City offices will be closed Monday

BIG SPRING — City offices will be closed Monday in observance of Memorial Day.

All emergency personnel will be available, Moss Creek Lake will be open, and the baler/landfill will be open as usual. However, no trash pickup will be conducted on Monday. The regular schedule will be resumed on Tuesday.

Teachers protest

AUSTIN — More than 100 teachers gather outside the State Capitol Thursday in support of lawmakers' efforts to override Gov. Bill Clements' veto of the school finance reform bill. The Texas Senate has already done so; the House will vote on the issue next week. See story of 2-A.

Bentsen to speak at fundraiser

"A West Texas Evening With Lloyd Bentsen" is the theme of a Democratic fundraiser tonight at the Abilene Civic Center. The $50 per plate dinner is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

In addition to Bentsen, the state's senior senator and 1988 vice presidential nominee, U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford and Ann Richards, state treasurer and gubernatorial candidate will also attend the event.

Others expected to be present are state senators Steve Carriker, Bill Sims, Hugh Parmer and John Montford; Bob Krueger, Railroad Commission candidate; and state Rep. Dan Morales.

Tickets are available at the door.

Officials ask for farm information

CROSSROADS COUNTY — Beginning June 1, representatives from the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service will begin contacting farmers and ranchers across the state to help set the 1990 planted acreage estimates and midyear livestock inventories.

Dennis Findley, state statistician, said information from the surveys will help producers adjust their production and marketing plans for 1990.

"Good marketing requires good information and advanced planning," Findley said. "Information from these surveys will provide Texas producers with solid facts and figures they can use when making their marketing plans."

Results of the confidential interviews will be published later this summer. The 1990 planted acreage report will be released June 28 and the U.S. cattle inventory will be released July 27. To reduce survey costs, Findley is urging farmers and ranchers to return the mailed questionnaires as soon as possible. Individual reports will be combined with other reports to make estimates.

Congress wraps up aid bill for Central America

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Congress, anxious to leave town for a Memorial Day recess, wrapped up work early today on a $4 billion spending bill including aid President Bush has urgently sought for new democratic governments in Panama and Nicaragua.

The House approved the measure on a 308-108 vote and the Senate followed suit with a voice vote shortly after midnight. That sent the bill to President Bush, who was expected to sign it into law quickly.

The bill also included millions of dollars for domestic programs in the current fiscal year. But from Bush's standpoint, the most important items were $300 million to bolster the struggling new government of Violeta Chamorro in Nicaragua, and $420 million to help the economy of Panama recover from U.S. trade sanctions and last December's invasion.

Bush asked for the aid months ago, and has repeatedly hammered Capitol Hill for what he said were delays that could jeopardize fledgling elected governments in the two Central American countries.

But to Congress, where foreign aid remains an unpopular item, more important was more than $3

Graduation

Prominent lawyer succumbs to illness

AUSTIN — Big Spring attorney Guilford L. Jones Jr., 70, passed away Thursday at an Austin hospital after a 3-month struggle with cancer. Among his landmark cases during 40 years of law practice was the case which successfully desegregated Big Spring Independent School District.

According to a report written by Lorene Barbee in the Permian Historical Annual of December 1987, the Topeka, Kansas, case of Brown vs. the Board of Education of Topeka and similar cases joined for the first hearings by the Supreme Court in December 1952. A desegration order was made in May 1955.

The Court ordered that school boards make "a prompt and deliberate start and proceed . . . toward integration, but allow reasonable delays to solve administrative problems," the report states.

Members of the Big Spring board requested Jones' advice on the issue and on August 9, 1955, declared that grade school students would be allowed to attend a school in their area, regardless of race, the report states. Some local citizens were angered by the order.

A suit was soon filed by R.E. McKinney, John W. Currie, Ted O.

Owners planning to board up Permian Building

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — Owners of the Permian Building don't foresee renovating the problem-plagued building, a spokesman said, and they are planning to close it.

John Wright, Flato Realty Incorporated's liaison for Big Spring, said the San Antonio-based company feels it can't afford to keep the downtown building open any longer.

"We have suffered economic cash losses for nine years and we just can't continue to suffer," Wright said this morning from Flato's San Antonio offices. "We're going to close the building. We do not plan on renovating at this time.

"That is due to two things: design obsolescence and the economic state of Texas and lending in general."

Wright said design obsolescence has limited the building's uses. The structure's electrical system, which is dated, is set in a concrete cast floor. It cannot meet electrical demands but it cannot be replaced, he said.

Another limiting factor in the building's design, he said, is its operable windows. "When the wind blows the dust leaks in," he said. "Today you have computers and electronics that are extremely sensitive to dust."

The soft oil market and the state's savings and loan crisis also have made raising capital for projects very difficult, Wright said.

"If the need came up . . . we would get that building up and running," he said. "But we're not in a position.

"We would sell it if someone would come forward."

Flato may get its chance: Building manager Johnnie Lou Avery said she is exploring alternatives for the building's future.

Avery said that for all practical purposes the building already is closed. All but two of the building's tenants have moved out or are moving from their offices, she said.

The building is locked, and because recent flood damage from a broken water pipe caused a fire early this week, electricity has been turned off at the building, she said.

Avery said the building's future is shadowed, but she has narrowed the possibilities to four alternatives, including deeding the building to Big Spring Main Street Inc.

"Main Street has not said they will make an offer, but . . . that's one of the alternatives for us to explore," she said. "It would be something similar to the Southwestern Bell Building where we would say 'If you give us this building, we'll turn around and give it to someone else.'

"It's one of the alternatives that I'm definitely going to explore with (the owner of the building) and Big Spring Main Street. If they come down next week, then that's definitely one of the things I'm definitely going to talk about."

Southwestern Bell recently donated a vacant building at 311 Runnels to Big Spring Main Street Inc. The Main Street group in turn deeded the building to the Big Spring State Hospital for use as an outpatient clinic.

The building, which has been owned for about 40 years by Flato Realty Investment Corporation of San Antonio, has fallen into disrepair through years of neglect, Avery has said. Problems at the building began to reach a peak

End is in sight for state flood victims

By MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer

LIBERTY — An end to the worst flooding in decades was in sight today after the Trinity River crested at a record mark, but gnats spawned in floodwaters gathered in swarms lethal to animals, and some Arkansas farmers blamed water managers for crippling crop damage.

The Trinity River reached 29.98 feet Thursday at Liberty, up slightly from 29.96 feet the day before. Flood stage on the river is 24 feet and the old record high-water mark was 29 feet in 1942.

"The water will be with us for a while, but we hope we've turned the tide," said Jim Mitchum, Liberty County emergency management coordinator.

Barring another onslaught of heavy rains, officials said the river was unlikely to rise further. Upstream waters were receding and were expected to begin dropping at Liberty as early as today.

About 100 miles to the north, clouds of blood-sucking turkey gnats rose from floodwaters to menace people, poultry and other animals.

"This is probably the worst infestation of the turkey gnat in East Texas since the 1930s or 1940s," said Dr. James Robinson, an entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Overton. "We have confirmed reports of infestations in at least 14 counties, all joining or near major rivers or streams."

Turkey gnats are members of the black fly family and are slightly larger than fruit flies. Robinson said the infestations could persist for six weeks.

"We have reports of more than 1,000 head of fowl dying as a result of turkey gnat infestations," said Gayle Finch, extension agent in Henderson County. "Numerous people have called within the past two weeks reporting losses of

Woman, ex-husband indicted in death

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin woman and her ex-husband have been indicted on charges of injury to a child in the beating death of her 2-year-old son, a case that has sparked demonstrations and several investigations.

The indictments against Robbi Zuliani and Gerald Christopher Zuliani, both 23, were returned Thursday by a Travis County grand jury in the death of Christopher Wohlers, Robbi Zuliani's son from a previous marriage.

The indictments accused Zuliana of using his hand, a wall and an unknown blunt instrument in beating his stepson. Robbi Zuliani is accused of murder by omission for failing to provide protection for the child and for failing to remove the child from her husband although she knew he "was a threat to the health and safety" of the child.

The charges are first-degree felonies, equivalent to murder, and carry a maximum sentence of life or 99 years in prison.

House OKs tax; looks to override

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas senators are scheduled to take up a half-cent sales tax increase today to help pay for the Legislature's school finance reform bill, which lawmakers are trying to enact over Gov. Bill Clements' veto.

But Clements — a Republican who also opposes the tax increase — said he is convinced the Democrat-controlled Legislature will not be able to override his veto.

The Senate voted Wednesday to reject Clements' veto of the school finance reform bill. Speaker Gib Lewis said the House will try next week to follow suit.

"We already have more than enough House members committed to sustain my veto," Clements said Thursday. "It boils down to we can have a better (school finance) bill if we will reject the one we have."

Legislative leaders have said their bill, while not perfect, is the best they can pass to meet a Texas Supreme Court order to make more money available to poor schools.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said he thinks he can secure the two-thirds vote needed in the House for a veto override.

Both he and Clements predicted that the override vote in the 150-member House — which includes 60 Republicans and 90 Democrats — wouldn't be strictly along party lines.

"There have been indications to us by various members, inclusive of Republicans, that said yes, they will vote for an override," Lewis said.

Clements said, "There'll be some Democrats voting with us."

The House approved increasing the sales tax to 6½ cents on the dollar Thursday with a 94-51 vote.

Victims' families settle for $4.5 million per death

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — A company whose truck was involved in the state's deadliest school bus accident has agreed to pay $72 million to families of 16 of the dead.

Settlements finalized Thursday call for Valley Coca-Cola Bottling Co. Inc. to pay $4.5 million per death, lawyers for the families and the company said.

Parents will receive the bulk of the money, but trust funds valued from $50,000 to at least $250,000 will be established for 30 surviving brothers and sisters. The trust funds will come out of the $4.5 million total paid per dead child, lawyers said.

Mike Mills, an attorney representing Valley Coca-Cola at Thursday's hearing, declined to say how many of the soft drink concern's insurance companies would share in paying the damages.

Some of the minors will not have access to their trust funds until the age of 25, lawyers said.

Attorneys Thursday packed the small court room where Judge Juan Partida of the state's 275th District Court in Edinburg approved the settlements Thursday. The otherwise out-of-court settlements were taken before the judge because siblings receiving trust funds are minors.

"They (the families) are not going to want for many things," said attorney Abel Orendain, who was appointed to represent 8-year-old Omar Garcia, brother of deceased Abdon Garcia Jr., 14. "At least all of these kids will get educated."

Mike Mills, an attorney representing Valley Coca-Cola at Thursday's hearing, declined to say how many of the soft drink concern's insurance companies would share in paying the damages.

A truck owned by Valley Coca-Cola ran through a stop sign and knocked the school bus into a water-filled pit in the Hidalgo County city of Alton on Sept. 21, 1989. Twenty-one students drowned. Sixty students survived the wreck after escaping from the submerged bus.

In February, a family that lost a child in the wreck settled its wrongful death lawsuit with the company for $1.5 million.

That leaves four wrongful death cases unresolved.

Five companies to develop plane

Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five companies that usually compete for aerospace business will work as a team, with government permission, to develop an airplane 25 times faster than sound.

"They will work as if they were one," said Lee Beach, NASA's director of the National Aero-Space Plane project. "Each company will share in all of the data, which is a very different kind of thing than they are used to."

The goal is to have the NASP, known as the X-30, flying by 1996-1997 if the project gets a final go-ahead three years from now. The X-30 will be a research vehicle to develop technologies for planes of the future.

"This is not a full-scale development program for an operational vehicle," Beach said. "We are talking about a technical demonstration program."

The X-30 would fly directly into orbit from a conventional runway, unlike the space shuttle, which requires a booster rocket and an expendable fuel tank for launching. It also would be capable of long-range hypersonic travel within the atmosphere.

The five companies forming the new National Contractor Team are General Dynamics, McDonnell Douglas, Rockwell International, Rockwell's Rocketdyne Division and Pratt & Whitney.

"They will work as if they were one. Each company will share in all of the data, which is a very different kind of thing than they are used to." — Lee Beach, NASA's director of the National Aero-Space Plane project.

They agreed in January to end competition for developing the plane and modify fixed-price contracts with the government to reflect the team concept. A joint NASA-Department of Defense announcement Thursday confirmed the government's acceptance of the plan.

"The normal mode of operation would be to select an engine and an airframe," said Beach. "You would basically select a winner from competing designs and, therefore, good ideas from nonselected designs would not be used. In this mode, the good ideas will be put on the table and have the potential for inclusion in the final design."

Barry J. Waldman, formerly vice president and program manager of Rocketdyne's NASP efforts, was selected by the team as program director. Rockwell International will be the lead contractor.

Congress appropriated $254 million for the NASP project this year.

The immediate task, said Rockwell's Erik Simonsen, is to come up with a single configuration for the aircraft by the end of the year. "Right now, Rockwell's model, McDonnell Douglas' and General Dynamics' are slightly different shapes. Their task is to come up with a single shape," Simonsen said.

Antitrust issues raised by the teaming are not expected to be a problem since the X-30 is not a commercial product and not for profit.

Earlier this week, in an unrelated action, the French aircraft builder Aerospatiale announced an agreement to set up "an international study group" to look into the feasibility of building a successor to the aging supersonic Concorde.

Woman wants to donate embryos

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A woman who won a bitter custody battle for seven frozen embryos says she no longer wants them and will donate them to her fertility clinic, with hopes someone else can use them.

Mary Sue Stowe described her decision in papers filed with the Tennessee Court of Appeals. Her ex-husband, Junior Lewis Davis, has appealed a ruling in the couple's divorce case last September that granted her temporary custody over the embryos.

Blount County Circuit Judge Dale Young had ruled that "life begins at conception" and the embryos deserved the same legal status as children would have in custody disputes between their parents.

Young's ruling prevented Mrs. Stowe from using the embryos until the appeals were settled.

"She does not wish us to discuss her decision," Mrs. Stowe's lawyer, Kurt Erlenbach, said Thursday. "It's a very private matter and a very hard decision.

Mrs. Stowe, who remarried in December, had testified that the embryos represented her best chance to have a child.

Tornadoes hit central Kansas

BUSHTON, Kan. (AP) — Nine tornadoes hurtled across central Kansas, derailing a freight train, destroying homes and injuring at least four people, authorities said.

The National Weather Service also reported six tornadoes in Wyoming, two in Montana and one in South Dakota on Thursday.No deaths were reported in any of the twisters.

A tornado derailed 88 of 107 cars on a Missouri Pacific Railroad freight train just west of Bushton, which is about 160 miles west of Topeka. None of the train crew members were injured.

"I was doing 45 when I started putting on the brakes. We never did see a tornado," said the train's engineer, C.H. Copke. "It hit us out of the blue."

Downed power lines closed an eight-mile section of Kansas 4 between Claflin and Bushton for three hours. Great Bend resident Nolan Howell said he counted at least a dozen heavily damaged or demolished farms between those two towns.

