

Patman discusses issues in meeting:

By TED NORMAN
Managing editor

After speaking for an hour on several national and international issues at a Town Hall Meeting in Rockport Tuesday, Aug. 8, Congressman Bill Patman spent another one and a half hours fielding questions from the standing-room-only crowd attending the meeting.

Patman touched lightly on some problems in Central America saying the people of El Salvador have evidenced a very strong desire for freedom, their interest in voting, their fearlessness in the face of many adversities in trying to preserve the kind of formal government they would like. "I'd like to see us foster that just so long as we don't involve American troops in fighting a war that someone else should really be fighting," said Patman.

Those people have got to do the job said Patman: "We cannot send troops over there the way we did in Vietnam."

Patman said he knows there is a disagreement in these governments and the fact that we support them. "But we cannot be in a position of examining the true blue quality of every government that we find ourselves allied with not only in South America but many other places around the world."

Patman said we need to build into these governments the kind of justice that we have in ours.

The congressman reminded his audience that it is closer to El Salvador from Rockport than it is to Washington from Rockport. "And we not only have El Salvador in jeopardy, but we have Mexico which is right at our door

Defense, economy, environment, illegals steps," he said. Making certain that Mexico stays a viable country with economic and social justice is the key to security in this hemisphere.

"It's not going to be our prerogative or our opportunity to insist that those countries adopt the type of human rights programs that we have or programs of the nature that we like to encourage in this country," said Patman.

Patman said Mexico has jeopardized their prospects for recovery by the severe devaluation of the peso, by the interference of private property rights. "I don't know how we are going to get private capital to go back into Mexico and provide the investments that are necessary to help bring that country around economically," said Patman. "We can't be the policeman of the world and we can't be the banker of the world either. That was one of the reasons I opposed the International Monetary Fund increase of $8.4 billion," said Patman.

Patman said that the IMF was only one of the issues he wanted to explain his vote on and said he was here holding a Town Hall Meeting during the August recess to explain several such issues.

Patman said many large banking institutions are now up in Washington trying to get the backing for the $8.4 billion increase.

But, he said, we need that money to rebuild the infrastructure on this nation and we need that credit for our farmers and ranchers and

Building offered to city

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

After discussion and withdrawal of a motion to table the matter, Rockport's city council agreed to let City Manager Herman Johnson pursue further an offer of the old Monroe Carpet Building for use as an interim City Hall.

The offer came from James P. (Pat) Brown, president of Lias Investment Inc., owner of the building, who in a proposal to the city said he would remodel the exterior of the building at his expense then lease the property to the city until such time as the city can afford to build its own City Hall.

Following discussion of the proposal by the council and Brown during the council's meeting Tuesday night, a motion to table the matter for further study and subsequent withdrawal of that motion, Johnson suggested that he meet with Brown and Brown's architect on the project "and get all the information possible" on the matter by the time of the council's Aug. 23 meeting.

The council members informally agreed to this. No formal action was taken on the proposal.

In a presentation to the council, which included an architect's rendering of the exterior of the building located at 501 E. Liberty, Brown said the outside of the building would be renovated, the parking area would be paved to Liberty Street, repairs would be made to the building and he would "deliver

New zoning ordinance goes to council

High rise suggested for downtown area

A suggestion by Harold Picton that the downtown Rockport area be considered for "some type of high rise construction" was deferred, with the city's planning and zoning commission voting to submit the new zoning ordinance to the city council with existing height restrictions intact.

Following a two-hour public hearing on the proposed new zoning ordinance Wednesday night, the P&Z board voted unanimously to submit the ordinance to Rockport's city council with a recommendation for its adoption.

Another, joint public hearing between the planning/zoning board and the city council is anticipated, then the ordinance must be read twice before it can be adopted.

Picton appeared before the board saying he had "no specific requests to make," but said he has talked to some people who have expressed an interest in the downtown area of Rockport in terms of high rise construction.

Picton pointed out the present limitations written into both the new and existing zoning ordinances restrict the height of buildings to 35 feet in residential zones and 45 feet in business-zoned areas.

Picton said these height restrictions would discourage people interested in high rise construction in the downtown area. This area, he continued, "right now is pretty down. There's not a lot down there right now. It seems to me if the city could create some kind of industrial district, limit high rise construction to that area, there would be no conflict. It would be better than what's down there now."

Picton was referring to the area presently in Rockport's "fire zone."

"The possibility is there," Picton said. "This is one of the hottest spots on the coast (for developers interested in high rise construction)." He emphasized that, in his belief, the city would be able to enforce provisions that limit high rise construction only to one specific area.

In answer to a question from P&Z member Edwina Stranahan, Picton said high rise developers can be required to incorporate internal firefighting capabilities into the construction. Referring to high rise construction such as is going up in Port Aransas — with seven to 11 stories — Picton said, "I think the high rise type of structure is safe from the standpoint of hurricanes. It's certainly safer than what you see right now (in the Rockport fire zone)."

"The truth is," said P&Z member Barbara Armstrong speaking for Rockport residents who are not native to this area, "most of us came here (to Rockport) because we came from places because of high rises, because we didn't want high rises."

"I can understand that," said Picton. "I wouldn't want one in my neighborhood. But if you could take a limited area, put in a high rise, expand that into a main street with shops." Later in the discussion, he asked, "How are we going to take care of the people who are coming here? Would you rather have a seven to 11-story high rise in a beautified area or take this same number of people and spread them out like I've seen (in developments) along Fulton Beach like —

Booster Club to meet

The Rockport-Fulton Booster Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 16, in Room 4 of the high school. All parents and interested persons are invited to participate in boosting all school activities from junior high through high school.

ABC registration

ABC Learning Center will hold preschool registration from 8:30 a.m. until noon Monday through Friday, Aug. 22-26, at the school.

MDA needs help

The annual Jerry Lewis Telethon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association will not be carried by an area television station this year. The MDA is seeking help from clubs, organizations and businesses in finding alternatives for raising funds. Anyone who would like to help is asked to call the MDA at 857-0983.

Little League Rummage Sale

A benefit rummage sale for the Aransas County Little League will be held 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 13, on the Little League field at Memorial Park. Anyone wishing to donate items for the sale may call 729-5535 (after 5) or 729-8852.

Football tickets

Patrons who purchased season reserved football seat tickets last year are asked to claim these seats by Friday, Aug. 26 if they want the same seats for the 1983 season. Tickets may be claimed by paying $15 per ticket (for five home games) in the superintendent's office by Aug. 26. General admission tickets for this season will be $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students.

Nautical auction set

The Rockport Sailing Club will hold a "nautical auction" at 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 27, at the club's building on Water Street next to the RYSCO shipyard. Donations and items on consignment will be accepted for the auction until auction day. Anyone wanting to make a donation or wanting more information is asked to call 729-1244 or 729-3697.

Fulton considers repairs on town hall

FULTON — Alderman Elgin Dietz suggested, during the Tuesday evening, Aug. 9., meeting of the town council, using some of the funds allocated in the 1982-83 budget but not yet spent to make repairs on the town hall.

Of the $15,000 allocated in last year's budget for repair and maintenance of public buildings, only $4,348.71 has so far been spent. Dietz suggested that the council use some of this money to repair the floor in the town hall's restroom, which is currently threatening to give way.

Other suggestions included rewiring the lights in the building, since the wiring presently in use is as old as the building and has been declared hazardous by an area electrician. Apparently, insects have eaten away the protective covering around the wires, exposing them. The lights in the town hall dim whenever the air conditioning is turned on and the circuit breakers keep flipping over.

Secretary Lucille Hinson will obtain estimates for some of the work.

Several Fulton residents came before the council to request relief for drainage ditches that are not draining properly. Woodrow Kuhn, a resident of San Antonio Street, told council members that "the water situation is pretty bad out there," Kuhn said that drainage ditches on the street are not open all the way, causing water to back up on the lots of property owners instead of draining down toward the bay.

One woman said that she got the county commissioner to open the ditch up when she moved here and it drained properly for five years afterward. She said it has been stopped up for several years now.

Alderman Leslie Cole Sr. left the town hall to get Commissioner Mike Womack, who said he would take care of the matter first thing in the morning.

W.E. Petrofsky, also a Fulton resident, requested that the council do something about residents who have large bushes obstructing the view of the road at several intersections in town. He also asked the council to ask property owners who do not maintain their lots to do so or have the town do it for them and then send them the bill if they refuse to do so.

The council told him that there is an ordinance in effect requiring property owners to keep their lots clear. Cole said that high weeds are a fire hazard and that the fire marshals will send a letter to the property owner asking he or she to maintain the lot. Cole said he will ask the fire marshal to appear at the next meeting of the council to clarify the situation.

Petrofsky also asked council members when Fulton would provide police protection for its residents. "We're expanding. We're going to have to get a police force out here even if it's one man," he said, adding that he wouldn't mind higher taxes if it meant adding a police force.

Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline replied that the Aransas County Sheriff's Department provides protection to Fulton residents and that patrols are much more frequent now than they were several years ago.

Several other audience members said that they would not mind higher taxes if the town could build a sewer system. Dietz replied that the council was working on a grant application for that very purpose and "like everything else, it just takes time."

Cole presented specifications for a parade float for the town, drawn up by a representative of a Corpus Christi firm which builds floats. Cole reported that the firm will charge $100 for drawing up the specs but will include the price in their fee if they are awarded the

We've had studies, now we need action

One of the most jolting of several reports dealing with problems besetting our public education system warns pointedly it may be "nearing collapse."

"A Study of Schooling" by John I. Goodlad, former dean of the Graduate School of Education at the University of California at Los Angeles, took more than eight years and included 27,000 interviews.

There has been a rising tide of public concern about the future of public schools during the past 20 years or so accompanied by demands for reform.

Because it is so vast and complex, reform comes slowly. Much of the clamor for remedies concerned what some critics termed outright abandonment of tried and proven basic principles including relaxation of stress on fundamental subjects, including reading, writing and arithmetic.

Evidence rule change needed

President Reagan's proposal to relax the widely criticized "exclusionary rule," which prohibits using illegally seized evidence, especially in criminal trials, has cleared its first hurdle.

On a 10-6 vote, the Senate Judiciary Committee endorsed the president's proposal to relax the rule often blamed for freeing guilty persons on technicalities.

Proposed changes in the rule would bring about a long-sought "reasonable, good-faith" exception that would forgive police who make honest mistakes in conducting a search or arrest and not penalize them by throwing out any evidence they uncover.

The exclusionary rule, sometimes called the "trained evidence rule," was instituted by courts years ago to help induce police to respect constitutional privacy rights.

But critics, with the Reagan administration and law enforcement officials in the lead, contend it now does more to help criminals. They also insist when people have made a reasonable, good-faith attempt to follow the law in making an arrest or conducting a search, they should not be punished by having their evidence thrown out of court, making it more difficult to obtain a conviction.

The administration presented a similar proposal last year, but no action was taken on it.

The judiciary committee also voted to reinstate the death penalty for certain violent federal crimes, but unlike the exclusionary rule issue reinstatement of capital punishment is an idea that has been endorsed by the judicial panel for the past three congressional sessions, yet never debated on the Senate floor.

There has been no death penalty, except for aircraft hijacking in which there are deaths, since the Supreme Court in 1972 struck down capital punishment laws.

In 1976, the high court ruled that certain death penalty laws may be constitutional if they provide procedural protections for criminals. But Congress since then has failed to update laws by writing in modern capital punishment procedures. However, 37 states have adopted death penalty laws for murder.

In a crime reform package, the committee also endorsed measures that would authorize naming a high-level administration official to oversee drug-fighting efforts on a nationwide basis.

We agree with the committee's recommendations and hope Congress will be responsive to the need to strengthen the nation's crime-fighting machinery.

Perplexing problem

No accurate formula for calculating the economic loss caused by illegal drug use on the job is available but at least one source familiar with the problem places the cost to employers in the billions annually.

On-the-job drug use has become as common as the coffee break, and has replaced it in many establishments, says American Management Association of New York. It admits, however, figures that would indicate dimensions of the problem are scant.

Drug abuse is rapidly replacing alcoholism as a major concern in the workplace. A survey by American Management Association revealed that at least one in 10 workers, both blue and white collar, use illegal drugs on the job.

Although use varies considerably with the type of job and the employee's age, it was found younger employees are most frequent users.

