Nixon's Peace Plan Rejected By Commies

PARIS, (AP) — The Vietnamese Communists forcefully restated today Hanoi's rejection of President Nixon's peace plan, but U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce told them he was awaiting "a more considered and constructive response."

At the same time, South Vietnam offered what a member of the delegation described as new political proposals in an attempt to break the deadlock at the Paris peace talks. It carried a hint that Saigon might accept a formula other than elections to decide South Vietnam's political future.

RATIONAL WAY

Bruce called the Nixon plan a set of "specific and logical proposals that should become a basis for detailed negotiations."

He reminded his adversaries: "You indicated that you would be commenting on the President's proposals more definitively at this and subsequent sessions. Today we await a more considered and constructive response."

South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam told the weekly session of the Vietnam peace talks that his government "has the sincere conviction that free elections open to all political parties and groups in South Vietnam, including the National Liberation Front... would constitute the best and... most rational way for the South Vietnamese population to exercise genuinely its right of self-determination."

Lam did not say what arrangement other than elections Saigon might be willing to discuss. But when President Nguyen Van Thieu first proposed free elections on July 11, 1969, he said, "The only way for the people of South Vietnam to exercise their right of self-determination... is through elections."

Lam's softening on this point was in line with one point in the five-point proposal Nixon made Oct. 7. Nixon skirted the question of elections and spoke of "the political process agreed upon."

'FRAUD' CHARGE

Echoing a Hanoi broadcast earlier today, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong's chief delegate to the talks, told newsmen that the Viet Cong, North Vietnam and their allies in Laos and Cambodia "have categorically rejected Mr. Nixon's pseudo plan of peace."

The broadcast statement by the North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry rejected Nixon's proposal as "a deceptive maneuver" and a "fraud."

TOO FAT FOR MIDI

LONDON (AP) — British fashion writers agreed today that Princess Margaret is too fat and too short to wear a midskirt. "A little plump dump... A disaster... A horrible mistake," were some of the published comments after Queen Elizabeth's well padded, 5-foot-1 sister wore the new length on a visit Tuesday to a school for blind children.

"Being fashionable is one thing," said the Sun. "Looking ridiculous is another."

Columnist Jean Rook suggested that the princess take off about 20 pounds and four inches all around.

Oil Allowable For November Increased

AUSTIN (AP) The Railroad Commission rejected today a plea for a 100 per cent statewide oil allowable and set the factor for November at 87.3 per cent of potential, the fourth monthly increase in a row.

W. J. Murray Jr., former commissioner and now president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) told the commission a 100 per cent allowable would show the nation the industry "is doing all it can to produce every barrel of oil."

Murray said he was speaking for TIPRO and four other major organizations — North Texas Oil and Gas Association, Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association, Permian Basin Petroleum Association and the West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association.

Egypt Holds 'Elections' To Tap Sadat

CAIRO (AP) — Millions of Egyptians trooped to the polls today to elect Anwar Sadat president for a six-year term.

Sadat, 52-year-old acting president since the death of Gamal Abdel Nasser on Sept. 28, was the only candidate in a "yes" or "no" referendum. He was nominated unanimously last week by the Arab Socialist Union, the nation's only political party, and the National Assembly.

HOSTESS GUNNED DOWN, TWO PILOTS WOUNDED

Skyjackers Seize Soviet Airliner

TRABZON, Turkey (AP) — A father-and-son team of hijackers seized a Soviet Aeroflot airliner over southern Russia today and forced it to fly to this Turkish town on the Black Sea coast, Turkish officials reported. They said a hostess who resisted was shot dead and two pilots wounded.

It was the first successful hijacking of a Soviet passenger plane to another country. Soviet authorities for years have kept military guards at airfields.

GIVE UP

The hijackers surrendered and were taken into police custody after the plane, carrying 50 persons, landed here just after noon.

A militia colonel here identified them as Brazinkas Koreyev, 46, and his 18-year-old son, Argadas, both Russian citizens.

Turkish press reports said the hijackers were of Jewish origin.

This could not be confirmed immediately.

The Tupolev F27 plane of the government-run airline was seized 10 minutes after it took off from the Georgian town of Batumi on the eastern edge of the Black Sea for a 100-mile flight north to Sukhumi, the Trabzon deputy governor reported.

The hijackers were armed with guns and grenades. A scuffle apparently ensued aboard the plane, Turkish officials said, but what exactly happened was not clear.

RUSSIANS 'PANIC'

One of the two wounded pilots was rushed to a local hospital and was reported to be in very critical condition.

The plane landed here normally, the Trabzon airport manager said, contradicting earlier reports that it had crash landed. He said the hijackers walked off first and surrendered their weapons without trouble.

He said the 43 other passengers, all believed to be Russian, appeared panicky as they came off the craft.

The plane came down about 600 miles north of the Jordan area where Palestinian guerrillas last month held as hostage the passengers of three airliners. These planes, belonging to TWA, Swissair and British Overseas Airways, were blown up but all the passengers were removed beforehand.

Farm Bill Package Shelved By Solons

Subsidies Lid Basic Hangup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate delayed until after the election recess final action on a three-year farm bill package which, for the first time, limits subsidies paid farmers for not growing some crops.

Earlier this week the House approved the farm bill version approved by a conference committee. But the Senate recessed Wednesday until Nov. 16 without acting on the report.

As a result, the Department of Agriculture must delay plans for setting up administrative procedures to guide farmers preparing for 1971 crops.

The basic hangup for weeks has been differences in the Senate and House versions, mostly over key provisions authorizing price support loans, payments, acreage controls and other fine points for the crops of cotton, wheat and livestock feed grains.

Under the Senate version, farmers would have received more liberal treatment through higher guarantees for their crops. The House plan, supported by the administration, allowed more flexibility in determining the level of price supports and other benefits.

As reported by the conference committee, the bill is closer to House lines and has been endorsed by Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin and the White House.

Another important change was elimination of acreage allotments and marketing quotas as they have been known. Instead, participating farmers would be required to "set aside" a percentage of their crop land to qualify for benefits.

Once the set-aside is done, farmers would be allowed to plant as much of whatever they choose on the remaining acres. The set-aside land left idle would not be eligible for government payments as some is now.

Union blasted the compromise plan as "a drastic departure from proven concepts" and charged it would lead to lower farm income.

Both the House and Senate approved a $55,000-per-acre limit on direct government payments per year.

The bill includes provisions for dairy, wool, Food for Peace, rural development and other miscellaneous programs.

All told, the administration has said, the programs would continue government spending at about present levels—around $3.8 billion a year.

The basic principals of present programs was retained. This involves use of loans to provide a floor price under commodities, and supplemental payments to farmers for at least part of their share of the domestic market.

President Fearing 'New Isolationism'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite talk of an intensified cold war, President Nixon fears a "new isolationism" at home and plans an effort to reach a live-and-let-live agreement with the Soviet Union.

His idea, while acknowledging his actions in public life have stamped him a strong anti-Communist, is to seek a coexistence working to the mutual benefit of the United States and Russia.

At the same time, Nixon believes weariness after 25 years of shouldering global burdens may be turning the American people toward isolation, which he feels would be a mistake.

Otherwise, according to his thinking—and he has an inkling Moscow might agree—a U.S. retreat to homebase would leave the world by 1995 with only two superpowers—The Soviet Union and Red China because no non-Communist nation could fill the void.

Still, the chief executive feels competition will continue between the two nations and differences now are so deep and profound they cannot be bridged by their leaders smiling, shaking hands or coming to know each other better at a summit conference.

Earlier this week, William C. Sullivan, a top assistant to FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover and a former head of the bureau's domestic intelligence branch, said "several anarchist groups reportedly have plans to kidnap government officials."

As an accent to such speculation, strong and vigilant security forces ringed the United Nations headquarters in New York Wednesday as diplomats gathered for the U.N.'s 25th anniversary session.

The unusually strong security forces were believed called out because of the possibility of kidnapping attempts and other possible incidents.

There has been some discussion and concern among my colleagues," Saxbe said. "It was brought up at a recent White House conference and there is an alert at present. The Justice Department has advised members of Congress they should be careful."

He said senators and House members have not been provided with guards but said he believed that at times of crisis, round-the-clock protection may be fully justified, "even if he insists he doesn't want it."

In such a situation, he said, senators, House members and other officials become more important than their positions because of the possibility blackmail might be demanded from the government itself.

Group Dedicated To Kent Wrecking

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Kent State University President Robert I. White says that "a small group dedicated to the destruction of the university is at work" on the campus and "the next few days could be volatile."

White issued his statement Wednesday after a planned student demonstration was canceled by its sponsors. Those who showed up for the demonstration were told that "professional provocateurs" reportedly were on campus to create violence.

White called for the university community to go about its work and refuse to be dragged into violence. His remarks were transmitted over the university's new anti-rumor telephone system.

White said he had been advised during the summer that some persons were bent on the destruction of the university, adding: "We were told that these persons would surface after the year had started, probably using the assistance of outsiders or nonstudents."

Demands to be presented to the school administration at the demonstration included abolition of ROTC on campus, an end to military research and opposition to any indictments which may come from a special state grand jury investigating four days of violence on the campus in May.

The grand jury is to release its findings Friday in Ravenna, concluding an investigation that it has conducted for a month.

POT LUCK — The Customs Bureau shows how it uses dogs to sniff out drugs in mail packages yesterday at the White House as President Nixon and a group of broadcasters watch. A "loaded" parcel was placed with some 30 others chosen from the mails. The dog found the plant and also nosed an unexpected bonus. A hollowed-out candle, right, mailed from Madrid, was found to be hiding five or six ounces of hashish.

President Plans To Sign Sweeping Anticrime Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon scheduled a special ceremony today to sign a sweeping anticrime bill dealing with two major election-year issues—terrorist bombing and underworld syndicates.

One of the bill's provisions calls for the death penalty in fatal bombings, another expands federal power against racket bosses.

Nixon invited Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to witness the signing as part of an effort to underline the importance of what one White House spokesman called "a very major piece of legislation."

But civil liberties organizations didn't share the President's enthusiasm for the bill and indicated they will challenge the constitutionality of some provisions.

"The bill, although aimed at organized crime, will find its first and most widely used endeavor against militant groups, Black Panthers and others the administration considers as dissident," said Lawrence Speiser, national legislative director of the American Civil Liberties Union in an interview Wednesday night.

He claimed the legislation will not affect the crime rate, does not deal with growing street crime and reflects an "appeal to voters in this very political season."

MORE FBI POWER
With crime a major part of the congressional election campaign, Congress rushed the bill to the President before adjourning for November's election campaign.

Ronald Ziegler, White House press secretary, said the administration hoped the legislation would "deter such bombings in the future" as the one that hit Harvard University in a pre-dawn blast Wednesday.

The bill makes it a federal crime to bomb federal buildings, buildings rented or used by the government and buildings at institutions that get federal aid.

The last provision opens up most college campuses to FBI investigators when bombs go off.

DEATH PENALTY
Besides the death penalty, the legislation provides 20-year sentences for causing injury through terrorist bombs and ten years for taking part in bombings.

But most of the legislation deals with curbing organized crime.

The bill gives the government new and expanded powers to combat racketeering and crime syndicates.

Other antimob sections of the legislation beef up procedures that force witnesses to testify, increase protection for witnesses in attempts to keep them from being intimidated or killed, ease use in court of evidence obtained by wire-tapping and establish special grand juries with powers to probe and report on organized crime activities.

GAMBLING TARGET
One provision strikes at interstate gambling operations and at the infiltration of legitimate businesses by racketeers.

