

Gold, Silver, Copper, Lead Found Near Here

What is claimed to be a rich deposit of gold, silver, copper, and lead has been uncovered on Twelve Mile Hill east of Artesia, in spite of the general belief there are no base metals in this area.

Ten claims have been staked at old turquoise diggings on state land within sight of Highway 83, after prospecting has turned up free gold and silver, and copper and lead in ore form, as well as quantities of turquoise.

Charles (Bud) Eaker is credited with making the discovery of the deposit, which is about 10 feet under the surface in the form of a thrust. The top of the thrust is about four feet wide and it runs in a general northerly-southerly direction. Active with him in quietly prospecting the thrust have been Tom Franklin and J. O. Stewart. The three men and two of Eaker's sons-in-law have staked four claims, while Stewart and associates have staked six more. Each is 600x1500 feet.

The men have been working on the thrust about six months, during the last of which they increased their activities, having surveys made, staking their claims, and recording them.

Assays on mine run show the conglomerate to contain about 24 per cent of copper, 2.17 per cent of lead, and 1.64 per cent of silver.

An assay report on gold content is expected this week.

It is estimated the ore and free metal, without gold or turquoise, is worth $19.50 a ton. But the men feel that as they go deeper they may find even richer deposits.

For the present it is planned to strip mine, but later it may be necessary to sink shafts and crosscut.

It was explained there is a definite dike, which turns off to the southwest and into the Guadalupe Mountains. As to whether other deposits of commercial value can be found elsewhere along the dike remains to be seen.

The ore is found in a quartz formation, with much conglomerate and a great amount of turquoise.

the presence of which has been known for many years. But in the past, while turquoise was mined at the site, it appears that the metallic deposits were not recognized as such or miners missed it.

The claims filed thus far are in sections 17, 18, and 19, township 17, range 28, in all sections of which there is shallow oil production.

Eaker, Franklin, and Stewart plan to call their workings "Copperhead." They will begin active work within the next two weeks opening up the mine. Later it is probable a mill will be built on the site.

This whole section of country has been prospected over the years and hundreds of diggings and shafts can be seen both in the prairie country and the mountains, but noble metals have been missed and it was thought by many there was none to be found.

In fact, geologists say, because of the type of formations there is little chance of finding metals in other than such thrusts as the one east of Artesia or in so-called chimneys. They are caused by faults developing in the crust and the pressure or volcanic action deep in the Earth forcing the metals upward.

It was pointed out that probably at one time the thrust east of Artesia was exposed, but that over the geological ages it was covered by deposits formations. Erosion has reduced the covering to approximately 10 feet, removal of which will expose the entire deposit.

Franklin said it is possible there are side deposits leading from the one he and the others plan to work, for it is known there is a dike running at right angles to the one on which they have filed.

Further claims cannot be staked filed on until they have been worked and found to have deposits of metals. And those which have been filed on must be worked within six months. But the men hope to have their workings coming along nicely long before that length of time is up.

Mail Early, Pack Well, Postmaster Asks as Christmas Season Approaches

The nation is approaching the heaviest Christmas mailings in history, according to Artesia Postmaster Jess Truett, who has issued a letter to the public, asking co-operation and early mailing. His letter reads:

"It is the desire of the Post Office Department to handle the mail as accurately and expeditiously as possible. To do so, it is necessary that every one extend utmost co-operation to all postal employees, be considerate of others, bearing in mind that there are thousands of others in their respective communities and millions throughout the nation to serve and be served by the department.

"The following information and suggestions are submitted with intentions helpful to all patrons toward a satisfactory service. Please bear in mind that:

"The Post Office Department has only limited space in railroad baggage cars for hauling the mail and that early mailings afford equal distribution of trip transportation.

"All Christmas parcel post is subject to be dispatched to state terminals for separations to its respective destinations, which requires much more time than during the ordinary season when parcels can be dispatched directly without terminal service.

When parcels are mailed late, terminal service is congested to the extent that delivery of parcels is delayed, therefore mail early. Christmas cards to distant points should also be mailed early to provide the department ample time to handle and deliver them for Christmas.

"Mailings should be made as early in the day as possible, especially letter mail of important first class. Should everyone make late mailings each day at the Artesia office, dispatchers could not work the mail in time for the outgoing train carrying the principal mail from this office.

"Letters of the first class as well as Christmas cards of large numbers, should be brought to the post office for mailing and not dropped in street letter boxes, as it is not possible for carriers to carry their heavy load of mail to be delivered and bring your mailings to the office for dispatch. Be considerate of your carrier, he cannot perform the impossible.

"For all window service at the post office, remember to stay in line for the window from which you desire service. Do not crowd the lobby and block the traffic by not staying in line. Our lobby space is adequate if properly respected. Do not crowd yourself into the line ahead of others. Soon as you are served, leave the lobby to afford others to be served by the space you are occupying.

"All unsealed Christmas cards without written messages, require 2 cents postage regardless if addressed within the city or other possessions of the United States. It is suggested that all Christmas cards addressed to friends of whose address you are not certain be mailed as first class with 3-cent stamp for each ounce and return address of the sender. Such mail will be given first-class service and returned to the sender if not delivered. Domestic air letter mail is 6 cents for each ounce. Consult the window clerk for foreign air mail rates and air parcel post rates.

"Be sure that all parcels presented for mailing are wrapped securely and if fragile, placed in good strong container, crate or box as desired. Parcels not properly prepared for mailing will be refused at the window without argument. Loss of time on the part of the clerk. You desire your gifts delivered in good condition and it is our desire to carry out your desire, so give us your best possible co-operation and we will give you ours.

"Post office windows will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning to 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon starting Dec. 16 and through Dec. 23.

"Please mail early and prepare your gifts in good, strong boxes, so they will withstand the heavy weight of other mail.

"Wishing you a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year from the personnel of your local post office."

November Meter Violations Nearly Reach Record

Traffic meter violations in November nearly reached the record number set in June and probably would have had it not been for four holidays during the month, according to the monthly report of the Artesia Police Department.

The November violations totaled 1412, as compared with 1522 in June, 1513 in July and a drop to 1157 in October.

It was noted that election day, two observations of Armistice Day on Saturday, Nov. 10 and Monday, Nov. 12 and Thanksgiving all fell in November.

Police handled 61 complaints in November, as compared with 65 the month prior.

Cases other than traffic and motor vehicle violations: Intoxication 28, disorderly conduct 10, driving while intoxicated 8, aggravated assault and possessing stolen property 2 each and forgery, fraud, vagrancy and others, 1 each.

Among traffic and motor vehicle violations, non-observance of light or sign headed the list, with 107 cases.

Illegal parking and speeding were next in order, with 19 and 14 complaints each.

Eight were cited for reckless driving and two for having improper brakes or lights. All other traffic and motor vehicle violation complaints totaled 28.

During the month, the police checked 18 accidents, in one of which four persons were injured. There were no other injuries reported.

Geologists Here Are Invited to Make Field Trip

Artesia geologists and others who might be interested have been invited by the Roswell Geological Society to join in a field trip Friday and Saturday in the Sacramento Mountains.

A study is to be made of an interesting stratigraphic section from the Pre-Cambrian to the Permian formation.

Members of the party are to assemble at the city park near the railway station in Alamogordo at 9 o'clock Friday morning and at the same place at 8 o'clock on Saturday morning. It was suggested that some who might not be able to be with the party both days would wish to join on the second day.

Plans are for the members of the party to spend Friday night in Alamogordo.

Each person is to pay his own expenses, in addition to which there will be a fee of $2, which will include the cost of a field manual which will be given each member of the party.

Those wishing to make the trip were asked to contact Ed Foley, Box 1236, Roswell or to phone him there at 509.

Although the trip is especially for geologists and others in businesses having to do with geology, everyone interested was invited to make the trip.

Merchants Are Cautioned Not To Leave Money

Artesia merchants have been warned by Police Chief Earl D. Westfall not to leave money in their stores, especially during the heavy shopping season prior to Christmas.

He said statistics show there are more cases of breaking and entering throughout the nation near the end of the year during the holiday shopping season than at any other time.

There likewise has been a wave of break-ins over the country, the chief said. Merchants likewise were cautioned to be sure that all doors and windows are locked and to ascertain that no one is lurking in the store at time of closing.

Cox Given Two To Five Years On Morals Charge

Tom Joe Cox, 23, of Artesia, was sentenced to two to five years in the state penitentiary Friday on a charge of indecent handling of a male minor.

Sentence was passed in Eddy County District Court by District Judge C. Roy Anderson.

Cox was arraigned here Nov. 9 before Justice of the Peace James L. Dow of Carlsbad and was held under $10,000 bond, in lieu of which he was placed in the Eddy County jail.

The complaint against Cox was sworn out by the mother of a local boy who at that time made a sworn statement to officers.

Cox was arrested early Sunday morning, Nov. 5, at the Folkner Hotel, after officers had encountered the boy on the street with a gun in his possession.

The boy told the officers Cox had committed a crime and had given him the gun to keep until Sunday, when Cox had told him he would take him rabbit hunting.

Dust Is Cause Of Fire Alarm At Ocotillo

Dust has been blamed for many things in this country. But for the first time, insofar as is known, dust was the cause of a fire alarm from the Ocotillo Theater at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Electricians were working on one of the air conditioners, which had been out of kilter, because of which there had been no water through it in some time, while dust accumulated in the mats.

Then when the motor was turned on, a cloud of dust blew into the theater, someone cried, "Fire" and an alarm was blown.

There was no panic or mad rush for the doors, but the theater was rapidly being emptied by the time the cause of what looked like smoke was discovered.

Game Protective Association Is To Meet on Wednesday

The December meeting of the North Eddy County chapter of the Game Protective Association will be held at Artesia Senior High School at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, it was announced by R. N. Russell, president.

SGT. JOHNSON IS INJURED IN KOREA

Sgt. Melburn V. Johnson, son of Mrs. Jessie Johnson of Artesia, was listed as injured in the Korean war by the Department of Defense, in a dispatch dated at Washington Dec. 1.

In the same announcement, First Lt. Eugene H. Mills of Roswell was listed as wounded.

National Guard Commander Points Out Advantage of Enlisting Now

Calling on Artesia men to enlist in the national guard, Capt. Marshall Belshe, commanding officer of Battery C, 69th Anti-Aircraft Artillery, Automatic Weapons Battalion, today made a statement on the guard in connection with the current war.

He reminded Artesia men that by joining the guard before they received draft pre-induction physical notices they would not be inducted into the armed forces.

After such notice is received it is too late to take advantage of that opportunity.

However, while no report of a call to active duty has been received by the local unit, as a part of the National Guard it could be called any time.

Agreement Made
The local unit, including the medical detachment, is short 16 men. There are two vacancies for officers in the battery.

In a statement on the situation, the captain says: "A recent agreement on young men eligible for the draft has been reached between Brig. Gen. C. G. Sage, adjutant general, and Col. Russell Charleton, New Mexico selective service chief, in Santa Fe. "This agreement allows any man subject to the draft to join a guard unit and be exempted from induction into the armed forces as an individual.

"The person must attend guard drills regularly and take an active interest in the organization.

