Panel approves tough standards

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Select Committee on Public Education, which already has approved more than a dozen recommendations to reconstruct the Texas school system, today favored setting "rigorous" statewide standards for teacher education schools and programs.

The board later will be asked to favor extending the school day to eight hours.

At the urging of chairman H. Ross Perot, the panel also recommended this morning requiring every school of education in Texas to adopt a public school and operate it under the direction of local school boards.

"Having a medical school without a hospital is a joke. Yet we've got schools of education with no classroom laboratory," Perot said.

The board said that schools of education that did not meet rigorous standards set by the State Board of Education would be subject to 24 months' probation and, if standards did not improve, would lose the right to recommend graduates for teacher certification.

The blue-ribbon panel began voting on its final blueprint for a revamped education system Wednesday, unanimously recommending a 36 percent raise for starting teachers and voting 14-6 in favor of replacing the elected State Board of Education with governor's appointees.

"We all have one goal and that goal is to provide the finest educational system possible in this country," Gov. Mark White told the panel. "I believe the people of Texas will applaud the work of this committee."

The committee also approved competency testing for all teachers in Texas but tabled consideration of requiring basic skills tests for both students taught at home and their parents.

But the panel has yet to place a price tag on its sweeping recommendations.

White said he will convene a special session of the Legislature this summer to act on the panel's recommendations for the future of Texas schools.

23 g-i-r-d-i-n-g for county bee

Twenty-three students from Scurry County schools grades fourth through eighth will compete Friday morning in the 9th Annual Scurry County Spelling Bee.

Among these will be defending champion Janna Burrow of Ira, now in her last year of eligibility as an eighth grader.

The event will be conducted in the Fine Arts Theatre on the campus of Western Texas College beginning at 9 a.m.

Judges will be Dr. Ben Brock, WTC vice president; Dr. Ed Barkowsky, chairman of the Communications and Letters Division at WTC; Frances Pitner, acting head librarian for the Scurry County Library; and Donna Fowler, radio personality for KSNY Radio.

Pronouncer for the event will be Margaret Presswood, reading specialist for Snyder public schools.

The winner of the county bee will advance to

Thomas selected chamber director

In a called meeting Wednesday, chamber of commerce directors unanimously approved Gene Thomas to fill the unexpired term of ex-director Phil Guerry.

Thomas is the superintendent for SACROC operations in Scurry County.

Directors also approved the committee chairmen appointments. They include Jack Denman, membership drive chairman; and Max von Roeder, agribusiness chairman.

In addition, tentative plans for a membership drive were approved. These plans call for a drive kick-off Monday. Progress reports are now scheduled on the 23rd and 30th and April 5, the date of this year's chamber banquet.

These dates are subject to change, it was noted.

The drive is to conclude April 12 with an appreciation banquet for all who have participated and their spouses.

Directors attending the meeting were Roy Baze, Troy Williamson, Murray Anne Ray, John Jarrell, Max von Roeder, Jerry Vestal, Phil Fortune, Ernie Armstrong, Wedge Turner and Don Newbury.

Also attending were chamber personnel Mort Ewing and Sammie York.

FNB officials name director

At the annual meeting Wednesday, shareholders of First National Bank elected a new director and authorized an increase in the number of shares of common stock.

Billy Calley, president of Calley and Fowler Production Co., was elected to the board of directors of the bank.

Calley, who lives in Ira, has been a resident of Scurry County since 1949. He served 12 years on the Ira school board of trustees and has served as a director of the Ira Water Supply Corp.

Calley is a partner in Calley and Fowler and in Calley and Fowler Equipment Co. Calley and his wife, Verline, have three children, and Calley serves as a deacon of the Ira First Baptist Church.

Directors re-elected were E.D. Walton, chairman; Larry Hearn, president and chief executive officer; Mal Donelson, Milton Ham, Morris Light, Bill McCormick, Roy McQueen and Mike Line.

Stockholders also authorized an increase in the number of shares of common stock from 120,750 to 370,750.

Hearn said the issuance of additional stock will provide a strong capital base for the bank. "It is part of a three-year plan adopted by the directorate that has, through past experience, proven not only profitable, but complimentary to prudent banking practices."

Hearn said he and the board are optimistic about 1984 and confident about the future of First National Bank.

PIZZA FEAST — Several hundred Scurry County youth turned out Wednesday evening for a "Pizza Pig-Out" at the Scurry County Coliseum sponsored by local churches in connection with this week's Scurry County Crusade for Christ. Nightly crowds in excess of 2,000 have been reported. The crusade is sponsored by 17 county congregations. (SDN Staff Photo)

Leadership class session will focus on education

Education will be the focus Thursday as class members for Century II: Leadership Scurry County study both the Snyder public school system and Western Texas College.

Thursday's March meeting is the fifth one held for the group, which organized last October.

The class, which now totals 13 of the original 15 members, will first meet at the public school administration building at 2:30 p.m. They are scheduled to meeting with WTC officials beginning around 4:45 p.m. on campus.

Class instructor is Dr. Jim Palmer, chairman of the Western Texas College Social Science Division.

At 2:30 p.m., the class will hear an introduction and overview from Superintendent Bill J. Hood. Other subjects to be discussed by administrators include future projections by Jack Gorman; financial patterns and considerations by E.D. Flynn; special programs, Dr. Tom Scannicchio; and athletic programs by David Noble.

Beginning at 4:30 p.m., the group will meet with members of the Snyder school board for a question and answer session.

The class will return to the WTC campus at 4:45 p.m. They will first

Routine stop leads to arrests

A routine traffic stop by Snyder police led to the arrests of a 22-year-old Snyder man and his 54-year-old father, who were wanted in Andrews for burglary charges there.

The local arrests were made shortly before 1 a.m. Thursday.

Ricky Carl Howard of 2704 24th St. and Ruben Carl Howard of Breckenridge are currently being held in the Scurry County Jail in lieu of bonds of $50,000 each set in Andrews.

City police report the pair were driving near the intersection of 30th St. and College Ave. at 12:48 a.m. Thursday when officers stopped their car for a routine traffic violation. A

Last weekend, Clyde and Tizzy Hall were hosts for about 43 friends who flew their classic aircrafts into Snyder for the Southwest Chapter meeting of the American Navion Society.

Clyde worried that the weather might prevent some from attending, but it worked just the reverse. The delegation was scheduled to leave on Sunday, but the elements prevented their departure until Monday.

Clyde said Snyder won the hearts of the visitors. They also attended the rattlesnake roundup in Sweetwater. One visitor, a TWA pilot's wife from Kansas City, had never seen a rattler, and the men in the delegation had her pretty jumpy before the day ended.

Clyde had particular praise for the museum staffs who gave special tours and to Bill Wilson who provided three vehicles for ground transportation.

Earlier in the week we mentioned Red Tefertiller, a long-time Scurry County resident, basketball fan deluxe and solid member over at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

His friend Jess Waller likes to tell a story about Red. It seems that Colonial Hill was having a special program, and the speaker prided himself with his ability to remember names.

During one of the group discussions, the speaker began to demonstrate his memory technique. He started around the room asking each person their name.

"What's your name sir?"

"Red Tefertiller.

"How do you spell that?" asked the speaker.

"R-E-D," responded Tefertiller.

Ask Us

Q. — Is the track renovation at the high school track going to involve seven or eight lanes and will a widening of the track include moving anything else?

A. — As planned, the new track surface will have an extra lane added, making a total of eight lanes. This will extend the current track over the outside curb. In addition, plans are to move the fence back which separates the field from the bleachers at Tiger Stadium.

In Brief

Demos denouce aid move

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's strategy of linking Central American military aid to African food relief is being denounced by Democrats as "lousy" and "indecent" and a Republican leader says he is not sure it will get through Congress.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved by voice vote Wednesday administration-backed amendments tacking $93 million in emergency security assistance for El Salvador and $21 million for anti-leftist guerrillas in Nicaragua onto a bill providing $150 million in food aid for Africa.

