Quick Passage Expected For Housing Bill

Loans And Outright Grants For Low-Rent Dwellings Are To Be Authorized

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Senate leaders, confident most controversial problems were out of the way, forecast today speedy passage of the Wagner housing bill.

Heartened by the collapse of last week's rebellion over wage and hour legislation, they called up the housing measure for debate which they said would probably not last for more than a day or two.

To Authorize Loans

The bill, one of the major points in the administration's legislative program, would authorize loans and outright contributions to public housing agencies for construction of low-rent dwelling units and the eradication of slums.

A bond issue of $700,000,000 over the next three years would provide funds for loans. An initial appropriation of $26,000,000 would be used to make direct federal contributions and pay administrative expense.

The United States Chamber of Commerce, criticizing the bill, said government-subsidized housing as a permanent policy would "inevitably have demoralizing effects upon soundly conceived community efforts to rehabilitate and rebuild blighted and slum areas."

Expenses Astounding

Senator Byrd (D-Va) said in a statement that overhead expenses of the Resettlement administration's homstead projects were "astounding."

He said 178 home units for mountain people of Virginia would cost nearly $8,000 each and a responsible contractor had submitted a bid to reproduce the houses in one group at $900 each.

After a vote on the Wagner bill, the senate will take up the non-controversial court procedure bill.

Little opposition was expected unless someone should attempt to revive the original supreme court reorganization program. There were reports of such a move, but no confirmation of it.

House Holds Key

Now that the wage-hour bill has been passed by the senate, the house became the key to adjournment. It still has to pass on the labor measure and the housing bill.

Another administration measure—the bill to plug tax loopholes—was expected to reach the two houses within a few days. Democratic leaders expected little opposition.

A potential trouble-maker is sugar quota legislation. Blocs in both senate and house propose to limit sharply the amount of refined sugar Hawaii and Puerto Rico may send to the mainland. Administration officials oppose the limitations.

House leaders said they expected to take up the legislation Thursday. Meanwhile they called up minor bills.

King Ranch Mystery Deepens As Death Strikes Autocratic Foreman

This is the first of four stories telling the romantic western adventure true story that lies behind the mystery of the King ranch, vast Texas cattle domain where two men entered and never reappeared.

BY GORDON TURRENTINE
NEA Service Special Correspondent

RAYMONDVILLE, Tex., Aug. 2—Death strikes again at the great King ranch, fabulous 1,250,000-acre "principality" at the southern tip of Texas, deepening the air of mystery that has hung over its vast acres ever since last November.

Today it is George Durham, 42, autocratic foreman of the El Saus section of the ranch, who is dead. Three doctors and an undertaker certified that Durham died naturally of a heart attack while branding cattle. This quieted widespread rumors of a shooting.

But the farmers outside the borders of the King domain remember the Blantons, father and son, who climbed the fence into El Sauz last fall and never returned. And they wait grimly to hear the report of Capt. Bill McMurray, most famous of modern Texas rangers, who says he has solved the Blanton case and will announce his findings as soon as the case is "ironclad."

McMurray, recently named by the governor as the outstanding and most typical ranger, was put in charge of the case after long investigation of the Blanton disappearance had satisfied nobody, proved nothing.

His announcement of a solution inspired confidence, but the sudden death of Durham fanned once again a feud which has smoldered and broken into intermittent flame for years between the farmers of Willacy county and the armed riders who guard the fenced borders of the vast, almost autonymous King ranch "empire."

Two Swallowed Up

It was on Nov. 18, 1936, that Luther Blanton, 57, and his son, John, 34, climbed the fence between their tiny farm and the El Saus section of the King ranch.

That fence encloses continuously a million and a quarter acres spreading over eight counties in southwest Texas, an area scarcely smaller than the state of Delaware. For generations those who ran the King ranch have been practically a law unto themselves within their own domain.

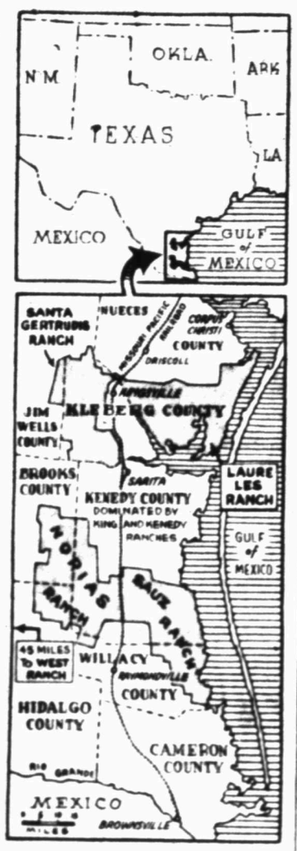

The Blantons had two shotguns and three shells and they were going to hunt ducks. The King ranch, maintaining at some cost a game preserve, protects it by ranch-paid game wardens and armed fence riders. Just before dusk the sound of three shots came out of the tangled, thorned mesquite brush and tall grass.

The Blantons did not return and when dawn came 100 farmers and townsmen were gathered on the cottonpatch side of the fence. On the other side were ranch officers and farm hands who said they

The vast extent of the King ranch is shown in the above map, the upper panel showing its location at the southern tip of Texas, the lower its great extent. Durham was boss of El Suaz. His death was less mysterious than those of the Blantons, though Ranger Capt. McMurray claims to have solved even the latter after Lamadrid's investigation was cut short.

Chinese Army Concentrations Bombed; Thousands Of Men Mobilized By Both Sides

(By The Associated Press)

PEIPING, Aug. 2.—Japanese, now completely in control of China's ancient dragon capital, closed the gates of Peiping today, virtually imprisoning Americans and other foreigners within the walls as squadrons of Japanese war planes blasted a path for a thrust deep into China.

Japanese authorities said their planes had been bombing Chinese army concentrations at Paotingfu, capital of Hopeh province 86 miles to the southwest, for the last 24 hours. Japanese scouting planes were ranging as far south as Tsinan in Shantung province, some 175 miles below Tientsin.

Troops Being Massed

Authoritative reports to Hanking from northern Shantung province corrobrated a belief that the Chinese central government was massing men on the southern edge of the hostilities zone. They said troops were moving north by railroad, evigently toward the Hopeh border.

Native newspapers in Shanghai also reported the central government "increasingly preparing for war contingencies" at Hsuchow, an important railroad junction in Klangsu province.

Although Japanese asserted the area around Peiping was quiet they erected heavy fortifications at both the east and south gates of the city. A United States army officer and missionary were halted at the east gate and refused permission to set out on a mission of mercy to Tungchow.

City Severely Bombed

They wanted to investigate damage done to the American missionary school at the capital of the east Hopeh autonomous regime. Tungchow was severely bombed last Friday in an effort to quell an uprising of militarized Chinese police.

The Japanese army, heavily reinforced, was penetrating rapidly to the south along the strategic railway to Hankow, which has been the main artery of the reported advance of 50,000 central government troops commanded by Gen. Chen Cheng.

Reinforcements for the some 25,000 Japanese troops mopping up in the area were being poured into North China both through the great wall passes to the north and by rail from Shanhaikwan on the Manchoukuoan border to the east.

Rail Service Disrupted

Troop movements completely disrupted all normal rail service throughout Hopeh province. Schedules were almost inoperative north of the border of Shantung province.

Tientsin, Japanese army headquarters 60 miles southeast of Peiping, was quiet but tense. The Japanese tightened their grip on the city as a result of reports that Chinese airplanes in great numbers had been scouting the Tientsin area. Japanese authorities claimed that the Chinese mint had been converted into an arsenal and filled with rifles and explosives.

The Soviet consulate-general at Tientsin was invaded and wrecked by White Russians. Soviet sources charged Japanese plain clothes operatives aided in the raid during which many of the consular records were carried off. Japanese denied they had participated.

The Russian report said that the raiders, armed with rifles and machine gupns, broke down the consulate's doors while Japanese troops halted traffic in the vicinity.

