Plains In Good Condition, City Bankers Report

Lubbock And Territory May Expect A Banner Year

THE BUSINESS outlook this year on the South Plains, from the viewpoint of bankers, and considering the fact that money is tightening up, is the brightest in the history of this section, interviews with officials of the three Lubbock banks reveal.

"I have been in this country since 1908," declares W. O. Stevens, vice-president of the Citizens National bank, "and have been in close touch with conditions every year. We have the most optimistic outlook this year, of any year I have ever seen. There's a wonderful seasoning in the ground. More crops are being planted, and will be planted, and will be planted, and there will be much earlier planting.

Farmers In Good Shape

"Farmers of the South Plains are in better financial condition than has ever been known. They all have more dairy cows and are diversifying to a greater extent. This practice is gaining momentum, too. The farmer is becoming more of a business executive. The average one is trying to see how little money he can borrow, instead of how much. He is handling his farm on a more business-like way.

"Money on the South Plains is tightening up. We are feeling the effects of the wild speculation in New York. A great deal of money in the banks of this section have been going to Wall street because of the high rates of interest offered there. This retards the commercial development locally. So thinks O. L. Slaton, president of the First National bank.

Apparent In Cattle Loans

"We notice it particularly in cattle loans," Mr. Slaton said. "Some of the biggest loan companies making loans on cattle say they do not want to make such loans. Where they do take them, it's a higher rate than has obtained in many years.

"There in Lubbock, however, building is going on at a rapid pace, and much activity is evident that fact helps to make the outlook locally very fine. But there is not enough money available; not as much as we would like to see.

"Crop prospects are great. They are earlier and much better than in many years. Yes, the farmer is in better economic condition than ever. He does not have any money, perhaps, but he has more cows, poultry and feed. There are a lot of new farmers who have come in. These are going to have more difficulty than usually in getting loans, because of tight money conditions, traceable to the New York speculation and the high rates offered there. This section has been feeling the effect of that condition for

Almazan Leaves On Rebel Drive

JUAREZ, Mexico, April 20. (AP)—Gen. Juan A. Almazan and approximately 5,800 Federal troops left Juarez at 10:20 tonight on the start of their drive against rebel forces in Sonora.

They will travel from Juarez to Casas Grandes by rail and go from there through Pulpito Pass into Sonora by truck. Their final destination, though unannounced, probably will be Agua Prieta or Nogales.

A flatcar loaded with gasoline drums was attached to the train to supply fuel for the trucks for the trip through the pass.

Memphis Gets Press Meet

PAMPA, April 20. (AP)—Memphis was selected for the next meeting place and Homer Steen, editor of the Floydada Hesperian, was elected at the closing session of the annual Panhandle Press association convention today.

A feature of the final day was a souvenir luncheon given by the Nunn-Warren Publishing company, chain newspaper organization, at which J. Lindsey Nunn, Amarillo, was toastmaster.

Medals Are Presented To First And Second Winners; Special Sectional Train Planned To Austin

By VESTEL LOTT
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ACCORDING to unofficial figures compiled by the Avalanche-Journal last night, Lubbock High School carried off the high honors in the two-day district meet of the Texas Interscholastic League held on the Tech College campus Friday and Saturday.

Dr. A. W. Evans, of Tech College, director general of the meet, reported last night that the official figures would not be available until sometime this week, as many of the judges failed to turn in the runners-up in the various events.

Lubbock Totals 65

The unofficial count gives Lubbock 65 points, Plainview 45, Olton and Slaton each 35 points. This figure does not include any of the winners in the essay contest nor the runners up in the extemporaneous speaking contests.

First place winners in the literary events and first and second place winners in the athletic contests will represent the South Plains district at the state interscholastic meet to be held at Austin, April 3 and 4.

It is estimated that more than 2,000 public school pupils, representing the eighteen counties of this district, attended the meet here yesterday and Friday. The visitors were guests in Lubbock homes while in the city.

Medals Presented

As host to the meet for the fourth consecutive year, Tech College presented gold and silver medals to the winners of each event in addition to presenting cups or other trophies to the winner of the meet, track meet

Building Permits Continue Advance

Lubbock Total Still Fourth In Texas; Straus & Co. Gives Good Rating During March To City

Two permits, totalling $5,000, were issued Saturday by D. J. Schlag, city building inspector, one for repairs to the Cova Hotel and the other for a steel warehouse. The day's total aided in pushing the April record to $457,200 for 48 permits, and that for the year to $1,581,818 for 250 permits.

The permits were issued to, Henson and Jarvis, 1211 Avenue H, repairs to Hotel Cova, $1,500, J. A. Henson, contractor, and to the Phillips Petroleum company, 1109 Fourth Street, steel warehouse, $3,500.

Injunction Suit Decision Delayed

Judge Clark M. Mullican, of the Ninety-Ninth district court, announced late Saturday night that he had not yet arrived at a decision in the injunction case of Dr. M. C. Overton versus A. W. Jackson and J. B. Maxey, which was tried before him Thursday and Friday.

A decision will be rendered, however, within the next few days, possibly Monday, but probably later, he stated.

The case has been watched with considerable interest because of Dr. Overton's endeavor to restrain Jackson from having a business structure constructed on the corner of Broadway and Avenue Q. Dr. Overton claims that he restricted all property in the Overton addition lying west of Avenue Q and on both sides of broadway to residential structures only.

You, Too, Can A Champion Be

LONDON, April 20. — Last year produced champions in every line of sport, in political circles, literary circles, in aviation and then industries, but here are a few you probably never heard of.

Herr Fritz Sohner, of Berlin, ate a 300-pound pig in ten days. Another of his countrymen ate seven and a half yards of sausage in about half an hour.

Francesco Marini, an Italian, unravelled his way through two and a quarter miles of spaghetti in one sitting. A glass jug, jug, containing 2 gallons of beer, was emptied in 23 1-5 seconds by a Parisian.

Other records went to Price McBride of Manchester, England, for playing one piece 1000 times on a piano without stopping. Pietro Lucci played a trombone six hours and 20 minutes while treading water. A polish jazz band played continuously for over 33 hours.

Lubbock Citizens To Vote Tuesday On Airport Bonds

Light Vote Is Indicated For Election To Determine Issuance Of $75,000 In Bonds For Project

Citizens of Lubbock will march to the election polls again next Tuesday, this time to vote on whether or not $75,000 in bonds shall be issued for the purchase and equipment of a municipal airport, a long-felt need.

There will be a light vote cast, indications visible portend.

There are many citizens to be found who favor the bond issue, and there seem to be about as many who do not favor it.

Arguments Advanced

Argument advanced by some who are opposed to the issue is based on their disfavor to the site on the Plainview highway north of town, on which the chamber of commerce airport committee has taken an option. This argument lessens in strength when it is told that the committee's option does not in any manner bind the city commission.

After the bonds are voted, if they are, the city commission has free choice of any site it might desire. A site southwest of towns, about five miles out on the Brownfield highway, has been advanced by several prominent citizens as being more preferable than the one north of the city. That is another question, to be settled after the bonds are voted.

Gatesville Man Is Electrocuted

WACO, Apr. 20.—(AP)—C. H. Williams, 29, of Gatesville, was electrocuted near Hamilton today when a power line company pole-setting truck came in contact with a 2600 volt high line.

Rates Revision Suggested

WASHINGTON, April 20. (AP) — A report suggesting revision of railroad rates on grain and grain products in territory west of the Mississippi was made public today by Interstate Commerce Commission examiners, and the commission set May 27 as a date on which to hear arguments here on the proposal from carriers and representatives of the grain producing territroy.

Special Session Of Legislature Convenes Monday

Meeting Expected To Record Accomplishments Left Undone By Regular Session

Appropriations Up

Prison Relocation, Moody's Civil Service Constitutional Amendments and Money Bills Slated

BY R. W. BARRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, April 20. —(AP)—The belief is growing around the capitol, say legislators friendly to the administration, that the special session of the legislature meeting Monday will get off on the right foot to accomplish some of the things the regular session left undone.

It seems certain that there will be enacted a penitentiary concentration bill acceptable to the governor, although it will be in the nature of a compromise between the two factions. It is believed that the bill will carry a provision calling for legislative ratification of plans for relocation, which would mean another special session late this year or early in 1930.

Practicing Optimism

Although Governor Moody is practicing optimism in submitting civil service and has strong hope of seeing it put into effect, his best friends have little hope of its being enacted. Civil service was killed by the house during the regular session and was rejected by the senate in the 40th legislature, two years ago.

Cameron Pastor Is Given Ousting

Rev. H. G. Kenney Notified Of Removal From Central Texas Presbytery; Case To Be Explained

(By Associated Press)

CAMERON, Apr. 20.—The Rev. H. G. Kenney, Cameron pastor, charged with heretical teachings, was notified officially today by the Central Texas Presbytery that he had been ousted from the local church and disqualified from holding any other pastorate in the district.

The Rev. Kenney received a letter announcing that he had been expelled and that an unnamed member of the Presbytery would fill the pulpit of his church tomorrow.

Statement To Be Made

At the Sunday service, a statement "covering the Cameron matter" will be read before the congregation. It became known that after the meeting of the Presbytery governing board Thursday in Clifton, Kenney was asked to sign a certain prepared statement provided he had no mental reservations in the signing. Kenney refused to sign, declaring he had mental reservations.

CORSICANA, April 20. (AP)—Abilene will entertain the 1930 convention of the Texas Federation of Music clubs, the executive board announced at the closing session of the fourteenth annual meeting here today.

One of the principal speakers at the conference of the South Plains Bankers association here tomorrow will be Joshua B. Lee, head of the department of public speaking at the University of Oklahoma and one of the Southwest's most widely known orators. Mr. Lee is being mentioned in Oklahoma as a possible candidate for the United States senate.

Reapportionment And 1930 Census Bills Combined

Consolidated Measure Will Face Congress Following Disposition Of Farm Relief Question

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 20. — Two bills on the program of President Hoover for the extra session—authorization of the 1930 census and reapportionment of house membership on the basis of that census—were combined today by the senate commerce committee and reported to the senate.

The consolidated bill, facing opposition from those states which would lose house representation under the reapportionment, has been accorded second place on the calendar. The farm relief measure, up Monday, has first call.

Begins Next November

The census bill reported, introduced on Thursday by Chairman Jones, provides for beginning the census next November 1, rather than on May 1 as stipulated in the bill passed last session by the house.

The bill also includes provision for the taking of an unemployment survey in connection with the 1930 censes.

The reapportionment bill introduced by Vandenberg, republican, Michigan, is the same in general scope as that passed last session by the house. It provides for keeping the house membership at its present figure—435.

Laredo Officers Charged In Death

Raymond J. West And Tomas Hermandez Named In Indictments For Death Of Harry Williams

(By Associated Press)

LAREDO, April 20.—Two Laredo police officers were indicted today for the murder of Harry Williams, 24, newspaper reported who disappeared from here on the night of Jan. 19, 1929, and was taken from the Rio Grande a corpse about a month later.

Raymond J. West, 24, constable here for eight months, and Tomas Hernandez, motorcycle officer with an eightlyear service record in Laredo, named in the murder bills by the Webb county grand jury, were held in jail tonight.

The disappearance of Williams, who formerly lived at Muncie, Ind., caused an intensive search. Immigration officers from Brownsville to El Paso at one time were ordered to aid in the search for the missing youth and the entire country was circularized. Numerous false leads were followed, but there was no trace of him until the body was found at a shallow point in the river.

Tale of Woe Wins Judge's Pajamas

LONDON, April 20.— There's a surprise awaiting the next person who approaches the magistrate at Wymouth with a sob story. A tramp is responsible for a turn to more severity and less kindness in the court.

The vagrant was hailed before the bench of justice after being found with a razor wound in his throat. The court listened to a most convincing tale of woe. It was such a good story that the jurists made up a purse of ten dollars and one magistrate provided a suit of pajamas for the fellow.

Then arrangements were made to send the tramp to the Home of St. Francis of Assisi at Batcombe, Dorset. It was more than our hero had bargained for. He disappeared from the colony while final arrangements were being made to receive him. The pajamas were found in the reception room.

Hoover Is Opposed To Debenture Plan For Farm Measure

President To Set Forth His Views In Communication Monday; McNary Is Silent On Question

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 20.—President Hoover is opposed to the export debenture plan of the national Grange as a measure of farm relief and is expected to set forth his views in a communication to be considered by the senate agriculture committee at a special meeting at 10 a. m., Monday.

This became known late today after a White House conference between the President and Senator McNary of Oregon, chairman of the committee, who visited the executive offices at the request of Mr. Hoover some hours after the president had had nearly an hour's talk with Louis J. Taber, master of the grange.

Preparing Statement

Information was that the president told McNary that he was preparing a statement for the committee on the debenture proposal which would be put in the mails overnight, and requested that the committee be called together at an early date to consider it. On returning to the capitol the chairman sent out the call for the Monday meeting.

McNary would not predict what action his committee might take in the light of presidential opposition, but he said his own position was unchanged; that he had said all along that if the plan met with executive disapproval he could not support it, as a protracted controversy over it in congress might delay seriously the whole program of relief legislation.

Crowley Is Named Snyder Director

James W. Crowley, for the past five years bandmaster for Lubbock High school, has been selected as the director of the Snyder High school and municipal band, according to word received from that city yesterday.

Mr. Crowley stated last night that he had agreed on terms with the Snyder Lions club and school board but that no contract had been signed. Should he take the position, he will leave Lubbock June 1, it was stated.

Since coming to Lubbock, Mr. Crowley has built up one of the best known musical organizations in the state from the local high school. He has entered the band in all contests in the West Texas chamber of commerce conventions and last summer attracted much attention throughout the southwest with his 2,000-mile tour of three states with the local youngsters.

Every man in the jail got away.

Tech Engineers Perform Miracles Before Crowds In First Annual Show; 2,200 Witness Exhibitions

EGGS FRYING on ice, machines controlled merely by shouts of the human voice — wheels cogs, gears, lathes, motors, bolts, machines, gauges and gadgets without number — in fact, many of the modern miracle-makers classified under the general term of engineering were on public display at the Tech yesterday afternoon and last night.

The occasion was the first annual Engineering show conducted by this, one of the most important departments of the college. So successful was the exhibition that there is little doubt it will be made a regular feature on the yearly college calendar. The engineering buildings—there are three of them—were thronged with eager, curious, questioning visitors from the time the show opened.

2,200 Witness Show

When a final check on attendance was made it was found out late last night that a total of 2,200 persons saw the show.

The persons unacquainted with the magnitude of this institution known as Texas Tech had a revelation awaiting in the scope and size of the engineering department; the ultra-modern equipment found on every side; in the business-like arrangement of machines and laboratories; and in the general efficient scheme of the department.

Tech's engineering departments possess all of the apparatus that one might find in the largest colleges of the land. Machinery and equipment is new and spic and span and careful students keep it that way.

New Building Visited.

The new engineering building, the one last opened last fall, was the first place visited. Blue

Texas Tech Budget Is Slashed By House Committee

Requests for New Buildings, Larger Faculty Refused

College Pins Hopes Now In Champions on Senate Finance Committee, Who Recently Visited City.

DESPITE the phenomenal growth and scholastic expansion registered by the Tech in its four years of existence, the house appropriations committee, in session Friday of this week, slashed Tech's requests for monetary support in a way that was truly deplorable.

The college yet can depend on the senate appropriations committee to champion its cause and a merry tussle over the Tech's pleas may be expected during the special session of the legislature, convening Tuesday. For the college has its stalwart friends as well as its more lukewarm supporters.

The house committee was even more severe with Tech's requests than was the Board of Control. The Board recently eliminated bids for several new buildings, but allowed two of them. The committee would eliminate even these two—a new library and a dairy products building.

Not only did the buildings fall by the wayside, at least so far as the committee is concerned, but proposed salary increases, and proposed new equipment were likewise slashed with a vengeance.

Object to Liberal Arts.

Rumbles of discontent, on the part of some legislations, were likewise manifest regarding operation of the Tech. There is a minority faction on the house committee which would like to see Tech adhere more closely to the idea of a technical college; they figure the state university is ample enough for the more fancy learning. This faction objects to the liberal arts phase of Tech; to the library and to other topics of a similar classification.

Among the items frowned upon by the house committee were two professors in animal husbandry, one in dairying, one in vocational agriculture, and one each in chemical engineering, architectural engineering civil engineering, mechanical engineering, textile enigneering, economics, geology, mathematics, physics and physical education.

The college request in its building program for a unit for the administration court, costing $354,000, eliminated by the Board of Control. Engineering equipment costing $100,000 cut to $15,000 by the board; science equipment costing $30,000 reduced to $15,000; printing plant for $25,000, that was eliminated; dairy unit for $80,000, that was decreased to $50,000; library for $200,000 was cut to $175,000 by the board; library books, $50,000, set at $25,000 by the board.

But members of the house committee say that it is extremely unlikely that any of these items, even those cut by the Board of Control will be adopted. They are expecting a fight with the senate, they frankly admit; thye candidly say that not all house members take the same view as they.

Harold Kayton, representative from San Antonio, which city is asking for $1,000,000 to purchase property surrounding the Alamo, does not believe in all these Tech appropriations and is frank enough to give his opinion. He is a member of the committee. He went to Lubbock. He wants technical subjects taught. Yet there are the elimination of the technical items facing him. While at the Tech, Kayton voiced his sentiments plainly to President Horn, the trustees and other legislators, including faculty members. He visited one class that was studying anatomy and told the instructor of his objections to that subject. "But I would like to see Tech developed into the biggest in the United States," he said, "especially textiles."

Officers Here Prepare For Beer War

Home Brew Peddlers Will Feel Iron Hand of Law During Summer Season; Jones Law Will Punish

BELIEVE it or not, hardware and variety store dealers, for some unknown reason, are beginning to place crocks, bottle cappers, rubber hose and other tell-tale paraphenalia in their show windows. Grocerymen report a sudden increase in the sale of malt extract, yeast cakes and sugar.

The beer season is on and from all indications the familiar aroma of home brew will soon permeate the atmosphere.

But while all of these preparations are going on the sheriff's department and the federal authorities here are laying plans to combat the beer vendors. "They contend that 'How Dry I Am" will be the popular Lubbock anthem this summer or they will know the reason why. That the officers mean business is shown by the fact that they have put an undeniable crimp in the liquor selling business during the past few months.

To Call In Reserves

The mere fact that it has been hard to get a conviction in the state courts on beer charges isn't going to prevent a war on the local beer barons. "We are going to get them and if the juries turn them loose, that is their business," Sheriff Wade Hardy says. "If we find that we can't handle the beer peddlers, we will turn them over to the federal officers."

Beer cases, on federal charges, will come under the jurisdiction of the much-discussed Jones law, popularly called the "Five and Ten," with a maximum penalty of five years in the penitentiary and $10,000 fine. It is possible, although hardly probable, to get this penalty in a beer case.

Pearson Is Aroused

United States Commissioner Leonard L. Pearson also has declared war on bootleggers. He stated that all "beer cases" will be investigated by a federal agent. Federal charges will be filed in all of the cases where a conviction is probable.

Although no beer charges have been filed, officers feel that with the warm weather the beer bootleggers will spring into activity. "Beer peddlers are much worse than liquor bootleggers because there are so much more of them," Sheriff Hardy states. He predicts that in the near future beer joints would be scattered all over town unless prevented by the teeth of prohibition enforcement.

Final Preparations For Pageant At Texas Tech Are Begun; Program To Be Shorter; Levelland Girl Queen

More Than 500 Persons Are To Appear In Cast Under Direction of Miss Ruth Pirtle Faculty Member.

QUEEN Elizabeth, her court and subjects, Robin Hood and his Merry Men, Shakespeare, and many other prominent characters of that time will appear on the campus of Texas Technological college during the evening of May 17 to portray the "Elizabethan Festival," the fourth annual pageant of the college. More than five hundred faculty members, students, members of the board of directors and townspeople of Lubbock will appear during the production, which is being planned to be one of the most gorgeous pageants ever produced in West Texas.

Preparations for the pageant have been going on for the past several months and officials are to be busy during the next few weeks making final preparations for the affair.

Big Crowd Expected

Plans are to be perfected to care for an even greater crowd than has ever before witnessed the pageants shown at the college. The largest crowd was estimated between six and seven hundred people.

Miss Ruth Pirtle, head of the department of public speaking of the college, is in charge of the program. She is being assisted by other women members of the faculty. Misses Anna Jo Pendleton, Eunice Cox, Lucille Gill, Ruth Budd, Flora McGee, Lillian Hopping, Gussie Teague, Zella Riegel, Vivian Johnson, Bessie League, Frances Whatley, Kate Pressley, Katherine Harper, Mamie Twyford, Mable Erwin, Margaret Weeks, Dorothy McFarlane, Marie Delleny, Baker, Bonnie, Dysart, Emma Main, Norma Hulme and Mesdames R. M. Chitwood, W. B. Gates, Mary W. Doak, and William Dingus, Prof. W. R. Waghorne, Harry LeMaire, E. H. Killin, Dr. L. T. Patton and Ross Owens are also aiding in the arrangements of the production.

Program Is Short

The pageant is to be staged on the green in front of the cloisters of the administration building. It is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p. m. and will continue for approximately one and one-half hours.

All the characters of the famous old queen's period will be present. The first part of the pageant will be the reproduction of an old Elizabethan fair while the second part will consist of various scenes from eight of Shakespeare's plays. Prominent among them will be the dueling and balcony scenes from Romeo and Juliet. Other important scenes of the great dramatist's plays will be presented.

Queens Selected

Miss Lynn Dougherty, of Levelland, is to play the part of Queen Elizabeth in the pageant, members of her court being prominent students of the college. Miss Donna Vaughn, of Lubbock, is to be Maid Marian who is to be crowned queen of the fair.

The music for the first part, the English fair, will be under the direction of Prof. Harry LeMaire, who played in fairs at Nottingham and other points in England years ago.

Every costume fore the pageant will be of the period and will be furnished by a costume house in St. Louis.

Besides the appearances of Robin Hood and his Merry Men, the reproduction of various Shakespearean scenes, dances by Miss Zella Riegel, physical education instructor, and students will be featured during the program.

Aid Is Solicited For Local Family In Need of Food

Without work or the prospects of work and without money with which to purchase even the bare necessities of life, a Lubbock father of eight children is today facing a drab outlook. Ensign F. O. Burdick, in charge of the Lubbock post of the Salvation army, reported to the Avalanche-Journal yesterday.

The man in question, with his wife and family came to Lubbock several weeks ago in search of work and thus far has been unable to find employment. He is a carpenter by trade, the Ensign reports, but will take any kind of work he can get and be glad to do so.

Army Helps Some

The man appealed to the Salvation army for help in purchasing groceries and following an investigation Ensign Burdick purchased between three and four dollars worth of food to tide the family over for a few days. An inspection of the home disclosed that the family larder was absolutely bare with the exception of salt and baking powder.

Funds in the home service department of the Salvation army here are distressingly low, Ensign Burdick reports, and he solicits aid for the unfortunate family. Of the eight children the eldest is 14 years of age and the youngest is 14 months.

Donations will be received either by Ensign Burdick, Salvation army home, 1904 Avenue H, or by R. F. Cook, cashier of the First National bank and treasurer of the army post.

Mrs. Tabor Loses Matchless Mine

Once Rich Property at Leadville, Colo., Passes From Control of Widow of Late U. S. Senator

(By Associated Press)

LEADVILLE, Colo., April 20.—The last vestige of the once great fortune of the late U. S. Senator H. A. W. Tabor, the Matchless mine which in its heyday produced more than $20,000,000 in the gold has passed from the hands of his widow. A sheriff's deed for the property was turned over to the Shorego Mining company of Denver yesterday.

The mine was all that remained to Mrs. Tabor, now an aged and poverty stricken woman, of a fortune once estimated at nearly $40,000,000. Tabor, through bad investments, lost his fortune and died a poor man. He is buried in an abandoned cemetery. A few years ago the small headstone that marked his grave was toppled over in a windstorm and shattered. High weeds and grasses now hide the grave of the man whose wedding was attended by a President of the United States.

Mrs. Tabor, known through all the West years ago as the "Beautiful Baby Doe" five times had saved the mine from a sheriff's sale. The sixth time the mine was sold, but the Shorego Company allowed Mrs. Tabor an additional period of grace after the usual six months time for redemption of the mine.

