Call threatens lives of U.S. hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An anonymous telephone caller said today the terrorist group Islamic Jihad would kill by firing squad the American hostages it holds in Lebanon because indirect negotiations with the United States had reached "a dead end."

A later anonymous call claimed the Americans had been killed and dumped at a specified location, but police said they found no bodies there.

Six Americans are missing in Beirut. Islamic Jihad, believed comprised of fundamentalist Shiite Moslem followers of Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has said it already killed one American and is holding the other five.

There was no way to authenticate either call, made to the office of a Western news agency in Beirut, apparently by different men. The news agency made a transcript of the original caller's statement available to The Associated Press.

"We have decided the following: the execution of the American hostages by firing squad," said the first caller, who spoke in Arabic and claimed to represent Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War.

"Wait for another call from us at 1 p.m. (6 a.m. EST) in connection with the status of the corpses of the American hostages," the caller said.

At 2 p.m. (7 a.m. EST) the agency said the man had not called back. But an official of the agency, which asked not to be identified, disclosed later there had been another call at 10 a.m. (3 a.m. EST).

A man speaking Arabic said bodies had been dumped in a bombed-out factory in the Kola district of West Beirut. He hung up after a few seconds.

But it was not apparently the same man who delivered the death threat. Police said at 2 p.m. they had searched the area thoroughly but found no bodies.

The second call differed from the earlier one because the man did not precede his terse message with the first words of the Koran, Islam's holy book, that callers claiming to speak for Islamic Jihad usually use.

Islamic Jihad was the group that claimed responsibility for exploding a truck bomb at the Beirut headquarters of U.S. Marine peacekeepers Oct. 23, 1983, killing 241 Americans.

Last month, it released blurred photographs of what it said was the body of U.S. Embassy political officer William Buckley.

Phone calls 'cut' to Cogdell, south

A severed underground telephone cable Thursday morning shut off phone service for Cogdell Memorial Hospital and the majority of points south.

The accident occurred between 8:30 and 9 a.m., according to officials with Southwestern Bell Telephone. Ralph Williamson, manager for the local Bell operation, speculated during the morning that it might be 6 p.m. Thursday before service was restored.

The campus of Western Texas College was unaffected, but service was said lost at both the Ira and Dunn communities and a portion of the Lake J.B. Thomas area.

In addition to Codgell, the adjacent Cogdell Center, which houses many local physician's offices, was also without telephone service.

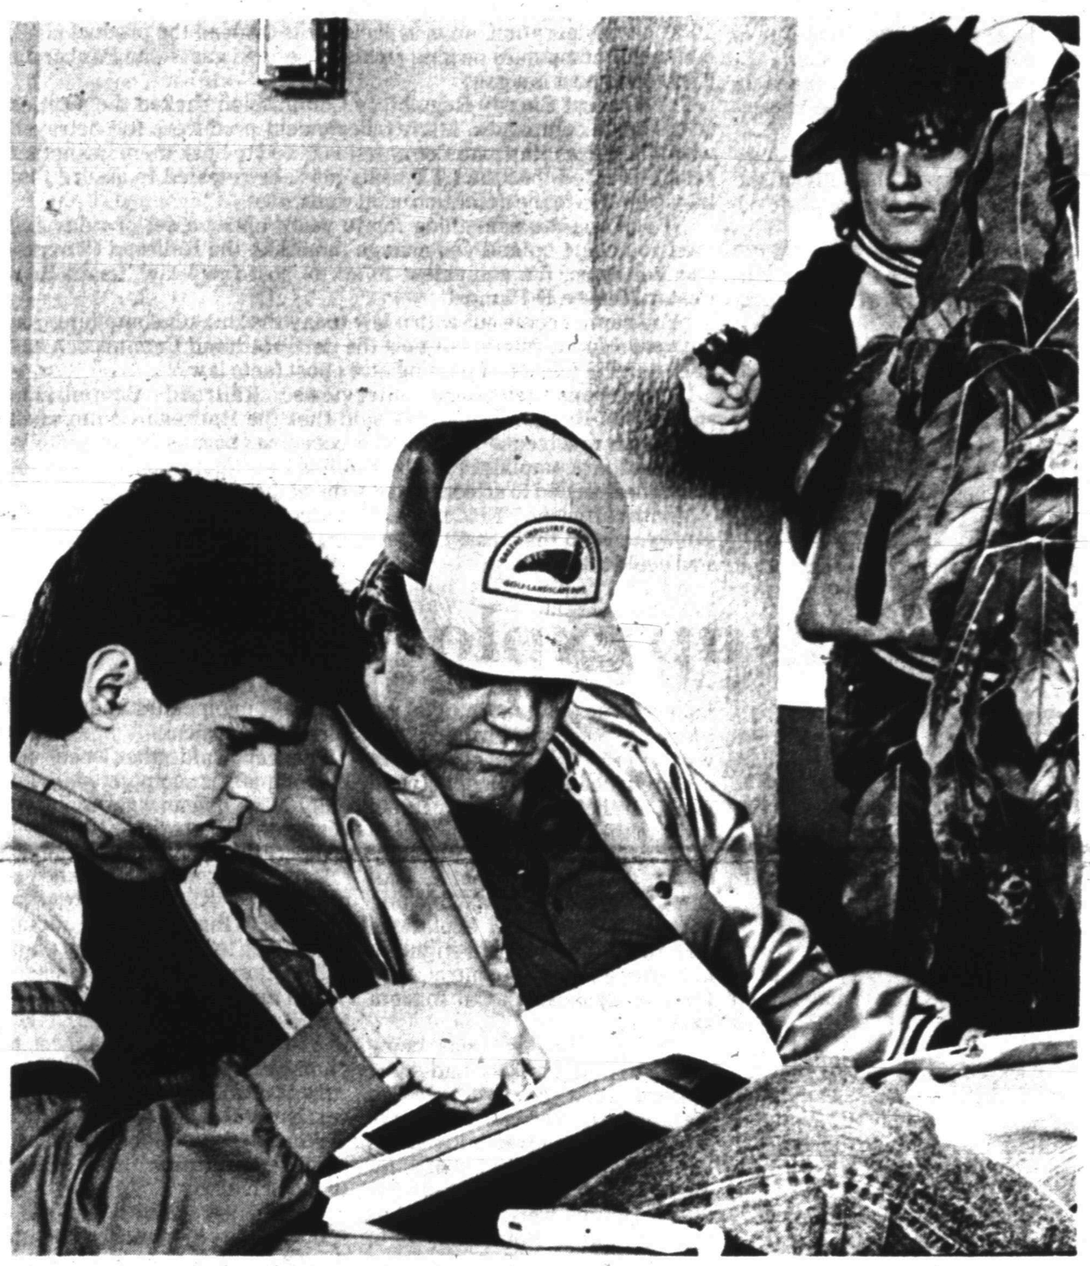

When the cable was severed, it set off the fire alarm at Cogdell, which prompted a run of fire department personnel also.

Local fire officials then aided Cogdell in establishing a two-way radio hookup to allow emergency room personnel to be in contact with local law enforcement and ambulance services.

There were reports of some businesses along South College Ave. being affected also.

Phone service to other county customers was disrupted somewhat as calls normally handled over the severed cable were "spread out" through the rest of the system.

According to officials, the accident occurred as a crew for Jack's Roadboring was working just east of South College Ave. and south of the Towle Park entrance.

United Way sets its 'grand finale'

With the campaign nearing 75 percent complete, United Way officials Wednesday signaled the end of the effort — setting their sights on a final sweep of donor packets and a grand finale due Saturday, Nov. 16.

On that date, the local owners of Shakey's Pizza have volunteered to donate one-half of the day's receipts toward this year's United Way record-setting goal of $100,000.

United Way Drive Chairman Mike Banta said plans are now underway to bolster sales at the local restaurant on that day.

"We're planning to provide some type of entertainment during meal times — similar to what we did with the Jamboree, but on a smaller scale," he said.

On that Saturday, Snyder is expected to be the site for football playoff games also, and United Way officials noted they would be contacting the involved schools encouraging them to eat at Shakey's Nov. 16.

"What we've really got to do now is get all of our donor packets in," Banta emphasized.

He urged drive division chairman attending Wednesday's report meeting to have this done prior to next Wednesday's report session.

Traditionally, United Way distributes more than 900 such packets through the city. An estimated 25 percent of these are still out.

"If any local business or group still has packets that need to be picked up, just call us and we'll see to it," Banta added. The United Way number is 573-5390.

Individuals with packets to be picked up can also contact Banta at 573-4041 (American State

Only 12 survive...

WTC campus game said a real killer

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Wednesday morning, students at Western Texas College began playing a deadly game. And as of Thursday morning, the killing hadn't stopped with only 12 survivors reported of an initial 42.

Any suffering that has occurred, however, is strictly of the "agony of defeat" variety. The game is called "Escape" and its shooting is limited to dart guns only.

And despite references to "assassins," "victims," and "dead files," Mickey Baird, who heads up the Student Activities Department at WTC, commented, "I think it's one of the most fun things we've done on campus in a long time."

The game is being sponsored by the special effects committee of the activities department.

The initial list of "contracts" was handed out Wednesday morning, but the gradual reduction of players is expected to take at least until Sunday.

After the deadline to signup passed at 1 p.m. Tuesday, 42 players had registered. But by the time word of the game spread throughout the campus Wednesday morning, "We probably had 200 more want to start up late," Baird said.

Due to the response, she said plans are already underway to sponsor another game of Escape during the spring semester.

All those registering first had to produce an individual portfolio about themselves. This included a recent photo, a physical description and an agenda of their class and work schedule.

These were then placed in an envelope which served as the "contracts" handed out to other players.

Each player began the game with a "contract kill" for a specific other player.

The basic rules are the victim had to be shot below the shoulders and the "kill" could not take place while the victim was

Armed robbery reported

An armed robbery was reported here Wednesday night and police are now searching for two suspects

The incident was reported around 10:11 p.m. at the Town and Country Food Store at the intersection of College Ave. and U.S. Highway 84. Store employee Cipriano Rodriquez reported the robbery.

