Ten more hostages freed

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ten more Americans freed after being held hostage for 16 days in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran were flown to Europe today to join three others released Monday.

An Iran Air jetliner carrying the 10 landed at Orly Airport in Paris. They then were flown to Frankfurt, West Germany, in a U.S. Air Force hospital plane and taken by car to an Air Force hospital in nearby Wiesbaden for medical examinations and questioning by U.S. officials. There was no word on whether they would be home in time for Thanksgiving.

According to French security agents at the airport, the Iranian jetliner arrived with one engine smoking.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman said the six men and four women "looked in good shape, considering what they have been through." Hartman went on the bus that carried the released hostages to the Air Force plane.

Also on the bus was Ann McKeown, a former secretary to the U.S. ambassador in Tehran, who left shortly before the siege began. Ms. McKeown, fighting back tears, saw old friends among the released hostages and said they looked remarkably well.

Before leaving Tehran one of the freed captives, Joan Walsh of Ogden, Utah, told reporters at Mehrabad Airport that the remaining 53 hostages were in "greater danger than we were."

The U.S. government said two women were among the 49 Americans still held in the embassy by students demanding that the United States hand over deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime for trial. One black man also was believed among them.

The Carter administration renewed its demand for the release of all the hostages and said if Khomeini carried out his threat to put some of them on trial as spies, it would be a "further flagrant violation" of international law as well as a violation of "elementary human rights."

Foreign Press Director Abolghassan Sadegh told The Associated Press it had not been decided whether any of the hostages

Bulletin

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini declared today the remaining 49 American hostages in the occupied U.S. Embassy here will be tried as spies if the United States does not return the ousted shah to Iran.

The hostages will remain in the nest of spies and after that (President) Carter will understand what a mistake he has made, said a statement by Khomeini broadcast by Tehran Radio.

Hundreds of thousands of Iranians prepared to march in the capital and other major cities to mark the turn of the 15th Islamic century on Wednesday. The marches are expected into the biggest anti-American demonstrations since the start of the occupation of the embassy Nov. 4.

would be tried. But "if there is going to be a trial," he continued, "it will be carried out by the country's legal courts, either the special revolutionary tribunals (which have sentenced more than 600 persons to death by firing squad) or the ordinary courts. There will be no trial by the students in the embassy compound."

"Even if some of the Americans are tried and found guilty and sentenced to death for spying," he added, "the imam (Khomeini) is empowered under Islamic law to pardon them."

Iranian Foreign Minister Abolghassan Bani Sadr in a CBS interview Monday said the remaining hostages could not be released for two months — until after a new Iranian government is installed — unless the United States surrendered the ailing shah to stand trial for the death of at least 60,000 political opponents Khomeini supporters claim were killed during his 37-year reign.

The four women members of the embassy staff and six blacks were freed today in compliance with Khomeini's order last weekend to release female and black Americans found not guilty of spying.

Another woman and two black Marine sergeants were freed Monday and flown to Wiesbaden. They were reported in good mental and physical condition.

The three released Monday reported there had been seven women and 10 blacks among the captives in the embassy, two women and one black more than were freed. The State Department confirmed that two women and a black man were still held and identified them as Elizabeth Ann Swift, a political officer, Katherine Koob and Charles Jones, both communications officers.

The State Department said the four women freed today were Elizabeth Montagne, Calumet City, Ill.; Terri Tedford, South San Francisco, Calif.; Miss Walsh, and Lillian Johnson, Elmont, N.Y. It said the six blacks were David Walker, Waller, Texas; Lloyd Rollins, Alexandria, Va.; Wesley Williams, Albany, N.Y.; Neal Robinson, Houston, Texas; James Hughes, Langley AFB, Va., and Joseph Vincent, New Orleans.

Like the trio freed Monday, they were put on display by their captors at a news conference at the embassy Monday night.

City commissioners accept vehicle bids

Bids for two city vehicles were accepted this morning in a special session of the city commission called because of an unusually large amount of items on this month's agenda.

Commissioners agreed to accept bids for a three-wheel Cushman traffic control vehicle for the Pampa Police Department from Associated Supply Co., Inc. of Amarillo. The bid for $4,750 was the only one received. According to the bid, the vehicle should be received 60 days from purchase date.

Harold Barrett Ford Co. was awarded the bid for a 1979 half-ton truck to be used by the city. The bid was for $5,538 with immediate delivery.

A resolution was adopted by the commission authorizing city manager Mack Wofford to execute agreements pertaining to utility adjustment needed in the improvement of FM 750. Wofford described the resolution as "very routine."

In accordance with the recommendation of Merriman and Barber, consulting engineers for the Price Road Plaza and Country Garden Estates, the commissioners accepted and authorized final payment of the contract to Noback Co. of Amarillo for construction work done at the site.

A modification of the contract with the Blue Cross-Blue Shield company which provides the city's insurance program was discussed. Commissioners decided to approve the change to include a semi-private room rate. The change will allow the company to pay on an average room rate instead of a set semi-private room rate. The cost to the city will amount to about $2700 per year, Wofford commented. Monthly, the city will pay $122 per employee and employees will pay $1.91 for dependents.

The two-inch water replacement program was reported to have renewed 8,129 feet of deteriorated water lines. According to Tony Anderson, director of utilities, the total cost for this has been $36,038, an average of $4.43 per foot.

Johnson was placed in city jail.

This morning, Johnson refused to waive extradition. Ryzman said the man will be moved to county jail later today, where he will await extradition proceedings.

The extradition proceedings — the surrender of a fugitive by one state or country to another for the purpose of prosecution on a state felony charge — will take about a week, Ryzman said.

If Johnson had waived extradition, Denman commented, paperwork for the transfer could have been finished this afternoon.

No indictments in Rogers case

No persons were indicted in the Neil W. Rogers shooting death Oct. 14 by the 31st District Court grand jury in Wheeler Monday. District Attorney Harold Comer said the grand jurors believed there was not enough information to issue any indictments.

But the grand jury did hand down six indictments in other cases. Chester Wayne Slaten, 37, of Wheeler, was indicted for theft of one head of cattle. He was previously employed by the Beef Cattle Co. B. J. Brazer, also known as Robert Johnson, was indicted for unauthorized use of a vehicle belonging to his employer, W.D. Mitchell.

Four burglary indictments were handed down to John Paul Bryant, 18. It is alleged that he burglarized Butch's 1-40 restaurant, the Shamrock School, the Shamrock Hospital and a semi-truck belonging to John Cain. All the incidents occurred in Shamrock. The case was investigated by the Wheeler County Sheriff's Office, Comer said.

In action by the 31st District Court, Judge Grainger McIlhenny continued the probation of Wade Grubb, who was convicted of forgery Jan. 17 and sentenced to five years in prison, but sentenced Grubb to 30 days in the Wheeler County jail. Comer said Grubb had to have the probation revoked due to Grubb's failure to report to his probation officer and failure to pay his probation fees.

Also in 31st District Court, Norman Andrew Shea Jr., 20, pled guilty to burglary of a vehicle and was sentenced to five years in the Department of Corrections, Comer said.

Comer said six witnesses testified in the Rogers case. The grand jury also heard reports by ballistics experts and medical doctors, including testimony from Dr. Jose Esquivel, who performed the autopsy on Rogers.

Comer said the ballistics reports furnished by the Texas Department of Public Safety's Crime Laboratory in Austin showed that the bullets causing injury to Ruth Rogers, wife of the deceased, came from her husband's weapon. She was hit twice and her husband's gun had been fired twice.

The reports also indicated that one of the three bullets that hit Rogers was from a gun fired by Richard Porter, Mrs. Rogers' brother. One of the three bullets was never found and one found near Rogers' rib cage was badly fragmented, Comer said.

The Oct. 14 incident occurred at Porter's home, nine miles south of Wheeler. Reports said the Rogers' couple was in the process of getting a divorce when the husband came to the residence to see his children. The couple began arguing and Rogers shot his wife. He was then shot to death by Porter.

Pampa man awaiting extradition to California

Police detectives arrested a 24-year-old Pampa man Monday on a fugitive complaint by Los Angeles, Calif. authorities.

Michael Lee Johnson of 503 W. Wilks was arrested at his place of employment Monday night on charges brought against him by the Los Angeles police department for one count of armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Johnson was allegedly involved in a robbery of a Los Angeles liquor store in December 1977. In an exchange of gunfire, a clerk was reported to have been critically wounded by Johnson. A .357 Magnum is supposed to have been the weapon used.

One of the robbery suspects was also reported to have been injured in the shootout.

According to Police Chief J. J. Ryzman, Det. Michael Hartscock received a long-distance call from Los Angeles authorities Monday morning. They informed him that Johnson was believed to be living in Pampa and working for a packaging company.

With the help of Lt. Roy Denman, Hartscock began an investigation which ended in the location and arrest of Johnson at 5 p.m. Monday.

Johnson was brought before Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford, who set bond at $10,000. Unable to meet bail,

Jalapeno pepper king puts Pampa on the map

Ronnie Farmer might have gotten a bit more attention than he expected when he set a new world record for eating jalapeno peppers Sunday.

Farmer broke the Guinness book world record after eating 100 of the fiery peppers in 14:19.50 minutes. The previous record was 94 eaten in one hour and 51 minutes.

He said he wasn't doing it for the fame — he just wanted to break the record. But even he wasn't prepared for the deluge of telephone calls from all over the world.

They began Monday morning, coming from the British Broadcasting Company, the Associated Press and United Press International, as well as from television stations in Los Angeles and Miami, Fla.

When reporters called the News, they all wanted to talk to "that man who ate all those jalapenos." Ronnie's brother, Jerry, said they've gotten "about one call every minute." As a matter of fact, they had just gotten off the telephone with a man from London, Farmer said.

Of course, what everyone wants to know is — how is the jalapeno king doing? Farmer said his brother never did get sick Sunday, although he "finally got rid of part of it."

He and a group of friends had planned a party afterwards to celebrate, but Farmer said that never came off — "He didn't really feel like partying."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covering Commandment.

The outrage is still off target

Some people are under the mistaken impression that the oil companies should try to be our friends.

This misapprehension causes them undue grief during weeks such as this past one, when the oil firms announced relatively large profit margins for the third quarter of the year. The aggrieved legions, among whom politicians are the most vocal, believe that because energy consumers are hurting at the pocketbook these days, energy companies ought to be as well.

Misery loves company, but companies or individuals in the marketplace do not generally undercut themselves to make someone else feel better. Despite the limp-lipped competition among some oil presidents to see who can claim the least profit, their corporations are busy trying to make every buck they can.

Well that they should. The beauty of a free marketplace, as Adam Smith was the first clearly to note, is that it doesn't require the beneficence of man to satisfy the public. In fact, some of the best bargains consumers have received came as a result of moguls who were ruthless and dollar-hungry.

Usually, and over the long run (short-term dislocations will always arise), competitors in an industry will be required to keep prices low and customer satisfaction high in order to maximize profits. Prices too high to bring about sales also yield no net. Profits are not a measure of the extent to which consumers are being victimized, as some would depict them. Even "windfall profits" serve as a signal to prospective producers that there is a market awaiting them.

Why, then, are we getting hurt at the gas pump?

Are the oil companies to blame? Yes and no. Yes, they'd really like to get every cent they can for their products. That's why they're sending so much gas to Europe these days, where they can sell at an uncontrolled price. And yes, they've probably fiddled with their suppliers and distributors in heavy-handed ways over the years to maximize their own return, even at consumer expense. But no, they will not suffice as a culprit. They were governed by the same credo — and by many of the same people — a decade ago, when gas was plentiful and cheap. Why was it that in all the years before the layers of government control on their business began to get thick in the 1970s, they were unable to work us over? Why is it that their profits have historically been low for a major industry?