As the time neared its end, Mrs. Tabor was made beneficiary of stocks estimated to be worth $20,000 in the estate of her brother, Peter McCourt, pioneer Denver theatrical producer, and it was thought that this money would be used to clear the $1,000 mortgage on the mine. It was not, and Mrs. Tabor has not indicated what her plans for the future may be, other than to say that she still has hopes of regaining the mine, and through it, the hope that in its deep shafts may still be the streak of gold which would mean wealth.

Oil Development Is Quieting Down

Little News From Scattered Wildcats Being Sunk Throughout The South Plains Country.

Oil development, at least so far as evidenced by test wells, is at the present time at a low ebb in this part of the country.

The test being drilled by the Purple Oil company, twelve miles southeast of Seagraves, in Gaines county, has been temporarily shut down.

The test in Terry county, near Brownfield, has been abandoned, at least for the time being.

The Marland company is still drilling on its test in Cochran county, indications yet being regarded as favorable.

Preparations are being made for spudding in of a new wildcat near the one recently brought in at Justiceburg, Garza county. Time for spudding in of the well has not yet been fixed.

Miss Anna Cook of Post is visiting here during the week-end.

Miss Margaret Edwards, Miss Helen Mason of this city and Claiborn Bell of Post are spending the week-end in Roaring Spring.

Dean Of All Living Baseball Men

BY JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Cartoonist-Writer.

Back in the early eighties, a young major leaguer revolutionized the playing of first base. He began by playing the bag fully 30 feet behind it and covering ground 25 feet on either side. At the time it was claimed that no man could cover the bag properly playing that distance from it. The orthodox style was to stick close.

That player was Charles Comiskey, now president of the Chicago White Sox, and the oldest magnate in organized ball. He was born in Chicago in 1859 and has devoted more than 50 years to the national game.

He began his professional career at the age of 17, playing third base at Milwaukee. At 20 he was with the Dubuque Northwestern league club first as a pitcher and later as a first baseman. The St. Louis Browns, of the original American association, signed him in 1882 and he won four pennants with them. One year with the Brotherhood team in Chicago and he returned to St. Louis, going a year later, 1892, to manage Cincinnati. Six years after he began to lay the foundation for the Western league, and later, with Ban Johnson the American league.

Johnson persuaded Charles Somers to finance Comiskey at Chicago and the White Sox began to make money from the outset. In 1910, after 10 years of success with the Sox, he built the present Comiskey park. It first seated 15,000. Today 60,000 can be accommodated.

Local Teams Meet At Merrill Today

Auto-Barbers and Carpenter-Painters of the Lubbock Twilight League, clash in the second baseball tilt of the season this afternoon at Merrill Park. Practically the same lineups that were in action last Sunday will start today.

Morgan and Terry are favored for mound duty for the Auto-Barbers, while the C. and P. aggregation is counting on an imported righthander from the sandlots of Oklahoma City. Randolph Boggs is the name, a right hander, who pitched for the Twilight League champions of the Oklahoma metropolis last season.

Boggs has been woring with the local team for the past week and is ready to make his debut in Lubbock. Those who have watched this newcomer serving his slants toward the plate are loud in their praise for his ability.

The game today will start at 3:30.

Bracey Headed For Drake Relays

DES MOINES, April 20. (AP)—Cyclonic Claude Bracey steps out at the Drake relays, April 26 and 27, in another bid for that princely title —the world's fastest human.

When Charley Paddock carried that destination to speed was so consistently superior that his recognition was complete.

Bracey, still far from the sprinting heights attained by the immortal Paddock, stepped the century in record time twice in one day this spring.

His time was 9.5 seconds and 9.4 seconds.

The officials, however, ruled that a favorine wind had made possible the feat of the dash demon from Wise institute.

So the young Texan will be just as eager as anyone to have correct conditions prevail when he roars over the cinder path at the coming track classic of the cornbelt.

At Drake, Bracey will compete against such flashes as George Simpson, Ohio State; Jack Elder, Notre Dame; Jud Timm, Illinois, and Eddie Tolan, Michigan.

Trying for attention in the face of this lineup of speedsters will be about 1,500 athletes from colleges, universities and high schools in the mid and southwest.

Among the other high lights at the meet will be a continuation of the battle between Tom Warne, Warne, Northwestern, and Jimmy Canby, Iowa, for midwestern pole vaulting honors.

Westerners Carry Off High Honors In Strong Field Of Tracksters At Interscholastic League Contest

Lowrey Aggregation Scores 31 1-2 Points To Take Title In Track And Field; Plainview With 24 Points Places Second; Slaton Is Third

BY ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

Lubbock High school athletes showed their heels to speedsters from eighteen counties at Tech Field Saturday and ran off with the championship of District Two in one of the most hotly contested track and field meets in the history of the Interscholastic League.

A Westerner aggregation that had been on the downgrade since winning the county meet two weeks dug its cleats a little deeper into the speedway and chalked up an overwhelming victory over a strong field of contestants.

Although the Lubbock team scored but two first places in the meet, Coach E. J. Lowrey's cohorts took enough places down the line to pile up 31 1-2 points. Plainview's three first places held the Hale county entry to second place in the meet with 24 points. Slaton Tigers came next with 18 1-2 and Dickens was fourth with 16 3-4.

Other schools making a showing in the contest were: Lamesa 9 points, Olton 8 3-4, Sudan 8 1-2, Spur 8, Post 6, Amherst 5, Ralls 5 1-2, Littlefield 3, Meadow 3, New Home 3, Levelland 1, Brownfield 1, Lakeview 1.

Olton Girls Win

While Lubbock High was showing the way in track and field events, Olton girls swept through all opposition to win the volley ball title. Lubbock county netters led a strong field of raqueteers in the tennis finals, Lubbock High school taking the boys singles and Slaton winning the girls' doubles. Plainview took the boys' doubles and Spur the girls' singles.

A gangling athlete from Loyola, Martin County, carried off honors in the rural pentathalon. Ellis of Three Lake, Lynn County, placed second. The third entry was injured while running the 100-yard dash and was forced to withdraw.

Two Records Fall

Two records fell and two were tied as the athletes from Class A and B schools pitted their prowess in the track and field events. Harold Laird of Plainview stepped the 220-yard low hurdles 26.1 seconds to beat the old mark of 26.3 held by Austin of Slaton. Hooper of Olton was on his heels at the finish while Austin, the record holder, placed third. The old mark for the discus throw, 116 feet, was beat by a scant margin when McAteer of Dickens hurled the plate 116 feet, 3 1-4 inches.

Harkey of Dickens equalled his own record in the pole vault when he hurled himself over the bat at 11 feet, 6 inches. His attempt to better this mark failed. The district mark in the high jump was equalled by Riddell of Spur.

Laird Is High Point

First place in the 220-yard low hurdles and 440-yard dash gave 10 points and individual scoring honors to H. Laird of Plainview. Yancy Price of Lubbock took first in the 100-yard dash and second in the 220 to place second in scoring. Cecil Austin of Slaton came third with 7 points.

John Simmons, the Slaton distance star, came through with flying colors in taking the mile run. Displaying the same stride that had carried to victory in all previous meets this season, the Tiger runner ran the four laps with ease and came in far in advance of Ray, hailing from Meadow. Simmons' time was 5 minutes, 51.5 seconds.

Plainview's mile relay team upset the old dope bucket when the quartet from the Hale county capital nosed out Ralls in the feature event of the meet. The Jackrabbits were pointing strong for first place in this event, holding out Bryan from the 880 in order to place a strong group in the race. Carrol Laird, anchor man on the Bulldog team, overcame a long handicap to break the tape ahead of the last Jackrabbit. It was a beautiful race for the Plainview star and he received a great ovation after he had won the cup for the Bulldogs.

How It Happened

Sidelight Flashes On District Meet

When Harkey of Dickens cleared the bar at 11 feet, 6 inches in the pole vault, he could have easily made 12 feet. Such a tremendous take-off did he get that his body sailed high over the cross-bar, clearing it by at least 6 inches. Trying to break the district record which he holds, he went over at 11 feet, 9 inches but his body scraped the bar coming down. An injured hand prevented this star from doing his best.

• • • •

Burns Kittrell of Lubbock High set the best mark of his career when he went over the bar at 11 feet, 3 inches. In previous meets, the local vaulter has never been able to reach the 11 foot mark.

• • • •

Olton's hope in the meet was wrapped up in the ability of Hooper in the high and low hurdles. In the county meet, Hooper was clocked at 15.8 in the 120 high hurdles but a strong wind prevented a repetition of this performance in the meet Saturday. His time in the preliminaries Friday was 16 flat but when the finals came around his best effort was 16.7. His first in the highs and second in the low hurdles gave the Lamb county entry 8 of its 8 3-4 points. The fraction came from a quadruple tie for third and fourth place in the high jump.

Carroll and Harrold Laird, the flying twins from Plainview scored 17 1-4 of the 24 points chalked up by the Hale county team. This included three first places, one fourth and a unit in the winning relay team. Both displayed admirable gameness and stickability in the running events they entered. After winning first in the 220 and fourth in the 100, Carroll took the last lap of the mile relay and virtually won the cup for the Bulldogs. Taking the baton with a long handicap, this plucky little runner dug his cleats into the track and made a brilliant finish to nose out the Ralls anchor man at the tape. He fell completely exhausted at the finish line but was carried off in the arms of happy team-mates who had not anticipated a win in this feature event.

Carroll carries one shoulder strongly taped to prevent the member from slipping out of place. The injury was received at Electra last fall when Laird, while playing end made a tackle and threw his shoulder out of socket. The story goes that Carroll recently threw this pet shoulder out of place while sleeping. Incidently, he awoke.

• • • •

First place winners in all track and field events were introduced to the stands immediately after the judges turned in the results to clerks. Jake Schober of Tech handled the megaphone and no spectator was allowed to go ignorant as the events were run off. Jake took special pains to button up his gold knickers at the District affair. Closer observers noticed that only one shoe string was left untied. Jake is especially fond of Beech-Nut.

• • • •

A competent corps of officials handled the meet in exceptionally good order. From his outpost, this sports scrambler never once heard even so much as a murmer from coaches or contestants concerning the manner in which the meet was handled. E. Y. Freeland, district athletic chairman, was highly pleased with the apparent harmony of the contest. Following the meet, he expressed his appreciation for the assistance of all officials and coaches in making of the event the most successful in the history of the Interscholastic League.

• • • •

Prof. Harry Hill was in charge of the cups and medals which were awarded from the field immediately after each event was run off. First and second place winners signed up for individual medals at the table where Mr. Hill held sway. The majority of the winners pinned the emblems on the front of their jerseys while the more modest left their prizes in charge of coaches or friends.

Tech Meets Simmons University In Dual Meet Monday

Leaders In Transcontinental Derby Retain Respective Positions Saturday

Injuries May Hamper Chances Of Matadors In Contest With Strong Aggregation From Abilene Corral

Cowhands Bringing Formidable Track And Field Squad Here For Dual Affair; Gregg Is Star

Tech speedsters will attempt to chalk up their third successive victory Monday afternoon when the Simmons University track and field team invades the Matador bull pen for a dual contest of speed and brawn.

Fresh from an overwhelming victory over the T. C. U. Horned Frogs, the Cowboys are bringing a well-rounded aggregation to pit their skill against the conquerors of Canyon and Daniel Baker. Strong in all events with the exception of the dashes, the Simmons crew boast entries who are likely to match the prowess of the strongest that the Matadors have to offer.

Gregg Is Star

Led by Gregg, their strong threat in the field events, the Cowhands promise to give the locals the closest call they have had this season. Gregg has been going strong in the broad jump, high jump, discus, javelin and shot put. This weight star will be flanked by Bounds and Smith in the hurdles, who will likely force Tadlock, Payne, Pace and Wilkins to set a fast pace in clearing the high and low barriers.

Mims and Weatherby carry the Simmons hope in the distance runs. This pair will find keen competition from Freeland, the Tech mile and two-mile star, in these events.

Further injury to Leon Fisher, Tech's sprint and hurdle ace, has lessened the Matador's hopes considerably. A pulled tendon will likely put him out of competition for the remainder of the season. Despite his leg injury, Fisher will enter the javelin throw against the Cowboys. An arm injury to James Aldridge, a coming weight man for the Tech squad, is also likely to hurt the chances of the locals in the meet tomorrow.

Strong Entries

With Fisher out, Coach Payne will use Dallas, Corley and Cole in the dashes. The Matadors will be strongly fortified in the hurdles with Tadlock, Pace, Wilkins, Payne and Waller in harness. In the pole vault and high jump, the Paynemen will also have strong entries. Davis and Walker have been going well over 11 feet in the pole vault while Tadlock, Pace and Wilkins have cleared the bar consistently above six feet in the high jump.

Lee in the high jump, Hill in the half-mile and Freeland in the long distance runs are strong bets with the Tech cause. Payne is likewise favored to score points in the discus throw.

The first event in the dual affair tomorrow will be called at four o'clock.

(AP)—A tiny clamshell steered by Jacob Dunnell of Boston came snarling down the Hudson river from Albany to New York today at an average speed of 27.4 miles an hour to win the second annual outboard motor race classic by about four miles and by almost an hour off the best time made last year.

The flying Dunnel entry, titled "Miss Eastern," covered the 136 miles in the record time of three hours, 36 minutes and 40 seconds. Thirteen other crafts, although badly distanced, beat the mark of four hours, 27 minutes and 30 seconds, good enough to win last year.

19 Failures Merely Inspired Athlete At Penn To Try Again

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 20.—Nineteen times a numeral but never a varsity letter in high school—that is the sad story that Adrian Teaf, bow of the University of Pennsylvania crew, tells about himself.

"I tried everything in high school," he says, "but I couldn't get a letter. I got numerals 19 times, but I just wasn't good enough to earn a letter once. Even when I graduated they didn't give me one."

Of course, it might make a swell story to say that Teaf hopes to earn his first varsity letter as a crew man this year. However, he finally reached his goal last summer by swimming the 50 and 100-yard free-style events better than any other Penn athlete and by rowing in the shell. And the letter he expects to make in crew this year will be his third.

The moral, of course, is that old wheeze—never give up the ship!

oday, Ninety-Three Years Ago, 783 Texans Fought The Battle Which Gave State Its Independence From Mexico

At about 2:30 this afternoon, 93 years ago, one of the most decisive battle of civilization began. It lasted only 20 minutes. Under the leadership of General Sam Houston, 783 Texans routed over 1,100 Mexicans, under General Santa Anna; killing 630, wounding 200, tand taking all but some 40 of the remainder as prisoners.

General George Washington and his arm at Valley Forge or crossing the Delaware never went through any greater ordeals than did those Texans with Sam Houston, the few hectic days before the battle of San Jacinto. The Alamo massacre, the Goliad butchery, many other outrages of superior numbers, upon brave Texans who offered their lives in defense of Liberty, between the days of March 2, when Texas declared its independence, and April 21.

Drew Santa Anna In Trap

Retreating, with the self-kept plan in mind to draw Santa Anna into a trap, Houston was cursed and plead with and deserted by many of his own men. Quagmires of flooded coastal prairies, swollen rivers, short rations, a remnant of an army trudged on and on and on. Two days to cross the Brazos. Wagons had to be emptied, their stores carried by men, at dozens of bogs every day, until the strategic point Sam Houston desired was reached. Here he pitched camp. Here, where no retreat was open at their backs, the Texans stood. And "Deaf" Smith, with some others, slipped behind the Mexicans to cut the bridge over Vince's bayou, so they could not escape. Vengance and victory!

Engineers' Show

arrows marked the course of inspection. In the civil engineering laboratories one saw gigantic machines making compression tests upon concrete. Other contrivances were testing, in some cases as much as 200,000 pounds pressure being applied. Briquettes were likewise being tested and various other devices used extensively by the civil engineer in his various lines of endeavor were noted in operation. One division that never failed of interest was that where the surveying instruments were located. Somebody was continually putting his eye up to one of those levelers, "just to see what it looked like."

Maps Are Shown.

In another and adjoining room were found maps, charts, surveys, brightly-colored rocks, fossils, minerals and other exhibits reminding one of a museum or exhibit hall. It ably represented the geology engineering department. Among the branches represented through exhibits were paleontology, petroleum geology, mineralogy and petrology. The architectural engineering department was a revelation to most people. Walls were lined with specimens of excellent draughtsmanship, contributed from time to time by star students of the department. Statuary, replicas of the Grecian, Roman and Babylonian architectural models which since time immemorial have been held forth as an example to the student, were found in another room. A Greek frieze—that is, a copy—done by students of the department occupied an imposing and conspicuous place in one room. In the auditorium a motion picture, depicting the branches covered by the engineering department was being shown to an interested audience.

Blueprints Are Made.

Blueprints—those intricate charts by which architects build his house, electrician his motor, or the mechanic his airplane—were seen in the process of creation in the engineer dawing depatment.

Drawings for the U. S. frigate, Constitution, better known as "Old Ironsides" featured among these exhibits.

The scene of most interest, perhaps, was the electrical engineering room. Motors were humming, dynamos were sparkling, meters were registering and the scent of ozone was in the air roundabout.

Electrical Department Complete.

A Tesla coil emitting a climbing arc—artificial lightning in minature—had its quota of gaping spectators. There was a storage battery exhibit, a meter exhibit and a "tin can" motor. Devices used to control the big city trolleys were there. All sorts of alternators and converters, meters, duamos, transformers, etc., were exhibited.

A test was friend on ice—for an explanation interview a member of the electrical engineering department. An electrical motor was started simply by someone's spilling it to do so.

Electric ovens where a heat of approximately 2,600 degrees fahrenheit was reached were shown in the mechanical engineering department. There were such intricate-sounding and appearing things as calorimeters, sulphometers and spintharipes. There was a sodium gun, a demonstration of the way wood is made into paper pulp. There was an air testing gadget and meters and contrivances by the score.

Hydraulics Operated.

Down in the basement was a complete hydraulic laboratory. Students operate an hydraulic elevator and better learn how it works.

There was a centrifugal pump, a gas engine, automobile engine and a manometer.

There was a steam engine, a boiler with its auxiliary devices, a steam pump test and complete condenser equipment.

In the mechanical engineering shop one finds all sorts of woodworking machines, joiners, lathes, cutters, fitters, saws, circular saws, buzz saws and everything that goes with them. There were several heat treating rooms. There were demonstrations of welding and die casting going on. In one room students fashioned book-ends and casts representing the engineering department seal.

Textile Mill Running.

Most interesting of all to most of us who have lived in and around cotton fields was the textile building and its fascinating exposition of the manner in which the staple cotton is fashioned into cloth and articles of wearing apparel.

The continuous process from lint to cloth was shown. Departments for classing, picking and carding, spinning, knitting, weaving, finishing and testing were watched in operation.

Best of all, there were about 450 courteous, intelligent students at hand to answer any and all questions that one might ask. Four hundred and fifty is the enrollment in the department this year. Dean W. J. Miller of the engineering department was the official host. He explained that the department had shown a truly remarkable growth, size of school considered.

"Tell the people we just want them to know a few of the things we are trying to do out here" was his comment.

Gelin, as executors of the estate, complaining of Herndon, whose residence is given as Roosevelt county, N. M., and of A. W. Skarda, Curry county, N. M., and the Citizens Bank of Clovis, N. M.

Believe It Or Not
It Happened Here Yesterday

Aroma of myriad locust trees, greenery of greening the warming caress of sunshine and the whack of hickory against whirling spheres of cowhide-covered resiliency are not the only signs of Spring in Lubbock.

There was a young lady from Tech, who thought she wanted a trek; a Tumble-N swim, to make herself slim; because Spring, it is here, by heck.

The young lady in question, without any molestion, to the Tumble-N pool, she did hied. The weather inviting, with feeling exciting, eyes glued upon the slide.

"A-Ha," said the lady, "E'en though 'tis not shady, what a beautiful, wonderful ride, down and down and down, upon that marvelous glide."

Followed action the words, and soon she was heard to scream with tremulous fright, as someone, they pushed her and thoughtlessly shoved her—Oh, 'twas certainly a sight.

The slide it was slip'ry and smooth as slick glass; concrete foundations do not grow grass. No water to catch her; the pool it was dry. Down to the bottom; so pitiful her cry.

The poor girl had fallen; a doctor was callen; no bones were broken; a Tech scholar just shocken.

Legislature

years are the only subjects of legislation submitted by the governor in his call for the special session but he reserved the right to submit other matters "from time to time."

Many Bills Expected

While the lawmakers will be cramped by constitutional limitation of subjects they may act on, confining these to those suggested by the governor, it is believed the gate will be opened and a flood of bills turned loose before the session is very old.

Incidentally, the concensus is that the biggest fuss will be stirred over appropriations measures for support of the government during the biennium beginning September 1. These will aggregate some $40,000,000.

That differences will develop between the house and the senate on these seems certain, viewing the attitude of the house of holding the bills to rock-bottom in an effort to keep the advalorem tax rate down to 30 cents.

House Contrary on Funds

The senate had its money bills ready for passage during the regular session but the house refused to consider them. The senate committee has accepted the board of control's budget almost entirely and has not altered its original views. While the house committee has been laboring for a month hearing representatives of the eleemosynary and educational institutions and department heads, senate finance committeemen have rested, with the bills prepared during the regular session tucked away in Chairman Tom Pollard's desk awaiting the special session.

Senate Is Liberal

With the house insisting on strict conservatism, the senate is inclined to be liberal to the extent of taking the board of control's budget almost entirely as a basis for the bills.

Although silent in his call on these subjects, it is imperative on the governor to submit the appropriations and highway financing legislation, including automobile registration fees and gasoline tax.

It is believed that he intends to submit regulation of public utilities and the matter of fixing priority of takers of water from the public streams.

He is being submerged with requests from many sources for legislation on many things.

If he submits subjects in excess of those named in his call, and the appropriations, financing the highway commission construction program, regulation of public utilities and water priority, it is very likely a second called session will of necessity follow on the heels of the first one. Governor Moody wants to avoid this if possible. Speaker W. S. Barron is anxious to get through in a single 30-day session and this desire is shared by almost every member of both houses.

Building

survey published by S. W. Straus & Co., New York City, the city of Lubbock stands in seventh place among Texas cities for that period.

This city's March building totalled $344,228, which was an increase of $111,403 over the same month of 1928.

DALLAS, April 20. (AP)—San Antonio, with building permits issued involving $2,575,465, led reporting Texas cities this week in new authorized construction.

San Antonio	$2,575,465	$7,295,028
Houston	1,224,995	9,193,271
Fort Worth	216,668	3,181,174

Dr. Knickerbocker Will Preach Here

Dr. H. T. Knickerbocker, of Oklahoma City, presiding elder of that district of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will conduct a revival meeting at the First Methodist church here, beginning next Tuesday night, April 23, Rev. H. L. Munsey, pastor, announces.

Dr. Knickerbocker is one of the best known Methodist preachers of the southwest, having served as pastor of a number of large churches of that denomination in such cities as Waco, Fort Worth, Dallas and Houston. The revival he is to conduct will last through the remainder of this week, ending next Sunday night, and will hold services only at night, with the exception of next Sunday morning.

Tornadoes

done by hail which stripped cotton, corn, fruit and vegetable crops and stripped branches, bark and foliage from trees.

FORT SCOTT, Kansas, April 20. —(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Streeter, nine miles west of here, were dangerously injured late today and their farm home was demolished by a tornado. Two twisters were reported to have swept north toward Fulton.

KANSAS CITY, April 20. —(AP)—Ferocious spring twisters and flood waters had killed at least five persons, injured more than a score and caused uncounted thousands of dollars damage in the southwestern states tonight.

A tornado that almost wiped out Reece, Kas., killed one man and injured at least four persons. A Kiowa indian was killed by a storm southwest of Carnegie, Okla., and an Indian couple lost their lives in the debris of their home near Mountain View, Oklahoma.

The body of a man was reported floating in the flood waters of the Walnut river at Winfield, Kas.

Tornadoes struck this evening in haphazard fashion over a wide area.