While some employers have taken steps to control drug use, they have found it almost impossible to stop the practice. They pointed out it might take personnel searches, which could cause more problems than it solved, to stamp it out.

National Institute of Drug Abuse officials say one difficulty in coping with drug use is that research is almost non-existent.

Organizations that conduct alcoholism research might be persuaded to include drug abuse. Most employers would welcome information that could help them solve a costly and dangerous problem.

Claims the system no longer teaches fundamentals has been disputed by educators. They argue teaching methods have changed drastically over the years, and in some cases teaching of fundamentals has been combined with new instructional methods making the system more effective.

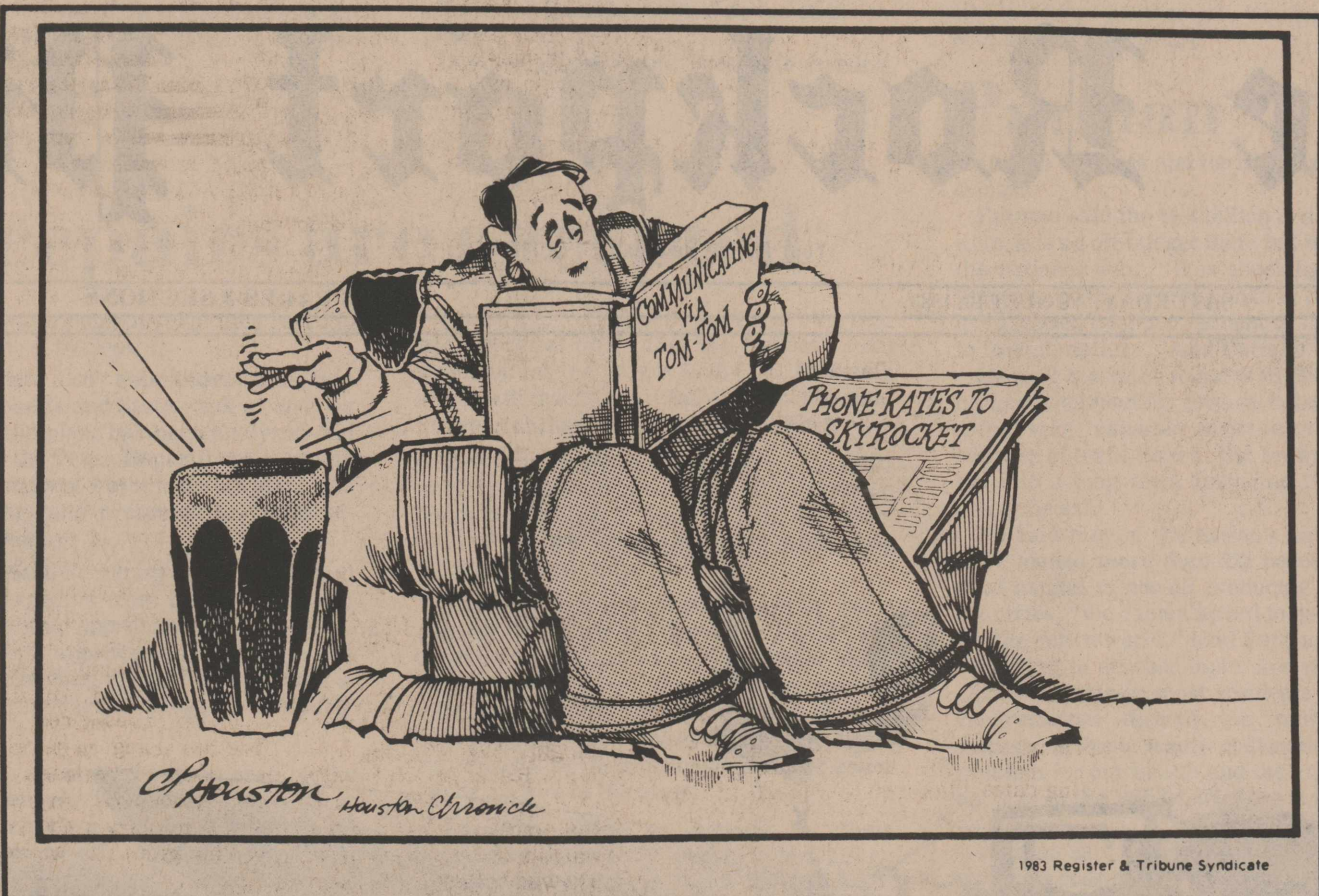

Nonetheless, only the uninformed would dispute claims there are very serious problems when some teachers do not make acceptable grades on basic education tests.

For that and other compelling reasons, it is urgent that major deficiencies in the system be corrected. That will take time because the problems have developed over a long period.

We agree with many of the findings, most of which reached similar conclusions, but we doubt conditions are critical enough to merit warnings that the system may be nearing collapse, although there is cause for alarm.

Now that we have the benefit of several important studies and reports, it is time to stop studying and initiate action. This must come mostly from the academic community, which, more than all of us, is aware of problems and capable of devising solutions.

The nationwide Goodlad study proposes many reforms, including smaller schools and an end to separate classes for low and high achievers.

In the name of peace, naturally!

Believe it or not, there is within me a greater measure of idealism than I may sometimes care to admit. For example, I don't like and am horrified by the realization that there are people in this country who purely and simply don't have anything — or enough to eat. Of the truth of this I have been convinced. Hence I am disappointed in the appointment by President Reagan of a committee which will spend some 90 days exploring whether there are people who really are hungry or not. Good heavens, a hungry person can starve in less than 90 days. Yet there remains another side to the coin — the graft and racketeering that has taken place in the various welfare programs. People of this ilk are twice guilty. They commit a crime against the government but, worse by far, they cause the deserving to suffer.

The president is in broad principle right in suggesting that people in the thousands of communities across the land should take care of their own, but it is important to realize there are places where this is impossible. The circumstance almost exactly parallels that of school districts along our southern border which ask for federal aid because they are compelled by law to educate aliens, aliens who are invariably poor. But the parallel, of course, comes to a screeching halt. Compelling American citizens to pay for the education of aliens is gross injustice. Gross injustice as well that there are Americans without enough to eat. But that is an American problem to be met and dealt with by the people of this nation.

News of a couple of thousand New York state women protesting nuclear weapons at a military base hit just at the wrong time. I was well on my way into "Corregidor, the End of the Line," by the British historian Eric Morris. Because it happened more than four decades ago, I feel it necessary to perhaps remind at least some readers that Corregidor is in Manila Bay and a U.S. island fortress attacked by the Japanese at the same time Pearl Harbor was devastated. It has taken me a couple of days to cool off enough to write.

Corregidor, the Bataan Peninsula, and for that matter all of the Philippines, were defended by our Army and Navy. Defended? Corregidor was boasted to be an impregnable fortress. Instead, there, as elsewhere, it was undermined by mostly young and inexperienced soldiers, often with the most rudimentary training. More, on the island there were big guns of 1890 vintage. For weapons, troops were forced to use World War I rifles, machine guns, grenades. For nearly six months, thousands of Americans died in the Philippines, as much from starvation and sickness as from enemy bullets.

In the end they were obliged to surrender and those who survived the infamous Bataan Death March died later in the torturous and ghastly Japanese prison camps — or survived.

Were I to be given the power and authority, I should muster all of those protesting New York women in an auditorium and one by one I should compel them to read aloud to each other from beginning to end Morris' "Corregidor." There are, needless to write, other books that tell equally as well the story of a nation that did not believe in being prepared.

Prior to World War I ours was a growing, prosperous confident nation convinced of its own destiny. Willingly, determinedly we adhered to Washington's to "ever avoid entangling foreign alliances." Sound advice in the 18th century, but the world changed. The politicians who sought the impossible, to keep us out of World War I, can in some large measure be forgiven, wrong as they were. Not so their successors two decades later, not to mention those of today. And, of course, not the tens of thousands of citizens who even now believe that we can create and live in a sort of fortress U.S.A. Here I have expressed myself in the very mildest of terms. But the bile rises. I think of that imaginary gathering of protesting women. I should like to see the expressions on their faces as the last one reads the final paragraph of "Bataan."

"A year or two after the war, the POW's were given a dollar for every day they had been a prisoner. The money came from Japanese reparations. Chaplain Zimmerman got $1,274." A buck a day for living in a hell that makes Dante's "Inferno" seem like Disneyland!

The bile sticks in my throat. And it stings. I think of the Hollywood actress who during the Vietnam War went to Hanoi to lend comfort to the enemy, the while American youngsters were dying in nearby jungles. By many she is adored today. She has a book that has been on the best seller lists for months. What is happening in this country, to its people, what of the future? The blood of hundreds of thousands of Americans is on the hands of the pacifists, those who refused to believe that the best way to prevent war is to be prepared. Someday, tomorrow, or on another tomorrow, faced by an enemy that demands that we capitulate, how many will be willing to do so? In the name of peace, naturally!

Nothing in their contract says they have to know what they are talking about

Editor's note: The Live Oak Philosopher on his grassburr farm tries to correct a TV commentator this week.

Dear Editor:

I was listening to a group of high-salaried TV commentators talking about politics the other day. Most of them are as positive about what's going to happen in next year's presidential race as forecasters are about tomorrow's weather. Being wrong has never slowed down either group.

One commentator said the government's deal to sell a lot of grain to Russia was just a move to get the farm vote.

Another one broke in to say that's not so. "Only 3 percent of the population are farmers," he said. "And they're so insignificant they're not worth worrying about."

That's like saying that of all the thousands of manufacturing plants in this country, only four, or less than one one-thousandth of 1 percent, are making cars, so the automobile industry isn't worth worrying about.

I could cite the fact that agriculture is the country's largest user of petroleum products, that it's a multibillion-dollar business affecting millions of jobs in other enterprises, and without it supermarkets and cafes couldn't stay in business. But it wouldn't do any good. TV commentators are paid to have opinions. Nothing in their contracts says they have to know what they're talking about.

Let's change the subject. This is provincial and probably shows an insensitiveness to the customs of other countries, but have you ever got the feeling that when PLO leader Arafat shows up on television wearing his wrap-around head-dress with long folds of cloth flowing down over his shoulders, he looks like he's getting ready to rob a beehive?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

On this day:

The sewing machine was patented by Isaac M. Singer on Aug. 12, 1851.

Nat Turner Insurrection, Aug. 13, 1831.

Edna Ferber was born Aug. 15, 1887.

Said the report: "American schools are in trouble. In fact, the problems of schooling are of such crippling proportions that many schools may not survive. It is possible our entire education system is nearing collapse."

Recommended remedies highlighting the Goodlad study, as well as other reports, are bound to add fuel to political debate on the quality of education.

Goodlad was also one of the experts consulted by the National Commission on Excellence in Education, a presidential panel whose recent report concluded the nation's schools are suffering from a "rising tide of mediocrity."

Just as there was little doubt about the energy crisis, there should be none about the crisis in education. The best we can hope for is we will have as much success in solving the education problem as we've had in easing the energy crisis.

Made in America?

By TED NORMAN
Managing editor

A recently received news release from a large internationally known electronics company, located in Southern California, would lead most readers of the release to believe that the Newport Beach Company has found the solution to the important import/export problem of computer parts.

The release, accompanied by a cover letter and a large glossy picture (we will discuss the picture later), says that the California electronics firm has discovered something of interest concerning the export of small computer parts.

Most editors who received the release, or feature as the electronics firm prefers to call it, will find it most amusing, especially after they view the glossy photograph.

The release begins by reminding us that Americans have exported everything from our national sport of baseball to our national food, the hamburger.

Then they remind us with the feature, and glossy photograph, that we are also selling other things to the Japanese such as electronic components.

Now that should be a revelation of the tenth power as far as most Americans are concerned. We, America, sells computer components to the Japanese. Aren't they so superior to us in this field?

According to the release, or feature, eight out of nine major Japanese manufacturers of remote copying or facsimile machines buy their electronic modem components from the same company. You guessed it, the Southern California company is the one they buy from.

Most Americans, like most editors, would quickly agree that it is a good thing that America is exporting all of these modems, or modems or whatever more than one modem is, and they would be proud of the Southern California company.

For many years we in America have been lead to believe that Americans could not compete in the electronics field and many have thought we should just surrender ourselves to the fact the Japanese were the leaders in electronics. But according to our Southern California company that may not be so if, as the release says, eight out of nine major Japanese manufacturers of remote machines buy their modem from an American company.

