ARMY TO MAKE SAN FRANCISCO-HAWAII FLIGHT BEFORE JULY 15

MYSTERY PLANE TO BE USED IN DISTANCE TEST

SECRECY OBSERVED IN TRANSPORTATION OF NEW MACHINE

FLIERS SELECTED

BIG FOKKER SHOWS A FAST PACE DURING TEXAS FLIGHT

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, June 17.—The United States army will attempt to make the first San Francisco-Hawaii nonstop flight not later than July 15. First Lieutenant Lester J. Maitland, pilot of the giant Fokker monoplane that will be used on the flight said tonight on his arrival at Kelly Field.

The flight will be made by Lieutenant Maitland and First Lieutenant Albert F. Hegenberger alternate pilot. The Fokker in which they will attempt the flight is being ferried from Rolling field, Washington, D. C., to San Diego, where it will be fitted for the flight. The plane will be taken to March field, near San Francisco, for the hop off as soon as tests have been completed.

Secrecy Observed

Absolute secrecy regarding the plane had been maintained throughout the trip to Kelly field but on arrival there late this afternoon, the three civilian mechanics accompanying the plane took it in charge and supervised housing of it for the night.

Both officials refused to discuss the trans-Pacific flight when they first arrived. Air corps personnel on duty at the field were used in guarding the plane but no one was permitted to approach the cabin of the big airplane.

Later when Lieutenant Maitland had news dispatches from Washington carrying an interview with Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison, regarding the flight, he admitted the army was making new flying barrels and said present plans call for the flight to start not later than July 15.

Is Fast Machine

The plane took off from Muskogee at 10:50 a. m. this morning, stopped for a short time in Dallas. The flight of more than 600 miles from Dallas to Kelly field was made in three hours and 45 minutes.

Captain Burdette S. Wright, aviations officer at Kelly field, was the only person allowed inside the cabin of the plane on its arrival here. Doors of the cabin were locked and canvas curtains had been draped over the cabin windows to prevent the curious from seeing the interior.

Lieutenant Maitland admitted that there was equipment on the plane that he was under orders to keep from the public. A few minutes later he said "I'll be glad when the chief does talk," when asked if he had any comments to make on the trip. Later he consented the announcement of Secretary Davison.

REDS EXECUTE "SPIES"

The men were arrested by the Russian political police and were taken before the Kharkov supreme court, where they were sentenced to death.

A third alleged spy, whose name was Melnik, also was arrested, but escaped. Melnik was said to have been the leader of the group.

Hide Negro Slayer To Foil Whites

COLORADO, June 17. (AP)—Precautions were taken tonight by local and county officers to prevent a demonstration or possible violence against Zack Chappell negro held in jail here on charges of murder in connection with the death of J. W. Currant, 20 year old white youth.

During funeral services for Currant this afternoon a negro baseball game was started but the players quickly left the vicinity when the attitude of white persons became hostile.

All threats of mob violence had died down late tonight, the Abilene News was advised by George H. Mahon, county attorney at Colorado. However, Chappell has been removed to a neighboring town for safe-keeping.

Currant was shot in an altercation between three white boys and three negroes in Colorado. A white youth struck one of the negroes with a wrench. After several pop bottles had been thrown by the white youths, Chappell obtained a pistol from his car and opened fire. He fired three shots, one of which took effect in Currant's stomach.

Governor Moody's appointment of Houston Harte, San Angelo newspaper publisher, as a regent of the Texas Technological college succeeding Mose Newman, Sweetwater capitalist, resigned, was greeted with satisfaction here yesterday by both officials and close friends of the institution. Coming to Texas a decade ago Mr. Harte purchased the San Angelo Standard, which publication he actively manages. In addition he is a stockholder and director of the Avalanche-Journal Publishing company of Lubbock; co-publisher of the Western Weekly Sunday newspaper magazine supplement, and one of the owners of the Sweetwater Daily Reporter. Mr. Harte is a member of the First Presbyterian church of San Angelo and is active in the Kiwanis club there.

MOODY PLACES SIGNATURE ON FINANCE BILLS

MAJOR MEASURES OF LEGISLATURE ARE APPROVED

TECH FUNDS PASSED

EDUCATIONAL BILLS ARE CUT, HOWEVER, BY GOVERNOR

AUSTIN, June 17 (AP)—Governor Dan Moody late today approved the educational judicial, eleemosynary and emergency appropriation bills after slashing an aggregate of $447,269 from the grand total of $20,944,449 in the bills as finally passed by the recent special session of the legislature.

The governor had yet to pass finally upon the departmental and miscellaneous claims and accounts bills.

The $16,344,586 educational bill withstood the heaviest cut, losing a total of $293,350 under the governor's blue pencil which struck out many new positions, need of which, he said, "can not be more than speculative at present." The non-salary items vetoed can be provided from other funds approved in the various budgets, "or from local funds," he added.

A total of $109,700 was pared from the eleemosynary institutions bill carrying $5,603,934 as passed by the legislature. $39,700 was eliminated from the $715,286 emergency bill, while the $4,889,497 judiciary bill suffered a loss of only $7,950, amounts of most of its items being statutory.

In the educational bill, the cuts fell heaviest on Texas A. and M. college, Texas Technological college at Lubbock and the University of Texas. Sixty four thousand dollars was carved from the budget of A. and M. college proper, and $5,000 for fowl brood inspection in its experiment station system. The University of Texas budget was reduced $56,000 and the $10,000 item for a laboratory of physical therapy was eliminated from its Galveston medical branch's budget. Cuts in the Tech college budget totalled $45,500.

The state juvenile training school at Gatesville was the heaviest loser in the eleemosynary bill, with total cuts of $35,700, of which $20,000 was for one of the two new dormitories. A total of $29,800 was sliced from the Austin state school for feeble minded, including $18,000 for a new office building. Furniture and office equipment items constituted the main elimination in the judiciary and emergency bills. Twenty nine thousand five hundred dollars came from the Texas university medical branch, Galveston, budget, for furniture and for a new nurses' home, in the latter bill.

Twenty thousand dollars was elided from the budget of the college of industrial arts, Denton, in the educational bill. Of this sum, $12,000 was proposed for repairs and improvements, paving and walks.

The Prairie View normal and Industrial College for negroes' budget took a cut of $11,000 mainly building repair and improvement, driveway and truck items.

Machine Guns Are Now Forgotten

ARMED GUARDS PROTECTING "OUR MARY" ARE REMOVED WITH KIDNAPING DANGER OVER

Mary Pickford

Douglas Fairbanks

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 17.—Mary Pickford apparently had forgotten tonight that she had been cast in a new kidnaping sensation.

Not a machine gun or any other kind of a gun was in evidence about the studios where the actress worked late today. This was taken to indicate that studio officials thought the danger to the little star, if any had existed, was definitely past.

Considerable excitement was caused last night and guards thrown about Pickfair home of Miss Pickford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, in Beverly Hills, when it was reported that she was the intended victim of a kidnaping plot. Two men are now serving sentences in the state penitentiary following unearthing of a similar plot two years ago.

LINDY IN ST. LOUIS

Big Reception Planned For Today By Home Town Of American Ace Of Aviators

ST. LOUIS, June 17. (AP)—A graceful, silver monoplane, piloted by a workworn biplane of the United States air mail service, hummed suddenly out of the deep haze hanging over Lambert-St. Louis field at 3:32 o'clock this afternoon and five minutes later Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was home.

Of all the planes up to meet the world-acclaimed hero, only that piloted by a buddy of the air mail service from which the young history maker is on leave was able to find him in the murky fifteen miles between the flying field and St. Louis. It was flown by Philip R. ("Red") Love.

St. Louis' public acclaimant youth, who has spread its fame before the eyes of the world for more than a month since he hopped here from San Diego and thence to New York for his epochal solo flight to Paris, was saved for tomorrow and Sunday, when all the honors that a grateful city and state can bestow will be heaped upon those which already have been showered upon his at home and abroad.

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—The revised plan for the southwest railroad unification, sponsored by Leonor F. Loree is believed to revolve around either the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, or a new company, as a nucleus, it was learned here today, instead of the Kansas City Southern, the proposed road in the original plan, rejected by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Activity of the stocks on the stock exchange today was accompanied by rumors that the deal was projected on an exchange of common shares on the basis of two of "Katy" for one of "Cotton Belt". Aside from declaring that a tentative drift of the new plan has been made, Mr. Loree declined to discuss his consolidation plan except in general terms.

BLACK RIDDLED BY POSSE AFTER SHERIFF SLAIN

OFFICER SHOT DOWN BY INSANE TENANT OF TENNESSEE

HAD MADE THREATS

HAIL OF LEAD WENT INTO BARRICADED CABIN FORT

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Tenn., June 17—Sheriff T. P. (Dick) Caldwell of Henry county, was shot and instantly killed this afternoon by an insane negro and the negro was killed an hour later by a posse of infuriated citizens who surrounded the cabin in which he had barricaded himself, and riddled his body with bullets.

While the posse was forming, the sheriff lay on the ground in the rain near the cabin as the negro, armed with a doubled barreld shot gun, kept every one at a distance.

Threatened Relative

Joseph Upchurch, the negro, went to his sister-in-laws' home about noon and threatened to kill her, saying his life had ben threatened by members of a fraternal order. She ran to the home of Charles Goldston, a deputy sheriff, on whose place she was a tenant, and Goldston summoned the sheriff.

