Nomination of Meese withdrawn

Meese

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's nomination of Edwin Meese III as attorney general was removed from Senate consideration Friday, but the president said that barring the unexpected he will resubmit Meese's name if he wins re-election.

"I have not seen the report yet," the president said, referring to an investigation of Meese's affairs by an independent counsel. "But barring anything unforeseen — and I don't expect anything of that kind — I have not changed my mind about him."

The removal of the nomination from Senate consideration effectively postponed Meese's chances of becoming the nation's top law enforcement official until a possible second Reagan term.

Reagan, speaking to reporters as he left the White House for a weekend at Camp David, Md., said he understood the Senate's delay because of "the crowded agenda they have with regard to the election and I don't think there is anything unusual about that at all."

Asked flat out if he would resubmit his counselor's nomination if he wins re-election on Nov. 6, the president said, "Yes, yes."

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., stripped the nomination from his panel's agenda for the rest of the congressional session to avoid election-year politics, an aide announced.

"The senator believes that an election year does not provide the proper forum for serious consideration of an important nomination such as this," said press spokesman Mark Goodin.

The nomination of Reagan's longtime confidante, once considered a prospect for easy approval in the Republican-run Senate, attracted controversy after Democrats on the Judiciary panel raised questions about Meese's financial ties with people who later received federal appointments.

In March, Thurmond's committee put off acting on the matter pending the outcome of an investigation by independent counsel Jacob A. Stein into Meese's affairs.

Thurmond's move came one day after the Los Angeles Times said Stein would issue a report next week clearing Meese of any criminal wrongdoing. The report quoted unidentified sources as saying that Stein was unable to find proof that Meese arranged federal jobs for friends in return for loans received by him and his wife, Ursula.

The sources, according to the newspaper, said they did not know if Stein would address the question of whether Meese's actions were improper though legal.

Throughout his nomination hearings, Meese denied engaging in any improper act.

George T. Frampton, one of the five attorneys assisting Stein, refused to confirm or deny the newspaper report, adding that he was unable to "even confirm the timetable of when the panel will issue its conclusions." Through his office, Stein sent out word that he would have no comment.

Meese deputy Bruce Chapman said the presidential counselor had not been notified that Stein's investigation was completed. "We certainly have not had any indication that it's wrapped up," Chapman said.

Meese's attorney, Leonard Garment, said that he had no information about the outcome of the Stein probe. "We're still furnishing information to Mr. Stein," Garment said.

Goodin said Thurmond moved to put a hold on any further action on the nomination this session because he had "received indications that once the report on Mr. Meese is made public, other members of the committee may ask for additional hearings."

The Texas Sesquicentennial flag gets unfurled and displayed by officials in front of the Midland County Courthouse. From the left are Midland County Judge Bill Ahders; Parker Humes, president of the Midland Independent School District board of trustees; Ken Peeler, chairman of the Midland College board of directors; David Godfrey, Midland's mayor pro tem; Lee Storey, West Texas regional director for the Texas Sesquicentennial Commission, and Robin Jackson, executive director of the Midland Centennial/Texas Sesquicentennial Commission.

Midland to be part of celebration

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Fanfare reigned.

Drums rolled on the courthouse lawn.

And Texas Sesquicentennial flag was unfurled and hoisted up the flag pole to just beneath Old Glory.

Texas' 1836 independence was lauded, and Midland was praised for being an "exciting" place in West Texas and for being a part of Texas' 150th birthday celebration in 1986.

The Friday noon event in front of the Midland County Courthouse designated Midland as a Texas Independence Community.

"We're so delighted to be a part of it (the Sesquicentennial)," said Joan Baskin, who was credited for giving impetus to Midland's Centennial and for getting the Tall City involved in the the celebration of Texas' 1836 independence from Mexico.

"We think this is an exciting time to honor those who have made Midland, Texas, the exciting place it is," said Mrs. Baskin, a community leader. She is the Midland Chamber of Commerce's representative on the Midland Centennial/Texas Sesquicentennial Commission.

"Who would want to live anywhere else?"

The gathering applauded.

And time dropped back. The rousing sounds of the 28-member Midland High School Drum Corps had since silenced.

From two horse-drawn buggies stepped two Texas Sesquicentennial officals, Lee Storey and Richard Franck, and two Midland Centennial boosters, Linda Cowden Isbell, co-chairman of the Midland Centennial/Texas Sesquicentennial Commission, and Robin Jackson, the Centennial's executive director.

"The whole world is going to come to Texas in 1986," said Franck, program director for the Texas Sesquicentennial, and the state's 16 million people are "going to make everyone (of them) feel like neighbors. He said people from 50 countries would be visiting Texas in '86.

"West Texas is going to be one of the major keys" in the celebration, he said.

Storey, West Texas regional director for the Texas Sesquicentennial, said the 40 million visitors to Texas in 1986 would generate $20 billion for the state's tourist industry, which is second only to the oil-and-gas industry in revenue-generating power. It has replaced farming and ranching as the state's No. 2 economic power, he said.

Daughter's death one more heartache

FORT WORTH (AP) — Sharon Hayden has fought off one heartache after another for the last two years.

The last jolt came Wednesday when she found the body of her 18-year-old daughter, who had been stabbed to death in her room. Friends say it may be the straw that finally breaks her spirit.

Two years ago Ms. Hayden was diagnosed as having multiple sclerosis, a degenerative muscle disease that inhibits her mobility and dexterity.

In April and May 1983 her daughter, Ginger, spent several weeks in a hospital intensive care ward with a blood clot on the brain caused by a car wreck. An expensive operation, for which many of the bills remain unpaid, saved Ginger's life.

Wednesday morning Ms. Hayden found her only child's body in a pool of blood in a bedroom of their west Fort Worth apartment.

"The nerves and the pressure have gotten to her," said Beth Harvey, a friend who took Ms. Hayden into her home Wednesday.

"With the multiple sclerosis and her nerves, she can barely stand. She'll probably end up in a wheelchair after all this. And she'll probably have to stay in it the rest of her life."

The realization that her daughter is dead has been a slow one for Sharon Hayden, who has no other family, Ms. Harvey said.

"We are trying to make the reality set in before the funeral," Harvey said. "We've kind of taken her under our wings...It's always the good people that bad things happen to."

Ms. Hayden, a U.S. Postal Service employee, returned home about 3:45 a.m. Wednesday after working late, and went to bed, police said.

"There was nothing she noticed, but the place was dark and they had separate bedrooms," Fort Worth police detective Ray Sharp said.

She was awakened shortly after 6 a.m. by her daughter's radio alarm and found the body. An autopsy determined Ginger had been stabbed repeatedly.

Eight homicide detectives continued to question friends and relatives of the teen-ager on Thursday, looking for clues in her slaying.

A small knife found outside the Hayden apartment was sent to the police crime laboratory to check for traces of blood.

Her friends describe Ginger Lynn Hayden as a bright, affectionate person. She was a freshman at the University of Texas at Arlington, where she had begun classes the day before she died.

She was active in the Midtown Church of Christ, where members are setting up a fund to pay off Ginger's outstanding medical bills from the 1983 accident.

Hodel: Gramm's clout dooms disposal sites

HOUSTON (AP) — Two nuclear waste disposal sites planned for West Texas will probably not open because of resident's protests and the political clout of Texans in Congress, the U.S. Department of Energy secretary said Friday.

Donald Hodel said the two sites, which are among nine being considered nationally, will not open because of public pressure and the influence of Republican Congressman Phil Gramm.

"Gramm's opposition is well known," Hodel said. "That's why there's been such an exhaustive review process."

Hodel said several states may be willing to serve as depositories for nuclear waste in the near future, but he refused to say which states might be willing to go along with the idea.

"One of the safest activities ever undertaken by man will be the handling of nuclear wastes," Hodel told reporters at a news conference.

The energy secretary also called for the elimination of his department if President Reagan is re-elected in November.

The Republican platform calls for the president to abolish the department, which Hodel said could be brought under the Interior Department, where he once worked.

"I think it would make good sense," Hodel said. "I honestly believe if you'd combine our department with another department there would be savings over time."

The president has worked to eliminate the regulatory parts of the agency, Hodel said.

"That's really been done by my predecessor and the president," he said. "What remains are the laboratories, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the strategic petroleum reserve. All of those things will continue to be funded."

DOE figures predict a steady decline in consumer demand for oil products through the end of the century, Hodel said.

Although the department predicted in 1979 the price of oil could reach $75 to $90 per barrel, Hodel said DOE projections now show the price will remain relatively stable, rising to $35 from its current price of $29.

"I would think oversupply will take several years to work off," said Hodel.

In a speech earlier before a conference of women's business owners, Hodel said the president's national energy policy "is guiding us on the right course for America's energy future."

Nation shivers on one end, perspires on the other, freezes up in between

Associated Press

The nation shivered on one end and perspired on the other Friday as Southern California's heat wave contrasted with more record low temperatures in the East and the season's first frost in the central Appalachians.

In between, snow and ice closed a highway in the Colorado Rockies.

Trees in West Virginia's northern mountains have already begun to show autumn colors. One Los Angeles heat stroke victim has died and four more remained hospitalized Friday.

In sweltering Los Angeles, only eight of 32 classrooms at Gates Street Elementary School were air-conditioned, and the temperature reached 102 in one class, so students went home early.

"It is too hot in our rooms and we feel like boiling onions," said Yvette Gameras, a sixth-grader at Gates, who wrote to the school board and Los Angeles Times as part of a class project.

'It's like in those movies where they put prisoners in hot dungeons," Principal Ada Mermer said.

West Virginia's high Canaan Valley, in Tucker County in the northeastern part of the state and just over 100 miles west of Washington, D.C., recorded an official low of 31 degrees Friday morning and some residents reported readings as low as 28.

"This is the earliest we've had frost in a couple of years. It was a pretty good frost," said Janet Sweigart of Canaan Valley Stores.

"Now it's beautiful — nice and clear and crisp but it's cool."

Leaves around Canaan (pronounced kuh-nane') Valley already have started turning colors, said Ms. Sweigart.

"Coming up out of Davis you can see them turning," she said. "They have been for about a week."

Town shocked after boy's murder

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Teachers urged children to take extra precautions as residents of this affluent New York suburb expressed shock Friday at the city's first murder this year — the slaying of a 13-year-old boy who was found stabbed and choked in the woods.

The body of Matthew Margolies, missing since Aug. 31, was found Wednesday in a shallow grave about a mile from his home. His body was clad in a T-shirt and underpants, but authorities said there were no signs of sexual attack.

At Western Junior High School, teachers set up a "buddy system" for students traveling to and from school and planned to call home to check on students who are absent with no explanation, said Principal Joan King.

Mrs. King described Matthew as a "good kid who worked hard, got average grades and had lots of friends," and said teachers are "encouraging all the children to go directly home so their parents don't worry."

They also are discussing precautions for dealing with strangers and watching for signs of grief, depression and anxiety among the students, she said.

Matthew was last seen about 5 p.m. on Aug. 31, walking near the Byram River with his fishing pole in the Glenville section of this town of 59,000 residents on the southwestern tip of Connecticut.

Police initially thought the boy may have been despondent over the Aug. 17 death of his grandfather and accidentally drowned. An extensive search along a three-mile stretch of the river proved fruitless until the grave — which police described as hastily dug — was found Wednesday afternoon.

The boy's athletic shorts were near the body, but police Chief Thomas G. Keegan said there was no sign of sexual assault. Cuts on Matthews arms led police to believe he tried to fight off his attacker, Keegan said.

A 10½-inch knife, apparently the murder weapon, was found Thursday near the grave, police Capt. William Andersen said Friday.

Matthew died of multiple stab wounds and "traumatic asphyxia," Dr. H. Wayne Carver II, the state's deputy chief medical examiner, said in a statement. Traumatic asphyxia is a sudden, severe compression of the chest or upper abdomen that results in death because a person cannot breathe.

Area residents were shocked by the slaying.

"This is Greenwich, man. This stuff doesn't happen around here," said Jeff Tipke, who works at the service station in Glenville. "Lots of people are keeping their kids real close to them today, what with school just opening."

Greenwich First Selectman Roger Pearson said people are sharing a feeling of helplessness.

"We are a stable community," Pearson said. "It is occurrences like this that shock your sensibilities and remind you that no community, however blessed, is immune to the wanton acts of a select few."

"Everybody's nervous," said Elizabeth Heminway, who lives in the Round Hill section of northern Greenwich. "Everybody is just horrified, and the uncertainty of not knowing the details of it all, everybody tends to think the worst."

Maryann Margolies, Matthew's mother, said Thurdsay she wants the killer found, "not so much that this person even be punished, but I don't want any other child hurt.

"I'm asking the children in particular: Kids, you tried hard to find Matthew. If one of you saw something — anything at all — don't be afraid. Don't be afraid to come forward. Think of the other kids that you can help."

Summertime's decline not evident in Permian Basin

Summer is on the decline, but you'd hardly know it.

Today, the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for fair skies and a high in the mid-90s. Winds are to be southerly today at 10 to 20 mph. For tonight and Sunday, the weatherman is forecasting more partly cloudy skies, a low tonight in the mid-60s and a high Sunday near 90.

Friday's peak temperature was 94 degrees, but the record high for a Sept. 7 is 99 degrees in 1930. The overnight low was 56 degrees; the record low for a Sept. 8 is 55 degrees in 1957.

STATE

Thundershowers hit parts of the Coastal Plains and South Texas Friday, but most of the remainder of the state had clear skies and continued cooler temperatures brought about by a high pressure system.

The heaviest thundershowers were over the Lower Rio Grande Valley and in the Houston area, the National Weather Service said.

North Texas had gusty south and southwest winds of more than 30 mph. Southeast winds between 15 and 20 mph were the rule elsewhere, the weather service said.

Temperatures averaged from the mid 80s to the low 90s across the state. The extremes at 4 p.m. Friday ranged from 75 degrees at Houston to 96 at Wink in West Texas.

The forecast for today in West Texas called for fair and warm and becoming partly cloudy over most sections tonight and Sunday. Highs today should range from the mid 80s to the near 102 in the Big Bend valleys.

Thundershowers were expected in North Central Texas Saturday. Lows in the North both tonight and Sunday night will be between 66 and 71 with highs today 91 to 97, the weather service said.

In South Texas, scattered thundershowers were expected across the region today, with high mostly in the 90s except in the 80s on the coast. Lows today night should be mostly in the 70s, the weather service said.

NATION

Gusty winds whipped across portions of the southern and central Plains on Friday, while to the north, showers dampened a zone from northern Minnesota to central Colorado.

Most of the South had sunny skies, except for Florida, where thunderstorms lingered over the northeast portion of the state.

Meanwhile, Southern California remained in the grip of a record-setting heat wave, while the mercury hit record lows in the East.

Windy conditions continued across eastern Wyoming, where gusts of up to 58 mph were recorded at Riverton, 56 mph at Rawlins, and 53 mph at Laramie.

Showers drifted into the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas from a tropical depression that moved into Mexico on Friday from the Gulf of Mexico.

Heavier rainfall in the six hours ending at 2 p.m. EDT included about a quarter of an inch at Jacksonville, Fla., and .23 inches in Flint, Mich.

The low temperature for the nation Friday morning was 30 degrees at West Yellowstone, Mont., while record cold readings were posted in the Carolinas, Tennessee, New York, Georgia, Delaware, Louisiana and Florida.