He said two subjects — one carrying some sort of handgun — entered the store just after 10 p.m. and forced him to open the cash register.

The pair — believed to be white

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Only a politician will invite you to a $100 a plate dinner and then give a speech on how to curb inflation."

A favorite past-time of Americans during the fall is second-guessing the football coach. Because of extensive TV coverage, the typical fan has more than an average knowlege of the game.

The most typical fan gripe has to do with offensive imagination—or the lack of it. But one thing's for certain, Chicago Coach Mike Ditka can't be criticized for lack of innovation.

Ditka, the former Dallas Cowboy, has created a folk hero in 308-pound defensive lineman William "The Refrigerator" Perry. It all began a few weeks ago when the Bears, in a lop-sided game, allowed Perry to carry the ball.

Later Perry made big news by running for a touchdown and being the lead block for two others. Then Sunday, he made grid history by catching a TD pass against the Green Bay Packers.

Since that time, he's been hailed in a song over local radio stations, has become a pin-up idol and has had his life and times chronicled in a TV newscast.

He has been inundated with endorsement proposals from clothing stores and appliance dealers—with visions of refrigerator sales dancing in their heads. He's had requests from TV talk shows including Johnny Carson. Requests for Perry's autograph have exceeded that of teammate Walter Payton.

Despite all the publicity, Perry remains humble. "The fans have been behind me all the way." Behind him is a good place to be when Perry works up a full head of steam.

Coach Ditka says he will use the "P" formation in the future. And asked whether Perry will play quarterback, the coach replies, "As soon as he jumps over the goal post."

We wouldn't be surprised, however. A guy that big can play whenever and wherever he chooses.

School's pledges 2nd high

Wednesday's United Way report meeting included this year's annual contribution from the employees of the Snyder Independent School District — a donor total that is the second highest of the campaign from a county work force.

Personnel with Snyder ISD contributed $4,961 — a figure that is near the campaign record provided by staffers with Chevron U.S.A.-related operations in Scurry County.

The Chevron record — with donations still coming in — is now

In Brief

Troops fire

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Army troops today fired cannons and machine guns on the burned-out Palace of Justice in a renewed attack on gunmen believed to be holding at least eight judges hostage.

An army communique today said 17 people were killed and 34 wounded in fighting that began when the guerrillas took control of the building Wednesday.

Hail mission

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Space shuttle Challenger returned to Earth with a slightly scorched nose and a treasure trove of data that exuberant West German scientists said would pave the way for more international cooperation in space.

Ending a 3-million-mile voyage, the stubby-winged spacecraft touched down Wednesday on the Mojave Desert in a test of a new landing mechanism designed to allow the shuttle to resume landing on a shorter, concrete runway at Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Court rules

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has ruled that the Legislature "painted with too broad a brush" in enacting a gambling law to punish bookmakers.

The high court, calling a portion of the law "unconstitutionally vague and ambiguous," reversed the conviction of a Dallas barber who had been placed on three years' probation for "gambling promotion."

Ronald Adley had been found guilty of receiving a bet from an undercover officer on a 1982 pro football game between the Philadelphia Eagles and the Cleveland Browns.

The conviction was affirmed by the 5th Court of Appeals, Dallas, but on Wednesday the Court of Criminal Appeals ordered the indictment against Adley dismissed.

New doubt cast on defection

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says Soviet masterspy Vitaly Yurchenko never gave the United States "anything new or sensational" during his three months with the CIA and may have been planted as a fraudulent defector in "a deliberate ploy" by the Kremlin.

"We just have to live with it because there's no way we can prove or disprove it," Reagan said in an interview Wednesday.

"You can't rule out personal desire, homesickness, whatever it might be" as possible motives for the decisions by Yurchenko, a seaman in Louisiana and a soldier in Afghanistan to return to their Soviet homeland, Reagan said. He spoke hours before the latest reported defection, a Romanian seaman in Jacksonville, Fla.

Reagan told the correspondents of four Western news agencies he is perplexed by the unusual series of events, coming as they have in the days leading up to his summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva 11 days from now.

Also during the 33-minute interview, Reagan said:

—He would deploy the proposed Star Wars space shield unilaterally if other nuclear powers can't agree on a worldwide defense and disarmament program.

The president's comments appeared to negate the terms he laid out in an interview with Soviet journalists last week in which he said he wouldn't deploy a defensive system until offensive missiles had been dismantled.

—There is every indication that Gorbachev is "a reasonable man," and that gives Reagan hope he can convince the Communist Party chief the United States has no expansionist aims and genuinely wants to ease the distrust with which the two superpowers regard each other.

—His goal at the summit will be to "eliminate the distrust" between the superpowers, not to negotiate a new arms control agreement.

"I don't think the negotiation of facts and figures about which weapon and how many and numbers and so forth should take place at the summit," he added. "I think that belongs where we have already put it, and that is with the arms control negotiators who are already in Geneva."

—He called it a misunderstanding that he had cancer because a polyp containing cancerous cells was removed from his colon in July.

"In reality, the only real illness that I suffered in any way and at any time was the incision," Reagan said. The president's doctors described the illness at the time as cancer and said the malignant tumor invaded but did not penetrate the wall of the colon, a two-foot section of which was removed during the surgery.

—He refused to comment when asked if his administration is trying to overthrow Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, saying only that, "We don't have a personal relationship."

Royalty owners call for impeachment

PAMPA, Texas (AP) — Panhandle royalty owners involved in the dispute involving so-called "white oil" have launched a campaign to impeach the three members of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Royalty owners began signing petitions calling for the impeachment of the commission members for what they allege to be neglect of duty.

White Deer royalty owner Dr. Harbord Cox said the Railroad Commission's inaction during the "white oil" dispute has given the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission unprecedented power over Texas minerals.

Cox and others complained that the Railroad Commission did not participate in the hearing in Washington, D.C., where the FERC ruled that 35 independent oilmen were diverting natural gas by improperly producing from gas zones.

The ruling has shut down hundreds of wells and is serving as a precedent to shut down others.

During a meeting called by Amarillo oil and gas broker Ron Slover, Cox called the commission's inaction a neglect of duty that will devastate the Panhandle economy and have statewide implications.

Many of the almost 275 people attending Tuesday's meeting signed the petition. Slover and Cox said the petition would be distributed throughout the state.

So-called "white oil" is a product derived from the pressurized cooling of vapors into a liquid. Independents who have operated LTX, or refrigeration, units at their wells contend the product is oil, but larger companies owning rights to natural gas in the Panhandle Field contend it is a gas.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission backed the position of the large companies. Many independent producers felt betrayed when the Texas Railroad Commission failed to back them in another case and ruled that the LTX wells must be retested to assure that they conform to the definition of oil wells.

"If you operate something for 10 years under a set of rules and then you come up and you change them like the Railroad Commission has done, it's equivalent to an ex post facto law," said Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa.

"You cannot come out with a law today that makes something you did yesterday a crime, but now the darn Railroad Commission has done an effective job of passing an ex post facto law."

In previous telephone interviews, Railroad Commission spokesman Ray Grasshoff has said that the Railroad Commission did not get involved in the FERC proceedings because it was resolving a similar complaint filed by Phillips Petroleum Co., and did not want one decision to affect the outcome of the other.

Months after the FERC made its controversial ruling, the commission requested that the FERC reopen the case so that the commission could intervene.

Crews are cleaning up explosion site

MONT BELVIEU, Texas (AP) —The last of about 300 evacuated families returned to their homes as work crews cleaned up a gas storage area left charred by a series of massive blasts.

Mayor Fred Miller said he lifted an evacuation order Wednesday afternoon for Mont Belvieu families who live near the Warren Petroleum Co. plant after company officials assured him the area was safe.

"Everybody can go home that wants to," Miller said.

Miller ordered the evacuation of the entire town of about 1,700, but had lifted the order Tuesday night for all but about 300 families who live in the area surrounding the facility.

Meanwhile, Warren Petroleum employees went back to work Wednesday, one day after a series of fiery explosions at an underground gas storage well left two men dead.

Work crews were shutting down all pipelines leading to storage wells at the terminal, said Art Spencer, a spokesman for Chevron Corp., which owns Warren Petroleum.

Mont Belvieu, which is about 35 miles east of Houston, is located atop a salt dome in which a dozen oil companies store gases used in petrochemical production.

Chevron officials said they believe Tuesday morning's explosions resulted when two workers performing maintenance on an underground vault cut the wrong pipe or failed to drain the line.

The pipeline ruptured Tuesday morning, spewing ethane, propane, isobutane and gasoline and triggering a series of explosions and fires that took firefighters almost six hours to control, said Chevron spokesman Cul Ingram said.

"The pipeline that was being worked on apparently had some material in it, and whether this was human error, whether the pipeline was inadvertently cut is something we're still investigating," he said.

The victims were identified as welders James Hoffmann, 30, of Cove and Richard Duncan, 25, of Baytown.

Spencer said the once the burning-off is completed, company officials can "go in and investigate and continue our clean-up operations."

Damages from the fires and explosions will run "into the millions," Ingram said, adding that about 10 percent of the plant will be closed for several weeks.

"An investigation will go on for a week, at least," he said. "This is a substantial fire and a lot of damage. It will take time."

Texas Railroad Commission investigators also want to investigate the site of the blast, said commission spokesman Brian Schiable.

Meanwhile, Miller called a special City Council meeting Wednesday night to discuss the blast, one in a series of disasters to strike the Chambers County community in recent years.