"By doing this the person could hold any job in civilian life in or around Artesia and would remain here until the local unit is called up.

"By joining the battery any young man is paid one full day's army pay for each drill attended, given uniforms, trained in basic military subjects, is eligible for promotion to rank that would be held in the event of active federal duty.

"Any time served in a guard unit is counted for increased pay and retirement.

"Any young man joining the guard can be sent, if he desires, to army schools, covering radio, radar, truck mechanics, artillery mechanics, and food service.

"While attending these schools the man is paid full Army pay. Schools are located at Fort Bliss, Texas, Fort Sill, Okla., Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and camps in Georgia and New Jersey. "Any young man in the guard is eligible for a commission as a second lieutenant by completing certain correspondence courses.

Box Supper and Bingo Are to Underwrite Party

As plans went ahead for the second annual Christmas party by the Artesia Lions Club for needy children, announcement was made this week of a old-time box supper and bingo game sponsored by the club at Central School at 7 o'clock Thursday evening, Dec. 14.

It is hoped to raise funds through the box supper and bingo game to underwrite the Christmas party.

At the party last year, every Lion was assigned to some needy family, which he investigated ahead of time to find out what the children most needed. He then saw to the purchase of the items, which were presented to the children at the party.

An invitation has been extended to the public to attend the box supper and bingo game, so as to help underwrite the Lion Club's Christmas party project.

Thrifty Thursday Bargains Offered Here This Week

The third of Artesia's Thrifty Thursdays will be observed here Thursday of this week.

At that time many of the local merchants will offer thrifty bargains.

A number of them have placed advertisements in this issue of The Advocate, the regular monthly Thrifty Thursday issue. It has been suggested that at this time, with Christmas less than three weeks away, it might be well to look for good gift buys in the ads, as well as for merchandise bargains for regular use.

Plates for 1951 Are Expected in Artesia Today

Automobile license plates for 1951 should arrive in Artesia no later than today, Quentin Rodgers, North Eddy County license distributor, said Monday.

He received his supply of registration slips on Saturday, on which day he was notified the plates had been shipped from Santa Fe.

The new license plates will be available at Rodgers' office, the Mid-Valley Investment Company, 310 West Main Street.

Rodgers said the plates for 1951 will have the same colors as for the current year, except that they will be reversed. Passenger car plates will have blue numerals on a white background, while truck plates will have white numerals on a blue background.

The license distributor said that if an applicant first obtained license plates in New Mexico in 1950, or if he purchased a new car during the year and obtained plates, it will be necessary for him to take his registration from the back of his title slip to the office when making application for 1951 plates.

Veterans who are eligible to an exemption of a third of the cost of plates may make their claims at Rodgers' office.

Those eligible are veterans of World War I who have lived in New Mexico since before 1934 and veterans of World War II who have lived in the state since before 1947. The 1950 license plates for Eddy County will again be in the No. 3

Firemen Drag Man From Burning Couch In Smoke-Filled Room

B. B. Thompson was dragged from a burning couch in his apartment at 407 South Seventh Street about 7:30 o'clock Friday evening and was thought at first to have been nearly overcome by smoke and fumes which were so thick they could not see across the room.

However, it was found he was not suffering from smoke and was booked on a charge of intoxication.

The couch had apparently been set on fire from a cigarette. Fire damage was confined to the couch, but the apartment, which had just been redecorated, was badly smoke damaged.

Yule Lighting Program Plans Are Rounding Up

With the Rotary Club donating $200 and five concerns agreeing to provide the labor to put up street lighting, tentative plans have been made for the Christmas lighting decoration of Artesia's main street.

To replace broken lines and electric light bulbs, the Rotarians have contributed $200, while Concor Electric, Artesia Electric, Kaiser Electric, Southwestern Public Service and Central Valley Electric Co-op have volunteered services of their employees for the installation, according to Clayton Menefee, president of Artesia Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Charlie Bullock, president of the Rotary Club, said the money contributed for the lighting originally came from Artesia merchants for the annual visit of Santa Claus here on Saturday, Dec. 16, for which there is more than ample in the fund.

While definite plans are not outlined, but are expected to be following the Jaycees' regular meeting tomorrow night, the deal is expected to include a residential and business Yule decoration contest.

For the residential, the plan is to divide the city into two parts, one the area south, the other the region west of Grand, with $15 given for first place, $10 for second, honorable mention for third, in each of the two.

Then honorable mention would be given commercial displays. The Jaycees have already obtained $50 to be given as award money.

Burglars Enter Yeager Grocery During Sunday Night

Yeager Brothers Grocery was burglarized sometime Sunday night, but Bill Yeager told police Monday morning all that was missed was about $4 in pennies.

Entrance was gained by breaking out a small hole in a window, reaching through and unlocking it, and opening the bottom sash with some sort of tool.

The back door was found unlocked from the inside, leading to the belief the burglar or burglars left that way.

Veterans Lead Lobo Basketeers

With the closing of a disastrous football season, Lobo fans are turning to Coach Woody Clements hardwood squad for what is hoped will be a better season than the 1949-50 one in which the Hilltoppers took only five of their 24 games.

Clements praised his team's showing in pre-season workouts saying:

"These boys have the best attitude of any bunch I have ever coached. They have team spirit and are working hard toward building a good team this year."

The 1951 varsity has a high percentage of veterans from last year's squad, most of them being juniors. Only one key player was lost through graduation, Merle (Moose) Korte, and a host of fine transfer students will more than make up for the loss of Korte, Clements feels.

Center From Idaho
Big 6-7 Al Hubinger, a transfer from Boise, Idaho, junior college, is being groomed for a center spot, but has yet to develop sufficient aggressiveness to put his much-needed height to good use. The Lobos are lacking in height, the whole team averaging only 6-2.

Probable starters for the Lobos' first home game with Western State of Colorado tomorrow were named as Bill Swenson, 6-3 junior from Stockton, Calif., at center, and Lawrence Tuttle and Roy Esquivel at forwards.

Tuttle was high scorer for the Lobos last year with a 33 average on field goals and 75 average on free throws. He scored a total of 247 points last season in the 24 games played and was one of the leading scorers in the Border Conference.

At the guard positions, Clements states two veterans of last year's squad, John (Puffy) Leonard, the shortest man on the squad at 5-11 from the Bronx, N. Y., and Frank Kremer, a 6 foot junior from Natrona, Pa. Kremer is high on Uncle Sam's calling list and it is still doubtful if he will complete this year.

Farmer Game Opens Mustang Basket Schedule

Only one day separates New Mexico Western College's 1950-51 cagers from their first game of the season. The Mustangs have been practicing regularly for about a month, but Coach Harve Oliphant is none too sure about his quintet's chances in their first encounter on Wednesday, Dec. 6, with New Mexico A. & M. at Las Cruces.

Last year, the Mustangs lost to the Aggies three times in non-conference play. The Border conference entry eked out wins over New Mexico Western by scores of 55-47, 37-35 and 37-32. The last game was a hard fought battle in the Sunshine tourney at Portales which went into five overtime periods.

In taking over the basketball reins formerly held by Eugene W. (Hank) Balke, last year's coach, Oliphant has a team composed of 16 players. In that group, seven are veterans and are non lettermen, but are veterans, and two have previous college experience. The others are freshman hopefuls.

Close-Up On Squad
Scanning the roster, Mustang fans will see a team which has only five boys of the 16 under 6 feet, and they by not more than two inches. Looking at the roster as outlined by Coach Oliphant, the Mustang roundup looks like this:

Forwards — Howard Forister, 5-11 senior letterman from Hope, who last year was third in team scoring with 158 points. He has a good one hand push shot from the side and in close.

Guard — Jay Fletcher, 6-2 junior letterman from Lawrenceburg, Ind., who scored 98 points last year, is a real hustler, hard driver and a pretty fair passer. Fletcher may be used at center also.

Post — Marian Watts, 6 foot sophomore from Franklin, Ind., is expected to play a lot of ball. He's a good rebounder, does frequent tip-in point making, has an accurate one hand shot and fakes well.

Another New Castle product is Robert Breckenridge, 5-10 freshman, who is fast, a good hustler and hits well in close. He should see plenty of action. He also plays a guard post.

From Selma, Ind., comes Gene Sheward, 6-3 freshman, who is the driving type of player and a fair rebounder. He could be used at the pivot post also.

At the center position are the following:
Freshman Dick Freeman, 6-6 product of Mishawaka, Ind., provides the Mustangs with needed height, and should improve steadily. He's a good rebounder.

Along with Freeman, is big Ed Harter, 6-1 sophomore letterman from New Castle, who is a good feeder and fakes. He assumed lead last year when Dick King was sidelined with appendicitis. Ed garnered 94 points last season. He may be used some at forward.

Here are the Mustang guards:
Heading the group is the very aggressive Gene (Mikie) Haynes, 5-10 sophomore letterman from New Castle, Ind. Last year, as a forward, he was second in team scoring to King, totalling 228 points. Mike is fast, a good shot and a good dribbler. He'll also play forward.

Silver City Ace
Another letterman, guard-forward is Silver City's Louis Rivera, 6 foot defensive ace who also has a good one hander from around the circle.

From Clovis comes an experienced player who last year was inactive at Western to assure his eligibility. He is Gerald Gunnels, 5-10 senior, who is a good dribbler, very fast and a hustler. He also has a good two hand shot.

Letterman James Smith from Rochester, Ind., stands an even 6 feet. Sophomore Jimmy is an excellent feeder, a good defensive man and tough on defensive rebounding.

Rickard (Brooky) Maslow, 6 foot sophomore from Brooklyn, N. Y., is one of the team favorites. He's a tricky player, especially with ball handling. He played last year.

Guard Harold Coffman, 5-10 Mishawaka freshman, is a scrappy and a hard driver into the bucket. Joe Stubbleman, an experienced player of two years ago is back at forward, as well as guard duty. He stands around 5-10 and comes from Franklin, Ind. Stubby is quick and uses a one hand push.

Completing the roster is dependable Tom Gable, 6 foot letterman from Indianapolis, Ind. Gabe has the best two hand long shot on the team. He's a cool competitor, and great feeder and a good defensive man. Last year, Tom hit 121 points.

New Mexico Should Establish Sports Independence Declaration

By BROWNIE EMERSON

Before going into the topics of the name contest for the Artesia professional baseball team and the lagging movement to get the long green to defray the cost of sending the Artesia High School football team to the Sun Bowl, there's an editorial in The Alumnus, that rates thought.

It was published in the November issue of the University of New Mexico Alumni Association magazine but it's still timely.

Boiled down the editorial means this: "Why don't New Mexico high school graduating athletes attend New Mexico colleges and universities?"

It seems to me there's too much talk among fans of what every college from Slippery Rock Teachers to Hamilton, Brown, California and Illinois is doing instead of what is doing at New Mexico A. & M., New Mexico Western, Highlands, the University of New Mexico.

I think it's time New Mexico develops not only a pride in itself but backs that pride up with effort, enthusiasm and quit bowing down to the Pacific Coast, the East, the so-called Middle "West" and all other sections.