Southeastern and eastern Kansas lowlands tonight were under floodwaters of the Verdigris, Neosho and Kaw rivers as well as many smaller streams. Southwestern Kansas had minor damage from the Walnut and Arkansas rivers while most of western Missouri experienced flood griefs. Most streams were expected to recede without doing great damage unless further heavy rains fall.

the past two months."

Maedgen Optimistic

Somewhat different was C. E. Maedgen, president of the Lubbock National bank, in his attitude toward the cause of tight money.

"Crop prospects and the general condition of the country," Mr. Maedgen stated, "have never been better, at least not within my own recollection. As a rule, the farmers are in fairly good financial shape. They do not have so much money in the banks, to speak of, but they have a good supply of cows, and chickens, and are really more independent. They have enough to make their living on their farms, without having to ask the banks for credit.

"This is a good sign of satisfactory condition. And the trend is more and more in this direction.

"Tight money?" he asked. "We have had tight money for nearly a year, but that is nothing to be alarmed over. This situation may continue, but even that is nothing to fear. I do not attribute this tight money to Wall Street speculation, so much as I do to the general absorption of money all over the nation.

'Too Much Installment'

"We have gone too much into the habit of installment buying of our automobiles, pianos, radios, household articles. All of these affect the money market. If this condition continues, we may get to the place where it will have a disastrous effect.

"What I mean is, that the people are being oversold. They are mortgaging their earnings of the future at too great a pace for economic independence. Someone must handle the paper for all of this financing. When they do, that affects all money conditions throughout the country."

From the Wall Street Journal comes the comment that lower interest rates are in sight, with the further statement that the peak of the spring demand is over, the Reserve banks' open market powers are limited and that an easier tone is evident. Says this publication:

"This week should witness the start of seasonal easier trends in interest rates. Rates on bankers' acceptances generally tend to ease off in late April and May as the volume of outstanding bills declines. The declining trend of "all other" bank loans, mostly commercial, at this season of the year is not so pronounced, such loans tending, rather, to remain at a more or less constant level until the autumn trade demand sets in."

District Meet

winner, and winners in the tennis tournament. Tech expended about $600 on the medals and trophies.

If sufficient interest justifies, it is planned to run a special train from this section of the state to the state meet. Should this plan materialize, the train will carry the contestants from this district and from the Panhandle Teachers College at Canyon yesterday and Friday.

Meet Is Larger

According to Dr. Evans, this year's meet in this district was larger, contained more events, and its organization was better perfected than any ever to be held here. As the college had more buildings this year there was less confusion in the events.

The eighteen counties to participate in the contests included: Andrews, Bailey, Borden, Cochran, Crosby, Dawson, Dickens, Floyd, Gaines, Garza, Hale, Hockley, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Martin, Terry and Yoakum.

Win In Debates

Lubbock High School built up its lead in the debate contests, winning first place in the girls' event and second in the boys' contest. Debating on the subject, 'Resolved: That the English cabinet method of legislation is more efficient than the American committee system," the debate team of Olton, composed of Jim Dickinson and Wilmer Smith won over the Lubbock High team, which included I. J. Thornton and Richard Rockey. The Olton team was coached by George Terry and the Lubbock debators by Dan Powers.

The winning girls' debate team of this city included Martha Brown and Mary Beth Sheely. Floydada's girl team, composed of Juanita Shirley and Lois Sitton, placed second. Jean Day, of Plainview, won first place in the extemporaneous speaking events.

Other than piling up 35 points in debate Lubbock failed to register any other points except by winning the track and field meet, which added an additional 20. Plainview was given 10 for placing second in the track meet, fifteen for debate, fifteen for extemporaneous speaking, and five for tennis. Olton took twenty for debate and added an extra fifteen for winning the volley ball event. Slaton won twenty in the declamation contests, ten in tennis, and five for placing third in the track meet. Next in line was Floydada with a total of twenty points.

Bledsoe Girl Wins

In the Three "R" contest, the original idea for which schools were designed—reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic—was reverted to. The contest tested the all-around ability of the pupil in each of the three studies. Miss Neweta Cleveland, representing Bledsoe, placed first in the contest for the second consecutive year.

In the typewriting tournament, which did not count points in the meet, Miss Phylis Poole, of Lubbock, won first and Miss Jessie Mae Wood, of Floydada, placed second.

In the declamation division, Dennis Lawson, of Slaton, and Mary Anne Belle, of Brownfield, won first place in the boys' and girls' senior contests, repsectively. John T. Underwood, of Plainview, and Hilma Bartlett, of Lamesa, won second places. James Merrill, of Slaton, won first in the junior boys' declamation, George Palmer, of Floydada, placing second. Joan Johnson, of Dupree School, Lubbock, was first among the junior declaimers and Anna Maude Scott, of Lorenzo, was second.

Morton Boy Winner

In the rural school declamation contests, Herman Clements, of the Courtney School, Morton county, was first, and Wilburn Dennis, Center School, Floyd county, was second in the senior boys' event. Among the senior girls, Faye Parker, of Lone Star school, Floyd county, placed first, and Catherine Lupton, Pep school, Hockley county, was second.

W. R. Daniels, of Blanco school, Floyd county, was first in the junior boys' events and Junior Cleveland, of Bledsoe, Yoakum county, was second. In the girls' division Marion Medlin, of Joe Stokes school, Lynn county, was first, and Dorothy Smith, of Hardy school, Lubbock county, won second place.

Mrs. Lillie Belle Dorsett who underwent an appendicitis operation Tuesday at a hospital here, is reported much improved.

O. E. Spears of this city who is ill at Ellwood Hospital was reported resting well at that institution Saturday.

Comfort, Charm And Usefulness Are Characteristic of Present Day Furniture

True enough, furniture styles have made drastic changes during the past few years—but style alone is not the big advantage of having your home furnished with present day furniture. In striking contrast to the staid dignity and severity of lines so prevalent in furniture of a a few years back, is the comfort, charm and usefullness so characteristic in furniture of today.

U. S. Figures Show Lubbock County Plains Farm Hub

Federal Report Shows Development. Of This Section Remarkable; Next Census To Bring More Gain, Belief

More Farms Dot Plains Now Than Ever Before; Total of Farm Property Shows Over 100 Pecent Gain

By AL HILL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A CLOSE and [illegible]tical study of the United States government farm census figures reveals a number of surprising facts that prove, not only that the city of Lubbock is "The Hub of the Plains" but that Lubbock county is actually "The Agricultural Hub" of this area.

These cold figures of type, as printed in the 1925 government census, (the last one published), spring into life when their import of many phases of a marvelous development are realized.

Foremost import of these figures is incontrovertible proof that the farming of fewer acres means the production of greater wealth. For instance, Lubbock county, in 1925, is credited with 2,037 farms, leading the South Plains. Turning to the column wherein is listed the average number of acres per farm, this county is given 211.8 acres to the farm, the lowest figure in the entire 15 counties of Lubbock, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Cochran, Hockley, Crosby, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Gaines, Dawson and Borden.

Valuation Is High

If you desire further proof, Lubbock county's total of all farm property, $25,983,740, again places this political division of the South Plains at the top of the list. It's value of livestock on farms, $1,157,415, is another evidence of Lubbock county's leadership, and its value of farm land and buildings, $23,584,326, again leads all the other 14 counties.

Speaking of farm values in land and buildings: The only comparative figures available not including total farm values, the entire South Plains in 1910 showed land and buildings on farms as being $63,513,744. These increased in the 15 year period to become $143,329,890 in 1925, or an increase of $69,816,146. That's $16,302,402 better than 100 per cent gain.

500 Percent Increase Made

Lubbock county's record of gain in farm land and buildings shows a jump from $4,890,385, in 1910, to $23,684,676, in 1925. Here is to be seen almost a 500 percent increase.

To show the measure of rapid growth on the South Plains, from 1910 to 1925, the following county-by-county record is given. It will be seen that only three counties decreased in the value of their land and buildings, these being Lamb, Cochran and Yoakum, and if all detailed information might be had, it would probably learn that there is, in reality, no loss, as farm ownership recorded in the counties named could have included, in 1910, property of other counties which is not counted in the census of 1925. The figures below give the 1910 totals first and the 1925 totals following:

	1910	1925
Bailey	$ 3,773,790	$ 5,348,580
Lamb	6,836,974	5,903,262
Hale	9,706,085	17,704,220
Floyd	6,609,105	19,526,462
Cochran	4,733,810	1,358,874
Hockley	1,944,216	5,803,971
Lubbock	4,890,385	23,684,676
Crosby	4,383,443	13,811,430
Yoakum	3,663,083	1,764,665
Terry	3,621,055	9,992,546
Lynn	3,173,630	9,136,863
Garza	2,183,586	6,998,031
Gaines	4,015,796	5,369,300
Dawson	2,336,668	11,515,146
Borden	2,240,016	5,411,854
Total	$63,513,733	$143,329,890

From 3,391 farms in these 15 counties in 1910, there were 11,465 numbered in 1925, or an increase in excess of 300 per cent. The land area for the entire list of counties totals 5,212,161 acres. Of these acres, in 1925 there were 4,966,369, counted as being in the 11,465 farms, but this does not mean that every acre was cultivated. Anyhow, that's only slightly more than 50 percent of the total land area. And, remember, practically every acre on these South Plains are tillable. Values of all farm property in 1925 is told with $72,09[illegible],676, and the value of crops produced the year before (latest available), is $43,204,551.

Farms Increase, Too

Another comparisen is timely here. County-by-county, the record of increase in the number of farms, from 1910 to 1925, is given below; like the above table, that of 1910 appearing first, followed by the 1925 farms:

	1910	1925
Bailey	71	302
Lamb	92	632

It will be as interesting to compare these figures with those of the next government farm census, when it is published, because there will undoubtedly be as great an increase in everything. And, of course, Lubbock county will remain "The Agricultural Hub of the Plains."

Here's a striking something, also it will do to remember: Of this [illegible] farms reporting in 1925, on the [illegible] farms in 1929, there were 945 white people and 653 colored.

More Antelope On North Plains

AMARILLO, April 20. (AP)—Antelope are increasing in the Panhandle, according to state game wardens, ranchmen and sportsmen. It was said this was due to protection given the animals by state game laws and by ranchmen themselves.

Ted Houghton, foreman of the Shelton Estate ranches, along the Canadian river, reported that there were at least 200 head of antelopes on his ranches.

Within the past three years a herd has increased on one of the Bivins ranches from three to 15, it was reported.

Farm Outlook In Garza Favorable

Early Feed Being Planted In Post Area; Acreage In Cotton Will Vary Only Slightly This Year.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

POST, April 20. — With the good season received two weeks ago, the agricultural outlook for Garza county and trade territory is as bright now as it has been for several years at this season of the year.

Early rains received during the latter part of March put land in good condition for the farmers to finish their preparation for grain, sorghum, corn and cotton, and put the grass in good condition to continue to grow. Quite a few farmers are beginning to plant early feeds and it won't be long until they begin planting cotton. Most farmers of the county like to have a small acreage of early feed, if the season permits and this year the season has been unusually good. There was some land in the county that had not been plowed before the rain, but at present this acreage is decreasing rapidly. Much new land is being put in cultivation.

Grain sorghums raised in the county consist chiefly of maize, kaffir, higeria and sweet sorghums grown for roughage and syrup making. The farmers of the county grow an unusually good quality of grain sorghums, as for years they have used pure seed secured from the experiment stations of this area. Many farmers are now growing as good seed from their own planting as they could buy elsewhere, and they and their neighbors secure their planting seeds from their own fields.

Cotton acreage has not yet been planted. This acreage will not vary much from that for the past two years.

The dairy and poultry industry of the county is increasing rapidly and has been given a boost this spring by the importation of high producing stock, both bulls and cows for the dairy herds. And many flocks in the county were accredited last fall and chicks from these flocks are now being distributed throughout the county by the local hatchery.

Contest Planned On Living Rooms In County Again

A second scoring in an improved living room contest which is being sponsored in home demonstration clubs here, is to be made during the week beginning on April 26, according to an announcement made by Miss Louise Baird.

County judging will be done by Misses Hazel Armstrong and Gertrude Daniel, of the public school faculty here. Club members having rooms to be scored are Mrs. G. E O'Neal, Mrs. Ed Schroeder, Mrs. H. A. Sullivan, Mrs. J. A. Cooksey, Mrs. J. A. Taylor, Mrs. J. W. Duncan, Mrs. A. R. Ship, Mrs. Clyde Burleson, Mrs. J. M. Savage, Mrs E. E. Jones, Mrs. W. T. Bond and Mrs. B. A. Myers.

This is a state contest and the winners here will be scored in the district in May with Miss Sally Hill of College Station in charge. The contest is under the direction of the cooperative extension service of Texas A. and M. college, the United States Department of Agriculture and the Semi-Weekly Farm News at Dallas. The first scoring was done at the beginning of the contest before improvements had been made.

Diversified Farm Program Set Out

(By Associated Press)

BIG SPRING, April 20—The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce in an effort to create a greater interest in its agricultural program will be placed on the itinerary of Delos L. James, agricultural expert of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce who will discuss with the agricultural committee different phases of a safe diversified agricultural program.

Mr. James is scheduled to be in Big Spring on June 3. With 150,000 acres under cultivation and at least 200,000 acres of fertile agricultural land yet to be cultivated in Howard county, agriculture is recognized as one of the chief sources of income for this immediate territory. The county produces an average of 25,000 bales of cotton per year and a diversified program is being urged by the business men and bankers of this community leaving cotton and feed for cash crops.

Expect Entries In Pork Contest

Last Date for Placing In Event Here Will Be In Middle of May; Prizes For Best Average

Several entries from Lubbock county and other parts of the South Plains area are expected for the pork production contest, to be held this year under auspices of the A. & M. extension department and Progressive Farmer magazine.

Inquiries as to the contest have already been received by the county agent. Lack of entry blanks has prevented actual entry of any contestants in this section to date, however.

Prizes this year are all figured on a basis of highest average weight, the object being to encourage greater production per animal rather than greatest production in a single litter, as formerly. A period of 150-180 days is allowed. Last date for entries is some time in May.

There are several tropical species of earth worms that grow to be from three to six feet long.

How Crops Look At Other Places

COLEMAN, April 20. (AP) — The best crops in 40 years if early spring conditions continue, are predicted by farmers for this section for this year. Splendid weather has aided planters since farm work got under way this season.

FRISCO, April 20. (AP) — Ideal planting conditions in this territory this spring have indicated that the best crops in five years will be harvested. Cereal crops were reported well ahead of the usual season.

NEWTON, April 20. (AP)—Recent heavy rains in this section have caused farmers to become somewhat pessimistic about crop conditions this season. Besides hindering work in the fields, planters fear that some of the seed will be rotted by the excessive moisture.

EL CAMPO, April 20. (AP)—Crops in this area were reported in excellent condition. Farm work was well ahead of the season, this having been made possible by ideal weather, only the required amount of moisture having fallen. Cotton was reported up and almost ready to chop.

Grain Sorghums Gaining In Favor

Planting Is Started On Lynn County Farms Already; Section In Good Financial Conditon.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

TAHOKA, April 20.—Farmers all over Lynn county are beginning to plant and by the coming week planters will be running on practically every farm. A little feed and corn had been planted before the recent rains, however, the acreage was very small.

Rains of two weeks ago and the showers of last week have put an excellent season in the ground for a crop and farmers are elated over the outlook. Early planting on the South Plains is generally considered one of the greatest advantages toward getting a sure yield.

Much land is being planted in grain sorghums and corn, most farmers having made an excellent profit on last year's surplus feed. More stock will be fed this year than ever before, due to increased interest in diversification. The cotton acreage will be very little if any larger than last year. Some new land is being put into cultivation.

Bankers and business men declare that the farming population is in better financial condition than it has possibly been in the history of the South Plains, in spite of the fact that last fall's cotton crop was several thousand bales below the average for the past six years. Farmers are selling much cream, butter, eggs and other produce to bring them ready cash which has usually been scarce in the spring and summer. Many farmers are finding that the raising of profitable livestock is much more desirable than cotton raising, in that a steady income may be had the year around with less speculation as to the outcome of the crop year.

Pythagoras, a Greek mathematician living in the sixth century B. C., was the first prohibitionist. He founded the first society of "sobriety."

Planting Will Be General In South Plains Area Soon

Expect Big Increase In Amount of Work During Week Ahead; More Rain Is Needed.

Planting will be general throughout the South Plains country during the week ahead, provided the high, dry winds of the past week let up, according to County Agent Dave F. Eaton.

Planting was becoming fairly common last week prior to the starting of the winds of the week-end.

The ground as present has a fair season in moisture but another rain in the near future would be welcomed by the majority of farmers, reports to the county agent's office indicate.

"At any rate, most everyone's mind is on planting. Ground is being prepared for seed in many sections and there is hardly a large farm in the country where either planting or plowing has not been done," Mr. Eaton asserted.

Wheat needs rain although it is looking good throughout this section, in the opinion of Mr. Eaton.

A ten per cent increase in land under cultivation in this vicinity is forecast by the county agent's office for this year.

Poultry Pays $752 In 9 Months Is His Record

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

CANYON, April 20.—How 378 pullets netted him $752.50 in nine months time from egg production alone, is told by J. H. Morgan of Happy, route 2. Although raising chickens as a sideline to wheat farming, with Morgan, he stated that a few chickens furnished an income to farmers that often looks as attractive as that of a wheat or cotton farm.

Morgan originally purchased 1,000 baby chicks from an early spring hatch. Of this number, 898 survived. Exactly 520 roosters were sold for enough to pay the initial cost of the flock, besides furnishing a profit, and the 378 pullets were kept for egg production.

From April 1, last year to January 1, 1929, eggs from the flock brought $1,060. Feed, none of which was raised on the farm, cost Morgan $307.50, leaving a profit of $752.50 or a little more than $84 per month as the chickens' part in making the farm a paying proposition, according tor Morgan.

Makes Good Mark With Pig Litter

AMES, April 20. (AP)—A. T. Quicksall, Coryell county farmer, has made a good record for the average weight of a six-months-old litter of pigs.

Quicksall's Poland China averaged 390 4-7 pounds at the end of the 180-day period. A former record, held by a Kentucky hog raiser, was said to have been 360 pounds. Te cost of production on the Quicksall farm was 7.6 cents per pound of pork.

The ration consisted of protein supplement, combined with four parts of corn meal and one part of finely ground barley, mixed with enough milk to wet the feed. The litter had access at all times to a Sudan grass pasture.

Terracing Shown To Large Crowd

Much Interest Manifest In Demonstration Given Under Auspices of County Agent

Much interest was manifest at the Showalter farm west of the Liberty school house Friday when a terracing demonstration was given by County Agent Dave F. Eaton, assisted by John Patterson, terracing expert, of Idalou.

Twenty-five farmers witnessed the demonstration and many of them expressed favor to this means of aiding in land and water conservation.

"It is too late for new terrace construction at this time," Mr. Eaton declared, "but we are conducting a campaign which we hope will have farmers educated to the need of the terracing process at the start of next season."

A recent survey placed the amount of terraced land in this county at 19,000 acres. The county agent hopes to measurably increase this amount by next year.

At the Friday demonstration a Corsicana grader was used.

Scurry Third For Terraced Acreage

(By Associated Press)

SNYDER, April 20.—Scurry county stands third in West Texas terracing activity with 50,000 acres being headed by only Runnels and Jones counties. Other West Texas counties already in the list are: Howard, 3,000, Mitchell, 31,0000; Nolan, 35,000; Dawson, 8,000; Fisher, 45,000; Dickens, 10,000; Garza, 10,000; Lubbock, 19,000, Lynn, 1,000; and Knox, 10,000. County Agent Logan says 19291 3 will see even greater activity in this section.

COLEMAN, April 20. (AP) — With ranges in excellent condition sheep men of this section are looking to a prosperous season.

Shearing operations were reported on some ranches and a heavy maket movement is expected during the next few months.

Price Of Cotton Drope $1.50 Per Bale In Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, April 20. (AP)—A decline of over $1.50 a bale followed continued near-month liquidation and selling on the less unfavorable weather in the belt than expected in the cotton market today and prices were on the downgrade throughout the short session. July sold off to 19.14 and closed at that figure for a net loss of 32 points. The general market closed easy at a net decline of 29 to 32 points.

Offerings were moderately heavy for most of the session, prices making new lows in final trading when May sold at 19.10, July 19.14, October 19.13, and December 19.17, or 29 to 32 points net down. Final prices were at the lowest.

MID-WESTERN LIVESTOCK
KANSAS CITY, April 20. (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Livestock trade around the 11-market circuit this week was featured by a fairly broad demand for most all classes of cattle. Fed steers and yearlings are closing steady to unevenly higher, most of all points showing material gains on the lighter weights of steers and yearlings. Sharp upturns were registered on slaughter cows. Stocker and feeder classes were on a firm to 25c higher basis. Aggregate receipts were around 195,900, an increase of 33,000 over last week.

Bulls Again Stage Demonstration On New York Stocks

Critical Stage Of Reparations Conference and Federal Reserve Meeting Is Damper To Activities

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, April 20. (AP)—Bulls again staged a demonstration on the stock market in today's abbreviated session, but with the Federal Reserve advisory council's unexpected meeting in Washington, and the critical stage reached by the reparations conference, they were unable to attract a following.

Prices worked irregularly higher, as week-end liquidation was readily absorbed, but total sales aggregated only 1,292,310 shares. The credite situation was regarded more optimistically, with the recent ease in time money, and bankers looked for fairly comfortable conditions next week.

Automobiles Affected.

The day's business news largely affected the automobile industry, ported a new high record output of The department of commerce reported 584,733 machines in March, which caused some uneasiness over the possibility of over production. This uneasiness was not entirely dissipated as a market factor by the record earnings by Hudson for the first quarter.

Cotton Goes Down Still Further On New York Market

NEW YORK, April 20. (AP) — A continuance of good weather in the South and relatively easy Liverpool cables seemed chiefly responsible for further declines in cotton today. July contracts sold off to 19.23 and closed at that figure, while May broke below the 20-cent level, closing at 19.90. The general market closed easy at net declines of 22 to 29 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 6 to 9 points in response to the lower Liverpool cables. Trade interests continued to buy May on a scale down, but closing prices were the lowest of the day on most positions with new October contracts selling at 19.25. At the close May contracts were selling 67 points over July or at the same difference as at the close of the previous day.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Head and little son, Mack, of Post, accompanied by Mrs. W. W. Pruett of Ralls, have returned home after a shopping visit Saturday in this city.

NEWS OF THE HIGH SCHOOL

Hub Hi-Lights, As Gathered by the Student Reporters

THE GROUP AND STUDY PLAN
Its Training For Citizenship
(An Editorial)

The idea of modern democracy is based on the fact that people of our country should be developed and educated as individuals; that we should teach people to work out the solution of important questions for themselves. Under the old monarchies the people so far as deciding what things were good and what were bad for them was concerned, were like so many cattle herded and driven into pens.

The development of the individual is one of the chief virtues of the group and study method. The work is presented in the form of a problem, to which the student must find the solution. His ability, and the effort he puts forth to use this ability are shown in his solution of the problem.

If this habit of inquiry, of independent thinking and searching could be only instilled into the mass of American people, how much greater would be our nation! Too many people allow others to do their thinking for them. Under the group and study method, not only is the additional search and seeking highly beneficial to the student himself, but to his group as well, for it is appreciated by them. Thus it is the close touch, the personal contact daily with others that better fits the student for later life.

The Old Order Changeth

Under the old recitation method the pupil did little independent thinking; he listened to the teacher propound questions and heard these questions answered and judged right or wrong by the teacher from her point of view only. In the group and study method, the student has an opportunity to get the viewpoint of others and thereby opens to him new channels of thought. The question will come to his mind: "Now this is an entirely new viewpoint from mine. Which is the better? The question will then (in the student's mind) resolve itself down to a sifting and weighing of facts and opinions.

It does away with the old idea that the pupil should become educated by learning the ideas of one person, the teacher. Instead he gets the viewpoint of several, and if he is natural, the several opinions will gradually form themselves into a new and better one, perhaps, and one which is his own.

One of the greatest needs in American citizenship is more independent and intelligent voters, and they can become intelligent only by seeking the truth for themselves.

