Fishermen Present Strongly-Worded Protests at Hearing

In two strongly worded petitions, hundreds of people from housewives to businessmen of Aransas County expressed their opinion on House Bill 192 and Senate Bill 341 Wednesday night, as a delegation from here were present at the legislative hearings in Austin.

The first petition, addressed to the sub-committees said:

"We, the undersigned, being either commercial fishermen, interested parties, or businessmen whose livelihood depends upon the purchases of the working folk of this area, wish to present a petition at this time in order to acquaint you with various facts pertaining to these bills.

"The commercial fishermen in this coastal area are hardworking men, many following this vocation as third, fourth or fifth generations of families whose sole support comes from the waters of the many bays dotting the Texas Coast. Any anti-netting bill, or measure, will destroy their life's work, and as a consequence, hurt the economy of the places of business where they live.

"We have gone to the biologists in the Game and Fish Commission of the State of Texas and to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service for information, and have been told or informed that any closing of the waters is biologically unsound, due to the fact that when the rough fish such as drum, gafftop, gar, etc., are not harvested by netters, they soon multiply into numbers that actually crowd out the choice fish, such as redfish, trout and flounder. This netting, percentage-wise, is not harmful to the overall supply of fish, or to sport fishing, and statistical reports on the commercial fish supply and demand show this to be true.

"Proponents of the measure offer that these men find new jobs, and they say this seriously while the newspapers and headlines tell of unemployment. These men have jobs, so do the men in the fish houses, who sell the fish to the public; so do the cafes that serve fish to the public; and so do the grocery stores, drug stores, and service stations, who in turn sell their goods to the fishermen. It seems economically unwise to cut off this industry.

"It is also one thing to have representative Eckherdt remind us that the bays are still open to commercial fishing by hook and line, and another thing to brave the rough and cold waters during the winter months with a hook and line in order that your wives and children might have food, clothing and shelter that month.

"We stand ready to offer any

Judge John Wendell Files Causeway Brief

Editorial

The Pilot would like to take this opportunity to commend the Sportsmen's Club, the Aransas County Commercial Fishermen's organization, Representative Leroy Wieting, Senator Bill Patman, County Judge John D. Wendell, the members of the Commissioners Court, and all other organizations and individuals that have cooperated in obtaining the first regulatory power legislation for regulation of fisheries along the Texas coast.

There are generally three sides to anything, your side, my side, and the right side, and while the regulatory power bill—House Bill 1021—introduced by Wieting, is admittedly not perfect, it is a long step in the direction of proper administration of the coastal fisheries.

There has to be a referee in every game, and in this instance it is the Game and Fish Commission. The trained biologists of the commission are in far better position to know what will conserve the fish and shrimp than most individuals without biological training.

The writer is reminded of once a number of years ago when he was approached by a stranger at the Rockport boat basin. The gentleman started the conversation by commenting on a boat at one of the wharves, progressed from that to the state of the weather, and then asked, as many people do:

"What's the matter with the fishing?"

Inquiry disclosed that the man was from California, had been in Texas only six months, and was on his first trip to the coast, but he already considered himself an authority on Texas fish.

All too often in the past, laws controlling the fishing on the coast have been made by men who knew no more than this gentleman, in response to some pressure group, and all too often the laws haven't had any sound basis in fact.

True conservation of our marine resources can come only from thorough biological knowledge. Conservation doesn't doesn't mean discriminatory laws favoring one group or another; conservation means wise use of these marine resources, for the good of everyone involved.

In the past, commercial and sports fishermen have too often been diametrically opposed, with no one really caring much about the fish. The present step toward wise use of the fisheries of the Texas coast is to be commended highly, and everyone concerned that has made it possible deserves the greatest credit.

Student From Rockport Wins Speech Contest

Walter Falk III, high school student from Rockport, won the Four-Way Test Oratorical Contest for Rotary District 593 in Laredo Monday to highlight opening day activities of the three-day conference.