Drunks Facing Blacklist At Deb Parties

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 — The young gentlemen who follow the "chicken-patty trail" of debutante parties, in and around New York, are faced with a stricter ban than ever on serious drinking this season.

"Men who get drunk at coming-out parties this year will find themselves black-listed and not invited again," said Miss Mildred Chapman, a cheerful, grey-haired woman, who, as one of New York's leading social secretaries, knows all about the dread little black books which may turn a budding young berry wall into a social outcast.

Behave Much Better

"On the whole, though, the boys and girls are behaving much better," Miss Chapman said. "They were pretty bad during prohibition."

Not that there won't be plenty of liquor. Some of the lavish big parties figure on $8 or $9 a head for liquid refreshment.

All told, the larger deb parties cost anywhere from $2,500 to $25,000, depending on the number of guests, which run

Bodies Mangled In Air Mishap At Littlefield

(Special To Journal)

LITTLEFIELD, Aug. 2.—A pilot and his three passengers were dashed to mangled death at 4:27 o'clock Sunday afternoon when a Lycoming 215 SM8A four-place high wing cabin monoplane spun into the ground from low altitude and buried its nose in a cotton field two miles northwest of Littlefield.

The dead:

O. V. SIMMS, 43, Slaton Santa Fe railroad brakeman.

R. A. BAXTER, 18, CCC camp worker of Wellington, Texas.

VERNE HANKINS, 32, farmer of Littlefield.

ORVILLE TABOR, 27, farmer of Littlefield.

The plane, falling off in a 270-degree turn from downwind into the east, struck the ground with such terrific impact a tractor and a service garage truck had to be employed to separate the wreckage before Simms and the occupant of the right forward seat could be removed.

Altitude estimates range from 130 to 500 feet.

The engine had been driven backward "into the laps" of the pilot and the person, not immediately identified, who sat beside him, and they had been thrown forward against it. Metal tubing had been thrust through the right leg of the man sitting in the right front seat, so that he could not be lifted from the splintered and crushed debris until it had been cut.

Witnesses of the crash were indefinite as to what happened and as to contributing circumstances. No pilot, apparently, saw the crash.

Lubbock airmen, Clent Breedlove, manager of Municipal airport; Art Chase, J. H. York, Gene White, Truman Meinecke, and Bill Alder, appeared at the crash scene soon afterward, all except Alder, a highway patrolman, flying here after being informed of the crash. Alder and Jack Reaves, another highway patrolman, were in Littlefield when informed by personnel of Stokes Drug store of the crash, and rushed to the cotton field on motorcycles in time to protect the plane and escort ambulances loaded with the dead back into the city.

Falls Off On Wing

The airmen were informed the plane had been flying north, or downwind, in "rotten air made up of gusts and vertical currents." The engine began spluttering, either before the pilot banked to the right or after he had put his ship into the turn, and the big craft fell off on a wing and spun in out of control to the ground. The nose of the ship was facing eastward when the advance of a crowd reckoned as high as 4,000 persons arrived.

All occupants of the ship apparently had died instantly. Simms, who had flown his ship here Sunday morning from Lubbock, where it had been hangared several months, had been "hopping passengers" all day, said J. A. Price, editor of the County-Wide News of Littlefield.

Was At Low Altitude

I. W. Curry, farmer of Littlefield, said the plane was at low altitude when the engine went out.

Herman Kelm, another eyewitness, said the motor continued sputtering spasmodically until it was buried in the soft earth.

Breedlove, however, said the switch "was cut, and was bent," which lent credence the pilot had turned it off at the last few seconds. The fact he held in each hand a broken fragment of the wheel indicated he had "cut the ignition" and made a last despairing attempt to bring the plane out of its spin.

Falls Near Farm Home

The plane fell within 100 yards of the farm home of B. P. Hodge, five minutes after leaving its takeoff and landing field near the CCC camp.

Airmen surmised bad flying conditions, low altitude and a failing engine had contributed to throw the plane out of control.

Simms began flying about 1926 at Amarillo, getting "stick time" from the ill-fated Lieut. Hector Gray, who later was killed in a crash with several passengers. Simms had discontinued flying for several years until about three years ago, at which time he again became active. He had piled up approximately 200 hours flying time, said his intimates. He was a private pilot, which allowed him to carry passengers anywhere without hire.

Breedlove said the wind, when he took off for Littlefield and the crash scene, was approximately 20 miles an hour south southeast and that the air was extremely rough.

To Make Investigation

Inspector A. W. Meadows of the United States Aeronautical corps of the department of commerce was informed of the crash and announced he would be in Littlefield this afternoon. The plane, guarded from the curious, was taken by truck into Littlefield Sunday night. Official investigation into cause of the crash will be made.

Injunction Issued To Block Change In School Funds

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (AP)—Ghent Sanderford, president of the state board of education, received notice today a San Antonio court had issued a temporary injunction restraining the board from changing its recent order fixing the per capita scholastic apportionmen at $22.

The injunction was granted by District Judge W. W. McCrory on application of the San Antonio independent school district and others as the board prepared to meet in Austin and possibly consider again the amount the state would pay next year for education of pupils in its free school system.

Harvard President Emeritus Injured In Auto Accident

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Aug. 2 (AP)—A. Lawrence Lowell, 80, president emeritus of Harvard university, who last year failed and later passed a test for drivers more than 65 years old, was under hospital treatment today for injuries suffered in an automobile collision.

Physicians said the elderly educator suffered a fractured nose, a possible fracture of the right arm and a chin laceration. They described his condition as "good."

Kittrell May Get Position

Temporary appointment of Lewis Kittrell, police traffic officer for the last three years, as city recorder to succeed C. E. Luce, who resigned to become deputy United States marshal, was announced this morning by Police Chief H. L. (Bud) Johnston.

Kittrell will serve until the city commission makes a permanent appointment to the place, probably at a recessed meeting set for next Saturday. The city charter requires that the appointment be made by the commission.

Recommended By Chief

Chief Johnston said he will recommend that Kittrell be given the post. If that should be done, he added, there probably will not be an immediate addition to the police department to fill the vacancy result ingfrom Kittrell's promotion.

"Kittrell is the man in the department who is best qualified for the job," Johnston remarked. "Hhe probably has a more thorough knowledge of city traffic ordinances than any other man."

On Force Since 1934

Kittrell is a member of a pioneer South Plains family and has been a member of the police department

Father Is First Complainant Against Son In Theft Case

NEW YORK, Aug 2 (AP)—A blind father told police today he wanted to be the "first complainant" against his 18-year-old son, charged with theft.

"He should have been arrested long ago," said the father, Fred Klow, confronted by his son, Richard Klow, in a police station. "I could never do anything with him. He is a thief. I want to be the first complainant against him."

The youth was charged with stealing $18 from Martin Auerbach, a man who befriended him, and several hundred dollars worth of jewelry and religious insignia from his father and his aunt, Mrs. Mary Kavats.

Treatment For Nine Ordered

Telegram from state laboratories at Austin that a dog which died in the 2200 block on Eighteenth street Friday night was afflicted with rabies was received this morning by Dr. F. G. Harbaugh, associate professor of animal husbandry and veterinarian at Texas Technological college.

The notification, Dr. Harbaugh was informed, will mean that at least nine and perhaps as many as 20 children who are residents of the neighborhood will take anti-rabies serum.

Treatment Planned

Those for whom immediate start of treatment was planned included:

Howard, Elizabeth, Bob and Dick Schmidt, children of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Schmidt, 2206 Eighteenth.

Malcolm and George Young, children of Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Young, 2206 Eighteenth.

Billy Allen and June McAlister, children of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. McAlister, 2209 Eighteenth.

Marvin McLarty, jr., 2210 Eighteenth street, life guard at City swimming pool and former high school football player who actually was bitten by the dog.

