Christi (257,453): 17 gangs; 700 members.
■ El Paso (515,342): 268 gangs; 4,594 members.
■ Fort Worth (447,619): 119 gangs; 1,657 members.
■ Galveston (59,070): 30 gangs; 338 members.
■ Harlingen (48,735): 1 gang; 15 members.
■ Houston (1.6 million): 108 gangs; 1,123 members.
■ Odessa (89,699): 18 gangs; 175 members.
■ San Antonio (935,933): 47 gangs; 3,832 members.
■ Tyler (75,450): 14 gangs; 65 members.

The report shows 18 gangs in Odessa with 175 members.

Dallas also was included in the report. The city, with a population of 1 million, was listed as having 34 gangs, with 320 members.

However, Dallas Lt. David Clary said that was not accurate. He estimated that the city has listed in its computer data base about 200 gangs and about 3,900 gang members.

Clary said the Dallas Police Department is deleting from its records the names of youths the department has not had contact with in two years.

He said the report's figures appeared to reflect the number of names deleted, and that he did not know how the error occurred. Re-

Chamber survey backs economic development

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff writer

Sixty-three members of the Midland Chamber of Commerce recently urged the agency to keep economic development a high priority.

Despite the failure of a Jan. 18 sales tax election to fund economic development — an issue that had been supported by the chamber — members responding to a survey said development should be a goal.

Only two of 68 survey respondents said economic development should not remain a high priority. Three gave no response to the question. The sixty-eight respondents represents only about 4.5 percent of the chamber's membership, estimated Thursday at 1,500.

Some who answered the survey said they disapproved of the sales tax as funding for development.

"The strongest sentiment ... was critical of taxing jurisdictions, whether federal, state and various local," said Janna King, chamber president and chief executive officer. She tabulated the results of the survey.

"Everyone seemed to have their pet peeve," Ms. King said. "Those people seemed to be saying, 'People are taxed enough.'"

Fifty-eight respondents said the election's three-to-one failure was primarily an anti-tax vote. Fifty said they perceive community support for economic development and diversification; 13 said they didn't.

Of respondents who voted against the tax, 10 said they did so because the issue had no clear plan for use of the money raised.

Five said they wanted more accountability, while four wanted to know who would make up the board of directors of the tax-use corporation.

Four respondents said the issue represented more unnecessary government; four said they wanted a sunset clause that would end the tax after a trial period.

However, four others said supporters of the tax should try again.

"Some said it was a real complex issue to explain to our voters in a short time period. They felt it was rushed," Ms. King said.

Members in the survey urged the chamber to continue marketing Midland to manufacturers and tourists, but support existing industry and encourage local buying.

Bruce Partain, communications and membership manager, said the chamber was pleased with the number of responses.

"It was a pretty detailed survey, and we were asking some questions specifically of those who voted no," Partain said. "Considering that we were asking a business person to take a part of their day and answer these questions, that's a pretty good response rate."

MHS students in Globe show

Staff report

ODESSA — The Globe Theatre's presentation of Shakespeare's "Twelth Night" features two Midland High School sophomores.

Celeste Hoggan, the daughter of Kerry and Barbara Hoggan, plays the role of Olivia. Bonnie Sheffield, the daughter of Scott and Marsha Sheffield, plays the role of Viola. Both are honor students at MHS.

Several weeks ago, tragedy struck one of the cast members.

"Miss Sheffield was in an accident," said Mrs. Hoggan, unofficial publicist for the production. "She survived being in an automobile which flipped four times, and we think she's quite a hero. Through all this, she fought physically to recover her strength and mentally to learn the enormous volume of Shakespearean lines required for her role."

The production will be on stage at 8 p.m. today and Saturday.

The production is directed by Dr. Shawn Watson, professor of literature at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. Watson, who is from Midland, directed the Globe presentation of 'A Winter's Tale" last fall.

Within this classic comedy, intrigue and merriment alternate and interact with the romantic affairs of aristocrats. The characters are exaggerated examples of human nature, placed in comically preposterous and improbable situations.

A reception for the cast and crew will be given following Saturday's performance. The reception will be held in the Anne Hathaway Cottage in the Globe courtyard.

Tickets, priced at $8 for adults, $6 for students and senior citizens and $5 for groups of 15 or more, may be purchased by calling the Globe, 1-332-1586. UTPB and Odessa College students are free with their student identification.

BJ Services official denies conspiracy allegations

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

BJ Services Co. of Houston announced this week it has learned the company, and some of its current and former employees, may be potential targets of a federal mail-fraud conspiracy investigation.

Dow Heard, vice president and general counsel for BJ Services, said 10 individuals, including three in the Midland-Odessa area, have been named as unindicted co-conspirators in the "criminal information," which was filed with the Western District Court of Texas.

Noting there have been no charges or indictments, Heard said the company vigorously denies any conspiracy involving its managers, officers, directors or itself.

He said the possible investigation apparently is the result of allegations made by Gary Gene Lancaster, a former employee of BJ Titan, a partnership that was owned by a Dresser Industries subsidiary and BJ Hughes Holding Co.

"It should be noted," Heard said, "that we are not the same BJ Titan involved in the Parker & Parsley suit. BJ Services was formed in 1990 and is a public company."

Lancaster was involved in a civil lawsuit in 1989, in which Parker & Parsley, a Midland oil and gas operator, charged that BJ Titan had shorted it in materials in wells it had drilled. Parker & Parsley claimed the shortages had taken place over five years from 1983-88, a period in which Lancaster was district manager for BJ Titan in Odessa.

Lancaster pleaded guilty April 8 to a single count of mail fraud. The maximum penalty on

Area AIDS cases almost double in 20 months, state says

■ AIDS has claimed 21 lives in Midland since 1980, when the Texas Department of Health began keeping statistics on the disease.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

Since Sept. 1990, the number of reported AIDS cases in Midland County has almost doubled — from 14 to 27, according to Texas Department of Health figures.

Since 1980, when TDH began compiling such statistics, 21 people have died in Midland as a result of acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS).

Only AIDS cases originally diagnosed and reported in Midland County are listed as having died here in TDH statistics.

Statewide, there have been 10,116 AIDS-related deaths and 15,494 recorded cases of the disease. By the end of 1994, an estimated 27,000 people in Texas will suffer from AIDS, according to TDH figures.

Although awareness of AIDS has increased recently and education is instrumental in preventing the transmission of the disease, a reduction in the number of cases isn't necessarily forthcoming.

"I think people are asking more questions about it but whether people are changing their behavior, I don't have a clue. Probably not," said Carol Hale, director of the Permian Basin AIDS Coalition.

For some people, the message about the deadly disease needs to reach closer to home, said Hilda Armendariz, HIV/AIDS education coordinator for Planned Parenthood of West Texas.

"I think what people really need, and this is sad ... they would probably have to see someone with full blown AIDS. That's what makes it click. Or maybe from listening to their story," Ms. Armendariz said.

The stories of Magic Johnson and Arthur Ashe have raised public awareness but education on specifics of the disease is still needed.

"There are people out there that still don't know" how AIDS is contracted and not contracted, Ms. Armendariz said.

And some people "know but don't want to face it ... I think they need to keep on hearing it every so often," she said. That is especially true for teen-agers, she added.

Ms. Hale agreed, adding that people need to look at AIDS in relation to their lifestyles.

"I think what people need to do is take a good hard look at their sexual behavior," she said. Sexual contact is the most common way of AIDS transmission in the Permian Basin area, she added.

In TDH Region 3, which extends from El Paso to San Angelo, from the Permian Basin southward, there has been 289 reported AIDS cases — a 42 percent increase since Sept. 1990. As a result of AIDS, 199 people have died in the region.

During the same time frame, reported cases in Ector County have gone from 23 to 41, and in Howard County from 12 to 17.

A TDH official in Austin estimated that the number of reported AIDS cases is probably about 10 percent less than the actual figure.

Local AIDS workers believe the increase — of AIDS and HIV (human immumo-deficiency virus which causes the disease) — in recent years is due to more people becoming infected, more cases being diagnosed, and doctors reporting more cases.

At the Permian Basin AIDS Coalition, which assists HIV-infected individuals, an increase in women seeking help has been seen.

"I think what (the Coalition) is seeing is a mirroring of the national trend of more women signing up," Ms. Hale said.

Although less than 10 of the approximately 60 clients are women, most of those women have contacted the Coalition within the past six months, she added.

Drug abuse delays White's execution

By Michael Graczyk
Associated Press writer

HUNTSVILLE — It took 47 minutes to execute a murderer by injection early Thursday. Because of drug abuse, Billy Wayne White's executioners had trouble finding a suitable vein, even when he tried to help.

White was declared dead nine minutes after finally receiving the injection. Critics said the execution was another example of cruelty in administering capital punishment, like California's 16-minute gas chamber execution Tuesday of Robert Alton Harris.

"For us to stand there for an hour to try and kill somebody points out how barbaric this process is," said Mandy Welch, Houston director of the Texas Resource Center, which defends capital cases.

Andy Collins, director of the Texas prison system, defended the executioners, saying at least one similar delay had occurred in Texas, for the same reason.

"He was a longtime heroin user," Collins said. "The procedure just takes a fairly lengthy time when you have somebody who has used narcotics for an extended period of time."

Drew Durham, of the Texas attorney general's office, said Thursday that the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that neither form of execution constitutes cruel and unusual punishment.

The debate over capital punishment intensified this week when California carried out its first execution in 25 years. Harris, 39, convicted of killing two teen-agers, died in an execution death penalty opponents called cruel.

His death was delayed once after he already had been strapped into the chair. It took 16 minutes from the time the gas was released until he was declared dead.

In contrast, White stopped breathing less than 30 seconds after the flow of lethal drugs began. His only reactions were three shallow gasps.

Prison officials were warned of White's drug history and had anticipated difficulty, Collins said.

"The inmate was very compliant, very courteous, very cooperative," he said. "In fact, he attempted to assist us."

He was pronounced dead nine minutes after the injection and 47 minutes after he was strapped to the death-chamber gurney.

White, 34, was sentenced to death for fatally shooting 65-year-old Martha Spinks on Aug. 23, 1976, during a robbery at a furniture store she and her husband owned.

He spent more than 14 years on death row, making him 16th in seniority among the 356 Texas inmates awaiting death.

The execution was the fifth this year in Texas and the 47th the state has carried out since the U.S. Supreme Court in 1976 allowed states to resume capital punishment. The total is the highest in the nation among states with capital punishment.

REPORT: Texas gangs have 13,000 members

searcher Elizabeth Buhmann said she believed the police department must have reported the wrong number to her.

Except for Austin and San Antonio, gang membership reported in the survey is for "regular" gang members, defined as those who "hang out" with the group on a daily basis and are liable to be present during gang offenses.

Austin reported "hard-core" gang members. They are defined as the most deeply committed regular gang members, responsible for instigating and committing the most serious offenses.

San Antonio included in its total, besides regular gang members, those who occasionally participate in gang activities, and those who are not fully accepted.

The totals also include different kinds of gangs. For example, the study said, Abilene and Harlingen reported that all their gangs are delinquent youth gangs. Under the state's definition, no member of such a gang ever has been arrested for a serious offense.

Delinquent youth gangs accounted for 30 percent of all gangs reported. But the report said that Fort Worth does not count delinquent youth gangs, and that Austin includes only a few such gangs in its database.

Traditional turf-based gangs, whose rivalry with another gang has resulted in at least one shooting in the last year, were 34 percent of all gangs.

Gain-oriented gangs — in which two or more members have worked together at least once in the last year in such an offense as robbery — represented 32 percent.

Violent or hate gangs made up 4 percent. They are gangs in which two or more members have at least once in the last year collectively committed an assault, homicide, or offense that could be reported under the federal Hate Crimes Act.

TARGETS: BJ Services learns of investigation

the charge is 5 years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Parker & Parsley was awarded $170 million in actual and punitive damages, and the case is now before the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Heard said Lancaster, who was terminated in 1988, apparently had been shorting customers since the 1970s and 1980s, before he had joined BJ Titan, and had carried the practice with him to the company. During the trial, Lancaster claimed upper management in BJ Titan knew about the shortages.

The general counsel said that after an extensive investigation and audit was conducted during civil litigation, the company was convinced Lancaster acted independently and without the knowledge or consent of the managers, officers or directors named in the criminal information.

"If necessary, the company looks forward to an opportunity to present evidence refuting the allegations of a conspiracy," Heard said.

He said the company is unable to comment specifically on these allegations because neither it nor the individuals named as unindicted co-conspirators in the criminal information, to which Lancaster pleaded guilty, have been formally notified of the claims.

"We are making this full disclosure at this time because of an inquiry today from Forbes Magazine about the criminal information," Heard said.

Lancaster could not be reached for comment.

Media needs more Hispanic journalists, group says

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Hispanic journalists agreed Thursday that bringing more members of the minority group into the media remains a complicated and ongoing issue in this country.

During a panel discussion at the National Association of Hispanic Journalists' annual conference here, Hispanics in the profession discussed the need for television and radio stations and newspapers to recruit more Hispanics.

Although Hispanics comprise 9 percent of the country's population, Hispanic journalists make up only 2.6 percent of newsroom professionals in the country's daily newspapers, according to figures from the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Conference members said the situation isn't likely to change soon, since only 4.3 percent of the journalism and mass communications students in the United States are Hispanic.

John R. Ford, a criminal defense attorney, moderated the panel called, "Hispanics: the Unchronicled Minority."

The discussion varied from how Hispanics fare against Anglos when both seek the same job in the media to the need for more Hispanics in management positions.

Antonia Hernandez, president and general counsel of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, said the face of journalism, especially in television, must change.

"Do you want another glib, blank-looking individual who looks good and doesn't rock the boat? Given the choice, I'm going to diversify the station," Hernandez said.

Fellow panel member Richard Estrada, associate editor at The Dallas Morning News, said Hispanics should not automatically be given preference if less qualified than an Anglo applicant.

"To use that as a principle would be very troubling. I think it leads to quotas and people will end up getting jobs only in certain areas," Estrada said. "Ethnicity should not be the sole determining factor."

A major ingredient of the problem, according to A. Stephen Montiel, is that not enough Hispanics are in management positions.

"The key isn't who's doing the reporting as much as it is in who's in charge. Put different people in charge, and you'll see change," said Montiel, president of the Institute for Journalism Education.

Panel members also agreed that Hispanic journalists too often are hired strictly to cover minority issues.

"When you have Hispanics in the newsroom, the awareness level (on minority issues) increases," said Evelyn Hernandez, an assistant editor with Newsday in New York.

However, she said editors too often make the mistake of assuming it's the responsibility of Hispanics to cover only minority issues.

Bedwetting class set Saturday

Staff report

Midland urologist Dr. John B. Staub will conduct a seminar for parents on their children's bedwetting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in Midland's Memorial Hospital and Medical Center Auditorium.

Nationwide, an estimated 5 million to 7 million children are beset by bed-wetting, which may result in "psychological distress" due to bed-wetting's impact on self-esteem or due to parental and peer reaction to the problem, according to Rhone-Poulenc Rorer Pharmaceuticals Inc., which is sponsoring the seminar.

The seminar, which is open free of charge to the public, is designed to help people recognize bed-wetting and to understand its effects on the bed-wetter and his or her family; to identify the psychosocial implications of bed-wetting after early childhood; to understand methods of diagnosing and treating bed-wetting, and to understand the physiological cause of bed-wetting.

Environmental fair is Saturday

Staff report

Preservation of the environment will take center stage at Keep Midland Beautiful's second annual environmental fair and games Saturday and Sunday.

At Midland Park Mall in the J.C. Penney Court, the event will feature information from environmental groups and a student competition for prizes.

The Environmental Games are set for Saturday from 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. and Sunday from 2-5 p.m., played on the Texaco Challenge set. Fashioned after the College Bowl, the games will offer students the chance to compete for prizes for their schools.

Meanwhile, groups will distribute information and displays encouraging environmental effectiveness.

Participants include: the Midland League of Women Voters, the Texas Water Commission, Texas General Land Office, Sibley Learning Center and the Midland Naturalist Society.

Officers seek former death row inmate

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' prison system "has failed" by releasing a former death row inmate suspected in the abduction of two Central Texas women, a state Pardons and Paroles Division spokeswoman said Thursday.

Convicted killer Kenneth Allen McDuff is wanted for questioning in the Dec. 29 disappearance of Colleen Reed, 28, from an Austin carwash, law authorities said.

A warrant has been issued for McDuff's arrest in relation to the possible kidnapping of a Waco woman, said Raven Kazen, a Pardons and Paroles spokeswoman said. Melissa Northrup, 22, was last seen March 1 at a Waco convenience store.

"I think that all of us feel that the system has failed because of the tragic loss of life, the sadness ... the unnecessary loss of life," Ms. Kazen said.

"We have a system and it's not perfect. I'm certainly not here to defend anything or to tell you that it is perfect," she said.

McDuff, 45, was released from prison in November 1989 by a 2-1 vote of the Pardons and Paroles board despite having been one of 127 death row inmates whose sentences were commuted to life prison terms by a 1972 U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

Meanwhile, Alva Hank Worley, 34, was held Thursday in the Bell County Jail on $100,000 bond for the aggravated kidnapping of Ms. Reed, officials said.

Austin police said Wednesday that Worley, a Belton construction worker, signed an affidavit saying he and McDuff abducted and sexually assaulted Ms. Reed during a trip to Austin.

Bell County Sheriff Dan Smith said that starting Friday, trained dogs will be used to search for Ms. Reed's body.

"The searches could involve as many as four or more different areas and will take several hours or several days to complete depending on the response of the dogs, weather conditions and other variable factors," Smith said.

McDuff had been sentenced to death in 1966 in the murders of three teen-agers in Tarrant County.

His date in the electric chair was cancelled when the nation's highest court termed the death penalty unconstitutional. That order was overturned in 1976, but his sentence had been changed to life imprisonment.

Georgetown attorney Chris Mealy was one of the two parole board members who voted for McDuff's November 1989 release. He said Thursday that McDuff was ready to be released from prison.

"It was not an easy decision, but it was the best that could be made at that time. After 23 years, he had paid his debt to society," said Mealy, who served for more than two years after being appointed by Gov. Bill Clements in 1987.

"Something happened to McDuff from the time he was released until the time he decided to commit new crimes. It is society's responsibility to take some ownership for that. Unfortunately, no one will do anything other than point fingers at the parole board," he said.

In July 1990, McDuff was wanted on an emergency warrant for allegedly having made terroristic threats. Although he was cleared of the charge, his parole was revoked and he returned to prison that September, Ms. Kazen said.

On Dec. 18, 1990, McDuff was paroled for a second time, she said.

Since then, Ms. Kazen said he has been living in a Waco dormitory at the Texas State Technical School and attending classes. He kept all appointments with his parole officers until a few days before the March 9 warrant was issued, she said.

According to Worley's affidavit, he and McDuff went to Austin a few days after Christmas to buy drugs.

The affidavit says they picked out a victim, forced her into their car, sexually assaulted her and forced her into the trunk.

Federal judge receives school finance report

AUSTIN (AP) — An attorney for taxpayers challenging use of the current school finance system in federal court said Thursday he hasn't been able to win state approval of a settlement offer.

Lawyer Jim Keahey said he filed a report on settlement negotiations with U.S. District Judge James Nowlin, who on April 10 told lawyers to take about two weeks to see if they could come to an agreement in the case.

That two weeks is up Friday.

"It (the settlement offer) is not dead. It's just that they could not accept or reject it by the court's date," Keahey said. "The attorney general ... is working on it and is continuing to talk with the (legislative) leadership."

Keahey said he expects Nowlin to read his report. "I can't predict what he'll do next."

Gray McBride, spokesman for Attorney General Dan Morales, said he would not comment on the substance of settlement negotiations.

"We've had some discussions, and there may be an opportunity to continue them at some point in the future," McBride said.

The Texas Supreme Court in January ruled unconstitutional the school finance system creating 188 county education districts, or CEDs.

The state court ruled that the system violates the Texas Constitution by imposing a statewide property tax and by levying a property tax without voter approval.

However, the court gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993 to fix the system.

Lawsuit says four insurors charged firms too much

DALLAS (AP) — A $12 million class action lawsuit filed Thursday alleges four insurance companies charged too much for workers' compensation insurance.

The suit, based on disclosures the companies made last year to the state insurance board, was filed in state district court.

Defendants are Employers Casualty Co., Protective Insurance Co., Argonaut Insurance Co. and Reliance Insurance Co.

The lawsuit, filed by Weatherford Roofing Co. of Dallas and others, asks for the return of $7.2 million in charges, $1.9 million in interest and $3 million in attorneys' fees.

Plaintiffs' attorney Fred Misko, Jr., said he expects other employers to join the suit, and other insurance companies to be targeted.

"As soon as full court-ordered discovery is under way in this case, we anticipate finding that many other insurance companies in Texas made similar illegal charges, and that in the final analysis we will be seeking recovery of three or four times as much as we have currently been able to substantiate," Misko said.

He estimated 10,000 policyholders could be represented.

Attorney Richard Mosher, who represents Employers Casualty Co., declined to comment.

Misko said four defendants had acknowledged that during 1989, 1990 and 1991 they charged surcharges or other fees "not derived from an authorized rate or rating methodology."

The acknowledgements came after the state insurance board required insurance companies to identify charges associated with "service contracts or other arrangements for claims, consultation services, safety engineering consultation services or audit consultation services."

The board last April said such charges could serve as the basis for discipline.

Perot moves closer to full-fledged presidential campaign

Associated Press

DALLAS — Ross Perot is moving steadily toward a full-fledged presidential bid, expanding his political staff and laying on an increasing number of appearances. At the same time, the Texas billionaire is scaling back his 800-number because it has fulfilled its main purpose.

"At this point, there is more than an ample number of volunteers to get petitions signed" to get him on the ballot as an independent candidate across the nation, Perot told reporters Thursday.

In an interview a day earlier with The Associated Press, Perot said he has dropped his insistence that his name be added to ballots in all 50 states before he'll run — although he still expects to get on all the ballots.

He raised the possibility that an active campaign to keep him off the ballot in New York — which has strict rules on independent candidacies — might succeed.

"I'd probably go ahead and run" even without New York, Perot said. He conceded that would present "an interesting problem," given the state's large number of electoral votes.

And if "a tiny little state fell through the cracks," it wouldn't necessarily imperil his effort, Perot said.

The 1,000-line phone bank, which has been the centerpiece of Perot's budding campaign, has received over 2 million calls in the past five weeks, aides said. However, volume in recent days has been down sharply.

"It is being phased down because volunteers are organized and in place in 50 states and all the (new) calls are going directly to the states," he said.

In the AP interview, Perot sounded more and more like a candidate, although he still maintains he will not make a final decision until the petition process is further along. Most likely, that will come in mid-June, Perot said.

He vowed to wage an unconventional and active campaign. And if he wins, Perot said, "Nothing would thrill me more than to get this done in four years and check out."

He also:

■ Blamed Republican Party operatives for trying to derail his potential candidacy, saying "they show up every day" with new efforts to undermine him. In particular, he suggested Republicans in New York were engaged in "a negative, destructive process" to bar him from the ballot. He said Democrats have left him alone so far.

■ Said his wife, Margot, would not play an active role in his campaign nor in his administration if he runs and is elected. "She wouldn't want to," he said.

■ Said he would spend much of his time if elected away from Washington "dealing with real people" and that the White House is "a better office than a place to live."

■ Said he does not believe clubs that exclude minorities should exist, although he belonged to several until resigning this week, including Dallas' exclusive Brookhollow Country Club.

■ Asserted he never "had any interest in money" even though his wealth is estimated at between $2.5 billion and $3.5 billion. "It's kind of interesting to wind up with all this stuff."

