Air Crash Kills 17

OWLS HEAD, Maine (AP)-A Downeast Airlines commuter plane from Boston crashed near the Maine coast, killing 17 of the 18 persons aboard, authorities said.

Seven bodies were found late Wednesday and the rest were discovered early today in or near the wreckage, said William Reinhardt, a Knox County deputy sheriff.

Oil Meeting Underway

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter is meeting with oil company executives amid new signs gasoline will be even scarcer in June than it was in May.

Carter summoned the executives to today's session at the White House one day after his anti-inflation agency said prices at the pump are "far larger than can be explained" by increases in crude oil prices alone.

Estes Trial June 13

DALLAS (AP)-Paroled West Texas swindler Billie Sol Estes is scheduled to stand trial June 13 in federal court here on charges he defrauded investors and conspired to conceal assets from the Internal Revenue Service.

Four indictments handed down Feb. 22 were consolidated by U.S. District Judge Robert Hill in a Wednesday hearing. They are similar to those that earned the former wheeler-dealer a 15-year prison term in 1963.

Supporting SALT II

(AP)- America's NATO allies supported the SALT II treaty with some reservations, and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance urged them to modernize their arsenals swiftly.

The allies gave their backing after Vance briefed them Wednesday on the first day of a two-day conference of NATO foreign ministers. The French, however, wanted to see more details of the accord before embracing its concepts totally.

Surprise Vacation Given To Retiring Principal

Horrace Bostick, principal of Snyder High School who had announced earlier that he planned to retire at the end of the current school year, found that he already had lost some of his authority at SHS Wednesday.

Eddie Williams, faculty sponsor of the SHS Student Council, inquired about the possibility of holding an assembly for students and faculty Wednesday afternoon. Bostick advised that no assembly had been planned and that since the term was nearly over, there was no need for a general assembly. He suggested that Williams get the word out that there would be no assembly.

Instead, Williams announced on the school communication system that an assembly would be held at 2 p.m. in the auditorium for the purpose of presenting the retiring principal with a gift.

The biggest surprise was still to come, however. When the assembly formed, several small gifts were presented and finally came the big one—a trip to The Bahamas for Bostick and his wife, Carolyn. The presentation was made by Darrell Collins, president of the Student Council.

Mr. and Mrs. Bostick said they would take the trip in late July.

Later in the afternoon, Bostick was honored with a reception hosted by the SHS faculty in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lynch. Bostick has been associated with Snyder Public Schools for the past 28 years, the last 10 years a high school principal.

Rules Federal Judge...

Voluntary Guides Can't Be Enforced

WASHINGTON (AP)-A federal judge ruled today that President Carter has acted unconstitutionally in trying to enforce his "voluntary" anti-inflation guidelines by threatening to withhold federal contracts.

Dealing a heavy setback to Carter's anti-inflation program, U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker ruled that Carter cannot legally deny federal contracts to companies that violate his wage-price guidelines.

"President Carter has exceeded the authority conferred on him by the Constitution by seeking to control incomes and thereby prices through the procurement power," Parker ruled in the first case that directly challenges Carter's program.

"The court, therefore, reluctantly concludes that the president's anti-inflation program cannot be sustained," the judge said.

There was no immediate comment from White House or Justice Department officials.

Although the ruling strips Carter's guidelines of their only weapon of enforcement, the president apparently can continue to maintain an anti-inflation program based solely on voluntary cooperation from business and labor.

The ruling was a major victory for organized labor, which filed the suit challenging Carter's program.

The government, which defended the program as being legal, was expected to appeal the decision.

The suit, pressed by an unlikely coalition of labor leaders and Republican congressmen, charged that Carter overstepped his authority granted by Congress when he threatened to deny federal contracts worth $5 million or more to companies that violate the guidelines.

An estimated $40 billion to $56 billion a year in federal contracts is affected by Carter's program.

The judge acknowledged that "inflation is a vexing and festering domestic problem. It has plagued, without discrimination, all segments of our population and its impact has been felt in every facet of our political economy."

Parker rejected the government's argument that the guidelines are voluntary, saying "the program imposes a real penalty" which makes it a mandatory program.

Sharp Economy Slowdown Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)-A government index designed to forecast economic trends declined by a record 3.3 percent in April, providing new evidence that a sharp slowdown in the economy is under way.

However, the department said the figures may have been distorted by several events that occurred during the week they were gathered. These were the Easter and Passover observances and the trucking strike and lockout.

The previous record decline in the composite index of leading indicators was a 3 percent drop in September 1974, during the depths of the 1974-75 recession.

The decline in the April index was the fourth in the last six months, the Commerce Department said in today's report. However, it revised the March index upward to show an 0.3 percent increase instead of the 0.5 percent decline reported earlier.

Many private economists say the current slowdown [illegible] sion that will occur in the second half of this year. However, Carter administration economists say a recession still can be avoided, although they admit there is a risk that one will occur.

The economy has continued to grow for an unusually long time, four years, since the last recession. Economic slowdowns generally occur closer together than this.

In its report, the Commerce Department said eight of the 10 individual economic statistics used in the index were negative in April, led by a sharp decline in the average work week, down 1.7 hours to 39.1 hours.

Ag Department To Release Parity Study

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department is expected to release soon a report that will show what could happen if the government raised crop supports to 90 percent of parity, a level sought by American Agriculture protesters here last winter.

If prices were at full parity, they theoretically would provide farmers with the same buying power they had in a base period of 1910-14. Supports are generally far below the 90 percent level at the present time.

Agriculture Secretary [illegible] draft of the study. He said the finished report is scheduled for release in a few days.

Bergland called it "a dream-world report" and one of the effects of boosting supports to 90 percent would be a short-lived increase in farmers' incomes.

"We'd see a big spurt in income in the first two or three years of the program and a drastic drop thereafter," Bergland said. "It'd just fall off the cliff because of inflation."

The SDN Column

The 1978-79 school year comes to an end here this week, and like others before, it concludes its own little era.

School officials are anxious to get back to the two-semester system after considerable frustration with the quarter system. And, although some of them may not realize it now, those still in school may well be better off under the two-semester system.

The quarter system held promise of many opportunities when it was put into effect a few years ago, but like other innovations there were some side effects that were not foreseen. Actually, the quarter system opened up new avenues for the ultra-ambitious students who wanted to take a lot of courses before they graduate.

On the other hand, it presented a chance for procrastination to those so inclined that soon became a problem. Under the quarter system, it is easy for a student to delay a tough course because he or she knows that there will be several chances to get it "later." And before they realize it "later" arrives and they still haven't taken the required course.

Also, administrators say that the quarter system simply multiplies the problems of scheduling and registration. In fact, registration problems of one quarter are hardly solved before it is time to register for another quarter. It becomes something like a political campaign--you no sooner win a race than you prepare to begin another one.

Following trends established years ago, however, this year's high school graduates will face more opportunities, more new problems and on the average will live to an older age than any other crop of seniors in Snyder High School's history. That's not all good, but neither is it all bad. One thing they should have learned by the time they finish high school is that the bad accompanies the good, and the unpleasant goes with the pleasant.

Extra Premiums May Disappear

AUSTIN (AP)—Extra car insurance premiums for traffic violations will vanish for most drivers, anyway - if Gov. Bill Clements signs a bill passed in the closing days of the Legislature.

With no discussion at all, the House and Senate passed a bill outlawing premium penalties for traffic charges and convictions.

The only exception would be drivers in the assigned risk pool, which covers motorists to whom insurance companies won't voluntarily sell auto policies.

About 2 percent of all Texas registered vehicles are covered by the assigned risk pool, which had 235,742 policies at last count.

The insurance industry was divided over getting rid of the penalty point system, which accounted for only about 1.5 percent of their total Texas auto premiums.

Financial Disclosure Shows...

Carter Worth $1 Million

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter's latest financial disclosures show he is worth about $1 million, despite heavy losses from the family peanut warehouse business that had been managed by his brother Billy.

The disclosure statement released today shows that Carter's Warehouse, which is owned 62 percent by the president, lost more than $50,000 last year.

Billy Carter has been removed from management of the warehouse and he recently completed treatment for alcoholism at a U.S. Navy hospital in Long Beach, Calif.

Charles Kirbo, the president's financial manager, has said he is seeking a buyer for the business.

The disclosure statement now required of all high-ranking federal officials, was filed late Wednesday with the Office of Government Ethics.

The disclosure statement does not give precise financial details, but does disclose assets, liabilities and income in general ranges.

For example, Carter disclosed that he received last year between $101 and $1,000 in interest from the White House credit union. His account there had a cash value of between $1,001 and $5,000, according to the report.

