SWCID finding support in Austin

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Several favorable reports were heard yesterday by the Howard County Junior College trustees including optimistic news from Austin about the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf's funding needs.

Dr. Charles Hays, president of the HCJCD, said he and Sam Hill, vice president at SWCID, had just returned from two days of sessions with state lawmakers where he "felt real postitive coming out of the meetings."

This was the second such meeting SWCID officials had attended in an attempt to build support for the deaf school's $7 million in funding needs.

SWCID officials have said the school will close its doors at the end of summer if additional funds are not found to bolster the institution's current funding of $2 million.

"SWCID is going to be funded," Hays said. I'm confident of that. It might not be as much as we need, and we'll have to act on that when it happens. But we'll get more than $2 million."

In other good news the trustees heard that contact hours (the number of hours in which students enroll) have increased 34.3 percent over last year's spring session, according to Hays.

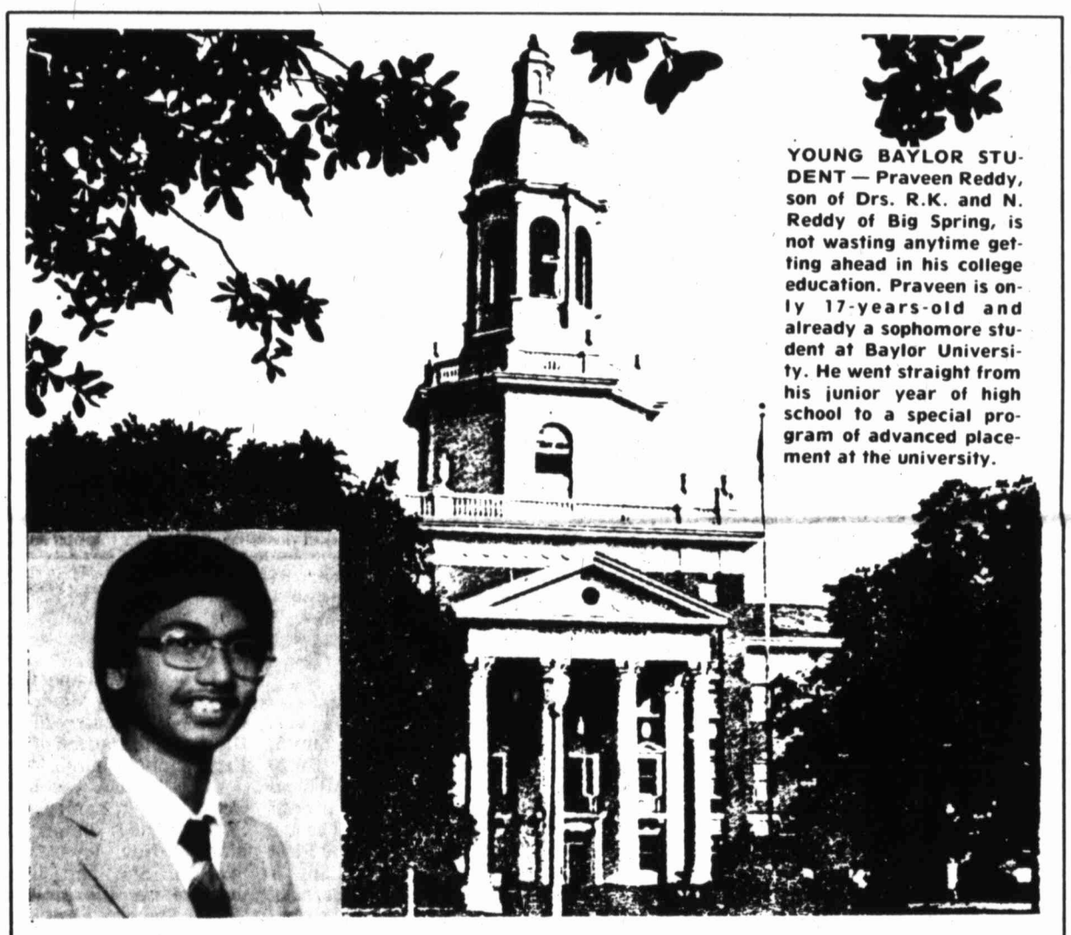

"We don't have any more of an enrollment, but students are taking more hours," Hays said.

He attributed the increase to a tight job market. He said HC students traditionally work part-time jobs, but that the recession has made that type of work hard to find. This, in turn, has caused students to have more time to take more hours — an option many of them apparently have taken, he said.

The trustees also agreed to place an item on next month's agenda concerning the purchase of a new IBM computer for the district's operations.

The trustees learned that a complete software program adaptable to the district's operations is available from East Texas State

YOUNG BAYLOR STUDENT — Praveen Reddy, son of Drs. R.K. and N. Reddy of Big Spring, is not wasting anytime getting ahead in his college education. Praveen is only 17-years-old and already a sophomore student at Baylor University. He went straight from his junior year of high school to a special program of advanced placement at the university.

The Baylor brain

17-year-old uses head to become college sophmore

Special to the Herald

Praveen Reddy doesn't waste any time — the 17-year old son of Drs. R.K. and N. Reddy of Big Spring is already a sophmore at Baylor University.

What's more, he has maintained a 4.0 grade point average in his first semester at the Waco school.

Praveen, who went straight from his junior year at Big Spring High School to a Baylor sophomore in three months, was one of five students in Texas to enter a summer program at Baylor last year which offered advanced placement if achievement requirements were met.

"I wasn't planning anything like this when I asked to look over college brochures on admissions, which the high school makes available to juniors planning to enter college when they graduate," he said.

But when Praveen looked at the requirements for general admission to Baylor, he read in the fine print of the brochure about special advanced placement for juniors who could meet certain scholastic grade requirements.

A "B" average in the advanced course allows a student to skip a full collegiate year, entering Baylor as a freshman. But Praveen's grades (an "A" average) were so good that he was allowed to skip not one year, but two.

He plans to be a medical doctor, but discounts his parents' influence on that decision.

He said he felt fortunate to grow up in a house full of doctors, and decided at about age 11 that he wanted to become a physician himself.

Praveen said that although he would have benefited from the courses in calculus and advanced science that the local high school offers, as well as the social events of his senior year, he is pleased to be in college right now.

"This means that — provided I can make the grades and other achievements that will get me into medical school once I graduate from Baylor — I'll be ready to practice in 6½ years rather than the usual 8½ years it takes to become a medical doctor," he said.

Ex-Iranian pilot frees hostages, flies to Mexico

Rio Airways plane hijacked as protest

By CAM ROSSIE
Associated Press Writer

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico — A former Iranian Air Force pilot who blamed America for turmoil in his homeland calmly threatened to blow up a Rio Airways plane he commandeered but had to scuffle with soldiers before he took control, passengers said.

"Everybody was pretty calm because he was pretty calm after a while," said Sgt. Baron Liggins, 24, of Indianapolis, one of those aboard during Tuesday's hijacking.

Hussein Shey Kholya, 37, demanded to be flown to Cuba, but Liggins and 15 other passengers, two flight attendants and two pilots were freed unharmed several hours later, after the plane had been diverted to the airport at this Mexican city, just across the border from Laredo, Texas.

Rio Airways' Flight 252 was seized Tuesday morning halfway through its one-hour flight to Dallas from the Army town of Killeen in Central Texas.

The hijacker assembled a submachine gun after taking it from a briefcase and appeared to be carrying a Molotov cocktail-type bomb in the pocket of his "jungle-like" pants, the co-pilot said.

Kholya, accompanied by two immigration officials, flew on a Lear jet late Tuesday afternoon from Nuevo Laredo to Mexico City, where officials said they were seeking to have him accepted by one of the countries he wanted to go. They said they had guaranteed him safe conduct out of Mexico.

A statement from Mexico's Interior Ministry identified Kholya as a former Air Force pilot and an Iranian activist who had opposed the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The hijacker told Rio Airways chief pilot Michael McNeil and co-pilot Frank Flores he hijacked their plane because he wanted Americans to be made aware of what was going on in Iran.

Kholya produced three copies of a statement that said 26,000 Iranians "have been killed for no cause" and said he would blow up the plane unless the statement was distributed to the American news media, Flores said.

Iran has been in turmoil since the overthrow of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in January 1979 and it has been fighting a border war with Iraq since September 1980.

"He wanted to prove his point. He was an Iranian, he said. He asked for no money. He made it clear he had no regard for his own life," Flores said.

"He threatened to blow up the plane if his demands were not met, but I didn't think he'd do it," the co-pilot added.

Action/reaction: Parking problem

Q. Do county employees have certain places they can park at the courthouse? I never can find a place to park there.

A. First come, first parked. According to the county commissioners, courthouse employees do not have any designated parking with the exception of a small section on the south side. Parking is especially limited on days when juries are called or court is being held, the commissioners said.

Local man critical after Odessa shooting

A Big Spring man is in critical condition in an Odessa hospital with a bullet wound to the head.

The man, whom Odessa police information officer Lt. Rusty Baker identified as William Anthony Bush of 308 Aylford, was found by a roadside in Odessa yesterday at 9:38 a.m.

Identification was made by a driver's license which police found on the man.

Baker said the man had a bullet wound in his forehead just above the right eye. A .25 caliber automatic pistol was found nearby, Baker said.

An Odessa police officer was searching the right of way between Reed Street and nearby railroad tracks for a weapon used in a robbery when he found Bush, Baker said.

The matter is still under investigation, Baker said.

A spokesman at the Medical Center Hospital said Bush remained in critical condition following surgery yesterday.

Big Spring police said no missing persons reports had been filed at the department. Local police and the sheriff's department are cooperating in the investigation.

Glasscock PIK ending

GARDEN CITY — Farmers here are being warned they have only a few weeks left to sign up for the Payment In Kind farm program, according to Dale Hillger, chairman of the Glasscock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Committee.

After the March 11 deadline, no one will be allowed to enroll in the program, Hillger said. However, those who sign up before the deadline have the option to withdraw or change their enrollment, he added.

The PIK program is designed to bring supplies in line with demand to improve the farm economy. The reduction in planted acreage will allow the producer to receive the unplanted commodity from government surpluses.

Hillger said the program should be seriously considered by those farmers wanting to see an improvement in the market situation.

"We urge farmers to sign up now and not miss the opportunity by waiting or expecting the deadline to be extended," Hillger said.

Retired volunteers needed

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program is currently recruiting volunteers aged 60 and over to serve two to four hours a week or more at one of the seventeen volunteer stations currently associated with RSVP.

"There are several meaningful volunteer opportunities available and include working with children, hospitals, nursing homes, schools, and delivering meals to shut in elderly people," said Joy Decker, project director. "Children need a lap to sit on, a hug, story telling and the older ones need someone who is concerned enough to assist them with reading and other homework.

"This can be a rewarding experience," she said.

Volunteers should contact the RSVP office at the Senior Center in the Industrial Park at 267-2589 or 267-2580.

For senior citizens who are unable to leave their homes but would like to be involved in the volunteer service there is the telephone reassurance program, Ms. Decker said.

In this program, she said, volunteers contact other shut-ins daily if desired or just visit by phone with someone who does not have much outside contact.

Rodeo team opens season

The Howard College rodeo team opens its season on the road tommorrow night at the Sul Ross State University rodeo in Ft. Stockton.

The rodeo, the first of the spring semester season, gets underway Thursday and will run through Sunday.

The team will journey to a rodeo at Tarleton State University in Stephenville March 31-April 3 and return to the Howard College rodeo April 7-9.

Then the Howard College cowboys will finish out the season on the road. Other rodeos include ones at Western Texas College in Snyder April 14-17, Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene April 21-23 and at New Mexico Junior College in Hobbs April

BIZNET program scheduled

Computerized office systems will be discussed in this month's installment of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's BIZNET satellite program set for 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

The program will be shown in the Patio Room of the Holiday Inn and will feature several panelists versed in computer technology.

The panel will discuss how to put computer systems to work, how to train personnel on new equipment and the varying technological needs of business.

A phone system will be set up for participants to talk directly with panelists.

Call 263-7641 for further information and costs for the program.

Fund established for woman

A fund to help defray the medical costs of an operation for Marsha Grant of Coahaoma has been established at the Coahoma State Bank, the First National Bank of Big Spring and Security State Bank of Big Spring.

Mrs. Grant, 28, was scheduled to have a brain operation Wednesday morning at the Medical Center in Odessa.

Crime Stoppers meets

Crime Stoppers, Inc. held its first meeting of 1983 recently and elected officers.

They are Denton Marsalis, president; Tom Watson, vice president; Jerry Mancill, treasurer and LeRoy Tillery, secretary.

For the record

Tuesday's Sheriff's Log incorrectly stated Clint Rankin Elliott, 20, of Gail Route pleaded guilty in county court to revocation of probation on a driving while intoxicated conviction. Elliott was released on $16,500 bond for suspicion of burglary and possession of marijuana under two ounces.

Jesse Clyde Elliott, 20, of 907 W. 8th pleaded guilty to revocation of probation on a DWI conviction.

Betty Riley Williams, president of Riley Drilling Co., was named Boss of the Year at the Business Associate Banquet Tuesday night hosted by the Cactus Chapter of the American Business Women's Association.

Mrs. Williams was nominated for the honor by her secretary-bookkeeper, Elaine Tubb. In a letter nominating Mrs. Williams for the honor, Mrs. Tubb said Mrs. Williams is "always eager for any employee to take training courses to improve their skills. She has offered courses to tool pushers, roughnecks and me, the bookkeeper. She has sent me to several oil industry seminars and we have been looking for a tax seminar.

"...She has encouraged safety habits with a monthly and semi-annual crew safety award program. This has reduced our accident rate tremendously.

"She is constantly aware of the cost of living and family needs. She has established regular pay raise schedules, bonuses based on service, paid vacations and generous contributions to the profit sharing program. She also found a new and better health program for employees and their dependents."

Mrs. Williams, a 1945 graduate of Albany High School, has four daughters. She worked as a beautician until 1971. At that time she quit her job to be with her husband, W.E. Riley, until his death in 1980. Following his death she became president of Riley Drilling, a job which called for the supervision of 48 employees.

She is a member of the board of directors of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and will serve on the United Way campaign. She is active in the Coahoma Church of Christ and is also a member of the Cactus Chapter of ABWA, where she serves as ways and means committee chairperson. She is married to Jim Williams.

University with no charge.

Mike Bruner, vice president for fiscal affairs, said the software would normally cost from $200,000 to $300,000. However, ETSU is willing to give the software to the district because Terry Hansen, director of computer services at HC, helped to design the programs.

"The kicker is that the software won't fit the computer we now have," Hays said. "It could be adapted, but it would cost more than changing computers."

The new computer and software would allow the district new capabilities with payroll, financial aid, grading and computerized instruction — capabilities the district does not have at the present time, Bruner said.

In other business the board approved standard changes in the district's college catalog concerning price and course changes.

It also heard a report that the district received about $8,500 in a recent auction.

The flight was above Lake Whitney, about 75 miles north of Killeen, when trouble began aboard Rio Airways' DCH-7, a turbo-prop De Havilland.

Liggins, a soldier stationed at Fort Hood, near Killeen, had just been transferred to Germany and was on his way to Dallas for a connecting flight to St. Louis.

Liggins, sitting two rows behind the man later identified as Kholya, was unaware that the man had just told flight attendant Katie Springer, "I have a bomb." But he and two other Army men leaped to their feet and began fighting the man after they saw him strike the other attendant, Corina Hallmark, on the head when, after alerted by Ms. Springer, she turned to move quickly to the rear of the plane.

But Kholya fought off all three and pulled out a weapon.

"He knew how to fight with every portion of his body," Ms. Springer said. "He had done his homework."

Liggins said he first thought the man was attacking a stewardess or suffering a seizure, but then realized the plane was being hijacked. As he was fighting the hijacker, he said, he thought, "This guy's tough."

Flores opened the cockpit door to investigate the noises he heard and saw the melee.