Away On Vacation

Mrs. McLarty, sr., and three other children are away on their vacation and uncertainty was expressed this morning as to whether they will require treatment. Probabilities are, however, McLarty said, that they will be given serum. The dog belong to the McLarty family.

Dr. Schmidt said that others probably have been exposed among the 26 children of high school age and under who reside in the one block. The dog was something of a neighborhood pet and had played at one time or another with almost every

Plea For Life Of Bandit Is To Be Made

(Special To The Journal)

MATADOR, Aug. 2—The other Luke Trammel," the one known to Motley county persons before he shot his way from the Brazoria county prison farm approximately a year ago and terrorized a great section of Texas before being recaptured and sentenced to pay the supreme penalty in the Texas electric chair the twentieth of this month, has caused a well-defined plea that the desperado's sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

Full information regarding Trammel's conduct here, when with a half-brother he made a crop on the U. L. Wilie farm near Roaring Springs in 1932, has been asked of Sheriff L. A. Carlisle by Carl Basland, acting director of the research classification of the Texas prison system.

Has Slight Chance

Motley county authorities said they believed he had slight chance of clemency, even in event reports from here warrant such action.

Wilie said, after receiving a similar letter:

"While I am convinced that Trammel is a criminal, I feel he deserves a commuted sentence of life imprisonment. I do not believe he ever had a chance.

He Worked Hard

"I know that he worked hard for me and that he was honets in all our transactions. I knew that he was an ex-convict when he, his half-brother and widowed mother rented the farm, and I tried to give him a chance. He was constantly being questioned and, in some instances, abused by peace officers every time a crime was committed within one hundred miles of here, because of his prison record.

"On one occasion, I visited the farm near the noon hour and was invited in to dinner. They had nothing to eat but blackeyed peas, cooked without meat or seasoning, white cornbread and water. During the meal, the gray-haired mother prayed earnestly for her boys with tearful thanks for my kindness and the prospects for a good crop.

Crop Was Destroyed

"A few days later, the crop was destroyed by hail.

"I did not keep them the second

Non-Skid Iron Highways Are Seen As Boon To Motorists; Advantages Of Idea Are Shown

(By The Associated Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 2—The screech of grinding brakes punctuates the ordinarily placid calm on the University of Minnesota campus these hot summer days.

Oddly enough the sound effects mark no traffic difficulties but Dr. E. W. Davis' hopes that the tests he is making will end one of the highway's greatest hazards—skidding.

Dr. Davis, head of the university school of mines, is the man behind the idea that the answer to some traffic problems is a cast iron pavement.

So the old car he has mounted in his laboratory gets an almost daily drubbing in the experiments centering around Dr. Davis' non-skid, non-glare pavement featuring corrugated surfaces similar to the tread on an automobile tire.

The Minnesota scientist whose proposal blends into the business of trying to find a greater outlet for the state's vast stores of low grade iron ore, believes that his revolutionary plan "will help highway experts match the advancement in motive power."

"This new pavement," he said, "would speed up traffic on the highway and at the same time assure almost complete car control. The design of the cast iron blocks with their corrugated surfaces provide a greater amount of grip and cuts down considerably on reflection and glare."

More severe tests of the iron pavement will be made later in August on a recently layed half block strip in front of the university music hall.

Dr. Davis believes iron paving

"Venus Women" Are Predicted By New York Beauty Expert

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP) — "Venus women"—stronger than men and more beautiful than ever — soon will put skids under the now-reigning "glamor girls," a beauty expert predicted today.

Russell Mancuso, instructor for the nation's pioneer WPA beauty course offered under the adult education program, declared the "rouge and lipstick era is about over."

"Women will turn their attention from wardrobe and makeup details to more worldly affairs," he said.

"They will be altogether different and superior to men in strength, with enough beauty thrown in to sway the affairs of the nation."

Competition among women will stimulate the new type and new strength, Mancuso added.

"For that matter, women are already stronger than men, as a general rule," he asserted.

"Gossips won't talk much longer about the shade of a woman's stockings. They'll discuss the type of vitamin pills she carries in her compact."

Margaret Liming Is Wed To Harold Lee Graves

Miss Margaret Liming and Harold Lee Graves were married in Big Spring Saturday night at 6 o'clock with Dr. C. A. Bickley, pastor of the First Methodist church in Big Spring, reading a single ring ceremony at the church parlors. The immediate family of the bride attended.

Mrs. Graves is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Liming of San Angelo and a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Shelton of this city.

Mr. Graves is a son of Mrs. Pearl Graves of San Angelo. The couple will be at home in San Angelo where the bridegroom is a city employe.

Mrs. Sutherland To Entertain Club

Mrs. T. J. Sutherland will entertain for the Tuesday Bridge club tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Hilton hotel. Luncheon will be served at one o'clock in the coffee shop of the hotel.

The club has planned a special courtesy for Mrs. Harry Hunter, member, who is leaving soon for San Antonio.

Mrs. Walter Ford will be a luncheon guest.

Those to play bridge are Mesdames J. D. Shaw, Olen Stewart, Carl Slaton, Olan Key, J. Ray Dickey, Hunter and Louis Winn.

William Wirt, attorney-general during the terms of Monroe and Adams, had a longer term than any other incumbent of that office. He served 12 years, from 1817 to 1829.

Personal Mention

Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Canon are to return this week from two weeks' visit in Los Angeles.

Dr. and Mrs. F. Q. Kelleam and daughters, Misses Harriett and Elaine Kelleam of Amarillo and their house guest, Miss Laetitia Womack of El Paso were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will J. White Sunday. Miss Zoe White, who spent last week in Amarillo, accompanied them to Lubbock. Mrs. Kelleam and Mrs. White are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Stancil Bagwell, who were married in Chicago in June, are the guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Bagwell, 1633 Sixteenth street. Mr. Bagwell is a teacher in the Amarillo Public schools.

Hubbers Split Double Header With Amarillo Oilers Here Sunday

Lubbock Cops First 14-4 But Loses Pep To Drop Nightcap

BY COLLIER PARRIS

The Hubbers, full of desire and the old college try, went to town with Lefty Jerry Blanchard in a large way yesterday—temporarily. But they couldn't stand prosperity; they lost their hustle and they lost the nightcap of a double header to split even with their bitterest rivals, the Phillips "66" Oilers of Amarillo.

The slugging, as well as the pitching and catching, of Lubbock's battery in the nine-inning main event brought the Hubbers a welcomed and profitable 14 to 4 victory, joyfully and loudly accepted by an almost capacity "house" at the local park. It was Lubbock's first win over an Amarillo ball club in, oh, ever so many starts—four this season, and revenge for three previous defeats, all of them on the home diamond, was sweet indeed.

Hubbers Shoot Their Bolt

But the Hubbers shot their bolt in that hectic contest. They came back for the afterpiece, tired, sluggish, awkward and all thumbs. They broke their backs swinging at old Luke Coburn's curve ball, and they probably kept on swinging in their sleep last night.

The wily Coburn, a distinct pain to Lubbock batsmen for more than one season, had the locals at his mercy, had them buffaloed, bamboozled and biting the backs of their necks to win a three-hit shutout, 10 to narry a one.

First let us tell you how Lefty Jerry Blanchard batted that ball around in the first game, how he pitched that ball over the platter, and how his very brilliant receiver also batted the ball, and how the Hubbers in general had the touted Amarilloans trying to eat off a shelf that was too high.

Blanchard Starts Wild

Blanchard, as is generally the case when he has had a week of rest, started off as wildly as the proverbial springtime rabbit. He got into a bad hole in the first inning, pitched his way out; he became imbedded in the second stanza, pitched his way clear, with the help of mates. He got even lower in the third inning, and overanxious, un-heady play by his mates and a lack of control by himself cost him four tallies. There was a counsel of war at the plate, but Manager Sport Wooldridge used his head, as the fans begged, and left the big boy in there.

This is the way it happened.