Who Battles Best?
In line with that is this quotation from the editorial:

"New Mexico boys will fight harder for the University of New Mexico than will Oklahoma and New York boys."

The editorial takes up the question "high priced football vs. de-prioritized football," contrasts two schools of thought, one saying that a winning football team means national publicity, the other that New Mexico cannot raise enough money to play big time football or even to approach it.

I bring along with School 2. The editorial quotes from Life Magazine:

"The cost of assembling, equipping and maintaining a successful team has become so inflated that some schools are losing money and giving up in disgust."

Quoting again from the alumni magazine:

"Can New Mexico afford to buy a winning team in a win-minded football conference? And if New Mexico can, would that react to the school's best interest?"

Now the first school reasons that a winning football team means national publicity, national prestige for the university and that the winning material is not available in New Mexico so it is necessary to buy on the open market.

This school also says that winning teams will draw capacity crowds, the profits from which will aid in the development of other sports, school spirit will boom, and Albuquerque will prosper.

Inclining now to the side I favor: "Let's rebuild along normal lines with New Mexico boys, win or lose. It will pay consistent dividends in the long run."

A state squad will accelerate interest in the university in all parts of the state. New Mexico high school football is constantly improving and with 30 Lobos coaching in the state the time is ripe to change policy.

"We can only lose in following the 'monkey see, monkey do' brand of high-price football."

More Than Second Guess
You need more than a good team and good coach to turn out a winning team. The coach needs a constant flow of good football material and the support of alumni and fans that will be effective in more ways than game receipts and second-guessing the coach.

Too often all you hear from the fans is "why didn't the coach do this, why not that," "if I were coach, That sort of talk does no one any good. The coach is the coach. He knows his job or he wouldn't be coach."

Batter Up
There's still time to get in on that name contest for the Artesia

cellent feeder, a good defensive man and tough on defensive rebounding.

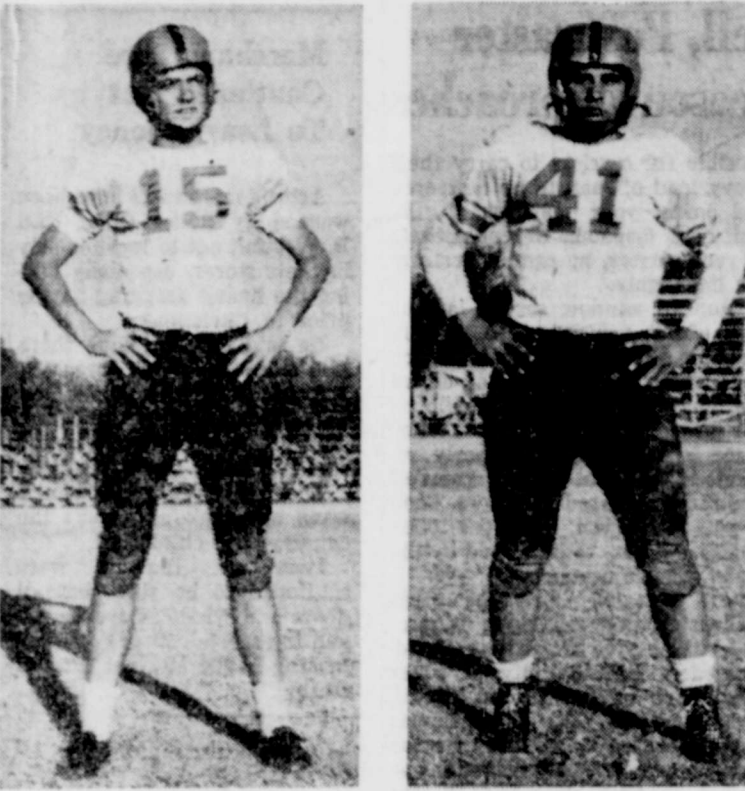

Rickard (Brooky) Maslow, 6 foot sophomore from Brooklyn, N. Y., is one of the team favorites. He's a tricky player, especially with ball handling. He played last year.

Guard Harold Coffman, 5-10 Mishawaka freshman, is a scrappy and a hard driver into the bucket. Joe Stubbleman, an experienced player of two years ago is back at forward, as well as guard duty. He stands around 5-10 and comes from Franklin, Ind. Stubby is quick and uses a one hand push.

Completing the roster is dependable Tom Gable, 6 foot letterman from Indianapolis, Ind. Gabe has the best two hand long shot on the team. He's a cool competitor, and great feeder and a good defensive man. Last year, Tom hit 121 points.

Chosen on All Southern New Mexico

Eight Artesia High School football players rated places on El Paso Times Southern New Mexico High School football teams, according to selections made known yesterday by Chuck Whitlock, Times sports editor.

Out of the eight, there was one each from Artesia on the first, and third teams, two on the second, while the remaining four received honorable mention.

A. L. Terpening was named on the first team as fullback; Ivan Clay, No. 38, left guard and Fred Hernandez, right tackle, on the second, Jimmy Juarez, No. 41, was named guard on the third team. Honorable mention went to Bobby Morgan, Bill Brown, No. 15, ends; Doyle Cole, No. 10 and Joe Harbert, backs. Terpening, Hernandez, Morgan and Harbert have previously been pictured on this page in conjunction with earlier polls.

In turn I try to answer all my calls the same way. That I think, is more business-like than a mere "hello," that leave you guessing who is saying hello and wondering if you have the right number.

I understand the Army has a system like that and I think civilians could well use it. Am I right, Bill Hinde?

Demons—That They Are!
When the Artesia High School basketeers take on Dexter Demons here Tuesday, Dec. 12, it should be one of the top games of the season.

Those Dexter boys are plenty good. In their first game of the season the Demons availed the Lake Arthur quintet 75 to 22. Nine out of the 10 Demons used in the game scored.

And the Dexter juniors also came out winners, 51-13.

Dexter's varsity won the district title in 1949-50.

Cruces Likes Basketball
Over in the Dona Ana capital they like basketball so well that for the fourth year they are sponsoring a Saturday morning recreation basketball program.

All boys are invited to take part whether they attend public school or not. Being of junior high age or less is the only limitation.

First three weeks are devoted to fundamentals. Then teams are chosen and a double round robin tournament held.

The boys supply their own trunks, towels and basketball shoes. Last year there were 50 boys turning out for the weekly sessions.

Fifth grade boys report at 9 a. m., sixth grade, 10 a. m., 11 a. m. junior high ages.

Mark Genera is director. I think this is a swell deal and represents community service, for it certainly answers the youngsters' question of "what can we do?"

Play 20 Games
The Las Cruces High School basketball season opens Friday night against Cathedral of El Paso in Las Cruces. Cathedral plays Artesia here Dec. 21.

Santa Fe, the team the Artesia Bulldogs play in the state capital on Jan. 11, plays Las Cruces Dec. 15 in the southern New Mexico town.

A return game will be played with Cathedral on Jan. 24 in El Paso. Then the Las Cruces quintet takes on Virden, the team from the little town that gave the Las Cruces Bulldogs a terrific battle

Three Home Tilts Opens Greyhound Basketball Card

Basketball season begins for the Greyhounds of Eastern New Mexico University tonight in a game against Trinity University of San Antonio, Texas. The game will be played in the university gym beginning at 8 p. m.

The university freshman squad will play a floor-warmer beginning at 6:30 against Floyd High School.

The season opener is the first of three straight home games for the Greyhounds. The opponent next Saturday night will be Western State College of Gunnison, Colo., and McMurry College of Abilene, Texas, will be on hand for a Dec. 11 game.

Observers of preliminary Greyhound workouts are quite pleased with the early showing of the team candidates. The Hounds are working as smooth, and their passing is as keen, as at the close of last season when the Greyhounds celebrated their second straight conference championship.

The six returning lettermen have drawn quite a bit of comment from the sidelines.

Blossom Dunning, they say, as adding a lot of confidence to the team with his accurate passing at his new position—right forward. Dunning has always guarded the center position in previous years but has moved out front this year.

"Doing an excellent job at his new post," is the sideline comment about Dunning. "Many times he will steal the ball and be down on a fast break before the opponent knows they have lost the ball."

Strong At Center
Bob Fitt probably will start at the other forward, taking over the position vacated by Tex Wallis, three times an all-conference selection.

Comment from the bleachers: "Fitt has much more speed than Wallis and he is a great ball handler and good floor man. His accuracy at shooting is as good as any man in the conference. Bob should have a great year with the Hounds."

ENMU will be strong at the center position. Harry Miller, 6-foot-5, is indicated as the starter, but he is being pushed by Billy Griggs, 6-foot-5 junior, who also alternates at a forward position. Many fans say Miller is the man who can take this competition and turn it into a good thing for the team.

Griggs, beginning his second year of varsity experience, seems to be a new man this year. His eye for the basket is about as keen as Miller's and his defensive work has improved.

Ken Moore and Guy Smith, who rated last year high in the South west as far as guard combinations go, are hitting their stride again this year. Moore has improved in his driving, shooting, and defensive play. Although it is difficult to tell against freshman competition, Moore seems to be even better than last year.

Smith, always a court general, already is moving over the floor and setting up plays as smoothly as if it were last February. Many believe he is scoring better than last year.

Added to these six lettermen, Coach Al Garten will have Jim Griggs, a freshman candidate from Clovis. Garten has lots of respect for Griggs, brother of Billy. He is fast, a good shot, handles the ball well, and is beginning to work in with the other six.

If his passing improves he should play a lot of basketball this year. Fast Sooner

B. B. Lees, the Greyhound half back, will probably see lots of action on the court as soon as he gets the football out of his system. One of the quickest and fastest men on the squad is Gene Quetone, a little 5-foot-6 freshman from Chase, Okla. He isn't a whiz on defense but the other team will have to watch him when he begins his fast drives into the basket.

Joe Erwin, Portales freshman, began to shine the past week and has been awarded a suit for the first game. Garten feels that if Erwin keeps improving as he has the past week he will keep the suit for the season.

Alex King, the fellow who took Rogers High School through their season last year and played in the All-Star game in Albuquerque last summer, has been doing a good job. He is being pushed at the forward position by Don Fisher, also a Greyhound gridman from Borger, Texas.

Doyle Cozens, Captain, is hitting the basket well, but has been having trouble with speed and ball handling. Bill Hayes, a 6-foot-4 Hobbs freshman, is on the line and may get a nod over any of the other non-lettermen.

Also fighting for a guard position are Buddy Marley, Eddie Beene, and Smith Bennett. Doyle Ogden reported for practice only after football season and is working for a forward spot.

The freshman squad will be made up of these men who are right at the line of making the varsity squad: Ogden, Hayes, Bennett, Cozens, Beene, Marley, and Bill Livingston.

Roster
Ken Moore, G. Portales, Jim Griggs, F. Clovis, Joe Erwin, Portales, Guy Smith, G. Martinsville, Ind. Blossom Dunning, F. Fort Summer, Billy Griggs, C. Clovis, Harry Miller, C. Martinsville, Ind. Alex King, F. Rogers, Bob Fitt, F. Mattoon, Ill.