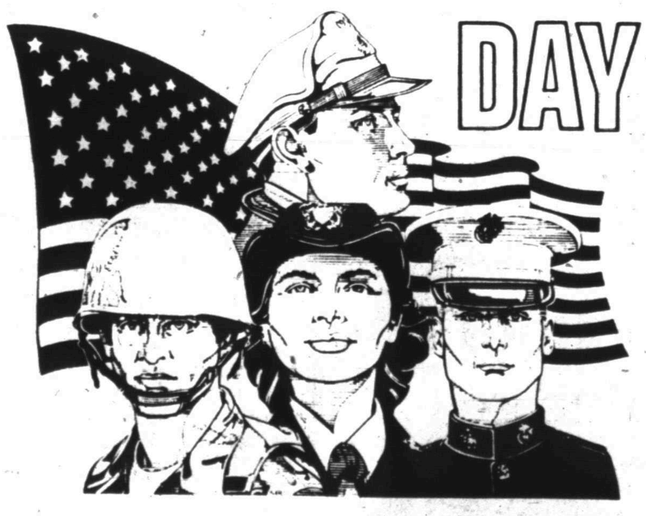

In 1980, about 820 million cubic feet of gases leaked, forcing evacuation of more than 70 families, some for as long as six months. The leak was discovered when a dishwasher ignited gas inside a home.

Four years later, a Dow Chemical Co. pipeline ruptured.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Often-Stuck" was all wet. She wanted to know how to avoid giving her phone number to a man in whom she wasn't interested, and you told her to take his number instead and say she'll call him when she has some free time.

Why is it so hard for women to say no? I have had women give me their phone number after I've asked for it only to find them surprised when I call, and then I get turned down.

Women have told me that they're afraid of hurting a man's feelings by refusing to give him their phone number. Believe me, straightforward honesty would be refreshing after putting up with some of the games people play with each other.

STAN
IN INDIANAPOLIS

DEAR STAN: If a woman is absolutely, positively not interested in the man, then a straightforward rejection is probably kinder than giving him false hope.

But since it's a woman's prerogative to change her mind, it's smart to ask the man for his number because the man in whom she had no interest in may might look better to her in November (after a long, dry summer).

DEAR ABBY: I'm not happy with my marriage and I want out, but my husband isn't the type to let me go without a fight. We've been married for 10 years and have two children. I wasn't quite 16 when I got married, and he was 24. We fight all the time. If we're not screaming and yelling, we're hitting each other. I don't like to fight in front of the children, but I just can't stand there and take all his verbal abuse, plus punching and slapping.

Abby, just one more thing. There is this man who really cares for me and we think we could be happy together if I were free. I need to know how I can leave my husband without getting myself, my children or my boyfriend hurt. My husband can be very mean if provoked.

RUNNING OUT OF TIME AND COMMON SENSE

DEAR RUNNING: Your signature shows you to be a very insightful woman. I don't know whether your marriage went sour because you found another man, or you found another man because your marriage went sour, but don't chuck your marriage in order to jump into another.

No woman (or man) should live with a mate who dishes out verbal or physical abuse. I recommend family counseling for you and your husband. If he refuses to go with you, go alone.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a pastor who believes in a lot of home visitation, and when I go into a home I will inevitably find the boob tube blaring. After I've been seated for about three minutes, I ask pleasantly, "May I turn down the TV a wee bit?" Usually they say, "Oh, just shut it off!" If they hesitate, or say, "Well, I will turn it down just a little bit," then this is a signal to me that they are more interested in their "soap" than their salvation, and in 15 minutes I am gone.

And incidentally, Abby, I do not agree with you that people are not socially obligated to turn off the TV when someone drops in unexpectedly. After all, is a television program more precious than friendship?

SOUTH CAROLINA PASTOR

DEAR PASTOR: How important a television program is to an individual is a personal matter that can be answered only by the individual. I could be mistaken, but I have always thought healthy friendships are based on mutual consideration, not obligation.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOOKING AHEAD IN BUFFALO: Heed the wise words of Winston Churchill: "It's a mistake to look too far ahead. Only one link in a chain can be handled at a time."

Why bid a second suit in competitive auctions when you have already found a fit with your partner? There are three reasons. First, the hand may play better with the second suit as trump. Second, you may want that second suit led if the opponents buy the contract. Third, telling your partner about your second suit might help him make a crucial decision about whether to bid on. If none of those reasons apply, it's silly to tell your opponents about that second suit lurking in your hand.

In today's auction, South knew that he was going to bid to the five-level. If the opposition bid five spades, he would try to defeat that contract. Surely he did not want his partner to lead diamonds, and he certainly did not want to play in diamonds rather than in hearts. But he still bid five diamonds. Look what that bid created.

West doubled, and then doubled five hearts. He led a heart, and upon regaining the lead, he played another heart. Because declarer was now unable to ruff out all his diamond losers, he had to go down a trick. Suppose instead that South had simply bid five hearts over East's four spades. He might well be doubled, but West, with no knowledge of South's secondary diamond suit, might just select the diamond king for his opening lead. That lead would wrap up five hearts doubled for South.

Books make great Christmas gifts

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — As holiday time draws near, gift-givers once again are asking themselves a pleasant question: What to get?

A visit to the book store could supply the answer. And, an obvious choice might be a book dealing with gifts and giving. Anticipating such a need, the publishing industry has turned out just such a volume. It's titled "Only the Best: A Celebration of Gift Giving in America," it's published by Abrams, and it deals with "the art of elegant and imaginative gift giving."

If this isn't for you, there are dozens of other titles to select from. The industry, as it does every season, has turned out a plethora of books whose contents range from art to photography and from sports to the performing arts.

Art books are, as usual, in abundant supply. The many titles available — some of them lavishly illustrated — include:

"Treasures of the British Museum," by Marjorie Caygill, "Maya: Treasures of an Ancient Civilization," edited by Charles Gallenkamp et al, and "Tintoretto," by Francesco Valcanover (all published by Abrams); "Turner's Venice," by Lindsay Stainton, and "Gongora," by Pablo Picasso (both by Braziller); "Ronald Searle in Perspective," (Atlantic Monthly Press);

"Dante's Inferno," (Thames & Hudson) translated and illustrated by Tom Phillips; "F. Leger," (Crown) by Gaston Diehl; "Art & Time In Mexico," (Harper & Row) by Elizabeth Weisman; "Antonio's Tales From the Thousand and One Nights," (Stewart, Tabori & Chang); "Giacometti," (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) by James Lord;

"Norman Rockwell's Patriotic Times," (Viking) by George Mendoza; "Victorian Revival in Interior Design," (Simon & Schuster) by Jim Kemp, and "The American Wing of the MMOA," (Knopf) by Marshall Davidson and Elizabeth Stillinger.

Those with a liking for books about photography as well as books of photographs might enjoy looking at:

"Times Square," by Lou Stoumen, "All American," by Burk Uzzle, and "Behind the Camera: Photographs 1928-83," by Bill Brandt (all from Aperture); "Carl Mydans, Photojournalist," (Abrams); "Versailles Gardens," (Vendome) by Jacques Girard;

"Robert Capa Photographs," edited by Cornell Capa and Richard Whelan, and "Sightseeing: A Space Panorama" (both from Knopf); "Ansel Adams: An Autobiography" (Little, Brown);

And, "Walker Evans at Work," "Walker Evans First & Last," (both from Harper & Row), and "The Lives of Lee Miller," (Holt, Rinehart & Winston) by Antony Penrose.

Americans continue to travel at home and abroad in record numbers and for those who would like to read about what they've seen as well as for those who prefer to travel mentally, here's some travel books to browse among:

"Around the World on Hot Air & Two Wheels," (Simon & Schuster) by Malcolm Forbes; "The Imperial Way: By Rail from Peshawar to Chittagong," (Houghton Mifflin) by Paul Theroux; "An Egyptian Journal," (Faber & Faber) by William Golding; "Footsteps: Adventures of a Romantic Biographer," (Viking) by Richard Holmes;

"David Gentleman's London," (Dodd, Mead); "The Last Atlantic Liners," (St. Martin's) by William A. Miller; "Tibet," (Thames & Hudson) by Kevin Kling; "The Soul of Indonesia," (Louisiana State Univ. Press) by Umar Kayam; "Pedaling the Ends of the Earth," (Simon & Schuster) by David Duncan;

"English Country Churches," by Derry Brabbs, and "So Far From God: A Journey to Central America," by Patrick Marnham (both from Viking); "The Greek World," (Thomas & Hudson) edited by Robert Browning; "India," (Morrow) by Sasthi Brata; "River Journeys," (Hippocrene) by Russell Braddon et al; "Irish Traditions," (Abrams) by Kathleen Jo Ryan and Bernard Share; "Scottish Symphony," (Little, Brown) by Michael Ruetz; "Railway Country: Across Canada by Train," (Norton) by Dudley Whitney and Brian Johnson, and "Liners to the Sun," (Macmillan) by John Maxtone-Graham.

Readers more interested in people than in places have a generous assortment of biographies, autobiographies, memoirs and reminiscences to select from. Among them:

"Colette: A Passion for Life," by Genevieve Dorman, and "Olivier: The Complete Career," by Robert Tanitch (both from Abbeville); "Lord Alfred Douglas," (Dodd, Mead) by H.M. Hyde; "Robert Capa," (Knopf) by Richard Whelan; "Orson Welles," (St. Martin's) by Charles Higham; "Martin Luther King, Jr.," by William Witherspoon, "Fonda: Her Life in Pictures," by James Spada, and "Helen Hayes," by Kenneth Barrow (all from Doubleday);

"Hemingway," (Harper & Row) by Jeffrey Meyers; "Agee," (Holt, Rinehart & Winston) by Ross Spears and Jude Cassidy; "FDR," by Ted Morgan, and "Living With the Kennedys: The Joan Kennedy Story," by Marcia Chellis (both from Simon & Schuster); "Robert Fulton," (Watts) by Cynthia O. Philip; and "Orson Welles," by Barbara Leaming, and "The House of Mitford," by Jonathan Guinness (both from Viking).

