Success Of The Singer Depends On Her Charm

Not by voice alone does any singer win success, according to Lenora Sparkes, English soprano who has just left the Metropolitan Opera company for the concert stage.

"I am almost tempted to say that the voice is the least important ingredient in the success of a singer," Miss Sparkes asserted.

"Instead I will say that voice, musical intelligence and personal charm represent a complete trinity in the achievement of success.

"By individual charm, I do not mean a mere kindness of face and form, called beauty, I mean spiritual quality that transcends a lovely voice and carries, through the medium of that voice, something of the inner beauty, strength and vision of a personality.

"Of course many charming persons have failed at singing because they lacked voice. But probably just as many good voices have failed because they lacked character and charm.

Understanding of people, warmth of heart, a wide field of personal interests, unselfishness—these, and any other personal qualities a singer's life is enriched by, show in her voice just as much as they do in the strike of color on canvas by a sympathetic artist. Though it is understood that a voice is born, not made, it sometimes feels that the other ingredients which go to make a singer also are inherent."

Marye and Mom Their Letters

Dearest Mom:

New don't become excited about this letter. Take it easy. For you, precious child isn't just as used to look upon me as she should be. And the way I got this handaged face is a little subject upon which the husband and I are yet to have words.

I know at the start that you will side with Alan, because you are old-fashioned, and because you have always felt that every time I smiled at any man besides my legal, lawful husband, I was courting danger.

With that much of an introduction, and hoping that you are prepared for the worst, I will revert to type and tell my sad story.

As I told you, I felt that the family honor demanded a new gown for Julia's party. So I hid myself and selected a beauty—a vivid flame red affair with one of those Louisboulanger draped backs.

As I was about to take a humble street car home—Alan having taken the family bus to drive to the golf course—I happened onto Pede—in his roadster. He was headed my way, and it seemed to me quite innocent to be driven home instead of boarding the trolley.

Pede said he would be glad to drop me at my home, since he was driving that way anyhow. I hadn't expected to see him, and I hadn't a thought on my mind but how beautiful I was going to look at Julia's. But of course, Alan isn't convinced yet about that.

Well, we sped along pleasantly and all of a sudden, I don't seem to remember just how it happened, we collided with a street car that couldn't seem to make up its mind whether to go or to stop, and did just the opposite from what Pede figured it would.

When I saw I was colliding, I am over-estimating the case. Really, we hit it very lightly, and there would have been no difficulty of any kind if the jar had not caused me to take a nose dive toward the windshield, which I cracked heavily with my own fair face, much to the detriment of my face. I was not cut on the glass, just mashed up a little on my right cheek and chin.

Protected as he was by the wheel, Pede didn't even get a scratch. The radiator of the car and one fender were a little the worse for wear, but that lists all the damage.

"This really didn't hurt me much, but Pede insisted on taking me to the doctor—fortunately we were very near one, and he made a few applications of salve and did a little bandaging, and said the map would be as beautiful as ever in a week or so.

Pede was distressed as only a Latin can be. He took me home, and insisted on waiting until Alan came home so he could explain everything to him. I out-insisted and ordered him to go. Somehow, I believe the safety of everyone's faces in Alan and Pede's not meeting ever my pershad body.

So I am all done up on the chaise longue, in my best negligee, awaiting the tureworks. I hope I shall not have to bear any of the evidences of it on my face—it shows less on my soul.

Yours,
MARYE

Begin To Prepare For Fair, Is Plea

Now is the time for all good exhibitors to begin to prepare for the Panhandle-South Plains Fair. That was the edict issued this morning by David P. Eaton, county agent of Lubbock county. "All small grains, wild forage crops and fruits to be exhibited in the fair here and at other places as well should be gathered now and prepared for the exhibit," Mr. Eaton said. Such grains as sweet clover, wheat, oats, barley and the like constitute the small grains in Lubbock county. The said alfalfa, sudan grass and other forage crops should also be prepared now.