But the rub comes when you look at the photograph accompanying the release and read the outline.

The outline leads off, in all capital letters, with MADE IN AMERICA —. It continues with an explanation that an engineer, featured in the picture, is conducting tests on the company's newest modem.

The outline continues by saying that Japanese manufacturers purchase more high-speed facsimile modem components from this company than from any other company in the world.

If you were then to look at the photograph the company sent with the release you would instantly notice that the company's engineer is a Japanese gentleman.

Letters

Today, Saturday Aug. 13, is special. It is election day — a freedom our forefathers bestowed on us so that we could help shape our future. It is our future that I am concerned about.

I worked along with Charles Augustine for two years on the Rockport Beach improvements. He helped secure the needed funds and grants to make Rockport a better place for all of us.

Because of his past experience working for the government he had no trouble helping with the voluminous paperwork involved. He worked on this project unselfishly as he has supported many other endeavors in the community . . . Little League, Boosters Club, REACT, just to name a few.

No matter what Charles does, he does it with efficiency and fairness; as I'm sure he will the management of our harbor. His background and merits attained in the development and implementation of all U.S. Air Force ground electronics systems for the entire Pacific area shows the trust and responsibility placed in this man.

I hope that you, the voter of the community, will help shape a better future by voting for Charlie A. Augustine in Precinct 4-4A.

Thank you.

What a difference a decade makes

By Scott Burns
What a difference a decade makes! Only 10 years ago a favorite expression of "Guilt Americana" was: "America, with only 7 percent of the world's population, consumes over 50 percent of the natural resources." The statistic appeared in countless articles that warned us of future resource shortages and growing international tension over who would use the diminishing supply of this or that material. One of the foundation works for such guilt - and worry-provoking articles was the famous Club of Rome study, "Limits to Growth," in which a computer model showed that high population growth, resource consumption and pollution growth were taking the human race straight to disaster - and a violent "dieback" early in the 21st century. Those who didn't want to look so far forward used the study to show how the Western industrial nations were monopolizing the use and distribution of the world's natural resources. The more strident argued that because the developed nations consumed so much, the development of other nations would be stunted by the resource demands of the United States. Still worse, some Cassandras projected future resource wars in which the industrial nations would be pitted against the poor, but populous, lesser-developed nations.

To be sure, skeptics doubted all this in 1971 and 1972. But in 1973, when OPEC first raised the price of oil, the whole idea seemed to be coming true, and in one great blast of "future shock."

Now the arguments and fears have reversed! We don't worry about the industrial nations consuming too much, we worry about consuming TOO LITTLE.

If the United States, Europe and Japan don't continue importing raw materials, the argument goes, future growth of the lesser-developed nations will be stunted.

Still worse, the failure of the developed nations to increase their resource consumption now constitutes a grave danger to the world credit system. If Brazil can't sell enough coffee, if Mexico can't sell enough natural gas, if Poland can't sell enough coal, if Jamaica can't sell enough bauxite, their economies will be damaged.

In fact, while there are problems associated with all major changes, everyone who lives on this planet and hopes for a better future has good reason to feel relieved - and a little proud.

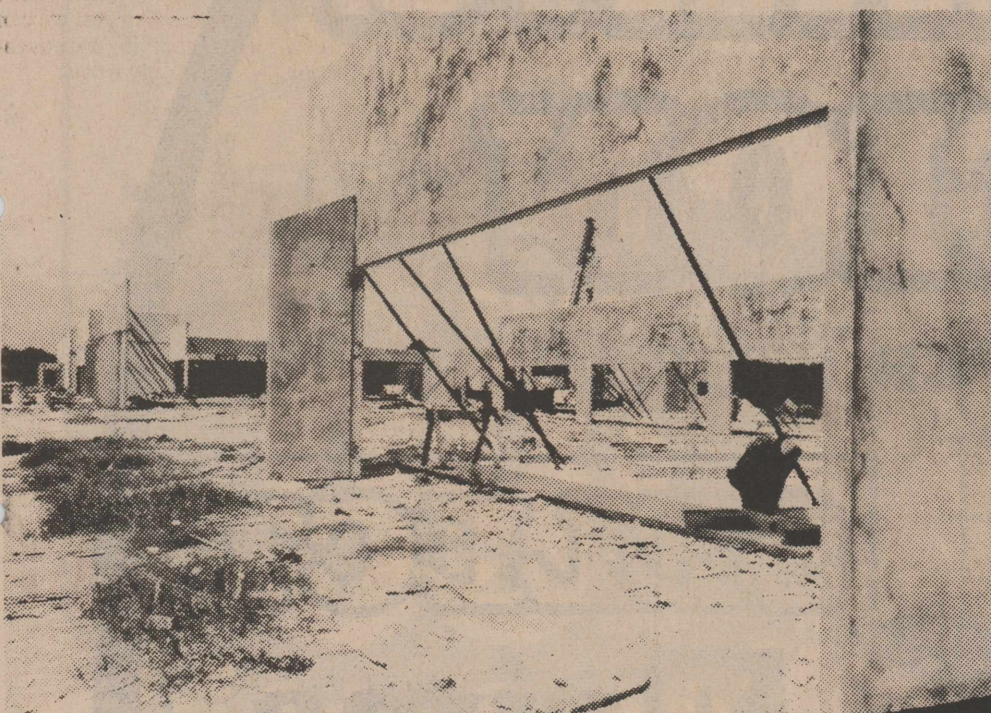

Why? Because we've "done good." We've made a major change that will allow us to think of growth as an entirely positive event. After more than a century of development as an industrial society, in which we created value by processing and distributing natural resources, it is clear that future economic growth will not depend on the conversion of resources.

We are doing more with less. More knowledge is being embedded in less physical resources, and real economic growth is accelerating. Some readers, no doubt, will be skeptical and think this a lot of "New Age" hype.

In fact, some of the greatest signs of hope are in the industries that were most reluctant to change. One good example is the automobile: Car weights have been declining at a compound rate of about 4 percent a year. Fuel efficiency has been rising at about 6 percent a year. The bottom line is that all the iron needed to produce tomorrow's cars has already been mined - and is parked on the street. Better still, the auto that once consumed its weight in fuel each year now consumes a lot less.

Extend the same events to resource consumption in building, telecommunications and newsprint and it's clear that the Great Resource Famine of the Future will never happen.

What's it all mean in "The Big Picture"? A major redistribution in the consumption of resources between rich and poor nations. If seven percent of the population uses 50 percent of

Unemployment most important issue

The economy ranked as the most important issue facing the United States, while unemployment was named as the most important issue facing Texas, according to a recent poll commissioned by the Texas Foundation for Conservative Studies (TFCS), Dick Collins, president of the TFCS, said.

The TFCS is a policy research and education organization that seeks to define critical problems facing Texas and develop practical and conservative solutions to these problems.

The TFCS commissioned Arthur J. Finkelstein and Associates to conduct the poll. A sample of 606 adult Texans was interviewed. Accuracy level of the poll is within plus or minus 4 percent at the 95 percent confidence level.

Texans interviewed were asked a series of questions, one of which was: In your opinion, what is the most important issue facing the United States today?

The top 10 results were: the economy, 29.7 percent; unemployment, 20.5 percent; nuclear weapons freeze, 11.6 percent; inflation, 5 percent; foreign affairs, 3.8 percent; national defense and military, 3 percent; war and peace, 2.5 percent; taxes, 2.5 percent; nuclear war, 1.7 percent; energy, 1.5 percent; and crime, 1.5 percent.

"There were differences by areas. In Houston, the economy was more important than in the rest of the sample. Dallas, Houston, Austin and Beaumont were more concerned with the nuclear weapons freeze than the rest of the state," Collins said.

According to Collins, those Texans who called themselves conservatives showed greater concern for national defense and war and peace than the rest of the sample.

When asked what they felt was the most important issue facing Texas, unemployment ranked as the number one issue with 28.5 percent of the responses.

The other results were: economy, 12.7 percent; education, 6.6 percent; illegal aliens, 5.8 percent; teachers' salaries, 5 percent; inflation, 3.5 percent; oil and gas situation, 3.1 percent; water, 2.5 percent; taxes, 2 percent; and overpopulation, 1.7 percent.

"Area differences were also evident in the responses. In Dallas, Abilene and Wichita Falls, concern for the education issue was higher than in the rest of the state. Lubbock and Amarillo led the state in concern for the water issue. While El Paso, Midland and Odessa were more concerned with the illegal alien issue than the rest of the state.

"Beaumont and Port Arthur led the state in concern for unemployment, with 71.4 percent of the people there naming it the number one issue in Texas," Collins said.

This year the TFCS has published studies on state spending and bureaucracy, crime victims' restitution centers, state severance taxes on oil and gas, and the Texas prevailing wage law.

Commercial tax examinations set

The Internal Revenue Service reminds commercial tax preparers who want to take the IRS' Special Enrollment Examination Oct. 3 and 4 that they must have their applications postmarked no later than Aug. 15, with no extensions to be granted. This test allows tax preparers to become enrolled to officially represent taxpayers before the IRS. Attorneys and certified public accountants are not required to take the test to become enrolled agents.

Application packages may be obtained by writing to IRS, Training Branch, P.O. Box 250, Stop 160, Austin, Texas 78767.

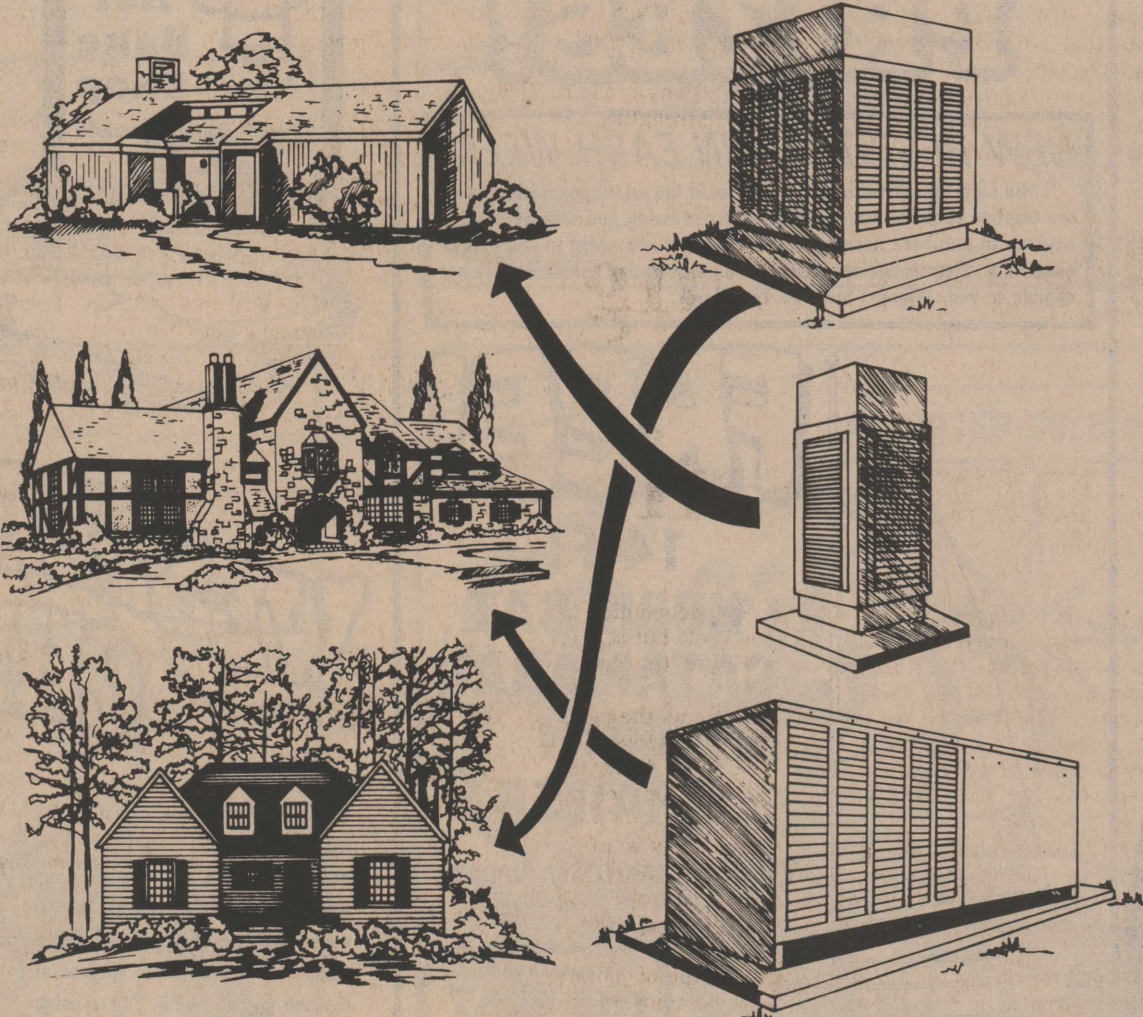

Tax deadline near

Taxpayers who applied for automatic extension to file their federal income tax returns must file the completed returns and pay any remaining tax due by midnight, Aug. 15, the Internal Revenue Service said.