Tab Clark, a very nifty second baseman indeed for the Amarilloans, and a fair hitter, went down swinging at Blanchard's fast ball to start the game. Gib Jackson, who ought to have been in the big show for lo, these many years, slashed out a single to center, a blooper over second base that Harold Crites couldn't reach. Todd Poynter, playing first base for the Phillips nine yesterday while the veteran Cowboy Francis did the catching, was safe on a grounder through Graham's legs at short. He went to second, and Jackson to third. That put Blanchard in a serious hole, with one out Luke Coburn playing right field in the first game and hitting in the cleanup slot, drew a pass, and the bases were intoxicated. This was indeed a mess for the revenge-hunting Hubbers to be in.

Double Play Welcome

And so up came Allen Thomas, a dangerous little man playing shortstop. He blazed one at R. D. Prather, playing third base for Lubbock, borrowed, as was Lefty Barrett, from the Amerada Oilers. Barrett heaved a "strike" to Coppage, who stepped on the plate, putting Jackson out as he rushed in. Coppage threw to Barrett at first, but Thomas had beaten it out. Poynter tried to score and Barrett threw to the daring little Coppage who held on to it tagged Poynter three inches off the plate and was knocked spinning for his pains. But it was a double play, no runs were scored and Blanchard and Coppage were the heroes.

For their part of the first, Graham grounded out. Prather drew a walk. Coppage doubled. Prather was thrown out at the plate, Jack Thompson singled, Coppage scored and the Hubbers had a lead on the Amarilloans for the first time in years—well, months, anyway.

On the hill again, Blanchard was greeted first by a triple off Zeke Thomas' bat as the second inning started. But Zeke got no further than third, Blanchard fanning Swafford, causing Francis to ground weakly to Breedlove, who held Thomas on the plate before making the putout at first, and Pitcher Chief Gilliland, a huge righthanded rookie for Amarillo, struck out.

Hubbers Down In Order

The Hubbers, still nursing a lead, went down in order. Blanchard did not get by the third inning so easily. Clark started things with a single. Gib Jackson followed with another blooper over second. Poynter grounded out. Coburn walked, filling the sacks. Blanchard struck out Al Thomas and seemed out of danger again, but Zeke Thomas rapped a single to center. Harold Crites didn't have his apron down, the ball rolled to the fence and four runs came in, the same as if Zeke had blasted one over the wall. It was a three-base error for Crites. Before regaining his control, Blanchard walked Swafford, but Francis popped out to Breedlove.

Now they were behind, three runs, so the Hubbers bowed their necks.

Here's where Blanchard came in with his big bat. Poison for right handed pitchers since Blanchard learned that left handed pitchers could hit, Blanchard very solemnly rapped the ball a medium-sized lick and it landed on the Santa Fe right of way, far over the left field fence.

Gilliland Is Rattled

This rattled big Gilliland, or inspired the other Hubbers. Before the applause for Blanchard's blow had quieted, Graham had singled, Prather had beat out an infield hit, and they both scored when Coppage lashed a triple to deep left. It was Coppage's second extra base knock.

Jack Thompson flied to second, and Crites hoisted a long one to left, scoring Coppage with the run

Par-Cracking Shots Of Big Redhead Too Tough For Holton

A heartbreaking miss of a seven-foot putt on the 35th green by Alfred Holton allowed Edgar Doherty to garner a 2 and 1 victory in the Meadowbrook Open championship Sunday. It was the third time the two had met in the past two years, and the fiery-thatched shotmaker has been victor in all.

Ending the morning round all square, each with 67's, Doherty lost no time in piling up a commanding lead in the afternoon. Through the 23rd he held a 5 up advantage.

Assault Upon Par

Al started a par-assaulting bit of golf to come up even on the 28th green. Birdies on twenty-five and twenty-eight, a par on the 27th, and an eagle on twenty-eight turned the trick.

Holton had finished the first morning nine with a 1 up lead after both contestants had beaten normal figures. He had a 31 to match with Doherty's 32. Red kept even with par on the second nine, while Holton required an extra stroke.

The City Open champ bagged a birdie 3 on the 19th hole in the afternoon then followed with another on the 22nd and 23rd greens to put Al dormie three at the 23rd.

Holton's putter collapsed during the first six afternoon holes, otherwise the match would likely have been settled differently. He was matching long drives with Doherty, noted for his usual hard wood shots, but on the green Al was erratic.

After the winner had gone 1 up again on the 31st when Holton took a bogie 5, the match was squared on the 149-yard 32nd with Holton's birdie 2. He went over again on the 33rd and Doherty protected the one hole lead to finish the match with a birdie on the 35th.

Both players flashed signs of good golf, but both were badly off on several holes. Failure of the diminutive Holton to sink the short putt on the deciding hole was heartbreaking. After regaining his putting touch during the afternoon, the cause of his early disadvantage flared up again to terminate the setto.

Ball Lips The Cup

Doherty had sunk a ten-footer and the loser's try seemed easy enough but the ball lipped the cup and stayed away.

A large gallery followed the players throughout the afternoon round. Each player was cheered for his good shots, with little regard for which it was who made it.

The crowd was given a momentary thrill on the tenth when Holton's tee shot rolled slowly to the pin. It lacked a mere six inches being a hole in one.

W. P. Helwig defeated Otis Felty, 2 and 1, to grab off honors in the first flight. Rufus Bradshaw took the second flight championship by beating W. L. Hale, 7 up and 6 to go. N. L. Ball carried Buster Holton out, 5 and 3, for first place in the third flight.

Kay Bradshaw took championship consolations with a 2-1 triumph over Loftin Burnette. Wright Kerr ousted Clarence Fox, 2-1 in the first flight consolations. Tom Davis was victor over Wayne (Mickey) Henly by a one-sided 9 and 8 count for second flight consolation title. Charles Watson defaulted to Charles Purcell, jr., in the third flight consolations.

Loop-Leading Indians Are Pounded Out

(By The Associated Press)

Teams ranking second, fourth and sixth in the Texas league standings last night handed those just above them drubbings while the tail-enders split a pair.

Beaumont's Exporters defeated the circuit-leading Oklahoma City team 9 to 6 in a 25-hit game. The winners shoved over four tallies in the 10th inning to turn the trick.

The No. 4 club, the San Antonio Missions, won their second straight tilt 4 to 1 from the Tulsa Oilers behind the five-hit pitching of Howard Mills. Sparkling support enabled the Southwest Texans to offset Mills' wildness.

Galveston, in sixth place, walloped Fort Worth 10 to 2 with the aid of the steady hurling of Curt Fullerton, veteran right-hander.

The cellar-dwelling Dallas Steers won the first, 8 to 5, and dropped the second, 7 to 0, in their double contest with Houston.

Special Rulings On Parking In Lockney Now Allowed

LOCKNEY, Aug. 2 (Special)—Barlow Hill, city marshal, has been given special permission by the city council to allow four-wheel trailers to be parked in the extreme north and south blocks of Main street. Six-wheel trucks are required to continue parallel parking in the three blocks, and no double or center parking will be permitted, according to Mr. Hill.

Leniency in the enforcement of the heretofore strict city ordinances concerning parking has been accorded to Hill. If the new policy does not prove satisfactory, the old custom of strict enforcement will be employed.

Snead Winner In St. Paul Open Play

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 2.—P—Slammin' Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was right back up there again today after a slight hill in his young and promising career in the professional golfing business.

Young Sam bounced back yesterday by firing off a pair of sub-par rounds to collect the victor's $1,200 in the eighth annual $5,000 St. Paul open over the famous Keller course.

Five Under Par

By wasting strokes on the front nines of both his rounds yesterday and tearing back like a champion on each occasion, he fashioned a 72-hole total of 283 strokes, five under par for the layout, which was just good enough to whip Willie Goggin big, smiling professional from San Francisco by one stroke. Goggin had a one stroke edge over Snead with nine holes left but staggered on the next two, and a final rally just missed making a playoff out of it.

"Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, three times winner of the tournament in which he set a competitive 72-hole record of 271 strokes over the same territory in 1935, fell apart after starting with a brilliant 68 and wound up with the last prize-money check—for $80.

Shares Are Divided

Goggin collected $750, and Johnny Revolta of Chicago, Pat Sawyer of Minneapolis and Kaamir Zabowski of Winnipeg, Man., playing in his first tournament in the states, divided up the third, fourth and fifth shares by tying at 285 with each receiving $450. Checks for $216.67 were handed to Ralph Gul-

Yanks Prepare Big Welcome For The Sox

BY SID FEDER

Hubbell, Dean and Mungo—.

A few weeks ago each of them could have attracted bids in six figures on the ivory trading market as possessors of baseball's current greatest "soupbones"; today they look as washed up, at least temporarily, as the week's laundry.

Representing half a million dollars or more in pitching arms to the Giants, Cardinals and Dodgers, Dizzy (Sore-Toe) Dean, Carl (Meal-Ticket) Hubbell and tonsil-less Van Mungo are as sour as a barrel of pickles right now in the National league where they used to knock 'em dead.

Big Talking Point

The recent failures of this set of hurlers, touted far and wide as unbeatable ops and chief point in the argument that the National league is all over the American in everything, was the big talking point of the baseball business today, even shadowed the runaway Cubs with a six-game lead, are starting to make of the National league chase and the impending Yankee-White Sox series for the American league laurels.

Mungo ailing since just before the all-star game, hasn't pitched since July 18. In the hopes it would help he has had his tonsils yanked. Hubbell hasn't won a game since July 18. In his last three starts, he lasted just six innings against the Cubs and three against the Cards, and on Friday, was belted again by the Cubs.

Dean Is Blasted Out

Dean's dismal doings date also to the all-star game. A batted drive ripped off one of Dizzy's big toes that day and the great one is now well-liked "cousin" to opposition batters. He hasn't won a game since July 4. Yesterday, against his perennial pushovers, the Brooklyn Dodgers, he lasted only through the sixth and was tagged with a 7-3 whipping in a doubleheader opener. The Cards came back to take the nightcap, 7-1, behind Lon Warneke, but that didn't make Dean

"I'D RATHER BE YOUR WIFE THAN YOUR WIDOW—"
PLEASE PUT THIS BLOW-OUT PROTECTION ON OUR CAR"

WHETHER you're married or single—whether or not you've ever had a blow-out, don't blind yourself to these facts.

Thousands of motorists are killed or injured—thousands of dollars are spent for repairs, doctor and hospital bills every year when blow-outs throw cars out of control. Every day somewhere, someone is headed for a costly or fatal blow-out accident.

A Life-Saving Tire

Many of these blow-outs that you hear and read about are due to the heat generated inside of all tires by today's higher driving speeds. This terrific internal tire heat may cause rubber and fabric to separate. And if it does, an invisible blister forms. Bigger and BIGGER it grows until, sooner or later, BANG! It's a blow-out! And where your car might land—nobody knows.

To provide you, and everyone who rides with you, with real blow-out protection, every new Goodrich Silvertown Tire is built with the Life-Saver Golden Ply. This Goodrich invention is a layer of special rubber and full-floating cords, scientifically treated to resist internal tire heat. By resisting this heat, the Golden Ply gives you real protection against these high-speed blow-outs.

Remember, no tire gives you Golden Ply blow-out protection unless it's a Goodrich Safety Silvertown. And don't forget, this life-saving tire actually costs much less than other super-quality tires.

Thousands of motorists all over America have found that Silvertowns below mean safety above. For your own peace of mind, for the protection of your family and friends stop in today for a set of these life-saving tires. It's better to be safe than sorry!

TO Lubbock and South Plains parents who recently have been disturbed over reports that there is a threatened epidemic of poliomyelitis—better known as infantile paralysis—in this area don't be alarmed; there is no epidemic and there is no indication that there will be one.

Not only as a reporter anxious to present the news, but also as the father of three little boys, The Plainsman has done some scouting around on the infantile paralysis rumors and from all he has been able to learn after a two-day check there are but four cases reported in the entire South Plains region.

None of the four unfortunates reside in Lubbock although one of them was brought here for treatment.

Four cases spread over a vast territory do not mean there is danger of a great spread of the disease. Doctors tell this column that from now until late fall is the normal time of year for infantile paralysis infection and that they are unalarmed over the situation.

THERE is a preventive for infantile paralysis now. Whether it works 100 per cent, no one yet knows. But it works well enough to have received the O. K. of the United States Department of Public Health.

The preventive is a mixture of zinc sulphate.

A child receives a nose spray a day for three days and then one about every two weeks from now through what doctors call "the polio season", which ends in the fall.

The preventive treatment is not expensive, since it costs only from $10 to $15 for the entire series of sprays, one doctor reports. It is not painful to the child, either, although it may irritate him for a few hours after receiving treatment.

The Plainsman has not subjected his youngsters to the preventive yet and will not unless the disease spreads to the point where he feels it is necessary to shoot the kids "through the vat".

Individual parents will, of course, use their own and their doctor's judgment, but this column is going to keep in touch with the situation and if and when it looks like it may become alarming, the word will be passed along.

W. C. Edwards, linotype machinist down here at the office, dropped in the other day with a copy of the McKinney Examiner on which he learned the trade and on which his brother has been foreman for more than 40 years.

On the front page of the Examiner was a very nice article about Mr. Edwards' aged father—G. M. Edwards, 93, a Confederate veteran who has lived in McKinney more than 60 years.

The Examiner's article brought out particularly the sturdy character of the aged Mr. Edwards, especially pointing out his reputation for steadfastness and integrity—built and protected over a period of six decades in one small community. The Plainsman thought W. C. Edwards' pride in the article not only justified, but entirely pardonable.

Reading the article led The Plainsman to wonder if we moderns pay as much attention to matters of character, steadfastness and integrity as previous generations have done or as much attention to these attributes as we should.

We wondered if, perhaps, we haven't come too much to shelve that sort of idealism in the favor of the harder, brassier things.

The measure of a man today, we think, is too often made by the amount of money he has amassed, or the amount of power he has engendered.

While both those attributes rightly figure in an individual's record, there is still no substitute for a good reputation, honestly won and scrupulously kept over a long period of time.

Do we lay enough stress on the latter?

"Flame Trail"

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD
(Copyright, 1937, Marie De Nervaud)

SYNOPSIS: Fire destroys Kay Crandon's ranch house and barn. Neighbor Josh Hastings tries to buy her ranch and court Kay, but she hates him and is determined to rebuild. Ted Gaynor, a puncher she impulsively hired, fights Scrap Johnson, a cowhand who molested Kay. Shooting it out, they wound each other. Hastings finds them unconscious and kills Scrap with Ted's gun. Ted crawls to a cabin where a girl (Marion) nurses him. The gun puts Sheriff Farley on Ted's trail. Kay sees Ted and Marion together in the cabin, and later, delirious after a fall, babbles all. The sheriff breaks into Marion's cabin at dawn.

Chapter 34
Taken Prisoner

The sheriff's eye travelled swiftly over Marion. Convinced of the truth of her statement that she hadn't a gun, he motioned her to one side.

"You keep out of this now," he ordered. "I'll be wanting you to answer some questions later."

Striding past her, Zeke Farley crossed over to Ted's bunk, just as one of his posse was making a rope fast about Ted's wrists and ankles.

"Thought you'd given us the slip, didn't you?" he gloated. "Well, it ain't so easy in these parts to get past the law."

Ted, who had been so rudely awakened from a sound sleep, took rapid measure of the situation. He struggled to a sitting position and faced the sheriff with steady eyes.

"I don't know what this is all about," he declared. "If you're looking for murderers, the man to find is Scrap Johnson. He did his best to murder me, and darn near succeeded."