B. B. Lees, G. Big Spring, Texas. Gene Quetone, G. Lawton, Okla.

Hoopsters to Hop Tonight in Opener
Baron Basketball will open court in Artesia tonight when the 1950-51 schedule opens with junior high and high school squads contesting Lake Arthur.

First game is set for 7 o'clock; second will start at 8:15 or 8:30, with the junior outfits playing the first tilt.

The games mark the beginning of the 21 contests for the high school squad and of 18 games for the juniors.

Creel Check Is Made on Pecos And Red Rivers

In an effort to obtain some idea of the numbers of fish caught in the Pecos and Red River areas during a normal open season, Roy Barker, fisheries biologist of the Department of Game and Fish, conducted a creel census from May 25 to Aug. 7. Sportsmen were exceedingly co-operative and Barker has compiled a list of the following statistics that should be of interest to fishermen:

During this time, personnel of the department checked 6790 anglers on the Pecos and Lower Red River. The creels contained 28,399 trout, of which 62.7 per cent were rainbows, 27.7 browns, 5 New Mexico cutthroats, 2.6 Eastern brook trout, and 2 per cent Yellowstone cutthroat trout. In addition to the various species of trout caught it was found that the average length of trout caught for the 28,399 was approximately eight inches.

The average trout fisherman in these areas was found to fish 4.8 hours per day, to catch 3.93 per day (or almost a trout per hour). Of the creels checked, 83.7 per cent belonged to men, 11.2 per cent to women and 5.1 per cent to children. If it is any consolation to those who didn't catch any fish on certain days in these areas this year, it was found that 25.3 per cent of the anglers each day had no luck at all in catching trout.

The average daily catch of the principal streams and lakes for the two areas was found to be: Upper Pecos area 8.3 trout per day per fisherman, Cow Creek 5.8, Mora-Pecos 5.3, Red River 5, Holy Ghost 4.2, Lower Pecos 3.2, Lake Catherine 5.5, Pecos Baldy Lake 4.8, Spirit Lake 2.6 and Stewart Lake 2.1.

This survey of the Pecos and Red River areas has given the department some valuable information about these bodies of water.

Defeat Probed

TWO HOUSE investigators have been sent into Ohio to study charges of election "irregularities" in the 14th congressional district, made up of Summit, Portage, Medina and Lorain counties. The probe centers on the 1,900-vote defeat of incumbent Rep. Walter B. Huber (above), Akron Democrat, by Republican Walter H. Ayres, Akron. (International)

Farm Employes Now Eligible to Social Security

Farm employes and their employers will now take an active part in the federal program of old-age and survivors' insurance, Samuel C. Anthony, manager of the El Paso office of the Social Security Administration, pointed out.

"In sweeping amendments to the Social Security Law, the Congress has extended the rights and responsibilities under the law to about 650,000 regularly employed farm hands," Anthony explains. "Still excluded under the law are the farmer operators."

"The operator of the farm will be required to report cash wages earned by his help who fall within certain limitations defined by the law. He will also be required to pay a tax of 3 per cent of such cash wages earned by his employes. Half of such tax may be deducted from the wages earned so that the farmer's actual contribution will be 1 1/2 per cent of the payroll."

Very briefly, here's how it works according to Anthony:

If you employ an individual continuously for three months (a calendar quarter) he may become eligible for social security coverage in the next three months. If he continues to work on your farm in your employ, for at least 60 days in a calendar quarter and is paid $50 in cash wages for services in each quarter, he should get social security credit. This part of the law becomes effective on Jan. 1.

Local federal social security offices or internal revenue offices will furnish additional information on request.

Government Probably Will Not Buy Wool

Probably no wool will be sold to the government next year, prices being well above support or parity price now. Moreover, on Oct. 20 the government announced plans to purchase 100 million pounds of raw wool for stockpiling as finished cloth against military emergencies. This action should also help to firm up wool prices.

But wool prices are not so high, considering the comparative price

"PORTRAIT NECKLINE"—Wedding dress is fashioned of white satin for winter ceremonies—from the New York collections. Upstanding collar has lace fill-in. (N. Y. Dress Institute Photo)

rise in certain other commodities. For example, compared with 1939, prices, new cars are up 93 per cent and new low-priced homes are up 94 per cent. And all commodities are up 86 per cent above 1939, or prewar price levels. On the other hand, wool clothing is up only 80 per cent, or below the commodity price rises and 6 per cent under the rise of all commodities since 1939. In other words, wool is still a good buy from the consumer's standpoint. And the growers certainly are getting no more from their wool now than will compensate them for the higher cost of labor, living costs and taxes.

As a matter of fact, only about $5 or 11 per cent, of a $50 wool suit from the cost of the raw wool on the sheep's back. The balance, or nearly $45 of that $50 suit from production and processing costs, such as labor, machinery repair and depreciation, taxes and retail mark-ups. So, if all growers were to receive as much as a dollar for their wool next spring, over say, 80 cents now—an increase in price of 25 per cent for raw wool—such a rise would only increase the price of a $50 suit by $1.31.

Mary B. Walker, Former Artesia Girl, Weds Iver Rustuen of Coolidge, Ariz.

At home to their friends in Coolidge, Ariz., are newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Iver Rustuen, who were married there Nov. 24 in the Chapel of Light of Central Methodist Church.

The bride is the former Mary B. Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Walker, Coolidge, Ariz., formerly of Artesia. Mr. Walker is the son of Mrs. Fred Lansbury. White slipper satin fashioned the bride's wedding gown, which featured a sweetheart neckline trimmed in seed pearls. Her white nylon veil of fingertip length fell from a white lace Juliet cap. She carried a bridal bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Gerald Insley, matron of honor, selected an aqua taffeta gown with matching mitts and halo hat. Pink carnations fashioned her bouquet.

Frank Rustuen, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and Ted Damienci ushered guests to their places.

During the reception which followed in the Walker home, Mrs. Lee Walker and Mrs. Raymond Shafer, aunts of the bride, and Miss Esther Duncan assisted.

The bride attended Arizona State College at Tempe. She was a member of the Artesia High School graduating class of 1946 and worked

New Chemical Is Mesquite Threat

Encouraging evidence that aerial spraying of a new chemical, 2,4,5-T, can be used to kill mesquite is reported by plant scientists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at the Texas Experiment Station. As a preliminary step toward solving the gigantic problem of brush control on several million acres in the Southwest, the finding is of keen interest. It offers, for the first time, a mass method for killing mesquite in the less arid portions of the range country at comparatively low cost. It is believed also to hold clues to control methods for the pest in other environmental conditions where it grows and for other species of brush that are not affected by 2,4,5-T or the better known weed killer, 2,4-D.

The experiments with mesquite in Spur, Texas, show that it can be killed by aerial sprays of 2,4,5-T applied late in May, when the brush is in vigorous growth. The treatment is similar to that in which 2,4-D is now used to control brush on the grasslands of the Southern Great Plains.

For mesquite in West Texas the scientists used two-thirds pound on the ester form of 2,4,5-T in five gallons of 20 per cent oil emulsion. Cost of this treatment for large scale operations is estimated at $3 an acre. The kill is 98 per cent for the tops of the brush and more than 50 per cent of the roots. The chemical has given 65 per cent kill when applied as a ground spray on mesquite foliage and up to 90 per cent kill when used to treat the surfaces of stumps. Spray applications to the lower 12 inches of the trunk have killed both tops and roots.

REA APPROVES $175 IN LOANS

The Rural Electrification Administration has recently approved two loans totaling $175,000 to New Mexico borrowers. The loans approved were $100,000 to Socorro Electric Co-operative and $75,000 to Columbus Electric Co-operative. The loans were for re-lending to co-op members to finance purchase and installation of essential farmstead wiring, plumbing, fixtures, irrigation equipment, and electrical appliances and equipment.

Crop Production Will Be Below 1949 Figures

A recent crop report from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics has indicated lower 1950 production for practically all of New Mexico's products, according to J. Z. Rowe, state extension economist with New Mexico A. & M. College. New Mexico corn production for 1950 is indicated to be 65 per cent of 1949, sorghum grain 52 per cent of last year's crop, broomcorn 41 per cent, peanuts 95 per cent, dry beans 37 per cent, potatoes 65 per cent and commercial apples 24 per cent.

Eggs on the other hand are 114 per cent of the 1949 production, Rowe adds.

Declines in United States production from 1949 are indicated for corn, broomcorn, dry beans, peanuts and apples. Increases for United States are shown for sorghum grains and potatoes.

"This decrease in production, however, means generally higher per unit price for those products," the economist explains.

The cucumber originally was a tropical vegetable.

Egg Output Is To Top Record, USDA Predicts

When the final count is in, U.S. farmers will have collected more eggs from their hens this year than in any year on record. That's the confident prediction of economists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

They note that farmers now have more layers in their flocks than a year ago, and those chickens are laying better. They think that eventually the number of layers will go down compared with a year ago, but they expect the hens to continue to lay more eggs per hen than in the same months in 1949.

If total production turns out about as expected, there will be even more eggs than the record production of six years ago. Folks will use about five more eggs per person than last year, but about 16 less eggs per person than in 1945. Storage stocks of shell eggs are much higher this year than last. Stocks of frozen eggs are somewhat higher. And the economists think prices of eggs during the remainder of 1950 are likely to continue lower than a year earlier.

In making these estimates, the department specialists are judging largely by the pattern of egg production in this country in recent years. September was probably the low month of the year. They find that over the last 25 years the recovery from the low point in farm egg production has come progressively earlier in the fall. The low points in monthly production in 1949 and probably again in 1950 were two months earlier than was the case 15 years ago.

Warden Is Patient, But Loses Humor In Antelope Case

District Warden Jewel Butler of Silver City is a very patient man, as Pete Quintana and Thomas Sierra, both of Silver City, found out when they came back to get their illegally killed antelope on the morning of Nov. 16.

Butler had found where two hunters had clean a doe and a fawn antelope after the antelope season had been over and had hidden them in the brush in the Silver City area. He began his lonely wait at 4 o'clock the afternoon of Nov. 15 and it was not until 6 o'clock the next morning that the two men came back for the meat.

The cold night air had done little for the warden's sense of humor. Pete Quintana was assessed $200 in fines and $3.50 court costs and was sentenced to 60 days in jail, while Sierra was assessed $100 in fines and $3.50 costs and was sentenced to 20 days in jail.

PREDATOR CONTROL FOR OCTOBER REPORTED

The Predator Control Division, under the direction of Assistant State Game Warden Homer Pickens, took a total of 750 predators during the month of October. Two lions were taken, one each by Trappers T. J. Lyon and Abel Madrid, while George Hightower and B. C. Green were tops for the month on coyotes with 16 apiece. And 107 coyotes were taken by all the personnel of the division for the month. In addition to the lions and coyotes, Pickens reported that 75 bobcats were killed, 115 foxes, 130 skunks, and an assortment of lesser predators.

The appeal of the veterans for discarded toys to be fixed up and given as Christmas presents to some of the more needy children had one slight backfire.

Someone having toys to give took them by the home of one of the men named to receive them, and left them on the porch, where they were promptly found by the veteran's youngster.

Of course, the youngster thought they were his, and it was not until he had gone to sleep was it possible to reroute the toys in the direction originally intended.