INVENTOR OF RADIUM DYING

DOCTOR IS VICTIM OF OWN INVENTION BUT COMMENT DENIED

NEW YORK, June 8.—The New York Times says today that Dr. S. A. Von Sochocky, inventor of the radium paint which is said to have doomed five New Jersey women to a slow death, is a victim of his own invention.

Although the doctor was reticent to talk about himself marks of the ravages of illness were plainly evident. His front teeth are gone and his fingers up to the second knuckle are black, the result of radium necrosis.

A count of white corpuscles of his blood taken within the last two months disclosed only 4,000 to the cubic millimeter, while a normal person has 7,500 to 10,000, an effect produced by radium poisoning among other things.

The radium first took effect on Dr. von Sochocky in 1920 and only because of his ability to keep an accurate scientific check on himself has he been able to withstand the disease. Several times he has been forced to go to higher altitudes to recuperate.

The doctor has frequently risked his life in recent years to treat friends with radium. Dr. von Sochocky several years ago became an official of the United States Radium Corporation, in whose plant the five New Jersey women are said to have acquired the radium poison. They recently made a settlement with company for $10,000 each, a life time annuity of $500 each, and insurance for their relatives when they die.

Princess' Divorce Hearing Is Secret

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 8 (AP)—Princess Helen's suit for divorce against her errant husband, former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania, will be heard in secret on June 21.

Today's official Gazette carried notice of the proceedings and invited Carol, who was addressed as "Karl Karaiman" to attend the trial. It was not expected that Carol, who is in Belgium where he went after England invited him to leave, would come. It is understood he will not contest the suit.

Princess Helen, who is the mother of six year old King Michael, in her petition pleaded for the divorce because of "profound affronts offered and desertion."

Ireland Prisoners Go On Hunger Strike

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, June 8 (AP)—The agent of the Irish republican party said today that five women prisoners at Montjoy jail, Dublin, had been on a hunger strike since Tuesday. They claimed they were political prisoners and demanded political treatment.

He said the women were Mrs. McDermott and Misses Eva Jackson, Florence McCarthy, S. McInery and S. Humphreys.

to the city hall, where he found his father and told his sister's story, giving his father the license number which she had given him. A few minutes later a car rolled to a stop across the street from the city hall and upon comparing the license number which his son had given him with the plates on the car, Chief Murray said he made his way across the street and began questioning the driver. The boy followed.

Thompson shot once and hospital authorities said today, the bullet entering the upper right arm, penetrating the arm and right lung and lodging in the left side. Murray's injuries are limited to bruises sustained in the fall from the moving machine.

No charges against either of the parties had been filed this afternoon. C. J. Thompson, father of the wounded man, was informed of the trouble and was in Plainview today at the bedside of his son. Because of the serious condition of the injured man he could not be reached for a statement. The Thompsons reside on a farm, near Tulla.

Columbia Plans To Hop Off Saturday

CURTIS FIELD, N. Y., June 8 (AP)—The monoplan Columbia with Miss Mabel Boll as passenger, will probably make a second attempt at dawn tomorrow to fly from here to Old Orchard, Maine, the first leg of a trans-Atlantic flight.

Young Theologians Rewarded

Adjudged the best theology students in their respective seminaries, four young men have won $1,000 scholarships from the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education. They are (above) C. Everett Thomson and William Semple, Jr., and (below) William Elliott and Sam H. Franklin, Jr.

PHILADELPHIA, June 8 (AP)—Four young men who conquered theology, church history and the original languages of the Scriptures, Greek and Hebrew, with flying colors, are to be rewarded for their proficiency. C. Everett Thomson of San Francisco, William Semple, Jr., of Pittsburgh, Pa.; W. M. Elliott, of Louisville, Ky., and Sam H. Franklin, Jr., of Chicago will receive $1,000 fellowships each and will be acclaimed the best theological students in the four schools which they attend at their forthcoming graduation exercises. The fellowships are provided from scholarship funds held by the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education. The four schools from which the honor students will be graduated are the San Francisco, Western, Presbyterian and McCormick Theological seminaries, respectively. The fellowships are provided to aid in financing postgraduate study at home or abroad. Marriage licenses were issued today by County Clerk Amos Howard to James H. Pruitt and Evelyn McDonald and Roy Lobstein and Mildred Lane.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sour. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention. One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correct excess acids. 25c and 50c bottles—any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1876.