"I was fearful at first. He was pretty riled up, and people were on top of him when I first came out. I didn't know if he was insane," Flores said.

Then the hijacker yelled that he had a bomb. McNeil told everyone to get back in their seats, and they did.

Police Beat

Fight injures four after game

A fight marred last night's Big Spring-Odessa Permian basketball game. Police say three Odessa high school students and a Big Spring high school teacher were injured last night when several Hispanic males assaulted them outside the high school gym.

The Odessa Permian students — Marion Kwiatkowske, 16, Bobby Knott, 18, and Brett A. Biggs, 18, — told police the suspects started a fight as they were leaving the gym. Police say they have not arrested anyone in connection with the assault.

The teacher, Ralph Matteson of 4210 Calvin, said a Hispanic male struck him on the left shoulder when he tried to break up the fight. The suspects struck Knott in the right eye and Biggs in the mouth and kicked Biggs several times under his right arm, police reports say.

Kwiatkowski was treated at Malone Hogan emergency room for a lacerated lip. The others refused treatment.

Knott and Biggs also told police their cars were vandalized.

Police reports also show the following:

- June George, a Plainview secretary, told police a white male juvenile shot out the front window of her car last night as she was driving south on the 1400 block of Princeton.
- Louise Fullen Smith, 61, of 631 Caylor was arrested yesterday at Furr's Super Market on suspicion of shoplifting a box of Gas-X. Ms. Smith was released after posting bond.
- James Conaway of 1102 Pennsylvania told police someone stole a checkbook and 12 cassette tapes Monday night from his pickup.
- John Edwards of Bill Hanson Trucking told police someone broke windows in two trucks parked at the 1603 E. Third business and stole 19 tapes, a tape case, four chain boomers and three 20-foot-long chains.
- Jessie W. Pierce of Irving told police someone cut the lock on his truck-trailer while it was parked at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop Monday night and stole an auto part, a 1-ton hoist and a heavy duty electric cord. Pierce estimated his loss at $3,265.
- Mrs. Walter Burn of 611 Steakley told police someone stole her billfold and $17 Saturday night while she was at The Other Place nightclub.
- Police say they arrested 33-year-old Tommy Allen Mauldin of 106 Circle on an assault warrant. He was released after posting bond.

Man gets prison sentence

Cecil Douglas Hoard, 28, of 106 W. 16th received a two-year prison sentence yesterday in 118th District Court when his probation was revoked on a burglary conviction. Hoard remains in county jail pending transfer to the Texas Department of Correction.

- Charles Russell Carter, 20, of 1710 E. 3rd pleaded guilty in 118th District Court to credit card abuse and received a three-year probated sentence.
- Timothy Donald Taylor, 24, of 2908 Cactus was released from county jail after serving 22 days for revocation of probation on a driving while intoxicated conviction.
- Andrea Darant Hawkins, 23, of Huntington, Calif., was released from custody after being jailed Feb. 8 for suspicion of impersonating a police officer and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. The impersonating a police officer charge was dropped on the authority of the district attorney's office.
- Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Jo Ann Kennedy, 31, of Sterling City Route in Big Spring on a county warrant of issuance of bad checks. Ms. Kennedy paid a $75 fine and bad checks and was released, records show.
- John Vargas, 32, whose address was listed as labor camp, posted $1,000 bond to be released after his arrest by police for suspicion of driving while intoxicated.
- Paul Joe Talk, 34, of Big Spring posted $200 bond to be released in connection with a public intoxication charge. Bond was set by Deputy Sheriff Eddie Owen.

White names housewife to PUC board

By DANA PALMER and JAY ROSSER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — It's mid-season replacement time at the Public Utility Commission and consumer groups are celebrating.

Only hours after commission members George Cowden and Tommie G. Smith surprised everyone Tuesday with a decision to resign as of March 1, an obviously pleased Gov. Mark White kept a campaign promise and named a housewife, as well as a former commissioner, as replacements.

Both Peggy Rosson of El Paso and Al Erwin of Houston quickly vowed to bring a better balance to a commission that many critics say is more protective of utilities than consumers.

That's a charge that Cowden is tired of hearing from people who, he said, don't know what they're talking about. "Those who think it's easy to work out these problems (of fair electric rates and fuel adjustment clauses); those who froth at the mouth to be appointed to the commission — some of them will have that opportunity. I can hardly wait for our rates to go down," he with a touch of sarcasm in a speech Tuesday to a local Rotary group.

But Mrs. Rosson said Wednesday after an excited and sleepless night that "I don't think we need to be rated by Wall Street as the number one most lenient regulatory body in the United States.

"I think we can strike a bit better balance than that," the 47-year-old member of the El Paso Pubic Regulatory Board noted. She has served on that board since 1978 and has been its chairman since 1979.

She acknowledged, however, that some state utility commissions go too far in protecting the consumer at the expense of a healthy electric utility and end up driving up the cost of power even more.

Reaching that correct balance, she said, will be the number one goal if her appointment and Erwin's are confirmed by the Senate sometime later this month.

Erwin, a 38-year-old public relations executive who served as one of the PUC's first commissioners from 1975 to 1979, said he doesn't believe Texans are foolish enough to think the sudden shakeup will signal a drop in utility rates.

However, he said, "we're going to be sure they don't pay one penny more than they need to for electricity," adding that if anything is changed immediately by the shakeup it will be a stabilizing of utility bills.

Erwin also told reporters he thought the top priority after March 1 will be to deal with the controversial fuel adjustment clause or cost-of-fuel charge, under which utilities are able to pass on fuel cost increases directly to customers.

White has been dissatisfied with a recent commission emergency rule that this fall will require utilities to seek PUC approval before passing on the fuel costs. The governor says the rule change does not go far enough.

Erwin said he would like to see fuel charges made a part of the regular rate-making process, so that utilities would have to live with what the PUC allows for more than a month at a time.

That would encourage companies to find the cheapest source of fuel possible, consumer groups say.

Gale warning on Texas coast

By The Associated Press

A gale warning was in effect along the Texas coast today because of northerly winds of 35 to 40 mph causing "very rough" and high seas ranging up to 12 feet near short and 18 feet offshore.

A developing low-pressure center in the northwest Gulf was producing cloudy skies over the eastern third of Texas with some patchy rain and a few scattered showers along the Coastal Plains.

A line of very heavy thunderstorms was occurring well offshore in the Gulf of Mexico. The western part of Texas was under mostly clear skies as high pressure continued to build over the area.

Mild temperatures continued across the eastern two-thirds of the state ranging mostly in the 40s and 50s. Over the western part of Texas, temperatures were in the 30s with some readings in the 20s in the Panhandle and the mountains of Southwest Texas.

Early morning extremes ranged from a cold 21 degrees at Marfa to 55 degrees at Brownsville and McAllen.

Winds were blowing from the north and northwest across much of North and South Texas with speeds generally in the 10 to 20 mph range.

The outlook for today was for unseasonably warm temperatures, with some morning ground fog in North and South Texas.

SKIES WERE overcast in the upper Mississippi Valley and in the upper Great Lakes, with particularly dense fog in North Dakota and Minnesota. Skies also were cloudy along much of the Pacific Coast.

In the Great Plains, skies generally were fair.

The Reno, Nev., area, which had gusts over 60 mph Tuesday afternoon, remained under a high wind warning.

Rain was forecast today in the Ohio Valley and along the lower Great Lakes. It was expected to change to snow in lower Michigan.

Scattered snow showers were predicted for the higher elevations of Utah, and parts of Nevada and Idaho.

Rain was predicted from western Montana to the northern half of the Pacific Coast.

TODAY AND THURSDAY

West Texas: Generally fair and warmer today. Partly cloudy southwest tonight and all sections Thursday but little change in temperature tonight and Thursday. Highs today mid 50s north to near 70 south. Lows tonight low 30s north to mid 40s extreme south. Highs Thursday in the mid 50s north to the low 70s in the Big Bend.

FRIDAY THROUGH MONDAY

West Texas: Decreasing cloudiness Friday becoming fair over the weekend. No important change in temperatures. Highs mid 50s Panhandle to mid 70s Big Bend. Lows upper 20s Panhandle to near 40 Big Bend

Police storm farmhouse in search of 'fanatic'

By KENT FLANAGAN
Associated Press Writer

HEATON, N.D. — An armed member of an anti-tax paramilitary group wanted in the slayings of two U.S. marshals is believed still hiding in central North Dakota, federal agents say.

A task force of 100 police officers backed up by a National Guard armored personnel carrier fired tear gas and stormed a deserted farmhouse Tuesday where authorities throught the suspect, Gordon Kahl, an ex-Permian Basin resident, was holed up. But no one was found in the house.

The search for Kahl since Monday had centered on the farm here where he used to live, but fog and darkness forced postponement of a raid on the house until Tuesday afternoon.

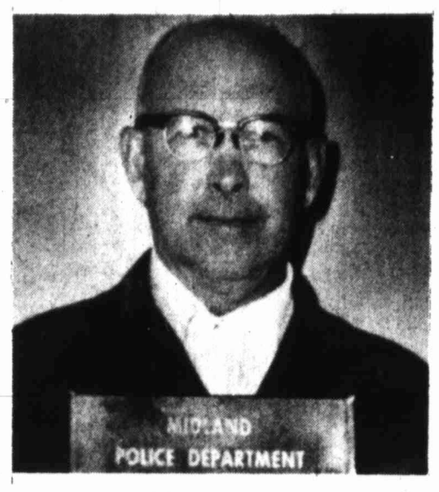

"We still believe he is in the central part of the state," U.S. Attorney Rodney Webb in Fargo said late Tuesday.

Webb said agents of the FBI, the U.S. Marshal Service and the North Dakota Crime Bureau met Tuesday night to plan their next step.

"In view of the stories we've heard about him, he is obviously heavily armed and he knows how to use them," said Richard Blay, an FBI agent from Minneapolis. "There is no way we can be overcautious with this type of individual."

Webb said some weapons and ammunition were found in the home but refused to say what types they were. He said the search for Kahl would resume this morning.

Blay would not say whether he thought Kahl had been in the farmhouse since the shootings Sunday. Nor would he answer questions about what had led the FBI to believe Kahl was in the house.

Two U.S. marshals were shot to death Sunday night when they attempted to arrest Kahl on a parole violation charge. Five people who were with Kahl, including his wife and son, have been arrested on federal murder charges.

The 63-year-old Kahl, described as a "fanatic" member of a paramilitary survivalist group called Posse Comitatus, had vowed to friends and acquaintances not to be taken alive.

"I'm not going to let them take me again," Kahl was quoted as saying shortly before he got into a shootout with U.S. marshals who tried to arrest him for violating probation imposed in a 1977 tax evasion case.

Meanwhile, the Wisconsin branch of the Posse Comitatus has gone on "standby alert," said James P. Wickstrom, who calls himself the "national director of counterinsurgency of the Posses of America."

He said the attack on the empty farmhouse was a "setup" and that Kahl is a scapegoat for other dissatisfied tax evaders.

"I believe the government planned the entire shootout from the beginning," Wickstrom said.

"What we have here is a gentleman who is now being pursued in North Dakota on a setup to shut his mouth because the American people are waking up ... realizing that we have been duped by a private central bank," he said.

Funeral services were scheduled today for the marshals, Kenneth Muir, 53, of Fargo and Robert S. Cheshire Jr., 32, of Bismarck.

A third marshal, James Hopson, was wounded critically and two police officers suffered less serious wounds when they tried to arrest Kahl near Medina, about 50 miles south of Heaton. Occupants of a car opened fire with an automatic weapon as the officers approached, authorities said.

Another man suspected in the slayings, Scott Faul, 29, of Harvey, was arrested Monday night in nearby Fessenden, N.D., Webb said.

Faul was charged with murder and aiding and abetting a murder, federal authorities said. Murder charges were filed Monday against Kahl's wife, Joan, 62, his son, Yori, 23; David R. Broer, 53, and Vernon A. Wegner, 25.

Broer and Wegner, both of Streeter, were arrested Monday.

Kahl lived in Texas when he was found guilty of federal income tax evasion. Authorities there said he was active in Posse Comitatus.

Jet needs no wheels

MIAMI (AP) — An emergency bellyflop by a New York-bound Eastern Airlines jet scorched the plane's hull as it slid safely to a stop, but the landing turned out "even better than with wheels," said one of the 74 people aboard.

Eastern Flight 194, carrying 67 passengers and seven crew members from West Palm Beach to New York's Kennedy International Airport and then to Albany, N.Y., was diverted to Miami Tuesday night when the pilot couldn't get the left landing gear to retract fully after takeoff.

Pilot R.R. Curti circled for 2½ hours before bringing the jetliner in wheels up, slow and low, "smack dab in the center of the runway," around 8:30 p.m., Eastern spokesman Tom Myers said.

Curti, two flight officers and four flight attendants were interviewed by Federal Aviation Administration investigators Tuesday night. They would not comment afterward on the emergency landing.

Sparks flew and friction scorched the plane's metal hull, but an Eastern spokesman said the only injuries were scraped hands, elbows and knees of people who fell off the wings trying to get out of the disabled Boeing 727.

"If you flew off carriers in Korea, this was a piece of cake," said a calm William Brokaw, who lives in Palm Beach and New York City. "I've flown through 100 times worse than that in Korea with MiGs chasing us ... The aircraft is built to pancake."

Barney Clark back in intensive care

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Artificial heart recipient Barney Clark was returned to surgical intensive care and put back on a respirator because his lungs and kidneys aren't strong enough, hospital officials said today.

"He suffered increased lung and kidney insufficiency Tuesday night, requiring that he be returned to the surgical intensive care unit where he could be placed intermittently on a respirator," University of Utah Medical Center spokesman John Dwan said today.

"The major obstacles to artificial heart recipient Barney Clark's recovery continue to be his weak lungs and kidneys," he said.

Clark, in his 77th day on the plastic Utah Heart today, was "still considered in fair condition," Dwan said.

The 62-year-old retired dentist from Des Moines, Wash., has been plagued with kidney and lung problems since before he underwent the Dec. 2 implant operation.

"His lungs and kidneys, particularly the lungs, just aren't strong enough to support him all the time without help," Dwan said. "When he's on the respirator, his lungs increase in efficiency, but when he's off the respirator they decrease."

Dwan said Clark "was off the respirator for more than a week" before Tuesday night, when he was returned to intensive care.

"The doctors are just continuing to work with him to help his lungs and kidneys heal," he said.

Two days after Dr. William DeVries replaced Clark's dying natural heart with a fist-sized mechanical one, surgeons operated again to repair ruptured air sacs. Doctors said Clark had been suffering for some time from mild emphysema.

Three die in home for elderly fire

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Fire swept through the top floor of a high-rise apartment project for the elderly, leaving three people dead and 14 injured and forcing scores of pajama-clad senior citizens into the 35-degree chill.

The fire broke out around late Tuesday night on the 11th floor of Solomon Towers, according to officials still investigating the cause of the one-hour blaze.

Residents — many in bare feet and night clothes — were alerted by passersby and started evacuating the building. Firefighters also ran through the building, banging on doors and shouting warnings.

Many residents sought shelter from the cold in neighboring houses.

City and school buses were summoned to provide emergency shelter and to transport residents to Hoggard High School, where the New Hanover County disaster team set up temporary housing for evacuees.

Eighty residents were bused to the school, and many were met there by friends and relatives who took them home. The Red Cross served doughnuts, coffee and milk, and set up cots for about 50 people who remained after 1 a.m.

A spokesman for the housing authority said residents were expected to return home later today. He said other arrangements would be made for residents whose apartments had been damaged.

Two victims were found on the 11th floor, one in a hallway and one in a room, said Wilmington District Fire Chief Thomas Eason. A third man, who complained of chest pains after the fire, died at a local hospital, officials said.

Names of the victims had not been released by early today.

Six people, including one woman who was carried down six flights of stairs in a wheelchair, were rescued by passersby.