Speiser said the antiorganized crime provisions were based on erroneous theories disproved in the past that if "you free the police from constitutional limitations... or make it easier to convict persons... or provide stiff sentences, this will affect the crime rate."

On the antibombing penalties, he said:

"At a time when capital punishment is pretty well accepted as being on the wane by the courts, legislators and the people, you have the Nixon administration according to the worst fears of the populace."

Speiser said the ACLU would challenge provisions of the legislation "as soon as the opportunity arises."

Episcopals Debate New Policy Of Aiding 'Poor'

HOUSTON (AP) — Episcopalians moved toward a decision today of the fate of their riskiest, most innovative and controversial modern venture — a program for funding projects among poor people without old-style controls over them.

As the church's governing convention went into a legislative session, both its critics and supporters expressed their views.

Opponents said it threatened to split, bankrupt and destroy the denomination and was sometimes subsidizing violence.

WAY OF CHRIST
Others said it was strengthening the weak and deprived, renewing the church's life and pointing in the real way of Christ.

In either case, the effort was seen as unusual.

Dr. Thomas Bennett, a Chicago sociologist - psychologist, said: "In white America, no other national organization, save the Episcopal Church, has dared to invest its resource in such a unique, experimental or more free way for the empowerment of minority people across the country."

The program, however, through which nearly $5 million has gone to self-help organizations of blacks and other poor in the last three years, has sparked dissent throughout the 3.4 million member, predominantly white church.

Some units and many individuals have cut off contributions, plunging the church into financial difficulties at the national level.

Dr. Clifford Morehouse of Sarasota Springs, Fla., former president of the convention's lay clergy House of Deputies, criticized the "cavalier way" in which grants had been made without regard for guidelines set against funding groups involved in violence.

Many people have "retaliated in the only way they know—by cutting their pledges," he said.

MASKED MAN NOT ALL BAD
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A gun-wielding masked man robbed a supermarket of a bread sack full of money Wednesday then trotted into the store parking lot.

Police said the bandit ordered a man and his wife parked in the lot to drive him to safety.

A few blocks away, the gunman jumped from the car and tossed $15 in loose bills on the front seat.

"Here's for your trouble," police said the couple quoted the robber.

Kunstler Enters Innocent Plea
TORONTO (AP) — William Kunstler, one of the defense lawyers at the Chicago riot trial, has pleaded innocent to a charge of assault causing bodily harm during a June 22 speaking engagement here.

The complainant was F. Paul Fromm, a leader of the rightist Edmund Burke Society, who claimed Kunstler hit him on the head with a water pitcher.

The trial was adjourned to Nov. 21 after Kunstler's plea Tuesday.

Old 'Early Birds' Producer Expires
DALLAS (AP) — Jimmie Jeffries, one of the best-known voices in Texas before World War II, died Wednesday.

Jeffries, 70, was producer of the old "Early Birds" show on Radio WFAA for many years.

'Ol' Diz 'Sluds' Into Court With Huge Libel Suit

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, onetime National League pitching star, has filed a $14 million suit against Phoenix Newspapers Inc. alleging he was libeled in a headline.

His court petition Wednesday cited the banner in the afternoon Phoenix Gazette Feb. 26 over a story about Dean being named as a co-conspirator—but not a defendant—in an indictment against a sports gambling ring.

Dean said the headline, "Ol' Diz 'Sluds' Into Indictment," was meant to imply that he had been charged with a serious crime. Diz once used "slud" as the past tense of "slide" in a baseball broadcast.

As a result of the headline, Dean claimed, he suffered a loss of offers for personal appearances, business dropped in his chain of restaurants and his chances of employment as a radio or television sports announcer were impaired.

Ulcer Operation Nips Campaigning

BOSTON (AP) — Mayor Kevin H. White, the Democratic candidate for governor in the Nov. 3 election, has had to undergo an operation for a perforated ulcer.

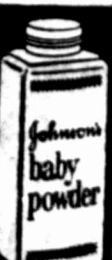

Physicians at Massachusetts General Hospital, where he was taken after being stricken at his Beacon Hill home Wednesday, said he would be unable to resume campaigning by the voting date.

Equal Rights Amendment About 'Dead'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The equal rights amendment that has been knocking around Congress for 47 years apparently is dead, and key Senate supporters are abandoning it in favor of a new proposal to prevent discrimination against women.

The proposed constitutional amendment, introduced first in 1923, achieved its greatest victory last August when the House bypassed its Judiciary Committee and approved it by a 350-15 vote after an hour's debate.

But in the Senate Wednesday, even though 81 senators were listed as sponsors, it apparently came to the end of the line.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who spearheaded the fight for the House-approved amendment, said it is obvious the Senate is not going to pass it.

Bayh was joined by Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., and others in offering a substitute proposal—a constitutional amendment applying the equal protection clause in the 14th Amendment to sex.

It provides: "Neither the United States nor any state shall, on account of sex, deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

Bayh said it would "ensure equal protection of the laws to those who have been discriminated against on account of sex, while recognizing the need for a flexible standard in cases where different treatment under the law may be justified."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who has led the fight against the House-passed amendment, said the substitute proposal "would go a long way toward retaining the protective legislation which the states and the federal government have enacted for the benefit of women."

Approve Model Cities Pacts

HOUSTON (AP) — The City Council approved Wednesday five of nine specific model cities department contracts for some of Houston's worst slums.

Tom Doody, model cities information officer, said the five contracts represent the final stage of legislative approval before the projects begin functioning.

Each of the contracts has received funding from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. They total about $442,000.

NEW COLORADO CITY MUSEUM OPENS

C-City Slates Opening Of Museum Saturday

By TOM JAY GOSS II

COLORADO CITY (SC) —

Colorado City will formally open its new museum Saturday at 1:30 p.m., with Mayor Mike Burt as speaker. The opening ceremony will be a part of the Old Timer's Reunion, scheduled Saturday morning at Civic House.

City Manager J. A. Sadler will act as master of ceremonies and will introduce J. Ralph Lee, chairman of the city's museum committee. Lee will introduce members of his committee and will discuss the museum, its organization and contents.

The museum was founded almost single handedly in 1959 by the late Harry Ratliff, local attorney, who developed the plan after Colorado City was bypassed by IS 20. "We need something that will get people off the highway and pull them into town," Ratliff said. Ratliff felt that a good museum would do this and would also help preserve Colorado City and Mitchell County history.

Ratliff felt that local businessmen would finance the project because of its value as a tourist attraction, and planned to set up a museum fund financed by monthly donations.

In July, 1959, Ratliff approached the American Legion with a proposal to lease the top floor of the American Legion building for a museum. The museum and the Legion entered into a contract formalized by a handshake and a verbal agreement.

Ratliff immediately began to acquire articles for his museum and opened it in the fall of 1959 with Colorado City clubwomen as curators. Ratliff acquired many interesting articles in the next five years and put in hundreds of hours of his own time and work. However, financing as planned did not work out and in 1963, Ratliff and those who worked with him, approached the Colorado City Council with a proposal that the city take over the museum. In 1965, the city purchased the Museum at a cost sufficient to pay off its debts with the exception of rents owed the American Legion and paid $1,000 of that, with the Legion making a donation of the balance of $2,400.

The City has operated the museum since then, and has continued to lease the top floor of the American Legion building to house it.

In December, 1969, the City acquired the vacant Fuller Foods building, at Third and Oak, for a museum building. The building, containing 4,500 square feet of floor space, was purchased at a cost of $12,500. The building has been repaired, the front remodelled, and other improvements made.

City Manager Sadler says that city employees have done much of the work and that cash costs in remodeling are only $3,752.69 to date.

Most of the museum properties have been moved from the Legion building, and will be on display Saturday. Sadler says that he hopes eventually to be able to keep the museum open seven days a week — "from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., six days and all day Saturday."

'Bogus' Doc Has Surgery

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Frank Dalgleish, 27, who posed as a doctor in McCamey, Tex., underwent kidney surgery Wednesday in his hometown of Townsville in North Queensland.

A Townsville Hospital spokesman said Dalgleish was "pretty low" before he entered surgery and there could be no estimation of his condition for 24 hours.

The spokesman said the surgery was a temporary measure "to keep him going."

Dalgleish arrived in Brisbane Sept. 1 after McCamey residents had paid his air fare back to Australia because they had been told he had only a few days to live from a terminal kidney disease.

BUS-TRAIN CRASH KILLS 52 PUPILS

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — A high school excursion bus collided with a train at a crossing Wednesday killing 52 pupils and the driver, police reported.

They said there were 76 persons on the bus, returning from a visit to a national shrine near Onyang, a resort 45 miles south of Seoul. The accident occurred near there.

Twenty-two persons were injured, most of them in serious condition from severe burns.

Police said the bus burst into flames as it was dragged about 300 feet after colliding with the train at an unmanned crossing.

Possible 'Lifer' Flees Courtroom

HOUSTON (AP) — A prisoner facing a possible life sentence successfully fled a Houston courtroom. John Albert Miles, 25, was brought into court by a bailiff to hear final arguments in his robbery by assault trial. If convicted, as a second-offender, he could receive a life prison term.

As Miles walked through the door he started running, sped past the counsel's table and out another door as the jury watched in astonishment. A hastily-formed posse of bailiffs and sheriff's deputies failed to find him.

"I was going to shoot him," said Bailiff E. G. Hause, "but there were some girls there."

Brush Control Tour Scheduled

The tours will leave from the Pitchfork Ranch Headquarters located about 17 miles east of Dickens on U.S. 82. Visitors who come early will be able to make the complete tour of research plots, and see some demonstrations, adds Fisher, while those coming after 10:15 a.m. will only see a portion of the field locations.

The afternoon program will be conducted at the Pitchfork Ranch Headquarters beginning at 1:30 p.m. Various methods will be discussed and shown.

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Thurs., Oct. 15, 1970 7-A

DEAR ABBY: First I want to say that I know I did wrong and I am not looking for any excuses. I was not feeling well so I went to a doctor (internist), and after four visits he became quite amorous. Being lonely and depressed, I responded. He is in his fifties, short, stout and not at all physically attractive, but he has a warm and powerful personality. I am 35, blonde, thin and fairly attractive.

We arranged to meet at his office after hours. No winning or dining, everything took place right in his office. We became intimate.

Well, can you imagine how I felt when I received a bill from him for these social visits? Don't misunderstand, I expect to pay for his professional services, but he charged me for two office calls which were not professional.

Now I feel cheap and hurt. I certainly didn't expect to pay him for his lovemaking. Since he saw me after office hours, do you think he's entitled to a fee?

DEAR HURT: A fee? He is entitled to be booted out of the medical profession for unethical practices. And if you really want to shake the old boy up, tell him you're a "professional," and send him a bill.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 18 years and my husband has always called my mother and father by their first names. (My parents are quite young, and they never indicated they didn't like it. In fact, I always thought they liked it.)

Recently, during a family argument, my father told my husband that from that time on, he didn't wish to be addressed by his first name — that "Mister" would suit him fine. My husband was really hurt and shocked, and so was I. He had never used their first names to indicate any lack of respect.

CONFUSED: I think your father spoke in anger when he demanded that your husband address him as "Mister" instead of by his first name as he had done for the last 18 years. If your father had any objections, he should have mentioned them 18 years ago.

DEAR ABBY: Am I an unnatural grandmother? Believe me, I love my grandchildren.

On Safety Board

Kenneth Howell, business manager of Local 826, International Union of Operating Engineers, AFL-CIO, has been notified by Walter G. Martin, director, Division of Occupational Safety, of the Texas Occupational Safety Board, of his selection to serve as a member of the subcommittee which will recommend safety standards for oil and gas well drilling and servicing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO GAMBLER'S WIFE: From your letter I would say your husband is a compulsive gambler. He cannot walk away from a gambling event when he is ahead. Being compulsive, he goes on betting until he has lost all his winnings — and more.

