'Honor Slaying' Case Opens Dramatically As Hawaii Begins Prosecution

AMERICANS GO ON TRIAL FOR KILLING NATIVE

Darrow Calm as Prosecutor Kelly Charges Hawaiian Slain Deliberately

TESTIMONY IS HEARD

State Marks Up Point As Testimony Indicates Preparation

By DAN CAMPBELL
COURTROOM, HONOLULU, T. H., April 11. (UP)—Hawaii opened its most dramatic murder trial today by charging that a patrician American society woman, a gentleman-officer of the United States navy and two American sailors deliberately killed Joe Kahahawai.

The territory charged further that Mrs. Grace Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas Massie and E. J. Lord and A. O. Jones were arrested as they raced to dispose of the native's body in a boiling geyser where it never would be found. The defendants are accused of second degree murder.

Prosecutor John Kelley, his face solemn, relentlessly drove his charges home to a jury of seven Caucasians and five men of other races as he did his earnest best to secure a verdict that will mean life imprisonment in Oahu penitentiary.

Three Witnesses Called

The defendants seemed barely to breathe the stuffy air of the overcrowded, hot little courtroom as they tensely listened to Kelley's charges and to three witnesses called in an effort to forge an unbreakable chain of evidence showing a carefully-planned crime of violence.

Only Clarence Darrow, rested by a Sunday at Waikik, seemed unimpressed. He lolled back in his chair, untidy in an unpressed suit.

Darrow waived even his right to an opening address to the jury.

The Alamoana attack on Thalia Fortescue Massie—the yet-unpunished crime which allegedly led to Kahahawai's abduction and death—was not mentioned during the day. Kelley avoided it. Darrow, by a casual wave of a wrinkled hand, indicated he did not choose to mention it yet.

One Witness Hostile

Only one witness seemed hostile to the defendants. He was Edward

"Our gross sales for the last eight months ending March 1, totaled $1,173,000," Conn reported at the meeting of the board of directors.

"This was nearly $500,000 more than for the corresponding eight months in 1930-31. This amount included the sale of medicinal remedies, grape concentrates for various purposes, cooking sauces and sacramental wines," Conn asserted.

Hoover Hurls Fast One To Open Season

WASHINGTON, April 11. (AP)—President Hoover almost saw the Washington Senators win a baseball game today for the first time since he came to the White House.

After throwing the first ball of the season and then stamping his feet against the cold for seven innings of the opening game, between Washington and the Boston Red Sox, the president returned to the White House with the score tied 0 to 0.

The Nationals then proceeded to win in the 10th innings by 1 to 0, without White House spectators.

Mr. Hoover had seen Washington play five times since he has been president. Every time until today they had lost.

The chief executive performed his part of the game with considerable gusto. Surrounded by many members of his cabinet, and their wives, he tossed out the first ball with such strength that it sailed far over the head of Umpire Hildebrand, who was waiting to receive it.

Hildebrand had the entire Bos-

BONUS BILL FIGHT OPENS

Proponets Say Passage Would Aid Business

WASHINGTON, April 11. (UP)—Advocates of the $2,000,000,000 soldier bonus measure opened their campaign before the house ways and means committee today with the argument that it would aid business recovery and relieve unemployment.

The ex-doughboy, as a sentimental figure, was far in the background. Instead, champions of the bonus concentrated largely on their economic theory that issuance of $2,000,000,000 in currency to cash payment of the veterans certificates would constitute just the proper inflation at this time to start the sluggish industrial machine whirling once more.

Opposition Heard

This economic forum was conducted by two youthful house members, Representatives Wright Patman, Texas, and William P. Connery Jr., Massachusetts, and a former Oklahoma senator and part author of the federal reserve act, the 76-year-old Robert L. Owen.

While these three Democrats argued before only a partially sympathetic house committee, an attempt was made to rally senate Democrats against the bonus by their leader, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas.

"I do not favor the cash payment of adjusted service certificates and am convinced that legislation appropriating more than two billion dollars for that purpose will produce harmful results that will more than offset the benefits to be anticipated," Robinson declared.

Smallest Baby Given Increase in Rations

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 11. (UP)—The one-pound son of Mr. and Mrs. William St. John received a name and additional rations of food today as he became a week old.

The baby, believed to be the smallest ever born, was named "Charles Bernard" by his young parents.

After living a week on 12 drops of milk, water and sugar, administered every two hours from an eye-dropper, the baby today was allowed to have 12 daily teaspoons of the mixture.

Beaumont Refinery Blast Injures Four Workers

BEAUMONT, April 11. (AP)—A. E. Greve, 44, tonight was in critical condition from burns and three other men also were suffering injuries as the result of a gas explosion in the Magnolia Petroleum company refinery which caused $250,000 damage to companies buildings and equipment this morning.

The other three injured were R. A. Kinnear, gas plant foreman, H. T. Mulder, pipe fitter, and Lester Cruse, carpenter.

The explosion occurred at 10:30 a. m. when gas escaping in the plant was ignited by a spark from refinery machinery.

CITY COUNCIL ASKED TO OUST 10-CENT TAXIS

Traction Company and Cab Operators Propose Higher Rate

HEATED SESSION

Dime Service Assailed And Defended in Lively Board Meeting

Added to a rapidly growing list of cities already wrestling with the problem of passenger transportation, Wichita Falls began its study of the 10-cent taxi situation Monday night when the city council took under advisement a proposed ordinance establishing a schedule of minimum rates for taxi service within the city.

Traction Company's Plan

Prepared and presented by representatives of the Wichita Falls Traction company and established taxicab companies here, the proposed ordinance would fix the following minimum fares for passenger transportation: Less than one mile, 25 cents; one to one and a half miles, 35 cents; one and a half to three miles, 50 cents; three miles upwards within city limits, 75 cents. The measure would construe one mile to be the equivalent of 14 city blocks, provides for no fare discrimination between children and adults, and imposes the stipulated fare upon each passenger regardless of the number carried on each trip.

Requests for the adoption of such an ordinance admittedly were the outgrowth of the recent establishment of 10-cent taxi service here by several individuals. Speaking for sponsors of the measure, E. F. Fruechte and W. N. Bonner, attorneys, charged that permanent and dependable service can only be maintained in this city at a 10-cent rate, and that the activities of existing dime-taxi concerns threatens the early elimination of the city's permanent transportation facilities.

Dime Taxis Assailed

Mr. Fruechte charged that vehicles used by the 10-cent taxi companies are not in good condition, that when present cars are worn out there will be no accumulated fund with which to replace them, and that the service now being offered will be of only limited duration. He also declared that operators of the 10-cent taxi service have very little if any investment in taxable property, while the traction

'Baering' Down On The News

BY ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

ANDY WILL BE PERFECT HOST

Andy Mellon's first statement from London indicates he will wear knee breeches and serve liquor.

In that case, Andy, we would advise shin guards with the knee breeches.

All the London newspapers boosted Ambassador Mellon and casually mentioned his terrific wealth in big black letters three inches high.

Europe is real nice about money that way. It doesn't charge Americans anything for passport vises. Europe will let you in for what it can borrow afterward.

The reason we know Mr. Mellon will serve the ankle-twisters in the embassy is his own statement, "I will follow the bally customs of the jolly old country. I suppose I can get it here."

If Andy has any trouble obtaining it in London we will help him out by sending one of our Pittsburgh bootleggers over there.

'JAFSIE' DEALS IN KIDNAPING

Secret Trip Linked With New Negotiations

NEW YORK, April 11. (UP)—Dr. John F. Condon, 70-year-old negotiator for the return of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's kidnaped son, left his home today on a secret mission, giving rise to reports that he had re-established contact with the kidnapers. He was accompanied by two men carrying two suit cases.

Condon returned to his Bronx home at nightfall, still bearing the two suit cases, and declining to give any report on his mission or to say whether he had established a new contact.

Condon was revealed Sunday as the "Jafsie" who has been publishing messages to the kidnapers. One of the men with him today was Al Reich, ex-prizefighter, who was present when $50,000 in small bills was turned over to a man purporting to be a representative of the kidnapers the night of April 2.

Negotiations Revealed

The importance of Dr. Condon's part in the kidnaping case was revealed today by the Bronx Home News in a copyrighted article telling in detail how "Jafsie" negotiated with the abductors and finally paid them the ransom.

This story aroused speculation in many quarters as to the position of the man who reputedly received the $50,000 from Dr. Condon.

It was reported that Colonel Lindbergh believes the man who took the money was authorized by the actual kidnapers to negotiate with Dr. Condon, and that once having received the cash, he did not turn it over to the people who actually have the child.

Another theory this one held by Dr. Condon, is that the kidnapers probably are going to ask for more money and that the baby eventually will be returned to his parents alive and safe.

Dr. Condon's negotiations, as related by the Bronx Home News, apparently coincide with known facts, and the story has not been denied at Hopewell or Trenton. In effect this story follows:

Dr. Condon, on March 9, offered through the Home News to pay a $1,000 reward for return of the baby. That night the kidnapers communicated with him. He went immediately to Hopewell where he conferred with Colonel Lindbergh. On

Hoover Plans New Depression Drive

WASHINGTON, April 11. (AP)—President Hoover undertook today to prepare for an important conference with congressional and business leaders on ways of bettering the economic condition of the country.

The aid was understood in informed quarters to evolve a program of national unity in attacking unfavorable factors.

Early meetings are understood to be planned by the president. The government has noted the persistent drop in security prices with some concern, although not alarmed.

It seems certain Mr. Hoover will consult shortly with Democratic and Republican leaders.

Son of Du Pont Employe Disappears From Home

WILMINGTON, Del., April 11. (AP)—Charles Chickering, 16-year-old son of an employe of the DuPont Powder company, disappeared from his home today and police telegraph-typewriter systems erroneously reported the son of the DuPont company president had been kidnaped.

The boy's father told The Associated Press that his son was not related to the DuPont family and expressed belief he had not been kidnaped.

JOINER POOL EXTENDED

ARP, Texas, April 11. (AP)—The Joiner pool of the East Texas oil field was extended about 300 yards westward today when the Sinclair E. E. Moore No. 1 was brought in. Production was estimated at from 10,000 to 12,000 barrels.

STOCK CHIEF SWATS STORIES OF 'BEAR RAIDS'

Whitney Tells of Regulations and Promises to Name Short Traders

PROBE FALTERS

Hoover's Master Stroke At Wall Street Called 'Comic Rout'

WASHINGTON, April 11. (US)—Hoover administration charges that "bear raiders" demoralized the market and tumbled stock prices last week were bluntly denied today by Richard Whitney, the dynamic president of the New York stock exchange.

Testifying before the senate banking and currency committee, Whitney asserted three outstanding political and financial developments occasioned the tremendous share-turnover during the market recession of the past 10 days:

Causes of Decline

1. Withdrawal of gold by foreign countries.
2. Proposed stock transfer tax in the revenue bill.
3. Disclosure that certain accounts of Kreuger & Toll had been falsified.

Whitney's long-heralded appearance, intended as a master stroke by the Hoover administration to swat the bears, resembled instead a comic rout for the administration forces.

President Hoover himself got hit on the rebound when Whitney readily agreed with Democratic senators that the "prosperity statements" of the Coolidge administration were largely responsible for building up the great "bull" market of 1929. They singled out for special attack Mr. Hoover's campaign promise that poverty was about to be abolished forever.

Promises Names

The Hoover forces will have a chance to redeem themselves later when Whitney produces the names of the short sellers active during the recent market depression. He said these should be available by Friday.

Whitney was emphatic in his assertion that "bear raids"—that is concerted short selling in large quantities for the purpose of demoralizing the market—never take place on the New York market.

The rules, he said, strictly prohibit such practices and are rigidly enforced. He dismissed with a

Jury Starts Probe Of Slaying of Dallas Man

DALLAS, April 11. (UP)—The Dallas county grand jury questioned Claude Cooper, deputy prohibition administrator, all day today, as it began consideration of murder charges against L. C. Smith and N. D. Heaton, prohibition enforcement agents.

Smith and Heaton are charged with the fatal shooting of Marion McGlothlin, crossroads grocer, and the wounding of McGlothlin's wife early Saturday near Irving, as a party of prohibition agents led by Cooper tried to trap another man into selling them a load of liquor.

McGlothlin's neighbors said he had no part in the liquor traffic in the vicinity of his store.

Stimson to Study World Court Terms

WASHINGTON, April 11. (US)—Secretary of State Stimson, while at the arms conference in Geneva, intends to sound out European powers on their attitude toward American reservations to the league court, it was learned today.

The senate foreign relations committee, rejecting Stimson's contention that the Root-Hurst substitute protests the United States against advisory opinions by the court, has re-inserted the original fifth reservation which forbids an opinion without American consent.

U. S. Efforts Fail To Speed Arms Parley

GENEVA, April 11. (UP)—The United States appeared to have failed tonight in its effort to "speed up" the world disarmament conference by introducing a plan for abolition of heavy mobile guns, tanks and gases.

Hugh S. Gibbons, ambassador to Belgium and head of the American delegation, introduced the proposals in a speech which obviously was in answer to the French plan for an international armed force, supervised by the League of Nations, to guard the security of nations which sacrifice their arms. He asked immediate action on the plan.

Donley Extortion Trial Delayed Until November

CLARENDON, Texas, April 11. (AP)—The extortion trial of J. J. Alexander, Donley county judge, set for today in 100th district court, was continued until the next term of court here in November.

Judge Alexander is charged in 20 cases where alleged excessive fees totaling $60 were taken. The cases grew out of county court transactions.

Lieut.-Col. Murray Ordered To Explain Oil Law Violations

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 11: (AP)—Lieut. Col. Cicero I. Murray was ordered by acting Governor Robert Burns today to report "within 10 days as to why certain companies have been allowed to overproduce in violation of the rules established for the Oklahoma City field," Murray is in charge of proration enforcement in the field.

Writes Letter

Declaring that the purpose "of military occupation was to control the production of oil in the interest of conservation and on a ratable basis," Burns in a letter to Murray said:

"It has developed recently that certain companies have violated all orders of the umpire, and presumably, the military authorities, in running that amount of oil—more than the allowable. I have just ascertained from an examination of the records in the office of the corporation commission that the H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas company, which is operated in this field has, during the months of October, November and December, 1931, and January and February, 1932, according to the best data obtainable by the Umpire and the corporation commission, overproduced 699,358 barrels of oil and I have reason to believe that some other producers have also overproduced far in excess of the allowable fixed.

Unreported Production

"It also appears from the record in the office of the Oklahoma Tax commission, that, in the case of the H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas company, the overproduction had not been reported, either to the conservation department or the corporation commission or the Oklahoma Tax commission, and that a citation has been issued by the Oklahoma Tax commission upon which a payment of $25,000 already has been made on the gross production tax due the state of Oklahoma.

"In view of the fact that this overproduction has occurred . . . and the facts concealed from the Oklahoma Tax commission, as well as from the Oklahoma Corporation commission, I feel that an explanation is due from you as to why this has occurred.

"Therefore, I, Robert Burns, as acting governor of Oklahoma during the absence from the state of Honorable William H. Murray, the governor, and as commander-in-chief of the Oklahoma military forces, thereby order and direct that you make report to the governor's office within 10 days from date hereof, as to why certain companies have been allowed to overproduce, in violation of the rules established and is heretofore mentioned, and, particularly, with reference to the H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas company."