Temperatures at 4 p.m. EDT ranged from 40 degrees at Yellowstone, Wyo., to 101 degrees at Needles, Calif.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms from the upper Great Lakes region to central Illinois and over northern Montana, southern Florida and the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Widely scattered thunderstorms were expected to stretch across the Missouri Valley and over eastern portions of the southern Plains.

Strong winds were due across the lower Great Lakes region, while sunny skies should cover the Atlantic Coast states and much of the West.

Fifty-two students hurt at pep rally when set of bleachers collapses

SPRING, Texas (AP) — Fifty-two students were injured Friday when a set of bleachers collapsed during a pep rally at a north Harris County high school shortly before noon, officials said.

No students were admitted to Northwest Medical Center, which treated the injured, hospital spokesman Philip Martin said.

The bleachers collapsed during a pep rally in the gymnasium about 20 miles north of Houston, said school spokeswoman Rachel Browning.

Martin said most students suffered only minor cuts and bruises and were in the process of being treated and released. He said the most serious injuries appeared to be a broken ankle and a fractured toe.

The students were taken to the hospital by bus and ambulance, Ms. Browning said. She said school officials did not know what caused the bleachers to collapse.

Zacarro Jr.: Young people will lose most

WASHINGTON (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro's children, making their public speaking debut, said Friday that the nation's young people have the most to lose if President Reagan is re-elected and urged them to register to vote.

John Zaccaro Jr., the 20-year-old son of the Democratic vice presidential nominee, told a "We're the People" rally for volunteers that the nation needs leaders "who will attack problems facing our future, not avoid them."

"It is our future President Reagan is mortgaging for the temporary convenience of today," said Zaccaro, a junior at Middlebury College in Vermont who is taking a semester off to campaign for his mother.

"It is our generation that will pay for the record deficits that Ronald Reagan is piling up in Washington," he said. "It is our future that is at stake with Ronald Reagan's policies. He is the only president since Herbert Hoover not to sit down and negotiate with his Soviet counterpart."

Glancing dwon at his speech, handwritten on the back of a press release, Zaccaro said that if Reagan is re-elected, he may have the opportunity to replace five Supreme Court justices who are now in their late 70s: "And it is our generation who will have to live and abide by their decisions."

Donna Zaccaro, 22, told the group that Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale and her mother face an uphill race and "getting out the vote is the key to victory in November." Ms. Zaccaro, on leave from Salomon Brothers in New York where she is a financial analyst, said she will campaign full-time for her mother.

Laura Zaccaro, 18, told the group gathered near the Mondale-Ferraro campaign headquarters that she was surprised to find that so many of her college-age friends who talk of their fear of war had not registered to vote.

"You can make a difference," said Ms. Zaccaro, who is delaying her entrance to Brown University to campaign.

"The senator is removing the nomination from the agenda because he feels that at the present time, any new hearings would be overly-politicized in an election year," Goodin said. He said Thurmond felt it would be best for the nomination to be considered by the new Congress in January.

He said Meese was to be informed of the decision some time Friday.

The senator made the decision "independently" and had no contact with the White House before taking the action, Goodin said.

Goodin said Thurmond has not seen or been made aware of any report on Meese by Stein, and had no indication when it might be made public.

A spokesman for the ranking Democrat on the Judiciary Committee, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said the senator was campaigning in his home state and was not immediately available for comment on Thurmond's action.

"I think that this is a decision with which Mr. Biden would concur," said spokesman Pete Smith. "There is no controversy over the matter. It is the proper thing to do under the circumstances."

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, Meese's primary foe on the Judiciary panel, had no comment on the development, according to aide Roy Meyers.

Metzenbaum had called on Meese to withdraw his name from consideration after the presidential adviser said he had "inadvertently failed" to report on his government financial disclosure form an interest-free loan of $15,000 to his wife in 1981. Such disclosure is required by law.

"People are becoming unglued; they're getting excited about it," Storey said.

"That's an awesome amount of money," noted Franck. "That's the most exciting thing about it."

Tourism in Texas today is a $14 billion annual industry.

Storey presented Texas Sesquicentennial flags to Midland County Judge Bill Ahders; Parker Humes, president of the Midland Independent School District's board of trustees; Kenneth Peeler, chairman of Midland College's board of directors, and David Godfrey, mayor pro tem of the city of Midland.

The city, county, college and public school systems are sponsoring the Midland Centennial/Texas Sesquicentennial celebrations here.

Storey presented Texas Sesquicentennial lapel pins to Mrs. Baskin, Mrs. Isbell, and Ms. Jackson and had one in hand for Midland rancher Chris Scharbauer, who'll get his pin when he "gets back from riding the herd." Scharbauer is co-chairman of the Centennial.

Texas' 1986 Sesquicentennial will include a 2,800-mile "trail" to be followed by 100 covered wagons, trail riders and an assortment of horseless carriages. The six-month statewide tour is to begin Jan. 2, 1986, in Sulphur Springs in northeast Texas and is to wind up in Fort Worth on July 3, 1986. The wagons will travel to the Capitol in Austin and will pass by the Alamo in San Antonio in its westward trek.

The caravan is to pass through Odessa and Midland in May of '86.

Celebrations also will include Texas ships a'sailing and hot-air balloon races.

Unlike Texas' 1936 Centennial in which activities were centered in Dallas, the Sesquicentennial fanfare will extend to all of the state's 254 counties.

WEATHER

Light frost also was reported in the Randolph County community of Glady, and in the mountains of Pennsylvania.

Low temperature records toppled Friday morning from the Great Lakes to the Gulf states, continuing a week of temperature records as a mass of cold air has slowly moved southeastward from Canada.

Colorado's Trailridge Road in Rocky Mountain National Park was closed by snow and ice Friday and snow plows were sent out on Rabbit Ears Pass. Trailridge Road crosses the Continental Divide at nearly 12,000 feet.

The nation's high Friday was 101 degrees at Needles, Calif.

The Los Angeles area has had at least three temperature records this week, and National Weather Service forecaster Bob Greebe said the heat would continue through Tuesday with highs near 100.

One heat stroke victim in his 70s died Thursday, one remained comatose Friday and a third was in stable condition, said Dr. Linton Bayless, an emergency room physician at Los Angeles County USC-Medical Center.

Two people from Pasadena suffering from heat stroke were admitted Thursday night at St. Luke Hospital in Pasadena, hospital spokeswoman Becky Humphrey said.

Overuse of air conditioners was blamed for transformer failures that have caused power outages for more than 100,000 homes and businesses since Tuesday. But Southern California Edison spokesman Russ Hawkes said Friday that peak load demand was down again for the second straight day.

The Los Angeles Department of Parks and Recreation closed 43 public swimming pools on Labor Day, leaving open only eight, while Los Angeles County shut 12 of its 38 pools.

Democrats gather to work on party unity

STATE

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Democrats gathered Friday at the Dallas Convention Center to work on party unity as some party leaders said they were preparing a resolution that would make this the last September state convention.

"I don't know any good reason for being here," said longtime liberal leader Billie Carr. "We'd be better off home registering voters."

Ms. Carr, of Houston, said she will offer a resolution today urging the Texas Legislature to amend the Election Code allowing the elimination of the September convention and changing the terms of State Democratic Executive Committee members from two to four years.

Ms. Carr's proposal has drawn support, the Dallas Morning News reported Friday, from Democratic National Committee member Millie Bruner of Dallas and State Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle of Sherman.

The September convention, held this year at the site of last month's Republican National Convention, is expensive and a waste of time, and should be abolished, they say.

Democrats met in a June state convention in Houston and then many traveled to San Francisco in July for the national presidential nominating convention.

"Three conventions in one summer are just too many," Ms. Bruner said.

Ms. Carr and Ms. Bruner said they expect a low turnout of the 5,700 delegates and 5,700 alternates eligible to attend the weekend sessions.

Slagle said the state conventions cost between $25,000 and $50,000 and said the party would be better off spending that money on registration and get-out-the-vote efforts.

The state convention delegates are expected during the two-day affair to adopt the national Democratic Party platform, with some added "Texas planks," and hear from speakers such as unsuccessful presidential candidate Gary Hart, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, and Gov. Mark White.

Slagle said, however, that before he commits fully to the proposal, he wants to meet with the black and Hispanic caucuses to make certain they agree with the change.

Diamond Shamrock may be fined $2.3 million

DALLAS (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Friday it has filed a complaint carrying a $2.3 million fine against the Diamond Shamrock Corp. charging that the firm illegally disposed of 1,228 tons of PCB-contaminated waste from a Houston pesticide plant.

EPA spokesman Roger Meacham in Dallas said the agency took the action after "an intensive year-long investigation."

If the fine against the Dallas chemical and energy company is upheld, "it would be one of the largest fines the EPA has proposed for PCB violations nationwide," Meacham said.

Diamond Shamrock spokesman Ken Haseley said the company wouldn't comment until officials reviewed the EPA complaint.

The complaint charges the company's Green's Bayou Plant in Houston with illegally dumping 1,228 tons of waste laced with polychlorinated biphenyls between September 1979 and November 1980.

PCBs are a highly toxic byproduct of pesticide production. PCBs, which have been associated with reproductive disorders, cancer and disfiguring skin disease, can accumulate in human tissue, Meacham said.

The EPA charged that the PCBs were dumped at the Texas Ecologists Corp. site in Robstown, near Corpus Christi, and the Chemical Waste Management Inc. site in Port Arthur.

Neither site was authorized by the federal government to handle wastes with PCB-concentrations greater than 50 parts per million, Meacham said.

"The EPA is now evaluating the situation at each site by working closely with the staff of the Texas Department of Water Resources in Austin," he said.

Tom Milligan, a spokesman for the state agency, said it is unclear whether the two toxic dumps knew the Diamond Shamrock waste contained PCBs. He said both sites are primarily landfills, although the Port Arthur dump also has an injection well.

"We don't know if the PCBs were injected," he said.

Milligan said a preliminary examination of state records indicated that "waste codes that Diamond Shamrock put on the shipments did not show the presence of PCBs."

The EPA complaint also charges Diamond Shamrock with improper storage of PCBs and failing to label PCB containers, Meacham said.

Meacham said the EPA investigation began in May 1983 after a routine inspection of the Green's Bayou plant.

James C. Moore

Developer donates more land

AUSTIN (AP) — Austin developer James C. Moore, who just made a million-dollar land gift to the Texas Democratic Party, says he is giving away three more valuable parcels of undeveloped real estate west of Austin.

The new gifts have not been appraised.

"The way I look at it, a lot of people waste their money on trips to the Riviera," said Moore, 34. "I'd rather put mine to work for a good purpose."

Moore said his new beneficiaries would be Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower; the Democratic Small Business Council, a group organized by Dallas financier Jess Hay; and a Minneapolis group known as the League of Rural Voters.

"I consider it a straight political contribution," Hightower said of the four acres he received. He said he is uncertain what he will do with it.

"I'll say one thing for Jim Moore, he's come up with an innovative way of making campaign contributions," Hightower said.

Hay's group will get 10 acres and the Minneapolis group 10 acres.

Moore said the League of Rural Voters planned a project this fall to educate and organize rural voters in seven Midwestern states and in Texas.

The three parcels are being carved out of 228 acres Moore owns along the Pedernales River near Hamilton Pool, a scenic area wast of Austin. The parcels adjoin the 27 acres given the state Democratic party, which was appraised at $600,000 to $1 million..

Moore, a native of Lufkin who formerly was a lawyer and developer in Houston, says in addition to developing a low-density community he plans to build a major center for show horses.

Man accused of killing family has been committed

HOUSTON (AP) — A man accused of killing his wife and baby believing they would rise from the dead has been committed to a state mental hospital.

State District Judge Charles Hearn sent 37-year-old Benny Roy Hamilton to the Rusk State Hospital Thursday after a jury found him incompetent, insane and dangerous.

Hamilton is charged with the 1983 slayings of his 8-month-old son and 27-year-old wife. The child was beaten to death in February and the body was left in a closet. The wife was strangled a month later and her body was put in a shower stall.

Authorities said the bodies were discovered there in May, a few days before Hamilton returned to the scene and was arrested.

He told officers the two were influenced by witchcraft and voodoo and that he returned to witness their resurrection.

According to assistant District Attorney Eric Hagstette, Hamilton still says he hears the voice of God.

"He's still delusional," Hagstette said. "He hears things and he sees things. This case is as bizarre as they come."

Lavelle's lawyer argues for conviction reversal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lawyer argued Friday that the perjury conviction of former Environmental Protection Agency official Rita M. Lavelle should be reversed, in part because the jury was never told that EPA attorneys could have told her she was supplying false information to Congress.

Mark B. Bierbower told the U.S. Court of Appeals that the agency's lawyers had a "professional duty" to inform Ms. Lavelle that they suspected she may be commiting perjury.

Ms. Lavelle, former administrator of EPA's toxic waste clean-up program, was convicted of lying to Congress about the date she learned that her former employer, Aerojet-General Corp., was involved in the Stringfellow acid pits in California. The agency at the time was considering the site for the clean-up program.

Rita Lavelle

Prosecutors charged that Ms. Lavelle, after being told May 28, 1982 about the involvement of Aerojet-General, ignored repeated warnings to stop handling the case.

But in a written statement she supplied Congress and in appearances before two committees, Ms. Lavelle said she did not learn of Aerojet's involvement until June 17, 1982. The written statement was drawn up by EPA lawyers.

Bierbower said Ms. Lavelle "would have recanted" her statement had the lawyers informed her that they suspected the June 17 date was wrong and that she was misleading Congress.

Ms. Lavelle's perjury conviction, six-month prison sentence and $10,000 fine centered on the statement — and her congressional testimony — that she didn't learn of Aerojet's involvement until June 17.

"These attorneys had a suspicion when she executed the statement that it was incorrect," Bierbower said. "There was a breach of attorney-client duties."

Justice Department attorney G. Allen Carver, arguing that the conviction should be upheld, said the prosecution presented "clear and convincing evidence" of Ms. Lavelle's guilt.

The prosecutor said even if EPA lawyers should have told her about her possible perjury — a point he did not concede — Ms. Lavelle must take responsibility for her own actions.

Interior Department to ask court to cancel gas leases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department plans to ask a federal court to cancel natural gas leases held by two large oil companies in Alaska on the ground that the firms deliberately underpaid their royalties.

It would be the first time the department ever moved to take back a lease for alleged failure to pay specified royalties.

The alleged underpayments could amount to as much as $170 million by the year 2000, department officials say.

For several years, the Interior Department has been contesting the payments on gas produced from the Kenai field by Unocal Corp., formerly Union Oil Corp., and Marathon Oil Corp., a subsidiary of U.S. Steel Corp.

Last year, when the government told Marathon to increase its payment, the company cut it and sued on the ground that its contract was being changed unilaterally.

A department official familiar with the case, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified, said Friday that the department plans to ask the U.S. District Court in Alaska to void the leases.

The government says the leases provide that royalties are to be based on the selling price of gas averaged over from the entire field, most of which is produced from state lands. The companies counter that the royalties are supposed to be based on the prices of individual sales contracts.

The individual contract prices vary greatly, from 15 cents per thousand cubic feet for gas consumed in nearby towns to $4.80 for gas liquified and shipped by tanker to Japan. Only about 15 percent of the gas goes to Japan.

The Kenai field, one of the biggest in the country, produces about 87 trillion cubic feet of gas per year, 90 percent of it on state lands. The state also gets the lion's share of the $100 million in annual royalties.