Navy reopens Iowa investigation

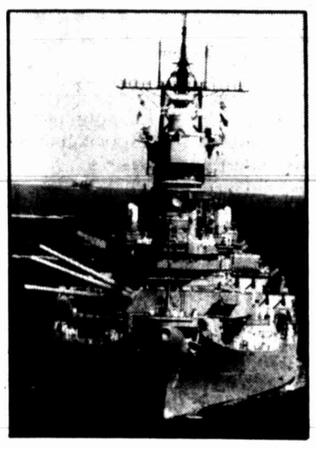

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy faces renewed doubts about its finding that a lone sailor probably sabotaged the USS Iowa, as a congressional report is expected to show that friction may have caused the blast that killed 47 sailors.

The Senate Armed Services Committee was scheduled to hear a report today on the Navy's controversial investigation into the April 19, 1989, explosion.

The hearing comes just a day after the Navy announced it is reopening its investigation into the blast and halting the firing of 16-inch guns aboard all battleships after an "unexplained ignition" of some gunpowder bags during testing.

Last fall, the Navy said the fireball aboard the Iowa "most probably" was an intentional act by the ship's gunner's mate 2nd class Clayton Hartwig of Cleveland.

The Navy accused Hartwig, who was killed in the explosion, of placing "some type of detonation device" between gunpowder bags as he supervised the loading of one of the warship's 16-inch guns.

USS IOWA

Today's General Accounting Office report was expected to show that there was no conclusive evidence that elements from an explosive device were found in the gun barrel, said Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, who represents the district where Hartwig's family lives.

Truck protest

FORT ERIE, Ontario — Canadian truckers park their rigs past toll booths at the Peace Bridge Thursday morning as truck drivers protest free trade with the United States and a goods and service tax. About 100 trucks were involved, halting commercial traffic into and out of Canada.

China policy draws congressional disfavor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress are trying to stop President Bush from giving another year of trade benefits to China, whose leaders they called butchers and pirates.

Bush announced on Thursday he would extend most favored nation trade status to China for an additional year, despite the administration's unhappiness with Beijing's human rights policies following the June 1989 massacre of pro-democracy demonstrators at Tiananmen Square.

This is the second time in a year the president has fought with Congress over China. The last time, when the issue was how to protect Chinese students studying in this country, Bush won a narrow victory.

The announcement touched off a firestorm on Capitol Hill, in part because many lawmakers thought Bush might impose some conditions on Beijing at the same time he approved trade benefits.

Most of the criticism came from Democrats, but a few Republicans were angry, too.

"The president's repeated concessions for the Chinese government have been met with intransigence," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine. "The answer is not more concessions. That doesn't make sense."

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., criticized Bush for failing to put any conditions on the one-year extension to prod China toward reforms.

"I think he faces some very severe problems here," Foley said. "At the present time, I would say there are not the votes to approve it."

Mitchell vowed to "aggressively and vigorously" pursue legislative action to revoke China's trade benefits.

Most members criticized China's human rights record. By extending favored trade status, "We are only legitimizing the bankrupt and repressive butchers of Beijing," said Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif.

One of the president's few defenders was Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa. "Closing down the economy may slam the door on political reform" in China, he said.

House Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., said earlier he would back the president.

Members didn't waste any time introducing bills that could end most favored nation status for China.

Resolutions disapproving the extension were introduced in the House and Senate. If passed, Bush could veto them. Both houses would need a two-thirds vote to override the veto.

World

Scientists: Temperatures rising

LONDON (AP) — United Nations scientists today warned that global warming has begun, temperatures will rise in the next century faster than in the last 10,000 years and that urgent measures are needed to curb "greenhouse" gases.

In addition, a separate report warns that warming poses serious threats to the planet, includig rising sea levels, the spread of disease and mass starvation in poor countries.

The world temperature is likely to increase about 1.8 degrees in the next 35 years and 5.4 degrees before the end of the next century, said a report released by a working group of the U.N.'s Intergovernment Panel on Climate Change.

Sea levels were predicted to rise by 2.3 inches each decade, or 8 inches by 2030, and 25.5 inches by the end of the next century.

These conclusions represent something of an international consensus on the scientific certainty of global warming.

A number of governments, led by the United States, have been skeptical of the phenomenon and reluctant to take severe economic and policy steps to deal with it. The United States has called for more study.

Israel rejects U.N. observers

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel is rejecting calls for a U.N. observer force in the occupied Arab territories, saying it is unnecessary because Israeli troops are already being monitored by hundreds of foreign journalists and relief workers.

PLO chief Yasser Arafat is expected today to demand the deployment of a United Nations buffer force in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip when he addresses a special session of the U.N. Security Council in Geneva.

Foreign journalists are routinely blocked from entering trouble spots, and many of 1.7 million Palestinians in the territories say the aid workers are powerless to protect them against excesses by the Israeli army.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Thursday that Israel "will not be able to accept such a decision" to set up a U.N. observer force.

Foreign Minister Moshe Arens said Israel would block any U.N. force from entering the occupied territories. He said the area, captured from Egypt and Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war, was "legitimately under Israeli control."

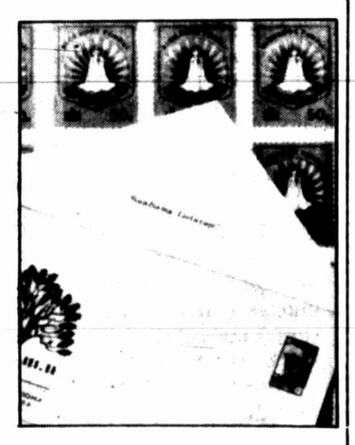

Gorbachev threatens to impose rule

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev is threatening to use his new presidential powers to take direct control of Lithuania but is also offering the secessionist republic a way to break with Moscow, a Lithuanian lawmaker says.

In his meeting Thursday with four Lithuanian legislators, the Soviet president also was quoted as saying he would lift a crippling embargo and reimburse the republic for resulting losses if Lithuania drops its 2-month-old declaration of independence.

Lithuania's fuel crisis caused by the embargo has deepened this week. Officials in the republic have said that as of today only emergency vehicles can tank up.

Also Thursday, Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov rejected Lithuania's latest compromise offer to suspend some laws promoting a break with Moscow without freezing its March 11 independence declaration.

STAMP ISSUED

Gorbachev's meeting with the Lithuanian lawmakers came one week before the Soviet leader heads for Washington for a summit with President Bush, who has urged a dialogue between Moscow and Lithuania.

Pivotal pill led 30-year revolt

There has been little fanfare about it, but a tiny item that radically has changed the weave of America's social fabric officially is 30 years old this month.

This anniversary — it hardly would be appropriate to call it a "birth" day — commemorates the Food and Drug Administration's formal approval, issued in May of 1960, of a new pharmaceutical product.

The manufacturer was G.D. Searle, the product's name was Enovid-10, and, containing what later proved to be a hefty 150 micrograms of estrogen per tablet, it was the first birth-control pill to be licensed for manufacture and sale in the United States.

Today, the FDA reports some 58 million prescriptions a year are written for derivatives, variants and pharmaceutical cousins — now produced and marketed by six major firms — of that first pill.

That makes birth-control pills one of the most-prescribed medications on the market.

More than that, however, it's hard to imagine anything in modern history — with the possible exception of television — which has had greater impact across the social spectrum in so short a period of time.

For starters, the presence of a relatively safe and orally consumed contraceptive more effective than any of the mechanical devices that were its forerunners freed both women and their sexual partners from long-held worry over the prospects of unwanted pregnancy.

That, perhaps more than any other factor, was responsible for the vaunted Sexual Revolution of the 1960s.

At the same time, "the pill's" newfound degree of individual control also freed women for greater choice in matters of far more consequence than mere sexual gratification.

Thus, these past 30 years have seen a phenomenal growth in the number of women — granted ability to choose when, if and to what degree to be tethered to traditional concepts of the homebound motherhood — in the work force.

That led to the so-called liberation movement that has opened to women the doors of virtually every career path up to and including the corporate board room.

Growing numbers of working women and two-worker households, of course, also led an economic revolution, as increased consumption created both new markets and increased buying power that in turn spurred rapid growth in everything from profits to jobs.

At the same time, however, freedoms born of the presence and widely spread use of "the pill" also have been blamed in part for both the divorce rate and rising numbers of single-parent households with which America today is plagued.

Furthermore, the pill-born shift of the contraception burden away from males additionally is held responsible for declining use of condoms, leading an increase in sexually transmitted diseases that, once on the wane, are again a cause of major concern.

All of this, of course, has been accomplished at little added risk to the health of the birth-control user.

Indeed, while there was some controversy in the early years of "the pill" over whether it increased the risk of breast cancer, discovery that now-standard estrogen doses of 30 to 35 micrograms per tablet — but a fraction of that 150 micrograms contained in the first-licensed pill — afforded adequate contraception seems to have erased even that.

The FDA's advisory committee thus recently recommended that the outward age limit for safe usage be extended beyond the heretofore recommended age of 40.

The committee cited such beneficial factors as lowered risk of unwanted pregnancy, iron deficiency anemia and ovarian an uterine cancer as far outweighing slightly heightened risks of high blood pressure, blood clotting and, among women who smoke, heart attack.

The jury likely long will remain out on whether and to what degree any of these developments have been to the benefit or detriment of society, but the truth of the matter is that, for good or for ill, little else in history can beheld directly responsible for so many significant impacts.

That merits far more fanfare than this 30th anniversary thus far has been accorded.

"Look! We're finally getting attention from the White House!"

The writer's art
A cup of au jus on the side

James J. Kilpatrick

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

A year or so ago, the Willamette (Ore.) Week set out to identify a local singing group. The Portland Camerata, said the paper, is a "16-voice acapulco choir." And it performs alternately with a mariachi down Mexico way.

Well, no. The Portland group is an a cappella choir. It sings without instrumental accompaniment, in the fashion of chapel singers of yore. The phrase is Italian, but it appears in every English dictionary.

You will surmise correctly that I am about to deliver one of my semiannual admonitions. It is an admonition every writer should take to heart: If you positively must use a foreign word or phrase, for Pete's sake, get it right!

There must be something about the French that Americans sorely envy. We mangle their lovely language in ways that cannot readily be excused.

A restaurant in Harrisburg, Pa., advertised its special menu in the Sunday Patriot-News: "Hord'derves of selected seafood items included with all dinners." Halfway across the continent, in Topeka, Kan., the Greenery Lounge promoted music by Jeannie Dieball: "Come and listen and enjoy our free hor'devours."

Tiens! Parbleu! Aaargh! Those tasty tidbits are hors d'oeuvres. Why do restaurants fall into such gaucheries? A Virginia beanery in "Historic Olde Towne Fredericksburg" advertises its "chicken Cordon Blue." In Washington state, a writer in the Olympian promotes a party to welcome the season's beaujolais: "The tasting will be followed by a dinner at 8 p.m. The a la carte dish will include coca vin, French style chicken in beaujolais wine, roast duck and rack of Ellensburg lamb."

Gracious! The Virginia chicken purportedly, doubtfully, was prepared "cordon bleu," i.e., by a master chef who has earned a blue ribbon. The Washington dish was coq au vin. And let us not overlook the Arby's in North Carolina that advertised, for a limited time only, its French dip sandwiches "with au jus on the side."

Then, too, we have the television writer in Greenville, S.C., who identified Agatha Christie as the "grand dame of suspense." She was a grande dame. In Kansas City, the Times reported, members of the minority community were urged "to vote in mass" against a proposed amendment to the city charter. That's "en masse."

It's not easy to translate an advertisement from the National Dairy Board. Its point was that dairy products contain calcium, but not just ordinary calcium. The calcium in cottage cheese or yogurt is "calcium au naturale." Such a mineral element probably is found along the border between France and Italy, where la vie au naturel is a tourist attraction.

Latin words and phrases also throw some writers. Southern Living magazine in February had a word about fighter pilot David McCampbell, who shot down nine Japanese planes in a single day. He was "a bonified World War II ace." The phrase is "bona fide," in good faith, genuine.

The Port St. Lucie (Fla.) Tribune carries a column of miscellaneous questions about miscellaneous trivia. In November a reader inquired, "Did pumpkins come from Europe?" The snappy answer was, "No, sir, vice versa." Which is to say, Europe comes from pumpkins. It seems unlikely.

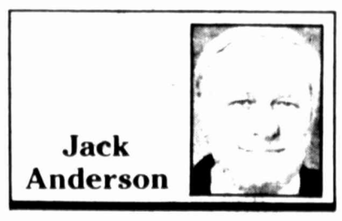

Then we have a boxing writer in Sports Form who covered a bout in Las Vegas between Julio Cesar Chavez and Meldrick Taylor. It appears that Chavez won because he has "a chin that is non-peril for any weight division." It doubtless would be a great asset for any pugilist to have a chin that is immune to peril, but this particular chin was probably nonpareil, which is to say, a chin without equal, a peerless chin, a paragon of a chin, a chin to absorb a thousand blows!

Finally, let us get straight on Greek and Latin plurals. We have one curriculum, two curricula. One criterion, two criteria. One phenomenon, two phenomena. One male alumnus, two male alumni; one female alumna, two female alumnae. A speaker's fee is an honorarium; congressmen and other speakers receive honoraria. The preferred plural of opus is opera. One datum, two data.

And, please, "media" is a plural noun. We ink-stained wretches of the press are members of the media. Our medium is the newspaper. Media are. Media have. The media generally do their job pretty well, but when some miscreants in the media try to get cutesy-wutesy with foreign phrases, they wind up with egg on their faces. And a cup of au jus on the side.

A consolation prize for Tower

Jack Anderson

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — John Tower, the former senator who couldn't pass muster to be secretary of defense, is about to be named chairman of a secretive intelligence advisory board to President Bush.

Our sources say that in two months or less, Tower will take over the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, called "piffy-ab" for its acronym, PFIAB.

Bush put Tower on the board last year as a consolation prize after the Senate refused to give him the job he really wanted, secretary of defense. He does not need Senate confirmation to be chairman of PFIAB, so the questions of womanizing, drinking and conflicts of interest that dogged him through the Senate hearing will not find a public forum this time.

But some White House officials have privately raised objections, noting that Tower would continue to work as a consultant for government contractors while he has access to national security secrets as a member of the board.

PFIAB has been around in one form or another since the Eisenhower administration, although Jimmy Carter disbanded it during his term. It exists to advise the president on the quality of intelligence he is getting from the various U.S. spy agencies. The board technically does not oversee those agencies, but it second-guesses their work and suggests ways they can do a better job.

The elevation of Tower to chairman is something Bush has wanted to do for a long time. Bush inherited most of the current members of PFIAB from Ronald Reagan, but he hasn't made much use of the board and is ready for a purge.

Knowledgeable White House sources tell us that Bush is eager to replace everyone on the board except his good friend Tower. Our sources predict it will happen in June, or later if FBI background checks on the appointees drag on.

Ironically, many of the current members are closer to Bush than Reagan, including the chairwoman, Anne Armstrong, an old Texas buddy of Bush's. In 1985, when Reagan streamlined his PFIAB from 21 to 14 members, some Reaganites complained that the members who survived the cut had closer ties to Bush.

Bush's reluctance to use PFIAB and his restlessness to restructure it with Tower at the helm may have something to do with his own days as director of the Central Intelligence Agency during the Ford administration. Ford's PFIAB decided that the CIA and other intelligence agencies were underestimating the Soviet threat.