SOUTHERN CROSS

could write more, will send later. Cheerio. Well be O. K." About that time a radio message was intercepted at Honolulu. It came from Sydney Australia and was broadcast for the fliers' information. The word was "not cheering." It was that they must expect one or two repetitions of the word with sharp squalls from the southeast, rain during the next couple of hours before wind settles to steady southwest.

struck its next storm area. At 11:42 plane time, a half hour or so after reports that they were flying south of New Caledonia and about 770 miles from Suva, the fliers opened their wireless key probably to send their position report. Radio operators on shore heard the signal "Southern Cross" and then heard the planes' generator shriek wildly upward. The signals were rendered "barely audible and broken." The word was "not cheering." It was that they must expect one or two repetitions of the word with sharp squalls from the southeast, rain during the next couple of hours before wind settles to steady southwest.

Generator Still Heard A little later, however, came the reassuring word from land stations in San Francisco that the generator could be heard but that no messages were being sent. The Southern Cross was still rising, plunging and again rising through the storm and the worries of the intrepid fliers were not over.

Yet through all this came not a word of anxiety from the four men. They looked for the moon as did they during their flight from Oakland to Hawaii and Suva. Frequently they were referred to the moon as "our friend," and as frequently did they joke about the rough riding—always to close their messages with a light "cheerio."

Municipal Park Is Bought By Coleman

COLEMAN, June 8.—Removing a condition that has long been a source of more or less contention in Lubbock, the city commission today voted to lease or acquire through public contribution the municipal playing grounds that has been under private management, for the purpose of beautifying, installing water connections, lights, sewer and installing play ground equipment. In the meeting with various citizens Wednesday at which Perryborough, Rev. C. E. Lancaster, Rev. W. W. Shuller, Mayor E. P. Scarborough, commissioners J. T. Blair and R. C. Hollingsworth, Jim Neal, W. T. Moore attended, it was proposed to carry on the proposed work through a municipal tax appropriation. At all times the park will be under the supervision of a competent care taker with the purpose of meeting campers and rendering services to tourists who choose to stop," declared E. P. Scarborough.

NEW BUILDING ERA
HOUSTON, June 8.—The old custom of building up a section and then adding the protective measures has been upset in Houston with advent of the Democratic National convention, set for June 26. Instead of building the coliseum for the convention and then building a fire station next to it, Houston built the fire station and then placed the coliseum next to it. When the site for the coliseum was chosen, it just happened to be adjoining a fire station.

A PRESIDENT MAKER
HOUSTON, June 8.—If the democratic nominee at the quadrennial convention of the party in Houston in June wins his way to the White House he will not be the first president elected in Texas. Nearly a century ago Gen. Sam Houston was elected president of the Republic of Texas.

THE PLAINSMAN

Says:

That Girl on Broadway says any woman can have a career if she wants to shoot her husband to get it.

Do you know anybody who has a job or office a hunk? If you do, get in touch with The Plainsman and we'll both be doing a good turn.

The man in question is married and has four small children. For more than a week he has tramped the streets of Lubbock making an honest effort to find a job, but to no avail. He has had many promises but none of them have "panned out." He needs a job and needs it badly. The kiddies will soon be needing clothes and there will be no money to buy them if the job is not soon forthcoming.

This man is not "choice," neither is he an object for charity. All he wants is the opportunity to work. If you can help him land a job communicate with The Plainsman at phone number 13.

That Man on Avenue Q says some people are born great, others achieve greatness while more batter their way into the limelight by attacks upon some time honored tradition or person.

