Federal Court Upholds Oklahoma Oil Proration Order In Champlin Suit

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Subscriptions aggregating $52,244.40 have been raised in Wichita Falls' community chest campaign. This is more than $17,000 short of the goal desired and the campaign workers are redoubling their efforts as the campaign nears its close.

There has never been a better organized or more enthusiastic group of workers in Wichita Falls than those who are engaged in this campaign.

Before the campaign started $69,000 looked like an impossible amount to raise under the conditions that now exist. Talker would have said that $45,000 would be the limit of the amount that could be raised. Now more than $52,000 has been subscribed with a good fighting chance that the full $69,000 may be raised.

Two classes of subscribers are giving with great liberality. One is the special gift's class from whom subscriptions in a number of instances as much as a thousand dollars have been obtained. The other are the employes of industrial plants and other business institutions making contributions of a dollar or two or three or maybe five dollars. Of course there are many in between these classes who are giving with great liberality, but the big givers are giving much more than they have ever given before and a far greater number of contributors of small amounts are giving this year.

There are some exceptions to the rule but the great majority of those who are giving are doing so readily and as liberally as they can. But there are a few who are evading their duty and who are put to misrepresentation to justify themselves. Talker heard one of these fellows talking in a barber shop the other day. He made four statements purporting to be facts about the community chest and Wichita Falls. Two of them were wholly false and the other two were so badly exaggerated as to be nearly as bad. Of course he wasn't giving anything to the chest.

An ordinance fixing the tax rate at $1.40, the same as last year, has been given its first reading in the city council. The city government may find it impossible to reduce the tax rate, but it is finding it possible to reduce the city's indebtedness, and the time will come when either a reduction in taxes may be effected or a more extensive program of improvements undertaken.

Raw sugar sold on the sugar exchange at less than a cent a pound yesterday for the first time in the history of the exchange. Call money was quoted at 1½ per cent. Prices of most commodities are lower than at any time since the world war. Money is cheap. Merchants are carrying the lowest stocks in years. One of these days a buying movement will get started and we will see a great business activity develop. In the meantime the stock market continues to decline and those who trade on margin accounts are being wiped out daily.

Fires have been turned on in the furnaces of the Wichita Falls window glass plant and the plant will be reopened about Oct. 15 giving employment to about 200 persons skilled and unskilled. That's good news.

And here's more good news: John Boswell tells us that the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce will be out of debt by Oct. 15. Maybe you didn't know the chamber of commerce has been in debt. It has for a number of years and the debt has been a handicap. During the administration of Orville Bullington as president of the chamber of commerce the debt was greatly reduced. The reduction has continued under the administration of President Bridwell and within a few days will be wiped out.

INJUNCTION TO FORBID STATE PLAN DENIED

Three Judges Order Trial To Decide Validity Of Oil Curtailment

ATTACK ON MAJORS

Attorneys Call Order Step In Ruination of Small Producers

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 30. (UP)—Denial of a temporary injunction suit forbidding the enforcement of the Oklahoma oil proration order and the ordering to trial of the proration case riveted attention of oil producers upon Oklahoma tonight.

The injunction action was brought by the Champlin Refining company of Enid, Okla., which declared proration enforcement resulted in lessening of oil production and oil wastage. Three federal judges ruled against the suit.

Trial Date Not Set

Date for the proration trial, designed to decide the constitutionality of curtailment of oil production, which was contested in the injunction hearing, was not immediately set. Champlin attorneys were permitted 10 days to prepare their case. A 20-day period will then be observed in which other companies will be permitted to file suit to join in the action.

Observers believe when the suit is heard it will be an alignment of the independent oil producers against the major oil companies.

The opinion was concurred by each of the judges. Presiding judges were Judge John H. Cotteral of the circuit court of appeals and Judges Franklin E. Kennamer and R. L. Williams.

Price Fixing Charge

Champlin attorneys, in addition to contending the order was resulting in a lessening of the production of the city field and in wastage, charged the order was unconstitutional, erroneous and invalid.

The order was described by H. G. McGeever, attorney for the refining company, as a "price fixing arrangement of major oil companies to curb competition and smother independent operators."

The present proration limits the state's production to 550,000 barrels daily. The order was continued until Oct. 10 today to allow the decision on the Champlin case to be made before a new schedule is adopted.

The shutdown order has resulted in virtual closing of operations in the South City field. Champlin complained his refineries and markets in 12 states were being robbed of accessible oil reserves he owned in that field.

Flynn filed suit in district court here against Wright for breach of contract.

She charged Wright owes her $1,800 salary for her work in his Apache club.

Carl Goodspeed Files Appeal And Then Promptly Accepts Sentence

AUSTIN, Sept. 30. (AP)—Carl Goodspeed, convicted of the murder of Deputy Sheriff A. R. Gooch of Montague county and sentenced to five years imprisonment, appealed to the court of criminal appeals and then asked that his appeal be dismissed, all in the same day.

Accompanying the transcript of appeal was a motion asking that the appeal be dismissed, Goodspeed apparently having elected to serve his term.

Gooch was killed in Goodspeed's house in Nocona, where he had gone to search for liquor. The trial was held in Clay county on motion of the judge, who recited that both men were well known in Montague county, Gooch having been tried for killing a man and having run for sheriff.

Lawton Council Dispute Results In Fist Battle

Special to The Record News

LAWTON, Okla., Sept. 30.—A rough and tumble fist fight on the principal business corner of Lawton late this afternoon between a councilman and a former councilman attracted a large and enthusiastic audience. Results were face abrasions for both combatants and filing of disturbance of peace charges against them in municipal court.

Councilman J. F. Neeley of the fifth ward and former Councilman J. S. Carlock of the third ward were the men involved. They were separated by spectators.

The fight is said to have been the result of ill feeling between the men over a petition being circulated requesting an audit of the city records. There has been much controversy in the city council in recent weeks over the matter of an audit which recently resulted in a motion being passed authorizing a state audit. No official request has been made, however, for such audit.

Soviet Trade Agents In U. S. Study Cotton Industry on Tour of Texas

FORT WORTH, Sept. 30. (AP)—A. A. Mamaeff, president of Amtorg Trading corporation, Soviet commercial agency in the United States, was a guest of Fort Worth today. He was accompanied by S. M. Saenka and N. W. Wassiliieff, Amtorg engineers.

The Russians declined to discuss political matters, declaring they were not on political business but were investigating agricultural and industrial methods of this country.

They are visiting Texas to investigate agricultural methods with special reference to harvesting of cotton, which is destined to be a chief product of Russian farms.

The party will go Wednesday to College Station where they will look over the textile plant of A. & M. college and the wool scouring plant.

"We are interested in everything relating to agriculture in Texas because we have in our vast territory large areas with similar climate and soil conditions," said Mamaeff.

Crippled Widow of Civil War Hero Convicted on Six Liquor Charges

HOUSTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—The crippled 69-year-old widow of a civil war veteran was convicted today on six counts involving violations of the liquor laws, by a federal court jury. Imposition of sentence was postponed until Saturday.

The widow, Mrs. Georgia Forrest, pleaded not guilty. The indictment charged possession in two counts; selling, manufacturing and maintaining a common nuisance in one count each, and alleged a previous conviction.

After the testimony of two prohibition officers that the woman had possessed liquor and sold it, she limped to the stand on crutches. She denied selling any liquor but said she had possessed a quantity of beer for her own use.

DEMOS STRESS STATE ISSUES

Roosevelt Renominated At N. Y. Convention

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 30. (AP)—Renominated unanimously for a second term by the New York state Democratic convention today, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in his speech to the delegates declared the campaign must be fought out on state issues rather than on conditions in New York city.

The governor did not refer specifically to the grand jury investigation of alleged judicial scandals in the greater city. His reference was to the acceptance speech of his Republican opponent, Charles H. Tuttle, in which the latter, after dwelling upon alleged judicial corruption in New York, declared the issue was whether the governor of the state "is higher than Tammany hall."

Governor Roosevelt and his associates on the ticket were enthusiastically acclaimed, and former Governor Alfred E. Smith, who made the speech placing Mr Roosevelt in nomination, was given an ovation.

Hoover Off To Deliver Four Talks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—President Hoover leaves tomorrow to discuss in four major addresses problems facing the country.

Before inaugurating his speaking program Thursday at Cleveland, however, he is to see the opening game of the world series tomorrow at Philadelphia. He will leave immediately afterward for Ohio.

The next seven days will take him into three sections of the nation—the Midwest, the East and the South, giving him the fullest opportunity for intensive discussion of the questions of his office he has had since entering the White House.

Broadcasts

In addition to the crowds that will hear him in person, at least three of the addresses will be broadcast over nationwide hookups. The first in Cleveland before the American Bankers' association, the second next Monday morning to the American Legion in Boston and the final one at Kings Mountain Battle Field, South Carolina are to be broadcast.

Arrangements for the speech before the American Federation of Labor at Boston Monday afternoon after the legion address have not been completed because of the world's series, and it was believed PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Despite bearish reports throughout the day about his ailing back, Frankie Frisch, keystone man of the St. Louis Cardinals, will take the field tomorrow when President Hoover tosses out the first ball for the opening world's series battle between the National league champions and the Philadelphia Athletics, two-time American league titleholders and present world's champions.

Frisch's backache, diagnosed as a case of lumbago, was the principal topic of conversation today as the baseball brigades answered the rallying call to arms for the set-son's big climax. When the all-time Fordham flash, whose second base work and hitting is of the utmost importance to the hopes of the Cardinals, did not appear for the final practice at Shibe park, reports circulated quickly he might not be in condition to start the series.

Frisch Confident

"I will play tomorrow, backache or no backache," Frisch declared. "I could have been out there working today, but the doc insisted I take it easy."

The medical verdict was that Frisch, although not in first class condition, would be able to perform. Manager Charles (Gabby) Street echoed this opinion, while at the same time prepared to meet an emergency.

Aside from the case of Frisch, the only other major uncertainty in connection with the opening game concerned the pitching selection of the Athletics. Most of the experts believed it would be the No. 1 man of the A's staff, Robert Moses Grove, but many of them leaned to the opinion that Connie Mack would pull another world's series surprise and assign knuckleball Eddie Rommel to the opening job.

John O'Neil Put Under Peace Bond Of $1,000 by Wife

John O'Neil, well known Wichita Falls oil operator, was placed under a peace bond of $1,000 late Tuesday afternoon on a warrant issued to Sheriff W. G. Bralley by the county attorney's office.

The bond was required on the basis of an affidavit filed by Mrs. O'Neil after she had been acquitted in the county court of a lunacy charge filed against her by her husband.

The trial of the lunacy charge, on which the jury acquitted Mrs. O'Neil after 10 minutes' deliberation, consumed the greater part of the afternoon. Mr. O'Neil was represented by Fred Weeks and Mrs. O'Neil by C. C. McDonald.

A charge of carrying a pistol is still pending against Mrs. O'Neil in the county court, according to Wayne Somerville, county attorney.

TEXARKANA, Ark., Sept. 30. (AP)—Five prisoners escaped from the Miller county, Ark., jail today, "plugging" a cell door and sawing their way from a third story window.

Queen Helen to Quit Rumania Giving Up 'Boy King' to Carol

VIENNA, Sept. 30. (AP)—A Rumanian politician visiting Vienna today said Queen Helen of Rumania had decided to leave Rumania forever and to hand over entirely to King Carol their son Michael, formerly the boy king.

It is believed she will soon go to Germany and take up a permanent residence near other members of the former Greek royal family.

The politician said King Carol, before deciding to postpone his coronation this fall, had told Premier Maniu he was willing to be crowned with Queen Helen on the understanding her status as his divorced wife remains unaltered.

This proposal was resolutely opposed by the premier. King Carol was visibly exasperated at the thought he must forego an early coronation. He believed this formality would strengthen his position politically.