The African aid bill has passed the House. Its backers say it is needed to counteract the effects of a drought that has already taken hundreds of thousands of lives in sub-Saharan Africa.

Senate Republican Whip Ted Stevens of Alaska, who supported the administration move, said the bill would be sent to the Senate floor quickly but would probably end up in a House-Senate conference committee, which could delay its consideration.

Former resident to sing

Kathleen Eidelhuber-Kaun will be presented in concert Friday in the Fine Arts Theatre at Western Texas College.

After singing for 12 years with opera companies in Austria and Germany, she has returned home to the U.S. She is currently an assistant professor of voice at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

Kaun is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Virgil Mott of Snyder and has performed for Snyder audiences in the past. Her Friday program is under the sponsorship of the Fine Arts Association of WTC.

Tickets for the program may be reserved by calling the Fine Arts Division office at 573-8511, ext. 234. Tickets will be available at the door and are $6 for adults and $3 for students.

The program Friday begins at 8 p.m.

Two dog killings noted

Scurry County sheriff's deputies are investigating two recent dog killings reported just north of the Snyder city limits in the area around the Clairemont Highway.

Officers say they are uncertain if the two incidents are related.

The county officers received one report Wednesday evening about a dog near the intersection of Taylor St. and Ave. R having been shot with a hunting-type bow and arrow.

Also reported Wednesday was the killing of another dog in the same area Monday night. That animal was apparently killed with a shotgun.

1-act play performance set

Hermleigh High School drama students are performing "Cinderella" this school year during one-act play competition. The contest season kicks off Tuesday in Westbrook. Phyllis Smith is the director.

The play will be performed for the public this Friday night at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1.50 for those under 12.

During the play intermission the junior class will have a drawing for a 5-inch TV to be given away. Following that, homemade ice cream and other desserts will be served.

A chili supper will be served prior to the play beginning at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1.50 for those under 12.

Farm program date Friday

Friday is the deadline to signup for the 1984 cotton, wheat and feed grain program offered through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office.

This may be done at the ASCS office in the Ag Service Center located in the 3400 Block beside College Ave.

Senators urging 'full disclosure' by Meese

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Senate Judiciary Committee say Edwin Meese III will have to offer complete explanations to the questions that have arisen over his nomination as attorney general or his support in the Senate is sure to crumble.

Their comments came Wednesday after Meese, President Reagan's top domestic policy adviser, told the panel he had failed to list a $15,000, interest-free loan on his 1981 financial disclosure statement.

The disclosure was the latest in a series of problems Meese is expected to explain when he returns to testify before the panel in new hearings that may open next week.

The committee has been probing the White House counselor's generous financial arrangements with acquaintances who later obtained federal jobs, as well as possible conflicting statements involving what he knew about Carter campaign documents that ended up in his files.

Some Democrats on the panel said they found Meese's answers to their questions on the matters "evasive," and they demanded he return to testify. He agreed to do so after being contacted by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the committee chairman.

Speaking with reporters, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, said the investigation pointed to "some character problems" on Meese's part.

"I'm no longer leaning strongly in support of him. And unless he does very well, I'll vote against him," said the Arizona Democrat, who had made several favorable comments about Meese during his appearance before the panel.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., applauded Meese's willingess to appear to clear up what he called "a number of significant questions."

Irish policemen gear for IRA revenge plans

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Police increased security today for Protestant leaders in Northern Ireland out of fear the IRA might try to avenge the shooting of Gerry Adams, president of the guerrillas' political wing.

"We don't think the IRA will allow the attempt to kill Gerry Adams to pass without some kind of retaliation," said a senior police officer, who asked not to be identified.

Adams, president of Sinn Fein, was wounded in the neck and shoulder Wednesday by gunmen who riddled his car with at least 15 bullets as he drove from a courthouse where he is being tried for obstructing police during Britain's general election last June.

Police arrested three Protestant gunmen for the attack, claimed by the Ulster Freedom Fighters, a terrorist squad linked to the Ulster Defense Association, the biggest of Northern Ireland's Protestant paramilitary organizations.

Police officials declined to give details of the reinforcements. But sources said the Rev. Ian Paisley, who survived an assassination attempt two years ago, was a prime target, and armed guards maintained a discrete cordon around his east Belfast home.

Paisley, a fundamentalist preacher-politician and fervent foe of the almost exclusively Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army, leads the Democratic Unionist Party, which opposes the IRA's aim to unite this Protestant-dominated British province with the Catholic Irish Republic.

The IRA is outlawed but Sinn Fein, its political front, is legal.

Paisley, in an interview with Britain's Channel 4 television news Wednesday night, said Adams had justified killings and "clearly glorified in them ..."

"Those that take the sword shall perish by the sword," he said.

William the Conqueror died in 1087.

At Wit's End

by erma bombeck

I opened up my desk drawer the other day and realized I have 37 billfold-sized pictures of small, dimpled babies sitting on shag rugs and in bathtubs chewing on something and looking adorable.

They have one thing in common.

All of them have grandmothers with camera hands who are my age or younger and who have seen fit to rub it in.

It isn't bad enough I have to tromp through miles of toys at Christmas with these women, listen to how they threw their little angel arms around Grandma's neck and said, "I wub you mamaw," or shuffle through 30 pounds of Polaroids. I also have to be reminded that if my kids don't get off the dime — and soon — I will be the only grandmother who can't feed herself.

A mother in Austin, Minn., wrote that she had had it with grandmothers cornering her with the latest snapshots, so she took a picture of an aerosol can of furniture wax and a bottle of detergent. Now whenever they turn to her and say, "Where are the pictures of your grandchildren?" she whips out the pictue and says, "Here they are ... My Pride and my Joy."

Since I began writing about the reluctance of young people to give their moters the revenge they so desperately need, scores of women have written wanting answers to the problem. Why are young people putting off having babies?

A statistic sticks in my mind from somewhere that out of a group of young married surveyed, nearly 80 percent of their parents were still married and in fact were considered by them to be role models.

It's only a question, then, of did that vast group of non-grandparents frighten their children with their perfection? Or their imperfection?

Speaking only for myself, I'm sure it was my perfection.

Who could possibly measure up to all the good times I had mothering? Taking a birthday cake hot from the oven at 11:24 at night and stuffing it into a yawning mouth saying, "Eat! In 36 minutes, it won't be your birthday anymore."

Washing the dog in tomato juice when he encountered a skunk. Sitting through a concert of "battling French horns." Spending three months to make a pair of slacks that the kid wouldn't wear because they looked homemade. Knocking out a wall in the dead of winter to make room for a ping-pong table that was only used to throw books on after school.

I think young people suspect why those role models have stayed married so long. Revenge!

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

March 16, 1984

Two persons of whom you were very fond, but drifted away from due to circumstances beyond your control, will reeneter your life this coming year. The reunion will be a happy one.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Major accomplishments are possible today, so don't be discouraged if things appear to temporarily slip from your grasp. You'll recover and be victorious. The areas in which you'll be the luckiest are revealed in your Astro-Graph year-ahead predictions for Pisces. To get yours, mail $1 and your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send an additional $2 for the Matchmaker set, which tells you your compatibility to all signs and shows you to which signs you are best suited romantically.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Changes brought about by efforts other than your own tend to work for your benefit today, especially those which have financial overtones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You need the types of social involvements today which awaken your competitive spirit, such as a friendly game of chance or a fun team sport.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An opportunity could suddenly pop up for you today career-wise. Should something promising develop, drop everything else and pursue it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try to take more direct control of situations today which affect your personal interests. Probabilities for success increase if nothing's left to chance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions continue to favor you in financial areas. In fact, there's a possibility today that you can gain from two different sources.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Partnership situations will fare better today if you assume the leading role, rather than the supportive one. You're the better catalyst.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not postpone matters important to your material well-being. You are likely to be much luckier today than tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Friends will be looking to you for suggestions regarding today's social activities. Consider their pocketbooks when making your recommendations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you deliberately seek to be the center of attention today, your efforts could fall flat. When you're just yourself, all eyes will be focused on you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be a keen observer today, especially of persons whose style you admire. If you master their tactics, they'll work for you as well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Conditions presently affecting your financial stability should begin to shift in your favor today. In fact, you may pick up a little surplus.