From the report, Carter's net worth appears to be roughly $800,000, excluding the value of his residence in Plains, Ga., and money owed to him by his son Jack.

That would put the president's full net worth at somewhere close to $1 million.

Carter was given a 15-day extension past the original May 15 deadline for filing the statement.

In the report, the president lists property and assets totaling about $1.5 million and liabilities totaling about $700,000.

gas trend reversed

It was only about six years ago when the "experts" in and out of government warned us that natural gas supplies and reserves were running out. We were told that alternate forms for this fuel must be made available soon to avoid a national calamity.

Today we hear that natural gas consumption has fallen by as much as 18 percent in some localities, mostly due to the higher prices causing people to be more conservative.

Also it has been revealed that an estimate made by the Potential Gas Committee shows that the premium fuel is being produced faster than it is consumed and that the potential for new gas has increased to a great degree.

Advanced technology, along with higher prices has spurred the production of gas in the United States faster than it is being consumed.

The Potential Gas Committee is a group of about 140 industry, academic and government experts on gas reserves and exploration. They attributed the increased potential to an extension of the water depths at which they feel exploration can be carried out. The limit was about 1,500 feet. They believe now that the drilling industry will be able to operate in water depths to about 3,000 feet.

We share the group's optimism for this Overthrust belt's ability to become a vast source of oil and gas. However, it is in this area where there is strong opposition to production from government and private environmental activists. Or should we say the anti-industrial progress minority? Although small in numbers they have been having an influence way out of proportion to their size. Their activities represent the worst in the Nader-Fonda-Brown syndrome.

The Potential Gas Committee estimates that present data reveals enough gas reserve to serve our needs for 50 years. The group classified the potential reserves in three descending orders of probability:

1. An estimated 199 trillion cubic feet (TCF) was described as likely to be discovered during the course of further drilling adjacent to known fields.

2. Possible reserves of 399 TCF likely to be found by drilling in areas that are already known to be gas productive.

3. Speculative reserves of 421 TCF to be found in [illegible] basins that are not near gas productive or in formations which have not yet been proven productive.

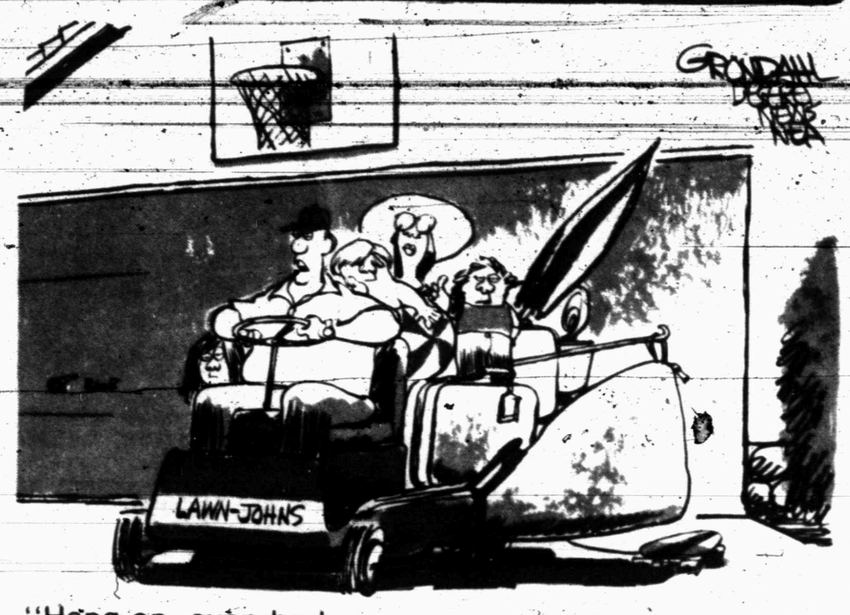

In releasing these estimates, the committee stressed that nearly 60 percent of the projected gas potential occurs in hostile environment where it will be expensive to find, produce and transport. Another 26 percent of the gas, yet to be discovered, lies under the seas near U.S. shores, and the balance will be found in very deep land formations.

We suggest that time may very well bring about the same scenario for crude oil production. As it gets more expensive, more exploration will take place and people will be more conservative.

There are alternatives waiting in the wings for the proper economic entry. They will be brought to fruition as petroleum production finally winds down.

We have enjoyed a short era of extra cheap sources of energy. We can adjust to higher energy prices.

The gadfly influence of the Nader-Fonda-Brown syndrome will recede as these economic elitists feel the pinch of physical discomfort through lack of energy sources. The influence may not even last that long when the public generally finds where its problem resides.

"Hang on, everybody — we're off on our summer vacation."

coal is the ace

Some of the energy options under development are exotic, exciting--hydrogen, solar, geothermal, the tides.

But while these and others are in the developmental stage, coal is our nation's "ace in the hole."

We have enough unmined coal right now to keep our lights lit for the next thousand years.

Then why are coal mines closing down?

A dozen years ago we used to fly into and out of Chicago, embarrassed, ashamed and a little frightened to see that brown mushroom or smoke hanging over the city.

Our babies were down there breathing that stuff!

Chicago was getting most of its electricity from nuclear energy but the smoke source was mostly the coal-fired steel mills along the shore of Lake Michigan southeast of Chicago.

Similarly, there were Ohio cities threatened with suffocation from pollution and that is not an exaggeration.

It got so bad and the industry ignored the menace for so long that the EPA, in 1977, ordered eight Ohio utilities to meet federal sulfur dioxide emission standards--immediately.

Those eight utilities did the only thing they could do--immediately. They stopped using soft, dirty Ohio coal and began importing low-sulfur coal from out of state.

Ohio's Democratic Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, anxious about unemployment in Ohio coal fields, got the Clean Air Act amended to allow "regionally available coal" where a region's economy would otherwise be disrupted.

The only snag was in the government's definition of the term "regionally available."

Did that--in the case of Ohio utilities--include coal from neighboring Kentucky and West Virginia?

A federal court tried to decide and could not.

Now the EPA is in limbo and the coal industry is closing mines.

The coal industry, as the nuclear industry, is hopelessly tangled in a web of environmental policy.

President Carter's announced "National Energy Plan" calls for U.S. coal production to increase by 80 percent over the next 12 years. How?

Ohio is our nation's largest coal-consuming state. Buying and operating scrubbers will cost a billion dollars a year for many years. That cost would be passed along to Ohio's electricity users.

The Administration's "clarification" of policy relating to sulfur dioxide emission for power plants is contradicted by regional and environmental politics.

To punish consumers with another billion dollars a year for scrubbers when they may be overruled or outdated within weeks--is a gamble most utilities, understandably, are unwilling to take. Gasification of coal appears very promising.

However, the steel industries which used to pollute Chicago's skies did install scrubbers. United States Steel has just agreed to invest another $400 million for that purpose in western Pennsylvania and Utah.

Steel products do cost more and will cost more--and so will electricity.

But until some of those other eggs hatch, coal is our most viable bird in the hand.

congressional comment

by charles stenholm, mc

WASHINGTON, D.C.— On May 16 the House of Representatives passed one of the most comprehensive conservation bills ever considered by the Congress--The Alaska Lands Act. If this legislation is also passed by the Senate and signed by the President, it will shut off much of Alaska to economic development. Alaska's outer Continental Shelf, with its large potential for oil and gas reserves (10 to 14 billion barrels), will remain unexplored. Under the provisions of this bill 130 million acres would be closed to mining. Development of the world's second largest molybdenum deposit would be stopped. Other natural resources affected include large copper and coal deposits, tin, and cinnabar. Also 30 million acres would be closed to hunting.

Despite the fact that this state is 5000 miles away, this legislation will affect all of us. We are dependent on Alaska for large quantities of oil and gas production, many of our essential minerals, and much of our timber supply. This is a delicate issue trying to balance the needs of the environment against the needs of the American people. The current House-passed version, in my opinion, does not recognize this balance and precludes the production of many of our vital resources. The bill is opposed by all of Alaska's representatives in Congress. Much of their opposition is centered around the power of the Federal versus state governments. Are we going to allow Alaskans to rule Alaska or are we going to permit Washington to rule the people of this state? It is my belief that local problems can best be solved by the people in the individual states and communities. It is very difficult and inefficient for officials in Washington, most of whom have never been to Alaska, to dictate policy to the people of this area.

I supported a more even-handed approach that recognizes the needs of the national economy and the environment. The Breaux-Dingell bill was also supported by most Alaskans. This region of the Country should be protected--but it should be protected wisely. This legislation would have designated 85 million acres as wildlife refuges, 33 million acres as national parks, and 3 million acres of national forests. The bill would have also designated the National Petroleum Reserve as a wildlife refuge potentially subject to oil and gas exploration. The Arctic National Wildlife Ranges would be studied for seven years for its oil and gas potential. While oil and gas exploration could occur, congressional action would have been required to actually open the lands to oil and gas production. I believed this to be an intelligent compromise but it was defeated by a vote of 268 to 157.

