Prosecutor says...

Bulgarians behind Pope's shooting

ROME (AP) — A state prosecutor said today he is convinced that Bulgarians, with possible Soviet support, masterminded the 1981 assassination attempt on Pope John Paul II.

"That's the conclusion of my investigation," said Antonio Albano in an interview with The Associated Press. The 47-year-old prosecutor has turned in a 78-page report to Judge Ilario Martella, who has headed the state inquiry into the May 13, 1981 shooting by Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca.

Albano confirmed that he recommended to Martella that three Bulgarians and four Turks be tried in connection with the attack, which seriously wounded the Polish-born pope.

In addition, he disclosed for the first time that he also asked that Agca be tried on a new charge — illegal importation from Switzerland of a pistol he used to shoot the pope in St. Peter's Square.

Agca was tried by a Rome court and sentenced to life imprisonment for the attack. But at the time of his 1981 trial, prosecutors did not know how Agca got the weapon he used, Albano said.

If convicted on the new charge, Agca could be sentenced to a concurrent prison term ranging from 3 to 12 years, Albano said.

Albano said his report was secret and that copies have been given only to the investigating judge and defense lawyers.

Albano said his report stated "there was a specific interest in killing the pontiff — the social convulsions in Poland" caused by the rise of Solidary, the now-outlawed union that was the first independent labor movement in the Soviet bloc. The pope had given his support to Solidarity.

Albano also strongly suggested that the Soviet Union might have had a hand in the plot against the pope although he confirmed that his report does not specifically mention any Soviet connection.

"Do you think Bulgaria could do this sort of thing without Moscow's agreement?" Albano said, when asked to comment on published reports that the Soviet Union also might have been behind the plot.

United Way's campaign goal to be decided

The 23-member board of directors for the Scurry County United Way campaign is to meet Wednesday afternoon to approve the campaign goal for this year's effort.

The meeting is to begin at 4 p.m. at Snyder City Hall. Rex Robinson, United Way president, will preside.

In addition, a group photograph of directors for the United Way brochure will be taken after the meeting and all directors are urged to attend.

The campaign set a goal last year of $77,300, eventually falling short of this by approximately $6,000. These monies finance the operation of nine United Way agencies — five of these devoted solely to the youth of Scurry County.

Local organizations approved for United Way dollars last year were the Boys Club, Boy Scouts, Snyder Child Day Care Center, Girl Scouts and the Oil Patch Foster Parents Association.

In addition, the campaign makes contributions to help support the local operation of such "helping" organizations as the West Texas Rehab Center, Salvation Army and Red Cross.

Of the more than $71,000 in campaign dollars raised, some $3,700 is used to finance the effort itself. The rest depends on volunteer labor with approximatley 100 Scurry County citizens assisting in the drive effort last fall.

The following is a list of United Way directors scheduled to appear Wednesday.

THREE-YEAR TERM

Bob Clifton, Joe Fowler, Fran Farmer, Roy McQueen, Don Newbury, Jo Ann Nunley, Frances Wiman, Jay Martin, Joee Gainer and Barbara McGee.

TWO-YEAR TERM

Fred Castillo, Wilma Dillard, Vicki Best, Rick Conner and Donny Brown.

ONE-YEAR TERM

Ed Barkowsky, Brenda Hedges, James Palmer, Mike Reed, Rodger Sullenger, Polly Underwood and Jerry Vestal.

In addition, Lyle Deffebach serves on the United Way board of advisors and L.E. (Doc) Griffin serves as treasurer-secretary.

Water line problems continuing

Snyder residents in the west and south areas of the city can expect temporary water cutoffs as city work crews continue work Tuesday on the repair of broken water mains.

Meanwhile, the intersection of 37th St. and Ave. V remained closed at noon Tuesday as repair work to a broken 10-inch water main line continues.

This break was first reported Sunday night. Crews placed a sleeve on the line Monday, but it apparently failed to hold sometime during the day Tuesday.

Three more 6-inch mains sprung leaks Monday.

In addition, water department staffers at City Hall said they had received reports of two other main line breaks — all in the southwest section of the city — prior to noon Tuesday.

IA club members compete

Three members of the Snyder High School Industrial Arts Club left Monday enroute to Knoxville, Tenn. for the National Industrial Arts Competition.

Brothers Bill and Brian Sherrard along with Brian Sitton earned the right to represent Snyder in the national event by winning the Texas State Championship in the Industrial Bowl competition held in Waco May 4.

The three, all students in the various Industrial Arts programs offered at SHS, will begin competition in Knoxville Wednesday against state champions from across the U.S.

The Industrial Bowl tests the team member's knowledge of the various areas of industrial materials and production techniques through an oral exam administered by a panel of judges.

The local team will begin the first round of national competition Wednesday and advance through the ranks each time they win.

The team is accompanied by Larry and Sue Sherrard and Patsy Sitton. Competition in Knoxville will conclude Friday and the group expects to return to Snyder next Monday.

Murder of nuns...

Salvadorans sentenced

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A criminal court judge, in what he called a "triumph for Salvadoran justice," sentenced five former national guardsmen to the maximum 30 years in prison for killing four U.S. churchwomen in 1980.

Judge Bernardo Rauda Murcia, who presided over the 20-hour trial that ended May 24, issued the sentences Monday and said he would notify the guardsmen's lawyers and the prosecutors today.

"For me it has been a triumph, and it has been a triumph for Salvadoran justice and all those who believe in it," Rauda Murcia said in a telephone interview.