If a taxpayer is entitled to the automatic extension that is allowed because he or she was outside the U.S. or Puerto Rico on April 15, a statement to that effect must be attached to the return, the IRS added.

Match air conditioning BTU rating to home size - and save money!

You'll be money ahead—and more comfortable, too—if your central air conditioning unit has the right cooling capacity for your house.

The cooling capacity of an air conditioner is measured in BTU's. If the unit you choose has too small a capacity, it will run too long and still not cool your home efficiently. If its capacity is too large, you'll be uncomfortable because the unit won't run long enough in each cooling cycle to remove excess moisture from the air. In addition, you'll pay more than necessary for the equipment.

You also can save money on operating costs by selecting a model with an EER (Energy Efficiency Ratio) or SEER (Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio) of 8 or more. Air conditioning with a high EER/SEER is engineered to operate more efficiently, and will deliver more cooling for your electricity dollar.

Air conditioning represents a sizable investment, so be sure you've found the unit best for your home energy needs. If you're going to build a new home, or replace an existing unit, check with the people at CPL.

Strongest since 1981

The best news on the economic front since the recession started two years ago is that the nation's economy is now expanding at an annual rate of 6.6 percent, its strongest performance since early 1981.

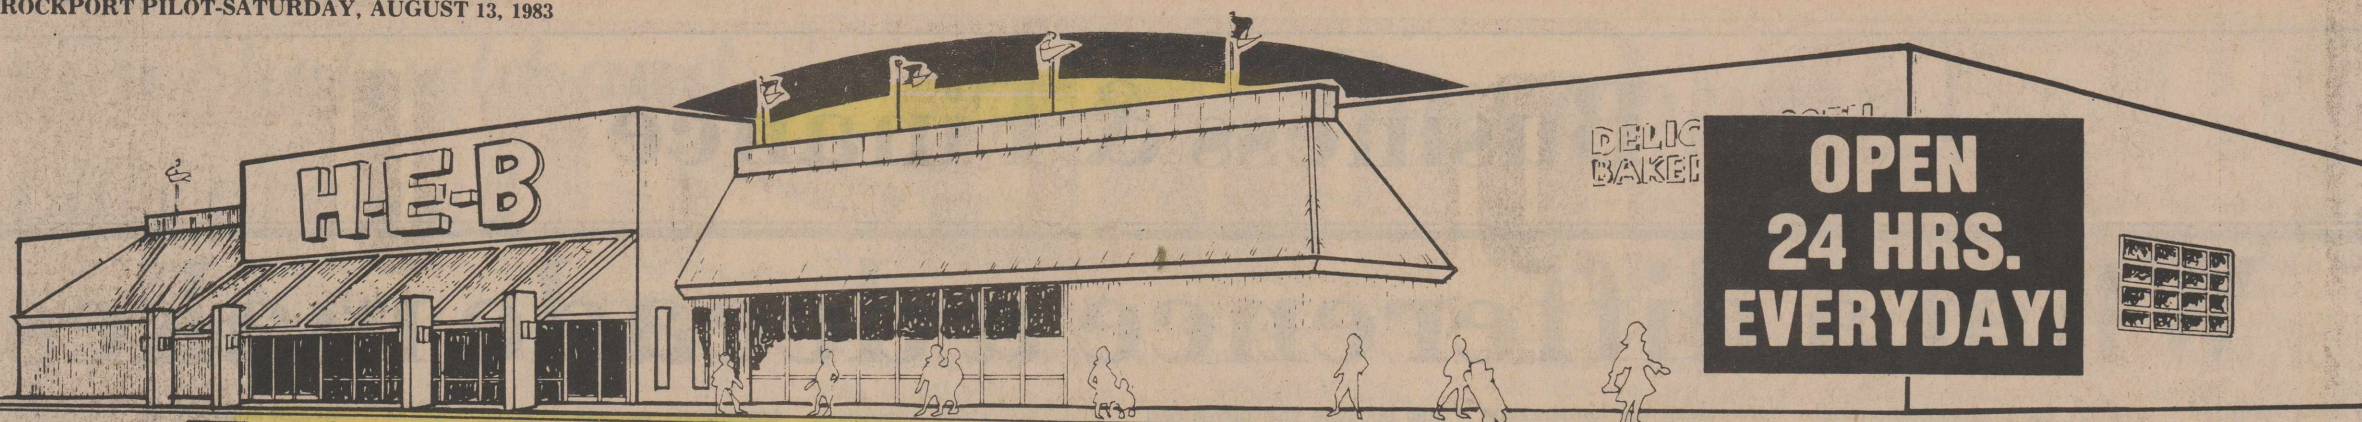

That's the real clincher as far as indicators of recovery from the recession are concerned. The preliminary projection of inflation-adjusted growth in the gross national product (GNP) during the second quarter of the year is the latest, most persuasive of statistics pointing to a strong rebound from the 1981-82 slump.

Although the Commerce Department's estimate fell short of optimistic predictions for a growth rate of 7 to 8 percent, some economists, including President Reagan's own chief economic adviser, said the latest figures add up to no more than a below-average recovery hampered by high interest rates and budget deficits.

The next best economic news we could have would be for millions of people still unemployed to be called back to work. That would really send GNP expansion statistics soaring.

Shannon Sheffield and Rick Lilly are wed

Shannon Sheffield became the bride of Rick Lilly of Rockport at 3 p.m. Saturday, July 16, at the First Presbyterian Church in Rockport. The Rev. John Bradshaw officiated the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Madeline Sheffield of Los Angeles, Calif. She was given in marriage by Rodney Camp.

Parents of the groom are Dick and Donita Lilly of Rockport.

The bride wore a white satin floor-length dress with a train, made by the groom's mother. The fitted satin bodice had a lace overlay, standup collar and contrasting front and back yokes of point d'esprit. The back yoke was closed with tiny pearl buttons and the yoke and waistline were edged with lace. The full, lace sleeves had buttons and loops adorning the wrist.

Schiffli lace edged the bottom of the dress and train. Lace appliques accented the front of the dress, the train and contrasting yoke.

The headpiece was made of lace and the elbow-length veil was adorned with matching lace.

The bride carried a bouquet of yellow roses, white daisies and blue carnations.

Maid of honor was Shelly Wyllie of Canoga Park, Calif. Bridesmaids were Stacey Storm of Los Angeles, Calif., Denise Lilly of Corpus Christi and Suzanne Love-day of Austin.

Their sheer blue, bustle-back gowns of polyester featured ruffled front and back collars, capelet sleeves, flared skirts and flounced hems. Each carried a bouquet of white and yellow daisies.

Best man was Ron Eitel of Farmington, N.M., Groomsmen included Jack Sheffield of Houston, Scott Sheffield of New York, N.Y., and Bill Ratliff of Rockport. Charles Meador and Danny Hutchinson, both of Rockport, were ushers.

Ring bearer was Scott Lilly and Regina Lilly was the flower girl.

The couple plans to reside in Rockport.

Travel Tips

It now houses an excellent collection of armor, instruments of torture and other authentic relics of early English history. It was supposedly the site of Sir Walter Raleigh's imprisonment before he was beheaded.

The inner of the two walls, guarding the White Tower, has twelve towers at intervals, and one, the Wakefield Tower, is where the famous Crown Jewels are, and have been kept for centuries. Visitors can see them too. Don't be surprised to find a line, but it does move quickly and I believe it is worth the wait.

It is better to visit the Tower on your own, to have plenty of time to properly visit and absorb all the old palace has to offer.

Beth Curry honored

Beth Curry, bride-elect of Bryan Bracht, was honored with a miscellaneous Wednesday, Aug. 3.

Hostesses for the event were Claudia Bateman, Jean Johnson, Yvonne Wendell, Mary Taylor and Mary John Lynch.

The serving table was decorated with a white lace tablecloth and floral arrangements in the bride's chosen colors of aqua and yellow. A heart-shaped cake decorated in aqua and yellow and champagne punch were served to approximately 35 guests.

What on earth would a man do with himself if something did not stand in his way.

By Ann Thomas
The produce markets are just loaded with fruits and vegetables to enjoy now. For those of us who want to enjoy them later, now is the time to do something about it. This week is devoted to a few recipes for that purpose.

SWEET YELLOW SQUASH PICKLES

When I was with the Arkansas State and Parks Tourism Department, a ranger's wife gave me her mom's recipe for pickles from squash.

- 1 dozen young yellow squash, sliced 1/4-inch thick
- 3 dozen small white onions, sliced thin after peeling

- 1/2 cup pickling salt
- 6 cups cracked ice cubes
- 3 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 quart white vinegar
- 1 1/4 teaspoons celery seeds
- 1 1/4 teaspoons white mustard seeds
- 1 1/4 teaspoons ground turmeric

In a large bowl layer onions, squash, salt and cracked ice. Let stand 3 hours then drain. Rinse with cold water and press dry.

Prepare 8 pint canning jars. Leave them in a separate kettle and keep them hot.

Bring vinegar, sugar and spices to a full boil in a large, heavy, enamel or stainless steel kettle. Gently add the onions and squash. Bring them just to boiling, then pack in prepared jars. Be sure the solids are covered with the pickling liquid.

Seal jars and process them 10 minutes in a boiling water bath. Remove, and cool to room temperature.

PICKLED PEACHES

These are so expensive at the store that it's well worth the work to make them up at home.

- 4 pounds fresh, firm peaches (small)
 - 1 1/2 cups vinegar
 - 4 cups sugar
 - 1 teaspoon whole cloves
 - 2 small sticks cinnamon
- Heat the vinegar, sugar, water and spices; simmer. Peel the peaches and drop half of them into the syrup. Simmer 15 minutes. Test with a toothpick. When tender, pack in a jar.

Repeat with other half of peaches. Leave 1/2-inch at the top of each jar. Seal. Be sure to follow the usual preparation for jars and for sealing.

FIG PRESERVES

A neighbor of mine in Killeen gave me this recipe at a time when we had an over-producing fig tree.

- 4 cups chopped figs
- 3 cups sugar
- 2 packages strawberry jello

Let stand until a syrup forms, then bring to a boil. Cook 20 minutes and seal in prepared jar.

PICKLED OKRA

Dill pickle lovers will "go bananas" over these!

Small okra pods — wash, trim and leave stems. Pack into hot jars. To each pint add 1 small clove garlic and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Bring enough vinegar to a boil to cover all except 1/4-inch in each jar. Close jars and leave in a boiling water bath 20 minutes. Let stand several weeks. Chill before serving.

Bon appetit!

THE HOUSE OF SHOENSTATT Sisters of Mary in Lamar is one of only two Mother Houses of the Schoenstatt order in the United States and was built with money earned through labor by the Sisters, a service organization. North of the old entrance, shown above, of the Schoenstatt convent is Our Lady Star of the Sea Chapel, built in 1854 of cement made from oyster shells taken from the bay. According to local history, the whole town of Old Lamar joined to build the chapel, shown at right. During the Civil War it was shelled twice by Union vessels. (Photos by Pat Blair)

Hearings scheduled on Live Oak Bank annexation

Rockport's city council called public hearings on Aug. 23 and Sept. 13 on the proposed annexation of Allied Live Oak Bank and took no action on a request for an increase in the homestead tax exemption allowed by the city.

The action came during Tuesday night's council meeting in a session that also saw a hearing called — also on Aug. 23 — on proposed allocation of the revenue sharing funds the city anticipates receiving for the 1983-84 fiscal year if the revenue sharing program is renewed by Congress.