This country will have to make some hard choices as to how to allocate our scarce resources. The energy crisis is only the first of many resource shortages. We will some day be faced with deficiencies of minerals, timber, and foodstuffs. It does not make sense to lock up these assets never to be used. Man can live in harmony with nature only if we recognize the needs of both.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The federal government's inherent inability to proceed with either discretion or delicacy when confronted with sensitive civil liberties matters is once again on display, in a highly publicized legal case.

The arrogant, heavy-handed behavior of both the Justice Department and the Energy Department could prove to be the undoing of federal efforts to ban the publication of a controversial magazine article on the hydrogen bomb.

There was surprising popular support for the government's position in March, when its attorneys went into federal court in Wisconsin to win a pair of judicial orders prohibiting the feisty Progressive magazine from printing the disputed story.

Although freedom of the press was a central issue in the court case, many of the nation's leading newspapers were publicly critical of the Progressive's position.

Indeed, the affidavit submitted to the court by the article's author, Howard Morland, suggests that he is in possession of a consuming curiosity, if not an unnatural fixation, about precisely how fusion is triggered in a hydrogen weapon - a process that hardly can be classified as a matter of compelling public interest.

But the Project for Open Government, a Washington-based public interest organization directed by attorney Theodore J. Jacobs, has just learned that the Justice Department has summoned the Federal Bureau of Investigation into the case.

While departmental attorneys are pursuing a civil case, FBI agents are conducting a criminal investigation, repeatedly interviewing everyone suspected of having received a copy of Morland's manuscript.

The FBI's criminal probe undoubtedly will have a "chilling effect" on those inclined to aid the Progressive and Morland in their defense yet unwilling to risk the antagonism, if not harassment, of federal law enforcement officers.

There is the high probability that material gathered by the FBI in its criminal investigation will wind up in the hands of the government lawyers conducting the still-pending civil case - a clear abuse of FBI resources.

There's also the matter of the Energy Department's ex post facto classification of a report on the hydrogen bomb triggering mechanism, publicly available for almost four years on the shelves of the library at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico.

The 29-page document was declassified in July 1975. But when a researcher assisting in the preparation of a defense for the Progressive displayed an interest in the report in May of this year, it was suddenly seized and reclassified.

The government displayed its total insensitivity to the concept of a free press by proposing that a federal bureaucrat rewrite the magazine story to conform to the government's vague "national security" criteria.

When specificity was required, the government displayed its passion for secrecy by telling the court on March 9 that it objected to 2,190 words in the proposed article.

But on March 14 - only five days later - federal lawyers called for the excision of only 1,322 words. The prosecutors now are informally indicating that they'll be happy with the censorship of a mere 100 to 150 words.

The Progressive's editors still don't know which sections of the article are involved, however, because the Justice Department has classified the censored manuscript, its secret affidavits and legal briefs submitted to the court and even major portions of Morland's own affidavit.

Government officials have graciously agreed to grant security clearances to the Progressive's lawyers so they can prepare an appeal of the Wisconsin judge's decisions.

Proceeding true to form, the government to will on its way to dissipating the benefit of doubt given to it by those intially bothered by the troublesome aspects of publicity discussing the technical aspects of nuclear weaponry.

Joggers in West Texas are few and far between, and there is no pun intended in that statement. It is simply a statement of fact. When I jog my 3.6 miles every morning in Towle Park, it's me and maybe some guy a half-mile ahead of me or behind me. That's it. There is no one else.

But, it isn't like that in the big cities.

Having recently returned from Washington, D.C., where I spent a week and a half's vacation, I can attest to the fact that joggers are everywhere.

No matter where one goes in that city he is pursued by joggers. It is almost as if you are the quarry and they are the hunters.

One night my brother, his girlfriend, and I went to eat at a small restaurant on the outskirts of Georgetown. After the meal, we decided to go for a stroll through Georgetown. They wanted me to see the sights. I saw plenty.

I glanced down at my watch. It was 9 o'clock, and even at that hour of the night there were joggers on the sidewalks. There weren't many, mind you, but there were a few. During the day their numbers are legion. One morning, having arrived at the Smithsonian complex before it opened, I decided to pass some time by simply sitting on a park bench along the Mall and watch the people pass by. I lost count of the number of joggers I saw. There were almost as many joggers in the Mall as tourists.

The joggers there come in all shapes and sizes. They travel singly, in pairs, and in groups of three and four. The more I thought about it the more I came to believe that I was the object they were pursuing. I began to develop a hounded, paranoid attitude. I'm glad I got out of that city.

While returning to my brother's house one night aefter eating out at another restaurant in the District of Columbia, his girlfriend asked me to look up at the sky. I did, and it was a brilliant, glowing pink.

Startled, I asked her what made the sky pink when any place else in the world it would be pitch black.

She said that because they live in a metropolitan area the sky is always illuminated and is therefore alway pink at night.

I can get used to a great many things, but pink skies at night is not one of them.

Here in West Texas, where nature rules supreme, everything comes in shades of brown. That is as it should be.

The annual Childress reunion will be held this Saturday and Sunday, June 2-3, at Towle Park Barn.

Friends of the family are invited to attend.

Frustration, resentment, stifled creativity and discipline problems can result if children are continually told "don't," points out a family life education specialist, Jenny Reinhardt, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The student, sitting East, was tempted to double four spades, but he had learned that it seldom paid to double the professor.

East won the first trick with the ace of clubs and shifted to the queen of diamonds. The Professor won in dummy, led a trump to his king and paused for a moment's study before continuing play. Then he led a club to dummy, ruffed a club, led a heart to dummy's king only to have the student produce the ace and lead the jack of trumps.

At this point the Professor showed his hand and remarked, "I used to practice magical tricks when I was a boy. As you can see I have lost two tricks and still have a trump loser and a diamond loser. I am going to make that diamond loser disappear into thin air."

The Professor carefully won that spade with his ace. Then he cashed his ace of diamonds, led a heart to dummy's queen, ruffed a heart, entered dummy with the queen of trumps and led dummy's last club.

At this stage of the performance East was left with the top trump and the high diamond, South with a low trump and a low diamond. Both East's cards were high, but he could not score the diamond trick. If he ruffed in, South would chuck his diamond; if he chucked his diamond South would take his small trump right then and there.

"Magic it is," groaned the student.

Strangulation Stunt Fatal

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A 12-year-old who was voted the most popular boy in his sixth-grade class and who taught himself to pass out to amuse friends has died after performing the stunt and going into a coma.

Paul Edward Gleffe, of New Berlin, struck his head when he collapsed Wednesday on a school playground, his mother, Marlene, said. He died Saturday. Deputy coroner Paul Hibbard said Sunday an autopsy showed the boy died of asphyxiation and a skull fracture. Mrs. Gleffe said her son evidently had practiced a throat squeezing technique despite the pleas of his 13-year-old sister. "Kids think they are indestructible," Mrs. Gleffe said. "He was telling his friends about this, telling them: 'See, this is what I could do.'"

BEAUTY EXERCISE

Actress Faye Dunaway told Beauty Digest magazine her unique exercise plan that not only helps keep her in shape but also adds luster to her hair. "Every morning I bend down so that my head almost touches my knees and, for 10 minutes, I brush my hair vigorously. It's a great way to start the day."

CHOOSING RIGHT BLUSHER

Your blusher should go with your hair and complexion. Blondes and redheads look best in rosy or mauve tones, especially if they have porcelain-pale complexions. Copper-colored blushers are great on redheads, and fair brunettes should use pinks and plums. Darker-skinned brunettes can carry deep reds, wines and bronzes. If you have a tan, play it up with golden bronze and apricot shades.

MAKEUP

Nearsighted eyeglass wearers should wear lighter shades of shadow to counteract the lenses' effect of making eyes appear smaller. Farsighted lens wearers must counter the magnifying effect glasses create by using dark colors that seem to push eyes further back.

This Guy's Closet Is Fit for a Queen

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the wife who found a pair of panties in her husband's pickup truck: They could have been HIS! I'm a transvestite who had a similar experience when my ex girlfriend went snooping through my closet and found my entire feminine wardrobe.

At first she thought I had a woman living with me, but when I showed her my wigs, padded bras and make-up she was convinced that they were mine. Abby, she didn't know what a transvestite was. She thought any man who enjoyed dressing in women's clothes was a "queer." Eventually we broke up.