The Ford PFIAB set up two teams to analyze that threat — the "A Team" from inside the CIA and the "B Team" made up of outside consultants. The B Team rated the Soviets as a more powerful threat than the CIA had assumed, and Bush eventually adopted that point of view to drive the CIA. But he received plenty of grief from the rank-and-file CIA members who already thought he was a political hack and didn't like being told what to do by outsiders. At the time Bush was struggling to win respect at the CIA.

In addition to being driven by somewhat sour memories of PFIAB, Bush now wants a smaller board made up of intelligence experts instead of the mixed bag of academicians, business people and consultants.

One PFIAB member told us that Bush "has not used us effectively at all. That doesn't mean that we have been inactive. But we have not had the direct and frequent contact with him as with past presidents." The board has continued to meet for several days every other month and has reported its findings to the National Security Council and the CIA.

Wedding brings back old memories

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

DAFUSKIE ISLAND, S.C. — John Woodruff and Nanci Booker got married here at the lovely Melrose Club just over the salty pond from Hilton Head Saturday night.

The groom, from Atlanta, has Coca-Cola connections and flies around in his jet helicopter.

The bride's family, originally from Kansas City, is into fitness centers. He is tall and handsome. She is blonde and beautiful.

The word was that the wedding cost around a quarter of a million. Guests were flown in by private aircraft. An orchestra was flown in from New York.

The ceremony took place out of doors in a gazebo that sits next to the 18th green of the golf course. A stiff wind blew off the ocean.

The reception was held in a tent where a faith healer could have made the entire state of South Carolina well again. Chandeliers — I think there were three of them, but I'd had a lot of champagne by then — hung from the top of the tent. Somebody said they were worth 70,000 big ones, each.

I know John. That's what I was doing at the wedding. They asked me to give a toast at the rehearsal dinner Friday night.

I was sincerely honored, but I reminded the bride and the groom that having me doing a toast at a wedding rehearsal dinner was like asking Muammar Khadafy to say a few words at a conference on world peace.

I've been married so many times — to borrow a line from the noted humorist/lawyer Robert L. Steed — I have rice marks on my face.

The wedding Saturday night was black tie. A hairdresser wore a black cape. One of the groomsman wore a pony tail and an earring. I wore socks. A man played an oboe.

The bride arrived in a carriage pulled by a large horse. The horse seemed more nervous than the bride.

There were perhaps a hundred guests. At least that many other uninvited spectators perched on the hotel's veranda and watched.

I asked the groom where he and his new wife were going to honeymoon.

"We're going to fly around in my helicopter," he said, "and then we're going to Hawaii."

I was thinking about my three weddings during the ceremony. The first one was at the Moreland Methodist church. My stepfather iced down the beer for my buddies in my mother's washing machine the night before.

We went to Myrtle Beach on our honeymoon in my blue 1966 Volkswagen, the one without any air conditioning.

I got married at my stepbrother, Ludlow Porch's house, the second time. It was sort of a rush job. Ludlow's wife hung black and white crepe paper in the living room. A preacher Ludlow found opened his Bible and began, "It says here . . . "

We drove to Savannah after the wedding and then rode a train all night to Ft. Lauderdale for our honeymoon. Our accommodations on the train were a tiny roomette because there had been a mix-up in the reservations and we didn't get a bedroom. Lucky for us Ft. Lauderdale has many chiropractors.

I got married in a church again the third time. We had the reception at my mother-in-law's house. One of my friend's tarried in the grape a bit too long and asked my mother-in-law out.

We had to put off any honeymoon because of my business schedule, so we spent our wedding night in a hotel in town. The honeymoon suite was in the basement.

I tried to remove a potted plant from a table so I could see the television. But the potted plant was bolted down so nobody could steal it.

So here's to John and Nanci, the first marriage for both of them. My toast was pretty simple. I said, basically, "Don't screw this up."

Commission: Standardized tests overused

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overuse of standardized test scores is cutting off education and job opportunities for countless children and adults who are not being evaluated fairly, a commission said today.

The National Commission on Testing and Public Policy released a highly critical study of standardized, multiple-choice tests and said educational and employment testing should be changed so that the talents of all Americans are promoted.

"We recognize that in the past some tests have been a positive force for numerous individuals and institutions," the report said.

"However, the growing overreliance on testing over the past several decades deprives the nation of much of the talent it needs and sometimes conflicts with the nation's ideals of fairness and equal opportunity," it said.

Commission Director George Madaus said the main message is to "move away from a single test score to select people, the way we've been using them, to open doors, to identify talent and to help nurture talent."

The commission report, "From Gatekeeper to Gateway: Transforming Testing in America," is based on a three-year study of more than 75 reports by scholars as well as hearings across the country.

From 1972-85, the number of state standardized testing programs grew from one to 34. This year, every state in the nation has a mandated testing program.

The study said standardized test scores often are the single barrier keeping promising students out of schools and competent employees from obtaining jobs or promotions.

Madaus said today that more is at stake than simple justice for minority groups who tend to perform relatively poorly on standardized tests.

"As a practical matter, the demographics are such that these groups are going to be more and more represented in our society," he said. "We can't afford any longer to exclude them from education and employment opportunities at which they would succeed, on the basis of a single test score."

Madaus said no other industrialized Western nation has a comparable system of standardized testing. Some use rigorous examinations at the high school or college levels, he said, "but there's nothing equivalent to the elementary and secondary school testing that we have here."

According to the study, tests may mislead as indicators of performance and scores can be affected by numerous outside factors, such as anxiety, noise level of the testing environment and test-taking habits. All tests are to some extent culturally dependent and almost always reflect the dominant or national culture in both form and content, it said.

Differences between average scores of black and white Americans are fairly substantial, the report said, and in employment tests only 16 percent of black Americans score above the median scores of white Americans. Black Americans have scored on average 100 points below white Americans on Scholastic Aptitude Tests.

In 1988, women averaged 56 points lower than men on the SAT, the study said.

Hispanics, Native Americans, native Pacific Islanders, some Asian Americans and other minorities tend to score significantly lower on many tests, the study showed.

There is too much educational testing, the study said, noting that mandatory testing consumes some 20 million school days and the equivalent of $700 million to $900 million in direct and indirect expenditures annually.

Each year elementary and secondary students take 127 million separate tests mandated by states and districts. Achievement testing is required for first graders in nine states; for second graders in nine states; and for third graders in 27 states.

The commission recommended banning standardized testing for all elementary students, especially those in preschool and first grade.

"Four and five-year-olds are simply too young to be subjected to standardized testing as a measure of achievement," said the report. "(The commission) hopes as a result of the study, many governors will rely on the findings of this report to back away from prior calls for more testing at younger levels."

In other recommendations, the commission called for:

—Re-evaluating the judging of the quality of tests, the names given to them, the way results are reported, and the ways they are used. No testing program should be tolerated that classifies people as unable to learn, it said.

—Instead of merely multiple-choice tests, candidates should supply answers, perform acts, demonstrate skills, create products and supply portfolios.

—Evaluating critically the fairness and accuracy of all test-based classifications in terms of the opportunities being allocated.

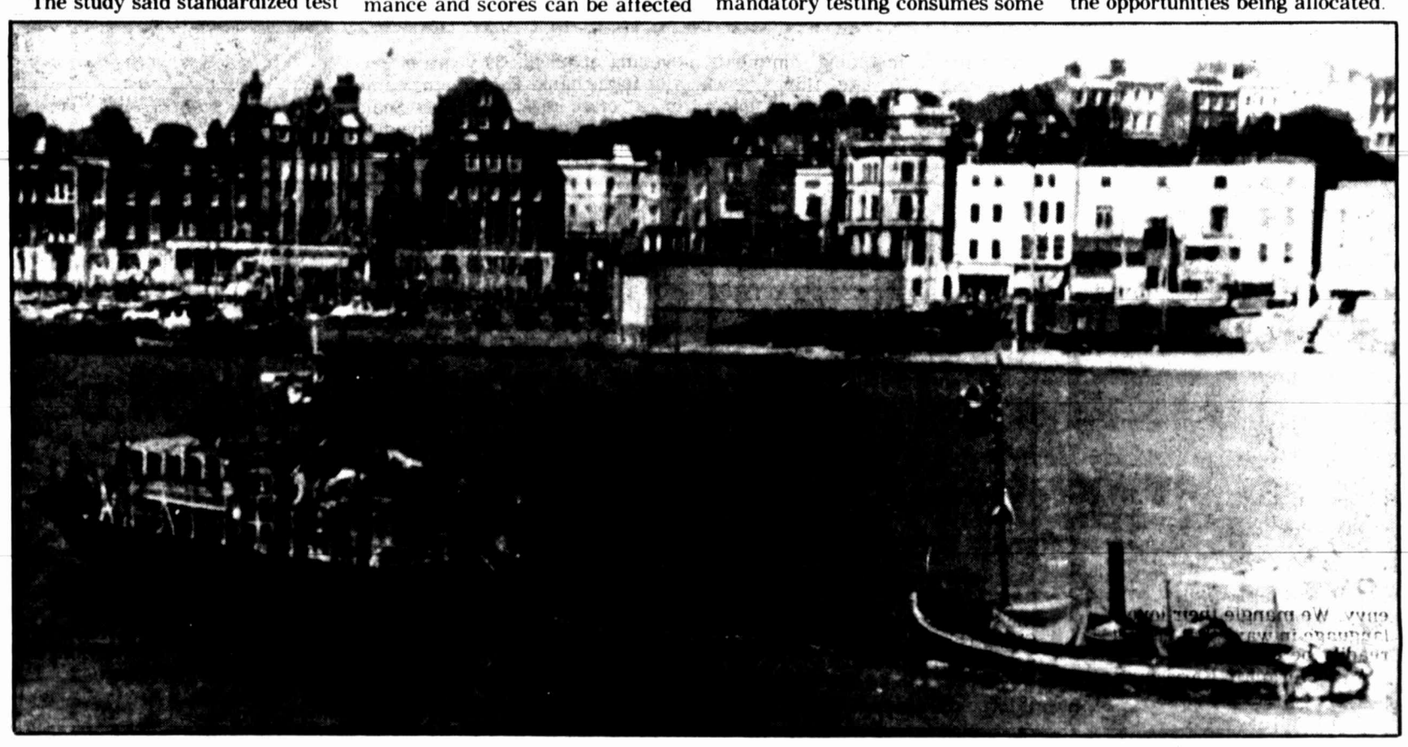

. . .tests may mislead as indicators of performance and scores can be affected by numerous outside factors, such as anxiety, noise level of the testing environment and test-taking habits. All tests are to some extent culturally dependent and almost always reflect the dominant or national culture in both form and content. . .

Ring ceremony a night to remember for C-City students

Colorado City

by Barbie Lelek
Call 728-8051

The evening of May 14 was a night that Colorado High School juniors and seniors will remember fondly. Every year near the end of school, these young people participate in a ring ceremony. Weeks prior to the event the underclassmen ask a special senior to perform in the ceremony with them. A simple ceremony where each partner takes a turn, the seniors place the juniors class ring on their finger and in return the juniors turn the seniors tassle.

Happy campers

The Cub Scouts work hard all year toward earning their different merit badges and their efforts finally paid off May 18. A parent/child campout was held at the Hughs Aquatic Base, where, following a hamburger cookout, the children were presented with their badges. Cubmaster Julie Atkins also gave appreciation awards to all the leaders.

Activities included swimming, boating, volleyball and ping pong. Come nightfall, every Cub Scout accompanied by a parent or guardian was welcome to camp overnight at the base. Many did just that bringing campers, tents or only sleeping bags to enjoy the beautiful starry sky!

Saturday morning a quick breakfast of donuts and cinnamon toast was offered. There were no formal Scout activities planned so the campers enjoyed another full day of "play", taking advantage of the wonderful weather. Cub Scout plans for the near future include a Rush-Mobile Derby at Ruddick Park during the Fourth Fest in July.

A joyful noise

Christian Temple Church hosted an old-fashioned "sing-in" May 18 to which the entire town was invited. The church was full as home folk along with many visitors from different denominations and towns came to "make a joyful noise" to the Lord.

Prom night

"I Remember You" was the theme of the 1990 junior/senior prom, which was hosted May 19. The decorations brought a ballroom look, with black and white checked tablecloths and balloons. This year's prom queen and king were introduced, they are: Brittany Bridgford and Gabriel Ornelas. A disc jockey from Del Rio, Sergio Diaz, brought excitement to the crowd as he "turned the table" with today's most popular music. Dancing can make a person hungry and if that happened, there was a table full of delicious snacks, such as fruit salad, finger sandwiches, sausages and much more. Pictures of the couples were taken in front of a ballroom backdrop.

Roasted singles

The First Baptist Church Singles are losing two of their members, but to each other! Heath Blassingame and Belinda Clayton are to wed in June. They were "honored" at a tool shower and roast May 18th at the church. Kay Kite acted as emcee, reading about several funny incidents in each of their lives as youngsters. The stories were furnished by their parents. Bill and Laverne Blassingame and Carson and Betty Clayton were special guests for the evening of fun. Ice cream and cake followed as well as a pencil and paper game. Heath was "showered" with a new tool box filled with different items. Belinda was given a basket of spices.

Banker kidnapped

Wayne Shawn belived May 17 was like any other day. The girls of the City National Bank, where Wayne will soon be retiring from had other plans. The girls arrived at his home in an open convertible adorned with loud signs to "kidnap" him. After a procession through town, horns honking, Wayne was taken to the home of Janie Henderson which was the site of the party. A supper was prepared, and afterwards Wayne was surprised with a bellydance complete with finger cymbols. As a special gift the women created a box of goodies he would need when he retired, including ointments, liniments, old age things even prunes. On a more serious note a poem written by Shirley DeLaney was presented to the man of the evening about his 39 years of service to the bank. The evening came to a close as the Kiker-Seale Funeral Home hearse arrived to take him home.

1905 Hyperion history report places first

Editor's Note: The Texas Federation of Women's Clubs recently awarded first place honors in the state of Texas to the 1905 Hyperion Club for its history report, written by Annie Matt Angel, Western District historian. The club's first 31 years were recorded by charter member Mrs. B. Reagan. The following is the report written by Angel, who has compiled the history for the past 54 years.

By ANNIE MATT ANGEL

The 1905 Hyperion Club of Big Spring was organized in January 1905. That same year the club federated with the State Federation, and in 1914 with the National Federation. The organizing officers were the first officers of the club.

They were: President, Mrs. B.F. Willis; first vice president, Mrs. Frank Tomlinson; second vice president, Mrs. A.D. Alderman; recording secretary, Mrs. John Mitchell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J.B. Young; treasurer, Mrs. V. Van Gieson; critic, Mrs. J.P. Stokes; librarian, Mrs. Verner Read; parliamentarian, Mrs. B. Reagan.

The name Hyperion means "gloriously bright and beautiful". The purpose of the club is to promote and stimulate intellectual growth among its members.

Civic improvement was the outside interest of the club from its inception. The members seriously attempted the task of a clean-up campaign. No one wanted the dumping ground. Agitation grew strong, and a mass meeting was called. The final outcome of the clean-up campaign was the incorporation of the town.