In recent days, Perot has been taking more and more steps toward mounting a campaign. The operation will move next week to larger, new quarters that Perot has leased through January.

Perot also hired two well-known professionals to help him: longtime associate Tom Luce, a former Texas Republican gubernatorial candidate, to be a senior adviser; and James D. Squires, former editor of the Chicago Tribune, to deal with the news media.

Luce also said that Perot "has been in contact with people all over the country" about a potential campaign.

Still, he said, "Ross still isn't a candidate. We're taking this one day at a time."

Recent polls in Texas and New Mexico show Perot leading both President Bush and Democratic front-runner Bill Clinton.

Perot also has been scheduling an increasing number of broadcast interviews. He also planned speaking engagements in New York and Oklahoma early next month.

In a taped interview with entertainer David Frost Thursday, Perot said Republicans "just went bonkers" when they learned he might become a candidate.

He said that, if elected, he would wage an all-out campaign to find a cure for AIDS. Asked if he supported homosexual lifestyles, Perot said he thought it was a matter of individual choice.

The interview was to be broadcast Friday night on Public Broadcasting System stations.

Man enters plea in retarded woman rape case

KERRVILLE (AP) — A Lubbock man accused of raping his retarded sister-in-law was found guilty Thursday as part of a plea bargain that will send him to prison for 15 years.

Jimmy Wayne Wooten, with his tearful wife Dori at his side, hurried from the courtroom shortly after he pleaded no contest and the trial was adjourned. The Wootens declined to speak with reporters.

"The Wootens are very, very tired of this process. It has gone on for a couple of years," said defense attorney Sam Ogan. "They're both feeling pretty emotional right now."

State district Judge J. Blair Cherry Jr., set sentencing for May 11 in Lubbock. Wooten remains free on bond until then.

Wooten, 42, was accused of raping and impregnating his sister-in-law, 34-year-old Debra Lynn Thomas, a former Lubbock State School resident.

Ms. Thomas delivered a son Jan. 1, 1991, by Caesarean section. She has the IQ of a 2-year-old and does not realize she has given birth.

The Associated Press does not usually identify rape victims, but Ms. Thomas' name was made public at the request of her sister and legal guardian, Dori Wooten.

The case has led to reforms in the way alleged abuse is reported involving clients within the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

The case was moved from Lubbock to Kerrville because of extensive pre-trial publicity in the Lubbock area.

Wooten had maintained his innocence. He faced a possible two- to 20-years in prison and up to a $10,000 fine.

Wooten pleaded no contest, although the judge entered a finding of guilty and accepted "stipulations" about what the trial evidence would have been.

Court records stipulate that DNA blood test results would have been presented showing the probability is 99.99 percent that Wooten is the father of Ms. Thomas' child.

The child currently is in Dori Wooten's custody. Attorneys for both sides said the child's future lies in the hands in the Texas Department of Human Services. Ms. Thomas now lives in a home for the mentally retarded.

Lubbock County District Attorney Travis Ware said he was pleased with the plea bargain agreement, which he said will save Lubbock County an estimated $30,000.

San Antonio prepares supplies for sister city

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Businesses and relief groups geared up Thursday to help sister city Guadalajara, one day after a series of explosions rocked Mexico's second-largest city.

Most groups are waiting for word on what kinds of supplies — water, medicine, equipment — are needed.

A series of explosions Wednesday felled whole city blocks and damaged hundreds of Guadalajara buildings. Mexico's government estimates the death toll will top 200.

Shirl Thomas, a mayor's assistant in San Antonio, said groups varying from the Catholic Diocese to the American Red Cross already have begun relief efforts.

She said the Mexican counsel general in San Antonio told city councilmembers Thursday that Mexican officials would let him know how San Antonio can help.

Bilateral Commission chairman Frank Burney had one easy donation idea.

"The only thing we know for sure is money," Burney said.

Ms. Thomas said the American Institute of Architects chapter in San Antonio has offered its experts, as has an engineering firm that specializes in potable water. San Antonio-based H.E.B. Grocery Stores has offered to fill trucks with food and water, she said.

Salvation Army workers from San Antonio, Laredo, Dallas and San Angelo left Thursday for Guadalajara.

Loser becomes winner in runoff

AUSTIN (AP) — Susan Combs, who had apparently lost a Republican Party runoff for state House, has won the race by seven votes after a recount.

Ms. Combs defeated Bill Welch 2,279 to 2,272 in the GOP runoff for Texas House District 47, which includes most of western Travis County, according to the Wednesday recount.

After the April 14 runoff, Welch had apparently won by 22 votes. But election officials found 304 untallied votes from a Lakeway precinct.

Ms. Combs, a rancher and lawyer, will face Democrat Jimmy Day in the November general election.

Ethics panel rules against free passes

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Ethics Commission issued an opinion Thursday aimed at curbing the practice of lobbyists giving free passes to state officials.

But the commission postponed action on questions dealing with lobbyist-paid hunting trips and the use of campaign contributions by lawmakers for personal use.

In addition, commissioners voted 6-2 to refuse to release to the public draft opinions that were debated during the meeting, but not approved.

John Steiner, executive director of the commission, said the draft documents are not subject to the Texas Open Records Act. He said the commission would decide at a later meeting on a policy of whether to release the draft opinions.

Tom Smith, director of the watchdog group Public Citizen of Texas, said if draft opinions are not released "the citizenry is effectively precluded from participating in democracy."

The commission, created to oversee the state's new ethics law, has started issuing its first advisory opinions, but panel members found themselves mired in trying to interpret the law.

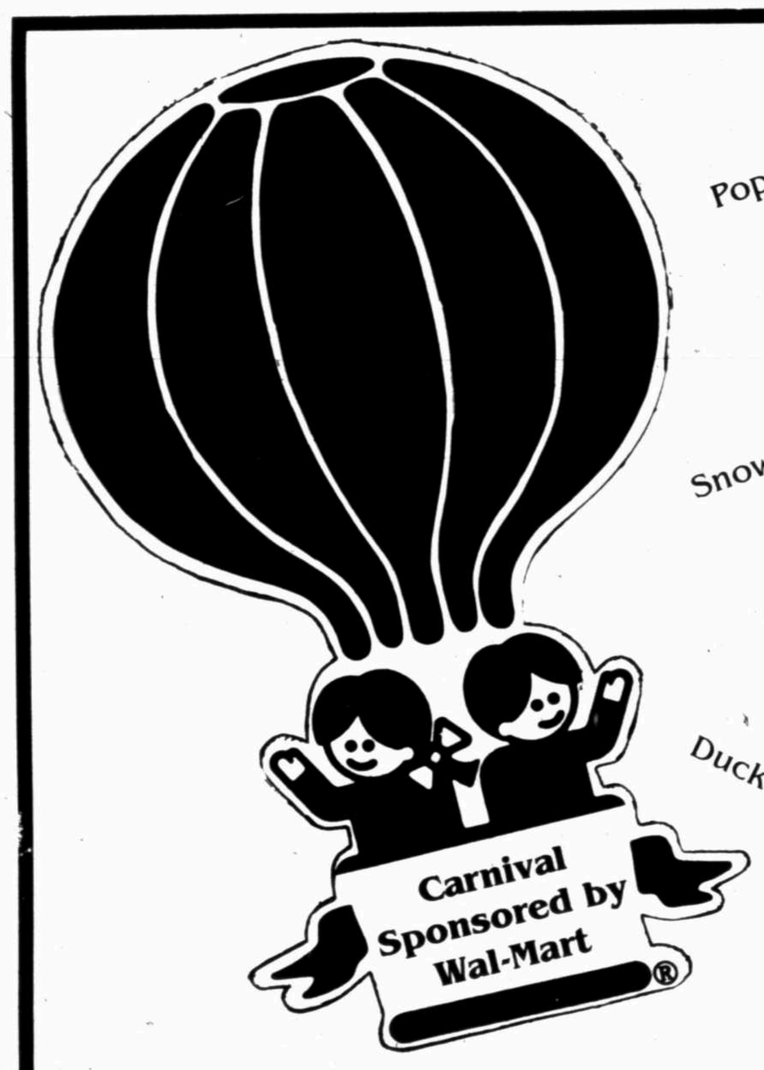

Smith said the commission's problems showed that the ethics law must be worked on again during the regular legislative session in January.

"The Legislature either accidentally or with forethought left lots of loopholes in this act," Smith said. "This commission is stepping into those loopholes, and beginning to realize how poorly the act was written."

The ethics bill was adopted by the Legislature in the closing moments of last year's regular session.

The legislation followed years of news reports detailing spending by lobbyists in the millions of dollars on entertainment, gifts and trips for lawmakers, and other state officials.

Thursday, the commission adopted an opinion that states if a lobbyist gives a lawmaker a free pass to an event, such as a movie, then that lobbyist must accompany the state official to the event.

Many garden problems arise from watering too much

It is safe to say that in most areas of Texas successful gardening depends on a good source of water. Although gardens can be grown "dryland," a garden's chance of success is enhanced greatly if a water faucet is nearby.

Kiker

To many folks, one of the most enjoyable aspects of home gardening is watering — seeing a vegetable garden respond to a drink during the heat of mid-summer. Even though watering the garden is a great deal of fun, it often can be associated with many of the problems that occur. Many things such as poor yields, poor quality, poor fertility, bitter fruit, sunscald, disease problems and a dozen other things can be related to poor and improper watering.

Many home gardeners enjoy watering their gardens after a hard day's work. Gardening is used as a form of relaxation or for its therapeutic value. So it is not unusual that many home gardens may be watered two, three or more times a week. Unfortunately, this is one of the worst things a gardener can do, because it can result in poor root development, which is followed by a less-than-successful home garden. Light, frequent waterings have a tendency to cause a concentration of roots in the top inch or two of garden soil. This underdeveloped root system does not pose any serious problem early in the season when plants are relatively young and sufficient moisture is usually available. As the season progresses and moisture becomes less available, the limited root systems result in the need for frequent watering.

Consequently, the home gardener is forced to water several times a week just to keep plants from severely wilting, thus resulting in inefficient nutrient uptake and common occurances of diseases. These problems can be prevented by adequate early and midseason watering.

Water the garden not by looking at the plants, but rather by examining the garden soil. Look at the surface of the soil and if it appears dry, then scratch the surface to the depth of about an inch to determine if moisture is present. If the soil appears relatively dry, then watering is necessary. If sufficient moisture is available an inch beneath the soil, then wait a couple of days.

Another point to consider is the type of garden soil. Obviously a light, sandy soil that drains well will require more frequent watering than a heavy soil that holds water. This simply means you will need to check a sandy soil more often than you will a heavy soil.

How much to water is another mystery that confronts home gardeners. The general rule of thumb is when you water, really soak the garden soil. The amount must be determined for each and every garden. Use enough water until the garden seems to be well watered, then dig down and, if the soil is wet to a depth of 6 inches, then adequate moisture has been applied. If, after digging down 3 or 4 inches, the soil is relatively dry, then additional water is needed. After doing this several times, the gardener will learn by experience when adequate water has been used. Usually an inch or two of water applied once a week will sufficiently water most vegetable gardens in Texas.

There are many types of drip systems available for today's gardener. Some systems are small water-releasing mechanisms called emitters, which drip a certain amount of water when a certain water pressure is supplied. Many of these systems are prepackaged and allow little versatility of adaptation to the various sizes and shapes of Texas gardens. However, there are several systems available that easily can be adapted to almost any garden size and situation.

The most commonly available system has small holes in plastic tubes, which allow the water to come out in small amounts. The tube is placed along the row so that the root zone is moistened by the dripping water.

Once the drip irrigation system is in place and operating, the quesiton always arises as to how long it should be utilized for optimum plant growth. This will vary with the plants grown and the time of the year, but a general recommendation is to operate the systems three hours a day on alternating days of the week. Of course, when rainfall is adequate, it will not be necessary to water with the drip system for several days.

Cattle is leading U.S. farm commodity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cattle and calves are the leading agricultural commodity in the United States, according to an Agriculture Department economist.

Of the nearly $170 billion in agricultural cash receipts for the year 1990, the latest for which data is available, livestock and products accounted for $89.6 billion, or almost 53 percent. Crops brought in $80.4 billion, says Roger Strickland of USDA's Economic Research Service.

"In 33 states, the No. 1 commodity was in the livestock category, while crop commodities led the lists in just 17 states," according to a recent issue of Farmline magazine.

"Thirteen states got at least 50 percent of their farm cash receipts from one commodity — and in seven of those states, that leading commodity was cattle and calves," it said.

Cattle and calves accounted for 23.3 percent of U.S. farm cash receipts, dairy products 11.8 percent, corn 8.0 percent, hogs 6.7 percent and soybeans 6.4 percent, Strickland said. Other products made up the remainder.

The $5.8 billion total for cattle and calves in Texas was the largest state amount for a single commodity, the article said. The next two largest totals also were for cattle and calves — $4.8 billion in Nebraska and $4.3 billion in Kansas.

California led the way in state total cash receipts in 1990 with $18,9 billion for all farm commodities. Texas was next, with about $12 billion, and Iowa, with more than $10 billion.

The two lowest state totals were $27 million in Alaska and $71 million in Rhode Island. Greenhouse and nursery products were the leading commodities in those states.

Farm cash receipts in 1990 increased by about $9 billion from 1989, Strickland said, with $5.5 billion of that coming in livestock products.

Motorist crashes into sidewalk, kills 4

AP Laserphoto

A police officer surveys the scene after a car, driven by an eldery woman, crashed onto a crowded sidewalk in New York's Washington Square Park Thursday.

NEW YORK (AP) — A motorist lost control of her car and careened through a crowded Greenwich Village park Thursday, killing four people and injuring 24, authorities said.

The car crashed down a walkway, sending people flying and crushing benches, wrought-iron fences and a concrete drinking fountain.

The driver was traveling toward Washington Square Park on a street that ends there. Instead of turning left or right, she hit the curb with a bang and drove right on through, said Roy Bank, 19, a New York University student.

"She never slowed down when she came to the corner," he said. "Bodies were flying. She got out and walked away."

Bank said he and others lifted the car off one person pinned alive underneath.

'All of a sudden, people were screaming and running. I saw people lying on the ground. There were three or four right where I was. They were just not moving. They were older people. They were bleeding.'

— Carol Crowley

Deputy Police Commissioner Suzanne Trazoff identified the driver as Stella G. Maychick, 74, of Yonkers. Trazoff said Maychick told police the accident happened after she dropped off her daughter, who had been driving.

"The mother slid to the driver's seat," Trazoff said. "And when she touched the gas, the car started to race."

Police said no charges would be filed.

"This appears to be a tragic accident," said police Capt. Donald Kelly.

The woman was taken to a hospital after several hours at the precinct station house.

Witness Gita Ramani said Maychick was able to walk away from the wreckage.

"She was wide-eyed," Ramani said. "She was saying, 'I couldn't stop. I couldn't stop. I couldn't stop.'"

Officer Scott Bloch reported three deaths. A fourth later died at St. Vincent's Hospital, said Dr. Jesse Blumenthal. Deputy Emergency Medical Services Chief Paul Maniscalco said 24 people were taken to trauma centers.

University spokeswoman Mariellen Gallagher said the school, whose buildings surround the park, had organized a cleanup day in the park and many students and school volunteers were there at the time.

"All of a sudden, people were screaming and running," said Carol Crowley, a university employee. "I saw people lying on the ground. There were three or four right where I was. They were just not moving. They were older people. They were bleeding."

A painted lady butterfly rests and snacks on a sage blossom in Antioch, Calif. Wednesday.

Billions of butterflies invade West

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Billions of butterflies have invaded the West, plastering windshields and clogging radiators as they flutter north to Canada on a one-way journey whose size may not be repeated for decades.

Scientists say the boom of painted lady butterflies is a dramatic sign that California's water picture is brightening. More water means more plants for the butterflies to eat, which means more butterflies.

"I think the butterflies are a bellwether of environmental change," said Dennis Murphy, director of the Center for Conservation Biology at Stanford University. "This is Mother Nature flexing her muscles and suggesting (she) is on a comeback."

The butterflies normally move northward each spring after hatching in Southern California and northern Mexico. But this year, there are many more of them and they are getting much farther north than normal.

Officials charge legislator for shooting turtle

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A legislator running for state treasurer was charged Thursday for shooting a snapping turtle after accidentally hitting it with his car, authorities said.

"I thought it was the humane thing to do," said state Rep. Mark Holloway.

But Holloway was charged with two misdemeanors, said Carroll County Prosecutor Mike Bradley.

Department of Conservation spokesman Shannon Cave said it's illegal to kill turtles with a firearm and illegal to fire a gun from a highway.

Holloway was on a campaign swing through north-central Missouri earlier this month when he ran over the turtle.

It took him three shots with a semi-automatic to kill the 15-inch-wide turtle. "I didn't think the first two hit the turtle," he said.

The shooting was reported by a woman who saw it from her driveway and identified Holloway through his legislative license plates.

Each violation is punishable by up to 90 days in jail and fines of up to $500, Cave said.

Better engineering, monitoring lessen explosion risk

Associated Press

It's any city's nightmare: explosive concentrations of gasoline, volatile gases or nasty chemicals that can turn any sewer line into a potential bomb.

But the better the engineering and the tighter the monitoring of a sewer system, the less likely a Guadalajara-like disaster will occur.

"It could happen anywhere, but it's more unlikely to happen where there are more sophisticated systems and tighter environmental or discharge regulations," said George Burke of the International Association of Fire Fighters.

A gas such as methane can occur naturally in sewers, but systems have safety valves of manhole covers to allow air in and methane out. Also, underground pipes siphon off gases before they can concentrate.

Under U.S. Environmental Protection Agency regulations, it is illegal for a company to discharge explosive concentrations of industrial waste into sewers. Monitors at treatment plants can detect volatile materials and trace them back to where they entered the system.

Pump stations are designed with explosion-proof switches that cannot ignite gases that leak gradually into a system.

And if a tank truck overturns and accidentally spills gasoline or other fluids, communities have emergency response teams to evacuate residents and get rid of the danger.

"There's been a lot done in this country to prevent this thing from happening. You can never be 100 percent sure, but there are lot of safeguards in place to minimize the risks," said Tom Walski, editor of an environmental journal for the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Still, there are all kinds of hazards that can leak into a sewer, especially heavier-than-air gases that collect in invisible pools at the bottom of pipes.

■ In 1981, a series of blasts ripped up two miles of streets and left 23 craters in Louisville, Ky. Four people were injured. The explosions were caused by hexane, a cleaning solvent that is a more volatile cousin of gasoline. Hexane is suspected as the culprit in the Mexico blast.

The Ralston Purina Co. later admitted discharging the volatile chemical — which has the same basic makeup as methane, propane and butane — into the sewer system. The company paid $31 million in settlements.

■ In 1988, three workers were killed when methane gas exploded in a deep sewer tunnel in Milwaukee, Wis. The contractor, S.A. Healy Co. of McCook, Ill., was fined $750,000 by a federal judge for ignoring safety rules. The company was also fined $15,000 after it was convicted of two counts of negligent homicide in circuit court.

■ Also in 1988, rapid-fire explosions in Gloucester, Mass., sent dozens of manhole covers flying as high as 40 feet into the air, tore up a street, ripped up yards and forced the evacuation of 200 residents.

Bush, IMF show concern over program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration and the International Monetary Fund expressed concern Thursday that Russia may be contemplating a slowdown in its economic-reform program in the face of mounting domestic criticism.

IMF Managing Director Michel Camdessus, whose agency is expected to take the lead in funneling billions of dollars in assistance to Russia and the other former Soviet republics, said he was worried by news reports that the pace of the Russian reforms could be slowed.

Camdessus said, "What is essential is to strengthen the stance of adjustment and not dilute it."

Treasury Undersecretary David Mulford, speaking at a separate briefing, told reporters he too was bothered by reports that Russia was preparing to back off from its reform efforts by adopting an easier monetary policy that would further jeopardize the value of the ruble and by raising the government's budget deficit.

Mulford said such changes "would have to be regarded as steps backward" that could "complicate negotiations with the IMF" on an economic-support program.

That program is expected to provide the Russians with up to $4 billion in IMF support as part of a broader $24 billion Russian aid package for 1992.

Russian Deputy Prime Minister Yegor Gaidar, the architect of the reforms being pushed by Russian President Boris Yeltsin, will meet Sunday with top finance officials from the United States and the world's six other richest industrial countries — Japan, Germany, Britain, France, Italy and Canada.

Mulford said Gaidar will be pressed to explain the modifications being contemplated.

Russia and the other 14 republics are expected to win approval of their membership applications at next week's meeting of the IMF and its sister lending organization, the World Bank.

Officials have estimated that membership in capitalism's premier clubs would allow the 15 former republics to obtain up to $44 billion of assistance this year to help their struggling economies in the transition to free-market systems.

In addition to aid to the former republics, finance officials are expected to spend a great deal of time trying to find a way to end the global economic slowdown.

Mulford indicated that the administration would like to see lower interest rates and an acceleration of government spending in Japan to fight the effects of the economic slowdown in that country.

In addition, he said the United States and a number of European countries were concerned about the impact high German interest rates were having in Europe.

Mulford noted an IMF report Wednesday that urged the Germans to reduce their deficit, swelled by the costs of reunification, so that their central bank would have room to lower interest rates.

By insisting on paying for the costs of unification through greater government borrowing rather than higher taxes, Mulford said, Germany was transferring part of the costs of unification to the rest of Europe in the form of higher interest rates.

The administration has been worried that weak world growth will jeopardize America's recovery by cutting into U.S. export sales, one of the few bright spots for the American economy.

Weak global demand hurts the industrial countries and makes it more difficult for them to provide the necessary financial support for the former republics and the emerging democracies in Eastern Europe, Mulford said.

A report by the Russian State Statistics Committee on Thursday showed just how severe the situation was in that country. It said industrial production had fallen 13 percent, unemployment was on the rise and food shortages were worsening.

The report estimated that 50 million Russians, one-third of the population, were living below the poverty line

Saudi sheik doesn't like attention

By Michael Warren
Associated Press writer

INDIAN CREEK VILLAGE, Fla. — There were no police raids on his home, no one drew on statuary, or littered the landscape with unpaid bills.

All in all, it was a quiet stay for Prince Turki bin Abdul Aziz al Saud.

The prince, his family and dozens of bodyguards spent much of 1991 in the former Woolworth mansion, a 16-bedroom spread he bought for $3.2 million in 1983 and then practically abandoned shortly thereafter, say people on this exclusive island across Biscayne Bay from Miami.

"They're very private people. We have private people and we have private people. These people are very private," said Don Lebrun, city manager who oversees services to the island of 29 mansions and a championship golf course.

Prince Turki, fourth in line to the Saudi throne, has moved on to Cairo, said defense attorney F. Lee Bailey, who represents the sheik's brother-in-law Mohammed al-Fassi.

"Prince Turki generally stays out of sight. He does not like to be a public figure," Bailey said recently.

Like it or not, Turki has been unable to avoid attention over the years:

■ In 1983, the Dade County prosecutor ordered a raid on a condominium where his family lived before moving into the mansion. Eight police officers, investigating allegations that servants were being treated like slaves, claimed they were attacked by Turki's bodyguards and his wife.

The prince sued, and the whole thing was dropped after an appeals court upheld the prince's claim of diplomatic immunity.

■ Turki left Florida soon after, but his Moroccan brothers-in-law remained behind. Mohammed and Tarek al-Fassi had mansions of their own in South Florida.

Tarek raised a stink when he abandoned his to the elements, leaving stagnant water in the pool and rotting food in the mansion. Neighbors complained and the county agreed, issuing a health citation.

ade a fool of himself."

Turki wasn't happy, but he stuck by Mohammed, Bailey said. "He never disavowed him at all. He just said: 'No more traveling on my credit cards.'"