Nebraska Names Delegates Today

LINCOLN, Neb., April 11. (UP)—Nebraska Democrats will decide tomorrow whether to support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma, or Speaker of the House John Nance Garner as their presidential candidates.

The three men, with only Roosevelt and Murray announced candidates for the nomination, are pitted against each other in the state primary election.

Roosevelt is the choice of state Democratic leaders. The picturesque Oklahoma executive just completed a campaign tour of the state and is accorded heavy support in the rural sections because of his declarations for farm relief and attacks on the "monied interests." Garner's name was placed on the ballots without his personal approval.

Seven Men Held In Slaying of Girl, 12

WHITING, Ind., April 11. (INS)—Seven men were being questioned by police today in connection with the brutal murder of 12-year-old Susan Alberta Knight, who had been criminally attacked and then strangled to death with a length of electric light cord.

The girl's body was found in her room of a lodging house by a roomer who came to awaken her for Sunday school. She was the daughter of the late Rev. Oscar Knight, a Baptist clergyman.

Following an autopsy, Deputy Corner David W. Bopp announced the girl had been attacked before being murdered.

'DOLLAR OIL' MADE SECURE

Humble Advance Removes Fears of Producers

By JIMMIE MAXWELL
Record News Oil Editor

In the announcement that it would meet the Continental Oil company's higher schedule, the Humble Oil and Refining company's revision to meet the other major purchasing companies Monday marked the final chapter in operators efforts to secure "dollar oil" throughout the mid-continent fields.

The new posted price of the Humble from its headquarters in Houston was followed immediately by the Carter Oil company, one of the larger purchasers of crude in Oklahoma, and a subsidary of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

The refusal of the Humble company for 10 days to meet the prices of the other majors for a time looked like a case of the thrown monkeywrench in machinery, and its new policy is hailed with plenty of enthusiasm by the fraternity in all parts of the mid-continent.

Other majors purchasing crude in the district who have within the

CLOUDS OF ASH FALLING OVER 800-MILE AREA

Interior Towns Issue Calls For Oxygen Tanks To Revive Victims

CITIES IN DARKNESS

Populations Terrorized By Violent Eruptions Of Andes Volcanoes

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 11. (UP)—Ashes and cinders from volcanoes in the Andes began falling on Santiago tonight, while vast clouds of smoke and obnoxious gas were blown northward from the belching mountain craters.

The cinders fell on the capital and nearby towns, including Rancagua, Rengo and San Vicente, which have been in darkness since early afternoon.

BUENOS AIRES, April 11. (AP)—Towns in Mendoza province asked the ministry of interior tonight to rush drums of oxygen for the treatment of cases of asphyxiation from volcanic gas poured forth by erupting crates in the Andes.

The calls for oxygen came from Malargue and San Rafael, while a cavalry regiment in the southern part of the province went to the aid of severely stricken villages, where the populace feared wholesale asphyxiation.

A gray volcanic precipitate mantled the pampas of Argentina and obscured the sun in many areas.

The area covered was approximately 400 miles long, bounded on the north by the Brazilian-Paraguayan border, and on the south by the conjunction of the Salado and Autel rivers. It was some 700 miles wide, covering Buenos Aires and Montevideo, Uruguay, on the east.

Many towns in Argentina burned street lights throughout today.

Residents of Malargue and San Rafael, towns near Mendoza about 50 miles from the Chilean border, reported the presence in the atmosphere this afternoon of abundant gases, which made breathing difficult.

BUENOS AIRES, April 11. (UP)—Three mighty volcanoes in the lofty Andes mountains were in eruption tonight, spouting volcanic ash that swept across the continent with incredible swiftness, terrorizing a great part of the population of Argentine and Chile.

Dense clouds of ash were blown faster than an airplane could fly across 800 miles of level pampas to Buenos Aires and Montevideo where buildings and streets were covered with a thin, grey coating. A great black cloud hung over the river Platte region.

The eastern cities and towns were alarmed by the ash clouds and by vague rumors of a great disaster in the interior. Pedestrians carried umbrellas to ward off the rain of ash and tied scarves over their mouths to avoid breathing it.

Population Evacuates

The ashes fell all day and by nightfall the border town of Malargue was blanketed under 16 inches, while more than one-quarter inch of ash fell in Buenos Aires and other eastern cities.

The population of Malargue was hastily evacuating in an effort to find safety from the eruption, but the ash rain extended over many hundreds of square miles and disrupted railroad schedules.

Santiago, on the opposite side of the continent, was alarmed by deep rumblings like distant thunder and a great black cloud moved down from the Andes, darkening the sky and spreading over the snow-capped peaks on which the late afternoon sun glistened.

The erupting volcanoes were believed to be high in the Andes—the "backbone" of South America—about 200 miles southwest of Mendoza, Argentina.

Eruptions In Andes

The most serious eruption was believed to be at the Volcano Domuyo, at 15,222 feet altitude, about 25 miles north of the town of Chosmalal, in a thickly populated part of Neuquen territory, messages received here said. It was feared that loss of life would be heavy in that district.

The other eruptions were reported to be the peaks of Descabezados Grande (Big Beheaded), at 12,756 altitude and Descabezados Nhico (Small Beheaded), at 10,869 feet. The eruptions were violent and could be seen at Talca, Chile, 75 miles away. The population of Talca was terrorized by subterranean

HUMBLE HIKES CRUDE PRICES

Dollar Oil Made Secure For Mid-Continent

past week conformed their posted price making "dollar oil" universal are the Gulf Production, Magnolia Petroleum and Texas company.

Among the refining companies in this district, the Olney Oil and Refining company was the first to announce an advance in its posted price to meet the schedule of the major concerns. This company made its announcement Monday.

Across the Red river at Grandfield, the Bell Oil and Gas company also issued a new schedule to meet the prevailing prices of the larger purchasers. Other plants here have so far failed to meet the new figure but several are expected to fall in line within the next few days.

MANY COMPANIES JOIN GENERAL ADVANCE

HOUSTON, Texas, April 11. (AP)—The Humble Oil and Refining company, last holdout among the major purchasers, fell into line today, making one dollar oil secure in the mid-continent fields.

It met maximum advances of 15 cents per barrel effective today.

Humble, however, announced a continuation of its policy of declining to post prices in East Texas, a letter from Vice President R. L. Blaffer, sent to royalty owners and others, saying the company would continue to pay what it interpreted as the "going price."

President W. S. Farish asked whether that meant Humble would pay 98 cents there, since other companies were so doing, replied:

"I don't know it will mean that—it will mean we will pay 98 cents if all the others are doing that."

In a formal statement Mr. Farish said Humble's "delay in meeting the new prices resulted from a sincere and deliberate conviction that current economic conditions do not warrant an increase in prices, and the decision finally to meet the advance is due in part to numerous appeals from individuals, oil producers, trade organizations, newspapers and state officials and in part to its desire not to penalize the producers who sell to it and who probably could find no other market.

While Humble was meeting the general advances, the Standard Oil company of Louisiana increased North Louisiana and Arkansas crude to $1 and the Gulf companies sent coastal Texas crude 10 cents up to a top of 91 cents, following the same scale for coastal Louisiana —in Vinton, Edgerly and Starks. Jennings crude was advanced 10 cents to a flat price of 75 cents.

Humble posted West Texas—Crane, Upton, Crockett, Ector, Howard, Glasscock, Pecos and Winkler counties, Texas, and Lea county, N. M.,—to a flat 65 cents, up 15 cents. It was said at Mr. Farish's office the resumption of buying on a gravity basis there was not contemplated.

The Gulf Production company revealed late today that it, too, had met the West Texas increase to a flat price of 65 cents, effective today.

10 Wild Turkeys Released on State Preserve at Jasper

JASPER, Texas, April 11. (AP)—In order to propagate wild turkeys in this section 10 were released on the state game preserve eight miles west of Jasper and 10 near Marshall. J. R. Motte of the state game department brought the turkeys here from their native haunts near Kerrville. Wings of the birds were clipped to prevent them from flying away from the preserve.

WOMAN TRIES TO PASS BILL

Banknote Believed From Ransom Money

the next day he inserted the first advertisement: "Money is ready. Jafsie."

Letter Delivered

That evening the kidnapers telephoned him and said they would call again the evening of March 12, between 8 and 9 o'clock. At 8:30 that evening a taxi driver delivered a letter to Dr. Condon at his home and hurried off.

This letter instructed the professor to proceed at once to the last station on the Jerome avenue subway line. The last station is Woodlawn cemetery.

Accompanied by Reich, Dr. Condon hurried to the designated spot and waited. Finally he saw a man standing behind a tall picket fence, waving at him. He approached the man and they had a long conversation regarding payment of the ransom and return of the baby.

At one point a cemetery guard approached and the man, becoming frightened, leaped over the fence and ran away. He returned later, however, and told Dr. Condon to insert, on the following day, an advertisement in the Home News saying: "Baby is alive and well. Money is ready." This advertisement, the man explained, was to inform the kidnapers that the negotiations were under way and proceeding in good order.

Money Delivered

This sort of communication continued for several days and a short time before the money was delivered, Dr. Condon received a note telling him that the money had to be delivered without any one visiting the baby, and that eight hours after payment, Colonel Lindbergh would be notified where to find the child.

On the night of April 2, accordingly, Dr. Condon and Reich proceeded to "a secluded spot in the Bronx" with the $50,000, which was handed over to the man.

It is assumed, though not definitely known, that eight hours or so later Colonel Lindbergh was told his child was on a boat called the "Sallie" in the vicinity of Martha's Vineyard, for it was on the day following the ransom delivery that he flew up the New England coast.

Authorities Convinced

Colonel Lindbergh, Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey and Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, all are convinced that Dr. Condon was dealing with a genuine representative of the kidnapers, if not one of their number. Why they failed to keep their promise after the money was delivered remained a subject of wide speculation.

The theory reportedly held by the child's father—that the man who received the ransom double-crossed his associates and made off with the cash—seems plausible under the circumstances, but there is nothing to substantiate it.

Reports that the suspect who was arrested in New York Friday and subjected to prolonged questioning had been released could not be verified either at Hopewell or Trenton.

ATTEMPT MADE TO PASS BILL FROM RANSOM MONEY

GREENWICH, Conn., April 11. (AP)—The proprietor of a Greenwich bakeshop reported to police tonight a woman had attempted to pass a $20 bill bearing the number of one of the Lindbergh ransom notes, but the official list failed to show the number she gave.

The woman grabbed the bill and when the proprietor who had a newspaper list of the bills posted beside the counter, exclaimed:

"Why, that's one of the Lindbergh bills!"

The bakeshop proprietor, a woman whose name was not made public, said the bill number was KB 03387529 A. A police check showed the number was on the list in the shop, but the nearest number on the list sent out from the treasury department at Washington, D. C., showed the next to the last digit the only one differing.

Police said they would continue to seek a green automobile which the woman entered and which sped eastward, driven by a chauffeur.

Sheppard Takes Issue With Digest Voters

WASHINGTON, April 11. (AP)—Senator Sheppard today took issue in the senate with the Literary Digest's prohibition polls after they had been inserted in the record by Senator Bingham with the assertion that more than 70 per cent of the replies were for repeal.

"The Texas Democrat, co-author of the 18th amendment, said while the magazine's 1930 poll showed a majority against prohibition, the congressional elections of that year resulted in a congress "with a decided majority for prohibition."

COUNCIL TOLD OF TAXI WAR

New Members Take Office After Vote Count

company has an investment of about $275,000 in transportation equipment here, and operates under a city franchise.

Mr. Bonner also pointed out that the city derives one per cent of all gross profits of the traction company above usual taxes upon its property here. Both attorneys supporting the proposed ordinance argued the city's legal right to establish minimum charges for carrying passengers within the city.

Hampton Defends Plan

J. C. Hampton, who established "Hamp's 10-Cent Taxi Service" about three weeks ago, held the floor for more than half an hour Monday night in defense of his enterprise. He declared that his company does business exclusively with patrons who telephone for service, that they do not solicit patronage from persons obviously waiting for buses or street cars, and that each of its eight drivers is making more than a fair living out of his work.

"Each of the men working for me is a local man who was out of work," Mr. Hampton said. "I operate one car; seven other men operate one car each. All calls come through my telephones. We have two phones, and now need another one. Every call we have made since we started is recorded on our books. These men are making on the average from $4 to $6 daily in addition to operating expenses.

"We have complied with every requirement of state and city law. We have purchased special licenses, have been bonded, and carry the stipulated amount of insurance for protection of both passengers and the public. We shall maintain this service as long as the city permits us to operate; and at present rates, each man can have enough money accumulated to replace the car he now is using."

Race for Fares Charged

G. C. McDermett, claim agent for the Wichita Falls Traction company, told the council that he had observed personally 10-cent taxis driving ahead of street cars and buses, picking up passengers waiting on the curb for transportation. Challenged by Mr. Hampton to identify any driver who operated in that manner, Mr. McDermett named a driver who was present at the meeting, and told where the alleged solicitation ahead of a Brook street bus took place last Saturday. The driver in question hotly denied the accusation.

A representative of the Williams 10-Cent Taxi service also was present, and declared that one car, operated by different drivers day and night, is making a fair living for both men and their families.

According to an official of the Yellow Cab company, the scale of fares stipulated in the proposed ordinance is a little higher than that now in effect with established taxicab companies here. He asserted that careful analysis both local and national demonstrates that a taxi can not be operated for less than 12½ cents per mile.

Mr. Hampton declared that 10-cent taxis operating under his direction usually have from two to four passengers on each trip. Drivers present in a given part of the city telephone to headquarters, he said, and are given other calls which have been received from that vicinity.

The council deferred action upon the proposed ordinance until next Monday night.

Mayor Walter Nelson Jr., and J. S. Bridwell and J. N. Prothro, aldermen, were sworn into office by City Attorney Thelbert Martin after an official canvass of votes in last Tuesday's city election had been made by the council. The canvass showed that Mayor Nelson received 1,602 votes against 874 for W. S. Curlee; Mr. Bridwell received 2,338 votes, and Mr. Prothro 2,316.

In order to provide funds for operation of the city government pending final adoption of the new budget, the council Monday night voted the following appropriations to cover the period from April 1 to 15, inclusive: $7,191 from the general fund; $1,381.50 from street fund; $1,293.65 from park fund; $378.50 from library fund; and $1,961 from water fund.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external treatments or worry about an operation when Allison Drug store invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?—Adv.

SENATE DEMOS OPPOSE TARIFF

Door Left Open in Tax Bill For Oil Levy

WASHINGTON, April 11. (UP)—Senate Democrats went on record tonight at a party conference against general consideration of tariff in the tax bill. The door was left open, however, for a vote on coal, oil and copper tariffs as part of the revenue measure.

At the same time, the conference pledged Democrats to press for an early enactment of the revenue bill, in order to prevent disturbance to business.

TIME OF WITNESSES CUT TO 15 MINUTES

WASHINGTON, April 11. (US)—Faced by a threat of a summer session of congress, the senate finance committee drove hard today to speed up consideration of the billion-dollar tax bill.

With the hearings dragging with repetitious testimony, Senator Connally, Democrat of Texas, offered a motion to limit each witness to 15 minutes on the stand.