Caldwell, accompanied by Goldston and Anderson Clendening, another deputy, went to the cabin and the sheriff, in the lead, placed his hand on the door. Just as he did so, Upchurch jerked it open suddenly and fired a shot gun at him point blank, the charge striking the officer just below the right shoulder. With a cry "boys, he's got me" the sheriff staggered about eighteen paces and expired.

Cabin Guarded

Goldston went for aid, while Clendening guarded the cabin. The negro appeared at the door once and fired at the guard, but missed. News of the killing spread rapidly and automobiles bearing armed and determined men began arriving from every direction despite roads made slippery by heavy rains.

Within an hour, about 150 persons had gathered and as plans were being made for storming the negro's stronghold, Upchurch appeared at the door and calmly lighted his pipe.

The posse began to close in on him then but before they had reached the house, guns began to fire in the crowd. The negro's body was riddled with shots from a rifle and shot gun. Orders were issued that he was not to be removed until after the inquest set for tomorrow. The sheriff's body was brought back to Paris.

Upchurch was out of ammunition but by his side was an axe, and a search of the house showed he had ransacked it thoroughly for additional shells. Upchurch was a

Dictator To Take Charge Of Chinese

PEKING, June 17. (AP)—Sweeping reorganization of the northern alliance in China with Marshal Chang Eso-Lin as political and military dictator to offer a solid front against the invading nationalists of the south was announced today by a spokesman for the Ankuochun, the present organization of the allied northern armies.

This reorganization the northerners declare will surely fuse the northern armies which have been loosely cooperating under the direct leadership of their own commanders and will arouse a new spirit which will restore the importance of Peking which has been politically dead for the past year.

It was admitted that the peace negotiations which were under way between Chang-Eso-Lin, Chiang Kai-Shek, generalissimo of the Nanking or moderate nationalists and Yen Hsi-Shen, governor of Chenzi province have lapsed, the Ankuochun contending that the southerners did not show the necessary sincerity."

BYRD FLIGHT DELAYED

Bad Weather Conditions Over the Atlantic Causes Airman to Postpone His Attempt

NEW YORK, June 17 (AP)—Unfavorable weather caused Richard E. Byrd to postpone his trans-Atlantic flight today, at least until Sunday night. That was the first moment he believed conditions could possibly be sufficiently improved to permit a hop off.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON REFORM PASSES

WOULD REMOVE COURT OF CIVIL APPEALS FROM SYSTEM

LAWYERS BLAMED

RECOMMEND THAT THE HIGHER COURTS BE ENLARGED

(By Associated Press)

EL PASO, June 17.—Acting on the suggestion of E. G. Senter, chairman of their special committee on court reform procedure, members of the Texas Press association went on record today as favoring the abolition of courts of civil appeals in Texas an enlarging the supreme court so as to handle the work now done by the lower tribunals.

In support of his request, Senter, former state senator from Dallas, himself an attorney and the founder of the old Fort Worth Gazette, launched a scathing attack on lawyers and courts of civil appeals in which he said:

We will never have decent courts and there will never be suppression of crime until we lick the lawyers to a frazzle.

The recommendation that the press association go on record as favoring the abolition of the courts of civil appeals was approved after J. H. Lowry, Honey Grove, raised the point that the report of the committee headed by Mr. Senter was of a political nature.

Measure Passes

Robert L. Baldridge, Clifton, president of the association, ruled that the special committee was appointed to make such a report and that the association had the right to accept or reject it.

The fill over the recommendation was the first which has marked the annual convention of the association.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST — Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, ham omelet, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Cold sliced cottage ham, potato salad, rye bread, fruit jelly with whipped cream, milk, tea.

DINNER—Broiled lamb chops, baked potatoes, creamed spinach, head lettuce with Roquefort cheese dressing, cherry pudding, milk, coffee.

The potato salad suggested in the luncheon menu gains distinction by the addition of sardines. The use of beets or pimentoes in garnishing adds an interesting touch of color to an otherwise rather pale dish.

Potato Salad

Two cups diced cooked potatoes, 4 tablespoons broken sardines, 3-4 cup diced celery, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, 3 drops onion juice, 2 hard cooked eggs, 3-4 cup mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt.

Sprinkle potatoes with salt, parsley and onion juice. Cover and let stand on ice for an hour. Sprinkle sardines with lemon juice, cover and let stand on ice one hour. Combine potatoes, sardines, celery and eggs cut in dice. Add mayonnaise and mix lightly with a wooden fork. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with strips or strips of pickled beets.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Summer

If you want to find out whether your friends, relatives and acquaintances are really intelligent, just passing bright, or plain morons, listen to them talk, and reflect upon it. A certain renowned psychologist who has been passing the time away by dodging around corners, listening to people talk, says that the highest type of person talks of ideas; the next highest talks of material things, and the lowest talks of personalities.

Oh come now, isn't that a bit arbitrary? If you mean just the highest cold intellectual type," maybe you're right, Mr. Scientist. But I am inclined to think that the truly highest type, that type of person whose vast human sympathies mellow and comfort the world, the people who never heard of an ism or an ology, but who are the first to hear the call of a human in need, talk about little or nothing but personalities, and hardly deserve the title of "Morons."

THE BABY'S NAME

Speaking of names and ologies, they tell us now that the unborn child really names himself or herself. They say that when little Percey, grown into a big Percey, rebukes his parents for foisting such a name on him, he has only himself to blame as his own self, tiny and unborn though it was, dictated the name. And when daughter Gwonny asks you why you inflicted such a name upon her, tell her that she only did it herself. It's the science of numerology which explains all this.

"HIS" BREAKFAST

There's a certain time-honored old tradition which says that ye may spot a good wife by whether or not she arises and prepares her lord and master's breakfast. The world of fiction has long engaged itself with tales of slacker wives who snored on their downy couch whilst, in the cold gray hours, their better halves either prepared a dreary meal for themselves, eaten alone in the marital kitchen or dining room, or else fared forth into the unfeeling world and ate on a lunch counter stool, flanked by other unhappy specimens of the genus husband.

A NEW SLANT

It amused me much to hear a husband talk in this wise the other morning. "Well, I had breakfast down town this morning. Wife was away. Gee, I enjoyed it. I never feel like eating breakfast at home, and just nibble around, but by the time I've had a little air I'm hungry as a bear. That generally means a second breakfast before I go to the office. I've tried tactfully to tell the wife to stay abed, and explain that I'd rather get breakfast down town, but she has been raised in the good old tradition that no real wife so abuses her spouse as neglecting to fed him in the cold gray dawn. Selah!"

MORE OF IT

Connected more or less with the above idea is a recent magazine article called "Mother" by Virginia Terhune Van der Water, in which, she a mother of the older generation, in years, so clearly analyzes the mother legend of the then and the now, that she proves herself a modern in mind if not in body. All mothers who just can't get the point of view of their modern sons and daughters should read this. The author hangs all the trouble on the fact that mothers who were raised in the old-fashioned mother tradition, which glorified a woman for performing a natural biological function and living the life she chose to live, the life of motherhood, can hardly be expected to get the point of view of today's generation which says that all this mother twaddle is sentimental bunk; that mothers only did the job of their own choosing, very often getting away with more murder on their job than other people did on their jobs, and, even when they did a bully mother job, only doing their duty by bringing a child in to the world. It's the next generation of mothers who will have the right idea, says the author. But don't expect too much of the present generation!

BUILDING IS RAPID AT PLAINVIEW NOW

TOTAL OF QUARTER OF A MILLION RECORDED BY THAT CITY

PLAINVIEW, June 17—Building permits at Plainview so far this year total a quarter million dollars according to W. J. Klinger, who keeps a complete record of all building activity in the city. To date sixty residences totaling in value two hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars have been built, and business improvements totaling twenty-five thousand dollars have been started and completed in the same length of time.

Outside of these several larger improvements which were started in 1926 have ben finished, including the First Baptist church, a hundred thousand dollar structure which was opened for its first services two weeks ago.

Many Improvements

Other business improvements this year include the rebuilding of the Plainview Laundry plan, or the replacement of the old building with a tile and stucco structure; the remodeling of the building in which the F. W. Woolworth business is now located; the new brick of Clay Barrows, Stephens and Shelton's new oil house; the Co-Operative Fuel association's new building; Northcutt's lumber yard, and the completion of four brick business houses by J. N. Jordan and J. C. Anderson, Jr.

Public improvements by the city of Plainview during the year include several blocks of white-way, which makes Plainview one of the best lighted cities in West Texas. White-ways on all paved streets in the business section of the city have been completed and numerous lights placed on the residential streets since the first of January.

Want Gas Supply

Natural gas for Plainview this winter is the aim of the West Texas Gas company, a subsidiary of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, according to R. F. Hinchery, vice-president and general manager of the West Texas company. Work is already under way on the main line of the gas people from the Amarillo fields to Plainview and other South Plains cities.

Plants have even more kinds of diseases than people do. You ought to be glad you're not a spinach.

Produce Capacity Essential to Car

PLAINVIEW, June 17—The family automobile must fit the needs of the dairy and poultry industry in the Plainview country according to Mrs. Albert Smith of Lockney who purchased a new large sedan last week at Plainview only after she had definitely determined that the rear seat offered enough room to carry her two cream cans and a crate of eggs to town.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who have been raising poultry, and producing cream for a number of years, found themselves needing a new automobile. The make of the car was finally agreed upon, and Mrs. Smith told the dealer at Plainview that she thought the car she was looking at was the one she wanted, but that if he didn't mind she would like to drive it around the block a minute and wanted him to go with her. She drove to her old flivver, opened the door of the car, which was a coach, pulled two cream cans out of the old car, set them in the rear of the new car and then her egg crate. Finding that they fitted, she told the dealer she would buy the car, but she couldn't use any car, regardless of how fine it was unless it could carry those cream cans and the egg crate.