Kelsey's maxim for today is: "Don't get shut out of the bidding when you want to tell your partner something of value."

When the hand was played, East stayed out of the bidding entirely. West opened the queen of clubs, and declarer worked out a simple end play to make four hearts.

He took the high clubs, ruffed his last club in dummy and led a trump. East took his three tricks and was forced either to lead away from his king of diamonds or to give declarer a ruff and discard.

As Kelsey points out, four-card suit or no four-card suit, East should bid one spade to suggest a spade lead. Even if East didn't make that immediate overcall, he certainly could and should double two hearts at his second turn.

That delayed double would surely get a spade bid from West, who can make four spades against any defense that does not start with three rounds of clubs.

The immediate spade overcall would also get some spade action from West. He might not get to four, but he would lead a spade against four hearts. East would cash two spades and the ace of hearts, get out with a club and wait for his diamond trick.

GORDON, Ga. (AP) — Even one sheet of paper can save valuable warehouse space.

St. Regis, a bag manufacturer, says it has bags which allow the user to remove a ply of paper or reduce the weight of paper in a bag without sacrificing strength. It says the bags allowed an industrial producer here to store 9,000 bags in the same space normally taken by 7,000 empty bags.

Patchwork Squares plan various upcoming events.

The Patchwork Squares Extension Homemakers held their regular meeting Tuesday in the home of Sheila Wallace with 11 members present. The business meeting was conducted by Saundra Evans, president. Members were reminded of several coming events including the CVU workshop on March 22; the retirement reception for Juanita Hanson, extension office secretary, March 26; the District II meeting in Plainview April 5; and Extension Homemakers Week in early May.

Diane Price, a member of Honey Do's HE Club, presented a program on skin and nail care and the use of cosmetics to create the illusion of a perfectly shaped face.

Francie Loyd shared items of counted cross stitch embroidery and a discussion of materials and techniques followed.

Guests at the meeting were Shad Nachlinger, Liz Neely, Viola Livesay and Mrs. Price. The hostess gift was won by Mrs. Loyd.

The April meeting is to be at the home of Pearl Wheeler with members bringing Easter ideas to share.

Operation not necessary

BOSTON (AP) — The most common operation on children — removing their tonsils — can definitely help youngsters with frequent and severe sore throats, but many will get better without surgery, a major study concludes today.

Each year, U.S. doctors operate on about 400,000 children to remove their tonsils — lymphoid tissues on either side of the throat at the back of the tongue which act as a filter against disease organisms, but which often become a site of infection themselves.

Even though tonsillectomies on children are less popular than a generation ago, they are still the most common childhood operation.

No clear guidelines exist to determine when tonsillectomies are needed and the operation is controversial.

Dr. Jack L. Paradise, who directed the latest study, the first major U.S. review of tonsillectomies, said some doctors perform them on children who have occasional sore throats, while others virtually refuse to do them at all.

"This paper refutes the two extremes and comes down in the middle."

The study was conducted at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh on 187 children who were severely affected with recurrent throat infections.

Too much magnesium

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in one of your columns that too much magnesium can cause problems. When I was in the hospital for a light stroke they gave me Maalox four times a day, presumably for my reflux esophagitis. I took it faithfully for 14 months, but finally decided I could get along without it.

But I recently fell on some concrete steps and broke my wrist, which has caused me to be weak and stagger when I walk. Do you think this could be the Maalox?

DEAR READER — Antacids are commonly used to neutralize the acid contents of the stomach and prevent the regurgitated contents from burning the lower esophagus.

While Maalox contains magnesium, by now you should have eliminated any excess accumulation. The problem with magnesium in any preparation is that people older than 50 have difficulty eliminating the excess through the kidneys. The chance is there for magnesium to accumulate in the body and cause an unsteady gait and other symptoms.

Your symptoms, however, are probably related to your light stroke.

There's another hazard with antacids. Maalox and other antacids contain aluminum. It can blend with phosphate in the intestine, limiting your phosphate absorption. Chronic use of antacids containing aluminum can deplete the phosphate from your bones, leading to dissolving bone problems. This is one reason I don't like people to consistently take antacids. The weak bones are more apt to fracture when you fall.

I've summarized the use and misuse of antacids in the Health Letter 10-4, Use and Abuse of Antacids, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My niece has been a vegetarian for the last two months and now she's acting very strange. She stares through wide eyes and her temper is terrible. Her moods go from bad to worse. Her family walks on eggshells so they won't upset her. She's no longer the sweet, happy girl I once knew. Can this be her diet?

DEAR READER — Nutritional deficiencies can cause changes in behavior, even causing psychosis. This can occur with vitamin B-12 and folic acid deficiencies. Vegetarians usually get enough folic acid because of the large amounts of leafy vegetables. But they can become deficient in vitamin B-12. Vitamin B-12 is found in animal products, therefore it's a consideration for individuals who are strict vegetarians.

I doubt this is your niece's problem, however, because the human body has enough vitamin B-12 under normal circumstances to last long after it's eliminated from the diet.

I'd look for some other cause for your niece's behavior. It may be entirely emotional. Or it could be from some underlying medical disorder, such as an overactive throid, which often results in wide, staring eyes. It'd be helpful to have a medical evaluation.

Woman makes dream dress for Stormie Jones

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — It's the kind of dress that every little girl and even some big girls dream of, like those found in a 'once upon a time' story where the beautiful princess falls in love with the handsome prince and they live 'happily ever after.' The princess in this story is Stormie Jones.

Stormie doesn't know it yet, but she is about to have one of her wishes come true.

Mrs. Odie Smith of rural Sulphur Springs has designed Stormie a pink dress made entirely of lace and satin ribbon. The lace dress is a result of many, many loving hours of hard work in a mobile home that sits next to the Smith home. It is the sewing room where Mrs. Smith creates dreams.

She says her work was blended with deep concern and "lots of prayers" for the 6-year-old Cumby resident who underwent double transplant surgery on Valentine's Day.

Stormie was the first person to undergo the simultaneous transplants. She was discharged Wednesday from Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh, but hospital officials said she would have to return to the hospital several times a week for blood tests.

"I was busy making dresses for my granddaughters for a pageant they are planning to participate in when the twins came up with the idea of making a new dress for Stormie," Mrs. Smith said. "The girls have been praying every night at bedtime for Stormie and for a quick recovery. Although they have never met her, the girls feel as if they know her well. We have talked about her surgery and they ask about her condition every day. They wanted her to have a dress just like theirs, so I made one."

Mrs. Smith didn't have a pattern to go by when making the dress. She used newspaper and designed the pattern and dress herself.

"I stayed up night after night trying to figure out how to make the collar," she said. "I would wake up in the middle of the night thinking about the dress. One day it just fell together. Since I didn't have a pattern it took me longer to make the dress. I could see it in my mind but I had to make a pattern before I could begin."

The dress, which is made out of approximately 125 yards of pink lace and satin ribbon, would probably retail for $250. But what's a pretty dress without the accessories. The twins, Jennifer and Jeana Smith of Sulphur Springs, pooled their allowances to buy white patent shoes and leotards to go with the elegant dress. They also found dainty hair ribbons to match.

Snyder to host team tennis event Friday

Snyder High School hosts its annual team tennis tournament at the junior high and high school courts this weekend with eight schools participating.

Play is scheduled to begin at 8:30 Friday morning. Snyder coach Charlie Chrane said he hopes to run off 94 matches - three rounds - on Friday. The final round will be held Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m.

Teams entered include Borger, Estacado, Floydada, San Angelo Lake View, Odessa High, Post, Snyder and Sweetwater.