More than 200 of the 450 registered conference delegates heard the afternoon talks in the Maya Room of the Hamilton Hotel. The contest headed the agenda for the convention's second plenary session.

Copano Plane Wreck Kills Two Sunday

Two San Antonio men, James Jackson Cofer, 41, and William R. McNeill, 24, were killed here early Sunday morning when the light plane which Cofer was piloting spun into Copano Bay, about 200 yards north of Redfish Point in six or seven feet of water.

The two men, along with Charles R. Selsor, vice president of the Citizens' National Bank in San Antonio, arrived at Aransas county Airport about 6:30 p.m. Saturday, and went from there to a local motel. Cofer and McNeill were returned to the airport about 12:30 a.m. Sunday morning by the motel manager and presumably took off almost immediately, crashing about two and a half miles north of the airport runway.

The plane apparently spun into the water with tremendous force, as the left wing was crumpled back against the fuselage while the right wing was ripped loose from the fuselage.

Fishermen discovered the wreck shortly after daylight Sunday and called Deputy B. L. (Buddy) Hierholzer, of the Aransas County sheriff's department, who immediately started an investigation that disclosed the fact there was at least one and perhaps two corpses in the sunken plane.

Hierholzer contacted the CAB at Fort Worth, and Peter E. Pompetti, a representative of that organization, arrived by plane shortly after noon.

He went to the wreck immediately, accompanied by Hierholzer, Justice of the Peace E. B. Crawford, from Precinct 2, F. L. McCord, local head of Phillips Petroleum, and by Colonel Gay Copel, who furnished the boat for the trip.

Arriving at the wreck, Pompetti took a number of photographs, then the party contacted the dragline barge belonging to Loyd W. Richardson Construction Company and it was employed to raise the wrecked Cessna. As the shattered plane appeared above the water, the forms of the two men could be seen, still strapped in their seats.

The plane was landed at Phillips Petroleum Docks on Copano Bay, where Pompetti and another CAB man continued their investigation of the cause of the wreck. From there it was transferred to the airport by a Vermillion Construction lowboy.

Justice of the Peace E. B. Crawford, of Precinct 2, said that death was caused by skull and chest fractures sustained in the crash and so rendered a verdict at the inquest.

The third man, Selsor, was located in San Antonio Monday morning. he had flown back on a commercial air line from Corpus Christi Sunday morning, and was unaware of the crash until he arrived home.

Cage-Marshall Funeral Home cared for the bodies.

Calls Protests Unrealistic and Wishful Thinking, as Traffic Through Present Bascule Bridge Does Not Justify Opposition

Judge John D. Wendell, at the regular Rotary luncheon Wednesday, told members of the club that the opposition to the new Copano Causeway by Refugio County residents and others was completely unrealistic and fathered by wishful thinking. However, he said, he hoped that the permit would soon be passed upon by the Corps of Engineers.

Data that the engineers had requested from the Texas Highway Department was now in their hands, and, in addition, said the judge, the Aransas County Commissioners Court had also completed a brief supporting the causeway which had been forwarded to Mr. W. G. Neely, Chief of the Permit Section, in the Galveston District office.

The text of this brief was as follows, Judge Wendell said:

"To support the contention of the Aransas County Commissioners Court that delay of the Copano Causeway could cause great economic harm to this county, and to show, as far as possible, that the protests against granting a permit for construction of this causeway are unrealistic, we have compiled the following data.

"During the period between Tuesday, April 2, and Thursday, April 4, covering approximately 48 hours, traffic over Highway 35 was forced to detour by way of Refugio. This added approximately 50 miles to the route used by north and southbound traffic such as buses, trucks and passenger cars normally using the causeway, if this traffic was traveling between Corpus Christi and Houston. If traveling between Corpus Christi and the towns of Seadrift, Port O'Connor, Port Lavaca and Palacios, the detour was approximately 75 miles. If traveling between Corpus Christi, Rockport and Lamar, the detour was approximate 100 miles.