The ordinary gambler is genuinely happy when he wins, the compulsive gambler is not. He has to lose in order to gratify himself, and he'll keep gambling until he loses everything. If there is a Gamblers Anonymous in your town, your husband should drop in for a meeting. He has nothing to lose. He's lost everything.

He has traveled in the Bible lands and just recently completed a trip to the Baptist World Alliance and an around the world.

Paternity Suit Hits Sinatra Jr.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Frank Sinatra Jr. has been named in a paternity suit filed by Carol Sue Edmondson of Las Vegas.

Her petition in District Court said Sinatra was the father of her son Victor, born last April in Chicago, and asked that he be ordered to pay birth expenses and support of the boy until the infant is 21.

"This is impossible," Sinatra said. "There are no grounds for such an allegation."

Sinatra, like his father a singer, is appearing at the Frontier Hotel.

What's Wrong? 'Prosperity'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — America is a lot better off than people think, Gen. Lewis B. Hershey said.

Hershey, former director of Selective Service, was in Salt Lake to address the national convention of the Veterans of World War I.

"If I were an intellectual, I would be pessimistic, but since I'm not an intellectual, I am optimistic about America," Hershey said.

He offered a quick opinion on what's wrong with this country: "Prosperity."

Permian Still 2nd In AP's Grid Poll

By The Associated Press

The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll remained almost completely unshaken by voting this week after one of the calmest weekends of the season.

Wichita Falls, Ennis, Iowa Park and Poth all retained their top billings in each class. Only two rated teams in all four classes were beaten and one was tied. In Class AAA, the top 10 was identical to last week's rankings.

Wichita Falls polled 19 of 20 first place votes in a runaway for first in Class AAAA. Second ranked Odessa Permian again got the only other first place selection. The only casualty in AAAA was Highland Park, which dropped out of sight after losing to Wichita Falls.

Unbeaten Baytown Lee moved in to replace Highland Park as No. 9. San Antonio Lee dropped from seventh to 10th after it was tied by Seguin.

Ennis continued to dominate the Class AAA voting but lost two first place ballots from last week. The Lions notched 16 first place votes this week with No. 2 Jasper and No. 3 Brownwood receiving two each.

Defending Class AA champion Iowa Park collected 16 first place votes while No. 2 Refugio got two and No. 3 Eastland and No. 6 Kirbyville each received one. Kirbyville's first place vote gave it a one-point edge over Granbury for the sixth spot in AAA.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll with first place in parentheses, season records and points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

Ford Defects Pointed Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — An attorney who helped spearhead the fight leading to the government's unprecedented safety warning on four million Fords, Mercurys and Thunderbirds says the action was inadequate.

The Department of Transportation's "consumer protection bulletin" Wednesday failed to mention several models with possible steering defects which could cause wheels to fall off, said Lowell Dodge of the non-profit Center for Auto Safety.

NOT ENOUGH
And just alerting owners of certain 1965-1969 models to possible failures isn't enough, said Dodge. "I don't think we'll regard the battle as over until Ford initiates a recall."

The Department of Transportation did not request Ford to recall and repair the cars at the manufacturer's expense. "The cycle of extreme abuse and high-speed wheel impacts required to initiate control arms failure does not occur—except in special and rare instances—in nonpursuit vehicles," said DOT.

Matthew S. McLaughlin, president of Ford Marketing Corp., said Ford was "pleased to cooperate in the suggestion" made by the Transportation Department.

WE REPEAT
"We repeat what we have stated before: That there is no defect in the control arm," he said. "But we believe that when any vehicle is subject to abuse or accident damage, such as did government investigators that specified by the DOT, it track down the owners of the cars—which date back to 1965—and satisfy themselves that the control arms failed."

The DOT mention of "nonpursuit vehicles" was a reference to the fact that the initial reports of failure of a part called the lower control arm came from police departments.

Cracking of the arm left the driver without control of the car.

A government investigation concluded the failures result of from smashing over curbs at high speeds. Normal use would not affect the arms, the government said, so Ford recalled only police cars—85,000 of them—in August.

FAILURE RATE
Ralph Nader and the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety disagreed and urged DOT last month to reopen the investigation.

Nader and the institute, which is funded by the insurance industry, cited instances reported to Ford where failures had occurred on passenger cars driven as little as 13 miles.

Dodge did the investigation for Nader.

Dodge also challenged the Transportation Department and Ford assertion that the failure rate on passenger cars is one in 100,000. He noted that figure used only the failures the government has declared "verified."

The insurance institute, in criticizing the government figures last month, noted that Ford reported 154 instances when dealers or owners had reported control arm failures.

In only the 37 "verified" cases or accident damage, such as did government investigators that specified by the DOT, it track down the owners of the cars—which date back to 1965—and satisfy themselves that the control arms failed.

Plastic World Foreseen By Lions Club Speaker

Some of these days you may buy your house, a room or a unit at a time — out of plastics. And you may assemble the whole thing ready for occupancy within 24 hours.

And when you wear it out, or any unit of it, you can casually replace it with a new one and sell the old one to the plastics salvage man, who will turn it into brand new pipe.

Or you may stick your tent in your hip pocket when you go on a camping trip — it will weigh only 28 ounces, yet blow up to a sturdy, ribbed covering with floor.

Undoubtedly you will use plastic furniture, or even inflated, disposable furniture which you can toss away when you wear it out or tire of it. Or you may use a hospital room which can have its wall, bed coverings, etc., cleanly stripped of plastic coverings and refitted with new sterile linings.

Or you may even rip plastic sheets from a roll, make your dishes, and, instead of washing them, discard them after the meal.

Or you may change the color of your car to suit your whim merely by turning a rheostat on your dash board.

These were but a few of the things which Mike Goetsche, plastics technology instructor at Howard County Junior College, outlined to the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday noon at the Settles.

It will take research and technology to bring this about, he added, but the biggest problem is educating the public to a new concept of plastics — one contrary to the idea of a broken toy or a spoon that curls up when you put it in hot liquid.

"When you say plastics, it's like saying metals," said Goetsche. "There are nearly as many plastics as there are metals, and they all have different characteristics that make them suitable for various jobs."

Plastics are gaining such currency that some refer to this as the "age of plastics." Goetsche cited the case of polystyrene (Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. is the third largest producer of this material in the United States). In 1965 the market was 10 million pounds; in 1967 it was 67 million, in 1970 it will be 125 million, and by 1980 it will be 600 million pounds.

Plastics are so flexible that they can be extruded into almost any shape — even to personally fitted bath tubs or roof parts for domed stadiums. They can be impregnated with any color, or indeed with materials that will change color according to intensity of an electric charge, or inflated into furniture that will harden when exposed to ultra-violet rays.

HCJC's part in all this, he said, is to help train workers in furniture that will harden when exposed to ultra-violet rays.

The club said farewell to two prominent members, Morris Rhodes, former secretary, who is moving to Dallas to be associated with University Computer Systems, and to Maj. Bill Lund, who has departed for Vietnam.

Dr. Marshall Cauley inducted two others as new members — Robert Wilson and M. A. Snell.

Jim Lemons, chairman, announced a zone meeting for 7:30 p.m. today at Cosden Country Club.

Charles Miller, field representative, showed a film, "Journey Into Darkness," on quackery cures for cancer. He said there is a need for more public information on this. Only 16 per cent of persons in Texas with cancer were reached last year, and 100,000 died last year without proper information.

Mrs. Ben Boadle reported three films and a speaker due in schools during November. Mrs. Oscar Johnson reported need for a place to house the supply closet of bandages, etc. for cancer patients in and around this area.

Mrs. Raymond Torp, president of the local unit, will attend the annual division meeting Oct. 21-22 in Fort Worth.

U.S. Scaling Down Bombing Raids Across South Viet

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force is scaling down bombing raids across South Vietnam while maintaining pressure on North Vietnamese supply routes in Laos, informed sources reported today.

American air attacks in Vietnam on suspected North Vietnamese and Viet Cong positions and in support of allied ground troops in battle have dropped off by as much as 70 per cent since the big enemy offensives in 1968, the sources said.

SMALL CLASHES

The main reason, the sources said, is that the war has de-escalated into small clashes, with few large concentrations of enemy troops to be found.

Another factor is that American forces are disengaging from the war in line with President Nixon's Vietnamization policy, and the South Vietnamese air force is flying more sorties.

The U.S. 7th Air Force has been reduced by about 200 fighter-bombers since January, more than half the fleet it had in Vietnam, as part of Nixon's withdrawal program. It now has about 175 fighter-bombers at four bases in South Vietnam.

The South Vietnamese air force has increased about 200 planes and helicopters since January and now totals about 600.

LARGER SHARE

In January, 1968, the South Vietnamese air force flew 13 per cent of all sorties in South Vietnam; last month the Vietnamese share was about 25 per cent.

The 7th Air Force's new commander, Gen. Lucius D. Clay Jr., has ordered changes in tactics to eliminate bombing raids against targets of questionable value. Informed sources said this also is reducing activity.

The sources said the Air Force has been flying from 100 to 300 sorties a day in Laos, a sortie being one flight by one plane. The rate goes down during the monsoon season and increases sharply during the dry season, which is on now.

In Cambodia, U.S. bombers have been flying "considerably less than 50 sorties a day in recent weeks," one source said.

CLOBBER TRAIL

The U.S. Strategic Air Command's B52 bombers flew heavy strikes today against the Ho Chi Minh Trail in eastern Laos for the seventh consecutive day. About 30 of the big jets dropped some 900 tons of bombs on trails and transfer points in the continuing campaign to hamper the movement of North Vietnamese war materials toward Cambodia and South Vietnam.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported the fourth ground clash in 48 hours between government troops and North Vietnamese forces a p p a r e n t l y trying to move back into their former camps along the Cambodian border.

NO INDICATIONS

There also was an indication that the North Vietnamese may be getting war material into South Vietnam from Cambodia again after the disruption of the traffic by the U.S. and South Vietnamese operations in Cambodia last spring.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division uncovered a ton and a half of munitions "in excellent condition" in War Zone D 57 miles northeast of Saigon, and a U.S. spokesman said the stockpile had been there only a week.

In Cambodia, the lull in Communist attacks continued for the fourth day, but government forces made no attempt to take the initiative and recover lost territory.

46 YANKS DIE

The U.S. Command's weekly casualty summary reported that 46 Americans were killed in action last week, an increase of eight over the previous week.

Will Regulate Building Permits

HOUSTON (AP) — The City Council passed the first reading of an ordinance Wednesday that would regulate the issuance of building permits for all new construction.

City Atty. William Olson said the ordinance, originally proposed to regulate federally subsidized housing projects, would be held unconstitutional if applied on a discriminatory basis.

The ordinance provides for consideration of the availability of sanitary sewers and sewage treatment facilities, water and drainage, adequacy of streets and traffic load, fire fighting facilities and air and water pollution standards.

Range Confab Set In Abilene

ABILENE — "New Concepts in Range Management" will be the theme of a range management conference scheduled Oct. 30, at Abilene Christian College.

Speakers from College Station, Lubbock, Abilene, Vernon and Las Cruces, N.M., will be featured during the one-day program, according to Dr. F. M. Churchill, ACC professor of agriculture and conference program director.

ACC and Texas Tech host the conference on a rotating schedule.