TO PUBLISH PAPER

"Ye Scribblers," a literary club of Lubbock High school is to publish a paper informing the student body and patrons on the group and study method, now being used in all schools. Many are misjudging the merits of the system because they fail fully to understand it. M. H. Duncan has already issued a number of bulletins explaining his plan. This club paper will explain the method from the students' point of view.

TO HAVE OUTING

The Lubbock High School faculty is to have a fish fry at Boles ranch Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

GIRL RESERVES

The members and sponsors of the Girl Reserves have accomplished very much this year. They feel, as the end of the year draws near, that their work this year has not been in vain. All have given their best to make the organization and the student-body of Lubbock High School better than ever before.

Many of the members are seniors this year, but all took part in electing new officers for next year. There was much consideration by the nominating committee of the nominees for office. The following were elected by the senior and junior Girl Reserves: president, Louise Lawson; vice-president and membership chairman, Elaine Henry; secretary, Daphine Reed; treasurer, Margaret Green; program chairman, Margaret Bruckner; service chairman, Ruth Thompson, and social chairman, Katherine Leidigh. Everyone is sure the Girl Reserves have a successful year before them under the leadership of these officers.

Saturday the Girl Reserves had a tea at the home of Mrs. J. E. Watson, 1901 29th Street for the members and their mothers.

Every girl is looking forward to an enjoyable time at camp in Palo Dura Canyon. They will leave the Friday school is out and return the following Tuesday. Camp was enjoyed immensely last year, and there will be a much larger attendance this year.

The student body of Lubbock High school was entertained in Assembly Thursday afternoon by the "Three Red Shirts"; Sam Henry, G. W. (Cherrie) Foster, and Carroll McCasland, who gave musical selections on their French harps. The music was followed by a reading by Mildred Price.

Sizes In Jeopardy
Standard Pajamas Are Worked For

HOUSTON, April 20. (AP)—It won't be long until a pair of "Size C" pajamas will mean just that, Ernest L. Tutt, manager of the Houston office of the United States department of commerce, believes.

...al standard unit of the department of commerce has called a general conference of producers, distributors and even mere wearers of men's pajamas for May 3 at Washington. The meeting will be for the purpose of considering the adoption of a commercial standard for measurement of these garments, Tutt says.

The present lack of standardization in the pajama industry has made the consumers road a rocky one, it was pointed out. Because sizes of pajamas vary with the different ...ufacturers, a man who has been wearing a size "B" pajamas may find a size "B" pair of different make too short or too little at the middle or top. Now is the time to register a kick against such an embarrassing situation, Tutt added.

Present City Administration Shows Enviable Record

Lubbock B. C. D. Out For 150 Representatives To Tahoka District Meet

First Year of Woods Regime Drives Lubbock Steadily Onward; Progress Is Noted In All Lines of Endeavor

Active Commission Stands Behind Young Mayor With Plans To Improve City's Status.

By C. W. RATLIFF
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THAT THE city administration in Lubbock is mindful of the increasing and steady growth of the city is attempting to keep step with all phases of activities may be easily detected in a glance backward at the past year under the leadership of Mayor Harley D. Woods.

Working hand in hand with Mayor Woods in the present administration are four commissioners who are serving their city unselfishly, giving their time which is worth money, in the interests of the public. They are J. H. Hankins, utilities; A. V. Weaver, streets; D. N. Leaverton, fire and police, and John Bacon, finance. City Manager Gus W. McCleary and City Secretary W. H. Rodgers actively head one of the most efficient and loyal organizations which the city has ever.

Lubbock city properties, improvements and plans for improvements under Mayor Woods have been the greatest in the history of the city. A total of more than $500,000 has placed in street, sewer, lights and water, sanitation and health and fire protection. Approximately $200,000 more of improvements are planned and will be put under way as soon as possible. The mayor and commissioners are not stopping at this, however, and have additional work ahead of the mfor the future.

Election Up Tuesday

An election will be held Tuesday for a $75,000 bond issue to be used in financing a municipal airport. If it passes another unit will be added to the administration, one which promises to be a leading department in the development of aviation in this section. The passing of the bond issue will strengthen more than ever Lubbock's claim as the "Hub Of The Plains."

Topping the list of improvements during the past year, is the passing of the $350,000 bond issue for the construction of the two subways under the Santa Fe tracks at Broadway and Avenue H. The east underpass is nearing completion at an approximate cost of $185,000 while work will start soon afterwards on the Avenue H. subway which will cost in the neighborhood of $150,000.

A drive over the city, a check of the various departments and a peek into the city books will easily reveal the steady advance in improvements in Lubbock during the past year.

Parks are Improved

The city swimming pool in the park northeast of the city was constructed at a cost of $20,000. Park improvements totalling $1,985 were made also.

Perhaps showing more expansion than any other department of the city's properties has been the city light and water department. A new 90 horse-power Engine has been added to the light plane. A new light plant building and equipment has been added at a cost of $4,756.60. New light extensions totaling $28,-843.10 have been made from the plant.

Paving has been rather active since the present administration took power, thirty-two blocks and streets and alleys have been paved. A program calling for twenty-two more blocks as soon as the work can be put in.

Another improvement has been the connection of sidewalks on both sides of Broadway from Texas Avenue to Broadway.

Whiteway's Expand

Lubbock's white ways and expanded, thanks to the management and within the next few months will find 35 additional blocks under street lights besides the eleven blocks just recently installed on Thirteenth Street from Texas to Avenue T.

The city's sanitation and health department has not been neglected and constant efforts are made to better it in every way. Two men have been added to the department for inspection of meats, cafes and eating places while a city laboratory has been installed at a cost of more than $2,000 to be used in testing and inspecting milk, meats and other articles sold in the city.

Street lights have been ordered on Tenth street from Avenue M to College Avenue; on Avenue X from Sixteenth to Broadway; on Avenue J from 13th to 16th; on Seventh from Texas to Avenue J and on Avenue Q from 13th to 16th by the commission. Installation will begin as soon as the material arrives and the workers man make the installations.

Fire Department Better

The city fire department has figured strongly in the improvements and much has been accomplished toward lowering the city's key rate and giving better fire protection. Only last week, a new $12,350 fire truck was ordered purchased while other improvements such as the purchase of 2,000 feet of additional fire hose, smoke masts and fire brooms and the addition of three more paid men to the department have been made.

Two more city water wells are to be drilled, thereby increasing the city water supply by several thousand gallons. Besides this, twelve-inch water mains are to belt all of the fire limits in the city, the commission has decreed. Ten-inch mains wil be laid from Avenue J to Avenue Q on Fourth street. New water extensions in the past year have totaled $30,838.63.

In voting the $350,000 bonds for the city, the way was paved for the construction of the two underpasses and additions to the city water and sewer departments totaling $125,000.

Sewer extensions under the Woods administration have amounted to $15,843.88.

The city engineer's department, one that has been heavily taxed during the past year, also has been improved. Two men have been added to the department under Marlen R. Smith.

New Bookkeeping System

Besides all of these improvements, the city bookkeeping system used prior to this year has been discarded and an accounting system installed at a cost of $2,000. A city auditor has been employed and accurate check is maintained on all departments so that an up-to-date status can be determined on any unit.

With the steady growth of the city light and water department and thh continual improvement of various portions of the city, the city of Lubbock has grown to be one of the most important industries in the business activities here. One hundred and eleven people are in the employ of the various departments.

Given a continuance of this prosperous era, the confidence of the next year is likely to witness even greater growth in city properties as pace is maintained with "Greater Lubbock."

Every Girl In Lubbock High Graduating Class Has Definite Plans For Life Of Service, Survey Shows

Questionnaire Shows All Are Looking Into Future

BY MRS. W. A. McGEE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

WITH "Graduation Day", fussy frocks and hard-earned diplomas a little less than one month ahead, 82 high school girl members of the graduating class, filled out a "questionaire" as accurately and as painstakingly as might their fathers, brothers or uncles when they were being drafted for service in the late World War. Without exception their answers were concise, clear-cut and clever.

The "questionnaire" which rung from the girls paramount information regarding their future, as pertains to college, careers and matrimony . . . is considered by Principal R. W. Mathews and C. C. Cox, head of the social science department and chairman of the six senior class sponsors, as the most accurate self-analysis that could be obtained, since the girls were not requested to sign their answers. However, several papers were signed, either through frankness or perhaps out of habit, as it is the school custom to sign all test papers and themes.

Class Is Large One

The Lubbock High school's graduating class composed of 256 boys and girls, will be the largest class of high school graduates in entire West Texas so far as it is known, and 156 of these are girls. Lubbock parents of these "sweet-girl-graduates to-be" should feel proud of having reared such clear-thinking, sober-minded and wide-awake daughters. For among the entire 82 who filled out the questionnaire, there was not a flippant, frivilous answer. With but few exceptions all the girls exhibited marked initiative ability. However, all information was volunteered as no pressure was brought to bear on the subject by either Mr. Cox or Mr. Mathews.

One of the 82 expects to be a foreign missionary, one plans to travel abroad, one aims to do religious work in the homeland, while another's highest ambition is to hold a secretarial position and play the violin, xylophone and pipe-organ on the side. Two or three plan to marry soon after graduating from high school, and one girl states that after she has finished in college she has chosen for her "career" that of a perfect housewife! Other two or three declare they will never marry, while some 70-odd declared their intention to get a college education before settling down to wedded bliss.

Many Choose Tech

The majority of this number, however, expressed their desire to receive their college instruction from Texas Technological college. One plans to attend S. M. U., one hopes to receive training in a Seminary, one will attend the University of Oklahoma and still another has set for her goal, a degress from both the University of Texas and Columbia. One hopes after a year's prep work to attend Bdyn Mawr in Pennsylvania. Several others express uncertainty over whether they will be financially able to attend college for some while yet and to get a much coveted degree which comes as the reward of laborious effort.

Two or three others said they cared nothing for a college education, these were the girls according to their confessions, who have the "matrimonial bee in their bonnets." Many of the girls however, expect to start their college work by going to Tech this summer, while still others say they will be unable to go four years straight in college, adding that that will not dampen their ambition for finishing a college course and getting a master's degree.

Many Seek Careers

As careers many of the girls plan to become teachers of music, expresion, English, Spanish, and on down the line. Not a few plan to be teachers of home economics, one hopes to become an architect, one a radio operator on a ship, and another a Spanish stenographer. While one wishes to be a commercial art-

Varied Program Is To Be Presented Wednesday When Annual WTCC Meet Attracts Crowd of South Plainsmen

Lubbock High Band Will Go With Delegation; Lennis Baker Is City's Entrant In Speaking Contest.

LUBBOCK with a representation of more than 150 at the South Plains District convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to be held at Tahoka next Wednesday, April 24, is the hope of the local Board of City Development.

A committee has been appointed to secure as large a delegation from here as possible. The Lubbockites will be accompanied to the convention by the Lubbock high school band, under the direction of James W. Crowley.

As hub of this district and the undisputed capital of the South Plains Lubbock should have the largest delegation of any city in this section, Chamber of Commerce officials point out.

Elaborate Plans Made.

Word comes from the convention committee of the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce that elaborate plans are being formulated for the convention. Record crowds, repesnting the entire South Plains area, are predicted.

Unusual excitement is expected in the five-cornered fight for the next district convention meeting place. Slaton, Abernathy, Ralls, Littlefield and Matador have already entered the race.

The program promises to be one of the most entertaining and varied to be presented at a convention of this kind.

Speaker Is Chosen.

Lennis Baker, son of France Baker, who is president of the Citizens National bank, will represent Lubbock in the "My Home Town" contest to be held.

Music during the convention will be furnished by bands from Lamesa, Slaton, Brownfield, Crosbyton, Abernathy, Plainview, Matador and Lubbock.

Since Tahoka is only 33 miles away, Lubbock's delegation is expected to be one of the largest at the meeting.

The meeting place will be in the

Flowers Grow In Fashion's Favor

Fresh and youthful is a peach blossom print against a white background in a taffeta frock that uses enormously full circular panels on one side, topped by a pert bow.

Vogue for Floral Prints In Frocks Is Established; Taffeta Is Medium For Ideal Party Costume for Young

Bows Take A Bow on Style Stage; Peplums, Ruffles And Tiered Skirts Style Features for Taffeta

By HENRI BENDEL
For NEA Service

NEW YORK, April 20—The vogue for the floral prints is now an established fact in correct wardrobes. The woman who does not own at least one dainty print has never realized the feminine beauty contained in them.

Add to the beauty of floral prints the crisp charm of taffeta and you have the ideal medium for party frocks for the young.

That is just what late spring and early summer styles are doing. The very latest evening gown for the debutante and her slightly older sisters is the flowered taffeta one.

Most of them are positively delectable in their coloring. Take soft lavender wisteria against a delicate lemon cream background, a flamingo background with sprays of green and brown, a green background with very delicate but lovely orange flowers.

Taffeta's Individual Touches

Since taffeta is essentially a crisp fabric, the manner in which the new party frocks are made takes this into consideration. Peplums, tiered skirts, little cap sleeves, jabots, full skirts and ruffles are the style touches they feature.

Many of these pretty dresses are following the longer in the back skirt. Some of them simulate the fitted princess lines that fashion is making much of now. But the fitted lines for youth are never the form-fitting ones of the mature figure.

Natural waistlines, since they are so very attractive on slender, young figures, are emphasized in some of these new printed taffeta frocks. And of course a bow here or a bow there is inevitable, especially so when one considers just how fine an art bow-tying has become among couturiers.

One little conceit that an especially charming taffeta frock indulged in was having its back buttoning from half-way to waistline to the rounding line of the decolletage. Only four buttons were needed. But they were infinitessimal and of beautiful crystal. Just one of those extremely happy "little touches."

In one printed taffeta dinner frock I have used the circular ruffle panel to give an unusual one-sided effect. The print itself is charming, tiny crab-apple blossom figures in their soft pink on a darker, almost flaming background, with traceries of green and brown here and there. The natural waistline is stressed, belted, as a matter of fact, by a self-material girdle with buckles of rhinestones.

The side panel is one continuous ruffle, posed in spiral effect and falling in its circular fullness like a half-dozen or so circular flounces. The edges of the ruffles, the neck and belt are all bound with brown, the shade of the touches in the print.

Paquin does a distinctive thing in a hydrangea print on a pale grey background. It is a basque gown, quite charmingly quaint and smartly new at the same time. The basque fits to the waistline where a richly swathed band is posed. Below this a chou of the taffeta flares out from a low hipline, with a long panel from under one side touching the floor.

Very fresh and youthful is the frock that uses peach blossoms against a pure white background for its taffeta's pattern. This frock has a semi-princess line with two enormously full circular panels on one side, topped by a big, pert bow. Of course this frock in line, fabric and feeling is extremely youthful. The very freshness of youth is typified in it.

When Milady Goes Shopping, She Sees And Sees—For It's Always Shopping Time And Graduation, Brides Means Just Another Stroll

As I wandered aimlessly down the street a gaily colored sign in a shop window caught my eyes. It read "Why not do your shopping for the sweet girl graduate and the June bride early?"

Oh, why had I never thought of this before? Every year I am in such a hurry when I start to buy a gift that I do not give the matter much thought. And the result usually is that I do not buy a gift that is at all appropriate.

The best place to start looking for suggestions would be the store that displayed this very attractive sign.

"I am not ready to buy," I told the clerk. "I am just looking for suggestions."

And I found suggestions for every type of gift, attractively displayed in the showcases.

Sheets and pillow cases in pastel colors and silk spreads would make lovely gifts for the June bride. The old-fashioned dining table has about "had its day." The modern dining table is the gate-leg type. For these modern tables there were beautiful hand-embroidered dinner sets. Some were plain white maderia, and others were embroidered in colors. There were luncheon sets in modernistic designs and dainty dotted Swiss vanity sets.

Lovely toilet articles in dainty, decorative jars and exotic perfumes in hand-painted bottles were offered especially for the girl graduate.

Hat racks, of bright colored felts, for the dressing table were offered as something new for milady's boudoir.

At another store were beautiful rose petal sachets. There was an attractive array of purses, gloves, bright colored handkerchiefs and costume jewelry that are so necessary for the chic of a modern woman's costume.

I noticed especially the sets of bright striped silk that carry out the mannish theme in ladies lingerie and which is, so popular with the modern miss.

In a jewelry store window there were beautiful colored glass dinner sets. Silver and cut-glass to lend grace to any table and that is sure to please.

Watches, rings, pearls and pins, and other lovely jewelry to please the heart of any woman.

Women of all ages love beautiful things. These gift suggestions were not only for the June bride or the girl graduate. Any of these lovely things would be suitable for a Mother's Day offering, a gift on an anniversary, or any other occasion where beautiful, appropriate gifts are demanded.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Allene Sumner

They sat opposite me in the limited diner, obviously mother and daughter. The daughter, smartly tailored, very much a woman of the world, a bit bored at the ordeal of ordering, handling the menu with expensively manicured fingers, challenging the waiter to "see that the fruit is well-iced."

The mother was as obviously not a woman of the world; awed and pleased and very conscious of the fun of breakfasting on the limited, with daughter both amused and even embarrassed in a sophisticated way at her mother's evident provincialism.

A most obsequious waiter bore in the grapefruit. The golden halves were resting on glossy hothouse violet leaves which, in turn, were topping scoopfuls of crushed ice in deep silver bowls. He also bore in two dainty gold-edged plates, dolly-dressed, and proceeded to transfer the fruit from the ice-bedded bowls to the plates.

Daughter stopped him with an imperious gesture, proceeding to eat her fruit from the bowl, while her mother meekly submitted to the transfer to the plate. When the waiter had gone daughter waxed most articulate on what she described as "the asinine unnecessary gestures in diner or hotel eating."

"It's perfectly obvious," she said, "that this fruit should be eaten from the dish with the ice in it rather than taken from the ice onto a warm plate. Why, then, in the name of Tomfoolery submit to some commercial concern's idea of what is good form? Look at these scrambled eggs; they bring in on a silver platter, but insist that they be taken off onto a plate, even though the food gets cold in the transfer."

"But all those dishes look nice, anyway," commented her mother, gazing at her empty ice bowl with the violet leaves atop.

Daughter scorned, too, the little salver of assorted mints and gold-tipped cigarets passed with the finger bowl, but mother took her's as happy as a child, while again sophisticated daughter babbled of the inane silly gestures of commercial "swank."

THE COMPENSATION

Here was a vivid example of the reactions of two utterly diverse types of women—the woman who had lived a scrimpy, provincial life, happy as a child over the very "inanities" which her too-experienced daughter scorned.

It gave one food for thought about this thing known as the law of compensation; a realization that too complete experience brought its own price of satiety and blunted appreciations, whereas too little had its compensation of real appreciation of the smallest experience—even to unnecessary plates with the morning grapefruit.

A digressive thought, too, was the realization of the carpsome, petty attitude of the mass of today's women on their own. I watched them in action in the restaurant of a woman's hotel the other night. Men, for instance, are supposed to be "picky" about their food, but I never saw so many plates of roast beef and lamb chops dispatched back to the kitchen pronto, because the fair orderer insisted the meat was over or underdone. I never heard such universal attempts to order the table d'hote dinner but to substitute this vegetable or that meat from the other menu.

Is woman's fairly new independence too much for her? Is she still so unaccustomed to it that she fights to force the fact of its existence upon the world at large, even if this fight takes the form of nothing more than sending her meal back to the kitchen?

Lounging In The Mode

A Parisian pajama lounging suit dots its way to chic this spring, so popular is the polka dot theme. An original suit from Drecoll-Beer subtly introduces the motif in a stunning manner. Two shades of pink, the most feminine color in the world after all, contrast with black satin in this lounging suit. The tapering back trousers are devoid of any trim. They are lightened considerably by the pink slipers worn with them. The coat of the paler shade of pink satin carries the trimming for the whole suit. A deeper pink joins both gold and silver dots to richly embroider the border to the coat and cuffs that extend almost to the elbow. Stripes of gold and silver, on black edge it. The gleaming coat is tailored very smartly, with a simple shawl collar.

Success Is Fickle, Hollywood Shows

To Some Film Fame Comes Quickly; Others Wait

HOLLYWOOD—Success comes almost overnight to some in Hollywood and others plug along for years before they are recognized.

Dorothy Arzner

Dorothy Arzner falls in the latter class.

Just a stenographer in one of the studios when she started, Miss Arzner today is one of the very few women directors. She became a stenographer because it was the only kind of work she could get at the time in a studio.

Miss Arzner wanted to be close to the work she felt she was cut out for—directing—but after being story reader, script clerk and film cutter for several years, and no closer to her goal, Miss Arzner admits she was about ready to give up when her opportunity came.

There was said to be some conjecturing hereabuts when Dorothy Arzner took up the directional reins. Two women before her had wielded the megaphones, but with outstanding success.

First Miss Arzner directed "Fashions for Women," and then "Ten Modern Commandments." Her third picture was a Clara Bow vehicle, "Get Your Man," which was followed by "Manhattan Cocktail." Miss Arzner's latest picture is Miss Bow's "Wild Party."

"Now I'm a firm believer in the saying, 'Success comes to those who wait—long enough'," Miss Arzner says.

JANNINGS NOT THROUGH

The announcement that Emil Jannings will play in an all-talking film puts to rest humors that the German star was through because of his accent. Jannings is to start work soon in "The Concert," an adaptation of the stage play which the late Leo Dietrichstein used for many seasons.

Foreign accents will not bar European players from talking pictures, Jesse L. Lasky, a studio official, says. He and other producers have found that accents accentuate the charm of the player, although admittedly starring parts for such actors as Jannings are not numerous.

CALLING THEM NAMES

Let's see what the talking pictures have been called: Speakie, talkie, chin-ema, yelluloid, soundie, squeakie, squawkie, sound films and synchronized pictures. But film men predict that before long, these new fangled names will be forgotten and that the simple "movies" will be universally used. The boys who write the headlines will have something to say about it.

Clark of Montana, reported to police last night the loss of $65,000 in jewelry, which he said he and his wife missed after they had driven to their hotel from a liner on which they returned today from Paris.

Pigeon Derby For West Texas to Be Staged On May 1

Lubbock and Other Leading Cities Will Be Eentered In Flight; Wichita Falls Is Goal of Birds.

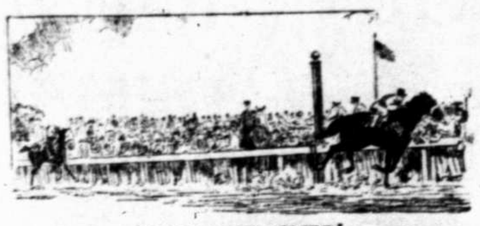

A West Texas Pigeon Derby, in which pigeons will represent all of the major cities of his section of the state, will be sponsored on May 1 by Harry Kessinger Company, Inc., makers of Orgatone, and Lubbock will have a bird entered, Harvey L. Martin, representative here, announced yesterday.

Carrier pigeons from the lofts of Belgium, especially imported for the derby, will represent Lubbock, Plainview, Amarillo, Pampa, Borger, Sweetwater, Abilene, San Angelo, Brownwood, Coleman, Cisco, Eastland, Ranger and Breckenridge and will fly to Wichita Falls where a committee will check their time. The bird making the best time will be announced as winner and a suitable prize will be awarded to the owner of the pigeon.

Woods to Help.

The pigeons will be turned loose for their flights at 10 o'clock on the morning of May 1 by the mayors of the different cities. Mayor Harley D. Woods, of Lubbock, has already consented to take part in the derby.

An added feature of the race will be the matching of an airplane against the speed of the pigeons. From some West Texas city, yet to be announced, a fast plane, piloted by Miss Bonnie Dale, Joplin, Mo. pilot of the Orgatone Aerial Express, will take off at the same time the pigeons leave and the time ration in the flights to Wichita Falls will determine which is the faster, the pigeon or the man-made plane.

BUBBLING OVER

BUBBLING OVER

"BUBBLING OVER" the winner of the 1926 Kentucky Derby had for his name a requisite that is necessary for every individual if his goal is to be attained.

A winner in any walk of life must be "Bubbling Over." Bubbling over with enthusiasm about the work in which he is engaged.

A good bank account gives a man confidence and helps to make him a winner.

Small Town Paper Glorified In Book By Country Editor

'Items' In the Rural Newspaper Form Theme of Work

SHERWOOD Anderson the editor has published the first collection between book covers of his country newspaper writings. The title is "Hello Towns!" We received the book from Liverpool this week.