The first year State President Mrs. E.P. Turner visited the club, she enlarged our vision to our opportunities before us.

Courses of study have ranged through many subjects. Among them have been English and American history, literature, Shakespeare, Delphian courses, and extension courses.

From the very beginning we sent delegates to the district convention, and assumed our duties to help the Federation. In 1909 we entertained the district convention. We only had 12 members, but we entertained a large group from Amarillo to El Paso. An automobile ride to the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Caylor was a special feature. A dairy lunch was served from the milk house in the yard. We viewed Mr. Caylor's paintings and frontier relics. Many of these are on display today in the Heritage Museum.

In 1911-1913, a member served on the pure food committee as state chairman. She had the state superintendent of pure foods to come to Big Spring. After his lecture, food sanitation improved.

In 1915 the sixth district was organized, and we were transferred from the first to the sixth district. Many members served as various chairmen, and it was a happy association. One chairman won the silver loving cup for the best work done in the state in Americanization.

During the world war, the club joined in the various patriotic movements, and helped in Liberty Bond campaigns and war work fund. All social activities were discontinued.

The early accomplishments of the club represented a variety of projects. We installed the first sanitary drinking fountain in our school, and abolished the public drinking cup. Parks and public playgrounds were among our early accomplishments. Members furnished plants and shrubs for a city park.

Music and fine arts had a prominent place in our programs. We financed the first community chorus. We sponsored art exhibits for the public, and school children were always special guests.

We started the first library in Big Spring, and had a story hour for the children.

We organized the Junior Hyperion, and today that Junior club is the 1930 Hyperion Club. We led in organizing the City Federation, and for years furnished most of the workers.

After 31 years our club contacts grew from local club to the district, to the state, and to the national federations. We sent a representative to the National Convention in 1928.

We are now in the newly organized eighth district, and we find ourselves with enlarging opportunities and responsibilities. Tomorrow we face westward to meet our obligations.

In reviewing all scrapbooks and yearbooks of the 1905 Hyperion Club, it is revealed that we have contributed to building a better Big Spring. We enlarged our vision through district and state federation. We are now in the Western District.

During the war years we had no social activities. All our efforts were with war activities. The record shows $240,000 bonds and stamps sold, 1,000 pounds of clothing sent overseas, 800 hours of Red Cross work, 908 hours at the USO, 150 pounds of fat turned in, and we canned 1,027 cans of food. Hands were busy sewing, red cross bandages were made, and knitting needles were flying.

We have won many district and state awards and many service awards. We have contributed time, talent, money, and energy to where we are today. But we pause to pay respect to those who paved the way.

We are responsible for securing the old post office building for the Howard County Library. Always we have been interested in civic beautification, fine arts, youth programs, education, conservation, public affairs, and international affairs. We have encouraged "Get Out the Vote", and sponsored traffic safety. We have had all projects and programs required by our federation, but are ever alert to our needs at home.

We assisted in organizing the first museum, and furnished the first woman president of the museum. We have had many Girl Scout leaders, workers at the Veterans Hospital, made flower arrangements for the altar at the State Hospital. We made and furnished surgical bandages for cancer patients. One of our members on the American Cancer Society Board headed a campaign that collected more old sheets than any town in Texas. We transported crippled children to Midland before we had the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. Many of our members have served on the YMCA Board, Concert Board, and Chamber of Commerce. From our club has come a "Teacher of the Year" and a "Woman of the Year."

In 1955 we celebrated our Golden Anniversary — truly a "Golden Jubilee". We organized a "Jubilee Hyperion Club". Today it is the 1955 Hyperion Club.

Our money making projects have been bake sales, rummage sales, book reviews, and "The Follies".

These 75 years have been wonderful to review. 1980 was a special year . . . our "Diamond Jubilee Year". Each member was a facet that made the diamond shine brightly. Our Jubilee celebration included a "Jubilee Coffee and Antique Show." All seven Hyperion Clubs in the city were invited. We had a "Diamond Jubilee Federation Tea", and had as guests all federated clubs of the Western District. We were honored to have our District President Mrs. John Clearley. The "Diamond Jubilee Finale" at the Rich Anderson Ranch was a friendship supper, and a night to always remember. The food, the program, the fellowship was enhanced by the background: A sprawling ranch home that said, "Welcome!" cattle by windmills, oil derricks, sky that met the horizon, and miles and miles of pastures.

After 75 years all is not over. With faith and vision in our hearts we move forward to meet the responsibilities of the future. Lord, help our diamonds to continue to shine.

"After 75 years all is not over. With faith and vision in our hearts we move forward to meet the responsibilities of the future. Lord, help our diamonds to continue to shine." Annie Matt Angel.

Mansion-faith vs shack-faith

By LEO FREE
Special to the Herald

Have you ever heard a seemingly humble Christian say: "Oh, Jesus doesn't have to give me a mansion, I'll be happy with just a shack out back. If I just make it to Heaven I'll be happy." There's even an old hymn somewhere that drones on about a "cabin in glory". If you run into a Christian like that, get away quick!! The Bible says not to hang around unbelievers!! And that person doesn't just 'not believe', He doesn't even know what to believe in! They're caught in an artificial religious humility. They have what I call shack-faith in God.

They'll believe the most basic gospel message about Jesus dying for their sins and buy into that. Primarily because no one wants to go to hell. But, beyond that there's nothing. Nothing here! I mean nothing in their faith here on earth to believe in or hope for. Jesus' prayer teaching, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in Heaven," is just a rote memory prayer that has nothing to do with reality in their life.

No wonder so many churches see declines in growth. The people are not free to believe in the wonders that the Bible proclaims. And you know, if you're not free — you haven't been dining on truth! (. . . truth shall make you free. John 8:32).

Let's consider a couple really simple biblical truths and we'll try to get back on the road to 'mansion-faith'. Remember that Jesus said He went away to prepare a place for us and that in his father's house were many mansions? (John 14:2). If shack-faith is that beggerly I-just-hope-I-make-it kind of faith, then mansion-faith is, God's not only going to save me, I believe he's going to use me to enrich the lives of others also!

OK, let's begin building our mansion-faith with a proper foundation. You realize, don't you, that the foundation you lay will determine the size of the structure you'll end up with. In others words, if you only have a couple inches of unreinforced concrete, you won't be able to put much weight on it. Our foundation in life is critical in affecting who we are and what we shall become. Consider the richness in this simple verse:

"For no other foundation can anyone lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ." (I Cor. 3:11).

There is no other foundation for life or faith other than Jesus Christ, himself! We can't build how we baptize or when we believe Jesus is going to return. We can't build on our education or money, good looks, family influence. There is no other foundation for life and faith other than Jesus Christ, himself!! All those other things are OK, and are indeed a part of our life, but they are sadly insufficient for a foundation.

No wonder so many churches see declines in growth. The people are not free to believe in the wonders that the Bible proclaims.

Some have heard it for years, but still it's the thing least understood and most quickly taken for granted. Namely, "Christianity is not a religion, rather it is a relationship." If we can ever get a hold of the reality of that statement our lives can truly be unlimited. We have access to a living person! GOD himself opened a way to get to know him, through Jesus Christ. As we do, get to know him intimately, our lives can grow in every area. Our mind, heart and being can be enriched on every level.

There is no other foundation for life or faith other than Jesus Christ, himself. We can't build on how we baptize or when we believe Jesus is going to return.

That's if we are willing to get to know his mind, heart and being. Consider this prayer in the Bible:

"I keep asking that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the glorious Father, may give you the Spirit of wisdom and revelation, so that you may know Him better" (Eph. 1:17)

As we get to really know our Lord, we soon discover that he not only loves us personally, but that he wants to use every one of us to extend his love to others. How can we do that with shack-faith. That beggerly attitude can't see far enough to help one, much less the multitudes.

Where shack-faith can bearly stand, mansion-faith is indeed grand! Many rooms here in the mansion. Enough for me and plenty of guest rooms in my heart to love and serve others with. I've often thought how amazing it is for folks, Christian folks that is, to be able to believe that someday they'll live forever in some wonderland in the sky, but can't believe God for substantial help to live here and now and have enough to love others with as well.

One simple principle, Get to know Jesus Christ more personally for yourself and your life, and the lives of those you touch, will never be the same. Jesus Christ is awesome!! Have you talked to him lately? Did you take time to listen to him talk back to you? How about the Father? Has he become daddy to you yet? OK, how about the Holy Spirit? Is he your teacher? Your guide? Your comforter? What do you mean, you didn't even know these things were possible? What have you been doing.

You are not leaving your spiritual growth totally in the hands of someone else are you?

Consider another prayer that Paul prayed over us:

"I pray also that the eyes of your heart may be enlightened in order that you may know the hope to which He has called you, the riches of His glorious inheritance in the saints, and His incomparably great power for us who believe." (Eph. 1:18, 19a).

If this prayer stretches you because basically you haven't the faintest idea what Paul is praying for us about. Why not get after discovering, for yourself, your foundation again. Jesus Christ! Get to know him better! In Colossians 2:3, Paul shares with us again that " . . . all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge are hidden in Christ." Well? Who is going to dig those treasures up? Who is going to unlock that incomparably great power? Who is going to comprehend the glorious inheritance in the saints? You? Me? Your preacher?

"Everyone that asks, receives; and he that seeks finds; and to him that knocks, it shall be opened to him." (Luke 11:10).

It's time that each one of us started knocking on some kingdom doors, isn't it? It's time to extend that little ol' shack's foundation and begin adding on some extra rooms of possibilities. Who knows, in a little while, someone may turn in observation of our life and say, "His life is so rich and full of love, it's like he's living in a mansion.

Prison crusader sees lesson for United States in Soviet prisons

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Charles W. "Chuck" Colson probably has been in as many prisons as anyone, including serving a term in one. His latest incursion — into the lockups of the Soviet Union — turned up an approach he considers lacking in this country.

CHARLES COLSON

They have "better organized work programs," said the veteran traveler of the behind-bars circuit and fervent advocate of bracing up prisoners, body and soul.

"It's an area where we can learn something from the Russians," he said in an interview. "One of the troubles with American prisons is that we don't give inmates meaningful work. That can drive a person crazy."

Colson is head of Prison Fellowship, a group based in Reston, Va., that has grown into a worldwide organization to bolster religious faith among prisoners and seek reforms in the system.

Talking about the work programs in the two countries' prisons, he said, "The Russians are doing a better job of it."

That was his conclusion after a rare visit inside five Soviet prisons with a U.S. Department of Justice delegation at the invitation of the Soviet Bureau of Internal Affairs.

"All of them had work programs, including for juveniles," he said. "It was especially good in a women's prison. Everbody had a job. There was plenty of work to do. They got two-thirds of the going wage for their work.

"They were paid bonuses if they produced more. They were charged for room and board. Morale was excellent. I told them they were more capitalistic than on the outside. They didn't understand that.

"It's one of the best industry work programs I've seen anywhere in Europe or the United States."

Colson, who became a staunch Christian after serving seven months in prison as a Watergate conspiracy offender, started his prison organization in 1976. He has since visited prisons in 28 countries, including about 300 in the United States.

He said most of the Soviet prisons he visited, one the remote Perm 35 where several notable political prisoners once were held, remained repressive, restricting mail and family visits, but all had work programs.

Developing such productive programs would improve American prisons, he said. It's a reform also advocated by retired Chief Justice Warren Burger, but opposed by labor and businesses as unfairly competitive.

Since human beings are "made in the image of God, purposeful and creative" work gives a person "a sense of purpose in life," Colson said. "Take away that sense of purpose and you kill him.

"To deprive him of work is to deprive him of human dignity. That's one of the worst things we do in American prisons."

Colson's Prison Fellowship conducts Bible-training seminars in about 600 U.S. prisons, with courses given 50,000 inmates last year, served by 33,000 volunteers.

Also last year, 50 work-release programs were conducted in each of which several prisoners were furloughed for community renovation projects.

"The movement is spreading very rapidly," Colson said, noting the group has chartered programs in 39 countries and some work in 20 others.

He also expects it to be functioning soon in the Soviet Union at the invitation of Interior Minister Vadim Bakatin, who Colson said told him crime was up sharply and religion needed.

"They welcome it," he said. "The Russians thoroughly realize they need religious values to give order to society."

Colson said a training program was planned for the Soviet Union in June, with Russian Orthodox, Baptist and other denominations invited to participate.

Colson, 58, a Baptist, added: "Ironically, the Russians for pragmatic reasons want religion and we're trying to eliminate it. It's crazy. It's one of the great ironies of history."

For example, he noted the U.S. Supreme Court has banned display of the Ten Commandments at public schools, but said a committee of the Soviet Academy of Sciences is studying how to integrate the commandments into education.

"They're now treating them as the greatest moral code ever," Colson said. But "Americans, wallowing in self-indulgent materialism, are working to expurgate religion from every area of life."

He attributed the unexpected overturning of communism across Eastern Europe to an overflowing of pent-up spiritual energies, citing its church-based origins in Poland, East Germany and Romania and similar processes elsewhere.

However, he contended, the U.S. government and news media had largely ignored the religious impetus, as they did prior to similar upheavals in Iran and the Philippines.

U.S. embassies typically "don't understand it," he said. "They don't know what's going on. The spiritual is hard to discern and they're just not with it. They don't look beneath the surface. Intelligence satellites can't see into human hearts.

"When we take our political measurments, we count the nuclear situation and gross national product, but mark religion as a throwaway."

Partly, he said, it's a result of "religious illiteracy" among journalists and other analysts.

"But there's also a bigotry that won't take religion very seriously," he said. "There's a denial of religion by our cultural elite as irrelevant and simple-minded. So we don't see it when it's there."

Proposed roadway could bypass 'Crossroads Country'

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

CROSSROADS — Big Spring could possibly lose it's designation as the Crossroads of West Texas if an idea is realized to extend Interstate 27 south from Lubbock and through Midland.

The idea may be pushed at a June 20 public hearing in Austin, when officials seek input on the selection of highway routes for the Texas Highway Trunk System. At the meeting a planned four-lane divided highway system for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation will be discussed.

Ten public hearings have been held around the state since last fall for the plan, which so far proposes to turn approximately 4,000 miles of roads into four-lane divided highways, including Highway 87 from Big Spring to Sterling City.

This could be the last public hearing, said Robert Cuellar, of the highway department's transportation planning division in Austin.

One idea that may be pushed is the extension of Interstate 27.

"Something like that would have to be pushed through a public hearing," said Fred Nelle, an engineering technician with the highway department's district office in Odessa.

Some people want to extend the interstate down through Midland, Nelle said.

Another option is to extend it along Highway 87, which goes from Lubbock through Big Spring. It is the crossing of Highway 87 — which goes on to Port Lavaca at the coast — and Interstate 20 that gives Big Spring the recognized title of Crossroads of West Texas.

Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, who is pushing for the interstate extension to come through Big Spring, is concerned that Big Spring could lose that designation.

"We feel right now that that is the natural route," he said. "Our theme that we used for years is the Crossroads Country."

The disagreement with the extension of Interstate 27 is the only one that Fraser has in this district. The only other highway ugrade proposal in the district is Highway 158 from Midland to Sterling City. That is also an upgrade that could be considered for designation as the further extension of Interstate 27, which would then continue back on Highway 87 through San Angelo.