"The most recent traffic count at Copano Causeway, furnished by the Highway Department at our request, shows an average of 2,400 cars per 24-hour day at the south end of the causeway, and of 1,450 cars per day at the north end, all during 1962. District Highway Engineer T. O. Foster, of the Highway Department's Corpus Christi office, when queried, suggested an average of the two figures, or 1925 cars every 24 hours, as a fair estimate of the traffic over the causeway.

"Taking the lowest detour figure of 50 miles, these cars traveled an average of 96,250 miles daily, for a total of 192,500 miles out of their way during the 48 hours the bridge was closed. Computing this travel at 10 cents per mile (disregarding the higher operating costs of trucks and buses), the financial loss for this alone would total $19,250.

"During the same period, actual man hours lost, computed on the basis of two people per car (again disregarding the higher occupancy of buses and trucks) would total 7,700 hours. Computing this at the government's minimum wage of $1.25 per hour, loss from this source would be not less than $9,625.

"The three items above total $29,815, and we feel that this is an extremely conservative estimate that would probably be raised considerably upon closer inspection and longer research.

"Harder even to compute than these is the number of boat trips between Live Oak Peninsula, at the south end of Copano Causeway at Lamar, as refinery workers, construction men and school children endeavored to maintain their schedules, without too much success. Add to this the cost of loss of time on construction on Lamar, and many small items such as additional clothes cleaning for school children because of wetting as they made the boat trip across the bay, and it is our considered opinion that the cost of the bridge closure during the 48 hours in question was approximately $17,000 a day, without any consideration of the many intangibles involved.

"Of even more potential danger is the fact that this is one of the evacuation routes used in hurricane season, and the sole link by which ambulances, doctors, law enforcement officers, and utility personnel can reach Lamar Peninsula rapidly. All such service in that area stems from and through Rockport, with the nearest medical care at Rockport, and the

Terrie Thomas, Vickie Vermillion Honored By Party

Terrie Thomas and Vickie Vermillion were honored by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vermillion, with a sweet sixteen birthday dance at the Aransas County Youth Center on Friday, April 19, from 8 until 12 p.m.

The setting for the party was a spring flower garden. Trellises of various shapes and sizes, adorned with many flowers and ferns, were set at various vantage points around the main room of the building. Eight bird cages, heavily adorned with flowers, were hung from the ceiling. A larger bird cage completely covered with flowers, hung from the ceiling in the center of the room. Drapes of spring colored crepe paper, were hung from the outer bird cages to the center of the ceiling to unify the arrangements. Crepe paper streamers were hung in the doorways to the patio and game room.

As the guests entered, they signed guest books for each of the honorees. Sherry Lynn Brundrett and Becky Rouquette were seated at the register table. The center of the table was decorated with a crescent shaped arrangement of red roses. After registering, the guests proceeded to find partners to sign their dance programs for the ten program dances.

A prize tree was set up on a table to the left of the entrance doorway. The tree was white, covered with tiny pink blossoms, seated in on a bed of green grass. Several packages, adorned with pastel colored flowers were tied to the tree, and these contained prizes given away during the evening to winners of various dance contests. The door prizes were also displayed on this table, and were won by Mary Lou Johnson of Rockport, and Bobby Wiglidi from Taft.

Gift tables for each of the honorees were set up in the center of the east end of the room. They were covered with pink cloths, decorated with clusters of red roses.

The serving table was in the center of the west end of the room and was covered with a cloth of pink taffeta with floor length skirt. Green fern encircled the entire top of the skirt. The centerpiece was a large wicker garden basket completely filled with roses of various shades from pink to red. Tall pink tapers were on either side of the centerpiece. A four-tiered white cake, setting on a bed of blue nylon net and pink rose buds, was at one end of the serving table. A doll in white taffeta dress topped the cake, and a row of 16 pink and blue candles encircled the bottom tier. A milk glass punch bowl filled with pink punch was placed at the other end of the table. Mrs. J. Allen Frye served the cake and Diane Davis poured the punch.