"We've found him," the sheriff answered grimly, "with a bullet through his temple."

From what Ted had overheard from the first searching party that had passed the shack, he was prepared for this answer, but his expression of intense surprise couldn't have been more natural, if it had been real. It was up to him, he felt, to tell a straight and convincing story of what had happened, and not complicate it by anything he had overheard.

"Never from any shot of mine," Ted explained. "I was taking a drink of water, and turned around to see him stealing up on me and pulling his gun. He got the drop, and my shot went wild. It might have nipped him, but it never hit a bull's eye like a shot in the temple. But even if it had, it was a plain case of self defense. He——"

"You can tell that at the trial," Zeke Farley broke in gruffly. "Sam Cutter'll be up here any time now, and he'll take you in charge. Scrap Johnson was murdered just over the Idaho state line, so that means you'll be tried in Clear Water Basin.

"You may as well know, though," he added, "that your story's full of holes. The bullet that killed Scrap Johnson came from your gun. We've got both the gun and the bullet, and the report just came in yesterday."

Ted's surprise at this statement was genuine and mixed with incredulous dismay.

"Must be some mistake there!" He caught Marion's eyes on him, with a mute warning in their brown depths, and the angry retort he was about to make died on his lips.

She was right about going slow! Anything he said now might be twisted to count against him. The only thing to do was to go peaceably, and trust justice and fairness to acquit him at the trial.

A Whispered Word

A shout from the woods broke in on them. A minute later Sam Cutter and his posse came stamping up the steps and crowded into the shack.

In the confusion, while Zeke Farley was explaining the situation to the new arrivals, Marion slipped around beside Ted.

"Try to get them to leave you here a few days longer," she whispered, "and don't mention Dad whatever you do!"

She shrang back, as Sam Cutter came over toward them. He was a powerful man with a bull dog jaw and a shrewd glint in his squinted gray eyes.

He took both Ted and Marion in for a minute without speaking. Then he said, with heavy sarcasm, "I'm sorry to break up your little outing, but your boy friend will have to come along with me."

Marion flushed at his tone, and an angry oath escaped Ted in spite of his resolve to keep cool.

"But for this young lady, I'd be dead now," he declared. "She has nursed me through this crisis, and anyone who insults her will have me to reckon with later." He glared at the men crowded around him.

"He isn't strong enough to be moved yet," Marion broke in, but Sam Cutter interrupted with a hoarse laugh.

"I reckon he'll stand the trip," he jeered. "And if he doesn't, that'll save us just so much trouble." He motioned to his men to get Ted outside.

"I can ride, all right, if you'll untie my ankles," Ted protested. "You needn't worry about my trying to make a break. I'm as anxious as you are to get this thing cleared up."

Sam Cutter gave him a long look and curtly ordered his men to cut the ropes that bound his feet together.

"I ain't worryin' about his making a break," he remarked, "and it'll be a whole lot easier going." He turned to Zeke Farley. "Thanks for the tip about this bird. I'll try to do as much for you some day. I reckon the girl friend comes in your territory." He gave Marion a boldly admiring look, and added, facetiously, "Some guys have all the luck!"

Zeke Is More Gentle

Without giving Ted a chance to have a word with Marion, they hustled him out. Zeke Farley motioned his men to follow and wait for him outside.

She waited, resolved to have him break the silence. With every nerve tense, she was determined not to say anything that could be used against Ted, or that would involve her father. She was thankful that she had Zeke Farley to deal with instead of Sam Cutter, whom she put down as a bully and a brute.

"Let's hear your story, now," Zeke Farley said finally. His voice was more gentle, but none the less firm.

"There's not much to tell," Marion answered. "I came out early one morning to find Ted Gaynor crawling across the clearing delirious and apparently dying from loss of blood. How he ever got as far as this, I don't know. I got him in just before the storm broke, and naturally did what I could for him. He pulled through, but it was a narrow squeak."

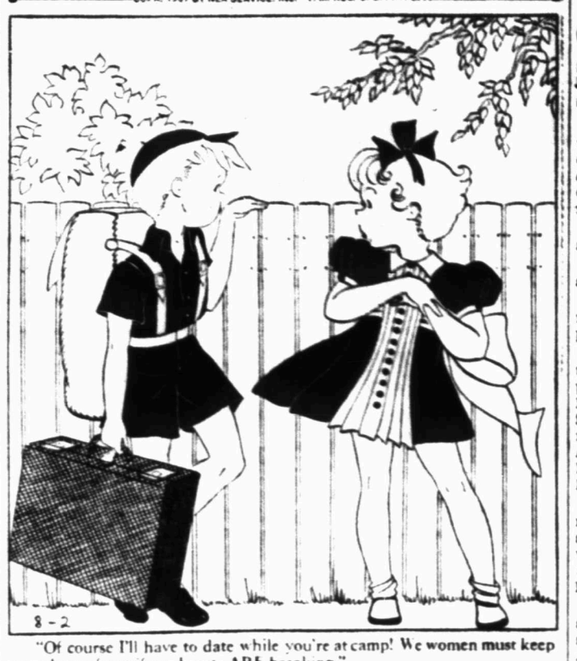

"Had you known Gaynor before?" the sheriff asked.

"I never saw him in my life before," Marion answered, looking straight into Zeke Farley's eyes.

"Humph!" was his only comment, but his eyes held an unwilling admiration for Marion's straightforward manner.

Marion's strange father returns, mentally upset, tomorrow.

ONE WAY TO AVOID WAR

Already two Americans are reported killed in connection with the fighting in the Far East. Probably there will be several others before the whole thing is over.

That, of course, is too bad, yet although Americans in the beleaguered Orient knew when they went there that they were endangering their lives, they persisted in going just the same.

What The Journal is driving at, is that with talk and threat of war, with fires of hate already flaming in Spain and China, it is high time that our State department warns Americans residing in danger spots to "get out, or take the consequences". The old system of a nation's demanding protection for its citizens who persist in sticking their heads in lions' mouths is as archaic as the cigar store Indian.

One of the best ways for the United States to avoid being drawn into any international conflict is to insist that its nationals—regardless of financial investment—evacuate any danger zone at the first indication of fighting. Let the government escort the expatriates from the danger zone, but also let it tell those who insist upon remaining that they stay at their own risk.

Certainly there is no sense in risking war simply because a few hard-heads decline to use good judgment and the time to eliminate such a possibility it now, before it's too late.

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2 — All over the lot: Shooting sequences for "In Old Chicago" the other day, part of the company was working in Mrs. O'Leary's barn when a scene was reached which required cobwebs.

"There are no cobwebs!" observed Director Henry King.

"Cobwebs!" ordered an assistant.

"—and we gotta have cobwebs right away!" said a distraught property man into a telephone.

The company sat around and twiddled its thumbs and complained of the heat and waited. Presently a brisk little man carrying a satchel and an air of great responsibility bustled on the set. Any cobwebs today? King showed him where he wanted a spider's lair.

The expert didn't set to work immediately. He studied the locale. He seemed to be figuring out how he would build a web there if he were a spider. The company fidgeted. King fumed.

Finally the man began spinning a web. He made it out of fine strands of rubber cement. Don Ameche strolled over to watch him. The actor said, "That's quite an art."

The expert glowed. He said, "Yes, yes—well, it's my specialty, you see. Cobwebs."

"Must be mighty interesting work," observed Ameche.

"Yes, yes, fascinating — if well done," said the spinner. "At some studios there is no real — ah — integrity. People are careless, or else they know nothing of spiders.

"I went to see a picture last night, a mystery thing. Very bad! There was a scene which utterly spoiled it for me — they had a black widow spider living in a daddy-long-legs web!"

Ratoff Forgets Prejudice

After considerable wire-pulling through channels of local diplomacy, the three Russian trans-polar flyers finally were persuaded to visit Twentieth Century-Fox—a publicity coup for that studio. It turned out, though, that the aviators weren't much interested in the stars, in spite of the fact that the stars were very curious indeed about the flyers.