Recently, however, the king remarked in the presence of many persons the best thing Queen Helen could do would be to leave Rumania of her own accord. This was repeated to the queen and after a painful struggle with herself, she made up her mind she must abandon her dream of raising her son and leave the country.

CHEST DRIVE NEARING GOAL

Workers Have Two Days To Secure $17,000

With only two more days in which to obtain subscriptions amounting to approximately $17,000, community chest workers met Tuesday noon at the Wichita club and rallied their forces for a final effort to secure the $69,600.

There will be no more group meetings until Thursday when the entire sales army will meet at the Wichita club at 6 o'clock to report for the grand total, according to J. F. O'Donohoe, president of the organization.

Tuesday's report showed a total of $10,705.40 with 2,223 persons participating in the contributions. Of the total for the day, $6,455 was announced as having been secured by the "big gifts" committee with J. S. Bridwell as chairman and $2,641.95 was reported by the group soliciations committee, headed by Roy B. Jones. A total of $1,608.45 was reported by the sales army, under the direction of M. W. Blair. The grand total now stands at $52,244.40.

"With two more days in which to work, I feel that we will make up the $17,000 and put over the greatest drive the community chest has ever undertaken," Mr. O'Donohoe said late Tuesday night.

Firms reporting a contribution from every employe Tuesday included the Deep Oil Development company, R-F Finance company, the Hamilton building, the Northwest Texas clinic, the White House market, the New Ice company, the J. C. Hunt Grain company, and Perkins-Timberlake company.

Leslie Humphrey made a short humorous talk as a part of the luncheon program. John F. O'Donohoe, president, was in charge of the luncheon.

Earl of Birkenhead Succumbs to Pneumonia

LONDON, Sept. 10. (US)—The earl of Birkenhead, who rose from poor boy to lord high chancellor and secretary of state for India, died today after several months' illness. He was 58.

Lord Birkenhead had been in poor health since last April when he suffered a paralytic stroke at Biarritz. The indomitable spirit that made him famed as a pungent aggressive orator, carried him successfully through this illness, but in August he was attacked by pneumonia. Up until a few days ago it was thought he had again recovered, but a relapse set in.

At his bedside when the end came were Lady Birkenhead, and members of the immediate family. With his passing came a message of condolence from King George to his widow.

Martyr to Science Loses Arm In Eighth Operation Because of Work

BALTIMORE, Sept. 30. (AP)—Described by members of his own profession as a "martyr to science" Dr. Christian Deetjen, pioneer in the study and use of the Roentgen or X-ray, will have his right arm amputated at the elbow tomorrow as the result of his medical research.

The amputation will be at least the eighth operation performed on the scientist, and some of his associates say there have been more. It will be performed by Dr. Alexius McGlannan, who 19 years ago removed one of Dr. Deetjen's fingers.

Older than Dr. Frederick H. Baetjer, the famous Roentgenologist of the Johns Hopkins faculty, who is himself said to have undergone several score operations, Dr. Deetjen was one of his tutors. Although not associated with the faculty of any of the medical schools, he entered the X-ray field before Dr. Baetjer.

He studied under tutelage of William Konrad von Roentgen, X-ray pioneer, shortly after the X-ray discovery.

TEXAN STARS AT CARNIVAL

Cowboy and Famous Horse Give Act Here

Texans are proud of Texas and Texans; and Texas loves "Horse." With Beckmann and Gerety's shows is a "cow hand" that taught the range boys in Montana and Wyoming a lesson in herding. He has with him at the Kiwanis club carnival the prize won in achieving what cowmen of the North had long considered a dream.

He is a Panhandle product. That is where he learned. His father helped build the first house in Claude, Texas. Consequently, figuratively speaking, he was born in the saddle. He is Charles Ellis, now from "almost any where." He never has been seen on the screen, but is responsible for some of the finest "horse acting" ever put in the slipping photographs.

No cognomen like "Wild Bill", or "Tex", or any other nickname has been "hung on him." He is just plain Charles Ellis, once of Claude, Texas, but not from "nearly any where in the cow country." Thirty-five years ago, like other cowmen, the "wanderlust" got him. With an outfit he headed for Montana.

There he saw a herd of wild horses. Outstanding among them was as fine a four-year-old as ever roamed at large in the wide open spaces. Ellis said he was going to take that horse as soon as the "round up" was over.

Before Ellis "took a shine" to the animal, famed over the Northwest as "The Ranger," scores of other cowmen had wished that "Ranger" was theirs.

True to his promise, Ellis made plans to take the "Ranger". He left with eight other horses, rode them to other spots, left feed for them, and then picked up the Ranger's trail. It took him five days to run the animal down. It also wore out the eight horses. But he brought in the prize of the Northern prairies.

He started training him. After schooling the Ranger in eighty-five tricks he took him to Hollywood for pictures. There he three times was offered $10,000 for "The Ranger." These he refused. Standing out of view of the camera he guided "Ranger" solely by word of mouth, in some of the finest "without bridle" work ever seen.

When the lull came in silent movies Ellis and "The Ranger" started to a new field. Ellis bought him an unholstered stall and put it on a truck. He drove him to the winter quarters of Beckmann and Gerety's World's Best shows. There he put him through his "liberty" stunts.

Ellis and "The Ranger" then became a part of the carnival the Kiwanis club is staging at the ball park all this week.

Last night the grounds were crowded from early evening until late.

'Yodeling Brakeman' Tells of Rise From Work Train to National Fame

Jimmie Rodgers, Wichita Falls Visitor, Made Stage Debut To Crowd of 6,500 Persons

Jimmie Rodgers, "the yodeling brakeman" of record and radio fame, who graduated from 14 years of service on a work train for the Southern Railway company, to an internationally known entertainer, was a visitor in Wichita Falls Tuesday.

Mr. Rodgers, now residing in Kerrville, entertained a packed house at the Wilk theater in Burkburnett Monday and Tuesday evenings. Following Tuesday evening's performance Mr. Rodgers left for Fort Worth from where he will go to Houston for a program over station KPRC. He will return to Kerrville Sunday.

"I learned to play the guitar while I was carrying water for an 'extra gang' of negroes who were working for my father as foreman of the gang crew in Meridian, Miss., where I was born and reared," Mr. Rodgers said.

"Every time one of those negroes would lay down a string instrument I picked it up and finally learned to play. Some of the songs I have recorded, I learned from those negroes."

While working as a brakeman on the work train Rodgers became ambitious to hold a better job and through the influence of a brother who was a conductor on the road was promoted to brakeman on the passenger line.

"I held this job for six years and when prospects for advancement began to ge dim I took my guitar and 'bounced around' as the 'Boomer Brakeman.' I didn't get over so well at first and finaly went to North Carolina where I had heard there was a job open as brakeman. The job failed to materialize so I went up to a new radio station which was just being opened and was asked to sing and play a few numbers. I worked there for a while and was offered a job making records for the Victor people and have been making records and giving radio programs ever since.

"My first stage performance was somewhat unusual for a boy who had started from the bottom. I played before a house of 6,500 persons in Washington, D. C."

Mr. Rodgers came to Wichita Falls and Burkburnett from Graham where he played at the theater Saturday evening. He has just finished an engagement in Mineral Wells.

the DeMolay order. The form of entertainment is to be a surprise, so Mr. X will not say what it is to be.

On Tuesday, Mr. X started out to serve the readers of The Record News. His first assignment was to repair an alarm clock. This was done in record time, and Mr. X found that he had time to do another task before luncheon, so he obligingly repaired the sewing machine for Mrs. W. L. Hoskins, residing at 1312 North Ninth street.

First Come

Repairing a phonograph belonging to Mrs. Tenant, 213 Bluff street proved a little more difficult. The phonograph had apparently lost its voice, but after a few adjustments, Mr. X had it rendering music again.

Mr. X's program for the week is rapidly filling up, but he still has time for a few more tasks. On Sunday he has quite a lot of vacant time, and will be glad to accept any religious tasks for that day.

Remember, his services are free. END NEAR FOR MARATHONERS

Dancers Weary After 300 Hours on Floor

"The end approaches," H. F. Sullard, director of the marathon dance contest being staged at the Aztec roller rink, said Tuesday night when the contest passed its 300th hour, making more than 13 days and nights that the contestants have been dancing continuously.

Gladys Hood, the girl who had the glass sliver removed from her foot several days ago, succumbed to exhaustion Monday night after dancing 281 hours. She was given a great ovation from the crowd as she left the floor after collapsing in the arms of her brother, Wayne Borah, who is now soloing.

Many other teams are on the verge of exhaustion, Sullard said, which causes the contest to appear as though its duration was drawing to a close. The strain is beginning to tell and aching muscles and drooping, heavy eyelids indicate that the contestants are approaching the limit of endurance. Only the marvelous stamina and determination keeps them going, he said.

Mr. X, the man of all trades, will appear at the marathon soon, it was announced, to prove that he is a marathon dancer among his other accomplishments.

REWARD UP FOR BLACKMAILER

San Antonio Men Offer $5,000 for Wright's Arrest

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 30. (AP)—A reward of $5,000 for the apprehension and delivery to the Bexar county jail of Nyals T. Wright, alias Will Wright, wanted on a warrant charging extortion, has been offered by a group of San Antonio business men.

Wright was charged in August with fraudulent acquisition of $75,000 in currency from R. W. Morrison, San Antonio financier, by threatening to kill the capitalist and railroad builder. Wright was charged at the same time T. B. Edmondson and J. D. Conner were placed under arrest and complaints filed against them in connection with the alleged extortion.

Detective Captain Aubrey Hopkins arrested Edmondson and Conner at Mason, Texas, early in August. Captain Hopkins reported that when he apprehended the pair Wright drove out of town to escape while Hopkins and his men were nabbing Edmondson and Conner.

Since that time Wright has been the object of a state-wide search. An automobile identified as his property was discovered in storage at Baird, Texas, early in September.

The car was moved from Baird to Clyde by Chief of Police Owen Kilday and held under armed guard in the hope that Wright would appear to claim it. The fugitive has never put in an appearance.

Both Chief Kilday and Captain Hopkins have driven hundreds of miles throuhout the state in pursuit of Wright. City Detectives Lee and Leonard have also worked on the case.

Wright is understood to be accompanied by his wife and baby daughter.

Official announcement of the $5,000 reward came as an added incentive to spur the pursuit after the fugitive.

WOMEN URGED TO BAN WAR

Briand Favors European Aid for Germany

GENEVA, Sept. 30. (UP)—A suggestion that European nations might aid Germany in her present financial crisis was advanced today by Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, in a talk to a delegation representing 40,000,000 members of the international women's organizations.

Briand, in a plea for women of the world to unite in peace efforts discussed the extremist (Fascist and Communist) strength in Germany, saying it was due to "misery and suffering."

"When a nation traverses a financial and economic crisis other countries should not look on despairingly but should give immediate help," said the French foreign minister.

"Why not continue what has been done in the past? The league saved 750,000 Greeks from a tragic situation. Nobody wants war. It is only the makers of munitions and constructors of armaments who pay for campaigns in the press and who work against the league and against the pact of Paris and who try to stultify our efforts."

"The women of the world must once more and for all affirm their intention of opposing war as a means of regulating conflicts among peoples," Briand told the delegation.

PRESIDENT OF ECUADOR QUITS

Dr. Ayora Refuses Request To Complete Term

QUITO, Ecuador, Sept. 30. (AP)—Dr. Isidoro Ayora, who resigned yesterday as president of the Ecuadorean republic, today told a congressional committee with firmness and finality he was through with that office.

Dr. Ayora, president of the republic since 1926, had been asked by congress to remain in office until expiration of his term in September, 1932.

The resolution passed the senate with but one dissenting vote, and the chamber of deputies with but three dissenting votes, all those of Socialists.

The president submitted his resignation after a day of intense political excitement.

He explained that he was motivated only by a sincere desire to secure the welfare of his country, and with a "patriotic aim that continuance in office should not become an obstacle to discovery of the best solutions of political, social and economic problems facing us at the present moment."