Set for two public hearings is Allied Live Oak Bank's request for the annexation of its 1,237 acres of property into the city limits. Under state law, the first public hearing will be at City Hall; the second, on Sept. 13, will be at the bank.

The request for an increase in the homestead exemption allowance granted by the city was presented by the Aransas County Taxpayers Association (ACTA), represented at the council meeting by current President Willis Pfeifer and past President Mitch Ammons.

ACTA was asking the city again this year to consider granting a full 40 percent homestead exemption as allowed under state law instead of the city's current exemption of $5,000.

City Manager Herman Johnson began the discussion declaring, "I'm against it (granting the increase). When you give the exemption to one, you take it from someone else."

Johnson said the city's $5,000 homestead exemption amounts to as high as 15 percent on some properties, depending on their value. He added Rockport, according to a recent Coastal Bend Council of Governments study, currently has the lowest tax rate of any taxing entity in this entire area. Johnson added the city also has the lowest water and sanitary sewer rates of any comparable city in the area.

Ammons, speaking for ACTA, told the council, "The voters of Aransas County and of Texas voted in favor of the homestead exemption. You have a moral obligation to do what the people wanted."

Alderman Richard Beck replied, "We also have a moral obligation to give the people the services they expect," pointing out that tax money is needed to do this.

"The taxes went up two and three times on some homesteads last year over the year before," Ammons said, referring to the reappraisal of property that increased values on some property in the county. To this, Ed Armstrong, a member of the audience, responded, "Some of those homesteads have been undervalued for the last 20 years."

Johnson pointed out that the homestead exemption, like the over-65 exemption which Rockport grants, is optional. "A lot of cities don't give the 65 or over exemption," he added. "This city's governing body felt like we could give a $5,000 general homestead exemption. It's not that we don't want to (give more)," he said, adding it's a matter of what the city can afford.

The council took no formal action on the request.

In other action during Tuesday's meeting, the council discussed, but again took no action, on the federal Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) program.

Council members appeared in agreement that they did not wish to actively pursue the program at this time but that if another business or developer comes along that could qualify under the program, the council would be interested.

Mills emphasized that the city abandoned pursuit of a UDAG grant to be loaned to Baker-Haldeman for their Nautical Towers project because Baker-Haldeman could not in conscience sign a statement that the project could not be completed without city assistance.

"We are interested in this UDAG grant," Mills added.

The council during Tuesday's meeting accepted a letter of resignation from Police Sgt. James N. Tanner who said he was leaving the city to accept another job. Tanner had been with the city four years.

The council approved closing of Live Oak Street between 2nd and 3rd streets and selling the property to adjoining property owner Juanita Wagley at the appraised price of $9,600 plus $625 to cover appraisal fees.

An ordinance raising mowing fees from $25 to $40 was approved on second and final reading.

A date of Sept. 27 was set for opening of bids for awarding the bank depository contract for the 1983-84 fiscal year.

First reading was given to an ordinance relating to the adoption of the increase in the Updated Service Credit and Annuity to city employees under the Texas Municipal Retirement System.

The city referred to the staff for additional study a request from 12 residents for a street light at the corner of Bay Avenue and Shores Lane in Little Bay Shores.

A list of bills paid from July 7-Aug. 8 was approved.

Water plant repairs are accepted

LAMAR — Repairs to the water plant of the Aransas County Municipal Utility District that serves residents of Goose Island Lake Estates in Lamar were formally accepted by the ACMUD board of directors in their meeting Tuesday night at the district office.

In a meeting that began at 6:30 p.m., the directors authorized final payment to Membrane Technology, the Corpus Christi company that did the repair work, and voted a commendation to Bud Marsh, president of the company, for his interest and efforts on the utility district's behalf.

Based on the engineers' certification, the district directors also accepted the tie-in of the utility district lines with those of Lamar Water Supply Corp., a private water company serving the rest of Lamar, and authorized final payment to Dennis Jenkins, contractor for that job.

Directors discussed the need to meet with a representative of the Lamar Water Supply Corp. to finalize an addendum to the district's contract with LWS. The district anticipates being able to provide water to LWS — which the private water company will then resell to its customers — by Sept. 1.

The district also anticipates providing water to Goose Island State Park as soon as water from the plant has been analyzed and approved by the Texas Department of Public Health. A sample of water from the plant was taken Tuesday and presented to TDPH officials Wednesday.

ACMUD Board Secretary Steve Shenk said a report is expected from the public health department within approximately two weeks.

The district approved a letter to its customers regarding the new billing dates, a result of the district's change to computer billing.

Previously, meters have been read on the first of the month. The directors announced Tuesday that meters will now be read on the 15th of every month. As a result of this change, the first bills issued under the new system will cover service for 45 days, directors said. After the initial reading, bills will cover a 30-day period.

The directors received notice from the central appraisal office that the district's total valuation for the year is $3,514,150. Directors anticipate discussing a tax rate for the coming year at their meeting in September.

Directors approved payment of approximately $55,000 in principle and interest on bonds due on Sept. 1. This is within the guidelines of the debt adjustment plan adopted by the district last May.

Also approved at Tuesday's meeting was a request by District Operator David McCluskey for authorization to purchase spare parts for the water system. The directors gave initial approval to expenditure of up to $500 and authorized Marsh to draw up a list of spare parts the district should have for emergency repairs to the plant.

Directors voted to include on their September agenda a request by McCluskey for discussion of his contract with the district.

The district's next meeting will be Sept. 13. ACMUD directors anticipate a discussion of the budget at that time.

Harlan doesn't want closed harbors

J.C. Harlan, an Aransas County shrimpster who appeared at the Aransas County Navigation District meeting Tuesday, Aug. 2, said he does not want the Fulton and Rockport harbors closed to the public.

Harlan, upset over the headline in a Pilot story Aug. 6, stating "Shrimper asks for closing of harbors," said that is not what he wanted when he appeared before the ACND commissioners.

In the ACND meeting, Harlan explained to the commissioners that two shrimp boats had been taken for joy rides and he said he wanted something done about the problem.

Harlan, in a visit with Pilot publisher Bob Scott, said that he has never intended for the harbors to be closed to the public. He said he wanted only to have identification cards and have the police patrol the harbors.

Offer

air conditioning and plumbing in good working order" — all at his expense.

The city would be responsible at its expense for remodeling the interior of the building to suit its needs.

Brown proposed an initial lease with a minimum of three years, maximum five years with an option to extend the lease for an additional two years, at a rent of around $4,000 per month.

He asked city officials if they could "come to a decision" on the offer by Aug. 31. "My expenses (from the building) are going on," Brown said.

In response to questions from the council, Brown said the offer actually includes two buildings, a main building containing 7,059 square feet and an accessory building of 1,225 square feet. The present City Hall contains approximately 3,000 square feet of floor space, officials said.

In answer to another question, from the audience, Brown said parking at the old Monroe building would be adequate for city employees. It would not be adequate for parking at some council meetings, he said, but there is additional parking space around his own Sail Printing Co. which would be available in the evenings when the council meets.

An advantage to leasing a building for a city hall, Johnson told the council, would be that lease payments could be taken proportionately from all city accounts, water and sewer as well as the general fund (taxes). But if a bond issue is passed to build a city hall, then money to retire the bonds can only come from general fund.

Rockport Mayor Burt Mills asked Brown what time the building would be ready for inspection by a representative of the city, to which Brown replied, "Hopefully, within the next two weeks."

Referring to the present City Hall, Mills said, "My personal feeling is, this building is crowded. Everytime I sit down at somebody's desk, I'm asked to move."

Alderman W. B. Allen moved to table the matter until the next council meeting, pending further study. That motion was seconded by Alderman Richard Beck and approved 3-1 with Alderman Murray McMillan casting a dissenting vote.

McMillan — and Johnson — expressed doubts that enough information could be gathered in two weeks for the city to make a decision on whether to accept Brown's offer.

McMillan also expressed doubts about using the building as a city hall. "I think if the city were to go into that building, it would be a stopgap," he said. "Two years ago, I got up before the Taxpayers Association and made a speech about needing a city hall, but I don't think this (leasing the building) is the correct way to handle it."

Allen moved to reconsider his motion, was seconded by Alderman Betty Jean Ward, then — on approval of that motion — moved to withdraw the original motion. Ward seconded that motion which was approved 4-0.

At that point, Johnson offered to gather as much information as he could about the Monroe building and Brown's offer prior to the Aug. 23 council meeting.

Zoning

I've heard it described this way — an African village?

"There is a place for these (high rises) and a place for them not to be," he continued. "A designated area might be the answer to stemming some of the criticism, and how else are we going to take care of all the people who are coming — and they are coming."

"I think this sort of construction for the long-range overall good of the community should be considered."

Armstrong agreed this is a possibility that should be discussed — but that the height allowance should not be part of the city's zoning ordinance.

She suggested that the planning and zoning board consider this — along with other possibilities for development of the downtown area — when the board begins consideration of a master plan for Rockport.

"This (the designation of a high rise area) is a potential use for the area," she agreed. "But are we ready for this now? I don't think this board would even consider talking about it unless there were massive public hearings."

"I think," Picton said, "you would find a lot of people for it if you were talking about a specific area."

Armstrong emphasized that her feelings "remain the same: we ought to leave the (zoning) ordinance as it is and get this in the master plan. The place to consider this is with the master plan."

One other person spoke to board members during Wednesday's hearing on the proposed new zoning ordinance. That was Cecil Phelps who is planning a mobile home subdivision north of Enterprise Blvd. between Enterprise and Rockport Country Club Estates. Phelps had some questions regarding the ordinance's mobile home and subdivision provisions which the board answered.

As recommended by the planning and zoning board following Wednesday's hearing, the new zoning ordinance and amended zoning map have few major changes.

The new ordinance, if adopted, will allow annexation of properties under existing conditions with proper zoning designations rather than as R-1, which will cut the number of non-conforming uses.

In travel trailer parks, tie downs will be required for all units left during the hurricane season. Mobile home/manufactured housing subdivision requirements were removed from the zoning ordinance and will be added to the subdivision ordinance.

Mobile homes located on private lots must meet the floor square footage requirements of the zone in which they are located and the 1976 federal standards of construction.

Lawsuit

ing the meeting were subsequently published in the June 15 edition of The Rockport Pilot.

Hicklin received a letter from Griffith's attorney dated June 13 asking him to document the sources of the "unfavorable reports" regarding S&R Electric. According to the complaint filed, Hicklin only revealed that he had received "unfavorable reports" from two bankers, a city official, two builders and two suppliers. However, Hicklin refused to name these individuals or the nature of these unfavorable reports.

Griffith is asking actual damages of $9,000 for the anticipated profit on the electrical work for the courthouse addition, and exemplary damages of $1 million for slander, saying that the defendants acted intentionally, knowingly and maliciously, without justification or excuse, and with "gross indifference" to his rights. The suit also charges that the defendants damaged Griffith's reputation and character in the community and has been a proximate cause of loss of business.

Both Judge Wendell and Hicklin declined to comment on the charges.

bid on the float. A motion by Cole and seconded by Alderwoman Pat Loflin to go out for bids on the float was unanimously approved.

Fulton attorney Gene Garcia reported that the contract for the bait-concession stand has been drawn up and is ready to be turned over to Randy Bruce, who will lease the stand from the town.

No further developments were reported on annexation or a subdivision ordinance. Public hearings on the council's plan to annex Fulton outlots going west of the town limits to Woody Acres Trailer Park will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 16 at the town hall and at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 23 at Woody Acres.

A budget workshop has been scheduled for Aug. 31.

There was more discussion of the City of Rockport's decision last month to turn down a request by No Man's Land residents to be released from Rockport's extraterritorial jurisdiction so that they could request annexation by Fulton. "I don't think we ought to antagonize the City of Rockport" by pressing the matter further, said Alderwoman Lynelle Hunt. "I think it's up to the people of No Man's Land. The people have to present it now," she said.