The long delay in bringing the murderers of the three nuns and one lay worker to trial had jeopardized U.S. military aid to El Salvador.

At the trial, a jury of five civilians found each guardsman guilty of four counts of murder. It was the first major case of human rights abuses to end in conviction since the leftist guerrilla war began 4½ years ago.

Human rights groups have blamed most of the more than 43,000 civilian deaths in the civil war on rightist death squads linked to military and paramilitary groups.

On the war front Monday, guerrillas threw bombs in residential neighborhoods of San Salvador and sabotaged power lines and telephone installations in the capital and three eastern provinces.

The military answered a series of rebel hit-and-run attacks with anti-guerrilla sweeps in Cabanas province in the north and in the eastern provinces of Usulutan and Morazan.

Friday stopover slated by Gramm

U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm will be in Snyder at 9:30 a.m. Friday for a brief campaign stopover at the Snyder airport.

His visit locally is part of a 75-city swing "aimed at continuing to build on our grassroots base of support for the November general election," a Gramm release says.

Gramm, a Republican, will face the Democratic nominee Lloyd Doggett next Nov. 6 for the U.S. Senate seat to be vacated by John Tower.

Gramm won his party's nomination outright last May 6 over a field of three other candidates in statewide voting. In Scurry County, he was also favored in the light Republican turnout, gaining 141 votes compared to opponents Ron Paul, 26 votes; Rob Mosbacher, 4; and Henry C. (Hank) Grover, 3.

His opponent Doggett was far-outdistanced by Kent Hance in the Scurry County Democratic vote. Hance won 2,172 votes compared to Bob Krueger with 393 and Doggett with 350.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A clean tie attracts the soup of the day."

Mickey Nunley is one of the world's born losers. Friends say he can't play golf, he can't catch fish--and now--he can't grow a winning beard.

Nunley, president of the Scurry County Historical Commission, was the guy who thought up the beard growing contest. He is also the character who solicited most of the participants in the chamber-sponsored event which will coincide with the 100th anniversary celebration of Scurry County.

It was Nunley who chided us into the contest. He paid our $1 entry fee and then challenged us to a steak dinner on whose beard would have the most sex appeal.

As predicted, Nunley was not tough enough to run the course. Last Friday, with the help of barber Bill Love, the whiskers came off.

Nunley had a few other incentives. M. L. Duke of Consolidated often eats lunch with Nunley and the beard has caused such pain to Duke's eyes that Duke offered to pay off any wagers made by Nunley.

SNB President Roger Mize also got in the act. Duke wanted Nunley to play golf Friday afternoon, and the banker was agreeable if Nunley would shave. "It's been hard to maintain a good image around here with Nunley's beard," Mize said.

About the time Nunley was becoming clean shaven, brothers John and Herb Reed were still trying to get Nunley to make good on another of his vices.

Nunley accompanied the Reeds for a round of golf at Horseshoe Bay, and Nunley had predicted he would probably set a new course record. Herb and John bet he wouldn't break 90.

John Reed has the proof--a score card showing Nunley with a dismal round of 91. Says Reed, "He's a born loser."

Ask Us

Q. — Has the Snyder school system heard any reports back from the Department of Education regarding the visit here in early May to investigate discrimination allegations filed by NAACP and LULAC?

A. — No. A DOE spokesman at the time said the law would not require such reports to be completed until mid-July.

In Brief

Gib Lewis works for bill

AUSTIN (AP) — House members will be asked this week to revive the appointed State Board of Education recommendation, this time as a 15-member board that would revert to a partially elected panel in two years.

The House Public Education Committee on Monday sent to the floor an education reform bill that maintains the 27-member elected board now in place. That committee voted down Speaker Gib Lewis' compromise plan to set up a 12-member appointed board.

Under Lewis' initial plan, the board would change to an elected panel in 1989. In the revised compromise plan, seven of the 15 members appointed by the governor would face election in two years. The other eight would face election in four years.

The House floor debate will probably begin Wednesday.

Senate refuses to limit plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has refused to curb President Reagan's authority to use American troops in Nicaragua or El Salvador and has turned down an attempt to sharply limit CIA aid to U.S.-backed rebels fighting the leftist Nicaraguan government.

In votes late Tuesday and early today, most speakers cited the Vietnam War, with administration opponents saying America is headed toward another undeclared conflict and supporters calling for an end to the "post-Vietnam syndrome" of shrinking from a fight.

The attempt to limit aid to the Nicaragan rebels died on a 58-38 vote early today. Vice President George Bush rushed to the Capitol to preside over the tally and vote in case of a tie.

The vote followed a 63-31 tally which killed a move to ban the use of American combat troops unless they are needed to rescue U.S. citizens.

Mexico won't participate

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico will not participate in any type of "debtors cartel" at the upcoming Latin American economic summit in Colombia, says the undersecretary of the treasury.

Ten Latin American debtor nations, including Mexico, are to meet Thursday in Cartegena, Colombia, marking the first time they have banded together to seek better terms for repayment of more than $300 billion they owe other countries, chiefly the United States.

Store burglary reported

Snyder police detectives are investigating the Sunday night burglary of the Sweet's Shop, just south of the East Highway on Ave. G.

According to investigators, Jerry Hatfield, owner of the drive-in restaurant, called city authorities at 10 a.m. Monday and told officers that the store had been broken into sometime Sunday night.

Listed as missing from the business were an undetermined amount of cash and several items from the restaurant inventory.

School budget due session

One of several school budget planning sessions for the Snyder school board is scheduled Tuesday beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building.