The June hearing, will be at 10 a.m. in the Lyndon Baines Johnson Auditorium, Cuellar said. Sign-in will be at 8 a.m. Speakers will be taken on a first come, first serve, basis and will be limited to five minutes each. Groups should have only one representative.

Cuellar said the proposal will be considered by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission for adoption. That could take place during their July 31 meeting.

The upgrading of 4,000 miles of highways is expected to take 30 years at a cost of $5 billion, Cuellar said. When it is finished, there will be more than 10,000 four-lane divided highways in the system.

Help from informants leads to arrests

BIG SPRING — Confidential information leading to a swift arrest of a burglary suspect this week has Sheriff's Department officials optimistic that a rash of rural burglaries may be solved.

Winford Dewayne Allen, 34, was arrested Wednesday in connection with a burglary reported Sunday. It is one of about a dozen burglaries that have occured since the beginning of the year, a department official said.

"This is one rural burglary that's been cleared," Sheriff A.N. Standard said Friday. "We hope this will be a spinoff on clearing up some other burglaries."

In another arrest, a man suspected of stealing several tractors in West Texas, including one in Howard County, was caught about a month ago, Standard said. He is being held in Jack County and is awaiting transfer here.

Items such as generators, air compressors and hand tools, other farm equipment and appliances are being stolen in the burglaries, Standard said.

"This seems to be kind of the going thing," he said. "They're so easy to move, to transfer, to sell."

There is no indication that the burglaries are connected to any one source, said Deputy Jack Howard. "I think we've got one or two groups working on this, maybe three groups," he said. "Nothing that intertwines."

In the burglary of a farm 14 miles north of here on Highway 87, reported Sunday, all the items were recovered on either Tuesday or Thursday, following an investigation which led Howard to Clyde and Abilene. They include a satellite receiver, color television, microwave oven and clothing. A male and female were arrested in Clyde.

Standard said they are encouraging county residents to watch for any unusual activity. Many of the burglaries have occured in barns, which seem to be easy targets, he said.

In an unrelated case, it was again confidential information which led to another arrest Thursday, Standard said.

Jimmy Tito Alatorre, 25, who escaped through an air duct in the Kimble County Jail in Junction about a year ago, was arrested at his home in Big Spring by deputies Howard and George Quintero.

Alatorre offered no resistance to the deputies who had waited for him as he came home from work, Standard said.

Standard said the information provided in both cases could lead to rewards. "We're going to run both of those through CrimeStoppers," he said.

about two weeks ago when water pipes broke on two successive nights, causing water to run from the roof down through each of the building's six floors.

Tenants' dissatisfaction with the building and its out-of-town owners reached a breaking point Monday when a fire in broke out in the penthouse, causing minimal damage. The fire marshall has said the blaze started with a water-damaged electrical outlet.

Avery said the San Antonio-based owners have three other alternatives besides giving the building to Big Spring Main Street Inc.

"The first one is to board up the building," she said. "The second is to sell the building to someone who would be interested in doing something with the building. The third would be to renovate the building."

Meanwhile, the electricity at the building is off and will stay off "until the Flatos come down and make a decision to have the repairs made . . . because it's a dangerous situation," Avery said.

"There are people who are in the process of moving out," she said. "A lot of people on the third and fourth floors are having to hook up generators to have enough light to move out of the buidling."

Two businesses remain, she said, but the owners have been on vacation throughout the recent spate of problems.

"I know that as soon as they get back they will (move)," she said. "Even with the best possible scenario, it's going to take six months (to renovate the building) and these people are going to have to have temporary quarters anyway."

Avery said she thinks all of the tenants would have stayed if they had received immediate notice from the owners that the building would be repaired.

"It's such an inconvenience because first of all we don't have enough good office space where you can rent a whole floor or a tiny office," she said. "It's the only office building in town that has a large parking lot . . . and the fact that it's in the very center (of town) makes it so critical that we have that building.

"I would have walked away from that silly thing nine years ago," if it weren't so important.

"Really," she said, "the only answer is to get it into the hands of someone who understands that, and that's not an absentee landlord."

chickens, ducks, geese, guineas and birds."

The gnats also can inflict painful bites that raise itchy red welts on humans.

"Some people have gone to the doctor for treatment of bites. We are finding the bites to be worse than mosquito bites," said Denise Easterling, a veterinarian in Leon County.

Train service across the Trinity River and a nearly 100-year-old bridge was remained detoured as crews worked to stabilize a 300-foot trestle knocked askew by floodwaters.

The bridge was built in 1904, with later construction in 1919. The river has come within 7 inches of railroad ties.

Texas officials estimate that about 10,000 people statewide have been forced from their homes by storms and flooding that began late last month in northern Texas.

Nearly $1 million for temporary housing has been given to families forced from their homes by the high water. Federal agencies have received requests for help from some 4,123 Texas families.

No deaths or injuries have been blamed on the floods along the lower Trinity River.

billion in new "emergency" spending for dozens of domestic programs, from food stamps and veterans benefits to a fish farm in Arkansas.

In what amounts to the first application of a "peace dividend" from reduced East-West tensions, roughly half of the new spending is being paid for by cuts in this year's proposed Pentagon budget — cuts agreed to by the administration.

Some of the additional spending, such as a $185 million FBI automated fingerprint lab planned for Clarksburg, W.Va., was attached by powerful lawmakers seeking favors for their home states and districts. The fingerprint plant was added by Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

Then there was Rep. Neal Smith's $6 million provision to buy land near Des Moines, Iowa, from a power company and turn it into a wildlife refuge. Smith, a Democrat, argued on the House floor that the purchase was "an unusual and unexpected opportunity." The 3,200 acres was originally purchased by Iowa Power for a nuclear generating plant, but those plans were abandoned years ago.

Republicans complained that the provision was a special-interest item cooked up behind closed doors, and noted that it was opposed by the Fish and Wildlife Service. "Here we are talking about ducks and pelicans," said Rep. Harris Fawell, R-Ill. "It seems to me we ought to be discussing this in a county board meeting some place."

But the Democratic-controlled House voted 246-160 to leave the provision in.

The bulk of the domestic additions were items wanted by both Congress and the administration, such as the $1.2 billion needed to make up a shortfall in food stamp funds for the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30; $545 million for veterans benefits; $166 million for Head Start, and $432 million for fighting forest fires.

There also was $110 million to help the Census Bureau finish its lagging 1990 head count and $216 million for disaster aid, primarily for Southern states affected by flooding and hurricanes.

Lightning blamed for fire near Vealmoor

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

VEALMOOR — A fire broke out last night on an oil lease one mile southwest of Vealmoor, said C. Roy Wright, chief of the Howard County volunteer fire department.

A 500-barrel tank of crude oil was struck by lightning during a thunder storm in the area, Wright said. The Howard County Sheriff's Office reported they received the call at 9:01 p.m.

Volunteer fire fighters were dispatched from the Silver Heels, Tubbs, Luther and Sand Springs stations.

A small grass fire was quickly extinguished by rain which reportedly began to fall soon after the fire began, Wright said. The Luther station workers, first to arrive on the scene, took control and as others arrived the tank fire was extinguished with foam in a matter of minutes, Wright said.

"We got it out in less than two minutes and waited around about 30 more (minutes) to cool things off," he said.

The fire occurred on the Minnie-Veal oil lease belonging to the Texas Crude Oil Company, Wright said. The company could not be reached by phone this morning. An employee of Williams Oil Field Construction Company at Vealmoor, which works with Texas Crude, said he was in contact with workers this morning and was given full details of the event.

Oil field worker Sonny Anderson said a storm came up suddenly beginning at about 9 p.m. last night. About a half inch of rain fell, accompanied by lightning and some hail, he said.

Anderson said tanks like the one ignited last night would normally hold up to 500 barrels of crude oil, with 42 gallons in each barrel. He said the Texas Crude tank was reported to be empty at the time of the fire.

About 10 inches of vapor in the bottom of the tank were enough to ignite the blaze, Anderson said.

Grobel and Roy Bruce against the state commissioner of education, state comptroller, school Superintendent W.C. Blankenship and members of the board. The suit asked that state money be prohibited from use in the integration process.

Before and during the trial period, the report states, Jones was called "one of them" by groups opposing integration. Board members were reportedly harrassed as well.

In the trial which began Friday, August 26, 1955, Jones won the case as the judge ruled promptly that the integration of Big Spring was in keeping with the recent law. An appeal made to the Supreme Court went to trial September 19.

The Court ruled unanimously that Jones' arguements for the district were valid in its final decision October 12. It ruled that state funds could be spent for the integration, and that Texas was required to comply with the law though it had not been a party in the original suits filed.

There were no records kept about the race of children in Big Spring schools that year, the report states. Records show that the district began compliance with the integration law in August of 1955.

Jones, a graduate of the University of Texas and of the U.T. School of Law, served 11 years as District Attorney for Howard-Martin-Glasscock County District.

The World War II veteran had been active with the Big Spring Country Club, Lions Club, Boy Scouts, United Way, Salvation Army and Republican party. His family has asked that memorials be given to the Guilford L. Jones Jr. Memorial Scholarship Fund, which provides assistance for Big Spring High School students who want to attend the University of Texas.

Two Hawks All-Region

BIG SPRING — Two Howard College Hawks were named to the All Region V baseball team.

Making the team were freshman third baseman Jeff Schulz and sophomore center fielder Tim Demerson, who just signed a contract with the New York Yankees.

TIM DEMERSON

McLennan Community College and Hill had the most players named to the squad; three each.

Demerson, from Lamesa, was a two-year starter from Lamesa. He made the transistion from first baseman to outfielder well, leading the Hawks in batting both seasons. Last year he batted .424. This year he batted .383, but upped his numbers in extra base hits, runs batted in, and stolen bases.

In his Howard career he's batted .392, driven in 58 runs, hit nine home runs and stolen 45 bases.

Howard assistant coach Frank Anderson announced yesterday that Demerson signed with the Yankees organization.

Schulz, from Bismark, N.D., played third base and shortstop for the Hawks. This past season he batted .372, third highest on the Hawks team. Schulz hit nine homers, second highest on the team, and led the team in RBIs with 53. He also stole eight bases and led the team in extra base hits with 35.

JEFF SCHULZ

The Hawks finished the season 47-14-1 and ranked number nine in the nation in the final regular season poll.

Ex-OU coach gulity on drug count

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former University of Oklahoma assistant football coach Scott Hill is free on a $10,000 personal recognizance bond after pleading guilty to one felony count of cocaine distribution, a federal prosecutor says.

U.S. Attorney Tim Leonard said Hill entered the plea March 30 in federal court in Houston. Leonard said he understood sentencing in the case would be held June 8.

"We allowed him to transfer the case to Houston because he was living in Houston," Leonard said Thursday.

Hill was accused of distributing one gram of cocaine in Oklahoma City "on or about" February 1986, Leonard said. That would have occurred while Hill was still on the Sooner staff.

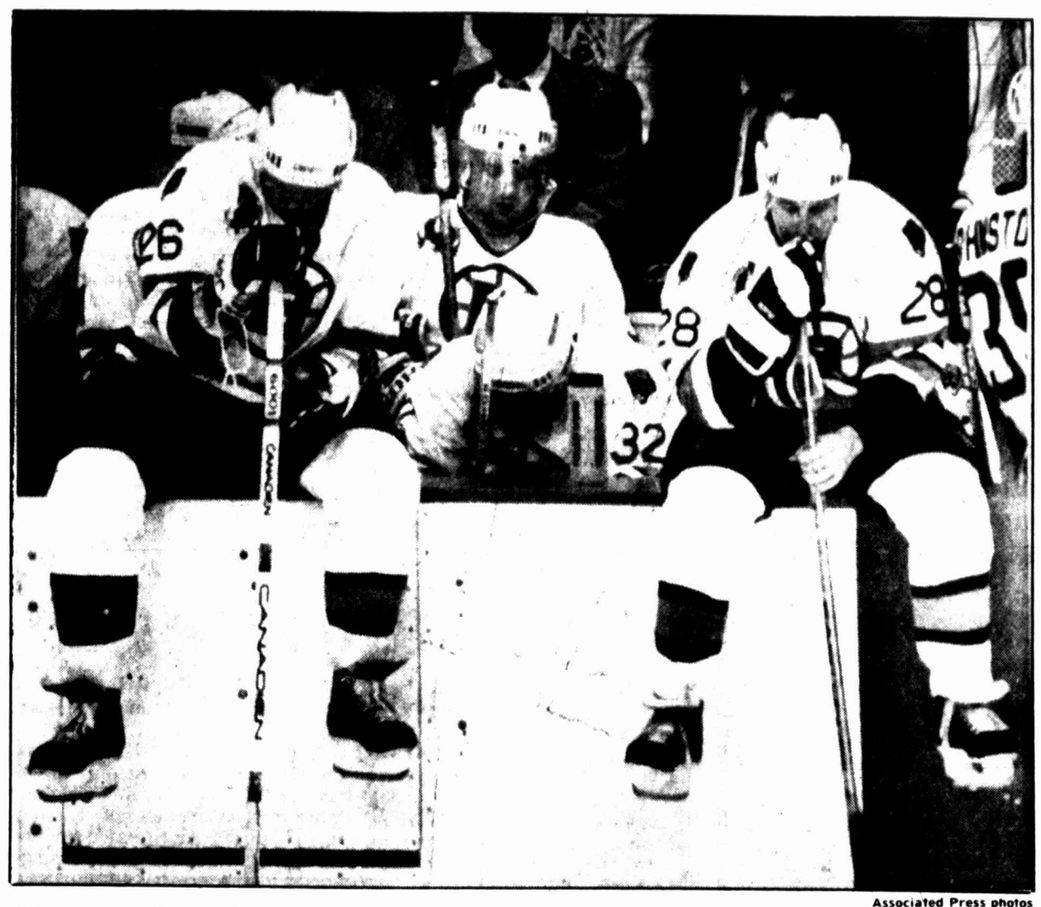

The drug violation carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison and a maximum fine of $125,000 and a term of special parole of at least three years, Leonard said.

Hill, 36, resigned in March 1989 at the request of David Swank, who was serving as the university's interim president. Regents said Swank requested Hill's resignation because of Hill's role in NCAA violations that led to the football program being placed on three years' probation.

Oilers win Cup

BOSTON — Edmonton Oilers goalie Bill Ranford holds the Conn Smythe trophy, awarded to the Most Valuable Player.

BOSTON (AP) — The Edmonton Oilers have proven they can win a Stanley Cup with Wayne Gretzky in Los Angeles, Grant Fuhr on the sidelines and Glen Sather in the front office.

"We weren't even supposed to compete this year and we showed a lot of character," said goaltender Bill Ranford, one of the biggest surprises on the surprising Stanley Cup champions.

Ranford, a backup to the ubiqutious Fuhr before the season started, was their No. 1 goaltender at the end, concluding with Thursday night's series-clinching 4-1 victory over the Boston Bruins. That gave the Oilers their fifth NHL title in seven years and their first without Gretzky and Fuhr in the middle of it and Sather behind the bench.