Before submitting his resignation he re-arranged the cabinet to have Col. Carlos Guerrero, secretary of war, appointed as minister of interior, which post is at head of the cabinet. He also telegraphed Dr. Alfredo Maquerizo, president of the senate, to prepare to succeed Guerrero if a further crisis should develop.

Dr. Ayora was placed in office as a consequence of coup de'etat in April, 1926. Loyal troops protected him from insurrection in 1927.

EQUALIZATION FIGHT AT REST

Decision in Rate Case to Be Made in 1931

HOUSTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—The Galveston fight to obtain rate equalization with Houston was put to rest today as the last witness was heard and the I. C. C. hearing, in session a week, ended.

Federal Examiners H. W. Johnston and Robert M. Furniss gave both sides till Dec. 1 to file briefs. The briefs, oral testimony and exhibitions, will be studied and a report made to the commission early in 1931. The commission then will hand down its decision.

The first witness today was L. R. Gardner, traffic manager of the Lone Star Cement company of Texas, representing Texas Cement interests. He said cement production companies were opposed to equalization because it would "seriously injure" the cement business of the South by fixing the shipping rate so low to some points as to allow foreign cement to be imported and sold cheaper than the American product.

E. H. Thornton, traffic department head of the Galveston Chamber of Commerce, then went on the stand to offer testimony in rebuttal concerning switching and haul costs of railroads.

A Martyr Aviatrix
She Served Science
When in Rome
Yell for Mussolini

By EMILE GAUVREAU

In search of a new record for women air pilots, Ruth Alexander, famous flier, dies in the crash of her monoplane, several minutes after her take-off from San Diego. She dies, not only as an aviatrix, but as a bride, for three months back she became the wife of another flier, R. A. Elliott.

Miss Alexander had forebodings of her end. She knew the risks she was taking—and took them. Hers was not the death of trickster in the performance of a "stunt." She served science, not showmanship. Aviation will honor her because she was a pioneer among women in the air, and died a martyr to the cause of aviation.

National feeling has come to a pretty pass when a passenger aboard the S. S. Roma is slugged and kicked by the purser and waiters because he would not sing the Fascist anthem or cry "Hail Mussolini."

The complainant is Antonio Ascolese, a native-born American. He has filed a suit for $100,000 damages against the steamship company. Ascolese should collect.

Even in wartime, nationalism of this brand was offensive. If that is the way Mussolini wants to be served, his regime will soon become a byword for Kaiserism. The example of Wilhelm is near enough to suffice to stay any despot. But perhaps Mussolini considers himself above precedent.

Mr. Ascolese might have avoided trouble by sacrificing his personal feeling to diplomacy. At the present time, remember when in Rome wear a black shirt and save laundry bills, and perhaps your own skull.

"Were you surprised when you found out the truth about sex?" "Do you love your father better than your mother?" "Are you shy with girls?"

These and several other questions were put to freshmen at Columbia university in a test to confirm or upset certain theories in psychology held by Mr. Prescott Lecky, instructor. Five hundred nervous students answer the questionnaire with doubtful results.

Emotions may be studied and analyzed but they may never be mathematically determined. The human heart is opposed to observational logic. It follows its own anarchic laws, which man cannot codify or gather together statistically. All the logic of Plato Duns Scotus, Hegel, Whitehead, will not reduce love, for example, to the simplest equation. As Hamlet said to Horatio: "There are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamt of in your philosophy."

The way to know your fellow man is to know him through contact, experience, service, chance occurrences. That is the true test, and more scientific than the method pursued by the statistician.

The success of Ambassador Morrow's mission in Mexico, where he built a solid foundation of international accord and friendship on what was a shifting sand base of hostility and suspicion, proves that the idea behind kingship is not a bad one.

Authority vested in the right persons, even autocratic authority, is better than the widest form of democracy, vested in politicians. Such power, of course, can be abused. The instances of Tiberius, Jenghis Kahn, Napoleon, even Kaiser Wilhelm, come immediately to mind. On the other hand there were the Maccabees, Alexander the Great, Charlemagne, Washington, Kossuth, in whose hands power was an instrument of emancipation from tyranny.

They used to say late eating made you stay awake. Now it seems to be night baseball.

There must have been a depression in Elizabethan times, too. Will Shakespeare said, you recall, "He who steals my purse, steals trash."

The Horse Has Been Led to Water

CANVASS of opinion among those concerned probably would reveal thus early in the game that night football will prove quite as unsatisfactory as professional football always has proved.

Whatever other "advantages" might be claimed for converting football into an arclight spectacle, the fact remains that it is due almost entirely to the belief that gate recepipts will increase considerably. Baseball furnished the example, and at least for a short time, reaped a harvest of increased patronage. College football has followed suit, in many places, but there seems to be no assurance that the move will prove successful.

After classroom work which may extend to an hour well past noon, the stalwarts who comprise the football squad relish the late afternoon workout on the gridiron—at least during the earlier part of each season. But to stay over their books during those hazy, Indian summer afternoons, in order that they may go forth under the lights for nightly practice is a very different story. A blanket of darkness surrounding an illuminated laboratory imparts to the strenuous workout nothing of the invigorating splendor of an autumn afternoon.

From the standpoint of the spectators, they will find it much less satisfying to shiver in dark obscurity than to bask in a warming sun, flaunting bright blankets and sweaters, and enjoying half-unconsciously along with the game the charm of the outdoors.

"When the autumn tiptoes softly, and the summer days are told
When the air grows crisp, and crinkles all the leaves to red and gold."

Smacking strongly of professionalism because it is a direct step toward commercialism, the attempted conversion of football to a night game controverts all the traditions, all the sentiments which have caused it to become the most fascinating outdoor American sport.

Mr. Remington's Plan

FOR all the discussion concerning the need of a marketing system for products of the irrigated valley, a start never has been made toward setting up such a system, so far as this newspaper recalls. The needs, the possibilities and the handicaps of the valley have been surveyed and re-surveyed and discussed and considered, but the fact remains that we never have done anything about it.

Having disposed of this more or less ancient history, it seems to The Record News we ought to be about ready to start action; and if such is the case, there seems no better starting point than that proposed by G. A. Remington, manager of the two water districts. Mr. Remington's plan in substance, as we understand it, consists of the employment of a man to get buyers for valley products and get valley products for buyers.

Mr. Remington probably knows the possibilities of the valley and valley farmers as well as any man. He also understands the viewpoint of "business men" as distinguished from farmers. His proposed system is simplicity in itself, and is probably based on the knowledge that so long as we wait for the lightning to strike some of us with a brilliant scheme for a marketing program, just so long will the valley be without the semblance of any such system.

A Junior chamber of commerce committee is now considering the Remington proposal, and within a few weeks committees of the senior chamber will begin drafting a budget for the new year. These leaders have a starting point in the proposal submitted by the district manager. To this newspaper's way of thinking, that's what we need—a starting point and not a marketing system. The latter probably will evolve itself if we ever can agree on the former.

Rev. Mr. Barron Speaks Out

WITHOUT wishing to become involved in the current discussion concerning the Rev. J. Daniel Barron's interpretation of the story of Jonah and the whale, The Record News believes the teacher of the Kay Bible class is to be commended on the freshness and the originality of the views which he occasionally presents to his class on Sunday mornings.

Several times the addresses of the Rev. Mr. Barron have bobbed up on page one of this newspaper, and while this may not be a mark of theological merit, it is a barometer of the possible public interest in the address. In other words, it's an indication that the Rev. Mr. Barron quite often is saying something that hasn't been said in the same way a thousand times before.

All of this, The Record News believes, is a good thing for Christianity and the modern church. As we understand it, the Bible, the textbook of Christianity, was written by men, although they were inspired men, and great and good men. It would seem strange if men since Biblical times could make no new contribution to the religion. As a matter of fact, they have made contributions and changes, and Christianity has changed through the centuries to meet new conditions.

Whether or not a person agrees with Rev. Mr. Barron in his interpretation of the book of Jonah, we think that he and others of his kind perform a distinct service when they seek to bring new interest and new thoughts to bear upon their religion, and try to explain in terms of modern day thought and spirit the tenets of the Christian religion.

Those Rubber Checks

ALL of this stuff about lovely Clara Bow and the rubber checks she issued to the Nevada gamblers who took her for $13,000 is beginning to go just a little bit stale.

It is very interesting, of course, to learn that Clara went to a gambling house escorted by Will Rogers, that she plunged heavily with the luck against her and that she stopped payment on the checks she presented. But, after all, the fate of the nation hardly hangs on our proper understanding of the matter. It is hardly worth mulling over any longer.

So we can only hope that the whole business will speedily be forgotten. We have heard just about enough of it. It really isn't very funny any longer.

On Broadway

Broadcasting

(Being one-fourth of my last radio chatter).

Good evening, ladies and gentlemen, and those who would rather be listening to Udyray Alleva. Before beginning my Broadwaycasting, Nick Lucas will warble and guitar for you. His delightful tunes have won for him armies of admirers and great success in the major theaters. (Lucas here!) Thanks so much, Nick.

When Herbert Fields, the musical comedy writer, was in California recently, a newly married pair wrote him a sad letter about their distress and sour luck. They needed money badly. Would Herbert help? Yes, Herbert would, and did.

A few weeks later the grateful couple wrote Herbert, thanking him for the $100 he sent. "You will always have good luck, and good health," the letter concluded. The letter arrived the day after Herbert broke a leg.

If the censors keep their paws off Marlene Dietrich in "Morocco" she will out Garbo Greta . . . The Pathfinder remarks: "Now that the long skirt is fashionable again—maybe the long marriage will also stage a comeback" . . . Or the long green? . . . A better nifty is that a scientist says the smallest thing in the world is an electron. How about a tree-sitter's brain?

Among other beard-lifting stories making the rounds of the Squares is one about the former vaudeville personality who invested wisely in the road rights of a New York hit. It repeated its local success in the provinces and she made a young fortune. She married a chorus boy, old enough to be her son. After a year of misery with him, during which time he squandered two-thirds of her coin, he was arrested on a serious charge. A great deal of bribe money and influence hushed and closed the case. He died a month later.

She let Potter's field bury him, refusing to claim his body. And with the money she might have spent on his funeral, she threw a cocktail party. The reason she spent all that coin to save him from the law is obvious. She spent it to save what is left of her own reputation.

One of the better stories about Lindy is the one concerning a reporter's great scoop. While Lindy was still winging his way to Paree, Hank Wales of the Chicago Tribune's Paris branch, had an interview with quotes and everything all prepared, merely waiting for the flash of Lindy's happy landing. As soon as the plane landed, Hank instructed his office to release the interview, scooping every paper in the world by 24 hours. Because Lindy, on the following day, gave out the same interview that Wales had written the day before.

How did Hank know what Lindy would say? Simple. He knew the queries the Paree correspondents were going to make, and he knew what the late Ambassador Herrick would tell Lindy to say—so by mixing the two with common sense he hit it exactly . . . Those bold, reprehensible, brave, indispensable, sensible lads of the press!"

Before Mr. Coolidge's material appeared in the various newspapers he suggested to his syndicate bosses that only Republican rags get his stuff. And, although the New York Times offered a stiffer fee for it, the Herald-Tribune in New York was privileged. When one of the syndicate executives told Coolidge how well his wordage was going and the high tariff it enticed, Coolidge frowned. Then he said: "Don't you think those prices are a bit steep, considering the business depression all over the country?"

The executive had to be hastened to an open window to keep from swooning.

The Commonweal, one of the better weeklies, discusses a Mr. Hooper of Idaho, who sends his writings (which are published) to various journals "without pay or hope of earthly reward." Mr. Hooper even pays his own postage, says the Commonweal, which becomes ill because Brisbane, Will Rogers, Coolidge and others are making money with their typewriters. "There still remain," says the Commonweal, "a few things for which money is not the measure of value, and the 'winged words' of truth are to be numbered among them. The letter-writing apostles need not mind the contrast as to financial reward."