Superintendent Bill J. Hood said items the staff proposes to discuss include staffing numbers, any possible new construction and large equipment purchases to include school buses.

The Snyder Chamber of Commerce will meet in regular session at 4 p.m. Tuesday with John Jarrell, president, presiding.

Reports will be given regarding business developments, cultural affairs, leadership, civic development, AJRA and the July 4th/Centennial celebration.

Supreme Court actions won't affect executions

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said he expected Monday's announcement by the Supreme Court that it would review the propriety of using lethal injections to carry out executions but also expressed doubt the high court would rule negatively on the issue.

"The decision to consider this case is in line with normal procedure when you have a lower court ruling on the books that is contrary to the expressed feeling of the Supreme Court," Mattox said Monday.

"We would expect the court to rule quickly, after the oral arguments, in the FDA's favor and in the states' favor," Mattox said.

Lethal injection is used for capital punishment in Texas and 11 other states.

The justices said Monday they would review a federal appeals court decision barring lethal injections without approval by the federal Food and Drug Administration.

But other executions by lethal injection likely will occur before the high court announces its decision sometime next year. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger last March 21 postponed the effect of the lower court's ruling, and other executions by lethal injection could occur before the high court announces its decision sometime next year.

Mattox said the Supreme Court's action is not a "roadblock to carrying out executions in Texas."

The dispute over lethal injections was spurred by an appeal by death row inmates in Texas and Oklahoma.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

New husband is impotent

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Five years ago I got remarried to a wonderful man. Unfortunately, he's impotent. I knew this when I married him, but hoped because he was 42 that this would pass.

He says he had sex up till he met me. He was a very heavy drinker and was using pills to keep awake when we met. He still drinks but doesn't take pills.

I can't handle it anymore. I have needs, too. One of us needs help. How would I go about getting help? He went to a doctor and he gave him hormone pills but he got bad headaches from them, so he gave up.

Doctor, I'm human too. I've told him how I feel and he says, "What am I to do?" He's willing to try anything but I don't know where to start looking for help.

DEAR READER — It's unfortunate your husband had a bad experience when he tried to get help. I would suggest he see a urologist as a starting point.

His longtime use and continued use of alcohol may be the primary problem. Alcohol will destroy testosterone, the male hormone, in the bloodstream and diminish the amount produced by the testicles. Alcohol decreases a man's virility and his sexual drive and ability. He'll probably need to quit drinking to improve his performance.

That is just one possibility. Impotence is a symptom, not a diagnosis. He will need a good evaluation to find the underlying cause. If his situation is as you have described it, the cause is probably from an underlying medical problem, such as from too much alcohol or another unrecognized problem.

He may understand his problem better from reading the Health Letter 18-6, Help for Impotence, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If your husband has a medical problem that can't be corrected or his impotence is permanent, he should know that he can use a mechanical device. Surgically implanted cylinders have been used successfully now for quite some time. But I don't think such a device should be a substitute for stopping alcohol.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read a recent article on the dangers of taking megadoses of vitamins. At the time, I was taking vitamin C, E, B-complex, lecithin, calcium, magnesium plus phosphorus and vitamin D put out by a well-known vitamin company. They say this is safe because it's a food supplement made with natural products and not synthetic as you would buy in a store. Are they correct? Are these products safe to take or are they unnecessary with so much of our food fortified?

DEAR READER — Your information from the people selling you these products is biased. It is also wrong. Their motive is to sell you vitamins to make money. Your motive is to protect your health. The two can be in conflict.

Whether they are dangerous or not depends on how much of each you are taking, but the potential is there. Too much vitamin A and D in particular can be harmful regardless of whether it's from a food source. People can get dangerously ill with vitamin A toxicity from eating halibut liver, which is a natural food source. You're right about fortified foods helping to ensure an adequate intake of vitamins.

At Wit's End

by erma bombeck

Crime has become so sophisticated in this country that you really have to go some to keep ahead of the criminal mind.

Twenty years ago, everyone dropped their key in the mailbox. The rationale was that a mailbox was U.S. government property and a stranger could get into more trouble stealing your key than he could robbing your house.

For awhile, we hid keys under the doormat or the milkbox, but that was before someone stole all the doormats and the milkboxes.

Why, I can remember when all we locked was the car. Now you have to lock your gas tank, tape deck and attach your battery and transmission to an alarm system or it can be stripped down for parts faster than you can start a motor without a key.

I can handle all of that. The thing I cannot deal with is the T-shirt criminal. This new breed includes members of my own family who slip in from nowhere and strip down my refrigerator in 30 seconds flat, leaving no fingerprints, no telltale evidence and no legal recourse.

My husband and I haven't seen an ice cube in 20 years. Trays? Oh, sure, but not one single, stinking cube. The same goes with the crisper. We have gallon boxes of every flavor you can imagine in the freezer, but take off the lids and they're empty.

A cold pork chop left unattended has a shelf life of possibly six minutes, tops. A piece of leftover pie will be lifted before the door is allowed to close.

One night one of the T-shirt bandits couldn't stay for dinner. By the time he took a few things with him, we couldn't either.

When the refrigerator was new, there were little plastic accessories like a butter dish and an egg holder. They're gone now, too. My theory is that someone ate them.

Naturally, I've tried to combat these thefts by trying to think as they do. Sometimes it works. I was able to hang onto a bag of Halloween candy by putting it under a dish towel on the countertop. No one ever disturbs that!