Is OPEC to blame? It is simply a cartel, like others that have tried to exact tribute over the many years of man's history. From its origination in 1960 until 1973, it was not very successful in that regard. Since that time, which also happens to be when most of the federal controls were put in place, OPEC has enjoyed lamentable success. Quite remarkable success, given the fact that OPEC does not, and has never, possessed a monopoly on the world's oil. Still, just as with the profit-seeking oil companies, our public policy doesn't seek to compete to shake OPEC's dominance; instead, we plead for lower prices. And we argue when they charge whatever the market will bear.

Perhaps we should focus our attention on the essential new ingredient to the oil equation during the last six years of turmoil: the United States government. It now regulates domestically every stage of the business — drilling, refining, allocation and pump sales. And although it blames OPEC and Big Oil for our problems, behind-the-scenes history of recent years indicates it has acted to protect both. And still does: the worst victims of the "windfall profits" tax would be independent producers, who deal with domestic oil. Certainly, after years of increasing government involvement, the big oil companies are not hurting. Those with the strongest ties to OPEC have the highest profits. The consumer is who's suffered the most since the early 1970s.

During that time, federal agencies have employed increasing numbers of people to try to oversee and direct the oil business. The Department of Energy spent more in its first year than the profits of all the oil companies combined. But the government of the United States has never produced a bit of energy. OPEC and the oil companies, for all their sins real and imagined, cannot be accused of that.

While there is nothing positive to be read into the seizure of the U.S. embassy in Tehran, there may be one least-negative consequence.

The outrage has simplified the political situation in Iran. It has compelled Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan to make good on his repeated threats to resign.

Now de jure and de facto authorities in Iran are one and the same. Who else but that man of the year — any year in the 13th or 14th centuries — the Ayatollah Khomeini?

In fact, there is some reason to believe that the attack on the embassy was instigated in part for precisely this purpose. It has enabled the religious extremists within the fragmented revolutionary ranks to neutralize the few pragmatic political figures who have had the effrontery to attempt to act like a government and to deal on civilized terms with other governments.

The issue of the ailing shah's presence in the United States may be a superbly convenient pretext serving this end and in the process propelling this country once more into the domestic infighting of yet another erstwhile ally.

The embassy seizure may be news, but there is certainly nothing new in that basic situation. Nor in the violation of diplomatic turf to which Western governments and press are reacting so strongly.

That has been going on as long as potentates have been exchanging envoys, a practice that goes back a long, long time. There were Hittites in the capitals of the pharaohs and Greeks at the courts of the shah's and ayatollah's imperial Persian predecessors.

Modern diplomatic niceties, such as immunity of person and property are, however, essentially a European refinement of recent centuries, imposed upon the rest of the world whether it liked them or not. And it is to the West's recurring surprise that portions of that world from time to time suddenly decide not to play by the rules.

At one time the penalty could be swift and irresistible. China's Boxer Rebellion in 1900 sent an eight-nation international army marching to the relief of besieged embassies in Peking.

But in a contemporary world where the distribution and application of power are more complex matters, that sort of response is out of favor. For one thing, it can be self-defeating, strengthening popular support for the very violators being punished.

Not that the ayatollah would appear to be weak in that area at present. But situations can change rapidly, particularly revolutionary situations, as he himself keeps demonstrating. He may have rid himself of inconvenient political frontmen in this latest escapade, but he has also very likely added moderate politicians to a growing opposition that already includes leftists, rebellious Arabs and Kurds and a chunk of the armed forces.

What else he has accomplished is difficult to say. He has proved again that a mob can seize a few unarmed foreigners, but he has not been able to force his will upon another government. He has shown his power to inflame the public but has not brought public order to Iran, only continuing turmoil and rule by terror rather than law.

His is the sort of authoritarian, destructive performance that not only gives revolution a bad name, but in the end may well prove him to have been his own worst enemy.

Farmers don't play slot machines

by Paul Harvey

Among the delicious liberties which our country allows is the chance to take a chance.

Politicians, promising "security," have missed this point.

The more "security" they provide for us, the more we flock to the stock market, the football pool, numbers game, bingo and gambling.

We are seeking to swap all this security for the exciting chance to take a chance.

Now, after generations of legislating security, legislators are legislating for us the guaranteed insecurity of crap tables and blackjack, roulette and slot machines in Las Vegas and in Atlantic City.

And Chicago is thinking about it.

A golf course we call a "sporting course" is the one with the most magnificent multiplicity of hazards.

A golf course that's all fairway nobody would bother to play.

And the more "security" socialist lawmakers and union negotiators have provided for us, the more we flock to the dog tracks and the bingo games and the bookies.

The latest surveys on the subject indicate that 80 percent of Americans now approve gambling.

Twenty-one states now permit on-track racehorse betting, 14 have lotteries and numbers games, 13 allow dog racing, four have jai-alai and two states have legalized casinos.

Despite the gamey reputation of Nevada, four other states harvest more revenue from gambling: New York, California, Florida and Illinois.

Gambling is epidemic in the United States.

In Britain it's worse.

In Britain, where a Socialist government has provided cradle-to-grave security, the recipients of all that security can't wait to get to the horse or dog track, the soccer pool, the casino—to trade their sure thing for a longshot.

There or here, you rarely see farmers at slot machines.

There is enough insecurity in farming—matching wits with bugs and bureaucrats and the uncertainties of the weather and the marketplace.

No farmer ever gets that bored. During the approaching campaign some politicians will still be soliciting votes with grandiloquent promises of more for the poor.

They will seek to outpromise one another in how much cheap housing and free medicine they can get for us.

It is a cruel political ploy.

The Socialist government in Britain is bankrupting the country trying to make good on promises like that.

Even though the British people were and are spending more money gambling than on either housing or health care.

Where the money goes

With Congress having now funded its massive synfuels program, we were more than mildly interested in a letter to a Journal reporter from a Michigan lawyer detailing his experience with an existing federal energy program. He had recently inquired in Washington, on behalf of a Michigan researcher, about getting a grant from a $10 million Energy Research and Development Administration ear-marked fund. Sorry, said ERDA, only $1 million was left; the other $9 million had gone for "administrative expenses." Think of how much "administration" the $2 billion synfuel appropriation will buy.

What a good football teams needs is...

By D.R. Segal

The University of Wisconsin with which I have some familiarity, has pioneered a dandy academic innovation known as body-passing. Young ladies attending football games are passed along by the crowd to the top of Camp Randall stadium where, presumably, they are left to get back as best they can. It has been going on for three years and now the authorities have determined that body-passing might be injurious to the health of the passee and, further, that it is a sex offense to pinch a passing tutu.

I suspect that the popularity of body-passing is in inverse ratio to the performance of the football team. One cannot, for instance, conceive the Dallas Cowboy fans passing bodies along — even Dallas Cowgirl bodies — during an exciting game.

I do, however, suggest the L.A. Rams look seriously into hiring a team of professional body-passers to entertain the crowd when the sluggish action on the field becomes tedious or when the action ceases entirely and a sort of tired ballet acts out between the two 30-yard lines.

Sports teams are a little like newspapers: most are adequate but only a few have much juice. It is an old joke that in tank towns the Saturday afternoon entertainment consists in watching them put cars up and down on the grease rack; but the point is, the grease rack is an efficient and admirable piece of mechanism, but its dreadful monotony overwhelms any admiration we might marshal. The team, or the newspaper, that gets the fans rolling and alert is the one that's worth the time and effort they require of the customer. Even an absolutely awful team, or newspaper, is better than an adequate one. Remember the old Mets with Marvelous Marv et al. about whom it was said they had the only shortstop in history who ever lost a ground ball in the sun. Casey Stengel was reported to have watched his team in silence and then asked plaintively, "Can't nobody here play this game?"

Everybody loved the Mets. They had juice.

How Uncle Sam Uses Your Taxes

Ever wonder just where your federal tax dollars go?

You get a clear idea from a new study by the Economic Unit of U.S. News & World Report of how your income and Social Security taxes are allocated among various components of the 493.6 billion dollars spent by the government in the year that ended September 30.

The table below shows how much families at two different income levels—$20,000 a year and $50,000—are paying to run 40 federal programs or agencies. Tax computations assume a family of four in each case.

Note this: The spending figures do not take into account corporate income taxes—which consumers ultimately pay—or excise, estate and gift taxes or customs duties.

Production of 'Oklahoma!' enchanting

Review by DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

If you want to escape from the cares of the world, to return to a time when good was good and bad was bad, the best place to go is OKLAHOMA!

Not the state, of course, but the Rogers and Hammerstein musical being presented by the Pampa High School choir in M.K. Brown auditorium.

In an opening address, Choir Director John Woicikowski dedicated the first performance to Mrs. Nona Payne, who is in the hospital and could not attend, to the PHS football team "who worked their heart out Friday night," and to the PHS volleyball team. The dedications were met with an enthusiastic round of applause from the audience.

The curtain rises and the first impression one receives is of beautiful scenery. The props are excellently done, giving a fitting frame to the action on stage. The "old home" looks as if Victorian furniture and lace doilies lurk behind the windows.

Curley — played by Tyler Berry — strolls on the stage singing "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning" and Aunt Eller — interpreted by Kayla Coffee — calmly chums butter.

The characters are entirely believable as the students portray them, the music is high quality and pleasant to listen to.

Standouts were Heidi Allen as Ado Annie, the girl who "Can't Say No" and Tyler "Curley" Berry. Their voices came across well to the audience. The gestures and acting could easily have belonged to much more experienced actors.

Two favorites with the audience were Miss Coffee as Aunt Eller and Bill Combs portraying Ali Hakim, the peddler. Combs brought the character to life with his "silly mannerisms" and unbelievable accent. These two kept the crowd laughing the whole evening.

Pam Homer, as Laurey, was easily the sugar-spice young lady the play intended her to be. Although her voice was not as strong as would be ideal, she made the character loveable and enchanting.

Another favorite was Will Parker, played by Brent Luck. There is doubt the spectators will ever get over his rendition of "The Oklahoma Hello."

Never in an amateur production have I seen such a "bad" guy as Jud Fry done by Mickey Bynum. The clothes, makeup, hand air all combined to give a strong impression of evil. The character, so effectively done, introduced the perfect element of drama to keep the musical from becoming too "nice."

Speaking of dramatic, the dream sequence was excellent. The audience was caught in the moment when Jud tore Laurey from Curley at the dream wedding. The lighting, Curley firing at Jud and not hitting him, and the music produced such an effect of horror that the crowd sighed with relief when the scene was over.

I strongly recommend, for a brief respite from today's problems, for you and your family to attend "Oklahoma!" at 7:30 p.m.

PHS teacher taking part in field test

Mrs. Linda Anderson, Pampa High School Distributive Education Clubs of America sponsor, is among 70 Texas teachers who are coordinating a statewide field test of a new advanced marketing curriculum.

The AMC was developed by the Instructional Materials Center at the University of Texas at Austin. It is the second year in a two-year series for marketing and distributive education students and is being used by over 2,000 students.

It will help students develop supervisory and management abilities relating to marketing and distribution. Units of instruction include the marketing function, merchandising and buying, promotion, management, careers in management and supervision and careers in professional selling. Materials used include projects, manuals, activities, pre-tests and post-tests.

Each teacher-coordinator and student will evaluate each unit. Results will be used for revision of the curriculum before it is published in final form.

The first year in the series, the general marketing curriculum, covered basic competencies needed for entry-level occupations and is now widely used throughout the U.S.

A&M officials 'astonished' at sex discrimination charges

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M University officials say they are "astonished" that the U.S. government thinks the Fish Drill Team and other university organizations are closed to females.

The government made its position clear Monday, charging in a test case on women's rights that the Texas school has discriminated against women students by barring them from the drill team and three other organizations.