Nevertheless, it's a great project. And we pass on the veterans' appeal to dig out usable toys—even those which can be repaired—which are no longer needed. The easiest way to get them to the vets is to take them to the Veterans Memorial Building. Just leave them in the hall, if no one is around.

It has been suggested that when the municipal Christmas trees are erected in Main Street, that they be trimmed up a little higher, so motorists can see where they are going.

Russell's Is Far More Than Just Auto Supply

The Russell Auto Supply Company at 322 West Main Street, Phone 77, is much more than just an auto supply store, although that is the principle department.
In fact, at one time, back in 1932 when R. N. Russell first opened his business on the 100 block South Second, it was strictly auto supplies.
Then in 1937 Russell Auto Supply moved to 323 West Main and shortly thereafter Russell added a sporting goods department, which has been quite popular with sportsmen since.
In June 1946, the company moved across the street to the present location at 322 West Main, which building Russell had previously bought, along with the 324 West Main location, then the postoffice. At the present location a shop has been added in the rear, which includes among its services motor rebuilding, piston grinding, valve and pin jobs, block boring and head milling.

The auto supply department handles Leakproof and Ramco piston rings, a complete stock of McQuay-Norris auto parts, the AC line of fuel pumps, spark plugs, and filters, Wagner brake parts and brake lining, Carter carburetion, Gates fan belts, and Bonney hand tools.
Russell Auto Supply also sells Inland tires and tubes in all standard sizes.
In the sporting goods department will be found guns and ammunition, fishing tackle of all kinds and camping equipment, in fact, everything the sportsman needs. This includes also hunting licenses.

Gift Department At Evans Offers Many Yule Gifts

Always popular, the gift department at Evans Hardware at 118 West Main, is more popular than ever at this season, with the approach of Christmas.
This department has the personal of Mrs. L. P. Evans, whose late husband started the business in Artesia in 1910.
The gift department at Evans Hardware carries Brocks California dinnerware, Franciscan ware, and Vernon Kilns ware.
The fine china includes Shelly English bone, Franciscan fine china and Syracuse fine china.
To go with these beautiful items Mrs. Evans carries complete lines of Halsey crystals, Imperial candlewick and Bryce crystals.
An interesting line to be found at the gift department of Evans Hardware is the Westmoreland milk glasses, manufactured by one of the oldest glass companies in the country. Westmoreland in order to meet the revived interest in old glass and designs, has resurrected many old molds and designs and is making these patterns, even painting them in exact duplicate of the original colors.

Here is Oscar Keathley, proprietor of Oscar's Shoe Shop at 324 West Main Street, at work stitching a boot on his Goodyear stitcher. To his left is shown more of his Goodyear equipment, which he uses throughout, all of the most modern models. He operated a shop at the same location from 1942 to 1946, then moved to Portales from where he returned last May. Oscar's Shoe Shop was temporarily located on South Roswell after Mr. and Mrs. Keathley returned to Artesia, until the old location at 324 West Main was available. Not only does the shop specialize in shoe and boot repairing, but Oscar tailors boots and offers a good line of shop-made boots. All work and material is guaranteed at Oscar's Shoe Shop. Oscar suggests for Christmas boots, leather belts, billfolds and purses and calls attention to his lay-away plan.

Mrs. Evans is always happy to show Sarton's solid jewelers' bronze, on all pieces of which the enamel is baked, so no polishing is required.
Other items in the gift department include Rogers 1847 and Community silver, both of which are available in your favorite patterns: traditional picture prints, lovely for gifts; fine china, collectors' items, Chinese brass cigarette accessories and planters, and authentic Chinese work from China.
Of course, one thinks of Evans Hardware, 118 West Main, for a complete line of Hardware, as well as for the sheet metal shop, but don't forget the gift department as you plan your Christmas list.

McCaw Hatchery Offers Fryers At Their Best

If you want fryers at their best, your best bet is McCaws, which you can buy either at McCaw's Hatchery, 13th and Grand, phone 48, or from your favorite food store.
The McCaw Hatchery maintains a "perpetual motion" plan, under which there are fryers always in some stage of development, from the egg to the packing room and freezing.
Approximately 1500 layers provide eggs not only for hatching, but infertile eggs for the market.
McCaw Hatchery during regular seasons hatches three breeds of chicks, New Hampshires, White Leghorns, and Hamp-X-Whites, the last of which are a crossbreed used principally for fryers.
In the broiler room, a large room filled with battery brooders, the chicks are kept until they are about 4 or 5 weeks old. Then they go into the finishing room, to be raised until they are about 10 weeks old and weigh 2 1/4 pounds and up.
McCaw Hatchery finishes about 600 fryers a week and has approximately 6000 on hand at all times from those just hatched to those ready for the dressing room.
The dressing room is equipped with a new killing stand, where the broilers are killed and bled. Next comes the automatic, thermostatically controlled scalding machine, to assure perfect picking. And there is an automatic picking machine, which cleans them thoroughly, even to the pin feathers.
In the packing room the chickens are inspected, thoroughly cleaned, cut up and packed in cellophane covered boxes, which are sealed for freezing.
We suggest you stop in at McCaw Hatchery, 13th and Grand, or at your favorite food store for McCaw fryers.

USDA Completes Hopper Survey In New Mexico

The annual adult grasshopper survey for New Mexico has been completed by entomologists of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, according to L. H. Moore, extension entomologist and state leader for grasshopper control work. An egg survey of the entire state will be made at a later date, Moore says.

Information obtained in both the adult and egg surveys will serve as a basis for the 1951 infestation forecast. Sometime this winter, the Extension Service will prepare a map of the state showing the location and severity of the grasshopper situation.

"Hopper infestation forecasts have been very accurate since the annual adult grasshopper and egg surveys were established," Moore points out. "Information gathered in the summer and fall of 1949 aided USDA workers to map out accurately the expected infestation for 1950."

"Farmers in many areas of the state have reported highly satisfactory results in the control of grasshoppers by using chlordane and toxaphene. Where the control operations were started early, when the hoppers were small and concentrated near the egg beds, excellent results were obtained. Many farmers suffered unnecessary losses because they didn't start control operations early enough if at all. Experience gained this year should lead to a more effective program next year."

"Farmers can help to reduce the number of hoppers for next year by tilling fields, such as alfalfa, this fall and winter," Moore adds. "Hoppers concentrate in such fields to lay their eggs. A cultivation of these fields will disturb and expose the eggs."

Guerin Outlines State's Mental Health Program

In grandfather's day folks thought the family needed a doctor—or the services of a hospital—only in cases of illness, like smallpox or a ruptured appendix. But it's not like that today. Ernest J. Guerin, Jr., senior psychologist and director of social service at New Mexico State Hospital, points out.

Now we know good health is not only a matter of treating sick people but in keeping people well. Guerin said in outlining a mental health program which is planned for the state.

"Today most people know that preventive medicine is the key-stone to good physical health," he said, "but out-of-date notions and prejudices still blind many to the facts about mental illness. "We know there are many persons who are suffering from such severe mental illnesses that they have to be hospitalized. In fact, half the bed patients in the country are mental patients. Too few of us realize that 30 to 60 percent of all patients consulting doctors do so because of complaints due to emotional disorders."

"Many social problems are closely related to mental ill health, especially delinquency, divorce, and alcoholism. We can keep the people of our community emotionally and mentally fit by following the pattern that has boosted our level of physical health."

Along these lines he suggested cooperation with physicians and psychologists in an educational and preventative program which aims at replacing ideas of shame, fear, and superstition with facts and scientific knowledge.

"We plan in the near future to introduce a statewide plan whereby mental health committees can be formed by persons interested in improving community welfare. We can easily utilize the advantages offered by the National Mental Health Act," said Guerin.

Details of formation plans will be announced by hospital authorities in the near future.

USDA Completes Hopper Survey In New Mexico

The annual adult grasshopper survey for New Mexico has been completed by entomologists of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, according to L. H. Moore, extension entomologist and state leader for grasshopper control work. An egg survey of the entire state will be made at a later date, Moore says.

Information obtained in both the adult and egg surveys will serve as a basis for the 1951 infestation forecast. Sometime this winter, the Extension Service will prepare a map of the state showing the location and severity of the grasshopper situation.

"Hopper infestation forecasts have been very accurate since the annual adult grasshopper and egg surveys were established," Moore points out. "Information gathered in the summer and fall of 1949 aided USDA workers to map out accurately the expected infestation for 1950."

"Farmers in many areas of the state have reported highly satisfactory results in the control of grasshoppers by using chlordane and toxaphene. Where the control operations were started early, when the hoppers were small and concentrated near the egg beds, excellent results were obtained. Many farmers suffered unnecessary losses because they didn't start control operations early enough if at all. Experience gained this year should lead to a more effective program next year."

"Farmers can help to reduce the number of hoppers for next year by tilling fields, such as alfalfa, this fall and winter," Moore adds. "Hoppers concentrate in such fields to lay their eggs. A cultivation of these fields will disturb and expose the eggs."

Guerin Outlines State's Mental Health Program

In grandfather's day folks thought the family needed a doctor—or the services of a hospital—only in cases of illness, like smallpox or a ruptured appendix. But it's not like that today. Ernest J. Guerin, Jr., senior psychologist and director of social service at New Mexico State Hospital, points out. Now we know good health is not only a matter of treating sick people but in keeping people well. Guerin said in outlining a mental health program which is planned for the state.

"Today most people know that preventative medicine is the key-stone to good physical health," he said, "but out-of-date notions and prejudices still blind many to the facts about mental illness. "We know there are many persons who are suffering from such severe mental illnesses that they have to be hospitalized. In fact, half the bed patients in the country are mental patients. Too few of us realize that 30 to 60 percent of all patients consulting doctors do so because of complaints due to emotional disorders.

"Many social problems are closely related to mental ill health, especially delinquency, divorce, and alcoholism. We can keep the people of our community emotionally and mentally fit by following the pattern that has boosted our level of physical health."

Along these lines he suggested cooperation with physicians and psychologists in an educational and preventative program which aims at replacing ideas of shame, fear, and superstition with facts and scientific knowledge.

"We plan in the near future to introduce a statewide plan whereby mental health committees can be formed by persons interested in improving community welfare. We can easily utilize the advantages offered by the National Mental Health Act," said Guerin.

Details of formation plans will be announced by hospital authorities in the near future.

Protest Those Rights

CONSIDERABLE ATTENTION is being given to civil rights in this state following the conviction of three officers in federal court charged with violating the civil rights of a suspect in a murder case.

These officers were charged with conspiring and depriving this individual of his American rights.

Following this, considerable comment has been heard at peace officers' meetings and elsewhere. Those in a position to issue warnings to officers that civil rights must not be ignored have been given. They should continue to be given.

There is little question but what the rights of many have been and are being violated every day. And the violation of these rights will continue just as long as the citizens permit them to be.

Only recently we heard a federal officer state that he felt sure that every sheriff's office in this state violates the rights of those they have arrested. We don't know whether the statement is true or not, but we do know it is true this practice should be halted.