When Chairman Smoot of Utah put the vote, only the vote of Senator Shortridge, Republican of California, was raised in protest.

Hearings before the finance committee today were devoted chiefly to discussions of income tax rates, with three representatives of national farm organizations urging higher levies than in the house bill to break up concentration of wealth.

John A. Simpson, of the Farmers National Union, pictured Communism as just around the corner unless congress breaks up concentrated wealth through taxation. He favored high estate levies.

Higher surtaxes, estate and gift taxes, which the treasury department has described as discriminatory and confiscatory, were advocated also by Chester H. Gray, of the American Farm Bureau federation, and Fred Brenchman, of the national grange.

HONOR SLAYING TRIAL OPENS

Defendants Hear Jury Told Of Events in Case

Ulii, Kahahawai's cousin. Ulii had had seen Kahahawai abducted from in front of the judiciary building Jan. 9.

He identified Jones and Massie as the two men who had persuaded Kahahawai to enter an automobile for the last ride he ever took alive.

"Massie had on a false mustache," he charged.

A woman, he said, was with the men. He did not point to Mrs. Fortescue as the woman.

"That's one of the men," Ulii shouted, pointing to the unmoving Jones. He climbed from the witness chair, eyes blazing hatred, and stood beside Jones.

W. A. Dixon, probation officer, was called.

He said he had told Mrs. Fortescue the men accused in the attack on Mrs. Massie, including Kahahawai, reported to the judiciary building daily.

Race Between Cars

He was valuable to the state, indicating the Americans had checked up on Kahahawai's habits in premeditating his abduction.

The race between a car containing Jones, Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie and the sheet-swathed body of Kahahawai, and a machine filled with officers was told by Detective George Harbottle.

The death-car stopped only after several shots were fired, he said.

He declared it was racing for Koko Head, where a geyser of seawater plays from a hole in the rocks.

Bloodstained cloth and navy towels were introduced in evidence with no objections from the defense.

"Alarm clock" insanity will be the defense, it seemed apparent. Darrow and his associates repeatedly showed their willingness that Kelley be permitted to bare all the facts he wishes.

Witnesses and the polyglot jury handled Kahawai's blue trousers and hammered silver belt. His rundown black shoes passed from hand to hand.

Darrow Enters Objection

A heavy canvas found with the body, and torn, stained bath towels with "U. S. navy" printed on them, were handed around.

With frank curiosity, the jurors leaned over one another and reached eagerly for the exhibits.

Darrow offered only one objection. That was to entering photographs of the death car.

"That might be any automobile," he said. "There should be no question raised about the broad facts of that trip."

Beginning of the insanity defense for which two noted mainland experts are in Honolulu, came when Detective John Cluney took the stand as prosecution witness.

"How did Massie look," asked Montgomery Winn on cross-examination.

"Just as he does now," Cluney replied.

"Didn't you tell me several weeks ago that he looked stern, sat rigidly upright and never said a word?"

Cluney agreed with the young defense lawyer.

The same question was put, and agreed to, regarding Mrs. Fortescue.

William Hoopai, deputy police chief, exasperated Kelley because he was indefinite as to facts concerning his arrival at the car containing Kahahawai's body and three of the defendants.

wry smile the report that bear raiders intended to make April 9 "black Saturday" with the greatest selling orgy in history, and were only deterred by the threat of senatorial investigation. Whitney added:

"I have no knowledge of any bear raid beyond what was conveyed to me over the telephone, particularly as regards United States Steel, by Senator Walcott last Friday."

At the instance of the senator, Whitney said he had an investigation conducted of short sales in United States Steel, American Telephone and Telegraph, Public Service of New Jersey, and Consolidated Gas of New York. Only legitimate liquidation was discovered, the witness said.

To prove his point that financial factors caused the recent depression, Whitney said that the outstanding short accounts totaled 3,279,000 shares on April 2 and that on April 6 this total had dwindled to 3,059,000, a drop of 220,000 shares. This indicated to him that the "shorts" were covering and not selling during the market recession.

Through a vigorous cross-examination, Whitney refused to yield ground on his assertion that the exchange rules are sufficient to prevent bear raids. Condensed, he said the protecting rule is this:

"Short sales cannot be made at less than the last sale of stock, whether short or long."

He said within the last two weeks the exchange committee on business conduct had discovered an illegitimate sale in violation of the rule and as a result the offending brokerage firm was dissolved.

In addition to the pall of ash which covered the continent from Pacific coast to the Atlantic, the populations were alarmed by reports that breathing it would be fatal and by a prediction by the Chile national observatory that earthquakes are likely to follow the eruptions within a few days. Talco, a city of 36,000 population was particularly alarmed by the danger of a quake as well as the threat of a more intense eruption.

The street scenes in Buenos Aires and Montevideo, which presumably were comparable to the scenes in all towns in the path of the ash clouds, were remarkable. The ash was blown by a strong east wind—which partly kept it away from Santiago—and came so swiftly that it outran mail planes approaching the city.

By early evening it appeared that a light snow had fallen in the capital and in Montevideo, which is across the river in Uruguay. The novelty of a rain of ash quickly gave away to alarm. Pedestrians took all sorts of precautions against the dust. Truck farmers worked frantically to cover their gardens, fearing the ash would kill produce.

Traffic was disrupted. Railroad locomotives could not grip the rails because of the ash and were greatly delayed.

DECISION ON MAYOR TODAY

Run-Off May Not Be Needed at Vernon

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, April 11.—Whether or not Vernon will have a run-off election to determine who will be mayor, or whether H. D. Hockersmith will be declared to have won in the recent election will probably be decided at a meeting of the city commission Tuesday morning.

Mr. Hockersmith led A. D. Green by about 50 votes in the election last week, but failed to get a majority. The city charter states that in event no candidate gets a majority in a city race a run-off election shall be held, but the state law provides that the candidate getting the most votes be declared elected. This seeming conflict presents a legal question which has necessitated action by the commission. Much interest is being shown in the decision.

The issue was brought up here two years ago when Mr. Hockersmith gained a plurality in the first election but fell short of a majority. At that time the commission decided in favor of a run-off and Mr. Hockersmith defeated A. M. Bourland.

Huey Long Has No Regrets But Wants To Be in Louisiana—Practicing Law

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Some men would sell their souls for a seat in the senate. Many have done so, in fact. Many others have spent fortunes for a toga—and frequently in vain. So consider the price paid by Huey Pierce Long, junior senator from Louisiana, for his place in that august body.

It cost this unique figure in American politics the freedom he craves. He is chained to a post he did not covet. He regards himself as the victim of a vicarious sacrifice which he now regrets. In the senate he is as restless as a wildcat in a cage.

And yet Huey glories in his power that has made him the dictator of political destinies in Louisiana. He believes in himself—the champion of the "plain people"—and dotes on their plaudits. But given his preference, Huey would probably return to the hill-billies where folks can "fry" a steak.

Has No Regrets

When the question of his "greatest" regret was broached to Huey he turned fiercely upon his interviewer, exclaiming:

"Regret! Regret! I have no regrets. Why should I? I'm too young to have regrets. Regrets come to those whose lives are ending. Mine is just beginning.

"I've done everything I set out to do, I achieved my boyhood ambition to become a lawyer. I was railroad and public service commissioner of my state at an age when most fellows are just getting started. I was governor at 34 and now I'm senator at 36. What have I to regret?"

Huey was in his hotel room, pacing like a panther. He was clad in his customary informal receiving attire—pajamas. He said he had work to do and felt more freedom of mind as well as of body when not bound by tight clothing. He almost flung himself about as he paced.

If He Had His Way—

Suddenly he stopped in his strides and for a moment stood with his head cocked to one side and something like wistfulness in his brown eyes. Then he jerked out:

"No, I'm wrong. I have a regret—a great regret. The regret of my life is that I had to run to protect myself and my friends. If I had my way I'd be back in Louisiana practicing law. You want a statement on that?"

Without waiting for a reply, Huey strode into the next room and emerged lugging a typewriter which he set on the table, saying:

"I'll write it out for you. I used to be a newspaper man myself."

In two-fingered style, the distinguished and honorable senator from Louisiana rapidly tapped out the following statement:

"When I was elected governor four years ago, I thought I would be able to take matters rather easy and then return to my law office. But the governor's office became a mad house. Everything I proposed—to give the children free school books and the people good roads—aroused violent opposition. A combination was formed to wreck me and the program I proposed for the benefit of the people of Louisiana.

Fought Fire With Fire

"Efforts were made to impeach me. I resisted successfully, fighting fire with fire. I can imagine how Caesar felt as he saw Brutus about to stab him when men I had helped to elect turned against me. These included both senators. I did not dare let a senator go without opposition for fear my enemies would construe this as weakness.

"Senator Ransdell was the first to come up for re-election. I persuaded a man, much more capable than myself, to make the race against Senator Ransdell. After a few days, this man came to me and said:

"'I can't beat him. If you have simply just got to beat him, you are the only man who can do it.'

"Thereupon, to save all my legislation, all my undertakings, my friends in public office and my own right to serve as governor, I piled all the chips on the table and filed my candidacy for the senate. The result is history.

"So I am here, here where I never wanted to be. My dream to return home to Shreveport when my term as governor expired is gone.

Lonesome Town

"The other day Senator Ransdell came into the senate chamber and walked over to my place. We had been friends for many years. He called me 'Huey,' as he always had. As he did so I thought how happy I would have been had the seat still been his instead of mine.

"Me thought I saw a flicker in his demeanor that indicated that he regretted that I was forced to run against him. He seemed to understand."

Just as Huey finished his typing the telephone jangled and he answered a long-distance call from a prominent business man in Louisiana. For Huey must be consulted. When he had finished talking business, Huey asked:

"How's the weather down there? . . . yeah . . . yeah . . . yeah, the sun's shining up here, too, but this is a mighty lonesome town. They don't even know how to fry a steak."

Huey turned as he put down the receiver, still wistful, and added:

"So here I am in the United States senate . . . and not a single member of my family speaks to me . . . but that might be different if my mother were alive."

Wheeler County Boasts Surplus in Road Fund

WHEELER, Texas, April 11. (AP)—Wheeler county, which voted its bond issue before the cost of building highways was reduced, will have a surplus fund left when its two main highways, No. 4 and No. 75, have been paved across the county.

If the statutes will permit, county officials have indicated the surplus may be used to improve highway No. 41 from Wheeler east to the Oklahoma line, a distance of about 12 miles. A campaign is under way throughout the north Panhandle to improve this road, which crosses east and west through the oil fields.

Farm Population At Beaumont Increasing

BEAUMONT, Texas, April 11. (AP)—The back to the farm movement is gaining in popularity, the school census for Jefferson county, just completed, indicates.

While the figures show that city schools will remain about stationary in enrollment, or record a slight drop, the rural districts have registered considerable increase, some of them as much as 33 1-3 per cent in Jefferson county.

First Presbyterian Circles Plan Work For Coming Year

Reorganization of the First Presbyterian circles for the coming church year was completed at meetings held Monday, when interesting mission lessons also featured the programs. Mrs. W. N. Maer was hostess to circle one and in the business session, arrangements were made for the circle to serve the luncheon at the all-day meeting to be held at the church Monday which is social service and Bible study day. It was also voted to send quilt scraps to the women of the Presbyterian church at Elat, Cameron district, Africa.

Dr. D. P. Horst gave the devotional on "Fellowship," emphasizing what a privilege and satisfaction it is to have fellowship with Christ. Dr. Horst said that it requires no unreasonable sacrifice to walk with Him.

Mrs. H. J. Strief led the program and introduced Miss Minnie T. Baker, supervisor of music in the Zundelowitz Junior High school, who presented three pupils, Elizabeth Perkins, Bonnie Jean Lincoln and Eunice Allen in a stringed trio. After two numbers, Miss Baker sang "Does Jesus Care?" accompanied at the piano by Lucille Crouch.

Lovely refreshments were served during the social hour to 22 members.

Circle Two

Mrs. Ed Howard was hostess to members of circle two who met in the first meeting since the organization of the missionary society in new groups. The afternoon was devoted to a business and devotional meeting.

Mrs. J. W. Culbertson gave an inspiring devotional and Mrs. D. J. White, leader of the circle, appointed various committees. Interesting phases of new work were discussed and inspirational plans made.

Following the meeting the hostess observed the first meeting of the new group by serving dainty refreshments to 22 members and to one guest, Mrs. Geo. Sockebrand of Mobeetie, Texas.

Circle Three

Mrs. R. A. Walker, leader of circle three for the coming year, was hostess to the group at her home on Tenth street Monday afternoon.

were read by Mrs. Davenport and

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

"I always forget to tell the Texas men," said Mrs. John Caldwell who is now living in Pennsylvania, in a letter written to friends in Wichita Falls, "that there were 18,798 deer legally killed in Pennsylvania this season; so that the total was probably 100,000. They were allowed to kill the does this year for the first time. The farmers suffered so much depreciation they wanted half a million killed, or the season extended. However a poor man was fined $100 last week for shooting one to feed his hungry family. How justice miscarries."

A few years ago, South Dakota was stocked with pheasants. Before that time, the open season for deer; that for hunting grouse or prairie chicken, or for duck (and that state is a Paradise for duck hunters), was the joyful period to which sportsmen looked forward. It was, I believe in 1922, the hunters first had a short open season on pheasants.

With the years, the pheasants multiplied at a phenomenal rate and in 1929 and 1930 the game commission yielded to the cry of farmers who were having grain crops eaten by the beautiful birds, and had an open season of a month with a maximum to each person, at each hunt, of five birds. The maximum number of ducks was 25 to a man in this time.

There was a failure in the grain crop of 1931; pheasants died by the thousands. The open season went down to a very brief period and no hunter might kill more than three birds on a hunt.

South Dakota is one of the comparatively new states but it watches its game. In 1921 coyotes ravaged the country. They went directly into the farmyards and destroyed the turkeys by the thousands. So in counties in which coyotes were thickest, the bounties offered for their noses and tails would make any willing hunter of such game quite a nice living. In that county in which Fort Pierre, the first settlement of French Jesuits and the soldiers following made in that state, the bounty amounted to something like $10 per coyote.

In our native state of Tennessee, and in Mississippi, where we lived for years, we knew nothing of laws governing either fishing or hunting. We remember as one of the pleasant spots of our girlhood the days when our father mounted his horse and went forth with his gun to return with a bunch of squirrels. If you have never tasted squirrel with dumplings, fried squirrel or Brunswick stew made with squirrel as a foundation, you have missed a treat.

In Tennessee there was, until the drouth of 1930, (when little partridges that get their water from the morning dew died by thousands) a pleasantly long season for hunting partridges. We have eaten them for many a breakfast and yearned to refute by our own action, the old saying that one cannot eat a partridge for 30 consecutive days. We never had the opportunity to try it out.

Reelfoot Lake in Tennessee, that great expanse of water where thousands go to fish and which was formed by an earthquake overnight, and Moon Lake, in Mississippi, the moon shaped forsaken bed of the wandering Mississippi river, are the two best known fishing places for the two states. But the Hatchie river in Tennessee sees thousands of fishermen each year and negroes fish every stream, particularly the wandering Forked Deer with cane fishing poles and cans of worms. So long as they may fish, there is no hunger nor unhappiness for that race.