One presumes that the editors of the Commonweal are working for nothing, and, if so, one wonders how they pay their bills.

The Duke and Duchess de Richelieu of No. 140 East End avenue, parted recently after a tiff following the interior decorating of their local mansion. The Duke left for Yurrup in a huff, the Duchess sailing only the other day to cry it out with him. The observation last week (that if you have two O's in your handle your chances for the presidency are better) has excited one lad, who reminds us that if your tag ends with "son" your chances are better . . . The double O presidents, you know, included Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Coolidge and Hoover . . . There were more presidents with "sons" —frixample: Thomas Jefferson, B. Harrison, Andrew Jackson, W. H. Harrison, James Madison, Andrew Johnson and Wilson.

Joe Cook, whose new show, "Fine and Dandy," is in town, could not feature his latest trick, viz: the juggling of seven Austins at once. It appears that Cook was rehearsing the stunt yesterday and dropped one, which disappeared as mysteriously as Justice Crater's girl promoter.

One of us imagines that the baby Austin that Cook dropped and lost is in his trouser cuff.

You've probably heard about the only sandwich sign woman in the world . . . At any rate, A Times square beauty parlor engaged her to walk up and down the Long Lane of Short Careers a few years ago . . . She was a sorry sight, but her appearance and shabby apparel provided a wallop . . . The signs she carried read: "If you never want to look like I do at 40 then patronize Soandso's Beauty Shop" . . . She saved her money and one day spent some of it to have herself prettied and gowned . . . Of course, they had to fire her . . . The rumor goes, however, that she still sits home, wondering whether to enter an old lady's home or become a road show ingenue.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Hopeless because of her failure to make a decent living in New York City, pretty Donna Raynor writes to Randolph Granby, a wealthy bachelor: "I could get a rich husband if I had the proper setting. It would cost a thousand a month and I'd need two years to get the proper man. Will you give it to me?"

Intrigued by the girl's personality and her unconventional ideas, Granby accepts her proposal. Through his brokers Donna receives $25,000; Granby prepares to sail for France, and Donna leaves her shabby hotel for a more fashionable address in the exclusive fifties.

Shortly after she retires, a handsome young man, intoxicated, enters Donna's apartment. "Believe I'll marry you," says the youthful visitor, who, Donna learns, is none other than Frank Gardner, wealthiest and most sought-after bachelor in America.

Next morning Gardner sends orchids. Donna refuses to speak with him. She arranges to take singing lessons from Mademoiselle Galere, whose pupils include most of the Junior League.

In a few weeks she is in the midst of the social swim. At the Fairleigh home she meets Granby again, also Frank Gardner, who asks: "How would you like another proposal from me?"

Gardner displays jealousy. Granby, quietly like, is evidently more than ever in love with Donna. The situation is tense.

Then the bubble bursts. At Mademoiselle Galere's Donna picks up the paper. In the society gossip column is an unmistakable reference to her—with the insinuation that she is beyond the pale.

Donna confides her troubles to Mademoiselle Galere. Others in the "set" remain loyal to her.

Mrs. Fairleigh extends an invitation to dinner. Granby is Donna's escort. After dinner and bridge Donna and Granby go to the embassy to dance. Gardner appears. He has been drinking and loudly exclaims: "Why, it's old Ran Granby and the li'l girl he's keeping."

Granby, gentleman that he is, does nothing. Mrs. Curlew, society matron, comes to Donna's aid.

Later, in front of Donna's apartment, the rivals engage in a flat fight. Granby receives a severe beating at the hands of Gardner.

Gossips are busy; ugly rumors are circulating; Gardner begs forgiveness. Donna is in danger.

Then comes a severe shock. A representative of Chit-Chat, a scandal sheet, calls on the girl, shows her galley proofs of her "story" concerning her relations with Granby and Gardner and "suggests" that she buy stock in his company.

An Unexpected Caller

He had the thick-skinned, insolent assurance of an Armenian peddler of laces and had pushed by her before she was fully aware of his intention. Angry and vaguely alarmed, she was compelled to follow him. Nor did he pause inside the hall. With brisk impudence he walked into her living room, tossed his hat upon a chair and sat down upon another. He ignored the fact that Donna remained standing and from an inner pocket drew forth some papers. He looked up with a smile meant to be engaging but that was merely a smirk.

"Of course you know all about Chit-Chat, Miss Raynor," he said. "That is, all about its wide circulation among people that matter and its great influence among such people. But what you don't know are the business opportunities of Chit-Chat."

"I have no interest in them," said Donna angrily.

His smirk widened. Greasy-complexioned, wax-mustached, protruding-eyed, he was loathsomely representative of his loathsome publication.

"Oh, my dear Miss Raynor, I'm sure you have," he said. "A young lady who—er—lives alone and is—er—not engaged in any business must surely be interested in opportunities for safe and profitable investment."

"Well, I'm not," said Donna. She felt that her reply was childishly irritated.

"Your lawyers or trustees handle all such matters for you?" he asked.

"What possible concern is that of yours?" she asked.

He crossed his knees and lighted a cigarette, forgetting to ask permission.

"You have no engagement more important than listening to me," he said.

"Chit-Chat, my dear Miss Raynor, is concerned with all persons who are in society, who pretend to be in society, who are trying to get into society, or who hope to get into society. Chit-Chat exists in response to a vital need. You, Miss Raynor, must be aware that there are persons who do not belong in the circles which they attempt to adorn. But those rightful censors of society, who in another generation would have barred the entrance of these intruders, no longer exist."

He tapped upon one knee with the papers which he had withdrawn from his pocket, like an orator driving home a point. Indeed, he delivered his speech exactly as one might who had learned it by rote.

"Society is no longer a small group. The growth of wealth, its distribution all over the country, means that newcomers are continually trying to push past the barriers. The leaders of society can no longer act as sentries at those barriers. They could not hope to keep themselves informed as to the desirability or the right of the newcomers to join their circle. Because, Miss Raynor, some of the newcomers have an undeniable right to enter. They have sufficient wealth, sufficient good manners, sufficient charm to make them welcome.

"But there are others, Miss Raynor, who lack one or another of these needful assets. There are others who possess all these qualities, but who, through misfortune or through some fatal flaw in character, should not be allowed to enter. But, as I have said, who among the leaders of society has time enough to scrutinize carefully all the credentials of the newcomers?"

"I'm sure I don't know, nor am I interested," said Donna. "I have an engagement and——"

"You have no engagement more important than listening to me," he said.

"I hope it won't be necessary for me to telephone downstairs and have some one put you out," said Donna. She felt that she was being vulgar, but how avoid this? Another woman might be able to squelch the man, send him, awed, about his business, but she didn't know how.

"Is that so, Miss Raynor?" He dropped his insolent suavity and was merely insolent. "Now, don't be in a hurry to do that little thing," he went on. "Because, Miss Raynor, you're one of the newcomers that Chit-Chat is interested in."

He tapped again upon his knee. "I have here, Miss Raynor, two documents. One is a sort of prospectus of Chit-Chat Publishing company. It tells, briefly, about the need for such a publication. It tells about the class of people who read Chit-Chat. It tells about the luxury manufacturers who buy advertising space in our magazine and explains why they think advertising in a distinctly class publication, whose readers have unlimited wealth, is preferable to advertising on billboards, for example. It shows how 7 per cent, with complete safety, may be realized on an investment in our stock."

"I should think," said Donna dryly, "that the owners would prefer to keep such a wonderful investment to themselves."

"The owners understand that it is always well for a magazine to have its stock distributed widely. Such a magazine as ours, I mean. It makes for good will. Not that we'd sell stock to persons not connected with the haut monde. But we would like every one of our readers to feel that Chit-Chat belongs to him or to her. We'd like them to await its arrival every week with a feeling of possession."

"I'm not interested," said Donna. "And I have an engagement——"

He ignored the interruption.

"My other document," he said, "is for you to read. It was written only this morning and set up this afternoon. The proof, therefore, has not been corrected and you will find minor errors in it. You'll forgive them, I trust. I might add, too, that the article is by no means

The filet cloth on the table and the great bowl of autumn flowers in the center made a lovely luncheon setting. Mrs. Cliff Everts opened the meeting with prayer and an inspirational devotional followed.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Sometimes we wish eyes could not see quite so much. We were born with inhibitions that years of struggle will not destroy. A cold poached egg for instance, with a broken yolk spreading in glutinous yellow, is enough to make a breakfast table an unpleasant place.

A very large woman with very large limbs outstretched in public view just "gets our goat." Not that we mind the least seeing anything in that line that is really attractive.

We would as soon not see beauty parlor processes in public, though we plead guilty to a small part of the procedure at times. But we are amazed at the amount of lipstick and powder it takes to keep faces vivid that, when we have seen them without the color, were anything but fresh. We believe that Adrian Brewer doesn't use so much paint in his Western pictures on exhibit at the forum as lips sometimes demand.

Yet, if we did not see all these things, we would not see the golden cosmos that is beginning to glorify autumn. We would not see the little patches of lantana thrusting their gold and brown faces through the luxuriant leaves.

We might not have seen at a home on the Iowa Park road, the walk to the door bordered with tall phalanxes of bachelor buttons, quite royal in their color.

Then there's clematis that is lacing porches and lattices in a maze of bewildering white beauty, that might have escaped us.

At this season of the year, our memory hies back to the woods of our birth state; not so much for ourself, even though they gave us a breath of beauty's immortality, as for those who have not seen, we crave the glory of their color.

We drove just the other day out that road we believe they call the valley road. It might well be called "Paradise" if one must travel a rocky way to reach Paradise, for that shelf of broken rock that begins at the end of Tenth street is incomparable.

But once beyond the shelves of rock and you have reached the country. Pass the little spread of woods bordering the road on each side and you have reached the quiet places. Sounds only come from distances. Birds only sing occasionally.

Heaven to us must be no place where angels play eternally upon their harps. An occasional angel waking us with melody would be a sweet thing. But our heaven, should we choose it, would be wide spaces of nature at rest with nature's sounds—a brook babbling over little stones—a bird singing at random—a place to rest.

Store Clerks, Attention

"For two years I suffered with irregularities and finally had to leave school. I got no relief until my married sister told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking only two bottles I felt well. Since then I have been able to clerk in a store, on my feet all day and have suffered only once from my old trouble. I want other girls, especially store clerks, to know what it did for me."—Dorothy L. Fairchild, 924 Walnut Street, Freeland, Pennsylvania.

Castoria corrects CHILDREN'S ailments

WHAT a relief and satisfaction it is for mothers to know that there is always Castoria to depend on when babies get fretful and uncomfortable! Whether it's teething, colic or other little upset, Castoria always brings quick comfort; and, with relief from pain, restful sleep.

And when older, fast-growing children get out of sorts and out of condition, you have only to give a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation to right the disturbed condition quickly.

Because Castoria is made expressly for children, it has just the needed mildness of action. Yet you can always depend on it to be effective. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment and cannot possibly do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue, is fretful and out of sorts. Be sure to get the genuine: with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

Wife Protests 'Parties' Given By Hubby's Company

Dear Miss Dix—The company by which my husband is employed throws parties occasionally for the stenographers of the office and our husbands, employes only, wives not invited. These parties are held at a lake miles from the city and are very gay affairs with plenty of hip flasks, and the men are expected to bring the girls back home.

What chance has a wife in a last year's frock when her husband is thrown in direct contact with pretty young girls who spend every dollar of their salaries on themselves and dress to the nth degree? Perhaps I am wrong, but I believe that large business corporations should wish for the good will of their employes' wives and certainly this is no way to gain it.

—A WIFE.

Answer—I should say not. I don't know what that company manufactures, but as a trouble-maker it is a world beater, and it sounds as if it were a runner-up for the divorce court.

How anybody with sense enough to run an apple cart, to say nothing of conducting a big business, could have little enough intelligence to think they are advancing the interests of their concern by bringing married men and young girls together in social relationship at such affairs passes comprehension. What they really are doing is promoting flirtations.