25 warnings and 2 tickets issued by water safety patrol

Seventy-five warnings and two tickets were issued by Rockport's Water Safety Patrolman Gary Howard last month, according to a report made by Police Chief

Joe Hinojosa to the city council Tuesday night. Howard reported 13 assists, including 11 boats assisted for mechanical problems and two that ran aground. Warnings issued included 30 for speeding in a no wake area and 22 for failure to have an observer in the boat. Other warnings issued included five for boats going in the wrong direction in the Ski Basin, five for reckless operation, four for no flotation device on a minor, four for a sailboat in the Little Bay, two for swimming in the Ski Basin and one for operating an airboat in the Ski Basin. The two tickets were issued for speeding in a no wake area.

At Rotary

Hostess of TV show tells of Secret Service

"A secret service background is probably the most interesting thing I could've done with an elementary education degree," Kathryn Childers told members of Rockport's Rotary Club Wednesday afternoon. Now known as the hostess of Channel 3 Television's "Morning Magazine," Childers served three and a half years as a secret service agent, with assignments that ranged from bodyguard to Trisha Nixon to "pistol-packing" nanny to Caroline and John Kennedy to undercover work in the service's counterfeit division.

She was guest speaker at the Rotary Club's noon luncheon meeting this week. Childers began her talk with a declaration that the Rockport area, "particularly the Fulton Beach area, is my second home." Childers began her career in the secret service, she said, when she went to Washington: "They were hiring five female bodyguards for Trisha Nixon." Four of the five were former policemen. The fifth was Childers.

In preparation for her new job, she was sent to the training department of the police academy where she was the only woman in a class of 51. "At the end of the course," she said, "I was given the best sportsmanlike conduct award."

Childers told the Rotarians, "The secret service is a rare organization." It now includes 35 women and "600 or 700 men — don't quote me on that — but the men considerably outnumber the women."

Secret service personnel "travel extensively," she added. "Many men will call home at 5 and say, 'I'm leaving for three weeks and I can't tell you where I'm going.'"

The service includes three divisions, she continued. One division consists of those agents who are responsible for protecting the presidents, vice presidents and their families. This division also protects "anything the president considers needs protection." When the "Mona Lisa" came to this country, she added, it was protected by secret service agents.

Another division of the service, she continued, is the counterfeit division whose members investigate — sometimes undercover — reported or suspected counterfeit operations.

Childers gave Rotary members some pointers on how to recognize counterfeit notes, adding, among other things, that treasury notes are hand-printed.

"Counterfeiting is big business in major cities," added Childers who worked in New York as an undercover agent for the counterfeit division.

She termed her undercover experience "the most frightening" she had during her years with the secret service. "You never knew what to expect and you had plenty of time to think about it," she said.

A third division of the service is "protective intelligence." The job of these agents is to investigate any threat against the President. Childers added it is against federal law to make any kind of threat against the nation's president.

"I have great respect for the men and women of the secret service," said Childers, adding that, from what she saw, the agents acted properly during the assassination attempt against President Reagan.

Childers moved to Corpus Christi following her marriage to a Corpus Christi psychiatrist. She ran unsuccesscessfully for the city council in 1977 then, five years ago, soon after the birth of her son, accepted a job with Channel 3 on the "Morning Magazine" program. She is now a producer of the show which is a public service type program. "We do the best we can in covering Rockport," Childers said, "but because of the time we have and the volume we have, we can't do it as well as it should be done."

citations issued

Four citations were issued last month to persons in violation of Rockport's animal control ordinance. Animal Control Officer Doug Wilcox said Tuesday night.

Wilcox made his monthly report to the city council during the council's regularly-scheduled session.

Twenty-six animals — 18

dogs, seven cats and one possum — were picked up during the month and two of the dogs were returned to their owners or adopted.

All seven cats and 15 dogs were destroyed for reasons of injury or health. One dog was dead at the scene as was the possum.

Wilcox received a total of 94 calls during the month.

Phil Adler, owner of Adler Boat Company, is proud to introduce Sun Runner Marine and their entire line of quality boats to the South Texas area.

As Texas' only franchised factory dealer, "We are very excited about these boats and have spent considerable time in modifying them to fulfill all the needs of boaters in the area. For almost a year-I traveled to national boat shows and to numerous boat manufacturing plants to try and find a semi-custom manufacturer of high quality, well-designed boats. Nothing available really excited me until I found the Sun Runner line.

Sun Runner is a 7-year-old manufacturer of highest quality boats in Washington. Their boats are unquestionably strong and are styled with a flair of European flavor. Everything is human engineered and all of their mechanical systems are thoroughly thought-out and properly installed. To my knowledge, they are the only boat builder who laminates their motor mounts directly into the stinger system instead of fastening the mounts with lag screws.

The demonstrator now docked at Key Allegro Marina is an excellent example of a boat that will do everything exceptionally well. It has a transom door and huge unobstructed cockpit for Gulf fishing, an interior cabin that will sleep six in separate areas, a full galley, shower, head and dinette seating. With twin Volvo power, this cruiser will top 42 mph. Only 140 gallons of gas is standard for extended bay cruising. The hull is deep-V with spray knockers, needing only 2'6" to float.

According to Adler, "The standard delivered price of this boat with options, other manufacturers add to the price of their boats, is much, much less than you'd expect." (Standard features on our Sun Runners include: swim platform, transom door, teak coaming, three tinted deck hatches, bow pulpit with locker, welded bow railing, fishwell, rocket launcher, plush vinyl seating, full sun bridge instrumentation, hydraulic steering, three battery shorepower system with breakers, alcohol/electric stove, refrigerator, hot & cold running water, head with electric toilet, shower, cockpit and interior lighting, many storage lockers, 1 inch welded stainless steel bow rails and much, much more.)

All serious boaters are invited to inspect the demonstrator or for more information call Adler at 729-1101. Most important, "We provide full boat and engine warranty right on the water six days a week," added Adler.

Pet talks

Dr. Hap Lutz
Rockport Veterinarian

When you go jogging, take your dog with you. However, consider taking a few precautions before you start on the routine.

Just as a person should have a medical check-up before commencing a program of rigorous exercise, so should your dog be examined by your veterinarian. Have the lungs, heart and bony structure examined thoroughly. Be sure to have a heartworm test run to eliminate that possibility.

Caution, don't overdo it at first. Dogs, just like people, have to build up their endurance. This is particularly true for puppies. They must strengthen and toughen-up their pads.

Be careful in hot weather. Dogs overheat easier than people. In the summer, jog during the cooler times of the day — early morning or late evening. Never feed your dog until you have finished exercising. A meal beforehand could make your dog lethargic and could cause bloat, a serious condition that sometimes can be fatal.

From your pet's best friend, the one with a warm hear for cold noses.

Dr. Hap Lutz, DVM

SUNBELT STATISTICS

Florida, also known as the Sunshine State, is one of the leading tourist states in the nation. This sunbelt state, with an area of 58,560 square miles is the 22nd largest state. Its nearly seven million population makes it the ninth most populous state in the nation. Florida became our 27th state on March 3, 1845.

Too much sunshine is one thing many sunbelt state residents have learned to avoid. Overexposure to the sun can cause a skin condition called solar keratosis, which in some cases could become malignant if left untreated. It is treatable, however, and physicians sometimes use a prescription medication made by Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. Available in cream or solution, it is often applied to the skin with good results. Symptoms of solar keratosis are red, scaly patches, usually on the hands and face.

Georgia, the Empire State of the South, is the largest state east of the Mississippi. This sunbelt state covers an area of 58,876 square miles and became our fourth state on Jan. 2, 1788.

Accident report

The driver of a car involved in a collision on Seabreeze Drive Sunday evening, Aug. 7, was charged with driving while intoxicated in juvenile court following the incident, according to Rockport police.

The accident occurred about 7:14 p.m. when the juvenile driver, eastbound on Seabreeze, reportedly crossed into the path of a westbound vehicle driven by Venus Irene Watkins of Rockport.

The collision was about 500 feet east of Laurel Street. No injuries were reported.

In an accident about 6:14 p.m. Tuesday, a pickup driven by Antonio Vernon of Mathis was in collision with a boat trailer being towed by Rudolph D. Sauseda Jr. of Rockport.

No tickets were issued and no injuries reported.

Police report

Police this week were searching for a would-be robber who allegedly tried to hold up the KOA Ancient Oaks Campground in Rockport and fled after being shot by the campground owner.

No money was taken and at this time police have no suspects in the incident, according to a police detective Thursday morning.

The incident began about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday when the suspected robber walked into the KOA office and confronted owner Paul Brown II.

Words were exchanged, according to the detective, then the robber "made an aggressive gesture." Brown reportedly drew a small pistol and shot the man in the hand.

The suspect ran, fleeing south.

Police believe he was armed but do not know for sure, the detective added.

THE REAL ESTATE CONSUMERApplying for a zoning change

A person seeking a zoning change should be well prepared to justify why such a change would be beneficial to the community according to research conducted by the Texas Real Estate Research Center.

If you anticipate neighborhood opposition to a proposed change, you should use diplomacy. In many communities, neighborhood opposition is very effective in stopping any amendments to the zoning ordinance.

Your first step should be to examine the land-use plan of the community. If your proposed change is contrary to the land-use plan, you may find it very difficult to convince the decision makers to agree with your proposal.

Nevertheless, the planning staff of the municipality or county can be very helpful. Land-use plans are not cast in concrete, and some very good reasons for modifying a plan may have arisen.

If you'd like more information, write the Texas Real Estate Research Center, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas, 77843-2115. Ask for our publication "A Guide to the Zoning Process in Texas." Please include $2 to cover printing and mailing costs.

Selling Own House Calls For Special Skills

If you are considering handling the sale of your own house, here are three items to think about. First, do you really know what your property is worth in the local market? Buyers will be discouraged if you set a price that is unreasonably high. Or the other hand, you will lose money if you set a price that's too low.

Secondly, do you have the skill to deal with potential buyers? Can you present your property in a professional manner, pointing out how it meets the particular needs of each prospect?

Finally, will you be readily available to answer questions while you're attending to your own work and dealing with the difficulties of moving to another residence? Knowledge, skill and time. Evaluate yourself against each of these requirements before deciding whether or not to use a broker when selling your home.

Advise Lender When Facing Default

If you are facing default on your home mortgage, there are a number of steps you should take. First, you should let the lender know as soon as possible that you have run into serious difficulty in making your payments.

Second, seek counsel. Various counseling agencies, legal service groups and the local office of the Federal Housing Administration can help you. Using their advice, try to work out an arrangement with your lender to make up your overdue payments. If the lender agrees to the plan, the lending institution may hold off or forebear from taking legal action to get back the money.

If satisfactory arrangements cannot be worked out, foreclosure is the legal process by which the lender takes the house from you and sells it to pay off the money you owe. Foreclosure means you lose the house, the money you put into it and your credit rating.

Residential Construction Increases In '83

If building permits are a reliable indicator of construction activity, 1982 was a big year for residential building in Texas. Permits were granted to construct over 200,000 dwelling units, a 48 percent increase over 1981's volume.

More than half the permits were for apartment buildings of five or more units. This apartment total represented an 86 percent increase over 1981. Continued high rates of migration into the state and rising rental rates are encouraging builders to produce more apartment units.

The metropolitan areas of Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth combined to produce two-thirds of the apartment unit permits in the state. The Dallas-Fort Worth total was over 2 1/2 times the number for 1981. While residential building may have been slow for most of the country, Texas builders have been busy.

Insist On General Warranty Deed When Buying Property

The seller of a parcel of real estate normally gives the buyer a deed, but a buyer should view an offer of a quit claim deed with caution.

Anyone can legally sign a quit claim deed for any piece of property. The deed simply conveys the rights of the signing party without guaranteeing that the signing party has any rights at all.

A quit claim deed has legitimate uses. Suppose a parcel of land belonged to a person who died without leaving a will. If that person's heirs all agree to relinquish any possible claim on the land to that person's son or daughter, then they can execute a quit claim deed in favor of the son or daughter. However, outright transfer of a title for a sale normally involve a general warranty deed backed by title insurance. If you buy property, get legal counsel before signing any agreement.

Liz Devenney describes herself as "a people person — I'm interested in people and what makes them tick."

"There have been so many beautiful people in my life," she says. "So many friends." One of these is a black woman, Rachel, who helped Liz raise her children and is now helping one of Liz's daughters raise hers. "She's been a mother to me, a mother to my children," Liz said.

Another of the "beautiful people" Liz recalls fondly is her father. "I followed him around, helped work cattle — I was one of the boys."