The way the people of Houston are co-operating to assure the success of the National Democratic convention is a credit to the state of Texas and unless The Plainsman misses his guess the folks down in the Harris county capital are going to bring plenty of praise to the Lone Star state by the way they are handling a mighty big job.

The Plainsman is in receipt of a letter from Mayr Oscar Holcombe and Jesse H. Jones and the figures they quote are astounding. Those gentlemen call attention to the fact that enormous statements have been broadcast to the effect that Houston will not be able to comfortably house the thousands of visitors who will be on hand for the convention. The gentlemen admit that when the convention was first secured the problem of housing the guests was a big one but "through the co-operation of the citizens of Houston this problem has been solved."

According to the letter in addition to hotel and rooming-house facilities, there are now available an apartments and private homes facilities to comfortably house 30,000 persons daily. The rooms are all within a few blocks of transportation and all have been inspected by city workers and found to be first class. Existing tourist camps facilities have been expanded to accommodate 3,000 cars or 10,000 persons. Every visitor who comes to Houston will be properly housed and fed. "is the personal promise made by Messrs. Jones and Holcombe."

Houston tackled a big job but is putting it over in a big way—a way big enough to reflect credit upon a big state like Texas. The Plainsman is glad to be able to pass the word of Houston's good work along to the people of this section, whether or not they intend to go to the Democratic convention.

If a fellow does a job real well he rarely ever hears
 A word of commendation meant
 Expressly for his ears.
 But let him pull a boner
 And the world then all turns cold.
 There's no dearth of griping people
 Who are glad to get him told!

GRADY ON COTTON
 Once in a while The Plainsman comes across some bit of writing which he feels should be passed along to the customer. Here is a bit of work on cotton by Henry W. Grady, which should be interesting anywhere in the world but doubly so in this cotton country of ours.

"What a royal plant it is! The world waits in attendance on its growth. That shower that falls whispering on its leaves, is heard around the earth. The sun that shines on it is tempered by the prayers of all people. The frost that chills it and the dew that descends from the stars are noted, and the 'treasures of a little worm on its green leaf is more to England than the advance of the Russian army on her Asian outposts."
 "Its fibre is current in every card. It is gold from the instant it puts forth its tiny shoot, and when loosed from the loom it floats a banner that glorifies the field of the humble farmer. It is the hero, the hero that God gave to this people forever as their own when He arches over our skies, established our mountains, girds us about with the ocean, lashed the breezes, tempered the sunshine and measured the rain-cure and our children's forever!"

There is only one place left now where the farmers may go, according to Governor McMullen of Nebraska. Well, we all have to die.

A new method of treating rubber makes it last thirty-five years. We are wondering whether it's to be applied to tires or steaks.

Army May Battle Navy Some Day If There Is Enough Gas Available To Fly The Planes, According To Rod Dutcher

In New York By Gilbert Swan

NEW YORK, June 8.—Within commuting distance of Manhattan live thousands of people who vote the "big city" once in ten years, or perhaps never at all.

To all intents and purposes they might as well be dwelling on an opposite coast. And while hundreds of thousands, whose means will not allow them to make the trip, yearn for a peek at the great buildings, or the gay white way, or the fashionable shops, those who could be within the heart of Manhattan inside an hour seldom cross its threshold. Often their sons, daughters, brothers, mothers or sisters go to work in New York daily.

Rodney Dutcher

The other day four elderly women were arrested for shoplifting in a big Gotham department store. It developed at their trial that they all came from a nearby town in New Jersey. One of the grand buildings, or the gay white way, or the fashionable shops, those who could be within the heart of Manhattan inside an hour seldom cross its threshold. Often their sons, daughters, brothers, mothers or sisters go to work in New York daily.

By Rodney Dutcher
 NEA Service Writer
 WASHINGTON, June 8.—While other branches of aviation move forward with seven-league boots, the Army Air Service finds itself almost out of gas.