Blackhull Wheat Gains In Favor

FLOYDADA, June 17—A new variety of wheat, known here as the black hull, is proving its worth in this county this year. For several years the prevailing variety of wheat was equally divided between the well known turkey red and the kahred. Black hull was introduced about three years ago and has rapidly become a favorite, there being approximately 20,000 acres sowed to this grain this year. Yields from black hull wheat have proven to be better than any other variety. To test the different kinds one farmer sowed black hull next to his other varieties and the yield was from two to five bushels per acre more and the test from one to three pounds more.

In preparing an agricultural exhibit for the different state fairs the Floydada chamber of commerce has found the black hull wheat to be better quality than the other varieties and it probably will be shown exclusive of any other wheat. The greatest yield in the county recorded to date was made by J. L. Hammonds who harvested 30 1-5 bushels per acre from forty acres of the black hull.

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic — Peter Teaches Good Citizenship.

Scripture Lesson—1 Peter 2:11-17 4:1-5.

(Temperance Lesson)

I Peter 2:11, Beloved, I beseech you as sojourners and pilgrims, to abstain from fleshy lusts, which war against the soul.

12. Having your behavior seemly among the Gentiles; that, wherein they speak against you as evil-doers, they may by your good works, which they behold, glorify God in the day of visitation.

13. Be subject to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake: whether to the king, as supreme.

14. Or unto governors, as sent by him for vengeance on evil-doers and for praise to them that do well.

15. For so is the will of God, that by well-doing ye should put to silence the ignorance of foolish men.

16. As free, and not using your freedom for a cloak of wickedness, but as bond-servants of God.

17. Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king.

1 Pet. 4:1 Forasmuch then as Christ suffered in the flesh, arm ye yourselves also with the same mind; for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin;

2 That ye no longer should live the rest of your time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God.

3 For the time past may suffice to have wrought the desire of the Gentiles, and to have walked in lasciviousness, lusts, winebibbings, revellings, carousings, and abominable idolatries:

4 Wherein they think it strange that ye run not with them into the same excess of riot, speaking evil of you.

5 Who shall give account to him that is ready to judge the living and the dead.

Time:—Peter's first epistle was written about A. D. 64 or 65 and his second epistle perhaps in A. D. 68, just before Peter's martyrdom. Others give these dates two or three years earlier.

Place:—The first epistle of Peter was written probably at Babylon and for the Christians of Asia Minor.

Golden Text:—Love worketh no ill to his neighbor.—Rom. 13:10.

The Close of Peter's Life

The last mention of Peter in the Acts is in the account of the first church council in Jerusalem, held to discuss the relations of the Christian church to Gentile converts to Christianity,—a question full of difficulty and of peril to the church, which Peter's wisdom and courage did much to settle (Acts 15:6-11). Tradition tells how Peter became an apostle to Syria, and how, near the end of his life, he went to Rome, where he suffered martyrdom under Nero, asking to be crucified head downward as it was too great an honor to be executed in the same way as his Lord. There is a beautiful story to the effect that when Peter's friends urged him to preserve his valuable life he yielded and fled from Rome, but as he left the city he had a vision of Jesus hastening toward it. "Domine quo vadis?" Peter asked (Lord whither art thou going?) Jesus replied, "I go again to be crucified in thy stead." Whereupon Peter at once answered, "I go to obey thy command," and returned to Rome to meet his doom.

Life, A Brief Pilgrimage, v. 11

"Beloved, I beseech you as sojourners and pilgrims." In beginning with these words a new section of his Epistle, Peter returns to the opening words (I Pet. 1:1), for the letter is addressed to the Christian Jews scattered everywhere over Asia Minor. Here, however, the thought is more general, reminding the reader that, wherever he may be, in this life he is only a pilgrim journeying to his permanent home in heaven. Let him, then, possess the pilgrim virtues of strength, firmness, perseverance, simplicity, and hardihood. A sojourner carrying for a few days in a strange country, must not adopt the vices of that country or its habits of ease and luxury. If he does, he will settle down there, and never get to his journey's end, the fair, rich land he has set before him and his goal.

Christians Setting a Good Example v. 12

"Having your behavior seemly among the Gentiles!" Let it be beautiful and upright, irreproachable and winsome, and the world will be won to the Saviour. They are to be known by their fruits. Every Christian has in charge the reputation of his Master and of the entire church. "They may by your good works, which they behold, glorify God." Peter must have been thinking of his Master's command which he heard him give (Matt. 5:16), that his followers should let their light shine so that men might see their "good works" and "glorify" their Father in heaven. There is no better way to answer calumnies than by a good life. "Christians would prefer that Christianity should not be judged by their conduct. But there is no escape. The Christian must be better than other men. If he is not better, Christianity breaks down."

Law Abiding Citizens. vs. 13-17

"Be subject to every ordinance of man." Paul insists upon the same thing, at greater length: Rom. 13: 1-7. If in those days, when the laws so often originated in tyranny, the Christians were urged to obey them implicitly, that Christ's good name might not be tarnished and that their enemies might have no hold upon them, how much more should the principle be obeyed in our free republic, where the laws are made by the people's representatives, and where all government is so promptly responsive to the will of the people. "For the Lord's sake." Not for your own sake, that men may honor you as a model citizen, but for the honor of Christ, whom you represent." "Whether to the king, as supreme." The reference is to Nero, Emperor of Rome, a monster in human form. If the Christians of Peter's day were bidden to obey one of the most cruel and despicable sovereigns who ever sat on a throne, how much more should we of today honor the men, almost always honorable, well-meaning and able whom we select as our public officials!

"Honor All Men" v. 17

But what if the men are not honorable? Still every man, however wicked or degraded, bears about the image of God, though sadly defaced, and that image is to be honored in him. God had taught Peter in a wonderful way, on the housetop in Joppa, "not to call any man common or unclean." The apostle had not forgotten the lesson. "As Michelangelo sees in the rough block of marble the winged angel struggling to be free; as the artist Flexman, walking in the slums, sees the beauties and possibilities of the human face divine even under the dirt and squalor of the gutter child, even so with pity and reverence the true Christian sees even in the lowest the marred work of Him who breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life."

Law Enforcement Needed Today

"A government which does not enforce its laws is unworthy of the name of a government, and can not expect to hold either the support of its own citizens, or the respect of the informed opinion of the world. These problems (of prohibition enforcement) must be taken directly to the American people. This government is their government; these laws are their laws. They have formed their government and enacted their laws, with all due solemnity, to promote their welfare and protect their liberties. They are not a nation of enebriates; they are not a people who can be charged with being hypocrites. They have no patience with anarchy. They are a sober, frank, and candid people. They have respect and reverence for duly constituted authority. To them the law is a rule of action. These fundamental characteristics are not going to be changed. The great body of people are thoroughly law-abiding. This great law-abiding element of the nation is entitled to support and protection."—President Calvin Coolidge.

The Great Day of Accounting v. 5

"Who shall give account to him that is ready to judge the living and the dead. The Christian's enemies call him to account, quite forgetting the terrible day when they themselves shall be called to account for the deeds done in the flesh, and among other deeds for the ridiculing and reviling of God's servants. Peter had heard his Master many times picturing the judgment, when all men, ranged before him, shall be compelled to give account of their stewardship (Luke 16:2) That accounting, with its resulting penalties and rewards, is proceeding among the living from day to day, and the sum of accounts will be cast on the last day for the eternal condemnation or the eternal blessedness of the dead.

The Eighteenth Amendment

The Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States was adopted by the necessary three-fourths of the states by January 16, 1919, and went into force a year from that date. It was the first amendment to have a time limit for its adoption, seven years being set; but it was adopted within one year and twenty-nine days. It has been ratified by forty-six states, all but Rhode Island and Connecticut, with 1.8 per cent of our population. At the time when the Eighteenth Amendment became effective, thirty-six states had adopted prohibition, nineteen having put it into their constitutions. The Volstead Act has defined an intoxicating liquor to be one containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume. This definition had been for many years in use by the United States Government for the enforcement of the Internal Revenue laws, and had been suggested by the liquor dealers themselves. Thirty-four states had adopted this standard. Wine and beer are intoxicating and can never be sold legally unless the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed —and that repeal is impossible. If any state should attempt to bring back beer and wine, the supreme court, in harmony with its former decisions, would declare such a law unconstitutional.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Lord, of Temple and Mrs. W. R. Kiser, of Granger, passed through Lubbock yesterday enroute to Los Angeles, California, where they will visit for several weeks. Mrs. Kiser visited her nephew, Scott Fikes, a Tech student, while here.

CULTIVATED ATTAINMENTS

There is something extremely fascinating in quickness; and most men are desirous of appearing quick. The great rule for becoming so is, by not attempting to appear quicker than you really are; by resolving to understand yourself and others, and to know what you mean, and what they mean, before you speak or answer.