An aerial ladder was extended to the 11th floor, but those who could flee made their way down the building's stairways. The building elevators were shut off during the fire to keep victims from being trapped if they malfunctioned, firefighters said.

Lorema Anderson, confined to a wheelchair, said Donald Noe pulled her down six flights of stairs.

James Leonard, 76, who has no legs, said he was carried down by a man who said he'd been walking by and saw the fire.

Three apartments on the top floor were badly damaged, said Housing Authority Director J. Alan Jones.

New Orleans back to normal after Mardi Gras 'freak show'

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS — The city slipped back into the real world today after weeks of partying climaxed by the day-long "fantasy" of Mardi Gras, which one reveler called "the world's biggest freak show."

Fat Tuesday came and went, followed by the somber 40-day season of Lent which began today, Ash Wednesday.

The midnight meeting of Rex, ruler of Carnival, and Comus, Carnival's oldest organization, capped Mardi Gras, a festive day of parades and balls for an estimated 1 million visitors and residents.

Rains forecast for the day finally broke loose shortly before midnight. But the day's final parade, Comus, got started before the rains came.

Authorities reported two deaths in the festivities. A sailor died after being run over by a truck in one of the parades, and a tourist was shot to death during a holdup.

The day began with "Zulu krewe" parades rolling through the streets just after dawn. Men dressed as "Zulus" threw rubber spears and gold coconuts.

Next came Rex, toasting the festival with pomp and champagne.

"You are what makes it all happen," said Rex, in a toast to the crowd. On any other day, he is businessman John G. Phillips.

"Hail, Rex," said Mayor Dutch Morial, wearing denim pants and a plaid western-style shirt in the reviewing stand. "This is your day, May you reign supremely on this, your day."

The French Quarter was the setting for some of the more bizarre sights, such as a fashion show by the local gay community, strippers on balconies and costumes that defied imagination.

A policeman pleaded with one bikini-clad woman to move from the ledge where she was balancing. "Take off your badge, baby, and I'll show you a good time," she replied.

"It's all fantasy," said a man in a black suit who identified himself only as Elwood. "This is the world's biggest freak show."

Besides the major parades, there were hundreds of flatbed trucks vivid in Mardi Gras ribbons and bows, neighborhood marching clubs in seemingly endless lines.

Winston Montague, 22, a Navy sailor from the visiting ship Austin, was reaching for trinkets thrown from a truck float when he slipped and fell under the wheels, authorities said. He died a few hours later of head and body injuries, a hospital spokewoman said.

New Christian feels alone

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I became a Christian a few months ago, and now some of my best friends no longer want anything to do with me. I find I am very lonely, and wonder if I have made the right decision to follow Christ. — P.K.B.

DEAR P.K.B.: Do not doubt for a minute that you made the right decision, for your decision for Christ has eternal consequences. God loves you, and his love is far, far more important than anything this world can offer.

The fact that your old friends will have nothing to do with you tells me that you have taken a positive stand for Jesus Christ. Don't be surprised at their reaction. I suspect there was a time in your own life when you would have reacted the same way if a friend had suddenly become a Christian and no longer was willing to do some of the things that you practiced.

There are two things I want to point out to you. First, you need — in fact, you desperately need — a new circle of friends who are Christians and can support you and help you spiritually. We are not meant to live alone in our Christian lives; we are to "Carry each other's burdens" (Galatians 6:2). Get involved in a church where Christ is preached, and where you will find close fellowship — not just on Sunday morning at the worship service, but in the various other activities of the church.

Then I hope you will pray for your former friends, and do whatever you can to witness to them for Christ. Remember that your strongest witness in some ways will be with your life and not your lips only. We are "to abstain from sinful desires, which war against your soul. Live such good lives among the pagans that, though they accuse you of doing wrong, they may see your good deeds and glorify God on the day he visits us" (1 Peter 2:11-12).

Remember that Christ knows your loneliness — there was no place as lonely as the cross. But he is with you, and he wants to lead you as you live for him each day.

More on textbooks

Although Carol Daniel's Feb. 6 Rim advocating a change in the State Textbook Committee hearings needs no defense, a clarification of a few points seems necessary in light of some complaints.

Hopefully, this will not set a precedent, but perhaps it will balance the ledger somewhat since the complaints were four times as long as the original article.

Carol contends the Texas Textbook Committee should allow positive comments on texts — now banned — to be heard along with objections to books. She asks for an exchange of ideas in meetings rather than strictly protests from groups or individuals — the danger being a possible effect on students' reasoning skills if items are omitted from texts.

The addition of positive textbook critiques is the point of the column. However, interpretations varied widely.

One letter ridiculed the "exchange of ideas" concept, saying publishers get their say in the textbooks. However, publishers do not write texts — they merely publish. Publishers leave the writing and the information to experts.

SINCE NO author or group of authors can know everything necessary or exclude everything unnecessary, the task has to fall to the teacher to guide, present, omit, explain. Students learn from a combination of ingredients — that is why teachers are needed. But good books are very rare.

Any good teacher would rather have a good textbook with disagreeable items than a bland one with little to challenge the student. But the information has to be there to begin with.

The same letter also praises "basics" over "values." What do the basics have to do with changing the textbook committee's system? The Rim column is directed towards altering a practice, not arguing philosophical differences.

Another critic says the column calls the state textbook selection process unfair. Actually it pointed to one aspect of the entire system — no criticism of the process. The person contends allowing positive comments on texts would let "paid liberalists" speak and affect our texts.

Doesn't the present system allow the possiblility of paid negators to protest, object and affect our texts?

Both critics obviously are in sympathy with the fundamentalist conservative views of long-time textbook protestors like Mel and Norma Gabler. Like the Gablers, the two stray from the central subject to lambast "liberal" concepts and other ideas that do not fit their views.

A THIRD complainant perhaps unknowingly labeled the underlying problem implicit in Carol's column: special interest groups. Individuals espousing narrow interests are effecting changes in the current textbook process because objections come easily when one represents only a sliver of the population.

This entire emphasis on the negative is ironically opposed to the basic conservative view that leans on the positive and omits the negative. However, this is not education — it is indoctrination.

Education has to be, by its very nature, flexible. This flexibility should extend even to allowing more give-and-take at textbook committee meetings. The books still have several steps, including school boards, to get through before any kids might get corrupted by actually thinking.

THE CLASSROOM is where the facts, the ideas and the values should be examined, questioned, discarded or ignored. Texts are only tools, but an imperfect tool can mold an imperfect product.

Inflexible educational systems where one philosophy dominated has produced predictable results. England's unemployment and nation-wide ennui, Japan's massive adolescent difficulties and even Germany's unique problems are examples. In shame of Hitler and the Nazis, those times are neglected in history texts — the result is a historical movement that Nazism was not so bad, that the Holocaust never took place.

Realistically speaking, the philosophical direction of textbooks is unimportant if all the facts are presented. The student deserves the choice.

As the commercial says, a mind is a terrible thing to waste. Without positive reinforcement to balance negative protest, students will become helpless automatons, ever repeating, never creating.

Men mourn for what they have lost, women for what they ain't got.

Israel should withdraw slowly

WASHINGTON — Far more than the democratic character of Israel is affirmed by the official report calling for the ouster of Ariel Sharon because of "indirect responsibility" for the Beirut massacre. Every line expresses the strong institutional, political and moral commitments that bind the Jewish state.

The constraints apply to security matters — even though Israel has actually been threatened with extinction. They apply also to occupied lands — though those were usually acquired in acts of self-defense, and never without provocation.

Precisely because inhibitions apply, Israeli withdrawal does not have to be accomplished in the panicky haste that caused decolonialization to mean darkness and desolation for so much of Africa and Asia. On the contrary, provided the U.S. keeps its head and avoids grandiose schemes, the winding down of Israeli occupation forces can be accomplished in a careful, deliberate way that fosters security rather than chaos.

IN LEBANON, first of all, the Reagan administration — in large part because the personal prestige of the President's representative, Philip Habib, is engaged — seems obsessed with the notion of a rapid Israeli exit. In fact, a staged withdrawal makes much better sense.

It affords time for the squaring of relations among various Lebanese factions, and the gradual accretion of strength to the central authority. It facilitates coordination of the Israeli exit with the departure of the occupation forces of Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization. On the Lebanese border with Israel there can be worked out various arrangements that amount to a de facto peace. Finally, and most important, with those prospects in view, Prime Minister Menachem Begin has some incentive not to be totally negative on another Israeli withdrawal which must be arranged — a withdrawal from the occupied territories on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Palestinian Arabs constitute the overwhelming majority of the population in the two territories. Their demographic preponderance rules out as a practical matter enduring Israeli control. The Camp David agreement between Israel and Egypt acknowledged that reality by according to the Palestinians the right to "autonomy."

The Camp David offer was spurned by almost all Palestinians, with the PLO in the vanguard. The Begin regime then seized the opportunity to drive strings of settlements through the West Bank. Even so, the presence of Jewish settlers remains relatively light. An end to the Israeli military occupation is still in the cards.

A new framework for achieving that goal was created by the Israeli invasion of Lebanon. For the rout of the PLO led such figures as Yasser Arafat to recognize the utter futility of maximalist demands for conquest of Israel proper. A formal statement along those lines is due this week when the PLO National Council convenes in Algiers.

Moderation of the PLO claims makes it possible for King Hussein of Jordan to come forward as a standard-bearer for the Palestinian cause. With Hussein as the negotiating partner, the stalled Egyptian-Israeli talks on Palestinian autonomy take on new life. For Hussein is a conservative monarch with a vested interest in curbing radical Palestinian nationalism. That possibility appeals to many Israelis. So in talks among Jordan, Egypt and Israel there could be blocked out a path to President Reagan's proclaimed objective of a Palestinian entity within the Jordanian context.

HUSSEIN, TO be sure, also needs protection. Like all the monarchies in the area, including the oil kingdoms of Saudi Arabia, Jordan is threatened by the radical nationalists, long ensconced in Syria, and now especially rampant in Iran. The Iranian attacks on Iraq represent a clear and present danger to Hussein and the monarchs of the Persian Gulf. With luck, the Iraqis and their conservative Arab allies can hold the Iranians for now, and maybe buy them off after the Ayatollah Khomeini departs the scene.

But a move by Suria to join Iran in the assault on Iraq would assure a debacle for all the Arab monarchs. It is critical at this juncture to keep Syria under wraps. Engagement in Lebanon serves that purpose. So the Syrians should not be let off the hook, until some explicit proviso is made against their wreaking havoc elsewhere as the radical adventurers of the Arab world.

Time's winged chariot, in sum, is not bearing down on the Middle East. A one-shot Israeli withdrawal, even if it were possible, is not desirable. What is wanted now is a coherent address, in sequence, to all of the security problems of the area — the Persian Gulf and the West Bank, as well as Lebanon. The need is to move step by step along a path with each advance making an indent for the next. Thus the delays and detours imposed by the glorious fact that Israel and this country both feel the need for an occasional election.

U.S. finds roadblocks in Honduras

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has made no secret of its earnest hope that the leftist regime in Nicaragua will somehow dry up and blow away. Meanwhile, it is turning up the heat by stirring up opposition to the Sandinistas and holding joint military maneuvers with Honduras near the Nicaraguan border.

But one of the administration's moves in Honduras has run into an almost literal roadblock thrown up by conscientious officials at the Agency for International Development.

The controversy is over a $7.5 million, 150-kilometer road the State Department wants to help Honduras build to the Nicaraguan border, through a rain forest inhabited by Miskito Indians. Ostenisbly, the road would be built to give the Indians a means of getting their crops to market. So the State Department has asked AID to put up the money.

But AID officials don't buy the agricultural argument for the highway. "It's a damn tank road," an agency source told my associate Bob Sehrman.

My sources say the road's real purpose is to make it easier for the Honduran army to move troops and supplies to the isolated Miskito lands, which Nicaraguan opponents have been using as a staging area and sanctuary for raids on Sandinista outposts across the border.

Put simply, AID officials are tired of using economic-development funds for largely political objectives, particularly when there are needier candidates for the limited amount of money. So AID has thus far refused to build the road.

NUMEROUS SOURCES offer three arguments against the project:

- The road construction would disrupt the fragile ecology of the virgin rain forest.
- The Miskito Indians don't want the road. They see it as a means of opening up their ancestral home for development, which will ultimately lead to the theft of their tribal lands.
- A wealthy Honduran businessman, who was once accused of torturing and murdering several persons, including a U.S. missionary, stands to make a bundle from the road project. He owns lands through which the road would run.

An AID spokesman said the agency will provide no funds for the controversial road either this year or next. He said AID will not even become involved in preparation of an environmental-impact statement during this period.

But my sources say the State Department will continue trying to bully AID into putting up the money for the road. A cable last November from U.S. Ambassador John Negroponte in Tegucigalpa formally requested AID funding.

The debate over the Honduran road reflects a broader controversy that has arisen in the past two years: the increasing politicization of AID funds under the Reagan administration. AID officials generally argue that their assistance money should be doled out on the basis of need, not politics.

I reported recently that AID is going along with a questionable plan to help Nicaragua's southern neighbor, Costa Rica, move thousands of settlers into land along the border as a way of thwarting Sandinista incursions.

The Costa Rican project at least has the flavor of a defensive measure to justify it; the Honduran "tank road" has not. At any rate, AID officials have evidently decided to stand and fight on this one.

TIMBER-R-R-R!!!: As I predicted last December, the Justice Department has dropped its anti-trust case against the Louisiana Pacific Corp. for fixing prices and rigging bids on federal timber in Alaska. Forest Service chief John Cromwell was the giant lumber company's general counsel when some of the alleged violations occurred.

There are 10 things the small business owner should know and do before borrowing money, according to William Cyril, vice president of the Glendale Business Lending Service Division of Glendale Federal, the nation's first small business lending division to be established by a federally-chartered savings and loan association.

1. GET TO KNOW YOUR LENDER. And let him get to know you, your firm, and your needs. Be certain he is interested in making the kind of loan you need.

2. PLAN AHEAD. Different lenders have different lead times to process loans so inquire about his lead time. Avoid the last request because an emergency loan is a sign of poor planning.

3. PREPARE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS. Most financial institutions want current (not over 60-90 days) financial statements, including balance sheets and income statements, for three years. Be prepared along with current financial statements to provide data describing the experience and capabilities of top management.

4. FORMALIZE PROJECTIONS AND STRATEGY. For long-term loans it will be necessary to describe the conditions of the industry, the company product line, and the production and marketing strategies of the business.

5. PLAN TO PRESENT YOUR CASE. Do not be fuzzy about how much you require and for how long. Clearly state how you intend to use the money. Know your plan for repayment. If it is from cash flow, have projections available. Also have emergency plans and options available to illustrate that you are prepared if something doesn't work out.

6. CHECK YOUR APPEARANCE. While a lender must give consideration to financial information, a lender's impression of management is as important as the company's financial condition. A lender looks for commitment, capacity, and experience.

7. ILLUSTRATE STRONG COMMITMENT. Your lender must be convinced of your total commitment to the success of your company.

8. SHOW YOUR CAPACITY TO EARN MONEY. Demonstrate the ability to earn money under a variety of circumstances.

9. CITE YOUR EXPERIENCE. A good track record in the industry is important. The lender must believe you have the expertise to survive in business.

10. BE PERSUASIVE. Convince the lender that he will be paid on time. Assist him by supplying him with all the information he needs to convince his loan committee.

'Candy Man' O'Bryan gives books to hospital

HOUSTON (AP) — Ronald Clark O'Bryan, an inmate condemned to death for poisoning his 8-year-old son with Halloween candy in 1974, has donated a collection of children's books to Texas Children's Hospital.

A box of about 50 books arrived at the hospital Tuesday, addressed to the director of volunteers, said Jeannine Beveridge, office supervisor for auxiliary operation.

"It sounds pretty fishy to me ...," Ms. Beveridge said of O'Bryan's motives. "Maybe he is trying to make amends for what he's done, but I think it's a little bit late."

"If you mean do we get donations from convicted murderers, not normally," Waddill said.