These short pieces and editorials, written originally for the two country papers he publishes in Marion, Va., are offered in an effort to reflect small-town life. They are not like the tales of misery and despair that Sherwood Anderson wrote in fiction. Yet there is much of his familiar instrospection in these journalistic bits.

The items are seldom, if ever, strictly news.

"Country weeklies are not newspapers," says Anderson. "We are not after news. If anyone wants news let them take a daily. We are after the small events of small town people's lives."

So there is something of Anderson in the reports of Kiwanis and town council meetings, of a bootleg queen dying in jail, of shootings, fights and the visit of a checker champion or a recurrent season.

His editorials go even further than pleas for the support of the town band, for a park or the cleaning up of the county jail. They set forth his ideas on subjects that range from brains and morals to literary style from the death of Willie, the office cat, to the effect of machines on civilization.

Verse

Edwin Arlington Robinson's place is secuhe in the first flight of contemporary American poets. Three times winner of the Pulitzer prize for literature, as well as assorted additional honors, his "Tristam" was a sort of crowning achievement.

Now to supplement "Tristam" comes his "Cavender's House," another episodic narrative, and a somber thing.

The theme is love and dead love, slain by doubt. Cavendar returns to the "house" he had closed forever, 12 years before, and in a moonlit room, amid poignant memories reviving, hears the woman, Laramie, describe how he had emasculated, fettered and finally killed their their great love: "... her time to ask, or answer now; and not to care."

In another outstanding book of verse, Edgar Lee Masters has carried a logical step forward the characters and soul-processes of some of the cast of "Domesday Book."

In "The Fate of the Jury", Coroner Merivale, who sat upon the death of Eleanor Murray, is met again and his love for the mysterious Arielle is dissected.

Miscellaneous

Man's fight against the diseases that contribute to his suffering and shorten his days is traced from the beginning of life to the present by Dr. Richard H. Hoffman, a New York physician, in "The Struggle for Health."

The various developments in the treatment of the sick, even to the scul's revealing itself through complexions and such, are narrated, often with anecdotes, as in the instance of Leopold Auenbrugger, who got the idea of his father's wine kegs to measure their contents.

A British auctioneer mounted his rostrum recently and lit an inch long stub of candle. The property offered went to the highest bidder at the instant the candle flickered out. These unusual conditions were imposed by the owner of the property.

Senior Girls

ist, one a portrait painter, one a chemist, one a journalist, one a doctor, one a writer, two or three will be lawyers, one a foreign news correspondent, one a teacher of physical education, one an interpreter, and two or three plan to become trained nurses. One will teach foreign language, one hopes to serve as a Spanish secretary in Mexico City, several will teach dramatic art, a home demonstration agent is the chosen career of another, while two wish to become housewives, one of these wishes to clasify in the "perfect-housewife variety."

Musical careers are planned by several, one wishes to become a concert organist, while one plans to manage a ladies' ready-to-wear department. Still others wish to be interior decorators, several stenographers, bookkeepers, a number will choose business careers, two will do mision work, while one desires that her career should be that one that will benefit society most.

Nary a Chorus Girl

Not a wall-flower, chorus-girl or social-climber registered in the entire group and future husbands will be fortunate indeed. If their statements are to be regarded as significant, husbands of the future will have to possess not only the "good-lookin" charm but will have to be qualified for life problems by possessing a college education coupled with common sense and busines ability. Sidestepping the question, do you plan to marry young and settle down to home-making and rearing a family, one girl declared, "I don't want to be a crabid old maid when I marry."

Asked regarding their life plans, one girl declared "I want to get an education first", another, "I have talked with a few people whom I consider capable of advising me," while still another states., "I have thought seriously of my life plan for several years and it is my desire to carry them out by the help of God."

Admit Faults

Asked regarding their best and worst traits which either help to make or mar their life plans and careers the answers given by the girls were thought to be representative of the entire class. Given as their best traits were: "Controlling my high temper, honesty, helping others, friendliness, frankness, love of truth and beauty, my ability to get along with others, patience, treating everyone alike" and so on. Given as a few of their worst traits were: "Having my own way, losing my temper, saying what I think, laziness, lack of tact, not enough self-confidence, selfishness, jealousy," and the like and one said she had been petted too much! While "chewing gum" was listed by two as their worst traits or handicaps.

PHILATELIC DISPLAY

LE HARVE, France (AP)—Stamp collectors from all countries are expected here May 25-26 for an International Philatelic exposition marking the fiftieth anniversary of organization of the business. Several foreign governments will have official exhibits.

VIENNA (AP)—The Austrian National Association of Pharmacists has ruled that henceforth only members of their families shall be accepted as apothecaries and drug clerks. Free clinics and medicine provided by the government for the poorer population caused the closing of several hundred drug stores.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, April 21.—A large delegation will attend the annual district West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, to be held at Tahoka, next Wednesday, according to the opinion given by Dr. W. E. Payne, chairman of the "On to Tahoka" committee, appointed by the Slaton Chamber of Commerce. Others on the committee are K. L. Soudder, H. G. Sanders, L. R. Cypert and S. E. Staggs.

In addition to the business men and other people who will make the trip, Slaton will have a band at the convention, and John Rayburn, Slaton high school student, will represent Slaton in the "My Home Town" contest.

Slaton will not ask for the convention next year, having had the annual meet here only a few years ago, and many other South Plains cities are clamoring for the 1930 session.

COMPROMISED VERDICTS AND MISTRIALS

Compromised verdicts and mistrials are of frequent occurrence in Texas. In the former there is generally a miscarriage of justice. In the latter justice is not only defeated but the taxpayers are put to the expense of another trial with all its accompanying disagreeable features and time lost to many people directly or indirectly connected with the case.

Mistrials and compromise verdicts are, in a large measure, due to the inability of the jurymen to agree on the severity of the punishment to be assessed. In most cases, if the jury were relieved of the responsibility of fixing the punishment, a verdict would be quickly rendered. Putting this responsibility on the jury is not fair to the members of the jury, nor is it in the interest of justice. Any number of abuses grow out of it.

Not long ago a man charged with murder was found guilty and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. There may have been mitigating circumstances that influenced the jury in assessing so light a penalty for so heinous a crime but it was very evident that the verdict was a compromise. Under similar circumstances another jury in another case may have made the punishment fifty years and maybe death in the chair. There are men serving sentences varying from two to ninety-nine years for the same kind of a crime. Many have been executed. This is due to the fact that juries are influenced more or less by circumstances and conditions that should not be taken into consideration in their deliberations. Very frequently juries will remain out for many hours, only to report a disagreement, and in the majority of cases their inability to agree is not on the question of guilt, but on the amount of punishment to be assessed.

In the interest of justice as well as in the interest of the taxpayers, the responsibility of assessing of assessing punishment should be placed with the trial judge and not with the jury.

CLEAN-UP TIME IS HERE

With beautiful spring weather prevailing after a severe winter, thoughts of the householder naturally turns to the spring cleanup. The housewife, apparently eager for the opportunity, is either well along with house-cleaning or is making plans to start soon. The housewife never needs urging. She attacks house cleaning as many men attack golf or fishing. It is a genuine pleasure for her.

But the spring clean-up means more than house cleaning. It means removal of the winter accumulation of debris about the yards. It means the disposal of those hazards which breed fire. It is a good time to check up on defective wiring. Last year about this time, the state inspection bureau sent a crew of 50 men here to inspect business premises and the schools. Many recommendations were made and a large percentage of them followed. A similar inspection would be well for the community each year.

City authorities have not yet designated a week for hauling away debris and accumulations. It is too early for that. But in the preparation for this annual event, the clean-up might well be started now. Health and safety depend largely upon keeping premises clean and free from fire hazards.

And in connection with the annual clean-up, paint works wonders in improving appearance and extending the life of property. Cleanup and paint-up are watchwords of the season.

PROHIBITION AND THE HOTELS

It used to be said that hotels could not operate profitably without selling liquor—that prohibition would ruin the hotel business. Yet never have such great hotels, nor so many of them, been built as in the United States during the years since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution. Facts have proved that hotels, better hotels, can be made to pay without bars. Proof of the corollary of this proposition—namely, that the sale of liquor is actually injurious to the hotel business—now comes from Australia. A leading architect of Sydney, N. S. W., declares that it is primarily because of the liquor traffic that the Australian metropolis, a city of more than 1,000,000 people, is actually without a single thoroughly modern, first-class hotel. Numerous projects for the construction of such a building have been instituted, but they have invariably stopped short of realization.

The principal reason, according to this architect, is that as soon as construction has progressed to a certain point, the promoters, in their eagerness to open the bar and commence making profits on the sale of liquor, have curtailed their plans and rested content with a truncated and incomplete structure. The law declares that only "hotels" can be fully licensed to sell liquor. That is, a "public house" must have a certain number of bedrooms to let. As soon as this required minimum is attained, there is thought to be little profit in building further. This results in a large number of two-or three-story "hotels"—in many of which the proprietor would be frankly surprised if any traveler should ask for a room for the night—and a mere handful of larger hotels, none of them strictly up to modern metropolitan standards.

When the facts is more generally accepted that a bar can no more prove a profitable connection to a home for travelers than can a bootlegger to a private residence ,the hotel industry will be the gainer.

It seems funny to hear folks stand up and say they are for progress and vote and write and talk against every progressive move that is made. None of this stuff has ever gotten into our system yet, and we doubt their sincerity when they make the statement. Of course it may not be fair for us to say this, but that is the way we feel about it anyway.

In a few weeks the schools will be out. The boys will have nothing especially on their minds, and you know the idle minds is the hot bed for evilt thought which grow into evil deeds. Paren's should see to it that the boys get employment, and keep their minds employed, and it will be a blessing to the boy as well as more a lot of relief in the home. This is equally as important for the girls.

DIFFICULTIES OF UNITED STATES SUPERVISING MEXICAN ELECTION OUTLINED

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Nicaragua's population is a little more than 600,000.

Mexico's is considerably more than 14,000,000.

Obviously, it would be harder for Uncle Sam to manage a national election in Mexico than he found it to manage Nicaragua's last national election.

Arithmetically, it would be more than 23 times harder.

Really, it might be harder than that.

Uncle Sam encountered only General Sandino's opposition in Nicaragua. In Mexico he would be sure to encounter almost the whole people's.

Besides, there is much more territory to cover in Mexico.

Nicaragua is about the size—and shape—of the Ninth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth congressional districts of Texas. Mexico is 10,000 square miles larger than the combined states of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, and Oregon.

Nevertheless, because of the now-raging anti-government uprising in northern Mexico, it is beginning to be suggested in Washington that it would be a good thing for the United States to take charge of the coming presidential election south of the Rio Grande.

It may or may not be significent that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson is the same man who arranged American electoral supervision in Nicaragua.

President Hoover has not expressed himself hitherto much like an executive of interventionist tendencies in Latin American politics.

Still, he did pick Colonel Stimson as his state secretary, in the full knowledge of the colonel's reputation as a fixer of elections in foreign republics—for their own benefit, of course, but backed up, just the same, by United States marines.

A few thousand marines were enough to turn the trick in Nicaragua.

Nobody pretends that the entire marine corps could do it in Mexico. Indeed, nobody pretends that Uncle Sam could intervene in Mexico at all without in all probability, starting a war.

It would be a small war—as an organized war.

American warships would control the Mexican coast and American troops would occupy all important Mexican cities in short order, unquestionably.

"Pacifying" the republic would be different.

Policing 14,000,000 rebellious Mexicans, scattered over 767,300 mountainous, desert and jungle-covered square miles—well, it needs no argument to prove that it would be a monumental chore.

How many men it would take—a million, maybe—or how long it would last—perhaps years is anybody's guess.

It is also anybody's guess precisely what the present anti-government uprising in Mexico means, but there are some known facts to draw a few conclusions from.

When the Diaz regime was overthrown, two vast interests found their old privileges abolished, or greatly curtailed—the great land owners and the oil men. These interests were largely American. They wanted to get back into power, and required Uncle Sam's intervention to help them. Uncle Sam balked, and they began a long campaign to force him to act.

There was an opposing American interest, however, which preferred otherwise—a banking interest.

Mexico owed a lot of money to American bankers.

The Mexico City government showed a strong disposition to keep up its interest on these loans and whittle away, as fast as possible, on the principal.

This suited the bankers.

They objected to a war, which would cut off their payments and leave Mexico in no condition to start paying again.

The bankers' and the land-oil group's game seesawed in Washington.

First the land-oil folk, by stirring up Mexican uprisings, precipitating anti-American outrages and setting President Calles and Secretary Kellogg by the ears, would seem about to compel intervention and hostilities. Then the bankers would head them off.

ALL ORGANS OF BODY SUFFER FROM A DIET LACKING IN VITAMINS

Arthritis Deformans

Miss E.—Arthritis deformans is a most baffling disease, and very difficult to cure after it has started, although it can be arrested. No, it is not inherited.

In some cases it may be traced to infections, such as from carious teeth, or infected tonsils, or infections elsewhere in the body. Absorption of putrefaction produced in the intestinal tract may also be a cause.

The modern treatment includes the treating of any infected spots in the body diathermy—electrical heat which penetrates very deeply into tissues—other electrical treatments and the ultra-violet and X-rays. Medications and vaccines are of value in certain cases. All the known laws of hygiene must be observed; fresh air and sunshine, right diet, sleep and rest, etc., and even exercises in some form—passive or active—to keep the joints from ankylosing (cementing together from the inflammatory process, might express that.)

I'll speak a little of the deficient diet in producing joint trouble. A deficient diet, especially one lacking in the vitamins, markedly lowers the tissue resistance of the joint coverings and of the mucous membranes. It lowers the tissue resistance of all the organs, but it is frequently noticed in these first. Now a diet may be an over-ful one, as it is in those who are overweight, because usually they eat too many starches, sugars and fats. This may dilute the vitamins, thus making them relatively deficient, or it may derange the intestines so they are not absorbed. And it not infrequently happens that those who are overweight, as well as those who are underweight, do not eat enough of the vitamin-bearing foods, especially fruits and vegetables.

It has been found in some patients suffering from so-called rheumatism and joint inflammation (arthritis) that there is a higher degree of sugar in the blood than normal showing there is a disturbance of the regulation of sugar as there is in diabetes. These patients are markedly benefitted by cutting out most of the starches and sugars (starches are converted to sugar in the blood.)

We have an article on the subject which you may have.

"I have been Petersizing and have lost 15 pounds. As I have to watch my weight, and as I like popcorn, I would like to know if the popping kills the calories. I was told so. F."

No, F. Not one of 'em. Not infrequently I am asked if there are not certain procedures which will kill these pesky calories. The only think I know of is thrice-boiling of vegetables, which is done in some severe cases of diabetes. Starchy vegetables are thrice boiled and the waters thrown away. This abstracts the starch and, of course, does lower the caloric value of the food. But it also lowers the vitamin and mineral element content, and is only done so the patient can have more bulk.

Popped corn registers 100 calories to the one and one-half cups (one scant ounce). Care of the butter on it! That is 100 calories to the level tablespoonful.

The Mountain That Labored and Brought Forth a Mouse

SO THINK WE

We think the matter of remembering and marking the streets is one of the slowest operations that we have ever known to be put over in Lubbock. It looks like this job just cannot be put over, and it is badly needed. Lubbock with an estimated population of twenty thousand certainly should have the streets marked so that people will know where they are and where they are going.

—o—

We think it will be a great thing for Lubbock when the underpasses are completed and the streets on which they are located paved to the city limits. This should be done on every highway out of Lubbock. It would mean a great deal to the city of Lubbock to do this as it would make a favorable impression on the people who come here.

—o—

We think one of the best evidences of the progress of the South Plains is illustrated in the large attendance of school contestant in the various contests of the Interscholastic Meet now in sesion in Lubbock. More than two thousand are in attendance and that means that there are many thousands more at home, and it means that the South Plains is settling up rapidly with a fine class of people.

—o—

We think there are a lot of three-letter men in Lubbock, they belong to the royal order of I. O .U's.

—o—

We think the old goose that laid the golden egg, is fast being replaced by the hen that lays a basketfull of eggs a week, and sells for a good price on the Lubbock markets.

—o—

We think that must have been a very cruel and high tempered wife down there in Midland who shot at her husband when he came in late to dinner, but that is possibly one way to bring him around on time, provided she did not hit what she shot at.

—o—

We think you will soon be hearing of the rabie dogs. There may be some in Lubbock, but not many. The dog catcher seems to have Lubbock very well cleaned up of stray dogs, and this is a mighty good idea.

—o—

We think the people of Sweetwater should give the editor of that paper a basket of flowers. We read an editorial in the daily paper of Sweetwater a few days ago about the growth and development of that city.

—o—

We think that possibly the reason so many girls smoke cigarettes these days is that they have found out that kisses are full of germs and smoke will kill 'em.

—o—

We think many men thought they were fools when they married and their wife still thinks so.

—o—

We think that if some people were graded according to the modern college rules of grading it would read something like this "tell everything they hear plus."

—o—

We think that if every citizen of Lubbock would make it a habit of meeting some person at church every Sunday that they had not known before, it would be a great advertisement for Lubbock. The church is a mighty good place to get acquainted, and the town that has a friendly church reputation is a town that will build and will increase in membership rapidly.

—o—

We think as long as Lubbock has a number of old would-be friendly sisters who invite young girls into their home, and induce them to smoke cigarettes and drink beer with her, and lead them off into paths that are not good for their physical and moral being there will be a distressing increase in the number of girls that go wrong in this community. It is said that there are women in Lubbock who this under the pretense of being friendly and wanting the girls to have a good time.

COLD BATHS

A friend in the hospital last winter found his recovery hastened by fresh air which was admitted to his room despite zero temperature. If the window remained closed long he felt "wilted." The fresh air was a tonic. Fortunately, he had been prepared to stand cold temperatures by daily cold plunges. The frequent bath is something which the western world learned from the Far East. India taught the British conquerors the value of the daily bath. Oriental peoples had been taking baths for a thousand years before Perry visited Japan.

MORE ABOUT WASTE

Women are foolish to make clothes which can be more economically bought ready-made, a Boston teacher says. There can be no quarrel with that. It's inefficient to do housework by hand which can be done more economically by machinery.

SPOILING FAST

Do American housewives allow millions of dollars worth of food to spoil in a year? Few women would admit it. The sales manager of a refrigerator concern is responsible for the figures. He estimates that 10 per cent of the food which goes into the average home is wasted by improper refrigeration. If the estimate is accurate it deserves emphasis. The Japanese accuse us of being extravagant of food. They are wizards in the preparation of delicacies from leftovers.

Cheer Up—It Might Be Even Worse!

Senor Pistelli, of Chile, Shows That Income Tax Rate In U. S. Is Below That of Many Other Nations

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, April 20—If anyone is still irritated about the income tax he had to pay last month he may be consoled by knowledge that the soak would have been far more painful in almost any other country.

El Senor Julio Pistelli, head of the income tax unit of Chile, imparts that information after a protracted tour during which he has studied the income tax systems of the principal occidental nations. He has spent four months in England, a month in Germany, three months in France and a month in Italy, and is now concluding two months of study in the United States.

He returns to Santiago pretty well satisfied with the Chilean system, which he believes to be the most simple and effective method of income taxation, and plans changes merely in a few minor details.

Seeking More Knowledge

El Senor Pistelli is only 34 years old. Before he was appointed to his present post he was a professor of mathematics at the University of Chile and before that he was a civil engineer. His tour of study is typical of a tendency in Latin America toward sending officials, professors and students to other nations for wider knowledge.

Chile has had an income tax since 1924 and it is operated on the same basis as in other Latin countries such as France, Italy and Spain, with different rates for separate classes of income. Thus Chile assesses 6 per cent on income from capital and mining, 5 per cent on income from business and industry, 3 per cent on profesional income and 2 per cent on salaries and wages. A $600 exemption is allowed for the last two classes and surtax rates on all incomes above $1250 rising from 1 to 10 per cent. Of course living costs here are nearly triple those in Chile.

Only surtax payers must file returns there. Employers and corporations deduct at the source the taxes on salaries and dividends respectively and have no incentive to cheat. The government has access to the books of other classes of income taxpayers.

"The essential difference between your system and the English system," says Pistelli, "is that England doesn't tax capital gain. Neither is there any corporation tax there. Assessments of income taxes are also made by unpaid local officials, which does not impress me as efficient.

"England had her first income tax in 1788 and has used it steadily since 1842. She collects on all types of income, with a normal rate of four shillings a pound, or 20 per cent, and surtax on big incomes up to six shillings. There are exemptions of 125 pounds for unmarried persons and 225 pounds for married persons, with 60 pounds exemption for each child or dependent. The first 220 pounds of income are taxed at the normal rate, but the assessment on very large incomes goes as high as nearly 50 per cent. More than 70 per cent of her income tax money is deducted at source.

"Germany has a progressive schedule, the rate increasing from 10 per cent, with certain allowances and exemptions, up to 40 per cent. The exemptions are much smaller there than in the United States or Great Britain and there is a special tax on corporations.

"France has the Latin system, with 10 per cent on wages and salaries as the lowest rate and up to 18 per cent on capital. She has a surtax on all incomes above 10,000 francs, which rises to 30 per cent. There are exemptions and the total tax is reduced by a stipulated percentage for the wife and each child.

Italy's Tax Rate High

"Italy's income tax rate runs from 8 per cent on wages to 14 per cent on capital income. She allows an exemption of 2000 lira, with deductions, and also has a surtax.

"Income tax rates are far lower in the United States than elsewhere. Your corporation taxes are higher, because industries elsewhere need stimulation."

El Senor Pistelli has been especially impressed by our centralization of income tax administration, under which all tax returns come to Washington. In other countries they are not all assembled in one place.

NEEDS ARE CITED

Highway Department Needs Four-Story Building

AUSTIN, April 20 (AP).—The Highway Department is seriously in need of not less than a four-story building to house it, Gibb Gilchrist, State Highway engineer, told members of the House Appropriations Committee today.

The Highway Department's needs for the new Biennium were submitted to the committee by Gilchrist and R. S. Sterling of Houston, chairman of the Highway Commission. The Board of Control budget recommended a total of $1,532,020 for the two years.

Gilchrist said the department had rented an entire floor of a recently completed downtown office building at $601 monthly to supplement its floor space and a portion of the basement.

SAN ANGELO, April 20 (AP).—Jack Miles, 63-year-old San Angelo constable, was arrested late today by a deputy United States marshal on a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws. His bond was set at $3,000, which he made after waiving preliminary hearing.

Miles was the second local peace officer arrested within two days on liquor charges. A. A. Brown, policeman, was placed under similar charges yesterday and was suspended from the force today.

While condemning the practice of "ghost writing," in which an article is written by one person and published under the signature of another, Shuman said the "ghost writing" for the famous aviator was honest writing.

Gilbert Swan

n New York

By Swan

NEW YORK, April 20.—Romance sits back stage at most of Broadway's theatrical successes. Only when the playwright has "arrived" and has joined the ranks of the old timers is it absent. Practically every play from the pen of a new author has had a fascinating career—generally a very discouraging one.

Take, for instance, "Journey's End," which brought over from London a young tweed wearing Britisher by name of Bob Sheriff. He told the story one night just before going back to England, where his play is the greatest hit of the decade.

You know, that play was written for an amateur performance of a rowing club," he began. "To me it's incredible that it should have turned out as it did. I scarcely believe it now. It was dashed off just as a club stunt. The Kingston club wanted a play for its annual get-together. And I was asked to write one. The membership is solely male, so I had to put together a drama without women. Naturally, I though of a war play—since the war was rather close to me.

"Having to hold down a job as an insurance salesman, I could work on it only in the evenings. So it took me half a year. And after all that work, the club wouldn't take it—even for an amateur performance. They said it was too somber for a jinx—or something like that. Also there were a lot of offstage war effects, and they didn't have the equipment for it.

"Well, I got the London Stage society to put it on as one of their Sunday night special shows, and some of the actors liked it. The manuscript was sent to George Bernard Shaw but he was of the opinion that war plays were out of vogue. Any number of managers turned it down, and finally it got a theater showing, thanks to Maurice Brown, who had written "Wings Over in Europe." It was an immediate success."