"Overall, Odessa and Lake View look like very strong teams," said Chrane. "We hope we can play well Friday and put ourselves in position to finish strong. Estacado should have a good team, too."

Odessa's Lupe Lujan and Snyder's Chris Wiman are considered favorites in the boy's singles while Lake View and Odessa are strong in both doubles. Mary Warren of Lake View is the favorite in girl's singles.

Wiman, a senior, will play No. 1 singles for Snyder. James Melott, also a senior, will play No. 2. Sophomore Mike McWilliams and freshman Michael Risenhoover are playing No. 1 doubles and juniors Bob Spikes and Toby Hinshaw take the second spot.

In girl's play, freshman Michelle Osborn is No. 1 and sophomore Terri Holley No. 2 for Snyder. The Tigers' No. 1 team of junior Shana Hart and freshman Shanda Wiman is considered one of the better girl's doubles teams in the tournament. Also playing doubles for the hosts will be sophomore Kim Butler and junior Michelle Killian.

The tournament is constructed so that an individual or team finishes in order, 1-16.

Miami Dade will run ball up and down court

Western Texas College will face a running squad when it takes on Miami Dade North in the first round of the NJCAA National Tournament next Wednesday.

Miami, the No. 2 ranked team in the country, is averaging 90 points a game.

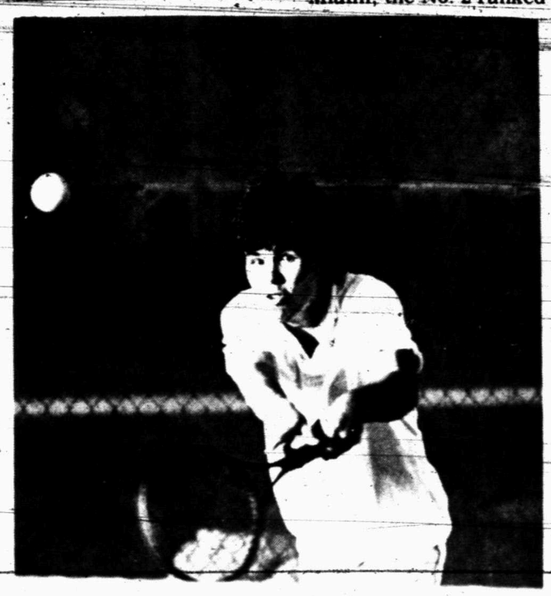

"We do like to push it up and down the floor," said Dr. Bill Alheim, coach for Miami Dade for the past 20 years. "But we've had some weak opponents and that makes our scoring average look higher than it probably should be."

Coach Alheim downplays his team's success, despite its 33-1 record and high national ranking.

"Well, that ranking doesn't mean much but we do think we've got a good team. We're doing okay. We've got pretty good balance, six sophomores and four freshmen, and that's been an asset for us," he said. For Alheim, it will be his third trip to the national tournament. Miami went in 1968 and in 1982. In 1982 it lost in the championship game to Midland College in double overtime.

Injuries have left Miami with just 10 players, but all generally see action. The squad is led by 6-5 freshman forward Issac Johnson, who averages 14.5 points and 8 rebounds a game. At the other forward is 6-6 sophomore Jerome Black, averaging 12.1 points and 7 boards while the center is 6-8 Hector Rodriquez, who averages 6.7 points and 6.3 rebounds.

At point guard is 6-2 sophomore Tony Fairley, the second leading scorer on the team with a 13.1 average. Wing-guard Edward Anderson, a 6-2 freshman, averages 9.1 points.

Baseball tourney opens today at Moffett Field

Lamesa and Estacado stepped to the plate this morning, opening the 1984 Snyder Baseball Tournament at Moffett Field.

The eight-team, three-day tournament continues with four games daily through Saturday.

At 1:30 today, Plainview was to take on Dunbar.

Defending champion Snyder opens its bid at 4 this afternoon against Levelland, while Andrews and Kermit vie in the late game at 7.

Today's games will be the first played at the newly renovated Moffett Field, which features new dugouts, stands and fences and boasts covered seating and a new pressbox.

Friday's play begins at 11 with the losers of the Lamesa-Estacado and Plainview-Dunbar games vying. Winners of the two games meet at 1:30. In afternoon play, the Levelland Snyder loser plays the Andrews-Kermit loser at 4. Winners vie at 7.

On Saturday, the seventh place game begins at 11, consolation at 1:30, third place at 4 and the championship at 6.

Runnin' Rebels set for Princeton tonight

by The Associated Press

It will be the fastbreaking Runnin' Rebels of Nevada-Las Vegas against the patient Trottin' Tigers of Princeton when the NCAA Basketball Tournament resumes tonight on four fronts.

Princeton will bring a bit of Ivy League culture to the tournament when the Tigers, seeded 12th and last in the West following their 65-56 preliminary-round triumph over the University of San Diego, oppose 13th-ranked UNLV in the opener of a first-round doubleheader at Salt Lake City. The nightcap pits Louisiana State against Dayton.

While UNLV's average of 83.7 points a game was fifth highest in the nation as the Rebels ran to a 27-5 record, Princeton's yield of just 49.2 points a game put the Tigers at the head of the defensive class. But they captured defensive honors thanks in large part to a deliberate style of attack.

"Rather unusual," is the way UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian describes it. "In fact, there's not a team in the western United States that plays in their style."

Will UNLV make Princeton run or will Princeton make UNLV walk?

"I really think the day is gone when you can make a really good basketball team run when they don't want to run," says Tarkanian. "I don't think you can do it. We don't play that way every game. We don't come out and pressure people every game and I don't think we can force Princeton into running."

Coach Pete Carril of 18-9 Princeton said he was "not worried about UNLV's offense. I know they are going to score. I'm worried about their defense. It's been very underrated for years. Jerry said it's tough to get us to go up-tempo, but I know he's going to try to do it."

The home-court advantage in tonight's play belongs to Alabama-Birmingham and Memphis State. In the Mideast, UAB meets Brigham Young at the Birmingham-Jefferson Civic Center after 17th-ranked Oregon State faces West Virginia.

Meanwhile, the Midwest section finds Fresno State vs. Louisiana Tech, followed by Memphis State vs. Oral Roberts at Memphis' Mid-South Coliseum.

In the East, 20th-ranked Temple meets St. John's and Auburn goes against Richmond at Charlotte, N.C.

The first round continues Friday night with four more doubleheaders - Virginia Commonwealth-Northeastern and Virginia-Iona at East Rutherford, N.J.; Louisville-Morehead State and Villanova-Marshall at Milwaukee; Illinois State-Alabama and Kansas-Alcorn State at Lincoln, Neb., and Nevada-Reno vs. 15th-ranked Washington and Miami of Ohio-Southern Methodist at Pullman, Wash.

"I think ours is definitely the toughest (regional)," Bartow said. "Can you imagine a tournament with the Atlantic Coast Conference champion (Maryland) and the SEC champion (Kentucky)? We also have the co-champions of the Pac-10 (Oregon State) and the champions of the Atlantic 10 (West Virginia) and the Sun Belt. That's a pretty good field."

"I think we're peaking now," said Coach Andy Russo.

Lamar whips New Mexico

by The Associated Press

The Lamar basketball team was angered over missing the NCAA playoffs . . . and made New Mexico pay for it in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

"I'm proud of the way they bounced off the floor after what happened," said Lamar Coach Pat Foster after Wednesday night's opening-round 64-61 victory over New Mexico in the NIT.

What happened was an upset in the finals of the Southland Conference playoffs last Saturday and a snub by the NCAA tournament committee on Sunday. Foster had expressed anger at being passed over by the NCAA despite a 25-4 record and the regular-season Southland Conference championship.

But Wednesday night was a different story.

"We didn't play as well as we're capable of or have played this season. But considering the adversity we were up against (New Mexico's home court and 16 second half-free throws by the Lobos), it had to be one of our better games," Foster said.