These days when an army aviator wants practice he often has to fly around over head in circles. He can't fly cross-country to some distant land field because the army hasn't the fuel to bring him back. The army has tried hard to keep its reserve corps pilots in trim but the gasoline shortage has limited them to four hours a month in the air, which from the standpoint of efficiency is not very high.

The reserve pilots are the ones who have to do most of the circle flying, but even the regular officers have had to curtail the longer flights. The cross-country flying is really the most valuable experience of all, for it allows aviators to land at strange fields, to fly at night and otherwise to pick up more all-around training.

The National Guard birdmen are luckier than either the regulars or the reserves, because they are frequently given extra money for gasoline by the state legislatures.

It may or may not be generally known that the army's gas shortage kept its planes out of the joint First Corps Area maneuvers of the New England coast more than a year ago. The original plan was to maneuver the army planes along with the navy and marine planes. But the army didn't have enough gasoline, so its troop maneuvered with none of their own aircraft.

Army officers don't like to talk very loudly about their problem, but the gas shortage is purely a matter of appropriations by Congress and the prying knife of the Budget Bureau. The air service just gets so much money that can be used for gasoline and it has to worry along on that or take money needed to keep its planes in repair.

The army boys wouldn't be quite as sore about the matter as they are if they didn't feel they were being discriminated against in favor of the navy and the marine.

They have always grumbled privately that the navy, by playing politics with the what and the why.

There, in the center of this great thing, a young woman was perched upon a sand pile, left by workmen who had been excavating for a sky-scraper. Beside her was her baby and she was engaged in building for the child a handsome mud castle of sand, quite undisturbed by the presence of the gnat-like crowd.

For instance—hurrying home recently on an afternoon when the city dripped with a soft rain we were attracted by the sight of several hundred people gathered in a semicircle. All about windows were open, and heads were bobbing out. Taxicabs were attempting to avoid the overflow that was menacing traffic and cross-town cars were actually being held up.

Had it not been raining we would have bet our long-lost umbrella that a street fair was up to some new racket, but we couldn't imagine a pitch-man operating in such wet

KILL THE FLY
 One of the biggest pests of today is the fly. The flies are bad and everyone should attempt to get rid of them. Every filthy place can start flies and they should be destroyed. Outhouses are one of the worst breeders of flies. The sewer keeps the town in a sanitary condition.

It is time the people were thinking of fixing up their screens and windows so as to keep the fly out. As the very thought of one of the dirty pests being on your food, you should try to kill them. If you will kill the fly early they will not be so bad later on in the season.

Some people may say that flies are not dangerous in our town but think of the many deaths caused by fever spread by the fly. You might save a life by killing these flies—Miami Chief.

Flies are among the foremost pests of the land, and they are justly responsible for the propagation of more disease than most anything else. It is therefore very important to the health of the community that the greatest precaution be given to keep them away from the family, the food and everything that human beings come in contact with.

We believe there has been a very constant campaign against the flies in this country for several years, and that is possibly one reason that diseases are more readily stopped when they get started in a community. In the cities the flies are very well controlled, except in some of the homes of the very poor, and this should be taken seriously, and this condition changed if possible.

All servant houses and outdoor closets should be screened, which will go a long way toward elimination of this pest.

PRESENT PLEAS CONVENTIONS OF DEMOS AND GOP

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 8.—While a number of women's organizations are planning drives for incorporation of prohibition enforcement in the Kansas City and conventions' platforms, the men announced today the formation of a women's national committee which has the names of two senators and two of the four women members of congress.

The resolutions committees of the republican and democratic parties, the association plans to present pleas for planks urging prohibition of Volstead act. The men's representatives appearing before the committees probably will include women members of the association's executive committee.

Membership of the committee public today, includes women from nearly every section of the country. Among them are:

Representatives Florence Kahn, San Francisco, California, and Mary T. Gandy, Democrat, New Jersey; two wives, Mrs. William C. C. of Maryland and Mrs. F. Bayard of Delaware; and Mary E. Joy of Detroit, chairwoman of the resolutions committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution Congress; Mrs. W. of Wilmington, Del. del-

G. O. P. Elephant And Dems' Donkey Have Same Ancestor

By NEA Service.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The democratic donkey and the republican elephant, distinguished beasts that they are, are probably the only donkey and elephant in the world that have a common, identical ancestor.