That's not an unusual story in the theater. The play, which is almost certain to win this year's Pulitzer prize, kicked around most of the managerial offices of Broadway before it got a showing—and this in face of the fact that Elmer Rice, the author, had written the very successful "On Trial."

Among the more recent arrivals is "Appearances," which was written by a negro elevator boy in a San Francisco hotel, and concerns the life of a bellhop. The author worked it out as he sat waiting for passengers. And when he had finished it, he sought the interest of Al Jolson, whom he had admired for his blackface impersonations.

The constant cry from the blase for something new in entertainment leads to no end of grotesque and odd methods of satisfying the demand.

The latest to come to my attention is a gentleman with two trained seals who exhibits them at parties where the little sons and daughters boredom foregather. He drives them up in a glass tank on a truck and moves them into the drawing rooms. He brings along a smaller tank of small fish to keep his seals interested in their work.

There are any number of magicians, fortune tellers and such who make the rounds of the Park avenue affairs for private showings. A mind reading act finds itself with more private engagements than it can fill—its popularity being based on the fact that it tells tales right out loud on many of the guests.

Today's Poem

SNOWDROP

When full of warm and eager love
I clasp you in my fond embrace
You gently push me back and say
"Take care, my dear, you'll spoil my lace."

You kiss me just as you would kiss
Some woman friend you chance to see;
You call me "dearest." All love forms
Are yours, not its reality.

Oh, Annie! cry, and storm and rave
Do anything with passion in it!
Hate me an hour, and then turn round
And love me truly, just a minute.

Sleeper Bus Like Railroad Pullman

Every accommodation of railroad Pullman service, and then some, is afforded by the sleeper bus line between Cleveland and Buffalo. Photo shows the interior of the bus "made up."

CLEVELAND, April 20.—All the comforts of home are embodied in the new sleeping car bus just turned out by the Bender Body company of this city.

This new automobile sleeper has room for 18 persons. It has an ice water system, heating system, electric ventilation, dressing rooms and upper and lower berths.

This bus, as will several similar ones, operates on the Great Lakes stage line running between Cleveland, Buffalo, Philadelphia and New York.

It has six double berths and six single berths. Each is 73 inches long, offering ample room for tall persons. All berths, including even the uppers, have windows with adjustible ventilators.

An electric ventilating system changes the air completely every five minutes and electric fans furnish air circulation in summer. Card tables are provided for those desiring this amusement and ice water is available at all times.

Safety precautions are thorough. The bus body is mounted on a chassis equipped with four wheel air brakes. All glass is unbreakable.

Bumpers protect it on all sides. Balloon tires and air springs, coupled with a smoothly operating 125 horsepower motor, provide riding comfort.

At present the sleeping bus operates between Cleveland and Buffalo only. Passengers going to New York board the sleeper at Cleveland, arriving at Buffalo the next morning where they transfer to the day bus and continue to New York. Coming from New York, the travelers board the sleeper in Buffalo at night, arriving in Cleveland next morning.

Rates for berths are $2.50 for lower double, $2 for lower single, $2 for upper double and $1.75 for upper single.

The crew of the bus is composed of two drivers and a porter. The porter acts in the same capacity as a train porter, taking care of linen changes and personal service.

Lubbock Farmer Is Doing His Part

Helps Suffering Ptople By Telling His Experience Wit Organtonehehhhhtth With Orgatone After Five Years of Suffering

"It didn't take many doses of Orgatone to satisfy me that I had found the right medicine for my case at last," declared L. A. Clark, a prominent farmer residing on rural route 2, Lubbock, Texas, while in town the other day.

"For five years," continued Mr. Clark, "my stomach was in such a terrible condition that everything I would eat bloated me up with gas until I was miserable most all the time. My appetite went back on me and I just had to force down the little I did eat and even that disagreed with me for hours at a time. My nerves were in such a stretched state that I couldn't half sleep, and I would get up in the morning feeling so fagged out that I couldn't do anything like I wanted. Constipation bothered me a great deal and I was continually taking something for this trouble but all the time. I was so run down from these troubles and felt so tired and wornout all the time that I was hardly fit for a thing.

"I got me a bottle of Orgatone on the recommendation of a personal friend who had used it and began to pick up right off, my appetite has improved so much that I can eat and enjoy everything set before me and I never have any trouble with gas or sour stomach now, my nerves are getting in fine shape and I sleep like a child. I am stronger and have more energy than before, and I can do any work on my farm with more satisfaction than in a long time, and I'm doing my part to help suffering people by telling what Orgatone did for me."

Genuine Argatone is not a secret patent or secret remedy but a new bile scientific preparation, and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by Bowen's Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Out of town customers are being supplied by mail upon receipt of price, $1.25 for one bottle or $6.25 for six bottles.

Hear Radio Voice Miles Above Land

Reception Better At 1200 Feet Than At 100, Say Operators In Airplanes Following Test

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP).—Pilots of commercial airplanes, testing radiophone communication, have found that reception varies considerably at different altitudes.

The pilots report they can hear the ground radio operator better at 12,000 feet above the sea than at 100. This is believed to be due to the effect of ground absorption of the radio waves. Some pilots report hearing the ground operators at an altitude of 19,000 feet.

On test flights, they found areas of radio shadows, blind spots and skip distances and that spark plugs on the motor set up interference which had to be eliminated by shielding the ignition. Radiophone communication is successful at distances of 200 miles from ground stations and between planes 175 miles distance.

A pilot flying east from Oakland, Cal., can talk directly to a pilot flying west from Elko, Nev., and when planes are more than 175 miles apart inter-plane communications can be phoned to a ground station, thence relayed to another station which has speaking range with the pilot addressed and the message phoned "upstairs."

Build Radios

Blind Students Find Pastime

MUSKOGEE, Okla., April 20 (AP).—Building radio sets is a hobby with students at the Oklahoma school for the blind.

Fifteen complete sets have been built by boys who are unable to see. Their knowledge of radio is increased by magazine and newspaper articles which are read to them.

Three broadcast sets have been set up in dormitories, and each group of enthusiasts takes turns entertaining the other two. One student, 14-year-old Albert Sparks has devised an underground antenna which he claims will work better than any aerial found.

In 1910 there were 1,000 miles of paved roads in the United States. Today there are 100,000 miles and 600,000 miles of other improved roads.

Star Of Stage

JULIA SANDERSON

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP).—Julia Sanderson, whose voice has been heard on the musical comedy stages of Europe and America, sings on the radio once a week.

With Frank Crumit, she appears in a program that opens at 10 o'clock eastern time Monday nights over WOR and chain.

Miss Sanderson's first stage appearance was made when she was three years of age.

Radio Is Ally of Coast Guard When Ice Patrol Opens

Cutters Trail Gigantic Icebergs and Broadcast Warning to Liners in North Seas.

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP).—With radio an indispensable ally, the United States coast guard has started its sixteenth season of international ice patrol in the north Atlantic.

While officials of the maritime nations are meeting in London to devise methods of furthering the safety of life at sea, two little coast guard cutters, the Modoc and the Tampa, are unostentatiously trailing giant icebergs and broadcasting information to ships to prevent another disaster like the sinking of the Titanic.

Having detected ice, the patrol vessel transmits four daily broadcasts giving the location and the drift of the bergs. Each broadcast is repeated twice with an interval of two minutes between each report. Each broadcast is preceded by the general call "CQ" on a frequency of 500 kilocycles, immediately followed by the regular ice broadcast.

If at any time a large berg is sighted in or near the steamship lanes and it is not thought advisable to wait until the regular broadcast, the rules in regard to the safety signal TTT apply. The call CQ is for use only with regular broadcasts of ice or marine data. Ice information will be given at any time to any ship with which the patrol vessel can communicate.

In addition to the broadcasts for ships, the patrol vessels transmit information to naval stations at Bar Harbor and Arlington.

Convicts Present Weekly Program

Henry Dawson, Serving For Robbery, Is Versatile Star of Broadcasts At Ohio Prison.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 20 (AP).—The weekly radio broadcasts of convicts in Ohio penitentiary here has developed a versatile contributor in Harry Dawson, who features every program. Dawson is serving a term for robbery.

He has twice presented his own composition, "I'm just a Black Sheep," and thousands of requests that it be repeated have been received by P. E. Thomas, the warden. Dawson also plays several musical instruments.

The broadcast of prison programs was arranged by Warden Thomas, WAIU here agreeing to put them on the air. Connection with the prison studio is made by remote control.

All of the performers are convicts, an dthe announcing and much of the technical work are done by men serving sentences.

Galveston Aviators Make Special Radio Adapted for Use on Airplanes; Is Compact But of Extensive Range

75 Pound Set With Radius of 3000 Miles In Reception is Produced by Two At Fort Crockett

(By Associated Press)

GALVESTON, April 20.—A radio setlight epough to be carried by small army airplanes and sufficiently strong to receive or transmit messages within a 3,000 mile radius has been developed by Fort Crockett fliers.

This 75 pound set, its designers claim, is the first apparatus suitable for practical use by attack planes. It is intended to facilitate communication between leading planes and headquarters during army maneuvers.

Tests of the radio by the 3rd attack group at the army air base have proved that adverse weather conditions will not interfere with its transmission or reception. It has "worked" France field in Panama.

Sergt. C. P. Smith, who designed the set, can land his plane, unfold a small camp table, uncover the set, attach a plug to the plane's generator, hoist two poles and be "on the air" within a few minutes.

The set uses 50 watts of power with two tubes. It has an input of 510 watts where line current is available or 150 watts by using the ship's generator. Formerly sets of the desired power weighed 1,500 pounds and consumed 250 watts power.

A Zeppelin type antenna is used on different frequencies by a system of counterbalancing condensers. The antenna is 60 feet long and the poles 12 feet high.

Teletype, Radio Are Planned For Airways Network

Licenses For 22 Planes to Operate on 600-900 Meter Wavelength Band Asked of Commission.

WASHINGTON, April 20—A combined communication systes of radio and teletype is planned for the New York-Los Angeles line of the Transcontinental Air Transport company, which has asked the federal radio commission for licenses for 22 planes to operate between 600 and 900 meters.

The company also has applied for a wavelength in the band between 109 and 133 meters.

Radio transmission would be restricted to mesages between ground stations and planes, and occasionally between two planes aloft at the same time. For messages between ground stations, the teletype system will be used. The teletype machine is a combination of telegraph and typewriting instruments. A message typed on the keyboard of one machine appears instantaneously on the machines of all other stations on the circuit.

At each station, radio buildings and towers will be erected a half mile or mile from the airport. The two steel towers, 128 feet tall, will be painted in alternate bands of yellow, black and white for daylight visibility and will be lighted at night. In the operating room will be a 2,000-watt transmitter, control panels, a receiver and radio direction finding apparatus.

Aboard the planes will be a 100-watt voice transmitter operated by a dynamotor set driven by storage batteries, a radio beacon receiver, a microphone, a key for sending code and two antennae—a vertical antenna for receiving and an automatically controlled trailing wire for sending. All controls will be located in the pilot's cockpit and operated by a pilot not engaged in actual flying.

Except in extremely adverse atmospheric conditions, communication will be by voice transmission only.

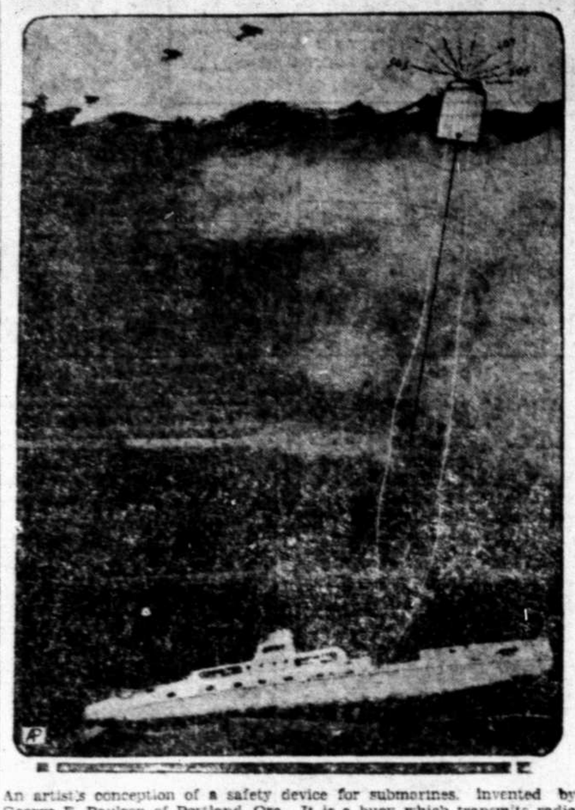

BID FOR TANKERS

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP).—The Antietam Steamship corporation of Philadelphia was high bidder today for the five remaining shipping board tankers. The Philadelphia concern offer a lump sum of $2,642,586.53 for the five ships.

Radio Buoy Sends S O S To Locate Sub

An artist's conception of a safety device for submarines, invented by George E. Paulson of Portland, Ore. It is a buoy which transmits radio distress signals.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 20 (AP).—A radio buoy designed to give the exact location of a stricken submarine is being tested by the United States navy.

Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon has notified George E. Paulson, Portland inventor, that the navy department is investigating his device.

The buoy is so arranged and so attached to the submersible that it can be released when the ship is in distress. The buoy bobs to the surface at the end of a long cable reeled out automatically from the submarine.

A radio transmitter in the buoy automatically repeats distress calls, enabling surface craft and airplanes to locate by directional radio, the position of the stricken submersible.

Artificial refrigeration depends for its operation on the fact that when a liquid such as ammonia expands into a gas it absorbs heat from its surroundings.

Wisconsin Early Listeners Assist Papers With News

Pinch Hitting at Morning Exercise Listeners Are Made Mediums for Conveying Messages.

MILWAUKEE, April 20—Wisconsin's early morning listeners have demonstrated their willingness to cooperate while taking their usual setting up exercises by radio.

"Pinch hitting" for telegraph and telephone wires, they assured a successful transmission of news over the ether and enabled their "home town" newspaper to carry a glimpse of the world's happenings under such captions as "via radio" and "by radio to the News."

The team work developed when the weatherman, employing his most effective weapons—snow and sleet—scored a quick knockout of telegraph and telephone lines in the state and left The Associated Press bureau at Milwaukee without wires for its news report. The Milwaukee Journal station, WTMJ, was placed at its disposal.

There had been no advance arrangements. There was no wire to carry the news of messages. Over WTMJ an announcement was broadcast asking aid of the listeners. They were requested to advise their newspapers of the emergency measure and of the hour the news would be transmitted.

Every paper without telegraph service was reached by air.

Fairbanks In "The Iron Mask" Headlines Movie Week In Lubbock

Foreign Cinema To Be Featured Starting Today

Fairbanks Film Is Brimming With Excitement

THE ever-popular Douglas Fairbanks, who for ten or twelve years has been thrilling and delighting movie audiences throughout the nation, is headlining star of the amusement week in Lubbock. Fairbanks comes to the Palace starting Wednesday in the United Artists masterpiece, "The Iron Mask."

In addition, the Palace presents "Looping the Loop" starting Sunday and running for three days, and the Lyric offers John Gilbert in "The Cossacks" as its attraction starting today.

In "The Iron Mask," Douglas Fairbanks is heard speaking for the first time in fourteen years, the time which has elapsed since he retired from the stage to the silver screen. The story is a continuation of the theme of "The Three Musketeers," a tale by Alexander Dumas, in the film version of which Fairbanks scored one of his greatest triumphs. The film is vibrant with adventure and stirring action and an undercurrent of human interest is likewise to be noted.

Fine Camera Shots

"Looping the Loop," cinema attraction at the Palace for three days, beginning this afternoon, possesses so many fine camera "shots" and perfection of film photography that these things attract the interest almost as greatly as does the story.

The picture, made in Germany, is of clowns and acrobats and other folk of the circus and vaudeville. When show scenes are introduced into the screen play, however, they are interesting incidents and not so much "blah" as accompanies many American made pictures.

Definite announcement of opening of the Lindsey is made. "The Terror," an all-talkie, is to be presented as the opening feature on Sunday, April 28.

The Lyric has a double attraction for Monday. Burt Southern's comedians are to present a program, there will be a negro wedding on the stage and John Gilbert in "The Cossacks" will be featured on the screen.

New Lindsey Will Open On Sunday With New Interior

OFFERING to the theatergoers of the South Plains as magnificent a movie palace as can be found in the leading cities of the Southwest, the Lindsey Theater Enterprises next Sunday will ring up the initial opening curtain of their finest theater—the new Lindsey—the supreme achievement of theater development on the South Plains.

Specially designed so that acoustics are most conductive to the presentation of talking and sound pictures, the opening of the new Lindsey marks another forward stride in offering this new form of entertainment to the pleasure-seeking public.

After next Sunday this theater becomes the banner amusement house of the Lindsey Theater Enterprises and will offer the choice productions of movieland. The most severe critic can not fail to be impressed at the beauty of the new theater, which has during the past few months undergone a complete remodeling at a cost of approximately $55,000. New furnishings, decorations, scenery, a cooling system, and the latest in Vitaphone equipment will grace the new amusement house at its opening.

"The Terror," Warner Brothers' latest and best mystery movie, starring May McAvoy and Louise Fazenda, will be the initial Vitaphone presentation in the new Lindsey. This former London stage success is heralded as one of the most baffling and entertaining mystery stories yet filmed.

'The Terror' Is Film of Thrills

EVERYBODY is talking about "The Terror," Warner Bros.' latest and greatest mystery melodrama which is to start April 28 at the new Lindsey theater.

Spooky, thrilling, uncanny, ludicrous, absorbing, unique, are some of the adjectives applied to it. And it is all of these.

Based on the London stage play of Edgar Wallace, which is still going strong there after three years —"The Terror" was adapted for the

Brunks' Comedians Open Here Monday

Brunk's comedians, perennial tent show entertainers in Texas, open a week's engagement in Lubbock tomorrow. They will perform in their tent theater, located on Avenue H two blocks north of the courthouse. Fred G. Brunk is directing the group of actors who are in this city.

The following late royalty plays will be offered: "Tommy", "Mary's Other Husband", "The Alarm Clock" "The Cat and the Canary", "The Spell of the Island and "Why Bill Left Home."

The opening play, tomorrow night is "Tommy" a Broadway headliner for an entire year. Excellent vaudeville specialties and music by Jerr. James' orchestra rounds out the opening program. Doors open each evening at 7:30; the curtain rises at 8.

pictures by Harvey Gates. Those who have seen both stage and screen versions say that the latter is much more effective—on account of the wider scope of the scenic possibilities of the latter.

"The Terror" runs its gruesome course in an ancient English manor house, where a group of people—crooks, cops, crazy folks, and hysterical ladies—see hidden treasure and try vainly by spiritualistic seances and other unusual means to solve the mystery of the cloaked fiend who haunts the house, casually bearing this and that one to his underground torture chamber.

Life Of Clown Is Depicted In Film

'Looping The Loop' Starts Today At Palace

A CLOWN'S life is not always a sad one as one may see in "Looping the Loop." Paramount's latest importation from the UFA company of Europe, starting at the Palace Sunday.

Heretofore the clown has been pictured by authors as a living tragedy. Those who make others laugh have always been made to give the impression that their private lives are filled with dashed hopes and broken hearts. While there is drama aplenty in "Looping the Loop," which concerns the romance of a famous clown, yet a happy ending has been given the tale and it has been lauded by film critics and film fans alike wherever the picture has been shown.

At the head of the distinguished foreign cast is Werner Kraus, who, to Europeans, has filled the vacancy left with the coming to America of Emil Jannings. Kraus is now peer of the leading artists in Europe and his characterization of Botto, the clown, easily convinces one why he enjoys distinction. He is ably supported by two other artists who would be a credit to any production. They are Jenny Jugo, a beautiful brunette, and Warwick Ward, an accomplished actor also seen in "Variety."

The story concerns a famous clown who has little faith in women because of a disappointment experienced in a love affair. He believes no woman will ever love a clown because of his profession. Although determined to hold to this belief and counseling other fellow artists to believe as he does, a beautiful girl comes into his life and he promptly falls in love. He does, however, take the precaution of hiding the nature of his work, believing if she learns of it, he will lose her.

Fairbanks Talks In "The Iron Mask" Coming To Palace

Ever-Popular Star Scene Again As D'Artagan

A NEW and revolutionary development in the use of sound and speech will reach the screen in Douglas Fairbank's "The Iron Mask," which comes to the Palace theater on Wednesday. While the voice of Fairbanks will be heard, there will be no dialogue. The spoken portions of the film will be in the nature of soliloquys in which Doug, as D'Artagnan, will address the audience and speaking directly to them, tell the intents of the characters and the motivations for their actions. In this manner the audience becomes a part of the living play instead of bystanders.

This method, akin to the "chorus" of the classic drama was chosen by Fairbanks as the logical and most artistic utilization of the spoken voice in a story which pictures the romantic glamour and pageantry of a bygone day. Sound effects and musical synchronization will be used throughout the production and it is not difficult to imagine the striking effects that are possible in such a romance as "The Iron Mask."

Besides D'Artagnan, two other famous characters, Richelieu and de Rochefort, will talk. All three represent the vital motif of the story. Maintaining the spirit of the historical characters they portray, they emerge for a few moments from the picture, and explain to the audience their parts in the romance and intrigues of the chivalrous days to the two Louis, father and son.

Mr. Fairbanks, as the valiant D'Artagnan, opens the story by stepping from a tapestry, representing the four faithful musketeers, D'Artagnan, Athos, Porthos and Aramis, whose unswerving love and loyalty survived death and joined them in the greater adventures which lie beyond. In stirring words he invites the audience to journey with him to "the France of old, when blood was young and hate was bold. For love and honor gloried them, when life was life and men were men." Thus he establishes the spirit of dauntless youth and ageless romance which dominates the story.

"The Iron Mask is romantic drama, heroic in conception, dramatic in theme and animate in spirit, with a new sound effect of vivid force. It marks a milestone in the development of the synchronization of sound and silence. It brings to the screen an entirely new form of the talkies.

Literary "Close-ups" In Favor

More Intimate The Pictures, More Popular Book

By GENE COHN
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Apr. 20.—The "close-up" used so successfully in the films, grows steadily more popular in bookdom.

The closer and more intimate the pictures, the more popular the book. Hence the vogue for biographies, autobiographies and the recasting of history, science and art.

The current week gives us a diverting and vastly interesting assortment of kings and queens and knaves; of sea creatures cavorting in the dawn days; of groping scientists seeking to find out what man and matter might be; of mummy hunters and far-away scientific pioneers of Arabia; of courtiers and what-not.

In the field of close-up biography it seems to me that Francis Hackett has easily led the pace. His 250,000 word work, "Henry the VIII," which will be the May "Book of the Month," brings an amazing pageant before our very eyes. The people of history sit about talking to each other, we meet personally the list of tragic queens, whose heads fell at the king's will; we meet their families and their intimates.

And thanks to the author's painstaking research, the illusion of present day reality is given. The whole thing might have happened yesterday or the day before. The various figures keep passing and repassing as in the pages of a novel, until the reader sees them as living characters.

It's really a brilliant job. And Henry, the author leads us to gather, was a dynast in search of heirs. Opening his book with the departure from Spain of Catalina, who was to become Catherine of Aragon, Hackett shows the mental effect upon Henry of his brother's childless marriage. Henry wanted a dynasty. He was egotistic, selfish and a politician in the job of a king. And anything that interfered with his kingly intents went p-phfft!

Mary Borden, in her novel, "Jehovah's Day" (Doubleday) goes so far as to gave a name for our ooze-crawling ancestor. She identifies him—or it—as Eyrops, and then rushes through a hundred million years of time interlocking the creatures of the vague past and the inhabitants of the present.... It's a daring idea, which ends with a conversation between a character out of the dawn of time and a character out of evolution's achievement. This is a fine and imaginative bit concerning what has happened in this day that lasted a hundred million years. From which you can gather how interesting this difficult task may be.

The close-up offered by Dr. Richard Horace Hoffmann are those of men and women throughout time trying variously to discover what makes the wheels of the body go round, at the same time, to keep pain away and halt the inroads of age. Man's most avid search, says the introductory note, is "for a sound mind in a sound body."