In other first-round NIT action Wednesday night, Tennessee-Chattanooga took a 74-69 overtime win over Georgia, a Final Four team in the NCAA tournament last year; Notre Dame defeated Old Dominion 67-62; Tennessee drubbed St. Peter's of New Jersey 54-40; South Alabama edged Florida 88-87, and Southwestern Louisiana tripped Utah State 94-92.

In first-round games tonight, it's Florida State at North Carolina State; Georgia Tech at Virginia Tech; Wichita State at Michigan; Nebraska at Creighton; Ohio State at Xavier, Ohio; Marquette at Iowa State, and Santa Clara at Oregon. On Friday night, it's Boston College vs. St. Joseph's and Pittsburgh vs. La Salle in Philadelphia and Fordham at Weber State.

Lamar's prolific shooting combination of Tom Sewell and Jerry Everett held off a second-half New Mexico rally as the Cardinals beat the Lobos.

Sewell led the Cardinals with 29 points, including a layup with 26 seconds left that sealed Lamar's triumph. Everett chipped in with 20 points. New Mexico, which finished its best season since 1978 with a 24-11 record, got a pair of 21-point performances from Tim Garrett and Phil Smith.

Keady cage coach of year

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Gene Keady, whose Purdue Boilermakers shared the Big Ten championship in 1983-84, was selected national coach of the year by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

Keady won out over DePaul's Ray Meyer in balloting conducted by the association's 10-member board of directors. Purdue, picked to finish near the bottom of the Big Ten standings, wound up with a 15-3 record tied for first place.

Cats win 2 games

Snyder junior varsity baseball team picked up a couple of wins this week. The Cats defeated Big Spring 7-6 on Tuesday and Midland High 14-5 on Wednesday.

Don Osborne came in relief of Kenneth Pickering and picked up the victory over the past two innings against Big Spring.

Justin Webb went the distance against Midland to take the win Wednesday.

Mike Carter led the Cats in hitting with three doubles and three RBI. Webb also had three hits and scored three times.

Snyder, now 3-2, will host Abilene High at 4 p.m. Monday on Moffett Field.

Connors wins in 1st round

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) - Jimmy Connors defeated Brian Teacher 6-3, 7-6 in the first round of the Rotterdam Grand Prix Tennis Tournament.

In other matches, Kevin Curren of South Africa beat Brian Gottfried 6-2, 7-5; Sweden's Anders Jarryd ousted Shlomo Glickstein of Israel 7-6, 6-2; Eliot Teltscher eliminated Joakim Nystrom of Sweden 3-6, 6-0, 6-3; and Stefan Edberg of Sweden downed Johan Kriek 6-3, 6-3.

'Star' games are Saturday

Snyder Boys Isittle Dribblers will hold all-star games March 17 in the high school gym.

The Minor League game will be held at 6; the Major League game at 7. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Proceeds from the all-star games will be used to pay expenses to the regional tournament, scheduled for April 5-7.

Bell says Rangers are now 'first class'

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Buddy Bell of the Texas Rangers has been described as the classiest third baseman in the American League.

He is newcomer Gary Ward's favorite player. Kansas City's George Brett called him the best player at his position in the American League.

Bell defers judgement on his own abilities but will now use "classy" to describe the organization for which he plays. "This club has done an about face and it can be traced to Doug Rader (manager)," Bell said. "This organization has gone from third class to first class."

The Rangers went from a sixth place finish in 1982 to third place last season after leading the American League Western Division at the All-Star break.

The class of the Rangers is improving because of off-season trades including the acquisition of outfielder Gary Ward from Minnesota. The Rangers also sent catcher Jim Sundberg to Milwaukee in exchange for catcher Ned Yost.

"The trades they have made were to help the club," Bell said. "I hated to see Sundberg go but they are trying to build a winner here and you can't fault them for that.

"They went out and got Gary Ward. I think he will give us something extra that we need in the hitting department."

Bell thinks Ward will be the prescription the Rangers need to improve on last season's .255 team batting average.

"I think Ward will cure a lot of problems," Bell said. "I don't mean to put a lot of pressure on Ward but it will take pressure off our hitters and put it on the (opposing) pitchers. If pitchers have to start looking down the lineup and can't pitch around certain hitters, it's going to be better for us."

Bell has a .284 lifetime batting average but fell to a .277 last season and hopes he'll have an improved season at the plate.

"I can't say if I felt more pressure last year," Bell said. "I feel the same last year as I have the past four years. I just try to do my job no matter what the situation."

Astros Manager Doug Rader tentatively has Bell penciled in as the No. 6 hitter. That could change if first baseman Pete O'Brien doesn't have improved run-production in the No. 2 spot.

"I don't particularly like hitting sixth but it's better than hitting 10th," Bell said. "I see no problems."

Bell drove in 101 runs his first season with the Rangers but dropped to 66 RBI last season.

"Buddy's shoulder was killing him all year," Rader said. "It was an off year for him but he still was a productive player and you've got to think that he might do even better this year.

"He still did a very good job defensively for us and he's still a very important person on the ball club."

Astros top Rangers, 6-3

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Harry Spilman's grand slam home run highlighted a five-run Houston 10th, snapping a 1-1 tie and carrying the Astros to a 6-3 victory over the Texas Rangers in an exhibition game at Municipal Park Wednesday.

Spilman's blast over the left center field fence came after Ranger right-hander Ron Musselman had loaded the bases on walks. Luis Pujols added an RBI single to cap the Astros' flurry.

Texas scored twice in the bottom of the 10th on George Wright's RBI single and a double play grounder.

Alan Ashby's sacrifice fly had given Houston a 1-0 lead off Charlie Hough in the third. Mike Richardt's solo homer tied it in the sixth.

Nolan Ryan worked four shutout innings for the Astros. Hough went five innings and allowed only the one run.

Houston lifted its exhibition record to 7-3. Texas is 3-4.

Man fights deportation

NICEVILLE, Fla. (AP) — When Teodoro Salanga Jr. was 6 he repeatedly sneaked into World War II Japanese prison camps in the Philippines to smuggle food and medicine to American prisoners of war.

For seven years during the Vietnam War he worked as an engineer for American communications companies under contract with the United States government, escaping on one of the last planes out of Saigon before South Vietnam fell to communist forces.

Salanga's goal now is to become an American citizen, but the United States government wants to deport him to his native Philippines.

Salanga, 47, who came to the United States five years ago on a temporary visitor visa, has been refused permanent resident status. The Immigration and Naturalization Service last month sent him an order to show why he shouldn't be deported.

The introduction in Congress of a private bill by Rep. Earl Hutto, D-Fla., to give him resident status has temporarily allowed him to stay.

Meanwhile, former prisoners of war and residents of this Florida Panhandle town on the edge of Eglin Air Force Base have written letters to congressmen and government officials to support Salanga's quest.

Frank W. McGowan, city manager of Yearington, Nev., is one of the POWs aided by Salanga and other members of his family.

"All of us, after Bataan and the death march and 30 or 40 days in that prison were in pretty bad shape," McGowan said in a telephone interview last week. "I am convinced that a lot of the help that was provided by the Salanga family saved some lives."

Japanese invaders in April 1942 marched about 10,000 U.S. prisoners and 62,000 Filipinos about 60 miles from the Bataan peninsula to prison camps. U.S. officials believe as many as 700 Americans and 10,000 Filipinos died during the march. It is estimated that up to 6,000 Americans died in captivity in the next 3½ years.

McGowan said Salanga should be welcomed by the United States.

"Of all the people that we've taken in, it surely looks like we have room for a guy like Teddy Salanga," McGowan said.

But Salanga is trying to sidestep immigration quotas and waiting lists. Federal law permits exceptions for foreigners who have worked for the U.S. government, but Salanga's Vietnam work doesn't count because he was employed by private contractors.

Ruth L. Brooks, U.S. counsel in the Philippines, disallowed his prison camp exploits because Salanga was "too young to be in the service of the U.S. government at the time."

No one is pushing his cause harder than his sister, Josephine Salanga Britt. Now an American citizen, she came to the United States as the wife of Sigmond Laskowski, one of the POWs she and her brother helped. He died 18 years ago and she later remarried.