There is always a tendency to ignore the rights of those arrested or charged with crime. For years there has been a practice of invading private property, trespassing and failure to follow the procedure as prescribed by law.

Only a few months ago the United States Supreme Court ruled that an individual's automobile is his castle and that it cannot be searched without due process of law. There are times when officers get the idea they can trespass on private property or even enter and search homes without complying with the law.

That, of course, cannot be done legally and in any case where this question is involved and it comes into court, it will be thrown out. But we as citizens have permitted our private rights to be invaded.

We have permitted our liberties guaranteed to us under the Constitution to be ignored and denied us.

We have even seen instances in Eddy County where officers of the law felt they could run people out of the country—run them out under the threat of prosecuting them if they didn't leave.

Either they should have prosecuted them if they were guilty or let them alone if they were not guilty.

But we will only keep these rights when we are willing to fight for them.—O.E.P.

Lest We Forget
IT SEEMS WE FORGET not only the lessons taught by wars, but we forget those who have given their all that we might learn.

By we mean not only the people in general, but those who have fought our wars and have lived to come home again.

The body of the first man from the Artesia community to give his life in the Korean conflict arrived home last week to be laid away in final rest close to his people. His body likewise was the first to be brought home.

He was accorded military rites at the graveside by a handful of veterans of earlier conflicts, who paid him homage and who represented the hundreds of other veterans in the community.

And that's what they barely did, represent the hundreds of others, for it took the efforts of two or three of the veterans the greater part of a day to prevail upon a sufficient number of their comrades to take part in the rites.

Rudyard Kipling, the great British poet, wrote:

"God of our fathers, known of old—
Lord of our farflung battleline—
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!"

The services for that Artesia boy were symbolical of as yet unheld services for other Artesia boys who are certain to have died or yet will give their lives in the terrible, blundering conflict in the Far East.

It was symbolical of those who made the supreme sacrifice in earlier wars in which the United States was involved.

"If drunk with sight of power, we lose
Wild tongues that have not been in awe—
Such boasting as the Gentiles use,
Or lesser breeds without the Law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!"

It makes no difference that a man may not be of the same race as the majority of us. His job is as important, his sacrifice just as great. He deserves the same consideration from the general public and his comrades as any other—lest we forget, lest we forget!—A.L.B.

We're Still Growing

IT IS RATHER SURPRISING and amazing to learn how some of our business firms and concerns have grown and are growing in our community. Many of us would be very much surprised if we sit down to analyze the situation and learned just where the income we have in our community comes from and how the payrolls of our firms have increased.

Not one, but many of the firms and business concerns in our community have doubled their number of employees. This has automatically doubled their payrolls or in some instances tripled their payrolls. All of this, of course, is money which comes into the community and money which is spent in our community. It helps to make for good business and to maintain our prosperity.

We recall that five years ago when we purchased The Advocate, there was a total of five employees and the payroll was around $250 to $300 per week, not including the owner.

There are today some 16 or more employees at The Advocate and the payroll exceeds $1000 every week or over $50,000 per year. A part of the money which goes into this payroll comes from outside our city and outside our county from the national advertising carried in The Advocate.

There are other firms in our city which have the same record for growth, development and expansion. And as citizens of this community we should be and we are proud of this growth.

It is the patronizing of these concerns; the giving to them our business and assisting them in every way possible which has made the growth and expansion possible.

And the fact still remains that a community with a great many

What Other Editors Are Saying

JP CORONERS

Far be it from us to recommend more public offices and more officialdom but every now and then New Mexico suffers by its lack of proper coroners or official medical examiners.

As this is written authorities and their advisers are guessing about the cause of the death of a man found in a hotel room here. It was probably natural or suicide but no one can be sure by the investigation that was made.

As the law is set up any justice of peace handy may sit as a coroner and any loafers recruited to serve as a jury may pass on the cause of death.

Funds for autopsies or laboratory work in determining the cause of death are often not readily available. As a result there are some mighty strange cases of "natural death."

The state or the local governments would do well to explore the possibilities of setting up official medical examiners in a manner that would assure proper investigation in any case where doubt exists.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

INDIANS ARE UNHAPPY

There is much dissatisfaction on the Navajo and Hopi reservations because the budget bureau cut 4.5 million dollars from first year money for the 10-year rehabilitation program. Some Hopis have said all along that they want no part of it. Being one of the most conservative of all tribes, that is easy to understand. But many of the Hopi people are all for it.

Generally, the Navajos feel that they have been misled, that this money cut should be added to the already long list of broken promises. Dealing with the Indians and working out their progress will be more difficult for Indian service people. The word "Washington," used to mean much to the Navajos. Many of hearing it now will say: "So what?"—Gallup Independent.

small industries and businesses with small payrolls is always far better than one or two large industries with large payrolls. As has been pointed out when one of these small concerns goes out of business, it does not throw as many people out of work as when the large industry with many employees closes.

We feel sure that as a community, we want to aid and help these various businesses in any way and every way possible.

We are eager and anxious to see them continue to grow and to expand and increase the service they are rendering this community as well as to increase the number of their employees and their payrolls.—O.E.P.

THE SHERIFF AND THE GANGSTER

The sheriff at El Paso went out to the West Coast the other day and visited with Mickey Cohen, the notorious gambler and gangster, coming back to declare that he had a grand time and intimating that Cohen is a pretty nice sort of fellow. Wonder how the folks in the city of the pass feel about such goings-on. Do they feel that they have any security against Cohen setting up his rackets in the border town? Do they feel that it is a good policy for law enforcement officers to accept the hospitality of gangsters? From this viewpoint the situation looks like a new low in official integrity.—Roswell Record.

THE SCREWBALL TOWN

In case you hadn't heard the latest, it's Truth or Consequences again. That's the on-again, off-again screwy name of Hot Springs.

As odd as it seems, the people of Hot Springs voted again last Tuesday, 1262 to 732 to take that screwball name for their town.

So if you ever want to fish in Elephant Butte Lake or have to go to Carrie Tingley Hospital, you can step right up to the window, hold your nose and say: "Give me a ticket to Truth or Consequences, please."—Carlsbad Current-Argus.

DON'T BE SORRY FOR LONE REPUB

Those feeling sorry for Ed Mechen when he takes over as governor as a lone Republican flanked by Democrats on every side and above all in the legislature might as well relax. The governor of New Mexico has the power to run things as he likes. And if the legislature gets tough on budgets for the executive department agencies the governor can get tough with the elective Democrats in the state house through his board of finance which has frightening authority over other people's budgets.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

As Artesia Grows

TWENTY YEARS AGO
(From The Advocate files for Dec. 4, 1930)

Location of the Methodist Assembly summer camp in the Sacramento region has at last materialized. The site consists of 220 acres and is located four miles above Weed on the Roy Cawkins farmstead.

Fred J. Foster of Salt Lake City, in charge of the Western division of federal fish hatcheries, spent Friday in North Eddy County looking over the possible sites for the location of a federal warm-water fish hatchery.

Dr. R. E. McBride of Las Cruces, district governor of Rotary International, made an official visit to the Artesia Rotary Club at the regular meeting Tuesday.

At a meeting of the American Legion last night it was decided to carry out the program of last year in providing baskets for the needy families of Artesia. A subscription taken among the legionnaires present netted about $50, with more than an 100 comrades absent. It was also decided to have a Christmas tree for the children of needy families.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dixon entertained at a turkey dinner Thanksgiving. Their guests were Mrs. Dixon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. St. John, and her sisters, Miss Marjorie St. John, Mrs. Charles Garvin and three children, and Mrs. J. P. Howard and little son, all of Roswell, and Mrs. I. C. Dixon and family of Artesia.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Wheatley entertained at a turkey dinner on Sunday evening. Their guests were Misses Mary and Ella Bauslin and Mrs. Laura Welsh.

In order that Artesia might be clean as well as gayly lighted and decorated for Christmas, Emory Carper, mayor, has set aside Friday and Saturday of this week as special clean-up days in a move sponsored by the Artesia Woman's Club.

The local chapter of the National Tuberculosis Association reported Wednesday noon $151.45 had been taken in to date in the annual drive for funds for fighting tuberculosis.

Work on the new disposal plant for Artesia began Wednesday at the site a half mile east of the old plant, northeast of the city.

Artesia is now one of the best-placed cities of its size in the Southwest with the completion of the blacktopping project. P. V. Morris, city manager, said this week there are now about 200 blocks of paving in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Leslie Martin were hosts to members of the Monday Night Bridge Club.

Mrs. Herman Green was elected president of the Atoka Woman's Club, when they met at the home of Mrs. Alvin Payne on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. E. J. Foster addressed members of the Young Matrons' Circle on "Shifting Population," when they met at the home of Mrs. Glenn Stone last Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Spratt were hosts at a dinner at their home Sunday complimenting Dr. J. P. Turner of Carrizozo on his birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Lewis Story entertained members and guests of the First Afternoon Bridge Club at her home Tuesday afternoon. The high score prize was given to Mrs. J. Hise Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Dowell have announced the birth of a daughter at Artesia Memorial Hospital Tuesday night.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Bud Collyer

NEW YORK—These days in New York it always is starting to come across stray reminders that there still is an entertainment medium called radio. Television is depressingly rampant, in this lost Gomorrah.

I broke bread today in the Rough Rider Room of the Hotel Roosevelt (so called because after the fourth martini around the commuting hour, the riding gets very rough, indeed) with Bud Collyer, a handsome and graying radio announcer.

Bud, whose sister June some of you may recall from the movies—she's wed now to Stuart Erwin—is one of the busiest dispensers of commercials in the ah, shall we say profession? He also has become a familiar figure to television audiences, with whom his popularity would seem assured, because of his good looks.

Bud is the host on a quiz show called Break the Bank, and it was news to me to learn today that after five years of it, this feature still is going strong. I listen only to the ball games and the stray pieces of hot jazz on the radio, like the warped soul I am, and since I made an earth-shattering appearance on Break the Bank at least four years ago (I got up to $100 and then missed out on something like how to spell d-o-g), I assumed it had gone the way of all fads, like yo-yos, mah jongg and that game called wha's this?

However, the show now is aired not once but five times a week, and Mr. Collyer was talking this afternoon of it and other quiz shows. It seems that the quiz shows still are very much listened to, although some of the real turkeys have fallen by the wayside. And Break the Bank evidently has a higher rating than most of them because it continues to give cash for prizes.

Refrigerators, 80-piece sets of china and built-in bars are appealing, but Pearl Bailey says it for most people when she sings "Don't let my men fool around" with charge accounts; that's utterly rash; just let 'em pay cash, that all, I said cash.

"THE PETE NOIR OF ALL QUIZMASTERS is still the dark and hidden mind of the contestant," Bud said. "We always have to be on guard against unsuitable comments being made, intentionally or not—usually, of course, they aren't intentional—and I think every one of us on quiz shows is uneasy right through the whole half hour. You just never know what they're going to say."

"I had one man on one time who said he came from a small upstate New York town where the population remained constant at 750. Never a change one way or the other at census time. 'And how does that happen?' I asked, genuinely interested."

"Simple," he said. "Every time a baby is born, another man leaves town."