Fuhr, the Oilers' star goaltender in their four previous Stanley Cup-winning seasons, was a spectator this time because of a shoulder injury.

But the biggest missing link to the past was Gretzky, the game's greatest player and the Oilers' leader before his shocking trade to the Los Angeles Kings two summers ago.

John Muckler was an assistant coach then, under Sather, also the general manager who masterminded Stanley Cup champions of 1984, 1985, 1987 and 1988.

Sather stepped out as coach last season and Muckler stepped in, losing nothing in the transition.

Although the Oilers didn't win the Smythe Division, as they had in the past with Gretzky, the world's best player, and Fuhr, probably the world's best goalie, they put themselves into position to win the playoffs.

After finishing second in the Smythe to defending Stanley Cup champion Calgary, the Oilers beat Winnipeg, Los Angeles, Chicago and finally Boston for their fifth Cup. That gave them as many NHL championships in seven years as the Bruins have in 65.

"A lot of people looked upon them as a struggling team during the season," Boston captain Ray Bourque said of the Oilers. "But their defense was definitely underrated.

"They're big guys and play a solid game. They are an excellent skating team. Ranford played well in the playoffs as well."

Ranford played well enough to win the Conn Smythe Trophy as most valuable player, something Fuhr never did.

The 23-year Ranford, whom the Oilers obtained from Boston for Andy Moog, was the backbone for Edmonton once he got over a bad opening game against Winnipeg.

"They (the Bruins) needed a goalie to go to the Stanley Cup and they acquired Andy Moog," Ranford said. "He got them there. It gave me an opportunity to get there, too."

The Oilers, who had an unremarkable 38-28-14 record during the season, almost didn't make it past the first round of the playoffs. They were down 3-1 to the Jets before coming back to beat them in seven games, only the seventh team to rally from such a

Rick Mears takes different approach while preparing for Indianapolis 500

INDIANAPOLIS — Three time Indy 500 winner Rick Mears, of Bakersfield, Calif., watches as his crew prepares his car for practice Thursday.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The little things can make a big difference in the Indianapolis 500.

Speed is what nearly everybody concentrates on during the weeks of practice and days of qualifications leading to the race.

But Rick Mears, one of the favorites in Sunday's 74th running of the world's richest and most prestigious race, used the week's only practice session to work on comfort and stability.

"The main thing we do in this practice is get comfortable in the car," Mears said Thursday following the two-hour "Carburetion Day" session, the only time between the end of qualifications and the race the 33 starters are allowed on the 2½-mile oval.

"It's the day we take a look at driver comfort things; what will affect you in the race," the three-time Indy winner said. "That's things like the placement of the mirrors, where the pedals hit and the padding in the seat."

Mears, who lost the spotlight this month to defending champion and teammate Emerson Fittipaldi and last year's second-place finisher, Al Unser Jr., drove his Penske-Chevrolet to a fast lap of 222.750 mph Thursday in racing trim.

Fittipaldi — who won his first Indy pole with a four-lap qualifying average of 225.301, breaking Mears' year-old record of 223.886 — was right behind at 221.593.

Mears started the month as a strong favorite to win a record third consecutive pole, but lost ground to Fittipaldi and Unser before the start of qualifications when both turned laps over 228, unofficially the fastest ever at Indy.

His qualifying run of 224.215 was good enough to eclipse his old record, but only good enough for second place in qualifying. But Thursday, on a sunny, nearly windless day, Mears was again the fastest.

Mears had admitted he was unhappy with his qualification run and that the car was not handling as well as he would have liked.

"We had it pretty good, but the car just wasn't as happy as I would have wanted it," he said. "The difference between a happy car and

Lady Skins time

FRISCO (AP) — There's a different kind of pressure in a Skins Game. Just ask Nancy Lopez.

"In regular tournament play, you're thinking about winning, about trying to win the tournament," Lopez said Thursday. "You're not thinking about the money — not unless you really need it.

"But in the Skins Game, winning money is your goal. That's the whole point."

Lopez will be joined in the pursuit of money this weekend by JoAnne Carner, Betsy King and Jan Stephenson in the LPGA's first Skins Game.

The two-day, 18-hole, made-for-television event is scheduled Saturday and Sunday at the Stonebriar Country Club in the northern suburbs of Dallas.

At stake will be $450,000, the same amount offered in the PGA Tour and the Senior Tour skins games.

"It's nice to note that we're keeping up with the men," said Lopez, who is second on the LPGA's all-time money-winning list. A Hall of Fame member, she counts three LPGA championships among her 42 career victories.

They four will play this weekend for $15,000 on each of the first six holes, $25,000 on each of the next six and $35,000 on each of the last six. The low score on each hole wins. But it must be a clear victory.

Unknown tied for lead

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Steve Lowery doesn't have a PGA Tour playing card, but he did have a share of the first-round lead in the Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I guess it is a surprise to find me tied for the lead," Lowery said Thursday after a late-day successful stroll over the hills of the 7,018-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

His 6-under-par 66 moved him into a share of the first-round lead with two early finishers, former Masters champion Larry Mize and Australian Wayne Grady.

Lowery lost his card after his only season on the tour, 1988, when he ranked 157th on the money list with $44,000. He won $38,699 to rank 174th while playing as a non-member last year.

The former University of Alabama golfer made five of his six birdies putts from 12 feet or less and also sank a 20-footer on No. 16.

Mize, who chipped in to beat Greg Norman in a playoff for the 1987 Masters title, and Grady, winner of last year's Westchester Classic, each had eagle-3s to highlight their rounds.

All three of the leaders started play on the 10th hole.

Mize's eagle came on the 11th where he chipped in from 35 feet. Grady rolled in a 25-foot putt for his eagle on No. 18.

The trio had a two-shot lead over a group of 10 at 68, including South African Nick Price and Scott Hoch, who lost the Masters in a playoff with Nick Faldo last year.

Forty-four players in the 176-man field bettered par.

Mum's the word as far as Mike's concerned

CHICAGO (AP) — Everybody is talking about Michael Jordan. For a change, Michael Jordan isn't talking to anybody.

Jordan left practice Thursday without saying a word, just as he did Tuesday night in Detroit following a 102-93 loss that left the Bulls down 0-2 to the Pistons in their best-of-7 NBA Eastern Conference final.

"It's not my idea to put words in his mouth," said Bulls coach Phil Jackson. "That's his decision. He has to think for himself. He has been a willing participant with the press all throughout his career."

Jordan reportedly criticized his teammates at halftime Tuesday before the Bulls put on a scoring drive that gave them a one-point lead before the team collapsed.

"I only heard the final five or six words from Micheal," Jackson said of his halftime tirade. "He was demanding that his teammates get together and make an extra effort. What's wrong with that?"

General Manager Jerry Krause also spoke on Jordan's behalf.

"He is probably the most widely quoted and widely talked to athlete among the media in sports today," Krause said. "He has a right as a human being to have a night when he needs to be by himself.

"I think our team was insulted by Tuesday night's effort, and now we have to use it as a weapon."

Detroit coach Chuck Daly expects Jordan's blowup to spur the Bulls.

"He's their emotional and physical leader, and they'll play better because of what he said and did," Daly said. "As far as I'm concerned, the series starts Saturday."

The series will continue with games in Chicago Saturday and Monday afternoons. If the Pistons don't wrap it up with a sweep, Game 5 will be played at Detroit Wednesday night.

"I'd like to get it over in as few games as possible," Daly said.

Although the Pistons, led by Joe Dumars, who scored 27 points in the first game and 27 Tuesday night, have dominated the series, Daly is concerned.

"When you can make up 16 points as they did, you can see how good they can be when (Jordan's) on fire," Daly said. "We need to win at least one of these games, which really would set us up.

"Jordan will be much better and (John) Paxson will be much better because they'll be closer to full health."

Jordan has been hampered with hip and wrist injuries, and Paxson has been hobbled with a bad ankle.

Dallas Sidekicks out of playoffs

DALLAS (AP) — Paul Wright scored two goals and San Diego's defense shut down the Dallas Sidekicks to win the Major Indoor Soccer League Western Division finals with a 3-1 victory at Reunion Arena Thursday night.

San Diego, two-time defending MISL champions, won its third consecutive game for a 4-to-2 series victory.

The Sockers earned a rematch with the East Champion Baltimore Blast in the MISL Championship Series. San Diego defeated Baltimore, 4-3 in last year's finals.

Dallas broke a scoreless streak of 135:37 when Beto got a power-play score for a 1-1 tie 2:08 into the fourth quarter. It was the Sidekicks' first goal since early in the third quarter of Game 4.

Beto tapped-in a rebound from Doc Lawson's initial shot.

But the Sockers answered 30 seconds later when Wright beat two Dallas defenders for a goal. Wright took a long pass from Waad Hirmez, outraced Troy Snyder and Wes McLeod and put a low shot past onrushing goalie Krys Sobieski for a 2-1 lead.

The Sockers clinched the victory when Branko Segota got a goal against Dallas' sixth-attacker with 23 seconds remaining. San Diego, which scored first in five of the six games, took a 1-0 lead into the final quarter on Wright's third-quarter goal from Segota's assist.

Segota, who got only his second assist of the series, spun around defender Wes McLeod and fired a pass off the end boards to Wright, whose tap-in shot skimmed under the crossbar 2:55 into the second half.

Sobieski made eight saves and San Diego's Zoltan Toth seven n ia scoreless first half.

Aikman, mom in commerical

IRVING (AP) — Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman will be seen on TV quite a bit this year, but his supporting cast will be his mom and not his team.

Aikman and mother Charlyn are being featured in a commercial for the United Way.

While the commercial was being filmed Wednesday at an equestrian center, one youngster asked Aikman if the Cowboys would be featured more on national television.

"I'm afraid not, pal," Aikman said, shaking his head. "Not until we start winning."

Aikman is stepping into some pretty big shoes in filming the United Way spots. Last year's Cowboys representative for the league-endorsed TV spots, was former Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach.

Director Mario Pellegrini was complimentary, yet critical as the filming proceeded.

"The curls look natural," he said, while trying to fix Troy's hair. "But if a few get out of place, you look like Goldilocks."

Mayor sports new shirt to meeting

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mayor Lila Cockrell said it made her feel "absolutely silly," but she lived up to the agreement she made with Portland Mayor Bud Clark concerning the outcome of the NBA playoff series between the San Antonio Spurs and Portland Trail Blazers.

The two city officials had agreed that the mayor from the losing city would wear a T-shirt sporting the name of the winning team at the next city council meeting. The Spurs lost the seventh game of the playoff series in overtime, 108-105.

Houston wins tournament opener

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Houston head coach Bragg Stockton said a good scouting report helped his team to a 4-2 win over Georgia Tech.

"Their three, four and five hitters are about as good as you can get. But we gathered enough information on them to know that teams that have beaten Georgia Tech usually pitch a right-hander with a good breaking ball," Stockton said.

Lewis' home run at the bottom of the second inning — his second homer of the year — was the game's first run. He doubled in the fifth and scored from third base on an error by short stop Mike Reynolds.

Fred Hinijosa hit a fourth-inning home run for Houston. Pitcher Keith Darter added their other run when he scored on a single by James Wamback.

Reynolds homered for Georgia Tech, his fifth of the season.

The Yellow Jackets left 11 men on base, seven in position to score.

"We made a couple of mental mistakes that probably cost us a couple of runs," Tech coach Jim Morris said. "We just didn't get the key hits with guys on base."

Darter (8-6) went 5 1-3 innings for Houston, giving up one run on six hits while striking out three and walking four. Al Benavides picked up his second save.

Tech starter Mike Hostetler (12-4) went 5 2-3 innings, allowing two earned runs on eight hits with three strike outs and four walks.

Longhorns facing UTA

In Austin Kirk Dressendorfer, Texas' ace pitcher, says he doesn't mind pitching in relief, but his tendinitis problems have sent coach Cliff Gustafson scrambling for starters.

Gustafson will start bullpen closer Chris Gaskill when Texas (48-15) plays Texas-Arlington (31-28) in the NCAA Central Regional playoffs today at Disch-Falk Field.

In other games, fifth-seeded Creighton (46-20) plays second-seeded Clemson (42-20) and No. 4 seed Old Dominion (40-17) faces third-seeded Cal State-Fullerton (32-21).

"The best way I can help the ballclub is to come out of the pen," said Dressendorfer, who is 12-3.

Top-seeded Texas is in the NCAA playoffs for a record 36th time, while No. 6 seed Texas-Arlington is playing in its first NCAA playoff game. But the Longhorns aren't taking the Mavericks lightly.

Dressendorfer said Mavericks' hitters are well disciplined. Tony Villaros leads the Mavericks in most offensive categories and boasts a .323 batting average.

Mavericks coach Butch McBroom said his team has its ups and downs but manages to play well in big games.

"I never now what they're going to do. We're capable of getting beat by a bunch of guys you pick out of the stands and the next day we're capable of beating anybody in the country," McBroom said.

The Creighton Bluejays hope to continue their record-breaking season while Clemson tries to break its slump.

Clemson coach Bill Wilhelm, who has led the Tigers for 33 years without a losing season, said his team has to forget its past six games.

The Tigers dropped five of those, including a stunning 6-5 loss to North Carolina State in the Atlantic Coast Tournament. Clemson had a 5-0 lead after seven innings.

"We need to snap out of a little slump," Wilhelm said. "It's very important we play well early. In order to make our presence known, we're going to have to do an about-face."

The Tigers face a formidable Creighton pitcher, Dan Smith, a 6-foot-5, 190-pound lefthander, touted as one of the best college pitchers in the country.

Smith's 13-3 record and 1.71 ERA helped the Bluejays to their best season ever at 46-20, and their first NCAA playoff appearance in 17 years.

Viola still can't beat San Diego

By The Associated Press

Frankie "Sweet Music" Viola usually does a number on National League batters, but his strings are out of tune when he faces the San Diego Padres.

Since coming over to the New York Mets from the Minnesota Twins last summer, Viola is 12-4 with a 2.33 ERA against the rest of the league. Against the Padres, he is 0-3 with a 7.27 ERA, yielding 26 hits and 16 runs — 14 earned — in 17 1-3 innings.

That includes Thursday night's 5-4 loss during which Viola gave up five runs — four earned — and eight hits in 3 1-3 innings, his shortest outing of the season. After winning his first seven starts and yielding only five runs and 28 hits in 48 innings, Viola has lost two straight to San Diego, giving up 11 runs — 10 earned — and 16 hits in 11 1-3 innings.

While Viola was struggling, Andy Benes held the Mets to three hits in seven innings, singled twice — his first two hits of the year — and drove in two runs.

Viola surrendered RBI singles to Roberto Alomar in the first inning and Tony Gwynn in the second and an RBI double to Garry Templeton in the fourth.

Phillies 8, Braves 4

Von Hayes snapped a 6-for-31 slump with a homer, triple and single and drove in four runs as Philadelphia won its third straight. Lenny Dykstra had three hits to raise his major league-leading average to .411 and drove in a pair of runs as the Phillies moved within one-half game of idle Pittsburgh in the National League East.

Bruce Ruffin (3-4) went five innings for the victory, yielding three runs and six hits. Marvin Freeman pitched four innings of two-hit relief for his first major-league save. He gave up a seventh-inning homer to Jim Presley, his third.