Occasionally, I will dress up a leftover as something else so that it will seem unattractive and not worth stealing. Like the other night, I put a mound of coconut on top of a cold chicken breast which I was saving to put with rice. (My kids were all too lazy to chew coconut.)

I opened up the refrigerator. The T-shirt phantom had struck again. My husband said, "I've got a suspect whose breath smells like chicken and coconut. You want to press charges?"

"How long would he get?" I asked.

"Probably three years in our custody."

It was too big a price to pay for justice.

Judge rejects plea bargain

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A state judge spurned pleas from community leaders in rejecting a plea bargain that prosecutors offered a prominent advertising executive and civic leader in connection with a charge of cocaine possession.

District Judge Leonard Giblin sentenced Patrick Peyton III, 35, of Beaumont to seven years probation and fined him $4,000 despite pleas from local businessmen and ministers to reduce or dismiss the charges.

Under the plea bargain, Peyton would have received five years' probation and been fined $3,000 for having cocaine in his possession at a local hotel last year.

Giblin said that he took note of the punishment meted out to two other defendants in the case in deciding Peyton's sentence.

BEAUTY DIGEST

Diane Robbens

By Diane Robbens, editor
Beauty Digest magazine

Clean sweep

Actress Mary Ann Mobley keeps her complexion so lovely by following a special cleansing routine. "To me, the most important part of a facial is careful cleansing," she recently told Beauty Digest magazine. "And that doesn't have to be expensive. First I use baby oil to take off all my makeup, and then wash with a mild soap. Next I use an alcohol-free toner, followed by a soothing coat of aloe vera gel. Finally, while my face is still moist, I put on moisturizer.

Braiding bunch

Braids are a pretty practical way to add styling spark to long hair. Try these two variations: Part the hair down the middle and begin braiding each section down low, starting around the top of your ears. Stop braiding halfway down, secure each braid with a coated elastic band, then spread out the bottom like fans. Charming! Or try this: Take a section of your hair in front as wide as your forehead, comb back and secure with a barrette at the crown. Now, separate this piece into two sections, braiding each separately, and tying each of the ends with colorful ribbons.

Tomato tip

When your usual diet fare has you yawning with bordom, this tossed cherry tomato salad will liven up the menu. Wash half a head each of iceberg lettuce and curly endive, then drain and chill the greens. Then tear them into bite-sized pieces, and toss them lightly with the following ingredients: half a dozen stemmed cherry tomatoes, 1/2 medium cucumber, sliced, and 1/2 cup low-calorie dressing. Serve immediately. Each of the four servings has a skimpy 45 calories — so enjoy.

OSTEOPOROSIS—Essentially all women are at risk for osteoporosis, a disabling bone disease linked directly to calcium deficiency.

Milk important to health

by Gail Corley, M.S., R.D.
for the Associated Milk Producers

Too little calcium in the diet can lead to bone and gum disease, high blood pressure, heart failure and stroke, researchers have discovered. Despite the clear evidence that people must have substantial amounts of calcium in the diet to stay healthy, most American adults do not get enough of this vitally important mineral. Recent government surveys have shown that two out of every three women over the age of 17 do not get adequate dietary calcium, and neither do many men over age 35.

"It's ironic that, at a time when scientists are recognizing calcium's important role in good health and disease prevention, Americans as a group are consuming fewer dairy foods, the primary source of dietary calcium," notes Judy Hage, manager of the Consumer Services Division of Associated Milk Producers, Inc. Southern Region, headquartered in Arlington, TX. "Adults seem to think that, once their bones are fully formed, they no longer need calcium. Nothing could be further from the truth."

Calcium is critical to life and health. Not only is it the major component of bones and teeth, it's essential for the normal maintenance of body functions. It's needed for the heart to beat, the blood to clot, muscles to contract and relax, and nerves to transmit messages. If daily calcium intake is insufficient, the body is forced to take calcium from the bones to meet the body's need for the mineral. Bones are, in effect, a backup system in case the diet lacks adequate calcium.

One of the consequences of too little calcium in the diet is the risk of periodontal disease and chronic gum infections, with the resulting loss of teeth. Gum disease has been definitely linked to calcium deficiency. A lack of calcium in the diet can lead to a loss of the bone that supports the teeth, and may cause the jawbone to shrink, making it virtually impossible to fit dentures properly.

Essentially all American women risk being crippled by the broken hips and spinal fractures of osteoporosis, a painful and disabling bone disease linked directly to calcium deficiency. The disease is caused by bone loss. It is eight times more common in women than in men. Pregnancy and breastfeeding, dieting, not eating enough calcium-rich foods, having a smaller skeleton, and a lack of estrogen after menopause all can contribute to the problem of weak and brittle bones.

There is no cure for osteoporosis, but it can be prevented. Regular exercise and a balanced diet that includes foods rich in calcium are two of the most effective ways to keep from getting the disease, or to lessen its effects by slowing bone loss in older women.

A lack of calcium in the diet can lead also to high blood pressure, a condition affecting about 60 million people in the United States. Hypertension leads to kidney disease, heart failure, stroke and death. Recent research efforts, including studies by Dr. David A. McCarron, Associate Professor of Medicine at the University of Oregon Health Science Center, have uncovered a direct link between insufficient dietary calcium and high blood pressure. McCarron has suggested that people can cut their risk of high blood pressure by 75% simply by consuming a normal amount of calcium in the diet.