"Well," Collyer added, "the damage was done. What can you do with something like that? It's not downright indecent, just a little off the usual conversational lanes on the air. You couldn't just disregard it."

"So I waited for the laughter to die, thinking hard all the time, and then I turned to the studio audience and beamed. 'Now isn't that nice?' The big, strong men in this town, when they reach maturity, step aside to give growing-up room to some poor little baby."

Another headache of quizmasters is the appearance of "regulars," who go from show to show trying to answer the questions and make a living out of it.

Most of them are recognizable, and while some programs use these characters because they're hep and sometimes even entertaining in a way, Break the Bank thumbs them down. They like their contestants to be just normal, average citizens, if there are such.

SOME OF THE "REGULARS" GO TO EXTREME LENGTHS; they grow mustaches, or comb their hair differently or wear wigs, and so on. They would seem to be in a class with the gum-speakers, who comb the city's subway gratings with stick and wad of gum, trying to spear coins that have fallen between the chinks, and the "stoopers" who shuffle around the racetracks between and after the races, looking for cashable pari-mutuel tickets that have been thrown away by mistake.

Bud Collyer is a phenomenon in show business—a man who on weekends is superintendent of the Sunday school in the First Presbyterian church of Greenwich, Conn., where he lives with his wife, also a radio performer, and their three children.

Since he went with Break the Bank, which means since it began, $820,000 has been distributed among contestants. This—and I suspect, cynically, this alone—explains its tremendous popularity. Quick—how do you spell d-o-g?

Try and Stop Me

MRS. STAFFORD was the kind of mother who thought her eight-year-old daughter was more advanced than any other little girl in the neighborhood. She included her in the most sophisticated adult conversation, and even allowed her to use lipstick and Chanel Number Five.

When one of those new-fangled, arena style theatres under a tent came to town, therefore, to present Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," Mrs. Stafford took her daughter along to see it as a matter of course. The little girl was painfully attentive and well-behaved throughout the performance, and it was only after her mother had steered her out of the tent and toward the family station wagon that she burst into tears. Genuinely surprised, Mrs. Stafford said, "What's the matter, darling? Didn't you enjoy the play?" "Yes," sobbed the little girl, "but aren't we going to go and see the elephants?"

John Henry Robinson (no kin), the noted dog catcher at Portales, celebrated an overdue raise in pay by going deer hunting. He didn't find a deer to shoot at and while he was gone somebody opened the gate at the pound and released all of the inmates. It is a pretty safe bet that none of the liberators were voters or agreed that it was a dog-gone shame.

While the job pays $6000 a year, there doesn't seem to be any stampede for appointment as secretary-manager of the Clovis Chamber of Commerce, vacated by Fred Brooksher, who held the job satisfactorily much longer than anybody thought he ever could. This though it is an easy job to fill. All that is necessary to qualify is a trained business head, lots of diplomacy, the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon, the courage of a lion, a good speaking voice, and a willingness to stay on the job 25 hours a day, Sunday included. Carlsbad Office Releases Cotton Parity Schedule

Commodity Credit Corporation will support the price of 1951 crop upland cotton at 90 per cent of the parity price as of Aug. 1, 1951, it was made known today by the production and marketing administration, Carlsbad.

The price support will be carried out through loans to farmers. With no marketing quotas or acreage allotments in effect for the 1951 cotton crop, price support will obviously not be dependent upon producer compliance with quotas or allotments.

The Agricultural Act of 1949 makes price support mandatory for 1951-crop cotton at from 75 to 90 per cent parity, when no allotments and quotas are in effect.

Protest Those Rights

CONSIDERABLE ATTENTION is being given to civil rights in this state following the conviction of three officers in federal court charged with violating the civil rights of a suspect in a murder case.

These officers were charged with conspiring and depriving this individual of his American rights.

Following this, considerable comment has been heard at peace officers' meetings and elsewhere. Those in a position to issue warnings to officers that civil rights must not be ignored have been given. They should continue to be given.

There is little question but what the rights of many have been and are being violated every day. And the violation of these rights will continue just as long as the citizens permit them to be.

Only recently we heard a federal officer state that he felt sure that every sheriff's office in this state violates the rights of those they have arrested. We don't know whether the statement is true or not, but we do know if it is true this practice should be halted.

There is always a tendency to ignore the rights of those arrested or charged with crime. For years there has been a practice of invading private property, trespassing and failure to follow the procedure as prescribed by law.

Only a few months ago the United States Supreme Court ruled that an individual's automobile is his castle and that it cannot be searched without due process of law. There are times when officers get the idea they can trespass on private property or even enter and search homes without complying with the law.

That, of course, cannot be done legally and in any case where this question is involved and it comes into court, it will be thrown out.

But we as citizens have permitted our private rights to be invaded. We have permitted our liberties guaranteed to us under the Constitution to be ignored and denied us.

We have even seen instances in Eddy County where officers of the law felt they could run people out of the country—run them out under the threat of prosecuting them if they didn't leave.

Either they should have prosecuted them if they were guilty or let them alone if they were not guilty.

But we will only keep these rights when we are willing to fight for them.—O.E.P.

Lest We Forget

IT SEEMS WE FORGET not only the lessons taught by wars, but we forget those who have given their all that we might learn.

By we is meant not only the people in general, but those who have fought our wars and have lived to come home again.

The body of the first man from the Artesia community to give his life in the Korean conflict arrived home last week to be laid away in final rest close to his people. His body likewise was the first to be brought home.

He was accorded military rites at the graveside by a handful of veterans of earlier conflicts, who paid him homage and who represented the hundreds of other veterans in the community.

And that's what they barely did, represent the hundreds of others, for it took the efforts of two or three of the veterans the greater part of a day to prevail upon a sufficient number of their comrades to take part in the rites.

Rudyard Kipling, the great British poet, wrote:

"God of our fathers, known of old—
Lord of our farflung battleline—
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!"

The services for that Artesia boy were symbolical of as yet unheld services for other Artesia boys who are certain to have died or yet will give their lives in the terrible, blundering conflict in the Far East.

It was symbolical of those who made the supreme sacrifice in earlier wars in which the United States was involved.

"If drunk with sight of power, we lose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe—
Such boasting as the Gentiles use,
Or lesser breeds without the Law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!"

It makes no difference that a man may not be of the same race as the majority of us. His job is as important, his sacrifice just as great. He deserves the same consideration from the general public and his comrades as any other—lest we forget, lest we forget!—A.L.B.

We're Still Growing

IT IS RATHER SURPRISING and amazing to learn how some of our business firms and concerns have grown and are growing in our community. Many of us would be very much surprised if we sit down to analyze the situation and learned just where the income we have in our community comes from and how the payrolls of our firms have increased.

Not one, but many of the firms and business concerns in our community have doubled their number of employees. This has automatically doubled their payrolls or in some instances tripled their payrolls.

All of this, of course, is money which comes into the community and money which is spent in our community. It helps to make for good business and to maintain our prosperity.

We recall that five years ago when we purchased The Advocate, there was a total of five employees and the payroll was around $250 to $300 per week, not including the owner.

There are today some 16 or more employees at The Advocate and the payroll exceeds $1000 every week or over $50,000 per year. A part of the money which goes into this payroll comes from outside our city and outside our county from the national advertising carried in The Advocate.

There are other firms in our city which have the same record for growth, development and expansion. And as citizens of this community we should be and we are proud of this growth.

It is the patronizing of these concerns; the giving to them our business and assisting them in every way possible which has made the growth and expansion possible.

And the fact still remains that a community with a great many

What Other Editors Are Saying

JP CORONERS

Far be it from us to recommend more public offices and more officialdom but every now and then New Mexico suffers by its lack of proper coroners or official medical examiners.

As this is written authorities and their advisers are guessing about the cause of the death of a man found in a hotel room here. It was probably natural or suicide but no one can be sure by the investigation that was made.

As the law is set up any justice of peace handy may sit as a coroner and any six loafers recruited to serve as a jury may pass on the cause of death.

Funds for autopsies or laboratory work in determining the cause of death are often not readily available. As a result there are some mighty strange cases of "natural death."

The state or the local governments would do well to explore the possibilities of setting up official medical examiners in a manner that would assure proper investigation in any case where doubt exists.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

INDIANS ARE UNHAPPY

There is much dissatisfaction on the Navajo and Hopi reservations because the budget bureau cut 4.5 million dollars from first year money for the 10-year rehabilitation program. Some Hopis have said all along that they want no part of it. Being one of the most conservative of all tribes, that is easy to understand. But many of the Hopi people are all for it.

Generally, the Navajos feel that they have been misled, that this money cut should be added to the already long list of broken promises. Dealing with the Indians and working out their progress will be more difficult for Indian service people. The word "Washington," used to mean much to the Navajos. Many of hearing it now will say: "So what?"—Gallup Independent.

small industries and businesses with small payrolls is always far better than one or two large industries with large payrolls. As has been pointed out when one of these small concerns goes out of business, it does not throw as many people out of work as when the large industry with many employees closes.

We feel sure that as a community, we want to aid and help these various businesses in any way and every way possible.

We are eager and anxious to see them continue to grow and to expand and increase the service they are rendering this community as well as to increase the number of their employees and their payrolls.—O.E.P.

THE SHERIFF AND THE GANGSTER

The sheriff at El Paso went out to the West Coast the other day and visited with Mickey Cohen, the notorious gambler and gangster, coming back to declare that he had a grand time and intimating that Cohen is a pretty nice sort of fellow. Wonder how the folks in the city of the pass feel about such goings-on. Do they feel that they have any security against Cohen setting up his rackets in the border town? Do they feel that it is a good policy for law enforcement officers to accept the hospitality of gangsters? From this viewpoint the situation looks like a new low in official integrity.—Roswell Record.

THE SCREWBALL TOWN

In case you hadn't heard the latest, it's Truth or Consequences again. That's the on-again, off-again screwy name of Hot Springs.

As odd as it seems, the people of Hot Springs voted again last Tuesday, 1262 to 732 to take that screwball name for their town. So if you ever want to fish in Elephant Butte Lake or have to go to Carrie Tingley Hospital, you can step right up to the window, hold your nose and say: "Give me a ticket to Truth or Consequences, please."—Carlsbad Current-Argus.