Every man must submit to be slow before he is quick; and insignificant before he is important. The too early struggle against the pain of obscurity corrupts no small share of understandings. Well and happily has that man conducted his understanding who has learned to derive from the exercise of it regular occupation and rational delight; who, after having overcome the first pain of application, and acquired a habit of looking inwardly upon his own mind, perceives that every day is multiplying the relations confirming the accuracy, and augmenting the number of his ideas; who feels that he is rising in the scale of intellectual beings, gathering new strength with every new difficulty which he subdues, and enjoying today as his pleasure that which yesterday he labored at as his toil.

There are many consolations in the mind of such a man which no common life can ever afford, and many enjoyments which it has not to give! It is not the mere cry of moralists, and the flourish of rhetoricians; but it is noble to seek truth, and it is beautiful to find it. It is the ancient feeling of the human heart—that knowledge is better than riches; and it is deeply and sacredly true!

To mark the course of human passions as they have flowed on in the ages that are past; to see why nations have risen, and why they have fallen; to speak of heat, and light, and winds; to know what man has discovered in the heavens above, and in the earth beneath; to hear the chemist unfold the marvelous properties that the Creator has locked up in a speck of earth; to be told that there are worlds so distant from our sun that the quickness of light traveling from worlds creation has never reached us; to wander in the creations of poetry, and grow warm again, with that eloquence which swayed the democracies of the old world; to go up with great reasoners to the First Cause of all and to perceive in the midst of all this dissolution and decay, and cruel separation, that there is one thing unchangeable, indestructible, and everlasting;—it is worth while in the days of our youth to strive hard for this great discipline; to pass sleepless nights for it to give up to it laborious days; to spurn for it present pleasures; to endure for it afflicting poverty; to wade for it through darkness, and sorrow, and contempt, as the great spirits of the world have done in all ages and all times.

A REVIVAL OF RELIGION

It may not appeal to the business world very much, and it may not be a matter of much importance to the Retail Merchants Association, and the business men in general, but we believe the statement that we are going to make is a correct one, and not only correct, but it's one of vast importance regarding the condition of business in the future.

We are going to make the statement that what this country needs (and we are going to include the entire nation of America) is a genuine revival of religion. This will do more to build up a better line of credit, and collect accounts than all of the retail merchants associations, all the lawyers, and collecting agencies in the nation. When one gets filled with a debt-paying quality of religion it will not take collection agents or collecting lawyers to collect the accounts outstanding. They will be brought to a mutual settlement in a lot less time than under any other condition. It therefore appears to us that there could be nothing better done in this community than to have revival meetings that will bring to the community such a blessing of Holy Ghost religion that accounts will be paid and cold checks made good. We imagine that if some one would come along with a proposition that would bring about such results that the average business man would jump at it, with eagerness, and pay several hundred dollars for the scheme, yet when the season of revivals come along we are just wondering how seriously the people of this community will look upon it. How many will close their stores for an hour each day for three or four weeks in order that the employees and the customers of the store may attend the services. Yet to our mind the business man could not make a better investment, and it will be the means of collecting more bills and cold checks than any other one thing. Debt paying religion would mean much to the business man of Lubbock, and we hope the men in business in this city will take this view of it and will do everything in their power to bring about a genuine revival of religion in this city this summer.

GREAT TASKS AHEAD FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

After returning to their homes and starting the crops anew—laboriously seeding the muddy fields by hand before they could enter them with horse and plow—farmers in the inundated Mississippi Valley, all the way from Cario to the Gulf, face the menace of a new visitation.

As the result of torrential rains in the Middle West, another crest is moving down the great river. With the gapping breaches in the levees torn by the previous flood, still unmended, a comparatively small volume of water suffices to send the stream out of banks upon fresh destruction.

Such a contingency already has arrived in Illinois, Kentucky, Arkansas and Mississippi; the Louisiana fields—latest to be released—likewise are threatened. What is described as "a desperate situation" has ensued. With their crops destroyed a second time, it would not be surprising should these people, stricken with dismay, give up the attempt. By the time the waters subside again it will be too late to plant cotton, and there is little incentive to sow even feed crops which may be harvested after a few weeks, so long as the prospect that another downpour will flood the fields anew, remains.

The logical course would be to repair the breaks as soon as possible; but the difficulties in the way of such an undertaking are stupendous. Even roads for the transportation of materials are lacking; but as rapidly as can be, no doubt this condition will be remedied.

These developments increase the burden upon the Red Cross relief organization. Henry M. Baker, director, estimates at 400,000 acres the area flooded anew, and it probably will be enlarged. The period elapsing before the residents can be re-established on a self-supporting basis must be extended for weeks, perhaps months. This added expense must be charged against the flood and, ultimately, against the failure heretofore to take adequate preventive measures.

There are many of the young men who have recently graduated from our high schools throughout the State, who are today seeking employment with not one solitary bit of training for business, and hence are so handicapped that it is enough to discourage the bravest hearted one of them when he goes on a search for work, and finds that everyone whom he converses with on the subject wants to know if he has had any experience in their line of business, and if not he usualy gets very little encouragement, and it s with this in view that we have come to believe that there should be at least an ordinary business course given them in the half or at least a portion of the last two years that a boy or girl who goes to high school, may have some sort of experience or at least some idea of business, when he hits the streets looking for a job.

Nearly every town of any importance is looking out for all the highways they can get. They realize that the big travel is coming by automobile from now on. It is a fact that automobiles carry more people than the trains, and therefore the town that does not look well after the needs of the auto tourists is going to be the town that will suffer loss of business. People who travel spend a lot of money and they see things and they keep them in their minds so that they become walking and talking advertisements of the towns and the roads over which they travel. Exceptionally bad roads through Lubbock county will stick in their minds for many months, and they may never forget, while on the other hand the reverse would be equally as effective, except in an entirely different way.

Lubbock no doubt has the brightest future of any city on the South Plains. There is plenty of progress here. There are many big things happening around this city. It is going on in a quiet way, and no great amount of fuss is raised, but Lubbock is beyond any doubt the leading city of this section of the State in size, and importance commercially. Lubbock is looked forward to as the next big city of the West, and we are confident that no one is going to be disappointed.

OUT OUR WAY — By Williams

SO THINK WE

We think the farmers of this section will never have any trouble raising plenty of stuff, such as chickens and turkeys and butter, and cream, but there is just a little weak place in the system of disposing of it in a way that will prove profitable the year round. Pooling your products and standardization is the only way the farmer will ever be able to get what he should for his produce. The Lubbock chamber of commerce is working on this sort of proposition now and hopes in the near future to be able to give the farmers some valuable information on the plan of marketing that some of the communities have that will give the farmers a steady, good market for their products the year round.

—o—

We think there must be a great many people who do not think, or they would not do some of the things that they do.

—o—

We think some folks are certainly lucky or they would have been killed a long time ago. Some of them run automobiles at "break-neck speed" all the time.

—o—

We think the Leckney Beacon is very optimistic when it says that we do not have to have rain to make a crop on the Plains. That's a little strong, but the Beacon possibly meant that it did not take rain during a certain period of the crop growing season. There is one thing sure and that is we can get along with less rain than any place we ever saw, and still have good crops.

—o—

We think millions of people will be glad if the report is true that Nungesser and Coli are really safe. The French flyers were the first to attempt the non-stop flight from Paris to New York, but disappeared enroute and have not been seen or heard of till yesterday when reports were in the air that they are probably safe in Canada, in some of the unsettled remote parts of the country, and are making their way back to the settlements.

—o—

We think that Col. Lindbergh would like to have a rest and we know that the rest of us would appreciate it very much.

OPINIONS

A BOY'S GOOD NAME

A boy has no better asset than a good name. Those whose forbears have lived such lives as reflect credit and honor on the family name are fortunate. To bequeath a good name to a boy or a girl is no merit, not to do it is a positive demerit. Every boy and girl should start out in life with a good family name. It is a right of which many are deprived.

A boy with health, ambition and a good name has more than an even break in the race of life.

There is genuine pathos in the story told The Herald last week by a Plainview business man who told of boys attempting to burglarize his place of business. "I have seen these boys almost daily. I had learned to like them and you cannot imagine how it hurt me to find out that they had transgressed the law," he said. "Subsequently my store was actually entered and goods taken. I hated to lose the goods, but my regret over losing thirty or forty dollars worth of goods is nothing to compare with the pain that was caused me by losing confidence in those two boys. They didn't actually get into the store of course, but in the eyes of the law their attempt is as serious as if they had actually effected entrance."—Plainview Herald.

THE MENACING ROAD HOG

Automobile clubs are getting after the "road hog." The secretary of one of the biggest clubs in the country pronounces him a serious menace to traffic, whether on city street or country highway. He asks the police authorities to wage war against the "selfish ten-miles-an-hour driver who refuses to give the other motorist a chance on the road," just as war is waged against the motorist who drives at excessive speed.

Every normal driver knows the harm done by the stubborn fellow who insists on getting over on the left, out in the middle of the road, and then poking along at less than the normal traffic speed, refusing to budge from his place in spite of honking horn and bawlouts and ugly looks.

The place for such drivers, of course, is on the right over against the curb, wherever the road is wide enough for two lines of traffic in each direction. If they prefer to drive in the middle of the road, for any reason, when going slowly, they should at least move over to let by them, drivers who are in more of a hurry. The traffic laws almost everywhere provide that a driver must do this, when requested by a signal from a car behind, but the rule is seldom enforced.

It is not merely a matter of courtesy, but a matter of keeping traffic moving, and a matter of safety. Any highway will accommodate twice as many cars if none of them block it by hogging the road. And about half the accidents in city and country, are caused by the drivers who persist in getting in the way and refuse to yield to others.—Gainesville Register.