The Justice Department sought to join a private class action suit filed last May by Melanie Zentgraf, a member of the Texas Corps of Cadets.

The department's proposed suit marks the first time that the government has tried to enforce Title IX of a 1972 law forbidding sex discrimination by schools which receive federal aid.

James Bond, representing Texas A&M, said that he has not seen the Justice Department's motion. Bond said Justice Department lawyers had been at A&M because they would have to represent Corps Commandant Col. James Woodall, one of the plaintiffs in the suit, since he was a regular Army officer.

Bond said it now appears Woodall has been dropped as a plaintiff so the Justice Department could enter on the side of Miss Zentgraf. Bond said "this type of activity is incredible and leaves us all bewildered."

Bond said he was "astonished" that the Department of Justice has seen fit to reach an agreement with the plaintiffs to have Col.

Woodall removed as a defendant in the pending lawsuit.

Bond said A&M has filed a reply to the suit denying all allegations. "Texas A&M is proud of its female contingent in the Corps and is dedicated to its growth and success."

The government contended otherwise. "Every female who has evidenced an interest in the Aggie band has been actively discouraged or dissuaded from joining the Aggie band by band and/or faculty members," the Justice Department said. "Other than a desire to keep the Aggie band all-male, there is no reason for the current effective restriction of the Aggie band to males only."

Assistant Attorney General Drew S. Days III, head of the civil rights division, said excluding the women from the band and other organizations "deprives them of an opportunity to participate in activities at the heart of university life at Texas A&M."

The other organizations are called the Fish Drill Team, the Ross Volunteer Company, and Parsons' Mounted Cavalry. The organizations are open to the 2,200 Texas A&M students enrolled in the Corps of Cadets. There are about 30,000 students enrolled at the university. No females presently perform in any of the groups named.

Texas A&M admitted females about 20 years ago and they now constitute about one-third of the student body. Women were admitted to the Corps of Cadets earlier this decade and there now are some 60 women in the corps.

DECA to offer employment classes

Four short courses to help those seeking part-time Christmas employment will be offered Nov. 27 by the Pampa chapter of Distributive Education Clubs of America. They are free of charge and open to the public.

Courses include basic sales technique, counting change, gift wrapping and job interview. Classes will begin at 7 p.m. in Room 201 of Pampa High School. Each will last 30 minutes.

In other DECA news, the PHS chapter held a skating party Monday at the Pampa Roller Rink. It is an annual activity DECA hosts for members who work extra hours at their jobs during the Christmas season.

Stay-at-Home TV

100% modular Triple-Plus chassis is designed for greater reliability

A whole new standard in Zenith dependability

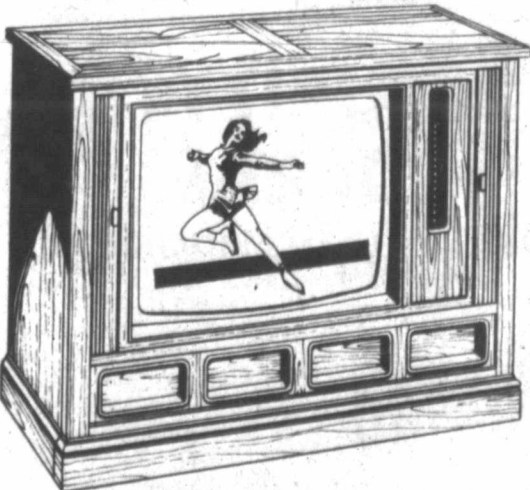

Modular design permits pre-testing and pre-alignment of every module before final assembly. This assures that every module works properly by itself, and works in harmony with other modules.

Far fewer interconnections

The number of electrical connections have been cut almost in half. That means far fewer things can go wrong. The chassis is also designed to run cooler at critical operating points because a cooler chassis is more likely to be a trouble-free chassis.

Easier inspection, easier service

Each plug-in module is a complete electrical system in itself combining related functions. This makes in-home diagnosis and service possible if ever needed. The serviceman can simply remove any module and replace it with a new one. There's no guesswork. Nothing to solder. No need to take the TV to the shop. It's the Stay-at-Home TV.

deaths and funerals

FRANCIS A. "FRED" DRUM

Services for Francis A. "Fred" Drum, 81, will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Carmichael-Whitely Colonial Chapel with the Rev. Dale Harter, pastor of the First Christian Church, Miami, officiating.

Burial will be in Miami Cemetery. Masonic graveside rites will be held at Miami's Masonic Lodge No. 805.

Mr. Drum died Monday morning in Amarillo.

He was born May 23, 1898, in Farmer, Texas and was a lifetime resident of the Panhandle. He married Palestine Gething in 1944 in Pampa. Mr. Drum was a member of the First Christian Church.

Survivors include his wife, one stepson, one stepdaughter, one brother, Robert Drum of Dalhart, three sisters, Mrs. Lois Hoffer of Miami, Mrs. Anna Frost of Clayton, N.M., and Mrs. Mimi Bennett of Amarillo.

The casket will not be open at the services.

police report

The Salvation Army, 701 S. Cuyler, reported someone had taken devals, valued at 50 cents each, from a box at the Coronado Center parking lot.

minor accidents

A 1966 Pontiac LeMans driven by Fred Epperly of 617 N. Dwight, was parked in front of 1613 Duncan when a 1971 Chevrolet Nova, driven by Michael McGill, 18, collided with the LeMans from the rear.

A 1971 Ford, driven by Tampa Kerr Douglass, 55, of 2132 N. Wells, collided with a 1974 Chevrolet, driven by Donald Zinke Nensiel, 63, of 2217 Duncan, in the 1500 block of South Hobart. Nensiel was cited for improper lane change.

Joseph Foster Whaley, 59, of Route 1, Box 70, Pampa, was traveling west on 23rd Street in his 1973 pickup when he collided with a 1978 Ford pickup driven by James Mayfield, 27, of Route 1, Box 48, Spearman, who was traveling south on Price Road.

Jessie Muns, 66, of 2018 Hamilton, was driving a 1975 Chevrolet north on Perryton Parkway when the right lane of traffic stopped. Muns entered another lane and collided with Bert Mitchell, 75, of 1014 E. Francis, who was driving a 1970 Pontiac Bonneville, when Mitchell attempted to pass Muns on the right. No injuries were reported.

A 1970 Chevy driven by Katrina Whitmarsh, 18, of 312 Jean, was proceeding north on Charles into the intersection of Charles and Harvester streets when a 1967 Ford Mustang driven by Whitney Caswell, 16, of Route 2, Box 11, collided with Whitmarsh at the intersection.

Monopoly title retained by car salesman

NEW YORK (AP) — When Angelo Repole realized he couldn't come up with $1,300 to pay the rent on Park Place, he got up from the table and ran sobbing to the men's room.

Angelo wasn't only bankrupt, he had just missed out on a chance to become the United States Monopoly champion.

The 10-year-old Staten Island youth wheeled and dealt for nearly two hours with the four men in the competition before losing his bid to unseat defending champion Dana Terman, 23, of Wheaton, Md.

Angelo's mother, Marti, remained nearby throughout the competition to help with such problems as she could — like removing the green bubble gum that burst on her son's face.

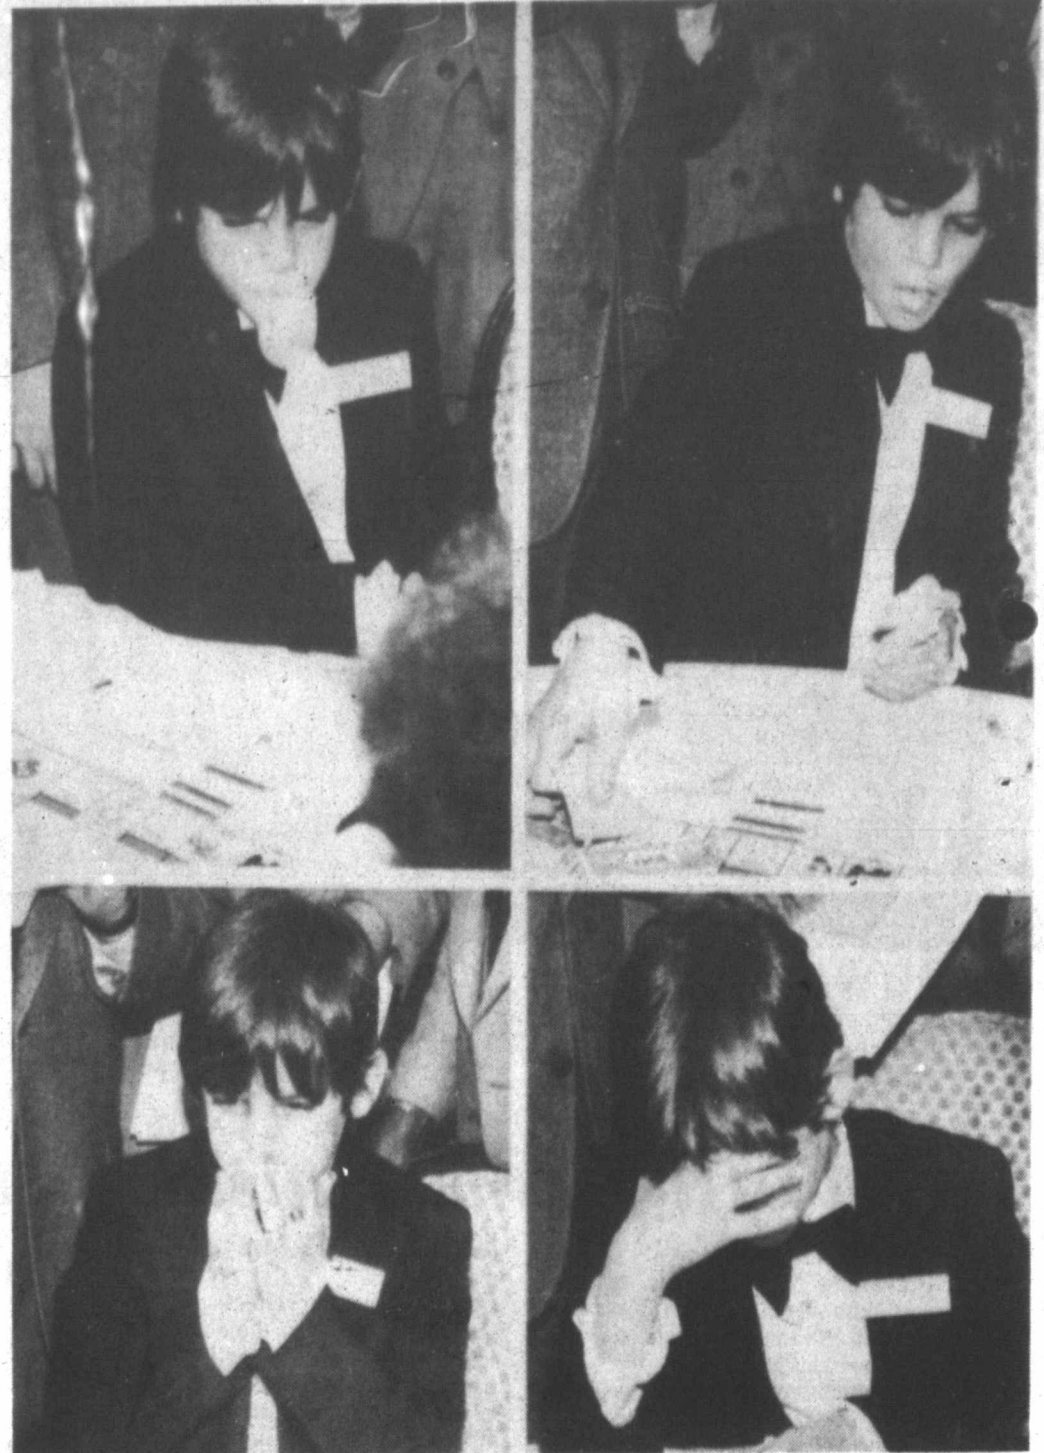

Angelo blew bubbles throughout the match, staged in the plush Palace Restaurant. All the contestants wore tuxedos, prompting bystanders to comment that the scene reminded them of a high-stakes baccarat game in a Las Vegas casino.