Others include: "The Roman Emperors," (Scribner's) by Michael Grant; "Strindberg," (Random House) by Michael Mayer; "Yeager," (Bantam) by Chuck Yeager and Leo Janos; "The Envoy From Mirror City," (Braziller) by Janet Frame, and "England, First & Last," (Viking) by Anthony Bailey.

Readers whose taste runs to history, social history, and Americana might enjoy a dip into:

Search carried into drug area

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Troops pushed further into the jungled mountains of Veracruz state Wednesday searching for the marijuana traffickers, some already identified, who killed 22 members of a police anti-drug squad, authorities said.

Fifteen peasant farmers were being held for questioning by the army, which has taken charge of the search, Miguel Angel Cristiani, a spokesman for the Veracruz state government, said in a telephone interview.

Investigators have identified some of the estimated 60 to 80 attackers who a survivor said ambushed the drug squad early last Friday at a marijuana plantation, said army Gen. Jaime Jimenez Munoz, commander of the 29th military zone in Veracruz.

Jimenez Munoz refused to identify the known suspects on grounds it could obstruct the investigation. He said none of the farm workers had admitted a role in the killings.

The death toll, revised several times since the weekend as bodies were found, rose to 24 with the discovery of the bodies of two people who lived in the area and died in the gun battle.

About 500 troops were working on the case, supported by the Federal Judicial Police officers brought in from anti-narcotics operations around the country, Cristiani said.

Helicopters carried soldiers and police to settlements successively deeper into the mountains of Veracruz and adjacent Oaxaca, Cristiani said. As in other major Mexican drug-producing territories, the marijuana and poppy plantations in the region are accessible only by helicopter, mule or river launch.

Other troops conducted roadblocks in the city of Minatitlan on the Gulf of Mexico coast, about 90 minutes by river launch from the shooting site. Police and soldiers also continued surrounding the village of Hidalgotitlan, the nearest settlement to where the killings occurred, Cristiani said.

The federal Attorney General's Office turned the investigation over to the army because its weaponry was a better match for the well-armed drug traffickers, a spokesman said.

Three of the men in custody are suspected of directing the anti-narcotics team to a settlement called Sanchez Taboada, saying they would find a large cache of marijuana there, according to the Attorney General's Office.

The head of Interpol in Mexico, Cmdr. Florentino Ventura, has said that about 80 drug traffickers armed with high-powered rifles awaited the police at the site. The police ran out of bullets after a three-hour gunfight and were forced to kneel before they were shot, Ventura said.

In a slightly different version, Jimenez Munoz said the agents were attacked at a site where they had gone to rest and to buy cookies and soda.

Authorities continued questioning two local men who were working with the police team to find out exactly how they had escaped the killings, Jimenez Munoz said.

The victims in the narcotics squad comprised five federal and 12 state and local police officers, plus five local men on the police payroll as guides and informants, the Attorney General's Office said.

Authorities estimate that more than 10,000 tons of marijuana are grown annually in the country.

Testing needed for memory loss

DEAR DR. GOTT — During the past 18 months, I've become increasingly forgetful and have had great difficulty recalling simple everyday things. For example, in my mind, I see a refrigerator, but can't think of what it's called to tell someone else. Is this normal for my age? I'm a 37-year-old woman. I've heard of Alzheimer's disease and that these are some of the symptoms. How can I find out what the problem is?

DEAR READER — Although all of us may tend to become forgetful as we age, you describe a more accelerated form of forgetfulness. In my opinion, your difficulty is not normal. Please make arrangements to see a neurologist. In addition to a complete examination of your nervous system, I suspect you will need extensive testing to identify the cause of your poor recall so that the process can, if possible, be halted.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I was deeply interested in your column about aluminum pots. My husband's brother died at 80 with Alzheimer's disease. Our sister-in-law was a perfect wife and a cake-baker to a superlative degree. My oldest and dearest friend since first grade is now 73 and does not remember any conversation five to 10 minutes after it has taken place. She also was a prizewinning cake baker. Nearly all baking powder contains aluminum sulphate; biscuit lovers ingest two teaspoons of baking powder to each cup of flour. Pickles are made crisp by adding alum to the pickling solution. Don't you think these things should be investigated?

DEAR READER — Although some investigators have suspected that aluminum may contribute to Alzheimer's disease, the relationship has not been clearly demonstrated. Nonetheless, I am keeping an open mind, as I gather you are. Aluminum is the most prevalent mineral on earth; we use it in hundreds of ways. We eat it and drink it. The experts say it won't harm us. Still

DEAR DR. GOTT — The problem is I despise drinking milk of any kind. Also, I don't need the calories: I'm a 17-year-old female, only 5 feet four inches tall, and weigh 158. I am trying to lose weight. If I am sure to get enough protein iron and vitamin D from other sources, is it safe to stop drinking milk? How much calcium should I take?

DEAR READER — You can safely stop drinking milk. To the extent that you enjoy other milk products — such as cheese, yogurt and ice cream — you may not need to supplement your calcium intake. If you are calorie-conscious or abhor all milk products, start taking calcium pills. I suggest you take 1,500 to 2,000 mg. of calcium and 400 to 600 units of vitamin D a day. I purposely put these figures on the high side because of some recent research, which shows that bone strength and density in later years may be directly related to calcium intake during childhood and adolescence. I would like you to build strong bones for the future.

Daughter: 'rebels are brave fighters'

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The oldest daughter of President Jose Napoleon Duarte says in a tape recording made before leftist rebels released her from captivity that her opinion of her captors had changed, according to a published report.

Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran said in the tape recording obtained by the Dallas Morning News from rebels that the rebels who held her for 44 days had fought bravely.

"Now, I have lived with them, I have seen how they live, the union between them, their solidarity, and I have talked with them," Ms. Duarte said in the recording. "They fight with conviction and high morale."

Last week, Duarte said his daughter was being treated by psychologists for the Stockholm syndrome, in which kidnapping victims become sympathetic with the views of their captors.

In the recording, Ms. Duarte said that "my idea of the people in the Farabundo Marti Front, or in any of the leftist fronts, is completely different."

A close family friend told the newspaper that the voice on the cassette, reportedly taped by the rebels just before Ms. Duarte's release, was that of the kidnapped daughter.

Duarte told reporters in Washington last week that his 35-year-old daughter had been affected mentally.

The guerrillas "tried to destroy the bond between her and myself, but they did not achieve this," said Duarte. He said his daughter was "returning to normality little by little."

A government spokesman on Wednesday was read a transcript of the tape and did not dispute that the statements were Ms. Duarte's.

Two fewer doors will be tested on Boeings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration, despite assertions by flight attendants, Congress and safety groups that the Boeing 747 needs all its emergency exits, says it will go ahead with a test to see if people can be evacuated promptly with two fewer doors.

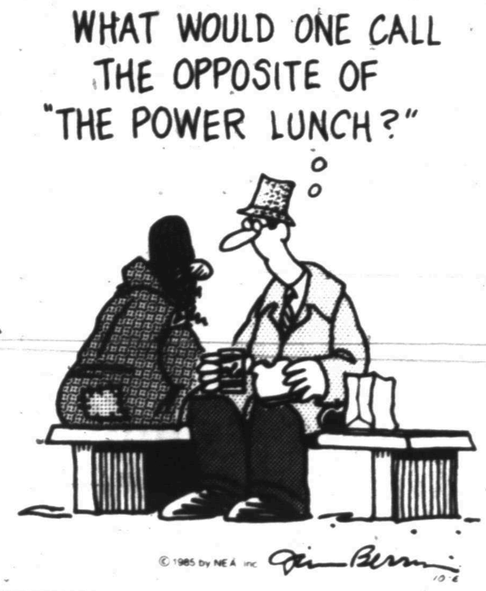

FAA Administrator Donald Engen said Wednesday that the test, which will be conducted at the Boeing plant in Seattle later this year, "will assess the validity" of Boeing's claim that eight emergency doors, instead of 10, meet government evacuation standards.

The jumbo jets have had 10 doors since the planes were introduced in the early 1970s. But Boeing has argued that the federal requirement is two doors for every 110 passengers. Since the planes carry no more than 440 seats, it need only have eight doors, Boeing says.

The FAA, in a decision that was little noticed at the time, agreed with Boeing last year. A number of foreign airlines, including British Airways, which will provide the test plane, already have sealed off the two doors directly over the wings.

No U.S. airline has done so, largely because Engen earlier this year urged airline chief executives not to eliminate any of the doors in order to provide maximum safety. Engen made his plea after coming under intense criticism during congressional hearings on the door decision, which originally was approved by the FAA's Seattle office without clearance from Washington.

Berry's World

Movie to be shot in Colorado City

COLORADO CITY--Colorado City becomes "Crowder City," the name of a fictional city in a movie to be filmed here for the next four weeks.

Lazy E. Productions of Santa Fe, N. M. will be producing the film with Pat Poole as director and Ed Gaylord as executive director.

The film entitled "Shadows on the Wall" will star Gary Morrison, who most recently starred in "Vice Squad" and Wilford Brimley who has a long list of credits including "Country" with Jessica Lange and "The Natural" with Robert Redford.

Written, directed and produced by Poole, the film is described as an Alfred Hitchcock style mystery about a famous western star and a murder he may or may not have committed.

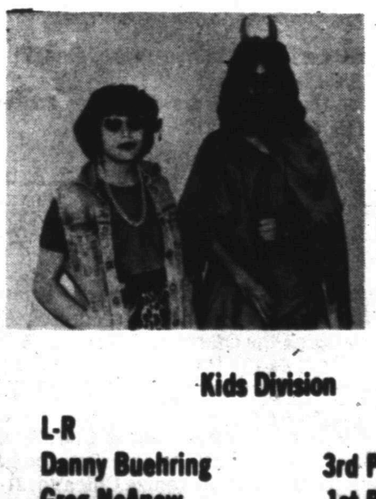

The non-union film with a fairly low budget of $2.5 million should be ready to release by late spring or early to mid-summer.