Crash Kills MP

WEATHERFORD, Tex. (AP) — Stephen R. Harp, 21, a military policeman for Ft. Wolters at nearby Mineral Wells, was killed and three other persons were injured Wednesday night in a car-tractor accident near here on U.S. 80.

123 Confirmed Cases Of Disease

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Officials say about eight patients are now hospitalized in a continuing diphtheria epidemic that has risen to 123 confirmed cases for the year.

Local hospital officials said the eight are all children.

They emphasized that other diphtheria victims who have recovered from the throat infection are being checked at hospital outpatient clinics to spot any complications that may have developed.

Hospital officials released the figures, but Health Department Director Dr. William Ross declined to do so.

He said it was difficult to obtain accurate data on the number of patients hospitalized for diphtheria because there were too many variables involved. He also said it is too time consuming for his staff.

A city public information officer later said Ross told him there were "10 or less" now hospitalized for diphtheria. This does not include the outpatients, he said.

Diphtheria patients are routinely hospitalized 10 to 14 days, officials at the University of Texas Medical School here said. They said some mild cases can be treated at home on an outpatient basis.

Doctors said adults who have moderately mild cases have been hospitalized for as little as eight days.

GONNA HEAR FROM MARTHA

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell's wife says members of the Supreme Court are "gonna hear from Martha" if they rule in favor of forced busing of children to achieve racial balance in schools.

"Our great nation was built around neighborhoods," Martha Mitchell told newsmen Wednesday. "It's stupid to chase our children to the other side of town."

Mrs. Mitchell, who sometimes telephones the news media to make pungent comment on current events, said she had "several phone calls to make when the time is right."

Presbytery Meet Ends In Big Spring

Representatives from 50 Presbyterian congregations in this region closed out the annual meeting of the Southwest Presbytery here Wednesday by naming the Rev. Clement Lambert, minister of the John Knox Church in Lubbock, as moderator-elect.

They also chose Covenant Church in Midland for the mid-year meeting place Feb. 7.

The approximately 100 commissioners Wednesday morning heard Steve Landregan, a Roman Catholic layman from Dallas, speak out for the Texas Conference of Churches.

"This is a grass roots organization," he said, "organized for Texans, operated by Texans to meet Texas needs." A successor to the old Texas Council of Churches, it is not connected to the National Council of Churches or the World Council of Churches.

The presbytery gave its stamp of approval to a $280,790-benevolence budget. The division of this will be 38.5 per cent for benevolences within the presbytery, 28.5 for those in the Synod of Texas, and 33 per cent to the General Assembly.

Commissioners named to the General Assembly which meets in May, 1971, were Rev. Gordon S. Bowie, University Presbyterian Church, El Paso, the Rev. John K. Alexander, Midland Covenant Church, and the Rev. Forest K. Whitworth, associate pastor, First Church, Midland, together with elders Donald Gumm, Westminster Church in Lubbock, Clifford Sherrod, Covenant Church in Midland, and W. J. Champion, Faith Church in El Paso.

Dr. R. Gage Lloyd, who retired from the active ministry July 5 after nearly a quarter of a century as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, was presented with a certificate of appreciation by the presbytery. He was one of its organizers when it succeeded the old El Paso Presbytery, served as its moderator, and also as moderator of the Texas Synod.

Championship Race Is 'Down To The Wire'

DENVER, Colo. — With only six rodeos remaining in the 1970 season, the race for world championship titles in several events will be "right down to the wire," the Rodeo Cowboys Association said here today.

Championship titles are awarded annually to the highest money-winners in each event. The closest title race for the second straight week is in bull riding, where Gary Leffew, Santa Maria, Calif., with winnings of $18,060, leads Bob Berger, Halstead, Kan., by $1,007.

Enough prize money will be at stake in the remaining rodeos for Berger to overtake Leffew if he is lucky enough to draw top bucking bulls "and skilled enough to ride them," the Association said.

Another "second-place" man, Ronny Sewalt, Chico, Tex., could still take the lead in calf roping, Sewalt, with winnings of $19,968, trails Junior Garrison, Marlow, Okla., by $1,686. Sewalt added $208 to his account last weekend at the Little Rock, Ark., rodeo, where he set a record for the arena there by roping and tying a calf in 8.8 seconds.

The bareback bronc riding title is still in hot contention too, even though the leader, Paul Mayo, Grinnell, Iowa, added $713 to his total by placing first in the event average at the Little Rock rodeo. Mayo has won $24,248, while Gary Tucker, Carlsbad, N. M., has won $22,264.

Mayo is also in second place for the all-around championship with $31,577 in winnings. First is Larry Mahan, Brooks, Ore., with $36,886.

The 1970 contest ends officially at the conclusion of the San Francisco, Calif., rodeo, Nov. 1.

Ira Norrell, 2202 Warren, was host to the Men's Garden Club Tuesday, showing his two greenhouses. Speaking on pollution was Bill Brown, president of the Organic Garden Club.

"Pollution to everyone is a different matter," Brown said, "Cigarette smoking might be considered pollution to one person, and littering might be pollution for another." Brown included a discussion of the city's sanitation and sewage department in his talk, and plans were made to tour the facility at the next club meeting Nov. 10.

Members also planned to start a signature campaign in conjunction with the national organization's campaign to fight pollution. It was announced that the contest for the "Big Pumpkin" and "Giant Sunflower" will be judged Oct. 25.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Everytime I look up a number in the telephone directory I mark it with one of those colored felt-tipped markers that college students use to highlight certain passages in their OWN books.

In this way, if I need to find the number again, the colored mark makes it easy for me to spot the number on the page. Of course, the black print is easily readable through the color.

I prefer a yellow or orange marker, but any color could be used with equal success.

Everyone keeps special telephone numbers handy, but there are always those other numbers that are used infrequently.

This device is a great aid. I keep the marker in the drawer beside the telephone directory.

Mrs. F.K.

Well, forever more — you know even I (blind as a bat without my specs) can actually find a number that has been marked in this manner. It seems to magnify that little of number and make it really stand out on the page. Beats the daylight out of marking with a plain old pencil. You are a luv.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER
Dear Heloise:
Not long ago, there was a "Letter of Laughter" from a woman telling about a trick she used when her husband snored at night. She sprayed nice perfume over his head toward the ceiling and he would then turn over and stop snoring. Well, anyway, I tried it on my "snoring-beauty brother" — he's seven — and it worked.

But he sneezed for the rest of the night. How was I to know that he was allergic to perfume?

Michael
Nine-years-old

Dear Heloise:

I just simply can't stand to find loose hair in my vanity drawers. No matter how careful I seem to be with cleaning my brush and comb after each use they never fail to have a few stragglers left and off they come in my drawer.

I finally put a stop to this little nuisance by slipping my hair brushes and combs in a plastic bag before putting back in the drawer. This makes for a tidier drawer and certainly protects the brushes and combs.

Catherine Hileman

Dear Heloise:

If you cut a half-inch slit in your rubber spatula, on the rounded side, you can clean the beaters of your electric mixer slick as a whistle.

Charlotte Louden

Dear Heloise:

I have a helpful hint for those

Bandana Quilt

A bandanna bedspread is a perfect choice for a young cowpoke's room. Use twelve cotton bandanna scarfs to make a coverlet spread. In twenty-two inch squares, they're available in either bright red or blue. Stitch the twelve scarves together to make a coverlet big enough for a twin bed. Back the cover with cotton muslin and bind the edges with cotton bias tape. A red or blue dust ruffle will complete the decor.

who find it a wee bit difficult to climb up on a chair or stool to clean the ceiling light fixture or replace a burned-out light bulb.

The height (even though it's just a foot or so off the ground) sometimes gives you a shaky feeling. However, if you can just reach out and, even with the tip of your finger, steady yourself by touching the ceiling or the near-by wall you have it made.

I have found that my old umbrella with the crooked handle is the answer. Now, laugh if you must, but take my bedroom, for instance. When changing the light bulb there I touch the bed with my umbrella until I feel secure on the ladder or chair. Then just hook the umbrella handle in the top of my dress pocket and finish my job. When I'm through I have it handy to balance myself in getting back safely to the floor.

Aunt Grace

Dear Heloise:

I removed an empty wine bottle from its rattan holder and replaced it with a small potted plant.

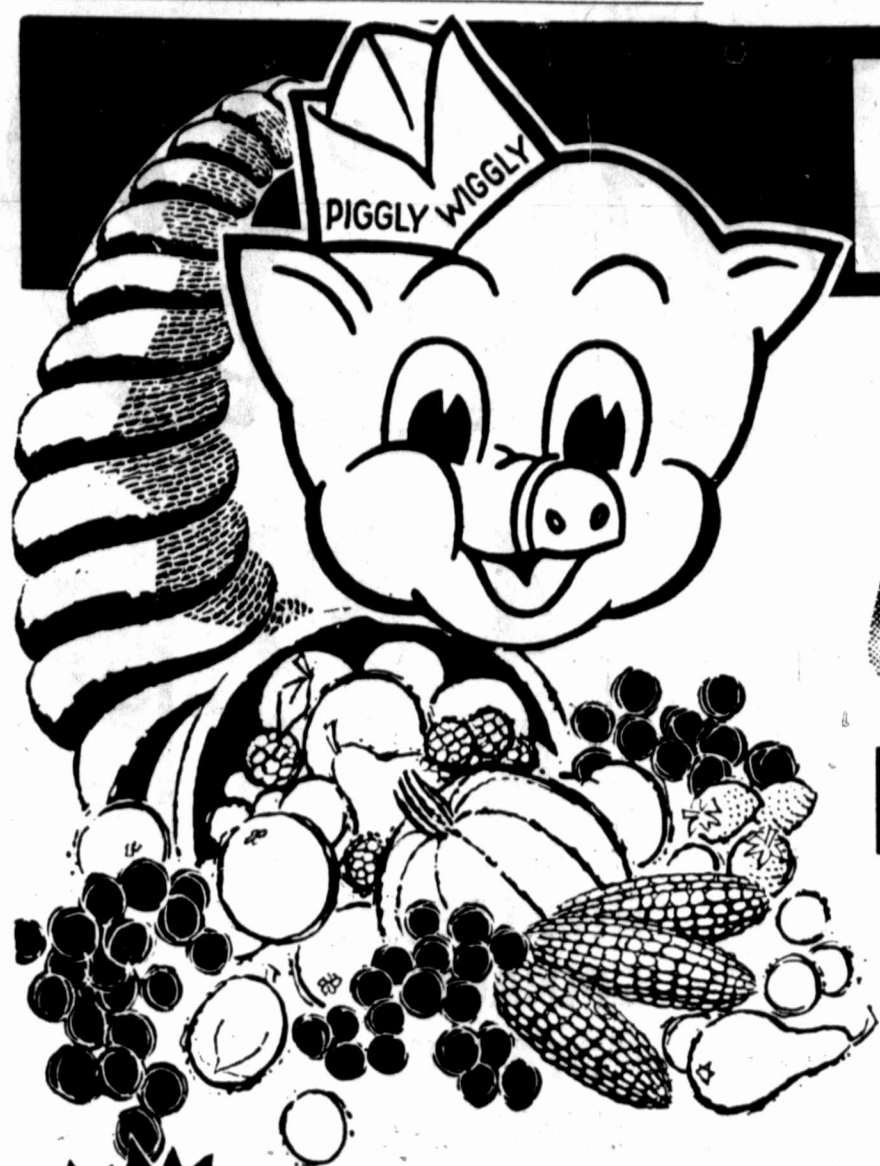

This makes a darling holder for the plant and, besides that, it keeps moisture off the table top and lets the clay pot "breathe" properly.