"It's not hard to get sufficient calcium in the diet," says Hage. "This dietary inadequacy is tragic and unnecessary. By simply consuming two to three servings daily of milk and other foods in the milk group, most adults can easily get the recommended 800 milligrams of calcium. Teenagers, pregnant women and older women need more, but by making milk a part of meals, everyone can get enough calcium.

"Eat cheese and yogurt as snacks. Drink milk with meals. Use milk instead of water in creamed soups. Eat ice crea, custard or pudding for desert. Add nonfat dry milk to soups, stews and casseroles. Add cheese to salads. The possibilities are endless. Dairy foods go so well with so many things, there's just no reason for the majority of adult Americans to be consuming a diet lacking in calcium," Hage notes.

Mary Cook, whose bridge writing is on the humorous side, has brought some characters into an article in the American Bridge Teachers' Association Quarterly. Her first four characters are Steady Eddie, Lucky Lucy, Modern Millie and Gutsy Gertie.

Steady Eddie was the dealer and opened one notrump. Lucy overcalled with two spades. Millie, sitting North, should have doubled, but she and her partner were playing that as a takeout. Millie then bid three notrump and, after everyone had passed, Lucy ran off six diamond tricks for a cold top.

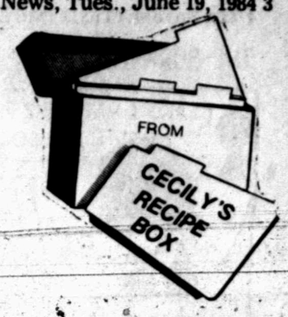

There was a lot of discussion afterwards because North and South had a cold spade game. Had Lucy bid two diamonds, North would have bid three diamonds and the four-spade game would have been reached.

This hand reminds us of an incident at New York's Whist Club around 1910 or 1911. Eddie Van Vleck, captain of the 1908 Yale baseball team and a very young member of the Whist Club, loved bridge. He held seven solid diamonds and two spotcards in each of the other suits. Milton Work, a bridge authority (perhaps the great, est), got very mad when Van Vleck made this bid against him, saying he didn't like to play with cheaters.

Of course Eddie (one of the craziest players of all time) had not cheated; he had merely trapped Work.

Shuttle not on spying mission

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A British magazine story that claims the Space Shuttle participated in a spy mission that resulted in the downing of a Korean jetline may be part of a Soviet "propaganda blitz" designed to turn world opinion against the shuttle, according to an American expert on the Russian space program.

Jim Oberg, a space engineer, author and noted authority on the Soviet space program, said that an article in the magazine Defense Attache creates a spy mission scenerio for the space shuttle "is consistent with a Soviet campaign to smear the space shuttle."

The British magazine claims that the Korean Air Lines flight 007 that was shot down after it entered Soviet air space in September was part of a spy mission that involved particpation of the space shuttle, which was then in orbit.

"The story is so basically flawed that there is no way anyone familiar with the shuttle would give it a second's creditability," said Oberg, an engineer at the Johnson Space Center.

Publication of the story, however, he said, is consistent with an "ominious" increase in Soviet attacks on the space shuttle and the continuing Russian fabrication of stories about an alleged military use of the shuttle.

"One can never say the story is a plant, but it's consistent with a Soviet campaign to smear the space shuttle," said Oberg. "The level (of anti-Shuttle) propaganda is increasing. It has doubled and re-doubled in the recent months."

Oberg said such stories as that in the British Attache resemble disinformation stories that have been planted in Western publications by he Soviets in the past. Such stories, he said, depends upon the "scientific illiteracy" of journalists and the reading public.

"Basic laws of nature" and geography, said Oberg, shows that the shuttle could not have participated in any scenerio that resulted in the Korean airliner tragedy.

He said space shuttle was in an orbit that carried no farther north than the southern tier of states in the U.S. This would have kept the spacecraft far out of reach with any aircraft flying as far north as where the airliner was shot down. Oberg said there was no way the shuttle could have been in communications with an airliner flying as far at the 47 to 53 degree north latitude used by the Korean jet.

"It's simply physically impossible," he said.

Dear Abby

Woman Trapped by Her Guilt Searches for Some Way Out

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm miserable. I became involved with a married man who divorced his wife and gave up his child to marry me. I didn't really want to marry him, but I felt I owed him that since I had broken up his marriage.

After marrying him, I knew I couldn't stay in the marriage, but I felt so guilty I stuck with him for two years. I finally told him that I only married him because I felt guilty, so he agreed to a divorce although he didn't want one.

He kept after me, telling me he couldn't live without me and reminding me of what he had given up for me, so I married him a second time. Abby, I can't stand being married to this man, but I can't leave him because he still wants to be married to me. How do I get out of this trap?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: Mistake No. 1: Getting involved with a married man. Mistake No. 2: Marrying him against your better judgment. Mistake No. 3: Marrying him a second time because you felt guilty.

You can get out of that trap by getting into therapy and resolving your guilt. Quit beating yourself up. You've paid your dues; now get on with your life—without him.

DEAR ABBY: I've been a longtime, faithful reader. Over the years I've clipped items from your column I thought were inspirational.

I'm sending you something that you might want to share with your readers. I hope you find it worthy.

ELAINE BLOSSER,
LOGAN, OHIO

DEAR ELAINE: I do.

PARADOXES OF PRAYER
I asked God for strength, that I might achieve
I was made weak, that I might learn humbly to obey ...
I asked for health,
that I might do greater things
I was given infirmity, that I might do better things ...
I asked for riches,
that I might be happy
I was given poverty
that I might be wise ...
I asked for power,
that I might have the praise of men
I was given weakness, that I might feel the need of God ...
I asked for all things,
that I might enjoy life
I was given life,
that I might enjoy all things ...
I got nothing that I asked for — but everything I had hoped for Almost despite myself, my unspoken prayers were answered,
I am among all,
most richly blessed!