Critics say cabinet will be deadlocked

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

An Analysis

TEL AVIV, Israel — The two blocs forming Israel's first bipartisan government in 14 years are likely to find their national unity Cabinet is too polarized to function smoothly or initiate a bold foreign policy.

Critics say the carefully balanced Cabinet, with the socialist Labor Party and the right-wing Likud bloc holding equal power, is a formula for endless deadlock.

"It will be hard for the government to function properly...when there is parity, it will be hard to decide anything," said Aryeh Naor, a former Likud Cabinet secretary.

"I doubt if it can hold up over a long period of time," Naor said in a radio interview.

Labor's Moshe Shahal, a legal expert who is writing the coalition agreement, said "to a certain extent the new Cabinet, which is based on parity between two ideologically opposed blocs does give off a smell of political paralysis."

Israelis overwhelmingly approve of the idea of bipartisanship after years of political rivalry and bitter sniping that have accented the nation's divisions.

Many see a unity government as the only chance of giving the country the strong leadership it needs to impose tough measures for dealing with an economy sliding toward 400 percent annual inflation and with mounting debts.

But the critics say unity will crush any hope of reaching a solution to the problems of the West Bank and its Palestinian population.

"This government means absolute deadlock. There is no chance of moving toward peace," said Yossi Sarid, an outspoken leftist who announced he was quitting the Labor Party rather than cooperate with Likud.

The divisions now buried in a purposely vague joint policy guideline could resurface if President Reagan revives his two-year-old blueprint for Mideast peace.

The Reagan plan calls for Palestinian self-rule in the West Bank, which is to be tightly linked with Jordan in a peace agreement. It also demands a freeze on Jewish settlements.

Likud rejected the Reagan plan, calling it a recipe for Palestinian statehood. Labor, in opposition when Reagan put his plan forward, called it a "basis for dialogue."

Some analysts say the polarized outlooks of the two parties are irrelevent. They argue that the differences do not matter as long as the Arab states are not ready to talk peace, and that the political climate in the Middle East is not ripe for new initiatives.

Naor said that barring a dramatic change in Jordan's attitude, the "ideological argument between the two parties will remain theoretically fascinating, but not practical."

The six-week negotiations on a joint Cabinet nearly broke down over the settlement issue. Labor wanted to freeze new construction on the West Bank, while Likud wanted to continue the drive to populate the area with Jews.

That standoff was broken when Labor agreed to abide by a decision of Yitzhak Shamir's outgoing Cabinet to build another 27 settlements, but to delay construction until the economy improves. Likud claimed a moral victory.

Under the Labor-Likud pact, which both parties are expected to approve early next week, Peres will serve as prime minister for the first 25 months of the government's term and then Shamir will take over.

One problem that held up the unity negotiations was Likud's fear that Shamir would not get to serve his term because the joint government may not last that long.

The coalition is an ideological shotgun wedding forced on the two parties by the inconclusive July 23 election.

Labor won 44 seats in the 120-member Knesset to Likud's 41, but neither party could find enough coalition partners to stitch together a parliamentary majority.

Both parties say they are not giving up their principles by joining a unity government. "The idea is to move the debate from the streets and the front pages into the Cabinet room," said Abba Eban, a former Labor foreign minister.

But in agreeing to join forces, both parties moved toward the center, shedding supporters on the extreme fringes.

The Marxist Mapam Party, which ran on a joint ticket with Labor, said it was leaving its long-time ally. Mapam, Sarid and the three-member Citizens' Rights Movement planned to cooperate in a parliamentary bloc to give the left its first clear voice in years.

Some Likud allies of the last government also refuse to support the coalition, charging that Likud was selling out Jewish settlements as its price for unity with Labor.

In the past, small ultra-religious groups have parlayed their position as swing parties into major concessions for Israel's religious minority, about 20 percent of the Jewish population.

But the broad coalition will strip the small parties of most of their power.

"The religious parties no longer have the nation by the throat," said political analyst Avi Bettleheim.

U.S. vote shows feeling for Israel

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The United States' veto of a U.N. Security Council resolution critical of the Israeli occupation of southern Lebanon reflects Washington's judgment that Israel probably will withdraw soon anyway and that U.N. criticism would prove counterproductive.

"Our role is to keep world pressure off of Israel," said an informed State Department official Friday.

Speaking only on condition that he not be identified, he said the Reagan administration wants to give Israel as much breathing space as possible to work out a withdrawal plan that includes security guarantees.

But in the process, the administration risks being isolated internationally on the occupation issue, and has given the appearance of getting tied up in knots with its own statements. The United States had approved a U.N. resolution in June 1982 calling on Israel to withdraw unconditionally.

The latest resolution, proposed by the Lebanese government, called on Israel to respect the rights of civilians in southern Lebanon and to ease restrictions on the movement of people and goods.

Israel recently has restricted access to southern Lebanon to curb increasing attacks by Shiite Moslem guerrillas against Israeli forces. Controls were tightened after Lebanon closed Israel's liaison office near Beirut in July.

One reason given for Thursday's veto was that the resolution was not also directed at Syrian forces in Lebanon. But Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy recently told Congress that Syria had been "helpful" in Lebanon.

The administration has maintained an embarrassed silence in the face of what officials acknowledge privately are Israeli abuses in southern Lebanon, including occasionally harsh treatment of its largely Moslem Shiite population.

But a State Department official, who likewise spoke only on condition that he not be identified, said the feeling here is that Israel will have to make a move toward pulling out its troops within about six months. Not only will the Israeli people demand it, he said, but Israel knows it is creating major new security problems among the hostile Shiites by remaining in southern Lebanon.

The vote in favor of the resolution was 14-1, with such U.S. allies as Britain and France voting with the majority.

John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, said Friday the resolution "focused entirely on the situation in southern Lebanon" and therefore amounted to "an unfair highlighting of just part of the problem, as this debate and vote sought to do."

However, in Beirut, Prime Minister Rashid Karami denounced the U.S. veto, which he said surprised him. "May this modern civilization that is championed by such cheap values be cursed," he said.

Although the Lebanese sought the resolution, U.S. officials believe Syria was behind it.

U.S. officials believe the Israelis eventually will withdraw from southern Lebanon even though Syrian forces remain. One said the Israelis will try to gain an informal "understanding" with Syria to prevent Palestinian guerrillas under Syrian control from moving back into southern Lebanon.

This official said such an understanding would not be in writing and Israel would be taking a gamble by withdrawing without an iron-clad guarantee, but that it has no choice.

This view is shared by other State Department officials, who said it may be in Syria's interest to keep the Palestinians in check.

Another official sees an Israeli pullout no matter which of the two major parties, Likud or the Labor Alignment, dominates the new Israeli government.

U.S. officials see only a minor role for the United States in Lebanon now, following the Marine withdrawal last spring after intense U.S. involvement that included the death of 264 American servicemen but failed to achieve Washington's goal of a withdrawal of all foreign forces.

Washington will help bring the parties together for talks, if asked, but has no intention of become a central party to negotiations again.

The administration doesn't mind that it appears to be alone in defending Israel's occupation of southern Lebanon. Since the American peace effort collapsed, the Reagan administration has taken an unambiguous pro-Israeli stand on most issues, prompted in part by the importance of the Jewish vote in Nov. 6 presidential election.

Blacks set bus afire; Police close schools

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Crowds of angry blacks set a bus afire and stoned cars Friday evening in the huge black township of Soweto, police said, days after riots in other black communities killed 31 people.

There were no immediate reports of injuries in Soweto, and two hours after nightfall the township appeared quiet. Riots that started in Soweto in 1976, spread across the country and hundreds of people died in the violence.

On Friday, the government closed down troubled black schools a week before a scheduled holiday, and a magistrate banned all Johannesburg-area memorials for Steve Biko, a widely respected black leader who died in police custody in 1977 at age 30.

The decision to close the schools "was taken as a result of the present climate in these areas not being favorable to meaningful education," said Braam Fourie, director general of the Department of Education and Training.

Closing the schools appeared to be aimed at defusing anger in the townships that began in early August with widespread classroom boycotts and erupted Monday into day-and-night rioting in three black townships. Soweto was not one of the affected townships in the riots this week.

All 31 dead were black. Some were killed by police gunfire. Others died when mobs stormed homes or businesses of blacks accused of going along with apartheid, the system of racial segregation that guarantees white privilege.

The week's violence was the worst in this white-ruled country since the 1976 Soweto riots.

Edgar Posselt, a spokesman for the education department, said he did not know how many of the more than 5.6 million black students in the country will be affected by the school closings.

Mondale's son predicts Texas victory

AUSTIN (AP) — Nearing the end of a 15-city tour of the state, the son of presidential candidate Walter Mondale on Friday predicted a narrow victory for his father in Texas and discounted opinion polls showing President Reagan running well ahead.

"They're doing some wishful thinking with these polls. I'd always rather be behind in the polls and working than ahead in the polls and sitting back on your laurels," said William Mondale, 22.

"We're going to win Texas. It's not going to be by a big margin, but you don't need a big margin. You need one more vote than they get," he added.

The younger Mondale has been touring Texas since Labor Day. He said he has found Democrats excited about the Mondale-Geraldine Ferraro ticket and that he doesn't worry about the polls.

"The longer you stay in this business, the more you rely on feelings. I want to tell you what a good feeling I have, not only to be back in Texas ...but a good feeling about the issues we're trying to raise, the general theme," he said.

Mondale said Reagan is scaring many Republicans because of his conservative philosophies and followers.

"Reagan is not a mainstream Republican. He's the leader of the radical right," Mondale said.

He said his tour of Texas, which ends at the Democratic state convention in Dallas, has given him enthusiasm over the volunteer effort which is building for the final two months of the campaign.

Mark Farnen, Texas field director for the Mondale-Ferraro organization, said more than 5,000 Texans have volunteered to work for for the campaign.

"We have a great wealth, not in money perhaps, but in the wealth that really decides what happens on election day — people," Mondale said.

Describing the organization as "a very impressive array of volunteers that have spring up," Mondale said. "I am very very encouraged by the enthusiasm I see."

He said the Reagan administration's policies have slighted working people, farmers and others. He predicted they will remember that on Nov. 6.

"There are a lot of people upset. I think the farmers are quite upset at the lack of concern this administration seems to have on their problems and the plight of the family and small farmer," he said.

Laundromats complain of booming business

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Coin-operated laundry owners are complaining about a boom in business brought about by local residents who are using commercial launderies rather than home washing machines in an attempt to live within water allocations imposed by the city.

The businessmen told the Water Allocation and Review Committee, charged with overseeing the water rationing plan that began Aug. 25, that the burgeoning business will put them far over their own water allotments.

Laundry owners, who have been told to reduce water use 25 percent a month, asked the city to devise some plan that will give them relief.

Water Allocation Board members were in a quandry over how to remedy the problem.

"Maybe we've got more of a problem than we've been aware of," said Doug Matthews, director of public utilities. "I don't know myself what the answer is."

Single-family residences are limited to 6,000 to 12,000 gallons a month, depending on family size. Commercial businesses, including coin laundries, must reduce water use 25 percent.

'Whistle blower' sues school for reinstatement of job

UVALDE (AP) — The fired director of the Uvalde branch of Sul Ross State University has filed suit against the school claiming he was illegally discharged for reporting a crime.

Dr. William Tindol is seeking $10 million in damages and reinstatement as head of the Uvalde Study Center of Sul Ross.

"In January I reported there were cattle missing from the university," Tindol told the San Antonio Express.

"I didn't report a number, but they have discovered about $50,000 worth were missing," he said.

Tindol said he believes his action cost him his $45,000-a-year job as head of the study center. His contract was reduced to a nine-month, $31,800 agreement in which he will serve as a professor.

State law forbids government agencies from taking reprisals against employees who report illegal activities.

A spokesman for the Texas attorney general's office, who represents state agencies named in the suits, said Tindol's suit is apparently the first of its kind under the new state law, which went into effect in 1983.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Plane crashes in Papua New Guinea

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea (AP) — A light plane crashed in the remote jungles of the Star Mountains, killing at least nine of the 11 people on board, officials said Friday.

Initial reports from the crash site near Tabubil said a child survived the crash and another passenger was missing.

Joe Wal, the government's director of civil aviation, said the plane apparently crashed Thursday, and was not found by a helicopter rescue team until dawn Friday.

He said authorities were looking for the missing passenger and trying to determine what caused the crash.

Police arrest Mafia suspects

BERGAMO, Italy (AP) — Police arrested 36 Mafia suspects who allegedly specialized in hijacking long-haul trailer trucks, authorities announced Friday.

Mario Conte, a state prosecutor who coordinated the raids in a dozen cities Thursday night and early Friday, said police also seized arms and stolen goods worth tens of thousands of dollars.

The suspects, picked up near this northern Italian city as well as Naples and its surrounding towns, were all charged with conspiracy to defraud, Conte said.

Helicopters rescue villagers

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indian air force helicopters and army motorboats evacuated more than 50,000 marooned residents Friday as the flooding Kosi River inundated new areas in Bihar state, the government's All-India Radio reported.

According to press reports, thousands of villages have been submerged in Bihar, India's poorest state. The swirling floodwaters of the Ganges River and its tributaries washed out highways and railroads and knocked down communication lines in the region.

Helicopters dropped food packets Friday to tens of thousands of residents marooned in Bihar's Saharsa and Rohtas district, the broadcast said.

Chinese nutrition better, report says

PEKING (AP) — The Chinese are getting bigger because of improved nutrition, medical care and more sports activities, the official Chinese news agency Xinhua reported Friday.

CIA aids Americans providing equipment to Salvadorans, Nicaraguans, officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department acknowledged on Friday that U.S. embassy officials in Central America had direct contact with a group of private American citizens who provided military equipment to the Salvadoran armed forces and Honduran-based Nicaraguan rebels.

But department spokesman John Hughes re-affirmed that the group was not operating under U.S. government sponsorship.

The activities of the group, known as Civilian Military Assistance, came to light last weekend when two of its members were killed while engaged in a helicopter mission inside Nicaragua.

Subsequently, a leader of the group, Thomas Posey, told interviewers that the American embassies in El Salvador and Honduras facilitated contacts for him and his associates with local authorities.

In acknowledging that U.S. diplomats had dealings with the group, Hughes said "apparently there were some contacts between Mr. Posey and his group and some American officials in embassies in San Salvador and Tegucigalpa."

"We're pursuing the facts," Hughes said. "We're trying to produce as full an accounting of as many contacts as possible." He said the U.S. Embassy in Honduras has no written rules governing contacts with visiting Americans seeking assistance in locating Nicaraguan rebels based in that country.

Hughes said he was unable to confirm Posey's statement that the group provided arms and ammunition to Nicaraguan rebels in Honduras. He added, however, that the department has been informed that ammunition clips were delivered to the Salvadoran armed forces.

Jennings says he's off drugs

Waylon Jennings
Kevin White

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Waylon Jennings says he has been off cocaine for five months since taking his wife and 5-year-old son to a rented house in Arizona to break his drug addiction.

Waylon Jennings

The 47-year-old "outlaw" singer said he decided to get off drugs with the help of his wife, country singer Jessi Colter, when he "finally ran up against the wall."

"I was drawing up into a shell, ruining my health and not liking anything, anybody or anything I did," Jennings said in a copyright story Friday in The Tennessean. "I can look back now and tell what a wreck I was. Then, I couldn't tell."

Jennings, known for songs like "Mamas Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to Be Cowboys," "Good Hearted Woman" and "I've Always Been Crazy," said it was the first time in 20 years he hasn't used drugs.