Liz's father was a Rouquette, a native of Aransas County, and she was born here — "one of seven Rouquettes" with roots that go deep into the area. "My grandmother was Mary Simpson; she came from just across Copano Bay." Liz was named for her grandmother, Mary Elizabeth, and one of her granddaughters was named for her.

She grew up in Fulton ("It was all just about three or four blocks when I was little," she remembered) but at 18, after marrying her first husband, she accompanied him to New Orleans, her home for the next 30 years.

Her father-in-law was a Ford dealer. "I worked for him, learned every phase of the auto business. I ended up as office manager within two years' time."

It was in New Orleans that Liz's own seven children were born. One of her daughters died two years ago and none of the six living are in the Rockport-Fulton area, but with phone calls and visits, Liz and her family — which now includes three granddaughters and two grandsons — stay in touch.

Liz's first husband died of a coronary — "That took a lot of getting over," she says — but later, through a friend, she met Len Devenney. "I think," she says, "he married me because he liked my family." They were married two years ago and came back to Rockport as a result of Len's job with Jackson Marine — but it's a move neither of them regret.

Although Liz doesn't work — for pay — these days, she has been a real estate salesman (who sold mostly, she says, "on the golf course"), she worked for about a year once "creating clothes, she worked at the Racquet Club here."

"I've done a little bit of everything," she says. In New Orleans, she was involved in civic work; here, she's become involved with the Aransas County Council on Aging. "I went to the COA to volunteer my help," she says. "I've been a secretary, bookkeeper — they said, 'Can you sew?', I said yes, and I started sewing for them."

While working at the COA, she met Roy Olbrich who teaches Monday classes in the art of stained glass. It looked interesting — challenging. So she started attending Roy's classes.

That was six months ago and Liz now has a small workshop set up in her home in Fulton, a number of finished stained glass pieces and she and Roy are making the four stained glass pieces that will go into the new sanctuary at the Fulton Community Church. The windows, when finished, will be in memory of Mary (Simpson) Rouquette-Weber.

Liz is an outdoor person too, who enjoys golf and tennis. "Golf," she adds, "is 99 percent mental and 1 percent physical."

"I love gardening," she adds. "That's my first love. And we're finishing our fence we started last year." She's also an ardent crabber. "This has been a summer pastime since I was very young," she adds.

She describes her technique: "You wade along with a washtub and a dipping net and scoop them (crabs) up as you see them." Len, she added, has clocked her at a catch rate of more than one crab per minute. "You can fill a tub in less than an hour, conditions permitting."

She adds the best conditions are calm water "so you can see the bottom" and very shallow water. "There are not many places to wade anymore with all the building," she says, "but I'd rather do this than golfing or tennis as a therapy."

Liz, certainly, is surrounded by family here, including two of her aunts, "the most regal ladies," Babe (Mrs. Ray) Wendell and Clara (Mrs. Arthur) Davis. Although still in their 80s, they're both very active, Liz said, adding, "When I say they're ladies, I mean of the old school — very proper. They probably never smoked or drank and they're good Christians."

Liz is a woman of strong faith herself. "I suppose the neatest thing in my life," she says, "is that I'm a great believer in something bigger than me, the Man Upstairs. I wouldn't have made it without my belief in something beyond me."

"I think," she says, discussing her philosophy, "we should all use our God-given talents and not be afraid to break out of our shell — be our own person."

"Every person is unique, different and loaded with ability."

Liz Devenney looks for those qualities in others — and herself.

It's what being a "people person" is all about.

Police report 'nothing unusual'

Accidents were up by two last month from July 1982, 68 traffic citations were issued and 23 arrests made during the month, but July 1983 was "nothing unusual," Police Chief Joe Hinojosa told Rockport's city council in his report to them Tuesday night.

The largest number of traffic citations — 15 — were issued for failure to show proof of liability insurance. Speeding, a leading cause of traffic tickets in prior months, was cited in 11 tickets issued in July.

Police responded to 89 alarms and made 1,589 property checks during the month, were called to assist the county eight times and the county emergency medical service nine times. They received three fire calls.

They responded to 13 reports of family disturbances, seven prowler calls, received two reports of runaways and 1,853 calls were listed as "miscellaneous."

Alcohol-related offenses continued to lead the list of reasons for arrests, with six for public intoxication and three for driving while intoxicated.

Two arrests each were made on charges of simple assault, disorderly conduct, theft, driving with license suspended, unauthorized use of motor vehicle and delivery of marijuana. Two arrests were made on warrants.

Other reasons for traffic tickets issued during the month included changing lane not in safety, two; failure to yield right-of-way, six; following too closely, five; no driver's license, five; failure to control vehicle in accident, four.

Other reasons for issue of tickets were expired license plates and expired motor vehicle inspection stickers, three each; passing on the wrong side of the road, three; standing on roadway, two.

One ticket each was issued for failure to change address on driver's license when required and failure to obtain Texas driver's license when required.

One ticket each was issued for the following offenses: defective equipment: no brakes; improper left turn; improper right turn; failure to dim lights; and improper lane change.

Eight city prisoners were incarcerated in Aransas County Jail during the month at a cost to the city of $240.

Items taken valued at $1,700

More than $1,700 in items including a color television set, cassette deck, amplifier and speakers and a camera were taken when the residence of Dan Howland was burglarized last weekend.

Also taken in the incident were a rifle, fishing rod, a fur coat, assorted men's clothes and a leather briefcase.

Russell G. Brown reported theft or loss of a woman's ring, white and yellow gold with a one-quarter carat diamond. Estimated value is $660.

A pistol valued at $175 and a belt with holster valued at $25, belonging to John Benavidez, were taken from Benavidez' pickup truck sometime prior to Aug. 5.

An incident of criminal trespass and theft of a hunting knife valued at $15 was reported by Frank Pribble after his boat in Fulton Harbor was boarded by person or persons unknown.

The incident occurred between July 4 and Aug. 4. A lock was also missing from the sailboat and the latch bent.

A charge of reckless driving was filed against a man arrested Sunday evening, Aug. 7, after he was observed by a deputy sheriff doing "wheelies" on his motorcycle on Laurel Street. The man did not have a driver's license, according to the report.

Hope completes Air Force basic training

Airman William E. Hope, son of Nettie A. Gladen of Aransas Pass, has been assigned to Lowry Air Force Base, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the supply field. His brother, Robert E. Hope, resides at 6402 Weber, Corpus Christi.

The airman is a 1980 graduate of W.B. Ray High School, Corpus Christi.

Violet Shirey retires from BCC

Violet Shirey of Rockport is retiring this month after 16 years of service to the Bee County College in Beeville (BCC).

A member of the original faculty when the college opened in 1967, Mrs. Shirey retires at the end of this month as chairman of the office occupations division.

She holds bachelor's and master's degrees from East Texas State University and was employed, prior to joining the faculty of BCC, in private industry and government. From 1947 to 1956, she was chief clerk of the Wood County Vocational School in Quitman.

She taught in Austin public schools from 1956 until 1961, then served as associate professor and supervisor of student teachers at Jarvis Christian College until 1967. She is a member of the Texas Business Education Association, Texas Junior College Teachers Association and the American Vocational Association.

During her career, she has contributed articles to various professional journals and edited a textbook, "Mathematics for Business 2," which is in use at BCC.

She was a Piper Professor nominee for excellence in teaching and details of her achievements have been listed in numerous publications including "Community Leaders and Noteworthy Americans", "Who's Who of American Women", the "National Social Directory", "Who's Who in the South and Southwest", "Notable Americans" and "International Who's Who in Community Service."

She has also been listed in the "Dictionary of International Biography", "Prominent Citizens of America" and "Community Leaders of America" among others.

She is married to William W. Shirey and the couple have one daughter, Linda Sue Perez-Shirey.

SUNDAY

(NBC) SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"A BRIDGE TOO FAR" (1977) Dirk Bogarde, James Caan, Michael Caine, Sean Connery. An epic World War II drama about the British-American plan to smash the Nazis' war production center in the Ruhr and the costly defeat they suffered as a result of the disastrous battle at the bridge in Arnhem in the Netherlands.

(ABC) SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"MIDNIGHT EXPRESS" (1978) Brad Davis. A young American, locked away in a foreign prison where brutality is rampant and escapes seem impossible, makes a desperate life-or-death struggle for freedom.

TUESDAY

(CBS) TUESDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"HEALTH" (1979) Glenda Jackson, Carol Burnett, James Garner, Lauren Bacall. Robert Altman's freewheeling satire set at a four-day national health food convention.

WEDNESDAY

(CBS) WEDNESDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"THE EXORCIST" (1973) Linda Blair, Ellen Burstyn, Max von Sydow, Jason Miller. The story of a 12-year-old girl in a prosperous home in Georgetown, Washington, D.C., who becomes possessed by demons and is finally saved when the vile spirits are exorcised and driven from her body. Miss Blair is convincing as the deranged child and Jason Miller is effective as the supportive priest.

Week of August 14-20

ARIES

(March 21-April 20) Find ways to earn extra income to meet daily needs, which keep mounting as your lifestyle changes. It is imperative that you make adjustments.

TAURUS

(April 21-May 21) There is much happiness in store for those willing to share ideas with younger people. You could become part of an organization that caters to persons of foreign origins.

GEMINI

(May 22-June 21) Cut your cost of living in order to make the grade in your chosen field of work. You will have to make sacrifices if you want to be successful in any artistic pursuit.

CANCER

(June 22-July 23) Don't keep people waiting, make your appointments and if you can't, let others know about it. You will thereby gain the respect of others and a good reputation for yourself.

LEO

(July 24-Aug. 23) Beware of sharp objects and the sun, otherwise you could end up regretting your folly of the moment. Be more observant of your needs.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Someone could be checking your background because they want to know what makes you tick. If you had been candid from the start, you wouldn't be going through the third degree.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) A youthful person could bring much happiness when all others fail you. Spend time with those important to your well-being and bring finances in focus for your own future security.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Out-of-towners may impose on your peace of mind if you allow them. Halt their efforts to cast you in the role of host.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Get involved with a new hobby. Your artistic expression will attract someone's attention. You could meet a person of distinction.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) A matter of importance must be taken care of immediately. You should not cater to a desire to get ahead at everyone's expense.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) If friends offer help with a security matter, let them go about the business of ferreting information on your behalf and be happy not to foot the bill.

PISCES

(Feb. 20-March 20) Pets or little children could cause tension. Cater to their needs but don't go overboard. Strike a happy medium for your own sake.

WINE TIPS

* Recently released results of the Connoisseur magazine wine tasting have shown three great white wines the serious wine fancier will want to try: First place went to a French white burgundy, Auxey-Duresses 1979 Louis Latour; second place was won by the esteemed winery, Clos du Val, known for their elegant European style, the Clos du val 1980 Chardonnay, and third place was given to Iron Horse 1981 Chardonnay, a label that has enjoyed many gold medals since its first crush in 1979.

* Barton and Guestier, a producer of fine French wines since 1725, is introducing to selected U.S. markets a low-alcohol, low-calorie French Blanc de Blancs, the first of the "light" wines from France. This is a remarkably full-bodied wine in the light category — just 52 calories per average serving, and alcohol at 7.1 percent.

* If your summer meal plans include such dishes as smoked salmon, broiled swordfish, lobster or pates, a perfect wine to accompany them is the newly released Callaway 1982 Fume Blanc, a 100 percent sauvignon blanc wine with intense grape flavors, full and rich in flavor, and a pleasant acidity which adds crispness to the finish.

* The Robert Mondavi Winery of Napa Valley has just released two very fine reds, their 1980 Napa Valley Cabernet Sauvignon and the 1981 Mondavi Red. The Cabernet has a marvelous fruit/oak complexity, the characteristic spicy aroma, and an elegance combined with fullness of fruit that is typical of the Mondavi style. The Mondavi Red is a medium-bodied dry wine blended from 69 percent Cabernet, with Zinfandel and Petite Sirah, resulting in a lively character and subtle complexity.

SOAP BUBBLES

"SEARCH" LIGHTS:

For "Search Tomorrow's" executive producer, Joanna Lee, discovered the soap's new Angela, Jennifer Gatti, at New York's High School for the Performing Arts.

This is the school on which the TV show, "Fame," was based ...