Lawmakers renewing child restraint push

AUSTIN (AP) — A physician representing the Texas Medical Association says that child safety seats could save "at least 90 percent" of the young children who now die in automobile accidents.

Dr. John Asbury, a Temple pediatrician, made his claims Monday as lawmakers called on Gov. Mark White to open the special legislative session to a bill mandating the use of child safety restraints in vehicles.

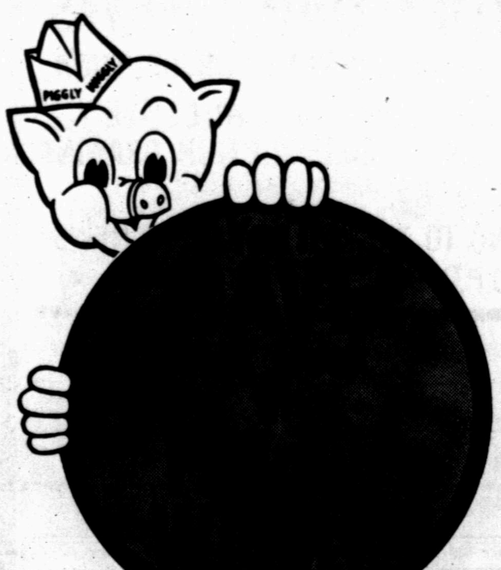

"In this special session where so much attention is focused on children and their education, it is appropriate that we also pass this important measure to protect their safety," said Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin.

State Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein, supporting Barrientos' proposal, said Texas has become "a rather dangerous place for children these days."

Bike, tools said stolen

Misdemeanor reports filed with city police Monday included a bicycle theft and the theft of a tool box and spare tire from a pickup parked at an East Snyder residence.

Mrs. J. W. Atnip of 3001 40th St. called city authorities at 11:06 a.m. and told officers that her son's bicycle had been stolen from the residence sometime Sunday.

No value was estimated for the missing bike.

Judy Russell of 1012 28th St. called police at 5:46 a.m. Tuesday to report the theft of the spare tire and tool box from her husband's pickup.

The items are thought to have been taken while the truck was parked at the residence Monday night.

City officers also logged two misdemeanor arrests, one for public intoxication and one for unpaid traffic tickets Monday evening.

Pole hit by vehicle

Snyder police were called to investigate a single minor traffic mishap at 1:19 p.m. Monday.

According to the accident reports, Kathy Irene Martin of 1303 23rd St. was driving a 1977 Chevrolet along the U.S. Highway 84 access road — near the 8th St. intersection — when the vehicle collided with a reflector pole beside the roadway.

No injuries resulted from the mishap.

Boy survives near drowning

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — A 9-year-old boy who was swept into a storm sewer and carried four blocks beneath city streets survived because he's a good swimmer and likes to stay underwater, his mother said.

Tad Stanford and a friend were watching water gush at a rain-swollen intersection when he slipped into a flooded sewer main. He surfaced twice for air, grabbed for his bike, then disappeared into the culvert.

The torrent of water carried him a quarter-mile before he surfaced virtually unhurt.

"He's a pretty lucky little guy," said his mother, Mary Stanford, after her son was treated Sunday for cuts and bruises and released. "Tad is quite a swimmer. He rarely swims on top of the water. He's an underwater swimmer," she said, adding that he can swim the length of a pool without coming up for breath.

"I'm sure this is the only thing that kept him alive."

Tad said that the water didn't fill the main entirely, leaving him some air to breathe, said Clearwater Fire Lt. Richard Vellucci. When he was pulled under, Tad said he just held his breath.

Motorists who saw what happened found him "crawling out of a drainage ditch" where the main opened four blocks away, Mrs. Stanford said.

Tad and his friend, Thomas Mathews, rode their bikes to an intersection to watch rain water wash across a street just after a storm.

"They had done this before," Mrs. Stanford said, explaining that a partly clogged culvert forces the water to overflow at that spot.

Tad and his bike slipped down into the culvert while the boys were watching the water, she said.

Thomas told the Stanfords that Tad came up twice for air, grabbed for his bike, then disappeared. When his pal didn't surface again, Thomas ran for help.

Mrs. Stanford and fire officials said the water pulled Tad through a hole that leads to the underground storm sewer. There was no grate over the hole, she said.

As for Tad, Mrs. Stanford said: "He seems to be OK. He will not talk about it," she said, adding: "The hospital warned us he may have nightmares."

Conrail bids submitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirteen bidders ranging from hotel magnate J. Willard Marriott to the giant bank holding company Citicorp are offering the government billions of dollars for Conrail, the federally owned freight railroad the Reagan administration wants to return to private enterprise.

"We have reached an important milestone in the government's efforts to return Conrail to stable, private-sector ownership," Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said while Federal Railroad Administration chief John Riley and his staff sipped champagne following the bid closing at midnight Monday.

Executives of Guilford Transporation Industries and the big Norfolk Southern Corp. freight line waited until almost midnight to make offers for Conrail, formed by the government to move freight throughout the east following the collapse of the Penn Central Railroad and six smaller lines.

No times and no scores...