Duck hunters had almost forsaken that sport when we left Tennessee for the more thrilling one of hunting wild geese. When their honk! honk! was heard in autumn days, the little islands in the Mississippi river were much more crowded with ambitious hunters than, we understand they are now with illicit liquor.

Mrs. W. D. Smith gave the topic, "Coming of Christianity" and told of the first missionary to Korea. Mrs. H. A. Bancroft gave the topic, "The Great Revival," and stated that man's extremity is God's opportunity. That when Koreans were so terribly oppressed by Japan, that they naturally turned to the great power, God, for help, with the result of a revival in church membership which increased fourfold.

Mrs. G. Simpson gave the topic, "The Church, Koreans and Nationalism" showing that churches continued to grow in Korea in spite of political opposition and economic conditions.

After the study, Mrs. W. H. Black presided at a brief business session.

There were 22 present.

First Methodist W. M. S. Studies Women of Bible

Members of the First Methodist Woman's Missionary society met in the ladies' parlors of the church Monday afternoon for Bible study with Mrs. C. B. Haynie leading the lesson on women characters in the Bible.

The meeting was opened with a song led by Mrs. Sam Acton, with Mrs. J. E. O'Brien at the piano. Mrs. Stanley Raub gave the devotional, emphasizing the value of prayer and meditation, and using for her topic, "Come Ye Yourselves Apart and Rest Awhile."

The study of women characters of the Bible was continued with Mrs. C. B. Haynie giving the characteristics of the two biblical women, Dorcas, and the woman of Shunem. The outstanding thought that Mrs. Haynie brought out about Dorcas was that she was the first to use a needle in the service of the Master. "All of those in distress came to her," Mrs. Haynie said, "making her the woman who was always wanted." Mrs. Haynie closed her remarks with "if we would be like Dorcas we should imitate her loving heart and unwearied hands." The speaker then told of the woman of Shunem, who she said had never faltered in her happiness. Her urge to do good was taken from Christ's words "In My House Are Many Mansions."

Mrs. Wayne Somerville talked on the "Woman of Public Spirit," known in the Bible as Deborah. "She was made a leader of the Israelites in their flight against the great enemy, Sisera, who was finally conquered through her great leadership, assisted by Barek. Aside from being a great leader, she wrote amode, one of the oldest pieces of literature in the Bible," Mrs. Somerville said.

The study was closed with prayer by Mrs. W. W. Cook.

Members of Scotland Methodist Woman's Missionary society met at the church Monday afternoon to study the mission textbook, "Korea, the Land of the Dawn."

Mrs. M. C. Nelson, president of the society, gave the closing prayer dismissing 13 members.

First Christian Division Entertains With Lilac Tea

Members of division two of the First Christian Woman's council, Mrs. E. E. Clair, leader, were hostesses Monday afternoon from 3 to 5:30 o'clock at a "lilac tea," at the home of Mrs. Ted Krohn, on Tilden. The rooms were beautiful with masses of spring blossoms emphasizing the dainty motif in shades of lavender. There were orchid hydrangeas, bowls and vases of purple sweet peas, fragrant lilacs in profusion and on the piano, a bank of snowy spirea.

Mrs. Krohn met the callers at the door and presented them to other members of the receiving line which included Mesdames J. Lem Keevil, Ola G. Hamlin, Frank Creighton, C. E. Bailey, G. D. Rigsby, O. H. Karr, E. E. Clair, J. E. Montgomery and A. D. Harrison.

Mesdames H. T. Wood and W. H. Weaver alternately poured tea in the dining room, where the handsome Madeira covered table was centered with a great silver bowl of lilacs; tall silver holders held orchid tapers and silver compotes were filled with mints in the same dainty shade. Each of the pretty plates had a cluster of lavender sweet peas to stress the lilac theme.

An exquisite musical program completed the afternoon. Delightful numbers were given by a violin ensemble composed of three talented young violinists, Misses Lucile Snyder, Roberta Lincoln and Norita Sims. Roger Brown gave piano solos intermittently, and Miss Margaret Bone, accompanied by Mrs. R. E. Shepherd, sang "Lilac Time."

Members of the division who assisted in the afternoon, included Mesdames J. C. Bryan, J. B. Burton, H. M. Campbell, C. V. Derden, Ted Krohn, C. A. Larson, A. L. Ligon, J. A. Nix, L. David Smith, L. C. Tyson, W. R. Harwell, F. E. Kelly and the leader, Mrs. Clair.

Mrs. Clair was at the door to bid each guest farewell. Approximately 80 called during the afternoon.

Mrs. George Sockebrand, who has been the guest for two weeks of her nice, Mrs. J. W. Culbertson, will return Wednesday to her home in Mobeetie, Texas.

Mrs. A. M. Davenport was in charge of the mission study and discussed "Hard Times in Korea." Others taking part on the program were Mesdames H. H. Vining, F. K. Brown, J. M. Helm, Ernest Owens, J. W. Thomas and W. S. Martin.

Mrs. Thomas, the president, presided at the brief business meeting when plans were made for a doughnut sale to be held at the church Friday morning.

COUNTY ASKED TO AID NEEDY

Work of Relief Societies Cited in Reply

Members of the county commissioners court Monday were asked by O. B. Kelley and more than 30 other persons by petition to provide work or food for local unemployed.

In the petition submitted to the court by a committee headed by Mr. Kelley it was charged that more than 500 families in this city are in destitute circumstances, and in want both for food and clothing. It was further alleged that rations from the Family Relief association have been cut down from the value of $1.50 weekly for each family to about 50 cents. Officials of the association explained to the court later that the reduction has not amounted to more than 10 cents per family, and that only small items such as baking powder have been taken off the list in order to keep within the budget.

Chest Describes System

Community chest workers declare that persons receiving aid from the commissary still are being allowed to receive and work out approximately $1.50 worth of supplies each week, as during the past several months. The applicant receives a work card when he draws his rations; and to qualify for the following week's allowance of food supplies, he must produce the work card properly signed showing that he has completed the required amount of work.

Since food distributed by the commissary is purchased in quantity lots at wholesale prices, it was explained, the weekly allowance of $1.50 worth amounts to about $2.40 worth of groceries at retail prices. Each man is allowed to work one day per week, and is allowed the amount of about $1.50, it was explained.

Some of the persons whose names appeared on the petition submitted Monday, it was said, are not on the family relief society's records as having asked for aid at any time. It was declared that at least one of the group is not a resident of this city.

M. A. Bundy, precinct 1 commissioner, cited the use of $62,886 for charity during the past year, and declared that funds are not available this year for provision of work or food in large amounts.

Howard Returns Fees

Return of $3,522.80 to the county in excess fees for 1931 was shown in the report of Paul Barnett, county auditor, for Arthur C. Howard, tax collector. The audit reveals the following figures: Total receipts, $25,839.66; salaries of clerks, $16,354.96; salary and excess fee allowance of tax collector, $5,371.17; expenses of office, $590.73; returnable excess fees, $3,522.80.

Mr. Barnett's audited report of the 1931 report by L. V. Abernathy, county attorney, showed receipts of $8,504.39, with $161.71 in excess fees returnable to the county. The county attorney's fees and salary were $5,343.29; assistant's salary, $1,375; expenses, $1,618.14.

Reports of G. C. McGown, county farm agent, and Miss Ethel Luise Webb, county home demonstrator, for March also were received.

Cow Saves Soldier From Train Wheels

SAN ANTONIO, April 11. (AP)—A cow that frequently annoys trainmen by loitering on the Missouri Pacific tracks, near Camp Normoyle here, was indirectly responsible for saving the life of a soldier of the camp this week.

An engineer was bringing an engine, dragging another locomotive, into San Antonio at 3 a. m., and remembering Old Bossie, he was proceeding slowly and keeping a sharp lookout on the track. Then he saw something that made him jam on the brakes. It was a man lying across the track. The soldier was using one rail for a pillow and the other for a foot rest, and it was with some difficulty that the trainmen awakened the sleeper. The sleeper showed resentment at being awakened and when the engineer went back to his locomotive the man again was pillowed upon the track and snoring.

A police officer had to be called to remove him.

Shawnee Druggist Beaten By Unknown Attackers

SHAWNEE, Okla., April 11. (UP)—C. R. Street, 46-year-old drug store employe, was reported in a critical condition at a hospital today as a result of a mysterious beating given him last Saturday night.

Street was found unconscious on his front porch by his daughter. Because of his critical condition he has been unable to describe the attack, the motive of which was unknown.

He suffered compound skull fracture and broken nose, having been struck by a club twice on the head and once in the face. He was last seen at a church where he stopped on his way home but officers had failed to trace his actions an hour before the beating.

Cardozo's First Decision On Bench Is Dissent

WASHINGTON, April 11. (UP)—Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo today read his first supreme court opinion. It was a dissent.

Cardozo disagreed with the court's decision that a California law suit against the director of a corporation, to make good funds embezzled by one of its officers, could not be outlawed by a change in the state constitution.

Geology Students Unearth Fossil Of Prehistoric Beast At Eldorado

By S. A. COOK
Record News Correspondent

ELDORADO, Okla., April 11.—Fossil remains of a huge prehistoric mastodon are being unearthed six miles northeast of Eldorado by L. J. Price and D. G. Vieaux, students of geology working under the direction of Prof. J. W. Stovall, paleontologist of the department of vertebrate geology of the University of Oklahoma.

Price and Vieaux arrived Saturday morning, April 9, and immediately began excavating around a massive bone three and one-half feet long and nine inches in diameter at the smallest circumference and 14 inches in diameter at each end. The fossil was identified as the ulna or fore-arm bone of a mastodon of great size, possibly 11 feet high.

Roamed Oklahoma

In the opinion of the geologists the huge beasts roamed this section of Oklahoma anywhere from 15,000 to 25,000 years ago, and in view of the fact that similar fossils have been found at several different places within a radius of six miles of Eldorado, it is believed that they were here in large numbers at some prehistoric period.

The bones now being removed were discovered by operators of heavy tractor-drawn road grading machines while cutting through a hill on a new highway under construction between Eldorado and Olustee, and were encountered at a depth of from six to eight feet and were plentiful over a distance of perhaps 75 feet. Apparently the skeleton lay diagonally across the road bed of the new highway. Bones of smaller animals, evidently of a prehistoric species of camel or horse, have also been found in the same deposit. All bones found in this deposit seem fairly well preserved.

To Be Displayed

These fossils, after proper conditioning, will be placed on exhibition with other fossils from Eldorado now in the university museum.

Last summer Price with other university geology students working under direction of Professor Stovall, spent several weeks excavating for fossil remains of early elephants of the Columbian species, which are identified by their flat or grinder type of molars. The mastodon differs in species in that they were more massive in build and their molars instead of being flat-faced had conical points.

From one mound located four miles northwest of Eldorado the head bones of one large Columbian mammoth and one much smaller were removed almost intact, each having one tusk in place. From a gypsum deposit just outside the city limits of Eldorado a huge tusk nearly nine feet long and nine inches in diameter at the largest circumference was removed by Professor Stovall, also a scapula nearly three feet across, and several teeth weighing as much as 12 pounds each. These are now in the university museum.

Several tusks in varying degrees of preservation have been found near Eldorado, one only two weeks ago in a gravel bed on the side of a 30-foot bluff. A large bone similar to the one now being taken up was found several years ago protruding from a creek bank a few miles southeast of Eldorado.

Two human skeletons were found about a year ago within two miles of where the mastodon bones were found this week. The discovery was made by a farmer while digging a new channel for a creek. They were found under a slab of rock in a shallow grave and in one of the skulls a flint arrow head was imbedded. The other skull evidently had been crushed and it crumbled in pieces when an effort was made to remove it.

For Pains Due To Neuralgia

Don't let them count you out!

a "run-down" body cant stand up under work and worry

A cheerful helper is not enough — not if you are "run-down" physically

MOTHER, I do wish you were well and strong . . . you always look tired —what did Daddy mean this morning when he said your blood count was low?"

So often we hear of a "low blood count." Few escape it. Overwork, worry, diet neglect, colds and such often reduce to the danger point the red-cells in the blood—those precious workers that build and sustain the body.

When a lowered blood count is allowed to continue, that "tired feeling" takes hold . . . vitality is reduced . . . normal resistance to infection and disease is lacking.

Dangerous consequences often follow the neglect of a lowered blood count.

The reasonable way to health

It isn't fair to expect one to like work or to enjoy play when in a "run-down" condition. Without plenty of rich, red-blood-cells there could be no strong, sturdy men, and healthy, beautiful women.

Ordinarily you don't need to stay in bed or go to a distant health resort to restore the red-cells and hemoglobin in your blood . . . usually S.S.S. will do it right at home and while you are up and going. In most cases it is effective from the start . . . improvement is progressive. Put it to the test if you want to regain your vitality . . . firm flesh . . . a clear skin—so necessary to charm and personality.

If you require a tonic you should by all means try S.S.S.—this long established medicine acts by stimulating the secretions of the stomach . . . reviving the appetite . . . aiding digestion . . . regenerating hemoglobin . . . restoring the red-blood-cells—and builds greater resistance against infection and disease.

S.S.S. popularity due to merit

S.S.S. helpfulness is illustrated by this fact—our records show that nearly one-half of those who have taken it, for the first time, do so upon the recommendation of some friend who has been benefited. Can there be any stronger recommendation for its merit and usefulness than this?

A distinctive thing about S.S.S. is that it is made from fresh roots, barks and herbs . . . it is readily absorbed by the system. Another thing is that its efficiency has been proved by scientific tests and by its use for more than 100 years. It is a safe Tonic to take.

S. S. S. is an economical way to health. Try it yourself. Get S.S.S. from any drug store. In two sizes: regular and double—the latter is more economical and is sufficient for a two weeks' treatment. It may be the means of bringing better health and happiness to you.

Get both of these Free

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, April 12.—If Secretary Henry L. Stimson's reserve commission were in the navy instead of the army, he might apply for sea service credit on the strength of his European journeyings.

KIRKE SIMPSON

He went over last June for "pleasure and business" as passports put it. Now he goes again for a momentary appearance as head of the American delegation at the Geneva arms conference.

And to the mind of Washington officialdom, native or diplomatic, as well as to the rank and file of onlookers, it would be just about as reasonable to suppose Mr. Stimson's idea is to fix up his reserve service credits as it is to accept the suggestion that he merely wishes to spend a few days at Geneva.

Particularly since "Uncle Andy" Mellon also crossed the pond as the new American ambassador to the court of St. James at about the same time.

Coincidence

For here is a curious historical coincidence. Messrs. Stimson and Mellon were both touring Europe last year about this same time or a bit later.

It came out finally that they had a big hand in bringing about acceptance of the Hoover debt moratorium proposal.

That subject was very much to the fore in Europe as these two heavyweights of the Hoover official family sailed again.

It would take a lot to convince Washington folk that something more significant than is admitted does not underlie Mr. Stimson's new Atlantic crossings, if not Mr. Mellon's transfer from the treasury to diplomatic service in London.

Admittedly, the Hoover administration has staked much on success of the Geneva arms parley.

Mr. Stimson was the prime mover in urging that there be no postponement. His trip last year, made in the face of rather hopeless reports from American diplomats, was crowned with success in that regard.