There are many more transvestites than most people realize. We are not homosexuals, child molesters or perverts. We are friends, neighbors, relatives, responsible members of the community. We aren't interested in recruiting others to transvestism. We want only acceptance and understanding from those we love, and the freedom to indulge in our favorite pastime in the privacy of our homes without fear of embarrassment.

ALBUQUERQUE T.V.

DEAR T.V.: It may come as a shock to many to learn that most men who enjoy dressing in women's attire privately are not at all effeminate unless "dressed." And their sexual behavior is strictly masculine!

DEAR ABBY: You said yawning is brought about by boredom. Not true! Sometimes it's brought on by too much excitement and too little oxygen. This was pointed out in an article in Reader's Digest some years ago.

It seems that a college professor was upset because he noticed some students were yawning during his lectures. He asked a colleague to sit in on one of his lectures and tell him if he thought it was boring. To his horror, his colleague joined the yawners!

The professor was crushed as the students left the room, then his colleague pounded him on the back shouting, "No wonder they yawned ... it was so exciting they forgot to breathe! They were yawning from lack of oxygen, not lack of interest!"

So now, Dear Abby, you know.

RIO GRANDE VALLEY

DEAR RIO: Your theory may hold up scientifically, but to me yawning will always signal boredom. Perhaps one day I'll become fascinated with the dynamics of yawning that I'll yawn wide enough to get my foot out of my mouth.

DEAR ABBY: Bravo on your answer to the person who wanted to scream whenever some "ninny" congratulated the girl on her engagement or marriage. You said, "It's proper to congratulate the man and wish the girl luck, but in many instances it's the girl who deserves the congratulations and the man who needs the luck."

The following happened to me as I was leaving a restaurant. A newly wed couple I knew were entering, so I smiled and said sincerely to the couple, "Congratulations!"

The bride tartly replied, "You congratulate HIM, not ME!"

I smiled again and said, "Good luck to both of you!" (And boy, will they ever need it!)

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

"WE DID SOMETHING TO CUT ENERGY COSTS YEAR ROUND!"

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Staubach, Dallas, Texas

We've done a lot of little things to save energy, but our bills have kept going up.

So we decided to do a big thing. We put in a Carrier Year-round One heat pump air conditioner.

It cuts our heating bills in the winter, and it gives us efficient cooling in the summer. We think a Carrier heat pump air conditioner is the only way to go.

"Why not cut your fuel bills, too?" Carrier

Abdominal epilepsy

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 82-year-old sister has told me repeatedly that a doctor diagnosed her as having abdominal epilepsy. Over many years she has had a great variety of ailments and has been to see many doctors, most of whom she eventually distrusts.

We are both registered nurses but abdominal epilepsy is something I have never heard of. Any information you can supply about this condition will be much appreciated. Is it known by any other name and does it have any relationship to grand mal or petit mal epilepsy and is Dilantin used in treating it? As far as I know there's never been any epilepsy in our family.

DEAR READER — Yes, there is such a thing as abdominal epilepsy. Its chief characteristic is attacks of abdominal pain. They're associated with abnormalities in the EEG (brain wave) and they do respond to the same medications used to treat epilepsy.

Some of these cases have associated disturbances of consciousness or awareness during the time the attacks of abdominal pain occur. Since you're a registered nurse, I presume you have access to the medical literature and there were reports of several cases of abdominal epilepsy in the November 24, 1978 issue of The Journal of The American Medical Association. I'm also sending you The Health Letter number 10-8, Epilepsy: You Can Have It, Too. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As the JAMA report points out, the causes for abdominal epilepsy really aren't known and they may be numerous.

I can understand why your sister may have grown to distrust physicians if she has had recurrent attacks of abdominal pain that weren't diagnosed. Abdominal epilepsy is not something that walks into your office every day. The end result is that doctors may not think of it as a possible cause for recurrent attacks of abdominal pain that remain unexplained.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 27-year-old female vegetarian. I do eat dairy products and some fish. Our concern is our 26-month-old son. I nursed him for one year and since then we have been feeding him as I feed myself — the foods I feel most nutritious excluding meat products. He is a very healthy, rosy-cheeked young boy. I also give him a daily vitamin pill. Am I depriving him of any vitamins or minerals he might obtain in meat? My husband is an avid meat eater. Neither of us influence our son either way and he has eaten meat on occasion. Since meat is very high in protein, my husband feels our son must be lacking in protein. Please ease our minds for our son is our main concern.

DEAR READER — Meat is a good source of protein and other substances the body needs. You can get most of these same substances from an adequate amount of fish in the diet as I note you use for yourself.

Your son does need a source of complete protein, meaning one that contains all of the 10 essential amino acids for children. Fish does contain complete protein and so does milk. If he gets an adequate amount of fish and milk in his diet, with his daily vitamin medication, he shouldn't have any nutritional deficiency.

Energy Hunt Hampered By Lack Of Diesel

WASHINGTON (AP)-A diesel fuel shortage is hampering energy exploration and production as lack of fuel forces oil and gas rigs to shut down, says U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas.

Hance said the companies that service oil and gas rigs are also reporting difficulties in obtaining enough diesel fuel for their transportation needs to reach the rigs.

"This fuel shortage is causing a serious counter-productive situation by stopping energy exploration activities," he wrote Energy Secretary James Schlesinger on Friday.

Hance asked that energy production be placed alongside agriculture use and emergency vehicles at the top of diesel fuel allocation list.

"It's something we've been looking into all week," Department of Energy spokesman Jim Bishop said. "It's something we're concerned about."

Bishop said energy producers' diesel fuel requirements might have to be balanced with needs in other areas. Schlesinger and the DOE staff kept in touch with Hance over the Memorial Day weekend, he said.

Hance said more than 30 rigs shut down Friday in Wyoming and Texas operators have also reported a fuel pinch.

This coming year a number of opportunities will be offered to you in areas of your work or career. You might have a problem trying to decide which ones to take advantage of.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It isn't likely you'll get too many tasks done today. Chances are you'll yield to making yourself more comfortable than doing what needs to get done. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be uncharacteristically envious of another because you feel he is getting the breaks that you think you should be getting. Your day will come.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although you normally are practical, today your ideas aren't apt to be of much use to you because they are based upon pipedreams.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, there is a good chance you could be lured into buying an illusion rather than quality. Be sure to look beneath the glitter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your erratic behavior could cause complications in a relationship that is important to you. Try not to do things that throw others into a tizzy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not prone to sudden fits of anger, but today an emotional situation could get the best of you and you may let someone have it.

Not At Accident's Site, Says Lawyer...

Try Defective Product Suits In Maker's Area

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)-Defective product suits should be tried where the manufacturers are located, not where accidents occur or victims live, a lawyer has told the Texas Supreme Court.

Damon Ball of San Antonio said Wednesday a suit against Lubbock Manufacturing Co., maker of a tank-trailer that exploded near Eagle Pass, should be moved from Eagle Pass to Lubbock.

An opposing lawyer said Ball's idea, if adopted by the court, would send manufacturers flocking to Dallas because "plaintiffs don't win" product suits there.

The suit was filed for the widow and children of driver Jesus Verduzoo, a Mexican citizen who died when his butane rig went out of control and exploded.

Sixteen persons died and another 44 were burned in the April 1975 explosion.

Ball and his colleague, Thomas Crofts Jr. of San Antonio, asked the court to overturn lower court decisions placing the trial in Eagle Pass.

Ball and Crofts said the case should be tried - if at all - in Lubbock because that was the place where any design defects would have occurred.

Left unsaid was the possibility of finding a friendlier jury in Lubbock than in Eagle Pass, where the accident happened.

"The only thing shown to have occurred in Maverick County is the damaging event," Crofts said.

Broadus Spivey of Austin, attorney for the Verduzco family, said if the Supreme Court's decision upholds that reasoning, "the result would be that corporations that manufacture goods would move to Dallas County."

"That would be the effective end of that kind product liability of cause of action....It has been my experience that in Dallas County the plaintiff doesn't win." Spivey said.

"Lubbock County would be an extremely conservative jurisdiction," he added.

"Counsel, I've got to find that your argument is immaterial," interjected Chief Justice Joe Greenhill.

"I've got to concede that," said Spivey.

Ball also contended the case, which turns on the question of a design defect, did not belong in the courts at all.

Ball contended the Legislature gave the Texas Railroad Commission exclusive authority years ago to approve designs of every vehicle carrying liquefied petroleum gas.

As May Allocation Runs Out...

Less Gas In Texas This Weekend

HOUSTON (AP)—Service stations will have less gasoline and higher prices this weekend than they did during the extended Memorial Day holiday because their May allocation from suppliers is running out.

The Texas Division of the American Automobile Association reported Wednesday that increasing numbers of stations, especially those in urban areas, no longer have one or more grades of gasoline.