The Saudis tolerated Mohammed al-Fassi until he made the impolitic decision to support Saddam Hussein, going on Baghdad radio to criticize Saudi rulers. Saudi authorities grabbed the renegade sheik in Jordan on Oct. 2 and have held him incommunicado in the Saudi capital since then, Bailey said.

■ Prince Turki's return to the United States in 1990 also drew attention, somewhat inevitable for a man who travels with an entourage of nearly 100 people and a tractor-trailer full of luggage.

Hotel managers complained they weren't paid for the inconveniences. Residents of Cambridge, Mass., complained that security guards ejected local children from city parks while the prince's children played.

The problems often were eased when the prince opened his considerable purse — Fortune magazine once pegged his family's fortune at $18 billion. Turki quietly made hundreds of donations each month, including $30,000 to a disabled children's fund after the playground incident made news.

Given this family history, Turki's ability to spend most of a year in the United States without attracting notice is something of a triumph.

Officials at Saudi Arabia's embassy in Washington wouldn't comment on Prince Turki or the rest of the royal family.

Lebrun and others on the island also declined to comment about the sheik. His neighbors include singer Julio Iglesias, Philadelphia Eagles owner Norman Braman, golfer Ray Floyd and vacuum cleaner magnate Herbert W. Hoover Jr.

Quiet is how they like it in Indian Creek Village, where the country club owns the only street and a private police force keeps all but members and invited guests on the other side of the only bridge.

There's hardly a more secure place to live in Florida, with one officer constantly patrolling the street and another circling the island in a boat. The village once went 16 years without a burglary.

But Prince Turki didn't take any chances during his stay. He hired a half dozen off-duty troopers at $22 an hour to guard his property around the clock, and still has at least one trooper sit outside the nearly empty mansion in a squad car, say island police and the Florida Highway Patrol.

This and other security cost up to $8,000 a week, according to one source on the island who asked not to be identified.

Ryan on Magic

NEW YORK (AP) — Magic Johnson is no hero to Nolan Ryan.

"I have a problem with making a hero out of him because of AIDS," Ryan writes in his upcoming biography "Miracle Man." The Texas Rangers pitcher said that while he sympathizes with Magic's plight, the star knew the risks of his activity.

"Magic wasn't really an innocent victim because of his lifestyle," Ryan said.

The pitcher agreed with Martina Narvratilova that if Johnson were a woman who had contracted the AIDS virus through promiscuous sex, a lot fewer people would view him as a hero.

"It says something that a superstar athlete with the AIDS virus is made into a hero. ... Martina Navratilova made a good point about Magic Johnson," Ryan said.

"She said that if a woman athlete announced she had AIDS and had slept with a couple hundred men, she would not be considered a hero at all. She would be called a tramp. Martina has a point."

Homers halt Angels

Pam Hults/Reporter-Telegram

Midland first baseman Jeff Kipila records an out on Matt Howard. But the Angels dropped their fourth straight game to the San Antonio Missions, 11-7 Thursday night at Angels Stadium.

■ The San Antonio Missions light up Angels Stadium with a truckload of home runs en route to their fourth straight win in Midland.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

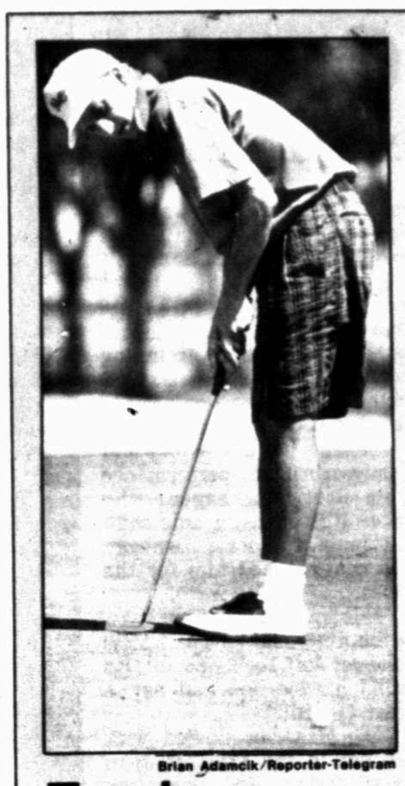

The San Antonio Missions had a home run party Thursday night to continue their uncanny impression of the 1991 El Paso Diablos, handing the Midland Angels their sixth straight defeat, 11-7.

The Missions went on a home run tear, amassing six round-trippers. Their display was the stuff of which highlight reels are made, with homers disappearing over virtually every part of the outfield wall, including one to deep center field, and one that blew by the Texas flag pole in right center.

Two of the homers were off the bat of Bill Ashley, a 22-year-old Michigan native who has six homers this year, four of which have been against the Angels, and three in the last two games.

"When Billy Ashley hits like that, it

Ohio State plans athletic garage sale

Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It seems everyone cleans house in the spring. Why shouldn't a university athletic department?

For the first time, Ohio State will sell off most of the football, baseball and basketball uniforms it has accumulated over the years when it holds an athletic garage sale prior to the football spring game Saturday at Ohio Stadium.

Between 800 and 1,000 football jerseys, worn by All-Americans and by sixth-string punters, will be sold. Also for sale will be baseball jerseys, basketball tops and trunks, soccer and volleyball uniforms and track warmups.

What began as a simple way of eliminating a stockpile of uniforms has become something much bigger.

"We were going to have a couple of police officers there," said Denny Hoobler, in charge of athletic department fund-raising. "But we might need a couple more. We don't need a riot on our hands."

Baseball jerseys will be the most costly item — $30. All of the football jerseys and basketball tops will be $25 apiece. Warmups will go for $20. Prices are also marked on 30 pairs of Reebok basketball shoes (sized 12½ to 15) left over from summer camps and even the commemorative drinking glasses which are used at football and basketball postseason banquets.

But don't count on wearing Archie Griffin's old uniform, or tossing up a hook shot in your driveway wearing Jerry Lucas' trunks.

"We pulled out jerseys belonging to Dennis Hopson and Clark Kellogg, and they had already set aside the uniforms of Archie, Lucas and Havlicek," said OSU equipment manager Dan Swain.

But much of the merchandise can be associated with a well-known Ohio State player of the past. Swain said

Cavaliers draw first blood

■ Cleveland gets a record performance from Brad Daugherty to open the NBA playoffs with a victory over the Nets.

Associated Press

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Brad Daugherty scored a Cleveland playoff-record 40 points and the Cavaliers made all 21 of their fourth-quarter free throws as they beat the New Jersey Nets 120-113 Thursday night in the opening game of the NBA playoffs.

It's the first time in eight playoff appearances that the Cavaliers have won their opening game. New Jersey, which split the regular-season series with Cleveland 2-2, hasn't won in Richfield since 1986.

The Cavaliers, who haven't won a playoff series since 1976, won it at the free-throw line, where they outscored the Nets 39-15 in the game and 21-6 in the fourth quarter.

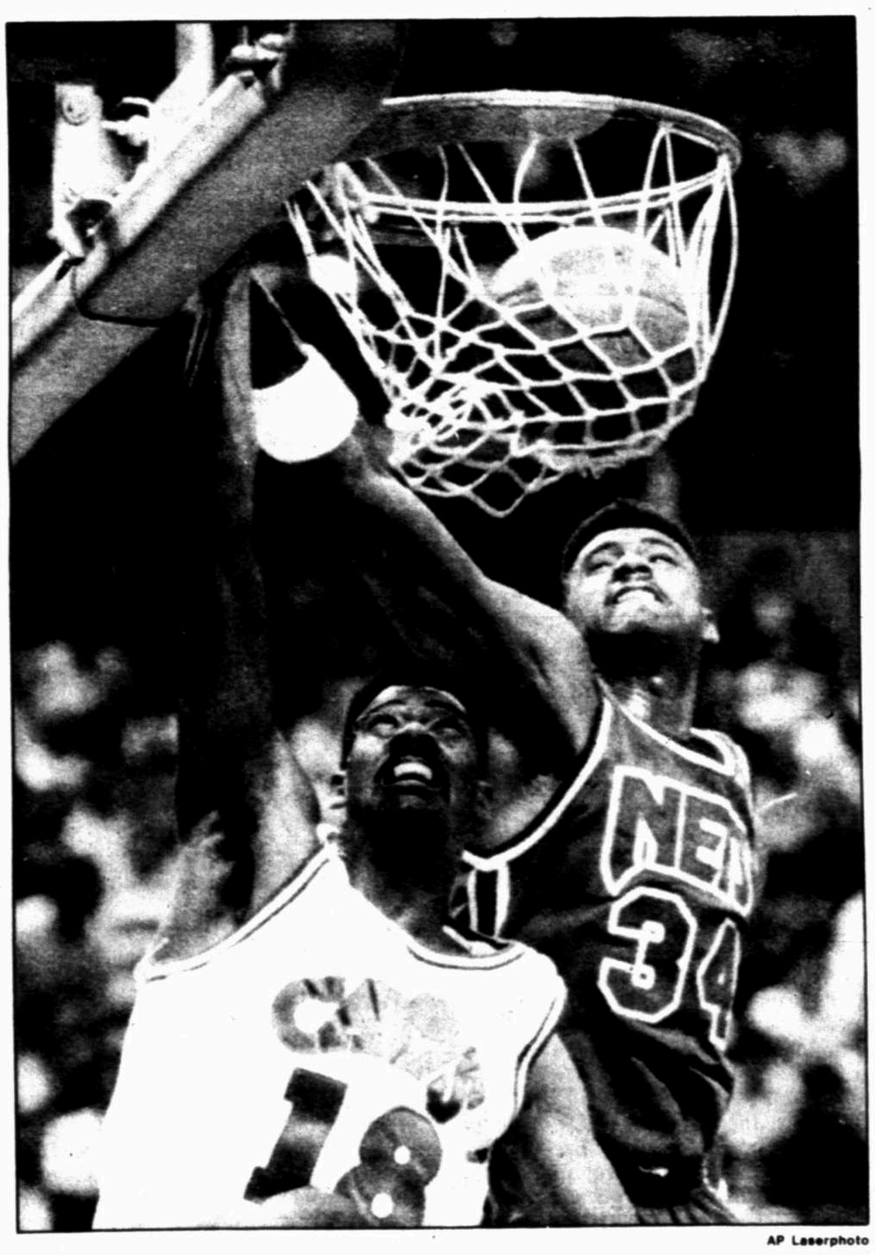

Mark Price scored 35 points for Cleveland, 24 of them in the first half. Daugherty had 16 rebounds and nine assists, leaving him one assist shy of Cleveland's first playoff triple-double.

Drazen Petrovic scored 40 points for the Nets, also a team playoff-record. Derrick Coleman scored 21.

Cleveland led by as many as nine in the fourth quarter but fell behind by a point twice in the closing minutes on baskets by Petrovic, whose 18-footer gave the Nets their final lead, 111-110, with 1:36 to play. But Daugherty, fouled while grabbing a rebound, converted two free throws that put the Cavaliers ahead for good with 1:16 left.

Petrovic then missed a 3-pointer and John Williams was fouled on the rebound. He hit both shots for a 114-111 Cleveland lead with a minute left.

Williams stole the ensuing inbounds pass by Terry Mills and dunked for a five-point lead that deflated the Nets.

Celtics 124,, Pacers 113

BOSTON — Reggie Lewis scored 36 points and Kevin Gamble triggered a 15-2 fourth-quarter run Thursday night as the Boston Celtics withstood Indiana's long-range shooting in their playoff opener.

With injured starters Larry Bird and Dee Brown watching in street clothes on the bench, the Celtics outduelled the Pacers down the stretch with the help of clutch defense in taking a 1-0 lead in the best-of-5 series.

Kevin McHale scored 21 points, Gamble 20 and Robert Parish 19 as the Celtics posted their ninth consecutive victory and 16th in the last 17 starts — with the only loss in Indiana on April 3.

With Reggie Miller and Micheal Williams hitting from all over the court, the Pacers outscored the Celtics 24-0 on 3-

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Traci Logan is queen bee with heart

Williamson

It's understandable that Midland Lee's pert and petite Traci Logan could be overlooked. She looks more like a prom queen than the District 4-5A standard bearer in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles.

After all, the hurdles are nearly as tall as 5-foot-2 Logan. The hurdles look more like a high jump competition for her than a running event.

Well, Logan has been running track at Lee for three years and the piston-driven machine has set the district standard for the 300 hurdles.

Logan has now won the district championship in that event three years running. The 300 hurdles didn't even come into state track existence for girls until she was a sophomore, so she is the only 300 hurdle champion the district has ever known.

And she accomplished the feat in style. Of course, the first year it took only a victory to set the record. But Logan goes out and beats herself the next two years and has lowered the district record to 45.29 seconds. Take that 4-5A. It's a nice mark to shoot for.

Still, it was almost by accident that Logan ever found her place in the 4-5A track sun.

"When I was a sophomore, Coach (Van Tom) Whatley, just stuck me out there (in the 300 hurdles). He didn't know what to do with me," Logan remembers. "He saw me run one time and said, 'Go sit down somewhere.' The only reason I got to run was that he needed someone to run this new event."

History was served through necessity. One lesson that can be learned is that you can't judge Logan by stature. She can only be judged by heart — and her heart is a small stick of dynamite just waiting to explode. If nothing else, Logan is a competitor — that word that is overused, overworked, and in this case, overtrue.

As a sophomore Logan showed she had the heart to be one of the best in the state. That year she finished third at the Region I meet in Lubbock, missing a trip to the state meet in Austin by mere thread of disappointment.

"I'll be back," she said then. "I know what it takes now."

She lived up to the burden she placed on herself. As a junior she won the Region I title in a walk and went on to place fifth in the state meet. Fifth in the state is success under any formula, but not for Logan.

"I was a nervous wreck at Austin last year. There were more people there than there was for a Lee-Permian football game. I choked it up," Logan says. "I've got to go back (to Austin) this year. The crowd won't get to me this time. I want to do better than fifth."

First, Logan must place first or second at the Region I meet on May 2 in Lubbock. But when this heart gets focused, you know she has better than even odds.

Besides, Logan's days of being overlooked are over. Forget District 4-5A, she is the reigning queen bee of the Region I track world. Just don't ever tell her she isn't big enough for the 300 hurdles. That approach has already failed. It's all in the heart.

Mets stump Cards

Associated Press

NEW YORK — For 12 innings on Thursday, there wasn't a cloud in the sky or run on the scoreboard.

NL

It finally took a hit batsman with the bases loaded in the 13th inning to give the New York Mets a 1-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals for a three -game sweep.

The Mets got the victory and finally a brilliant performance from Bret Saberhagen, who gave up five hits in nine shutout innings. Rookie Donovan Osborne matched him for the Cards.

"This is the Saberhagen I saw in the American League," Mets manager Jeff Torborg said. "He found his location and had a great fastball."

Dave Magadan singled with one out in the 13th off Juan Agosto (0-2) and Rodney McCray pinch ran. Junior Noboa followed with a looping opposite-field single to right. McCray then stole third and pinch-hitter Charlie O'Brien walked to load the bases for Boston.

Agosto, a left-hander, had a 1-2 count on the lefty swinging Boston when he grazed him on a uniform button with the pitch to score McCray.

"I never got an RBI like that before," Boston said. "He tried to run a fastball in on my hands and it just sailed in. It hit the second button from the bottom of my shirt."

John Franco (2-0) pitched two innings for the victory as the Mets won their fourth straight game and seventh in their last eight.

Expos 6, Pirates 3

MONTREAL — Spike Owen drove home two runs as Montreal and Mark Gardner took advantage of five Pittsburgh errors to beat the Pirates and end their nine-game winning streak.

Gardner (2-1) allowed seven hits over 8⅓ innings to beat Zane Smith (3-1), who had his personal winning streak stopped at seven. Smith allowed all six runs, three of them earned in 5⅓ innings.

John Wetteland came on in the ninth after Pittsburgh had scored twice to post his third save.

Three errors allowed the Expos to score two runs in the first.

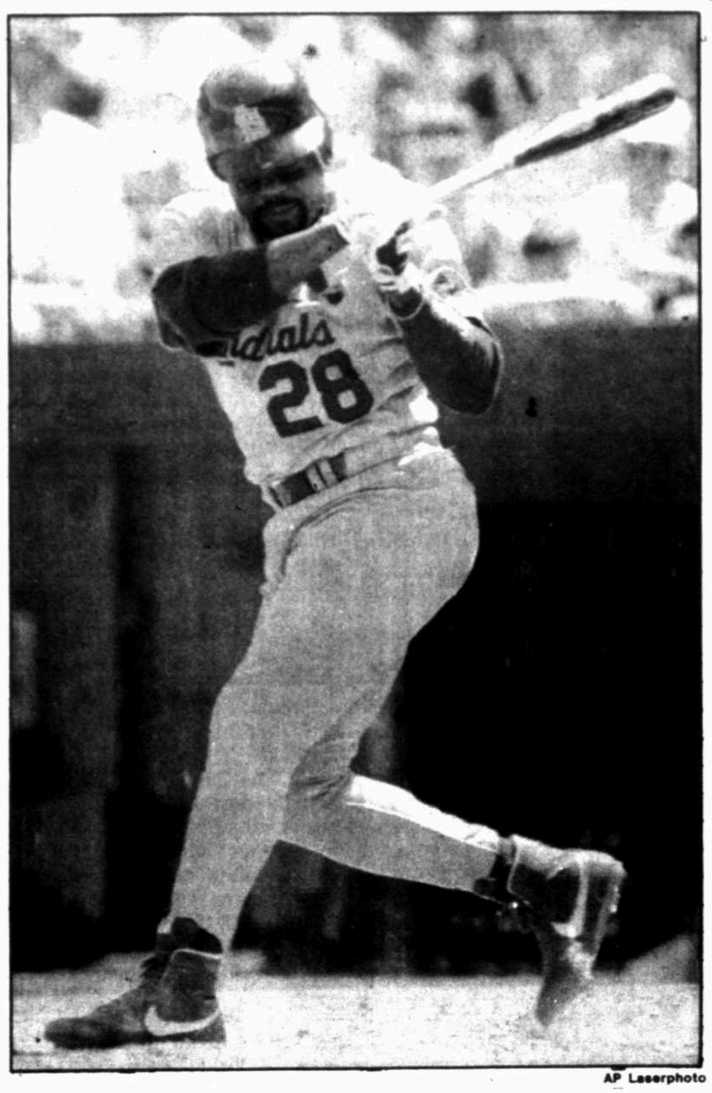

Marquis Grissom led off with a double and continued to third when Cecil Espy, subbing for Barry Bonds in left, bobbled the ball.

Owen then hit a ball to third baseman Steve Buechele, who threw home. Grissom knocked the ball out of of catcher Mike LaValliere's hands to score on the play.

Phillies 8, Cubs 2

CHICAGO — Kim Batiste hit his first major league home run and Tommy Greene allowed two hits over seven innings as Philadelphia beat the Cubs.

Greene (2-1) struck out six and walked five, allowing both runs in the first inning on three walks, an error and an infield out. The only hits he allowed were a single by Shawon Dunston, a single in the second and a double in the seventh as the Cubs had three hits overall off Greene and Curt Schilling.

Wegman out-duels Clemens

Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Bill Wegman won a rainy duel over Roger Clemens as the Milwaukee Brewers sloshed to a 3-2 victory Thursday over the Boston Red Sox.

Dante Bichette's two-out RBI single capped a three-run third inning for the Brewers, who ended Clemens' 20-inning scoreless streak on a thoroughly miserable day at County Stadium. Bichette also made an over-the-shoulder catch in right to save a run in the seventh.

Wegman (2-1) allowed six hits and six walks in a driving rain over 7⅓ innings. Jesse Orosco and Doug Henry finished up, Henry getting his second save by pitching 1⅔ scoreless innings.

The grounds crew had to spread diamond dust around the infield between almost every inning. The teams's game Wednesday night had been postponed because of the cold.

Clemens (2-2) allowed seven hits, walked one and struck out eight. In his last start, he'd beaten Toronto despite two rain delays of more than three hours.

Boston scored twice in the second. Wegman walked two hitters and after a sacrifice walked Mo Vaughn intentionally to load the bases. Tony Pena then hit a broken-bat two-run double to left.

Tigers 11, Rangers 5

ARLINGTON — Mickey Tettleton's three-run double keyed another early outburst as Detroit used a five-run first inning to rough up the Rangers.

The Tigers, who scored six times in the first inning in Wednesday's 12-8 victory, swept the series. Detroit had 27 runs in the three games and 36 hits, including 15 in the finale.

After two innings, Detroit led 6-5 and the teams had combined for 15 hits. Milt Cuyler hit a three-run homer in the seventh.

Reliever Les Lancaster (1-1) shut out Texas on three hits for 4⅔ innings. He allowed Julio Franco's RBI grounder and Rafael Palmeiro's two-run double in the second, although the runs were charged to starter Frank Tanana.

John Doherty pitched 3 1-3 innings for his first major league save.

American League

Mariners 3, Twins 2

SEATTLE — Greg Briley's RBI single in the seventh inning broke a 2-2 tie and Seattle beat Minnesota and Scott Erickson.

Seattle trailed 2-1 when Jay Buhner led off the seventh with his first home run of the season off Erickson (0-2). Erickson walked Tino Martinez and Jeff Schaefer sacrificed Martinez to second.

Erickson, a 20-game winner last year for the champion Twins, failed in his fourth bid of the season for his first victory. He gave up three runs on five hits in 6⅔ innings.

Blue Jays 13, Indians 8

TORONTO — Kelly Gruber homered twice, doubled and drove in four runs, leading a 15-attack that carried Toronto past Cleveland.

Gruber, who had gone eight games without an extra-base hit, enjoyed the seventh two-homer game of his major-league career. Devon White and Joe Carter, who extended his hitting streak to 16 games, also contributed two-run homers.

Albert Belle drove in four runs with his third homer and a single for Cleveland, which trailed 13-4 after five innings.

A shaky Todd Stottlemyre (2-1) was the beneficiary of the Blue Jays' best offensive showing since they scored 13 runs in Cleveland last Sept.

Orioles 8, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mike Mussina pitched a six-hitter, Mark McLemore went 4 for 5 and the Baltimore Orioles, off to their best start in 21 years, helped a Kansas City team stay on the road to its worst start ever.

The Orioles' seventh straight victory left them 10-5 for the first time since 1971. Kansas City's seventh straight loss plunged the Royals to 1-14, worst in the major leagues. The loss left them 1-8 on their first homestand, the worst in the franchise's 24-year history.

Astros carry winning mark on road

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — The Houston Astros are going on the road for the first time this season with excess baggage they're pleased to carry — first place in the National League Western Division.

And what better place to start than at Atlanta, last year's worst to first champions, who won the NL West and advanced to the World Series.

The Astros beat San Francisco 3-1 in 12 innings Wednesday night and will start the three-game weekend series Friday with a 9-6 record, the first time they've been three games over .500 since the end of the 1989 season (86-76).

"Last year we had a lot of guys trying to prove they could play in the major leagues," center fielder Steve Finley said. "You always go out to win but this year we've shown we can play here and we're looking more at the winning aspect of the game."

The Astros have won six of their last seven games and they've proven themselves clutch performers. The Astros are 5-1 in games decided by one run and they are 4-0 in extra inning games.

But that's all come in the comfort of the Astrodome. Houston had the second worst road record (28-53) in the major leagues last season. The Astros home stand ties the 1961 Los Angeles Dodgers for the longest homer opening series in major league history.

Road memories temper the Astros' enthusiasm.

"We've still got 140-something games to play so it's not like we're 12-2 like Pittsburgh," first baseman Jeff Bagwell said. "Playing 15 games at home helps. Nobody likes to play here. We're not surprised but like I said, we're only 9-6."