EPA officials say documents safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Environmental Protection Agency officials say documents subpoenaed by Congress are safe and were not fed to the paper shredders that are the focus of an FBI investigation.

EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch, meanwhile, told a Senate panel Tuesday said the attacks on EPA stem in part from "political harassment."

Mrs. Gorsuch, whose agency is the subject of six congressional investigations, has been cited for contempt of Congress by the House for refusing to turn over EPA documents that President Reagan ordered withheld on grounds of executive privilege.

The paper shredders that were brought into EPA's hazardous waste office were discussed at the House Public Works Committee meeting Tuesday.

The committee was set to hear from Rita M. Lavelle, former head of the hazardous waste program, later today. Ms. Lavelle was fired by President Reagan last week.

Eugene Lucero, chief of enforcement in the hazardous waste section, said even though agency personnel had free access to the shredders, documents sought by Congress were under lock and key.

Lucero also said the machines were acquired by coincidence last month and were not related to congressional investigations into EPA's handling of the $1.6 billion "superfund" program to clean up abandoned chemical waste dumps.

He said no one recognized the significance of putting paper shredders into an office under congressional subpoena and investigation.

"It obviously was a bad decision," Lucero said.

Rep. Elliott H. Levitas, D-Ga., agreed.

"At the very least, it's got to be one of the stupidest actions I've ever heard of," said Levitas, chairman of the investigations subcommittee.

And Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., told EPA officials: "You look like a bunch of insensitive bunglers."

Lucero said the shredders were acquired by a clerk who found them in surplus property. But Levitas showed Lucero an EPA procurement order specifying the machines, and saying they were to be used "to dispose of public sensitive documents."

"I don't recall that we discussed it," Lucero said of the order.

The FBI investigation, which EPA Chief of Staff John Daniel said Mrs. Gorsuch requested, was the latest development in the broadening probe into EPA's handling of the superfund program.

FREE HEARING TEST SET FOR BIG SPRING THIS WEEK

Free Electronic Hearing tests will be given at Beltone Hearing Aid Office Thursday thru Friday 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

A factory-trained hearing aid specialist will be at the Beltone office to perform the tests.

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have a test using the current electronic equipment to determine if his loss is one which may be helped. Some of the causes of hearing loss will be explained, and diagrams of how the ear works will be shown. Audiograms available for your medical records. Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test and find out whether the modern methods of hearing correction can help them hear better.

The free hearing test will be given at the Beltone Hearing Aid Center — 900 Johnson, Big Spring, Texas.

Now the Federal government wants to withhold taxes from your savings income.

Recently, the United States Congress passed a law that will hurt you and most other savers in America. Beginning July 1, 1983, this new law will impose a 10% withholding tax against the money earned on your savings.

Under the law, all credit unions, banks, money market funds, and other payers of interest or dividends will be required automatically to withhold 10% of the interest or dividends earned by their customers and transmit this "early tax payment" to the Federal government. Even modest-income senior citizens will be affected, unless they go through the complicated red tape of filing a Federal application for exemption.

The institutions listed below strongly oppose the withholding of taxes from the money you earn on your savings because it is unnecessary and unfair — unnecessary because you already pay taxes on your savings each year when you file your Federal income tax return; unfair because it will lower your earnings by reducing the benefits of compounded savings growth. In short, the law clearly will penalize you as a saver, and for that reason it should be repealed by Congress.

It should be repealed. That is our goal .. and we have joined with other financial institutions throughout the nation in a vigorous campaign to convince Congress to repeal the 10% withholding tax on your savings income, before it starts next July 1. But we will need the help of every saver to achieve this goal.

We urge you to join this campaign by writing a letter to your Representative in Congress and to the two Senators from your state. Tell them that you want the 10% withholding tax repealed because it would impose an unnecessary and unfair penalty on savers like yourself. You should address your letters as follows, filling in the appropriate names:

The Honorable Charles Stenholm
House of Representatives
House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515
"Dear Representative ——— :"

The Honorable John Tower
The Honorable Lloyd Bentsen
United States Senate
Senate Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510
"Dear Senator ——— :"

Or just fill out and mail one of these special "save our savings" coupons.

Please act now. We must send Washington a clear message from the voters back home as quickly as possible to repeal the 10% withholding tax.

Dear Senator:

I urge you to repeal the 10% withholding tax on savings income before the law takes effect on July 1, 1983. This law is unnecessary. I already pay taxes on my savings income when I file my Federal income tax return. Further, the law is unfair and penalizes savers like myself because it will reduce what I earn on my savings.

Sen. Tower offers internship program to senior citizens

WASHINGTON — Senator John Tower (R-Texas) announced he is accepting applications from Texas senior citizens who wish to participate in an intern program in his Washington office May 23-27.

The program is designed to provide increased communication between the retired community and their representatives in Congress.

Two citizens will be selected from the applicants to spend a week in Tower's Washington office observing the legislative process, meeting with representatives of departments and agencies, and participating in the operations of a Congressional office.

Tower said the demanding schedule of activities will include a private tour of the White House and social activities with the Congressional staff and other interns.

Applicants should be 65 years of age or older, active in their community, have an interest in legislation, and willing and able to communicate their knowledge to fellow senior citizens in the State.

Interns will receive their airfare to and from Washington as well as a stipend to cover expenses while in Washington. Applications can be obtained from Tower's Dallas office at 1100 Commerce, Room 7C14, Dallas, Texas 75242. Deadline for returning application with two letters of recommendation to the Dallas office is March 15.

Club news

Center Point Extension Club

The Center Point Extension Homemakers Club met Feb. 8 at Kentwood Older Adults Center.

The Extension Homemakers Council reported making $1,438.98 from the 4-H Stock Show Concessions. The District meeting was held in Crane Monday. The state meeting will be in Lubbock, Sept. 21-22.

Lucille Petty presented a program on energy. Cleo Eggleston won the door prize.

The club's next meeting will be Feb. 22 at KOAC. Linnus Couch and Jen Davidson will host the meeting.

1970 Hyperion Club

John Allman, superintendent of Big Spring Prison Camp, spoke about the federal system and the local prison camp Friday at the 1970 Hyperion Club meeting held in the home of Mrs. A.J. Pickle.

Mrs. Skipper Driver presided. Mrs. Bill McQueary co-hosted the meeting.

Members will meet March 11 to tour the museum in Colorado City.

Gold Star Mothers

The Chapter Mothers of the Gold Star Mothers participated in the 10th Annual Observance of the National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans Monday at the Veterans Adminstration Medical Center.

The members of the organization met Thursday in the home of Mrs. Domingo Abreo. Fourteen trays of food, 18 vases of flowers, 20 visits to shut-ins and friends, $76 in charity donations and 12 courtesy trips for handicapped friends were reported.

The next meeting will be held March 10 in the home of Viola Burchett.

GFWC Forsan Study Club

The GFWC Forsan Study Club held a Valentine party for their families Saturday at the Forsan High School cafeteria. Club members invited a sweetheart for the evening and played "Crazy Bridge."

Door prizes were awarded. Kathy Pickett and Susan Gaston hosted.

The club met again Monday at Kathy Pickett's home. Members brought cookies for the Big Spring State Hospital. Members not present are to give their cookies to Eunice Thixton at Elbow School by Feb. 21.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs president's visit to several Third World countries and her administration's stress on international care programs was reported on.

The community involvement report concerned the Feb. 8 City Council meeting. The Council asked the Study Club to prepare a newsletter for Forsan residents concerning a trash disposal, who to call in case of a fire, what to do if your child is bitten by an animal and information about rabies vaccinations for pets.

Club members were reminded of the play April 17 at 2:30 p.m. at the Midland Community Theater. Correspondence from the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs second vice president was read concerning Madeline Murray O'Hare's activities to ban all religious programming from the airways. Members were urged to write the Federal Communications Commission, 1919 M. Street, Washington, D.C., 20054, supporting petition number 2493, which requests such programming to remain on the airways. The petition number should be included on the envelope.

A report on the Mother's March in Forsan for the March of Dimes was read. The club collected $343. Participating were Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Pickett, Susan Gaston and Linda Coates.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Pickett, Mrs. Coates and Donna Parker.

The program was a book review of "Is There Life After Housework?" by Don Aslett. Practical advice, cleaning techniques and a display of suggested supplies and equipment were included in the review. Each member was given a housecleaning notebook with step-by-step charts for specific cleaning jobs, equipment charts and humorous advice.

To present the review, Mrs. Gaston dressed in evening wear and pearls exemplifing the homemaker many people aspire to be. Mrs. Alexander wore jeans and a sloppy work shirt to personify the way women often feel as they face their everyday chores.

The cleaning equipment display table was decorated with a bouquet of feather dusters, rubber gloves and other household tools.

Coahoma Extension Club

Two visitors, Mrs. Anna Steen and Hazel Reed of Big Spring, attended the Coahoma Extension Homemakers Club meeting and luncheon Feb. 9 in the home of Mrs. H. E. Heaton in Sand Springs.

The poem "The New Year" was read. Roll Call was answered by giving "My Favorite Thing in My House Right Now." Francis Mason won the door prize.

Stress doesn't always contribute to ulcer

The hard-driving executive, under hours of stress daily, is not necessarily the most likely candidate for duodenal ulcer.

Current research indicates that inherited tendencies, heavy smoking and large doses of aspirin are more likely to contribute to an ulcer. But a recent survey shows that 80 percent of Americans believe incorrectly that stress and pressure causes ulcers, while 70 percent blamed emotional and psychological problems and 64 percent poor diet.

Poor physical condition was called a major cause of ulcer disease by 49 percent, while just 19 percent believe heredity to be a major cause.

Public Notice

In order to implement prior orders of the Public Utility Commission of Texas in Docket No. 3957, notice is hereby given of Southwestern Bell's proposal to implement a new schedule of intrastate long distance rates, effective April 1, 1983, unless otherwise determined by the Commission.

It is expected that the proposed rate schedule will not increase the company's net intrastate revenues, but rather, the increased rates will offset increased settlements paid to certain other telephone companies.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas, and is available for inspection in each of the company's public business offices in Texas.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

Changes in intrastate long distance rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide intrastate long distance service in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell's tariffs.

Aviso Público

Southwestern Bell, con el objeto de cumplir con el decreto previo del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) del Estado de Texas, Acta No. 3957, por la presente hace saber su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel de tarifas para servicio intraestatal de larga distancia, con vigencia a partir del 1o de abril de 1983, a menos que la Comisión haga otra determinación.

Se espera que el nuevo arancel de tarifas que Southwestern Bell se propone establecer no aumentará sus ingresos netos intraestatales, sino que servirá para compensar el aumento de los ajustes que se les paga a algunas otras compañías de teléfono.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel de tarifas se ha archivado en las oficinas del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) en Austin, Texas, y esta disponible para inspección pública en todas nuestras oficinas en el Estado de Texas.

Aviso a los Clientes de Otras Compañías de Teléfono

Cambios en las tarifas para servicio intraestatal de larga distancia tambien afectarían a clientes de otras compañías de teléfono porque dichas compañías proveen servicio intraestatal de larga distancia en conformidad a tarifas especificadas por Southwestern Bell.

Dear Abby

Marriage rides on fiance's decision

DEAR ABBY: Since my early childhood I have been going with my parents to a beautiful nudist camp that caters to families.

My problem is that I have met a very nice man who has proposed marriage, but he refuses to join me in going to the nudist camp. I love him very much, as he has many fine qualities. However, I don't think I could live without those wonderful outings in the sun at the camp. I would feel deprived, imprisoned and depressed.

He insists that he is too inhibited to feel comfortable in the presence of unclothed strangers. He's also afraid it might be sexually stimulating.

I want to marry this man, but I need to convince him to join the camp. Can you help me?

M. IN OTTAWA, CANADA

DEAR M.: Inhibitions of this kind are difficult to overcome. But if you persuade him to visit the family-type camp just once, he may realize that it's a healthy family experience, and there is nothing sexy about it. And if he really wants to marry you, he may decide to grin and bare it.

DEAR ABBY: For years I have been scolded by my husband for picking my teeth with a toothpick in public. Just how much of a breach of etiquette is that? He says I embarrass him. He is 71 and I'm 69, and we've been married almost 49 years.

We're at a winter resort now. Yesterday we had dinner with friends, and I picked at my teeth at the table. Seeing no place to discard the toothpick, I chewed it up into small slivers and put the remains in my dinner napkin. I did all this very inconspicuously.

When we got home, my husband gave me a scolding. I don't think I did anything so terrible. All my mother manners are good. What is the verdict?

Is my husband a nitpicker? Or am I a slob?

VACATIONING

DEAR VACATIONING: Your husband is not a "nitpicker" — neither are you a slob. However, it is considered inelegant to pick one's teeth in public. And chewing up the toothpick is another no-no. You could pick up Dutch elm disease.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this in order to save some other person from the same predicament I found myself in. I'm a high school student, living in a small town. I don't do drugs, I don't drink and my grades are very good.

I had one weakness. I was a compulsive shoplifter. I couldn't go into a store without coming out with at least one stolen object. This went on for quite a while until one day I was caught.

Man, talk about the biggest scare of your life! I was let go and only banned from the store, but that scare did something to me.

I completely reformed myself. I no longer feel the urge to steal anything. I feel much better about myself and I know I'll never take another thing. Actually, I would like to give the person who reported me a great big kiss!

REFORMED STICKY FINGERS

DEAR REFORMED: You were luckier than most. One good scare is sometimes more effective than a hundred sermons. Thanks for writing.

Dr. Donohue

Adrenals make potent hormones

Dear Dr. Donohue: My grandson has been in and out of the hospital with ashmatic attacks. He has been put on several medications, one of them being prednisone. His doctors have told us that keeping him on prednisone could result in side effects. We have been advised to send him to a hospital out of town specializing in asthma in children. We all would appreciate your advice as to what would be best for our grandson. — D.B.

I'll try to give you an explanation of the drug you mention. It begins with the adrenal gland (located near the kidneys). The adrenals make potent hormones called steroids — cortisone, cortisol and others. The medicine, prednisone, is a chemical relative of those natural hormones, made in the laboratory but having the same effects.

My regular readers are familiar with such drugs because they are mentioned frequently as treatment for a variety of illnesses so large that I can only list a few — certainly kidney disorders, severe allergies, severe asthma, and some of the collagen (connective tissue) diseases such as lupus. The chief effect of such drugs is anti-inflammatory.

When the adrenal gland's ability to produce cortisone has stopped, these substitutes are used for life. However, in other situations they are used for as short a time as the illness for which they are prescribed will permit. That's to minimize the undesired side effects that can occur.

Your grandon's doctor feels that the time has come to discontinue the boy's steroid therapy. He doesn't like the prospect of having to control the chronic asthma with long-term doses of medicine. That can affect his growth and development.

There always comes a time when such judgments must be made. So you have everything to gain by sending your grandson to a place where they specialize in treatment of young asthmatics. Perhaps with the intensive therapy offered there, along with concentrated efforts to trace down any substance that may be triggering his attacks, your grandson's asthma can be more effectively controlled. Sometimes that can be done better in an environment of complete control. Not everyone will be able to seek such treatment but, yes, all things considered, if you can, I would agree to send him there.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I know this is not a medical question, but my boyfriend and I have a bet going on. And we do not know where to look for an answer. My boyfriend says a woman's breast has buoyancy and helps keep her afloat better than a man. A good dinner is riding on it. — Sink or Float.

I wish a certain Mrs. R.R. were here, looking over my shoulder as I write. She swears I make up these questions.

I'm not sure who wins this bet. I'll give you the facts and you two can sink or swim with it. Women are better floaters. They do have more body fat than men and that makes them more buoyant.

Let me make that a little clearer. Say a man and a woman both weigh 120 pounds. If the woman's weight is 20 percent fat, she has 24 pounds of fat. If the man is only 10 percent fat, he has only 12 pounds. Fat is less dense than lean body weight. It floats better. Now I just cannot say how much of this floating ability is due to the fat of breast tissue. Not much, I'd guess. I'd go Dutch at that meal if I were you.