The work is titled, "The Struggle for Health" (Liveright) and, for the first time, presents a running, narrative story of events that dovetailed and re-dovetailed to bring about the present day knowledge of the body and its ailments.

Theater Guild Is Celebrating 10th Year Of History

Cinderella Story Is Leatured In Birthday Play

By GILBERT SWAN
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, April 20—"The Love Duel," in which Ethel Barrymore is asked to participate as the second repertoire production in her own play house, turns out to be one of those continental sex duets between a "He" and a "She."

In fact the program reduces them to a "He" and a "She." Recalling my grammar school days I found myself looking around for "It," which ceased to be an impersonal pronoun when Mme. Glynn picked it out of the vocabular rag bag. Certainly "It" was there, Both in Miss Barrymore and her not-such-a-boy-friend, Louis Calhern.

One is led to believe that both are people of royal importance, with hot and cold running diplomats at their beck and call. The continental idea, I believe, is that the "He" and the "She" of such situations are presumed to carry on rather childishly in an effort to create an atmosphere of jealousy while, at the same time giving the impression of unconcern.

In the same week, the Theater Guild goes rollicking to the end of its tenth year of life.

From Czecho-Slovakia, or some such land, thy have produced a sophisticated Cinderella story which also has some of the ingredients of the American success play in which the pretty maiden shows the dumb boy how to make good.

It has the odd title of "The Camel Through the Needle's Eye." And though Miss Miriam Hopkins has been borrowed from the theater to play the "cellar girl" who runs off with the rich and titled youth, the drama seems to revolve itself into the Guild's little gift to Helen Westley.

"Lets Take a Taxi," The young man with Mildred said to the guardian of the law. "I'll Pay For It."

CHAPTER I

Mildred adjusted her hat before the mirror in one of the gum-vending machines and tucked in a straying brown curl.

A man slipped furtively through one of the turnstiles, glanced rapidly up and down the subway platform and brought his eyes to rest on the fox neckpiece around Mildred's shoulders.

She was very proud of that scarf. It had been given to her by a woman guest in the hotel where she was employed just before the woman sailed for Siam with her husband.

Mildred did not notice the stealthy approach of the sly-looking individual who stopped and leaned against a nearby pillar, half hidden from her sight.

Her attention was focused on a young man down by the newsstand. They bumped together on the stairs. There had been an echo of a quick "Sorry," a fleeting, polite gesture with a soft, gray hat he was gone, hurrying on in a vain attempt to make the train.

Mildred hurried also, but they were both too late. She was annoyed. Just those few seconds lost in the collision would cost her several minutes.

Well, Mr. Grant Hurry, whose fault it was, had missed the train, too, she saw with with satisfaction. Served him right to go tackling traffic as though he were on a football field.

It further annoyed her to note that he didn't seem to mind. Apparently he was absorbed in the paper he held in his hands.

"I'll bet he hadn't a darn thing to hurry for." Mildred thought resentfully, casting another cross-glance at him. Nice profile. Sort of a Wall Street-young broker look about his clothes, too. Surely there wasn't any need for him to worry about getting home before dinner was spoiled. And this was chop night at her house, Mildred reflected ruefully. Well, maybe her mother hadn't cooked all of them. "Anything but warmed-up chops!"

She looked at her wrist watch. Nearly an hour late. Well, at least, she had escaped the terrible crush of the subway rush hour. She went over and took a seat on a bench, snuggling her chin down in the luxurious platinum fox. It always gave her a pleasant sensation to do that.

Her mother had looked grave when first she saw the gift. "I don't want my girls getting used to finery they can't afford," she said. Mildred had sighed over that. Her life was spent in getting used to things she couldn't afford. All day she saw fashionably and expensively gowned women coming and going in the Judson Hotel. It was rather a hard contact for a very pretty girl whose salary was needed at home.

A train pulled in and she stepped quickly aboard, taking a seat by an open window with her back to it. She noticed that the nice looking man was not in her car.

Neither was he in any other. Back on the platform he lifted eyes from the sports page and swore feelingly. "Stood right here like a dumb ox and let it go past me," he lamented in disgust. As the departing train pulled farther away the words he chose to express his emotions grew stronger.

Then, far up on the platform, a man thrust an arm through the open window at Mildred's back, gave a swift jerk and withdrew it before anyone could stop him. With it came Mildred's scarf. She felt the sharp tug at her throat when the clasp was drawn against it before she knew than anything was happening.

Fortunately the clasp parted. Her hand flew up instinctively and she clutched frantically at the brush of the fur as its dip disappeared from her sight. Simultaneously she screamed but for a few seconds she was too bewildered to move. Then she jumped to her feet and ran through the cars to find a guard. He could do nothing for her. It was not a new story to him. He advised Mildred to leave the train at the next station and return.

Her helplessness brought a sense of complete loss to Mildred. The only good fur she'd ever owned! The thief would be many blocks away before she could get back unless he were caught. There was a chance that someone had seen him snatch the fur, she told herself encouragingly as she hurried over to take a downtown train.

She found a crowd gathered at the scene of the theft and when she had pushed her way into the presence of the officer at the center of it she was too breathless to speak for a moment.

He had expected the owner to return; had, in fact, delayed in starting for the police station with the man whose arm he held in an iron grip. But he couldn't wait any longer. The crowd would not disperse so long as there was something to be seen and the officer knew there was imminent danger of someone being pushed off the platform onto the tracks below.

"That's my fur," Mildred managed at last to gasp, and reached out a hand to take it.

"Sorry, miss," the officer said; "you'll have to come along with us to the station and claim your property."

"Oh," Mildred wailed, "I'm late now."

"You'll come too," the officer said, turning to a young man beside him. Mildred had not, until then, looked at anyone except the officer and his prisoner. She recognized the young man now.

"Did you catch him?" she asked breathlessly.

"Of course," he answered to both of them.

"But how did you do it?" she gasped as he helped her to make his way through the crowd to the street. "Weren't you on the train?"

"Couldn't have been if I caught him, could I? Don't you believe me?"

"Oh yes, of course." The crowd thrust them closer together. Mildred looked up at him with awe. "I'm awfully glad. But how did you do it?"

The young man threw out his chest. "Well, old D. A. M.—No, it's not a word, just initials—says I might amount to something if I could take my mind off the sports page. You see, I missed the train because I started reading about hockey. Then I saw this yegg grab a fur. . . ."

"And you stopped him?" Mildred broke in, her voice filled with admiration. "Of course you didn't know whose fur it was," she added with a tiny trace of wistfulness. It would have been nice to have inspired heroism, she thought.

"Didn't I though?" the young man lied beautifully. He was asking himself how the deuce he'd missed seeing in the first place what a peach of a girl he'd crashed into.

They had reached the street now, in the wake of the officer with the fur thief squirming in his grasp.

"Let's take a taxi," the young man with Mildred said suddenly to the guardian of the law. "I'll pay for it."

"Right," the officer responded and held up a commanding hand.

Mildred was glad to escape from the curious throng that had followed them. But she did not like the way the fur snatcher, who sat beside the officer, facing them, flicked his evil eyes over her figure. She turned her glance from his ugly face and sat over a little closer to the man next her.

"Why, there's a dreadful scratch on your neck," she exclaimed, and her eyes flew back accusingly to the other. Her mouth twisted in evidence of some inward satisfaction.

"He put up a stiff fight," the hero immodestly proclaimed and started to apply a handkerchief to his wound.

"Here," Mildred cried and thrust one of her own upon him. She had noticed that his was not irreproachably clean. He grinned at her as he took the hemstitched square she offered him.

"Polish automobiles."

"Polish automobiles?"

"Yes, you see I believe in bigger and better polishes. Seriously, I sell automobiles and I hate the fingermarks people leave all over them."

"But can't you find something else to remove them?"

"Absent-minded, that's me. Old D. A. M. says. . . ."

"Who is this D. A. M.?"

"The big boss. D. A. Mettle of Mettle's Agency for the fastest eight in the country."

"Why, I know who he is," Mildred told him excitedly. "Do you work for the Mettle Agency?"

"Well, he has enjoyed my services for several months, but there are moments . . ."

"Your place is near mine," Mildred said on his unended sentence.

"Is that so?" The young man was instantly interested. The officer grinned slightly under cover of their oblivion to himself and his prisoner.

"My name's Armitage, Stephen Armitage," the young man went on. "Of course I can find a name for you but for practical purposes perhaps you'd better tell me what you're generally called."

"Miss Lawrence. I'm the public stenographer at the Judson."

"Now isn't that a coincidence, Miss Lawrence? I was planning to take some work over to the Judson in the morning. Some stenographic work."

Mildred flashed him a glance of suspicion. "Surely Mr. Mettle's stenographers can do your work," she observed coldly. He might as well get her right, she thought. Her position at the hotel was a good one, the best she'd ever had and she took it seriously.

"Some private matters," the young man returned loftily, and before Mildred could frame an answer to that the taxicab had stopped at the police station.

The routine they had to go through was shortly over with and Mildred once more was in possession of her scarf.

"That's a nice bit of fur," Stephen remarked when they were back on the street. "Don't you think I'd better see you home so that it won't get stolen again?"

"I'll take better care of it after this," Mildred assured him. "I don't know how to thank you for what you've done already."

"Unless I know you get safely home with it I won't feel I've done anything," he protested. "And since we're going to see a lot of each other in the future don't you think that we might. . . ."

"Here's a cigar store right on the corner. What's the number please?"

Mildred had to smile at his ingenuousness. "I'd better do it," she demurred. "A strange voice might frighten them. Mother's always nervous when I'm late."

Stephen beamed. "So they are not used to strange voices calling?" he said happily.

"Not when I'm away," Mildred replied teasingly.

"Your favorite pastime is bursting bubbles, isn't it?" Stephen reproached her. "And you're ungrateful too. You have a home and a mother and I have only a hotel room. Besides, I need someone to look after this scratch. I'm sure your mother could fix it up."

He touched his cheek gingerly and pretended to wince. Mildred was concerned.

"Well," she said hesitantly, "we live very simply. Mother isn't often prepared for unexpected company. In fact, I don't think there will be much dinner now but if you care to take potluck. . . ."

"Potluck! Why, potluck is what's at the end of the rainbow. And to a fella whose home is out in Indiana and who hasn't had a home-cooked meal in six months your kind invitation sounds like the trumpet call to a feast."

"I don't know how mother will receive you." Mildred warned him seriously, "when she learns that you're a perfect stranger to me."

"Ah, thanks for the adjective. It makes it easier to be called a stranger."

"Fresh, aren't you?" Mildred took him to task. Suddenly he changed. "No, really I'm not, Miss Lawrence, and I think it's great of you to let me go home with you even if I have sort of forced the invitation. But I don't see any sense in wasting a lot of time getting acquainted when you know who I am and I know who you are. . . ."

"But I don't really know who you are."

"Sure you do. You know I couldn't be with the Mettle Agency if . . . well, don't you see, that's a recommendation, though honesty compels me to admit old Dam—I beg your pardon—old D. A. M. doesn't always agree with my point of view."

Mildred nodded. "Well, you seem determined to meet mother. Come along and let's phone. But when I tell her I'm bringing a man home to dinner that I didn't know an hour ago she's going to have an old-fashioned moment, I'm afraid."

"I'm all for the modern kid, myself," Stephen declared. "Lots of pep and knows how to play an old game a new way."

Mildred looked at him. He saw the question in her eyes. "Getting what you want," he explained. "That's what people always have been doing. Only the girls are franker about it now. The way I feel, if a girl liked me I'd O. K. her letting me know it. We fellows are finding out that we haven't got all the original ideas by any means. We appreciate a lead or two to save time."

Mildred felt uneasy. She hoped he wouldn't talk like that in her mother's hearing. Of course she understood him. She heard a lot of such modern opinions. But they shocked her mother.

"Well, don't let Connie know you're looking for leads," she laughed, "or she'll have you naming the date before dinner."

They were back at the subway now. "We'll change for an express at Seventy-second street," she said. "I told mother we'd hurry."

When they left the train Mildred stopped at a delicatessen store and made a few purchases which Stephen wanted to pay for and was not allowed.

"You'll have to carry them up four flights of stairs to pay for your dinner," she told him.

"Four flights of stairs! Why, my dear girl, I take a walk to the moon and back every time I'm feeling happy."

The stairs were somewhat narrow and not very well lighted but that did not seem to put a damper on the young man's spirits. Mildred was glad of the dimness; it hid the dirty handmarks on the walls and the uncleaned corners of the stairs.

Her mother welcomed them with poorly concealed agitation. She wondered what any young man would think of her daughter in these circumstances. In her day. . .

"Did you cook the chops?" Mildred whispered in her ear when she kissed her mother.

"There's only one," the mother whispered back; "but it's got kidney. I wouldn't let Connie have it. She had it last time."

"This is the young man who saved my fur for me, mother. Mr. Armitage."

"Pleased to meet you Mr. Armitage." She game him a welcoming hand that felt rough to his touch but had a sincerity in its pressure that left a pleasant feeling in Stephen's memory. He knew the difference between genuine friendliness and the glad hand.

Well, usually he made a good impression. Someone once had told him it was his curly blond hair that awoke a maternal instinct in the women he met. Why men liked him no one had as yet told him.

"The conquering hero comes," a voice mocked from the living room doorway. "I've a notion to break my date."

"For goodness sake, Connie," the mother snapped. "Mr. Armitage will think you don't know how to behave."

"You must excuse me a moment," Mildred said and left her mother to cope with the incorrigible Connie.

A few minutes to get into a simple lilac chiffon dress, a few magic touches before the mirror to hair and complexion and Mildred was ready to entertain her guest.

She found Connie lighting a cigaret for Stephen, perched on the arm of his chair. Mildred knew it wasn't a studied pose. Connie was far beyond posing in her strides toward modernism. She let herself follow instincts and act on impulses. If she wanted to sit on the arm of a chair—anyone's chair—she sat on it.

She wasn't bent on mischief, however, and when Mildred appeared she went out to the kitchen, ostensibly to help her mother. In reality to rave about Stephen.

"If only Mildred had a little more snap," she remarked, "she might be able to hold him. But I doubt it. Pity."

"Connie. Aren't you ashamed the way you talk?" her mother reproved her. "Mildred is simply being nice to a young man who was of service to her. But I'd rather she hadn't got acquainted with him so easily. He might think she isn't very particular. . ."

Connie laughed. "And how you know men, mom. As though any man would criticize a girl for picking him up. Some other fellow, now—that's different."

"Go set the table and don't talk so much. You'll learn a lot some day, miss," her mother answered irritably.

"Well," Connie said to herself a moment later, glancing into the living room, "maybe there are more ways than one of getting your man."

Mildred was applying an antiseptic lotion to the scratch on Stephen's cheek and he seemed to like her ministrations.

Just then the telephone rang. Connie went to answer it. Most of the calls that came in were for her.

"Hey, Mildred, it's for you," she yelled from the hall and put down the receiver with an impatient bang. "Wouldn't it be just like Pamela Judson to call up when Mildred had a new boy friend!"

Pamela's unexpected calls and sudden demands upon Mildred's time were bitterly resented by Connie, who considered that Pamela took advantage of her sister.

"But I've only just got home," Stephen heard her say. "I was delayed and I can't possibly go out again tonight. Can't you get somebody else?"

Evidently the person at the other end of the wire had plenty to say. It must have been convincing, too, for after a while Mildred agreed, wearily, to do whatever it was that Pamela need her for.

She came back to Stephen in a little flush of temper. He thought it most becoming to her.

"Ive got to go down to the hotel this evening," she said apologetically.

Stephen rose. "May I go with you?" he asked.

"Oh, not before dinner," she assured him. "There's plenty of time."

"Dinner's ready now," her mother called from the dining room.

"Why don't you tell that pain in the neck to go to blazing. . ."

"Connie!"

Connie subsided.

"Pamela wants me to be at the door in the reception room tonight," Mildred explained to her mother. "The junior dance. They don't want anyone to crash it."

"But what can you do?" her mother questioned.

"I know by sight all those who are invited," Mildred said.

"In, but not of, our best society," Connie sniffed. "Well, it's too bad she couldn't have let you know before the last minute."

"Oh, Pamela never thinks of anything before the last minute," Mildred said good-naturedly. She didn't want Stephen thinking they were catty. But if he just knew Pamela!

"Are you talking about Pamela Judson?" he asked and Mildred felt as though he had read her mind. "Say, I know her. Sold her a car last fall. She saw a model in the show window that she liked. Walked right in and signed her check and then asked how much."

"Yes, she's just rolling in father's money," Connie remarked sarcastically.

"I'll say she's rolling in a lot of it when she takes that eight out," Stephen said. "A four-speed baby, too."

"Wha . . . at?" Mrs. Lawrence gasped.

"Er . . . I mean the car, Mrs. Lawrence. It takes some driving to handle four speeds."

Mildred got up to carry out their plates and bring in the dessert. Pamela wanted her early—there was always a lot Parmela wanted other people to do for her. Not that serving Parmela was any part of Mildred's duties, but she had begun that way to be obliging. Now she had a feeling that if she refused her place at the hotel would not be secure. So long as Pamela did not carry her demands too far Mildred was willing to accede to them.

But tonight she was slightly resentful. Stephen Armitage was good company.

Her resentment prevented her from hurrying, but after they'd finished their coffee she said they must go.

At the hotel, when she was saying good night to Stephen in the lobby, she saw his gaze go past he face and his smile suddenly broadened in delighted surprise.

Mildred turned. Coming toward them, with a wave of jeweled arms and flying silver feet was a honey-haired girl in a red tulle evening gown.

Rare Violins In Radio Concert

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20 (AP)—The man who sold to the New York admirers of Yehudi Menuhin a Stradivarius violin that was given to the youthful musical genius has lent two rare instruments, valued at $35,000, to Mme. Berthe Baret for radio concert work.

Emil Herrmann owns a Stradivarius, valued at $45,000, made in 1714, and a Joseph Guarnerius, made in 1707. Herrmann has four Strads in his collection, which was handed down to him by ancestors who made a hobby of gathering rare instruments. The Guarnerius was the prized possession of an ancient French family.

17,853 Hudsons Sold In 2 Weeks

During the first two weeks of March, the Hudson Motor Car company retailed 17,853 cars. This is the greatest retail sales volume in the company's history, for any similar period. The increase amounts to 5000 cars.

"This means that at a time when shipments usually exceed retail sales by considerable margin, Hudson-Essex retail sales by considerable margin, Hudson-Essex retail deliveries for the first half of March amount to 70 per cent of actual shipments.

"For the single week ending March 16, reported sales totalled 90 per cent of actual shipments, whereas retail sales for the same week of 1928 totalled 67 per cent of shipments.

"The company now has 914 new dealers," reports Courtney Johnson, general sales manager.

How's She Hitting?

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

Spring will start many a motorist on a long drive, the first beautiful day that comes along, only to leave him sore and bewildered at the finish.

The cause may be ascribed to the fact that most of us haven't gotten over the effects of winter driving. Even if the motor and all other parts of the car have been prepared for warm weather motoring, after a winter's session, it's only after we have taken the car out on a long trip that we can realize the change of season has come.

The first realization comes when, on a long, steady drive at a fairly fast pace, we begin to smell burning oil. On inspection under the hood we shall discover fumes coming from the motor. Oil that had been accumulating on the engine over winter has become heated to the point of evaporation, and the malodorous fumes have seeped into the body of the car.

Prevention of this is easy. The engine should be washed thoroughly with kerosene and all the accumulated oil cleaned off. That will assure the motorist at least against this discomforting odor of oil fumes.

If the first trip takes the motorist over long hills, he might be surprised by an overheated cooling system, although he had previously flushed out the radiator and filled the system with fresh water. But he has merely forgotten the effect of a long hard pull upon the motor. It has caused the engine to overheat to a point of boiling out the water.

In other words the cooling effect of the water couldn't compete with the heating effect of the motor. That's to be expected in the best of cars where long steady climbs are encountered.

After the first awakening, most likely, the motorist will watch the radiator thermometer, stop and refill with fresh water when it shows above the danger point. That is the simple remedy for this contingency.

After the journey, measurement of the amount of oil left in the crankcase might surprise us. For a long, fast drive heats up the oil faster than it can be cooled and so sends much of that out into the air.

As a result there is much less oil after 100 miles of country driving than there would be after the same length of city driving. In addition it thins out faster, especially if the carburetor hasn't been adjusted for a leaner mixture.

The remedy here is to add more oil, if the lubricant left is good enough for further work, or to replace the entire remaining oil with fresh material. The oil may be slightly heavier than that used for winter, so as to make up for the increased thinning effect of the hot engine.

The tires should be pumped at no higher pressure than that recommended by the manufacturer or another surprise might strike the driver in the midst of his trip. Especially so if he wants to travel at a fast pace. For the faster the car goes the more liable are the tires to burst. The heat generated by the fast motion of the tires on the road will expand the air within them to a dangerous point.

It is therefore better to have the tires slightly under the recommended pressure than above.

The battery may be overcharged by prolonged driving during the longer days, unless the headlights are burned to offset the constant charging of the generator. Even in city driving the generator should be adjusted to a lower charge than in winter. But if the car is driven at a steady run during the day, with little use at night, the lights should be turned on for a while to use up some of the juice in the battery.

An overcharged battery will cause the plates to buckle, after drying up the solution within and bring its life to a short end.

Europe Ready For Annual Trek Of American Motorists

(By NEA Service)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20—The number of American motorists who will tour Europe this summer in their cars is estimated to be between six and seven thousand.

To prepare these tourists for such a trip, the American Automobile Association and the export divisions of auto manufacturers have compiled instructions designed to acquaint them with the necessary steps in shipping their cars, with the touring laws of foreign countries and conditions of foreign travel.

In the first place, the foreign travel division of the A. A. A. advises tourists who contemplate a stay on the continent of less than five weeks to leave their cars at home and hire a car in Europe. Hiring an auto for this short period is cheaper and less bothersome.

An automobile can be shipped overseas for from $120 to $180. Before departure a re-entry permit can be secured from the A. A. A., eliminating payment of duty on return. The car is driven to the steamer dock where the gas and oil is drained, the battery disconnected and the car stowed away.

Landing on European soil, the car is unloaded, cleared through the custom house and filled with oil and gas. A. A. A. representatives at 19 foreign ports assist all members in getting started on their tours from the time they land until the time they embark on their return journey.

Detailed Preparation Needed

A personal itinerary, made out in advance of the trip, will help avoid delays. Selection of equipment for the car, as suggested by the A. A. A., should include a wire tow rope, an extra good jack and a medicine kit. The personal outfit should include clothing for warm, cold and rainy weather, as well as umbrellas, driving shoes and driving cap.

Not essential, but valuable, is a small cooking unit with which to cook meals on the road. Camp chairs and a collapsible table also are worth storage space in the car. Because of high repair prices in Europe, all necessary repairs and checking of the car should be done in this country before starting the trip.

On arriving in Europe, the tourist can secure from A. A. A. headquarters what is known as a "Carnet" customs pass, with which the holder can pass through most European countries without payment of duty on the car.

The roads in most sections of Europe, it is said, are in good condition. Highway systems are well marked and explicit directions are posted.

An American automobile in front of a sight that is exclusively European—the gorgeous cathedral at Milan.

Gasoline and oil are good, and cost a little more than in this country. Service stations are nearly as numerous as in America.

Get a Language Book

Although a speaking knowledge of foreign languages is not essential, it is of great value. Preparing a tourist for this, the A. A. A. gives out a little booklet known as a "Manual of Conversation," which is printed in English, French, Dutch, German, Italian and Spanish.

Just what an American tourist in foreign countries sees is varied. If he thoroughly covers the continent he experiences all kinds of climate and scenery.

Taking Norway as the northernmost country visited, he finds good roads through an extremely rugged country. The scenery is excellent, with rugged mountains rearing their way up to thousands of feet above irregular fjords, lakes and rivers. Curves and narrowness prevents high speed along this country's dirt roads, but the scenic wonders are of such quality that speed is sacrificed for this beauty.

Going on into Sweden, one finds much the same scenery although of less spectacular quality. This country is a much richer country than Norway and its highways lead through many thriving cities. Here one drives on the left side of the road, as in England.