BRIGHT MINDS

All truth is safe and nothing else is safe; and he who keeps back the truth, or withholds it from men, from motives of expediency, is either a coward or a criminal, or both.—Max Muller.

God is to be our father, yet we are far from being fathers to our own children. We presume to have insight into divine things and yet we neglect as unworthy of notice those human relations which are a key to the divine.—Friedrich Froebel.

A bad man is wretched amidst every earthly advantage; a good man—troubled on every side, yet not distressed, perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not forsaken cast down, but not destroyed.—Plato.

God gave man an upright countenance to survey the heavens, and to look upward to the stars.—Ovid.

Melody has by Beethoven been freed from the influence of Fashion and changing Taste, and raised to an ever-valid, purely human type. Beethoven's music will be understood to all time, while that of his predecessors will, for the most part, only remain intelligible to us through the medium of reflection on the history of art.—Richard Wagner.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that Colonel Lindbergh has arrived ok, and is having the time of his life. He can understand nearly all that the people say to him on this side of the water, but he had to depend largely on signs over in France.

It is reported that the vaults in Washington are bursting with gold and silver, and the income tax is going to have to be reduced to prevent an over supply of money in the government vaults. Still the managers of the government would put a fellow in prison for failure to pay five or ten dollars income tax. That is a matter of example, we presume, that others might not go and do likewise.

It is reported that Hale county accused Lubbock people for defeating the recent road bond. Shame on you Hale county folk. We did not even vote, and you said so little about your election that few people down this way really knew what you were up to. That is possibly one reason that your election was not a success—you did not talk about it enough.

It is reported that Barnham said there was a fool born every minute. That was away back yonder. Everything has speeded up since that time, and we are confident that there are more of them now.

It is reported that the people of Big Spring are afraid there is going to be a land rush on the town, and that there are going to be more people want to buy lots there than they have. Possibly if they will level down some of the hills over there they will have more lots.

It is reported that quite a number of Lubbock business men get all of their advertising matter made out of Lubbock, but those same fellows are pretty reckless in their remarks about other people buying things in some other city.

The respondent was being examined in lunacy proceedings.

"Correct. Who was our second President?"

"Correct."

Then there was a pause.

"I ain't sure who was third President myself."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Johnny, ten years old, applied for a job as grocery boy for the summer. The grocer wanted a serious minded youth, so he put Johnny to a little test.

"Well, my boy, what would you do with a million dollars?" he asked.

"Oh, gee, I don't know—I wasn't expecting so much at the start."

OIL TESTS

The well rig and supplies for the test well to be drilled west of Abernathy, arrived here Tuesday evening, and immediate preparations were made for unloading and transporting to the location of the well. Actual unloading of the rig will be started today, and it is expected that the material will be on the ground by the early part of next week. In addition to the rig, there are thirteen truck loads of material and supplies to be hauled to the location.

Following a delay of several days on the road, the arrival of the rig caused quite a little stir in Abernathy and many people made the trip down to the depot to inspect it.

The rig is a Star 30, capable of drilling to a depth of 3,500 feet, and drilling operations will be in charge of T. Ray Garnett, who has just completed the drilling of three wells for Mr. Mims in the Fry field in Coleman and Brown counties.

A. S. Mims, contractor for the test well, was here Wednesday and fixed the location. The new test will be made 660 feet northwest of the old well drilled a year or two ago, and in which traces of oil were discovered.

The location is given as the south ¼ of section 17, block X, on the W. A. Richter place. W. J. Williams, county surveyor, was here Wednesday and assisted Mr. Mimms in making the location.

Much interest is being evidenced in oil circles over the Abernathy test, the showings of the previous test, and the recent showing in the test well at Hale Center giving promise of production being had here.—Abernathy Review.

The South Plains will no doubt have many more tests for oil in the very near future. The Abernathy people have confidence in the territory around that city, they believe there is something there worth while, and are willing to make another try. One unfavorable test is not to be taken as a final test, and the people of the South Plains believe there is something worth while in this country.

GOING FORWARD

Borger's vote on the road bonds yesterday was a credit to the city.

Seven hundred votes were tallied Of these, only 38 were against the bonds. These people voted the way they thought, just as did the 662 that voted for the bonds. The good thing is they voted. The vote is an expression of the sentiment of the people. Seven hundred does not seem many votes, compared to the population of the town, but Borger's newness keeps many of its citizens from being qualified to vote by length of residence, and 700 is really a very creditable showing.

A big vote on bond issues show an intelligent people, interested in public affairs.

All over the county a similar interest was exhibited. Stinnett and Pantex joined Borger in polling heavy votes for the bonds, other communities voted against them, but the point is, they voted.—Borger Herald.

The people of the western portion of the state are alive to the importance of getting things done. They know that it takes money to do such things as put in water supplies, sewerage, telephones, and other necessary things in connection with the building of a city, and they seem to realize that without them there can be no town, and therefore when it comes down to the point where the question is put direct to the people they nearly always speak in no uncertain tones to go forward and do these things and bring us the bill.

BIG SPRING ICE IS USED FOR FRUIT CARS

BIG SPRING, June 17.—The Pacific Fruit Express company is handling through Big Spring an average of 100 cars of fruit per day. Seventy-five per cent of these cars are cantalopes, 15 percent and 10 percent miscellaneous. These cars are re-iced by the Southern Ice and Manufacturing company of Big Spring, using about 2100 pounds of ice to the car.

SULPHUR MOUND SOLD

It is understood that the purchase is to be effected without public financing. The price paid was not revealed.

Making Gardens of Vacant Lots Is Good City Beautiful Plan

By DON E. MOWRY

Secretary the American Community Advertising Association

Turning unsightly vacant lots from weed patches into beautiful gardens is a splendid project for any community.

New London, Conn., has shown what can be done if the city gets back of a movement of this kind.

Fifteen hundred lots were put under cultivation in New London last year.

First the chamber of commerce secured several large tracts of suitable land, some from the city, some from schools. Heads of families out of employment were engaged to clean, rake and burn up rubbish. If these people wanted a garden lot they got it. Men and teams plowed, harrowed and prepared for planting. Plots averaged 50 by 100 feet each.

Then there was general publicity. All who wanted a plot for a garden called at the offices. Plots cost from $1.50 to $2, depending upon size.

Some families raised sufficient foodstuffs to last them all winter. Dirty and unsightly lots were eliminated. Hundreds of boys and girls were kept off the streets in useful work. Prizes offered promoted competition. The commercial organization's reward came in knowing that a worth while job was well done.

The garden movement is not a war-time proposal. It's good every year.

What To Do With Black Eyes And Styes On The Eyelid

By Dr. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Because a black eye is not particularly serious as an injury and because it gives the countenance a somewhat rakish appearance, its presence is usually greeted with hoarse guffaws of ridicule from friends and enemies. The skin under the eye is loose and any blow that will injure the blood vessels causes blood to deposit as a clot in the loose tissue.

The ordinary black eye, immediately after the wallop that causes its appearance, is best treated with the application of cloths wet with iced water. If the clot has formed and the eye can first be treated only after several hours have passed, the application of two or three leeches to the blackened or swollen spot or the withdrawel of some of the clotted blood by a sterilized needle may betried by the physician. Then it is necessary to apply a sterilized dressing and the patient gets by with the idea that he has been wounded instead of merely assaulted.

After a day has passed any such treatment is usually futile. Here is the time for the application of some artistic painting to disguise the discolored appearance and to make the skin look like the normal tissues. Some physicians have developed excellent artistic ability for this purpose, but in general the results are nothing to brag about.

A stye on the eye means an infection of one of the hair roots on the margin of the eyelid. The course it follows is usually that followed by a pimple or a small boil. After a day or two it gets soft and bursts, the matter is discharged and the spot recovers.

Unfortunately the styes tend to come in crops, the bacteria infecting one hair root after another. Before the stye has softened its development can sometimes be prevented by pulling out the hair that runs through it and by treating the spot with some antiseptic that is not dangerous to the eye itself.

If the stye gets so big that it is troublesome and still has not ruptured, a physician can open it and evacuate the contents, at the same time preventing the possibility of spread of the infection to other hair follicles. Repeated formation of styes indicates that the body has little resistance against infection and may be the signal for good advice as to hygiene and general care.

THE HAPPIEST HEART

Be still, my soul, be still; the arms
you bore are brittle,
Earth and high heaven are fixt
of old and founded strong.
I think rather,—call to thought, if now you grieve a little,
The days when we had rest, O
soul, for they were long.

Men loved unkindness then, but lig htless in the quarry
I slept and saw not; tears fell down, I did not mourn;
Sweat ran and blood sprung out
and I was never sorry:
Then it was well with me, in days ere I was born.

Who drives the horses of the sun
Shall lord it but a day;
Better the lowly deed were done,
And kept the humble way.

The rust will find the sword of fame,
The dust will hide the crown;
Ay, none shall call so high his name
Time will not tear it down.

The happiest heart that ever beat
Was in some quiet breast
That found the common daylight
sweet,
And left to Heaven the rest.

Tulsa's Mighty Casey, Slugger De Luxe, Now Fighting For His Life

The Mighty Casey, whose big bludgeon has been leading all of the hitters in organized baseball this year, is fighting for his life in an Omaha hospital after having been hit by a fast ball hurled by Pitcher J. McGrew in a recent Western League game in the Nebraska city.