Production was disrupted for hours. The Soviet trio seemed concerned only with technical aspects of picture-making.

Entering the cafe for lunch, they created quite a flurry. One of their self-appointed welcomers was Gregory Ratoff. A White Russian, and a bitter critic of the Soviets, Ratoff laid aside his prejudice for awhile and was right in the center of things — posing for pictures and sitting between two of the visitors at the table.

So prominent was he in the festivities that Eddie Cantor, watching from a nearby table, arose and in ringing tones proposed "Three cheers for Ratoff!"

Tears Must Be Real

Joan Bennett is appearing in "I Met My Love Again" — and appearing very attractively, too. But for Marlene Dietrich, probably no actress in town primps quite as much as the younger Bennett.

Her entrance on a set is something to see. Close at her heels move five persons: a hairdresser, a make-up man, a wardrobe woman, her personal maid and her secretary.

You still hear frequently of "glycerin tears," but actually they're not used in movies anymore. Only real tears will do — real ones artificially stimulated.

I watched six takes of a mildly sobby scene between Miss Bennett and Henry Fonda, and before each one the make-up man had to make her cry. He did it by blowing into her eyes through a menthol-laden tube which looks like a fountain pen.

Keeping 'Em Guessing

Johnny Downs and Eleanore Whitney are rehearsing dance routines for "Summer Romance." It was nearly 6 o'clock the other evening when I found them on a vacant stage, whirling and tapping before a huge mirror.

They were frazzled but cheerful, still keeping up that ribbing banter which has all Hollywood guessing whether they're in love or not.

Resting a minute, she said, "Johnny, you've got to take me out tonight." He said he was broke. And tired. She said, "You're not too broke to take me to a movie. We'll pick out a musical, with lots of dancing. It'll pep us up to sit back and watch other people work."

FDR Faces Task Of Rebuilding His Prestige Lost In Court Bill Defeat, Dutcher Says

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—The big question as to the blow the president received with collapse of the court plan is not one of degree but of duration.

No one questions seriously the fact that his prestige has had a terrific sock and that his control over congress is temporarily gone. The question is whether he will be able to regain command.

Wage-Hour Test

The first early important test of the extent to which Roosevelt's strength is shattered will come in the administration attempt to get a much stronger wage-hour law than the emasculated version of its bill reported out by the senate labor committee.

Dutcher

Whatever happens to that one, after congress adjourns, the president will have the Washington sounding board all to himself and may be expected to make a "fireside chat" and other speeches in an effort to build up his prestige and power by January. Hostile members of congress will be at home, bearing any brunt of these speeches that there may be.

Whether or not the conservative senate coalition can tie him up at the next session, congress will return to find him fighting, and all New Deal legislative proposals not passed at this session will still be before it.

Corcoran Answers

The opposition, busily attempting to haul down its court victory so that Roosevelt can be stymied from now on, is making a special drive against some of Roosevelt's young aides — notably Tom Corcoran and Ben Cohen, to whom he assigns his hardest jobs.

Thus Senator Burt Wheeler of Montana, who fought for the holding company act with Corcoran and Cohen ever at his side — after they had drafted the measure, has spread the story that Corcoran had warned him administration forces would beat him on the court fight, using the same tactics Corcoran had learned from him in the holding company fight.

Shown a newspaper story in which Wheeler appeared to boast that he had won the court fight with a few tricks Corcoran had never learned about, young Corcoran, speaking for publication probably the first time since he came to Washington under Hoover, retorted:

"Is he taking credit for Joe Robinson's death? That's the only 'trick' I know of that beat the court bill."

British View

The landmark, British monthly magazine of the conservative English-Speaking Union, somehow failed to get excited over our court fight —or even the C. I. O. It says:

"It has been said that America follows Britain about a generation behind in political development, and the working out of the so-called Supreme court crisis seems to offer an interesting example of this. The parallel . . . is . . . the weakening of the powers of the House of Lords to defeat legislation by the popular chamber."

It is then recalled that the Supreme court, like the House of Lords, had been accused of destroying "progressive" legislation and that Mr. Asquith had demanded and obtained a promise from the king to "pack" the House

ON TREE DISEASES

Dear Plainsman: Referring to your reference, in Wednesday's Journal, to diseases of trees in Lubbock: Last year shade trees suffered a great deal from lice and red spider, especially the American elms and are again suffering from the same thing to some extent since the weather has become dry. But the trees are in much better condition, I think, this year than for two or three years, as far as pests are concerned.

The outstanding deplorable thing about our street trees is the fact that they are not only starving, in many instances, for food (nitrogen, especially) but literally dying from lack of moisture. Where trees are growing on unpaved streets they usually do very well by watering from the barrow pit during rains. But when the paving is in it is often impossible to water the trees sufficiently. This is especially true when it is impossible to hold water between the sidewalk and curb owing to the curb being lower than the walk, or to the area being filled in so that the water runs off. A large tree needs not less than a hundred gallons of water per week and should be given this amount at one time instead of a small amount more often.

Something is going to have to be done and soon, or we will have a lot of dead or half dead trees on these new paved streets. I haven't been able to see why it should be necessary to make the curb from six inches to two feet lower than the sidewalk. They should be on a level, or nearly so, in this altitude and climate so that by keeping the included area from two to three inches below the concrete it would hold enough water to properly water the street trees.

Again referring to diseases of shade trees, or rather pests: When American elms or other trees show signs of lice or red spider they should be thoroughly washed out with strong pressure every day for a few days. This will usually be a great benefit. We have some scale here. This should be cut out or treated at once to prevent its spreading to other trees.

I hope city engineers can figure out some way to keep the curb up to the level of the sidewalk on future streets and while I am on this the new city markers are one of the nicest things that have ever come to town but they should be against the curb and parallel to it so that those home owners who are unfortunate enough to have a curb a foot and a half lower than the walk can terrace the park area between the curb and walk, so that it will hold enough water to grow grass and trees.

Yours truly,
La Verne Kershner,
Lubbock.

Plea For Life

year because of the constant bother from officers investigating, but I know that Luke Trammel tried every possible way to get a job by which to support his mother, by honest labor. He was goodhearted, fair in his dealings an da good worker. I believe he was partly a victim of circumstances in connection with the tragedy for which he was convicted and I shall make a plea to save him from the chair."

Willie said he would make a trip to Austin and the state prison this week in behalf of the doomed outlaw.

Caused Extensive Hunt

Trammel, with Forest Gibson, were the cause of an extensive manhunt in this section June 20, last year, when state highway patroimen and other peace officers from humerous South Plains and West Texas counties engaged the desperadoes in a running fight.

Trammel and his associate in crime drove their car from the highway, through a barbed wire fence and over a bluff into a deep canyon, gaining temporary freedom near the Cottle-Motley line. Later, they were captured when asleep, without a shot being fired.

Trammel had been convicted of theft and burglary and received a 20-year sentence from Motley county in 1934.

probably would last 50 to 100 years, "furthermore," he added "use of low grade ores in making this pavement would provide an outlet for low grade material once considered useless."

"Our work" said Dr. Davis "is not a dream anymore — it is actually happening but when we can control the two common types of skidding on the highway—forward skidding and side skidding—we will have a pavement which can be driven upon as fast in rainy weather as in dry."

from 200 to 1,000.

"Advance bookings show that 1937 will be the biggest deb season since 1929," said Ted Saucier of the Waldorf-Astoria.

He cited one party for 1,000 guests which left the head of the family with a $35,000 headache.

Saurier estimated the debuts of about 100 "top flight" New York debutantes this fall will cost between $350,000 and $500,000—not counting the transportation costs to and from various eastern colleges for the 800 young men listed as "eligibles" for coming-out parties.

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 3 to 8 lower on favorable weather and under hedge selling and liquidation. Oct 10.72; Dec 10.63; Jan 10.66; Mch 10.81; May 10.85; Jly 10.87.