Of course whoopee parties in which the guests are married men and business girls are common enough, but the men who give them are generally prudent enough to invade other men's offices, not their own, for their guests, for experience has taught them that friendship with all, entangling alliances with none, is a good motto for a business house as well as a country, and that nothing so demoralizes an office as an office scandal.

A year or two ago one of our big railroads made a survey to ascertain the domestic status of its employes, and it established the fact that the men who were happily married and got along amiably with their wives were better able to concentrate on their work, were more efficient, more reliable and more ambitious, and therefore more valuable to the company than the men who were unhappily married.

In view of this how rash the policy of a company that would literally throw pretty young girls into the arms of married men at parties to which the wives are not even invited, and who would force the men to notice how much prettier and younger and gayer these young girls are than their wives, who are worn with child-bearing and penny-pinching.

For it is one thing for a man to see Miss Sweetums at her desk where she is just part of the office machinery and where he might never give her a second glance, and another to see her all decked out in her glad rags at a party when perhaps he has had enough cocktails to make every woman look like a hour' straight from paradise.

And I wonder how much work that company gets out of the married men the next day after they have listened to what their wives had to say about the party when they got home!

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—What do you think of a man who tells his secretary that he doesn't love his wife, that her voice gets on his nerves and that he should be pitied for having to live with her, and that he is heart-broken because he can't have any of his relatives visit him because his wife quarrels with them all, and then turns around and tells the wife that she is all the world to him and sends her flowers on their wedding anniversary and takes her with him even on the shortest business trips? I don't want to hear his complaints about his wife and I think he is a skunk to say such things about her and then pretend to be so devoted to her.

—K. B. F.

Answer—Nearly always when a man complains about his wife and tells another woman how unhappy he is and how his wife doesn't understand him, it is the time-honored approach to a flirtation. It is the way he justifies himself for his disloyalty, and nine times out of ten it doesn't mean a thing except that he wants to step out with a pretty girl. He may be really fond of his wife and admire her above all other women, but he has to alibi his conscience in some way and his wife's shortcomings are as good a cloak as any to hide behind.

Or else he may complain of his wife because he is a weakling who likes to be pitied. Or he may really secretly dislike his wife, but he is so afraid of her that he shows her attentions to save himself from her temper. And the reason that he complains to his secretary is because she is the only one he dares talk to. He would be ashamed to show himself such a cad to another man, and he would be afraid a mutual friend would tell his wife, and besides a lot of men consider that it is part of a secretary's job to listen to their domestic tales of woe.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.
(Copyright 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

When Writing for Advice

As my readers probably know, I am always pleased to send my advice or information to them in answer to their letters. However, the large volume of mail which I receive, makes it necessary that certain rules be followed:

First: Your letter should be short and to the point (not over 150 words) and it need not give your whole history. All that is needed is the name of the disease from which you are suffering. It is always advisable to enclose your doctor's diagnosis when you do not know what the trouble is.

Second: Your letter must be addressed to me in care of this newspaper, and it must be accompanied by a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Give your whole name on the envelope, and be sure to add your street or mail box address, and the city and country.

These instructions are simple, aren't they? Yet, you would be surprised to know just how many hundreds of letters I receive without any name or address to which I could send a reply. For example, one woman, has written me four letters, the last three asking me why I did not answer the first one, and in none of the letters did she send her name or address.

Another surprising thing is the number of letters that come in giving a set of general symptoms that might apply to a dozen or more diseases and expecting me to make a diagnosis, but, unfortunately, a careful examination is usually necessary in making a diagnosis. I do not undertake to make diagnoses by mail. Visit your physician and insist on a careful examination. You may then send me a report of his findings and I can then send my advice as to the correct diet and treatment which I think might be suitable.

Your letter must be addressed to me in care of this newspaper. If you do not receive a reply in a few days, do not be alarmed, and you do not need to send another letter inquiring about the first one, as it usually takes about two weeks before you will receive a reply and in some cases it may take a little longer, as some letters require special research work before being answered.

You may be interested to know something of how so many letters can be answered. They sometimes amount to several thousand a day. All answers are either dictated by myself or by my staff doctors who have been in my employ for several years. I maintain a separate office building just for answering letters. All clerks and secretaries are chosen for their ability and character.

It would be impossible to give complete information about each disease and its treatments in an ordinary sized typewritten letter. Therefore, I have had several hundreds of leaflets printed or mimeographed, each about a different subject. These leaflets are sent to you when I think they will answer your queries. When I do not think a leaflet covers the question sufficiently, a letter accompanies it.

I enjoy getting letters from you and I enjoy reading them and knowing the kind of articles you like and whether or not you have found them beneficial. In this world I believe we are here to help each other. You can readily see that answering letters is not a profitable enterprise, but I receive a certain satisfaction from conducting this service and feeling that it is of some value to humanity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Heart-Burn and Waterbrash

Question—J. K. asks: "Can you give me through your health column a diet suitable for heart-burn and waterbrash?"

Answer—Heart-burn and waterbrash can be cured by living on the proper food combinations, and avoiding the use of excessive amounts of food. Overeating must be cited as one of the principal causes of these trouble. Continue to study my articles each day, and you will soon learn how to combine your foods properly so they will not form incompatible mixtures.

Soda in Cooking

Question—Mrs. H. asks: "Is the use of soda in food harmful, such as putting it into tomatoes while cooking?"

Answer—I do not believe there is any harm in killing food acids with soda, except that the fruit acids have a value in stimulating digestion, and this help is lost if the soda is used. Some of the vitamins are also destroyed by the soda.

Bleeder

Question—W. P. writes: "I have been suffering from hemorrhages of the lungs for 13 years without having tuberculosis. Will you kindly advise me through your column if there is any cure for it?"

Answer—You are no doubt what is called a "bleeder," and can get rid of this tendency if you will adopt a diet containing plenty of cooked and raw greens. These foods contain the elements which the blood requires for proper coagulation. Add a dish of gelatin to your diet each day and this will also assist in fortifying the body against hemorrhages.

Flames Destroy Pettus Buildings

PETTUS, Texas, Sept. 30. (AP)—Flames raged through the heart of the Pettus business district at noon today, destroying an entire block of business houses before a volunteer bucket brigade brought the fire under control.

The fire was said to have originated in a tailor shop in the block which was destroyed.

Fanned by a brisk breeze the flames spread rapidly. Lack of fire fighting apparatus handicapped the work of volunteers who came in from the oil fields.

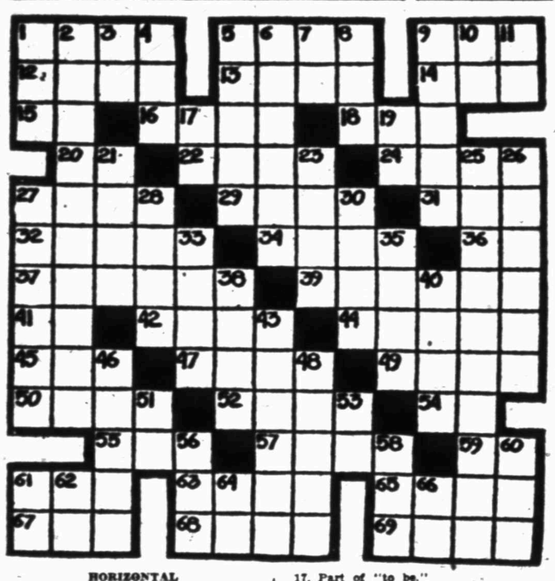

After burning three hours, the wind shifted, saving a train of loaded oil tank cars and confined the damage to the one block.

Police Clash With Striking Dressmakers

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—Several shppers in the vicinity of Fifty-seventh street and Fifth avenue were knocked down today when police and striking dressmakers clashed.

Police used fists and clubs to subdue the strikers, who have been picketing fashionable dress shops in the area for several days. When the battle was over 15 women and 10 men were on heir way to jail on charges of disorderly conduct. Thirty strikers were arrested yesterday on similar charges.

GABBY STREET'S BOYS CONFIDENT ON EVE OF TITLE SERIES

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

The World Serious

This half of the earth is agog today with thoughts of the world series, or world serious, as the begrimed say.

Well, the men of Gabby Street are going to win—so much we have decided after meditation and prayer and much sober thought. While caverting with—I mean communing with—the sperrits on this subject, a divine something or other revealed to me that the Cards are going to wield a big stick and subdue the Mackmen. At least that is as good a way to put it as any. In case I'm wrong, you see, I can blame the sperrits for not being up to par.

Wichitans to Attend

Dr. Everett Jones, of the clinic hospital, and Spudder club official, will be among the million or so at Shibe park in Philadelphia at today's opening game.

Prexy Bill Huff will leave here Thursday for St. Looey to attend the Missouri end of the series Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Guy Airey hasn't decided whether he will accompany Prexy Huff or not.

Turgeon Returns

Pete Turgeon, second sacker for the Spudders for lo these many years, has returned to Spudderland for the winter. He arrived here Monday from Milwaukee, where he played with the American association Brewers the past season. His wife accompanied him here.

Pete joined the Spudders along in 1924, and stayed with them through 1928. He was one of the most dependable second basemen in the league those four years, and was very popular with the fans here. He has many friends here.

Neglected Teams

A whole lot has been said for and against high school football in Wichita Falls, those for it being fans acutely interested in the sport, and those against it being people who don't care much for the game except when they can watch the big teams—Notre Dame, S. M. U., or some other college aggregation.

A good many in the latter class bemoan the fact that we don't have college football here, and they further oppose having to travel great distances to see college teams.

Whenever I hear them longing for college football here, I thank my stars this town doesn't have to put up with the conditions prevalent in a town blessed with two good football teams—a college team and a high school team—where the high school team, though good it may be, gets little recognition from fans.

I refer to Austin. In the old days, Austin Hi produced some powerful teams, but the Austin people didn't seem to realize it—they were too enwrapt in the University of Texas Longhorns. Thousands would turn out to watch the Longhorns each Saturday, and that same week-end would see very few out to watch the high school youngsters. And they deserved better support, too. They could play the game well.

You couldn't blame the people much. It was just another case of too derned bad. A college team has better drawing qualities than a high school team, and the youngsters have to suffer with lack of attention and support.

A bigger town would have made a difference. Then there would have been enough fans for both teams. But Austin was wild about the Longhorns, and gave the kiddies scarcely a look.

There is only one town we know of where the high school team outranks the local college team in attracting interest, and that is Waco. Some Waco people told me there is more interest in Paul Tyson's high school team down there than there is in the Baylor university team. A case such as this is an exception. Possibly the newspapers have something to do with it. They have a good sports writer down there, one of the best in the state. Perhaps old Jinx Tucker had something to do with putting the Waco high school team in the spotlight. Publicity helps when a team has the stuff, and it just so happens that the Waco teams have had the stuff in recent years.

Barry Holton, a grizzled veteran of the gridiron, yet a young man withal, is turning out a fine team this year, and he and the youngsters deserve a lot of encouragement, in the form of attendance at the games. We expect a good crowd at Saturday's tussle, when the Coyotes meet the Lubbock Westerners. And if the Coyotes win that game, then there should be a howl for extra seats down at the foot of Seventh street.

About Our Boys

Maurice O. Shevlin, St. Louis newspaper man, wrote an account of former Spudders in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat last week, as follows:

"The Wichita Falls candidates for big league berths, Storti, Burns, Levey and Crouch, have shown to good advantage in some respects but their playing smacks of the bushes and they have quite a way to go to attain the smoothness necessary to assure them of parts in the big time.

"Lin Storti, who has played four games at second for Killefer, seems to be the best of the lot, his hitting ability making up in a way for the ground he doesn't cover, but he's a sure fielder if he gets anywhere near the ball. In his four games here he batted .308, getting four safeties in 13 attempts. He handled 17 chances without an error and participated in four double plays.

"Jim Levey, taking O'Rourke's place at short, collected six hits in 23 times at bat in five games for an average of .261, and made one error in 37 chances, getting in on two double plays.