The conference is going on yet under such circumstances as not to indicate probability of any early concrete agreements. That Mr. Stimson's visit to Geneva will stimulate proceedings is to be expected.

Yet what line of development to that end his transatlantic trip foreshadows—or the almost simultaneous arrival in London of Ambassador Mellon, for that matter—is not easy to picture in view of the complete silence in administration circles.

Food for Speculation

With congress in session, ready to raise a row about almost anything the administration does or does not do, caution in disclosing the real purposes of Mr. Stimson's trip to Geneva no doubt seems highly desirable to Mr. Hoover.

Yet the coincidence of what happened a year ago invites speculation as to what may be in the wind.

School Treasurer Gets Term for Embezzlement

DURANT, Okla., April 11 (UP)—C. P. McCory, former Bennington school board treasurer, was sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary and fined $91,286.66 by District Judge Porter Newman here today.

McCory pleaded guilty three weeks ago to a charge of embezzling $45,643.33 in school funds.

Judge Newman also sentenced Travis E. Tarter and B. Campbell, former employes of the First National bank, Bennington, to 12 years each and fine of $91,286.66 after they pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting McCory in the alleged embezzlement.

2. THE VALLEY—Systematic, vigorous development of the irrigated valley in keeping with its possibilities as Wichita Falls' greatest physical asset.
3. WATER—An ample, assured supply of soft water.
4. EDUCATION—Maintenance of a junior college in Wichita Falls to give opportunity for higher education to our youth—the highest standards in elementary schools.
5. THE LAKES—Full development of the recreational opportunities offered by the three lakes.
6. HIGHWAYS—Early consummation of a highway program covering all the main routes radiating from this city and all the local roads that serve its agricultural community.
7. DRAINAGE—Solution of the drainage problem in all three phases; first, in the irrigated valley; second, with regard to Holliday creek; third, in those portions of the city now inadequately drained.
8. GOVERNMENTAL ECONOMY—The adoption of such means as may be found most feasible to reduce the cost of local government by elimination of unnecessary offices and consolidation of others.

Transatlantic steamship executives have cut fares. If they were run by railroad presidents, they would still be sitting around complaining about how badly they needed government aid.

Archeologists say that the world is only three billion years old. Maybe we ought not to expect too much of it until it grows up.

The best way to restore prosperity is for the people to start buying again, an economist says. And the easiest way to get people to start buying again is to restore prosperity.

Solemn Promise vs. Free Sugar

THE keeping of a solemn promise isn't always such a matter of high-minded altruism as it seems on the surface.

When the house of representatives voted independence for the Philippines the other day by the one-sided vote of 306 to 47, it might have been thought that the conscience of the republic was at last stirring the legislators to fulfill the pledge that the government made three decades ago.

Underneath, however, motives far less creditable were at work.

Whether this particular independence bill becomes a law or not, it is fairly obvious that the Filipinos are going to get their freedom in the not-distant future. But they will get it, not because Uncle Sam has suddenly grown kindly and solicitous, but because he has discovered that his bread isn't buttered on the side that he had supposed.

Keeping the Philippines, in plain English, is more expensive and troublesome than it is worth. Free Philippine sugar importation hits the American sugar growers where they live. Immigration restrictions are hard to handle, as between an island possession and the mother country. Uncle Sam's pocketbook and his peace of mind will both be better off if Manila is the seat of an independent government.

What considerations of justice and fair play were never able to do, ordinary selfishness is about to accomplish.

Nevertheless, freedom is freedom, no matter how it is gained; and the Filipinos probably will not be too particular about looking this gift horse in the mouth. There is very little doubt that an overwhelming majority in the islands wants independence very much. So long as they get it they will not be inclined to worry greatly about Uncle Sam's motives in giving it.

For the United States, meanwhile, the vote in the house marks the end of an epoch. The gaudy imperialism that was born at the close of the last century seems about ready for decent burial. No longer are we enamored of toting the white man's burden or living according to the gospel of Kipling. Do island colonies cost more than they are worth? If so, we are quite ready to give them up.

Facts on Honolulu

JUST to keep the record straight, all Americans should read the report issued by Assistant Attorney General Seth Richardson on police and crime conditions in Honolulu.

When the "honor murder" case there first broke, we were told that Honolulu was over-run with potential rapists and that sex crimes were frightfully common there. Mr. Richardson was appointed to look into things.

Now he says that he found no criminal rackets in Hawaii at all, and that sex crimes there are actually less frequent than in most large cities on the mainland. He does blister the Honolulu police administration for its political activity and inefficiency—but are there half a dozen large cities in the continental United States whose police departments could not be criticized in exactly the same way?

In other words, it is clear that Honolulu has been basely maligned. It is important that the public at large realize the fact.

Where the Money Is Spent

DEMANDS for economy by the federal government have led many people to bewail the multiplicity of burdens with which Uncle Sam conducts his business. The inference is that if the work of such outfits as the children's bureau, the Indian bureau, the federal trade commission and so on were cut to a minimum, tremendous savings in the cost of government could be made.

It is worth while, therefore, to remember just which government departments are the chief spenders. They are the veterans' bureau, which spends around $1,000,000,000 a year; the army and navy departments, which spend some $800,000,000; the department of agriculture, which takes fully $200,000,000, and the treasury department, which spends $275,000,000.

If any substantial reductions are to be made, those are the places where the heaviest cutting must be done.

Comfort

My last spring's love I can't remember now,
And I am bitter-wrought that I outlive
The memory of every tender vow,
The sweet, enchanting thrill that kisses give.
I would recall with poignancy the place,
The time, the spell, "the castles built in Spain,"
The foolish words, the lure of his dear face,
And then emote about the after-pain.

But time's a cure. I find no compromise,
Though I'd prefer remembering a kiss,
Or yet the color of his slanted eyes
Is there no recompense to gain for this?

Oh, yes. I know, now I have thought upon it—
I can re-read another Don Wahn sonnet.

—JANE SAYRE.

Poor Hollywood

They tell it on Marc Connelly, whose adaptation of "Green Pastures" was among the thrills. He was introduced to a hambo in Hollywood as "an author." The actor was impressed. "An author, eh? You mean you have a book with your name on it?" Marc confessed that there was a book of his plays.

"You mean," exclaimed the sapjdilo, "that it has stiff covers and up front there is a blank page for writing on it?" Marc thought so.

"That's swell," said the breathless one. "I'll tell you what you do. Get me one and write in it and I'll put it on the table in my house!"

"What for?" asked Marc.

"I dunno," confessed the screenuisance, "but they're all doin' it out here—it's getting to be sort of a fad."

In Fewer Words

Maybe light wines and beers wouldn't bring back prosperity, says Judge Shuttleworth, but it would help us to forget about it.

I Don't Believe It

Jimmy Durante, take it from Jack Harvey, his manager, attended a concert the other night, and after taking his seat, James chirped: "What are they playing?"

"Beethoven's Fifth Symphony," obliged the matron in the next chair.

"Phew!" phew'd Jimmy, "are we that late?"

Maybe?

It is David Murray's observation that maybe business has been merged with slow motion.

By Way of Report

The ousting of Reed Harris, editor of the Columbia Spectator, now offers an "inside" to why he was expelled. A few weeks ago, according to the current legend, Harris was approached by the chairman of the Hoover Loyalty league, who urged him to form a league at the university. Editor Harris is said to have refused and denounced the administration, etc.

The explosion followed. And the press is informed that it is not a case of "free speech" but "personal misconduct."

Gosh, Yes

The office cynic was reading about a baby born during the height of a tornado.

"That's finding out too early," he groaned, "what life is like."

Rebuttal

One of the Detroit observers devoted an entire pillar the other day to quarrel with the critics, and employed the stale thrust about critics who "cannot be expected to enjoy a new play, after hurrying through a meal and suffering from indigestion."

That the critics do not suffer from indigestion we have never heard denied. But the better plays have always served to take their minds off it, at any rate. Only one critic in our time, we thought, failed his followers. He was the reviewer who snubbed the important premiere of the evening to cover a new entry which attracted the other fellow's assistants.

And we learned why. His wife's sister had written the show and his report was the only favorable one. The play, however, perished within the fortnight—and so did his job.

He is now free-lancing, which is another way of getting poor.

Recognition

Of course it probably never happened, but one of the pillar's deputies argues that it did. It was after the opera, it appears, and an expensively-groomed woman ankled by the stage door just as one of the singers came out.

"Oh," she said, "have I the honor of almost bumping into the renowned basso I just heard?"

The flattered fellow bowed low and said: "What can I do for you, madam?"

"I can't find my car," she pouted. "Be a good boy and call out 'Charlie' at the top of your voice?"

"Always Belittlin'"

A Western columnist gave up his job because, he confessed, he ran out of ideas.

So they made him editor.

The Squelch Proper

Then there was the time that a revenue agent testified against Texas Guinan and helped close one of her asylums. After the trial he called her up and told her he was sorry. "Let me show you I mean it," he said. "Come and take dinner with me."

"No thanks," purred Texas. "I don't like your fur coat. I never did care much for stool-pigeon."

Quiteso, Quiteso

The one big aggravation in being a parent, once sighed Abe Martin, is "never knowin' how a boy is goin' t' turn out—or when a girl is goin' t' turn in."

Add Slanguage

On Broadway—"She wears hairpins" means she's old-fashioned and goes home too early . . . "She's full of barb-wire" is a gal that's hard to meet—and checks that bounce are called "Orphan Paper."

Orchids for a Lillie

At the premiere of the new Guild production of Shaw's "Two True to Be Good," Beatrice Lillie ran off with most of the honors.

Between acts, frixample, one critic asked a confrere: "Do you think Lillie is speaking Shaw's lines as he wrote them?"

"No," was the retort, "as he ought to have written them!"

The Story of an Unemployed Girl

By ETHELDA BEDFORD, Author of "BROADWAY BRIDE"

READ THIS FIRST

Lillian Abbott, beautiful heiress to millions runs away to New York in search of a career. She is influenced by the handsome Thomas Blane, who turns out to a girl racketeer and steals all of Lillian's money. Stranded, she still believes she can make New York, having more than average beauty and a lot of nerve. But her nerve doesn't last long in the face of attractive hotel manager, Howard Marsh. She confesses she hasn't any money. He believes her to be a run-away college girl and invites her to go dining and dancing. He really gives her a job as a professional hostess in the dine and dance place, of which he is joint owner. Lillian does not realize this, however, until he leaves her there alone and she strikes up an acquaintance with Gloria Lowell, another hostess.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XXIII

Lillian's first impulse was to try to borrow some of Gloria's money. Gloria must have interpreted her wistful look.

"You may have some of this—if you need it," offered Gloria, taking up one of the five dollar bills and holding it toward Lillian.

Perhaps it was because Lillian wanted to take it so badly that she determined to show she did not want it.

"Oh, no, thank you. I couldn't take your money. Sweet of you and all that . . ."

"Surley welcome—"

"Thank you ever so much. But I can earn some of my own."

"That's the spirit," said Gloria.

"Yes—I will, surley."

Gloria stuffed the money back into her purse and Lillian tried not to watch too closely. Not to be too obviously interested.

"I'd insist that you take it anyway, but I fell so certain you're going to be a big success once you make up your mind to be. It's really good sport. You just see if it isn't fun."

Lillian tried to think of it as being fun—smiling at strange men, telling them they were good dancers when they trod on her tender little feet, smiling all the while . . . but thinking all the while, too, she would be paid for being pleasant . . . wondering if this man were going to be stingy . . . whether he would press a five dollar bill in her hand or a one dollar bill . . .

Maybe Gloria did think it fun, but for those few seconds there in the gilt and brocade little dressing room Lillian felt she were starting out to face stark tragedy!

"Want to go out with me?" Gloria asked.

Lillian dallied a little longer, ran her fingers through the curls at her ears again, ran a moistened finger across the rain-bow arch of her dark, silky brows.

"Here," said Gloria, "you need on more lipstick."

She offered Lillian her lip rouge. "I have on some," Lillian said. She thought her lips were quite colorful.

"Men like to see girls with lots of lip rouge. They tell their wives not to use it. But the girls they like to have entertain them, the ones they like to dance with . . . you'll notice they always have on lots."

Lillian put on some more of the fragrant salve. She thought of the day she made up her lips when Thomas Blane was coming . . . how she had thought it was the mark of a devil . . . a she-devil.

From that very day she departed from the quaintness of her New England—where girls of the best families did not use lipstick, no more than their grandmothers. And their grandmothers never had. And never would.

"I know I must go on out and get to work," Lillian said, making no motion to leave the dressing table mirror. "But it seems so strange—now that I understand about it—"

"I know it does. But you'll get used to it . . . soon enough. Sooner than you think."

Lillian wondered dismally.

Her heart beat hard. It seemed to say to her those words which a few days ago had sounded so gloriously brave and romantic . . . but which now sounded so cold, so ominous, almost fearful . . .

"Out on your own! Out on your own!"

Lillian was out on her own!

She had to make money. Had to earn it.

"Why you can't even leave this place until you make some money . . . you silly, frightened thing!" something whispered away inside of her and made her shiver.

"You can't run out of this place and get into a cab—because you haven't even a cent to pay the driver!"

Not one cent!

But she had pride. She couldn't even impress that dismal fact on this strange girl, Gloria.

She was frightened. Her face looked strange and drawn as she trusted her eyes back to the mirror again.

Unconsciously her hands fluttered to her cheeks. Her face burned and her hands were icy.

"Come on. Sherron will wonder what's happened to us," Gloria said to Lillian's back.

She could not hurry. She was glued to the floor.

"The place will be closed in about an hour. It's pretty late now . . . rather pretty early."

Yes, it was almost morning. Daylight. She had been up all night . . .

"I'm going to run along," brought Lillian following her.

As they strolled across the room in the direction of the many tables, surrounded by happy people Gloria ran her arm through Lillian's.

"Lillian—you'd better get that sad look out of your eyes."

"Have I a sad look?" Lillian tried to sound light.

"You have. And you mustn't."

"I'll try."

"Spread on a glad face. Try it again. There're tears trying to crowd through your eye lashes."

"No—"

"Don't turn away. I can see them. It's a good thing you don't use mascara or your face would be as streaked as a convict's jacket. All black and white stripes."

Lillian realized that Gloria was trying to help her get a hold on herself. Trying to make her feel better by appealing to her vanity . . . Lillian never needed to be vain any more than right at that minute.

Centennial Honors Planned For Texas Trek of Cabeza de Vaca

AUSTIN, April 11. (AP)—Plans are being formulated to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the trek of Cabeza de Vaca across Texas in connection with the Texas centennial in 1936.

The suggestion was advanced by Prof. Clifford B. Casey, professor of history at Sul Ross State Teachers college of Alpine, and the idea has been considered by the Southwestern Social Sciences association and the Texas Historical association. It will be discussed further at the annual meeting of the Texas Historical association in Austin on April 22.

Professor Casey said he believed it fitting that the fourth centennial celebration in honor of the hardy survivors of the ill-fated Narvaez expedition to be held jointly with the 100th birthday of Texas independence.

"These men spent the greater part of six years within the bounds of Texas, almost 200 years before the successful occupation of the region by Europeans," Professor Casey said. "To the present time they have received little honor and praise for that which they accomplished.