The AAA said that in the past week, prices have increased from 1 to 2.3 cents a gallon, as well.

According to the association's weekly Fuel Guage survey of 462 service stations throughout the state, 10 percent of the stations have exhausted their May allocations of premium gasoline, 6 percent regular, and five percent unleaded. Last week, those percentages were 6, 3 and 3.

Statewide, 70 percent of the stations said they planned to be closed Sunday, compared with 64 percent last weekend. In the big cities, 89 percent are closing their doors Sunday.

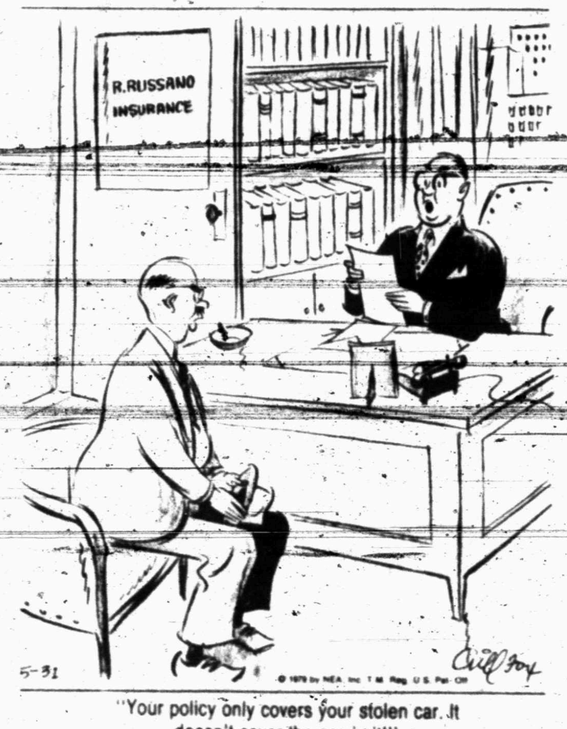

The AAA said the weekend crunch should be worst in Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and Austin, where 80 percent of the stations are closing nights and Sunday, with 50 percent shutting down after 6 p.m. Saturday.

Things will be a little better in San Antonio even though Sunday closings are expected to increase to 75 percent from 63 percent last weekend. About half the stations there reported being open nights, both on weekdays and Saturday.

Throughout the state, just 6 percent of the stations are selling gasoline 24 hours a day, and only 2 percent are limiting purchases in any way, down from 3 percent a week ago.

Most of the 24-hour stations were said to be on interstate highways near midway points between large urban areas, such as Fort Stockton, Madisonville, Temple and Pecos. The AAA said supplies are ample at such points, but prices are higher than average.

CBS Comes Up On Top With 'Blind Ambition'

NEW YORK (AP) CBS attracted a substantial and apparently regular audience for the last three chapters in its four-part miniseries based on John Dean's "Blind Ambition," and the boost helped the network break ABC's 19-week run in first place in the weekly ratings.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday night installments in the CBS miniseries compiled ratings ranging from 20 to 21.2, indicating people who began the week with "Blind Ambition" stayed on through the conclusion. Ratings for Part I were included in the previous week's accounting.

ABC, nonetheless, won each of the three nights, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

Monday night went to ABC with the help of a movie, "Vacation in Hell." Tuesday night with its comedy lineup, including the week's most watched show, "Three's Company," and Wednesday night with a boost from "Barry Manilow's Third Special."

"Blind Ambition" did win head-to-head competition Monday and Tuesday with the concluding chapters in NBC's "A Man Called Intrepid" miniseries.

ABC listed eight of the Top 10 programs in the week ending May 27, but CBS scored with a couple of specials, "Body Human: The Sexes" and "Dummy," tied for seventh with ABC's "Happy Days."

The rating for "Three's Company" was 25.3. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV just over a quarter saw at least part of the show.

NBC's top-rated program, the first installment in a two-part movie-for-TV, "The Best Place to Be," was No. 19 in the ratings.

CBS' rating for the week was 17.2, with ABC second at 16.8 and NBC third at 13.6. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 17.2 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

San Antonio Lawyers Pledge...

$100,000 Reward For Judge's Assassin

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—A group of local attorneys has pledged a $100,000 reward hoping to spur the arrest of an assassin who has evaded an intense federal investigation since a federal judge was gunned down at his home Tuesday morning.

The leader of that massive manhunt, meanwhile, has indicated it could be a lengthy one.

"I can't see anything right away," James O. Ingram, an FBI deputy assistant director and the agency's foremost criminal investigator, said Wednesday. "When you are talking about an assassination of this nature, it could be a long type of inquiry. I think I'll be here awhile."

U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., 63, known as "Maximum John because of the stiff sentences he assessed drug offenders, was slain by a sniper Tuesday morning outside his North Side townhouse. He died from a single rifle shot to the spine.

Two other federal judges, shadowed by armed federal marshals, were among 300 mourners who attended the rosary for Wood on Wednesday night. The funeral mass was scheduled this morning.

It was the second time in seven months a Western District of Texas official involved in narcotics smuggling cases has been attacked. Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr escaped serious injury here Nov. 21 when his car was riddled by automatic rifle fire.

The possible connection has led U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd, himself guarded by federal marshals in the wake of the Wood slaying, to accelerate his ongoing federal grand jury investigation in El Paso into alleged interstate narcotics smuggling.

"We are putting every ounce of effort into this. I have never seen a group more motivated in my 20 years in law enforcement," Boyd said in El Paso.

Boyd refused to comment on specifics in the Wood case, but said, "We're talking about drugs. They (alleged smugglers) have been threatened and they are upset and Judge Wood has been in the forefront of the battle."

Farm Fuel Plan Works

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Despite a huge drain caused by the crush of field work the last couple of weeks, fuel allocations to farmers are "generally working" well, says Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

State fuel set-aside programs and efforts by the industry to supply agricultural areas have been of major importance, he said Wednesday.

If favorable weather had prevailed this spring, farmers would have been able to spread planting of corn and other crops over a longer period, enabling diesel and other fuel supplies to keep pace, Bergland told reporters.

But this spring was wet and cold in many key areas, which kept farmers from their fields longer than usual.

"When you compress all this into about 15 days of planting, it really does put an added burden on the system," he said.

Bergland warned that the farm fuel crunch is "not just a springtime dilemma" because the shortages will continue to exist later this summer and in the fall, when corn and other spring-planted crops are ready for harvest, and when winter wheat farmers plant their 1980 crop.

By then refineries will have to begin rebuilding heating oil stocks, which will put a dent in diesel output, he said.

One problem, he said, has been that co-operative suppliers of farm fuel have had the policy of not depending on Middle East oil for their refineries and instead have relied on crude oil from the North Sea.

"When Iranian production went down, their suppliers, like British Petroleum were forced to curtail their supplies of crude to the co-op refineries because British Petroleum was obliged to deliver to its European customers," Bergland said.

Thus, the lid on Iran's oil exports had a severe impact on independent and co-op refineries, he said.

Alfred Hitchcock's debut as a director in 1922 was in a film called "Number," a movie that was never completed.

Tigers Need Two For Title

Regional Series Here Today

The Snyder High School Tigers have their backs against the wall this evening as the best-of-three regional baseball playoff series with Pecos moves to Moffett Field at 5 o'clock.

The Eagles blasted the Tigers for 10 runs on eight hits in Game 1 Tuesday, taking a 10-0 victory in the process.

Despite the strong three-hit pitching effort and even stouter power hitting display, Coach Albert Lewis feels his Tigers can rally back against Pecos today.

"No, I don't feel like we are out of it at all. We're very optimistic about our chances. Pecos has a very good ball club, but we just weren't ourselves yesterday. (Tuesday)," the coach commented. "It was just one of those days. Everybody has them, and I'm sure Snyder will have another one, but I don't want to see it for a long, long time," he expressed.

Pecos bounced starting pitcher Sid Everton off the hill in four innings Tuesday, but Lewis has no qualms about giving him the go-ahead again today.

"We'll go with Sid again if he's able. He's done a good job for us all year. If necessary, we'll bring in Mitch (Mackey) in relief." If not, Mackey would presumably start the third game, which, if necessary, will start 20 minutes after the conclusion of Game 2.

Everton, at 10-3 for the season, was selected as District 3-AAA's Player of the Year. While his ERA no doubt shot up following Tuesday's game, it was 0.89 - one of the lowest in West Texas going into the game.

One factor which should aid the Tigers today is the more familiar Moffett Field. Unlike the field used in Pecos Tuesday, the Snyder playing area is deeper, and the wind slows hard-hit balls rather than accelerates them. In Pecos, the pony-league-sized, wind-aided field caused problems for Snyder outfielders, who - who, faced with the Eagles' powerhouse hitting - misjudged several long-hit balls.