Prior to his injury, which may prove fatal, Casey was leading the league in batting and in extra base hits of all description. His safeties averaged more than two bases to the wallop. McGrew, who unin- tentionally hit Casey has quit baseball, at least for the time be- ing, a victim of remorse.

Hubbers Plan To Invade Lamesa In Hope of Revenge

The Hubbers under the manage- ment of 'Woman' Sanders, the new skipper of baseball in Lubbock will invade the Lobo park of Lamesa and battle with the club that gave the Hubbers their only defeat for the season. The defeat given the Hubbers was in an extra three in- ning exhibition with a score of 5-4. Since Gilbert Jackson, former man- ager of the homelings, has taken up duties in Amarillo the Hubbers will be guided by 'Woman' Sanders, who has been holding down the initial sack for this season.

The Hubbers will leave for La- mesa shortly before noon Sunday and should any fans accompany the club it is the desire of manager Sanders that they drop by the Ava- lanche-Journal offices before going and pick several of the players. Since the Hubbers are playing on the 'dutch' system every bit that can be kept from expenses will be applied to the spirit for the lads that are attempting to carry on base ball for Lubbock and the South Plains.

The Hubbers will take a long work out this afternoon at the Merrill park in preparation for the clash. The Hubbers will go into action Sunday afternoon for the first time this season in their new uniforms that were furnished by the local merchants.

Local merchants responsible for the Hubbers new uniforms are: J. C. Penny company, Lubbock Cot- ton Exchange, Hub Barber Shop, Tech Cafe, Lubbock Candy Kitchen, Slaughter Motor company, Mc- Donald Packing company, Ava- lanche-Journal, Jarrett's Fashion Shop, Andersen Brothers, Texas Utilities, and Hotel Drug.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING FEATURE OF NEW PROSPERITY NOW RECORDED AT PLAINVIEW AND NEARBY TERRITORY

PLAINVIEW, June 17.—The benefits of diversified farming, dairy-farming, and poultry raising are being felt at Plainview, and over the South Plains territory around Plainview, and have been reflected in the stable conditions of business during the first five and half months of 1927, and the healthy conditions of the banks of the territory.

At a season of the year when banks find themselves more in need of money than at any other, because of the demands of farmers prior to harvest, the banks of Plainview and surrounding cities of the South Plains found themselves this year with more deposits than they had on December 31 of last year, and less loans than at that time, with corresponding large cash reserves on hand. The deposits of the three banks at Plainview at the beginning of the harvest two weeks ago were in excess of three millions of dollars or exactly $3,172,859.02.

Dairymen Praised

Local bankers explain the healthful condition attributable to the year around income of the dairy farmers of the Plainview territory. The banks have been keeping a count on the out-of-town cream checks received during the past few weeks and they have found at Plainview that over twenty-five hundred dollars a day is coming in from creameries outside of Plainview for cream shipped in Plainview. The increase in the number of hogs and crews in this territory during the past three years has been phenomenal, and is responsible for the great prosperity that is existing over this section now. The poultry industry is also helping to give the farmers an income that assures them their wheat and cotton as surplus crops according to a local banker.

F. C. Spann, a local farmer in an interview with C. G. Goodman, vice-president of the Security State bank at Plainview, tells his experience which is typical of the change that has taken place over this section during the past seven or eight years, and more particularly the last three. He has finished harvesting his wheat and he went to his banker. Mr. Goodman, after he had settled all of his expenses for wheat harvesting and wanted to pay the bank off. Mr. Goodman looked up his notes and remarked that he did not owe the bank but a very small amount. "Well you see I have been milking from five to eight cows all of the year, and just haven't had to borrow any money, in fact this hundred dollars I owe you is all I have borrowed. Not that I have my wheat money, it is surplus, and instead of you having to carry me, I am going to be in position to help you along some with a good bank accunt for a while. And by the way I could have got by without a wheat crop if it had failed this year. I am surely going to keep cows, they make me money all of the time."

Diversification Planned

Spann's experience is the experience of several farmers over this territory and the number is still growing with an active campaign under progress by the Extension authorities through the County Agent for the importation of good Jersey milk stock, the organization of bull circles, and the organization of cow testing associations. This campaign has been going on for over three years now having been inaugurated by County Agent E. W. Thomas, carried on later by County Agent Paul Huey and now by County Agent R. M. Milhollin.

Before the introduction of dairy farming as a general practice over Hale county, when a bumper wheat crop was not harvested and cotton was not up to expectation, the country was said to be in hard shape, but now with several chances at an income the Hale county farmer is more prosperous and more independent than ever before, and consequently the country is more prosperous.

Sports "Blowup" Is Averted Now

CHICAGO, June 17 (AP)—The threatened "blow-up" in boxing and wrestling circles as a result of the legislative investigation in the affairs of the Illinois state athletic commission failed to materialize today.

Instead, the legislative committee in its report to the house of representatives at Springfield, gave the athletic commission a clean bill, completely exonerating its members from any irregularities. The committee report found no discrimination in the granting of licenses to certain promoters, nor any other evidences of favorites.

The feature of today's business session was the address of Congressman Tom Conally, of Marlin, in which he made a bitter attack on secret diplomacy. He said that treaties are drawn up in secrecy and confirmed in executive session so that the people do not know to what they are being committed.

"Through these treaties American sons may be called on to die on the battlefield," said Conally, "Is there any reason why these treaties should be confirmed behind closed doors?"

LOCKNEY REPORTS PROSPERITY THERE

MORE PROGRESS MADE THAN IN ANY YEAR BEFORE ANALYSIS SHOWS

LOCKNEY, June 17. Conditions both industrial and agricultural are very good in Lockney and Floyd county, more progress being made than in any year since the organization of the county.

Two railroad systems, the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains and the Quanah, Acme and Pacific are building into the county, assuring sufficient rail facilities for years to come and with rapid progress reported on both lines.

The West Texas Gas company are at work stringing pipe from the Amarillo gas field to several south plains counties including Floyd and their crews have practically finished distributing the pipe from Lockney to Floydada.

Water Works Improved

Contractors are at work on water extensions to the Lockney industrial district involving an expenditure of $27,000.

Work on the Lockney Cotton Oil Mill owned by the Anderson-Clayton interests of Houston, is progressing rapidly. The manager states that they expect to be ready to handle this year's cotton crop.

Lumber has been received to start work on the compress that is to be built by the Texas Compress and Ware House company.

Harvesting has been in full sway until hindered by the recent rains, however, with fair weather the harvesters will soon resume their work.

Crops Planted

Planting of cotton and grain sorghums will begin as soon as the fields dry sufficiently according to the farmers. Many stat that they will plant an average acreage of cotton while others say that cotton planting time is past.

Considerable cotton and feedstuffs are up to a good stand in the irrigated section, while very few farmers in the dry-farmed district have planted anything to speak of.

HEREFORD BEGINS WORK UPON FAIR

SEVENTY-FIVE PEOPLE TO AID IN PUTTING ON THE EXHIBITION

HEREFORD, June 17—Homer Fox, G. W. Brumley and J. A. Pitman, who compose the Deaf Smith county fair board, will use fifty to seventy-five people in the various departments and on special committees, in an effort to stage the best county fair that has ever been held in Hereford.

At a meeting Tuesday evening it was decided to discontinue the community booth plan for getting communities of the county to bring in exhibits. Attractive cash prizes will be offered on all staple products of the county and in all departments of livestock, and more interest is expected to be stimulated. A cash prize will be paid to the community that wins the largest number of prizes at the fair, it was planned.

Amusements Planned

Entertainment every minute of the day will feature the fair, according to Homer Fox. "We will have baseball and football games, races for the kids, band concerts, carnival attractions, and other forms of entertainment that go to make up a fair," Mr. Fox said.

C. W. Hutable, R. O. Dunkle and T. D. Moss were selected to work out prize lists andc to plan the catalogue for the fair. They were instructed to start immediate work on this. Homer Fox, G. W. Brumley and J. A. Pitman will confer with city and county officials concerning a first class carnival and other forms of entertainment.

Slaton Man Quits Cotton For Chicks

SLATON, June 17—Alvin White, farmer living eight miles southwest of here, has decided not to plant any cotton whatever this year, instead he will have 10,000 baby chicks and 200 acres of grain. Although the rainfall since June 5 has been ample and came in plenty of time for planting cotton White believes the poultry industry on a large scale will beat cotton, he says, and has determined to give it a thorough trial. The grain he produces will be grown on land from which a wheat crop is now being harvested, and the chickens will consume a large portion of the grain soon to be planted as a guarantee of sufficient chicken feed. White will form a balanced ration for the birds from the different kinds of feed crops he will plant. The undertaking is being watched with much interest on the part of farmers in this section.

Brewster Poultry Men Hold Meeting

ALPINE, June 17.—The Highland Poultry association held an enthusiastic meeting in Alpine at the Holland hotel Monday evening, which was conducted by the president, Mrs. C. A. Brown. "Culling the Flocks," was the subject of a lecture by Mr. E. T. McDonald of Marfa, Texas. Dr. J. E. Wright discussed the subject "Infertile Eggs." Dr. Hoffman of Marfa was also present and was invited to talk on "Poultry Diseases, and their Solution." Tri-County Agent R. S. Miller gave some facts and figures regarding the industry in Texas. Mrs. Brown briefly outlined the accomplishments of the association, which is less than a year old. Although less than a year old, the association has two branch organizations—the Highland Egg association and the Highland Poultry show. Members of the association have imported around 20,000 baby chicks into the Texas Highlands this year, and good strides have been made in improving the breeds since the association came into existence. Lectures will be given once in every thirty days in a poultry educational campaign, and it is expected that before another year has passed, that there will be produced in the Texas Highlands a sufficient amount of poultry and poultry products, not only to supply the local demand, but for exportation.