The record player table was covered with a pink cloth with an arrangement of red roses on one corner. The main part of the table was hidden from view by a white picket fence covered with flowers and fern.

The dancing was enjoyed on the patio, which was decorated with clusters of balloons. The top of the fence was completely lined with a row of various colored lights.

The guest list numbered over one hundred and forty.

Out of town guests included Terrie's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Crews from Victoria. Also Micky Mitchell, Bobby Wiglidi, Chris Jenkins and Gary Hightower from Taft, and Scott Rutherford from Sinton.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Troop 13 met on April 17, and planned at that time to go on a camp out at Camp Copano on the 20th. How to roll the bed roll was taught to everyone at the meeting. We left the Scout house at 3:00 on the 20th. Their last job was to get their bed roll and go to the cabins that were assigned; then the girls were shown the grounds and then went to the beach.

Later they went to the mess hall to check out our cookery and to prepare the meals. After supper we sat around the camp fire and sang songs until bed time. Everyone was up at the crack of dawn; after breakfast the girls went on a hike until 10:00 when they came back. We sat around in a semi-circle and had a short Sunday school lesson. We closed the meeting with silent prayer. About 30 minutes later we started dinner, which was enjoyed by everyone. After dinner was all cleaned up, the girls all went to their cabins and started packing to go home with much regrets by all the girls. We left Camp Copano about 3:00 p.m.

The following girls attending were: Cynthia Agler, Lisa Dick, Julia Davis, Gilda Lichte, Sarah, Jane and Rebecca Shaver, Carol Ann and Sherry Lynn Shaver, Mary A. Griffith, Ruth Ann Sanders, Kaye Lauer and Terrisa Roe. The following were in charge, Mrs. A. Griffith, Mrs. C. V. Shaver, Marilyn Sue Roy and Ruth Anne Shaver were our guests, and their teacher, Mrs. Robert Shaver.

SAVE COLD CASH

Nothing's nicer in the kitchen through a long hot summer than a modern automatic gas refrigerator. It not only keeps foods safe and fresh and gives you plenty of ice cubes for those long tall drinks, but a gas refrigerator saves you cold cash every month.

The cost of operating a gas refrigerator is less than half the cost of an electric, according to independent research tests. And since a silent gas refrigerator has no motor to break down, you save too on repairs and maintenance. See your nearest dealer today.

OFFICIAL MEMORANDUM

by HERMAN C. JOCHSON Mayor of Rockport

GREETINGS:

May 1 of each year is designated by Act of Congress in 1958, as National Loyalty Day. For the past 12 years the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States have sponsored patriotic observances designed to Make May 1 "Loyalty Day" for every American.

Loyalty Day is set aside to inspire a greater love of country and rededication to the principles of freedom. This observance also shows, by patriotic and peaceful assembly, our unrelenting opposition to anti-American influences and subversive movements. It gives each of us an opportunity to renew our personal pledge to uphold our Godgiven rights in defense of which thousands of Americans have died on battlefields throughout the world.

THEREFORE, I, as Mayor of the City of Rockport, do hereby designate May, 1963 as LOYALTY DAY in the City of Rockport, Texas, and urge all citizens, civic groups, and patriotic organizations to join with the VFW in observance thereof.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 21st day of April, 1963.

CAUSEWAY BRIEF—

nearest hospitals at Aransas Pass and Corpus Christi. What this could mean was graphically illustrated during the recent closure by the fact that Central Power and Light personnel, called out on an emergency in Lamar, had to travel over 100 miles, which consumed over two hours, before they could reach the site of the pole fires that threaten interruption of service in the Rockport-Fulton-Lamar area. And Lamar, with extensive tourist courts, many residences, a small gas stripping plant, a convent, and a state park where many people go for vacations, must draw most of its fire protection from Rockport and Fulton, which both have modern equipment to supplement the single archaic fire engine at Lamar, manned by volunteers.