Pecos is expected to start Genero Rodriquez, with backup from Danny Garcia. Neither is a strongarm fastballer, but according to Lewis, both are good pitchers. They move the ball around a lot, without throwing to the same spot. But they throw strikes when they do. They are pitchers.

The eventual series winner gains a berth to the state playoffs in Austin, June 7-8.

LET'S GO--Mitch Mackey (18), Snyder Tiger fielder-pitcher, takes some words of encouragement from assistant coach Jim Mavroulis during Tuesday's Snyder-Pecos game. The two teams meet here today at 5 as the best-of-three playoff series continues. See related article at left. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Friday's The Night, Contend SuperSonics

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) —The Seattle SuperSonics are on Cloud Nine.

The Sonics, with a commanding 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven series with the defending champion Washington Bullets, can win their first National Basketball Association title Friday night.

"We have been fighting off adversity all year long," said guard Fred Brown. "But here we are, one game away from the world championship. We feel we could wrap it up Friday night."

The Sonics got a big boost Tuesday night when they won their third straight game over the Bullets, 114-112 in an overtime contest that featured 58 fouls and 72 free throw attempts.

No team has ever come back from a 3-1 deficit to win three in a row in an NBA final. But the Bullets, who made such a comeback in the Eastern championship against the San Antonio Spurs, think they can do it again in the final.

"This is about the toughest position we can be in," said Bullets guard Kevin Grevey. "You never want to get down this far to any team, especially a team as good as Seattle.

"From now on we have to play with reckless abandon. I know we're in a tough spot. But if we can keep playing this way, we can win on Friday night, come back out here and take one and then we'll be in a good spot," said Grevey.

Game 7, if necessary, would be played next Wednesday here in the Capital Centre.

Despite their lead, the Sonics say they aren't going to take it easy Friday night because they remember what happened last year when up 3-2, they relaxed in Washington and got blown off the court. The Bullets went on to win the championship.

We found out last year that three wins doesn't mean anything," said Jack Sikma. "We're going to be ready to play."

Sonic Paul Silas said, "To stop us, the Bullets are going to have to win three, and we think that's going to be pretty tough for them to do."

John Johnson said, "We're very confident. We'd like to get this over as soon as possible."

Gus Williams, who led all scorers with 36 points Tuesday night, said the Sonics "can't let up in D.C. The Bullets are a good team and they know they can get back after being down 3-1. They proved that against San Antonio in the Eastern championship series."

As Fred Brown summarized it: "Only one more win. Ain't that beautiful?"

Jockey Laffit Pincay, Jr., won 12 stakes races at the 1978-79 Santa Anita meeting.

Moe Decides To Stay; San Antonio Will Let Him

SAN ANTONIO (AP)— San Antonio Spurs Coach Doug Moe says he had decided to leave his job. And Spurs President Angelo Drossos says he intended to get another coach. Both announced Wednesday however, that the controversial Moe would remain next season.

The announcement ended weeks of speculation that Moe, 40, would be leaving the National Basketball Association team he has coached to two consecutive Central Division titles.

"There was a time last season when Doug wanted out of his current contract to seek employment elsewhere," Drossos said Wednesday. "For that reason, I had every intention of obtaining another head coach for the Spurs for next season.

"However, in the past few days, Doug and I have come to a clear understanding that he now prefers to stay with the Spurs, so the board of directors and I have agreed to retain him as head coach for next season," continued Drossos.

The reasons for the indecision regarding Doug's status were personal between he and myself," the team president said.

Kemper Trys One-Ball Rule

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A one ball rule was scheduled to go into effect today in the first round of the $350,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

Most of the game's leading players endorse the rule, believing it will make no change in their game. But some predict in ill concealed delight that it will bother others.

"It's going to raise hell with some guys," predicted Andy Bean, the defending champion in this tournament.

"Some of them have downwind balls, crosswind balls, upwind balls."

The rule, set by the U.S. Golf Association and followed by the PGA tour, requires that a player use only one type ball during a round. If a player starts the round with a certain brand and type of ball, he must play that brand and type throughout the round.

Previously, players were allowed to use as many different brands an types as they desired. Many touring pros had a habit of using different balls under different situations. One particular brand was very popular for use when low shots into the wind for great distance were required.

Most of the leading players, however, insist they have never used but on ball. Among them are Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson.