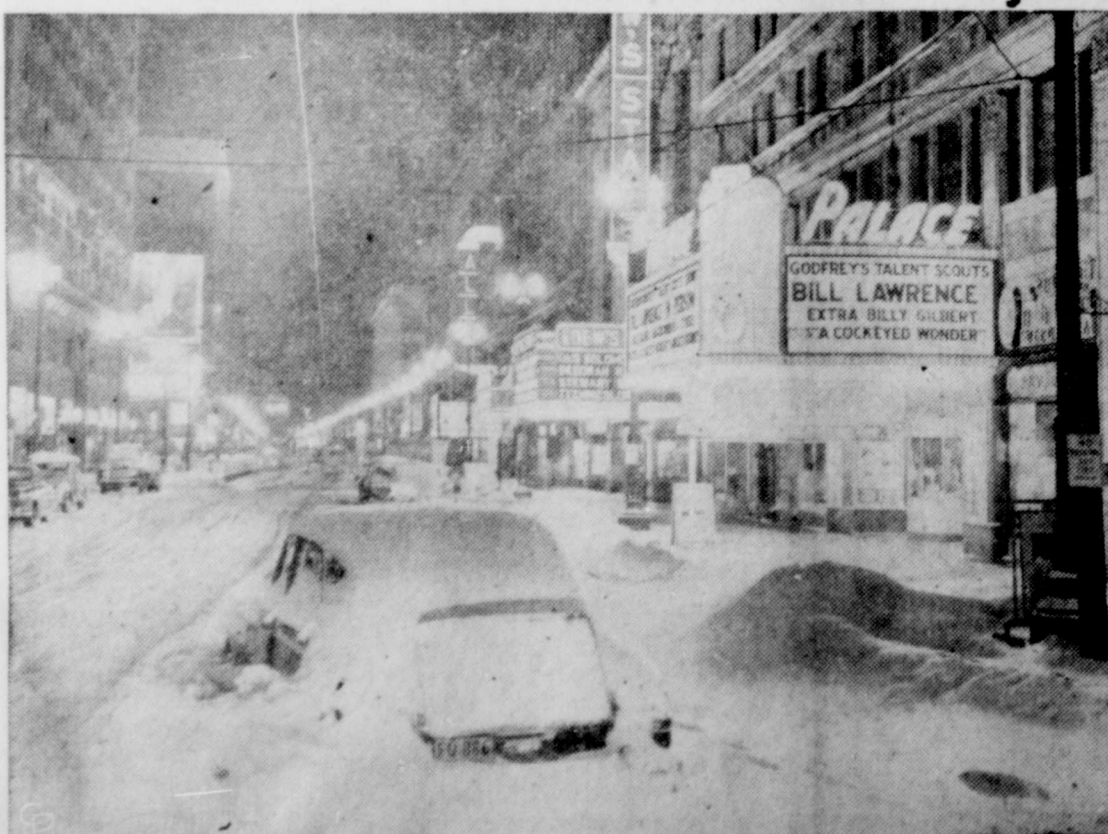

DON'T BE SORRY FOR LONE REPUB

Those feeling sorry for Ed Mechen when he takes over as governor as a lone Republican flanked by Democrats on every side and above all in the legislature might as well relax. The governor of New Mexico has the power to run things as he likes. And if the legislature gets tough on budgets for the executive department agencies the governor can get tough with the elective Democrats in the state house through his board of finance which has frightening authority over other people's budgets.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Bud Collyer

NEW YORK—These days in New York it always is startling to come across stray reminders that there still is an entertainment medium called radio. Television is depressingly rampant, in this lost Gomorrah.

I broke bread today in the Rough Rider Room of the Hotel Roosevelt (so called because after the fourth martini around the commuting hour, the riding gets very rough, indeed) with Bud Collyer, a handsome and graying radio announcer.

Bud, whose sister June some of you may recall from the movies—she's wed now to Stuart Erwin—is one of the busiest dispensers of commercials in the, ah, shall we say profession? He also has become a familiar figure to television audiences, with whom his popularity would seem assured, because of his good looks.

Bud is the host on a quiz show called Break the Bank, and it was news to me to learn today that after five years of it, this feature still is going strong. I listen only to the ball games and the stray pieces of hot jazz on the radio, like the warped soul I am, and since I made an earth-shattering appearance on Break the Bank at least four years ago (I got up to $100 and then missed out on something like how to spell d-o-g), I assumed it had gone the way of all fads, like yo-yos, mah jongg and that game called what's this?

However, the show now is aired not once but five times a week, and Mr. Collyer was talking this afternoon of it and other quiz shows. It seems that the quiz shows still are very much listened to, although some of the real turkeys have fallen by the wayside. And Break the Bank evidently has a higher rating than most of them because it continues to give cash for prizes.

Refrigerators, 80-piece sets of china and built-in bars are appealing, but Pearl Bailey says it for most people when she sings "Don't let my men fool around" with charge accounts; that's utterly rash; just let 'em pay cash, that all, I said cash."

"THE PETE NOIR OF ALL QUIZMASTERS is still the dark and hidden mind of the contestant," Bud said. "We always have to be on guard against unsuitable comments being made, intentionally or not—usually, of course, they aren't intentional—and I think every one of us on quiz shows is uneasy right through the whole half hour. You just never know what they're going to say."

"I had one man on one time who said he came from a small upstate New York town where the population remained constant at 750. Never a change one way or the other at census time. 'And how does that happen?' I asked, genuinely interested."

"Simple," he said. "Every time a baby is born, another man leaves town."

"Well," Collyer added, "the damage was done. What can you do with something like that? It's not downright indecent, just a little off the usual conversational lanes on the air. You couldn't just disregard it."

"So I waited for the laughter to die, thinking hard all the time, and then I turned to the studio audience and beamed, 'Now isn't that nice? The big, strong men in this town, when they reach maturity, step aside to give growing-up room to some poor little baby.'"

Another headache of quizmasters is the appearance of "regulars," who go from show to show trying to answer the questions and make a living out of it.

Most of them are recognizable, and while some programs use these characters because they're hip and sometimes even entertaining in a way, Break the Bank thumbs them down. They like their contestants to be just normal, average citizens, if there are such.

SOME OF THE "REGULARS" GO TO EXTREME LENGTHS; they grow mustaches, or comb their hair differently or wear wigs, and so on. They would seem to be in a class with the gum-suckers, who comb the city's subway gratings with stick and wad of gum, trying to spear coins that have fallen between the chinks, and the "stoopers" who shuffle around the racetracks between and after the races, looking for cashable pari-mutuel tickets that have been thrown away by mistake.

Bud Collyer is a phenomenon in show business—a man who on weekends is superintendent of the Sunday school in the First Presbyterian church of Greenwich, Conn., where he lives with his wife, also a radio performer, and their three children.

Since he went with Break the Bank, which means since it began, $820,000 has been distributed among contestants. This—and I suspect, cynically, this alone—explains its tremendous popularity. Quick—how do you spell d-o-g?

We could be friends to the rising generation of Eastern Germany—if only the Russians wouldn't try to make them the uprising generation!—Pathfinder.

MRS. STAFFORD was the kind of mother who thought her eight-year-old daughter was more advanced than any other little girl in the neighborhood. She included her in the most sophisticated adult conversation, and even allowed her to use lipstick and Chanel Number Five.

When one of those new-fangled, arena style theatres under a tent came to town, therefore, to present Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," Mrs. Stafford took her daughter along to see it as a matter of course. The little girl was painfully attentive and well-behaved throughout the performance, and it was only after her mother had steered her out of the tent and toward the family station wagon that she burst into tears. Genuinely surprised, Mrs. Stafford said, "What's the matter, darling? Didn't you enjoy the play?" "Yes," sobbed the little girl, "but aren't we going to go and see the elephants?"

While the job pays $6000 a year, there doesn't seem to be any stampede for appointment as secretary-manager of the Clovis Chamber of Commerce, vacated by Fred Brook-sher, who held the job satisfactorily much longer than anybody thought he ever could. This though it is an easy job to fill. All that is necessary to qualify is a trained business head, lots of diplomacy, the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon, the courage of a lion, a good speaking voice, and a willingness to stay on the job 25 hours a day, Sunday included. United Nations Set Up Postal Administration

By C. Gottfried Fink

With the recognition of the value of postage stamps as "propaganda for peace" and as a potential source of much needed revenue, the United Nations general assembly voted Nov. 16, a plan to establish a United Nations Postal Administration.

Sec. Gen. Trygve Lie was authorized by the assembly to sign a contract and agreement with the United States Post Office Department that would put the plan into operation.

The new administration will be set up Jan. 1, 1951, but it is not expected that full operation will be possible before July, 1951, according to the New York Times.

The agreement the secretary general is to make with the United States post office department is that the post office department will operate the post office at U.N. headquarters in New York City.

The U.N. Postal Administration will reimburse the post office for its services and will supply the stamps.

Bertil A. Renborg of Sweden will head the U.N. Postal Administration.

Revenue from this source is estimated at $300,000 the first year.

Operating cost of the administration for the first year has been estimated at $83,000.

This figure includes the $5000 for the expense of a world-wide stamp design contest.

In approving the plan for a U.N. Postal Administration, the general assembly authorized appointment of a committee to select the designs to appear on the U.N. stamps.

It also provided that the postal address for United Nations headquarters district would be designated as "United Nations, N. Y."

Mail to an addressee in the U.S. would cost the normal postage on first class letters.

A letter to a point abroad would travel at the same rate as a letter sent through the U.S. postoffice by first class mail.

There has been no precedent for issue of stamps by an international organization although headquarters of international organizations in Switzerland have for a number of years used specially overprinted stamps of that country.

The idea of a separate United Nations postal agency first was suggested in 1947 by Benjamin A. Cohen, assistant secretary general for public information.

The United Nations sources point out that the plan will not infringe on any national postal system, since the United Nations will observe the conventions of the Universal Postal Union regarding arrangements between countries on the carrying of international mail.

Once again we find the United States will act as sponsoring government in the union, although the United Nations postal agency would have no direct voice in its affairs.

Will those be one of the unwanted?

Artesia Told How To Guard Against A-Bomb Dangers

Any fear Artesia residents may experience because of the possibility of atomic attack is allayed, at least partially, by an official U.S. government booklet titled "Survival Under Atomic Attack." A copy has been received by the chamber of commerce.

Prologue says: "You can survive. You can live without warning in the air over your home town tonight your calculated chances of living:

"The secrets of survival are to know the bomb's true dangers, know the steps you can take to escape them."

If a modern A-bomb exploded without warning in the air over your home town tonight your calculated chances of living:

No hope of living through it if you were right under the bomb. Anywhere within one-half mile of the center of explosion your chances of escaping are one out of 10.

From one-half to a mile away your chances are 50-50; one to one and one-half, 15 in 100; points one and one-half to two miles, deaths drop to two or three out of 100.

Beyond two miles the explosion causes practically no deaths at all. Your chances of being injured are greater than those of being killed. Even radioactivity injury, however, does not mean that you will be left a cripple or doomed to die an early death.

Survival Secrets

1. Try to get shielded. If you have time get down in a basement. If caught outdoors seek shelter alongside a building or jump in a ditch or gutter.

2. Drop flat on ground or floor to keep from being tossed about and to lessen the chances of being struck by falling and flying objects. Flatten out at the base of a wall or at the bottom of a bank.

3. Bury your face in your arms. When you drop flat hide your eyes in the crook of your elbow. That will protect your face from flash burns, prevent temporary blindness and keep flying objects out of your eyes.

4. Don't rush outside right after a bombing. After an air burst wait a few minutes then go help fight fires. After other kinds of bursts wait at least one hour to give lingering radiation some chance to die down.

5. Don't take chances with food

Robert Bourland
INSURANCE
PHONE 52

or water in open containers. To prevent radioactive poisoning or disease select your food and water with care. When there is reason to believe they may be contaminated stick to canned and bottled things if possible.

6. Don't start rumors. In the confusion that follows a bombing a single rumor might touch off a panic that could cost your life.