"In our general historical treatments they are mentioned and that is all. The Texas Historical association, however, through its publication, The Quarterly, has devoted a considerable amount of attention to the historical facts, but with little attempt to do more than to locate the possible routes taken by Cabeza de Vaca and the other survivors in their journeys to the settlements in Mexico.

"To locate the route with any degree of exactness is impossible because of many factors: the time element, the changing conditions of the Indians, lack of thorough scientific information relative to the regions traversed, the indefiniteness of the narrative as left by De Vaca, as retold by Oviedo in his General History of the Indies, and many other factors which we cannot mention here. We can, however, give honor where honor is due.

"With this in mind, I recommend that this body (history section of the Southwestern Social Science association) go on record as favoring a movement looking toward a well planned scheme for the celebration of the fourth centennial of the unprecedented accomplishment of Cabeza de Vaca and his three associates in their historic trek across the North American continent, through regions theretofore untouched by white men."

Of the vast number of questions answered by this department, only a few can be published in this column. The ones that are printed must be of general interest and not personal in their nature. Do not, therefore, merely sign your initials to your letter and ask that the answer be published. Give your full name and address so that you may receive a personal letter in reply. Q.—Where was the ancient city of Troy located?—J. J.

A.—There has been some dispute concerning the exact site of the ancient city of Troy. It is believed to be the mound of Hissarlik between the main Scamander valley and its last tributary from the east.

Q.—Are many of the movie stars foreign born?—J. J.

A.—A great many of them are. To name a few, there are: Charlie Chaplin, Maurice Chevalier, Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich, Norma Shearer, Ramon Novarro, George Arliss, Marie Dressler, Mary Pickford, Clive Brook, Dorothy Mackaill, Paul Lukas, Victor McLaglen, Fifi Dorsay, Dolores Del Rio, Lupe Velez, Elissa Landi, Maureen O'Sullivan, Pola Negri, Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Jill Esmond, Lawrence Olivier, Ivan Lebedeff, Reginald Denny, Rockliffee Fellows, Alec Francis, Jean Hersholt, Montague Love, Antonio Moreno, Greta Nissen, Warner Oland, Ernest Torrence and H. Q.—How many pieces of mail were sent from the one-day postoffice at Mount Vernon on Feb. 22?—A. C. R.

A.—The postoffice department says that there were slightly over 500,000 pieces of mail sent.

Q.—How did the slang phrase, passing the buck, originate?—M. H. M.

A.—It is derived from card games. The counter or other object is placed on the table before the dealer and passed by him to the next dealer to prevent mistakes as to the position of the deal. In poker, a marker is put into a jack pot, another jack pot being in order when the deal passes to him who wins the pot containing the buck.

Q.—What is the average number of plays run off by both teams during a quarter in a football game?—O. E. H.

A.—About 40, depending upon the style of play, condition of field, weather, etc.

Q.—What claim has the Weston family to the earldom of Portland?—K. J. C.

A.—The family of Weston held the earldom of Portland for only a short while. Sir Richard Weston was created earl of Portland in 1633, and died in 1635. The title remained in the family until 1688, when it was declared extinct. In 1689 William III revived the title in favor of William Bentinck and it has remained in that family ever since. In 1716 the earldom was merged with the greater titles of duke of Portland and marquis of Titchfield.

Q.—Who invented the bandbox?—F. J. W.

A.—It is not known. The bandbox dates back probably about 300 to 300 years. It takes its name from the fact that the box is made out of a wide circular band of paper or pasteboard with top and bottom added.

Q.—Are many Mexicans now returning to Mexico?—C. A. M.

A.—The Mexican government is at present faced with a very serious problem caused by the rapid repatriation of thousands of Mexicans from this country who have returned to Mexico after not finding work here. As many as 10,000 have returned in a single day, and in one month 100,000 returned from the state of California, alone.

Q.—What was the northeast passage to India?—N. M.

A.—This was a projected route to India from Europe around the northern extremity of Asia. The northwest passage, likewise, was a route that many mariners hoped to find after the discovery of America. Explorers sailed up the bays and rivers on the eastern coast hoping they would lead to a route to India.

Question—Who coined the phrase, Mutual Admiration society?—M. A.

A.—Oliver Wendell Holmes uses it in The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table.

FAIR TO SHOW NEW AND OLD

Chicago Exposition to Have Strange Contrasts

CHICAGO, April 11. (AP)—What will be new in the future, as well as that which was old in the past, will be part of 600 acres of exhibits at Chicago's "Century of Progress" next year.

Modern science's imitation of nature, shown among other things by a grove of steel trees, is only one phase of the displays depicting things that future progress may make commonplace. The 1933 world's fair will reach back into the prehistoric, to the days before the dinosaurs became extinct.

The exposition was planned primarily to show Chicago's growth, in a hundred years, from frontier Fort Dearborn into America's second city. Its scope has been widened, however, and along the shore of Lake Michigan will be focused the accomplishments of six continents.

Europe Interested

Officials report that European nations are showing an intense interest in the fair. One feature is to be "Old Europe," modeled after a medieval village housing the world of artisans of the middle ages. A "market place" in the village will be used for racial festivals.

The "nunnery quadrangle," a Yucatan temple of 1,500 years ago, is being restored to depict the story of mankind on the North American continent.

From Asia, contributions include the jeweled armor, valued at $500,000, of an ancient ruler.

Buildings on which $10,000,000 is being spent will house the exhibits. Part will be on an 80-acre artificial island in Lake Michigan.

Contrast of Exhibits

Opposite the main entrance at Twenty-third street will be a "tower of water and light" as high as a modern skyscraper.

In a hall of science, to be dedicated in June during the Republican national convention, the "pure sciences" will be on view.

The electrical building will be dedicated as part of the Democratic convention. It is to house commercial and scientific exhibits showing the development of power and its application.

For the first time a "suspended" roof is used on the transportation building.

For radio and television, celebrities will appear in special programs. Elsewhere, conceptions of future housing methods, contrasts of the old and new in social sciences and an elaborate aviation display are included.

The grounds extend southward from Grant park almost to Jackson park, where Chicago's 1893 fair was held.

Poultry Association Of Clay-Montague Meets

Special to The Record News.

SUNSET, Texas, April 11.—A meeting of the members of the Montague-Clay Poultry Producers Cooperative association was held in Bowie Saturday, April 9. Members from Sunset, Bellevue and a number of other places attended the meeting. E. C. Jameson, Montague county farm agent, presided and was the principal speaker. Several of the members of the association made short talks.

Another meeting will be held in Bowie Saturday, May 14, according to a statement by J. W. Davis, association secretary. The members have been requested to bring in any sick chickens or turkeys they may have at that time and have them examined by a specialist. Lessons on the prevention and treatment of poultry diseases will be given during the meeting.

Border Farm Agent Asked for Divorce Aid

SAN ANGELO, Texas, April 11. (AP)—Henry Alsmeyer, Cameron county agricultural agent, receives all sorts of odd requests but he was surprised when he got a letter from a former county agent in Greensboro, N. C., asking him for details about getting a quick, mail-order divorce in Matamoros, Mexico, 20 miles from San Benito.

The writer said he understood a divorce could be obtained there in a single day for $75 and asked for the name of a reliable attorney and other information.

The state of Tamaulipas, in which Matamors is located, has not followed any of her sister states in making divorce easy, Alsmeyer replied.

Four Persons to Be Tried For Kidnaping Woman

KANSAS CITY, April 11. (AP)—Trials of four persons charged with the kidnaping of Mrs. Nell Donnelly were set today for May 2.

The defendants are Mrs. Ethel Depew, wife of Martin Depew, named by police as the principal in the kidnaping plot; Paul Scheidt, Bonner Springs, Kan., dairyman; Charles Mele of Kansas City, and William Lacy Browning, Holliday, Kan., farmer.

Scheidt, alleged to have furnished the cottage in which the kidnapers held their victim more than 30 hours, was tried previously and the jury disagreed.

Activities Planned For Each Day Of 'Appreciation' Week At Vernon

VERNON, Texas, April 11.—Citizens of Vernon will unite during the week of April 17-23 in a formal expression of appreciation of the city's institutions and community assets. The occasion is to be "Appreciation Week," sponsored by the Junior council of the chamber of commerce.

During the week an aggressive campaign will call attention to the value of all institutions and assets of the city, including churches, citizenship, civic organizations, municipal and county government, schools, hospitals, industries, cultural and recreational advantages and the general business institutions. Special days have been designated to emphasize the excellence and fundamental value of various institutions.

They are: Sunday, church day; Monday, civic organizations day; Tuesday, school and hospital day; Wednesday, government, public service and citizenship day; Thursday, industrial day; Friday, culture and recreation day; Saturday, merchants day.

Purpose Cited

The purpose of the week, according to President R. E. Mason of the junior council, is to re-sell Vernon citizens on the value of their institutions and the advantages that this community offers. With the motto, "I Appreciate Vernon; Smile and Work," the week is to emphasize in addition to the appreciation idea, the qualities of cheerfulness and industry.

The week will start with a church rally day on Sunday, April 17. The general theme of this day is to be, "I am a citizen of no mean city." Pastors of all the churches have been asked to preach special sermons. An aggressive campaign will be waged to double the normal attendance at every church service during the day, extending upward from the smallest Sunday school class through the general services.

Monday, civic organizations day, is to be featured by a joint luncheon of all civic organizations, including Rotary, Lions, Optimist and Business and Professional Women's clubs, the Junior council, and the chamber of commerce. The place of the civic organization in the community will be emphasized by a speaker at that luncheon.

School Visits

The parent-teacher associations of the city are cooperating in an aggressive effort to make Tuesday, "School and Hospital," a day for visiting these institutions. An effort will be made to acquaint the citizenship with the excellence of the work being done in the schools.

A political carnival will be the feature of Wednesday, government, public service and citizenship day. All public officials and candidates for public office will be introduced after District Judge W. N. Stokes in an address outlines the responsibility of the public official and the citizen toward the government. The program will be held at the municipal auditorium. This day also will include an open-house and visiting day for all public offices, including city and county administrations, police and fire department.

Thursday, industrial day, is to mark the opening of the three-day manufacturers' and jobbers' show here. The feature of the appreciation week program for that day will be a parade which will end at the manufacturing exhibit building.

Queen to Be Crowned

Friday, culture and recreation day, will see much of the city enjoying the golf courses. The country club and public courses will be thrown open to the public without charge that day, and the attention of the entire citizenship will be called to the recreational advantages the city has in the way of public parks. Friday evening the artistic talent of the city will be presented in a free entertainment.

Saturday will be devoted to the interests of the merchants, and the week will be closed Saturday evening with a carnival of fun, featuring the crowning of a queen. The business and professional women are cooperating in this part of the program and will have charge of the crowning of the queen.

Negroes Plead Guilty To Liquor Conspiracy

TULSA, Okla., April 11. (AP)—Seven negroes accused jointly with Thomas I. Munroe, Tulsa police commissioner, pleaded guilty to federal charges of liquor conspiracy this morning just prior to the opening of Munroe's trial.

The seven were Britt Simms, Bennie Lee Foreman, Felix J. McDonald, Emilie E. Picou, Frank L. Brown, Bell Wilson and Ruel Washington. They were arrested during a wholesale raid by two score federal officers last December.

Munroe and R. G. Kennedy, former detective lieutenant under Munroe, who died last week of pneumonia, were indicted on 29 counts of conspiracy with the negroes.

State Highway Patrol Collects Big Fees

SAN ANGELO, April 11. (AP)—Highway patrol officers working out of San Angelo in one recent week were responsible for more than $1,000 in motor vehicle fees for the state and county.

Five trucks operated on road building work in Upton county, each bearing a Colorado license, were forced to secure Texas licenses, bringing in $420. Raymond Halifield, operating six trucks on road work at Sterling City, paid $580.26 in license fees. The trucks were hauling more than they had been registered for.

Approximately $30,000 was brought into the treasury here through efforts of the patrol in getting the weight registration raised.

BOND ELECTION

PERRYTON, Texas, April 11. (AP)—Ochiltree county commissioners have refused the petition of citizens of the southwest precinct to create a special road district and call a bond election for $160,000.

On April 16 the county as a whole will vote again on a $400,000 county-wide issue. Two former bond issues were declared illegal by the attorney general's office.

COLLEGE PLANS STRANGE TEST

College Hopes to Develop Super-Intellects

CHICAGO, April 11. (US)—Details of the plan announced some time ago by President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university to admit a special group of precocious students and give them higher than average studies to develop them into super-intelligent beings, were disclosed here today.

By grouping 10 boys and 10 girls together, and raising the standards of their studies, the scheme is expected to produce profound results and greatly advance educational methods.

"No attempt will be made to pamper these students, all of whom (to be admitted to the Evanston campus next fall) will be between 13 and 15 years of age, and will have graduated from high schools this June," said Dr. Scott.

These students will be closely studied as they themselves pursue their studies, for the university authorities expect to garner valuable data on their reactions to the special training which will be given to them.

Allowed Freedom

The students will be allowed to participate in normal college activities. "They can go to parties, engage in social activities and do anything they like—together or with others, but chiefly together," Dr. Scott added.

"I believe we can develop precocious students and find a niche for them. This plan is not temporary. We intend to admit a similar group every year. We have experts in child psychology who will watch their progress and present to the scientific world the results of this adventure in humanity.

"The boy or girl who emerges as No. 1 from this group will really be something to marvel at. It may be interesting to know that Harold M. Finley of Ohio, who entered Northwestern university three years ago as a precocious student of 13, will join this new group as a sort of 'guardian angel' and will live with them."

'One Piece Suits' Ordered For Beaumont Police

BEAUMONT, Texas, April 11. (AP)—Add economies. The 1932 uniform for the Beaumont policemen will be a one-piece affair, to wit, a pair of pants.

City commission considered asking city cops to wear their old uniforms for another six months but when Chief Carl Kennedy pleaded that the trousers of the men in his department were growing very thin, commission relented. It was decided to purchase only a new pair of trousers for each man, the coat and cap of the old suit to see further duty in rounding out the summer uniform.

SIGNS OF OLD RACE FOUND

Archeologists to Conduct European Expedition

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

NEW YORK, April 11.—Beautiful painted pottery was used about 5,000 years ago by some ancient peoples on the Danube, southeastern Europe.

Who were these artists? Were they a tide of civilizing pioneers marching slowly from Western Asia towards Central and Northern Europe?

These absorbingly interesting questions may be answered through the excavations which will be soon made in Yugoslavia, along the Danube, by a Harvard university archeological expedition, scheduled to leave this country on April 20.

Last summer a joint archeological expedition to Central Europe from the Peabody museum of Harvard and the University museum of Philadelphia dug up some wonderful relics of a new stone age civilization, going back to about 3,000 B. C. The leaders of this last expedition, Dr. V. J. Fewkes and R. W. Ehrich will be in charge of the new expeditionary party that sets sail from here this month.

Found by Accident

Most of the excavation and research will be done near Starcevo, along the ancient bank of the river Danube, which at present runs about three miles more to the south. In this place, recently somebody was making bricks. By accident this brickmaker found some deposits, evidence of a culture long since buried and forgotten.