The Astros will play more games at home through late July when they begin a 26-game, 28-day road trip because the Astrodome will be in use for that time for the Republican National Convention.

"I feel pretty good about our chances on the road because of our pitching staff," manager Art Howe said. "That's the big difference in our team and last year. Our staff was young, especially the bullpen."

Doug Jones has solidified the Astros' bullpen with five saves, tied for the league lead. The bullpen has pitched a combined 46.2 innings, allowed seven earned runs, struck out 41 and walked 19 and has an earned run average of 1.38.

Jones slumped at Cleveland last season and came to the Astros in hopes of regaining his form as a closer.

"I was never concerned about Doug returning to his former form," Howe said. "We talked about reasons for what happened to him last year and they made sense to me."

Mark Portugal missed his first start of the season because of tonsillitis but rebounded to a 2-0 start and Pete Harnisch is off to a strong start despite his 1-2 record.

Pete Incaviglia is another veteran newcomer who has helped the Astros hitting and improved defensive play in right field. He lost weight after a disappointing season in Detroit and has added power to the lineup.

Craig Biggio is hitting .390, second in the league to Philadelphia's John Kruk and Biggio and Finley, who's hitting .307, have formed a potent 1-2 leadoff punch.

Incaviglia and Bagwell, the 1991 NL rookie of the year, have identical .280 averages.

Incaviglia wondered in the spring, why the Astros were being picked for last place.

"I looked at this team in spring training and I saw a talented club," Incaviglia said. "Biggio and Finley at the top (batting order) may be the best one-two punch in baseball. I'll put them against anybody."

The Astros are putting themselves against the road for three games in Atlanta and three in New York before starting a five-game home stand May 1.

UT's Stephen Larkin unsure of future

By Jaime Aron
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Texas freshman outfielder Stephen Larkin, suspended from the team for medical reasons, said Wednesday his future as a Longhorn will be determined by UT President William Cunningham.

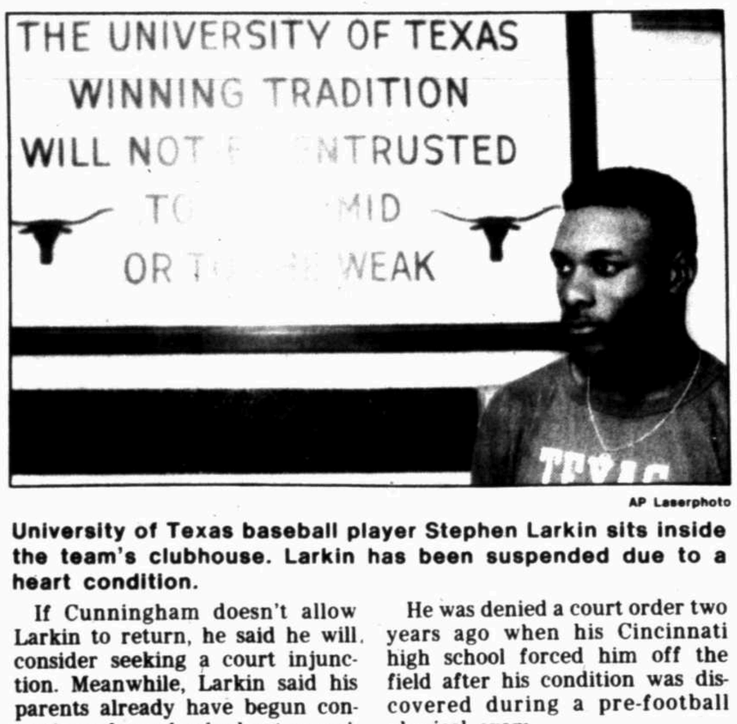

"I'm waiting on Dr. Cunningham to make the decision. I might go see him next week," said Larkin, who hasn't played since April 4 because of a heart condition.

"They might be sending me somewhere (for tests) ... I'm not sure what they're going to do. They haven't told me," said Larkin, the team's third-leading hitter at .338.

Cunningham did not immediately return a phone call from The Associated Press.

Larkin, younger brother of Cincinnati Reds shortstop Barry Larkin, suffers from hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, an enlargement of his heart's walls, restricting blood flow into the pumping chamber.

His father, Robert, and brother Byron both have the same condition and neither has been affected. Byron was a standout basketball player at Xavier.

University of Texas baseball player Stephen Larkin sits inside the team's clubhouse. Larkin has been suspended due to a heart condition.

If Cunningham doesn't allow Larkin to return, he said he will consider seeking a court injunction. Meanwhile, Larkin said his parents already have begun contacting other schools about a possible transfer.

Larkin, 18, said he is considering attending Miami (Ohio) University, Hawaii or Georgia Tech if he cannot resolve his conflict at Texas.

He was denied a court order two years ago when his Cincinnati high school forced him off the field after his condition was discovered during a pre-football physical exam.

But Larkin said this case is different now because he has been allowed to play half this season.

Texas officials knew of Larkin's condition when recruiting him.

Baltimore's Milligan cleared to return to team

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Randy Milligan was released from a Kansas City hospital Thursday afternoon and planned to join his Baltimore teammates for a trip to New York on Thursday night.

Milligan was knocked unconscious after he ran into second baseman Billy Ripken while chasing a ground ball in the fifth inning of the Orioles' 2-1 victory over Kansas City Wednesday night. Milligan sustained a minor concussion and left the field in an ambulance.

Tests conducted Thursday revealed no major damage, team officials said. Besides the concussion, Milligan suffered a bruised cheekbone and strained muscles in his neck.

"The doctor's recommendation was for him to take it easy for a couple days and see how he feels," said Bob Miller, an Orioles spokesman. "He still has a headache, which is very normal in post-concussion situations, and he's tired."

Miller said Milligan's status was day-to-day. He could return to the lineup "very soon," Miller said.

The Orioles were to finish a three-game series in Kansas City on Thursday night, then take a flight to New York to start a three-game series Friday night.

Ripken, who also was taken to the hospital Wednesday night, was released that night.

Milligan fell to the ground and did not move after he hit Ripken. The game was delayed about 20 minutes.

"He regained consciousness about five to eight seconds after I got there," Orioles assistant trainer Richie Bancells said. "We were very concerned because he said his whole body was numb. But then the feeling started coming back."

Longhorns beat Texas Tech 6-4

LUBBOCK (AP) — Robert DeLeon's RBI double scored the first of five Texas runs in the seventh inning Thursday night as the No. 3 Longhorns defeated Texas Tech 6-4.

The victory brought Texas (36-10, 23-6 in the Southwest Conference) within one game of clinching at least a tie for the SWC title.

The Longhorns broke open a 1-1 game in the seventh with five runs on four hits, chasing Tech starter J.J. Varney (4-4). Calvin Murray and Chris Abbe each drove in runs with singles. The other two runs came with the bases loaded as Tech reliever Joe Davis hit Tim Harkrider with a pitch and Braxton Hickman grounded into a fielder's choice.

However, the Red Raiders (26-22, 12-16) rallied briefly for three runs with two outs in the eighth. Texas reliever Chris Gaskill took over from starter Brooks Kieschnick (6-1) and retired the next four Tech batters.

ANGELS: Long calm despite start

can go out any place," San Antonio manager Jerry Royster said. "It's not the ball park, and it's not the pitching. Billy is a legitimate power hitter."

Royster added that, overall, San Antonio's long ball bonanza was more a result of the infamous Angels Stadium, and not any hard luck Midland pitchers may have had.

"We did a good job making contact," Royster said. "Some of the homers were with two strikes, some were to the opposite field, some to centerfield."

Midland's Jeff Kipila extended his hitting streak to 11 games, and joined the homer-fest with his fourth of the year, a two-run shot in the bottom of the first.

The Angels' Ray Martinez tripled home a run in the second as Midland took a 3-1 lead.

Ashley's first homer, a solo lead-off blast in the fourth, pushed the Missions to within one, 3-2, but it was in the San Antonio sixth when the outfield walls began tumbling down.

Catcher Mike Piazza hit a two-run homer to push the Missions ahead 4-3 in the sixth, and in the seventh, another four runs crossed over, giving San Antonio an 8-3 cushion.

Chris Morrow, batting .186 on the year, led off the seventh with his first homer of the year. After Jorge Alvarez walked and scored on a double by Matt Howard, Ashley came up and dropped his second one over the fence, a two-run shot also scoring Piazza.

San Antonio added three more in the seventh. The inning started (oddly enough) with the third lead-off homer of the game, this time by John Deutsch.

The Angels scored a run in the sixth when Mick Billmeyer hit a sacrifice fly to score Kipila.

Midland added three more in a bizarre eighth inning that saw 245-pound catcher/designated hitter Matt Stark open the inning with a double and go to third on an error by pitcher Saul Bustillos. In trying to tag out Stark, Bustillos had to be aided from the game after injuring an ankle. After Bobby Jones reached on a fielder's choice Corey Kapano doubled to bring in Stark and Jones. Kapano then scored on the same play, going to third on a throwing error by San Antonio shortstop Tim Barker, and coming home on a throwing error by pitcher Omar Daal.

Mission starter Michael Mimbs earned his second win against no defeats. Midland reliever Clemente Acosta came in and threw four pitches and was charged with the loss, his first.

But the night belonged to the long ball, and Ashley.

"I just tried to get the heart of the bat on it and a little wind into it, and there it went," Ashley said. "Home runs are accidents anyway. They're unexpected at times. The Angels have a great pitching staff, but our team is just on a roll."

Midland, now 4-10 and in last place in the Texas League West, is starting the season much the same way it did in 1991, when it opened with a 4-12 mark. Without a win in its season-opening homestand, though, manager Don Long has not yet begun to sweat.

"As long as the team continues to work hard and play aggressively, you have to just keep reminding them they can't get down," Long said. "as a staff, we have to show we have faith in the players.

"This is the same club that had a good string going in spring training, and I'd rather it hit now.

"As far as the record is concerned (it's reminiscent of last year's start), but I don't think in terms of personality or the way the guys are caring. Last year that was lacking. There was no intensity about the way we were playing. Now it's a different story."

Long added his team's stretch of hard luck is not necessarily of result of any good string San Antonio may be enjoying.

"I don't think at this point it matters who we're playing," Long said. "But I don't like to talk about that because the other team can start thinking they've got our number."

Following tonight's closing of the season-opening homestand, the Angels leave for a five game set in Wichita.

Computer experts play key role in 1992 America's Cup

By Jonathan Yenkin
AP Writer

BOSTON — While racing yachts duel for the America's Cup off the coast of California, another fierce contest has been waged by computer experts in the laboratories of MIT and Digital Equipment Corp.

These specialists have used computers for an array of tasks, from plotting the effects of wind and ocean currents on various boat designs to devising a system for the boat navigator to speak to an onboard terminal.

Now they're watching with keen interest to see if their handiwork can produce a winner. For them, it's a chance to share in the glory.

"We have the fastest boat among the Americans," declares Jerry Milgram, a professor of ocean engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Milgram is also design director for the America3 (America Cubed) syndicate, headed by longtime acquaintance, Bill Koch.

"It seemed a very good project to get into," Milgram said. "But I never dreamed it would be this demanding, this stressful and so overwhelming."

So far, the results have borne out the superiority of the America3 yacht. Entering Thursday, the boat held a 3-0 lead over defending champ Dennis Conner in a best-of-13 series that will determine the U.S. representative in the finals. America3's overall record was 20-5.

Koch said this week that major modifications were made to his boat before this round.

"We have dramatically improved America3," he said. "I'm reluctant to say how, but we're pleased with it."

That computers would play a big role in this year's Cup is not surprising. Ever since Australia stunned the Americans by capturing the trophy with a revolutionary winged-keel in 1983, sailing's premier event has become a showcase for technology as well as skippering talent.

Koch turned to MIT, his alma mater, as well as Massachusetts-based Digital.

"We're sitting here biting our nails," said Ralph Dormitzer, Digital's liaison to the America3 Foundation. Digital donated approximately $4 million worth of computers and services toward the America3 effort.

In fact, for some people at Digital, the races have become a mini-competition with rival computer maker Hewlett-Packard Co., which has provided equipment for Conner's team.

"It adds a bit of spice to this whole thing," Dormitzer said.

But at Hewlett-Packard, officials say the rivalry is strictly between the boats, not the companies.

"I don't think we see it as H-P versus Digital," said William Murphy, director of global accounts for Hewlett-Packard. Still, he said people at the company are pulling for Conner due to past associations with him.

Also, David Perry, Hewlett-Packard's technical manager for America's Cup, noted that H-P machines were also used by America3 designers.

Much of the America3 work, however, was done on Digital computers, including a high-powered mainframe at MIT that can run a special "velocity prediction program" developed by Milgram.

The program calculates yacht performance based on many factors, including the shape of the hull and sails, as well as the crew weight and the direction and speed of the wind.

Using computers, engineers could evaluate hundreds of different sail and boat design combinations without having to build them.

Also, members of the America3 team at Stanford University used computers to analyze the strength of carbon fiber materials that went into the boats to make them light, strong and stiff.

But the analysis didn't end in the laboratory. A computer aboard the boat tracked navigational position and analyzed other factors such as weather and sea conditions. This data is now available to the crew during races.

To call up the information during a race, however, would be cumbersome using a keyboard. Therefore, engineers at Digital developed a system for the navigator to communicate to the computer by picking up a phone in the cockpit and talking.

For example, the navigator can shout "sails" and receive a menu of different sail configurations, and then see how well they performed in past conditions.

"It gives them a lot more information than they ever had to make a decision," said Robert Kucharavy, a Digital spokesman.

But he added, "a sailor still has to make the final decision over what are the right sails.

"This never replaces the sportsmanship of the thing."

Stars & Stripes bounces back

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Dennis Conner's Stars & Stripes has some life left in its year-old hull, after all.

After getting blown away by Bill Koch's America3 (America Cubed) in three straight races to open the America's Cup defender finals, it looked like Stars & Stripes might be swept out of the regatta, taking with it Conner's chance of reaching his fifth straight America's Cup match.

Stars & Stripes beat America3 by 39 seconds.

Raiders may trade first pick

N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — The NFL draft can be a confounding exercise for many football fans. Once they get past the Heisman and Outland winners and a few of the All-Americas, the names often don't command a great deal of household familiarity.

A big tackle from Texas A&I. A blazing cornerback from Appalachian State. How do you pronounce that name?

The Los Angeles Raiders, in preparing for Sunday's opening rounds of this year's draft, are offering several dashes of spicy intrigue, however.

Name recognition? Ever heard of a guy named Eric Dickerson? How about Steve Young? Herschel Walker?

Raiders insiders say all three of these established NFL veterans have been discussed by club owner Al Davis this week, and the prospect of draft-day trades for either Dickerson or Young, or possibly Walker, should not be ruled out.

The Raiders have plenty with which to deal. Their first-round pick is 16th overall — prime positioning. They also possess a Pro Bowl-caliber wide receiver, Tim Brown, who somehow can't seem to crack their starting lineup.

Davis, meanwhile, has never been shy about talking to other teams about big-name, high-salary, high-angst players. Occasionally, he even makes a deal (see: Mike Haynes, Jerry Robinson, Willie Gault, Jay Schroeder).

Seminole backs get mixed NFL reviews

■ Florida State cornerback Terrell Buckley is not expected to last long in Sunday's college draft.

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Florida State's talented 1991 backfield — Casey Weldon, Edgar Bennett and Amp Lee — have high expectations for Sunday's NFL draft.

Buckley

Unlike Seminoles cornerback Terrell Buckley, though, they'll have to wait awhile to find out which team picks them. Buckley is expected to be among the top 10 players chosen.

The four players were a major reason why Florida State annually challenged for the national championship the past few years as they accounted for 99 touchdowns and nearly 8,000 yards during their careers.

But all have drawbacks to NFL scouts — Weldon is too short and lacks a strong arm; Lee is a bit too slow and Bennett a bit too light to play fullback.

Weldon leaves Florida State as the school's second most productive passer behind Gary Huff and Lee's 30 rushing touchdowns are second to Greg Allen's 44.

The 6-foot-2, 215-pound Bennett, who decided against going into the draft last year, averaged 4.2 yards a carry and caught 93 passes in his college career.

"Edgar is the one-back guy," said assistant coach Bill Sexton, who handles the Florida State runners. "To me, he's very similar to Roger Craig."

Sexton compares the 6-0, 190-pound Lee to Joe Washington, who starred for the Colts and Redskins. Scouts think Lee's 40-yard-dash time, 4.8 seconds, will keep him out of the first round.

But Sexton, who predicts both Lee and Bennett will be NFL starters, says "he's got that tremendous lateral quickness. He's a ghost."

Weldon, last year's Heisman Trophy runner-up behind Desmond Howard, probably fell out of the first round with lackluster performances in postseason all star games. The 6-1, 190-pound Weldon is not as rangy as predecessor Peter Tom Willis, a fourth-round pick two years ago by the Chicago Bears, and scouts question whether he can throw deep.

However, Weldon was 16-2 as a starter at Florida State with only successive late season losses last year against Miami and Florida preventing him from an undefeated career.

Buckley, who like Lee is leaving after three seasons, is easily the best prospect at Florida State. He would join former Seminole cornerbacks Deion Sanders, Martin Mayhew, and the unrelated Butlers, LeRoy and Bobby, in the pros.

Lee Weldon

Buckley said he has heard most from Green Bay and Miami and would enjoy playing in either city.

"But I've also heard that the teams that talk to you the most don't draft you," he said.

Like many of his teammates, Buckley will be at home Sunday watching the draft on television

Temple, OC split region openers

Staff report

The Temple Junior College men's tennis team knocked off the Odessa College men, but the OC Lady Wranglers beat the Temple women during first round action in the Region V tennis tournament, Thursday at the Midland College tennis courts.

Temple's men had an easy time against OC because Wrangler coach Karin Malinowski suspended several of her players for disciplinary reasons. That left the Wranlgers shorthanded, and they lost 5-1.

The OC women used the same score to drop the Temple ladies and move into winner's bracket play today against Cooke County, which had a bye on Thursday. The Midland College Women, who also enjoyed a first-round bye, meet up with McLennan at 9 a.m. today.

And the Midland College men used a first-round bye to prepare for today's meeting with Temple, at 2 p.m., at the MC courts.

All the finals are slated for Saturday, with the men doing battle at 9 a.m. and the women playing at 1 p.m.

Irsay denies deal

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — General manager Jim Irsay denied a report Thursday that the Indianapolis Colts were close to signing a contract to make defensive tackle Steve Emtman the top pick in Sunday's NFL draft.

The Seattle Times, quoting an unidentified agent, reported the signing would take place in the next few days.

The agent reportedly told the newspaper that the only snag is the length of the contract.

"Right now, we're in the process of really exploring conversations with some of the agents of the top players," Irsay said.

Marinovich drug charges dismissed

N.Y. Times News Service

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — Discarding rumors that Todd Marinovich had failed an NFL drug test last December, Harbor Municipal Court Judge Susanne Shaw dismissed all drug charges against the Los Angeles Raiders quarterback Thursday after determining he had successfully completed a yearlong diversion program.

Marinovich, 22, was arrested in Newport Beach last year for misdemeanor possession of cocaine and marijuana. Shaw cleared his record and absolved him of any further charges for completing the diversion program as a first-time offender.

Complicating Thursday's hearing was an ESPN report last week that Marinovich had tested positive for an undisclosed banned substance soon after the Raiders' playoff game against the Kansas City Chiefs on Dec. 28. Marinovich has denied the report.

The Orange County Probation Department was told by Shaw to check out the information. In its report submitted Thursday, the probation department called the ESPN report "merely rumor," according to Shaw, and found "no proof" to substiate the allegation.

"I don't know who started the ugly rumor, but I'm glad he completed the program and I wish him the best," Shaw said.

Marinovich did not attend Thursday's hearing. He was represented by attorney Tom Goethals, who said about the ESPN report, "We looked into it, probation looked into it and couldn't find any substance to it. From our standpoint, we've always denied it and didn't believe it was true."

Del Wright, supervising deputy district attorney for Harbor Municipal Court, said he saw nothing on the probation report that indicated that the NFL had been contacted. "I can't answer how it (the ESPN report) was checked out," he said.

The NFL refuses to comment on league-sponsored drug tests, particularly for a first-time offense. But if a player tests positive a second time, he would be suspended for 30 days and the information made public.

Wright said he tried to tell a member of the organization which supervised Marinovich's conseling program about the media report. "I was not well received," Wright said.

Nichols and Snead keep tabs on Rodriguez and Hill with 61

Associated Press

Legends of Golf

AUSTIN — The team of Bobby Nichols and J.C. Snead shot an 11-under-par 61 to share the first-round lead with Chi Chi Rodriguez and Dave Hill in the Legends of Golf team competition on Thursday.

Three teams were at 10-under in the two-man, better-ball tournament over the 6,777-yard Barton Creek Country Club course.

Hill gave nearly all the credit to Rodriguez.

"My partner just played up a storm. He made one mis-hit all day long, and that was at 18. I hit it out in the trees all day long except for 18," Hill said.

Hill birdied the 546-yard par-5, one of three birdies he added to the pair's total.

"It doesn't matter how one guy plays," Rodriguez said. "It's the team. We carried each other, we had fun."

For Nichols and Snead, who first played together in the Legends last year, Thursday was quite a change.

"Last year wasn't a very pretty sight," Nichols said.

This year almost got ugly when, after two birdies, both players made bogey at the 153-yard third hole.

"It makes you angry. Bogies are very difficult to make up," Nichols said. They followed it with an eagle 3 on the fifth hole and a front-nine 31.

Defending champion Lee Trevino and Mike Hill were among the groups tied at 62. "I'd rather be ahead ... but we'll take it," Trevino said.

Also at 10-under were Jim Colbert-Tommy Aaron and Butch Baird-Gay Brewer. Bruce Devlin and Don Bies were alone at 9-under 63 — and that after taking a double bogey 6 on the 420-yard 16th hole when both hit approach shots into a creek guarding the green.

"I said to him on the 17th tee that if we birdied the last two that 63 with a double wouldn't be too bad. ... It wasn't," Devlin said.

In the Legendary Champions division for players over 60, Charlie Owens and Billy Maxwell teamed for a 7-under 65. Despite having lost the vision in his left eye, which he said severely hampers his short game, Owens contributed five birdies.

"I've been trying to learn to play with one eye. I haven't really gotten adjusted to that," he said.

Owens said he lost sight in the eye last September due to high blood pressure. The lack of depth perception, he said, may have cost him a birdie on the par-5 18th hole.

"I was really looking forward to birdie on 18," said Owens, 62, who last won a tournament in 1986. "But it's been a long time since I've been in the lead of anything but the soup line. We both got a little shook up there."

At 66 were Bob Toski-Mike Fetchick and Freddie Hawkins-Howie Johnson.

Six tied for lead at Greensboro

Associated Press

PGA

GREENSBORO, N.C. — The undeclared duel between Davis Love III and Fred Couples played second lead Thursday to the cast of players fighting for first place in the Greater Greensboro Open.

Grabbing shares of the spotlight with 5-under 67s were Phil Blackmar, Brian Claar, Jeff Maggert, Robert Gamez, Kenny Perry and Bill Britton. While Love and Couples have each won two PGA Tour events this year, the six leaders have won six tournaments among them in their careers — and Gamez and Blackmar have two apiece.

Love, winner last week of the Heritage Golf Classic, struggled to an opening-round 71, due in part to consecutive bogeys on the back nine. Couples, playing for the first time since winning the Masters two weeks ago, came in at 2-under-par 70.

Staying in the fairway was the key on the Forest Oaks Country Club course, which has developed a reputation for having U.S. Open-caliber rough. However, missing the fairway wasn't always the problem.