The Phillies fell behind 2-0 in the first inning but scored four times in the second against Marty Clary (1-3). They loaded the bases on two walks and Darren Daulton's infield hit. Dykstra singled to tie the game and Randy Ready and Von Hayes followed with run-scoring singles.

Hayes had an RBI triple in the fourth and the Phillies scored their final three runs in the sixth off Rick Luecken, two on Hayes' seventh homer.

Reds 7, Expos 1

Ron Robinson scattered four hits over six shutout innings and Billy Hatcher paced a 13-hit Cincinnati attack with three singles and a double. Robinson (2-1) struck out two and walked two while Eric Davis, Todd Benzinger and Ron Oester each had two RBIs as the Reds snapped Montreal's four-game winning streak.

The Reds scored four times off Kevin Gross (5-3) in the fourth inning. Consecutive singles by Chris Sabo, Hatcher and Barry Larkin produced the first run, a walk to Paul O'Neill loaded the bases, Benzinger hit a sacrifice fly and Oester followed with a two-run double.

The Reds added three more in the fifth when Davis greeted Bill Sampen with a two-run double after Hatcher doubled and Larkin walked. Davis scored on Benzinger's single.

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis Cardinals Vince Coleman is tagged out by San Francisco Giants Jose Uribe during a run down between first and second in the first inning Thursday afternoon.

Cardinals 3, Giants 2

Vince Coleman hit a two-out home run in the 12th inning, his second of the season, off reliever Ed Vosberg (0-1) to send the Giants to their fifth setback in six games. Giants relievers had retired 17 straight batters between Coleman's double in the seventh inning and his game-winner.

"It's one of those things you dream about," Coleman said. "You want to be that hero. A jubilating feeling goes over your body when you're on the basepaths."

Coleman went 3-for-4 with two walks and a stolen base on a pitchout. He had two triples Wednesday night and is 11-for-23 against the Giants this season.

"Coleman's a hell of a weapon," Giants manager Roger Craig said. "He can beat you in a lot of ways."

Frank DiPino (1-0), the fifth St. Louis pitcher, got the last out in the 12th for the victory.

The Giants had tied the score 2-2 in the eighth on Robby Thompson's two-run double off reliever Ken Dayley. John Tudor blanked the Giants on three hits through the first seven innings but was replaced with one out in the eighth after issuing two walks.

Dodgers 15, Cubs 6

Mike Scioscia and Lenny Harris each drove in four runs and Juan Samuel had four hits, including a homer. The Dodgers' 15 runs and 20 hits were season highs and helped make an easy winner of Fernando Valenzuela (4-3).

Harris, whose four RBIs were a career high, capped a six-run third inning with a three-run triple. Scioscia, who had a solo homer in the fourth, keyed a five-run seventh with a two-run single.

Clemens and Red Sox mow down Royals

By The Associated Press

Roger Clemens loves to see Kansas City come to town.

Clemens pitched a five-hitter as the Boston Red Sox beat the Royals 4-1 at Fenway Park Thursday night. Clemens improved his lifetime record against Kansas City to 10-1, including 5-0 against Royals starter Mark Gubicza.

The right-hander's only loss to the Royals was a 2-0 decision at Kansas City on April 16, 1985.

"I wouldn't have known about that if you hadn't told me," Clemens said when asked about his record, including nine victories in a row over the Royals. "They've given me trouble at certain times."

Clemens (7-2) struck out seven and walked only one to improve his lifetime record to 102-47.

Luis Rivera drove in two Boston runs with a single and a sacrifice fly, while Dwight Evans and Pena had RBI singles. Rookie Terry Shumpert drove in the Royals' lone run with a fifth-inning single.

Rangers 3, Tigers 2

Rafael Palmeiro's home run in the seventh inning snapped a tie as Texas edged Detroit at Tiger Stadium in a battle of veteran pitchers.

Charlie Hough (5-2) beat Frank Tanana, who allowed only four hits in pitching a complete game. Hough gave up three hits in six innings but walked eight. Kenny Rogers pitched 2 1-3 innings and Jeff Russell got the last two outs for his eighth save.

Athletics 13, Brewers 1

Dave Stewart became baseball's first eight-game winner and Jose Canseco hit two long homers as Oakland beat visiting Milwaukee.

Stewart (8-1) allowed four hits and an unearned run, struck out six and walked none in seven innings. He has allowed one earned run or less in seven of his 10 starts.

Twins 5, Yankees 4

Pinch-hitter Gary Gaetti's high chopper back to the mound with the bases loaded scored Shane Mack with one out in the ninth inning as Minnesota beat New York at the Metrodome.

White Sox 5, Orioles 3

Chicago beat Baltimore for the fifth time in 10 days as Ron Kittle hit a three-run homer and Dan Pasqua had two RBIs.

Kittle's homer, his eighth, capped a five-run fourth inning in which the White Sox had five straight hits off starter Jay Tibbs (2-5).

Scott Radinsky (4-0), who replaced starter Jack McDowell in the fifth, didn't allow a hit in 2 1-3 innings and got the victory.

Indians 5, Mariners 3

Candy Maldonado surpassed his home run total of last season with his 10th homer to lead Cleveland past Seattle at the Kingdome. Maldonado, who signed as a free agent with the Indians, hit nine homers in 345 at-bats with San Francisco in 1989.

Gibson rehabilitating injury in minor league

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Kirk Gibson's batting stroke remains solid, but his future major league plate appearances still rest on a scarred and shaky left knee.

Gibson, recovering from a torn left hamstring that sidelined him for the final three months of the 1989 season, flied out and singled Thursday against Colorado Springs pitcher Rod Nichols as he began a 20-day rehabilitation assignment with Albuquerque, the Los Angeles Dodgers' Triple-A affiliate in the Pacific Coast League.

After his four-inning stint, Gibson said he was generally satisfied with the results, but conceded he's not sure when he'll be ready to rejoin the Dodgers.

"This thing will dictate how long I'm here," said Gibson, pointing to the left knee. "I'll see what I can do. I think it was a good start and hopefully everything will feel good tomorrow. I think I pushed it a little bit."

Gibson, 33, had not played since last July, when he underwent surgery to repair a slight tear in the hamstring near his left knee. Doctors said Gibson may have initially injured the hamstring while sliding into second base in the 1988 championship series against the New York Mets.

an unhappy car in qualifying is a lot different than happy or unhappy in the race. In qualifying, you're shaving everything right down to nothing. Your adjustments in the race are not as fine because you have to have the car ready to run 200 laps, not just four."

Following Fittipaldi was Michael Andretti at 220.496, with Arie Luyendyk of the Netherlands, the other front row starter, next at 220.135.

The only other driver over 220 was 1969 winner Mario Andretti, Michael's father and fellow second-row starter, at 220.097. Geoff Brabham, who will start on the inside of the seventh row, was strong at 219.855 — faster than his qualifying speed — with Unser at 219.593.

All starters, along with first-alternate Salt Walther, made it onto the speedway oval during the practice.

There were no crashes or spins. The only incidents were blown engines in the cars driven by 1986 winner Bobby Rahal and Canadian rookie Scott Goodyear.

"That's about the best conditions we've seen this month," Mears said. "We made a couple of small adjustments, nothing serious."

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Swing Era clarinetist Artie Shaw marked his 80th birthday by taking a swipe at the current music scene.

"Now, Madonna goes out there in a jock strap and that's called music. It isn't music," Shaw said Wednesday during a City Council tribute to the jazz legend, who reached his commercial peak in 1938 with "Begin the Beguine."

"He's one of the all-time talents," said Councilman Ernani Bernardi, a jazz afficionado who called Shaw's music "absolutely timeless, priceless stuff — far superior to what people listen to today."

Council President John Ferraro said Shaw's works "may not be well known to Madonna fans, but they are still favorites of people of my generation."

ARTIE SHAW JOHN DENVER

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — John Denver received a standing ovation from the group he has blamed for threats to the planet — corporate executives.

The singer, songwriter and activist mixed song, poetry and a save-the-Earth message in an address Tuesday to corporate real estate executives and developers at the Industrial Development Research Council's 1990 World Congress.

He blamed greed and corporate shortsightedness for various threats to the planet, then was caught off guard by a standing ovation from the audience.

"I was shocked — very surprised," said Denver, 46. "I think it's surprising that they are listening."

deficit.

"We never lost confidence in ourselves," Muckler said. "We felt that we could come back. There were three games to play and we had two at home.

"We felt that if we could win the fifth game, we would have a good chance. I can remember in the third period (of Game 5), when they came back to tie us 3-3. From that point on, it was all Oilers. We just came up about two or three notches higher than they could stand. That's the sign of a champion."

The Oilers then swept Gretzky's Kings and beat Chicago in six before wrapping up the finals Thursday night.

The clincher was typical of the Oilers' performance in the finals. They jumped to an early lead and their defense did the rest.

"We played awfully well defensively," Muckler said.

Cam Neely, Boston's 55-goal scorer during the regular season, couldn't agree more. Neely didn't have a goal in the five-game series.

"They played us differently than during the regular season," he said.

Indeed. The Oilers hadn't beaten the Bruins in six games (0-5-1) during the regular season for the past two years.

Grant who?

BOSTON (AP) — Early in the second period, Boston Bruins center Craig Janney finally shedded his "shadow," Edmonton super-pest Esa Tikkanen, and got the puck in the clear.

"I walk in alone and he stops me, and then they go down and score," Janney said. "It was that way the whole series."

The "he" to whom Janney referred was Oilers goalie Bill Ranford, who stopped that shot and 28 others Thursday night as Edmonton beat Boston 4-1 to win the best-of-7 Stanley Cup finals in five games.

Almost as much as the Oilers were Wayne Gretzky's team then, they were Grant Fuhr's. Gretzky often called Fuhr — who backstopped Edmonton's title teams of 1984, 1985, 1987 and 1988 — the NHL's greatest goalie ever.

But Fuhr suffered a variety of injuries and illnesses.

Hung jury in murder trial

HOUSTON (AP) — After four days of deliberations, a Harris County jury was unable to reach a verdict in the case of a man who faced capital murder charges in the slaying of a woman whose young son watched her being stabbed 48 times and pleaded for her life.

State District Judge Jim Barr on Thursday declared a mistrial for Darrel Wayne Davison, marking the first time since the Texas capital murder law came into effect in 1974 that a Harris County jury has failed to return a guilty verdict in a death-penalty case.

Since Tuesday, the jury had been locked in an 11-1 margin favoring conviction. Foreman Reginald Wood said jurors were unable to convince the 12th panel member.

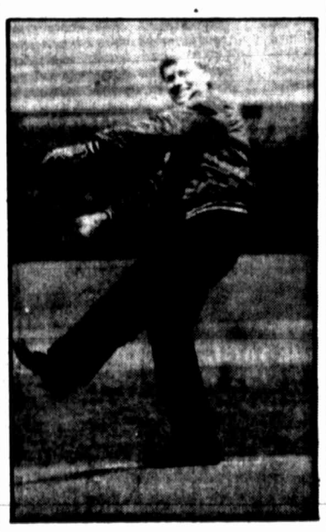

Anonymous donor pays tax bill

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An anonymous donor will pay the bill for a Christian organization that had property seized by the IRS last week for failing to pay taxes.

The donor, who wished to remain anonymous, wrote a check Thursday for $24,339, said Chriss Liden, director of Christ Is The Answer Crusaders Inc. The amount includes penalties and interest.

"My accountant is coming by today (Thursday) and is going to pay the IRS tomorrow," Liden said.

The IRS added about $3,000 to the bill to cover transportation costs, Liden said.

State debates I-27 extension

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

CROSSROADS — State officials are exploring the possibility of extending Interstate 27 south Lubbock through Midland.

The idea may be pushed at a June 20 public hearing in Austin to seek input on the selection of highway routes for the Texas Highway Trunk System.

It is a planned four-lane divided highway system for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation. Ten public hearings were held around the state since last fall for the plan which so far proposes to turn approximately 4,000 miles of roads into four-lane divided highways, including U.S. 87 from Big Spring to Sterling City.

This could be the last public hearing, said Robert Cuellar, of the highway department's transportation planning division in Austin.

One idea that may be pushed is the extension of Interstate 27.

"Something like that would have to be pushed through a public hearing," said Fred Nelle, an engineering technician with the highway department's district office in Odessa.

Some people want to extend the interstate down through Midland, Nelle said. "That has been a proposal by some groups," he said.

Another option is to extend it along U.S. 87, which goes from Lubbock on through Big Spring. It is the crossing of Highway 87 — which goes on to Port Lavaca at the coast — and Interstate 20 that gives Big Spring the unofficial title of Crossroads of West Texas.

Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, who is pushing for the interstate extension to come through Big Spring, is concerned that Big Spring could lose that designation. "We feel right now that that is the natural route," he said. "Our theme that we used for years is the Crossroads Country."

The disagreement with the extension of Interstate 27 is the only one that Fraser has in this district. The only other highway ugrade proposal in the district is Highway 158 from Midland to Sterling City.

Mason Lodge a landmark for more than 80 years

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ
Staff Writer

STANTON — Sixty years of service may be a longtime for most people, but for three Stanton residents it's just time passing by.

Horace Blocker and Rex and Preston Kelly have all accomplished that feat. Since 1930 these three gentlemen have quietly kept busy for Masonic Lodge No. 951 of Stanton, helping with the Masonic School and Old Mason Home located in Ft. Worth.

The Masonic School is an accredited learning center designed to help underprivileged children. The Old Mason Home is a retirement facility for senior Masons.

Blocker and the two Kellys were recently honored at a ceremony in which each man was presented with 60-year pin.

Blocker became a Mason Nov. 13, 1928 and a Master Mason Feb. 12, 1929. Rex Kelly has been a Mason since April 27, 1929 and a Master Mason since July of that year. Preston Kelly joined on May 15, 1929, and was promoted to Master Mason three months later.

The Stanton lodge, established in 1907, is part of what is considered one of the oldest organizations in the world. "The lodge was called to meet on the night of April 6, 1907 in the hall over the First National Bank," a 1938 copy of the Stanton Reporter stated.

The report went on, "The Grand Master along with the Grand Lodge of Texas installed the first officers. They were: Dr. M.E. Campbell; Master, C.S. Robinson; Senior Warden, C.T. Allen; Junior Warden, J.H. Epley; Treasurer, S.W. Pratt; Secretary, A.B. Miller; Senior Deacon, and A.L. Houston; Junior Deacon.

"The bylaws of Midland Lodge No. 623 were adopted with some minor changes. The second and fourth Saturday nights of each month were selected as regular meeting nights. On Dec. 6, 1907, Stanton masons were granted a charter," the report noted.

The first cornerstone was located on the Northeast corner of the courthouse and placed by District Deputy D.H. Duncan.

The Masons' current building is located on the Lamesa Highway. It was built by the members on donated land. Only one other organization, the Eastern Star assemblage, uses the Masons' facility.

This coming year, the Master for the Stanton organization will be Mitch Holt. He will have the task of

Trinity waters crest, killer gnats on rise

By MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer

LIBERTY — An end to the worst flooding in decades was in sight today after the Trinity River crested at a record mark, but gnats spawned in floodwaters gathered in swarms lethal to animals, and some Arkansas farmers blamed water managers for crippling crop damage.