Good Roads in Germany

In Germany the tourist finds steadily improved roads, many of them macadam covered with a tar compound. Speed in the open country is unlimited. Contrasted with the mountainous terrain of the two Scandinavian countries, the tourist sees level plains here, plowed fields and quiet little German hamlets. Large bustling cities, also, are frequent. War relics claim their share of interest near the Rhine.

In Austria one drives on the left side of the road also. The Austrian Tyrol district draws many tourists because of the excellent roads and scenery.

Passing out of Austria the tourist climbs the Swiss Alps, headquarters of famed summer resorts. Roads are well posted and are in much the same condition as those in Germany.

Then France with its Paris, its war ruins, Deauville, picturesque peasants and good roads. Here there are few traffic rules, with little or no speed limit. Cars pass one another on both the right and left sides, going through towns, their horns constantly blowing, between 30 and 60 miles an hour.

Tax collectors are met more often in this country than any other. Everything is inspected and everything is taxed.

Finish Work On Snyder Airport

SNYDER, April 21.—Work on the new Snyder airport hangar will be completed Monday when the final iron will be placed, the administration building and plane supply room are already done with very little work yet to complete the modern cabin inns at the field. D. P. Yoder, owner of the landing field and modern camp ground has been advised by aviation experts that Snyder is the first small city in the United States to complete a landing field that can provide every modern service to plane visitors and with no necessity of leaving the field for any accomodation.

As quickly as a government licensed pilot arrives, Mr. Yoder will establish a flying school and already much interest is being shown in this section for adding a first class school here. In addition to eight local applications, interest has been shown at Sweetwater and Colorado to come here to take instructions.

The United States military academy at West Point was founded in 1802.

Chrysler "65" Has Ease Of Operation

Gone are the days when motorists returned from a sprint outing, legcramped and arm-weary, eyes strained and blood-shot. Today, the car driver reaching the end of a journey, perhaps of many hours duration, steps from his car as fresh from fatigue as any traveler leaving a pullman

It has been primarily due to the engineering features designed and pioneered by Chrysler experts, that little or no physical effort is needed to drive and manipulate the controls of a modern automobile. Just the day before yesterday, the automobile driver, who desired to turn a corner at right angles, threw himself upon the huge steering wheel. With both hands he swung the front wheels in the direction he desired to go, as the steersman of an old sailing ship hauled upon the wheel during a gale.

Science Is Given As Aid To Safety

While safety bureaus and police departments throughout the nation are directing their efofrts to prevention of accidents, the engineering brains of the country, in automotive laboratories behind the scenes, are co-operating in a silent but equally effective campaign towards the same end.

"Leaving aside the human equation and the tendency of drivers to be careless, the margin of safety from a mechanical point of view depends almost entirely on the principles of quick acceleration and perfect braking power," according to officials of the Capitol Motor, local dealer for the De Soto Corporation, a division of Chrysler Motors.

"Spring and early summer again bring the perils of the congested suburban highway to drivers with cars that are not equipped with the best braking devices and engines that will not pick up quickly in an emergency. The perfect brake is the first essential of safety—flashing acceleration, where the engine immediately responds to the touch of foot on acceleration, of almost equal importance.

Rediscover Aztec Sacrificial Post

MEXICO CITY, April 20 (AP)—Stone foundations believed to mark the base of the great Aztec sacrificial pyramid have been discovered 15 feet below the surface of Plaza Mayor, in the heart of Mexico City.

This 150 foot pyramid, named the Teocali, was dedicated in 1486 by the Anahuacan emperor Ahuizotl, who slew 20,000 persons on the altar that capped it.

Until the discovery in Plaza Mayor the sole important relic was the huge sacrificial stone that came from the peak of the structure and now is preserved in the National museum here.

Cortez and his followers destroyed the pyramid after some of the cruelest fighting recorded in the history of the new world. During the temporary repulse of the Spaniards, they saw some of their own men dragged to the top of the Teocali and slain on the great stone. After final victory, the Spaniards destroyed the Teocali.

Recently while sinking monument bases in the Plaza, workmen uncovered the remains of stone walls similar to those described as having surrounded the base of the pyramid.

BRAZILIANS BORROW HEAVILY

RIO DE JANEIRO, (AP)—Brazilian states and cities borrowed $105,330,000 in the United States and $55,000,000 in England in 1928. None of these amounts was borrowed by the Brazilian federal government. A newspaper recently commented on the situation, saying: "All that we have is less ours than foreigners."

Original Pontiac Twenty-Five Year Old Car Found

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 20.—The story of the unknown relative who suddenly crops up at a family gathering had a counterpart here when a Pontiac car built years ago bobbed into the limelight at the home of W. J. Frazer, whose father had purchased it about 1904.

When A. R. Glancy, president and general manager of the Oakland Motor Car company, introduced the present line of Pontiac cars in 1926, they were believed to be the first automobiles so named, until the uncovering of the old-timer here.

A tricky and dilapidated one-seater, with a two-cylinder engine, a dash board, steel rimmed wheels and all the other accoutrements demanded by the gay blades of the early nineteen hundreds, the car bears a plate distinctly emblazoned with the name Pontiac and revealing the manufacturer as the Pontiac Motor Vehicle Company.

Subsequent investigation at Pontiac, Mich., home of the Oakland company, discloses that such a firm had been organized to build passenger cars but that it had no connection with the Pontiac Buggy company which in 1907 evolved into the Oakland Motor Car company.

From official documents and the memories of old residents at Pontiac, it has been learned that the Pontiac Motor Vehicle company had a transitory existence around 1904 or 1905 and then fell by the wayside, like many a similar venture at that early date, leaving Mr. Frazier's car an orphan until it came out of storage to claim name relationship with the present line of Pontiacs.

Interest Shown In Plymouth Displays

Featuring the full line of Plymouth Motor cars with important mechanical improvements, the National Display and Demonstration conducted by Plymouth dealers throughout the country is creating unusual interest. Advices from the Detroit offices of the Plymouth Motor Corporation indicate that large enthusiastic throngs are being attracted to these displays of Chrysler-built Plymouth motor cars.

Many of the mechanical improvements are to be found in the engine where a longer stroke and greater piston displacement, longer connecting rods, heavier crankshaft larger main bearings, and improved lubrication have been used to produce greatly improved acceleration and a remarkable degree of smoothness.

Speed Plans For Building System of Sea Airports

Eight 'Dromes Will be Put Across Atlantic; Expect to Prove Boon for Ocean Air Travel

BY WILLIAM E. BERCHTOLD
(Associated Press Aviation Writer)

WILMINGTON, Del., April 20 (AP)—Edward A. Armstrong, Wilmington engineer, is rounding out plans for construction of the first of seven "floating airports" between the United States and Europe, which, he says, will make trans-Atlantic airplane service a reality.

Operation of the first seadrome, 975 miles off the coast of New York, would make possible six-hour airplane service between New York and Bermuda. Construction is scheduled to start in July, with the units to be built ashore, carried to sea and anchored half way between New York and Bermuda.

Negotiations now are under way to sound the bottom of the ocean at 36 degrees 50 minutes north latitude, 68 degrees 40 minutes west longitude, to determine the extent of the two-mile deep plateau now shown on hydrographic charts, approximately half way between New York and Bermuda.

The seadrome, developed by Armstrong after 15 years' study on its problems, resembles an aircraft carrier in many of its principles. Anchored to the bottom of the sea, it will head into the wind continuously to make only one runway necessary. It is above the reach of the highway wave action and has its foundation below surface waves.

Spacious hangars, as well as restaurants, hotel accommodations, waiting rooms, cafes, bars and other conveniences for the traveler are included in plans for the first seadrome.

The landing field will be 1,200 feet long, with a central section 400 feet wide and the ends 200 feet wide. This has been considered sufficient for the largest planes. Cost of the first seadrome is estimated at $1,500,000.

Details of the procedure for replies are being taking on supplies are being developed by a Philadelphia oil company. Louis Blerlot, French aeronautical engineer, is developing a four-engined amphibian plane adaptable for seadrome use. Armstrong says several American manufacturers have indicated their interest in building planes for use on the route.

ON AUTO ROW

GMC SHOWING PLANNED

A large number of Lubbock automobile dealers began Saturday their annual spring showing of the new models of the year. In connection with the General Motors spring showing of the various makes in this line, Slaughter Buick company, Kuykendall Chevrolet, Davis Oldsmobile company and Bradley Motor company, local Pontiac and Oakland dealer, will hold open house during the week, April 20 to 27.

PARADE TO FEATURE

Those concerns will hold their doors open later than usual each night in order that none will be denied the chance to view the new spring designs. The new Oldsmobile Viking is expected to arrive here during the latter part of this week. If present plans are worked out, all General Motors agents in Lubbock will join in a parade through the down-town section with the Buick, Chevrolet, Oakland, Pontiac and Oldsmobile included.

SPRING SHOWING HELD

Joe Hilton company, local Chrysler and Plymouth distributors, began its spring showing yesterday with a complete line of Chrysler products on the floor. Ted Tipps, sales manager of the Hilton company here, announced yesterday that the house will stay open until nine o'clock each night this coming week. Salesmen will be on hand to demonstrate the new models. The Chrysler and Plymouth in their various sizes will be on display.

TO HAVE NEW HOME

The new home for the Joe Hilton company of Plainview will be completed about May 10, Mr. Hilton announced this morning. At the present time, the Chrysler agency there is housed in a temporary location. A formal opening is planned on the date the new building is completed.

DELIVERIES REPORTED

Three new car deliveries are reported by the local Chrysler-Plymouth dealers during the past week. C. W. Lackey of Lubbock is the owner of a new Plymouth coupe; Fred Stanton has purchased a Chrysler "65" sedan and E. C. Patton, haberdasher, is driving a new Chrysler "75" sedan.

RAGLAND IS BUSY

Ragland Motor company, local Nash and Mormon distributor, has delivered two Nash automobiles during the last week. A new Nash coupe goes to Dr. J. R. Anderson while a Nash sedan was sold to E. L. Klett, city attorney. In addition to the new car deliveries, Ragland salesmen report the sale of four used cars in the upper price range.

TRUCK IS SOLD

A new Dodge Brothers two-ton truck was delivered to H. H. Shell & Son, local contractors, by Royalty Motor company last week. A Dodge Six brougham has been purchased by Mrs. L. G. Wilson of Plainview. The automobile was bought here by her son.

MAKE FAST RUN

A. W. Moore, local Graham-Paige dealer, returned from Las Vegas Thursday after a two day visit in the New Mexico city. He was accompanied by Tony Chisholm, Amarillo Graham-Paige dealer. Driving a Graham-Paige eight, the two dealers covered the 268 miles from Las Vegas to Amarillo in 4 hours and 30 minutes, an average of more than 60 miles per hour over a winding, mountainous road. The 68 mile lap from Las Vegas to Santa Rosa was made in 66 minutes.

SALE IS MADE

Mr. Moore reports the sale of a Graham-Paige sedan to A. Holloway of this city. T. A. Allen of East Lubbock is driving a new Durant sedan, sold by the local Panhandle Durant company. Mr. Allen is a farmer residing on his place a few miles east of this city.

OWN BUILDING

9000 Women Have Title to Structure

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20 (AP)—Nine thousand women own a $2,000,000 enterprise here. It is the San Francisco Women's club 12-story building, an income property.

The club is declared to have the largest membership of any in the country. Life membership values have increased 500 per cent since its founding in 1922 when a number of units merged to found a central home for clubwomen.

Contributing and trustee memberships, originally $20 and $50, respectively, have likewise mounted in value. Life memberships, sold at $100 each at the inception of the club, now are worth $500.

Needs On Increase In Road-Building

Congress Should Increase Present Appropriations to $125,000,000, A. A. A. Statement Says.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—Road-building needs of the country have advanced to the stage where congress should increase the present annual Federal-Aid appropriation of $75,000,000 to a possible maximum of $125,000,000.

This statement was issued today by national headquarters of the American Automobile association, which originally sponsored the Federal-Aid program and has consistently repelled assaults on this policy of highway construction.

"Under the present policy of making these appropriations two years ahead," says the national motoring body, "the regular session of the 71st congress will turn its attention to the appropriation for 1932 and 1933. It is imperative that the present program should be enlarged."

The A. A. A. points out that when the present Federal-Aid Highway Act was enacted in 1916, there were only 3,500,000 motor vehicles registered, while today the number has increased to 24,731,600.

In support of its proposal that the federal government increase the extent of its participation in road-building, the A. A. A. cites the following facts:

General Motors To Give Exhibitions

A nationwide exhibition of all General Motors passenger cars, to take place during the week beginning April 20th and ending April 27th, was an innovation announced today by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president, General Motors. The exhibition is to be known as the General Motors Spring Showing, and from the plans already outlined promises to be the largest and most comprehensive showing in the history of the automotive industry.

Twenty-three thousand General Motors dealers are to participate in the event, each acting as an individual exhibitor of the line of cars he merchandises in his particular location. Alloting a minimum of five display cars for each dealer, this will mean that during the week more than 125,000 General Motors cars will be on view simultaneously. The event will be suitably announced by nationwide magazine, newspaper and outdoor advertising. The Corporation's motor car divisions—Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile, Oakland and Chevrolet are co-operating to make this Spring Showing a memorable event.

Oldsmobile Makes Big Expansion

In line with the continuous expansion program which has been in force for the past two years and the addition of the Viking, a companion car to the Oldsmobile Six, the erection of a new administration building is announced by Oldsmobile-Viking officials. It will be located on a city block just purchased, making the third city block of land added to the Oldsmobile-Viking property in Lansing, Mich., within the past six months.

The administration building will have a frontage of 316 feet and an average depth of 85 feet. It will be four stories in height and will contain 94,168 square feet of floor space. The construction will be of limestone and face brick with stone colonades on each side of the center entrance.

Motor Fatalities Continue To Rise Year After Year

If Proportions Keep On In Ratio To Number of Cars 30,000 Will Die During 1929, Figures Show.

By NEA Service

HARTFORD, Conn., April 20.—If motor fatalities go up this year in proportion to last year's increase, 1929 will see the death of 30,000 persons by automobile, according to an estimate of the Travelers Insurance company.

Figures gathered from all states except three place automobile fatalities last year at 27,500. Compared with 1927, this number is a 7 per cent increase. Should this year's fatalities increase in like proportion, the number will reach or pass the estimated 30,000.

One For Each 900

The survey taken in 45 states and the District of Columbia, showed that with about 25,000,000 automobiles registered, one person was killed for nearly every 900 cars. Motor vehicle accidents took a toll of 75 a day, or about 530 a week.

Out of the states surveyed, only eight—Arizona, Arkansas, Idaho, Iowa, Nevada, New Hampshire, South Carolina and Virginia—showed a reduction in the fatality rate. Eighteen of the states returned an increase in excess of 7 per cent, nine and the District of Columbia reported less than 7 per cent, eight reported an increase of more than 25 per cent, and two less than 1 per cent.

Montana's fatalities last year totaled 85 per cent over 1927, when there were 75 deaths. Texas and South Dakota, the former with 921 deaths last year and the latter with 220, exceeded their 1927 fatality toll by more than 50 per cent.

Michigan and New York, two of the states having large automobile population, boasted the best records, each reporting an increase of less than 1 per cent.

Dividends Of $1.50 Declared By Nash

KENOSHA, Wis., April 20.—At a meeting of the directors of the Nash Motors company held April 10, 1929, the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share was declared payable May 1, 1929 to stockholders of record at the close of business April 20, 1929.

The company reported that for the first quarter, covering the months of December, January and February, after all expenses of manufacturing, including depreciation, selling and administration and providing for taxes, state and federal, the net income amounted to $4,118,-070.49 as compared with $2,604,378.12 for the same quarter a year ago, an increase of 58.1 per cent.

FRATERNITIES HIT

Arkansas Law Forbids Societies

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 20 (AP)—A law just signed by Governor Parnell forbidding fraternities, sororities or other secret societies in high schools or schools of lower rank, has caused a stir throughout the state.

The act provides for suspension or expulsion of any pupil in a school below the rank of junior college who is, or is pledged to become a member of a secret society or fraternity.

An exception was made for local chapters of national organizations. Some of the leaders of the societies say affiliation with a national organization will make them legal.

Auto Caravan Again Takes Explorer To Gobi Desert

By NEA Service

NEW YORK, April 20.—When the 1929 Central Asiatic Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, headed by Roy Chapman Andrews, sets out this spring into the Gobi desert in the wilds of central Asia, its chief means of exploration will be the automobile.

This expedition has ventured year after year into this little explored section of the world in an effort to bring back to civilization secrets of a forgotten past. In early years expeditions were transported by camels. Sometimes as many as 1700 camels formed the caravan.

But in 1922 Andrews took a fleet of five automobiles. They proved so satisfactory that the following years have seen this number increase to eight. All are products of the Dodge Brothers factory in Detroit.

"Our motor caravan of eight Dodge cars, making 100 miles a day," said Andrews before he left here, "has permitted us to do virtually 10 years of camel exploration in one season and has enabled us to blaze a new trail into the great sand wastes, across a land where petrified bones are found of mantastic monsters that walked the earth 25,-000,000 years ago.

Pass Severe Tests

"Some of the grueling tests our cars were called upon to meet were standing under a broiling sun with temperatures at 140 degrees, withstanding changes in temperatures of 70 degrees in five hours and standing up with temperature at 45 degrees below zero as wind breakers before our tents, while blizzards heaped snow two feet deep along the desert they would cross the next day.

"Rivers 30 feet wide and four feet deep were crossed where there were no fords, the cars bing rushed at full speed, showers of spray shooting out from the sides of the hood as we forced our way up the opposite bank.

"Other obstacles included a 5000-mile trip over the sand with treacherous stretches of quicksand, desert storms which at times literally buried our caravan as we lay in our tents waiting for them to pass, grades where the cars seemed to stand on end, and acres of rocky terrain.

This is how Roy Chapman Andrews (shown in inset) ventures again into the Gobi desert in search of remnants of the past. His auto caravan is outside the Chinese wall.

Chevrolet Pays 46 Million In Freight

Striking evidence of the heavy demands made annually on the railroads by automobile manufacturers came to light yesterday with the announcement of C. R. Scarff, general director of Chevrolet Motor company, that the company's freight bill for 1928, representing inbound and outbound shipments for 16 domestic plants, totalled more than $46,000,000. This was an increase of more than $11,000,000 over the 1927 bill.

In making the announcement, Mr. Scharff revealed that the 1928 bill covered the movement of 272,368 carloads of freight, totalling 7,968,-047,324 pounds. Exclusive of this poundage Mr. Scharff declared there was an additional 221,403,427 pounds of less than carload freight, 4,767,783 pounds chipped by express and 331,040 driveways.

Dutch Fruit Dealers Ship Via Air

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP)—Dealers in fruit, garden produce and flowers in Holland have solved the problem of transporting their perishable stocks by the use of airplanes. The department of commerce learns that two new freight planes will be put into operation soon between Amsterdam and London.

Airplanes have made it possible for London residents to enjoy at dinner strawberries picked that morning in Holland.

Drive this Car

PUT IT TO THESE ELEVEN TESTS

The only true test of performance is personal experience. Take a trial drive in an Oldsmobile and find out for yourself, not only what it does, but how it does it. Match it against other cars and make comparisons. Give it these eleven tests . . . or any others . . . and check results by any standard of performance you care to set.

1. TEST EASE OF CONTROL
When you relax in the driver's seat, notice its comfort—the convenient arrangement of controls and dash instruments. Try the new Fisher adjustable front seat. Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel adds to your comfort. Step on the starter and note its prompt engagement. Test the easy action of the clutch—the silent, easily-meshed gear-shift.

2. TEST GETAWAY
Observe how easily and smoothly Oldsmobile gets away from the curb—how easy it is to steer. Pull up to a stoplight. Then flash ahead when the signal says "Go." Measure Oldsmobile's swift, stageless pick-up in all gears.

3. TEST HANDLING EASE
Drive through thickest traffic. Learn how Oldsmobile's instant response to accelerator, brakes, and steering wheel simplifies city driving. At any speed, in traffic or on the road, Oldsmobile is easy to handle and restful to drive.

4. TEST SMOOTHNESS
Drive Oldsmobile out on the open road. Cover the face of the speedometer with glove or handkerchief . . . take your accustomed touring pace . . . then note the speedometer reading . . . you will be astonished to find how fast you are traveling.

5. TEST RIDING COMFORT
Oldsmobile seats are wide and deep-cushioned. Interiors are roomy and restful. Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers function in harmony with Oldsmobile's special alloy-steel springs to smooth out all road irregularities. Drive this finer Oldsmobile over choppy pavements, over ruts and bumps. Whether you take them at high speeds or slow, you'll find that all roads ride comfortably in an Oldsmobile.

6. TEST ACCELERATION IN HIGH GEAR
When you pass other cars on the road, mark Oldsmobile's quick response to the throttle in all speed ranges—the smooth, effortless surge of power that enables you to sweep into the lead easily and surely.

7. TEST SPEED
Seek a straight, level stretch of highway and give Oldsmobile its head. You'll thrill to speeds far higher than the average motorist ever uses. Yet you'll feel secure, perfectly relaxed—for Oldsmobile speed is as restful as it is exhilarating.

8. TEST HILL-CLIMBING ABILITY
Send Oldsmobile up the longest, steepest hill you know. Start at the bottom at various speeds. You'll find the tremendous power reserve in Oldsmobile's big 82-horsepower engine gives it wonderful hill-climbing ability. If it's power you want, you can't match this Oldsmobile at its new lower price.

9. TEST ROADABILITY
One of the greatest joys in driving this finer Oldsmobile results from its splendid roadability. A low center of gravity, balanced weight, and four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers all are contributing factors in Oldsmobile's ability to hug the road at any speed.

10. TEST THE BRAKES
Check Oldsmobile's braking system for ability. Oldsmobile's four-wheel safety brakes not only are unusually efficient, but are smooth, quiet, and easy to operate as well.

11. TEST PARKING EASE
Deliberately select a small space at the curb and park this Oldsmobile. Fingertip steering and a short turning radius make it easy to slip into small parking places. The easy clutch, brake, and gear-shift action allows you to take full advantage of every inch of space.

These eleven tests will give you a comprehensive idea of all phases of Oldsmobile performance. They also afford an excellent basis of comparison with other cars. Thousands of motorists who have given Oldsmobile these and other tests have made it the car of their choice. Come, drive this car and judge it, at its new lower price, by your own standards of performance and value.

Plenty of room in the NEW SUPERIOR Whippet

As important advantage of the new Superior Whippet Four and Six is "Finger-Tip Control"—one button in center of steering wheel which operates starter, lights and horn.

THE larger bodies of the new Superior Whippet Four and Six afford more spacious interiors, with extra head room, leg room and elbow room.

The beautiful and ultra-modern design of the new Superior Whippet makes it the style authority in both the Four and light Six classes. Many tasteful refinements include longer lines, higher radiator and hood, chromium-plate and sweeping one-piece full-crown fenders.

The faster speed and pick-up of the new Superior Whippet result from a higher compression engine, giving more than 20% added horsepower. Low consumption of gasoline and oil, and dependable performance, insure exceptional operating economy and minimum service costs.

Lubbock Is Growing

New business is ever homing to Lubbock. Almost every day the ground is broken for a new building. Only last Thursday a new stop and go sign was necessary at 13th and Texas Ave. Thousands of dollars are being spent to stimulate Lubbock business. The Citizens Naionatl Bank is sharing in that growth, and is doing so through having performed recognized banking service over a period of years.

An Acknowledgment and an Announcement

Approximately eight months ago our now famous "Phillips 66" gasoline was introduced to the motorists of Lubbck and vicinity. It was a product built to conform to a Phillips ideal,—not just built to a price. We were convinced that "Phillips 66" was a superior product and the public's reception of it has confirmed our belief.

We acknowledge our appreciation of the patronage accorded our products. As an evidence of our appreciaton and to enable us to better serve the ever increasing demand for "Phillips 66" and Phillips Oils we announce the opening of another new and modern service station at 17th and Avenue H on Saturday, April 20.

We thank the public whose patronage makes this expansion possible and pledge ourselves to maintain the high quality of our products and our service.

The Oil Business

To observe the growth of the Oil Business durng the last twenty years is to recognize the change to a machine civilization. This one industry has been a determing factory in the expansion of business in America, and Lubbock is keeping pace with the times when it comes to retail distribution of oils.