"Jack Burns at first base came up with a .277 mark with five hits in 18 tries and fielded the bag perfectly, handling 50 chances, which included six double plays.

"Jack Crouch, the backstopping member of the quartet, made the poorest showing and the figures do not take into consideration the fact that he seems to have no sense of direction in pegging to second and he is anything but certain of himself on foul balls. He has been at bat 10 times in four games and got but two hits, an average of .200.

SQUAD TAKES SNAPPY DRILL

closest counselors and associates professed to have the slightest idea who would oppose Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitball star, definitely chosen to do the hurling for the Cardinals. Cardinals believe Grove is the only rival moundsman they need worry about and predict that if they tame the southpaw ace, the series will be over in short order. They point out that Earnshaw has not gone so well in his appearances in the closing weeks of the season. They do not fear any of the other Mack twirlers.

The Athletics are favorites, and the odds of around 5 to 4 in their favor will lengthen if it develops tomorrow that the Cardinals cannot rely on the usual brilliancy of Frisch's all-round play. The main factors weighing the "dope" in support of the A's are:

1. The confidence aroused by their present hold on the world's championship, plus the crafty leadership of their manager, Connie Mack.
2. Possession of perhaps the greatest pitcher in baseball, Lefty Grove.
3. The back-stopping of Mickey Cochrane, greatest catcher in the game.
4. The cleanup wallop of Al Simmons, outstanding slugger of the contending teams.

Cards Have Spirit

So far as the Cards are concerned, no one of these reasons or all four disturbs the confidence and fighting spirit with which they have rolled into the championship fray. The team that so convincingly outstripped one of the strongest National league fields in years does not think it can be stopped.

"If the Cardinals play against the A's the way they did against Brooklyn in the series that sped them to the top, I will be satisfied," remarked John Arnold Heydler, president of the National league.

There was plenty of snap and spirit in the workout of the Cardinals this afternoon at Shibe park, where they put on a brisk batting and fielding drill after the Athletics had engaged in a two-hour drill in some secrecy. Al Simmons, the big gun of the A's, remained to do a little joshing with such rivals as Grimes and Bottomley.

Ticket Sale Slow

So far the debate over rival chances has been much more brisk than the rush for tickets, despite the interest in the opening game and the presence of President Hoover with a party including many cabinet officers and other government officials.

Speculators did little or no business today, with the supply of pasteboards apparently well in excess of the demand. Unless there is a belated attack on the turnstiles tomorrow, Shibe park may not be filled to its increased capacity of 33,000. Three thousand bleacher seats, selling at $1 each, go on sale tomorrow morning. On the top of the houses facing the park on Twentieth street, temporary bleachers have again been erected, to accommodate several thousand spectators, but this enterprise was not very profitable a year ago.

SHIBE PARK TICKET BUYERS' LINE INCREASES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30. (AP)—The endurance line at Shibe park is increasing.

With allotment of 30,000 strips of tickets for grand stand seats for the world's series in this city almost all taken up by the holders of ticket orders issued by the Athletics, the line is waiting for the general admission ticket windows to open tomorrow morning.

William Sullivan, Philadelphia, No. 1, in line since last Friday night, and Frank Tacovone, No. 2, were Philadelphia's standard bearers.

Third and fourth in line gave their names as Byron R. Anderson and his wife, Esther, 717 Warrent street, Belvidere, Ill.

Fifth was Wilmer Houser, of Tremont, Pa. The next were Harold Billman and Harvey Yazell, of Columbus, Ohio, Jack Cramer, of Pittsburgh, came next.

THE SKIPPERS SPEAK

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30. (AP)—Pre-battle statements of the rival managers to the Associated Press:

Connie Mack, Athletics—"It looks like a very good and I hope very interesting series. We all like a good contest. My boys are all in good condition. We expect to win but if we don't, there will be no abills."

Charles Street, Cardinals—"This is just another series for us, no tougher, if as tough as those we went through to win the pennant. Our pitchers are all in great shape, starting with Grimes, and the whole team is confident. So am I."

Reagan Warriors Play Here Today

Coach A. D. Beck Tuesday night announced his team was in perfect shape for this afternoon's skirmish with Archer City's B team, with the exception of one casualty—A. G. Fletcher, Reagan right end, who will be out of today's contest with an injured hand sustained in the manual training room at school Tuesday afternoon.

Otherwise his regular lineup will be on the scene in an effort to make things interesting for the visitors. Coach Bill Cooper of Archer City is understood to have a whale of a lot of power in his understudy group, and an interesting battle is expected. The skirmish will start at 4 o'clock on Wilson field.

Beck announced his starting lineup as follows: Allen Robinson, left end; J. L. Creecy, left tackle; Jack Holstein, left guard; J. Z. Powell, center; R. D. Foster, right guard; Cecil Decker, right tackle; Ray Ballard, right end; Kenneth Stingel, quarterback; Cleon Creecy, right half; Howard Hill, left half; and Walter Ruby, fullback.

Cards Saddle Hopes on Hallahan, Grimes and Rhem

"Sweet William" Hallahan, speed ball left hander; Flint Rhem, right hander; and Burleigh Grimes, one of the last of the spit-ballers, represent the main hopes of the St. Louis Cardinals, in so far as pitching is concerned, as they enter the World's Series today against the Philadelphia Athletics. Grimes has been announced as the starting pitcher for the opening game today. He throws right handed. There are two other pitchers on the Cards' list, however, who rate as good starters, Jesse Haines, big right hander with one of the best curves in the business, and Sylvester Johnson, right hander.

LEAGUE ISSUES NEW TIE RULE

Team Having Most Yardage To Get Title

AUSTIN, Sept. 30. (AP)—There will be no "tie games" in this year's interscholastic football championship.

Rules of the Interscholastic league, just off the press, expressly provide that in case of tie games, the team having the most first downs or the most yardage in the event of a tie in downs, shall be declared winner, unless an agreement to the contrary has been made prior to the game.

In the section of the football regulations governing tie games, this change is achieved by applying the rules of interdistrict elimination contests to the state championship.

Coaches Rule Clarified

The rule regarding coaches has been clarified by a new law on eligibility providing that an assistant coach must be a full time employe of the school board for the whole scholastic year, thus eliminating special coaches.

A suggested rule for a round-robin schedule was an innovation. It was suggested that in districts that have more than eight participating teams, sub-districts be created, in which case the round-robin schedules should be arranged in the sub districts to close in sufficient time to formulate an elimination game or series so that the district championship might be determined by the proper time. Districts with eight or fewer teams may create sub-districts if the district executive committee deems such action favorable, unless such an arrangement would upset pre-existing contracts.

To the definition of practice games was added the limitation that it could not be on an announced schedule.

Last year's mixup concerning officials late in the season led to the rule that the visiting team should insist upon an agreement on officials prior to the day of the game. This rule further provided that a school refusing to play a game because the officials agreed upon have not been secured shall not be considered as breaking its contract, and places the responsibility for procuring prior to the game, satisfactory officials, squarely upon the home team.

Eligibility Rules

Eligibility rules have been cleared up in a number of instances, one of the most important of which concerns "dummy" diplomas. Although the practice may seem unusual, in several instances an athlete who has failed to receive passing grades, is allowed to sit with graduating students when diplomas are given. He is given a dummy diploma—a plain sheet of paper—and next year reports for his team again. The rules this year specifically provide that any athlete who has received a dummy diploma is banned from further interscholastic competition.

Summer school work, or any work handed in after the close of a semester, may not be counted in determining whether an athlete is making passing grades. In the event the school has no semester rule, the player must have been regularly promoted at the preceding term. No student may participate in league contests after the close of the 10th semester following his first enrollment in the eighth grade, or if the school has 12 grades, following first enrollment in the ninth grade.

At least 355 high schools will participate in the football competition this fall, about 20 more than last year, and the number may be larger after the enrollment is closed.

Coyotes Prepare to Meet Lubbock's Great Offensive Smash Saturday

A big backfield buck by the name of Lawson, stellar ball-carrier for the Lubbock machine, was very much burned in effigy on the gridiron field behind Junior college Tuesday afternoon as Coach Barry Holton told his Coyotes many and varied tales of the Lubbock husky's prowess.

Mr. Lawson is indeed a genius, said Coach Holton; he can go through a line of cement, he added; he can gain more yards than a flapper era evening dress altered overnight to fit the modern fashion.

Coach Holton was not only giving an oration; he was telling the youngsters how to break up some of the plays in which the great Lawson figured. And it appears there are several other men on that Lubbock squad that might bear watching. In fact, Coach Holton broke down and admitted each and every Westerner was worth watching, and issued orders forthwith that if any Coyote, in next Saturday's game here, was caught not watching his man, he could expect thunder and lightnin' to descend.

Practice for the Lubbock game consisted of a good deal of skull work in addition to scrimmage drill Tuesday. Danny Cox was still on the sidelines with an injured knee. Chick Holden found he had a slight ankle sprain and had it taped up; nothing serious, but if anything serious should come to that big 180-pounder the Coyote line would suffer. Cox's injury is the only serious one in camp, now and he is expected to be back on the job soon.

The Coyote training grind is attracting the attention of Wichitans. Several of our athletic pillars were behind the college Tuesday watching the boys practice. The aggregation included A. W. King, vice president, and Bill Huff, president of the Spudders.

The Coyotes Tuesday wore for the first time their new jerseys—flaming red things with black stripes in them. The players' numbers will remain the same the entire season, Coach Barry Holton said. For the convenience of our readers, the complete list of men receiving jerseys, with the position and number of each player, is given below. It may be clipped, pasted on a piece of cardboard and used for reference throughout the season, if it is desired. The list follows:

No.	Player	Position
39	Malcolm Moulden	Right End
41	Leland Richards	Right End
47	Ed Greenwood	Left End
48	Robert Brandon	Left End
56	R. W. Parish	Left End
63	Charles Holden	Left Guard
59	Frank Stanfield	Left Tackle
49	Cleis Keye	Right Guard
57	Allan Gough	Right Tackle
58	Mervyn Hodgins	Left Tackle
43	Earl Harbes	Left Tackle
55	C. L. King	Center
40	Willard Wilkins	Center
51	R. J. Byrd	Left Guard
52	Elvis Goodman	Right Guard
60	Maxwell Sepkovitch	Right Guard
61	Lester Daniels	Right Tackle
38	Jack Gentry	Center
46	Daniel Cox	Quarterback
45	Bennett Withrow	Left Half
53	J. R. Holton	Right Half
42	Johnny White	Fullback
44	Horton Rice	Right Half
36	Hamlin Beasley	Quarterback
54	Bob Daugherty	Fullback
43	Orsa Janeway	Left Half

Twenty-six men, in all, who are considered eligible and able to go into the game at the nod of the head!

Coach Holton departed from the usual custom in presenting those sweaters, and instead of just throwing them at his men, reminded them they have much to live up to, once they are within the folds of the new jerseys. Referring, of course, to next Saturday's Lubbock game, among many others!

KIN TO BOBBY

Wichitan Learns He's First Cousin of Great Golfer

Less than a week ago, this story would have been smeared all over page one. Now it is conservatively on the sports page, but interesting nevertheless.

The story being that A. D. Woodward, 1676 Ardath street, is a first cousin of Bobby Jones, who last Saturday won another golf championship—the American amateur.

It was as much news to Mr. Woodward as it was to all concerned. He received a letter Tuesday from his grandmother, Mrs. John L. Woodward of Atlanta, Ga., containing newspaper clippings about the champion, and informing the Wichitan of his close relationship to Emperor Jones.

"It gives me a whale of a kick," said Woodward, who also plays golf.

PONIES TAKE ROAD TODAY

Squad Puts in Last Heavy Workout

DALLAS, Sept. 30 (AP)—Coach Ray Morrison put his Southern Methodist university football squad through its last strenuous workout today in preparation for Saturday's conflict with Notre Dame at South Bend.