Mrs. Susan Feldman

Shug, that's a real whing-ding of an idea — and wouldn't it look adorable hanging on the patio? Just perfect.

Dallas' Largest Robbery Solved?

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Two men were picked up Wednesday in Las Vegas and charged with the $350,000 J. L. Williams robbery—Dallas' largest.

Arrested were Gary Marks Booth, 29, and Donald Julius Loerwal, 26, both of Dallas. The Williams robbery took place Oct. 6 when four men broke into the Williams home in a swank section of Dallas.

They tied up Williams; his wife; their 7-year-old daughter; a visiting family, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Wagner and their 13-year-old daughter; and a maid.

Most of the loot was in jewelry taken from an upstairs safe. It was found late Tuesday night, wrapped in a plastic bag and buried in a shallow hole behind an apartment house.

Officers said the loot was the greatest in Dallas history.

"We think we have recovered about 99 per cent of the missing jewelry," said Dallas County Sheriff Clarence Jones Wednesday. He said a telephone tip led to the cache.

Of the arrested men, Sheriff Jones said, "It looks like they'd gone out to Las Vegas to do a little celebrating."

Las Vegas officers said the men had $3,700 in cash when they were picked up in a Las Vegas strip hotel.

"We traced them to San Francisco and then to Las Vegas," said the Dallas sheriff. "They were having a big time celebrating with somebody's money." Booth and Loerwal will be questioned, officers said, about a robbery at the Dallas home of Jake Hamon, an oilman. The Hamons were robbed of several thousand dollars in cash and jewelry a few nights before the Williams robbery. The homes are about a mile apart.

The bandits wore ski masks in both the Hamon and Williams holdups.

The Williams and their guests were held up as they returned from a dinner party. The holdup men lurked outside the home and followed the residents and guests into the house.

Angela Held Without Bail

NEW YORK (AP) — Angela Davis, the Marxist black militant, was held without bail today for a Nov. 9 hearing on extradition to California to face kidnapping and murder charges. An attorney for Miss Davis, 26, who was arrested by the FBI at a Manhattan motel Tuesday evening, said his client would fight extradition on the charges stemming from a courthouse shootout that left four persons dead.

ANGELA DAVIS

AWAIT WARRANTS
She was arraigned first Wednesday on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution and held in lieu of $250,000 bail. Later the federal charge was dropped and she was arrested by city police on the state charges.

Sources at the U.S. attorney's office said the first arraignment was to keep Miss Davis in custody until a courier arrived from California with warrants for murder and kidnapping.

Although she could be extradited under either federal or state laws, the sources said the conventional practice was for state warrants to take precedence in such a case.

Miss Davis, a brilliant Marxist scholar and former philosophy professor at the University of California at Los Angeles, had been sought for nearly two months and was on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted list.

was David R. Poindexter Jr., 36. He was arraigned separately on charges of harboring a fugitive and held in lieu of $100,000 bail for an Oct. 20 hearing.

Miss Davis is accused of purchasing four guns used in the shootout escape attempt at the Marin County Courthouse at San Rafael, Calif., last Aug. 7.

Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley, who was taken hostage along with the prosecutor and three women jurors, was killed in the gunfight as were two convicts and the youth who invaded the courtroom with the weapons.

Snow, Rain Predicted For Northwest Texas

By The Associated Press

A snowstorm hit Dalhart and Amarillo in the Texas Panhandle today and quickly left an inch coating in the far northwest corner of the state.

Temperature at Dalhart was one degree above freezing during the night, while Amarillo reported 34 degrees.

Cold, rainy weather spread over the remainder of Northwest Texas. A few showers formed along the Edwards Plateau.

By midmorning, the Weather Bureau said, considerable light rain mixed with snow covered 60 per cent of an area from 60 miles west of Amarillo to 15 miles west-northwest of Dalhart to 30 miles south of Gage, Okla. The miserable weather was moving east at 10 miles per hour.

About the same time, the Weather Bureau hoisted small craft warning flags along the Gulf Coast for north winds of 15 to 28 knots.

Early morning readings were mostly in the low 30s behind the front, and expected to drop, while temperatures were in the 60s ahead of it.

A large high over Nebraska, the Weather Bureau said, is responsible for the cooler weather.

Sato To Seek Fourth Term

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato has announced that he will seek a fourth two-year term as president of the ruling Liberal Democratic party, which also would carry automatically another term as head of the government.

No one has run for a fourth term as party president before.

In the party election Oct. 29, Sato will be opposed by former Foreign Minister Takeo Miki, who has the backing of a small minority of members.

Sato, 69, also announced Wednesday that he would leave for New York Sunday to attend the 25th anniversary session of the U.N. General Assembly.

Well, He Knows All About Courts

COVENTRY, R.I. (AP) — A suspended Coventry policeman pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in Superior Court Tuesday.

Later in the day, his name was one of 40 drawn for Superior Court jury duty.

Roger D. Lemoine and four other former patrolmen are accused of shooting a West Warwick bartender.

Under Rhode Island law, policemen are not eligible for jury duty.

South took full advantage of an unalert defense to salvage a four spade contract that was apparently destined to fail.

West opened the queen of diamonds and the ace was played from dummy. The ace of hearts was cashed, East following suit with the eight and West with the three. A heart was continued on which East played the nine. South discarded the ten of diamonds and West was in with the jack of hearts. He exited with the jack of diamonds and declarer ruffed with the deuce of spades. He played back the king of spades and West was in again with the ace. This time he had no safe return, inasmuch as he was out of diamonds.

If West returns a spade, he loses his second trump trick. If he plays the king of hearts, it establishes dummy's heart suit for the declarer. South ruffs in his hand, cashes the queen of spades and then crosses over to the ace of clubs to discard the queen of clubs on the ten of hearts.

West actually chose to return a club in the hope that East had the queen. When the declarer turned up with that card, the contest was over. South's losses consisted of two spade tricks and one heart.

Both defenders had an opportunity to foil the declarer's efforts. When the second heart is led from dummy, if East puts up the queen—instead of following with the nine—he can prevent South from ducking the trick into West's hand. Similarly, if West drops the jack of hearts under the ace—retaining the three—he will be in position to underplay on the next round.

Observe that if East obtains the lead, a club shift by him establishes the setting trick for the defenders before the declarer can get started.

Nothing Influences Drug Usage More Than Music?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radio broadcast executives attending one of President Nixon's White House conferences on drug abuse, were told Wednesday to listen to the lyrics of some of the music their radio stations play.

Government officials said the suggestion was not an attempt at censorship of popular music but merely to make the executives aware "of what's happening in the music scene."

John Broger, director of information for U.S. armed forces, said nothing influences young people for or against drug usage more than the music they listen to.

In a sound and light show that might rival the program of a discotheque, Broger gave the executives samples of music by Rock musicians Bob Dylan, Steppenwolf, Zager & Evans and Bob Daren, accompanied by flashing slides of street scenes, shots from the Woodstock Music Festival, psychedelic posters and confrontations between youths and police.

"The average adult doesn't get the message," Broger said.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You feel completely tied down to obligations that you want to escape from, but they would be there when you get back. So carry on with your obligations, but be sure you get a pin in the neck, for what you get now you have really earned. These obligations are important to you for a long time to come.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Carry on with your obligations. Do not think of instead of trying to escape them, or you lose valuable benefits later. Once you have decided to do something, stick to it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Although what you most want right now is to get away from your obligations, but by persevering to achieve, you find that you have really earned what you are actually improving health during your time. Prepare for a happier future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The situation you are in can overcome that difficult situation. You are not alone. You can help at your work. One of whom you can help is your boss.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Making sure you are doing the right thing and fulfilling promises made. Giving the good will of those who count. Heightened fertile pressure is being put upon you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get into the office; that could prove profitable. A long haul. Persistence is necessary, though. The future should be now without fail. You may have duties that are boring during the day, or for which you are not qualified. You may not want to get them done just the same. Even if you are not, you may have to do them, and the phase passes soon.

NOVEMBER (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Waste your time trying to get a partner to work faster, but be grateful for thoroughness. Get busy on own tasks. Some time spent reading in P.M. can be very useful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Speed is definitely not the keynote today, but accuracy is very important. Some of the material from the past comes up for regular consideration. Don't let any grass grow under your feet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try not to argue with kin nor on much. Be content with what you have. Be contented matters. A show of temper may be necessary. Set your own work. Your cool. Listen politely.

LUBBOCK — An experimental spray rig for applying postemergence herbicides to narrow-row cotton has proved successful in initial tests this past season.

The apparatus was designed and built by USDA agricultural engineer Alan Brashears and weed scientist Dr. Dudley Smith, both located at the Texas

Smith. "The fingers are hinged from a bar mounted on a tractor. These fingers are 20 inches apart but the flooding-type nozzle mounted on each one sprays a 40-inch swath horizontally."

With conventional spraying equipment, cotton plants often block part of the spray and some weeds are not killed, points out Smith. Also some of the damage to the cotton plants from the tractor tires, but it really wasn't a problem, say the researchers.

RECIPES

Mrs. Bell Suggests Desserts

PECAN PIE

9-inch pie crust
3 eggs
2/3 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup melted butter
1 cup dark corn syrup
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup pecans

Place pecan halves in crust. Beat together eggs, sugar, salt, butter, syrup and vanilla. Pour over pecans and bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 45 minutes until done.

COCONUT PIE

1 cup shredded coconut
9-inch pie crust with high fluted edge
3 eggs, separated
2/3 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
2 1/2 tbsps. corn starch
1 tsp. flour
2 1/2-3 cups milk

Heat milk. Mix dry ingredients together with a little milk and pour into hot milk. Stir until thick. Beat egg yolks thoroughly and stir in a little custard, then add to hot custard. Cook custard for about a minute. Remove from heat and stir in 1/2 cup of butter, vanilla and fold in 3/4 cup of moist shredded coconut just before pouring into pastry shell. For meringue, beat egg whites adding 1/4 tsp. cream of tartar, then 2 tbsps. sugar. Spread meringue on pie filling and sprinkle top with 1/4 cup coconut. Bake in 350 degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes. Whipping cream may be used instead of meringue after pie has cooled.

RAISIN CREAM PIE

9-inch pie crust
1 cup white raisins
1 cup buttermilk
3 egg yolks
1 tsp. butter
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. flour
1 cup broken pecans

First cook white raisins in small amount water for 30 minutes and drain. Mix flour and sugar, add buttermilk, raisins and egg yolks. Cook over low heat until almost to custard stage. Add pecans and cook until thick. Remove from heat and add pinch of salt. Then add butter and vanilla. Make a meringue with 3 egg whites beaten with 3 tbsps. water. When stiff, add 6 tbsps. sugar and beat until fluffy. Pour raisin mixture into baked pie shell and top with meringue. Brown meringue in moderate oven.

OATMEAL COOKIES

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1 tsp. butter flavoring
2 well beaten eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 tsp. almond flavoring
1 1/2 cups sifted flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. soda
3 cups quick (3 min.) oats
1 cup broken pecans

Filling:
1 1/2 cups chopped dates
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup water

Cream shortening with sugar and add well beaten eggs and flavorings. Sift dry ingredients together then add oats and pecans. Divide dough in half and roll out between two pieces of wax paper to 1/4-inch thickness.

For filling combine ingredients in saucepan and cook on low heat for 3-4 minutes until thickened. Cool, then spread filling on dough and roll up like jelly roll in wax paper. Keep in refrigerator over night. Slice and bake at 350 degrees for 8-12 minutes. Make about 100 cookies.