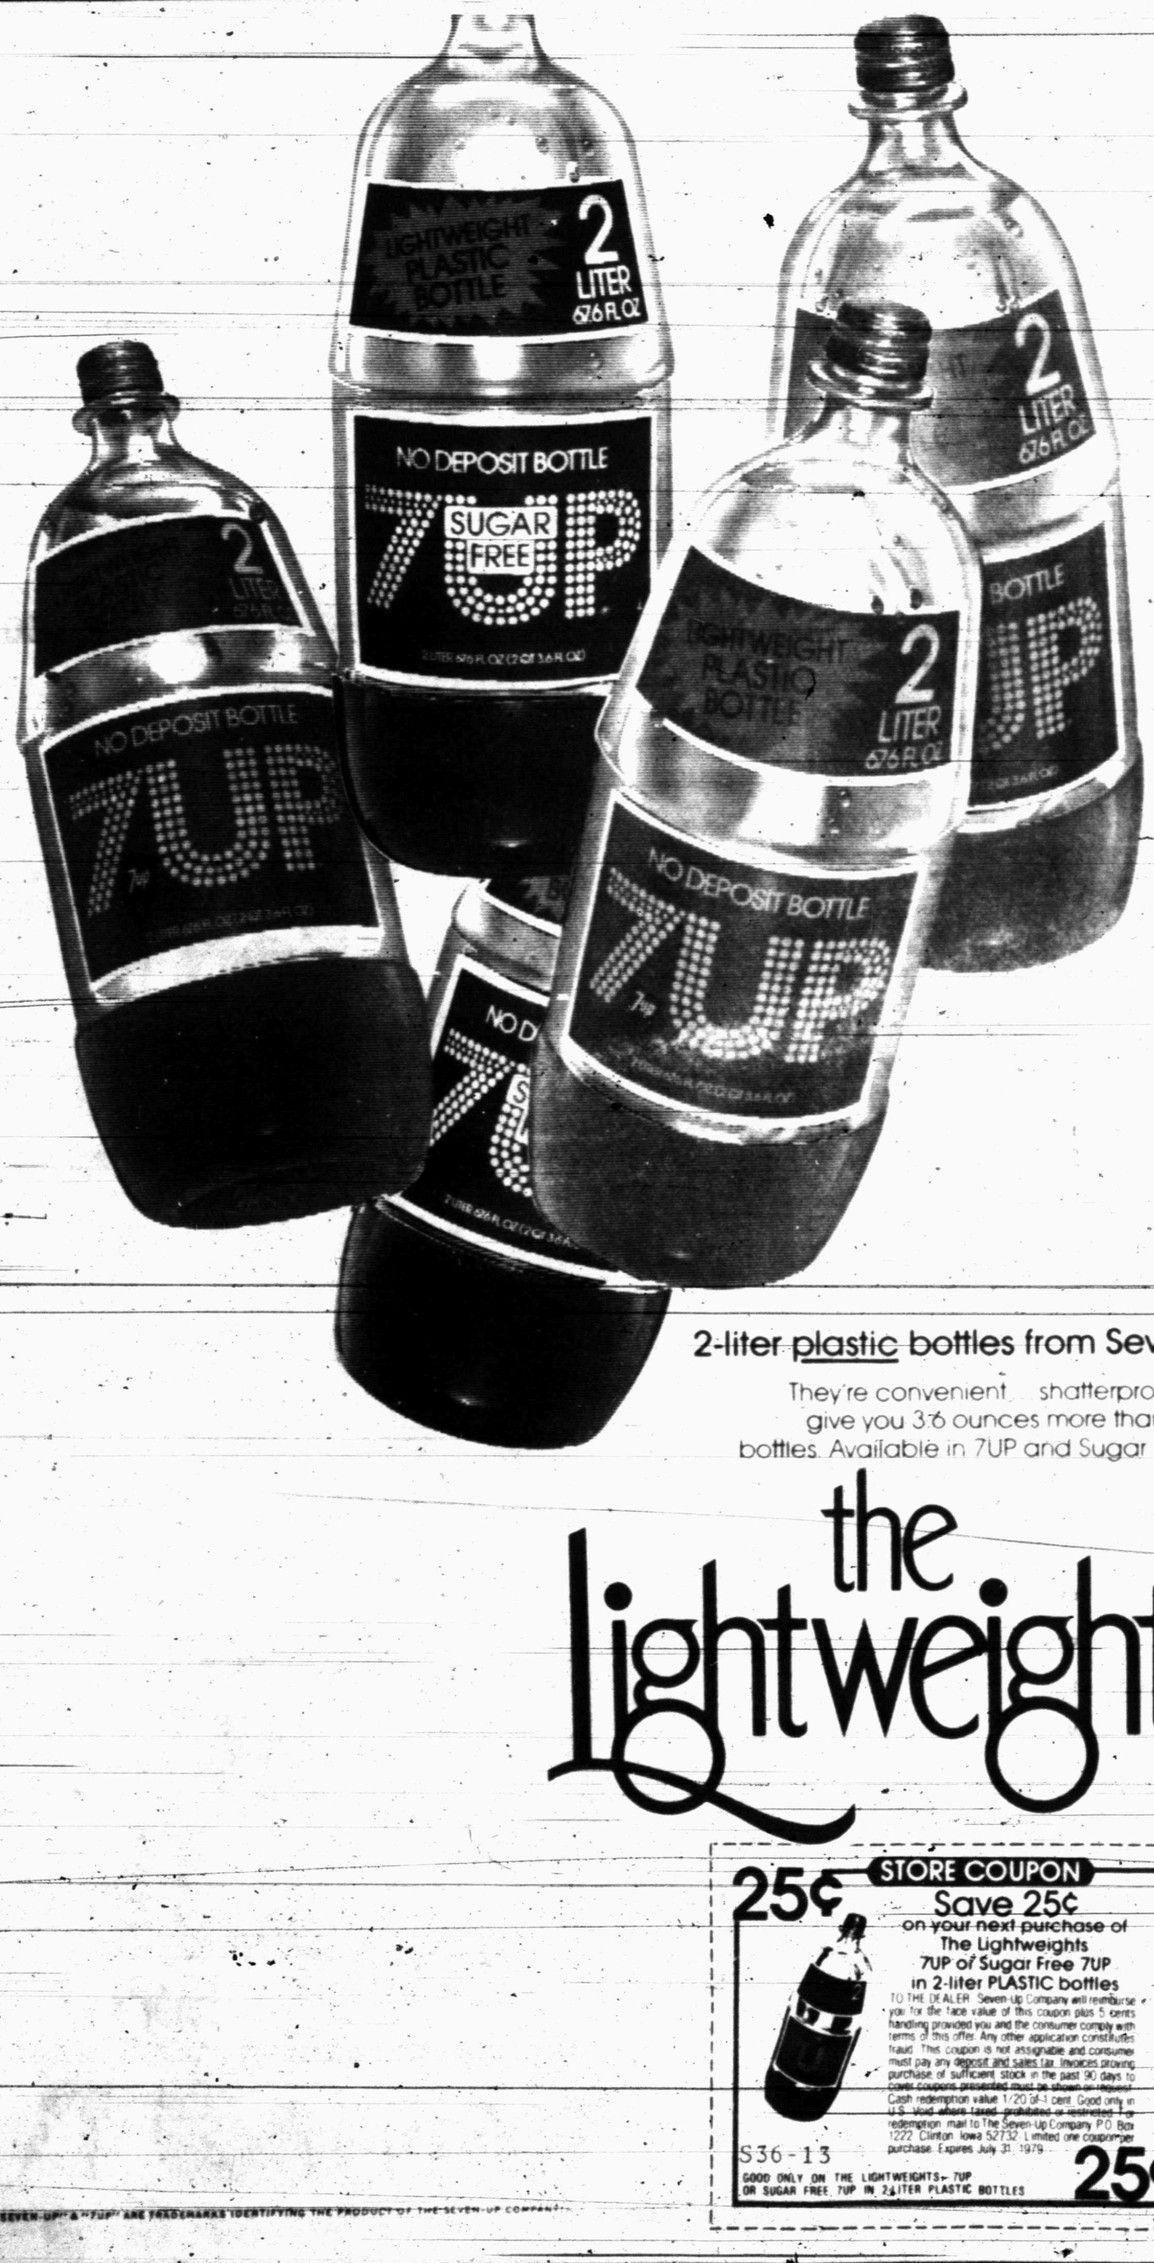

Cards Call Seven Back

ST. LOUIS (AP) The St. Louis Cardinals have notified seven veteran free agents of the National Football League team's intentions to re-sign them to 1979 contracts, it was announced Wednesday.

Joe Sullivan, vice president of operations, said the seven players are centers Tom Banks and Tom Brahaney, tight ends J.V. Cain and Al Chandler, nose tackle Charlies Davis and running backs Willard Harrell and Steve Jones.

"The Cardinals have sent each of these players a 'letter of desire' to re-sign them, a requirement under the provisions of the National Football League Players Association collective bargaining agreement," Sullivan said.

Sullivan said the Cardinals won't re-sign Bob Bell, a nine-year veteran left defensive end. Bell will become a free agent on June 1.

Boston Tripped Up Again As...

Zisk Returns To Form For Texas

ARLINGTON (AP)—The Texas Rangers, who find a new hero every night, are off to the fastest start in the nine-year history of their franchise and the Boston Red Sox can attest Arlington Stadium is fast becoming a haunted house.

The Red Sox lost to the Rangers again Wednesday night - their ninth consecutive defeat to Texas going back to last season. Boston hasn't won in Arlington Stadium since September, 1977.

Richie Zisk, the Rangers' $300,000 a year outfielder who hadn't had a game winning hit since April 13, delivered a one-out run-scoring single in the bottom of the 10th inning for a 3-2 victory.

The winner was unbeaten reliever Jim Kern, who now has seven victories, six saves, and the best earned run average in the majors--1.09.

Zisk, hitting only .240 with a mere 14 RBIs, was elated after driving home Al Oliver for the game winner off Dick Drago 3-2.

"I feel good inside. I finally contributed to this team. I hadn't been," said Zisk.

Zisk said "I don't feel this team can win if I don't hit. I haven't been hitting. I haven't been carying my weight.

"You've got to crawl to walk. I am still struggling. I just haven't been aggressive. I'm not saying all the pressure on this team is on my shoulders. I'm saying I just have to carry my weight."

Zisk added "Last year Al (Oliver) hit, but I didn't. We might have won it all if I had held up my end."

Kern allowed only two hits in four innings of brilliant relief for starter Dock Ellis.

"I had to work like a bear for that victory," said Kern. "I had no rhythm. My fast ball saved me. I was so pumped up I could have gone seven innings."

Boston Manger Don Zimmer said "I guess everybody knows we have lost nine in a row to Texas. That's what happened when you don't get clutch hits and leave runners on base. We left six on base in the last five innings."

Boston jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first on Fred Lynn's run-scoring single, his 42nd RBI of the year.

Texas countered with John Grubbs' homer, Buddy Bell's double and Oliver's RBI single in the fifth inning.

Butch Hobson sent it into extra inning with a run-scoring single in the seventh inning.

In tonight's game - a make-up of Tuesday night's weather postponed game - John Matlack, 3-2, meets Dennis Eckersley, 4-3.

Astros Up On Cincy; Leader Picked Tonight

HOUSTON (AP)—Neither wind nor a driving rain storm nor a hang nail could keep Houston knuckel ball pitcher Joe Niekro from his appointed rounds in the Astrodome Wednesday night.

While a tornado warning and gusty winds created alarm outside the Astrodome, Niekro delivered the mail inside, dispatching Cincinnati with his sixth victory of the month in a 6-3 decision as the Astros moved within percentage points of the Reds in the National League West.

The two teams end the three-game set tonight with the divisional lead at stake. Cincinnati's Fred Norman, 2-4, faces Rick Williams, 1-1.

"When you're a knuckle ball pitcher and you're getting your pitches over, the hitters can't sit back and wait for the knuckleball," said Niekro, 7-2. "Everything has been falling right for me. I'm not so uptight as I was last year. I can't wait to get the ball."

Cincinnati batters would have preferred a wait on another pitcher in the Astros rotation. Niekro allowed one hit to Dave Concepcion in the third inning until his hang-nail started bothering him in the eighth.

"I bent my finger nail back in the warmups and it started bothering me late in the game," Niekro said.

Niekro took a comfortable 6-0 lead into the eighth inning when Cesar Geronimo and pinchhitter Arturo DeFreites led off with back to back singles and Ken Griffey walked to load the bases.

Junior Kennedy then hit into a double play that scored Geronimo to break up Niekro's shutout and Concepcion then flew out to end the inning.

Niekro yielded a two-run double to Geronimo in the ninth after Johnny Bench and Dave Collins had singled and left after 8 2-3 innings on the mound. Joe Sambito got the last batter out and recorded his fourth save of the season.