By the end of the match, all the utilities were out of order, only one railroad was running, and Angelo controlled St. Charles Place to remain Terman's only real competition.

It was a roll of the dice — the spinning of fortunes — that finally sent the wolves to Angelo's door.

Angelo, the New York regional champion, landed on Terman's Park Place property and couldn't raise the $1,300 rent.

He paid out all his money, conceded defeat and then, head lowered, let his hard-earned tears flow.

GOP governors blame Democrats for lack of national energy policy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Republican governors are forging a 1980 campaign theme for the party by blaming Democrats for leaving the country without an energy program when Iranian oil is being shut off again.

Foreign policy, linked by Iran to the coming winter and feared fuel shortages at home, has become a dominant theme at the governors' annual meeting, and it continued today with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger a featured speaker.

The governors and their guests have been careful to avoid direct intrusion into President Carter's handling of the Iranian crisis, but they're clearly blaming Carter and the Democrats for the overall situation.

Former President Gerald Ford took up the governors' tune on Monday when he said the Iranian problem and the lack of a national energy program are making the country ripe for new leadership — preferably Republican.

"We'd better get to the job of rebuilding our military capability and giving the kind of strong leadership that's necessary to reassure our allies and to be an adequate warning to our adversaries," Ford said.

"The American people want that kind of leadership and action, and I hope that the voters perceive it and act accordingly in 1980," Ford told the governors.

Ford called the crisis, which arose when the U.S. embassy in Tehran was seized two weeks ago, the most serious challenge the country has faced since World War II. He said he would not try to second-guess Carter in handling it "because it is too important and the dangers are too great."

"Having said that, let me just make this observation," Ford continued. "There is no doubt about it that the United States in recent years has lost prestige and has lost a capability to handle difficult challenges around the world."

Ford cast most of the blame for energy problems on the Democratic Congress, saying he and Carter both had proposed legislation, but Congress had enacted only bits and pieces of it.

"The United States doesn't have an energy program that will solve all problems, that will make us more independent of the OPEC oil cartel," Ford said.

Texas Gov. William Clements Jr. laid the blame directly on Carter, however, saying the situation in Iran already is affecting oil supplies in the United States.

"Will we ever learn?" asked Gov. Pierre duPont of Delaware.

"The 1973-1974 oil embargo, the 1977 natural gas shortage, the 1978 coal strike, the 1978 Iranian oil cutoff, the 1978 Three-Mile Island problem, the 1979 second Iranian oil shutoff," duPont listed.

"All these things are happening to us," duPont said. "These signals are coming to us, and we are not doing very much about it in terms of solving our energy problems," he said.

Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee said almost one-third of the oil lost from Iran could be made up if nuclear power plants already completed but not operating in this country could only get federal licenses.

TEXAS

By The Associated Press

A winter storm watch was posted for tonight in the Texas Panhandle as a cold front bringing up to three inches of snow was expected to blow into the region.

Showers and thundershowers rolled across the northeast last night and early today, bringing light rainfall as far east as Central Texas. Some patches of fog were reported in southeast Texas, with predawn visibilities in the Houston area reduced to less than two miles.

Predawn temperatures ranged from the 40s in the mountains of far West Texas to the 50s in the Panhandle and the 60s and 70s over the northeast and south.

The forecast called for mostly cloudy skies and warm temperatures with scattered showers and thundershowers. High temperatures were expected to reach the 60s in the northwest, the 70s in the northeast and the 80s in the south and southwest.

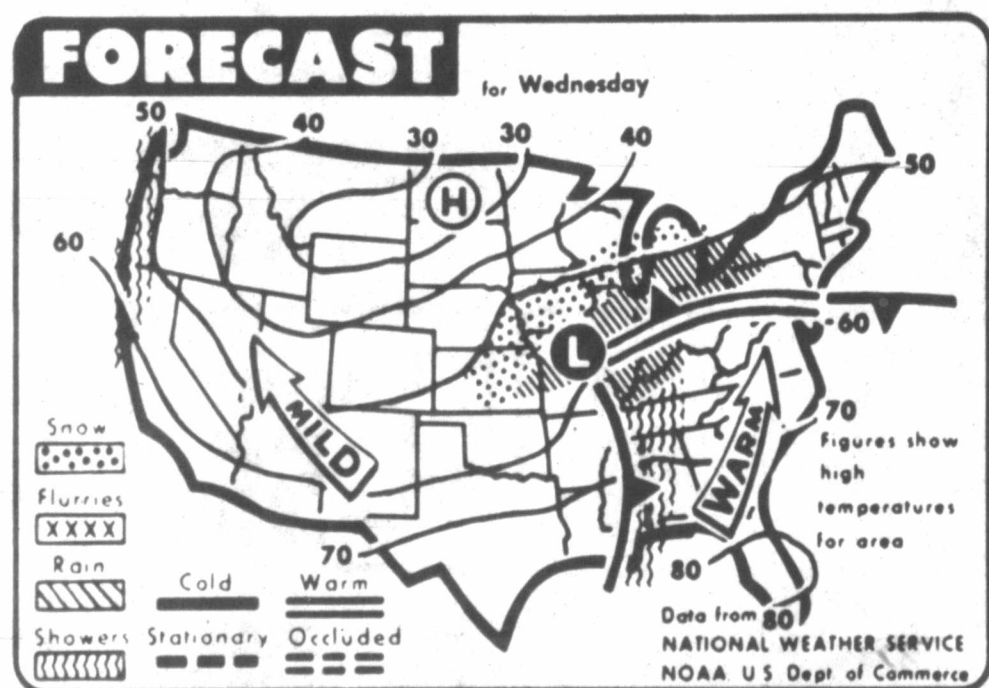

FORECAST

North Texas — Cloudy, windy and warm with showers and thundershowers through tonight. Rain ending on Wednesday, but turning much cooler. Highs 77 to 81. Lows 46 to 64. Highs Wednesday 57 to 72.

South Texas — Mostly cloudy with scattered showers and thundershowers through Wednesday. Mild through tonight turning cooler Wednesday. Highs 75 to 85. Lows 58 to 68. Highs Wednesday in the 70s.

West Texas — Winter storm watch in effect for the Panhandle tonight. Cloudy with scattered showers and thundershowers through tonight. Wind with rain changing to snow in the Panhandle tonight. Partly cloudy and colder most sections Wednesday. Highs near 60 north to near 80s south. Lows lower 20s north to upper 40s extreme south. Highs Wednesday near 40 north to near 60 south.

Port Arthur to Port O'Connor — Southerly winds 15 to 20 knots shifting to the northwest Wednesday. Seas 5 to 7 feet.

WEDNESDAY'S FORECAST predicts rain over most of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and adjacent states. Snow is expected in a band reaching from eastern Nebraska and Kansas northeast into Michigan.

NATIONAL

An intensifying storm over the Rocky Mountains today may have contributed to the crash of a twin-jet plane that went down near Denver, killing two persons and seriously injuring a third.

Authorities said the plane crashed during a snowstorm Monday night while on a landing approach to an airport at Castle Rock, 37 miles south of Denver. Identities of the victims were not immediately available.

Snow and ice from the storm also glazed highways in the Rockies, causing truck rigs to jackknife on mountain highways and slowing traffic.

The storm also drew heavy snow and travelers advisories for much of the Rocky Mountain region, including Utah, Wyoming, Nebraska, Montana and New Mexico. Winter storm watches were also posted for parts of Kansas, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle.

New bookkeeping system allow easy organization

A new bookkeeping system that gives monthly computerized and updated reports for less than 35 cents a day has recently been announced by FEDIT Corporation, Lower Burrell, Pa.

Titled, "The World's Easiest Bookkeeping System", FEDIT has been designed especially for farmers, truckers and small businesses, and for professional and personal accounting.

The factor that makes FEDIT so easy to use is a unique check register that replaces the one already in a check book. Financial transactions are recorded in this check register just as they would be in a check book, with one important exception: each category of expense and income is coded, and code numbers are recorded in a special column included for this purpose.

Recording pages are in duplicate, printed on NCR paper that eliminates the need for carbon paper. At the end of each month, the original perforated entry sheets are torn out and mailed to FEDIT, where the figures are computerized and updated each month. A complete unperforated record of each page remains in the check book.

The register even provides for cash and credit card expenditures by category so that every deductible expense can be recorded for income tax purposes.

FARM INCOME and FARM EXPENSE codes are exactly as they appear in the Farm Schedule F income tax forms. When the farmer who uses the FEDIT System fills out his income tax, he will find all this material already updated for him on this year - end computer print out.

Truckers have many income and expense items that are peculiar to their industry and not ordinarily encountered in other businesses. Therefore, in addition to the standard business and personal codes, a separate list of trucking income and expense codes has been used.

A brochure that describes the FEDIT System in detail is available free by writing FEDIT, Dept. M., 2622 Leechburg Road, Lower Burrell, Pa. 15068.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

Take responsible attitude

By Louise Pierce

Voting has been mentioned here before but not in depth. I want to share a few brand - new statistics with you.

A newspaper article from Washington titled, "Elderly May Hold Key to Election", states:

"Politicians looking to our next elections may want to give special attention to the elderly, who turn out at the polls in larger percentages than younger Americans. A special Census Bureau report on the nation's elderly discloses that the percentage of elderly persons voting in 1978 was 10 points higher than for the population as a whole. Sixty - two percent of persons 65 and older voted." Let's hear it for our age!

Responsibility in all deserving places is a duty to be recognized and accomplished with pleasure and aplomb. We owe good government to all America. We owe ourselves a pleasant, peaceful place to live. But can any of us drive six blocks in town without seeing a lawn with grass and weeds a foot high, a fence in need of repair and other unsightly sights?

One of our houses, years ago, was a big brick structure with a lawn to match. Either Otis or I mowed that grass twice a week, trying to be glad it was so flawless. (Incidentally, it was outside the city limits - and, as Erma Bombeck once said, the grass really IS greener over the sept tank!)

But when the time came that responsibility for that lawn was a burden (We found we'd rather do other things, such as golf, dancing, tripping, etc.), we sold that house and moved to our present apartment. Otis has a beautiful rose garden and he loves to watch the yard man mow the grass. I wish all of you could be as happy as we are. But some of you are not.

DEAR LOUISE: My wife and I have been married 39 years. We hope we won't live another 30, the way our marriage and the country and the world are going. Inflation is eating everybody up, and our small pension plus Social Security hardly pays for our groceries, which are an awful lot too high.

I've just plain give up. I've got no incentive to keep the yard clean any more. If I aim a paper sack at the garbage pail and it misses, I let it lay there. My wife yells at me about it and I yell back. But how you care what your place looks like when you're as pinched as we are? J.Y.

DEAR J.Y.: You can, and should, care what you and all your possessions look like, for the sake of your wife and for your pride in yourself. Apparently your mate of 39 years is disturbed by your neglect of your property. If you don't clean up the yard (and maybe yourself as well), she may prefer to live alone in a greener, better-kept place.

World conditions often disturb us. And we must do all we can to better them. We must vote at every election on every level. We must write Washington frequently. We must express our opinions locally. But we must NEVER give up. A well - known hymn declares, "This Is My Father's World." And we need to remember that it is.

Taxes in most other countries are higher than ours. Governments vary, some to our liking and others to our resentment. But in this free country (and, by world standards, it is still free), we can vote out the public servants we consider poor and elect new ones in whom we have confidence.