A. E. Jones will leave tomorrow for Madisonville, Texas, where he will visit with his mother for several weeks.

DAUGHTERS of MIDAS

by Anne Austin ©1927 by NEA Service, Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

From his big department store, T. Q. CURTIS chooses three girls to come into his home as his wards for one year, because he wants to help them further ambitions each has expressed. BILLY WELLS, anxious to be a concert violinist, is the only one of the three that is sincere. The others —NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON—lie to enjoy the old man's generosity.

Billy is secretly engaged to Dal ROMAINE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, and is deeply hurt when she observes he is also paying affectionate attention to Winnie.

Unknown to T. Q., the girls learn he intends to adopt one of them when the year is up, and Nyda and Winnie turn the house into a place of intrigue. Strangely involved in these intrigues are Mrs. Meadows, Dal and EDDIE BANNING, Nyda's former sweetheart.

T. Q.'s safe is robbed, and SAWYERS, the butler, throws suspicion on Billy whom he saw in the library and in the hallway at a late hour. Billy, who is innocent, calls on CLAY CURTIS, son of T. Q., to help her. Clay has disinherited himself and is living at the Wells home in a poor part of town working in a factory by day and writing music at night. Billy tells him she suspects Nyda and Eddie Banning and Clay makes Eddie confess. Nyda then tells that she and Eddie have been married the whole year. T. Q. agrees not to prosecute them.

Clay proposes to Billy, telling her he has made a success with his music. He wants to help her in her study of music. Before she can answer him a telegram comes from Romaine and the spell of her infatuation for Romaine is again upon her. That night at dinner, RALPH TRUMAN, young capitalist, makes insinuations before the entire party that Romaine is an accomplice of a fortune teller, NAMIR SADH, who was run out of town. This is a stab at Billy's heart and she is some time recovering. Later when she goes to the music room to get her violin to play for the party, she hears a noise in the library and opening the door finds Winnie, a legal document in her hand. When she sees Billy, her face is suffused with anger and hatred.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LIX

"This isn't the road to Chatham, Dal," Billy roused herself from a long silence to protest. "You should have turned back there—the right turn."

Dal Romaine drove on for a long minute without speaking. During that minute Billy stole anxious glances at his set, stern face. Now that he was so soon to become her husband, she was beginning to have a nervous fear that he was a stranger to her. Even the contour of his narrow, handsome head seemed strange to her. In the occasional glare of the headlights of a passing car his black eyes glittered, narrow and—sinister. Who was this man she was eloping with? Who was Dalhart Romaine to whom she was entrusting her life? He had killed a man, he had said. India. Mysticism. He had hypnotic powers. He had cast a spell upon her. But—of course she loved him! Hadn't she given up Clay Curtis for him?

"Dal!" The familiar syllable on her lips became a cry.

"Billy, darling, we're not going to Chatham tonight," Dal said at last, without looking at her. "I realize you are in no condition to go back to the Curtis house tonight, but tomorrow you must return, say nothing of having been with me—"

Her hand clutched his sleeves, tried to shake the rigid arm whose hand was clamped so tightly upon the wheel. "What do you mean, Dal? You—you're not going to marry me?"

"Listen, darling," he said, with an attempt to make his voice soft and caressing. "We're going to wait until April to be married as we had planned all along. I have no money—"

"But you won't have much more by April!" Billy cried in a panic of fear. "I—I don't understand, Dal! I'm not marrying you for money. You've lived well here, traveled in the best society. Surely you can support a wife—I'm used to plain living, except—except this last year—"

"That's what I want to talk with you about, dearest, if you'll try to get control of yourself." Dal interrupted her, taking his right hand from the wheel and putting his arm about her shoulders. "You must go back to Mr. Curtis, stay out the year, and—and win your reward for having been a loving companion to a lonely old man."

"What do you mean, Dal?" Billy jerked out of the embrace of his arm and leaned forward to stare with horror into his face. "You know—you've known all the time —?" Her voice died away in a terrified whisper.

"That Curtis was planning to adopt one of you girls as his daughter? Yes, I knew! My aunt told me—"

"Mrs. Meadows!" Billy shuddered away from him.

"There's nothing so horrible in my having known, Dal protested still trying to keep his voice caressing and reasonable. "Nor in Aunt Lucia's having told me. You can't blame her if she wanted her favorite nephew to marry a girl who would be rich some day."

"This is funny!" Billy gasped on a bitter note of laughter. "You were trying to marry me for my money! A department store clerk being married for her money. And so you got yourself engaged to all three of us, to be sure you caught the right one! How frightfully busy you've been! How—how—" she began to laugh and cry, hysterically.

"I wasn't engaged to Nyda ever." Dal barked at her roughly. "It wasn't necessary."

"So that's what you meant when you said Eddie Banning had put himself and another person in your power! So my suspicions about Winnie were right all along! You were engaged to her, too! She knew —she knew—she was laughing at me all the time, sure she would win both you and T. Q., then when she found out I'd won the contest—"

"My God!" Dal Romaine interrupted her roughly. "You left that house knowing you'd won! You ditched your chance at a fortune to run away with me?"

"He begged me to stay!" Billy laughed hysterically. "He pleaded with me to stay and be his daughter, and I—I thought only of getting away and flying into your arms! Your arms! Oh, what a blind, gullible fool I've been!"

"Listen, Billy!" Dal swerved the car suddenly from the smooth asphalt paving into a narrow dirt road. "Don't be a fool any longer! Listen to me! You love me—"

"Love you!" She raised a hand as if she meant to strike him.

"Yes, you love me. You've been mad with love for a year. I do want to marry you! Not just for the money you'll have as T. Q. Curtis' daughter, but because I love you. I've been sincere about that, at least. I never loved Winnie Shelton—"

"But you spent week-ends with her, had her meet you somewhere for a week—oh, how could I have been so blind!"

"You must listen, Billy! I love you and I want to marry you. I can't marry you unless you have money. I've been living off my aunt while I've been in Colfax, except for what I could pick up here and there—"

"Dragging in customers for Madame Dubois and—oh, I see it all now! It was you who was Namir Sadh's accomplice! It was you who worked up a blackmail campaign against the people who had been kind to you. Oh, you're too unseakingly vile! I hate you! Don't dare touch me!" she screamed as he leaned toward her.

He drew back, and though in the dark she could not see his face clearly, she caught the evil glitter of his eyes. With a quick movement of his hand upon the dashboard he killed the engine of the roadster.

"You'd better get over your fit of hysterics and listen to reason, Billy," he said coldly. "I'm telling you the truth. I do love you. Shut up, or I'll choke you into listening to me!" he commanded her ferociously as she tried to interrupt him. "Be practical, for once in your life! You can go back to T. Q. Curtis. Take what he wants to give you—and then marry me. You can wrap the old man around your finger. He'll accept me as a son-in-law if you make him realize that your happiness depends upon it."

"My happiness!" She flung the words at him bitterly.

"Then consider the other side of the picture," he went on relentlessly. "If you don't go back to him, and if you don't marry me, you'll have to go back to clerking in a store. You've had your chance to become a real violinist and you've frittered it away—"

"Because of you!" she reminded him, beginning to sob again.

"Because you loved me," he agreed. "You do love me. I'm not going to give you up, just because you're an idealistic little fool. I'm no worse than other men; I'm just cleverer than asses like your dear Clay Curtis—"

"Don't drag his name into this!" Billy hurled herself against him to strike him on the mouth.

Dal Romaine seized her hands, forced her back upon the seat, then, before she realized what he was doing, he had the car under way again, lurching over the deeply rutted road. He drove with one hand, keeping her hands imprisoned in the iron grip of his other.

"Where are you taking me?" Billy struggled to tear her hands out of his grasp. "Let me out of this car, Dal Romaine! I'll kill myself if you don't! I swear I will.

"I'm taking you to that cabin you've already visited with me," he told her grimly. "I'm going to keep you there all night—and after that you'll be glad to go back to T. Q. Curtis and tell him you've decided to accept his offer."

The sinister meaning behind his words was so apparent that Billy's distracted brain took it in instantly.

"Let me go! I'd kill myself rather than stay with you," she shrilled, heaving her body upward with such force that she released the iron clutch of his hand upon hers.

Romaine stepped hard upon the accelerator, and the car shot crazily ahead, but Billy was more frightened of the man at the wheel than of death. She lunged for a moment ineffectually at the door of the car, then, stepping suddenly upon the seat, was about to leap when Romaine released the wheel and threw himself forward to grasp at her body recoiled for the spring.

When she felt his hands grasping at her she jumped. The car, without the restraining hands of a driver upon the wheel, plunged into a rut, lurched crazily then slithered to the deep water-filled ditch beside the road and overturned.

Billy's leap had carried her clear of the narrow road, and into the ditch on the right. She struggled out of the muddy slime and forced her shuddering limbs to carry her to the overturned car. The wheels of the cream-colored roadster were still revolving slowly when she stepped into the filthy water of the ditch to peer under the inverted body of the car. Dal Romaine's crumpled, still body was pinned under the wheel, his head bent at such an angle against the windshield that there could be no doubt that his neck was broken.