Some 30 to 40 bands of wild horses live on Sable Island off the coast of Nova Scotia, reports National Geographic World. Researchers believe horses were taken to the island in colonial times and left there to ensure that shipwrecked sailors would have meat to eat.

Playing for victories...

Ragin' Tigers sight in Monahans Loboes

With three district losses, the Ragin' Tigers are delegated to staying home for the playoffs, but Coach Dennis Tomlin says his team still has something to play for Friday against Monahans.

"We have a fine group of guys. Anytime they take the field they are going to play to win. Sure, there's more emphasis on it if you are playing to reach the playoffs, but we have two games left and we're playing for those victories," Tomlin said.

Snyder is 2-3 in district play, 4-4 for the season. The Tigers go into Friday's 8 p.m. game following a disappointing 7-0 loss to San Angelo Lake View. Monahans is 3-1-1 in loop competition, and comes in off of an equally upsetting 18-18 tie with Andrews.

Tomlin chose to focus on the positive aspects of last Friday's loss to Lake View.

"I was real pleased with the way we got after it," said the coach. "We dominated the offensive and defensive lines of scrimmage. We played well on offense and we played good defense. We just didn't get it in the end zone when we needed to. That's going to come. We're still learning how to win football games."

Snyder got inside the Chief 15-yard line three times but came up scoreless.

"We get down there and we make a mistake here or a mistake there and all it takes is one," said Tomlin. "But like I said, we're going to get better. We'll overcome it. I know we will."

Friday's opponent isn't as big and strong as the 1984 Lobo team, but they are quicker, both offensively and defensively and "they have more speed in the backfield," Tomlin said.

For Snyder to come out on top, the Tigers "will have to stop the big play. Their backs, Charles Thomas and Dana Amos, have the ability to break one at any time. It's a lot like playing a team like Lubbock Estacado. If they get loose down the sideline it's a footrace and they've been winning those footraces most of the time."

Amos, a 5-9, 180 junior, leads the district in rushing with 1,116 yards and 11 touchdowns. Runningmate Thompson, a 5-8, 140 sophomore, is the district's sixth leading runner with 601 yards and seven scores.

The Loboes are averaging 266.2 yards of offense a game, with 232.5 of that coming on the ground. The Loboes have passed for a league low 270 yards this season.

Snyder is similar in its offensive attack. The Tigers are averaging 232 yards an outing of which 195.3 is on the ground. The Tigers have thrown for only 293 yards and 96 of those were to runningback Justin Webb.

Webb leads the Tigers in rushing with 888 yards and 10 TDs - third in the district. Toby Ubando has 308 yards.

Snyder could be without runner Jeff Rose, who has been suffering from asthma attack and the flu. Rose has 189 yards going into Friday's game.

In keeping with the theme as run-oriented teams, neither Snyder or Monahans has a receiver in the top 10 in the district in terms of catches or total yardage.

Quarterbacks are Snyder's Mike McWilliams (15-39-1, 250 yards) and Monahans' Damon Tipping (24-61-4, 270 yards).

"Defensively, they have been real steady," Tomlin said. "They play a good, sound defensive game. They bend, but they don't break. Their defensive 2-techniques, or guards, and their linebackers are as good as any in the district. It will be a real challenge to our offensive line."

The 2-techniques are Ector Garcia, a 5-11, 225 senior, and David Salazar, a 5-7, 188 senior. Linebackers are 173-pound junior Patrick Willis, 185-senior Joe Vela and 155-senior Randy Vargas.

Monahans is the third-rated defensive team in the district behind Sweetwater (149.6) and Pecos (184.8). The Loboes are giving up only 192 yards an outing.

Snyder is allowing 244.5, sixth among the eight-team district.

Also doubtful for Snyder is lineman Steven Mack, out presently with an illness.

The Tigers will be without Juan Benitez, who quit the team earlier this week for personal reasons. Benitez will be replaced in the lineup by Mark Thompson.

Cat gridders play tonight

The junior varsity squad will play in Monahans while the freshmen vie in Ballinger.

Both games are scheduled for 7 p.m. starts.

2-4A grid roundup

District 2-4A football moves into its next to the last week with Sweetwater looking to clinch a playoff spot and Monahans and Lake View hoping to edge closer to one.

Sweetwater, 5-0 in loop play, treks to Pecos. The Eagles, 3-2, are still mathmatically in the race.

San Angelo Lake View is in the best position to take runnerup honors, but that could fade quickly. The Chiefs play at Andrews this week and finish up with Monahans next week. Lake View is 4-1 while Andrews is 2-2-1.

Snyder, out of the running for a playoff spot, could play the spoiler's role when the Tigers entertain Monahans this Friday. Snyder is 2-3 and Monahans 3-1-1.

Should Lake View defeat Andrews and Snyder knock off Monahans, the Chiefs could wrap up a playoff berth this week.

In the only other 2-4A game going down this weekend, Lamesa and Fort Stockton fight to stay out of the cellar. Both are 0-5.

Column eater? Pokes to fall

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Some folks don't get any respect. Take the Baylor Bears, for instance, who have knocked off such notables as USC, SMU and A&M.

The Bears are still out of the nation's top 10, and it looks like it will take a win over Arkansas this weekend to move them up.

Even then, the Bears may just make it.

Congratulations go out to Mitch Lee and the Ira Bulldogs for their zone championship victory last weekend. The 'Dogs are playoff bound, though they'll have to wait until Friday night to find out their opponent. Meanwhile, they'll match up against Hermleigh in a junior varsity contest.

Coach Dennis Tomlin believes his Ragin' Tigers will upset Monahans this Friday night and honestly, I think they've got a good shot at it. There comes a time when you have to refuse to compromise your principals, however, and this will be one of them for me. I'm going to pick the Loboes by 6 points.

I'm not going through the explanations about how this doesn't mean I want the Tigers to lose or about how I'm supposed to be an impartial observer. I will hesitantly remind everyone that, as in the past, if I pick the Tigers to lose and they win, I'll eat this column during one of the workouts the following week.

I hit bottom last week in guessing only 18 right in 30 tries. For the season, the figures are 182-88 for .674. And now, on with the picks...

Monahans at Snyder: Andrews took advantage of a fretful Lobo last week but that's not likely to happen two times in a row. A column-muncher if I'm wrong...LOBOES 13, RAGIN' TIGERS 7.

Sweetwater at Pecos: The Mustangs clinch a tie for the district championship, no less...SWEETWATER 40, PECOS 7.

Fort Stockton at Lamesa: The Panthers have one of the better defenses in the district, but no offense. The Tors, on the other hand, have Williams...LAMESA 7, FORT STOCKTON 3.

Lake View at Andrews: Who knows? The Chiefs are still battling for a playoff spot, so...LAKE VIEW 14, ANDREWS 7.

Grady at Borden County: Be a tough ballgame, but I'll have to go with the Wildcats and their high-scoring offense...GRADY 55, BORDEN COUNTY 45.

Arkansas at Baylor: Apparently, the Bears will have to beat the Razorbacks if they ever hope to crack the nation's top 10. So be it...BAYLOR 20, ARKANSAS 17.

Texas at Houston: A little atonement here...LONGHORNS 35, COUGARS 14.

Rice at SMU: Rice cereal certainly tastes more pleasin' than Aggie-burgers...MUSTANGS 45, OWLS 17.

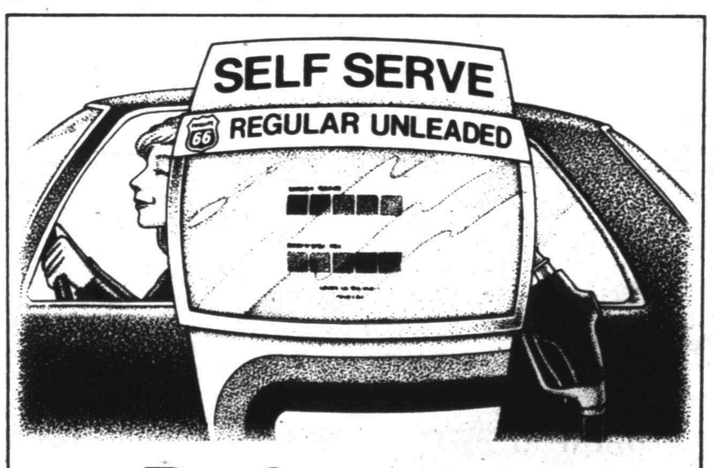

TCU at Texas Tech: Maybe the Red Raiders will play football in the first half for a change...TECH 24, TCU 21.

More collegians...

Pick 'em this way - Florida 31, Georgia 24; Air Force 23, Army 21; Iowa 24, Illinois 19; Alabama 17, LSU 14; Michigan 20, Purdue 15; UCLA 23, Arizona 17; BYU 40, Utah State 13; Oklahoma 41, Missouri 20.

The pros...

From the top of the conference to the middle, that's where the Dallas Cowboys will be after visiting the nation's capitol. Call it Washington 24, Dallas 21. Also, pick the Oilers to buffalo the Bills, 21-20; Minnesota to glut Green Bay, 24-18; Philadelphia to abbreviate Atlanta, 23-7; New England to ire Indianapolis, 19-17; the Raiders to salt San Diego, 21-19; the Jets to mop up Miami, 31-14; Cleveland to belittle the Bengals, 21-7; Pittsburth to chaf Kansas City, 31-17; St. Louis to tamalify Tampa Bay, 21-18; Seattle to sacrifice the Saints, 23-15; and wonder of wonders, Detroit to chickenize Chicago, 21-20.

Bulldogs coasting on along; Cats hoping for playoff spot

Ira has the championship sacked up but there is still the runnerup spot to be had as South Zone teams in District 4-1A enter the final week.

Grady's Wildcats lead the hunt for the all-important second playoff berth. The 'Cats, 3-1, can win it with a victory over Borden County's Coyotes in Gail. Borden is 1-3 and would like to finish the season on a winning note.

Hopefuls Highland and McCaulley square off in the zone's other game. Both with 2-2 records, each is hoping the Coyotes can shut down Grady's high-scoring offense and thus let them back in the playoff door.