"Representative sampling of the Copano Causeway bridge tender's logs during the period from January, 1960 until the present, show, we believe, that the sudden concern of residents of Refugio County and various organizations, is completely unrealistic, and that traffic between Aransas Bay and Copano Bay is not of such caliber as to warrant the clearances that they have asked for in their protests. Oil activity in Copano Bay has dropped considerably since the inception of drilling in that area some six or seven years ago. Practically all rigs now in the area are used in cleaning out, and although there has been a small discovery on the west side of Copano recently, it is apparently of little magnitute. Observers of traffic into and out of Copano Bay were emphatic in their statement that one rig would be capable of handling all activity in the area, if the operators could agree upon it. As it is, over the period between January, 1960, and the present, the number of drilling barges that have used the present bascule bridge has averaged less than one per month.

"As far as can be ascertained, out of all the rigs that have used the present bascule bridge, only one was forced to sink its barge some three or four inches to elude the overhand on either side. The clearance of the present bridge, which is around forty feet between fenders, has been more than sufficient at the water's edge for drilling barges used, most of which are around 38 feet in beam. Moreover, the present bascule bridge, when opened, towers 60 feet above the water, and none of the drilling barges have reached even closely comparable heights. So far as can be learned, none of those that have been used in the bay would be in the least discommoded by the height of 50 feet, proposed in the State Highway Department's request for a construction permit.

"Another point that should be considered here is the fact that, without extensive dredging of a channel from the present intracoastal canal to the point at which these (presumably) giant drilling rigs are to be used, present water depths will not support barges of sufficient size to handle rigs tall enough to need the excessive clearance for which the protestants ask. There is not any dredged channel into Copano Bay, and, at present, there is occasional difficulty in finding sufficient water for the rigs now in use.

"In an effort to determine the actual traffic through the present bridge, the records kept by the bridge tender at Copano Causeway were representtatively sampled. The first thing that became apparent was that there was no great correlation between the number of openings per month and the number of boats and rigs passing through, as on one opening there might be only a single vessel, while on others there might be seven or eight. No total was available for 1960, but from the bridge log a count was made for the first six months of the number of tugs, drilling rigs, dredges and similar vessels that went through the bascule span. In January there was 60; February, 64; March, 65; April, 68; May, 180; June 121. No attempt was made to count the number of small fishing boats and boats for which the bridge did not need to be raised.

"The number of bridge openings was not correlated with the number of boats, but in general the 1960 openings conformed to those for 1961, 1962, and 1963, for which figures were available. In 1961 there were 774 openings; in 1962 there were 1,176 openings, and in the first four months of 1963 there were 226 openings. Figures per month during 1962 showed as follows:

January	50	July	35
February	36	August	244
March	39	September	316
April	41	October	232
May	40	November	114
June	42	December	71

"Perusual of the records to determine reasons for the sudden rise of openings in August, September, October, October and November, disclosed close correlation with a heavy run of white shrimp in Copano Bay, for which practically every fishing boat in the area made an effort.

"In summarization, cost per 24 hours of bridge closure is approximately $17,500 daily, at a conservative estimate.

"Intangibles, such as fire, law enforcement, medical and utility service all depend upon this bridge, which is admittedly inadequate, or are faced with a 100-mile detour. Only last night (April 18, 1963) an outbreak of food poisoning among a group camping at Goose Island State Park would, the doctor's believe, have resulted in fatalities had it not been possible to get members of a girl's school to the hospitals in Corpus Christi promptly.

"It is an evacuation route in case of disaster. It is extremely doubtful whether other, lower routes, leading off of Live Oak Peninsula to the mainland are sufficient to carry the flow of refugees from a storm such as Hurricane Carla without serious danger.