The Republican elephant, now the familiar party emblem, first appeared in this cartoon, drawn by Thomas Nast, in Harper's Weekly, on Nov. 7, 1874.

Both were brought into existence in the 70s of the last century by the famous American cartoonist, Thomas Nast.

Probably there is not one in a hundred of the staunch partisans of either emblematic quadruped who has the faintest idea how his party happened to select its mascot.

Oddly enough, each animal was saddled on its respective party as a derisive jest. Each found favor with the rank and file and was drawn for regular service, and the original meaning of the application was speedily forgotten.

The Birth of the Donkey.

The democratic donkey was born in 1825.

Nast at that time was drawing for Harper's Weekly, a republican journal, and was seeking to sink a shaft into the democratic hide. He picked up the old fable about the jackass that defied the dead lion, and illustrated it.

The democrats at that time—1870—were assailing the conduct of Lincoln's cabinet during the Civil war and were centering their hottest fire on the record of Lincoln's secretary of war, Edwin M. Stanton, although Stanton had recently died.

Nast drew a picture showing a dead lion lying beneath a tree, with a long-eared jackass lashing out at it with his hoofs. The lion he labeled "H. M. Stanton," the donked "the Copperhead Press."

The editor of Harper's Weekly apparently had little idea that this cartoon was going to provide the democratic party with an emblem that would last for years. At any rate, he buried it in an inconspicuous place on the last page among a group of patent medicine ads. It was printed on January 10, 1870.

The birth of the republican elephant came four years later, and took place in a manner more befitting the nativity of the mascot of a great party.

The New York Herald was one of the central figures in this cartoon. Nast used as his basis another old fable, that, clothed in a lion's skin, had set up a braying in the jungle and had frightened the elephant into running into a trap set by a canny fox.

His illustration showed such a scene. The donkey dressed in a lion's skin was labeled "the New York Herald." The elephant was "the republican vote." The fox, bush, bore the words, "democratic artfully pecking out from under a party" on his collar.

Adopted by Republicans.

The Herald had been attacking the republicans for permitting talk of Grant's proposed third term to go unchecked. Nast's idea, obviously, was that it was thereby confusing the party and preparing the way for a democratic victory.

This picture, incidentally, drew a whole page to itself. It was printed on November 7, 1874, and found such favor with the republicans that the elephant speedily became the party emblem.

Nast, as it happens, was also the man who gave Tammany Hall its tiger. "Boss" Tweed, the notorious Tammany leader, had once belonged to a fire company called "the Big Six." This company had a tiger's head as its emblem. When Nast sought a figure he simply adopted the tiger's head, fitted a body onto it, and used it. Like republican and democratic parties, Tammany adopted the tiger and uses it to this day.

MRS. McCORMICK SAYS GOP WOULD SUPPORT HOOVER

(By Associated Press)
 KANSAS CITY, June 8.—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, director of publicity for the anti-Hoover coalition, declared today that the campaign of the opposition was not based on personalities and that if Hoover is nominated all republicans will support him.

The plan of the coalition, she said, was to bring as forcibly as possible before the delegates the superior availability of Louder Cuntis or Watson over Hoover for the nomination in order for the republican party to be placed in a better position to carry the election.

"This campaign to show that Hoover's nomination would mean a hard fight for the party in November will continue," Mrs. McCormick added, "in the hope that the delegates will realize the republicans will have an easier time next November by accepting some one else than Hoover."

Divorce Is Sought by Beauty Actress

CHICAGO, June 8.—The third wife of Alexander Carr, who was "Maverick" in "Potash and Perlmutter" stage success, has sued for divorce here.