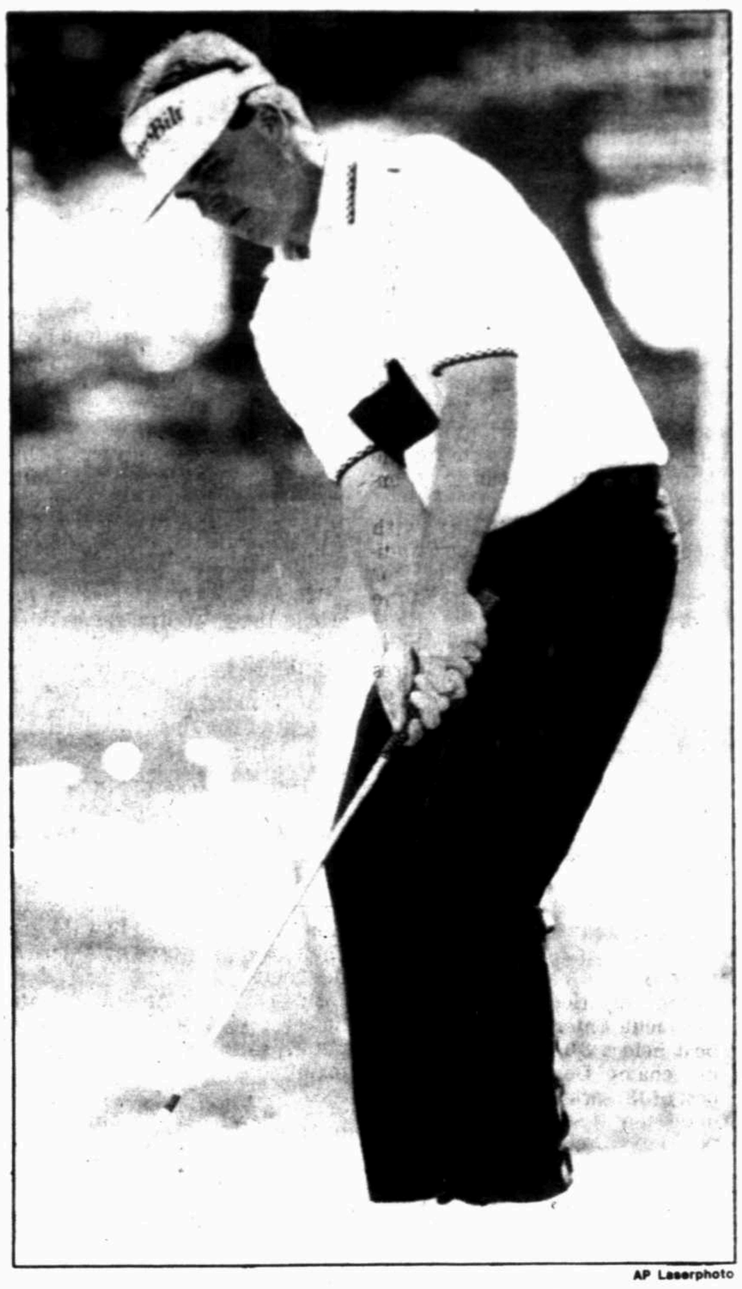

Blackmar had a chance to take the lead for himself, but a three-putt on the 18th green capped a shaky finish for the 6-foot-7 California native.

"I played pretty well today; in fact, I played very well for about 13 holes and kind of lost my rhythm a little bit coming in," Blackmar said. "I didn't hit it too good the last four or five holes."

Perry, who said he could have shot 9- or 10-under, only missed two fairways en route to five birdies and one bogey on his front nine and a 15-foot birdie putt on the back side. He said the tightly bunched scores were a result of keeping the ball out of trouble and of greens made soft by rain Monday and Tuesday.

"The greens are so soft, you've got dartboards out there," he said. "The harder the greens are, the higher the scores are. The softer they are, the lower they are. Everybody bunches up on soft greens. I think that's the reason everyone is shooting so good."

Maggert is in his second year on the PGA Tour after being named 1990 player of the year on the Ben Hogan Tour. He said he's trying to build on that success, and got a good start as one of the top PGA rookies in 1991.

AP Laserphoto

Kenny Perry chips to the fourth green at Forest Oaks Country Club, where he tied with five others for the first-round lead in the Greensboro Open.

"I'm trying to get myself in position for the back nine on Sunday," Maggert said, noting that he managed to claim his part of the lead by avoiding the high rough.

"Fortunately, I escaped it today. If I can keep it out, I feel like I can shoot some pretty good scores," Maggert said.

Britton won the 1989 Centel Classic. If he hadn't gone out of bounds with his tee shot at the par-5 13th, the lead might have been his alone.

Gamez, who had seven birdies and two bogeys, gave credit for his opening-round success to putting guru Don Pooley.

"I feel this is the start of something good here," said Gamez, the 1990 PGA Tour rookie of the year.

Bantamweight retains title for 9th straight time

PARIS (AP) — Orlando Canizales of Laredo, Texas, retained the International Boxing Federation bantamweight crown for the ninth consecutive time when he gained a unanimous 12-round decision Thursday over Francisco Alvarez of Colombia.

The ninth successful defense in a row equaled the record in the bantamweight division held by Carlos Zarate of Mexico between 1976 and 1979. Canizales is still far from the mark of 15 defenses held by American Manuel Ortiz between 1942 and 1946.

It was a near shutout as two of the judges gave every round to Canzales, scoring it 120-110 and 120-108 while the third had it 119-110.

After a warmup first round, Canizales scored repeatedly with solitary lefts and rights through the next few rounds, breaking through Alvarez's defense easily. Canizales was quicker and stronger and controlled the action throughout.

Canizales slowed a bit in the fourth and fifth but came out in a fury in the sixth and belted Alvarez in the last minute of the round. Alvarez managed to stay up but was slowing and went to the ropes for support.

MC golfers open bigger lead at WJCAC tourney

Staff report

ODESSA — Midland College widened its already commanding lead in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference golf tournament Thursday with a two-round 579, 17 strokes better than second place Odessa College in first day action.

MC had held a 54-stroke lead over New Mexico Junior College entering the tournament, which is both the final stop on the WJCAC tour, and the Region V tournament as well.

Western Texas supplanted NMJC from second place overall in the conference race with a 599 Thursday, but trails MC by a wopping 74 strokes with just 18 holes to play.

MC tees off at 8:40 a.m. today at OCC.

The top two teams advance to the NJCAA tournament in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Results from Thursday's first two rounds of the final stop on the Western Junior College Athletic Conference golf tournament, held Thursday at Odessa Country Club:

WJCAC Results: 1. Midland College 286-293—579; 2. Odessa College 296-290—586; 3. Western Texas 296-303—599; 4. New Mexico Junior College 302-301—603; 5. New Mexico Military Institute 299-310—609.

Midland College Results: Grant Thomson 72-74—146; Guy Redford 73-74—147; Steve Armstrong 68-70—138; Sean Bishop 73-75—148.

SALE: Some jerseys date back to Woody Hayes' days

(From 1C)

there is a possibility some lucky buyer could purchase a No. 36 jersey worn by All-American linebackers Chris Spielman or Marcus Marek.

The athletic wear of current players — including basketball's Jim Jackson — is not for sale.

"These were just in the back room," said Swain. "Normally, we bought a set of game jerseys every year in football. We always have a red set and a white set that are in good shape. But they kept mounting up."

Some football jerseys date back to Woody Hayes' coaching days in the late 1970s.

Hoobler said the sale, which begins at 11 a.m. under the east side of the stadium, could net as much as $25,000 or $30,000.

"I don't think we can lose," he said. He said the sale gives Ohio State fans an opportunity to get a piece of history, along with a bargain. Nearby retail stores sell what is called an official jersey for $39.95.

THIS IS WHAT HAPPENS WHEN THE ENGINEERS STAY LATE AND THE ACCOUNTANTS LEAVE EARLY.

Sonoma GT is the result of GMC Truck engineers putting in a lot of overtime. And for you that means a lot of great handling and performance. The kind of performance that only a 195 horsepower V6 and rear wheel anti-lock braking can provide.

And we've done it without a lot of overtime by the accountants. Because what good would it do to give the Sonoma GT great performance characteristics, if no one could afford it?

So, if you want performance, but need a great price, see your GMC Truck dealer.

Devils take command in series against New York

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Chris Terreri and the New Jersey Devils continue to make life miserable for their big-city counterparts.

Terreri's 33-save effort and an opportunistic offense helped the Devils beat the New York Rangers 3-1 on Thursday night to take a 2-1 lead in their Patrick Division semifinal series.

Terreri, generally overshadowed by the Rangers goaltending duo of John Vanbiesbrouck and Mike Richter this season, was the star for a second straight game as New York outshot New Jersey 34-18. Meanwhile, the Devils scored three goals on their first seven shots, cluding Scott Stevens' tiebreaker at 16:14 of the first period.

This time, the Devils victimized Richter, who started his first game of the best-of-7 series after Vanbiesbrouck played the first two in Madison Square Garden.

The series resumes with Game 4 at the Meadowlands Arena on Saturday night.

Bruins 3, Sabres 2

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Adam Oates got his second straight game-winner, breaking a tie with 39 seconds left in the second period to give Boston a win over Buffalo in Game 3 of the Adams Division semifinals.

Oates, who won Game 2 in overtime, gave the Bruins a 2-1 lead in the best-of-7 series with Game 4 in Buffalo on Saturday night.

Oates cut across from the corner to deflect a pass from the point by Ray Bourque past goalie Tom Draper. It was Boston's second power-play goal of the night in only four chances.

Goalie Andy Moog was a standout for the Bruins, making 21 saves, including several stellar stops in the third period to preserve the victory.

NHL Playoffs

Pens 6, Capitals 4

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Penguins were in need of some magic, and who better to supply it than magical Mario Lemieux.

Lemieux figured in every Pittsburgh goal as the Penguins rallied by scoring four times in the second period, then held off Washington in Game 3 of their Patrick Division semifinal series.

The Penguins, trailing 2-1 after one period and on the verge of falling three games behind the Capitals after losing the first two games in Washington, turned to Lemieux to reignite the NHL's highest-scoring offense — and he didn't disappoint.

Lemieux, who missed Game 1 with a shoulder injury and sat out most of the final two periods in Game 2, set up Pittsburgh's first three goals — then scored the final two in a 50-second span to give the Penguins a 5-2 lead.

Whalers 5, Canadiens 2

HARTFORD, Conn. — The Hartford Whalers played one of their best games of the season, even if there weren't many people at the Civic Center to watch it.

An announced crowd of 6,728 saw Murray Craven score two goals and set up another as the Hartford Whalers beat the Montreal Canadiens 5-2 in Game 3 of their Adams Division semifinal series.

The Whalers, who won a league-low 13 home games during the regular season, cut their deficit in the best-of-7 series 2-1, with Game 4 scheduled for Saturday night in Hartford.

The small-but-lively crowd broke a Hartford playoff-record low of 12,245 set three years ago against Montreal and was the third-smallest in Hartford's NHL history.

Krickstein bounces Becker from Monte Carlo

Associated Press

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — Aaron Krickstein sent top-seeded Boris Becker out of the Monte Carlo Open on Thursday with a 6-1, 6-4 third-round rout that took only 72 minutes.

Becker's famed served failed him and he heard derisive whistles from the crowd as Krickstein, the 16th seed and the last American in the tournament, dominated the match.

"The problem was my serve. It was going in fast but I couldn't win a game," Becker said. "I didn't really happen to me before like that. At the end I really didn't know how to win games on my serve."

Actually, Becker conceded, it was more than his serve that troubled him on the red clay courts.

"Pretty much everything was a problem. I had a hard time playing four or five balls in the court," Becker said. "I just didn't play well. That is the bottom line."

Krickstein came into the match ranked 24th in the world compared to Becker who is third.

"Boris obviously didn't play his best today," Krickstein said. "But I was playing well. He has beaten me all five times we played before, and I think I was due."

Becker lost six consecutive games and four consecutive services.

"There was a time at the end of the first set I barely made a point," Becker said. "But then I came back. I was at 2-all and still the match was not over."

He and Krickstein alternated losing service games after that until 4-3 in favor of Krickstein who held to go up 5-3. Krickstein closed out the match two games later, winning a love game with an ace.

"Sometimes it just doesn't go my way. But, of course, this time of the year I have to struggle. It is not my court," Becker said.

"My time is coming in June."

Wimbledon begins June 22. Becker has won the British grass court touornament three times and played in the final six of the last seven years.

Becker made the Monte Carlo final last year for the second time, losing to Sergi Bruguera of Spain, who lost in Wednesday's second round.

However, Becker did little against Krickstein. He double faulted one game away and had an erratic forehand that sprayed wide or into the net.

Krickstein next plays Russian Andrei Chesnokov, who won the title here two years ago. Chesnokov beat No. 9 seed Karel Novacek of Czechoslovakia, 6-2, 7-5.

In other third-round play, Arnaud Boetsch of France defeated 10th seed Emilio Sanchez of Spain, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2 and Mikael Tillstroem, a Swedish qualifier, beat Marc Rosset of Switzerland, 6-7 (2-7), 6-4, 6-2.

Third seed Michael Stich of Germany, who beat Becker at Wimbledon last year, eliminated Javier Sanchez of Spain, 6-4, 7-6 (7-5).

Denver fires Paul Westhead

DENVER (AP) — Paul Westhead, who came running when the Denver Nuggets called, was chased out as coach because his racehorse style failed to deliver enough excitement or victories.

The firing of Westhead, whose 20-62 and 24-58 records were two worst in franchise history, was annouced Thursday.

"We feel it is imperative that we move in a different direction," general manager Bernie Bickerstaff said.

Midway through his first season in Denver, a string of lopsided losses forced Westhead to abandon the relentless fast-break offense so successful for him at Loyola Marymount. Last season, Westhead built a more traditional attack around rookie center Dikembe Mutombo that produced some early success but deteriorated down the stretch.

Westead's record for two seasons, 44-120, was the worst of any NBA coach over that period. He had one year remaining on a three-year contract that paid him slightly more than $250,000 annually.

"Paul came into a very difficult situation," Bickerstaff said. "He has laid a solid foundation with our young players that will be significant in their development in subsequent years.

"We are appreciative of his contribution and wish him the very best."

Bickerstaff said no decision has been made on selecting a new coach.

point shots.

After an 87-87 tie at the start of the fourth period, Indiana took a 106-103 lead with 5:22 remaining. However, Gamble hit a short jumper and McHale followed with a 16-footer, putting Boston ahead to stay.

After Miller was harrassed into a 24-foot shot that bounced off the rim, Lewis drove for a layup and converted a free throw for a three-point play. Chuck Person then was forced to take another long shot and McHale was fouled going for the rebound, making two free throws for a 112-106 advantage with 3:05 left.

After Williams made two free throws, Parish scored off his own rebound, then went back to his own end to rebound a missed layup by Detlef Schrempf.

McHale and Lewis cashed two free throws apiece to complete the decisive 15-2 run with 1:33 to go and Boston ahead 118-108, its biggest lead.

Sonics 117, Warriors 109

OAKLAND, Calif. — Sean Kemp and Ricky Pierce scored 28 points apiece and the underdog Seattle SuperSonics defeated Golden State.

The Warriors, playing with a homecourt advantage for the first time since 1977, lost it in this best-of-5 series when the Sonics exploited their size advantage, outrebounding Golden State 52-34.

Derrick McKey scored 19 points and Gary Payton had 14 points and 12 assists for Seattle, the sixth seed in the Western Conference. Kemp grabbed 16 rebounds.

Billy Owens scored 25 points, Sarunas Marciulionis 23 and Tim Hardaway 22 for third-seeded Golden State. Chris Mullin struggled throughout and finished with 16 points, nearly 10 under his regular-season average.

Spurs, Suns both lose mentors at season's end

Associated Press

PHOENIX — The losing coach in the San Antonio-Phoenix playoff series won't be back next season. Neither will the winner for that matter.

On the eve of their opening-round Western Conference matchup, the Suns joined the Spurs as a team with a lame-duck coach.

Cotton Fitzsimmons, credited with turning a lottery team into one of the NBA's best in four years, said Thursday he will stop coaching the Suns and rejoin the front office. Former UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian already is set to coach the Spurs next season, succeeding general manager Bob Bass, who took over on an interim basis after Larry Brown was fired.

"To be able to put a team together was great," said Fitzsimmons, who became the Suns' first player personnel director in 1987 and was persuaded the next year to add coaching to his duties.

Paul Westphal, who coached at two small colleges in Phoenix before he was hired in 1988 as Fitzsimmons' assistant, will replace his mentor after the playoffs, team president Jerry Colangelo said.

"To be able to coach that team on the court was fantastic," Fitzsimmons said. "And then to have it be successful ... I told my players they've given me a great ride on the Orient Express."

The best-of-5 series begins Friday night in Veterans Memorial Coliseum, the only home the Suns have known for 24 years. After the playoffs, the Suns and the front office will move into the America West Arena, which seats an additional 5,000.

Fitzsimmons, 60, who coached the team to its first winning record in the early 1970s, said he initially planned to coach just three years after Colangelo persuaded him to get back onto the court.

Fitzsimmons said he agreed to an extra year after realizing that Colangelo was busy overseeing completion of the $89 million arena.

Fitzsimmons led Phoenix to 210 victories the last four seasons, topping the 50-win mark each year for a record equaled only by the Utah Jazz.

Colangelo said Fitzsimmons decided to step down about 10 to 14 days ago.

He told a news conference he decided to make the announcement to squelch rumors.

Colangelo coached the Suns to the playoffs in 1969-70, the team's second season in the NBA, but Fitzsimmons was its first winning coach.

The 1970-71 team was 48-34 under Fitzsimmons, who was hired from Kansas State. The next year the Suns went 49-33.

Fitzsimmons left to coach in Atlanta, Buffalo, Kansas City and San Antonio before returning to the Suns. In the last four seasons, the Suns have gone 55-27, 54-28, 55-27 and 53-29.

His 314-178 record is the best of any of the seven coaches in Suns history.

For his 19 years as an NBA coach, Fitzsimmons is 805-745, fifth in regular-season games coached and sixth all-time in victories.

Westphal was a five-time All-Star in a playing career that included 12 seasons with the Boston Celtics, Suns, New York Knicks and Seattle SuperSonics.

He began coaching at Southwestern College in Phoenix, where he had a 21-9 record in 1985-86. Two years later, Westphal's Grand Canyon team won the NAIA championship, and the Suns came calling.

Westphal said he had a multi-year contract but declined to give specifics.

"If it's multi-day, it's better than mine was," Fitzsimmons quipped.

Colangelo said he promised Westphal four years ago he would succeed Fitzsimmons and praised the new coach's acceptance of his apprenticeship.

"He is one of the most creative basketball people I have ever been around," Fitzsimmons said of Westphal. "He's not afraid of anything, and he will try anything."

Westphal tried to downplay his new role.

"Right now, I'm just an assistant coach, and we're trying to focus on the playoffs," he said.

Lionel Hollins, another assistant coach, will be Westphal's chief assistant, with current NBA scout Scotty Robertson joining Westphal and Hollins on the bench as an assistant.

Todd Quinter, the team's video coordinator and scout, will replace Robertson, Colangelo said.

The Suns were 28-54 and out of the playoffs in 1987-88. More attention was focused on a drug scandal involving former and active members of the team than on its future.

Fitzsimmons began dealing in February 1988, when he traded Larry Nance and Mike Sanders to Cleveland for Kevin Johnson, Mark West and Tyron Corbin.

Ex-Bay City coaches indicted

BAY CITY (AP) — A grand jury has indicted Bay City High School's former athletic director and head football coach and a former junior high coach in connection with a student's sexual assaults.

Jim Richard Walker and Johnny Wooley are named in the Matagorda County grand jury's sealed indictments Wednesday.

The indictments, which were unsealed Thursday, name the two in connection with sexual assault of a child under the age of 17.

Walker, 49, stepped down as athletic director and head coach last month. The 29-year-old Wooley, former Bay City junior high coach, was arrested in Conroe and returned to Bay City.

The female student was the victim in two attacks, said Matagorda County District Attorney Danny Shindler.

FRIDAY, APRIL 24, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Keep your ideals firmly in mind. Exciting new projects will lead to new financial security in late summer. Emotions reach a peak in September. End a relationship that is going nowhere. Spending Christmas in a tropical climate sounds especially exciting. Your work responsibilities will increase early in 1993. Give your partner the benefit of the doubt next spring. A question of honor may be involved. Romance thrives on trust.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Shirley MacLaine, superstar Barbra Streisand, artist Willem de Kooning, actor J.D. Cannon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Married life is on a smoother course. Home-related projects will keep you busy. Be careful not to step on someone's toes. The power of suggestion will help a romantic dream come true.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Annoyances at work fade when you get an exciting opportunity to travel. Think things through before making an important decision. Loyalty to a friend comes before self-interest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your leadership skills attract new notice today. Postpone purchasing expensive items until they go on sale. Keep an enticing new romantic relationship to yourself for the time being.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A charming approach will help you with a financial request. You get the kind of backing you need, but there are strings attached. An afternoon phone call reveals something you had not anticipated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Curb an urge to take financial risks. Although certain news is not to your liking, it could turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Get your priorities in better order.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep a high profile today! You are at the top of your game and should attract favorable notice. A purchase for the home will make a good impression. Roll out the red carpet.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are on the golden path to success. Household and wardrobe items can be bought for a song. A project or investment yields windfall profits. Hosting a party helps you cultivate new friendships.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Quick thinking or a local jaunt brings new financial gains or shopping bargains. Guard against acting bullheaded when dealing with bigwigs; they will not stand for defiance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A journey or enlightening experience could lead you to a pot of gold. A dream can come true if you take steps to advance your goals. Strengthen your ties to a service organization.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your mate or steady date may not feel like helping you get things done at home this weekend. Give some thought to your academic goals. An influential friend may be able to help out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Problems could develop if you are not more flexible about a relationship. If someone wants an answer to a serious question, give him one. Sign papers, run errands and make key phone calls.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be realistic about a career or legal problem. The answer could be financial. Now is the time to advance your social aims. Issue more invitations.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are even-tempered, energetic and ambitious. Their good-natured persistence lets them triumph over almost any obstacle. Managing their own affairs and finances is of prime importance to these Taureans. They are happiest when surrounded by their loved ones but refuse to be dominated by their family's wishes. Their confidence in their own judgment makes them first-rate executives. They are not afraid to take full responsibility for their decisions.

GOREN BRIDGE

With Omar Sharif and Tannah Hirsch

ONE PLAYER'S MEAT

Neither vulnerable. West deals.

	NORTH ♠ A Q ♡ 8 ♢ K J 9 7 4 ♣ A K J 4 3
WEST ♠ K 8 4 3 2 ♡ J 9 ♢ A 10 5 3 ♣ 8 5		EAST ♠ J 10 6 ♡ A K 10 7 6 4 ♢ 8 6 ♣ 10 7
	SOUTH ♠ 9 7 5 ♡ Q 5 3 2 ♢ Q 2 ♣ Q 9 6 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♢	2 ♡	Pass
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	3 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡

All the techniques available to declarer also are in the defensive armory. That includes the holdup play. It is not unusual to find both sides employing that tactic during the play of a hand; but in the same suit?

East's jump to two hearts was of the weak variety. North had to have a pretty good hand to reopen at the three-level vulnerable, so South upgraded the queen in partner's suit and decided to hope that partner had a spade stopper by contracting for three no trump.

After the jack of hearts opening lead, East realized winning the heart and forcing out the queen would prove fruitless, since there was no entry to hand. So East simply encouraged with the seven of hearts. Had South won this trick, the hand would have been consigned to the album of "lost opportunities." When in with the ace of diamonds West would return a heart, and the defenders would cash enough heart tricks to defeat the game.