Ira concluded its varsity schedule last week, although it won't be until Friday night that the Bulldogs magically advance to 5-0 in zone play. That's when the 'Dogs lineup against Hermleigh in a junior varsity tilt. Hermleigh has forfeited all of its varsity games.

As zone champion, Ira will be matched up against the North Zone runnerup - presumably Weinert or Rule - when the playoffs begin. Defending state champion Jayton has already clinched a North Zone playoff spot and can take the title outright with a win over Rule this Friday. If so, Jayton would play the South Zone runnerup in the playoffs.

Bass Club meets Thursday week

Snyder Bass Club will hold its final meeting of 1985 at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 14, in the Towle Park Barn.

A report released Wednesday which said the meeting would be this Thursday, tonight, was incorrect.

Yearly winners will be recognized and officers will be elected for the upcoming year.

A swap meet will also be held.

Any member, former member, or anyone interested in bass fishing is urged to attend.

Star player gets another chance

MERTZON, Texas (AP) - Jason Burleson, who left Hamilton High when his father resigned as head coach because other players created a ruckus over the son's predominant role in the offense, has found a new place to play ball.

The 6-foot-6, 230-pound sophomore, regarded by many as a potential superstar in several sports, became eligible Wednesday to join the varsity of undefeated and playoff-bound Irion County.

Burleson ran for six touchdowns, passed for nine touchdowns, and caught one touchdown pass at Hamilton High School earlier this year before his father - the head football coach - resigned and withdrew him from school because of the problems with the players.

At Hamilton, Coach Hershel Burleson had his son at quarterback until the team got inside the 20, then moved him to running back.

University Interscholastic League rules are designed to prohibit a high school recruiting another school's players, and few athletes have been able to star for two Texas high school schools in the same sport in the same season.

But the District 8-1A executive committee, by unanimous vote last week, cleared Burleson for eligibility after receiving forms from officials of both Irion County and Hamilton stating he was not recruited and did not move for athletic purposes.

If those two provisions are met, UIL regulations allow transfer students eligibility after 30 days of residence. That was Wednesday for Burleson. He called the wait "the longest 30 days of my life."

Burleson was the national decathlon champion in the 15-16 age group at the Athletic Congress last summer in New York. He averaged 40 points a track meet during his freshman year; he has high jumped 6-5½, thrown the shot 53-8, and hurled the discus and 166 feet.

He also has bench-pressed 300 pounds, played center and averaged 27.5 points in basketball last year as a freshman and advanced to the regional semifinals in tennis, where he lost to the eventual state champion.

Irion County, 8-0-1, tries to wrap up the zone championship Friday night at Steling City, but is assured of a berth in the postseason playoffs regardless.

Irion County's head coach, Sid McCown, said he has "two or three plans" about how to use Burleson.

"He'll probably play quarterback some, running back some, and tight end some," McCown said.

Quarterback Allen Brest and running back Jason Honea have sparked the Irion County attack so far this season, he said.

"But Allen is also a tight end, so that's a way we can switch them out," McCown said.

While waiting to become eligible, Burleson has played "two or three games" with the junior varsity, McCown said.

"He played with 104-degree fever in one game - that's how bad he wanted to play," McCown said. "He got hurt in the last one. Nothing major, just enough to keep him out the second half."

The district executive committee also cleared another transfer from Hamilton, freshman Kane Harris, for eligibility at Irion County. Since he enrolled later, "it'll be two more weeks before he can join us," McCown said.

Like Burleson, Harris is regarded as a front-line basketball and track athlete. Harris has run the mile in about 4½ minutes and was considered the probable starting point guard for Hamilton's basketball team this winter.

Harris was enrolled at Midland Greenwood when Hershel Burleson coached there. When Burleson was hired as a coach at Hamilton, Harris followed. And when the dissension broke out at Hamilton, triggering the Burleson family's move to Irion County, Harris moved again.

Hamilton won three of its first four games with Burleson on the team. Since the coach-son combination left, Hamilton has lost four of five to fall to 4-5 for the year.

Deer season opens Saturday; harvest expected to be good

AUSTIN (AP) - A Texas Parks and Wildlife Department expert says the earlier opening of the white-tailed deer season this year may be good news for hunters.

The season is scheduled to open Saturday.

Horace Gore, white-tailed deer program leader for the department, said Wednesday he expects a good harvest this year, with about 250,000 bucks and at least 100,000 antlerless deer taken.

The season opening was changed this year to the second Saturday in November rather than the Saturday nearest Nov. 15.

The change, which is expected to remain in effect in succeeding years, will result in a 58-day hunting season in some years in addition to moving the opening day up a full week.

Gore said reports indicate that "the deer are rutting in the Edwards Plateau region and other areas of the state except for South Texas.

"The early start may mean that hunters will see more bucks on the opening weekend than they did last year, because rutting activity will keep them moving," Gore said.

Gore said the rut usually begins in mid-October across most of the state and normally is over about mid-November.

"The season is starting only a week earlier this year, but it could well be enough to catch the last part of the rutting period," he said.

Gore said hunters this year will notice an additional antlerless deer tag on their hunting licenses.

"This means they can take an extra antlerless deer, provided they are hunting on land where the landowner has been issued sufficient antlerless permits," he said.

Another possible plus for first-week hunters is the moon, which is moving into the dark phase in the first week of the season. Many hunters believe this causes deer to feed more during daylight hours, Gore said.

There are some potential drawbacks to the earlier start, however. Gore said the warmer, windy weather could curtail deer movement during the day.

Cox named AL manager

NEW YORK (AP) - Bobby Cox finally got one more victory as manager of the Toronto Blue Jays. Unfortunately, it wasn't the victory he needed.

Cox, who guided the Blue Jays this season to their first-ever American League East championship and within one game of the World Series, was named the American League Manager of the Year on Wednesday by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The award came two weeks after Cox left his position with Toronto and became general manager of the Atlanta Braves. Cox received 16 first-place ballots and 104 points from a 28-voter panel composed of two writers from each of the league's 14 franchise cities.

Dick Howser of the Kansas City Royals, whose team defeated the Blue Jays in the AL playoffs and then beat St. Louis for the World Series championship, finished second with four firsts and a total of 66 points. Gene Mauch of California was third with eight firsts and 57 points.

The Blue Jays won 99 games during the regular season and they finished two games ahead of the New York Yankees to win the AL East. Toronto took a three games-to-one lead over Kansas City in the playoffs, but the Royals rallied to win the final three games and advanced to the World Series.

TEXAS INDEPENDENT GINNERS ASSOCIATION EST 1962

INDEPENDENT

The restless, independent spirit that settled the west is still a vital force in Texas. Independent thinkers, people who are willing to take the risk of making their own decisions instead of following the crowd have been a basic ingredient in the history of Texas.

Since 1822 when the first Texas cotton gin was built, independent thinking cotton ginners have brought innovations and improvements that have produced major cost savings for all cotton farmers. TEXAS INDEPENDENT COTTON GINNERS are proud to be a part of the independent thinkers that have made the state of Texas great.

Competitive ginning prices and services. Telcot quotes and marketing available if you so choose. Outside buyers with top cotton prices.

Flood cleanup begins

by The Associated Press

Floodwaters that killed at least 36 people and left 44 missing laid siege today to the sandbagged riverbottoms of Richmond, Va., and Washington, D.C., while shocked survivors upstream faced ruined homes and businesses, fouled drinking water and the threat of water-borne disease.

In Virginia, where officials listed 19 deaths and 4 people missing, the James River crept up the cobbled streets of riverfront Richmond, toward a crest today about 23 feet above flood stage — the worst flood since the 27½-foot surge caused by Hurricane Agnes in 1972.

Four days of rain in the nation's mid-Atlantic region unleased the floods, inflicting hundreds of millions of dollars in property damage and forcing thousands of evacuations.

"If we make it, we win. If we don't make it, we lose our butts," said George Peck, co-owner of the Farmer's Market Inn restaurant in historic Shockoe Bottom, a commercial district of Civil War-era tobacco warehouses, trendy shops and galleries.

"They say it'll rise 10 more feet," he said. "Ten more feet and I lose everything."

In the nation's capital, officials closed the Washington, Lincoln, and Jefferson monuments to keep tourists away from Potomac River flooding.

"The memorials are not in any danger," National Park Service spokeswoman Sandra Alley said Wednesday. "We'd be in real trouble if water reached the top of the Washington Monument."

The National Weather Service predicted the Potomac would crest about 6 or 7 feet above flood stage between noon and 2 p.m. today in the Washington area. The parkland surrounding the monuments is on the river.

National Park Service spokesman Earl Kittleman said the 184-mile C&O Canal, stretching from Great Falls, Md., to Washington, closed Tuesday for the first time in its 157-year history in anticipation of the flood.

Kittleman said Great Falls Park on both the Maryland and Virginia sides of the Potomac were closed and the Great Falls Tavern was sandbagged.

West Virginians wandered through towns in disbelief, surveying wreckage caused by floodwaters that left at least 16 dead and 40 missing and washed away entire communities. One person died in Maryland.

"They're just completely numb. Some people are walking around like zombies. They don't even talk," said Linda Phillips, a volunteer at a shelter at Rowlesburg.

Alien lottery winner arrested

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — An illegal alien from Mexico who won $2 million in the California Lottery has been arrested by immigration officials who said he had "bragged" about sneaking into the country, putting them in an embarassing position.

Arthur Shanks, deputy director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in San Francisco, said Wednesday, "It would look real bad to the taxpayers" if Jose Caballero, 24, had not been arrested right away.