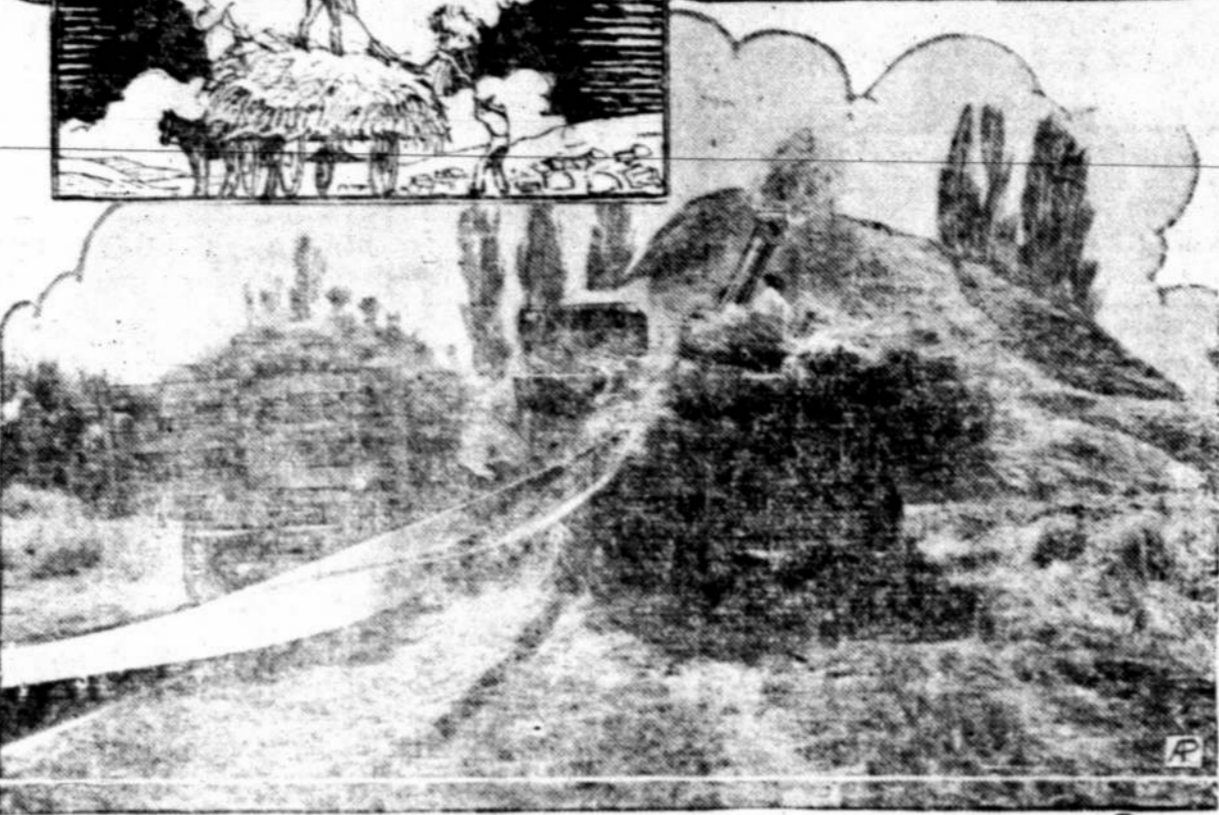

Mrs. Carr, who was Helen Crossman, a bathing beauty of the films, charges in her suit that her husband fled from New York to avoid paying her $100 a week alimony for herself and 18 months old child. While he "languished in luxury" and indulged in "drunken brawls" she charges she was obliged to borrow railroad fare to follow him here.

The Carrs were married in 1924. Mrs. Carr was granted a separation by a New York court two months ago. The actor's two former wives were Mary Carr and Helen Cunningham Carr, both actresses.

Judge Lynch granted a writ on petition of Mrs. Carr's attorney to prevent Carr's leaving jurisdiction of the Chicago court.

On discovering recently that postage-stamps especially in the higher values, were created with certain wash and alcohol, used again, the C. S. P. S. authorities immediately issued six of a new design and had all the old types destroyed.