Research showed at Starcevo relics of stone, bronze and iron ages. Perhaps, here were those early routes by which the Aryan folks traveled from their prehistoric cradle towards Europe, establishing on the way new settlements and cultures in the areas now covered by Anatolia, Greece and the Aegion lands.

Some of the pottery of these remote Danubian people appears as vivid and significant as the corresponding work of Maya and Egyptia peoples of thousands of years ago.

Heath and Diet Advice

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"
By DR. FRANK McCOY

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

(Copyright, 1932, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Dieting for Arteriosclerosis

For many years doctors have kept patients with arterial hardening on a diet which was rigidly low in meat, but this practice is being discounted by most up-to-date medical authorities. As I explained in yesterday's article, a hardening of the arteries with deposits of calcium is not due to eating an excess of the foods containing calcium, but the calcium is deposited because of the irritation produced by certain toxins in the blood stream. These toxins are usually caused by a fermentation in the stomach and intestines of excessive carbohydrates which leads to an auto-intoxication and acidosis. The blood, full of this acidosis, passing through the arteries, irritates the delicate lining and consequently the arteries throw out a protection in the form of an alkali to counteract the irritating acidosis. This fermentation continued from day to day sets up a vicious cycle and the walls of the arteries finally become calcified and thickened so that they interfere with the normal flow of blood.

The first step in dieting for hardening of the arteries is to reduce the fermentation in the intestines to the minimum and for this I have found nothing better than an acid fruit fast for about five days, using an eight-ounce glass of orange juice or tomato juice every two hours during the day. During the fast I advise two sponge baths daily and one or two enemas, using plain warm water. The fast will make the patient feel better in every way as the circulating toxins are eliminated, and it is beneficial in lowering the blood pressure which is frequently too high where there is arterial hardening.

After the fast the patient must avoid the foods which might ferment in the intestinal tract, and for this reason I advise the discontinuance of all high carbohydrate foods for a time. The diet should consist of a moderate amount of protein such as meat and eggs together with a large quantity of non-starchy vegetables both cooked and raw. The diet will prevent the formation of the toxins which originally caused arterial hardening, and, if continued over a long enough time, will cause a gradual absorption of the calcium deposits of the arteries.

From three to five quarts of distilled water daily may be used to advantage in the diet following the fast. This distilled water has the power of absorbing a large quantity of inorganic mixed matter and also toxins, causing their elimination through the kidneys and skin.

In ordinary cases where the heart and kidneys are not affected and gangrene is not present, the patient will find it an advantage to begin to improve the circulation by exercise. All exercise should be taken slowly and carefully depending on the amount of calcification present. This should be carefully checked by the X-ray and, if deposits show in the X-ray, exercise should be avoided and the principal dependence placed upon the diet. The exercise may be used to bring about a more rapid recovery when the calcification is not too pronounced. Walking is one of the finest exercises to use for this trouble. The patient must be satisfied with a gradual recovery and be willing to take the exercises slowly and persistently. Such a course of graduated activity along with a maintained correct diet tends to reduce any excess weight, encourages a better supply of oxygen to the lungs, and also serves to divert a sufficient quantity of blood to the muscles and skin. As is well known, exercise helps the patient to metabolize his food better and the toxemia due to imperfectly metabolized food is thus reduced.

It is useless to expect a cure of this trouble from drugs as no drug has ever been found which will accomplish this. Patients who will follow these instructions will find themselves continuing to improve over a period of many years.

QUESTION SAND ANSWERS

Uric Acid

Question—Mrs. Wadena T. writes: "I am not supposed to eat beef because of the uric acid. Could I eat the soup made from the beef?"

Answer—Almost any protein food contains forms of uric acid, and you would probably get more of it from the soup made of the beef than from the beef itself. The trouble is not because the uric acid is formed by the food, but from the inability to eliminate it from the body because of a general condition of acidosis or some organic disease. This can sometimes be cured by the correct fasting and dieting regimen. If you will send me more information, especially the name of your disorder, with a large self-addressed stamped envelope, I will be glad to give you more detailed advice.

Strained Muscles

Question—Miss Stella asks: "Can a muscle which has been strained or become over-tired ever be restored to its normal condition? One day about a month ago I did a very heavy day's housework and since then the muscles of my forearms have had no endurance—just seem tired all the time. I am a pianist, 42 years old, and this condition is a great handicap."

Answer—The effects of the strained muscles will gradually be overcome within the course of time even winthout treatment. Massaging is sometimes helpful. You may, however, have developed a disease of the nervous system which could only be determined by a doctor's examination.

By FRED THOMPSON

Our Spudders

Under the above heading The Foard County News, published at Crowell, had this to say in its issue of April 8:

"In spite of the fact that there is the keenest kind of rivalry among many towns of this section in various forms of sports, there is at least one athletic organization that enjoys the backing and good wishes of practically all of the lovers of sports of this section of Texas and Oklahoma. That organization is the Wichita Falls Spudders, one of the eight baseball teams composing the Texas league.

"The people of Wichita Falls are by no means the only ones who refer to this team as 'Our Spudders,' for that term may be heard in most any town in Northwest Texas and southwest Oklahoma. We believe that the baseball fans of this section have a deeper appreciation for the Spudders now than ever before, for too often we never fully appreciate a good thing until it is gone or nearly gone and it was the situation that developed last season, in which the Spudder franchise came near being removed from Wichita Falls, that has caused the people in this territory to feel a deeper appreciation for a club that is an asset to the whole district.

"Next Friday, April 15, marks the opening of the baseball season at Wichita Falls. Shreveport will tangle with the Spudders at that time and this game will bring together two players in managerial roles who are among the most colorful in big league baseball history. They are George Sisler of the Sports and Hank Severoid of the Spudders, both of whom are former members of the St. Louis American league club.

"Crowell is planning to have a good representation at this game and we hope that whenever possible local people will support the Spudders. Wichita Falls has been put on trial for this season by the St. Louis Browns, owners of the Spudder franchise, and if support of the club falls short, the franchise will be removed to another city and instead of being 82 miles from about the best baseball played outside the major leagues Crowell will be 300 miles from the home of the nearest Texas league club.

"Some of the brightest stars in the big leagues at present were playing in the Texas league during the past few seasons and many local fans have witnessed their performance at Spudder park. The Texas league is one of the leading contributors of players to the big leagues and in all probability many of those whom local fans will see play at Wichita this season will be receiving the applause of the nation while pacing the major league diamonds in the future. Just last fall two former Texas leaguers, Wild Bill Hallahan and Pepper Martin, were the heroes in bringing the world championship to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Just a few years ago the Spudders became the champions of the entire South by winning the Dixie series and that accomplishment seemed to step up the importance of this whole section. So far this season the Spudders have given every indication that they are going to have a winning ball club and we are backing Hank Severeid and his men to keep the Spudders in the upper division and we feel that the people of Wichita Falls and the fans of this section are going to do the necessary thing in keeping the Spudder franchise anchored in Wichita Falls."

Very little could be added to that editorial. It states the problem clearly, and it offers what the Foard county editor conceives as the problem's solution. The solution being, back the club by attending the games.

The Foard county editorial reflects the loyalty of people in that section to the Spudders. We believe, also, that this editorial expresses the loyalty of all this trade territory.

Somehow we look forward to a great attendance opening day. And we expect better patronage through the season than last year. The Crowell editor's act in pleading for the support of "Our Spudders" reveals that the seriousness of the problem has penetrated this section thoroughly. And we of this section have a knack of doing something about it, once a problem has been clearly stated.

Reno and Moran Renew Mat Feud Here Friday

Promotor Whitey Grovo has arranged a promising card for his weekly grunt and groan show at Grovo arena Friday night, with three Wichita Falls favorites back on the card. Joe Reno and Sailor Moran, who wrestled two hours to a draw here a couple of weeks ago are billed on the main event with Juan Humberto and George Sauer on the semifinal. Of these four men, only one of them will be a stranger to the local fans. This is Sauer.

Dyed-in-the wool wrestling fans have proclaimed the two-hour draw between Reno and Moran as the greatest match of the season and the return of this pair has been very much in demand.

Joe Reno has been on the card here twice, holding both Tistu Higami and Sailor Moran to draws. In both cases he displayed a dazzling assortment of tricks, Moran first wrestled here with Jack Fields.

Sauer is one of the leading contenders for the light heavyweight crown held by Hugh Nichols, and is well known throughout the wrestling world and will be more than a double tough opponent for the Mexico City master.

LEAGUE TO OPERATE

MONROE, La., April 11. (AP)—The Cotton States league today was definitely organized as a six-club circuit with the opening date of May 3 confirmed by the board of directors.

Teams composing the circuit are Vicksburg, Miss., Port Arthur, Texas, Baton Rouge and Monroe, La., and El Dorado and Pine Bluff, Ark.

CONLAN MAY TOSS OPENER

Team Primed for Start As Training Season Ends

Given a rousing send-off last night at a rally at Memorial auditorium, a confident band of 16 Spudders, including Manager Hank Severeid, will entrain at Union station at 1:10 this afternoon for Shreveport, where Wednesday afternoon they will clash with the Sports in the first game of another baseball season.

The full squad of 20 men finished the spring training grind yesterday with a light batting practice. When the last ball had been given a good knock, and had plopped into the glove of speeding gardener the Spudders said goodbye to one of the most successful training periods ever held at Athletic park. With but few exceptions, weather conditions have been ideal, and as the umpire clears his throat and gets ready to say "Play ball!" the Spudders, man for man, can answer "ready," for each is in fine physical shape and not only ready but anxious for the opening combat.

Conlan May Start

Manager Severeid announced Monday he would take only six pitchers to the Louisiana metropolis for the two-game series, and on his list the names of Tom Conlan, Marvin Ferrell, Lester White, Tot Pressnell, Richard Fiorrid and Fred Vincent appeared. The skipper did not announce definitely his choice for a starter in the opener, but rumor persisted that red-headed Tom Conlan, the Springfield sensation last year who has been no less a sensation in this year's Spudder camp, will be the first pitcher on the Spudder staff to be on the receiving end of Hank Severeid's managerial nod.

Other players whose passage was booked to Shreveport include the skipper himself, his prospective understudy, Furman Owens; Infielder Harlan Clift; Walter Euller, third baseman; Ollie Bejma, second baseman; Robert Fuss, right fielder; Morris Badgro, left fielder; Debs Garms, center fielder; Harry Green, first baseman; and Art Scharein, shortstop.

Opener Here Friday

The Spudders engage the Sports at Shreveport both Wednesday and Thursday, returning here for the first home game of the season Friday afternoon.

While the Shreveport opener naturally is receiving its full share of attention from fans, the first home game probably is uppermost in the minds of Northwest Texans and Southern Oklahomans. It is one thing to have the Spudders playing in another town, but it is another and more vital thing to have the game unreeled before your eyes at Athletic park. And then, civic and baseball forces in Wichita Falls and practically every city, village and hamlet in this trade territory have concentrated on turning out a record crowd for the Friday game here. The direct objective is the winning of the cash prize of $250 offered annually by the Texas league to the class B city having the largest opening day attendance; but the indirect object is to start the Spudders off with a grand boost on their first appearance on the home lot, and keep boosting them throughout the season in order that this town and section may dispel for once and all the current worries about losing its Texas league franchise due to poor attendance.

Straw Hat Day

Merchants of Wichita Falls banded together Monday and agreed that Friday would be "Straw hat day" here. Thus an old tradition was kept intact. It has become an annual tradition for "Straw hat day" and Spudder opening day here to coincide, in order that the gents might parade their new "katies" before the crowd at the initial baseball contest.

Meanwhile, Secretary Guy Airey and his office force supervised the placing on sale of reserved and box seat tickets Monday morning. General admission tickets have been on sale all week, but the scramble for choice locations started Monday morning when the cardboards were placed on sale at Renfro's Drug store No. 1.

The nine rookies whose contracts were assigned to Fort Smith club on option last week, left for the Arkansas City Monday afternoon, with Ray Cahill, St. Louis Browns' scout, accompanying them. It was expected some of the group later will be shipped to Rock Island, Ill., of the Mississippi Valley league.

Malones Held To Tie by Dixons

Phillip Powell, little fireball artist of Dixon Sign company, gave the 1932 baseball lid a rousing blow Monday afternoon on Debus field by pitching one-hit ball for six innings against the crack Malone Beauty shop, but this went for nothing as Harry Geyer and Everett Blue were hurling two-hit ball for Malone and the game ended in a six-inning 0 to 0 tie. Pete Dixon, first baseman de luxe of the sign painters collected both the Dixon hits while Marion Barrett got the lone bingle off Powell. Powell whiffed 11 men in the six innings while Geyer and Blue were getting three each.

Prexy Gardner Predicts Hot Race Among Texas League Clubs This Year

By J. ALVIN GARDNER
President Texas Baseball League
(Written for The Associated Press)

DALLAS, April 11.—At the start of a new baseball season most league presidents issue their usual stereotyped story about the clubs being evenly matched and such a close race in prospect, and then lo and behold, before many weeks of the race have slipped away the president's little story is exploded.

This year it is my sincere opinion that the eight clubs in the Texas league are more evenly balanced than for several seasons passed.

Texas league club owners spent last winter adding strength to their clubs. Since the major leagues passed a rule cutting down the number of players, it leaves players of proven ability available for the minors. Naturally the Texas league has got its share.

Players Improve

There will be several non-class second-year players with us this year. They retain their rating but have the added advantage of a full year's performance in the league. For example, young players like Garms and Fuss at Wichita Falls; Moore and Mueller at San Antonio; Medwick and Carey at Houston; Outfielders Bell and Rizzo and Infielders Allday and McGhee at Galveston; Pitchers Luke Hamlin and Buck Morrow at Beaumont together with other outstanding youngsters on other clubs are sure to play improved baseball this season.

In South Texas, Houston appears almost as powerful as last year because of good pitchers. Galveston has a greatly improved club. San Antonio has bolstered with help from Kansas City. I look for Claude Robertson, that fine developer of young pitchers, to have the San Antonio club fighting all the way.

Beaumont is fortunate to have Del Baker back as manager. He is a scrapper and carried his club to a tie with Houston in the first half last year after a great race. Beaumont has strengthened by securing players from the Three-Eye and Piedmont leagues.

About the Spudders

In North Texas, Fort Worth has a fast, aggressive team piloted by Dick McCabe, a new manager. McCabe is considered one of the smartest of Texas league pitchers. He promises to be a success as a manager.

Wichita Falls boasts a fine team headed by Henry Severeid, former major league catching star. Henry probably will catch over a hundred games for the Spudders this season. The Spudders have added strength by recruiting players from the St. Louis Browns and Milwaukee.

At Dallas, Bob Tarleton and Sol Dreyfuss have assembled a powerful club for Manager Happ Morse. The Steers resemble the greatest array of hitters since the slugging Wichita Falls Spudders of 1922, a team that won 26 consecutive games with practically no pitching.

Shreveport has changed ownership with Capt. B. A. Hardey and J. Walter Morris in charge. Their first move was to employ George Sisler as manager and first baseman.

I believe the second division teams of last season will leave the starting post Wednesday prepared in every way to give a better account of themselves, and that means a free-for-all race.

Suspension of Nurmi Will Be Protested

HELSINGFORS, Finland, April 11. (AP)—President Kekkonen of Finland's Athletic league, announced today that organization would protest formally to the International Amateur Athletic federation against the suspension of Paavo Nurmi, great Finnish distance runner.