INEXPENSIVE SPONGE CAKE

4 eggs
2 cups sugar
2 cups flour
1/2 tsp. salt
2 tbsps. flavoring
2 tbsps. butter
1 cup boiling hot milk
2 cups sifted flour
2 tbsps. baking powder

Beat eggs until very light. Beat in sugar, salt and flavoring. Then beat in 2 tbsps. butter which has been melted in boiling hot milk. Sift together and mix flour and baking powder. Mix dry ingredients with mixture very quickly and pour into prepared 9-by-13-inch pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for about 30 minutes until done. Serve topped with fresh fruit and whipped cream.

Bake Exotic Cake

Tropical flavor is the new taste for chiffon cake. Prepare your favorite chiffon cake recipe but omit the vanilla and use canned pineapple juice in place of water. Light, lovely and luscious.

Rosy-Hued Appeal

Some cooks like to add paprika to mayonnaise to give the dressing a rosy hue. You can use this paprika treatment with both homemade and bought mayonnaise.

POURING A CUP of coffee to go with a freshly baked three-layer banana cake is Mrs. Cecil B. Bell, 302 W. 9th.

Cafe Customers Still Miss 'Best Pie-Maker In Town'

By MARILYN NEVELS

Ever consider baking 50 pies in one day? Mrs. C. B. Bell has done it during the holidays when she and her husband owned the Corral Cafe at the corner of Gregg and Ninth. Mrs. Bell would get up early, start making the pies plus several cakes to fill Christmas orders, and baking six at a time, would have them boxed and ready to go at the end of the day.

It was a lot of work, Mrs. Bell admits, but she never tires of baking. She and her husband were in the business for 20 years, and after less than two years of retirement, Mrs. Bell wishes she could find a part-time cooking job. She still bakes pies for former cafe customers who believe Mrs. Bell's pies can't be beat.

Cooking for herself and her husband has been a big change for Mrs. Bell. She used to bake eight or ten pies fresh every morning for Corral customers.

"It was like having a big family," recalls Mrs. Bell. "We had lots of regular customers who came out and ate with us. But the smaller places have to give in to the larger restaurants."

"After being in business so long, we miss seeing the people," said Mrs. Bell, who began pie-making at the age of 15, back in Springfield, Ill. She lived on a farm where her father raised Jersey cows.

"We had everything we needed on the farm except sugar and flour. We had the best butter, and we made buttermilk and cottage cheese. It was churned in a crock churn or a barrel churn. Every week my mother would take 35 to 40 pounds of butter to town to sell. We would print a pound at a time in wood molds. It was a lot of work, but we didn't mind. We did lots of baking at thrashing time, and I used to like to haul water for the workers with my pony."

Mrs. Bell was born in Texas, but moved to Illinois when very young. She returned to Texas in 1935. With many years of cooking experience, Mrs. Bell doesn't measure anything except the flour, when making pie crusts. She knows most of her recipes by memory and can tell if the dough is just right by how it feels.

When she'd make a mistake, such as leaving the baking powder out of a batch of corn bread, Mrs. Bell simply turned the corn bread into stuffing for chicken or turkey.

"In 1953, when we opened the Corral Cafe, people would be waiting in line to eat there,

They said we had the best home-style cooking in town. Working people like old-fashioned, good substantial food. Years ago, a large fancy atmosphere made no difference, because everyone knew each other. We knew most of our customers as friends. Now everything has grown, people are mostly interested in fast service."

Southern fried chicken, Irish stew, chili, chicken cacciatore, roast beef and baked ham were usual fare at the Corral. The Bell's Sunday dinner favorites are baked chicken or chicken and dumplings complemented with mashed potatoes and gravy, green beans, tossed salad and peach pie topped with whipped cream. Chocolate or butterscotch pies are favorites too.

MIRACLE AGITATORS, INFRARED WHOOZITS AND EIGHT-SPEED DINGBATS

Yet Adage Prevails: 'A Woman's Work Is Never Done'

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For all the push buttons, miracle agitators, infrared whoozits and eight-speed dingbats, America's appliance makers have yet to outmode that old, old adage: "A woman's work is never done."

Labor saving often turns out to be only saving time to work on the next kitchen machine—or to call the repair man. And the kitchens of the future, although they may be far out, are still going to need a housewife at the controls. Sometimes.

There is Ruth Sutherland who has one of the first household computers in Pittsburgh, Pa., and, indeed, on the planet.

"It's a lot of trouble to program the computer. And you have to be aware of its limitations," says Mrs. Sutherland, mother of three. "The computer is not at the point where it really saves me any time."

One recently published survey showed that for all the imaginative and useful appliances plugged into the home in the past 40 years, the American woman spends as much time, if not more, now as she did then.

In a 1967 study of 1,296 women in the Syracuse, N.Y., area, Dr. Kathryn Walker's figures show that the amount of time a woman devotes to her house, shopping, care of the children and the like actually has increased 30 minutes a day since 1927.

The housewife does less physically exhausting labor, says Dr. Walker, an associate professor at the College of Human Ecology at Cornell University. "But all we've done is change the type of activities we're involved in."

The Survey Research Center at Ann Arbor, Mich., interviewed women in 44 American cities in 1965 and found they spent close to seven hours for cooking, cleaning, other home chores and child care.

Meanwhile, research and marketing departments of the nation's major appliance manufacturers, determined to lighten the work load of American housewives, are cranking up for new escalation in the appliance war.

Yet there doesn't seem any assurance that the home computer, or garbage shredder, or ultrasonic dishwasher or dial-a-steak—medium rare—appliances in the works will indeed free women from the home.

The Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers says there's every indication that Americans will buy more and more new products for the home.

But questions are being raised as to the practicality of some of the innovations being dreamed up by designers and manufacturers.

A home dry cleaner in the works for several companies sounds great until the housewife finds out that she has to be there on the spot to remove clothes instantly once the process is finished, to prevent wrinkling.

A garbage shredder, it is said, will crunch, rip, and compress the family garbage, including bottles and cans, into neat little packets you would only have to carry out once a week. But, given current waste production figures in America, with the average person accumulating more than four pounds of waste a day, someone would have to cart out a family of four's 125-pound bag when he does empty the garbage. The price: about $235.

Microwave ovens can't be used for the aluminum packaged instant dinners and the food industry will have to adjust their preparations to fit the oven. Or will Americans have to alter their tastes to use their machines?

An ultrasonic dishwasher, still in early stages of development, will definitely get the prongs of a fork cleaner, but it won't do it any quicker than a regular dishwashing machine.

Many of these new products already are being tested and used in large institutions, while engineers fight the technical problems and manufacturers the economic feasibility to adapt them for home use.

James Sutherland, a computer designer for Westinghouse Electrical Corp. in Pittsburgh, used spare parts and spare time to put one in his home. It has a memory system, programmer's console, and a remote station keyboard in the kitchen.

At present, the computer's vast and complicated circuitry is called upon only to act as a typewriter and duplicating machine. Mrs. Sutherland hopes in the future, with new, complex programming, the machine will straighten shopping lists, analyze menus, store recipes with automatic printout, control the family stereo and garage door.

Given the cost, the question is raised as to just how much is it worth to junk the household adding machine, recipe boxes, the grocery list on the kitchen wall and save a few dozen steps to turn down the stereo or raise the garage door.

"What I really want is the white tornado," says Mrs. Sutherland wryly. "Someone who will go through the house and pick up all the family clutter. I went to a seminar on robots for the home. But I just don't see how, mechanically, it can ever be done."

Husband James' home computer may be the only one in use, but it is not the only one around. Honeywell Industries of Framingham, Mass., produced one that is supposed to plan menus, balance checkbooks, and figure out weekly budgets and such chores.

Stocked by Neiman Marcus of Dallas, the luxury department store which often features and sells huge price tag novelties, none of the $10,600 minicomputers—"For the woman who has everything..."—has sold, even though the included two-week course at Framingham on how to use the computer.

"We didn't really expect to sell any," said a Honeywell spokesman. "What's more likely to catch on in the future is a small terminal in the home that will communicate with larger computers elsewhere. Up-to-the-minute news reports, grocery prices, and sports results will be flashed on a visual display screen."

Though the home computer seems to be a remote possibility for the average consumer, there is no end to the cornucopia of space age appliances to meet America's demands for the new and unconventional.

American Telephone and Telegraph hopes to permit housewives to dial their home phones with special codes and turn on the roast already on a stove that can be made into a freezer to "hold" the meat until the first time for cooking.

There are no firm cost figures on such a system, or even a production date.

Other futuristic ideas include small washer-driers for the bedroom—to save a trip to the laundry room with small wash loads —and portable or multiple refrigerators so husband will not have to stir from his TV football game even during commercials.

There'll be small cooking units distributed throughout the home, along with cookware with built-in heating units so that every room might well become a mini-kitchen.

Home designers envision a modular approach to kitchen design. No longer will the kitchen have to look the same year after year. There'll be a series of free-standing appliances and multipurpose modules placed on pedestals equipped to receive electrical and plumbing fittings that can be arranged around the room. Such appliances also could move from house to house for mobile Americans.

All these products—and more—are billed to save time and work for the homemaker. Some are here today, and might be gone tomorrow, like the electric can opener doomed to obsolescence by easy-open cans.

While 95 per cent of appliance buying homemakers rate the industry good or excellent in the styling and appearance of its products, according to a January, 1969, survey in the trade magazine Appliance Manufacturer, they still complain about washers that overflow, freezers that don't freeze, and complicated instruction manuals.

And there is sufficient discontent among consumers that a residential task force under President Johnson generated a 217-page report on appliance warranties and service, calling for the improvement of durability of products and improved communications with consumers.

One survey states that the average couple starts married life with 23 appliances and the figure goes up to 42 for the family with two children. With such items as special bacon cookers, infrared ovens, electric knives and the like, the chances of service calls on one of these products grows yearly.

One spokesman for the appliance industry said, "There's no question that appliances have become more complex. But if there is a feeling among consumers that there are more repairs being done, it's just because there's been an increase in appliances being used."

More and more appliances. Where will it all end? Since the first woman began tying clumps of straw together to sweep out her but thousands of years ago, the idea has been that each new generation of labor-saving devices would free her more to get out of the home. But homes get bigger, appetites more sophisticated, money more available, and dirt, the original pollution, dirtier.

CALLING ALL HOME MAKERS
By Ted Hatfield
ONE DEFECT WHICH MANY HOMEMAKERS OVERLOOK

We have often seen homes which are furnished attractively enough, but have one serious defect: The furniture does not fit. That is, it doesn't fit the room or the people who use it most.

In your living room, is your cocktail table so large that it is difficult to get to use your sofa?

Are there enough passage areas in the right places in your rooms. Are the pieces the right sizes for your rooms?

Are your sofas and chairs so low or deep that you have trouble getting up, or are they so high that your feet dangle from them?

The way to avoid this is to "Try it before you buy it."

Do you realize most people spend more time in bed than on any other one piece of furniture so it is obviously important to get the right size and comfort in bedding. Every bedding manufacturer makes mattresses with several degrees of firmness which are available in regular or extra length, queen or king size for extra width in innerspring or foam rubber.

It's hard to believe that some people will buy a sofa or chair or bedding without trying to see if it really fits, or if it is actually comfortable to them — but surprisingly this does happen in some places.

So, before you buy, make certain that your furniture fits you, your family and your room; and we take extra care to help you make sure it does.

A Devotion For Today . . .

The heaven declare the glory of God; and) the firmament showeth his handiwork. (Psalm 106:1, RSV)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, teach us to see Thy handiwork, not only in the infinite vault above us, but in the least grain of sand beneath our feet. We beseech Thee in the name of Christ our Lord. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Highest Priority On This

Violent demonstrations and riots are disturbing and impose a sense of foreboding upon the public consciousness. While distracting and deplorable, they are things which society feels it can cope with within the framework of civil authority.