They recalled their World War II experiences during an interview last week at the restaurant Mrs. Britt operates.

Their father, Teodoro Sr., opened an eatery as a cover for cooking food smuggled to the POWs. Salanga made deliveries because he was small enough to crawl under barbed wire, using a stick to lift the wire over his body.

Food and medicine to treat beriberi and malaria were stuffed into his pockets, under his shirt or in a pillow case.

INCOME TAXES MADE EASY

Nearly nine million Americans continued to place their trust in H & R Block at tax time last year.

Why do millions of people keep coming back to H & R Block? Because they like many things about the service, including the care and accuracy of the work; the competency of the tax preparers and their thorough knowledge of all the new tax laws; and, especially, the tax dollars many have saved.

But that's not all. Block's customers value the good year-round service; the courteous treatment they receive; the personal, confidential attention; and the peace of mind attained in knowing a difficult task was completed at a reasonable charge.

Join the millions who go to H & R Block! You'll be glad you did!

Craftsmanship popular again

BRANSON, Mo. (AP) — The woodsman swings his axe with the precision of a diamond cutter, whack after whack, to shape his handmade spoons from plum and cherry logs.

The grandmother who raised 10 children in a dirt-floor house whittles her fiddles, pausing now and then to lay a tune on a finished violin that isn't yet spoken for.

A bellows maker and copper pounder and cornshucks weaver and horse carver display their one-of-a-kind creations with parental pride, offering for sale the byproducts of forest, field and forge.

Throughout the nation, but especially in the heartland, artists are reviving crafts from a bygone era that are eagerly sought by consumers living in an age of mass production and sameness.

Twice a year, dropouts of the big city, offspring of small towns, and second-career individualists gather in the hills and hollows of the Ozarks to display their wares at the Ozark Mountain Crafts Festival and the National Crafts Festival.

Silver Dollar City (SDC), a 2,000-acre tourist attraction featuring an 1880s village setting as its core, sponsors the spring and fall rendezvous and invites at least 50 crafts folk each season to join its resident blacksmiths, potters, candlemakers and furriers for the five-week shows.

Authenticity, originality and quality are the criteria for entry.

"If you aren't the best at whatever you do, you aren't eligible," says Don Richardson, SDC's public relations director.

The amusement park also requires its guest artisans to immerse themselves in its frontier period and dress accordingly.

Each exhibitor sets up in a booth amidst acres of dogwood and redbud trees, and hundreds of flowering plants border the paved paths that crisscross the display area. All day, ice wagons, horsedrawn buggies, and calico-clad service employees mingle with the thousands of paying tourists.

This April marks the 23rd year that SDC has sponsored the festivals, which have grown from six craftsmen at the beginning.

The only common thread running through the string of exhibitors is their commitment to handmade products.

Roger Sandstrom uprooted his family from Connecticut to Missouri when he discovered a farm for sale with a wide variety of native woods growing on the property. Descended from a great-uncle who was a New England cabinetmaker, he is a dean of treenware makers who specializes in kitchen spoons chiseled with an axe. His is the art of cooperage, and his raw material is culled from his own forest of lilac, mulberry, osage orange, peach — and even poison ivy, although those spoons are never to be used. Two of his sons have become skilled apprentices and plan to carry on the treenware tradition.

"If you work with your hands, you're a laborer," says Peter Engler, who helped organize the festivals and was SDC's first full-time craft exhibitor. "If you work with your head and hands, you're a craftsman. But if you use your head, hands and heart, you're an artist."

TYPES OF ARTHRITIS

ATLANTA (AP) — Success in treating arthritis depends on what type it is, where it is in the body, and how soon treatment is begun, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

The foundation says, "There are more tha 100 different types of arthritis. Many of these can be controlled effectively with proper and prompt treatment.

Mayor says nationwide exposure breeds work

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Mayor Henry Cisneros has spent his extra time this week penning personal replies to the stacks of favorable letters that poured in after his appearance on CBS' "60 Minutes."

Clutching a royal blue felt-tip pen in one hand, and viewing a pile of letters on his desk, the mayor says he's learned that the responsibilities of fame can make it a burdensome bonus.

"It's a lot of work, but it's worth it," he said, as he paused between writing personal messages.

The mayor was profiled by the popular CBS news magazine three Sundays ago, prompting about 300 notes, cards and letters from across the nation.

"All the letters have been positive — every single one," said Delzie Madkins, Cisneros' personal secretary.

The mayor said he had not yet waded through the entire stack by Tuesday night, but added, "Everything I've read has been very positive."

He already has announced that he plans to seek a third term in 1985.

Carver makes pipedreams come to pass

FOLEY, Ala. (AP) — Michael Keedy calls himself a "pipe Picasso."

He carves pipes — raccoon pipes, lion head pipes, tow truck pipes, dinosaur bone pipes, old shoe pipes — carving out a career with the help of pipe smokers' imagination.

It's a living that doesn't require regular hours.

"Sometimes after I've carved a pipe, I'll just get my fishing pole and head down to the beach, drop in a line, and sand it," said Keedy.

The ability to fish and sand pipes at the same time is one of the key advantages of his career, Keedy said.

He began the pipe-carving trade in high school in California. Now he guesses that in the past 14 years he's carved 1,000 pipes, featuring everything from poised lions, much like those in front of a museum, to a teeth-clinching tow truck.

The tow truck pipe went to a tow truck dealer in California. Keedy said it was a foot long, 6 inches high, 4 inches wide and weighed nearly one pound. "He really smokes it," said Keedy.

A 33-year-old native of Wheeling, W. Va., Keedy now makes his home in coastal Alabama, but he travels to pipe shows. Keedy says most of the pipe carvers in the Southeast live in the Chattanooga area.

Custom pipe-carvers are in a different league from the machine-made pipemakers who "can whip out the basic shape of a pipe in a couple of seconds with a machine called a frazier," said Keedy.

In support of custom-made pipes, Keedy said, he and other pipe-carvers have formed the American Pipemakers Guild. "There are five of us at this time, and all live in California except for me," Keedy said.

Keedy's pipes are carved from imported Grecian briarwood, and he tries to match the buyer's imagination with prices ranging from $35-$500.

"They are guaranteed for life, and I've never had to replace one," Keedy said.

He said it took him about six hours to carve a "free-form" pipe for a customer, but the custom jobs take longer.

"I did a raccoon for one guy, a snap-on tool for a Snap-On Tool dealer, a muffler for a guy who owned a muffler shop, an old shoe, a horse head."

Then there's the "abstract" work. A bird. An old dinosaur backbone.

"People sit down and draw out what they want," Keedy said. "I want that pipe to be something personal, something they'll take care of."

Dr. Christiaan Barnard is trying new treatment

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard was once offered $50,000 for the surgical gloves he wore while performing the world's first human heart transplant on Dec. 3, 1967.

"Of course I threw them away," Barnard says. "Nobody knew it was going to be that important." But it soon made him one of the most famous surgeons in the world.

Now, at age 62, Barnard has abandoned surgery for a new interest that some of his peers find baffling. Forced by arthritis to give up his scalpel a year ago, he's trying an unorthodox treatment at a luxurious Swiss clinic that purports to rejuvenate the aged through injections of cells from unborn lambs.

The therapy is also supposed to be useful for arthritis and Down's syndrome, among other afflictions, but it has evoked skepticism from many physicians and medical scientists.

The cellular therapy is the specialty at Clinic La Prairie, located in a chateau at Montreux. Barnard's work there isn't full time. He also visits England regularly to tape his portion of a show called "The Body Machine." He has joined a group of Greek businessmen in opening a fitness clinic on the Aegean island of Kos, where Hippocrates, the father of medicine, enumerated the ideals of the Hippocratic oath. He travels and lectures widely.

The Swiss rejuvenation clinic was, however, one of the first things Barnard mentioned when asked about his plans following his official retirement from the University of Cape Town, South Africa, at the end of 1983.