Dear Dr. Donohue: In one of your columns you advised the writer to speak to the doctor about receiving pneumococcal vaccine after having a splenectomy. I have had my spleen removed and got my first shot two years ago. I had an allergic reaction. My arm swelled up like a balloon. I have heard conflicting reports of how often these shots should be repeated. I have heard every year and every three years. Which is right? — M.M.

Firm guidelines for revaccination with the pneumococcal vaccine have not been established. They [illegible] any sooner than every three years and some think that every five years is sufficient. Severe reactions to the shot would make your doctors wary about giving a second one. I should note that such reactions are quite rare.

Gramm back — as Republican

By T LEE HUGHES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The new office was somewhat smaller than his old one. But there were piles of cookies and cake on a table and his staff applauded when he ambled in, carrying a briefcase and a smile.

"Well, it's not great, but it's not bad," Rep.-elect Phil Gramm said Tuesday, looking around his new Capitol Hill office where henceforth he would work, not as a Democrat, but as a Republican.

It was Gramm's first day back on the job since being re-elected as a Republican in a special election on Saturday in Texas' 6th District.

Gramm had quit Congress and the Democratic Party last month after Democrats refused to return him to the House Budget Committee because of his outspoken support of President Reagan's budget programs.

Besides the cookies and cake, Gramm's staff presented him with a white flag bearing the seal of the House of Representatives.

"I think it would look very nice sometime possibly over in the Senate," said Margaret Foster, his secretary, apparently referring to speculation that Gramm would make a 1984 Senate bid if Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, didn't seek re-election.

"Oh, come on, Margaret," Gramm retorted. "I just got through with a campaign."

While out of office, Gramm lost his old quarters on the seventh floor of the Longworth House Office Building to Rep. Jim Moody, a Wisconsin Democrat, said Larry Neal, Gramm's press secretary.

Gramm's new office on the first floor provides about 40 percent less space, Neal said. He said he expected Gramm would be given additional room in the building but that "we're pretty literally going to be sitting on each other's laps for a while."

However, there was still space on the wall opposite Gramm's desk for a favorite quote from Thomas Jefferson, which began, "I place economy among the first and most important virtues and public debt as the greatest danger to be feared."

Expanding on the theme, Gramm told reporters he intended to continue his battle to reduce the federal deficit and would push for reductions in even the president's proposed spending levels for the next fiscal year.

"I think if we could take the president's package and add some additional savings that the president would support it," said Gramm, a former economics professor.

However, Gramm, whose state is a major oil producer, said he was "not inclined" to support standby taxes proposed by Reagan for 1985, including a $5 per barrel excise tax on oil.

Gramm will return to the Budget Committee, where he said the Republican leadership has offered to grant him the same seniority he would have enjoyed as a Democrat.

He scoffed at speculation that he might have less influence as a Republican than as a highly publicized renegade Democrat.

Calling such speculation the "same tired old humdrum," Gramm said that "whatever influence I've had has always come from working hard and doing my homework."

BACK IN D.C. — Rep. Phil Gramm leaves his Washington home Tuesday heading for Capitol Hill, this time as a Republican. Gramm, elected three times as a Democrat, resigned his seat and won it back in a special election Saturday.

Some of jury treated by defendant

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer

MONAHANS — Some of the jurors who must determine if a Cuban-born doctor tried to kill a gunshot victim by injecting air into the patient's veins where themselves treated by the physican.

Attorneys were scheduled to give their opening arguments today to the 12-member jury selected Monday to consider the case against Dr. Juan F. Perez Valladarez, a Havana native who is one of five doctors in this West Texas city. Perez is charged with injecting 22 cubic centimeters of air into the veins of Michael S. Hoffman as Perez was treating him in a hospital emergency room. Hoffman was critically shot in the head on Nov. 4, 1981, during an argument in Monahans.

Prosecutors allege Perez knew the patient was mortally wounded and was trying to hasten his death.

Two Ward Memorial Hospital nurses have testified in depositions that they witnessed the popular Monahans doctor take a syringe and squeeze enough air into Hoffman's veins to kill him.

The nurses, Peggy Brown and Brenda Rowan, still work at the hospital and are expected to testify at the trial.

Perez, 55, also is expected to testify at the trial, which is being heard by State District Judge Joe Connally of Odessa.

Nearly all of the pool of 80 prospective jurors admitted Tuesday to Perez' attorney, Warren Burnett, that they had been treated by the bespectacled Perez.

State District Judge Lawrence L. Fuller of Monahans disqualifed himself from the case, because he was a patient of Perez'.

District Attorney Mike Ward also disqualified himself from the case, because Perez also was his doctor. Dennis Cadra, an Odessa lawyer, was appointed special prosecutor.

The government says Perez intentionally tried to injure and kill Hoffman, but lawyers acknowledge that the 27-year-old victim — who died 40 minutes after the shooting — would have died soon from his injuries.

James Ralph Echols, 29, of El Paso is charged with shooting Hoffman point-blank in the head during an argument during Alice's Bar. Echols fled prosecution, but is being held on a robbery charge in Riverside, Calif.

He has been charged with murder. Perez is charged with felony counts of attempted murder and aggravated assault, and a misdemeanor count of simple assault.

Hoffman's death was attributed to massive brain damage from the gun shot, medical authorities said, but air injected into a patient's veins forms a bubble that can cause a fatal embolism. Embolism can stop the heart.

4-H council meets Feb. 21

On Feb. 21, at 6:30 p.m. the Howard County 4-H Council will meet at Alberto's. The meal will be Dutch treat.

The last issue of the 4-H Texas Standard has an article about two 4-Her's. Connie Schiller of Brazos County made the women's Olympic traveling team and Kelly Rogers of Howard County's Shooting Sports group made the men's junior trap team.

Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. is the time for a Method Demonstration leader training session. The group will meet in the County Extension office in the Howard County Courthouse.

March 11, 12 and 13 will be adult and junior leader training for trap shooting at Windy Hill Gun Club. The instructor will be Kaye Ohye. The instruction will cover singles, handicap, and doubles. The leaders attending this clinic are John, Repps, and Jo Anne Guitar; Todd and Clyde McKimmey; Jerry and Kelly Rogers; Gregg Newton; and Noah Ferguson.

Odessa Gun Club will be holding a 4-H shoot. This will consist of 50 trap and 50 skeet targets. The shoot is Feb. 19 and trophies will be given in each class.

The Howard County 4-H Shooting Sports has a beginners group that shoots every Saturday morning at 11 a.m. at Windy Hill Gun Club. Jo Anne Guitar is the instructor and all interested shooters may contact her at 267-7891.

Ex-Israeli leader brings no-confidence vote

By COLIN GOLVAN
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM — Saying he had "grave worry in my heart" about the Begin government's handling of Israel's invasion of Lebanon, former Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin today brought the first of three no-confidence motions before Parliament.

Rabin, a member of the opposition Labor Party, said he feared that Israel's actions during the Sept. 16-18 Beirut massacre were indicative of the government's handling of the entire war with Lebanon.

He acknowledged that Prime Minister Menachem Begin's ruling coalition has a 64-56 partliamentary majority which would probably defeat the motion of no-confidence, but said he still felt obliged to try.

Two more motions, by the Communists and the centrist Shinui (change) Party, also were before the Knesset, Israel's parliament. They call for the government to resign because it retained ousted Ariel Sharon as a Cabinet minister without portfolio after his ouster this week as defense minister.

The first indication of Sharon's weakened status came today when the committee of ministers guiding the negotiations on Lebanon held a meeting from which Sharon was excluded.

His critics say retaining Sharon in the Cabinet post violated the intent of the commission that probed the massacre. The inquiry findings were released Feb. 8.

The commission ruled Sharon should have known Lebanese Christian militiamen might slaughter Palestinians when he deployed them ino two Beirut refugee camps last Sept. 16-18.

It also outlined mistrust in Begin's Cabinet and found Sharon had ignored the prime minister's authority without restraint.

Rabin said the commission's findings had aroused "grave worry in my heart" about how the Begin government has handled the whole Lebanon invasion, which began last June 6.

"Can we be sure that what happened here, and was investigated and is therefore known to us, did not happen in other stages of our involvement?" he asked.

"Did you know that this is how the war in Lebanon would develop when you took the decision to go in? Were these the results you expected? The length of the war? Its price?"

As Parliament convened, Israeli newspapers reported secret feelers aimed at bringing Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Likud Bloc and the Labor Party together in a "national unity government."

Yedioth Ahronoth said Interior Minister Yosef Burg, whose National Religious Party (NRP) is Begin's senior coalition partner, had initiated the contacts.

The idea reportedly was to give Labor Party leader Shimon Peres the post of deputy prime minister, and Rabin a top portfolio.

Pressure has grown for such a government to heal the nation divided over the commission's recommendations and to present a united front against President Reagan's Middle East peace initiative.

Critics have argued that keeping the pugnacious Sharon, who is anxious to succeed the prime minister, is going to destroy Begin's Cabinet.

China plans slow worker subsidy cuts

PEKING (AP) — China is planning to slash its enormous subsidies from 30 percent to 20 percent of state spending, officials here say. But the cuts will be gradual and subtle so they won't antagonize workers and spark "Polish-type" unrest.

China's subsidies for 1978 to 1981 added up to about $31.4 billion. That's about $15 for food, clothing, housing, medical care and recreation for each worker.

Officials say the subsidy cuts are planned in an effort to reduce the government's budget deficit, which was about $750 million in 1982.

No major reductions have been reported yet. The cuts, when they come, are expected to be in subsidies for small everyday items, possibly radios and wrist watches. They also are expected in the countryside where peasants are being encouraged to produce more and earn more.

China, however, is providing about $50 million in new subsidies to help some 50 million peasants cope with a 20 percent increase in the price of cotton cloth.

Chinese economists and policymakers say they are keenly aware of the situation in Communist Poland, where workers have struck or rioted over most government-ordered price increases during the past 10 years.

In 1981 China also saw how consumers could grow restless after price hikes. It raised the price on a top-grade bottle of liquor by about $1.12, and on a pack of cigarettes by 15 cents.

Many people then thought those increases were a test to see how consumers would react. There were rumors of 33 percent average increases on certain items. Shoppers went into a frenzy of buying and hoarding.

Anxiety coincided with the Chinese women's volleyball world championship victory, and more than 100,000 people demonstrated for two nights in Tienanmen Square. Although most were celebrating the volleyball victory, some people were protesting price increases.

However, Western economic analysts say the situation in China is different than in Poland, where workers rioted a year ago over subsidy cuts that increased some prices as high as 400 percent.

"What happened in Poland simply cannot happen here," said one Western analyst who asked not to be named. "Something drastic is just not in the cards."

The plan to trim the subsidies stems from proposals made last November by Finance Minister Wang Bingqian.

Newspapers then were filled with reports of overly generous subsidies, fueling speculation that consumers were being prepared for price increases.

Local BBB offers arbitration

Consumers to receive help on unresolved GM complaints

The Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin and area General Motors dealers are now participating in a nationwide program to help GM customers with their unresolved complaints.

Using an arbitration system already set up by the BBB, General Motors and several area GM dealers have pledged to arbitrate disputes on GM cars and light duty trucks, said Linda Truitt, president of the Midland BBB.

Local dealers supporting the program are Pollard Chevrolet, Highland Pontiac, Frank See Chevrolet, Berg Motor Co., Friendly Pontiac, Jack Arledge Oldsmobile-Cadillac and Broncho Chevrolet.

Mrs. Truitt said the arbitration will cover the warranty, alleged manufacturer's responsbility, or alleged factory defects, regardless of mileage, up to five years from the date of orignal purchase. After the five-year limit, GM will decide on a case-by-case basis whether to arbitrate.

She said the program will work like this:

Dissatisfied customers who call the BBB about a GM car are first asked to contact the dealer or the appropriate GM divisional zone office.

If the problem remain unresolved, the BBB tries to bring the parties to an agreement informally, if no solutions are reached the customer is offered arbitration.

The customer is then asked to sign an agreement to abide by the arbitrator's decision, which GM and most local GM dealers have already done.

The arbitration hearings are held in BBB offices or any convenient location and may include an inspection of the vehicle.

During the hearing both parties may be represented, have witnesses and give supporting evidence.

After weighing the the evidence presented by the parties the arbitrator will hand down a legally binding decision at no charge to the customer.

The decision may resolve all issues in favor of one party or it may split terms between the parties.

Persons serving as arbitrators are local volunteers trained by the BBB in arbitration techniques, according to Mrs. Truitt.

The BBB is seeking to expand its pool of community arbitrators and has scheduled a training session for March 3, 1983 at 7 p.m. Persons interested in the session should call 563-1881.

"The credibility of this entire program depends on drawing volunteers from all segments of the community," Mrs. Truitt said. "We want public spirited people who can make equitable decisions. No special background is necessary."

6-month money market rates rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning today, savings institutions may pay as much as 8.889 percent interest on six-month money market certificates while commercial banks may pay as much as 8.639 percent.

The limits had been 8.845 percent and 8.595 percent, respectively.

The new rates are the result of Monday's auctions of short-term Treasury securities, where yields climbed for the fourth straight week, reaching their highest level since last November, officials said.

About $6.2 billion in new three-month bills were sold at an average discount rate of 8.256 percent up slightly from the 8.252 percent of last Monday.

In addition, the government sold about $6.2 billion in six-month bills at an average rate of 8.389 percent, up from last week's 8.345 percent.

Monday's new rates were the highest since the Nov. 29 yields of 8.28 percent for three-month bills and the 8.511 percent for six-month bills.

Amarillo leads state in job growth

DALLAS (AP) — Amarillo led the state in job growth during 1982, followed by Victoria and the Killeen-Temple area, according to a real estate study released here.

The report by MPF Research, Inc., also targeted Galveston-Texas City, Lubbock and Texarkana as areas ripe for development this year.

While Dallas ranked first in the actual number of new jobs, Amarillo had the fastest-growing employment with 5 percent more jobs than in 1981. Victoria was second with a job gain rate of 4.5 percent, Killeen-Temple was third at 2.3 percent and Dallas, Fort Worth and Texarkana tied for fourth with 1.6 percent more jobs.

On the other end of the spectrum, the study advised developers that Houston, Brownsville, Longview, Midland and Odessa "do not appear to offer attractive potential for development activities."

The study compared the job growth rates, or demand, to current real estate development, or supply, to rank 27 Texas metropolitan areas for development opportunities.

The state has grown by 372,300 people annually since 1980, with 202,000 of them coming from other parts of the country, the study said.

More people moved to Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth than the other areas, but Bryan-College Station, Midland, Odessa and Austin also drew a substantial share of the migrants, the study said.

In Victoria, Killeen-Temple, Laredo, Texarkana, El Paso and Tyler, however, more people left than arrived.

Most of the migrants cited job availability as their reason for moving to Texas, but "only eight Texas markets exhibited positive growth in employment for the year ending October 1982," the report said.

Tax help available for Big Springers

For those persons who get confused about all the income tax jargon and rules, help is available.

Every Friday from now until April 15, there will be three locations in Big Spring where persons can receive free help in filling out the basic income tax forms: 1040, 1040A and the 1040EZ.

Volunteers who have been trained to assist taxpayers with these returns will be available from 1-4 p.m. each Friday until April 15 at First Presbyterian Church at 701 Runnels; Citizen's Federal Credit Union on FM 700; and at the Howard County Senior Citizens Center in the Industrial Park.

The program is called "Volunteer Income Tax Assistance" and is designed to provide free help to lower income, non-English speaking or handicapped taxpayers.

Volunteers also alert taxpayers to special credits and deductions for which they may qualify.

Persons who wish to have their returns completed at one of the VITA locations should bring the income tax booklet received in the mail, W-2 forms from employers, 1099 forms for interest received from financial institutions, a copy of last year's tax return if available and any other relevant information concerning income and expenses.