There is absolutely no excuse for neglecting and littering your yard. You should be a bright spot in your neighborhood, showing your regard for your home by keeping it neat. If you'll put out a little effort to make your home a pleasant place to live, I believe you and your wife will no longer need to yell at each other. And that will be a mature marriage you can enjoy once more.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 69 and for two months I've been going through a traumatic period. For the past two weeks the problem has been so intense that it's affecting my ability to walk steady and my reasoning at times is blurred.

For years I had epileptic seizures. Over 10 years ago a doctor prescribed a series of medicines for me which did not control my seizures but did make me feel better, mentally and physically.

Recently at a family gathering I got in an argument and lost my temper and this did cause a seizure. A friend of mine observed the whole episode and asked about the medicines I was taking. He looked into this and thought that I was addicted to the medications I was taking. My family gathered and expressed their views and I agreed to see a local specialist.

The specialist said I was not getting the right medicine and was badly addicted to the medicines I was taking. He stopped all of those and prescribed Dilantin. He also told me I would have some withdrawal symptoms from the medicines I was taking.

It's been very tough. For the past 10 days my legs from my knees to the toes have such violent tremors I can't walk for fear of falling down. It takes a lot of will power to go through these daily ordeals but I'm comforted by the fact that I no longer have any seizures and I sleep well. Of course, it's comforting to have the support of my wife and family. Is my age one of the reasons I'm having so much trouble with withdrawal symptoms?

DEAR READER - You were very fortunate to have such a good and wise friend. A lot of things have changed in the treatment of epilepsy over the past 20 years and today you certainly would not have been given the medicines that you listed in the rest of your letter. Some of those really are brain stimulants which would be classed as uppers and that's probably why you felt better but may have been rather keyed up. And it's also why your medicines didn't prevent your seizures.

The vast majority of epileptics today can be treated sufficiently to control most of their seizures or at least minimize the difficulty. That doesn't mean it's always easy. Sometimes it takes a long time of trial and error with the doctor and patient cooperating together to find out what combination of available medicines are best suited for the individual patient.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-8, Epilepsy: You Can Have It Too. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. I chose that title because many normal people can develop epilepsy after automobile accidents and other disorders that result in brain damage. Of course, in the vast majority of cases the cause is not known.

I know it's an ordeal to withdraw from drugs that you have become dependent upon one way or another. It sounds to me like you're making real progress. If your symptoms get too bad, talk to your doctor about it. Your letter indicates that he's a pretty savvy guy and he might be able to give you small amounts of medicines that will alleviate part of your symptoms during this phase.

DEAR ABBY

Battered wife threatens photos

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a successful, prominent professional man who frequently works under severe pressure. Once or twice a year he would erupt into a violent rage, and it seemed therapeutic (for him) to "punch me out."

For years I suffered in silence, hiding and making up excuses for not appearing in public until my cuts and bruises healed. I was too ashamed to let anyone know the truth, so I kept quiet.

I felt that I must have done something terribly wrong to deserve this kind of treatment. Meanwhile, by my silence I was protecting my husband, whom I continued to love in spite of his occasional animal behavior.

I began to ask myself why I took so much abuse and let him get away with it. Then, suddenly, a solution came to mind!

That evening I calmly told my husband that if he ever beat me again, I would hire a professional photographer to photograph me after the battle. Then I would place these 8 by 10 photos in strategic places all over town - identifying myself in living color as his beloved battered wife!

My husband was shocked at this idea; he knew I really meant it.

Needless to say, it worked. It's been four years since he has laid less than a loving hand on me, and our marriage is more solid than ever.

Share this with your readers, Abby.

PEARL THE PINUP

DEAR PEARL: Thanks for a helpful letter. It's been said, "One picture is worth 10,000 words." A picture of this kind should be worth at least $10,000.

DEAR ABBY: I've read your column for years, and was very disappointed to learn that you are so closed-minded about snakes.

Obviously, your fear stems from prejudice and ignorance. If you ever got to know snakes, you would learn to love them. Most people would kill a snake on sight just because it is a snake! How cruel. Snakes are gentle and harmless by nature, and avoid confrontation. They strike only when threatened, and don't deserve to be run over by cars, or decapitated and hacked to pieces by garden tools.

Snakes perform a valuable service by eating rodents and pests that threaten crops and the ecology.

Snakes make wonderful pets for retired people and apartment dwellers. They're odorless, clean and quiet, and don't need to be groomed or walked.

C.J.

DEAR C.J.: Another plus: You don't have to worry about anybody stealing them.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently bought a home from a nice, middle-aged couple with two children.

They very generously left several pieces of their old furniture for us since they knew we were very low on furnishings.

After moving in, we came across some snapshots they inadvertently left behind in a drawer. Among the photos are several shots of the woman - in the buff - taken while she was eight or nine months pregnant.

Should we destroy the photos, or return them? The couple still reside in town and we have their address.

If you think we should return these pictures, have you any suggestions as to the least embarrassing way to do so? BLUSHING IN N.Y.

DEAR BLUSHING: Mail the photos to them - without comment.

DEAR ABBY: I fell hard for a man I work with. I'll call him Mel. Mel is married. I'm single. We rendezvoused during long lunch hours, and any evenings he could get away. Mel's old lady got wind of our romance, so he said we had to cool it for a while.

Well, his old lady is no dummy. She said as long as we worked together she wouldn't feel comfortable. She even threatened to go to the boss, so I agreed to find another job. I loved my job, but I'm the one who had to quit. Why? NAMELESS NINNY

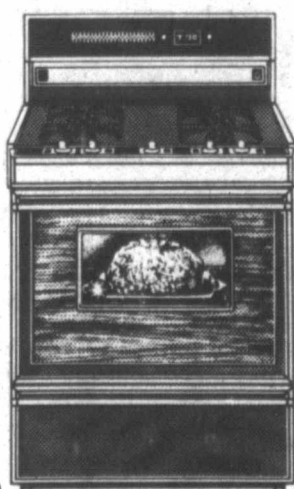

DEAR NINNY: Because you agreed to. (P.S. There's a lesson to be learned here. Never fish off the company dock!)

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Wheat prices hit five month high point

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wheat prices at the farm are the highest in nearly five months, according to the latest government figures.

The latest price compiled by the Agriculture Department shows wheat was $4.01 a bushel for a "moving five-day average" through last Friday.

According to department officials, that was the highest since wheat — using the same formula — hit $4.08 a bushel last June 27.

The price is computed daily during the work week as part of USDA's operation of the grain reserve program. Under it, grain is stored by farmers for up to three years or until market prices go up enough to trigger its release.

Currently, the price at which wheat is released — meaning that farmers, if they choose, can pay off government loans and then sell the grain for cash — is $3.29 a bushel.

Wheat prices rose last spring and triggered release of the stored grain on May 16.

Prices rose further, hitting the mark of $4.08 a bushel under the five-day formula on June 27 before beginning a downtrend through the summer harvest period.

Harold L. Jamison of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said Monday the current upturn in prices began last week after the five-day wheat price hovered around $3.91 on Nov. 9.

Jamison said it was too early to tell whether the latest price surge has triggered significant wheat redemptions by farmers because it takes some time for those figures to filter through county and state offices into the agency here.

The most recent report on the grain reserve by USDA was for the week that ended Oct. 31. At that time, farmers had redeemed about 169 million of the 411 million bushels they originally stored under the program, 41.1 percent of the initial total.

Under the formula, if wheat prices rise to a "call" level of $4.11 a bushel, farmers then have 30 days in which to redeem their grain or forfeit it to the department in lieu of repaying the loans.

The department has forecast wheat prices over the entire 12-month marketing year that began last June 1 will average in a range of $3.60 to $3.90 a bushel, compared to $2.94 a bushel in 1978-79.

No shortage of U.S. wheat is expected, but supplies are tighter than they were several years ago.

For example, when the next marketing year begins on June 1, 1980, wheat stocks — the amount carried over — are expected to be about 851 million bushels, compared to 925 million last June 1 and about 1.18 billion in 1978.

A basic reason for the decline is the huge export flow, estimated at a record of 1.4 billion bushels in the current marketing year, up from less than 1.2 billion in 1978-79.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest government figures show meat production continues to fall below year-ago levels despite consistent increases in pork output.

Last week, the Agriculture Department said Monday, total red meat production was about 700.8 million pounds. That was down 8 percent from 764.4 million pounds in the same period a year ago.

Beef production, at 382.6 million pounds, dropped 17 percent from a year earlier, and calf and veal was down 23 percent to 6.1 million pounds. A 14 percent decline also was reported for lamb and mutton to about 4.8 million pounds last week.

Pork output, continuing to reflect this year's increase in hog production, was reported at 307.3 million pounds last week, up 5 percent from a year earlier.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has bought nearly half a million metric tons of additional U.S. grain for the coming year, says the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Monday the new orders included 252,000 metric tons of corn and 212,000 of wheat for delivery in the year that began Oct. 1.

Family farm is myth Russell says

NEW YORK (AP) — The family farm, in which the dutiful contributions of mother, father and many children add up to a wholesome, hearth-centered and somehow profitable way of life, is a myth, says Walter Russell.

Soap operas depict it as fact. Politicians rapturously defend it. Many millions believe religiously that it is a fortress of basic American values. The Agriculture Department gives it official recognition.

"It is my opinion," says Russell, "that the 'family farm' — that whole image — has never existed, and certainly not since the Great Depression." It's a myth, he says again. "It's a perception."

Is such talk mere braying? Who is this man Russell? He was born on an Iowa farm that has been in his family for more than a hundred years. He holds a doctorate in agronomy and once was a U.S. Agriculture Department scientist.

Now vice president of Oppenheimer Industries, he helps manage hundreds of thousands of farm acreage for the Kansas City-based agricultural services company.

There do exist families seeking to operate acreage in the manner many people perceive as traditional, says Russell. But their life is hardly idyllic and their efforts are unprofitable, he says.

"The system doesn't lend itself to accepting modern technology," he explains. "To be competitive today you must accept more technology and capital and management."