Prices continued to decline following opening losses, with the entire list at new low levels for the life of the contracts.

General favorable weather over the week-end was reported for the greater part of the belt.

The British markets were closed and what few orders there were from that course were on the selling side.

After losing 7 to 9 points the market rallied partially toward the end of the first hour.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2. (AP)—Cotton started the new season today unchanged to five points net lower on a little liquidation and selling because of continued favorable weather in the belt.

Henry Plauche, secretary of the New Orleans exchange, in his annual report on the 1936-37 crop, placed world consumption of lint cotton at 13, 282,000 bales against 12,408,000 last year.

The carryover into the 1937-38 season was placed at 5,740,000 bales of lint against 6,732,000 bales last year.

The figures were construed by the trade as bullish because of the increased consumption and a decrease in carry over, but apparently they were about as were expected and exerted little influence in early trading.

Oct opened at 10.73, Dec at 10.77, Jan 10.78, March at 10.88, May 10.94 and July at 10.98. Prices continued to recede slowly after the start and towards the end of the first half hour active positions were 4 to 10 points net lower.

Mystery Of King Ranch Grows Deeper; "Solution" Awaited

Trouble was averted by a state highway patrolman and both factions searched. Nothing was found except a few duck feathers and the spot where some men on foot had smoked a number of cigarets.

The Blantons have not been seen since, and as the days passed after their disappearance new stories cropped up of other men who had entered unwanted the brushlands of El Sauz, the southernmost division of the King ranch and had never returned.

None of those stories have been substantiated. Most of them are legend or vague recollections. But they stirred the hatred of the farmers and expeditions were organized to search the ranch. When they were barred by armed guards, the rangers went in, and relatives of the Blantons said they would leave the investigation up to Capt. Bill McMurray and his men.

Family Backs Probe

More days and weeks passed with no word of the Blantons, no solution to the mystery. Searchers, of course, had barely touched the outskirts of even El Sauz, whose lines run into the salty waters of the Gulf of Mexico. Literally miles of gnarled, sprawling mesquite that tears at men's clothing lay within the boundaries. Men had been lost for days there. Dusty cattle trails led to dry water holes. On the hottest days buzzards wheeled and turned overhead. One slope looked like the next, one leafless tree like another. Men might die and their skeletons not be found for years.

When summer came and no solution was in sight, the Blanton relatives raised a little money and Louis Lamadrid entered the scene. A native of Brownsville, Lamadrid slipped in and began working among the Mexicans around the ranch. He listened much and talked little. He went to a ranch-hands' barbecue and he even preached at a revival.

Investigator Checked

Lamadrid was, he said, just about to find a key to the mystery's solution when word of his activities leaked out. He was arrested in Raymondville by Power Fenner, a 6-foot, 190-pound ranger, on a gun-carry charge filed in Brownsville. An attorney filed a writ of habeas corpus and after the hearing was set, Fenner and Game Warden Morgan Miller whisked Lamadrid to Brownsville where the officers were cited for contempt and fined $50 each.

Judge W. E. McCharen, who issued the writ and who cited them for contempt, appealed to Gov. James Allred to relieve the men from duty in that section. Miller resigned and Fenner, whose sister is married to Tully Garner, son of Vice-President Garner, was dismissed from the force.

At his trial Fenner drew a gun on a newspaper photographer, tried to destroy his camera. Judge McCharen interfered.

Solution Still Mystery

It was then that Captain McMurray entered the case personally. And a few days later he announced that the Blanton mystery was solved.

Where the men were he did not say. Whether dead or alive, there was no hint. It was just that laconic announcement.

"The Blanton case is solved. When it's ironclad we'll have another announcement."

that put Lubbock ahead once more.

Well, that was all for Amarillo. The Phillips boys never threatened again, except when Francis hit a double, after two were out, in the sixth. A double play cut off a would-be rally in the seventh. Otherwise Blanchard had the Oilers on his hip.

Meanwhile Blanchard and Coppage and Blue Graham and Jack Thompson and Breedlove, but especially Blanchard and Coppage, kept hitting the ball. After a double play put the damper on the Hubbers in the fourth, Blanchard slapped a double to center. Graham singled to left center, scoring Blanchard.

In the fifth Coppage lashed a double, but failed to score. In the sixth, Blanchard aimed for the right field wall, and his mighty blast sent the ball clear over the power line back of the fence. Breedlove was on base ahead of him.

Score Six In Eighth

In a wild eighth, after two were out, the Hubbers scored six times. Breedlove singled between the first two outs, and Blanchard followed with a single. Graham doubled, scoring Breedlove and Prather doubled, scoring Blanchard and Graham. Coppage got his fourth hit, a single then stole second. But he didn't have to, because Jack Thompson long overdue for a big blast, met the ball squarely and contributed Lubbock's third home run of the day, scoring two men ahead of him. Two more men got on base, Breedlove for the second time of the inning, before the side was retired.

Revenge was sweet but . . . .

Three righthanded chunkers and one southpaw were as sleepy as the rest of the Hubbers in the seven-inning nightcap. They acted as if Luke Coburn had them hypnotized. Only Blue Graham was able to get anything off the veteran Coburn, one time a double, then a single. But he was nabbed off first in a double play once, and three men struck out in a row after his double. The only other hit off Coburn was Coppage's single, giving him five hits in eight trips.

Two Double Plays

Two double plays enacted by the refreshed Oilers discouraged the two scoring chances the Hubbers had, the first one being a very nifty affair engineered by Second Baseman Clark, who made a pickup of a bad hopper while running fast toward second, shoveled the ball to Al Thomas, who stepped across the base to force Breedlove, then threw to Poynter to catch Barrett.

The fun-loving Phillips boys jumped on Slim Spradlin, who had had no trouble with them in two previous games here, although going in too late to save the games, and Spradlin came out after three runs had been scored off three walks and two hits, one a double by Gib Jackson. Spradlin loaded the bases with walks and hits, then walked another to force in a third run in the first inning. He retired in favor of Cecil "Bull" Thompson, who gave up one more run before getting the side out.

Thompson was given poor support by his mates, although the Oilers hit rather freely, getting base hits when putouts should have been made. Some of the "flukiest" hits ever seen here rattled off the Amarillo bats, scoring another run in the third, two more in the fifth, one in the sixth, and two in the seventh. Lefty Beans Pair replaced Thompson in the sixth, and Pair came out in favor of Ed Hambright in the seventh.

The Hubbers journey to Amarillo next Sunday to meet the Amarillo crew on their own improvised field. A large turnout is expected there.

look any better.

Without him and Hubbell, the Cards and Giants don't stand a chance of catching the red-hot Cubs, who made it three straight over the Giants yesterday with a 5-4 win in 11 innings, thereby stretching their lead to six games.

Yankees Tune Up

The Yankees tuned up for tomorrow's start of their White Sox series by pounding the Browns, 14-5, with Joe DiMaggio hitting homer No. 31 and going out in front of Babe Ruth's 1927 record for the same period.

The White Sox squeezed out a 4-3 and 5-3 twin win over the Athletics, the first game going 11 innings. Boston's rip-snorting Red Sox clipped the Tigers, 11-4, in the opener of their double bill and then battled to a ten-inning, 2-all tie in the nightcap, to take third place in the American league.

Bob Feller, "boy wonder" of the Cleveland Indians, turned in his second victory of the year, holding Washington to seven hits in an 11-to-2 victory. He fanned nine Senators.

Pittsburgh's Pirates pounded the Bees 8-4, and the Phillies split with the Reds, taking the nightcap, 3-2, after Lee Grissom stopped them, 5-1, in the opener.

Mr. John Lewis is making the fight for trade union recognition that was made and won in England a couple of generations ago and demanding a status for organized labor which is conceded here as a matter of course.

The American president of the English-Speaking union is John W. Davis, counsel for the Morgans and crusader for conservative causes.