The Trinity River reached 29.98 feet Thursday at Liberty, up slightly from 29.96 feet the day before. Flood stage on the river is 24 feet and the old record high-water mark was 29 feet in 1942.

"The water will be with us for a while, but we hope we've turned the tide," said Jim Mitchum, Liberty County emergency management coordinator.

Barring another onslaught of heavy rains, officials said the river was unlikely to rise further. Upstream waters were receding and were expected to begin dropping at Liberty as early as today.

About 100 miles to the north, clouds of blood-sucking turkey gnats rose from floodwaters to menace people, poultry and other animals.

"This is probably the worst infestation of the turkey gnat in East Texas since the 1930s or 1940s," said Dr. James Robinson, an entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Overton. "We have confirmed reports of infestations in at least 14 counties, all joining or near major rivers or streams."

Turkey gnats are members of the black fly family and are slightly larger than fruit flies. Robinson said the infestations could persist for six weeks.

"We have reports of more than 1,000 head of fowl dying as a result of turkey gnat infestations," said Gayle Finch, extension agent in Henderson County. "Numerous people have called within the past two weeks reporting losses of chickens, ducks, geese, guineas and birds."

The gnats also can inflict painful bites that raise itchy red welts on humans.

"Some people have gone to the doctor for treatment of bites. We are finding the bites to be worse than mosquito bites," said Denise Easterling, a veterinarian in Leon County.

Flooding, an early killing freeze and high winds caused an estimated $235.67 million in losses to the state's farmers and ranchers, the Arkansas Farm Bureau said Thursday. The losses amount to 28 percent of their usual net income.

Flood damage far outweighed other weather-caused problems, officials said.

"We had one farmer with about 2,000 acres, and he hadn't seen it since the first of May," said Frank Plafcan, staff director for the Jefferson County Extension Service.

Farmers from Oklahoma and Arkansas who gathered for a meeting in Fort Smith, Ark., on Thursday with Army Corps of Engineers officials complained about perceived flood control shortcomings.

A different kind of find

CHICAGO (AP) — Researchers at the University of Chicago have found many things over the years — the speed of light, the controlled nuclear chain reaction and the treasures of ancient Persepolis.

Over the weekend, about 1,300 young scholars sought "finds" of a different kind in the school's fourth annual Scavenger Hunt.

The students came up with items ranging from "1,000 points of light" to human bologna sandwiches.

The hunt determined "how low people would go," said Steve Kornya, a senior from Huntsville, Ala. "When it comes to crunch time and you need points, is somebody willing to smear himself with a couple quarts of condiments and lunch meat?"

At least eight students were willing. They wrapped themselves in five loaves of bread, 16 ounces of mayonnaise, an 8-ounce jar of mustard and a pound or so of bologna each.

Students had 72 hours, from Thursday to Sunday, to assemble the objects, performances and answers to questions on the 303-item list.

An item asking for "your mother wearing combat boots (with ID)" produced one mother, by plane, from Minnesota, said Michael Sherman, a junior from Albany, N.Y.

Many fulfilled the 1,000 points of light requirement by puncturing holes in a piece of paper and shining a light bulb behind it.

carrying on a Stanton tradition that began in the early 1900s.

Speaking of tradition, the Stanton assemblege has had its share, including a five-generation family of Masons: S.J. Standefer, L. Standefer, Edgar Standefer, M.C. Standefer and M.C. Standefer Jr.

Other members about to celebrate their golden anniversary as Masons are: O.B Bryan, Doc Bristow II, Charley Christopher, Ted Yates, M. (Tex) Gibson, Richard C. Haley, G.I. Madison, F.O. Rhodes, R.K. Rogers, Dan Saunders and H.L. Shipp.

Throughout the years the Masons have contributed their time and money for the betterment of the community. They also have worked with charitable organizations to aid people in need of a helping hand.

Aside from the Masonic School, Masons also help unfortunate children through the Scottish Rite. The Masonic Lodge helps produce films about dyslexic children that deal with the problem, and other films on world education have been provided by the organization to elementary schools.

The Masonic Lodge offers a yearly award to deserving students, with teachers selecting the individual from the area. The Mirabeau B. Lamar this year went to Grady High School senior David White.

That is also an upgrade that could be considered for designation as the further extension of Interstate 27, which would then continue back on U.S. 87 through San Angelo.

The June hearing will be at 10 a.m. in the Lyndon Baines Johnson Auditorium, Cuellar said. Sign-in will be at 8 a.m. Speakers will be taken on a first come, first serve basis and will be limited to five minutes each. Groups should only have one representative.

Cuellar said the proposal will be considered by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission for adoption. That could possibly take place during their July 31 meeting.

The upgrading of 4,000 miles of highways is expected to take 30 years to construct at a cost of $5 billion, Cuellar said. When it is finished, there will be more than 10,000 four-lane divided highways in the system.

Congress finishes work on foriegn aid bill

WASHINGTON — Congress, anxious to leave town for a Memorial Day recess, wrapped up work early today on a $4 billion spending bill including aid President Bush has urgently sought for new democratic governments in Panama and Nicaragua.

The House approved the measure on a 308-108 vote and the Senate followed suit with a voice vote shortly after midnight. That sent the bill to President Bush, who was expected to sign it into law quickly.

The bill also included millions of dollars for domestic programs in the current fiscal year. But from Bush's standpoint, the most important items were $300 million to bolster the struggling new government of Violeta Chamorro in Nicaragua, and $420 million to help the economy of Panama recover from U.S. trade sanctions and last December's invasion.

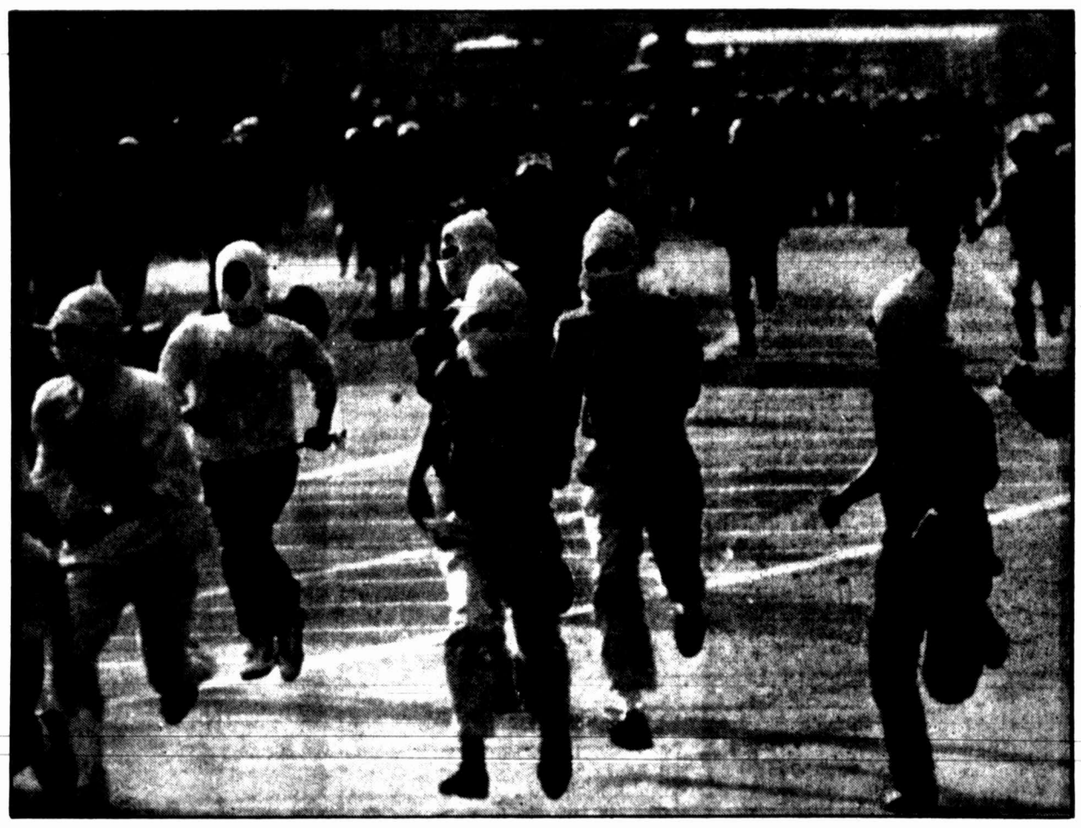

Bush asked for the aid months ago, and has repeatedly hammered Capitol Hill for what he said were delays that could jeopardize fledgling elected governments in the two Central American countries.

But to Congress, where foreign aid remains an unpopular item, more important was more than $3 billion in new "emergency" spending for dozens of domestic programs, from food stamps and veterans benefits to a fish farm in Arkansas.

In what amounts to the first application of a "peace dividend" from reduced East-West tensions, roughly half of the new spending is being paid for by cuts in this year's proposed Pentagon budget — cuts agreed to by the administration.

Some of the additional spending, such as a $185 million FBI automated fingerprint lab planned for Clarksburg, W.Va., was attached by powerful lawmakers seeking favors for their home states and districts. The fingerprint plant was added by Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

Then there was Rep. Neal Smith's $6 million provision to buy land near Des Moines, Iowa, from a power company and turn it into a wildlife refuge. Smith, a Democrat, argued on the House floor that the purchase was "an unusual and unexpected opportunity." The 3,200 acres was originally purchased by Iowa Power for a nuclear generating plant, but those plans were abandoned years ago.

Artist/physician lives in two worlds

By PAUL BINZ
The Brownsville Herald

BROWNSVILLE — Enter a twilight world of half-light, of sardonic color punctuation, a world of endemic, endless games with no conclusion, only progression . . .

Enter a realm peopled with expressionless figures cracked open like broken seashells. The interior face of the wall is revealed, but nothing else except emptiness . . .

Enter this place, and come face-to-face with a staring mask. Peel it away, and find another mask. Get somehow beyond it, only to confront still another . . .

Such is the "neo-surreal" world on canvas of Brownsville artist Jorge de la Fuente Cessario.

De la Fuente, an increasingly prominent player on the international art scene, plays another role as well. He is an established plastic surgeon who has practiced here for several years.

Just as progression is implied on any of the stages of his paintings, de la Fuente is slowly but inexorably changing roles, ever less the doctor, ever more the artist — preparing to burst his old shell and change roles like a figure from one of his paintings.

"I'm to the point now of thinking of leaving medicine," he said earlier this year. "Art has no limits. In medicine there are rules."

He pointed to his right ear and smiled, "I cannot put a nose over here!"

This year, de la Fuente has been criss-crossing North America in pursuit of his muse. A native of Monterrey, he has long divided his time between there and Brownsville. His trips have been more frequent this year as his works have appeared in several more shows.

One of his numerous destinations this spring was New York, where he put two of his paintings on display in the corporate offices of the Fiesta Trading Co., a subsidiary of a huge Mexican cigarette-manufacturing firm.

Before the year's onset, de la Fuente already had exhibited in 13 one-man shows and appeared in 31 others. He has been critically acclaimed in art journals in Mexico and the United States.

De la Fuente was featured in the March-April issue of Manhattan Arts magazine as one of the "Artists of the 1990s." In a short article on de la Fuente, writer Alexandra Shaw calls his work "enigmatic and haunting ... the artist's mesmerizing special effects are enlightening."

Though considered a surrealist by many critics, de la Fuente said traditional surrealism has its roots [illegible]

I work more [illegible] human behavior," he said.

Acquaintances "to the North" of Brownsville continually wonder what keeps him here, he said, when the mainstream art scene is to be found in cities like Houston, New York and San Francisco.

"I'm to the point now of thinking of leaving medicine. Art has no limits. In medicine there are rules." — Jorge de la Fuente Cessario.

"Behind my house is a little body of water where birds come," de la Fuente said. "I could not have that in those places.

"Here is where I have the peace I need to do my work."

His home is a small museum of the modern art of Mexico, with works by such luminaries as Rufino Tamayo and one of his own teachers, Monterrey artist-architect Efren Ordonez. Also included are many objets d'art which simply give him pleasure — a massive brass Spanish colonial-era door knocker, old trunks, a collection of 19th century military sabres.

"The surrealist painters normally used to work out of dreams, with a lot of psychological background and sometimes even psychopathic images. In my work, they are suspended in the air." — Jorge de la Fuente Cessario.

His home also is a good place ot view the way in which his work has evolved since the early 1980s. At that time his imagery, put down in oil paintings and glass etchings, and later in a dripped-acrylic paint technique, was still merely decorative — by his own admission.

"At the beginning of 1982, I was starting to work with the acrylic drippings. But I was fooling around with deco paintings — good for an apartment on the Island, but that's about it," he said. "I was working with precision, but it was just a technique. Still, it carried me a long way."

The 1987 painting "Rendezvous" was a milestone in which he "went into abstract expressionism."

"That's when I started to do [illegible]," he said. "After that kind [illegible] I kept [illegible] idea of going into human figures with this hollowness and sort of floating in the air. That's the way I started getting into my style, which is called neo-surrealism.

"The surrealist painters normally used to work out of dreams, with a lot of psychological background and sometimes even psychopathic images. In my work, they are suspended in the air. They have some surrealism, but I work more with real human behavior — vivencias, in Spanish."

Many first-time viewers believe that a touch of Salvador Dali has found its way into de la Fuente's paintings. Not so, he said, pointing to another key transitional painting from early 1988.

"Because people normally say, 'Oh, you have influence from Dali, or you have influence from ... ' No, I didn't have it," he said. "I was working with this (style) and then I got the idea from this (a theme from one of his paintings). Yes, it is a progression. This was an element in space, and this kind of figure was a cloud in some part of the universe you are not used to seeing."

At this point, de la Fuente began accumulating a whole repertoire of symbols.

"I always try to get in my paintings not only a good composition, a good color composition, but I like to be creative and have some kind of communication."

Virtually all his painting is done in a small bedroom of his house that he turned into a studio.

"Always I work with music — Italian, jazz, soft classical." When struck by an idea, he begins drawing on "any piece of paper I get. I get the idea and I try to get something down. As I work, I become part of it with things that are not in mind when I start.

"I'm always trying to transcend. I choose the hardest way. I think that at the end it will be more rewarding in all respects."

He designed a five-part series of lectures for advanced students of painting, delivered under the auspices of Texas Southmost College's continuing education program.

His goal is to help student painters who already have the basics down. It isn't a course in which they'll learn to mix colors, he said.

"I try to get them to search themselves to obtain their own style, their own authenticity. It's something I feel I must make them do."

To arrive at this philosophy, De la Fuente simply looked back at the evolution of his own work.

"I've always been trying to do something very original. I realize now this was an original technique, but I had no original style," he said. "Now that I think I have my own style, now I can do glass etching or watercolor or anything.

"I think it's a step up — much higher. Some artists are stuck with techniques, just one color, or themes — doing only seashells, seashells or fish, fish, or clown, clown, clown. But unless you have your own style, all those things are secondary ... you have your own style, you can do any theme, or any technique.

"You are what you pretend to be, so be very careful what you pretend to be," De la Fuente said.