BOSTON (AP) — Former Mayor Kevin H. White promises he won't "tell old war stories" about his 16 years in office when he begins teaching a class on politics and the media.

Kevin White

White, who did not seek election to a fifth term, taught his first class Thursday as a professor of communication and management at Boston University's School of Public Communication.

"I'll tell them about the only thing I know about — politics," White said. "I want to show them a whole new way to think, and when they're finished, they should never think the same way again."

"At the end of the course, I'll let the students pick some of the issues I was involved in in my 16 years as mayor and let them tear me apart," White said.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Bob Hope, Charlton Heston and some of the men Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle led on World War II's first bomb run on Tokyo were on hand when Doolittle was given the Mutual of Omaha Criss Award.

Doolittle's wife of 66 years, Josephine, also was given the award, for contributions in health, safety, education and public welfare, in ceremonies Thursday night.

"This is for your contribution to our great country and you're just as great," Hope, who also has received the award named for an early Mutual of Omaha leader, said as he presented the medallion.

Doolittle, 87, also was the first person to fly across the United States in less than 24 hours.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — John W. Bricker, the former U.S. senator and governor of Ohio who ran as vice president with Thomas E. Dewey in 1944, says he really didn't have a very high opinion of Dewey.

"We didn't get along very well," Bricker said in an interview on his 91st birthday Thursday. "He was always wanting to condemn somebody. I told him to lay off that stuff."

Dewey, a Republican, lost to Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1944 and to Harry Truman in 1948.

In other observations, Bricker said that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower "didn't know whether he was a Republican" and "had to be talked into it."

He also predicted that President Reagan "will win unless he makes some awful mistake."

JERUSALEM (AP) — Twelve-year-old piano prodigy Maya Weltman will make her debut with the London Philharmonic Orchestra next month after being discovered by conductor Klaus Tennstedt as he walked by a children's music competition.

The eighth grader, who has studied piano for four years, will perform with the philharmonic at London's Royal Festival Hall on Oct. 4. It will be her first appearance with an orchestra.

Legal action taken against photographer

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Former Miss America Vanessa Williams has taken the first step in initiating legal action against photographer Tom Chiapel, whose sexually explicit photos cost her her crown.

Visiting Dutchess County State Supreme Court Justice Ralph Beisner signed a "substituted service" order Thursday, a legal formality necessary when a defendant is not available to be served with legal papers.

The order does not contain any dollar amounts and court officials said the order does not mean a suit will necessarily be filed.

The court officials said the documents were returned to Miss Williams' attorney, the firm of Parcher and Herbert in Manhattan, for any further action.

Miss Williams, 21, the first black Miss America, was forced to turn in her crown in July when the nude photos of her with another woman appeared in the September issue of Penthouse Magazine.

Chiapel took the photos of Miss Williams and Amy Gier Wessell while Miss Williams was his receptionist at the TEC Modeling Registry in the summer of 1982 in Mount Kisco.

Miss Williams, who lives in the Westchester County hamlet of Millwood, said last month that she was planning to sue Chiapel and Penthouse.

Aware that Penthouse plans to publish a second set of Chiapel's photographs of her in its November issue, Miss Williams said any lawsuit she filed would seek to prevent the "malicious" and unauthorized printing of additional pictures of her.

Chiapel has moved from his Brewster home to an undisclosed location. His unavailability made the "substituted service" order necessary, according to court officials.

Penthouse was not named in the court document, officials said.

Late last month, Miss Williams admitted that she posed nude for a second photographer, Greg Whitman, also in the summer of 1982. Those photographs are to appear in Penthouse in January.

Reagans won't be getting free tickets to Jacksons' concert

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who lobbied publicly for Michael Jackson and his brothers to include the capital in their much-ballyhooed "Victory" tour, won't get a free ticket for his successful effort.

In fact, he hasn't even been invited to attend their concerts here.

Officials of the Stadium Management Corp., which is promoting the tour, and the District of Columbia Armory Board signed a contract Friday for the Jacksons to perform at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium on Sept. 21-22.

The concerts will be the 29th and 30th of the tour, and 44,000 tickets to each show will be sold beginning this morning.

Last spring, when Michael Jackson appeared at a White House ceremony to receive an award, Reagan put in a light-hearted plug for the superstar singer and his brothers to bring their show to Washington.

Officers raid tomato garden

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — The faces of the marijuana raiders were as red as the tomatoes and chili peppers they found instead of pot in the garden they raided at a farm labor camp.

"It was the similar color of the peppers and leaves of the tomato plant combined that made us think that we had marijuana," said Sgt. Ron Chaplin, head of the sheriff's narcotics unit and local coordinator of the Campaign Against Marijuana Planting.

"This is the only time when we've been completely off track," Chaplin said Thursday.

Residents of the camp about 125 miles northeast of San Francisco said that when they saw a helicopter hovering Tuesday, and a caravan of vehicles carrying 10 raiders with guns and search warrants, they thought it was an immigration raid or a search for a fugitive.

Chaplin said the officer in charge "made all the necessary apologies before leaving."

British writer says current TV too bland

LONDON (AP) — British writer Johnny Speight says today's television is bland. As the creator of the outrageous character that became Archie Bunker across the Atlantic, Speight speaks with authority about what touches nerves and what doesn't.

Those famous slurs against blacks, homosexuals and long-haired youth that became the stock-in-trade of actor Carroll O'Connor's Archie Bunker have their origin in Speight's British creation, Alf Garnett, the candidly bigoted boozer of the British Broadcasting Corp. series "Till Death Us Do Part."

American producer Norman Lear bought the idea for Archie Bunker from Speight, whose Garnett was called "Britain's most popular export since Scotch whisky" by a newspaper in 1974.

Ten years later, 64-year-old Speight sports the gold jewelry and healthy tan so common to successful entertainment industry figures, but his good fortune has in no way blunted his off-the-cuff, working class sensibility.

"What Alf did and what I tried to do was bring politics, religion and philosophy down to the street level where the average person understands it," Speight said through puffs on his cigar.

"When you talk about approximations and figures like 1 percent or 5 percent or the FT index, that doesn't mean a thing to most people," he said. "All they know is that pound in their pocket — that piece of crumpled filth they carry around with them — and how much it will buy today in a pub or a restaurant."

"Till Death Us Do Part" ended a 10-year run in 1976, with the exception of a five-month reprise in 1981. It remains the highest-rated show in British television history — just as Alf has remained a part of his creator.

"They'd have to put me down under before I retire Alf," said Speight of the series that starred Warren Mitchell as the lout Alf, an East Londoner living with Elsa, his "silly old moo" of a wife, and Rita and Mike, his daughter and son-in-law.

Despite an average audience of 18 million viewers a week, the BBC has hesitated to air reruns of the show, a decision that angers Speight.

"The public right now would love him," he said, "but the bureaucrats have taken over on TV. Nowadays, everything has to go up to executive board meetings, with people who cannot read a script.

"TV has been taken out of the hands of the workers and given to the executives, and that's the way the system is. If you've got bland television that no one is complaining about and no one really notices, then your job is easier and safer," he said.

DEAR ABBY

Farmer may be just your bale of hay

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm a city girl who's attending college at Ames, Iowa. I've fallen in love with a young man whose father was a farmer, and he intends to follow in his father's footsteps.

What are my chances for happiness as a farmer's wife? Do you have any statistics on this? — IN LOVE WITH WALLY

DEAR IN LOVE: No statistics, but love being what it is, statistics wouldn't help much anyway.

A reader sent a charming piece. It may not be your bale of hay, but if it is, good luck to you and Wally:

"I wanted a guy who could sit and have a cup of coffee with me at 5 a.m. when the only sounds to be heard are crickets, cows and creaking floorboards...That's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who would crack a joke and make me laugh when I am covered with dirt and cow manure...That's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who could get out of a nice warm bed when it is 30 below, start up the tractor and plow out the driveway so the school bus can get through...That's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who could entertain four kids, a dog and a nerve-wracked wife when the power goes off, the pipes freeze and everything quits during a two-day blizzard...That's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who could put up with in-laws, outlaws and new tax laws and still be open-minded and openly loving...That's why I married a farmer.

"I wanted a guy who could count his blessings when he's depressed, count his children when he feels poor and count on God to make it all work out...That's why I married a farmer."

DEAR ABBY: This concerns my 13-month-old grandson. My son-in-law plays with him like this: He holds him by his ankles, head down, then swings him around pretending he's an airplane. The child is so dizzy after this, he can't stand up or walk right away. The poor little fellow gasps for air and sometimes laughs and cries hysterically. I'm so afraid he'll be hurt. I can't stop thinking about this.

My daughter doesn't say anything because her husband doesn't accept criticism very well.

I'm sure my son-in-law loves his son — he just doesn't know how to play with him. Print this. He reads your column and it might help. — CONCERNED GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Please don't leave so serious a matter to chance. Tell your daughter that she absolutely must inform her husband that his kind of "play" could seriously damage the child, and he must stop it! If she's afraid to tell him, then you tell him. And if he gives you an argument, insist that he call the pediatrician for verification of your statement. If he refuses, then you call your local child abuse authorities and report him.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

'Hippo swine' can cost you $25

AALBORG, Denmark (AP) — It costs the equivalent of $100 in this north Jutland city to throw gravel at a police officer and $25 to call him a "hippo swine."

The fines assessed earlier this week by a judge prompted a member of Parliament to ask Justice Minister Erik Ninn-Hansen for guidelines on what gestures can be considered crimes against public servants.

Carsten Andersen of the Socialist People's party also called on the Conservative minister to explain which gestures are allowed — or not allowed — when a nurse refuses to admit patients at an overcrowded emergency room or a social worker announces cuts in welfare money.

The Aalborg ruling was the third time in 1984 a Dane has been fined for making an obscene gesture at a police officer.

Rushing Rebels stampede Coronado, 27-0

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The Midland Lee rushing attack lived up to expectations Friday night against Lubbock Coronado as Rebel backs pounded out 295 yards for three touchdowns enroute to a 27-0 non-conference victory over the Mustangs.

It was the first game for the Rebels this season and the first under new head coach Jack Tayrien. Not only did his Rebels give him a ground-pounding victory, but defensively, Lee allowed Coronado only 48 yards.

Quarterback Dirk Bergoon started the Lee scoring spree in the first quarter, guiding the Rebels 64 yards on 6 plays. With Coronado defenders keying on halfbacks Walter Jones and Tyrone Thurman, Bergoon was able to find some running room, scoring the touchdown on a quarterback keeper.

Opting not to pitch to a trailing back, the senior quarterback broke around right end and went 30 yards for the score. Craig Kamradt came in and kicked the extra point for a 7-0 lead with 6:18 left in the quarter.

Kamradt was a terror in the second quarter as he added seven more points to the Rebel scoreboard. With 3:22 remaining in the half, Coronado halted a 14-play, 71-yard drive six yards from the Mustang goal line. Tayrien called on Kamradt and he booted a 26-yarder to increase the Rebel lead to 10-0.

On the first play following the kickoff, Coronado tailback Chris Moore fumbled the ball at the Lee 24-yard line. Thurman, running left, found the hole and took the ball into the endzone on the next play. Kamradt made it 17-0 with the kick and 3:03 still on the halftime clock.

For the fourth time in the half, the Rebel defense stopped the Mustang attack cold, forcing Moore to punt, and poorly at that. Moore's kick went nearly straight up in the stiff wind blowing out of the south and came down after covering four yards.

Lee ran three plays and, on fourth and nine from the 24, Kamradt kicked a 41-yard field goal, his second of the game, for a 20-0 lead at the half.

After a scoreless third quarter, Lee put the final touches on the victory when Jones finally broke the run everyone was looking for. It only covered 30 yards, but it showed his moves as he followed his blocking and his power as he ran over three would-be tacklers. The run, his last of the game, punched him over the century mark for 101 in the game.

Kamradt, again, added the extra point for the 27-0 victory. It was his eighth point of the game.

FOR CORONADO, it was a night of frustration that spoiled the debut of head coach Kenneth Wallace who took over the helm after four years at Lubbock Dunbar.

"I thought we would move the ball a little better than we did. It was the worst job I've seen us do all year,"said Wallace. "We didn't block a sole the whole game. It was total chaos."

Of the 48 yards the Mustangs managed to compile, Moore acounted for 20 rushing and three on one of two pass receptions.

For Lee, Jones led all rushers with his 101 yards while Thurman tacked on an extra 57 and Bergoon 56. Rodney Simms, on three carries, picked up 42.

The Rebels almost went to a pass-crazy attack at one point in the first half, pass-crazy for a noted running team. Bergoon completed his first attempt during the drive that set up Kamradt's first field goal. His pass to split end Dexter Traylor was good for 21 yards and a first down.

In the series after Thurman scored his touchdown, Bergoon tried back-to-back passes that failed. On the night he was 2-of-5 for 24 yards and one interception.

Next week the Rebels remain at Memorial Stadium, hosting Temple at 8 p.m.

Reagan Owls snatch win from Steers

From Staff Reports

BIG LAKE — Reagan County got off to a good start Friday night as the Owls overcame an early 7-0 deficit to defeat the Robert Lee Steers, 20-7.

Robert Lee lit up the scoreboard quickly as Greg Grim took the opening kickoff and went 83 yards for the score. Bobby Boone added the extra point.

Reagan County fought back when Tim Thompson scored the first of his three touchdowns in the game on a 20-yard run. The extra point attempt failed at the Owls still trailed, 7-6.

In the second quarter, Thompson struck from six yards out to give the Owls the lead at 12-0. Once again the PAT was no good.

In the third quarter, Thompson broke loose on a 24-yard run to the end zone for an insurance TD. Terry Thompson scored the conversion on a run for the 20-7 final score.

Reagan County outrushed Robert Lee by a 306-53 margin to dominate the offensive statistics.

Badgers nudge stubborn Braves

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

McCAMEY—The McCamey Badgers and Iraan Braves picked up where they left off in their season's opener Friday night.

Both teams state quarterfinalists in 1983. Both teams indicated that the playoffs are again their destination. In a game neither side deserved to lose, McCamey relied on an unknown hero to score a hard-hitting 7-0 win.

The winning touchdown will be recorded for posterity as a three-yard rip over left tackle by McCamey fullback Ben Molina, but the game's real hero was a sophomore lineman, not even listed in the game program.

The sophomore, Rene Morin, blocked a punt off the foot of Brave Kent Pullig to set up Molinas' TD. Morin wasn't even on the varsity until a few days ago when an injury opened a spot on the roster.

For purists, the game was a text book defensive battle, although McCamey's offensive stats were much more impressive on totals alone, neither team showed much ability to move the football.

"It was a physical football game. They were very physical," said McCamey Coach Buster Leaf. "Their coaches and kids are to be commended, but out kids never gave up. We had a lot of opportunities to get our heads down, but we didn't give up."

McCamey outgained Iraan 107-11 in a scoreless first half, but missed on the game's best scoring opportunity. The Badgers first offensive play resulted in a Ben Molina fumble, but Iraan could not cash in.

McCamey's second possession started much better when quarterback Heath Stephens bootlegged to the left for 28 yards, staying on the ground the Badgers drove from their 27 to a third and goal at the Brave seven, but 13 proved to be an unlucky number. On the drive's 13th play, Stephens' first pass of the game was underthrown to 6-7 tight end James Kennedy and Iraan's Ray Zapata intercepted at the goal line.

Zapata missed a 50-yard field goal try late in the half, despite a strong tailwind, and both teams went into the intermission no better of than they had started.