The arthritis that shortened Barnard's career as a surgeon was responsible for his first contact with Clinic La Prairie, established 50 years ago.

"I thought the treatment might help with my rheumatoid arthritis," Barnard told a reporter at a medical conference here. He had his first therapy about five years ago, and went back for a second three years ago.

Did it work? "It's hard to tell," Barnard says. "Maybe if I didn't have the treatment I would be crippled."

Barnard is aware of the skepticism, but says he's convinced the therapy has some validity. Nor is doubt from his colleagues a new experience for him; he recalls that his pioneering heart transplant operation was widely criticized.

And not every scientist is ready to dismiss La Prairie treatment entirely.

Barnard notes that in laboratory experiments, human cells damaged by withdrawal of nutrients can be restored to normal more quickly in the presence of fetal lamb cells.

The treatment involves the injection of fetal lamb cells, Barnard says. He has already proven that the foreign cells are rejected by the body, but that does not necessarily mean they don't have any effect.

His current research project is to see whether the fetal lamb cells will extend the growth and division of the human cells.

Problems are corrected

HOUSTON (AP) — Problems which plagued the South Texas Nuclear Project during the first several years of its construction appear to have been cleared up by the hiring of a new team of builders, a Nuclear Regulatory Commission report says.

The report, issued Wednesday, found that Houston Lighting & Power has showed acceptable character and technical competence in overseeing the nuclear power plant's construction, said administrative law judge Charles Bechhoefer, head of the three-judge panel holding hearings on the project.

Houston Lighting & Power, one of four partners building the plant 90 miles southwest of Houston, owns the largest share of the project.

"We said their (HL&P's) character is OK," Bechhoefer told the Houston Chronicle. "Their competence at one point was questionable, but they have improved and we are going to let them do what they want to do."

The panel heard extensive testimony about problems at the plant that resulted in a 1980 show-cause order that forced HL&P to explain numerous problems and violations at the plant.

Bechhoefer said construction practices at the project apparently have improved.

What's Hart's image?

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the stump, Gary Hart evokes memories of John F. Kennedy. At parties, he does a pretty fair imitation of Edward M. Kennedy. And therein lies one of the odder issues to emerge in the 1984 Democratic presidential campaign.

Is Hart trying too hard to resemble the late president? Is his Ted Kennedy imitation in bad taste?

The Kennedy questions were raised Tuesday night during a television interview of Hart by NBC commentator Roger Mudd.

"A lot of people want to know, senator, why do you imitate John Kennedy so much?" asked Mudd.

"I don't," replied Hart.

"What do you do?" asked Mudd.

"I am Gary Hart," said the presidential candidate.

Mudd, whose interview with Ted Kennedy four years ago was cited as a factor in the decline of the Massachusetts senator's presidential hopes, persisted:

"All the motions with the necktie and the chopping of the air, the hand in the pocket, people all over the country say, all he's doing is imitating John Kennedy."

"Reporters say that," responded Hart. "People around the country say, we like this candidate and we want to support him. I've spoken the way I've spoken all my life and I think there are plenty of people who will verify that. I'm not imitating anyone."

Moments later, Mudd asked a final question: "Would you do your Teddy Kennedy imitation for me now?"

"No," said Hart.

"I've heard it's hilarious," said Mudd.

Woman refuses to leave

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Barbara Landry remains at a standoff with the Edna Gladney Home for unwed mothers, which tried to evict her when she would not leave without the baby she says she now regrets giving up for adoption.

Miss Landry, 19, gave birth to a girl Feb. 10.

"I didn't want it," she said Wednesday. "It was just a belly there. But after she was born it hit me."

Miss Landry says the home "brainwashed" her into giving her baby up for adoption.

"She couldn't have been with the adoptives for more than a day when I told Gladney," Miss Landry said. "You know, with anything you buy, there's still a cooling off period ... a piece of land, a piece of meat you buy at the supermarket. But this is a baby, a life, and I signed my life away."

Officials at the home asked State District Judge Brian A. Carper to force Miss Landry to leave the facility, but on Tuesday Carper refused to hear the case, saying it was a matter for a justice of the peace.

DA is considering filing charges

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The district attorney says he's still trying to determine whether charges should be filed against some Medical Center Hospital officials for shredding 4½ tons of pharmacy records.

The 9,080 pounds of documents had been subpoenaed as part of a year-long investigation into suspicious infant deaths and illnesses at the hospital's pediatric intensive care unit.

Bexar County District Attorney Sam Millsap said Wednesday that the bulk of the shredded records did not relate to the probe, but that "we'll never know exactly what was in there that we might have needed."

Three Medical Center employees appeared before a grand jury Wednesday to discuss the shredding.

The filing of charges anytime soon would be "premature," Millsap said.

A single indictment has been issued from the massive investigation, charging nurse Genene Jones with administering a life-threatening injection to a month-old boy.

Ms. Jones, 33, already has been convicted of murder in the death-by-injection of a Kerr County infant.

Officials at the Bexar County Hospital District, which operates Medical Center, told Millsap last week that they had discovered copies of some of the shredded documents.

"They contend that nothing was destroyed that was relevant to our investigation, but it's not for them to decide," Millsap said.

"We're delighted to accept the statement at face value that (some of) the records exist and that our investigation has not been compromised by the destruction of (all) those records," he said. "We just hope we don't find out differently down the road."

Cult members revere emporer

SHASHEMANE, Ethiopia (AP) — About 50 members of the Rastafarian cult, most of them Jamaicans but also including a few Americans, have settled in this Ethiopian town where they quietly worship the late Emperor Haile Selassie as the black messiah and use marijuana in their rituals.

A few are from an original group that came here more than 15 years ago to develop 1,235 acres of land donated by Haile Selassie as a gesture of gratitude to North American and Caribbean blacks who campaigned for Ethiopian independence during the 1936-41 Italian occupation.

Many of these settlers quickly decamped after the monarch's overthrow in 1974 by a stern Marxist-Leninist military regime, which nationalized the estate as it did all large holdings. Haile Selassie, who was born Ras (Duke) Tafari from which the cult took its name, reportedly died in detention in August 1975 and was secretly buried.

There have been scrapes with authorities during the subsequent decade. About 10 Rastafarians have been arrested for illegally selling marijuana, which they call "ganja."

But what has surprised many observers is that Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile-Mariam's regime, officially atheist and strictly opposed to Haile Selassie and all he stood for, has generally tolerated the Rastafarians, who insist on the late emperor's divinity and argue that he is still alive.

"It is important because we praise not the dead but the living god," says a Rastafarian whose Jamaican birth certificate has him down as Marvin Anthony Lee. Haile Selassie, he says, "has conquered death."

Rastafarians live by growing their own food and marijuana and by making and selling handicrafts, such as knitted caps which the members themselves use to cover their distinctive dreadlock hairstyles.

"We try not to smoke marijuana in public," Lee says. Ganja is used in their religious observances, and Rastafarians say the practice is traced to the use of it as an incense by priests of the Ethiopian Orthodox church.

"We have to keep a low profile," says Lee, 32, "We don't want to be in any friction with the authorities."

A diplomatic source in Addis Ababa speculates that authorities have been lenient because the Rastafarians are relatively few in number, have no local following and aren't actively proselytizing.

Rastafarians were inspired by the "back-to-Africa" movement of Jamaican-born Marcus Moziah Garvey, whom they call their "prophet."

It was Garvey's 1916 statement, "look to Africa for the crowning of a black king, he shall be the redeemer," that inspired the 1930 launching of the cult after a self-made evangelist named Leonard Howell connected it to the coronation of Haile Selassie two years before.

Until finding official acceptance in Jamaica and some recent world notoriety through the popularity of reggae music, the group was suppressed by police who raided their Jamaican communes.

That served to emphasize a basic belief that Jamaica is hopeless and "Ethiopia is heaven," one expert says.

The Shah of Persia opened his country's first parliament in 1906.