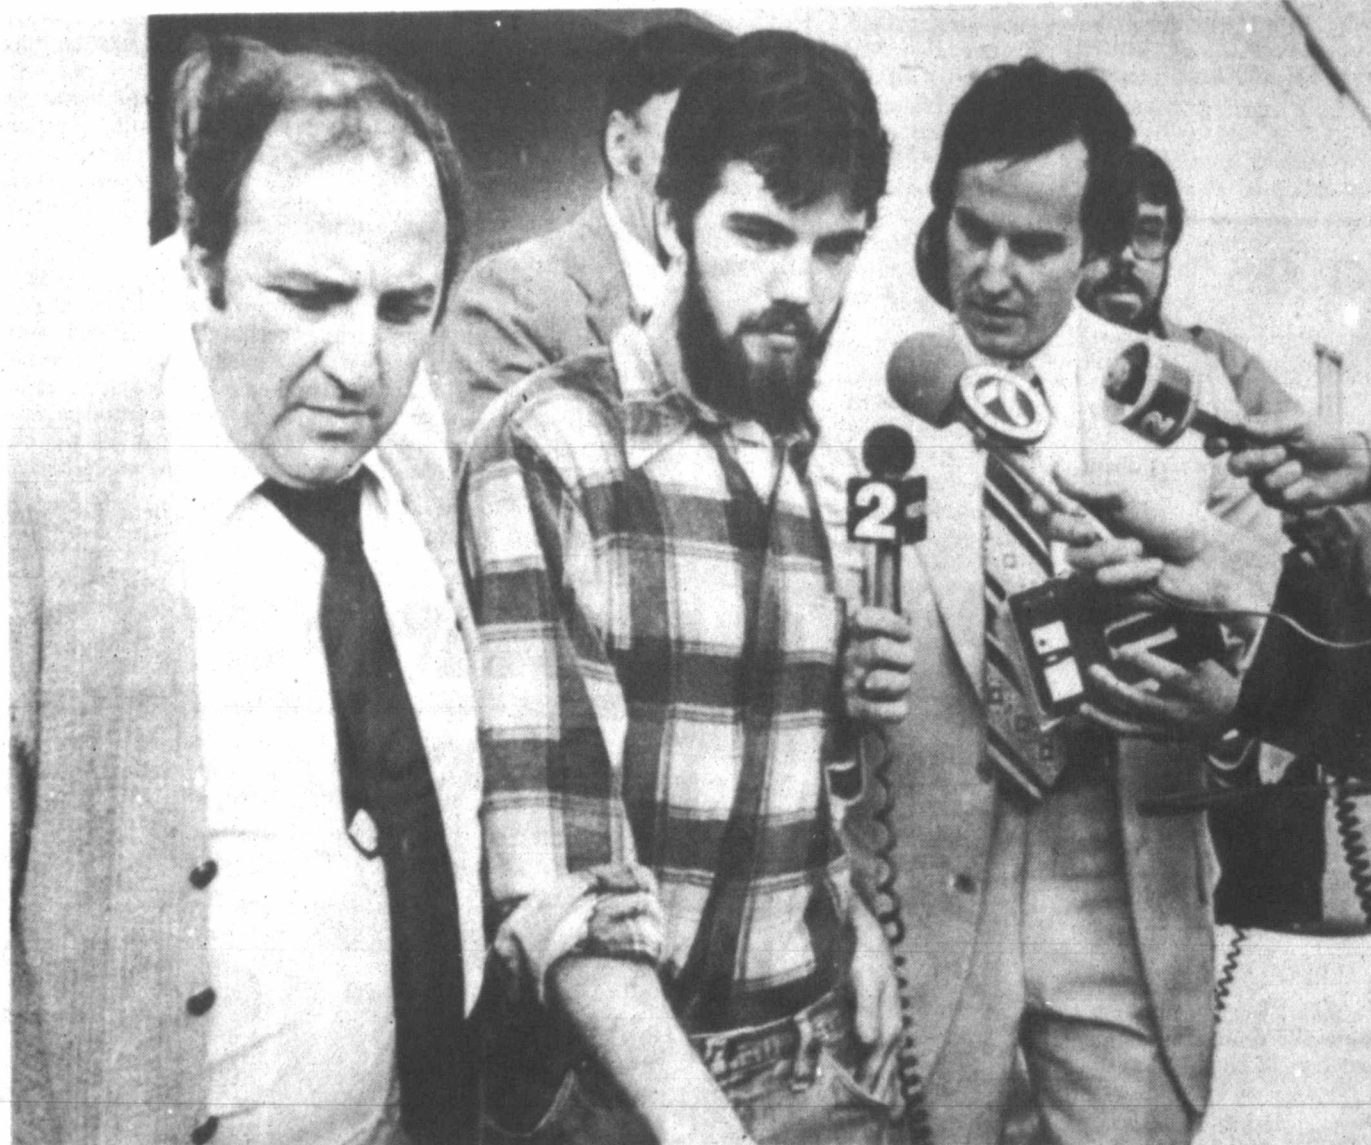

The type of farming envisioned as the traditional family farm is done for tradition, not for good economic reasons. They might grow cotton, for instance, because the land always was in cotton.

Time marches on, and in farming it marched swiftly. Much of U.S. agriculture, says Russell, is made up of three categories of farms.

First, he lists the uneconomic family operation in which the husband and wife might hold part-time jobs elsewhere. They operate little acreage. They farm because of tradition and perhaps for enjoyment.

Next is the family team, perhaps made up of two brothers or a father and son or a father, son and uncle who manage perhaps 600 to 1,000 acres, half of which might be rented. They're a business.

And then there is the tightly knit group, perhaps made up of family members, that operates thousands of acres. It is highly leveraged and very economic. It is a business, and good business practices govern.

TEXAS

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs said Monday a federal agency is trying to control a program aimed at helping poor Texans pay utility bills.

Omar Harvey said the Community Services Administration has rejected the state's application to implement the $6.5 million energy crisis assistance program. Harvey said the federal officials announced they would administer the program in Texas.

"This decision is an attempt by CSA to assume a responsibility of the state of Texas," Harvey said, adding Congress intended the program to be administered by the states.

"If the state stands up to them and attempts to assert its rights, then they take their ball and go home," Harvey said.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission granted authority Monday for the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad to close its agency stations at Elgin and Bastrop.

The commission said the Dallas-based railroad would conduct operations now handled at Elgin and Bastrop through its Taylor and Smithville facilities.

The railroad was also granted authority to dismantle its stations at Elgin and Bastrop.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — High Plains Natural Gas Co. has been granted permission to raise its city gate rates and service rates in six cities.

The new rates approved by the Texas Railroad Commission are for Spearman, Perryton, Booker, Canadian, Higgins and Mobeetie.

The commission approved rate increases of 10.44 cents per thousand cubic feet (mcf) of gas.

The commission also said the company can use a two cent per mcf surcharge to recover $4.958 in rate base expenses incurred when Spearman and Perryton contested the increase request. The surcharge will amount to 36 cents per customer for less than two months.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission Monday authorized Mini Coaches of Groesbeck to provide passenger and package service on its bus routes between Buffalo and Henderson.

The authorization allows the company to serve Oakwood,

Palestine, Rusk, Reklaw, Laneville and all points on U.S. 79 between Palestine and Buffalo.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission Monday allowed Lone Star Gas Co. to change its gas utility rates for unincorporated areas near six cities.

The new gas rates affect 1,137 customers and will increase Lone Star's gross annual revenues by $42,509.

Areas covered by the new rates include unincorporated areas near Eastland, San Angelo, Granger, Rockwall, Childress and Hico.

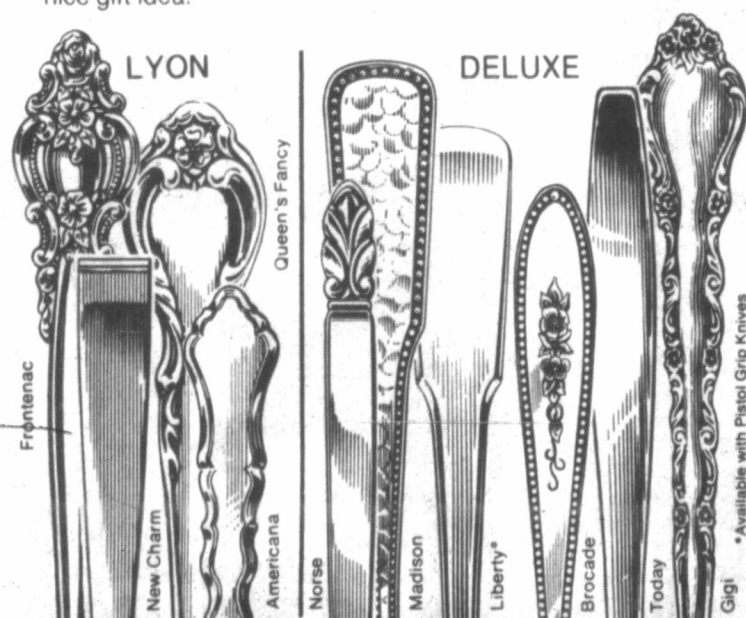

The commission suspended for 120 days Lone Star's request for increased service charges in the areas.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Louis M. Pearce Jr., of Houston Monday took the oath of office as chairman of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission.

Pearce, 62, replaces Tom Gordon of Abilene who resigned after 11 years on the commission. Gordon's term expired last Thursday.

Fishing Dispute

The captains of 11 U.S. fishing vessels are scheduled to go on trial in Canada today. They are charged with fishing illegally in Canadian waters. Like most other countries, Canada and the United States claim exclusive fishing rights within 200 miles of their shores. But the United States believes the 200-mile rule should not apply to species such as tuna, that migrate from one area to another. The American boats were fishing for tuna within Canada's 200-mile limit when Canadian patrol boats seized them. Besides the tuna fishing dispute, the two nations must resolve several other difficult questions, involving fishing rights on the east and west coasts.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

November 21, 1979

Through careful and clever planning this coming year you will be able to make a great deal out of spare beginnings. Your fine head will pave the way for a large reward.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could turn a fun meeting with old pals into a sad affair for you if you begin to judge your worth by their successes. Your turn will come. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, NY 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're better off today if you stick to your own plans than to allow others to lay out your itinerary. Lead your own life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take care of today's responsibilities first before you turn your attention to more frivolous matters. You'll be glad they're out of the way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A friend isn't too anxious to have you know the full details of a secret of hers. Help her maintain her dignity by not being too curious.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Place your major emphasis on working out the answers to a large issue today instead of arguing about it. Think, don't fight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today is an excellent time to begin looking for fresh approaches to an old problem. Clinging to unworkable ideas is unproductive and wasteful.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Silence is adding fuel to a disturbing issue involving someone important to you. Have a meeting of the minds today and discuss things openly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A change in habit patterns or routine for you and your mate may be a good idea today. Make plans to do something different. — It'll do you both a world of good.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Chores may be more of a handful today than usual and you might have a problem coping with them. Incorporating a game-like attitude would help tremendously.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can avoid some small expenses around the house today if you're more careful in managing things. Try to stretch what you have farther.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) No use grumbling about a responsibility you're going to be asked to take on. You are going to wind up accepting the job anyway.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Formulate a game plan and stick to it all the way today, no matter how tough things start to look. You'll truly have a mess if you allow yourself to be side tracked.

'Family' Thanksgiving special a winner; 'Dalton Gang' runs long

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This is the time of year for "Special Holiday Treats" on television, when ordinariness is gift-wrapped and called special. But tonight there is something rare on television: a special that is special.

It is called "Thanksgiving," a holiday episode of ABC's "Family" series. Joanne Woodward directs guest star Henry Fonda and the regular "Family" cast in a drama of rare poignance and sensitivity.

Fonda plays James Lawrence, the grandfather of the "Family" clan, who comes to town for a Thanksgiving visit. Grandpa Lawrence is lovable, brilliant, charming, and growing senile. He knows this, and hates the fact of it; but he accepts it and endeavors to live with it by making arrangements with a nursing home.

But Doug Lawrence (James Broderick), 54 and still clinging to his childhood image of his father, refuses to acknowledge the problem. He sees his father as "the strongest man I ever knew," the man who represents a living buffer between himself and mortality.

Eventually, the entire family realizes that Grandpa is slowly eroding, but still. Doug refuses to face it. He storms out of the room when his wife (Sada Thompson) tells him that "Inside each of us there is a five-year-old child who refuses to believe in breakable parents." He rationalizes his father's periodic confusion by saying it happens to everybody.

It is a stirring moment when father and son finally confront reality. "Why didn't you tell me?" asks Doug.

"What was I supposed to do," his father responds, "slip it in at dinner? Son, I'm getting senile, pass the salt?"

This is a lovely story superbly executed. A special, you might say.

Less special is a three-hour Western called "The Last Ride of the Dalton Gang."

Unfortunately, you also get the first ride of the Dalton Gang, and all the rides in between.

This movie was cut to three hours from four, and still it is too long. About two hours and 51 minutes too long. The best part of the movie is the beginning title sequence, loaded with color covers of dime westerns and comic books.

And there is promise at the beginning, which opens with Emmett Dalton as an old man, running into one of his former gangmates on a Hollywood street in 1934. The incident is based on a true story. Emmett Dalton survived the famous shootout at Coffeyville, did time in prison, and moved to California where he did time as a real estate agent.

Now, that's a good yarn. Unfortunately, this movie quickly drops that opportunity, and spends 2½ hours trying to prove that the Dalton were really heroes and that robbing banks and trains were acts of social kindness.