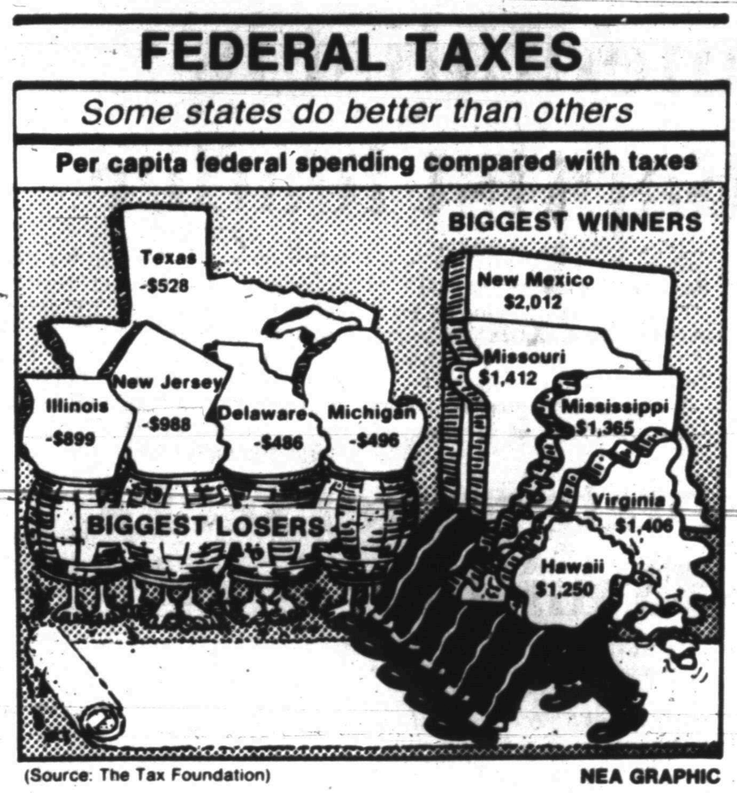

"He's bragged about his ability to enter the United States illegally," said Shanks. He said Caballero normally would have been asked to come to the INS office with his attorney to discuss his immigration status.

David Still, acting officer in charge of the San Jose INS office, said Caballero was taken to the INS office Wednesday morning and was interviewed for several hours with his attorney present.

"He moved up in our priority system, possibly because of all the notoriety," said Still. "The word came that we should go out and interview him right away."

Shanks said Caballero was given a choice of immediate voluntary departure at his own cost or a hearing with a judge to determine whether he will be deported and that Caballero opted for the hearing.

Caballero posted $5,000 bond and was freed until the hearing, Still said. Caballero, who had not yet received his lottery check, borrowed the bond money from relatives, said his attorney, William F. Stahl.

Not every part of America benefits equally from what it pays Uncle Sam. New Jerseyans, for example, paid almost $1,000 more per capita in federal taxes last year than they got back in U.S. funding in their state. On the other side of the coin, New Mexicans each got back $2,000 more than they paid.

Stenholm defends Demos' deficit reduction proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Stenholm today defended the Democratic House version of a deficit-reduction bill but told the conservative U.S. Chamber of Commerce that raising taxes is inevitable.

"A lot of people say we can't raise taxes," Stenholm said. "Folks, I challenge anybody to look at the problem facing (us with) this deficit and show me how we're going to get there without raising some additional revenue."

Stenholm, a conservative Democrat who represents a rural West Texas district, praised the prime sponsor of the Senate version, Texas Republican Phil Gramm, but complained about Gramm's criticism of Democrats in the House for exempting an additional $10 billion in aid to veterans and poor people.

The bipartisan Senate bill exempted Social Security, about $250 billion, Stenholm said.

Gramm was once a fellow "Boll Weevil" Democrat with Stenholm in the House where Gramm sponsored 1981 budget-reduction legislation.

Gramm has "once again ... managed to force Congress to do something that the majority really did not want to do," Stenholm said.

"But it's going to have to be done with bipartisan cooperation from both sides of the aisle," he said. "And stop some of the silly rhetoric about blaming Charlie Stenholm for being irresponsible, as Phil Gramm is doing when he talks about the Democrats and their phony bill. He's talking about me."

"We allow people to take credit for what they've done," said Gramm's press secretary, Larry Neal.

The deficit reduction legislation is currently before a conference committee. Both the House and Senate versions aim to balance the budget by the end of the decade.

In an unusual split for the Texas delegation, the vote last Friday on the House measure was straight down party lines. There usually are a couple of conservative Democrats among the group who vote with the Republicans.

"We believe that we should do more and do it quicker," Stenholm said. "And we do not agree with those who say that guts the bill. How in the world can people who say the deficit is important at the same time say we can't cut that quick and that far and that fast."

Was CIA taken in by Soviet hoax?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA, whose Soviet prize became an espionage disaster, has exposed itself to criticism within the intelligence community for what some contend is a record of poor handling of defectors.

Prompted by the return to the Soviet Union of Vitaly Yurchenko, who had been billed as a key KGB defector, former U.S. intelligence officials and other experts said Wednesday the CIA has failed to meet the defectors' psychological problems of adjustment and misread their states of mind.

"They have a tendency to botch these things and not to know what's going on in these guys' heads," said one intelligence community insider knowledgable about the way the CIA handles defectors, and who spoke only on condition he not be identified.

Another, former CIA official Donald Jameson, said the problems include a failure to recognize or successfully act upon common signs of depression, and even to have interrogators who speak fluent Russian.

"The kind of bond and rapport that should have been built between Yurchenko and somebody wasn't made," Jameson said of the Soviet's three-month long interrogation.

"Maybe the root problem in the whole case is the people handling him saw it as a question of paper-shuffling rather than dealing with human beings," he said.

Intelligence experts are divided over whether Yurchenko was part of a KGB trap or was a real defector who bolted after becoming remorseful, perhaps disappointed that a former girlfriend in Canada wouldn't join him.

The intelligence source critical of Yurchenko's handling said part of the problem is institutional and has been repeated in earlier cases. Two CIA groups deal with any defector, the debriefers and those in charge of helping with resettlement and adjustment to American life, this official said.

Those in this second group, he said, may not be happy with the assignment. "You didn't join the organization to babysit a cranky KGB colonel," he said.

Intelligence experts pointed out, however, that interrogations are never easy, and that while one aim is to make a defector comfortable and cooperative, that is set against an imperative need to determine if the person is genuine.

"The primary function is to establish the bona fides," said John K. Greaney, a former CIA official, "that they are real and not sent to disrupt the whole system."

Miller will be tried again for espionage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Government prosecutors say Richard W. Miller, the only FBI agent ever accused of spying, will be retried as quickly as possible after a mistrial declared when jurors deadlocked with most favoring conviction.

After 71 hours of deliberations, the jury reported to U.S. District Judge David Kenyon on Wednesday, "We have done our best. Our decisions are based on strong convictions that cannot be resolved."

Miller, 48, who was arrested 13 months ago, showed no reaction as Kenyon halted the 14-day deliberations. The portly defendant was hustled out of the courtroom in handcuffs for the return trip to his federal prison cell.

"I fully anticipate the government will retry Mr. Miller on all seven counts of the indictment," said U.S. Attorney Robert Bonner.

Defense attorneys Joel Levine and Stanley Greenberg said a court-imposed gag order prevented them from commenting.

Kenyon, who had sent jurors back twice to renew their talks since they first reported disagreement on Friday, reluctantly gave up.

He then asked how the jurors had been divided, and the foreman, who was never identified by name, hesitantly disclosed that the jury stood 10-2 for guilt on three of the key espionage charges, including conspiracy, and 11-1 on the four other charges.

The three counts on which they stood 10-2 included two charges carrying potential life sentences.

The 20-year FBI veteran was charged with passing classified documents to the Soviet Union in exchange for promises of $65,000 in cash and gold.

The government's case focused heavily on his sexual relationship with Svetlana Ogorodnikov, a Soviet emigre who has confessed she was a spy.

Mrs. Ogorodnikov and her husband, Nikolay, co-defendants in the Miller case, pleaded guilty in the middle of their earlier trial and have been sentenced to prison.

Neither of the Ogorodnikovs testified at Miller's trial, but Wednesday's mistrial raised the possiblity the government would seek their cooperation when he is retried.

Ants continuing Texas expansion

EASTLAND, Texas (AP) — Eastland County agricultural officials say fire ants have been reported for the first time in the Big Country, with mounds spotted alongside roads and highways.

County Agriculture Extension Agent DeMarquis Gordon said the agriculture department at Texas A&M University has identified the ants, and specialists are expected Friday to assess the situation and recommend treatment.

The particularly aggressive and venomous ants have been brought into the Big Country several times, Taylor County Extension Agent Joe Wilson said Wednesday.

Officials said more than 30 mounds of the ants line a roadway and U.S. Highway 80 west of the city.

Rodriquez told police the robbers were wearing masks when they entered the store.

Police searched the north Snyder area surrounding the store for several hours Wednesday night but failed to locate any suspects.

As of 9 a.m. Thursday, Town and Country staffers had not determined how much money was missing.

Grand jury slated to probe mishaps

AUSTIN (AP) — Authorities say a Travis County grand jury soon will hear evidence about three men killed in trench caveins at Austin construction sites.

Prosecutors in the county attorney's office are in the final stages of a five-week criminal investigation into two East Austin trench accidents that killed three construction workers, County Attorney Ken Oden said.

"We've had several requests to look into the circumstances surrounding several recent construction deaths," Oden said.

"We have obtained relevant documents over the past weeks of the circumstances surrounding these construction site deaths and have conducted an investigation to see if there's a possibility of criminal liability for any of these deaths."

The grand jury will review the evidence to determine if it is sufficient to indict company officials, or their corporations, for criminal negligent homicide, authorities said.

The charge is a Class A misdemeanor punishable by a one-year jail sentence or a $2,000 fine, or both. A corporation can be fined $10,000 for each case of criminal negligent homicide.

Oden said the grand jurors will be given evidence about trench cave-ins at two sewage construction projects in East Austin being built by private firms under contract to the city of Austin.