Three McCamey turnovers in the opening half also stifled the Badger attack, but it was McCamey who played take-away in the second half. Besides Morin's game-deciding blocked kick, Adam Arana intercepted Brave quarterback Kirby Godfrey twice. Godfrey was unmercifully harrassed all night and totaled minus 30 in rushing yardage.

The Badger defense was impenetrable, holding Iraan to minus nine yards rushing in the second half.

Davis' 56-yard dash gives Midland win

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — Linebacker Darrell Davis gave new Midland High football coach Doug McCutchen a touchdown wrapped in 56 yards of purple ribbon here Friday night at Lowery Field and it proved to be a happy package for all concerned.

Davis' 56-yard third quarter interception return off of Lubbock Monterey quarterback David Coleman was the difference in a 10-7 verdict for the Bulldogs. It made McCutchen a victor in his first shot at putting on a purple shirt.

"It wasn't very pretty, but we will take it. It's a win," said McCutchen, "Our defense played well enough to win the game and I'm pleased with that, but our offense made little mistakes at crucial times. But those are things that can be worked out."

The Bulldogs had 267 total yards to Monterey's 161. The Dogs moved up and down the field, but came up with only three points after getting inside the Monterey 20 on four different occasions.

So Davis took matters in his own hands in the third period, scoring untouched 56 yards on Coleman's overthrown pass.

"I was just in the right place at the right time," said Davis, who literally waltzed the last 15 yards.

"This team is better than last year. We just made mistakes we shouldn't have, "

Despite Midland High's inability to punch in a TD, junior quarterback Matt Marcum had a stunning varsity debut himself, completing 11 of 24 passes for 132 yards.

"I felt some pressure being the starting quarterback in the opening phase of the game, but not really as much as I expected," said the young passing whiz. "When the recievers are finding the open lanes and you have plenty of time to throw, the pressure is off. Still, we made mistakes that we won't make any more. We were disappointed on those times we didn't get the ball in."

The first half proved to be a tough start for Midland High. The Bulldogs dominated the first two periods with Marcum hitting with machine gun rapidity, completing nine of 17 passes for 109 yards.

However, all the Dogs got out of it was a 23-yard field goal from Bobby Williams after a 74-yard drive fizzled at the Monterey six.

Monterey converted the first of three MHS fumbles in the first half into a nine play 45-yard drive. The drive got its start when Midland's Allan Foret looked to have broken the opening kickoff, but the ball slipped from his graslp just as he was about to move into the clear at the 45.

The Plainsmen's Coleman then tossed all three of his first half completions to Carey Wallace to give Monterey a 7-0 early lead on the first drive of the game.

It was Coleman's 13-yard pass to Wallace that put Monterey in front and that proved to be tough on the Bulldogs, who spent a big part of the game just trying to catch up.

DESPITE moving up and down the field on the generalship of Marcum, the Bulldogs sputtered just as drives were promising touchdowns.

One Bulldog drive got to the Plainsmen 28, but downs ran out and a Marcum fumble stopped Midland at the Monterey 34.

Monterey did nothing in the first half outside of the first drive as the Bulldogs kept coming up with intercpetions. The Lubbock team, however, held tightly to the scoreboard with that ominous 7-3 advantage, but Davis proved to a tough accident for the Plainsmen. His third quarter romp was finally the clincher.

The MHS defense was superb, intercepting Monterey gunners five times with Davis, Tommy Hudson, Mark Johnson, Jesse Armendariz and Mike Stanton all hawking pick-offs.

The preseason word was that MHS backs couldn't run, but Keith Byrd had 77 yards rushing on 15 carries while Jake Madrid had 64 on 13. Those four MHS fumbles, however, hurt the overall performance of a frustrated Bulldog offense.

Now another road trip to Andrews next week stares at the Bulldogs. There's isn't much time to celebrate. At least, the new McCutchen era is running in the right direction.

HOBBS, N.M.—Chris Gomez put together rounds of 70-77-73—220 for medalist honors in the New Mexico Junior College Invitational Golf Tournament. The sophomore from Topeka, Kan., led Midland to a fourth place with a 920.

Host NMJC was first with a 906. Both days were played in high winds.

John Sundberg first a 77-76-74—227 for the Chaparrals while Jeff Fontanilla and Raymond Cole each had 229. Fontanilla scored 73-79-77 while Cole had a 79-75-75.

The Chaps open conference play next week at South Plains College in Levelland.

Rookie, vet share first at Boston

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Young Joey Sindelar, a rookie on the PGA tour, and old pro George Archer went on birdie sprees and charged into a tie for the lead Friday at the halfway mark of the $350,000 Bank of Boston Classic.

Sindelar, a three-time Ohio State All-American from Horseheads, N.Y., enjoyed his finest day as a pro, firing a 7-under par 64, just one shot off the Pleasant Valley Country Club's course record. Sindelar stands at 135 for 36 holes.

However, his undisputed lead lasted only a few minutes as Archer, who will be 45 on Oct. 1, stormed home with a 66 for 135.

That gave Sindelar and Archer a 1-stroke lead over Australia's Bob Shearer, who shot a 69 in the morning to go with his opening 67.

Calvin Peete, the first round leader with a 66, managed only a par-71 on the 7,119-yard, wind-swept course in the afternoon.That sent Peete into a tie for third at 137 with veteran Curtis Strange and third-year pro Larry Mize. Strange shot a second round 69, while Mize fashioned a 66, both in the morning.

Defending champion Mark Lye, 1979 Pleasant Valley winner Lou Graham, Lance Ten Broeck and Paul Azinger were tied at 138. Lye, Graham and Azinger each shot a 69 for the second day in a row, while Ten Broeck had a 67.

Three other former champions here, John Mahaffey, Dave Stockton and Bob Gilder, were locked in a bunch at 139. Mahaffey shot a second round 69, Stockton 70 and Gilder 66.

The cut was made at 144, 2 over par. The major casualties were two-time U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin (150), reigning U.S. Open champion Fuzzy Zoeller (146), and Ray Floyd, Pleasant Valley's biggest money winner with career earnings of more than $100,000 here (146). Tom Shaw, another former local champion, also missed the cut with 145.

Sindelar, who turned pro in 1981 but didn't qualify for the PGA tour until last fall, was helped by an eagle 3 on the 606-yard fifth hole, and five birdies.

Kathy Baker leads with 68

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Kathy Baker shot a 4-under-par 68 Friday to take the first-round lead in the $150,000 Portland PING Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Baker, 23, managed a nearly error-free round, negotiating the par-72, 6,285-yard Riverside Golf and Country Club course without a bogey.

A pair of Amys, Alcott and Benz, joined Denise Strebig, at one stroke behind the leader at 3-under-par 69. Marta Figueras-Dotti was two shots back with a 70.

One of the early starters in the field of 142 entries, Baker had birdies on the par-3 fourth and 17th holes, as well as on the par-4 first and 13th holes.

Baker, bidding to become the eighth first-time winner on the ladies' tour this year, was a model of consistency. But most of her challengers were erratic at best.

The 28-year-old Alcott, who has won twice on the LPGA Tour this year, had birdies on the first, third, sixth, 13th and 16th holes, but suffered bogeys on the eighth and 14th.

Benz bolted into contention early with birdies on the first four holes. But she struggled with bogeys on the sixth, eighth and 10th, before rallying with birdies on the par-4 12th and 14th holes.

Benz, 22, would have had a share of the lead but her tricky, downhill 20-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th spun around the lip of the cup and fell halfway into the hole before spinning out.

Louisiana lowers boom on Boom Boom

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Louisiana's boxing commission suspended former lightweight champion Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini for 60 days Friday for failing to reveal he might have to pull out of a scheduled fight because of a cut over his left eye.

Mancini announced Thursday that his own orthopedic surgeon had ordered him out of a nationally televised fight scheduled Saturday at the World's Fair against Kenny "Bang Bang" Bogner for fear the inch-long scar would reopen.

Collins' 66 good for stroke lead

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Bill Collins shot a 6-under-par 66 over the Hermitage Country Club course Friday for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $200,000 United Virginia Bank PGA Senior tournament.

Collins, 55, who had to quit golf 21 years ago to undergo a back operation, came back to compete on the senior tour in 1981, and has scored only one victory — in the Greater Syracuse Open in 1982. But he mastered the Hermitage course easily with seven birdies and one bogey Friday, with nine-hole totals of 34-32 over the par 36-36 Hermitage layout.

Dan Sikes posted a 33-34, playing his entire round without a bogey, while claiming the second position.

Rod Funseth shot 34-34 for a 4-under-par 68. Bill Johnston (36-34), Lee Elder (36-34), Billy Casper (33-37) and Peter Thompson (35-35) were next in line at 70.

Grouped at 71 were Doug Sanders, defending champion Miller Barber, Jim Ferree, Pete Hessemer and John Kalinka.

Collins, the 16th leading money winner this year on the senior tour with $52,433, came within one stroke of the course record. His birdies came on putts ranging from 10 inches to 30 feet, at the par-4, 367-yard sixth hole. But he said the key to his round was his excellent driving.

"I could have had a pretty good round if I had made some key putts," Collins said.

Jackson squares TL series at 2-2

BEAUMONT (AP) — Taking advantage of two Beaumont errors in the third inning, the Jackson Mets scored four unearned runs and maintained that lead for a 5-3 victory over the Golden Gators Friday night, evening the best-of-seven Texas League championship series at two games a piece.

With one out in the third, Mets catcher Greg Olson singled to left before starting pitcher DeWayne Vaughn struck out for the second out. Lenny Dykstra then walked, moving Olson to second. Mark Carreon followed by hitting a ground ball to Gators' third baseman Ray Etchebarren, who threw wildly to first base, allowing both Olson and Dykstra to score, with Carreon moving to second on a two-base error.

After Billy Beane walked, Ed Hearn singled just behind second base and Beaumont shortstop Bill Wrona committed another throwing error that allowed Carreon to score from third. Dave Cochrane followed with a single to left that drove in Beane for the 4-0 lead.

WICHITA AEROS—Announced the sale of the franchise to the Rich Products Corp. in Buffalo, N.Y., where the team will now be located.

From Wire Reports

NEW YORK — Dwight Gooden allowed only an infield single and broke a 71-year-old National League record for strikeouts by a rookie pitcher as the New York Mets beat Chicago 10-0 Friday night to reduce the Cubs' Eastern Division lead to six games.

Gooden, who tied Tom Seaver's club record by striking out 10 or more batters for the 13th time this season, finished with 11 to increase his total to 235, tops in the major leagues.

The 19-year-old Gooden, 15-8 after his sixth straight victory, snapped the NL rookie mark of 227 set in 1911 by Grover Cleveland Alexander of the Philadelphia Phillies. He is now 10 strikeouts shy of the major league rookie standard of 245 established by Herb Score of the Cleveland Indians in 1955.

George Foster hit a three-run homer in New York's five-run third inning against Dick Ruthven, 5-10, and Darryl Strawberry hit a two-run shot as the Mets scored three more in the sixth. Mookie Wilson also drove in three runs.

Gooden, in pitching his second shutout, did not allow a hit until Keith Moreland beat out an infield single to lead off the fifth inning. Moreland hit a slow bouncer down the line to third baseman Ray Knight, who fielded the ball cleanly but didn't make a throw.

The only previous Cubs baserunner was Bob Dernier, who led off the game with one of four walks allowed by Gooden.

It was Moreland, three innings earlier, whom Gooden had struck out to tie Alexander's record. He broke the record against the next batter, Ron Cey, with his fourth strikeout of the night. Cey struck out swinging at a 3-2 pitch.

The Mets scored once in the first inning on a leadoff triple by Wally Backman and Wilson's sacrifice fly.

Foster's 20th homer gave the Mets a 6-0 lead in the third.

The Mets scored another run in the fourth on a single by Wilson. Hernandez singled home a run in the sixth before Strawberry homered to right-center on a 2-0 pitch from Rick Reuschel, the third Cubs pitcher. The homer was Strawberry's 21st.

Expos 7, Phillies 1

MONTREAL — Andre Dawson knocked in four runs with two homers and Jim Wohlford added two solo homers to back the five-hit pitching of Bryn Smith as Montreal defeated Philadelphia 7-1, the Phils' fifth straight loss.

Smith, 11-11, was the winner.

The Phillies started the home run derby with Juan Samuel's 11th homer leading off the third.

In the Expos' third, Argenis Salazar and Smith singled. Trying to complete a double play, third baseman Mike Schmidt pulled Al Oliver off the bag with his throw to first. Dawson then homered off Shane Rawley, 8-4.

Wohlford, ending an 0-for-12 drought, opened the fourth with a homer. Dawson led off the sixth with a homer, marking the 15th time he has homered twice in a game. One out later, Wohlford connected off Rawley for his third of the season, a career high.

Pirates 4, Cardinals 1

PITTSBURGH — Jim Morrison and Jason Thompson hit solo homers as Pittsburgh Pirates beat St. Louis 4-1.

John Tudor, 9-10, allowed seven hits as the Cardinals had a five-game winning streak snapped. Rod Scurry pitched 1 1-3 innings for his fourth save.

With Pittsburgh leading 1-0, Morrison led off the fourth inning with his eighth homer off Cardinals starter Ricky Horton, 9-4. One out later, Denny Gonzalez doubled and scored on Marvell Wynne's single.

Thompson's homer, his 17th of the season and third in five games, came off reliever Neil Allen in the fifth.

Expos 7, Phillies 1

MONTREAL — Andre Dawson knocked in four runs with two homers and Jim Wohlford added two solo homers to back the five-hit pitching of Bryn Smith as Montreal defeated Philadelphia 7-1, the Phils' fifth straight loss.

The Vikings started the scoring with a 28-yard field goal by Bob Sell early in the first quarter.

The second half was a defensive battle as Trinity held Lawrence to 2 total yards.

No verdict on Swoope cocaine case

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The jury in the federal cocaine trafficking trial of University of Illinois football star Craig Swoope ended its first day of deliberation Friday night without reaching a verdict.

The jury was scheduled to resume deliberation at 9 a.m. CDT Saturday.

Before deciding to retire for the night, jurors had told U.S. District Judge J. Waldo Ackerman that after nearly eight hours of deliberation they still were deadlocked.

Ackerman gave them a short pep talk, reminding them that while they should reach a unanimous verdict, no juror should change his mind just because of pressure from others.

Ackerman then told the jury to try again Friday evening to reach a verdict in the case.

The case went to the jury of nine women and three men about 12:30 p.m. after Swoope's lawyer called him "an All-American, but not just on the football field."

Swoope, 20, faces a maximum sentence of 45 years in prison and fines totaling $75,000. He was charged with conspiracy, possession of cocaine with intent to deliver, and distribution of the drug.

In closing arguments Friday morning, defense attorney J. Steven Beckett told the jury that Swoope, a junior defensive back, was used by admitted drug dealer Herbert Lorenzo Siler as a lure for potential cocaine customers. He said Swoope had no knowledge of the drug sales conducted by Siler earlier this year in Champaign.

NCAA investigates Gator staff

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The NCAA is investigating allegations that the University of Florida football staff secretly paid motel and meal bills for the families of some players who came to Gainesville for Gator games, the St. Petersburg Times reported Friday.

Families were put up at motels under the names of prominent Gator booster and their rooms and meals were billed to the University Athletic Association, the newspaper reported in a copyright story.

The Times named Julia Gilliam, mother of former defensive back Sonny Gilliam, as one of the recipients.

Badgers

"They were trying to keep Rodney from getting outside, and we couldn't get him outside," said Leaf.