Tomorrow the Mustangs will take only light practice before boarding their special train at 6 p. m. for the North. Thirty-five players will make the trip, including 12 backfield men.

Four squads were drilled desperately today by Morrison and his assistants, and the Mustang mentor expressed himself well pleased with their showing. There was not an injury of importance and the Ponies were assured of their full strength against the Ramblers.

BEARS LEAVE TODAY FOR BIG TEN GAME

WACO, Texas, Sept. 30. (AP)—The long trek starts tomorrow for the Baylor Bears. At 3 o'clock 25 gridsters will board a train for Lafayette, Ind., where Saturday the Bears meet Purdue, champion of the Big Ten.

Shortly before train time the Bruins will have their last workout in Waco before the game. Thursday afternoon they will scrimmage in St. Louis, and Friday they will practice in Lafayette. Players to make the trip were announced as follows:

OWLS PRACTICE DEFENSE AGAINST AIR ATTACK

HOUSTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Anticipating a flood of forward passes here Saturday when his Owls will play the St. Edwards university Saints, Coach Jack Meagher of Rice today sent his men through a long drill in the art of knocking down passes.

ROBERSON BACK WITH FROGS IN SCRIMMAGE

FORT WORTH, Sept. 30. (AP)—Clyde Roberson, veteran end, ran signals with the A team today as the Horned Frogs drilled for their Saturday game with Simmons university in Breckenridge. Roberson has been out most of the season with an injured knee, has not appeared in a single game, in fact. He probably will not go against the Cowboys, even though the knee is healed. However, his appearance indicates Roberson will be ready for the Texas Christian university-Arkansas game in Fort Worth, Oct. 11.

Red Oliver, second only to Cy Leland in speed, also was on the group. Oliver replaced Spearman in the backfield and may be in the starting backfield against Simmons.

TO TRY CHANNEL SWIM

DOVER, England, Sept. 30. (AP)—Mercedes Gleitze, England's best known woman long distance swimmer, entered the water at 3:45 o'clock this evening in an attempt to swim the English channel.

Anson Opens Loop Warfare Friday

Special to The Record News.

ANSON, Texas, Sept. 30.—The Anson High Tigers will begin a series of eight conference football games Friday afternoon by meeting the Winters Blizzards on the home grounds, when they have hopes of starting a victorious march toward bringing the district class B crown to the Jones county capital.

With two post-season games already played, Coach M. E. Pittman is putting the Tigers through daily workouts, ironing out the kinks and getting his men in shape for the conference running. Only seven letter men are returning this year, however, the skill displayed by the new material indicates that few candidates have a berth insured on the Tiger crew.

Following are the games scheduled for the Anson team:

Oct. 3—Winters at Anson.
Oct. 10—Merkel at Anson.
Oct. 17—Albany at Albany.
Oct. 24—Haskell at Anson.
Oct. 31—Rotan at Anson.
Nov. 11—Stamford at Anson.
Nov. 21—Hamlin at Anson.
Nov. 27—Spur at Spur.

Chisox and Cubs Open City Series Today

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (AP)—A season's debate over the merits of the downtrodden White Sox and the somewhat haughty Cubs drew to a climax tonight as the teams finished preparations for their series for the baseball championship of Chicago.

The series opens tomorrow at the home of the White Sox, and continues until one team wins four games. Rogers Hornsby and his Cubs were heavy favorites, but a hard fought series was anticipated because of the admitted superiority of White Sox pitchers and their top heavy record of victories over the 1929 National league champions in the past.

Estelline Gets Ready For Clarendon Game

Special to The Record News.

ESTELLINE, Texas, Sept. 30.—Coach Harold Matthews is putting his Bear Cubs through stiff workouts this week, getting ready for the game with Clarendon High school Friday.

Lawrence, a 160-pound new recruit, will see his first service in the backfield with the Cubs Friday. The team is materially strengthened by this husky youth who comes from Newlin. Coach Matthews says his men are rapidly gaining that confidence so necessary in successful football, and he hopes soon to have a machine that will be equal to any high school in this section.

Red Wings Make It 4-2 In Little World Series

PARKWAY FIELD, Louisville, Ky., Sept. 30. (AP)—Rochester made it four to two in the little world series, winning today's game, 8 to 6, from the Louisville American association champions.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—A sharp early decline in cotton today carried practically the entire list to new low levels and sent old and new October below the 10-cent level. The market later rallied on active covering as well as trade buying, and owing to less pressure in southern hedge selling. New December declined 6 points early to 10.18 and rallied to 10.44, closing at 10.40, a net advance of 16 points, while the general market closed steady with net gains of 7 to 20 points. Shorts seemed inclined to cover throughout the day, probably in advance of the government report on Oct. 8 and when it became evident the South was not following up its early selling the buying became more general and active toward the close.

A private crop estimate placed the indicated yield at 14.718.000 compared with last month's estimate by the same authority of 14.664.000. Liverpool cables said that the market there was influenced by covering and Manchester buying which absorbed early hedging and selling by Bombay. Exports today 57.907, making 1.142.775 so far this season. U. S. port stocks 2.652.919. Port receipts 123.011.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30. (AP)—Cotton ruled nervous and erratic with frequent price fluctuations, but finally showed a good net advance. Liverpool was much better than due, and although the market here opened 5 to 7 points up the gain was a poor response to the advance abroad.

Prices after a period of steadiness eased under hedge selling losing 5 to 6 points, but soon rallied 5 to 10 points on trade buying only to react shortly again. October making a new low 7 points down from the high while the later points duplicated the earlier lows, losing 9 to 10 points.

During the afternoon the market bulged rather sharply on firmer stocks and covering by large short interests, active months making new highs, 27 to 30 points above the lows and closing steady a few points under the top but showing net gains for the day of 21 to 26 points.

Shares Flood Market Continuing Downward Plunge of Stock Prices

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (US)—The downward plunge of prices continued on the stock exchange today as the volume of offerings swelled to the largest daily total since the midst of the June collapse. Close to four and a half million shares poured into the market and considering this volume the market at the close was down rather modestly, although scores of stocks reached new lows. The most displeasing fact was that the decline had persisted for the fifth straight day, a movement which was not equalled even during the panic of last year, when the downward plunges lasted no more than four days before a recovery set in. Today's market was beset by the usual crop of rumors, at least one of which found confirmation in a relatively unimportant stock exchange firm failure. This, however, naturally inspired talk of other firms being in trouble, so that even the potential cheer from firmer grain and cotton prices was of little influence. What little respites of firmness the market enjoyed were soon superseded by renewed flood of selling which carried prices to new lows continually. There was a rally, however, from the lowest levels of the day.

The stock market again is in the throes of black despair. The June lows, at which it was hoped large-scale support would develop, have been violated with hardly a show of resistance. Ugly rumors again are abroad and find ready reception in quarters where the market's performance has completely robbed speculators and even investors of their faith in prices. With this state of mind, it is but natural that the market should be witnessing heavy dumping of stocks, sometimes regardless of price. Under such circumstances, however, it is quite logical to anticipate that more active banking support, attracted chiefly perhaps by the lower prices now prevailing, should be extended to the market. There were many stories of large-scale support in various pivotal stocks, but their descent to new lows indicated that the buying was being done on conservative scale and on a scale-down. The outstanding fact, frequently commented upon here, is that the bears have been furnishing the principal support to the market. Again today, as on Monday, heavy short covering was evident in many speculative issues. The bears were less of a factor in the weakness today than generally supposed.

Even declaration of a $1 extra dividend by American Can had only momentary influence. This issue, to which the bulls have looked so confidently for leadership, ran up a few points from the day's low but soon reacted to close at three-point net loss. So far as the market was concerned, the extra dividend was wasted ammunition. Steel common was also a disappointment, sinking to the lowest price since the panic, although it was reported that huge buying orders were placed "just under the market."

It was quite evident, however, that the leading stocks were far less susceptible to the selling pressure than they had been last week. Among 30 leading industrial shares the net loss on the day was about 3½ points, while railroad shares were down less than a point on the average, and Public Utilities about 1½ points. It is this relatively better performance of the big stocks that furnishes chief encouragement to the hopes for cessation of the downward movement, at least technical in character.

The most widely accepted theory of the latest wave of liquidation has been that the federal reserve's new executive head has been aggressively urging all member banks to liquidate loans secured by insufficient security collateral. The very persistance of the liquidation movement has provided some degree of accepted confirmation of the explanation. Yet, very powerful interests today took almost unprecedented steps to deny, on what is claimed as "the very highest authority," that the federal reserve has in any way instituted such a program. The very nature of the means by which this information was spread in itself suggests that the market's continued decline has finally inaugurated a movement aimed at its stabilization.

The stock exchange failure was utilized as an excuse for additional selling, but under cover of this frightened liquidation there was heavy short covering. With the commodity markets showing even slightly improved tone, the stock market attaining temporary stability might enjoy a substantial rally.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Sept. 30. (AP)—Fair demand continued for light offerings on the cash grain market here today. With exporters still out of the market mills were bidding 87@87½c. For No. 1 hard wheat delivered Texas common points.

Oats—No. 2 red 50@51c; No. 3 white delivered Texas group one 47½@48c, to which add 1 cent for delivery group three.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (AP)—Despite disturbance from stock market unsettlement, grain values showed a general trend upward today, with Russia and Canada reported as having curtailed wheat offerings abroad. Dry weather complaints from domestic winter territory and also from the Balkans and Australia were current. There were likewise reports of damage to unthreshed wheat in Canada by recent heavy rains and snow.

After a maximum gain of 2⅜c a bushel, wheat closed nervous ⅜-1⅝c higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1⅝-3⅛c advanced, oats ⅜-1c up, and provisions varying from 25c decline to 35c gain.

Announcement of less pressure to sell Russian and Canadian wheat at European centers led to expressions of hope that this would prove to be the turning point from world wheat price depression. The fact that upturns would be from the lowest level which wheat had reached in 25 years was strongly emphasized, and significance was also attached to signs that many previous sellers were changing their market position.

For the most part, corn and oats swayed with wheat, but corn was given additional strength by predictions of heavy frost. Scarcity of late offerings to fill September corn brought about something of a flurry in the last few minutes of trading, and final transactions were at prices showing nearly 4c a bushel advance compared with 24 hours before.

Provisions averaged higher with cereals notwithstanding a drop in hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, Dec. 76⅛-¼, 80⅛-81; March 79⅝, 84⅛; May 82½, 86⅛-87. Corn, Dec. 77⅞-78, 81⅝-⅝; March 78⅝, 82⅞; May 80⅞-⅝, 84⅝-½.

MERGER SUIT SET AT OMAHA

Standard-Vacuum Hearing Slated Next Week

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 30. (UP)—Trial of the federal government's suit to prevent the $1,000,000,000 merger of the Standard Oil company of New York and the Vacuum Oil company, will be held in Omaha, Neb., Monday and Tuesday before five judges of the United States circuit court of appeals.

In briefs filed in the case here yesterday, the government declared the proposed merger is a violation of the famous Standard Oil dissolution decree of 1911, which virtually ended the famous "Standard Oil empire," after years of litigation.

That decree dissolved the old Standard Oil company, and the present proposed merger, according to the government brief "would tend to produce or bring about an illegal combination similar to that dissolved by the decree."

The two oil companies, in briefs of their attorneys held that evidence in the case heard in New York recently by Special Master Fred L. Williams indicates the merger, is but a normal and logical business development.

The defendants' brief said in part "the government's suit is barren of any . . . charges whatever against Socony or Vacuum or indeed any charges at all of entering or performing any combination like the one adjudged illegal."

Dawson County Crops Sufficient for Year

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Sept. 30.—Despite the drouth conditions which have prevailed over this portion of the state this year, the feed crops in Dawson county are ample to take care of the farmers' needs. Milo maize is making in most instances from a ton to a ton and a half per acre, while some portions of the county show less than this. Feterita and all other grain sorghums are showing a fair crop and most farmers will have a surplus to sell this fall.