Nation's Huge Wheat Harvest To Start By Middle Of June

Combination reapers and threshers of the type shown above, greatly advancing the speed of grain harvests, soon will mingle with the throng of machinery in the wheat regions.—The stationary threshers (below), into which is fed the grain cut by headers and binders, will play its customary chief role in the 1928 harvest.

KANSAS CITY, June 8.—The sowing of the seed will begin in Texas and Oklahoma wheat fields the second week in June, reach a crescendo in Kansas and Nebraska a month later, and end in an echo beyond the Canadian border with approach of the autumnal equinox.

The team of headers, binders and combine harvesters will be like the cattle of drums to the great army of men marching along the swaths and around the broad rectangles of grain.

Despite the more extensive use of labor-saving machinery and the cause of drought, insect ravages and damage by freezing farmers of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas will look to other states for at least 20,000 men to harvest about 225,000,000 bushels of wheat.

The combines, which cut and thresh the grain at the same time, have reduced very materially the demand for labor on the large farms. One of these machines, with a crew of only four men, covers 50 acres a day, equaling the performance of two headers with three and one-half times as much man-power and eliminating the threshing process besides.

But their use is general only on the large farms and even in Kansas, the leading state in wheat production, much of the crop, estimated at 143,000,000 bushels this year, is growing on small farms, where headers and binders still are used.

George F. Tucker, director of the farm labor division of the United States employment service, mobilizes the workers for the wheat country, which, largely because of the extensive character of its agriculture, is sparsely populated. Tucker, whose headquarters is in Kansas City, recruits the first contingent of harvest hands principally in the agricultural communities of southern states, where are found the men who can endure the intense heat of the wheat fields.

Fewer college students now are in the harvest army.

"Unless they are football players who want to keep hard muscles through the summer," Tucker explains, "we tell the college boys to stay away. We want them that work in the harvest field is no soft vacation and that the money they may earn will not go far toward keeping them in school."

Laborers who enter Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas are encouraged to move northward as the advance of the season ripens the grain. The railroads co-operate by reducing fares.

The men from the south are reinforced by farm hands who were employed in the wheat states before the drought. With a sprinkling of easterners, answers the call for help in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Montana. Farther north, wheat growers rely more on the binder and the header because they believe the shorter growing season does not permit the grain to ripen evenly enough to be burned immediately after cutting, as is necessary if a combine is used.

Tucker says North Dakota alone will need at least 24,000 men if climatic conditions do not affect the crop adversely. He anticipates a call for 10,000 hands in South Dakota; 6,000 in Nebraska, 5,000 in Montana; 3,000 in Colorado, and several thousand in Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

NOTES ON THE GOP MEETING

(By Associated Press)
 KANSAS CITY, June 8.—The need of a running mate for presidential nominees was brought out here today in maneuvers preliminary to the republican national convention formal opening of a headquarters for Representative John O. Tilson of Connecticut. Mr. Tilson, republican floor leader in the house, is the first vice-presidential candidate to be represented by an office staff, John Jay Hopkins of New York is in charge.

The younger generation has entered a bid for representation in major convention activities. Among the arrivals are Osro Cobb, 23, member of the Arkansas legislature from Montgomery county, youngest delegate, and Miss Gladys Terhune of Twin Falls, Idaho, youngest national committeewoman. Miss Terhune, a businesswoman, is 31 years old.

Those convention badges threaten to be as confusing as naval insignia in an inland town. Most everyone connected with convention activities has a badge bearing glistening emblems, but only delegates, alternates and a few others may view doorkeepers with contempt. Hundreds of badges issued to entertainment committees bore the note: "Not good for admittance to convention hall."

Madame Ernestine Schuman Heink, who appeared here last spring in a farewell concert in celebration of a half century on the stage, has returned and will sing at the convention. She returned primarily to assist a group of young singers.

The national woman's party has announced appointment of a committee to present a demand for plank in the republican platform specifying "men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction."