However, declarer realized the one chance for success lay in finding the ace of diamonds and the king of spades with West. Therefore, South allowed the jack of hearts to win the first trick. West continued with a heart, and East either had to take the king and ace immediately or risk going to bed with at least one of them. With East on lead even the spades were safe from attack, so declarer could force out the ace of diamonds at leisure and be sure of nine tricks.

Terrier owned by Bill Cosby wins national championship

NEW YORK — The long story of how Bill Cosby became part owner of a champion terrier is a tale that dogs the wag.

Cosby is part-owner of Champion Black Watch Sophie Tucker, the lakeland terrier that won the $50,000 American Kennel Club National Invitational Championship in Baltimore on April 7. The show airs Sunday on CBS-TV.

Cosby met his partner, show dog breeder Jean Heath, in 1959 when he was a corpsman undergoing surgery at the U.S. Naval Hospital in Philadelphia and she was Lt. Jean Smith, his physical therapist.

"Then he stayed on as one of my technicians," said Ms. Heath, who employed Cosby for about a year, until he was discharged and began his career as a comedian.

They renewed their acquaintance in 1972. Cosby suggested they buy land, build a kennel and raise dogs.

She said, " 'No, I'm not ready yet to buy land. We'll just go slowly, and I'll keep the dogs in my house,' " Cosby recalled in a telephone news conference Wednesday.

"That was '72," Cosby said. But by 1992, when Ms. Heath was ready to expand the breeding business, Cosby growled at the $3.2 million pricetag.

"I said, 'No, you keep the dogs in your house.' "

SANTA ROSA, Calif. — Grammy Award-winner Bonnie Raitt lent her name and her singing talent to Democratic congressional candidate Dan Hamburg in his campaign to preserve California's coastline.

Raitt

Raitt and singer-songwriter Holly Near raised $80,000 this weekend in two concerts for the Northern California candidate, who supports forestry reform and a ban on oil drilling off the coast.

"I'm just so happy that somebody is running for office who represents a change in direction ... vis-a-vis the North Coast," Raitt said Wednesday.

Raitt owns a vacation home in the region. Near is a native of the district.

Hamburg is challenging first-term Republican Rep. Frank Riggs.

Raitt's hits include "Luck of the Draw" and "Something to Talk About." Near's folk-style recordings include "Harp" with Arlo Guthrie and Pete Seeger.

WASHINGTON — With one day to go, more than a million ballots have been cast in the Postal Service's Elvis election.

Cards and letters must be postmarked by midnight today to count in the contest, which will determine which image of the rock 'n' roll king will appear on a postage stamp next year.

Postal Service spokeswoman Robin Minard said Thursday that 1,018,000 ballots had been received so far.

The votes are being tabulated by a private company and postal officials say they have asked the firm not to report preliminary totals.

The winner will be announced in June at Elvis Presley's Graceland Mansion in Memphis, and the stamp will be issued in 1993, leading off an American music series.

People interested in voting can use official post-card ballots available at many post offices or they can write their choice for the young Elvis (A) or the latter-day Las Vegas Elvis (B) on a postcard and send it to: Elvis Poll, P.O. Box Elvis, Memphis, TN, 38101-1001.

PIGEON FORGE, Tenn. — Dolly Parton says Jane Fonda will not attend the opening of Parton's theme park this weekend after protests from Vietnam war veterans.

Parton

Parton and Fonda co-starred along with Lily Tomlin in the movie "9 to 5."

Tomlin will attend the seasonal opening of Dollywood, in eastern Tennessee about 40 miles south of Knoxville.

"I invited Jane because she is one of my show business friends from the '9 to 5' movie," Parton said in a statement Thursday.

"Because we are opening a new area called 'Showstreet,' I was thinking showbiz, not politics. I am very sensitive to the Vietnam veterans, and I didn't mean to offend them or my people in east Tennessee," the country singer and actress said.

NEW YORK — "Mr. Television" Milton Berle is taking aim at senior coach potatoes.

The 83-year-old comedian has been named the president's special adviser on fitness for older adults. He's joining forces with Arnold Schwarzenegger, chairman of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

"Although his profession ... is not known for a healthy lifestyle, Milton has always been one of the exceptions," Schwarzenegger said. "He still rides the stationary bike, does a lot of walking, shadow boxes, punches the heavy bag and maintains a healthy diet. He's a great role model for our older citizens."

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key (*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices were lower on Wall Street this afternoon, as stocks gave up early gains that followed optimistic economic news.

After two and a half hours of trading, the Dow Jones industrial average was down 18.33 points at 3,320.44.

Declining issues outnumbered advancers by about 5 to 3 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 631 up, 967 down and 578 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 157.76 million shares as of 2 p.m.

Before the market opened, the government reported that the number of first-time jobless claims had gone down during the second week in April and orders to U.S. factories for durable goods rose 1.6 percent in March.

The Dow moved higher in early trading, but it soon reversed course, along with the broader market.

The NYSE composite index was down 1.02 at 224.40. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.32 at 385.03.

Among actively traded issues on the NYSE, Johnson & Johnson was down 4 at 89, International Game Technology was down 3⅛ at 22¾, Glaxo Holdings was down 1⅛ at 25¼ and RJR Nabisco was unchanged at 9½.

Prices unchanged

NEW YORK — Crude oil futures closed virtually unchanged Thursday as the traders marked time ahead of a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in June settled at $20.11 per barrel, the same as Wednesday, on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The price of oil for delivery in later months rose a few cents.

AmEx earnings

NEW YORK — American Express Co. said its first-quarter profits fell 6 percent before a gain from new accounting procedures, as the company spent more to promote its ailing credit card and travel business.

The company benefited from strong performances at its financial services, brokerage and investment banking, and financial data units. The company was hurt last year by the recession and problems with its credit card operations.

Overall, American Express on Thursday reported net income of $465 million, or 95 cents per share, in the first three months of 1992.

Delta loses

ATLANTA — Delta Air Lines lost $151.6 million in the January-March quarter, blaming a weak economy and discount fares.

The loss announced Thursday amounted to $3.16 per share for the period that is Delta's third fiscal quarter. Delta reported an $84 million loss, or $2.09 per share, in the same quarter last year. Delta's revenues were $2.81 billion for the 1992 quarter and $2.30 billion for the 1991 quarter.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar was mixed against major currencies Thursday despite better-than-expected news about the U.S. economy.

In New York, the dollar was quoted at 1.6605 German marks, down from 1.6620 late Wednesday.

In Tokyo, the dollar fell to a closing 134.15 Japanese yen from 134.25 yen at Wednesday's close.

In New York, the British pound rose to $1.7660, from $1.7625 late Wednesday.

Stocks rebound

NEW YORK — Stock prices staged a sharp rebound in heavy volume Thursday, finishing mixed as they recovered from early losses on a plunge in the bond market.

Jobless claims lowest in 6 months

■ Decreased applications for first-time unemployment, coupled with increased orders for durable goods indicates recession has ended, economists say.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Applications for unemployment benefits fell to a six-month low this month, the government said Thursday. Factory orders for expensive, durable goods advanced moderately in March.

"The fruits of the recovery are now reaching American workers and their families," Labor Secretary Lynn Martin said.

Economists said the reports confirm that the recession has ended. They cautioned, however, that growth so far has been strong enough only to stem layoffs, not to put the unemployed back to work.

The number of Americans filing first-time unemployment insurance claims fell to 404,000 for the week ending April 11, down from 416,000 a week earlier and the lowest since early October.

It was the third consecutive weekly decline. The latest drop was unexpected and marked a clear departure from the first three months of this year, when new claims averaged just under 450,000 a week.

The Commerce Department said durable goods orders, for items such as trucks and turbines expected to last at least three years, rose 1.6 percent to $122.6 billion last month, a slightly bigger gain than anticipated by analysts.

March was the third month without a decline. Orders were unchanged in February, a revision from a previous report showing a small decline, and up 2.4 percent in January. Despite recent gains, however, orders still have not regained the ground lost by a 5 percent drop in December.

"The March increase is consistent with other data ... which suggests that activity in the manufacturing sector has begun to pick up," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Much of the strength in March was concentrated in a 6.3 percent surge in orders for transportation equipment, particularly aircraft. But most other categories also posted increases. Orders for items other than transportation equipment edged up 0.1 percent, only the second advance in eight months.

"The economy is like a B-17 loaded with bombs. It's airborne, but it's having trouble clearing the trees at the end of the runway," said economist Thomas Runiewicz of the WEFA Group, a Bala Cynwyd, Pa., consulting firm.

Although pleased with the increase in new orders, economists noted that the backlog of unfilled orders slipped 0.6 percent to $480.6 billion, the seventh drop in a row.

The backlog is a measure of whether the current workforce and production facilities can keep up with demand. A decline means there is less pressure on factories for rehiring.

Manufacturers' first response to rising demand usually is to ask existing employees to work overtime. Factories normally expand their payrolls only after sustained increases in orders.

"Businesses are not going to go out and hire new workers when their present work force can make the backlog dwindle. ... We'd like to see orders rising strongly enough so factories are encouraged to hire more workers and reduce the unemployment rate," said economist Paul Lally of R.H. Wrightson & Associates in New York.

Industry discussion

Osama Abdul Razzak Al-Hiti, Iraqi oil minister, expressed concern at a Thursday OPEC meeting in Vienna, that the industry would be criticized at the upcoming conference on global warming because of carbon dioxide emissions that are a by-product of burning oil and other fossil fuels.

Durable good orders are economic indicator

NEW YORK (AP) — Items like washing machines, paper clips and tiny metal Elvis refrigerator magnets, along with pricier goods such as cars and industrial machinery, are on a long Commerce Department list of "durable goods" — items that last three years or more.

Their durability means they may not be replaced by consumers during troubled economic times — but might jump in demand during a recovery.

A poor durables report can signal layoffs down the road, said Steve Andrews of the Census Bureau, because fewer orders from retailers to factories can mean less production capacity is needed.

However, durables are not always the most reliable economic indicator, in part because the Commerce Department often significantly revises the report based on new information.

In addition, since the category runs the gamut from lumber to defense industries, the data can be extremely volatile.

All told, the Commerce Department's list of durables includes metals, industrial machinery, computer ofice equipment, household appliances, motor vehicles, aircraft, chips, instruments, stone, clay and glass products.

Accounting firm to settle age discrimination lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP) — Arthur Andersen & Co. has agreed to pay more than $278,000 to 13 Houston job seekers the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission charged were victims of age discrimination, the agency's chairman said Thursday.

The EEOC filed a class action lawsuit April 9 against the Chicago-based accounting firm as "part of our continuing effort to fight the scourge of age discrimination in the workplace," agency chairman Evan Kemp Jr. said.

In the lawsuit, filed in federal district court in Houston, the EEOC alleged that Arthur Andersen's Houston office willfully violated federal law by refusing to hire a class of qualified applicants who were age 40 or older into vacant entry-level accountant positions because of their age.

Under the settlement, signed Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Samuel Kent of Galveston, Arthur Andersen must pay $278,628 in back pay and damages to the 13 unsuccessful job candidates. In addition, the company will offer entry level accountant positions to three of the 13 who still want them, and will aggressively recruit accounting applicants over age 40, James Sacher, the EEOC's regional attorney in Houston, said.

The settlement also calls for court supervision for three years to make sure Arthur Andersen continues to comply with its terms.

The firm admitted no wrongdoing in the settlement, officials said.

Sacher said the settlement was noteworthy because it shows the EEOC is taking on more cases for professional employees.

"We're very concerned about age discrimination, and we're constantly investigating," he said. "I think that nationwide there have been problems in every industry with some degree of age discrimination."

Sales of autos, light trucks sluggish

N.Y. Times News Service

Sales of cars and light trucks built in North America rose 10.3 percent in mid-April over the year-earlier period when sales were depressed, auto makers reported Thursday. But industry analysts said they saw few optimistic signs in the sluggish seasonally adjusted selling rate of 5.5 million cars.

"The question is, where is the recovery?" said Ronald A. Glantz, an analyst with Dean Witter Reynolds in San Francisco. He noted that industry sources had told him that both showroom traffic and closure rates were down in the period. "Normally you have a lot of discretionary buyers in spring, but we're not getting the discretionary buyers," he said.

Light-truck sales increased 18.6 percent, based on an average daily selling rate, to 110,612 in the April 11-20 period, while car sales rose 5.1 percent to 154,818. There were eight selling days in mid-April, compared with nine a year earlier.

Although some analysts said they believed the government statistics used to calculate the seasonally adjusted selling rate of 5.5 million represented a low estimate, they nonetheless said that sales figures remained weak.

They cited several possible explanations for the sluggish market, including fewer sales to commercial fleets, higher prices on many models and lower incentives. "But there's no obvious reason why," said Harvey Heinbach, an analyst with Merrill Lynch.

Tom Webb, chief economist with the National Automobile Dealers Association, said that in light of rising employment rates and other factors, auto sales should be better. If they do not improve, he cautioned, "they are going to bring the recovery to a halt."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Adviser pays mutual fund officers, directors

By Bill Doyle

Q: The proxy statement I received from a company in which I own stock lists the compensation of the chief executive officer, some other officers and members of the board of directors. Needless to say, I am appalled at the salaries and perks these people receive.

Doyle

The proxy statement of my mutual fund came in the mail recently. I cannot find any specific salaries, perks, etc. There is mention of the percentages paid to "the adviser."

Is there any kind of law forcing mutual funds to reveal how much each executive officer and director is paid, including stock options and other perks? How would I go about finding this information?

A: There is no such law or regulation because mutual fund officers and directors are not paid by the fund. Instead, they get their salaries, fees and other compensation from the adviser.

Every mutual fund has a contract with its investment adviser, to which it pays a fee, called either an "advisory fee" or a "management fee." The fee is calculated as a percentage of the fund's assets. It's typically one-half of 1 percent, although it's usually scaled down from that as the fund's assets increase.

The investment adviser manages the fund, providing investment advice and other services. Arrangements vary. At some fund organizations, the advisory fee covers most of a fund's operating expenses. At others, additional expenses are paid by the fund.

You'll get a pretty good fix on this by reading the summary of expenses table, which the Security and Exchange Commission insists be printed up front in the fund's prospectus. A well-run mutual fund keeps those annual expenses below 1 percent.

The adviser is a separate organization from the fund. If the adviser is a stockholder-owned corporation, you might find the information you seek in that corporation's proxy statement, which every company must send to stockholders in advance of their annual meeting.

One last note: Mutual funds are prohibited from granting options on fund shares. However, fund officers and directors might get options to buy the advisory corporation's stock. Information on that will appear in the adviser's proxy statement.

Q: In daily tables of New York Stock Exchange trading, some newspapers list each stock's price-earnings ratio, number of shares traded, the high, low, close and even the 52-week high and low.

I find this very helpful and would like to see that data for mutual funds. Where can I find it?

A: No place, for the simple reason it is irrelevant.

The P-E ratio, which is the relationship between a stock's market price and its earnings per share, has no connection to mutual funds. Every mutual fund holds many different stocks and/or other securities as investments. The closest you can come to that tidbit is in mutual fund annual reports, when some funds mention the average P-E of their stock holdings.

The number of shares traded means nothing as far as funds are concerned. Mutual fund shares aren't "traded," as in stock exchange transactions, where some investor sells the shares another investor buys. Mutual funds stand ready to redeem their shares every business day. Most funds continuously issue new shares to investors who purchase shares.

Daily high and low prices don't apply to funds. A mutual fund "prices" its shares by adding up all its assets — mostly the securities it holds — subtracting its liabilities and dividing by the number of shares outstanding — owned by investors. The resulting number is the asset value per share. That's done once a day at all funds and more frequently at some.

Mutual funds sell new shares at asset value, plus commission — if any. Most redeem shares at asset value. But some deduct either a redemption fee or contingent deferred sales charge.

Making own toys teaches children many lessons

WACO (AP) — Parents who want to spend quality time with their children and foster a creative instinct can help them make art out of junk.

Mary Burke, education coordinator for The Art Center at McLennan Community College, said children can take trash and build treasures.

"This helps them learn about being resourceful," she said. "They also learn to look at things in a different manner."

'This helps them learn about being resourceful. They also learn to look at things in a different manner.'

— Mary Burke
education coordinator

Most of the art can be made by children as early as age 4 with a little help from parents willing to take an interest.

Burke said parents can make a family project out of collecting household goods to keep the art in steady supply.

"A goody barrel can be designated, and they can help save recyclable goods for their own art," she said. "Or you take a treasure hunt outside and collect whatever they are interested in."

When working on the art, Burke said, parents shouldn. They should give them the freedom to create, she said.

"Parents can put the art items in the center of a table and let their children choose what they want to work on," she said.

Burke said children will need basic supplies, junk items and a vivid imagination.

She recommends that parents buy the primary colors of paint, plus black and white for contrasting. They can be water-based, acrylic or tempera, she said.

Some ideas to get started follow:

STYROFOAM PRINTS

Styrofoam meat trays can be used to make prints. First, cut a square out of the center of the tray. (Save the square edge surrounding it for another project.)

With a pencil or the end of a paint brush, the child carves a picture or design onto the Styrofoam without pushing all the way through.

When the picture is complete, paint over it with any type of paint, press the painted side onto a sheet of paper, the remove the tray.

The finished product will be a painted surface with white indentations wherever the child has carved.

It can be framed with a slightly bigger cardboard frame cut from panty hose packages, cereal boxes or anything else that has been discarded.

STYROFOAM LOOM

To make a loom, use the square edge from the tray. Punch an equal number of holes across the tops, bottoms and sides of the tray. String pieces of yarn between the top and bottom holes. Tie the pieces of yarn.

Then yarn is interwoven horizontally until the loom is full. The final product can be decorated with buttons, leaves or feathers.

Burke said fabric scraps also can be used to make woven items.

MAKING A MONO PRINT

On a surface that won't absorb liquids, such as wax paper or an owly.

The paper will absorb the paint and make an original print each time.

GROCERY SACK WRAPPING PAPER

To make wrapping paper, first make a stamp out of an eraser or a potato by drawing a design on it and carving it out with a knife or razor blade. Sponges, bottle caps, spools and corn on the cob can also be used.

Turn the paper bag inside out and cut it the size you need. Dip the stamp or desired object into paint, then stamp it onto the bag.

MAKING MASKS

Masks can be made from paper plates, paper bags and construction paper. The child can cut them into any shape or design, then make holes for eyes, mouth and nose.

Paper plates are strong enough to withstand children gluing different items onto them for decoration.

After the child decorates the mask, he can use a Popsicle stick, straw or tongue depressor for the handle.

THREE-DIMENSONAL ART

Such paper items as toilet tissue tubes, cereal boxes, and styrofoam popcorn lend themselves to making animals, houses and other three-dimensional items.

Children can cut holes into the boxes and place tubes inside them. Styrofoam popcorn and other items will help to decorate the items.

NATURE SCULPTURES

Children can make sculptures out of anything found outdoors. Glue or tie sticks, leaves, rocks and flowers together to form an animal, person or make-believe creation.

FAMILY MATTERS

Son's drinking habits worry mother

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: Our 21-year-old son met us for Spring Break this year for skiing. He is a junior at (a major university). We all had a good time but I have become worried about his drinking habits. He was drinking from four to six beers after we finished skiing each day.

May

I tried to talk to his father about his drinking, but he said to just leave him alone and that he was doing fine. I think that's entirely too much to drink. On the last day I finally said something to our son about his drinking. He said that it was not big deal and that he drinks a few beers each day with his friends to help him unwind. That just scared me even more. He said that everyone in his fraternity drinks on a regular basis and that at least he's "legal."

I asked him to try and cut back but he got angry and said that he didn't think anything was wrong. We made up before he left but I'm still worried. I just can't believe that it's OK for a young man to drink that much beer so often. His grades are acceptable but nothing to really brag about. As far as I can tell, except for his drinking there's nothing to really worry about. Am I wrong to be so worried about this? WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: I would be worried too, if he were my son. A recent survey of college students found that they "generally have a higher prevalence of heavy drinking than do people who do not attend college." According to the survey, almost 4 percent of all college students drink every day. Since the consumption of alcohol is so high among this group, the alcohol industry markets heavily to this population.

Some other frightening statistics from the Office for Substance Abuse Prevention include:

- Between 240,000 and 360,000 of our 12 million college students will die of alcohol-related causes. This is the equivalent to the entire undergraduate student body of the "Big Ten" colleges dying as from alcohol abuse.
- As many college students in America will die from alcohol-related causes as will receive advanced degrees.

Contact Alcoholics Anonymous (682-4721) in Midland and learn more about heavy drinking. I believe your son is "playing with fire," and does not know it.

DEAR FAMILY: I need some advice. I recently discovered that my husband is using marijuana. When he was in college he was a habitual user, but he's in his early 40s now and that kind of immature behavior should be over and done with. We have two preschool children who he is a loving father to.

He's a good provider and is active in our church. He doesn't see his use as a problem and thinks I'm overreacting. He says he should be able to "relax" this way. Aside from legal and health concerns, it infuriates me that he basically doesn't care that this bothers me so much. I worry about the legal and social consequences if his use is discovered. I don't know what to do. UP IN SMOKE

DEAR UP: Your husband is in denial about his drug use. For him to admit to his addiction would be his acknowledging that he (his self) is out of control, and that is the last thing that any addict wants to admit. Denial is an intrinsic part of the addiction.

Usually, recovery begins after the addict "hits bottom," but unfortunately the spouse and children of the addict are often the ones who bear most of the pain and grief. Your challenge is how to stop "helping" and begin to help. Logic is not going to work on your husband — but then it seldom does work on any addicted person because addiction is illogical almost by definition.

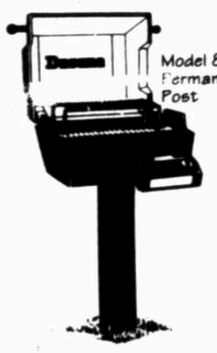

I encourage you to prepare yourself to deal with your husband's marijuana addiciton. Call Narcotics Anonymous (560-5224) to get more detailed recovery information. The Johnson Institute's booklet, "Chemical Dependence: Yes, You Can Do Something," can be very helpful for families of chemical dependents. You can order the booklet by calling 800-231-5165.

You have already begun to do something by writing me. I encourage you to continue along the recovery journey. Your husband's addiction is especially destructive since he is using an illegal substance. There are additional and potentially powerful negative social and work consequences to his action.

Jim May is the director of the Family Wellness Center.

"Oil and Gas: For Women Only" seminar will be presented 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. April 25 at the Petroleum Museum.

Focus of the seminar is basic "paperwork" terminology in the oil business, such as working interest, royalty interest, depletion allowance and division orders.

DEAR ABBY

Good hints should help woman with bad breath

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is for the lady whose problem was halitosis — bad breath:

It is most likely due to a chemical imbalance in her system and can be successfully treated with chlorophyll tablets, which can be purchased in any health food store. They will also eliminate temporary bad breath caused by tobacco, alcohol, onions and garlic. — VICKSBURG, MISS.

Van Buren

DEAR VICKSBURG: I was deluged with letters from readers who have also "been there" and are eager to help. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Please tell the lady with bad breath to mix baking soda and peroxide to the consistency of toothpaste, and brush her teeth with it three to five times every day. I read this in a magazine and it really works — MEMPHIS, TENN.

DEAR ABBY: Bad breath can be the result of the formation of exudates in the crevices above the tonsils. These exudates contain bacteria that have a very offensive odor. I cured my problem by flushing out the crevices with a Water Pik, set on the lowest setting, once a week. — DENTON, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: My husband had terrible bad breath! Finally, after several rounds of antibiotics, his doctor sent him to an E.N.T. specialist. The new doctor found the cause: My husband's lingual tonsils (the ones at the base of the tongue — not the set on either side of his throat) were infected (they were rotting!), hence the terrible odor. The tonsils were removed, which solved his bad breath problem. — PUEBLO, COLO.