Classic Features Top Competition

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)-"Golf," Pat Bradley was saying as she walked off the course at Wykagyl Country Club Wednesday, "is a game of inches, and it can be very frustrating at times. However, I am not going to let it to get to me."

The 28-year-old veteran of the Ladies Professional Golf Association had every reason to become frustrated as she headed into the $100,000 classic Thursday morning at the par-72, 6,410-yard layout.

Nancy Lopez, the defending champion returning after a week's vacation, will be going for her fifth tour victory this season. Also in the field will be last year's runnerup, JoAnne Carner, along with Amy Alcott, Laura Baugh, Sandra Post and Jane Blalock.

Bradley has been a runnerup four times this year and finished third on three other occasions. The Arlington, Mass., native has been in the top in 11 of 13 tournaments and has earned $73,980, good for fourth place on the list of money winners.

"I've been consistent," explained Pat, "but I just have not gotten that win. I wish I knew the reason because I'd go right out and do it.

"One of these weekends things will turn around. Wykagyl means something special to me, so maybe it will happen in this tournament."

Celtics May Offer $600,000 Now

Mangurian Speeds Talks

BOSTON (AP)—Intervention by owner Harry Mangurian has come close to assuring the Boston Celtics will soon have basketball's most coveted Bird in hand.

After weeks of bickering between Celtics President Red Auerbach and lawyer Bob Woolf - agent for Indiana State star Larry Bird - the two sides are close to terms today on a multi-year pact worth more than $600,000 per season.

The breakthrough came Wednesday as Mangurian and the Celtics increased their original offer by some $100,000 per year.

Woolf is under increasing pressure to agree to the contract at the next bargaining session Friday and bring the college player of the year to Boston and make it final.

Mangurian, in Boston to investigate building a new arena for the Celtics in nearby Somerville, stepped into the previously stalled talks, getting Auerbach and Woolf together for negotiations.

"I'm really encouraged. We accomplished quite a bit. Our next meeting is Friday and it could be our last," the owner said after the two-hour session in Auerbach's office. "Red has handled the situation and he did today (Wednesday). Hopefully, it can culminate in the next few days."

Woolf asked for time to digest the Celtics' offer, giving rise to speculation that he may yet seek extra cash for his client. What Bird thinks was unknown because the big blond from French Lick, Ind. was said to be "out fishing" back home.

In a nutshell, the Celtics backed off their earlier take-it-or-leave-it stance. Auerbach had refused to budge from an initial offer of $500,000 per year.

College Series Set Friday

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)-Miami second baseman Howie Shapiro says his team was "in a cloud" when it played in the 1978 College World Series.

It was a new experience for the Miami players and the result was a third-place finish.

But Shapiro says that won't be the case this time. The team is a year older and a year wiser and he says that could be the difference as second-rated Miami goes after the title that eluded the Hurricans a year ago.

Miami (55-9) is one of seven teams from the nation's top 10 in the 1979 CWS, which opens Friday. Northeast Regional champion Connecticut is the only unrated team in the field, which also includes No. 1 Texas.

The series opens Friday with No. 7 Arkansas (46-13), runner-up to Texas in the Southwest Conference, meeting eighth-rated Pepperdine (50-16). Miami then tangles with No. 5 Arizona (42-23).

Bucs Sign Bengal Back

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)-The Tampa Bay Buccaneers acquired running back Tony Davis, a fourth-year pro, from the Cincinnati Bengals on Wednesday for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Davis, 26, played at Nebraska and was the Bengals' fourth-round draft pick in 1976.

School Finishing First Year Of Priority Plan

With the end of the school year, the Snyder Public School is completing its first year of a comprehensive effort to improve reading instruction and learning in the district schools. Following two years of preliminary assessment and planning during which time student improvement objectives and program needs were determined, the district schools initiated a board of trustees-approved Five-Year Priorities Plan calling for implementing in 1978-79 various classroom and school-wide instructional activities in the reading area.

A district steering committee, consisting of central office and building administrators, provided the leadership for this major instructional improvement effort. At the campus level, building steering committees and school staffs worked together to determine the kinds of instructional arrangements required to improve reading instruction, especially for their students identified as having deficient reading skills.

A district steering committee, consisting of central office and building administrators, provided the leadership for this major instructional improvement effort. At the campus level, building steering committees and school staffs worked together to determine the kinds of instructional arrangements required to improve reading instruction, especially for their students identified as having deficient reading skills.

A variety of strategies were implemented this year in individual Snyder schools. Among these were sustained silent reading, peer and volunteer tutoring, reading learning centers, student utilization of the reading tachistoscope, cross-grade leveling instruction, oral language development approach, reading ability grouping, reading mini-libraries, kindergarten prereading (Peotone) activities, Prescriptive Reading Inventory, Corrective Reading Program, and teacher team-teaching. In addition, each school increased the classroom reading resource materials by supplementing the current classroom program and activities with needed instructional materials.

Teacher training, especially in the area of identifying student reading level and the selection and utilization of reading materials appropriate to the level or needs of students, was one of the primary objectives sought this year. The achievement of this objective was strengthened with the periodic visits of a university reading consultant and the daily assistance of two reading specialists. These inviduals worked primarily in the elementary schools with staff and children.

The school administration will present to the Board of Trustees an evaluation report acknowledging the efforts in reading improvement implemented at the various campuses. Board approval will be requested for the continuance of these efforts during the 1979-80 school year, as well as beginning activities in developing a Basic Skills Education Program in Reading and Language Arts for students and staff, Grades K-12.

In order to maintain the accredited status achieved by the Snyder schools following a Texas Education Agency status review in July, 1978, the district will be expected to continue its performance commitment identified in the Five-Year Priorities Plan.

Moreover, the district must maintain substantial compliance with the State criteria found in the "Principles, Standards and Procedures for the Accreditation of School Districts," and continue to pursue its stated objectives in its progress toward reducing or eliminating students needs and program discrepancies.

Half Of DC 10s Back In Air

By PETER MACKLER
Associated Press Writer

Airline mechanics worked around the clock getting DC-10s in shape to pass government muster, but while dozens of the jumbo jets returned to the air, some remained on the ground with new problems.

More than half the 138 DC-10s owned by eight U.S. carriers were cleared for service Wednesday and ground crews raced to get more of the widebodied planes air-ready by early today.

Some domestic DC-10 flights were canceled Wednesday, but airlines were able to juggle routes and planes to accommodate passengers. Most foreign airlines that voluntarily grounded their DC-10s Tuesday, also reported their service returning to normal.

While the DC-10s were being declared fit for the flying public, some travelers wondered if they were ready for the jets hit by

Crash Death Count Rises

CHICAGO (AP) — The death count has risen to 274 in the nation's worst air disaster, and medical examiners now say they have positively identified 17 victims.

Authorities said Wednesday the discovery of part of a baby's torso in the wreckage led them to believe there was an infant aboard the American Airlines jet that crashed Friday.

No babies were listed as passengers on the flight to Los Angeles.

two inspection orders and the nation's worst air crash.

A United ticket clerk who declined to give her name said at New York's Kennedy Airport that "quite a few" people balked at taking DC-10s and asked for another plane.

The Federal Aviation Administration had first ordered the inspection of engine mounting bolts on all U.S. DC-10s following Friday's American Airlines crash in Chicago that killed 274 people.

But the FAA Tuesday grounded the jumbo jets and ordered a more extensive examination after investigators found "potentially dangerous deficiencies" in the engine assemblies.

The latest safety check turned up "more problems than we did in the first inspections," Fred Farrar, spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said Wednesday. "Some are minor, some are major."

At Narita Airport outside Tokyo, Japan Air Lines mechanics found three rivets holding the engines to the wings of one of its nine DC-10s had fallen off.

A spokesman for Japan Air Lines said today the rivets were replaced and the aircraft returned to service along with the other planes grounded for inspection.

Though nominally Christian, people of the Malagasy Republic cling to ancient beliefs, holding that ancestors dictate health, wealth, and fertility of descendants.

Song:

DESTINY

by The Jacksons

In this world there's much confusion
And I've tasted the city life and it's not for me
Now I do dream of distant places
Where I don't know now, but it's destiny

If it's the rich life, I don't want it
Happiness ain't always material things.

Refrain:
I want destiny
It's the place for me
Give me the simple life
I'm getting away from here
Let me be me, let me feel free
I'm a man that's for all seasons
What the city offers me ain't naturally
I look to greet the stars
But there's no stars to see
Gonna search this world until I find my destiny

If it's the rich life, I don't want it
Happiness ain't always material things.
(Refrain)
I wanna get far from here
Should I up and fly away so fancy free
Nobody can change my mind
The words of destiny are calling me
While time
(Refrain)