Molina and Stephens were a factor. Both have been charged with replacing all-district performers. Molina responded with his touchdown and a game high 61 yards on 18 carries. Stephens was the No. 2 yardage gainer with 42 yards on 10 rushers and 21 yards on a completion to split end Vivian Garza.

"Heath did well," said Leaf, "We couldn't run the option and that's a tribute to them."

The Badgers now must go to Marfa, who they rudely eliminated from the playoff a year ago by a 40-19 score.

"We're going to enjoy this one for now," Leaf said, "Will savor it for six or seven hours and then go back to work."

The Braves gained only seven yards rushing on the night in 24 attempts, and could total only a paltry 38 yards of offense.

Iraan countered by stopping speedy Badgers' tailback Rodney Terry at every turn, spearheaded by a defensive savagery of linebacker of Thomas Clay, Terry netted only 26 yards on 12 carries. Fifteen of those yards came on a fourth quarter dash and Terry was never a factor.

Martina, Chris in Open finals

From Wire Reports

NEW YORK — Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd easily battled their way Friday into the singles final at the $2.55 million U.S. Open championships.

The top-seeded Navratilova, seeking her second straight crown on the hard courts of the National Tennis Center, and Lloyd, a six-time U.S. Open champion, will face each other for the 61st time in their career today.

Navratilova defeated 13th-seeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia 6-4, 6-1. Then Lloyd, seeded No. 2, crushed No. 14 Carling Bassett, the 16-year-old Canadian, 6-2, 6-2.

In search of her sixth consecutive Grand Slam title, Navratilova has downed Lloyd in their last 12 meetings, the last time in the women's final at Wimbledon in July. They have evenly split their previous 60 career meetings — and today's confrontation will be the 19th consecutive time they have met in a tournament final.

The first title in these championships went to Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia and John Fitzgerald of Australia, who captured the men's doubles crown Friday by stopping Sweden's Anders Jarryd and Stefan Edberg 7-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Besides the women's title match, today's schedule includes the men's semifinals: second-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia against No. 15 Pat Cash of Australia, and John McEnroe, the No. 1 seed, against defending champion Jimmy Connors.

Sunday, the men's singles final will be preceded by the championships of the mixed doubles and women's doubles.

Disaster awaits quaking giants

Associated Press

From what they say about their teams, you would think football coaches Danny Ford of Clemson and Tom Osborne of Nebraska were headed for disaster this weekend.

Instead, Ford and Osborne are at the helms of two of the top three teams in the nation as college football gets into full swing today. Clemson, ranked third and coming off a 40-7 romp over Appalachian State, visits Virginia in an Atlantic Coast Conference night game. Nebraska opens its campaign hosting Wyoming.

Neither the Tigers or Cornhuskers figure to have many problems today — though you'd never get that feeling by listening to the coaches.

"If we're going to have a reputation for being a great team, we've got to be good enough to back that up," said Ford, who was unhappy despite last Saturday's rout of outmanned Appalachian State. "Sometimes I don't think the players listen to me when I tell them an opponent's going to be tough.

"But I keep telling them Virginia's a good team."

The Cavaliers, 6-5 last year, have not beaten Clemson in 23 tries.

"They're going to look forward to playing Clemson, and I think our team's got a hard job in trying to get ready to play Virginia and trying to win a football game at Virginia," said Ford.

More Sports Page 8B

Osborne is concerned that his Cornhuskers will have trouble with Wyoming's wishbone offense. The Cowboys rode that attack to a 31-13 victory over South Dakota last week. But no one is mistaking Nebraska for South Dakota.

"Wyoming is going to be a difficult team for us," Osborne said. "Their wishbone presents some unique problems for us. If you blow an assignment on an option play, you can give up six points pretty quick."

Nebraska defensive end Bill Weber also is worried about Wyoming's wishbone.

"It puts a lot of pressure on the defense," said Weber. "You have to play the run and the pass. It requires you to pay attention and do your job. You can't afford too many mistakes."

Elsewhere in the Top 10, No. 1 Miami, 2-0, is at No. 14 Michigan; No. 4 UCLA visits San Diego State at night; sixth-rated Ohio State hosts Oregon State; No. 7 Notre Dame plays Purdue in the Indianapolis Hoosier Dome; ninth-rated Alabama entertains No. 18 Boston College at night, and No. 10 Iowa takes on Iowa State.

Baylor, Rice face tough openers

DALLAS (AP) — The three-stage opening of the Southwest Conference's 70th football season enters Stage Two today with two member schools embarking on long road trips.

Baylor goes to Brigham Young University where the Cougars try to avenge their only defeat of the 1983 season, a 40-36 setback that might have cost them the national championship. And Rice is at Minnesota as Watson Brown makes his debut as the 13th head coach in the Owls' 73 seasons.

Texas A&M opened its season last weekend with a 20-17 victory over UT El Paso, while the other six SWC members kick off their seasons on Saturday, Sept. 15.

Next week's openers find Arkansas hosting Mississippi at Little Rock, Houston at home for Miami of Ohio, defending SWC champion Texas entertaining Auburn, Texas Tech hosting UT Arlington, and SMU at Louisville in that week's only road game for an SWC team.

SWC Thumbnails

The SWC's 70th season finds its members trying to rebound from a losing non-conference record (14-15-1) last season, first time in a dozen years that opponents have claimed a winning edge. After 1971 the SWC clicked off 11 straight winning non-conference seasons, capped by a 20-10-1 seasons in 1979 and '81.

Saturday's games in order of starting times with 1983 won-lost tied records in parentheses:

BAYLOR (7-4-1 in 1983) at BRIGHAM YOUNG (11-1 in 1983), 2:30 p.m. — Two of nation's top offensive teams of '83, they promise more fireworks this season. Bears took 40-36 victory in 1983 opener as both teams went on to successful seasons capped by bowl invitations. That was only loss for Cougars, second time in seven seasons that Bears spoiled otherwise-perfect season (21-6 victory over Kentucky in '77 was Wildcats' only loss that year). Both teams are among nation's most successful of this decade, Baylor posting 26-16-2 regular-season record in 1980s and playing in two bowl games in those four seasons, BYU going 39-7-1 in regular seasons and winning three of four bowl starts. SWC vs. BYU games have been few but memorable, Cougars scoring 46-45 victory over SMU in 1980 Holiday Bowl in what remains as the highest losing score ever by an SWC team. Baylor victory last year is only SWC success vs. BYU in three games in additon to win over SMU, BYU took 18-17 decision from Texas A&M in 1979 opener played at Rice Stadium during expansion work on Kyle Field. BYU led nation last year in total offense (584.2 yards per game) and passing offense (381.2) and was second in scoring (44 points per game). Baylor paced SWC in total offense (409.5 yards per game), passing offense (224.4) and scoring (28.3 points per game). BYU has lost ace QB Steve Young and Bears have lost SWC one-two receivers Gerald McNeil and Bruce Davis. However, there's still plenty of offensive talent as Bears return alternate QB starters Cody Carlson and Tom Muecke, who set SWC record by being first teammates ever to rank one-two in SWC passing. BYU QB Robbie Bosco fired offense to 20-14 win over Pitt in opener as Cougars' 12-game win streak is second-longest in nation. Although both are among best passing teams, both are capable of running the ball. BYU averaged 203 yards rushing in '83, Baylor 186. Bears also rushed for SWC tops 24 TDs. Baylor opens 83rd football season, winning last two season openers to hike opening-game record to 53-25-4.

RICE (1-10 in 1983) at MINNESOTA (1-10 in 1983), 7 p.m. — Both teams won only one game last season, followed by coaching changes. Minnesota's sole victory was 21-17 margin over Rice in Houston, while Owls took 22-21 decision from Southwestern Louisiana School. Coaching debuts for Rice's Watson Brown, who went to Rice last year from Cincinnati, and Minnesota's Lou Holtz, who has spent last eight years in SWC at Arkansas. Both have successful records, Brown 18-14-1 in three seasons at Cincy, Holtz 106-17 in six years at North Carolina State and eight at Arkansas. Rice kicks off 73rd season with 43-27-2 won-lost-tied record in past openers, but with an all-time record by six straight opening-game defeats. Brown has talked of averaging 40 to 50 passes per game.

Carmichael's feet too big

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys Friday were searching for a pair of size 15 shoes for newly acquired wide receiver Harold Carmichael so the former Philadelphia Eagle won't have to wear his green-and-white football shoes.

On Thursday, the 6-foot-8 Carmichael practiced in a Dallas uniform, but wore his green shoes.

Carmichael and former Canadian receiver Waddell Smith were signed Thursday in an emergency move to replace Tony Hill, who is scheduled to miss six to eight weeks with a separated shoulder.

"It is weird being here," said Carmichael, who is going into his 14th National Football League season. "I've been playing against the Cowboys for 13 years. Like I've been telling all the players, I apologize for all the things I said about them. I was just kidding. Really."

The 34-year-old wide receiver will wear his familiar No. 17 with the Cowboys.

Suicide ruled in sudden death of bass witness

DALLAS (AP) — A prize-winning fisherman who died of a gunshot wound the day before he was to appear before a federal grand jury investigating high-stakes bass tournaments cheating committed suicide, the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office ruled Friday.

Danny Ray Davis, 33, of Grand Prairie, was found next to a private lake in Grand Prairie on Aug. 28. A shotgun was near the body, police said.

"The ruling is self-inflicted shotgun wound to the head. The manner of death is suicide," said Don Kirby, an investigator for the Dallas County Medical Examiner.

According to Assistant U.S. Chris Harrison, Davis had been subpoenaed to testify before a federal grand jury in Tyler on Aug. 29.

"From our conversations with the Grand Prairie Police Department and some of our own dealings with Danny Davis, we are not surprised at the ruling," said Harrison, in Tyler.

Sources close to the inquiry have said Davis was cooperating with federal investigators and had been interviewed several times prior to his death.

Midlander strikes it big in Lake Mead tournament

John Chapman 10th in U.S. Open

TODD WOODARD
Outdoors Writer

Midland's John Chapman is $5,915 richer because of 21.69 pounds of black bass he caught.

The 43-year-old fisherman placed tenth in the U.S. Open Bass Tournament held at Lake Mead, Nev., Aug. 3-11. He was one of three Texans, but the only West Texan, who placed in the highest paying slots.

"We'd get up at 3 a.m. to draw partners for the day's fishing," Chapman said, "then we'd rig the boat, have breakfast and be on the lake by 6 a.m. After weigh in at 3 p.m., supper and driving back to the Tropicana Hotel, we'd get in bed about 11 p.m. I'm glad we only had four actual tournament fishing days, because I was worn out."

Chapman said the Open was the first time he had fished "in the big leagues." The field was littered with former B.A.S.S. anglers of the year, former Open winners and other professional fishermen like Jimmy Houston and Rickey Clunn. But Chapman said the big name fishermen were the friendliest and most helpful during the tournament.

"On the third day Clunn came in with no fish, none," Chapman said. "When someone of his fishing ability doesn't land a single fish, it surprises everyone. But he knew there would be another day. He just turned around and answered some kid's question."

Chapman said he and his partners (he drew a fellow Texan on the first day and Californians on the other three days) boated for more than 1½ hours each day to reach suitable fishing water. Once they reached the brushy, rocky points 60 miles back they wanted to fish, Chapman, said he had the best luck fishing a crawdad-colored Culprit worm covered in Fish Formula II spray.

Even as tough as the competition and the early hours were, Lake Mead's humidity and heat were tougher. Chapman said he drank more than a gallon of water a day, and once he had weighed his fish in, he soaked up two more cans of soft drinks.

"The temperatures during the heat of the day were about 110 degrees," he said. "It was so hot and the humidity was so high that you couldn't even cool off driving across the lake. The wind in your face felt like a furnace."

When the fishing began, Chapman said he had little confidence that he might beat some of the professionals. His first day total was 3.85 pounds, which put him well out of top 60 money positions.

The second day was even worse. He entered the tournament as a non-boater, which meant he always rode with someone else. His draw the second day lost the the boat's trolling motor in high waves. Neither of them weighed any fish.

The third day was the charm. His 11.38-pound total placed him second that day, only 4 ounces away from winning the daily heaviest stringer prize — a fully rigged boat.

"I had some good fish on that day, too," he said. "One of them would have won me a boat. If I had caught him." He moved into 21st place.

Chapman, who left Childress for Midland in 1969, had a great closing day as well. His 6.46-pound total moved him into tenth, earning him $5,000. His second place finish on the third day netted him another $915. His best previous tournament was a small Texas Bass Association meet at Lake Hubbard – he took sixth.

"It's nice to have an extra thousand or two around," he said.

Left to his own devices, Chapman said he wouldn't have entered the tournament. But at the urging of his girlfriend, Kay, his two daughters, Karen, 19, and Kim, 17, and the members of the High Sky Bass Club, he sent in his $1,250 entry fee.

"You've got to have nerve to fish against the old pros," he said. "And when I left, I didn't have much."

Chapman has only been fishing for six years. He wet his first line in late 1978 in Mexico. He said in one week there, he caught over 200 bass weighing more than 4 pounds. He released many of them, but the sport didn't release him.

In fact, fishing has since caught Chapman fair and square. He plans to fish another professional tournament Sept. 7-8 at Sam Rayburn, a 114,000-acre reservoir east of Dallas. If he does well there, he said he will fish at Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri Sept. 14-15 and then wrap up the month at a tournament in Arizona Sept. 21-22.

The Open, of course, will be on his schedule next year.

"I've already sent in the $1,250 for next year," he said.

College life requires 'oodles of noodles'

Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION, Texas — It has stacks of snacks, banks of franks and oodles of noodles.

It's the new Texas A&M Food Service Commissary, a massive warehouse on Agronomy Road that opened this summer. Inside, the food services department keeps $1.5 million worth of food, everything from sides of beef to Cap'n Crunch Cereal, the Aggies' favorite cereal, food service officials report.

To give an idea of the commissary's size, the food department has estimated that the commissary can keep 6.7 million pounds of food in dry storage — the capacity of about 85 railroad cars. The giant freezer can keep 2.6 million pounds — 33 car loads — at 10 degrees below zero. And the refrigerator holds 1 million pounds of produce and perishables — about 13 car loads.

Even serving at the rate of 50,000 meals a day, the average rate during a regular semester, the commissary stores enough canned supplies for a year, and enough refrigerated food for three to six months.

The assistant director of food services, Lloyd Smith, says the commissary's size enables the university to buy food directly from the manufacturer or the processor, eliminating the middleman. The savings are so great that officials estimate the $3.9 million building will pay for itself in four years.

The commissary opens onto Agronomy Road for truck deliveries as well as onto railroad tracks. Smith says about one-third of the food stored in the warehouse arrives by rail.

Even if the A&M board of regents decides to move the tracks, Smith says, the commissary will still have access to rail deliveries.

"If the tracks are moved, the railroad would still keep the tracks behind us as a switching yard," he says. "We'd still be able to bring in food by rail.

"In fact, we waited to build it until after the rail relocation study, and put it here because the study indicated that this portion would remain in use."

Not only does the commissary allow bulk purchases, Smith says, but it also has facilities that were previously unavailable. It contains a butcher's area with machines for cutting sides of meat and blast-freezing them, a barbecue oven for catering large dinners, and even racks for growing bean and alfalfa sprouts.

Unfortunately, Smith says, all the food has to be brought in from outside, because A&M's agricultural departments don't produce food in large enough quantities for a voracious campus. The only exception to that is fresh milk, which is trucked in every day from the Dairy Cattle Center.