The first cave-in, July 17 at the Govalle Wastewater Treatment Plant, killed Margarito Maldonado, 18, a Mexico citizen working at the bottom of an 8-foot trench. Federal inspectors said there were no supports inside the trench to prevent it from collapsing.

The second cave-in occurred Sept. 10 near Ed Bluestein Boulevard and killed Benjamin Eatmon, 40, of Houston and Juan Rodriguez, 32, a native of El Salvador. City officials said the men were employees of Sabine Consolidated Inc. of Beaumont, which is installing a sewer line to service the 42-acre Bluestein Park subdivision.

Five days before Eatmon and Rodriguez were killed, another worker was buried waist deep in a similar cave-in 100 feet away in the same trench. Workers were inside a 15-foot steel trench box designed to protect them from cave-ins, but dirt from the sides of the 30-foot trench poured in the top of the box, suffocating both men.

The county attorney's office is subpoenaing the records of inspections by the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration, which investigated both accidents.

In the Govalle accident, which killed Maldonado, the federal safety agency levied $8,080 in fines against Peabody Southwest Inc., a Houston-based firm that has several contracts to build improvements at city wastewater facilities.

Oden said the investigation has shown that accidents have occurred when shortcuts are taken with safety procedures.

College game is deadly fun involved in any type of organized activity such as a class or while they were in either their dorm room or the school cafeteria.

In addition, the "killing" could only take place on the campus of WTC.

Players have only one potential victim at a time. "You can only legally kill someone you have a contract on," Baird noted.

If players manage to "kill" their contract, they then take the victim's contract as their next target.

If the assassin attempts a kill but misses, his intended victim may in turn shoot him, called a "defensive hit." At this point, game play stops.

The potential assassin is not out of the game, but they may not resume stalking their intended victim for a minimum of 10 minutes — this time without the advantage of anonymity.

Every time a victim is killed, this person's "contract" must be turned in at the student activities office "dead file." In this way, the game's active and inactive players are monitored.

"We began at 8 a.m. Wednesday," Baird said, "and we had our first victim at 8:02."

Regarding the game, Baird noted "It has brought a lot of students together. You can't just kill someone without introducing yourself."

She noted the game hasn't been limited to students with several faculty members participating also. As of Wednesday afternoon, only Dan Dever, registrar, and Jerry Baird, head of continuing education, had managed to survive, however.

Dumpster fire said deliberate

A trash dumpster fire reported here Wednesday was later characterized as an arson incident.

Police and units of the Snyder Fire Department responded to the fire call in the 1800 Block of 39th St. at 4:20 p.m.

After firemen extinguished the blaze in the city-owned trash dumpster, officers contacted two male juveniles believed to have started the fire.

Both suspects were released later to the custody of their parents.

School reports machine damage

Police are investigating a misdemeanor criminal mischief report filed early Wednesday morning by East Elementary Principal Bob Travis.

Travis told officers that he had discovered a glass cover on a copying machine broken when he reported for work.

The glass is thought to have been broken sometime between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 5:45 a.m. Wednesday.

In other action, police jailed three suspects on misdemeanor charges Wednesday evening.

One man was jailed on warrants issued for failure to pay fines for public intoxication and additionally charged with driving without a license and failure to provide liability insurance.

Two other subjects were jailed for public intoxication.

Another defector asking asylum from Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Romanian merchant sailor who left his ship in Jacksonville, Fla., and asked for asylum was being held in protective custody today by U.S. authorities sensitive to criticism of their handling of three other cases.

The seaman, who apparently contacted U.S. officials without fanfare, was questioned in the Romanian language Wednesday evening by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Patrick Korten, a Justice Department spokesman.

Government officials who asked that their names not be used identified the man as Stefan Vranea and said he was questioned to determine if he met the criteria for asylum: a true desire to stay and a reason to believe he would be persecuted if he went home.

A Romanian-owned ship, the Balder Strand, was docked in the St. Johns River north of Jacksonville.

The State Department, eager to dispel the notion the Romanian's appearance was a novel event, issued a statement that "you should be aware that approximately 15,000 to 20,000 individuals seek asylum in the United States each year; hundreds of these cases involve seaman who have jumped ship."

Yet the case attracted attention, coming after a dizzying series of developments involving Soviets in Washington, New Orleans and Kabul, Afghanistan, who at first appeared to be defectors and then decided to go home again.

The incidents have been used by the Soviets to tweak a U.S. government that prides itself on being the refuge of the oppressed from communist lands.

On Wednesday alone:

—A grinning Vitaly Yurchenko, the KGB spymaster who decided to return to the Soviet Union after three months in the hands of the CIA, boarded an Ilyushin 62 jet in Washington and flew back to Moscow. He headed to an uncertain future and left behind theories on whether he was a genuine defector with a change of heart or a KGB plant.

—President Reagan joined in the theorizing about all three cases, musing at a news conference, "Either they honestly did feel they wanted to defect and then changed their minds or the possibility is there that this could have been a deliberate ploy."

Area students earning honors

For a number of years, Duke University has been the southern headquarters in the search for gifted and talented seventh grade students. A student ranking in the 97th percentile on any standardized achievement test in either math or reading is eligible.

Area students to qualify for this honor include April Blair and Andrea Smith of Hermleigh and Amy Schultz of Ira.

These students may take the SAT in December or January. If they score well, they will be recognized in the spring at ceremonies in Austin; if they do extremely well, they will be honored at Duke University.

Area students' honors given

Each year the Permian Honor Scholarship Foundation makes scholarships available to many students who graduate in the top quarter of their classes. Those eligible from this area are Patricia Romero of Hermleigh and Ellen Crane, Steven Denson and Dirk Dunn, all of Ira.

Romero, Crane, and Denson have also been recognized by "Who's Who Among High School Students" for their academic excellence.

Romero, Crane, Denson and Dunn are also eligible for scholarships awarded each year by the American Society for Distriguished High School students.

Visitors returning to Texas

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Thousands of retired people from northern states, known in the Rio Grande Valley as Winter Texans, have started their migration to South Texas in record numbers this year, tourist officials said.

"They're starting to come down here a lot sooner than last year," said Sam Martinez, director of the Texas Tourist Bureau. "I think we will be 5 to 7 percent over what we were last year."

He said about 300,000 people, from states like Missouri, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, Illinois and other northern states, will make South Texas their home for about five to six months.

The annual migration also pumps in about $300 million to the depressed area's economy, said Chuck Giles, executive vice president of the Rio Grande Valley Chamber of Commerce.

"They're probably coming a lot sooner because of the cold weather they've had up there," Giles said.

Most of the Winter Texans drive a recreational vehicle or tow a small mobile home to the area. Signs like, 'Welcome Home, Winter Texans," greet them.

They spend from October to April in the area, where the temperature usually is in the 70s and 80s during those months.

Marintez said most of them opt for South Texas, instead of Florida, because of high prices and overcrowded conditions in southern florida.

Vets near end of journey

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Vietnam veterans reached the end of their 300-mile trek across Texas bringing with them blistered feet and nagging colds.

But the three-week journey from Dallas to San Antonio also rekindled spirits among the group.

Dubbed "The Last Patrol," the 20 veterans' march to San Antonio was highlighted last week when they were joined by retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland.

Led by singer-songwriter veterans Tim Holiday of Hawkins and Michael J. Martin of Dallas, the group was scheduled to leave the VFW post this morning for a march to the Alamo, where they plan a continuous vigil until Veterans Day on Monday.

"We see a lot of parallels between the men at the Alamo and ourselves," Martin told the San Antonio Light.

"We'd like to see a memorial (for Vietnam veterans) built near the Alamo," he said. "That's part of the reason we came here."

The marchers also intend to gather signatures on petitions seeking accountability from Hanoi for Americans missing in action and focus attention on physical and emotional problems plaguing Vietnam veterans and their families.

During the journey, the marchers met other veterans who said they were embarrassed to admit they served the United States in Vietnam.

Fundamentalist is Texas Baptist leader

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The controversy in the Southern Baptist Convention over biblical inerrancy has created an atmosphere of suspicion and a tendency to paint labels on members, the new president of the Baptist General Convention of Texas says.

Paul Powell, a Tyler pastor elected Wednesday to head the 2.3 million-member Texas denomination, said he believes the Bible is "inspired, it is infallible, it is inerrant."

"A lot of people get hung up on words — playing silly word games," he said at a news conference shortly after he was elected.

"People wonder who's side are they on? We ought to all be on the Lord's side," said the 51-year-old pastor of Green Acres Baptist Church in Tyler.

Powell said the controversy has had some positive fallout.

"It has made us take a good look at ourselves and be more cautious," he said.

Powell said he does not believe in ordination of women in his own church, but he would not object to another Baptist church having a woman preacher.

"The New Testament doesn't seem to say that women are ordained. We'd probably not practice it in my church," he said.

Powell, who was elected for a one-year term, said his top priority will be the success of "Mission Texas."

The program's goal is to start 2,000 new churches in Texas by 1990.

Powell was nominated for the presidency by William Shamburger, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Tyler.

Shamburger described Powell as "a moderate without a liberal drop of blood in his body and a fundamentalist without a Messiah complex."

State panel seeks $5 million fund

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans should build a hospital and three schools in earthquake-ravaged Mexico City by donating $5 million to the state's relief effort, say the co-chairmen of the project.

"What's at stake here is a lot more than just good will from Texas. What really is involved here is the practical long-term working relationship with a country that's very important to Texas," San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros said Wednesday after announcing the program.

Co-chairmen Cisneros and Bob Krueger, former U.S. ambassador to Mexico, said fundraising could become more difficult as the September earthquake fades from front pages.

"We're at that point where we may lose something in terms of high-visibility intensity but have to make it up in organization and have to make it up in continuity of discipline," Cisneros said.

The hospital and schools would give Texans a target, he said.

"The idea all along has been that Texans would feel better about giving to something where they could see the sum total of their contributions. Collecting money and funneling it to 100 recipient organizations and never being able to see any results is not as good as being able to see concrete projects," Cisneros said.