DEAR ABBY: I went from doctor to doctor — finally, the last one said, "The yeast from foods we consume can cause it." I am a big bread lover, so I cut down on my consumption of bread. — FREE AT LAST IN INDIANA

DEAR ABBY: If the woman with bad breath would simply brush her tongue every time she brushes her teeth, her bad breath would disappear like magic. I have been doing this ever since I read it in your column about 15 years ago. — ELEANOR IN BOZEMAN, MONT.

DEAR ABBY: After my best friend told me my breath was offensive, I went to my doctor. He sent me to my dentist, who said it could be due to tartar under my gums. He referred me to a dentist who specializes in the scraping tartar procedure, and it solved my problem. — NO NAME IN NORWALK, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: When people tend to step back a few feet as you come up to speak with them, you can be sure something is wrong. At times my mouth tasted like the bottom of a chicken coop. I went to the doctor and he prescribed Mylanta II, because he thought my bad breath was caused by food lodging in my hiatal hernia. He said the Mylanta II would coat the pocket of the hernia and allow the food particles to slip out. Such a simple remedy for something that caused so much distress! Thanks for being there, Abby. — PEG S. IN FLA.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that has bugged me for years. Can you — or one of your readers — help me, please?

While dining in a posh restaurant, how do you handle the endless strings of cheese that dangle from your knife, fork, teeth and chin when eating lasagna or onion soup?

Should you spin your fork, slash with the knife, disconnect with two hands, or should you ask the server for a pair of small scissors? — STRUNG OUT IN AUGUSTA, GA.

DEAR STRUNG OUT: Spin your fork and use your hand and napkin to keep your teeth and chin as free of "strings" as possible. Anything goes — as long as you get the lasagna down your gullet. You won't look very elegant, but it won't matter because nobody will care how you look — and in all probability, they won't look any better.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a disagreement with a fellow worker. John says a sister-in-law is a blood relation only; for example, a brother's wife. I say that my husband's brother's wife is also MY sister-in-law.

Who is correct? — JUST CURIOUS IN ORANGE CITY, IOWA

DEAR JUST CURIOUS: According to Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, you are right. "Sister-in-law" is defined as: 1) the sister of one's spouse; 2a) the wife of one's brother; 2b) the wife of one's spouse's brother.

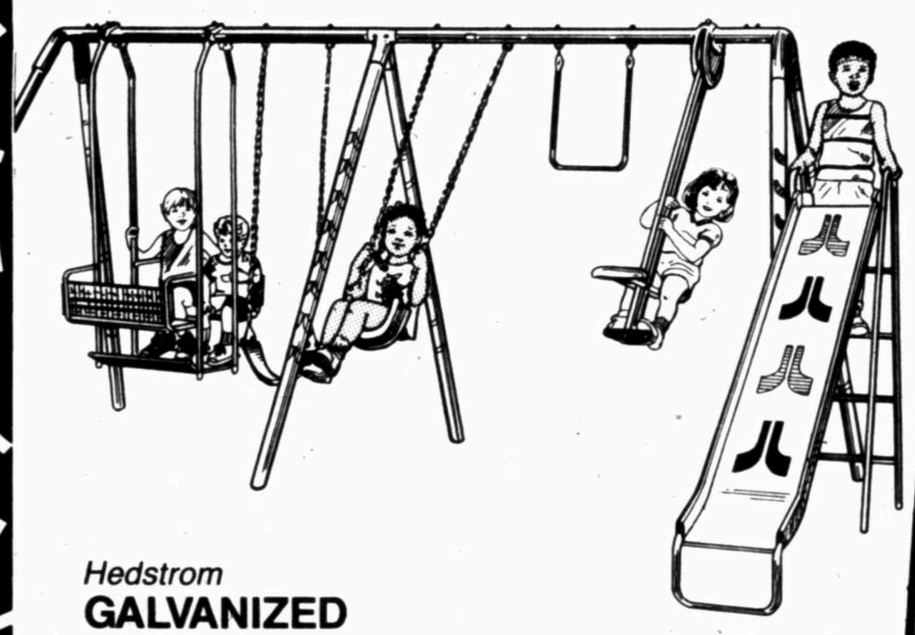

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

IT'S YOUR LIFE

Estate planning is wise investment of time

By Steve Edwards

QUESTION: What is estate planning?

ANSWER: Estate planning is simply the accumulation, protection and disposition of your estate assets. You are the guardian of your future. The penalties to a family for failure to plan can be very severe. Historically, it's been found that the larger your unplanned estate, the greater amount you pay in taxes, probate and administration expenses. But the smaller your unplanned estate, the more any reduction will be felt by your family and the more serious its effects can be. While the laws governing estate planning are quite complex, the time spent in unraveling and understanding them will be quite worthwhile. By completing steps necessary to satisfy your estate planning objectives, you will provide immediate and necessary personal data for those who must act for you in case of emergency. Remember, many questions which could have been answered before a death must be worked out laboriously by those who survive — and at a great expense of time and money.

Edwards

QUESTION: My father recently suffered a mild hearing loss. What emotional effect will this have on him?

ANSWER: A hearing loss, perhaps more than any other physical loss, will have the greatest effect on a person's ability to relate to others and to derive pleasure from his or her surroundings. Even mild hearing impairments can cause feelings of frustration, isolation, confusion, paranoia, anxiety and depression. Individuals with hearing impairments often become fearful and suspicious because they are not able to hear conversations, doorbells, alarms, telephones ringing or to distinguish if someone has just entered the home unannounced.

Younger people, including adult children, may fail to recognize the hearing losses. Instead, they may feel that the hearing impaired person is avoiding them, is cantankerous or does not want to listen. In fact, the hearing impaired person may be accused of hearing only what he or she wants to hear.

Due to the feelings accompanied with hearing loss, the individual may want to withdraw from social contacts of any kind. In some instances, hearing loss is age-related and cannot be corrected by wearing a hearing aid. However, some types of hearing loss are the result of nerve damage and can be corrected with hearing aids.

QUESTION: What are the possible adverse reactions of multiple drug usage?

ANSWER: Since the majority of older adults have at least one chronic illness or medical concern, the multiple use of medications to counter these problems has created a positive-negative effect. The positive side obviously lies in the advance of medicine and drugs used in treatment of health concern.

The negative side lies in the possible adverse reaction of multiple drug usage. Due to the multiple health problems of older persons, several doctors are usually involved in a patient's health program. With each doctor prescribing various medications, often no one physician keeps a record of all prescription drugs. These multiple drugs may be compatible or have an adverse effect on the patient. For example, an antacid will cause a blood-thinning (anticoagulant) drug to be absorbed too slowly, while aspirin greatly increases the blood thinning effect of such drugs. Two drugs with the same effect when taken together can sometimes have an impact greater than would be expected. This effect may be helpful such as two drugs working together to combat certain infections. However, this could also prove dangerous, especially when certain nervous system-depressing drugs are involved. Even non-prescription drugs such as antihistamines that are often used to fight colds can increase the sedative effects of barbiturates, tranquilizers and some pain killers.

In using prescription drugs, patients with multiple physicians and medications should make sure that one doctor has a record of all medications. Make sure that these drugs are compatible. Also check with the physician as to what foods may or may not be consumed with the prescription.

QUESTION: My parents are retiring. When should my brother and I (as adult children) to begin talking about their financial plans?

ANSWER: The sooner the better! Talking financial plans with retired parents while they are enjoying good health has never been a popular topic. However, if good communication between family members has not been established and if proper financial arrangements and planning have not been made, these matters can be very complicated if the parent becomes mentally or physically incapacitated.

For example: if a parent's judgment begins to fail, the adult child must see to it that the mother-/father does not enter into any kind of contract without having a lawyer go over it. This would include contracts for sale, rental or purchase of a home, auto or other capital purchase. The adult child should also monitor the purchasing of additional insurance policies.

If a parent's health begins to decline, adult children should be aware of dates when payments are due. This would involve not only mortgage payments, but other monthly bills such as utilities, insurance and rent. These payments must be made on time even if the parent becomes hospitalized.

In the case of a parent in poor health, adult children should make sure that Social Security and all other income checks are actually deposited in the parent's account as they arrive.

If the relationship with the parent makes it possible, the adult child and parent may establish other legal policies which will enable the son or daughter to function for the parent, if the need arises, such as power of attorney.

In essence, adult children should assume a watchful role trying to keep a balance between protecting the parent and at the same time, maintaining his or her independence.

Steve Edwards is executive director of Community and Senior Services and consultant for the Visiting Nurse Service of Midland.

Disaster survivors

Titanic survivors Eleanor Shuman, left, of Elgin, Ill., and Louise Pope, 84, of Milwaukee, Wis., look at a book on the famous "unsinkable" ship, while attending a Titanic Disaster 80th Anniversary gathering. Shuman was 19 months old and Pope was 4 when they survived the disaster.

150th anniversary of anesthesia marked

Dr. Henry F. Page

Mandragora, cannibis, henbane, opium, alcohol, brisk knocks on the head — all have had their day in attempts to relieve the pain and suffering of surgical procedures, but were all so ineffective that in the mid-19th century, even large medical centers performed only about three major operations a month.

Page

Since March 30, 1842, marks this month as the sesquicentennial of the first administration of ether, a discussion of this momentous event seems timely.

On that date, Crawford W. Long, M.D., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, surgically removed an unsightly tumor from the neck of a friend who, while breathing ether through a towel, felt no pain. The patient was incredulous when informed the operation was over. Dr. Long subsequently performed several surgeries with the aid of ether anesthesia in ensuing months. All of this was publicized throughout his Georgia community of Jefferson and also to physicians in nearby Athens, Ga. In 1847, Oliver Wendell Holmes coined the term anesthesia for the state of insensibility and the term anesthetic for the drug producing it.

Off the record, 'tis rumored that young Dr. Long placed himself in a position to appreciate the properties of ether by attending several "ether parties" — a socially fringe activity at that time — but I am sure he was busy observing, not inhaling!

Anyhow, he had the perspicacity to recognize its potential worth. There exist, along the Eastern border of Massachusetts, a few benighted souls who claim that a dentist by name of W.T.G. Morton at Harvard in 1846 first utilized and publicized the pain relieving qualities of ether — but any son of the University of Pennsylvania who can count knows that this represents something other than the actual situation.

So now, when hordes of impaired souls daily receive repair and replacement of various body parts — remember that it is not surgical technique alone that makes this possible, but actually new and improved anesthesia. To believe otherwise would deprive Dr. Long of proper credit, albeit the New England Journal of Medicine with its well developed PR program might not so perceive. There are enough kudos to go around, so don't short Long!

Henry F. Page, M.D., F.A.C.P., is health and safety consultant to Midland Presbyterian Homes.

Treatment sheds light on problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Some older people who seek medical help for diminished vision might achieve distinct benefit by shedding some light on the problem.

A group of researchers at St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London checked the lighting in the homes of 63 people with an aveage age of 76 who were patients at the hospital's low-vision clinic.

Among the things they discovered was that the average lighting in the homes was one-tenth that found in the hospital and that the average reading light was one-seventh that in a comparable hospital setting.

The "treatment" was simple: Add a 60-watt bulb in a small adjustable lamp. That produced an improvement in vision for more than three-quarters of those patients.

★☆★☆★☆★☆★☆

Before signing a contract or sending money to an "Advance Fee Loan Broker" we recommend that you check with the Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin. Be wary of any broker claiming the easy availability of thousands of dollars for loans at reasonable rates or the availability of "foreign" money.

WHAT! NEWSPAPER ROUTES?

That's right...one of the best part-time income supplements around. Doesn't conflict with your 'day job.' Doesn't require day care. And it's dependable income.

Fact: 95% of our Distributors NOW are ADULTS supplementing their income with Route Distributorships!

Fact: Our Distributors make from $400-$800 monthly AFTER expenses, some even more!

The catch? You've gotta be able to handle early mornings and weekends! And when you take a few days off, you'll need to find a substitute for yourself.

So...are you serious about MOONLIGHTING, or what? If you are, and you have dependable transportation and can put up a $100 deposit...

Call 688-2700 and start making that extra car payment today!

Car Care Guide

There's a change in the air. . .

By Car Care Council

The Clean Air Act, passed into law as of Jan. 21, 1992, is designed, among other things, to help protect the earth's ozone layer from the effects of escaping Chloroflourocarbons. Knows as CFCs, these are the chemical compounds, including R-12/Freon and other gases that are widely used in refrigeration and cooling systems.

The new laws have changed the way air conditioning service must be done. Only licensed professionals will be allowed to purchase R-12 refrigerant containers of any size. Recycling used refrigerant, with approved equipment, will be required when completing air conditioning service or any other maintenance and repairs involving the removal of air conditioning hoses or components.

Everco Industries, a leading manufacturer of replacement parts for car and truck air conditioning systems, has pioneered the development of professional refrigerant recovery and recycling equipment. This equipment allows trained service technicians to remove Freon from vehicle air conditioning systems, recycle it for maximum performance and re-use it rather than allowing it to escape into the atmosphere where it can damage the earth's ozone layer.

Most auto service shops now are required, by law, to own and operate this type of equipment and to follow specific Freon handling procedures.

You'll probably still be able to get your vehicle's air conditioning serviced at the same place you dealt with before, but there will be a difference in the type and degree of servicing that will be required to keep it in working order in years to come.

Vehicle owners accustomed to paying $9.95 to $19.95 for an "A/C Tune-up," (typically consisting of a brief visual inspection and a quick blast of Freon to last until the end of the summer), should know that these new Clean Air guidelines make that kind of service obsolete and illegal.

Federal law now prohibits service shops from knowingly loading Freon into a leaky air conditioning system. As a result, the average cost to do a more thorough tune-up will be slightly higher, $29.95 to $49.95, depending on the vehicle.

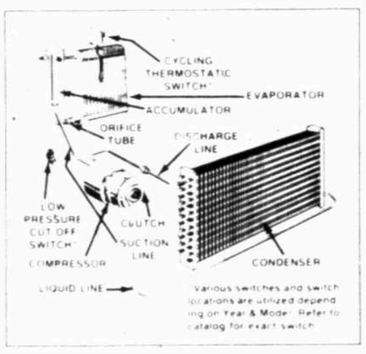

"Today's high-tech vehicles feature an incredible array of electronic systems that require precise service by trained professionals using advanced service equipment and procedures," says Larry Turay, field training coordinator for Everco Industries. "For example, modern temperature control systems, which combine both heating and air conditioning functions, have been designed to work better than ever before. However, they should be checked regularly to ensure performance."

Today's high-tech vehicles feature an incredible array of electronic systems that require precise service by trained professionals using advanced service equipment and procedures.

Most people don't think about their vehicle's air conditioning system until it stops working properly. "We recommend that people put their vehicle's air conditioner through a performance test during the spring so they are not unpleasantly surprised during the summer months," Turay said.

"Performance testing simply means making sure your temperature control system or conventional air conditioner functions efficiently to cool your vehicle's interior. In addition to identifying problems that you can correct, a few simple steps can target areas where professional service may be necessary to prevent costly damage to compressors and other system components," he said.

Performance test for your air conditioner.

The procedure recommended by Everco:

■ Test the system's fan to ensure that it is functioning correctly at each level (low-high).

■ With function selector on, test the system's temperature switch. Does it operate properly when moved from hot to cold?

■ Does the air conditioner produce enough cool air? This may be difficult to estimate depending on current temperature conditions and individual tastes, but it should produce a significant amount of air movement and cooling through all output vents. If some vents work poorly, it may indicate that you have a problem.

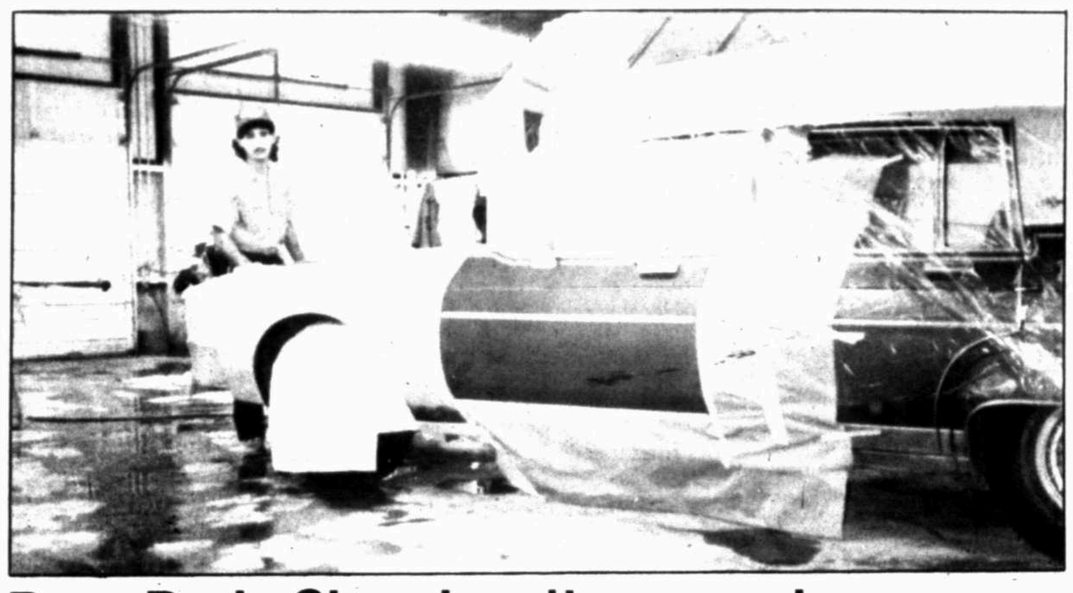

■ Check under the hood. Is the radiator coolant at the correct level? Is the radiator condenser clear of bugs, leaves, paper and other obstructions? If not, clear any obstructions carefully using a soft-bristled broom or garden hose.

■ Check all accessible belts for correct tension. If they are cracked or brittle, they should be replaced. Also, watch for shiny areas that may indicate that the belt is slipping and may need adjustment to perform correctly.

■ Check all pipe and hose connections for signs of moisture. If they are wet or oily it may indicate areas of leakage. It's best to begin with the compressor (see illustration) and follow the air conditioner hoses or lines throughout the visible components of the system.

Note: A slight oil build-up is normal at the front of the compressor near the seal.

■ Consult your service technician for further information.

Berg Body Shop has it covered

Paint technician Gilbert Galindo prepares the front end of a car for painting. He will then use a color blending technique "to the door" to make the original color and new color uniform. Galindo is one of the many talented technicians at Berg's. He and the rest of the staff: Sam Rivera, manager; Jerry Acosta, body technician; Rey Rodriguez, master technician; Jose Galindo painter's helper, and Arthur Arciga, shop cleanup and detail, represent over 70 years of combined experience. Berg Body Shop is located at 3208 Henderson in Midland. Call 699-4618.

Tire maintenance is no laughing matter

Tires are the Rodney Dangerfields of vehicles. They are often abused, frequently overlooked and don't get the respect they deserve.

But tires, like other parts of an automobile, need attention if they are to perform at their best. The key, experts agree, is to prevent problems before they occur, particularly with the hot weather and extra travel associated with the summer months.

Fortunately, tire care is simple and inexpensive, and requires as little time as a few minutes every month.

"In addition to enhancing safety and economy, proper tire maintenance promotes traction, smoothness and a quieter ride," says Russell Chick, manager, consumer products and advertising for Yokohama Tire Corporation, which supplies several original equipment and replacement tires for the U.S. market.

"A little maintenance can go a long way toward ensuring a safe, confident and rewarding driving experience."

Tire maintenance consists of five main elements: air pressure checks, visual inspections, rotation, alignment and balancing.

The single greatest cause of tire damage is improper inflation pressure. Improperly inflated tires, which cause irregular treadwear and poor gas mileage, will sometimes "squeal" around corners at normal speeds, or feel mushy during turns.

Yokohama's Chick recommends checking air pressure at least once a month with an accurate gauge when the tires are cold. Recommended air pressures can be found in owner's manuals, or on the driver's side door jam of some vehicles.

A tire is considered seriously under-inflated if it is four or more pounds per square inch (psi) below the recommended level. Generally, tires lose about one psi each month. Warmer temperatures will cause a rise in pressure of about one psi for every 10 degrees.

Visual inspections are important because they reveal irregular treadwear (one side many be more worn than the other), punctures or other outside damage, in addition to the amount of tread remaining on a tire.

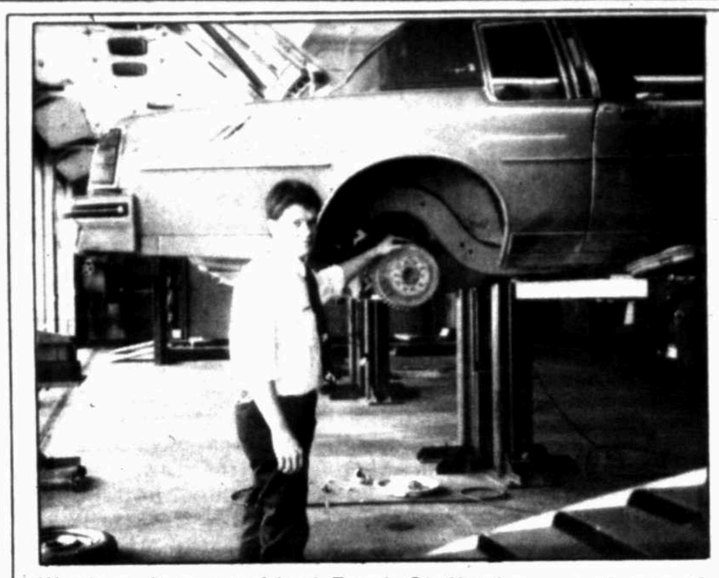

Today's tires have small raised points of rubber in the tire's grooves that indicate when the tread depth is beyond the safe — or legal — limit, which is 2/32 of an inch. Another effective method is to place the top of a penny in the groove, and replace the tire if Lincoln's head is fully visible.

Tire rotation extends a tire's life by balancing out the wear variances. Treadwear can be more pronounced at wheel positions that carry more of the vehicle's weight. Tires should be rotated every 5,000-8,000 miles, with city driving requiring the most frequent attention.

Proper wheel alignment also ensures even treadwear, and may prevent suspension damage that could occur if neglected. When a car is out of alignment — often caused by driving over potholes and on rough roads — it slightly alters the position of the tires, causing one part of the tire to wear more quickly than the other areas.

Uneven wear also can occur if the wheel and tires are out of balance. The wheel and tires are out of balance. The latter is detected by a vibrating steering wheel, which usually becomes more pronounced at highway speeds.

Yokohama's Chick recommends having a vehicle aligned and balanced by a professional once a year.

Western Auto president Frank Stafford poses at one of the store's seven bays, which are open Monday through Sunday.

Always on Sunday: Western Auto bays stay open 7 days

Unlike most auto shops, Western Auto keeps its bays and auto part store open seven days a week.

"Our seven-bay service department can handle anything it takes to get a car ready for spring and winter driving," sais store president Frank Stafford. This includes a checking belts, hoses and coolant. Western Auto also offers free tire and front-end alignment checks to get their customers vacation-ready.

More than 2,000 tires are in stock and Western Auto has them for just about any car on the road. The prices are affordable. Those looking for chrome wheels and accessories can find them in the auto parts store.

Western Auto's service department specializes in tires, brakes, front end work and alignments — including two and four-wheel alignments. For the do-it-yourselfer, Western Auto carries a full line of hoses and belts. Also, famous-make batteries such as AC Delco and Die Hard. Wester Auto brand batteries are made by Delco. All batteries are installed free of charge.

A full line of Monroe Schocks are available for installation: These shocks have a lifetime warranty.

Other items Western Auto specializes in include a full line of rebuilt parts, such as alternators, starters and water pumps.