Spanish is spoken in each location and income tax assistance for the deaf can be arranged by appointment.

2 businesses open in area

The Big Spring business community recently recorded the opening of two new businesses in the area.

The Big Spring Mall welcomed Yogurt Plus owned by Noyle and Martha Stone. The store opened Dec. 20 and the Stones are planning a grand opening during Feb. 24,25 and 26.

The store offers frozen yogurt in the flavors of vanilla, chocolate, strawberry and peach and various toppings are also avaiable.

The store also has banana splits, hot fudge sundaes and other traditional treats. Yogurt Plus is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Persons preferring home cooking will want to check out Lois' Truck Stop Cafe located at exit 184 on Interstate 20 in Sand Springs.

Owned and operated by Lois Wright, the cafe serves customers from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Lois' is featuring a fresh catfish special on Fridays and Saturdays. The cafe also serves traditional breakfasts, lunches and dinners.

TEC AWARD PRESENTED — Recently radio station KBYG was awarded the Texas Employment Commission certificate of appreciation for assisting the TEC with its program of matching prospective employers with available employees. The station has a daily program airing job listings by the TEC. Sales decline in December

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a poor sales month in December, a government report shows U.S. businesses cut deeper into their inventories of unsold goods and reduced stockpiles 0.6 percent by holding down production.

December's total sales declined 0.9 percent from November, the Commerce Department report released Monday said.

Sales by U.S. manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers during all of last year were down 3.1 percent from 1981, the biggest yearly drop since 1954, the figures showed. And inventories at yearend were down 2.7 percent from one year earlier, also the biggest decline in 28 years.

Falling inventories are generally viewed as a sign of economic weakness, revealing business managers' reluctance to build up stocks they fear they will have trouble selling. But government officials and private analysts have said big November and December cutbacks may well have reflected the final hard blows of the 1981-82 recession.

According to Sales Marketing & Management's 1982 Survey of Industrial Buying Power, Howard County ranked 20th among Texas' 254 counties in industrial deliveries in 1981. We're behind Harris County (Houston) and Tarrant County (Fort Worth) and others that you might expect. But we're ahead of Ector County (Odessa) and Midland County, which probably surprises you.

Howard County totaled $1,041,200,000 in industrial sales for 1981. Ector County (Odessa) and Midland County trailed behind with $675,200,000 and $256,000,000 respectively.

The top 20 counties in industrial sales in order of rank are Harris (Houston), Jefferson (Beaumont), Dallas, Tarrant (Ft. Worth), Galveston, Brazoria (Houston area), Nueces (Corpus Christi), Bexar (San Antonio), El Paso, Smith (Tyler), Travis (Austin), Potter (Amarillo), Gregg (Longview), McLennan (Waco), Orange, Cameron (Brownsville), Grayson (Sherman), Lubbock, Ft. Bend (Houston area), and Howard.

Now what do these statistics mean to you? They mean that local industries are alive and well, thank you. From Cosden refinery which opened in 1929, to Union Carbide's new plant due to go on-steam this month, industry has played an important part in Big Spring's prosperity. The Big Spring area rose to become one of the state's top 20 industrial producers because of its history of continuous performance.

Would you believe that in 1982 businessmen from Indonesia, Japan, Venezuela, Belgium, Mexico and other countries contacted our Chamber of Commerce to arrange special trips to West Texas to study our industrial operations, particularly Cosden, O.I.L. and Fiberflex.

Industry got a toe-hold here because of that legendary stick-to-it-iveness of its native citizens. But credit goes to the present-day business community for recruiting new business and industry. And to the "newcomers" who move here to "just do a job" and end up being some of our area's biggest boosters.

"Big Spring and Cosden have grown and prospered together in good times and bad. We're still together and optimistic about the future," Cosden says. In October Cosden reached a record two million manhours without an industrial accident.

Union Carbide's new $10 million plant, which will produce 200 tons per day of oilfield-bound high purity nitrogen, will contribute about $3 million a year to the Big Spring area in payroll, local taxes and purchases.

In 1982 Halliburton built a new office building, a new admix storage building and warehouse, and new fueling facilities for its trucks. The company expanded its grounds by 10 acres to better accommodate its growing operations.

Cameo Homes, builders of manufactured housing, has produced an average of four or more homes per day for the last 15 months, and expanded its dealer network to 80 located throughout Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma. Just as the recent higher interest rates caused more homebuyers to turn to manufactured housing, company officials expect the new lower interest rates to create a new demand for its product. Cameo's operation pumps a $3 million payroll into the local economy.

CMC (Cotton Machinery Company) officials are quick to point out that this is a good community to work with "and we attribute this to the people in the community." CMC, which moved here in 1977, is the chief supplier in this area of specialized equipment for cotton harvesting. They're anticipating increased production in 1983 and 1984.

O.I.L., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Kidde Corp., continues to manufacture oil drilling rigs and oilfield equipment during a slump in the oil field industry. Their reported gross business in 1982 was $175 million, capturing one half or more of the oilfield market in the U.S. dealing with new rig manufacturing.

Round-Up Tank Company, manufacturers of Fiberglass tanks, moved an operation to Big Spring about two years ago. This year the firm relocated its corporate headquarters to Big Spring from Hillsboro, Kansas; they're constructing a new headquarters building and gearing up to increase tank production.

We've just touched briefly behind-the-scenes of the industrial community's activities ... but we think you get the idea.

Industrial strength in Big Spring? You'd better believe it!

Steers outmuscle feisty Mojo, 61-47

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

The way the Big Spring student body was chanting "Mojo who?" Tuesday night, a stranger in Steer Gym would have thought the Steers and Odessa Permian were playing for the basketball championship of the civilized world.

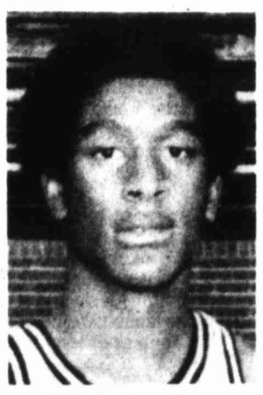

In perhaps the most intense — if not well-executed — game this season in Big Spring, Jerald Wrightsil and Tony Randle teamed for 36 points as the Steers knocked off the Panthers 61-47 before a packed house.

The win was the third straight in District 4-AAAAA play for the Steers and kept Archie Myers' team alive in the league playoff chase with a 7-6 record. Permian, 13-13 overall, slipped to 6-7 with its second consecutive loss.

Although the winner would still trail four other teams in the zany district race, both teams put total effort onto the court. The Steers were playinf for more than pride: the game presented an opportunity to use basketball as a vehicle to end years of athletic frustration at the hands of Mojo.

The intensity peaked in the second half when Big Spring's Jimmy Brown and Permian's Paul Logan locked up in a jump ball that almost turned into a brawl. Officials had to call both teams together and cool tempers in order to proceed with the game.

"Yeah, it was kinda rough," Brown later laughed in the locker-room. "That boy wanted to fight but Jerald told me to keep cool. The ref told us he'd put 10 new players on the floor if we didn't cool it and I knew we didn't have five more on the bench."

JIMMY BROWN
...keeps his cool

TONY RANDLE
...scores 14 points

Brown was right — the Steers suited up just nine players. And with Kevin Watson fouled out of the game and Randle and Jinx Valenzuela playing with four fouls, Big Spring could little afford to play bench against bench.

Logan let his emotions get out of hand once in the fourth quarter, however, getting whistled for a technical foul with Valenzue a sinking the bonus shot. Earlier, Permian coach Charles Patillo drew two technicals and Wrightsil canned three of the four extra free throws.

After Big Spring recovered from a slow start, the Steers controlled the scoreboard althought shaking PHS was no easy job. Falling behind 7-4, Big Spring charged into the lead as Brown hit a jumper and three free throws. A three-point play by Wrightsil and Valenzuela's rebound basket made it 22-11 with 5:29 left in the half.

A bucket by Jeff Adams and two free shots each by Logan and Troy Nini cut the score to 25-21 at the half. Big Spring hit just 10 of 35 tries in the half with Wrightsil suffering through a 3-for-14 two quarters.

The Big Spring senior forward got his team off to a good second half start with a basket and three free throws to build the lead back to 10 but Permian cut it six with 1:03 to go. It was after Randle put in a missed shot that Patillo got hot and Wrightsil's free throws capped the five-point play, giving BSHS a 41-30 lead.

A basket by Rodney Hendrix and a hoop and three-point play by Logan cut the score to 45-39 with 5:01 left in the game but Logan's technical turned the momentum back the other way.

After Valenzuela made his shot, the Steers went on a 13-4 streak as Randle scored four and Valenzuela three points.

Wrightsil scored the last six points of the game for the Steers, hitting four of seven field goals in the half. With his shot not falling, he spent much of his time passing the ball off, collecting four assists down the stretch.

"It was rough, real physical," said Valenzuela who scored eight points and grabbed seven rebounds. "It was more than a game, we were fighting for pride. We had to win it for ourselves and our fans. We couldn't leave them with a loss."

Randle echoed Valenzuela's viewpoint on the game. "It was tough," he grinned. "As soon as we started taking the lead, they started getting physical. That No. 15 (Logan) was trying to fight with everyone but we didn't let it get to us. We just kept increasing our lead."

BSHS coach Archie Myers was pleased that his team kept its cool. "They played hard and I was proud of the guys for keeping their composure. We didn't need to get in all that. That was more of a thrill than any other thing...except winning the game."

The victory boosts Big Spring to 17-11 for the year, the first winning season for the Steers in 10 years.

4-AAAAA—Roundup

Abilene, Odessa just a game away

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

After 13 nights of district games, it all comes down to this Friday night.

For Big Spring and Midland to have a shot at the state playoffs, both teams must win their league finale and have Cooper upset Abilene High.

The Eagles nipped Midland 61-57 while Odessa edged San Angelo 57-56 Tuesday night. Odessa is now all alone in first place with a 9-4 mark while Abilene and San Angelo stand 8-5. Midland and Big Spring are tied for fourth with 7-6 marks.

Should the plan work, Big Spring, Abilene, San Angelo and Midland would tie for second with 8-6 records.

Here's how league played Tuesday night:

Abilene 61, Midland 57

MIDLAND — Taking advantage of Midland's inside players on the bench in foul trouble, Eagle Les Hines scored 12 of his 25 points in the final quarter as AHS rallied by the Bulldogs.

Midland led 48-40 entering the final period but Abilene scored the first eight points to wipe out the lead.

MHS is 15-14 overall while Abilene is 17-14.

Halftime — Midland 34, Abilene 28

Odessa 57, San Angelo 56

ODESSA — Boyd Cowan hit a shot from underneath with six seconds to play to lift the Bronchos into a least a tie for the league title.

Joe Terry — who scored 22 points — stole the ball with 13 seconds to go and fed Howard Harris who passed to Cowan for the winner. SAC's Lorand White missed a 12-footer at the buzzer.

ROUSING RETURN — San Diego Clipper Bill Walton returns to Portland for the first time since April of 1978. The former NBA Most Valuable Player for the Trailblazers scored 15 points, pulled down nine rebounds and had five assists Tuesday night but the Clippers still lost 115-106.

Forsan fails in 16-A title bid

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

GARDEN CITY — In this game, you have to get the ball through the basket.

The Forsan Buffalo Queens know that fact well but weren't able to get enough shots through the hoop Tuesday night against Robert Lee, losing the District 16-A championship 52-42 to the Steers.

The Buffalo Queens, 23-2 after a great season, still get into post-season play, facing Iraan Friday night at 7 p.m. at Greenwood High School. Robert Lee, also 23-2, is the now the No. 1 team but only after a hard-fought defensive war in the Garden City High gym.

The Steers led the whole way, only seriously threatened by Forsan at the very end of the first half.

"We shot poorly, quite simply," Forsan coach Ron Taylor said after the game. "Poor shooting and turnovers in the first quarter, that's what killed us."

The two teams had met two weeks ago, the Buffalo Queens prevailed in that game 36-35. It was the same type of game: defensive and physical, with a lot of free throws for Robert Lee.

The Steers hit 27 free throws last night; Forsan managed just eight.

"We knew, of course, that it was going to be a defensive fight," Taylor said. "We expected a heavy press and they gave it to us. I didn't think it would affect us that badly."

Taylor credits fouls as his team's major obstacle last night. The Buffalo Queens' second top scorer, Teresa White, was out of action much of the game because of foul trouble and was held to only six points.

"We weren't used to the officials calling it that tight," Taylor said. "But that wasn't the only problem. We just missed a lot of easy shots."

Robert Lee didn't. They jumped out in front immediately, leaving Forsan scoreless for the first two minutes of play. The Buffalo Queens fought for 16 points in the second quarter, but could only scrape together 14 points in the second half.

Martha Bickley was the top scorer of the night for Robert Lee, claiming 14 points. Leigh Ann Runnion followed with 13. The two did much of the scoring in the first half.

Forsan's Vicky Baggett was the game's top scorer with 20 points. She scored 12 of those in the second quarter and was a main force in the rally that brought her team within one point near the end of the half.

The Buffalo Queens collected six points on free throws in the second quarter. Vicky Baggett's basket brought her team back to within a point at 27-26 with just over a minute to play. Runnion broke downcourt for a basket, however, to put the score at 29-26.

Cathy Thurman responded with a basket for Forsan that again threatened Robert Lee's lead. The Buffalo Queens then tried to run the quarter down for the last shot but missed and Robert Lee's Tracie Fulkerson scored at the close of the half to keep her team out front 31-28.

Forsan's missed shots were all too evident in the second half. Only 12 points were scored by the two teams in the third quarter; much of the time taken up by the superb defensive stalemate, broken by Deb-

'Iceman' cools L.A. in Forum

GETTING KAREEM-ED — San Antonio guard Johnny Moore (00) sees the hand of Los Angeles Laker Kareem Abdul Jabbar in the way of the basket Tuesday night in the Forum. San Antonio, led by George Gervin's 40 points, decked the NBA champs 124-103.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — "Vengeance is the Lord's, not mine," said George Gervin after his 40-point performance led San Antonio's defeat of the Los Angeles Lakers.

But San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck said the "Iceman" was hot to show the Forum his stuff after Sunday's slight. Gervin, who led the Spurs' 124-103 victory over Los Angeles, did not start for the West in All-Star game coached by Lakers Coach Pat Riley at the Forum on Sunday.

"Ice (gervin) wanted to prove he could play in the Forum. After coming off the All-Star game and not starting, you have something to prove. Tonight you saw Gervin at his best," Albeck said after the game.

Still, when queried on the issue, Gervin would say, "Vengeance is the Lord's not mine. It's over. It's behind me. I won't talk about it anymore."

He said the game was important for the Spurs, because "We want to win as many as we can in the seond half."

Albeck also noted it was San Antonio's best game of the year.

The Spurs stopped the Lakers just about every time they made a run, he said, adding, "Our defense has been much maligned all year, but tonight the Spurs played very good defense."

Gervin took over at the beginning of the game scoring 15 first quarter points as the Spurs took a 43-24 lead.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 26 points for the Lakers, Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 24 and Jamaal Wilkes 21.

San Antonio's Artis Gilmore had 21 and Mike Mitchell 19.

The game was tied at eight before San Antonio ran off 12 of the next 16 points. The Lakers closed to within eight twice at the end of the third quarter and had a chance to close to six but rookie James Worthy missed a lay up underneath to leave the score at 89-81.

The loss topped four straight wins for the Lakers and ended a 13-game Los Angeles winning streak at home.

Hawks hold off Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — Just because Atlana had a 77-60 lead in the third quarter was no reason to give up, the Houston Rockets figured.

They outscored the Hawks 26-11, including the first 14 points of the fourth quarter, to close the margin to 88-86 midway through the last stanza before Atlanta rallied for a 101-91 victory in a National Basketball Association game Tuesday night.

"After being down so far, this would have been a sweet win," Houston Coach Del Harris said. "In the final three minutes, we worked and had some good shots, but they just wouldn't go in." The Rockets held Atlanta to three field goals in the fourth quarter.