Billy stood there, shaking with an ague of fear and relief and nausea; then she climbed upon the road again, and was about to stagger away when she stumbled upon a suitcase, flung clear as the car had overturned. She stooped and picked it up, felt its sleek leather sides with her muddy hands found that it was hers and then, bending a little under its weight, she walked a short way along the dirt road. A plan seemed to come to her dazed mind. Again she plunged into the muddy water of the road side ditch, then, her suitcase bumping against her knees, she set off across the stubbly field, her back turned upon Colfax.

When a rattling flivver came through the ruts of the road less than five minutes later, it was too dark for the driver to see the small figure toiling through the dead stubble of the field, swaying drunkenly under the weight of the suitcase and of a load of horror.

Find Six Keys to the Popularity of Coca-Cola

Find the 3rd Key

PURE AS SUNLIGHT

The proof of its purity is in the testing. Twenty-two scientific tests for purity, covering every step in its preparation, safeguard this drink of natural flavors.

THROUGH a national survey the public has given us six outstanding reasons why everybody likes Coca-Cola—over 7 million a day. We have named them "six keys to the popularity of Coca-Cola." And they are being illustrated and presented in Coca-Cola advertising between the first week in May and the middle of August.

How to find them

You'll find all these "keys" (one "key" to each advertisement) in each of the following weeklies at intervals between the first week in May and the middle of August: The Saturday Evening Post, Literary Digest, Liberty, Collier's Weekly, and Life. You'll also find them in posters and outdoor signs throughout the country, and in the show window displays and the soda fountain and refreshment stand decorations of the many thousands of places that serve Coca-Cola.

Two of the "keys" have already appeared. Did you find them? If you did not, you may still enter this $30,000 cash prize contest by looking through your old magazines and finding the first two "keys." The third "key" is illustrated and presented in the picture and the copy that goes with it above. All "six keys" are easy to find if you just keep your eyes open to Coca-Cola advertising.

Note that there are just three things to do to enter this $30,000 cash prize contest. You'll find it simple and interesting. And the first prize is $10,000.

Just three things to do to enter this $30,000 cash prize contest

1. Find and write down the "six keys" and tell where you found each one. (See rules.)
2. Pick out the one key that appeals to you most and tell in one paragraph why it is a good reason for the popularity of Coca-Cola.
3. Then write an answer in (one paragraph) to this question: Other than magazine and newspaper advertisements, what Coca-Cola advertisement (a wall, poster, red sign or any one of the various pieces used to decorate show windows, soda fountains and refreshment stands) best illustrates or presents to you one or more of the "six keys"? Tell why—and also where you saw the advertisement.

For the correct naming of the "six keys" and the best answers to the questions, the following cash prizes will be awarded:

1st prize	$10,000
2nd prize	5,000
3rd prize	2,500
4th prize	1,000
5th prize	500
10 sixth prizes (each)	100
20 seventh prizes (each)	50
200 eighth prizes (each)	25
400 ninth prizes (each)	10
A total of 635 prizes	$30,000

Follow these simple rules

Do not mail any entry before the first week in August. You must see all "six keys" before you can write correct answers, and the final "key" will not appear until then. Contest closes August 25, 1927. All entries must be mailed by midnight of August 25, 1927, to Contest Judges, The Coca-Cola Company, Atlanta, Ga. The contest is open to everybody except those connected with The Coca-Cola Company, a Coca-Cola bottling company, or their families. Write on only one side of paper. Use typewriter, pen or pencil, but please write plainly. Write your name, occupation and address plainly at the top of the first page of your entry. Prizes will be awarded strictly on merit, including the correctness, neatness and clearness of your answers.

All answers become the property of The Coca-Cola Company and may be used in advertising or otherwise. None will be returned.

Address all answers to

CONTEST JUDGES
The Coca-Cola Company, Atlanta, Ga.

Announcement of the winners and awarding of the prizes will be made as soon after the close of the contest as the judges can complete their work.

The judges will be three former Presidents of the International Advertising Association (formerly Associated Advertising Clubs of the World) and the President of the Coca-Cola Bottlers' Association, and their awards shall be final.

For the benefit of our customers in this city and section, we are making this special presentation of the $30,000 Cash Prize Coca-Cola Contest. Visit our plant and we'll be glad to give you further information about it, and help you get started if you have not already entered. DAILY MARKETS

COTTON LOWER

NEW ORLEANS, June 17. (AP)—Trading in today's cotton market was erratic and the general trend of prices was downward. An early advance of 15 points was overcome in the late trading on selling due to bearish private crop reports and in the early afternoon prices showed losses of 30 to 32 points from the highs. There was a moderate rally near the end with the close steady at net losses for the day of 12 to 19 points.

The market opened 2 to 6 points up, probably due to the relatively steady Liverpool cables. Prices continued to gain during the first hour on numerous reports rapidly spreading boll weevil in the central and eastern sections. October traded up to 17.09 and December 17.30.

Later in the morning the market turned easier when two private crop reports were issued, one making the condition average 75 and the other 75.2. One of the authorities estimated the reduction in acreage 10.7 percent. The market continued to ease off during the late morning and up into the early afternoon. October dropped to 16.77 and December 17.00, 15 to 17 points below the previous close.

In the late trading week-end covering and liquidation set in and prices rallied slightly but closed at or near the lows.

Exports for the day totalled 31,978 bales and for the week 135,733.

COTTON REACTS

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—Early advances were followed by reactions in the cotton market today under week-end realizing or liquidation and southern selling. October declined from 17.13 to 16.83, compared with 17.01 at the close yesterday, and closed at 16.87. The general market closed steady at net declines of 10 to 16 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 6 to 8 points and after some irregularity, sold about 8 to 12 points above yesterdays closing quotations. Prospects for further showers or rains in the belt, seemed to increase the apprehension of grassy fields or insect damage, and numerous reports were received that boll weevil were becoming more numerous. Some of these reports also indicated that farmers were making little preparation for a fight against the insects, and for a time the market showed considerable firmness.

COTTON GOODS ACTIVE

NEW YORK, June 17 (AP)—Cotton goods in the gray were moderately active today with print cloths and bag sheetings firm and closely sold for July and August. Raw silk was firmer and more active. Burlaps were steady with several lots cleaned up for immediate delivery.

LIVESTOCK STRONG

CHICAGO, June 17. (AP)—Cattle 3,000; steers and yearlings steady; best steers 12.50; yearlings 11.70; fed steers and yearlings 9.75 to 11.50; she stock weak to 25 lower; stockers 7.75 to 8.75; choice vealers 12.50 to 13.50.

Hogs 25,000; active; generally steady to 10 higher; top 9.20; lights 8.95 to 9.15; mediums 8.85 to 9.10; butchers downward to 8.45; sows 7.75 to 8.10; pigs 8.00 to 8.40; estimated holdover 6,000.

Sheep 5,000; active, generally steady; natives 15.60 to 15.50; ewes 5.50 to 6.25; top 6.50.

LIVESTOCK STEADY

FORT WORTH, June 17 (AP)—Livestock trading here today showed a steady outlet for choice cake steers and a slow and weak market for grass grades. She stock was steady to strong, heifers unchanged and calves steady and active. Hogs sold steadily to 5 cents higher, and the sheep market was steady.

Receipts called for 1,900 grown cattle, 700 calves, 500 hogs and 2,800 sheep.

GRAIN GETS SETBACK

CHICAGO, June 17. (AP)—All grain underwent a material setback in price today. Prospects of clearing and warmer weather both in the wheat harvest region southwest and throughout the corn belt had a bearish effect. Wheat closed weak 1 7-8 cent to 2 1-8 cent net lower, with corn 1 1-2 cent to 2 cent down, oats 1-2 to 5-8 cent off, and provisions showing 10 cents to 20 cents decline.

BUSINESS STRONG

NEW YORK, June 17. (AP)—Dun's tomorrow will say: It does not appear that the contraction of activity which normally occurs in most commercial lines at this period is especially marked now, and in certain quarters, it is less conspicuous than that which was witnessed a year ago. The many irregularities in the present situation, with some admittedly unfavorable aspects are not surprising, in view of the extensive ramifications of business. A spring season that has been notable for inclement weather has not brought any general depression, though obviously hurting crops and retail distribution, and even the flooding of a wide area along the Mississippi river, with heavy property damage and a curtailment of buying power, has not seriously weakened confidence.

Weekly bank clearings $9,997,116,000, an increase of 6.5 percent compared with last year.

THE BATTLE'S ON!

No More Fooling!

CLARENCE SAUNDERS

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT SETS OFF THE FIREWORKS!

OPENING SATURDAY!!

Saturday is our Big Opening Day. It's the day when the Big Battle starts. It's Napoleon's Waterloo for High Prices. The end of easy, coasting days are over. We mean business. The Opening day don't expect the band—the wailing saxophone or "booming" drum. The sweetest music you'll hear on Broadway Saturday will be the Clink and Clank of dollars rolling into the Cash Register at Clarence Saunders. Every time the bell rings somebody's made a Saving. Every time you pick up a Clarence Saunders' basket you've found the key to a very different situation—a saving process in buying groceries. The stock is just as complete now as the markets of this section will allow. You'll find everything different. You'll find buying easy, selection easy, paying easy! The big parade down Broadway begins at Clarence Saunder's store when the doors open and its trail will lead to every thrifty home in Lubbock.