Before the commissary opened, campus dining facilities were served from the basement of Duncan Dining Hall. Its ceilings were low, and access to it was difficult. Unloading a truck took 1½ hours then, Smith says. The same process now takes about 12 minutes.

The food department serves all campus dining facilities except for Cain Hall, the athletes' dormitory. Cain, operated by the athletic department, buys its food from the university, Smith says.

A college professor says, "I became a Christian because I found in myself a need which could be satisified only by Jesus Christ. I needed forgiveness and he gave it. I needed encouragement and he provided it."
We are a body of forgiven people attempting to provide friendship and encouragement to all people because of our relationship to Christ. Discover the joy of Christian commitment and service with us.

FRESHMAN FACES QUAD

At one of our universities the freshman dormitories completely surround a grassy plot reached through a shadowy stone portal. Originally called the "QUADRANGLE" because of its four imposing sides, it has long since become simply the Quad.

Perhaps this Fall a freshman from your family will begin a new life away from home. For him, or her there will be opportunities and obstacles, triumphs and temptations.

How well we meet life's challenges when we are on our own depends on our character, our convictions.

Hopefully, years before a freshman faces the Quad, a church back home has been helping to mold that freshman's character and deepening that freshman's convictions.

Social services key at Allen Church

RELIGION

By ARI L. GOLDMAN
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — There are times when the Allen Church in Jamaica, N.Y., might seem more like a social-service organization than a house of worship.

In any given week its activities might include sponsoring a break-dance contest, serving hot lunches to the elderly or evicting drug pushers from a local tenement.

The church, of course, also holds Sunday worship services, concerts of gospel music and Bible classes, but church leaders believe that their religious role is not complete without the social dimension.

"It doesn't do much good to talk about salvation without asking the question, 'What are we saving people for?' " said the pastor of the church, the Rev. Floyd H. Flake.

Concern for the community is a long tradition in black churches, but by most accounts the Allen Church is one of the most successful in the city in spurring a revival in a blighted area.

Dr. Gayraud S. Wilmore of the New York Theological Seminary in Manhattan, who for years has studied the development of the black church, said the Allen Church represented the re-emergence of the black church from a period during the 1960's and 70's when it was eclipsed by the nation's civil-rights organizations.

"The church is regaining its stature in the black community," Wilmore said. "The Reagan years have helped to blunt the cutting edge of the black civil-rights organizations. Churches are moving in to fill the gap."

In the last eight years the Allen Church has completed, with Federal assistance, an $11 million housing complex for the elderly, purchased 10 dilapidated stores for rehabilitation at a cost of $250,000, provided subsidies of $2,500 to dozens of individual home owners and, without any government aid, built a $3.8 million elementary school.

In that time the membership of the church, in the southern part of the Jamaica section, has doubled to 3,200 members and the church's annual budget has quadrupled to more than $1 million.

"A lot of folk with a little bit put it all together," said the 39-year-old Flake, who was dean of students and dean of the chapel at Boston University before becoming pastor of the Allen Church in 1976.

Wilmore, dean of the master of divinity program at the seminary, said that much of the credit for the success of the Allen church should go to its pastor.

"What Reverend Flake represents is a new style of ministry on the part of younger, well-trained black pastors," Dr. Wilmore said. "Seminaries are now producing men and women who have excellent training not only in preaching, but in organization, community development and business practices."

Wilmore added that he often sent students from the seminary to Jamaica to see what the Allen Church had accomplished.

The church has succeeded in an area that has all the problems of a depressed community. The crime rate is high and the school attendance rate low. Along side streets private frame houses have been abandoned and are boarded up, and on main throughfares storefronts have become after-hours social clubs and havens for illegal gambling and illicit drug operations.

The Allen Church is a congregation of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, which has two million members nationwide. The denomination was started in 1816 by the Rev. Richard Allen, who broke away from the Methodist Church as a protest against segregation. The Allen Church in Jamaica was established in 1834, just 18 years after the founding of the denomination.

Flake said there was a certain irony in the church's decision two years ago to establish its own school. Soon after the founding of the church 150 years ago, he said, the church began a school because the public schools of the time were not open to black children. "We've come full circle," he said.

The school was revived, Flake said, because parents felt that their children were being "miseducated" in the city schools.

Today there are 450 students in seven grades at the modern three-story Allen Christian School, one block from the church. While the church received Federal funds to help it build housing for the elderly and operate neighborhood rehabilitation programs, it had to raise money for the school from local contributions.

POSITIVE THINKING

You take yourself everywhere

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Ever want to change your job? There are two ways to change jobs. The obvious one is to leave the job you now have and get another one. But if you do this it usually is assumed that all the things you dislike about the present job will be absent in the new job and that, indeed, everything in the new job will be just fine. And that, of course, isn't necessarily so.

There is a law of human nature that has to be reckoned with: It's this, that you take yourself whereever you go. You can never get away from yourself. So, when you go from an unhappy job to a new job, you will very likely take yourself along with you. This means, obviously, that the same wrong attitudes and failure pattern that you had in the old position will, after the first flush of enthusiasm, be right there with you the same as ever. So the way to change jobs is to change yourself, change your attitudes. And that can usually be done within the framework of the present job.

It is also true that many job problems have to do with adjusting to so-called "difficult" people. Change your attitude toward such persons and you change the job situation.

Many people are working at jobs in which there is a much greater potential than they realize. This is indicated by the fact that a new person will come into a position and find in it values and opportunities that his predecessor never discovered. The principle of change relates to becoming a person with changed attitudes and insights.

A man complaining about his job insisted that it held no opportunity. It was a total dead end. He was about to chuck it and go to something else. I outlined the above concept of dealing with a job, then I mentioned the name of a dynamic man who was very successful.

"What do you think Mr. Smith would do with your present job if he had it?"

He thought a minute. "Well, I'm sure he would make a success of it; he always makes everything succeed."

"Yes, but how would he succeed with this job?" I persisted. "What should he do?"

To which he replied, "I just don't know what he would do."

"Well, why not spend a few days trying to think what the highly successful Mr. Smith would do in this job and then you do that."

Later he returned with quite an improved attitude. He said, "The only way I can do what Mr. Smith would do is to become an outgoing person like Mr. Smith is. He is a positive thinker. Guess I'd better start practicing positive thinking, too." Encouraged, he followed his new mental attitude and did a creative job on himself. His job performance improved. In effect he got a new job by changing himself (his attitudes) in his present job.

How to change your job:

1. See the job's possibilites. Get excited about it. Pour enthusiasm into it.

2. Don't keep saying, "It's a no-good job." Say, "This job is really challenging," and say it no matter what the job is.

3. To change jobs, change yourself. A changed person will have a new view, new attitudes and so will find new values in the old job.

4. Do your job the very best you can with enthusiasm. That is the best and surest road to promotion.

5. If you are overqualified, take any job you can get and give it all the know-how of your overqualification.

6. Give yourself to your job and it will give itself to you.

St. Nicholas to begin annual Teaching Mission

St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton St., will hold its annual Teaching Mission from 7 to 9 p.m. Sunday and Monday in the Parish Hall.

The Rev. Dr. Edwin E. Harvey, rector at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Corpus Christi, and Jenifer Hartsfield, St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, Corpus Christi, will be the speakers. They will explore the ramifications of new developments in physics, biology and neuro-psychology as they affect our understanding of spirituality today. In doing so, they will use movement, color, music and Scripture.

Harvey received his bachelor's and master's of divinity at Virginia Theological Seminary and his doctorate in theology in Old Testament at the University of Heidelberg in 1965.

He served in the Fiji Islands as head of St. John the Baptist Seminary, Anglican, and later as a faculty member of the ecumenical Pacific Theological College in Figi.

Returning to the United States in 1974, he served in Jacksonville, Fla., at St. Mark's Parish. He was then called to Austin where he became Associate Rector in charge of Adult Education and Visiting Professor of Biblical Studies at the Seminary of the Southwest.

In 1981, he became rector of All Saints' Parish. He has conducted seminars in "Bible," "Education and Christian Meditation" and "Spirituality" in the South Pacific, Florida, Texas and Arkansas. In 1982, he was on the faculty of the School of Christian Living, Midland.

Ms. Hartsfield combines singing, playing, dramatizing and sketching in her performances of "Texas Sings." she plays the psaltery, an ancient Hebrew stringed instrument, related to the zither and dulcimer. As she sings, she demonstrates the subject of her songs with a quick sketch made with a bright colored marker.

She has a bachelor of fine arts from The University of Texas, Austin, and a master's degree in drama from the University of Houston. She has studied under Arthur Lessac, a nationally known speech consultant and voice coach, at the State University of New York.

Kennedy says he wasn't speeding

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy maintains he was driving at a legal speed when his car was struck by a pickup truck on Aug. 17, but the other driver says he was trying to make a turn when Kennedy's car hit him.

In a report filed by Kennedy with the state Registry of Motor Vehicles, the senator said he was traveling at 25 mph when a pickup truck driven by Leonard J. "Jack" Bell, 63, of Hyannis Port, struck his car at an intersection. The speed limit at the site is 25 mph.

Following the accident, Bell was cited for driving to endanger. A hearing on the case is expected to be held in Barnstable District Court this month.

Bell's report of the accident, also filed with the registry, claims Kennedy's car struck him as he was trying to make a turn.

'Mr. Flare' to testify in arson case

BOSTON (AP) — A man who called himself "Mr. Flare" to boast of his membership in an arson ring will testify against five men accused of setting 163 fires to spur fire department hiring, authorities said.

Gregg M. Bemis, 23, pleaded guilty Thursday to 68 conspiracy counts in 46 of the 1982 and 1983 fires, and agreed to testify in hope of being sentenced to 30 years in prison, said U.S. Attorney Mark E. Robinson.

Bemis, a former police officer and dispatcher, faces up to 735 years in prison and a $735,000 fine when he is sentenced Oct. 10.

Teen-ager dies of heart failure

CARLISLE, Mass. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy who ran at least three miles a day and won blue ribbons as a runner since kindergarten died of heart failure after a practice run, his family said.

Rory J. Bentley collapsed and died in front of hs home Wednesday, the day before he would have started seventh grade, said his father, Geoffrey Bentley. Bentley said the cause of death was "failure of his heart."

Man robs false tooth at gunpoint

CUYAHOGA FALLS, Ohio (AP) — A 19-year-old man has been charged with robbery after ordering another man at gunpoint to remove and hand over a false tooth, authorities said.

Aaron Isom of Macedonia was freed on $2,500 bond Thursday after his arraignment for aggravated robbery.

Isom allegedly threatened to shoot Todd Montgomergy, 20, unless Montgomery cooperated by using pliers to remove the tooth and give it to Isom, possibly as a punishment for an outstanding debt, said police Chief Bryce Acheson.

Artifacts found in New York City

NEW YORK (AP) — Archaeologists combing the site of a planned office tower have uncovered 43,318 artifacts dating from the 17th Century, when Manhattan was still New Amsterdam.

The objects found on the site of the warehouses of the Dutch West India Company include a pewter goblet, Delft china, German glass, Indian artifacts and a board game with the marbles to play it.

The city requires developers to finance studies of sites that may have historical significance before proceeding with construction.

Former SLA member sentenced

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — An alleged former member of the Symbionese Liberation Army has been sentence for parole violation after he went underground while on probation on an explosives conviction.

Michael A. Bortin, 35, who was on probation for possession of explosives when he went underground in 1977, was sentenced Thursday. The state Board of Prison Terms will decide his term Sept. 20.

Bortin, who pleaded guilty to the explosives charge in 1972, faces up to three years in prison.

Authorities say he was involved in 1975 and 1976 with the SLA, which kidnapped newspaper heiress Patty Hearst in 1974.

Mondale to propose 'Reagan tax'

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale said Friday the tax increase he'll propose for cutting the federal deficit should really be called "a Reagan tax" because it's needed to dry up red ink accumulated under President Reagan.

Mondale said he would present his plan on Monday to reduce the deficit by two-thirds, and he repeated his earlier statements that the plan would include higher taxes.

"As I said in my acceptance speech, Mr. Reagan will raise taxes and so will I," said the Democratic presidential nominee.

"What I should have said as well is that it is not my tax," Mondale said. "Really, it's a Reagan tax because we've got to do it to get his deficits down. It's his tax."

Mondale hit hard on budget issues on a campaign swing through the South, where Reagan leads by as much as 20 percentage points in some polls, including one in Georgia, the home state of former President Carter.

Speaking at Agnes Scott College for Women, Mondale said the budget deficit — expected to be a bit over $170 billion this year — is headed close to $300 billion by 1989. And he challenged Reagan to propose a solution.

"On Monday I will present my plan to the American people," he said. "I demand that Ronald Reagan stand up and tell s how he is going to bring the deficit down."

"You can't run away from these issues," he declared.

The latest White House projections, released last month, indicate the deficit will decline to about $139 billion by 1989 under Reagan policies. The president has said he has no plans to raise taxes but that a president "should never say never" on such issues.

After meeting with Mondale, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said, "He is not only talking about raising taxes; he is talking about every cent of that going to reduce the deficit."

Mondale declined to be specific about his own proposal, but Democratic officials have indicated the plan will include a special trust fund fed by the new taxes and dedicated solely toward reducing the deficit rather than creating or expanding federal programs.

He said his budget and tax scheme would include a "principle of fairness" which would protect Social Security and the Medicaid healthcare programs. Mondale has said previously, however, that some social programs would have to be cut if his new budget proposal became law.

On another subject, Mondale campaign officials indicated privately that they are close to agreement with the Reagan campaign on a possible date for the first televised presidential debate.

However, later in Washington, Reagan and Mondale aides said after an hour's meeting that differences still separate the two campaigns on the timing and number of debates.

White House chief of staff James A. Baker III said, "We feel confident there will be debates" though there was less progress toward agreement than in a Thursday meeting.

Mondale campaign chairman James A. Johnson said another meeting was set for Monday. He said there were still "substantial differences," including a Mondale desire for debates closer to the election than the Reagan camp prefers.

Also Friday, Mondale was confronted at a Chattanooga, Tenn., appearance by a questioner demanding to know why he thought politics and religion were not related and asking why he opposed a constitutional amendment banning "murder" through abortion.

Mondale said, "I cannot bring myself to support that amendment." After personal prayer "I cannot."

As for religion and politics, Mondale said the nation's founders intended that citizens be able to pray "on their own knees" and not "reporting to some politician...Politicians are supposed to keep their noses out of the churches and synagogues of America."

Mondale used his trip to Georgia to make a try at unifying with Democrats in the state who have been lukewarm toward his candidacy.

Their hard feelings stem in part from Mondale's decision just before the Democratic National Convention in July to name former Carter administration budget director Bert Lance to be general chairman of his campaign.

The selection was rescinded after a windstorm of opposition swept through the party, fueled partly by Lance's close association with Carter, who was defeated soundly by Reagan in the 1980 presidential election, and partly by old accusations about banker Lance's financial dealings. Lance was never convicted on any charges.

Among those attending Friday's closed meeting were Lance, Gov. Joe Frank Harris and Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young.

Afterwards Mondale said, "We are now unified."

Despite that, Gov. Harris chose not to appear with Mondale and other top Democrats from the state at a brief news conference just outside the meeting room.

Although party officials said Harris pledged his support for the national ticket, it was not clear until the last minute that the governor would actually attend the meeting.