Mike Glenn and Johnny Davis hit back-to-back jumpers to help blunt the Houston comeback. That turned the 88-86 edge into a six-point bulge. After Calvin Murphy hit a jumper from outside, Atlanta scored nine of the game's final 12 points for the victory.

Eddie Johnson scored 24 points to lead Atlanta. Dan Roundfield added 19 points and Dominique Wilkins 18.

Forsan was down 37-34 at the start of the fourth quarter, but the gap only widened from there. The Buffalo Queens were held scoreless until 3:10 was left on the clock and were outscored 15-8 in the final period.

"The game would have been much worse if one of us had to go home for the season," Taylor said. "I'm glad we still in it, but I sure wish we could have been number one."

Taylor said his major concern was how his team would come off this loss for the game against Iraan.

"We're going to be working on about everything," he said.

Lamesa, Marquez winners again

SAN ANGELO — Victor Spencer scored 35 points and Lamesa clinched a spot in the Class AAAA playoffs with a whopping 95-66 victory over San Angelo Lake View Tuesday night.

The Tors have now won 14 straight games and stand 23-4 on the season, 14-1 overall in 2-AAAA play. The Lakers tumble to 2-18 and 0-6.

A 30-6 spread in the third quarter did Lake View in. Mark Murphy added 27 and Steve Alexander 17 points for Lamesa. Earl Clemons had 24 and Jerry Horn 18 for the Chiefs.

Lamesa closes its district slate Friday at Fort Stockton and has a tentative practice game Tuesday against Dimmitt, the No. 1 AAA team in the state, at Levelland.

OU president good Sooner recruiter

NORMAN, Okla. (AP — If a prospective football player isn't sold on the University of Oklahoma, Coach Barry Switzer calls on his most dependable recruiter — the president.

And Dr. William Banowsky's record so far this year is three for three.

The president placed a call on Saturday to Darrell Reed, a defensive end from Houston's Cypress-Fairbanks High School and by Sunday he had signed a letter of intent with the Sooners.

Add his name to those of Tulsa Hale quarterback David Vickers and Grandview, Mo. tackle Richard Marks as high schoolers who signed up after hearing the pitch from the president's office.

"In the years I've been here, coach Switzer has asked me to make a few calls during the recruiting period, but not very many," Banowsky said Tuesday.

"I make them in cases where the student has expressed academic concerns. Darrell was concerned about whether OU has a good business college, and I was able to give him details on that."

Lamesa hires Nooncaster AD, head football coach

LAMESA — Clyde Nooncaster, a 14-year veteran of high coaching, has been named the new head football coach and athletic director at Lamesa High School.

Nooncaster succeeds Don Mullins who was hired but resigned his position last week. Mullins replaced Jim Warren who guided the Golden Tornadoes to a 4-25-1 three-year record. He resigned in January to enter private business.

A junior high coach in Lamesa — under his high school coach Al Lankford, Nooncaster coached as an assistant and head coach at Clarendon, head coach at Clyde and high school principal again at Clarendon.

He spent the last three years in Freer, a Class AAA school south of San Antonio. He has won or shared eight district titles.

Nooncaster, recommended for the Lamesa job by former Texas A&M coach Emory Bellard, is expected to assume his new duties in early March and hire three new assistants.

Shofner new Cowboys coordinator

DALLAS (AP)— The Dallas Cowboys have announced the hiring of Jim Shofner, former head coach at Texas Christian University and assistant with three National Football League clubs, as their new quarterback coach.

Shofner, 47, succeeds John Mackovic, who resigned Feb. 3 to become the head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs.

"We're very fortunate to be able to bring in Jim Shofner, who has had such an extensive background working with quarterbacks," Cowboys head coach Tom Landry said Tuesday.

"His great experience in the league will make his adjustment to our staff a fairly easy one. Jim will handle our quarterbacks and work with Dick Nolan in setting up our passing game."

He has been an assistant coach with the San Francisco 49ers, the Cleveland Browns and the Houston Oilers, where he was offensive coordinator in 1981 and 1982. Shofner had resigned at Houston at the end of last season to go into private business.

A native of Grapevine, Shofner was an all-Southwest Conference running back for Texas Christian in 1957 and forsook a pro baseball career as a third baseman with the Detroit Tigers to join the Browns, who drafted him on the first round.

Shofner was the TCU coach from 1974-76.

Cooper receives MLB award

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowie Kuhn was on hand as the presenter of the Roberto Clemente Award. Cecil Cooper of the Milwaukee Brewers was the recipient, the reason for the affair.

But Cooper, being a quiet, almost shy man, accepted the award as "the player who best exemplifies the game on and off the field," then faded into the background while baseball's outgoing — in more ways than one — commissioner became the focal point.

"One of my many final acts," Kuhn joked as he handed the trophy to Cooper, the Brewers' star first baseman. Unless the lords of baseball, the owners, reverse their vote of last Nov. 1, Kuhn will clean out his desk next Aug. 12 and seek employment elsewhere.

The award is named for the Hall of Fame outfielder who died in a plane crash on Dec. 31, 1972, while on a mission to aid Nicaraguan earthquake victims. It is awarded for sportsmanship, character, community involvement, humanitarianism, playing ability and contributions to the player's team and to baseball. He was chosen from 15 nominees by a panel of 25 sports writers, sports broadcasters and baseball executives.

Cooper has organized and conducted Athletes for Youth motivational sessions involving teammates, visiting players and members of various youth groups, is a member of the board of directors of Athletes for Youth and the Milwaukee Area Community Chest and was the 1982 honorary chairman of Food For Families.

"I have always prided myself on being not just a player but a member of the community," said Cooper, who lives in Milwaukee in the offseason as well. "I would hope my receiving this award would inspire my teammates and players on other teams to become involved, too."

After the brief awards ceremony, Kuhn was asked if he would accept a new contract as commissioner if a sufficient number of owners changed their minds and voted to retain him in the job he's held since 1969.

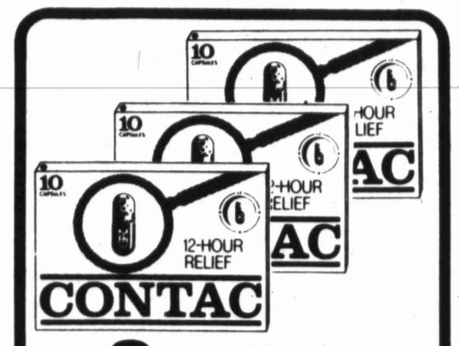

"Perhaps," he said. "It depends on what they want to make of the job. Some of them have a vastly different idea than I of what a commissioner is supposed to be."

Some owners have suggested that baseball needs a businessman running things rather than a lawyer, which Kuhn is, and have called for the creation of the office of business manager, an act which could strip the commissioner's office of much of its clout. Kuhn refuses to remain in the job if he has to share the power or answer to anyone else.

U.S. needs to go high-tech, Bentsen says

By PHILLIP SWANN
States News Service

WASHINGTON — The United States must shift gears and retrain its workers for the mushrooming high-technology industry or the United States will become a second-rate technological power, according to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

Bentsen spoke Wednesday at a two-day conference here on the high-tech industry. The event was sponsored by the Government Research Corporation, a private group which provides analysis and information on government policies.

"One does not have to fully understand the (high-tech) revolution to appreciate that it is upon us," Bentsen told the conference attended by several government officials and industry leaders. "Can we adjust? Can we accommodate it and manage it to our advantage, or will we stand aside and watch the forces of technology march beyond the skills of our workers?"

The high-tech industry has been a growing force in Texas, most notably the central part of the state ranging from Austin to San Antonio. The low tax rate and warn climate make Texas a potential hotbed for the industry, which runs the gamut from computers to industrial robots.

In his State of the Union speech President Reagan observed that the high-tech industry can be a solution to America's unemployment problem, Bentsen noted. But the senator warned that U.S. workers lack the skills to operate the new electronic wizardry.

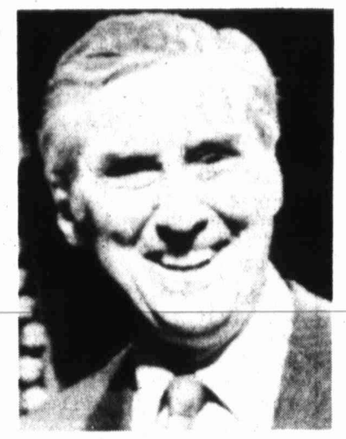

"If you project current trends into the future...the outlook is alarming," Bentsen said. "Will America continue to lead the high-tech revolution or will we let ourselves be subjugated to the status of a second-rate technological power, a source of raw materials for the nations that have adjusted to become the technological giants of the future?"

Bentsen this month introduced legislation that would provide tax incentives for businesses that share modern high-tech equipment with universities. Industries also would get tax breaks if their employees participate in skills training programs or teach at universities.

The American Electronics Association, a Washington trade group that represents high-tech companies, estimates that there are 2,000 engineering faculty positions open in the United States.

"Some colleges have vacancies in computer-related positions at a rate of 50 percent. America will need as many as 50,000 new computer and electrical engineers in 1983, but we graduate only 15,000 per year," Bentsen told the conference.

"There is an excellent chance that some 35,000 engineering slots will go unfilled each year. America can no longer afford to compete in the international marketplace with that kind of handicap."

Texas needs more influence?

H-H Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas needs to put in its 2-cents worth a little more quickly and loudly in the nation's capital, says Sarah Weddington, the newly appointed director of the Texas Office of State-Federal Relations who hopes to help the state do just that.

To meet her goal, Ms. Weddington, a former state legislator and advisor to former President Jimmy Carter, told a Texas House Appropriations Committee Monday that her agency needs $320,991 above the $1.77 million budget suggested for that office for 1984-85 by an influential state legislative panel.

The money would be used to increase staff of that agency, which has offices in Washington, D.C., and Austin, from 19 to 22 and add computer equipment.

She quoted a Texas Municipal League figure showing that Texas sends $1.46 to Washington, D.C. for every $1 it receives. She said that in the past the agency hasn't been quick enough giving Texas' input on federal formula funding proposals.

"Once they're adopted, it's difficult for us to get the money," Ms. Weddington said.

A major obstacle to climb, she said, is that Texas is viewed as a wealthy state in Washington. "Our current budget situation is not known" there, she said.

For example, a federal legislative proposal to revamp the Home Energy Assistance Program, which pays utility bills for the needy, would channel that money to the colder, northern states, Ms. Weddington said. Texans currently benefit from that program.

She said the agency does not lobby for more federal expenditures but wants to help Texas win its fair share of the dollars that are spent.

Improving relations with the Texas delegation in Washington also will be another goal of the agency, she said, noting these relations in the past have not been good.

One of the main functions of the agency is serving as an "early warning system" for other Texas agencies, Ms. Weddington said, so that heads of those bodies can come to Washington to testify before proposals becomes law.

Although the suggested changes to the proposed state-federal relations office budget were adopted and recommended to the Appropriations Committee by a budget and oversight subcommittee, the Appropriations Committee will not act on the request until later in the 1983 legislative session. The Legislative Budget Board, composed of House and Senate members, made the $1.77 million recommendation in January.

Ms. Weddington said she believes a state budget to be proposed by Gov. Mark White will deal favorably with her requests.

Universal gambles with 'Pirates' on pay-TV

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Universal Pictures will show its $10 million version of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance" on pay television Friday, the same day the movie musical debuts in theaters across the country.

But it's a first-time gamble most theater owners don't want to take.

Believing that audiences will stay away from the picture after it is shown on pay television, only about 100 of the nation's approximately 4,000 motion picture theaters have signed to play "Pirates."

"I would not have played it had they given it to me for nothing," says A. Alan Friedberg, president of the Boston-based Sack Theaters chain and former chairman of the National Association of Theater Owners. "I didn't invest millions of dollars in brick and mortar to play films simultaneously with television."

"As far as we're concerned, the picture doesn't exist," groused Mel Wintman, president of the nation's largest theater chain, the 1,000-screen GCC Theaters Inc.. "We will not play (simultaneously) with TV. We feel we have earned the right to play it first."

Subscription TV companies are asking subscribers to pay around $10 for a one-time showing of the movie, with Universal collecting about $6 of that figure. Most first-run movies tickets today cost between $2.00 and $5.00 each.

Industry sources say the sign-up rate for "Pirates" is running between 10 percent and 20 percent of the nation's 1.5 million homes that are wired for pay-per-view billing.

If 20 percent sign, the one-night return would be about $3 million — a large figure, but still far from what it takes to put today's multimillion-dollar movies in the black.

The lavish "Pirates" is not simply another ambitious made-for-television project. Filmed in an expensive widescreen process and sophisticated Dolby Stereo, it was intended for theatrical release.

According to a Universal spokesman, who declined to be identified, the picture, which was shot in England, cost about $10 million. Advertising and marketing generally doubles the production cost, so the film would have to gross $20 million to break-even.

Hedging its bets, Universal is demanding advance payments from pay television distributors, just as the studio does with theater owners on major movies, said John Gwin, president of Oak Media Development, whose ON-TV will offer "Pirates" to about 600,000 subscribers nationwide.

The results of recent live pay television events have been mixed. A much-publicized Who rock concert last year achieved a dismal 12 percent sign-up rate at ON-TV. In comparison, the 1982 Rolling Stones pay-per-view concert attracted 25 percent viewership, while some boxing matches have achieved 50 percent sign-up rates.

Universal executives have been cautious about the prospects for "Pirates," calling its release an "experiment" and emphasizing that no other same-day showings are in the works.

"This is an experiment in the future of theatrical distribution," said Jerry Hartman, vice president-director of marketing for Universal Pay Television. "It's a learning experience. We have set no goals."

California to pay bills with IOUs

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California will begin paying some bills with IOUs next week for the first time since the Depression because the Legislature and governor missed the last deadline for resolving a $1.5 billion deficit, state officials said Tuesday.

"The deadline has been there. People have been trying against all hope. All hope is gone. We will now be on IOUs. There's no question," said state Controller Ken Cory.

"I see no other recourse than the state will be on registered warrants for at least one day and for every subsequent day the governor and Legislature delay a settlement," added Treasurer Jesse Unruh.

They said the first IOUs would be issued Feb. 23 to an estimated 75,000 Californians for tax refunds and an additional 10,000 to 12,000 suppliers of various supplies to state agencies.

As the two Democratic fiscal officers held a news conference to declare that the deadline to avoid IOUs had passed, Republican Gov. George Deukmejian and legislative leaders held another closed-door meeting trying to end the two-month stalemate over the fiscal crisis.

Deukmejian is set against a tax increase, pushing for a combination of spending cuts and a carryover deficit, while Democrats in the Legislature prefer a combination of spending cuts and tax hikes.

Unruh said if the Legislature and governor agreed on "a fiscal recuperation plan" by Tuesday night, he could borrow money from banks by Feb. 25 or 28, and IOUs would be issued only for a few days.

"Any delay in settlement beyond tonight would most likely mean the state would be without cash in March," he added.

Unruh said he believes people in the financial community "think we look like a bunch of fools ... .

"I think it's tragic. I think it was avoidable. I think it was lack of political resolve ... the intransigence of a few people."

Unruh said the final deadline for avoiding registered warrants, which are not redeemable until the state has the cash to pay them, was Monday night. That's because it takes nine or 10 days to borrow money from private lenders to tide the state over.

He said banks have been cooperative, "but no one in the financial community is willing to give the state a blank check secured by nothing more than a hope that action from our statehouse is forthcoming."

After the initial Feb. 23 warrants are issuedlin lieu of tax refunds and checks to businesses dealing with the state, Cory said on following days, warrants would go to 86,000 state employees, plus 10,000 businesses and 75,000 taxpayers daily.

As many as 8 million taxpayers could get IOUs instead of refunds, Cory said.