"No records available show any reason to apprehend any great increase in traffic between Aransas and Copano Bays. Most of the oil company activity in Copano Bay is attendant upon producing wells; many of the leases are completely drilled up; one rig, if properly handled, can take care of everything now going on.

"There is no industry on the western shore of the bay depending upon water transportation, nor is there any channel or projected channel with this in view. If and when such a situation arises, there should be time to make the necessary adjustments. These would necessarily include dredging some fifteen or twenty miles of tributary channel from the Intracoastal Waterway, across Aransas and Copano bays to whatever industrial sites may be developed. A minimum time for development of such industrial sites and industries can be placed at ten to fifteen years, and surely this is sufficient to make changes in the projected causeway, if needed.

"There is no reason to believe from past records, or from any immediately foreseeable future developments that the clearances asked for by the various protestors are anything but completely unrealistic wishful thinking.

"It is our earnest hope that you will take these things into consideration and recommend that the permit requested by the Texas Highway Department be granted in its present form and without further delay. There is no group any more aware of the growth of this area, or none more willing to do anything in its power to aid that growth. But we do feel that these protests are serving no purpose, either now or later, except that of useless delay to a project of untold economic importance to Aransas County and to the rest of the south coast."

CEMETERY ASSOCIATION MET MONDAY AFTERNOON

The quarterly meeting of the Rockport Cemetery Association was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Mills in Lamar.

Mrs. Emma Sowerbutts led the group in praying the Lord's Prayer and Mrs. W. B. Allen presided for the business session.

Quarterly reports were given by the treasurer and the chairmen of the various committees. Included in the treasurer's report was the statement that the books had been audited and found in satisfactory condition.

Mrs. Alma Ratliff and Miss Genevieve Bracht announced sending out notices of dues to local and out of town members.

Mrs. Allen reported that extra water lines were being laid in the old part of the cemetery; otherwise, only routine work was being done.

FISHERMEN PRESENT—

information that this sub-committee might need in realizing the plight that will confront the commercial fisherman.

"As the laws now stand, we can exist; any further laws passed as to anti-netting measures will cause us to cease to be able to live properly, to support our families, to send our children to school reasonably clothed, and to give our families the medical care they might need.

"We the undersigned do ask that any decision on this measure be for those men who are trying to support families by catching fish, for we sincerely feel that there is room for both the commercial fisherman and the sport fishermen. We respectfully feel that we would like to work with the sport fishermen, and request only the opportunity to do this, and to support our families gainfully from the bays and fishing waters God gave us, as we and our fathers before us."

The second petition was addressed "To Senator Bill Patman and Representative Leroy Wieting" and said:

"We, the undersigned citizens and voters of this coastal area, feel that you are grossly negligent and careless of our interests, and of the general welfare of the people of Texas, in sponsoring and supporting House Bill 192 and Senate Bill 341; or any legislatoin suppressing or limiting free enterprise and commerce in Texas, to close the waters of the State to normal useful production of our famous quality seafoods without firm biological justification is a display of rank ignorance of the facts about our seafood potential and production.

"To strangle, without solemn justification, the livelihood of thousands of people who depend directly or indirectly on seafood production, is a vicious and irresponsible act. To eliminate a reliable source of seafood supplies to our restaurants, hotels, markets and other food distributors of our State is striking an irreparable blow to tourism in Texas. People do not come to Texas to eat California tuna, Alaskan salmon and frozen fillets from Massachusetts. Fresh quality seafoods from Texas waters are famous and available in every market and eating place in the State. We should keep it that way.

"Biologists of the Game and Fish Commission and of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service have confirmed evidence that there is no biological justification for closing the tidewaters of the State to commercial production. We urge you to take a little of "our" time out from the political "hodgepodge" in which you are involved, to familarize yourselves with the facts, and to be governed thereby in sponsoring the interests of your voting, and undersigned constituents."

Few people in the county refused to sign, the number of names one opponent of the bill said, being limited only by the amount of time available to contact people throughout the county.