'Alan Alda' of 'Hill Street' spends summer welcoming audience to Transylvania

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe Spano came home this summer to rekindle some friendships, revive his theatrical talents and bite a few necks.

As Lt. Henry Goldblume on NBC's "Hill Street Blues," Spano — the police department's crisis intervention negotiator — oozes sensitivity. He's the Alan Alda of television cops.

But with "Hill Street" in summer hiatus, the 38-year-old San Francisco native made a nostalgic return to a bizarre production of "Dracula" that, oddly enough, led to his hiring on the Emmy Award-winning "Hill Street."

Spano revived a character he played a decade ago as a member of the Berkeley Repertory Theater — Chauncey DeVille, master of ceremonies and horror in "Welcome to Transylvania: A Musical."

The play-within-a-play presents the 19th-century tale of terror as vaudeville, complete with a three-piece orchestra.

Spano was appearing in the play in 1974 when the show had a run in Los Angeles. It was there that an acquaintance, working with executive producer Steven Bochco, introduced the two. Spano later was asked to do the pilot for something called "Hill Street Station."

"I love this play. It gives me a chance to do what I haven't been able to do over the past four years, which is theater," Spano said, slumping into a seat at the intimate Alcazar Theater during rehearsals.

"It's fun to act in front of a camera, but there's not a sense of communal happening."

There's plenty happening in "Transylvania," a show that revolves around Spano as the narrator DeVille — whom the critics compared to Joel Grey in "Cabaret" — and as the blood-sucking ghoul.

It's easy to see the one similarity between Spano's Goldblume and DeVille — a predilection for bow ties.

Since the beginning, Spano has insisted that Goldblume have "more substance."

"I could easily have played more of a Jewish stereotype," he said. Instead, Goldblume grapples weekly with his own insecurities and a tangle of relationships from divorce to new love with the boss' ex-wife.

"He's a person trying to do his best in times when the situation is maybe more than he can handle," Spano said.

Spano gets tips for the show from reading ex-policeman Joseph Wambaugh's novels and clipping police stories from The New York Times, which he sometimes forwards to the show's writers.

"Cops love the show. They're really pleased with it, really proud," he said. Spano, a liberal "like everybody who went to Berkeley" in the '60s, says the show hasn't changed his ideas about the justice system, but his views on law enforcement have mellowed.

"I'm much more likely to see a cop as a person with a family, problems, likes and dislikes, than to assume it's someone with an antagonistic attitude," he said.

Actress ready to write another chapter

ENTERTAINMENT

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Donna Reed had one reason for replacing the retiring Barbara Bel Geddes as Miss Ellie on the unstoppable TV series "Dallas."

"My book needed another chapter," she said. It's not that she plans to write her autobiography, it's just that she was intrigued at the prospect of adding one more element to what has been a remarkable life in films.

Few stars have had such a long and varied career, and few have conducted themselves with such innate dignity.

On a recent hot afternoon she arrived at a fashionable Westside restaurant looking cooly elegant. She ordered an iced tea and explained how she became the second Miss Ellie.

"I broke a rule when I went to see the 'Dallas' people: It was the only time I've ever gone on an interview for a job," she said. "I had no idea what they had in mind. I had heard that Barbara was leaving the series, but I had also heard a rumor that they wanted to introduce a younger element.

"I was stunned when they told me later that they wanted me to replace Barbara Bel Geddes. I thought it over and decided it was totally right. Miss Ellie was in the right age bracket, and she was the glue that kept everything together. Besides, she remained a farm lady, even though she was terribly rich. Coming from Dennison (Iowa), I had always wanted to play a woman of the soil. This was the first time I was asked to do one."

The new Miss Ellie will be introduced on the seventh show of the new season as she returns from the honeymoon with Clayton Farlow (Howard Keel). It will be done cold turkey — no explanation of the replacement.

"I think audiences should be able to adjust," Miss Reed remarked.

Miss Reed's career began in 1941 at MGM, where she was signed as a contract actress after being spotted as a beauty queen at Los Angeles City College. After a few minor roles, she became leading lady for such stars as John Wayne, usually playing the faithful sweetheart or wife.

Going against type is often a sure route to an Academy Award, and Miss Reed made it as the Honolulu hooker in "From Here to Eternity" in 1953. Five years later she launched "The Donna Reed Show," which lasted eight seasons. She defends "The D.R. Show," as she calls it, from critics who claim it presented an unrealistic view of American home life.

"It was a sitcom," she said, "and life is always placid in a sitcom. I make no apology for Donna Stone (the character she played). Neither before nor since has television offered a wife and mother who was half-way intelligent, whose husband was not an idiot.

"Maybe the show seems unrealistic now, but life in the United States was different then. That was the '60s. At least Donna Stone was not a passive lady with no brains at all. Today most of the women on TV are victims or helpless."

'Simon & Simon' most watched show

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS' "Simon & Simon" was the most-watched show last week, but ABC led the ratings for the sixth straight time, although its highly praised new series, "Call to Glory," failed to make the top 10.

ABC's highest-placed program for the week ending Sept. 2 was a repeat of the movie thriller "Coma," which was third. Second place went to the second part of NBC's repeat of the "V" miniseries.

Since the end of the regular season in April, which CBS won, ABC has been first 12 times and tied for first once. Its current winning streak began with the opening of the Summer Olympics and the network has yet to falter.

"Call to Glory," which has just been added to the network's fall schedule, was tied for 11th place with CBS's "Mike Hammer" and NBC's "Cheers." The series made its debut immediately after the Olympics and easily took first place.

Viewership for the week rose after the Republican convention the previous week. ABC won the week with a network average of 12.4 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. NBC was second with 11.9 and CBS was third with 11.1. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 12.4 percent of the TV homes were tuned to ABC.

This is the last week in which a ratings point will equal 838,000 homes. The Nielsen Co. says the number of television homes has increased and beginning next week a ratings point will equal 849,000 homes. This represents an increase of 1.1 million homes.

Here are the other shows in the Top 10: "The A-Team," NBC, fourth; "Magnum, P.I.," CBS, fifth; "Facts of Life," NBC, sixth; "Dynasty," ABC, seventh; the ABC movie "Velvet," eighth; and ABC's "20-20" and NBC's "Riptide," tied for ninth.

The lowest-rated show of the week was ABC's coverage of the "U.S.A. Amateur Golf Championship. The five bottom programs were: NBC's "Legmen," CBS' "Comedy Zone," ABC's "Ripley's Believe It or Not," NBC's "Summer Sunday, USA," and ABC's golf coverage.

CBS was first again among the evening news shows. ABC was second and NBC was third. The ratings: CBS 10.5, ABC 9.5, NBC 8.4.

Police 'sting' Silicon Valley drug users, dealers

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — In Silicon Valley, the affluent heart of the U.S. computer industry, drug abuse fueled by new wealth and a desire for "hedonism" has reached epidemic proportions, according to cops, counselors and even the computer companies themselves.

Police reports and a counselor's files tell part of the story:

— At a company party, a top Silicon Valley executive passed a sugar bowl full of cocaine.

— A security guard wanted to bust a pusher for selling drugs to company employees. But he couldn't, because the pusher was supplying his boss.

— To pay for illegal drugs, electronics company workers sometimes steal microprocessing chips. One chip a day can pay for a cocaine habit.

"In the Silicon Valley, a lot of your more influential people consider using cocaine not to be a crime, as a recreational drug," said Sgt. Steve Lewis, a member of San Jose's burglary prevention detail. "We've heard so many tales, people talking about big drug parties, people taking drugs in the bathrooms at some of these big electronics companies."

To battle the flood of drugs in this center of the computer industry, undercover agents set up a fake bar and grill "sting" operation. Along with the loot, the bar tapped a trail of cocaine. Seventy people got "long prison terms" and "just about everyone involved was a coke fiend," said San Jose Police Chief Joe McNamara.

"People were stealing to buy drugs, and drug dealers were ordering the things they wanted stolen," said McNamara, who has written a novel about cocaine abuse in Silicon Valley. "We had situations where assembly line workers would look up and see executives using it."

In the Silicon Valley, named for the chips that build computers' brains, where computer and electronics companies multiply at a dizzying rate and where 85,000 new jobs are expected by the end of next year, uppers are in and cocaine is the drug of choice, authorities say.

"Cocaine is the No. 1 drug of abuse in Santa Clara County," said Gene Williams, a state supervisor with the year-old county narcotics task force.

With 13 local officers and state agents, the team so far has siezed drugs worth a total of $1,944,816, Williams said. That includes $24,970 in cocaine, $18,270 in speed and $50,800 in LSD. Ten people were arrested in a speed-LSD bust and a "very sophisticated" speed laboratory was discovered in Sunnyvale, he said.

The task force has investigated at least ten electronics companies for drug abuse, Williams said.

"Let's face it, hedonism is a real prime motivator," said a cocaine dependency counselor who asked not to be named. "Take a look at the ethos of the Silicon Valley. Cocaine is another expensive, exotic consumer product. It makes them feel a part of 'it,' whatever 'it' is."

The counselor sees about 25 abusers a week, from engineers and computer operators to attorneys and real estate agents. His clients report that at first they experience increased productivity, enhanced mental abilities and elevated moods.

But then real life sets in. "They go from an almost idealized sense of the lifestyle to a crash of reality," he says. "They see it's just a lot of hard work, it's crowded, there are long commutes and the job security is not great."

The mood swings, drops. Work performance diminishes.

Town wants to pay tribute to their 'Gentleman Giant'

Robert Wardlow, shown in this 1936 photograph with his brothers Eugene, 14, and Harold Jr., 4, was the world's tallest man at 8 feet and 11 inches when he died in 1940 at the age of 22. The people of his howetown of Alton, Ill., are trying to raise money for a statue in his honor.

AP Laserphoto

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — The bronze memorial to Robert Wadlow would be larger than life, had he been a common man.

But Wadlow was uncommon, in many ways, and the statue that people in his hometown want to build will be as big as the "Gentleman Giant" they honor — 8 feet, 11 inches tall.

"All of us in Alton are aware of Robert Wadlow," said Stephen Hager, treasurer of the committee organized to build the statue.

"Wadlow was a very, very unique person — an extraordinary person," Hager said Thursday. "He was not a circus freak as a lot of people might think. He was an intelligent, caring man and very much a goodwill ambassador for Alton and the state."

Wadlow was the world's tallest man when he died in 1940 at age 22. And according to the 1983 Guinness Book of World Records he is still "the tallest recorded man of whom there is irrefutable evidence..."

The Robert P. Wadlow Project Committee already has a $20,000 pledge from two service clubs, but needs $33,450 more to complete the statue project, hopefully by the fall of 1985.

"This project should be a source of community pride," Hager said. "We want to be able to have a place where children can come and stand beside this very big man and get an understanding of how big he really was — not just in size."

Wadlow was shy and never sought publicity, although he did work briefly in a circus and toured in the 1930s as a representative of a shoe company.

Wadlow was born with a glandular disorder and by the age of 8 he stood 6 feet 2½ inches tall and weighed 195 pounds.

Still, he led a normal youth, swimming and fishing with his brother, joining the Boy Scouts. He was described in a 1941 book by his late father, former Alton Mayor Harold Wadlow Sr., as the "Gentleman Giant."

He never complained publicly about his size or physical discomfort he endured, but did let his feelings show once as a teen-ager.

"I don't want my little brother to be as big as I am," he said. "He'll have more fun if he isn't."

Hager said it was that reluctance to complain and desire to fit in that made Wadlow special.

"If he was average size, he would be a normal person," he said. "But he was so large and still lived with this handicap — size.

"He loved children, he had a tremendous sense of humor, he was kidded a lot and took all of this very good naturedly. I think this makes him a very unique person, and this is the story we are trying to tell."

Wadlow was appearing at a festival in Manistee, Mich., when he died July 15, 1940, from an infection brought about by chafing from a ankle brace he wore to support his massive frame.

An estimated 40,000 people filed past by his casket — and 10,000 attended his funeral and Masonic burial services.

Pamela Bristol, an adjunct professor of music at UTPB and a private piano teacher in Midland, is teaching the course.

Mrs. Bristol is president of the Midland Music Teachers' Association and accompanist for the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale. She is a certified teacher with the Texas and National Music teachers' associations and a certified teacher and adjudicator with the American College of Musicians.

Auditions for 'Tomran' slated

Tryouts for the new musical "Tomran" will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday and Monday in Theatre One at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

The musical will replace "Chapter II" in Midland Community Theatre's season schedule. It will open in Theatre One Oct. 26 for an eight performance run.

The action of this musical takes place in South America during World War II. It is a love story which offers many comic opportunities. The production calls for eighteen men and fifteen women of varying age ranges and abilities. At least half of the ensemble must be able to dance.

"Tomran" will be directed by MCT's executive director, Don Bachmann. Musical direction is by Tom Roberts. A guest artist will serve as choreographer.

Audition material may be checked out from the business office at MCT. For more information call 682-2544.

'Charros' to perform at rodeo

From Staff Reports

The "Asociacion de Charros, Miguel Hidalgo" of Midland is having a "gran charreada y fiesta Mexicana" — a Mexican rodeo — this weekend at the Sizemore Arena.

The public is invited to the rodeo, which costs $8 for adults and $4 for children ($1 off if purchased in advance — call 686-8785 or 682-1122).

The arena is on County Road 60, 2½ miles west of the intersection of Midland Drive and Loop 250. Professional charros (Mexican cowboys) will be brought in from Sabinas Coahuila, Mexico, and there will be performances by Mexican dancers and mariachi musicians. Homemade Mexican food will be available at the concession stand.

The rodeo is being held today and Sunday, from 2:30 p.m. until 8 p.m.

Texas' first gator hunt in 15 years starts

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Hunters moved into the marshy areas of 10 southeastern Texas counties Friday to set out big baited hooks on 300-pound test lines for Texas' first alligator season in 15 years.

The fearsome-looking reptiles, which can grow up to 20 feet long, were placed on the endangered species list in the state in 1969 after hunters seriously depleted their numbers for their valuable hides.

But the gator population has grown back to about 100,000 and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department decided 780 could be harvested without threatening their existence. The hunting season runs through Sept. 23.

Wildlife officials conducted surveys earlier this year to determine the areas of heaviest alligator populations and allocated certain numbers of alligators to be taken from various sections.

Alligators have become a nuisance in some residential areas bordering marshy areas along the southeast Texas coast.

"We've taken gators from interesting places, dog houses, gardens, swimming pools," said Kirby Brown, manager of the Murphree Wildlife Management Area near here where about 200 alligators will be harvested.

"People do tend to get a little excited. We had a lady call and say she had a 12-foot alligator in her garden. We sent out a crew and it turned out to be 2 to 2½ feet."

The recommended method for hunters to catch alligators, Brown said, is to suspend a big baited hook above the water line. The critter snaps up the bait and swallows it. The hunter then can pull it to the surface to be shot, he said.

Sidney Dupuy, the high bidder on a contract to harvest the excess alligators on the state-owned Murphree sanctuary, said the animals have become dangerous because they no longer fear man.

"These old gators will paddle right up to you in a boat," he said. "They don't realize the only enemy they've got is man."

Texas Parks and Wildlife officials have issued alligator hunting licenses. But outside of the Murphree sanctuary, the reptiles can only be harvested on private land whose owners have purchased state tags. Landowners may use the tags themselves or sell them to hunters.

Portions of Brazoria, Calhoun, Chambers, Colorado, Fort Bend, Jefferson, Liberty, Matagorda, Orange and Victoria counties are involved in the first season.