Far more despicable and wholly intolerable are two new types of attack perpetrated by extremists. These are kidnapping and bombing. No mass hysteria is involved here, but pure, coldly calculated acts of violence and force.

Back in the Depression and post-prohibition racketeer days, kidnapping flourished momentarily, but an aroused nation threw its weight behind law enforcement in this field, both state and federal. By assuming that any kidnapped person missing over a certain length of time was presumed to have been transported over a state line, the FBI was brought quickly into the picture.

Slowly, but methodically, case after case was cracked and the kidnappers brought to stern justice. The uncivilized practice dwindled almost to the vanishing point. In our own country, it has not been resurrected to any degree, but in others — even in neighboring Canada — it has become a political weapon. Hence, we need to be on the alert.

More nefarious than this, however, is the despicable and cowardly practice of bombing. It is a form of indiscriminate murder and maiming.

Tracing its perpetrators may be difficult, but probably not impossible. Therefore, whatever energies and resources are required, whatever strengthening of the statutes in addition to the recent crime bill, are needed this country must see to it that this cancer is attacked and cut out.

Cleaning Up Our Property

Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel continues to confound his earlier critics by his strong stands in favor of conservation and environmental improvement. The rugged free-enterpriser has become one of the most effective voices in the campaign to restore the beauty of the country side.

His latest move is to propose that all billboards and "similar commercial displays" be barred from federal lands in 11 Western states and Alaska unless the advertising "is on or within 50 feet of the business advertised." In one swoop he proposes to eliminate about 7,000 signs on federal property, along 11,000 miles of interstate, primary and secondary highways across public lands.

"These lands belong to all Americans," Hickel said. "Creeping ugliness is a blight which we must combat."

Here is an area in which the government can become completely effective, unhampered by the difficulties it has encountered in trying a blanket ban or billboards on interstate highway systems. This is our property. It can be kept clean of disfiguring signs. Hickel intends to do so. The heartfelt thanks of millions of Americans will be his accolade.

Administration Still Hopes For Talks

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird are not accepting as final the Moscow news reports that the Soviet Union has rejected President Nixon's latest peace plan for Indo-China. Instead, they characterize what the Soviet news papers are saying as "propaganda," and make the argument that the Moscow government will in due time see the merits of the proposals and come around to the idea of supporting them.

SECRETARY ROGERS says that what had been published in "Pravda," the official Soviet newspaper, is the "standard Communist propaganda," and that he doesn't think it "reflects the views of the government fully." He adds:

"I have a feeling that the Soviet Union and Hanoi will both give very careful consideration to the President's proposals because of the tremendous support that the proposals have received not only in this country but all over the world."

THE FOREGOING comments, which were also supported by Secretary Laird, were made in a television interview on Sunday on the American Broadcasting Company's "Issues and Answers."

Then on Monday, in a news conference, Secretary Laird went even further in seeking to remove any possible misunderstandings with the Soviet Union. With respect to the building of a Russian submarine base in Cuba, he declared "there is no evidence at this time" that the harbor at Cienfuegos, Cuba, has been used by Soviet missile-carrying subs."

THE TRANSCRIPT of the television interview reveals significant phrases in Secretary Laird's size-up of the Cuban submarine base hazard by the Soviets as follows:

"I am seriously concerned about the developments in this hemisphere, not only in Cuba, but in Chile as well, and I do think it is most important that we watch these developments."

"WE HAVE no evidence that a Soviet submarine has used the Cuban base, but the threat is still there, however. It would increase the size of the threat, however, so it is a little different than the situation was in 1962 because you had a third country involved when you put land-based missiles within Cuba."

This is the first official intimation about the possibility of a Soviet base not merely in Cuba but in Chile, which has just elected as president a man who is dedicated to the Communist philosophy.

It is not unusual for rival powers to test each other by basing their warships or missiles not far away from the other, and the Russian effort in 1962 to build missile bases in Cuba resulted in a crisis between the American and Soviet governments. Certainly the United States will view with concern the establishing of naval or missile bases anywhere in this hemisphere by a European power.

THE WHOLE purpose, of course, of the talks scheduled with Russia on the limitation of armaments is to deal with subjects like this. It may be that the Russians will add topics to the agenda, and some day there will be insisting that the American fleet in the Mediterranean be withdrawn or at least reduced in size.

The mere fact that the government in Washington doesn't take too seriously the adverse comments of the Moscow newspapers about the Nixon plan for a cease-fire in Indo-China is an indication that there still is a glimmer of hope that the United States and the Soviet Union may sit down together to work out some peace arrangement in Southeast Asia.

Miniskirt Cuts Efficiency

NEW YORK (AP) — Analysts of worker efficiency, who once directed their efforts almost solely to production line or blue collar workers, are more and more applying their mathematical calipers to office personnel. The office, they say, has long been known as an area of concentrated inefficiency, but precise measurements were difficult to develop. Improvements in techniques now makes analysis more practical.

There's more to the trend than the development of techniques, however. At least two other major changes are involved: —The economic downturn, which made it clear to many firms that waste had to be eliminated. The boom of the 1960s had permitted poor work methods to develop that couldn't be tolerated as business turned down.

—The growing trend toward a service rather than production-oriented economy, which makes office procedures assume greater importance. Wall Street, for example, was almost destroyed by a blizzard of paper.

The so-called methods-time management specialists say they hope to improve office efficiency not by reducing workers to machines and then speeding them up, as sometimes has been charged in the past.

Their aim, they explain, is simply to make work more enjoyable, productive and rewarding, often through the development of incentives. Motivation plays a big role in their business.

At Aetna Life & Casualty, which classifies as a paperwork factory, the productivity systems department claims an annual saving of more than $7.5 million, largely through the use of wage incentives.

There does seem to be something foreboding, however, in the assessment of some other MTM specialists now attending the annual MTM conference here. Says Robert E. Nolan, chairman of the conference planning committee and an executive with a management consultant firm:

"The country club atmosphere and laissez-faire attitude that has prevailed in too many offices for too long will be just as obsolete as the manual typewriter and the hand-cranked adding machine in a few years."

Of 23 formal presentations at the conference, fully a third are on office procedures and only two on factory matters, an abrupt departure from earlier meetings, which began 18 years ago.

One presentation, produced more in jest than seriously, serves nevertheless to demonstrate some of MTM's methods. It analyzes the activities of girl-watchers and concludes that the miniskirt is detrimental to office efficiency.

A Man Might Decide To . . .

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbstone comments of a Pavement

Plato: Some social scientists worry over whether man may destroy himself not by the hydrogen bomb but by too much leisure.

They estimate that the productive needs of civilization may be met by the end of this century by a work week of 20 hours or less. What will man then do with more spare time on his hands than he has had in any previous period of his history?

For some reason many intellectuals believe that they alone know how to use leisure time wisely. They feel that the average man, if he is allowed to lift his nose from the grindstone ever so slightly, will spend that extra time debauching in a saloon, fighting his neighbor, or beating his wife.

This viewpoint, of course, reflects an arrogant class snobbery a democracy should outgrow. Given more leisure, it is the intellectual, not the common man, who is more likely to use it to create chaos and stir revolutionary violence.

Your ordinary fellow is more likely to add to his education, moonlight on another job in order to buy a better house or a place in the country where he can grow a bigger tomato or a fine rose.

For example, now that financial credit for any purpose is so easily obtainable, if work weeks were made shorter or vacations longer, a man might decide to—

Raise penguins in his basement.

Invent a telephone system that works.

Sail on on a raft to Tahiti.

Write more advisory letters to his congressman.

Travel more widely and build the largest collection of stolen hotel soap in his neighborhood.

Stagger Wall Street by becoming the first investor in modern times to corner the market in sarsaparilla.

Found an insurance company that will protect playboy husbands against exorbitant alimony awards.

Patent a machine that will shoot arrows into the tires of any car parked in the wrong parking place.

Come up with a beer can made of some kind of material which will evaporate when thrown on a public highway.

These are but a few of scores of ways in which a man might use more leisure profitably. It is only by having extra time to make a better world that mankind will ever get the job done.

Around The Rim

When In Doubt, Lean On It

There's one thing to be said for automation — it's confusing.

For instance, look at the self-service machines in the post office. I may never mail another letter in my life.

I GET ALONG okay with the small-change stamp machines. After all, coin-operated machinery has been around long enough for me to get the hang of using it. I can make a phone call, buy a soft drink, even wash and dry my clothes, and everything runs smoothly.

But these new-fangled things one can put dollar bills into are the limit.

I VISITED the post office the other afternoon to buy some stamps. I noticed a gentleman in the lobby swearing under his breath and hitting and kicking the machine.

"I've used this machine before, but I think they changed the rules. It doesn't work the same now," he said when he noticed I was watching him.

I'm always curious about these big metal objects on which lights flash and gears clatter and little signs light up to tell you what you have done wrong, so I wandered over in his general vicinity.

I MEANT TO JUST watch, as a casual, innocent bystander, but it wasn't long, since he was going down in defeat, until he had me involved in his one-man battle against the machine. Feeling like a cavalry commander charging in to rescue Custer, I stepped forward and immediately became absorbed in the campaign.

We carefully read the instructions. "Insert dollar bill." It took us a few minutes to determine if the one slot on the machine (surrounded with arrows and notes which read "dollar bill goes here," "put dollar bill here" etc.) was the right one.

FINALLY CONVINCED, we eased the bill into the slot. The machine made a whirring noise and the dollar bill disappeared. We waited a minute, but nothing happened. We put our eyes up to the slot and looked in. The machine took this exact moment to throw the dollar bill back at us. And believe me, that machine rejects money a lot faster than it takes it.

After the dollar bill came to rest, completely across the lobby from the machine, we tried putting it in again. The same thing happened.

THEN WE READ step two of the instructions. "Push button for selection." We carefully inserted the bill again and then quickly jabbed the button. The dollar bill came shooting back out across the lobby.

I chased the dollar down and came back. The man was leaning dejectedly against the machine. Determined not to be beaten by a machine, I once again thrust the dollar into the slot. This time the machine made a different, contented sort of sound, and the dollar bill was gone forever.

I LOOKED AT the man, he looked for his envelope. There they were. Then he looked at his hand, he was still pressing the selector button.

I can't take credit for the moral of this story, he came up with it. "If it doesn't work the first time, lean on it," he said.

Postmaster Hardesty, have you got those machines licensed with the gaming commission?

Time For Europe To Do Its Part

WASHINGTON — I am amused but not impressed by those moist statements issued by diplomatic representatives of our NATO allies that a substantial withdrawal of American troops from Europe would be a psychological disaster. So hire a head shrinker, kids.

WHAT IS IMPRESSIVE is that they have counted noses in Congress and a vast majority has been found that will vote to withdraw at least two of the five and one-third U.S. divisions next summer. I now trust that Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., will stand firm in their demand that we stop spending $14 billion a year to finance the defense of a prosperous Europe.

THE MILD-MANNERED Mansfield's latest utterance on the subject is encouraging. In effect, he has fired an ultimatum at Europe's elegant confidence-men-in-striped-pants. Commenting on the report that our NATO pals might put up a pumy $300 million to help pay the cost of keeping U.S. troops on their soils, Mansfield warned that either they "radically up the ante" at the next NATO meeting in November "or the U.S. Congress will solve the financial problem in the fiscal 1972 budget of the Department of Defense next year."

MANSFIELD is reminding our allies that Congress is the ultimate boss by virtue of controlling the purse-strings. No dough, no troops.