Beef Cook-off deadline nears; bread recipes listed

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor
and
CAROL HART
Lifestyle Writer

If you're planning to enter the Texas Beef Cook-off, sponsored by the Texas CowBelles, then you'd better hurry. Deadline for entering is March 1.

To enter, send a typed copy of your best beef recipe, using only chuck, round, rump, fresh brisket, plate, shank or ground beef, to Texas Beef Cook-off, 11002 Plumewood, Austin, Texas, 78750. Include your name, address, phone number and a brief statement about the origin of your recipe.

Five contestants will compete at the Texas Beef Cook-off April 15-16 at Laredo. Prizes are $300, first, $200, second, and $100, third. The first place winner will represent Texas at the National Beef Cook-off Sept. 19-21 in Bismarck, N.D. Prizes at the national level are $5,000, first place, $2,500, second place, $1,500, third place, and five honorable mentions of $300 each.

All recipes must contain a minimum of two pounds of beef and not more than five. Meat used must be exclusively beef. Cooking time cannot exceed four hours. The recipe must be specific, with no use of brand names, and must state the number of servings and approximate preparation time. All entries become the property of the Texas CowBelles, Inc.

Contestants must be 18 or older, with non-professional food status. Any person who has owned one or more head of beef or dairy cattle (or whose immediate family has owned cattle) in the 12 months preceding Oct. 1, 1983, is ineligible. Cowbelles and employees of state beef councils or the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board are also ineligible.

All recipes are judged according to taste, ease of preparation, and practicality, originality and appearance.

Now, while you are mulling that over, here are some recipes for various types of breads.

Please continue sending your recipes or requests in. We want to hear from you. Also if you happen to know a terrific cook you wld like us to feature sometime in the Exchange, tell us about tht person.

STRUESEL BANANA BRAN BREAD

¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar (¼ cup packed brown sugar if desired)
1 egg
1 cup all-bran cereal
1½ cup mashed bananas (3 to 4 bananas)
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup whole wheat flour
½ cup all purpose flour
1¼ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. soda
½ tsp. salt
½ cup chopped nuts if desired

STRUESEL TOPPING
½ cup whole wheat flour
3 Tbsps. brown sugar
½ tsp. cinnamon
3 Tbsps. butter or margarine

Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add egg, beat well. Stir in all-bran, bananas and vanilla. Separately mix together flours, baking powder, soda and salt. Add to first mixture with nuts, stirring only until combined.

Lightly spray with non-stick coating or lightly grease 6 cup ring mold (or use 1½ quart casserole with custard cup in center.) Spread batter into dish. Combine strusel topping ingredients and place on top of batter. Microwave at 50 percent power nine minutes. Turn dish ¼ turn every three minutes. Increase powder to 100 percent and microwave 2 to 3 minutes longer. Check for doneness (no undone batter should appear on top or sides.) Allow dish to stand 5-10 minutes before turning out. Turn out onto paper plate after sides have been loosened, then turn back onto serving plate so struesel topping is on top.

TWO-WAY JEWISH RYE BREAD

1 package dry yeast
1 cup warm (105 to 115 degrees) water
3 cups (about) all-purpose white flour
1 cup stone-ground rye flour
1½ Tbsps. plus extra caraway seed
1 Tbsp. sugar
1½ tsps. salt
One-16th tsp. ground black pepper
1 large egg
white or yellow cornmeal
Egg Wash (one egg beaten with one tablespoon water until blended.)

In the large bowl of an electric mixer, sprinkle the yeast over the water; stir until dissolved. Add 1½ cups of the white flour, the rye flour, the 1½ tablespoons caraway seed, sugar, salt, pepper and the egg. At medium speed, beat until smooth — about two minutes. With a wooden spoon stir in enough more white flour to make a sticky, soft dough. Turn out on a prepared pastry cloth; knead until smooth and elastic, working in more white flour as necessary — about 10 minutes. Place in a lightly greased bowl; turn to grease top. Cover bowl with saran. Let rise in a draft free warm place (about 80 degrees) until doubled — about one hour. Punch down dough. Divide in half.

Divide one half of the dough into 15 equal pieces; shape each into a ball. Sprinkle a large buttered cookie sheet with cornmeal; place balls about one inch apart on the sheet. Place a sheet of saran over the top; set aside in a warm place.

Divide remaining dough in half. Shape each half, by rolling with your hands, into a 12-inch long "rope" and slightly taper the ends. Place the two ropes, well apart, on a small buttered cookie sheet. Place a sheet of saran over the top and let rise with the pan of rolls in a draft-free warm place (about 80 degrees) until doubled — about 30 minutes. Brush rolls and loaves with Egg Wash; sprinkle with extra caraway seed. With a single-edge razor blade, slash a small "x" over the center of each roll, making sure slashes do not come to edges of rolls.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until browned and a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 25 to 30 minutes for both rolls and loaves. (Rolls can be baked in a large oven and the loaves in a small oven.) If you have only one oven, do not bake the rolls and the loaves at the same time. Remove to wire racks to cool. Serve while fresh and crusty.

Make 15 rolls and two party loaves.

To make melba toast, cut a party loaf into about ¼-inch thick slices. Bake in a single layer on an ungreased cookie sheet in a preheated 350-degree oven until lightly browned and crisp — 10 minutes or so.

CHEESE BRAID

3 cups unsifted all purpose flour
3 ounces cheddar cheese, cut into pieces
3 Tbsps. margarine
2 Tbsps. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water (105 degrees F. to 115 degrees F.)
¾ cup very cold water
1 egg white
1 Tbsp. water

Using a food processor, with metal blade in place, combine flour, cheese, margarine, sugar and salt in bowl; process about 15 seconds until cheese is shredded. Dissolve active dry yeast in warm water; pour through feed tube. Begin processing, pouring cold water through feed tube in a fast stream until ball forms, about 10-15 seconds. Continue processing for 60 seconds to knead dough.

Carefully remove dough from processor bowl. Shape into a ball and place in a greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour.

Punch dough down. Divide into 3 equal pieces. Roll each piece into a 12-inch long rope. Braid ropes together. Place braid on greased baking sheet. Cover; let rise until doubled in bulk, about one hour.

Combine egg white and one tablespoon water. Brush on braid. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 20-30 minutes, or until done. Remove from sheet and cool on wire rack.

NINETY-MINUTE ALMOND ORANGE LOAF

3 ¼ to 3 ¾ cups unsifted flour
5 Tbsps. firmly packed light brown sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 package active dry yeast
1 cup water
⅓ cup milk
3 Tbsps. margarine
2 tsps. grated orange peel
⅓ cup finely chopped almonds

Mix 1 ½ cups flour, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast.

Heat water, milk and 2 tablespoons margarine to 120 degrees F. — 130 degrees F. Margarine does not need to melt. Add to dry ingredients and beat two minutes at medium speed of mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add ½ cup flour; beat at high speed two minutes. Stir in enough more flour to make a soft dough. On a floured board knead four to five minutes. Place in a greased bowl; turn to grease top.

On center rack of cold oven pour boiling water into a large baking pan to a depth of one-inch. Place dough on rack over pan of water. Cover. Close oven and let rise 15 minutes.

Punch dough down. Roll out to a 14 by 9 inch rectangle. Melt remaining margarine; brush on dough. Mix remaining brown sugar, orange peel and almonds; sprinkle on dough. Roll up from short end, seal edges. Place in a greased 8 ½ by 4 ½ by 2 ½ inch loaf pan. Replace boiling water in pan in oven. Place dough over water in oven. Cover; let rise 20 to 25 minutes. Uncover loaf and remove pan of water and rack. Turn oven to 375 degrees F. Bake 30 to 35 minutes, or until done. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack.

JEWISH RYE BREAD — The recipe for this Jewish Rye Bread is listed in today's Recipe Exchange. The bread is delicious when shaped into small crusty rolls and party loaves and flavored with caraway seeds.

DENNIS THE MENACE

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Smear some jelly on your face. It keeps her from kissin' you."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEB. 17, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day to make an advancement in career activities, but be sure not to force your will on others. You can easily extend your ideas beyond present boundaries now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Extend your interests so you can gain more profits in the future. Be less demanding of family members. Express happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take the right steps to improve your financial position. A new project needs more study before going ahead with it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Schedule your activities wisely so you get maximum use of your time. Be sure to use extreme caution in motion today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can now understand how to improve your financial position so don't waste valuable time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go after your finest personal aims and you can easily gain them. Sidestep a foe who could spoil your happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your ambitions well now and don't confide in others. Show more affection for mate. Many benefits can come now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Go after personal aims with more enthusiasm and effort and you can easily gain them. Be alert at all times today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are now able to get the backing you need from a higher-up. Be sure to keep promises you've made to friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can make a good impression on others by showing you are honest and decent. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be more objective in dealing with others where business matters are concerned or you could jeopardize your security.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure to keep the promises made to family members. Come to a better accord with associates. Think constructively.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go after your aims in a positive manner and get excellent results. Contact loyal friends who can be helpful to you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be capable of comprehending a great deal of knowledge, so give the finest education you can afford and there can be much success. Don't neglect religious tenets that are important to a good way of life.

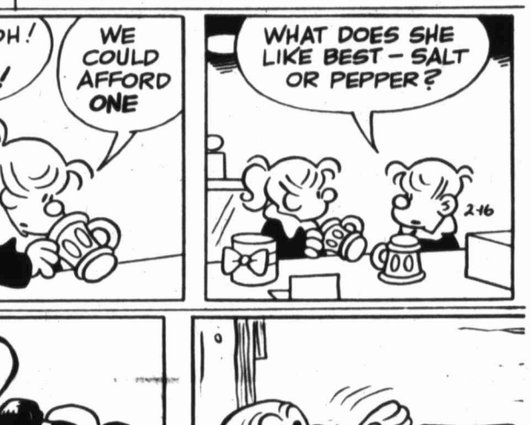

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Senators fight to amend hardship license bill

By DANA PALMER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Another setback for the poor is in the making if a bill tightening restrictions on hardship driver's licenses for 15-year-olds is not amended, two senators said Monday.

Sens. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, and H. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, won a bit more time from the bill's sponsor to work on a possible amendment that would waive in cases of extreme economic hardship a proposed and expensive requirement.

That requirement calls for 15-year-olds to pass a driver education course that costs $135 in most school districts before they can apply for a hardship license.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, won tentative Senate approval Monday with that provision intact and could have won final approval had Glasgow not agreed to the delay.

No real opposition exists in the House and the legislation should receive the required approval of the House and Senate by the end of the week, Glasgow said.

"We had the votes to pass this bill," Glasgow said, adding that it simply was a courtesy to give his two fellow senators a chance to discuss a possible amendment.

Though sounding doubtful, Glasgow added: "They may come up with something I can live with."

The law currently is broad in its language, noting that a hardship license can be granted "if it would be detrimental to the general welfare of the applicant or his or her family." During hearings on the bill, senators learned that such hardship licneses are granted routinely.

That, Glasgow said, has led to fairly widespread abuse of the privilege and has contributed to many deadly auto accidents because the hardship license holder had no formal driver's training.

One amendment that won approval Monday with Glasgow's blessing would allow the Department of Public Safety to waive the driver education provision and to grant temporary 60-day licenses to 15-year-olds if the teen-ager "must assist in the responsibilities of a family illness, disability or death-related emergency..."

Sponsor of the amendment, Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, explained that the provision would address those problems of families who live in isolated or rural areas and must contend with the aftermath of a heart attack or stroke.

The temporary license could be renewed for 60-day periods "so long as the emergency continues," he added.

Santiesteban acknowledged the bill is needed because "a lot of times it's abused," but the Legislature shouldn't put "a dollar sign on a hardship license."

He said it's not as if unqualified drivers will be allowed on the road because the 15-year-old still would have to pass the usual tests given by the Department of Public Safety.

Truan also noted that among the state's poor, including many Mexican-American families, 15-year-olds often must work to help make ends meet. "We don't want to create another hardship ourselves," he said.

Area Briefs

Texas A&M University says three students from the Big Sping area received commendations for academic achievement during the fall 1982 semester.

They are Michael Lamar of Big Spring, a freshman petroleum engineering major, named distinguished student; Van M. Gaskins of Knott, a December agricultural economics graduate, named to the dean's honor roll; and Barry T. Rosson of Big Spring, a senior civil engineering student, named to the dean's honor roll.

Polly Barbee of Big Spring was named to the dean's list at McMurry College for the fall 1982 semester, according to a press release from that institution.

To be eligible for the dean's list, a student must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better on a 4.0 scale.

John Edwards, son of Mrs. W.K. Jackson, 716 Hillside, has been named an associate editor supervising the photo section of the 1983 Conception Southwest, a student publication at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque.

Edwards, who graduated from Big Spring High School, is a fine arts major at UNM. He currently has a three-part sculpture on display at the Teaching Gallery Exhibtion at the university. He is also listed on the dean's list.

★★★

Sylva Edwards Zella, daughter of Mrs. W.K. Jackson, 716 Hillside, was nominated to Who's Who in American Colleges by the faculty and her peers at the Gulf Coast Community College in Panama City, Fla.

Mrs. Zella was nominated on the basis of scholarship, character, community service and future potential. She currently holds a 4.0 average at the school.

She is working on a master's degree, and received her Registered Nursing degree last June.

Congressman Charles Stenholm announced last week that Bret A. Crenwelge of Big Spring was offered an appointment to the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs.

Crenwelge, who was nominated by Stenholm in December, was selected through a competitive process. More than 35,000 young people apply for nominations each year; 8,000 receive them and 1,425 enter the academy as appointees.

Crenwelge is currently a senior at Big Spring High School where he is involved in the track team, the Student Council and the choir as well as the Boy Scouts and the Key Club.

He is the son of Joe and Elizabeth Crenwelge of 2805 Apache. Two of of his brothers also graduated from the Air Force Academy.

'Changing Habits' to weak

NEW YORK (AP) — Except for "Hill Street Blues," when a member of the world's oldest profession shot Henry Goldblume in the chest last season, or the occasional gritty movie, network television tends to romanticize prostitution.

In sitcoms and walk-ons in TV movies, prostitutes typically are seen as golden-hearted beauties. Someone like Detective Wojohowicz (Max Gail in "Barney Miller") might get them to question their morality, but, generally, the biggest flaw in these working women is that they're considered misguided.

In "Dixie: Changing Habits," a sweet but altogether flimsy romantic comedy on CBS tonight, Dixie Cabot is New Orleans' most famous madam. She feels neither misguided nor mistreated. She's a businesswoman who engages in a service, as John Daly of "What's My Line" might say by way of introduction.

Dixie is played by the irrepressible Suzanne Pleshette, whose special brand of sassy charm is well-suited for this role. Her Southern accent is understated and her down-home smile and gleeful glint add spice to the characterization.

Dixie is a famous folk figure in New Orleans. Truck drivers recognize her. Cops solicit her autograph. Her brothel oozes community. It's a mansion of plenty, a home away from home for her volunteer workers.

Their biggest domestic problem seems to be leaky plumbing, although occasional police crackdowns can be irritating, too. After one such arrest, Dixie is brought into court, where she offers her personal code of ethics.

"I don't believe what I do is wrong," she says. "In my home, nobody gets hurt, nobody gets robbed and nobody gets cheated."

The judge is unmoved. "Get thee to a nunnery," he says, and so begins Dixie's 90-day prison term in a convent, and the movie's major conflict, a clash of lifestyles. "You tend to the spirit. We tend to the body," is Dixie's assessment of the different vocations.

A clash in cultures or attitudes is a frequent theme of network TV. Just last week, suburbanites went to the wilds of Oregon in CBS' "Packin' It In," while ABC's "Condo" unveiled a sitcom that pitted two neighbors from opposite sides of the tracks.

But "Dixie: Changing Habits" apparently is the first fish-out-of-water story involving a hooker in a habit.

Dixie's attitude is one of congeniality, not combativeness, although she's crestfallen to learn that the religious retreat owns no TV. Her offer to buy one falls on the deaf ears of Mother Superior Eugenio, played by the ubiquitous Cloris Leachman.