Order limits dad's access to school campus

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The parents of a third-grader say a court order allowing them only limited access to an elementary school campus doesn't upset them as much now that they've enrolled the boy in private school.

A judge granted a temporary injunction Wednesday that sets rigid guidelines for Manfred and Mary Krueger when visiting Colonial Hills Elementary School.

For three years, Krueger often attended classes and ate cafeteria lunches with his 9-year-old namesake son, a straight-A student at Colonial Hills.

But North East Independent School District administrators went to court to bar Krueger, saying he "disrupted the educational process" by browbeating and harassing his son's teachers.

After State District Judge David Peeples granted the injunction, the Kruegers said they had pulled their son out of public school.

"He's very upset and he doesn't understand it all, but he hated to leave his friends," said Mrs. Krueger. "We're afraid if we sent him back, the teachers would punish him now because of the publicity. The only one hurt out of all this is that little boy."

Krueger said he still sought easy access to the school, even though his son no longer will attend classes there, because he is running for the school board.

"I should be able to check on the educational process if I want to," he said. "I want to see what teachers teach. I want to observe everything. And I want to speak out if I don't like what I see."

The school district submitted strict guidelines to the judge governing the parents' visits, which the Kruegers reluctantly agreed to follow.

Researcher says illness aided Spanish conquest

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Diseases that had existed in Europe for centuries before the discovery of the New World helped the Spaniards' conquest to a greater degree than previously believed, says a Santa Fe researcher.

Daniel Reff, who is completing a thesis and a book on the effects of Old World diseases among the Indians of northwest Mexico, says disease traveled quickly in advance of the conquering Spaniards.

Historical data is scarce, says Reff, 34, who is a visiting scholar at the School of American Research in Santa Fe. He says evidence suggests smallpox, malaria, measles, typhoid, influenza and dysentery killed many native people before they saw any Spaniards.

So far, Reff's research has turned up evidence to suggest that Old World diseases may have spread into Arizona and New Mexico and killed thousands of native people by the mid-1600s.

Reff is also questioning the widespread belief that a severe climatic change and warfare caused the decline of many of the native cultures in the mid 1400s.

He says his research shows many native cultures were large and complex until the mid-1500s and that disease could have played a significant role in the demise of the cultures in northwest Mexico and what was to become Arizona and New Mexico.

Although Reff admits his research is less than conclusive, he says it explores a void in previous writings about the history of the area and about the dynamics of European-Indian relationships.

The bulk of Reff's research comes from writings of the Jesuit priests who missionized northwest Mexico — the area that was to become the states of Sonora and Sinaloa, along the coast of the Gulf of California.

"It's difficult to tell the size of the populations before the Jesuits got there," he said. But he said the Jesuits noted that many people had died because "the diseases were spreading in advance of the mission frontier."

Reff said the Jesuits had written to their superiors in Mexico City and Rome between 1590 and 1680 that major epidemics broke out in the Sonora area every five to eight years.

As evidence, Reff noted that in that time period the Jesuits baptized some half million people, but that only 68,000 natives remained in the Sonora area by 1678.

When the Spaniards began their push from Mexico City to the north along the western coast of Mexico, disease spread rapidly among the native people. In 1536, Reff said, when the Spaniards began to expand their frontier into Sinaloa, a 5,000-man army composed of Indians was virtually wiped out by malaria.

The expansion of the frontier along the coast and along the Camino Real, on opposite sides of the Sierra Madre mountains that cut through northern Mexico, were known avenues for disease. But Reff said historical records did not shed much light on the impact of disease on Indians living further north in what was to become the United States.

Turkey's coffeehouses have very long history

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey's traditional coffeehouses have served as community centers throughout centuries, successfully defying all attempts to bring them under some sort of official control.

Now a new education minister hopes to turn them into meeting grounds with a dash of culture.

In a recent statement to a Turkish wire service, minister Vehbi Dincerler announced plans to introduce "book corners" to the coffeehouses so that they could partially serve as reading rooms for the nation's youth.

"We are studying the matter. Perhaps we could supply the books free of cost. This way the young people could make better use of their free time," he explained.

Most of Turkey's secondary schools and universities lack sufficient library space, study halls, recreational or sport facilities.

With 3 million unemployed who are mostly young, coffeehouses have flourished as informal youth centers.

One of the most popular in this capital city is Baba's coffeehouse near the law and political science schools. There the students exchange notes, get some homework done and consume cups of darkly brewed tea or Turkish coffee.

The regulars at Baba's, however, do not think highly of the minister's plan.

"The coffeehouses already serve as reading and study rooms for us. The minister would do better to improve existing school libraries," says Kadir Bas, 21, a student of economics.

Says his classmate, Tuncay Karaartu, "We don't come here out of choice. Our school does not even have a student snack bar or any other place for us to meet for fun or study."

Turkish coffeehouses mean many things to many people. Some find them places for idlers where time is killed with playing of cards and backgammon and petty gossip.

Others view them as indispensable and valuable mirrors of most of the society.

Coffee first came to Turkey from Arabia in 1543 and the first coffeehouse was established a decade later. In the 17th century, Ottoman turks introduced coffee to Europe through Austria and France.

In Istanbul's coffeehouses the janizaries plotted the overthrow of the sultans. The Moslem clergy comdemned the houses as "dens of evil" that kept the faithful away from the mosques for daily prayers.

In 1933, Ottoman Sultan Murat the IV closed down the coffeehouses, banned drinking of coffee and smoking of tobacco.

All three, however, returned with a vengeance. Soon, in Istanbul alone there were over 1,000 coffeehouses.

Coffeehouses differed widely according to neighborhood and attendance. Several, like Meserret and Ikbal in Istanbul, became famous as the gathering place of the literati. Fishermen had their own houses, as did pensioners and the young.

During widespread political terrorism of the late 1970s, the coffeehouses were divided according to ideology, for leftist and rightists.

Then, there are the village coffeehouses, an institution in themselves. Small or big, every village has one and it is considered "the strategic center of the village."

Nowadays, the village's sole television set and video player is placed in a prominent corner of the coffeehouse.

For a campaigning politician, a visit to the coffeehouse is a must. Since Turkey entered multiparty politics in 1950, political debate has become part of daily coffeehouse conversation.

There are now 75,000 coffeehouses throughout the country, according to Ali Pasa Aksu, chairman of the Turkish Coffeehouses Federation.

But he laments that the coffeehouses have come down in quality. At least in appearance, if not in popularity, they are a poor imitation of the Ottoman coffeehouses that had glittering brass and copper coffeepots, low couches covered with colorful kilims and rugs and often a small water fountain in the middle.

Most current coffeehouses are furnished with cheap plastic chairs and rickety tables with linoleum tops. Modern aluminum pots have replaced the copper ones.

But one feature remains unchanged: the coffeehouses are strictly male preserves where women should not dream of setting foot. The only exceptions are the few houses next to university campuses in major urban centers of Istanbul and Ankara.

New director

NEW YORK (AP) — Frances Gendlin has been named the new executive director of the Association of American University Presses.

Ms. Gendlin had been director of public affairs for the Sierra Club and editor of Sierra Magazine.

The AAUP is composed of 89 presses in the United States and abroad that function as the publishing arms of their respective universities. They issue some 4,500 titles a year.

Hermleigh 7th graders participate in program

Three seventh graders at Hermleigh Schools recently participated in the Talent Identification Program sponsored by Duke University. To be eligible each must have scored a minimum of the 97th percent percentile on a standardized achievement test in language, mathematics or overall. In meeting these criteria, students took the Scholastic Aptitude Test, a test normally taken by high school seniors.

Scores are to be analyzed by Duke University with students being informed in April of their relative strengths. Sixteen southern states are participating in this program for identifying gifted and talented 7th graders. In recognition of their efforts, awards ceremonies will be scheduled in Austin in June.

Beverly Sandefur is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Sandefur; Mark Kuss is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen F. Kuss and Daniel Ramey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ramey.