So far, President Nixon has tried to fight off a Mansfield resolution, supported by a Senate majority, for a substantial reduction in U.S. troops in Europe. But Mansfield and Co. are talking a language the bookboots understand, especially in this year of the mini recession, high taxes and high unemployment.

Plain folks in Indiana, Pennsylvania and Alabama may not qualify as fiscal experts but they know it's their $14 billion that makes it possible for the administration to keep 300,000 troops, 200,000 dependents and 8,000 civilian employees in Europe, 25 years after the end of World War II. They know Europe is prosperous and self-indulgent, and they can understand the irony inherent in the statistic that the U.S. spends 9 per cent of its gross national product on defense, compared to Europe's measly 4 per cent.

AS USUAL, certain State Department types are wringing their hands over demands for a troop reduction.

This is arrant pish-posh, not to say adolescent twaddle. Mansfield's resolution specifically states that a troop reduction could be made "without adversely affecting either our resolve or ability to meet our commitment under the North Atlantic Treaty." But Mansfield suggests politely — Mike is always the gentleman — that without continuing to rely on 200 million Americans, the 280 million people of Europe should be able to defend themselves against 235 million Russians. After all, the Russians also have to worry about 850 million Chinese in their backyard.

The Commission On Rhetoric

WASHINGTON — The Commission on Obscenity and Pornography has just released its controversial report on the effects of pornography on the American people, particularly children. While this commission was getting all the publicity, another commission was studying the effects of political rhetoric and invective on Americans. The conclusions of this latter commission may have a much more lasting impact on the country.

THE COMMISSION on Political Rhetoric and Invective studied speeches by many candidates, but made the most use of those given by Vice President Spiro Agnew. In a footnote on the first page, the commission said it was not picking on Mr. Agnew, but since most people had been exposed to Agnew's rhetoric, it was easier to study reactions to his words than a politician running for a minor office.

Here are some of the findings of the study:

Most people were not permanently affected by exposure to one of the Vice President's speeches, though many are titillated by him. Only a small minority admitted to having any lascivious thoughts after reading one.

THE MAJORITY of Americans interviewed said they believed that adult people should be allowed to hear Agnew's speeches if they wished to. But many of those interviewed said they didn't believe the speeches should be made available to children.

The commission revealed that, surprisingly, those interested in what Agnew has to say are not just people looking for cheap thrills. Many come from fine middle-class homes and are considered by their neighbors to be pillars of the community.

THERE IS A double standard in this country toward Agnew's talks.

Many people who criticize Agnew publicly commit political invective in their own bedrooms when the shades are drawn.

The commission hired participants for a laboratory experiment. It put couples in rooms and showed TV films of Agnew speeches. In almost all cases the couples denied the speeches had excited them. And while some admitted to becoming highly agitated by hearing words they had never heard before, most respondents claimed they had forgotten what he had said in an hour.

"WE FOUND," the report continued, "that Agnew's bite is worse than his bark. The permissiveness of his political rhetoric, while condoned by this commission, does not merit any censoring at this time. There is no evidence that anyone has committed a crime after listening to one of the Vice President's speeches. Indeed, the opposite has proved true. Those thinking of committing a crime have lost interest after hearing him talk."

"Therefore, Agnew is a safety valve for those who harbor antisocial fantasies."

The commission refused to judge the taste of Agnew's speeches because it had nothing to measure them against.

THE COMMISSION'S report was not unanimous. A minority report, written by the law firm of O'Brien, Bayh, Kennedy, Muskie & Goodell, denounced the report as a declaration of moral bankruptcy in the country. The dissent said, "Our children are being exposed to more and more Agnew every day. Unless it is curtailed, we're going to have some very emotionally disturbed people on our hands. Anyone who supports Agnewography in this country is sick, sick, sick."

Growth Of Facial Hair After Age 40

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do women tend to get more facial hair after 40 or does it only show more because our skin is losing its elasticity?

Does it have anything to do with menopause? Will using a hormone cream stimulate it? I would like to know what to do to prevent it from happening to me. — Mrs. S. J.

A common question, and important to women. Yes, in middle life women tend to have more facial hair, but let's say after 50 rather than 40, due to changes in hormone balance which occur with menopause.

There are other factors, however. Heredity is important — women of southern European ancestry often will have rather heavy dark hair on the extremities and face without there being any hormonal imbalance. For them, it is merely natural.

As to the menopause, the female hormone recedes, and the male hormone, androgen, which women also produce in small amounts, becomes relatively more important. (Keep in mind that all people, male and female, produce both male and female hormones, but one is more dominant, depending on sex.)

Thus as the male hormone gains, comparatively, growth of facial hair may become more noticeable.

Can you prevent it? No. The use of estrogen, or female hormones, as is frequently done now and after menopause, may have some modest effect but is not a practical or wise method of trying to prevent such hair growth entirely.

And since post-menopausal hair growth does not affect all women, it might be best to wait and see.

The usual methods of hair removal normally can take care of the problem adequately if it develops. Removal by shaving is practical since shaving, contrary to popular notion, does not coarsen the hair or stimulate its growth.

Depilatory creams are practical, too, subject to the question of whether an individual's skin is irritated by them. Some use a pumice stone or very fine sandpaper.

Electrolysis is the only method of permanent removal, with the reservation that sometimes a hair root survives and has to be treated a second time. This should be done by a qualified registered electrologist.

Finally, simple bleaching very often can make facial hairs often less conspicuous so you can forget about them.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is nevertheless vital to human life. For this reason, Dr. Thosteson has entitled his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly." For a copy write to him in care of The Herald, enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Three Testify At Tyler School Bus Bomb Trial

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — An accused school bus bomber was linked by federal court testimony here Wednesday to the John Birch Society and as leader of a group that feared "the coming Negro revolution" and gathered weapons "for defense of families and homes."

Both Fred Loyd Hayes, 43, caterer from Longview, Tex., and his co-defendant, salesman-employee, Kenneth McMaster, 42, were named by government witnesses.

'COOL' PAIR

The pair are charged in a two-count indictment that alleges they blasted 35 or 36 school buses on July 4 in an effort to deny Negro school children their civil rights. The second count says they attempted to obstruct a federal court order to integrate the city schools.

They sat unblinking Wednesday as a young, burly produce salesman told of buying three batches of dynamite, totalling 250 pounds, and other explosives he said he delivered to Hayes' Land-O-Pines Catering Service.

The pair was apparently impassive as the Navy veteran of island guerrilla warfare in World War II related in U.S. Dist. Judge William Wayne Justice's federal court how he taught Hayes' group guerrilla tactics and conferred with them on weapons and measures to meet what he called the "coming Negro revolution."

JOHN BIRCH LINK

They also sat apparently unmoved by testimony of a former chemical plant worker who said he met them at a John Birch Society gathering and subsequently was told of an organization called the "Raiders," a group the nervous witness said was "anticommunist and pretty well dedicated to survival in the coming revolution."

"I asked to join them," said 43-year-old Robert Sparks Jr., Sparks testified he was sworn into the "Raiders" by a man named Mullins, not otherwise identified in testimony.

He said he took a pledge of allegiance with the group that included a promise of death to traitors.

As he understood it, Sparks testified, a "Raider" member would shoot and kill any other member who proved to be a Communist who had infiltrated the group.

DEFEND HOMES

Hayes, he testified, was the "spokesman." He told the court he met at the garage and shop of Hayes' catering service with other members and that they discussed tactics and weapons with which "to defend our homes and families when the shooting starts."

The graying witness testified he helped distribute a manual, "American Might," which he said was mostly authored by Hayes and which testimony revealed advocated the "purging" of Negro leaders in the United States.

Harvey Lee Shipman, 47, the Navy veteran of World War II, testified that he printed the manual in a print shop he operated as a side line to his regular job as an Eastman Kodak employee in Longview.

Shipman testified he attended from "three to five" meetings with the Hayes group and advised them they should use the tactics of Negro militant Stokely Carmichael and "improve on them."

WALLACE BACKERS

The balding veteran said he met Hayes while the defendant was finance chairman in Longview in 1968 for George Wallace's American Party. He said he printed bumper stickers, pamphlets and other material for Wallace's presidential campaign.

Shipman told the court that Hayes once asked him about a "firing device" that was to be rigged to explode a shotgun shell into any person who sat down in an automobile seat.

"I told them it wouldn't work," Shipman testified. He said he demonstrated to the group that the device was unreliable and would not explode as planned.

Shipman also belittled in court a mortar which Sparks said Hayes made in his rather elaborate shop. "I told them I didn't want to be around when it was tried out," Shipman testified.

Sparks explained to the all white, seven-woman, five-man jury, the weapons hauled into the court room by FBI agents and federal marshals.

He told them he developed a shotgun-powered launching device for Molotov cocktails. It would throw a burning bottle of gasoline 100 to 110 yards, he said.

NO LAW THEN

He demonstrated to the jury how Hayes' homemade mortar would work. He pointed to three or four handmade grenades, one made from a soft drink can and another from a plastic refrigerator bag.

All of the weapons, Sparks testified, had been in Hayes' garage. U. S. Atty. J. W. Vanderhoff asked the witness if he had ever reported any of the illegal weapons to Longview police.

"None of it was to be used until this open revolution," Sparks replied. "Then it was to be used in the defense of our families and homes — and there wouldn't be any law then."

Earlier in the day, Longview produce salesman James Woodall testified that he bought 250 pounds of dynamite for Hayes from a Shreveport, La., power magazine.

Woodall said he delivered two batches of explosives at Hayes' catering service last March. Hayes picked up a third batch in May, he testified, when Woodall's auto broke down at his mother-in-law's home.

Barry Hayes of Longview, son of the defendant, testified that he saw a case of dynamite on a shelf in his mother's garage late in 1969.

STANDS BEHIND THE FLAG — Patrolman John Hampel of Chester, Pa., clutches an American flag yesterday as he participated with hundreds of policemen from around the country in a demonstration on the Capitol steps seeking stiffer penalties for attacks on law officers.

'There's A War Going On In This Country'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leader of a demonstration by policemen "to show the country we are fed up" has criticized the Justice Department, the news media and moderate Negro leaders as well as militant groups he said are waging guerrilla warfare against police.

"There's a war going on in this country," John J. Harrington, national president of the Fraternal Order of Police, told some 3,500 policemen at a rally Wednesday on the steps of the Capitol.

THIN LINE

"The thin line between civilization and the jungle—which is us policemen—is being shot to hell and something has to be done about it," he said.

The demonstration was organized by the Fraternal Order of Police, which claims membership of some 12,000 of the nation's 325,000 law enforcement officers.

Harrington accused the Nixon administration, in testimony before a House subcommittee prior to the rally, of failing to respond to escalating violence against police.

MILD REPLY

He told the subcommittee on internal security, which is investigating the Black Panther

Party, that a letter he wrote to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell brought "a mild reply from somebody down the line."

"Here we have an administration, supposedly dedicated to the bringing about of law and order," he said. "But no recommendations to put a stop to the nationwide conspiracy aimed at the police by the Black Panthers and others like them have come from the White House and the Department of Justice."

LIBERAL PAPERS

After praising the subcommittee for its current investigation, Harrington said, "It is the habit of liberal papers like the Washington Post, the New York Times and the St. Louis Post Dispatch to assail this body as useless and engaging in farcical activities."

"These papers, and others like them, and many of the great TV chains have always sneered at efforts to control, by law, such outfits as the Communist Party. The Supreme Court has agreed with them."

Moderate Negro leaders, Harrington said, have been taken in by "vigorous propaganda campaigns which charge the police with brutality, fascism and genocide aimed at the Panthers."