For vehicle upkeep, Western Auto offers car care manuals, cleaning care products, custom accessory items, such as auto grpahic decals and a large inventory of mail order accessories.

Wester Auto warranties are honored at all Western Auto locations. Midland's Western Auto is at the Corner of Andrews Hwy and Midkiff. Call 697-1254 for more information.

ARC: how to choose a reputable body shop

If your car is involved in an accident, don't be surprised if you get a letter from ARC Truck & Auto Body. For the last six years they've chosen this method to let individuals know how to select a reputable body shop.

ARC president Allen Frasier believes strongly in providing the best service possible to customers and potential customers. He begins by providing information and honest answers to some important questions.

Below are some of his recommendations.

With the economy in the doldrums and unemployment at high levels, it seems that everyone has bought a hammer and a bucket of bodo and opened a "Shade Tree Body Shop" in Midland.

This hurts the consumer and all the reputable shops in Midland that have worked so hard over the years to establish a good reputation.

ARC suggests that you ask yourselves the following questions before you choose a body shop:

- Will the shop guarantee its work, and if so, for how long?
- Will the shop still be around in the years to come? (Chances are the older established shops will be).
- Has the shop invested in proper equipment to complete your job in a safe manner?
- Does the shop employ skilled and knowledgeable personnel?
- Can the shop show you a completed job and allow you to tour the shop area?

ARC Truck & Auto Body shop president Allen Frasier offers consumer guidelines to choosing a reputable body shop.

There are numerous shops in town that can answer yes to all of the above questions and numerous ones that can't.

All ARC Truck & Auto Body asks of the consumer is to contact a reputable shop that can repair vehicles in a safe manner.

"We know the importance of satisfied customers," Frasier said. "For us, customer satisfaction is based on years of experience. We are ready and willing to answer any questions concerning the repair or estimating process. Our professional staff will even assist customers in filing insurance claims and getting a rental car if one is needed. Customer satisfaction is our number one priority."

If your are not sure which shop to contact, call the Better Business Bureau for shop ratings.

If ARC Truck & Auto Body Shop can be of assistance, please call 682-9722. They are located at 2800 W. Francis in Midland. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through friday. Phones are answered until 7 p.m.

Village Lincoln-Mercury-Dodge in forefront of computer age

Vehicle repair is simpler, faster and more accurate when the latest technological information is readily available. Village Lincoln-Mercury-Dodge has instant-response computer ties with both the Ford & Chrysler Companies. So, when a customer brings a car in for service, Village's technician's enter the vehicle's serial number into the computer.

Second later, the computer relays all kinds of significant information relating to the specific car. It will, for example, provide information on open recalls, peculiarities of the individual make and model as well as newly available facts pertinent to that vehicle's repair.

The computer also provides a print-out that refers technicians to other related manufacturer's service information.

Village Lincoln-Mercury-Dodge does warranty repairs on all Fords, Lincolns, Mercuries as well Chryslers, Dodges and Plymouths.

Also, Village Lincoln-Mercury-Dodge has access to Ford and Chrysler engineers. "We only see a small percentage of the cars that are being taken in for repairs on a nationwide basis," said service manager Jim Connell. "The engineers at Chrysler and Ford, on the other hand, get constant input on repairs and problems going on all over the country. So, if we're having a diagnostic problem because of something we haven't seen before, we can get in touch with Detroit. Chances are that they're familiar with the problem, they've heard more reports on it and have a solution."

Besides instant communication with the manufacturers, Village Lincoln-Mercury-Dodge offers eight factory trained technician. Together, they have over 100 years of experience in auto repair.

Village has a shuttle service, taking customers to and from work while repairs are being done. They're also speedy with standard maintenance work — such as oil and oil filter changes — making the wait very brief for the customer.

Also new to Village Lincoln-Mercury-Dodge is a limousine rental service. This luxurious vehicle is available, complete with chauffeur for rental by the evening or the hour. What a great way to make a special occasion even more special. For more limousine information, call 697-3115.

Village Lincoln-Mercury-Dodge's service department is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. It is located at 3915 W. Wall in Midland. Call 697-3115 or 563-1348.

New mileage-improving product made and sold in Midland maintenance reduction and cost saving. The Energy Team also enables the engine of a well-maintained vehicle to last 37 percent longer.

Those keeping track of their vehicle and transportation dollars, such as the Sheriff's Department and the City of Midland, report that payback time for the system ranges from 4½ to 6 months. In most cases, investment is paid back twice within the first year.

The "brains" of the Energy Team is the Energy Pak, a full computer small enough to hold in one hand. Also included in the system are 8mm spiral-wound spark-plug wires and a variable magnetic energy coil. These components are factory-matched by Jacobs for superior performance and mileage increase.

Besides the Energy Team and other innovative products, Jacobs Electronics manufactures a unique anti-theft security system called Stop Action. This is the way it works: The thief starts a car and drives away. But from 12 to 15 feet into the ride, the engine shakes and stalls, simulating a need for a tune-up. No matter what the thief does, the engine can't be restarted.

There are many pluses to this kind of system. The thief now has no recourse but to get out of the vehicle and leave. Additional benefits are insurance related — since the automobile has been moved, the crime is now theft, not merely vandalism, and has considerably less of a deductible.

The Energy Team was developed, patented and is personally guaranteed by the ignition authority, Dr. Christopher A. Jacobs who has a Ph.D. in electrical engineering. He holds the largest number of ignition patents in the United States and is also the author of the largest number of ignition articles for major auto magazines. Jacobs also wrote The Doctor's Step-by-Step Guide to Optimizing Your Ignition, which has become the "bible" of the industry.

Jacobs Electronics is located at 500 N. Baird St. in Midland. Call 685-3345 for information.

The production line is busy at Jacobs Electronics. The company is the Permian Basin's only automotive parts manufacturer.

Rogers Ford boasts expansive, just-remodeled parts department

Anyone who hasn't been to Rogers Ford's parts department recently is in for a nice surprise. Recently remodeled, many new items are available and on display.

For Ford pick-ups, there is a large selection of bug deflectors, tailgate caps, floor mats, console and much more.

For automobiles there are lots of floor mats, consoles, various chrome accessories and so on.

All total, Rogers Ford has 10,000 part numbers in stock — this means an inventory worth over $300,000. (Which, by the way, includes jaunty caps, clever T-shirts and spiffy jackets).

And another nice surprise. While you browse, you can enjoy a cool ice cream from Rogers' brand new dispenser.

Roger's Ford has been in business since 1965. That's 27 years of service to the community. They have always enjoyed a reputation for honesty, reliability and professionalism.

The auto parts staff is friendly and knowledgeable — always ready to answer questions and go the extra mile to help their customers. Together, they have over 27 years experience in the field.

Four counter men are available at all times to convenience and expediency.

Hours are 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m Monday through Friday. Rogers Ford is located at 4200 West Hwy 80 in Midland. The direct telephone line to the parts department is 697-3151.

Oil change absolute essential

Associated Press

Next to filling up with gasoline and maybe checking tire pressure, the most frequent auto maintenance is an oil change.

In warm months, many do-it-yourselfers get caught up from a winter of neglect, and more than a few neglect the environment in the process.

Champion Laboratories Inc. in Albion, Ill., points out that the oil filtration system is crucial to the engine's overall performance and most systems are quite simple to understand.

Put simply, oil filtration systems lubricate the engine's moving parts to prevent metal-to-metal contact, keeping those parts from becoming worn. At the same time, the oil cleans, cools and seals the engine's internal parts.

Failure to change oil at least as often as the owner's manual says, and more often in the case of hard driving, can lead to expensive repairs to engine parts such as bearings, pistons, rings, cylinder walls and camshaft.

Excessive engine bearing wear can cause the oil pressure to drop, which may lead to engine failure. That can mean an engine rebuild or exchange.

An engine can keep running with worn rings, pistons and cylinder walls, but gas mileage will suffer through fuel and oil waste. Air pollution from this neglect also causes internal pollution, leading to a buildup of sludge if the car is driven long. The sludge clogs oil portholes and often causes a major engine component to break. Fuel-diluted oil is unable to properly lubricate and protect engine components.

Clean oil means the most to the camshaft, the control of the engine's breathing. The camshaft consists of a column with several lobes along its length. Metal valve lifters rub against the rotating lobes, which pushes the lifter up to open the valve allowing air into the engine.

Gunk in the oil can cause the lifters to wear the cam lobes, hurting valve performance.

There's more at stake than just your car's engine.

The Automotive Information Council says 240 million gallons — the equivalent of five oil tankers — of used motor oil are dumped into America's environment by do-it-yourself oil changers each year.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency says just one quart of oil can ruin the taste of 250,000 gallons of drinking water or produce a film two acres wide on the water's surface. Oil-covered water can kill plants, animals, fish and damage equipment at water treatment sites.

The U.S. Department of Energy estimates that 61 percent of do-it-yourself oil changers improperly dispose of used motor oil by pouring it onto the soil, into sewers, handmade yard pits or by placing it in trash receptacles headed for local landfills.

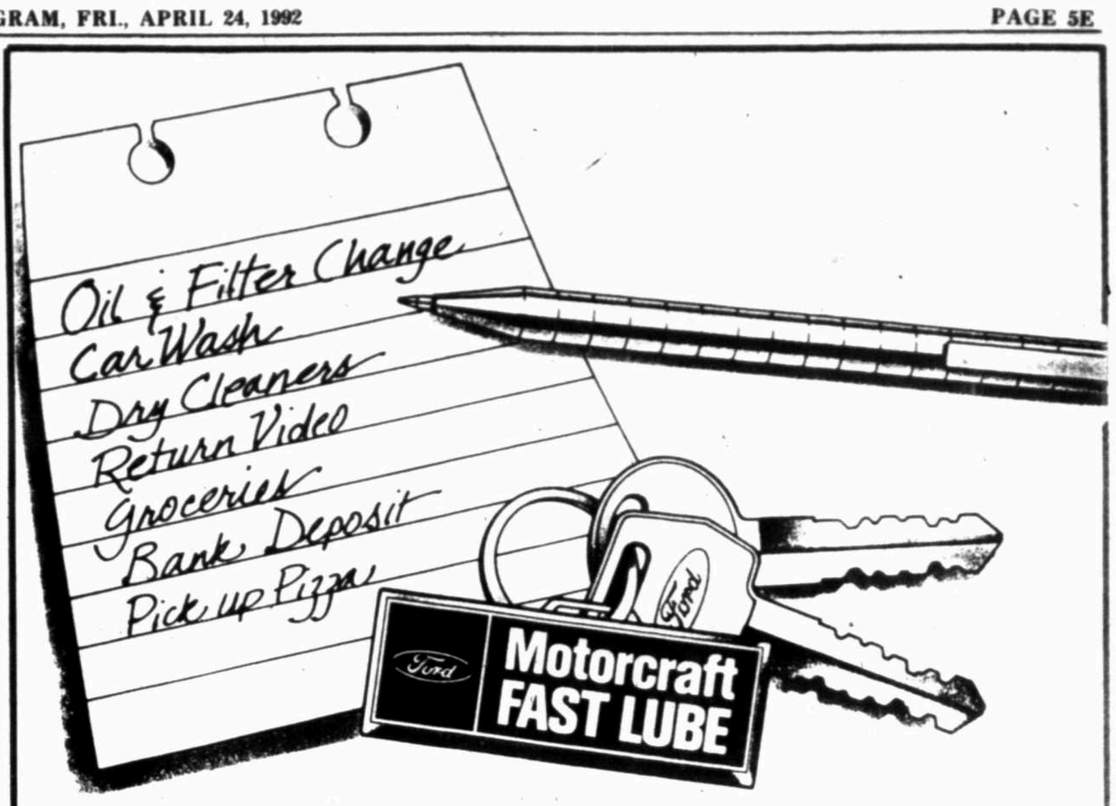

All of these disposal methods end with the oil eventually seeping into the groundwater.

Saab Cars USA Inc. suggests rethinking self oil changes. If an authorized dealer does the job, the used oil is handled properly.

Carquest boasts huge inventory, friendly, highly skilled sales staff

Do-it-yourselfers and professional auto technicians alike have been flocking to Carquest Auto Parts for over 10 years now. And there are a lot of good reasons for that.

For one thing, Carquest has over 23,000 different part numbers in stock. Chances are good that any part needed by anyone repairing an automobile is in the store. And, if a specific part is not in stock, it can usually be ordered and delivered in just one day.

Customers can always depend on Carquest going the extra mile. A couple of years back, a customer who was restoring a 1953 Studebaker came to the shop to look for brakes. Carquest searched and searched, finally finding that the needed part was in Illinois. It was promptly ordered, making one Studebaker owner very happy.

Both the do-it-yourselfer and professional are sure to enjoy dealing with Carquest's friendly, professional staff.

Do-it-yourselfers can find anything in the store — from something small like a tire patch up to pistons and bearing to rebuild an engine. Additionally, Carquest prides itself on the thorough training received by the counter staff. They are available to assist in locating the correct parts, answer technical questions and otherwise help in any way they can.

As for the professionals, about 950 area garages, stations and independent technicians come to Carquest not only for auto parts but for the exceptional service the store provides.

To make auto repairs even easier, Carquest has an auto repair library stocked with over 150 videos. Professional technicians and do-it-yourselfers alike can borrow a tape, or tapes, explaining a wide variety of car repairs. They include videos on changing belts, hoses, brakes and even information on the computer cars.

Do-it-yourselfers can also rent tools from Carquest.

"There's no point in going to the expense of buying something you might only use once," says store manager Dwayne Snow. "We have tools like boots for front-drive axles, tools to pull out oil seals, piston ring expanders and so on for rent with a small deposit."

And the hours are very convenient. The store is open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Carquest Auto Parts is located at #9 Town & Country Shopping Center, on the corner of Midkiff and Andrews Hwy. Call 697-3136 for information.

How to keep that engine humming

Associated Press

The best time for changing your antifreeze is in the spring every other year. If you're due, a new product might be worth a try. It's called EZ Changer and allows the entire cooling system to be flushed through the radiator cap. The old coolant and flush water drains into an ordinary bucket, instead of spilling on the ground.

EZ Changer is available at auto parts stores and the automotive departments of major discount department stores.

Antifreeze is toxic. It contains a chemical called ethylene, which smells sweet to dogs and cats. It's also deadly to them. Dogs especially love the taste and will lap it up. Cats, however, are poisoned more quickly because of their dynamic metabolism. According to the Maryland Poison Center, 87 percent of the animals that drink ethylene glycol will die.

If your car predates the mid-1980s, chances are you've had a headlamp burn out. You've also probably found that the incandescent sealed beam that came as original equipment needs to be replaced with a halogen headlamp.

While they're not cheap, usually running $15 and up, halogen sealed beams have advantages over conventional incandescents. GTE Electrical Products, which makes halogen headlamps, lists these:

■ Brighter and whiter than incandescent headlamps, they promote better visibility straight ahead and to the sides.

■ Retention of 90 percent of the original brightness for the life of the lamp.

■ Better vibration resistance.

■ Continued operation if the sealed beam housing sustains minor damage, allowing time for replacement.

Incandescent headlamps are easily replaced with halogen sealed beams by removing the headlight trim, then the headlight retaining ring. Be careful when removing the retaining ring not to loosen the headlight adjusting screws, which are spring loaded. Next, unplug the old headlight from the electrical connector, plug in the new halogen headlight and reinstall the retaining ring and trim.

Greater seat belt use means we really care about driving safety

By Lawrence L. Knutson
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — More than half of American drivers and passengers are buckling their safety belts, according to a Department of Transportation compilation of state surveys.

The survey, announced at the end of a campaign last summer to encourage buckling up, showed a 50 percent increase in seat-belt use over the beginning of the summer, according to then-Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner.

"The best news may be that we are beginning to bring hard-core non-users into the fold," Skinner said. "Each percentage point gain in belt use represents nearly 2 million more occupants buckling up."

The Bush administration set a target of 70 percent usage by the end of this year.

"State surveys indicate a composite 59 percent use rate for the nation," Skinner said. "This is the first comprehensive count of safety belt use reported by all 50 states, and it shows that we have made significant progress toward our goal.

Skinner said the use of seat belts increased from 50 percent to 54 percent in a survey of 19 selected cities and called that the largest three-month increase ever. City drivers have traditionally been those least likely to use seat belts, he said.

Four states — California, Hawaii, Maryland and Oregon — already have reached the 70 percent safety belt goal, Skinner said, adding that 10 additional states have reached the 65 percent use level.

The Transportation Department's survey showed that seat belt use at the end of the summer ranged from a high of 85 percent in Hawaii to a low of 28 percent in Rhode Island.

Here grouped by regions, are the results for all 50 states:

Connecticut, 61 percent; Massachusetts, 35 percent; Maine, 35 percent; New Hampshire, 49 percent; Rhode Island, 28 percent; and Vermont, 40 percent.

New Jersey, 58 percent and New York, 68 percent.

Delaware, 42 percent; District of Columbia, 49 percent; Maryland, 72 percent; Pennsylvania, 60 percent; Virginia, 58 percent; and West Virginia, 43 percent.

Alabama, 53 percent; Florida, 60 percent; Georgia, 54 percent; Kentucky, 48 percent; Mississippi, 32 percent; North Carolina, 60 percent; South Carolina, 60 percent; Tennessee, 51 percent.

Illinois, 51 percent; Indiana, 52 percent; Michigan, 64 percent; Minnesota, 52 percent; Ohio, 50 percent and Wisconsin, 58 percent.

Arkansas, 52 percent; Louisiana, 37 percent; New Mexico, 67 percent; Oklahoma, 37 percent; and Texas, 68 percent.

Iowa, 68 percent; Kansas, 64 percent; Missouri, 54 percent; and Nebraska, 33 percent.

Colorado, 51 percent; Montana, 67 percent; North Dakota, 30 percent; South Dakota, 33 percent; Utah, 45 percent; and Wyoming, 66 percent.

Arizona, 65 percent; California, 71 percent; Hawaii, 85 percent; Nevada, 68 percent.

Alaska, 66 percent; Idaho, 45 percent; Oregon, 70 percent and Washington, 69 percent.

Midland Sound owner Milt Thornton (left) discusses a new product — an Alpine pull-out CD controller deck — with Midland store manager David Slusher.

Some Midland Sound can be most alarming

That's correct! Midland Sound can provide the finest car stereo equipment and installations that this market offers. They can also install an alarm system to protect your car, truck, van or convertible from loss by theft.

Car Stereo

The modern car stereo is a product of evolution, beginning with a simple AM radio in the early 1930s that has evolved into a system capable of concert hall sound, complete with digital signal processing (DSP) to provide the necessary acoustical treatment to the car's interior. Stereo systems are available in all degrees of performance. There are simple "deck and two" systems that consist of the in-dash stereo with two speakers and complete "full house" systems.

Upgrades on an existing stereo system

■ Adding high-quality speakers to an existing factory car stereo can change a so-so system into a fantastic sounding music system.

■ Adding a "sub-woofer" system to a factory car stereo can add the extra "hit" that is always missing in conventional car stereos. "Sub-woofers" are to good music what seasoning is to good food. Not enough bass, the music is overwhelming. Just the right balance of bass and treble, the music can be an "experience."

■ Add a compact disc changer to an existing stereo system. This can open an entire new dimension in car listening for you. The CD changer can mount in the trunk, in a console between the seats (in trucks and vans), below the seat, or, in some cases, in the glove box. The changer has six or more discs loaded into it that can be called up by a small, easily located or concealed controller. Each disc will play for about one hour. This gives you six or more hours of your choice of music.

■ Adding an amplifier to a "factory" stereo system. This can provide that small increase in volume and clarity that is missing from most factory systems. This is especially important at normal road speed to overcome the wind, tire and air conditioner noise. Most factory systems "break up," or go into distortion when pushed beyond modest limits. This is especially true in vans and Suburbans.

Car alarms

Car alarms can provide a very effective measure of protection for your vehicle and its contents.

If you're on a trip out of town, or parked at a mall, a good car alarm can give you peace of mind. You can leave knowing your belongings will be in it when you return.

An alarm can also provide convenience. Electric door locks that lock when you leave your car and unlock when you return. This is controlled by a small key chain-size remote control. Parking lights can also be flashed by your remote control. Very handy in a a dark parking lot.

If you feel threatened in your car or near it, the alarm can be set off by your remote control — this provides a powerful deterrent to an attacker.

Jack Sherman Automotive Headquarters greets Buick, Mazda

Posing with a shiny, new Mazda RX7 are (from left) service manager Bob Smith; parts manager Doyle Bagwell; sales manager for parts and service David Langham, and shop foreman Jerry Griffith.

Jack Sherman Automotive Headquarters is pleased to announce their acquisition of Buick and Mazda franchises. And, beside the growth in the sales area, the service and parts departments have been expanded to service models from these manufacturers.

The "customer write-up area," where service information is taken from customers, is now double in size. A comfortable customer waiting lounge has been added to the facility.

But what should really please customers is the expanded training that Jack Sherman's already top-notch technicians are receiving for Buick service, plus the addition of technicians specializing in Mazda repairs.

It's always been the case that each technician working at Jack Sherman Automotive Headquarters has to become certified two ways.

First, through Chevrolet. This includes continuous year-round training and testing in several, varied service areas. Of the 15 technicians that participated last year, five achieved master technician status. It is the highest level offered.

The second way Jack Sherman Automotive Headquarters technicians become certified is through the nationally recognized Automotive Service Excellence (A.S.E.) group. They conduct nationwide testing every six months. All Jack Sherman technicians are A.S.E. certified in their area of expertise. Three have achieved master status.

Jack Sherman Automotive Headquarters service department offers complete service and diagnosis on just about all vehicles including medium-duty trucks.

For the customer in a hurry, they offer Mr. Goodwrench Quick-lube service. This includes a change of oil and filter, lubrication, fluid level check and a minor maintenance check — all done in 29 minutes or less.

For the customers with a Mazda, Jack Sherman Automotive Headquarters offers a similar while-you-wait oil change and lube service.

Backing Jack Sherman's service department is a parts department that is constantly upgrading equipment and increasing inventory to match customer demand.

Jack Sherman Automotive Headquarters is located at 4100 West Wall St. Hours are 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Also offered is a free courtesy car pick-up and delivery between 7:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Most Major credit cards are accepted. Call 694-9601 for more information.

Get rid of dirt and preserve metal, fabric

By Metro Newspaper Service

Dirt and grime accumulated over the winter months can have a long-lasting effect on automotive metals and fabrics unless they are removed early in the spring.

The harsher the winter, the more important it is to have your car or truck thoroughly cleaned and polished. Prolonged exposure to harmful elements, like salt and airborne chemicals, can cause premature metal corrosion and fabric breakdown.

Many vehicle owners believe that cars and trucks in the so-called "rust belt" states are at greater risk than on other parts of the country, but vehicles continually exposed to sand, dust, sea spray and industrial chemicals in southern and western regions are just as likely to be affected.

Underbody components such as wheel wells, quarter panels and floor panels should be power-sprayed to remove built-up mud deposits.

If there is any hint of rust in these hidden areas, it should be treated at once if the owner hopes to keep vehicle in good condition.

Outer body panels, particularly around the door, hood and trunk seams, also should be inspected for rust to prevent long-term corrosion damage. Most manufacturer warranties do not provide corrosion repair coverage of these areas.

Three of the most consumer-requested vehicle protection services are:

- Paint protection — gives vehicles superior shine and maximum protection from harsh weather and industrial chemicals.
- Underbody sound barrier — applied to the underside of a vehicle to block out road noise and prevent underside abrasion and corrosion.
- Fabric protection — protects every inch of a vehicle's seat and carpet, and improves the wearability of a vehicle's interior.
- Vinyl protection — enhances and protects a vehicle's interior vinyl from fading and cracking.