Western stumbles early at CNFR

BOZEMAN, Mont. -- Western Texas College Coach Bob Doty was in a good mood, despite having little to smile about as his Westerners entered the second day of competition in the College National Finals Rodeo here.

"People always say you (newspapers) print the bad news. Well, in this case you can't help it," he laughed.

Western's first efforts at the CNFR were marred by no times and no scores, giving the school only a small chance of getting anyone to the average (finals) on Saturday. Judy Cox and Kellie Kyle slipped to 10th and 11th respectively in the barrel racing, but remain in good shape if they can do well in their second-rounds.

In other action, Gary Rowe turned a 17.0 and was 30th in the calf roping, while a broken barrier left Kyle with a 12.8 in breakaway roping. Shane Smith got a poor draw in the bareback and scored only a 55.

Also, Cox and Canita Cass "ran in the 10's" in goat tying which puts them out of the top 15 competitors at this point.

Still other results showed that Rowe, Randy Bomar and C.J. Urbanek all missed their steers in steer wrestling, Van Hale and Dale Gideon bucked off in the bull riding and Hale also bucked off in bronc riding.

"We're out of the average in most all of the events with the exception of barrel race and possibly the calf roping," said Doty, who also noted that Smith had yet to have his first-go in bull riding or saddle bronc. "We'll have to win some second-go round points to do any good at all."

Snyder's Ty Springer, a competitor for Sul Ross State University, also had bad luck Monday. His header (Tami Noble) missed the steer in team roping and he later also missed his steer in the steer wrestling.

James Doss of Big Spring won the first-go in calf roping (11.0). Doss was a competitor for Howard College until transferring to Southwest Texas State this year.

"No school has really jumped out and done outstanding. Sul Ross, (two-time defending champion) didn't have a good day either," said Doty. "Southwest Texas won first and third in calf roping and they are probably looking better than anybody right now."

Snyder's Hale armed with experience in 1984

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

BOZEMAN, Mont. -- Armed with a year's experience and knowledge, Snyder native Van Hale is back at the College National Finals Rodeo again this year, hoping to zero in on honors that eluded him last time.

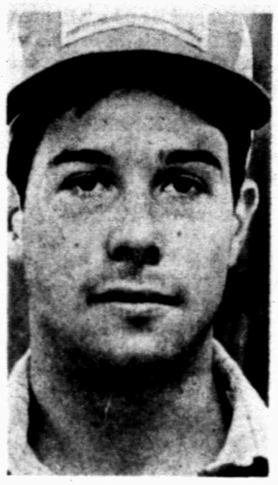

Hale is one of the six-member Western Texas College men's team that has qualified for the 1984 CNFR which began here Monday. He is entered in both bull riding and saddle bronc.

Last year, "just everything went wrong" for the Ag-business major, who failed to place. He's going to do everything possible to prevent that this year.

"There's a lot of difference, now," said the sophomore. "I seem more relaxed about going. When I went before it was a new experience for me. Now I can treat it like another rodeo. Still, your adrenalin gets going a little more for the national finals, but the more you stay calm, the better off you'll be," he said.

Unlike many of the contestants at the CNFR, Hale has only been rodeoing for five years. In fact, he has been competing in saddle bronc - "my best event" - for just a year and a half.

He won the bronc riding at the final regular rodeo in Hobbs, N.M., and placed second at Sul Ross in Alpine.

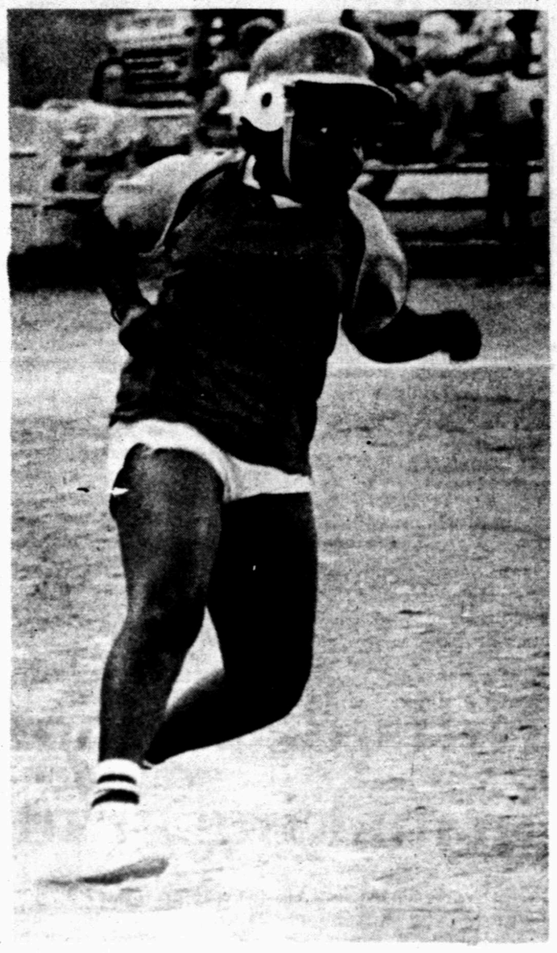

VAN HALE

"I've been riding bulls longer than broncs, but most of my points are in bronc riding. It's helped me out a lot. Entering two events gives you a better chance and makes you more valuable to the team," said Hale, who didn't start bronc riding until his second semester at Western Texas.

WTC placed 14th last year, and Hale is looking for an improvement.

"I think we'll do better. We had a let down last year after placing second the year before. I think all the team members have been talking about it this year and we're pretty set on doing better. If we draw right, we have a good chance. The talent and the try is there."