ATLANTA FALCONS' quarterback June Jones (14) receives one of three sacks dealt to him by Los Angeles Rams defensive end Jack Youngblood (85) in Monday night action in Los Angeles. Besides keeping an upper hand on quarterback Jones throughout the night, the Rams came out the victors in an important matchup for the shared lead in the NFL Western Division with the New Orleans Saints.

Injury-riddled Rams down Atlanta, 20-14

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The six-time division champion Los Angeles Rams are 6-6 and tied for the National Football Conference West lead with New Orleans, but Rams' Coach Ray Malavasi is still counting his blessings.

"With all the injuries we've had, I just feel fortunate to be in the position we are in right now," Malavasi said after Monday night's 20-14 Ram victory over NFC West foe Atlanta. "I feel we can win the division, just like I felt at the beginning of the season."

The loss dropped the Falcons to 4-8, putting them two games off the lead with just four contests remaining. However, in what is the NFL's weakest division this season, there are no foregone conclusions.

Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett refused to concede anything, saying, "As far as the race is concerned, we're still not out of it."

One of many Los Angeles reserves pressed into a starting role, quarterback Vince Ferragamo, guided the Rams to the important victory over the Falcons. Making his first NFL start, the third-year pro out of Nebraska passed for two first-half touchdowns and set up the clinching score — an 11-yard run by Cullen Bryant — in the final quarter.

"I hope to do better next week," said Ferragamo, the apparent Rams' starter the rest of the season since Pat Haden is out with a broken finger.

Ferragamo himself had been sidelined for the past month, recuperating from a broken hand suffered in a game against Dallas.

"I thought I played well at times," he said after completing nine of 22 passes for 171 yards against the Falcons.

Ferragamo hit Preston Dennard with a 29-yard touchdown pass early in the first quarter, connected with Billy Waddy on a 40-yard scoring play in the waning moments of the first half, then set up Bryant's tally with a 18-yard toss to tight end Terry Nelson midway through the final period.

As it turned out, the Rams needed all three scores. Atlanta quarterback June Jones III, starting in place of the injured Steve Bartkowski, put the Falcons back in the game with two second-half touchdown passes.

Jones, hitting on just two of nine throws and suffering two interceptions in the opening half, found Wallace Francis with a 15-yard scoring pass late in the third period to cut the Rams' lead to 14-7.

Kush lawyers

ask for dismissal

PHOENIX (AP) — A judge has been asked to dismiss former Arizona State punter Kevin Rutledge's lawsuit against the school, the state Board of Regents and his former coach, Frank Kush.

There was no immediate indication of when U.S. District Court Judge William Cople would rule on the motion filed Monday by lawyers for Kush, the regents and ASU Athletic Director Dr. Fred Miller.

It asks Cople to dismiss the suit on grounds that a resident of one state cannot sue agencies of another in federal court. Rutledge now resides in Nevada, where he attends the state university at Las Vegas.

The complaint asks for $1.1 million in damages, claiming that Kush punched Rutledge after a poor kick during ASU's Oct. 28, 1978 loss to Washington in Seattle, and forced him to quit the team.

Rutledge's suit led to Kush's sudden dismissal and an investigation by Pacific-10 Conference officials, who determined eight Sun Devil players were ineligible and took away the team's three league victories. ASU voluntarily forfeited its two non-conference wins.

Miller suspended Kush on Oct. 13, six weeks after Rutledge's suit was filed. The athletic director accused Kush of asking his coaches to lie about the alleged punch, a charge Kush has denied repeatedly.

Final prep football poll

Abilene Cooper in Class 4A and China Spring in Class A completed unbeaten and untied regular seasons last week and went into the playoffs just like they started the season — ranked No. 1 in the final Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll of the season.

While other top rated teams fell victim to upsets, Cooper and China Spring never were seriously threatened in the rankings all season.

Beaumont Hebert, hovering in the No. 2 position in Class 3A in recent weeks, took over the No. 1 spot in the final week of balloting as Kerrville Tivy, last week's No. 1, lost to San Antonio Madison, which jumped from No. 10 to No. 7.

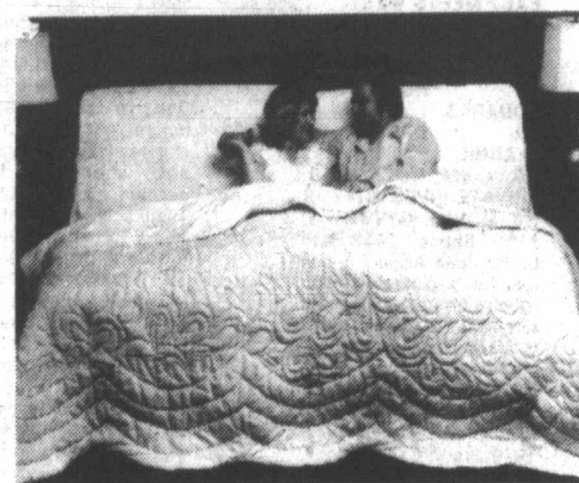

Childress, which wrestled the Class 2A top rank away from Pittsburg, retained the lead going into the playoffs with Pittsburg still as strong runnerup choice.

San Antonio Churchill dropped from the Class 4A rankings following a 7-0 loss to San Antonio Lee and Lewisville, 9-1, moved into the No. 10 position.

Fourth ranked Paris also was a loser in Class 3A by a 7-6 margin to Mount Pleasant. Kerrville dropped to ninth and Paris to 10th in the final tabulations.

Rono wins NCAA title

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Henry Rono of Washington State has become the third person ever to win three NCAA cross country titles, joining Steve Prefontaine and Gerry Lindgren.

Rono was the individual winner Monday in the 41st annual NCAA cross country championships at Lehigh University.

The race, on Lehigh's 10,000-meter course, was run under ideal weather conditions, with Rono finishing in 28 minutes, 19.4 seconds. Defending champion Alberto Salazar of Oregon was second with a time of 28:27.6.

Jim Rotich, of Texas El Paso, was the early leader, but he gave way to Rono and Salazar and eventually placed fourth. Third place went to Kipsurai Kotkei of New Mexico.

Pampa opens season

With the pre-season scrimmages out of the way, Coach Garland Nichols and his Pampa Harvesters are ready to launch the 1979-80 basketball season tonight against Perryton.

The Harvesters scrimmaged Dumas here Thursday and then went to Lawton, Okla. Friday for a four-team scrimmage.

"Each scrimmage lasted about five hours, so we got some good conditioning and we also got to work against a zone defense which we did real well against," Nichols said.

Nichols said his starting five would likely be Joe Jeffers, 5-10 senior, and Steve Glover, 5-9 senior, at guards; Cedrick Parker, 6-2 senior, at center; Ronnie Faggins, 6-5 junior, and Jay Henson, 6-3 junior, at forwards.

"I haven't scouted Perryton, but I know they have a big team and are picked to win their district, so they should have a good club," Nichols added.

The varsity game tips off right after the junior varsity contest, which is scheduled to start at 6 p.m. at Perryton.

On the homecourt tonight, Pampa's Lady Harvesters take on an experienced Perryton club.

"Perryton should be pretty good," said Pampa Coach Mary Thomas. "They have mostly returning starters and they're quick and fast. However, we're going to be ready for them. The girls are fired up and more determined than I've ever seen them."

Pampa scrimmaged Canadian Monday, losing 59-46.

"We got beat in the third quarter when we only scored 9 points," Thomas said. "Overall, we hustled and played good defense."

Kellye Richardson scored 22 points and pulled down 7 rebounds for the Lady Harvesters.

Also scoring for Pampa were Terri Tyrrell, 8; Paula Baldwin, 7; Dwinnia Treadwell, 6; Lori Rosenbach, 2, and Nicky Polson, 1.

Tipoff time is 7:45 p.m. tonight in Harvesters Fieldhouse. The junior varsity contest starts at 6 p.m.

Davis nabs WAC honors

DENVER (AP) — Phil Davis' two touchdowns that led Wyoming to a 21-13 upset over Hawaii has earned the Cowboy quarterback Western Athletic Conference offensive player of the week honors.

The 5-foot-11, 183-pound Davis, from Cerritos, Calif., scored on runs of 1 and 5 yards, rushed nine times for 29 yards and passed for 68 more yards, completing six of 13 aerial attempts. He has averaged 202 yards a game this season.

Davis also holds the Wyoming single-season total offense record with 2,222 yards and one game remaining. He broke the old mark of 2,175 yards set in 1971 by Gary Fox.

Earlier, Brigham Young linebacker Gary Kama was chosen WAC defensive player of the week for his 10 unassisted tackles and 13 assists in last weekend's 27-0 victory over Utah. It was the first Ute shutout since 1974.

Little may miss Baylor contest

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas quarterback Donnie Little's foot injuries could give Baylor a edge in their game Saturday, but Coach Fred Akers says his team — like Baylor — has a bowl bid sewed up.

Baylor has accepted a place in the Peach Bowl, and Akers disclosed at his weekly news conference Monday No. 6 Texas will go to a bowl no matter how it does in its final two regular season games.

Texas, 8-1, plays Baylor, 7-3, here Saturday and finishes against Texas A&M at College Station Dec. 1.

Texas' options are the Cotton, Sugar or Sun Bowl, but an Arkansas victory over Southern Methodist Saturday would eliminate Texas from the Cotton Bowl.

Texas may not know until after the A&M game which bowl it will play in.

Henderson placed on waivers

DALLAS (AP) — Thomas Henderson finally got too "Hollywood" for his own good.

He mugged for the national television cameras once too often—on a day the Dallas Cowboys were fighting for their lives.

His sideline antics coupled with a lack of enthusiasm on the field during Washington's 34-20 rout of the Cowboys Sunday was too much for some teammates, and definitely irked the Dallas coaching staff.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry called strongside linebacker Henderson into his office Monday and told him he was being placed on waivers. Henderson said he would just retire from professional football. Landry said clean out your locker.

"Thomas had no intensity...and his sideline escapades didn't help," said mild-mannered linebacker coach Jerry Tubbs, who was watching when Henderson held up a forefinger to say the Cowboys were No. 1, then pointed to a bandana tucked in his belt.

"I saw it on the television monitor and I mentioned it to him," said Tubbs. "He (Henderson) wasn't too happy about it."

Safety Cliff Harris was asked if Henderson's lack of concern bothered him. "Yeh, it made me mad."

On the field, Henderson made one tackle. "He didn't hustle," said Tubbs. "I think it was the way he played that was the straw that broke his back as far as Coach Landry was concerned. He wasn't performing...then he went on TV."

Henderson said he was ill with the flu and had a pulled hamstring.

Landry refused to give the details of what amounted to Henderson's firing.

However, Landry said he was aware of Henderson's mugging the camera. He also said Henderson had a bad game.

"This is just an accumulation of things...he would try hard...then he would slip back...then he would start again," said Landry. "Maybe Sunday was the last straw. It was not a good performing day for him."

Henderson has three years left on a contract with Dallas but could play for another team tomorrow if he wants. Landry said he would help Henderson go anywhere he wanted to go.

Henderson said, "I love the Dallas fans and I love the Cowboys. I don't want to play for a lower echelon team."

Asked if the retirement was irrevocable, Henderson said, "No, but I don't want to be passed around the leagues."

Landry said Henderson would never be invited back to the Cowboys.

"This is it," he said.

Henderson said he was put under a number of restrictions by Landry this year after his spectacular outbursts during the 1978 season, climaxed by the Super Bowl in which he held the center stage for the press.

"I had to have a special halo," said Henderson. "I couldn't miss practice...I couldn't be hurt. I had to pull my load in every drill."

Lefors opens season

Lefors seventh-grade boys slipped past Skellytown, 21-19, in double overtime Monday to open their basketball season.