Cindy Gibb (Suzi, "SFT") will be leaving the show to take a part in the new TV cable production of "Fame." Her soap role will be recast ... Ms. Lee also discovered the new Danny (Cain Devore). He was in Hollywood when she found him and decided he'd be perfect as Stu Bergman's (Larry Haines) grandson. SEARCH TID-BIT: Dustin Hoffman, who played a soap star in "Tootsie," was an actor on "Search" some years ago. He definitely played a very masculine character at that time.

ELAINE PRINCI

Elaine Princi (Miranda, "As The World Turns") shared the Harry Cup Show (WKIS, Orlando, Fla.) microphones with me a few weeks ago. She credited her fans with saving her role. "Viewers saw Miranda as a woman who had suffered and deserved another chance. They wrote to the show and Miranda was not written out as originally planned." Elaine also explained the allure of women like Miranda. "They promise excitement, but they also hold out the promise of being redeemed by true love."

Gloria DeHaven (Bess, "Ryan's Hope") gave Frank Sinatra his first screen kiss in a 1944 flick, "Step Lively." She's made some 50 movies, innumerable cabaret and stage appearances, night time TV shows, and was on another soap, "As The World Turns," in the 60's. She agrees that her role on "Ryan's" may be about the best thing she's done in years. She also says that today some of the finest female roles are being written by the soap writers.

TELESCOOP: That handsome "hunk" they want to hunker down in a new role on "Capitol" is reportedly close to signing his contract.

SOAP SCRAPS: Stephen Yates, the new Jamie Frame on "Another World," was on "AW" in 1977. He played Chris Pierson for six months ... Hung up on Christopher Holder (Kevin, "Young & The Restless")? His new posters are coming out. Then you'll be able to hang him up ... Scott Bryce (Craig, "As The World Turns") is the son of Ed Bryce, who played Bill Bauer on "Guiding Light" for 12 years in the 50's and 60's. Ed recently returned to do a few segments on the soap.

LOCUS FOCUS: See Robin Strasser and Brynn Thayer (Dorian and Jenny, "One Life To Live") in "A Coupla White Chicks Sitting Around Talking" at N.Y.'s Nyack High School August 19-20. It's a benefit for the Tappan Zee Playhouse restoration fund. Call 1-914-358-6333 for ticket information.

TUBE TIP: A current soap "triangle" will become a "square." Interesting relationships will develop.

MEDICINE CHEST

Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

Is it true cancer drugs are less effective on cancer if the cancer had been undetected for a very long time? — M.C.

Generally, anti-cancer drugs are most effective against cells that are rapidly dividing. During the initial development of a tumor, the cells are rapidly dividing. As the tumor continues to develop, the rate of cell division slows down. That's another good reason for early detection and treatment of cancer.

Why doesn't my doctor prescribe a diuretic to reduce the edema caused by my pregnancy? — F.M.

Although diuretics have been widely used to prevent and treat edema and toxemia of pregnancy, there is evidence that they are less than effective. The FDA Bulletin stated: "Edema during pregnancy is very common and usually needs no treatment, the diuretics do not prevent toxemia, and that routine use of diuretics exposes mother and fetus to unnecessary risks."

Can a diabetic woman take the pill? — H.B.S.

There is no apparent increased risk for diabetics to take the pill. There is, however, a decrease in glucose tolerance in some diabetic women who take oral contraceptives. When this occurs, their doctors usually increase their insulin dose.

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE:

I am a woman in her late twenties who has been through a lot of heartbreak in a relatively short time. Consequently, I had become pretty cynical where men were concerned. In fact, I would even go so far as to say I used them. They were convenient for when I wanted to go out and have a good time. I cared nothing for them, even though some of them seemed to express genuine feelings for me.

However, quite by accident, I met the most wonderful man. While I am quite reluctant to use the word love, I will say we are quite taken with one another. We are constantly together. This situation is unusual for him and me both.

My problem is that I feel I'm falling for him in a big way. While he is reciprocating my feelings, he seems to be a lot more casual. He claims he does not want a serious relationship, but his actions are saying quite another thing. I'm quite confused and afraid of how to proceed. What do you think?

UNSURE

DEAR UNSURE

The key word in your letter is "afraid." You seem to be so frightened of getting hurt yet again, you need him to make an absolute declaration in order to make you feel secure about the relationship. Don't press for this. It's the quickest way to ruin this relationship. On the other hand, his reluctance to "get involved" while he is obviously doing so points out a different need where he is concerned. I sense he is very much his own man and feels an involvement would remove some of his independence. I suggest you play along with this. Be content with the fact that his actions are speaking louder than his words. In time, everything will fall into place for both of you. Once you know each other better, the words will start accompanying the actions. Right now, they're really not important.

DEAR DEBBIE:

I have had it! For yet another night, my neighbor upstairs has kept me awake with loud music. I have tried everything short of calling the cops. I've threatened, reasoned, pleaded, rationalized — everything, you name it. However, it's all been to no avail. I don't know what to do at this point. I'm the type of person who can't function on only a little sleep. I need my full eight hours or I'm good for nothing the next day. How can I get this clown to be more considerate?

WEARY

DEAR WEARY:

I know how upsetting these situations can be. After all, if you live in the same building, you hate to do something so drastic as calling the police. However, your neighbor is disturbing the peace, so it would not be unwarranted in this case. I would, though, use that as a last resort.

Talk to your other neighbors. Find out if they're having the same problem. If so, write a letter to the offending party and have everyone involved sign it. Then send it off to the noisy party. Make sure you state in the letter that you will be quite willing to call the police if the problem is not cleared up. Happy sleeping!

By M.A. PETTI, M.D.

It's important not to use decongestant nose drops or nasal sprays more often than recommended. If you do you'll get very temporary clearing and then much worse congestion than you started with.

Ask Kate

Was Dabney 'That Guy'?

By Kate Woods

Was Dabney Coleman, now in "Buffalo Bill," ever in "That Girl"? I have a bet with my husband that he was. — S.K.W.

Collect your winnings. Coleman appeared as Marlo Thomas' neighbor, Leon Bessemer, during the show's first season (1966-'67). Bonnie Scott played his wife.

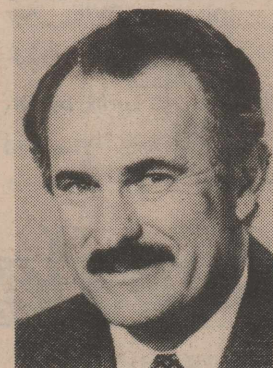

If you're a fan, you'll be pleased to know that NBC has ordered 13 new episodes of "Buffalo Bill" for next season. Whether it will be a fall or mid-season entry is still up in the air, though.

WHITHER BOONE? — Please tell me where I can write to Pat Boone? — A.J.

Boone has an office at 9255 Sunset Blvd., Suite 519, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Quick answer: Roslyn Kind

Dabney Coleman

NAUGHTY ERICA — You recently printed Susan Lucci's age as being 33. We lived in the same dorm at Marymount College in New York. She was a very nice girl, but she's more likely 36 or 37. — C.M.P.

Even nice girls sometimes lie about their age. You can take it up with her publicist.

JAWS 3-D, from Universal Pictures. Directed by Joe Alves, screenplay by Richard Matheson and Carl Gottlieb. Starring Dennis Quaid, Bess Armstrong, Louis Gossett Jr. Rated 'PG' ★★

By J.T. YURKO

Remember one of the numerous mid-'50s sci-fi films where a city (usually in Japan) is attacked by a giant prehistoric monster? All the scientists huddle together and come up with an amazing fact. The massive behemoth destroying their cities and squashing their armies is only the baby. Just wait till Mom gets here.

The same happens in "Jaws 3-D," the inevitable sequel to the original "Jaws" and the less successful "Jaws 2."

The locale here is an aquatic amusement park, a sort of Disneyland under water known as "Sea World." The park is just about ready to open when one of the gates to the open sea is left ajar. Guess who's coming to dinner? Of course it's anyone's guess as to who will be dinner.

That's the real suspense of a tale already twice told. The trappings may be different, the scenery a bit more exotic, but the song remains the same.

Dennis Quaid and Bess Armstrong are the super-hero couple struggling against a profit-hungry park owner, their conflicting careers, and two sets of Jaws, Mom's and Junior's. Both Quaid and Miss Armstrong have done better work in the past, but with what they are given here there's little chance to display their talents. The same is true of Louis Gossett Jr., an Academy Award winner last year for "An Officer and a Gentleman."

The most notable aspect of the film is that it's in 3-D. Not that the film is in 3-D, it's just shot in such a way as to give the illusion of depth. But for all the advances made in 3-D filming (not many), it's still just a gimmick, and not a successful one. The image is still fuzzy, and the effect of objects poking out is a quick and transient thrill. It will never replace the sustained thrills that can come from the talent of a filmmaker such as Steven Spielberg, director of the original "Jaws."

About the best that can be said is that filmmakers have yet to come up with a way of creating a "Jaws 4-D."

BEFORE AFTER

SOAPS by SELI
GROVES

All My Children: Lars proposed to Daisy. Donna's child was exposed to danger in her dressing room. Jenny resisted Tony's attentions. Coming: Angie has a change of heart.

Another Life: Monk went to New York with Lionel. Kate told Amber to tell Gil she's pregnant. Charles hired Dan Myers to help him win custody of Erick. Coming: Miriam has to deal with an irrational Nancy.

Another World: After escaping the hit man who was looking for him, Mark told Jamie that Stacey must pretend to give Mark up for Jamie. A private detective discovered Sally gave up her baby for adoption five years earlier. Jean died, but not before telling Larry and Blaine they have a younger half brother. Coming: Felicia's experiences as a waitress give her more material than she bargained for her book.

As The World Turns: Miranda's New York experiences began to "haunt" her. Karen's secret about Burke threatened to leak out. Ariel suspected the worst, but was far off the mark. Coming: James has Nels "try out" some new tactics with Barbara.

Capitol: Matt became upset with Amy's changing moods. Mark suggested a way to deal with Paula. Sam Clegg suggested a way Myrna could deal with Trey's resistance to the family's plans. Coming: Julie and Tyler find a bumpy spot on their honeymoon path.

Days Of Our Lives: Hope planted a kiss on Roman's lips as Marlena was driven to the camping site. Alex maneuvered closer to Renee, knowing that the second will made her Stefano's sole heiress. Mickey became violent when he learned of Maggie and Don's weekend away. Coming: Eugene's decision to wear the charm proves strangely "fortunate."

Edge Of Night: Geraldine became convinced that Sky and Raven were in more danger now than they'd ever been. Gunther was puzzled over Mitzi's attitude. Preacher and Robbie confronted each other. Coming: Miles still feels guilty, but knows he must resume a normal life in spite of his continuing grief over Nicole's death.

General Hospital: After saving Connie's life, Luke retrieved his boots with the disc in the heel. Grant worried about Celia learning too much about him. Jackie told Robert about Holly's meetings with Luke. Coming: Grant puts Natalie to the final test of his loyalty. Heather puts Scotty through a test of his feelings for her.

Guiding Light: Lesley felt pressured. Claire was insistent that Kelly be reminded about rules. Alan risked upsetting Hope by giving her news concerning Amanda. Coming: Ed's visit continues to haunt Bert's memories.

Loving: Mike realized he'd come up against a new type of "enemy." Merrill's decision soon proved more ominous than it might have been, and for a totally unexpected reason. Coming: Mike continues to make his own investigation in spite of misgivings.

One Life To Live: Vicki wanted to question Dick

Grant about Echo and Clint. Carla worried about accepting a new job that would put her in contact with Ed Hall. Coming: Brad makes a friendly "statement" that raises new anxieties for Jenny.

Ryan's Hope: After being given Last Rites, Frank and Jill agreed to be married in the hospital. Bess produced documents showing Jill is Ed Coleridge's daughter. Pat and Faith agreed that he hadn't always been fair with her e.g. marrying Delia instead of her. Coming: Both Pat's and Maeve's premonitions come true.

Search For Tomorrow: Travis delivered his son after the car accident. After experiencing morning sickness, Wendy realized she was pregnant and went to tell Warren. Suzy was the acknowledged owner of some property coveted by Warren. Coming: Warren sets his plans into motion, which sets Wendy up for a revision of her plans.

Young & The Restless: Jack's recovery was apparently set back by something Jill said. Traci consulted an expert on her recurring problem. John made plans for Jack when he would be well enough to be told about them. Coming: Dina and Ashley find a surprise waiting for each of them.