Van is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy C. Hale.

Moses, Ashford survive shaky moments at trials

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Despite some scary moments, world record holders Edwin Moses and Evelyn Ashford each survived in style.

Moses, going for an amazing 102nd consecutive victory in the 400-meter hurdles final Monday night in the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials, had one false start then seemed to break out slowly when the race actually began. He recovered quickly, though, to win in 47.76 seconds and earn a berth in the Olympics.

Ashford, plagued by injuries much of her career, felt a twinge of pain in her right hamstring muscle while warming up for her semifinal heat in the women's 100-meter dash. But, after cautiously running just fast enough (11.43) in the semis to finish third and gain a berth in the finals, she had her leg heavily taped and sped to an 11.18 victory to nail down a spot on the American team.

In the only other final scheduled for the third day of the eight-day trials, veteran Duncan Atwood uncorked his first 300-foot throw, a soaring heave of 306-7, to capture the men's javelin.

Danny Harris, an 18-year-old Iowa State freshman who is the reigning NCAA 400-meter hurdles champion, finished second in 48.11 and Tranel Hawkins was third in 48.28 to join Moses on the Olympic team.

Tom Petranoff, the world record holder in the javelin at 327-2, finished second at 278-8, and unheralded Steve Roller was third at 272-4 to make the U.S. team along with Atwood.

In non-finals, Carl Lewis came back Monday to lead qualifiers in the long jump with a leap of 27-6½. The long jump finals are tonight, then Lewis will begin competition in the men's 200 meters on Thursday.

Another early favorite for Olympic gold, high hurdler Greg Foster, advanced to this evening's finals by winning both his qualifying heats in the 110-meter event - including a 13.19 clocking, best in the world this year, in his first race.

Antonio McKay, the NCAA champion from Georgia Tech, also had an impressive time, 44.95, to capture his second-round heat in the men's 400-meter dash. Sunder Nix took the other heat in 45.07.

Chandra Cheeseborough, the former American record holder in the women's 400, posted the second-fastest clocking ever by an American, taking her semifinal heat in 50.41. Valerie Brisco-Hooks, who set the national 400 mark of 49.83 last week, took the other semifinal in 50.70.

NBA draft scheduled to begin at noon today

NEW YORK (AP) - Akeem Olajuwon visited his native country of Nigeria this month and found out his parents weren't completely sold on his becoming a professional basketball player.

"They're very happy about the money, but they want me to go back to school and get my degree," Olajuwon said on the eve of today's National Basketball Association draft, in which the Houston Rockets were to make him the No. 1 selection. It would be the fourth time in six years that an underclassman was the top pick.

The only questions about Olajuwon revolve around his relative inexperience in basketball and his ability to adapt to playing with 7-4 Ralph Sampson, the 1983-84 NBA Rookie of the Year and the Rockets' No. 1 pick a year ago. Olajuwon led the nation in field-goal percentage, rebounding and blocked shots while leading the University of Houston to its second straight NCAA final.

He predicted that he and Sampson "will make a great combination. I don't think we'll get in each other's way. A few weeks in practice will get us used to each other."

Barring a blockbuster trade, the Portland Trail Blazers were expected to select Sam Bowie, a 7-footer from Kentucky, with the No. 2 pick.

Marty Blake, the NBA's director of scouting, said this year's draft has "six potential superstars" in Olajuwon, Bowie, North Carolina's Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins, Kentucky's Mel Turpin and Auburn's Charles Barkley.

Zoeller claims Open title by eight strokes

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) - Fuzzy Zoeller, victim of a cross-country putt Sunday, holed an even longer one to propel him to the United States Open Golf Championship in a crushing, record-setting, 8-stroke playoff decision over struggling Greg Norman.

Zoeller ngtched a 33-67, while Norman could only muster 36-75. It was the most lopsided victory since 1929.

Hillside Memorial specializes in making granite monuments

Hillside Memorial Gardens and Monument Works, wants you, the public, to know that they specialize in the making of granite monuments, and that the work is done right here in Snyder.

Greg Graves, monument designer, has attended training seminars that familiarize retailers with the latest techniques in creating personalized, contemporary memorial designs.

The making of a monument is an intricate operation and Graves goes to great lengths to see that the finished product is one that pleases the family members and reflects the individualism of the loved one for whom the monument has been created.

The staff at the Monument Works are continually striving to improve their abilities and skills in expressing ideas and feelings conveyed to them by the families of the loved one who the monument is for. They also realize that they provide an important service to the community and work hard to maintain the trust and confidence of the people.

Just as important as the physical skills is the caring attitude that is shown to a bereaved family when counseling for a monument.

The staff of Hillside will be happy to counsel with anyone at any time concerning their present or future needs. Give them a call at 573-5251 or go by and visit with them at on the Colorado City Hillside Monument Works Highway.

Women begin study on effects of overeating

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Three woman have begun a major sacrifice for the sake of science: indulging themselves for three weeks with ice cream, milk shakes, whipped cream, cookies and cakes — and getting paid for it.

The closely monitored experiment at the University of Rochester Medical Center will determine how much added weight comes from doubling calories consumed.

On Monday, the women checked into Strong Memorial Hospital. They will receive $800 each to give scientists a graphic example of exactly what pigging out does to the human body.

Sue Kinear, Sharon Masseth and a woman who requested anonymity expect to gain about 11 pounds each as they eat a rigidly controlled, balanced diet and undergo continual tests of their blood, urine, hormones and lean-to-fat ratio.