Ricky Withers was high scorer for Lefors with 7 points, followed by John Watson and Skeeter Gifford, 4 points each; James Holley, Richard Wilson, and Preston West, two each.

Skellytown won the seventh-grade girls contest, 14-12. Scoring for Lefors were Jessie Burris, 6; Sherry Stanley, 4, and Pam Musick, 2.

In the ninth-grade boys game, Lefors also lost a squeaker, 21-20.

Chris McMinn was top scorer for Lefors with 8 points, while Darrin McBee added 6, Tracy Jennings, 4, and Brent Finney, 2.

Lefors travels to Skellytown Monday for another three-game set. Starting time is 5:15 p.m.

Moore named top defender

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — As West Texas State hangs up its Missouri Valley Conference football championship title, it can thank defensive players like linebacker Larry Moore.

Moore, a sophomore, led several young players the Buffalos' to a 5-0 record this year. Saturday, in the Buffs' 28-18 win over Drake, Moore had eight unassisted and 12 assisted tackles, including four for 36 yards.

Today he was named Valley defensive player of the week. Moore, a 6-foot-1, 233-pounder, was a mainstay in the team's defense, which led the conference in rushing defense (159.3 yards per game) and total defense (282.5 yards) during the season. He is one of 10 sophomore starters on the team, which loses only eight seniors from its full roster.

"We were calling a lot of stunts, and I just happened to be there," Moore said of his effort Saturday. "This is a super feeling. That's the reason why I came to West Texas State."

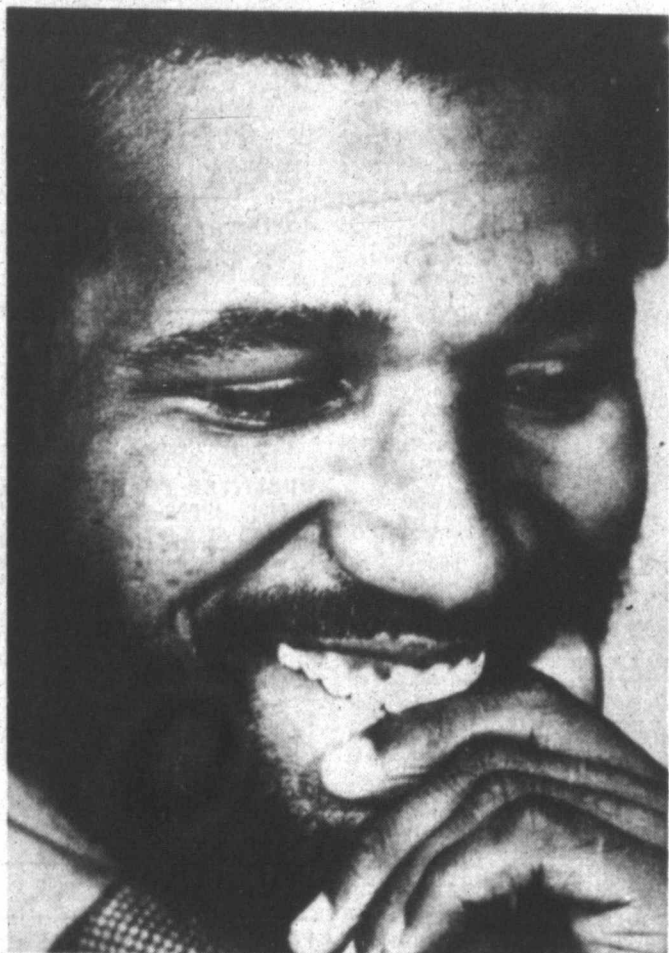

"I wanted to go somewhere where I could win something, and I am looking forward to winning two more championships."

Others nominated for the defensive honor were Drake linebacker Rick Rozenboom and Southern Illinois defensive back Oyd Craddock. Wardell Wright, Drake fullback, was named Valley offensive player of the week Monday. In Saturday's game against West Texas, he rushed for 116 yards on 24 carries and had one touchdown.

He also won the conference 1979 rushing title by overtaking Burnell Quinn of Southern Illinois.

A 6-foot, 213-pound senior, Wright finished the season with 873 yards rushing on 175 carries for an average of 4.9 yards per rush. He scored 14 touchdowns to lead the Valley in scoring, the first time in 28 years that a Bulldog running back had scored that many touchdowns in one season.

Wright also was named offensive captain of Drake for the year, a designation annually given after the season.

THOMAS "HOLLYWOOD" Henderson bites his lip during a press conference in Dallas, Texas Monday. The controversial Dallas Cowboy linebacker said he "always wanted to be remembered as a Cowboy," and that's why he decided to retire Monday when Coach Tom Landry told the former No. 1 draft choice was going to be placed on waivers.

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — More insulation and tighter-fitting windows and doors may be more common in future buildings if energy efficiency standards proposed by the Energy Department are adopted.

The standards were drawn up in an effort to limit the energy used by buildings designed and built in the future, department officials said Monday. Maxine Savitz, one of the officials, said it was estimated that the proposals could cut energy use by as much as 50 percent in new buildings. Among the design techniques that would meet the guidelines are more insulation, tighter-fitting windows and doors, and reduced window areas, the officials said. Public hearings will be held on the proposals.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is considering staff proposals for new regulations that could empower the agency to close nuclear plants if state and local emergency plans do not meet commission standards.

The proposals presented to the commission Monday could be in effect by early next year. Among other things, the emergency plans would contain estimates of the time required to evacuate people up to 10 miles from the plant; procedures for notifying local, state and government agencies; protective measures; and emergency first aid.

Posh residents want neighborhood preserved

NEW YORK (AP) — Andrew Carnegie slept there. So did Henry Frick, Vincent Astor and Nelson Rockefeller. Jackie Onassis and William F. Buckley still do.

Now residents of Manhattan's Upper East Side, a bastion of the American rich, are determined not to be caught napping. They are fighting to keep developers from robbing the area of its historic virtues.

They've banded together to have a large portion of the area declared a historic district. This district, between Fifth and Lexington Avenues and 59th and 79th Streets, would be the largest such protected neighborhood in the city.

"The area is absolutely unique," said Jerome Max, project director for a committee backing the move. "It is what symbolizes New York throughout the world. It has the most concentrated mix of small shops, galleries and architectural styles in the city. There's nothing else like it."

The proposal is not without detractors, chiefly Madison Avenue merchants who say rules requiring approval for exterior changes would engulf them in a sea of red tape.

But the debate has been civilized, in keeping with the nature of the area. There has been no "screaming and yelling," said Patricia Rich, spokeswoman for the Landmarks Preservation Commission.

Hearings were held in July and September. The commission is expected to announce its decision within the next few months. Lenore Norman, executive director of the commission, believes "chances are probably very good that the district will be landmarked."

The commission's professional staff is researching each of the more than 1,000 buildings in the area — determining such vital information as who was the architect and the year it was built.

The investigators walk down streets once traversed by fur baron Astor, steel magnates Carnegie and Frick, bankers Jacob Schiff, Otto Kahn, Felix Warburg, Adolph Lewisohn and others.

They pass everything from plain New York brownstones to the fanciest of dwellings — ornate residences of 19th century financial rulers, the austere fortress of the Seventh Regiment Armory on Park Avenue, tall apartment buildings on Fifth Avenue, and beaux-arts, neo-classical, neo-Georgian and neo-federal town houses.

Most were built in the decades between 1890 and 1920, an era of opulence. It is the area known in pre-ZIP code days as "New York 21," served by such legendary telephone exchanges as TEmpleton-8, RHineland-4 and REgent-2.

Today, the Upper East Side is still a wealthy neighborhood, commanding the city's highest rents and co-op maintenance fees. It is home for several Rockefellers, banker Felix Rohatyn, Mrs. Onassis and her sister, Lee Radziwill, columnist Buckley, writer Cleveland Amory, and Edward and Tricia Nixon-Cox and baby.

Many of these well-known residents have joined the Committee for an Upper East Side Historic District. Others include New Yorker magazine writer Brendan Gill, actress Tammy Grimes and City Councilwoman Jane Trichter, who represents the area.

The committee maintains that though some buildings in the district are already landmarks, there is nothing to stop the owners of other East Side edifices from making alterations.

Creating a new historic district on the East Side would shield the entire area with one ruling, they say, faster and easier than considering buildings individually.

They say speed is of the essence; Ms. Rich said the commission staff finds new building alterations every week, some bordering on desecration.

New York City now has 37 historic districts, including Greenwich Village and Soho in Manhattan, and Fort Greene, Park Slope and Brooklyn Heights in Brooklyn.

One small Upper East Side enclave surrounding the Metropolitan Museum of Art was designated a historic district two years ago. The protected area, from 78th to 86th Streets between Fifth and Madison Avenues, would border the new district.

Preservationists say that in other neighborhoods, land and building values increased with the creation of a protected district.

But developer Harry Macklowe of Wolf-Macklowe Associates has vowed to resist the push for declaration of a historic district.

"Establishing an Upper East Side Historic District will retard development and impede residential construction in the area," Macklowe said. "It will create more red tape, and red tape means time, and time means money."

Oil pours onto Texas beaches

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Oil from a burning tanker in the Gulf of Mexico poured onto beaches the length of Galveston Island Monday, and Coast Guard experts said the onslaught was expected to continue through Wednesday.

Thick patches of oil from the tanker Burmah Agate caused the worst beach contamination since the tanker and a freighter collided near the entrance to the Galveston Ship Channel Nov. 1.

Fifteen bodies were recovered after the collision between the tanker and the freighter Mimosa, and another 17 sailors are missing and presumed dead.

The oil washed ashore at East, West and Freeport beaches Monday as Navy skimmer boats fought to recover the spilling crude.

Two skimmers reported reclaiming a total of about 4,300 gallons of oil-and-water emulsion from waters around the flaming tanker. One of the skimmers reported an oil patch 2 miles by 150 yards about four miles off Galveston.

A Texas A&M scientist conducting tide and current surveys in Luis Pass said he saw two oil slicks floating into West Bay.

The Coast Guard reported the amount of oil flowing from the damaged tanker increased Sunday night when the vessel buckled near the middle and opened a new crack in the storage tanks.

It's nice to feel so good about a meal.

Republicans don't like name

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Sen. Richard S. Schweiker was told in 1976 that Ronald Reagan wanted him as a running mate, the liberal Pennsylvania Republican was astonished. The other day, Schweiker got his chance to return the surprise.

Reagan, campaigning in the Philadelphia suburbs in his bid for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination, asked Schweiker to introduce him at a rally.

Within seconds Schweiker managed to turn the cheerful home-state audience of several hundred Republicans into a jeering mob.

Schweiker became ashen and Reagan looked bewildered as the GOP celebrants hissed and booed.

What did Schweiker say? Only that he was proud and happy to be back in Falcraft, Pa.

Unfortunately that isn't the name of the town. It's Folcroft — and the citizens of one of the few GOP strongholds in the Philadelphia area made it clear they felt Schweiker should know the right pronunciation.

Schweiker's comeback that "it must have been a Democratic cue-card" appeased some of the rally-goers.

But good cheer was fully restored only when Folcroft Mayor William Monteith declared: "Thank you, Senator Swicker."

Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., another seeker of his party's 1980 nomination, has offered a new wrinkle in the way of a challenge to fellow candidates.

Pressler, youngest of the announced presidential candidates, challenged his rivals to jog with him.

"We want to show that the GOP is in good shape in more ways than one," said Pressler, 37.

An electronic echo of Watergate cropped up as the Senate Banking Committee was considering the administration's proposed loan-guarantee package for the Chrysler Corp.

The committee's microphone system repeatedly sputtered and had to be turned off as Peter G. Peterson, one-time secretary of commerce in the Nixon administration, testified.