THE AGE Of YOUTH

complete. There are other interesting—I might even say spicy—details which will be added. Here."

Into her reluctant hand he thrust a long, printed sheet of paper. It was her impulse to hand it back, to tear it up. But either of these actions, she felt, was inadequate to meet the situation. Even as yet she did not understand the implications of his manner, of his words. She knew, of course, that when he referred to newcomers he included her. But what of it? Why, because she was what she was, should she buy stock in Chit-Chat?

But it needed no recollection of the item in the morning paper to make her realize that this printed proof must be about herself. Common sense informed her of that. She was being blackmailed. This was too obvious. And she knew that the correct, the only thing to do when being blackmailed is to defy the blackmailer.

She knew that to temporize with a man as low as this person was to show weakness, indecision, fear. But she was weak; she was undecided; she was afraid. She had never been confronted with anything like this before. The warning in the newspaper had not prepared her for this sort of thing.

So she let her eyes rest upon the printed words in her hand:

"An entertainment not intended to be included in the cover charge was given to the guests of a fashionable night club the other night," she read. "The heroine—if the word may be applied to a lady whose role was not heroic—was Miss Donna Raynor, a young woman who has come out of the West or the South or some remote spot to blaze briefly in the outer fringe of the inner circle. The villain was young Frank Gardner, whose hectic years are apparently not done with yet. The hero was New York's perennial bachelor, Rannie Granby.

"Apparently Miss Raynor has 'it.' Apparently, too, she is extremely quiet in her ways. Few people knew that Rannie Granby was her beau. Fewer still suspected that Frank Gardner was acquainted with the charming young woman whose antecedents are somewhat dimmer than her beauty.

"Rannie Granby has just returned from Europe after an absence of several months. Frank Gardner has also just reappeared in Manhattan after an absence of several months. One finds it hard to comprehend how intimate relationship should exist between the villain or hero and the lovely heroine. But Chit-Chat finds it hard to understand many things that go on in the world which the two gentlemen adorn and the young lady—er—illuminates.

"And there are occasions in which it is the part of kindliness not to speculate. Let it suffice that apparently the lady knows Mr. Granby and Mr. Gardner thinks he knows the lady. For, in the presence and hearing of scores of social luminaries, Mr. Gardner accused Mr. Granby of 'keeping' Miss Raynor.

"Chit-Chat prides itself on the purity of its attitude, its contents and its English. So it does not profess to understand exactly what Mr. Gardner meant by the word 'keeping.' We wonder, however, if Mr. Granby understood or if Miss Raynor comprehended.

"Coffee and pistols for two have not been indicated up to the moment of going to press."

"This—this is outrageous," cried Donna.

"Isn't it?" queried her visitor brightly. "Shocking thing for Gardner to say. I wonder Granby didn't resent it."

He suddenly snatched the galley proof from Donna's fingers and folded it carefully before putting it back in his pocket.

"Now, Miss Raynor, perhaps you see the advantages of being a stockholder in Chit-Chat? Shall I put you down for five thousand dollars?"

He paused a moment; then, as Donna made no reply, he spoke again:

"Naturally, Chit-Chat takes great care to refrain from the publication of anything that would hurt the feelings of any of its stockholders."

"That's blackmail," said Donna.

Her visitor shrugged.

"Words are meaningless, Miss Raynor. You call it that, we call it good business. Neither of us really cares what the other calls it. So long as we understand each other——"

"Now, will you please go?" cried Donna.

Her visitor arose.

"Naturally," he continued evenly, "Chit-Chat expects its investors to think over their stock subscriptions. Chit-Chat doesn't expect to sell its stock offhand, as one might peddle vegetables or—er—young women. This article does not go to press for several days. I shall do myself the honor of calling again before that time, Miss Raynor. And I shall bring with me what additions to the article have been made."

Donna, still standing, made no answer. The man laughed carelessly, bowed mockingly and was gone. She stood for minutes after he had left. Thank God his filthy publication didn't know of the events that had occurred after leaving the night club. This was her first reaction.

But—and this followed upon her feeling of gratitude—his magazine knew too much. If she'd only been a man! If she'd only possessed the physical strength to strike him.

But there was nothing to be gained by contemplating impossibilities. If she'd been a man she'd never have been in this position. She opened the windows, letting the crisp autumn breeze blow chillingly into the room, as though to cleanse it from defilement. Then she resumed her interrupted way to the apartment of Mme. Galere.

Her coach greeted her as one greets one in the shadow of a great bereavement, as one embarrassedly greets a dear friend who has lost his fortune, or his health, or his only child.

It was, "Sit here, my darling. The draft, my child? Tea, dear? Is the light too strong, Donna?"

Until Donna, rebellious at coddling, burst out impatiently:

"Madame Galere, nothing has happened to me—yet."

The teacher eyed her reproachfully, exactly as one eyes the sick child who resents the medicine we are giving him for his own good.

"Darling girl! And nothing shall happen to my darling Donna——"

And then, upon the capacious breast of the singing teacher, the woman whom most of the world thought was scheming, ambitious, selfish, mercenary and without kindliness, Donna sobbed out her fears. She told of Gardner's words of last night, of the almost mortal struggle waged outside her apartment, of the Chit-Chat representative and his thinly disguised attempt at blackmail. Out of all the recital Mme. Galere could drag one note of cheer.

This was the attitude of Fannie Curlew.

"But even that, my dear," she admitted, after tea and powder and lipstick had somewhat restored Donna. "Aren't there—libel laws?"

Mme. Galere laughed harshly.

"Practically none in this country," she said. "In England they arrange things differently. People are allowed a decent privacy. The public prints are not entitled to find interest in a man or a woman's personal affairs. But there seems to be no limit to the privileges of the press here. Of course, Ran Granby has friends and Frank Gardner has power. I hardly think Chit-Chat will dare to use their names. But, frankly, my child, I don't know."

"You wouldn't have me pay them, would you?" asked Donna.

Mme. Galere shook her head.

"On principle—no! Not if you had millions. Yet, if you had the millions, I might be tempted to advise you to let principle go hang and settle with them on their basis. It would depend upon how much you wanted to achieve certain things."

"Publication of that story will prevent my achieving them?" asked Donna.

"I'm not sure of that. It depends on Ran Granby—more on Frank Gardner. I mean—suppose Ran Granby's engagement to you were announced."

"People would think he was chivalrous; or they'd think he was righting a wrong," said Donna shrewdly.

Mme. Galere pondered this.

"Possibly," she conceded. "But suppose, instead of Ran Granby, your fiance were Frank Gardner?"

"Well?" said Donna.

"The whole world would know that he was confessing that he lied when he made that charge. Men—of Gardner's type—don't marry kept women. The world would forget instantly what he had said about you. It would only remember that you were to marry him."

"Do you think I would marry him? Marry a man who had behaved as dreadfully, as wickedly, as—caddishly—"

"I didn't even suggest marrying him," said Mme. Galere. "I suggested becoming engaged to him. You could, couldn't you?"

"Could what?" asked Donna, confused.

"Become engaged to him?"

"Why," answered Donna slowly. "I—I think so."

REALTORS TO BOOST COLLEGE

Committee to Urge Bonds For School

Members of the Wichita Falls Real Estate board in their bi-weekly meeting Tuesday noon set themselves definitely to the task of effecting early action toward the provision of means for continuing the Junior college after completion of the current scholastic year.

Following a talk by J. B. Marlow, a committee consisting of J. M. Baber, Fred Cone and A. L. Huey was appointed by Roscoe Staton, president, to confer with a chamber of commerce committee on the college problem and to bring the matter to an early decision.

Danger of this city "losing one of its most important institutions" was pointed out by Mr. Marlow as having resulted from "prolonged inaction." Stating that the constant increase in scholastic population here soon will crowd the Junior college out of the high school building, he urged the voting of bonds for at least $300,000 for the purpose of erecting a Junior college building.

"Such a fund could be created by an increase of only 12 cents per $100 of property valuation," the speaker said. "The citizens of this city never have turned down a bond issue intended for school purposes, and I don't think they would reject one for a Junior college now. This is a matter that we must take care of now."

Importance of a two-year college here to those finishing high school in this section of the country was emphasized by Mr. Marlow.

Mr. Staton, Walter Curlee and Mrs. Ruth Cain spoke briefly of the state convention of realtors held last week in San Angelo.

Mr. Cone and R. R. Keith will make a report on appraisal of residence or business property at the next meeting, according to Mr. Staton, inaugurating a program feature which will be continued at length.

Freshman Gives Talk At College Assembly

Springer Williams, college freshman, was the principal speaker at the regular high school and Junior college assembly Tuesday morning, when he reviewed his trip abroad to the International Hi Y meet for the students.

Springer and Bill Hord, representatives of Wichita Falls, made an extensive tour of the United States and Europe with approximately 30 other American boys and while in Germany attended the Passion Play.

Frederick Soprano and Wichita Tenor Winners in Radio Tests

Miss Grace Williams of Frederick, lyric soprano, and Burton Coffman, tenor, of Wichita Falls, were selected by 750 voting radio listeners and a corps of six judges as winners of Monday night's Atwater Kent amateur audition at radio station KGKO, according to information given by Mrs. Lois Parker, supervisor, Tuesday afternoon. The two singers became eligible with their victory here to participate in the Texas state contest which is to be held in Dallas on Oct. 11.

Recording the highest score among both judges and radio listeners over a field of five other young women, Miss Williams achieved first honors with a finished performance of Stickles brilliant composition, "The Song of Spring."

A consistently even tone, easily delivered in the entire register, was a telling factor in bringing the Frederick singer her selection to represent this district in state competition.

Mr. Coffeman, assistant to the pastor of the First Church of Christ in this city, sang the outstanding composition offered in the men's class, using a recitative and aria from Massenet's "Mary Magdalene."

Second place in the girls' class went to Miss Charlene Kinder of Archer City, a coloratura soprano, while T. H. Cogdell of Quanah, baritone, won second place among the male singers.

Telephoned votes continued to arrive at audition headquarters until Tuesday noon, it was said.

Ernst Lubitsch is a colorful name in the movie world. It means a delicate naughty touch that doesn't quite offend and yet gives a delicious shock. And Lubitsch is as necessary to Jeanette MacDonald's success as ice cream to a birthday party. That was never more forcefully demonstrated than in "Let's Go Native." Miss MacDonald was overshadowed and her best points weren't even hinted at.

Her delightful work in "The Love Parade" was due in a great measure to her director. It is to be expected, therefore, that "Monte Carlo," the second talkie in which she works a la Lubitsch, will be at least as good as "The Love Parade."

Today, "Monte Carlo" is still playing in two of the largest New York theaters at $2 per seat after an unprecedented twin premier. Jack Buchanan, male lead who is said to be the English Chevalier, was so well liked that he immediately went on the Broadway stage, where his welcome was even greater.

"Monte Carlo" is a musical romance by Ernest Vajda from Hans Mueller's story, "The Blue Coast" and is a story of the casino at Monaco. It opens for a week's run at the Strand Friday.

Following "Monte Carlo," bookings include "The Santa Fe Trail" with Richard Arlen, Mitzi Green and Eugene Pallette; Clara Bow in "Her Wedding Night" (Rex Bell, Harry Richman or her Texas heartthrob?); "Heads Up" with Buddy Rogers and Helen Kane; Nancy Carroll and Frederic March in "Laughter"; "Feet First" with Harold Lloyd; and Chevalier himself in "The Playboy of Paris."

STRAIGHT AND TO THE POINT

Girl Theft Suspect Leaps From Window Of Sheriff's Office

Leaping barefooted from a window of the courthouse while Sheriff W. G. Bralley and several of his deputies had their backs turned a young woman burglary suspect made good her escape shortly before noon Saturday.

The prisoner had been arrested, clad in a man's clothing, after several shots were fired at her by Deputy Sheriff George Garrett in the Country Club Estates early Saturday morning following the robbery of the W. C. Woody home at 2103 Berkeley drive.