The charges against Nurmi, he said, are false and disqualification of the famous Finn would be unwarranted.

It is understood the league will take no further action in the Nurmi case, leaving it up to the international federation to make the next move.

Nurmi was suspended by the I. A. A. F. last week pending an investigation by Finnish authorities into charges of professionalism made against him. It was said at that time the evidence against the great runner was so strong the suspension was "inevitable."

Callie Powell Is Named Winner Of Slogan Contest

"Pack 'em in, stack 'em in, we're out to win."

In the opinion of five distinguished women judges, that was the best slogan of some 300 submitted in the Spudder opening day attendance slogan contest.

It was written by Callie Powell, of 1500 Burnett street, this city, who submitted it Sunday, the last day of the contest.

The judges made their decision last night at a banquet at the Wichita club. The slogan submitted by Mrs. W. D. Scott, 1512 Fifteenth street, ran a close second. Mrs. Scott's slogan was "Shut up shops, shut up courts, see the Spudders beat the Sports."

The judges were Mrs. W. Newton Maer, Mrs. Harry ten Brink, Miss Mary Virginia Barron, Mrs. William E. Huff, and Miss Marguerite Fisher.

The slogan will be Spudderland's battle-cry in the drive to "pack 'em in" at the first home game next Friday, in order that Wichita Falls might win the $250 cash award made annually by the Texas league to the class B city turning out the largest opening day attendance.

The contest winner will be awarded a box of six seats for the opening game here, through the courtesy of the Spudder club.

Noble-Little Wins Over Four Way, 5-2

Willard Hillin, the Decatur demon, bested big Hubert Scott in a torrid pitchers' battle Monday afternoon on Harrison field and Noble-Little Hardware opened the 1932 Commercial league pennant race with a 5 to 2 win over Four Way Service station. Hillin whiffed nine of the gasoline sellers while his control was perfect and he never issued a single base on balls. Hubert Scott settled down after a streak of wildness in the first inning had cost him a run, and hurled great ball until a three-run rally came in the fifth inning under the cover of darkness.

Cecil Scott, rangy left fielder of the Filling station nine, drove in both of the Four Way runs with bingles to lead the hitters of the day with two of Four Way's five hits to his credit. The sensational base stealing of Shorty Hicks, well known Noble-Little star, was a cofeature of the game with Scott's hitting. Hicks stole four bases. In the fifth inning he stole second, third and home after beating out a bunt to get on.

HOOVER SEES PITCHING DUEL

Walk Followed by Manush's Double Wins Game

By FREDERICK G. VOSBURGH
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Baseball put on one of its finest shows—an extra-inning pitcher's battle—to usher in the 1932 major league season today before the nation's chief executive and first lady.

For the first time in the four years Herbert Hoover as president has been tossing out a new white ball for the inaugural game, the Washington team won its opening start, overcoming the Boston Red Sox 1-0, in the 10th on a walk followed by a rousing double from the big bat of Heinie Manush.

Through inning after inning the rival right-handers—Danny MacFayden for Boston and Alvin Crowder for the Senators—battled on even terms.

An exciting moment came in the fifth, when Pickering, the Boston third sacker, doubled and Van Camp, first baseman, sacrificed. Fast fielding of Oliver's grounder by Bluege and a quick throw cut off Pickering at the plate. It was the nearest Boston came to a score.

The Red Sox combined two singles in the 10th but Crowder ended the rally by fanning MacFayden on three straight pitches.

MacFayden appeared to be weakening as the Senators came up and Myer drew a walk. Then Big Manush put his shoulder into a terrific two-base drive to right, Myer scampered around from first and crossed the plate with the run that put Walter Johnson's club off to a flying start.

Larry Cox Returned To Galveston Buccaneers

GALVESTON, April 11. (AP)—Del Pratt, manager of the Galveston Buccaneers, announced today that Larry Cox, outfielder who was loaned to Shreveport in the early spring, had been returned to Galveston and Leon Riley, who was expected to hold down left field, would be sent back to Pueblo of the Western league. Russell Keith, semi-professional catcher from Houston and James Ryan, right-hand pitcher, also were released.

Chick Hafey, Stubborn Cardinal Holdout, Traded to Cincinnati Reds

ST. LOUIS, April 11. (AP)—Charles (Chick) Hafey, 1931 batting champion of the National league and regular left fielder for the St. Louis Cardinals in their four championship years, was traded today to the Cincinnati Reds for Benny Frey, a right-handed pitcher and Harvey Hendrick, utility player.

In making the announcement, Vice President Branch Rickey of the Cardinals said "you may draw your own conclusion as to whether there are other considerations in the transaction." From this it was inferred the Cards received cash along with Frey and Hendrick.

Hafey, the Cards' most stubborn holdout this season, said at his Berkeley, Calif., home he was "satisfied" with the deal and would leave tomorrow for Cincinnati. With Hafey's transfer, Manager Dan Howley of the Reds will be able to use an outfield made up entirely of former Cardinals. The other former Red Birds are Taylor Douthit and Walter Roettger.

The Cards have filled Hafey's place with Jimmy "Pepper" Collins, who has shown up well in exhibition games. For a substitute, however, Raymond Pepper, star outfielder of the Rochester club of the International league, was obtained by the Cards Saturday.

"WE'LL WIN OUR SHARE OF GAMES," SEVEREID TELLS FANS

2,500 ATTEND RALLY HERE

Athletic Show Sends Team Off to Flag Chase

"We will win our share of the 1932 baseball games," Manager Hank Severeid told more than 2,500 Wichitans and visitors of the adjacent territory Monday night at the Memorial auditorium in sounding a keynote for the Spudder sendoff. A free show of several acts was presented by Dr. O. T. Kimbrough which was climaxed with a 30-minute wrestling bout between Whitey Grovo and Tommy Burns, ending in a draw. The Spudders leave Tuesday to open the 1932 season at Shreveport on Wednesday.

Praise for Support

"Wichita Falls is the one town known to me where all service clubs and civic organizations have cooperated in boosting the ball team and we aim to retain the confidence shown us," Manager Severeid continued. Severeid was introduced by District Attorney Sam B. Spence and Severeid in turn presented the Spudder roster from the auditorium stage.

Referring to published remarks of a Waco sports writer, Mr. Spence recalled that in 1920 Wichita Falls took the Waco, Texas, league franchise when that town failed to support a club, and declared "it will be many a long day before Waco or any other city takes the local franchise with the support shown the Spudders by advance ticket sales of more than $3,000 and with the interest shown by the attendance for this send-off."

Concert Opens Show

The show opened with a 30-minute concert by the Wichita Falls High school band directed by Tom McCarty. Dr. Kimbrough as master of ceremonies presented Dr. Everett Jones, general chairman of the "Support the Spudders" movement.

Dr. Jones introduced K. C. Spell, P. S. Richardson and H. J. Hughey Jr., leaders in the advance ticket sale drive, and presented them ticket awards valued at $25, $15 and $10, respectively. Ralph K. Pond was chairman of the sale arrangements.

Charles Doran took the audience's favor with two fast stepping tap numbers with Hal Hoffer at the piano and Grace Stroud followed with two vocal selections in a "blue" spotlight, accompanied by Mr. Hoffer.

The Kay Bible class quartet offered a selection to close the front-curtain numbers and the entertainment closed with the wrestling bout with Bill Ward as referee and the Spudders as ring-side guests.

VACANT HOUSE BURNS

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a frame house at 215 Mill street at 8:30 o'clock Monday night. The house was vacant and was owned by Morris Transfer and Storage company, Assistant Fire Chief Grover Habern said.

SUIT INVOLVES OLD SURVEY

Engineer Came to Texas Expecting Death

SONORA, Texas, April 11. (AP)—The figure of the scholarly giant, John McNicol, early day surveyor of Sutton county, was paraded through the evidence in the Halbert vs. Ward boundary case here recently.

McNicol, so the story was told of him, had been disappointed in love and came to West Texas, first to Kimble county, where he thought he might be killed, as it was then advertised as a pretty tough spot.

Then he moved to this county, in the 1880's, and made a number of surveys, including one that established a corner for the town section.

The corner, indicated by a pile of rocks and a fence, was the point from which one survey was begun of the area involved in the Halbert-Ward suit, decided in favor of the Wards.

One contention in the case was that the only proper way to survey the area was to go back to the Fort Terret corner, a few miles west of Fort Terret. Some surveys in the county have been involved on one occasion before in law suits as a result of the surveying problem.

McNicol always carried a walking cane and was an expert fencer. In the current suit, R. F. Halbert, and B. M. Halbert, brothers, testified on opposing sides. Several years ago the Allison-Fields case involved similar questions of survey.

Cincinnati has contracted for 20 police motorcycles to be equipped with radios and cameras.

DEATH CLAIMS JOSEPH LEITER

Noted Figure in Corner Of Wheat Market Dies

CHICAGO, April 11 (US)—Joseph Leiter, Chicago and Washington, D. C., capitalist and sportsman, died today at his home here after an illness of several months.

Death came suddenly at 3:30 p. m. after he had rallied and physicians had entertained some hope for his life.

Eugene R. Pike, a close friend of the family, announced that funeral services probably will be held Friday in St. John's cathedral, Washington. Burial will be Rock Creek cemetery in the capital.

Famous Suit

Mrs. Leiter is the former Juliette Williams of Washington to whom he was married in 1908. In addition to a son, Thomas Leiter, there is another child, Nancy. Surviving also is a sister, Lady Marguerite Hyde, Countess of Suffolk and Berke, and nieces and nephews, children of Mrs. Colin Campbell and Lady Curzon, late sister of Mr. Leiter.

These include the Baroness of Ravensdale, Lady Cynthia Moseley and Lady Alexandra Metcalf.

Leiter was the center of a long court fight when she was sued by his British relatives who sought to oust him as the trustee in his father's estate of many millions.

The fight attracted international attention because of the famous names involved in it. Supporting the brother was Mrs. Colin Campbell, the former Nancy Leiter and relict of the a distinguished British officer.

Curzon, British cabinet officer and one time viceroy of India, died before the completion of the suit. He had sided with Lady Hyde in behalf of his daughters—the ladies Irene and Alexandra Curzon, and the famous Lady Cynthia Moseley, Britain's multionaire socialist.

Lawyers fees and incidental expenses cost the estate $1,062,800.

Many Enterprises

The court battle itself was no novelty to Joe Leiter. Much of his life had been spent in suing and being sued. He was a fighter who usually battled in court, but was not averse to using his fists.

His nearly successful attempt to corner the wheat market in 1897 is historic.

His multiple business enterprises included street railways, mining, ranching, real estate and utilities. Reports had him engaged in scores of other enterprises. Among the most fantastic were his rumored plans to buy the great wall of China for posterity, and to erect a 1,000,000 egg incubator in the Leiter building.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, April 11. (AP)—An early decline in cotton today under liquidation and some local selling was followed by rallies on trade buying and covering, with May closing at 6.18. The general market closed steady at net advances of 8 to 4 points. The opening was steady, in response to Liverpool steadiness and moderate trade demand. The market steadied on a renewal of trade buying and covering which appeared to be influenced by the firmness of the wheat market and probably included some buying for western account. Octobers sold up to 6.43 or 7 to 16 points from the low level of the day and 5 points above Saturday's closing quotations. That delivery closed at 6.39 with active months generally closing within 2 or 3 points of the best of the day.

Southern selling was very little in evidence at any time during the day and according to private reports from Texas, the basis was firm with rather a better export inquiry.

Houses with Liverpool and continental connections were credited with selling cotton here during the early trading. There was also some selling supposed to be for Japanese account.

Liverpool cables attributed the advance in that market to covering, with local and foreign buying, but said the goods market in Manchester was unsettled, with producers losing ground.

Exports today 9,770 making 7,117,281 so far this season.

Futures closed steady, 2-4 higher; spot steady; middling, 6.35.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, April 11. (AP)—Cotton was quiet most of today's session and the close was steady with prices net unchanged to 3 points up for the day.

The market had a steady opening on favorable cables, Liverpool coming in 3 to 5 points over the previous close. Private cables stated that there was local and foreign buying as well as covering and realizing. Manchester cabled that the market there was unsettled with producers losing ground.

Prices soon turned downward owing to a weak opening of stocks and rather general selling including some hedging.

The market became firmer around the middle of the afternoon weakening with stocks and on shorts covering in an oversold market. July closed at 6.33 and October at 6.57 or 2 to 3 points net higher for the day.

Port receipts 9,335, for week 15,151, for season 9,239,990, last season 8,587,407. Exports 9,770, for week 30,134, for season 6,927,472, last season 5,668,052. ## Stock and Bond Prices Set New Lows As Wave of Liquidation Continues

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, April 11. (US)—Wheat advanced three cents more today, standing out with sympathetic strength in other grains as the only bright spots in another day of liquidation in the markets.

Stocks, bonds and the weekly commodity price index all descended to new low ground. There was only a temporary let-up in the wave of liquidation. A half-hearted rally failed to hold and closing prices were near the worst levels of the day. Saturday's rally was proven only a reflection of internal conditions.

As expected, the senatorial investigation into "bear-raiding" disclosed that genuine and unrelenting liquidation, rather than short-selling, has been mainly responsible for the weakness of the stock market.

The news of the day failed to bring encouragement except perhaps the hope that internal technical conditions may again develop to a stage inducing a price rally.

The senate quiz of the stock exchange produced nothing that strengthened the opinion of those who feel that "bears" are responsible in the main for the continued decline in prices. The bear influence on quotations has been lessening rather than increasing.

The major cause of the decline is the great fright of stock and bond holders who are, it seems, anxious to attain "complete liquidity." This is an impossible objective, if everyone is to seek the same end.

In the rush, good and bad securities are being overthrown indiscriminately. As this takes place in the manner recently witnessed, it has been encouraging, on a light scale as yet, some buying by interests who have been out of the market for a long while. Their buying, to be sure, is vrey cautious and almost entirely confirmed to scale-down orders.

Yet it is obvious that certain interests who have remained out of recent market difficulties are again showing renewed interest in securities. The major obstruction to their active return to the buying side is the absence of construction news out of Washington.

By the very action of the market, it is plain that large as well as small holders are liquidating. Selling of the kind taking place in American Telephone, Allied Chemical, American Can and New York Central can only be attributed to sizable holders.

This very quarter was pointed out here as being under liquidation by a large banking affiliate which apparently is contemplating complete retirement from business.

Throughout the market the pressure of liquidation swept away whatever purchasing orders might have been placed near previous prices. General Motors continued to be sold in blocks and finally closed down 1½ points net. Du Pont naturally suffered with it. Consolidated Gas broke under 50, where the yield on the $4 dividend would exceed 8 per cent, and even a $3 dividend would net more than 6 per cent.

Receivership was asked for one of the smaller Insull properties, while the major problem surrounding this group remained unsolved, with negotiations still under way. It may be that court action would precipitate the entire affair, and certainly the market is now well prepared for almost any eventualities in this entire group. Almost anything would be preferable, from the whole market view, than the uncertainty existing now.

It was observed that Electric Bond & Share, weakness in which had been one of the major contributing factors to recent general weakness, showed signs of at least temporary relief from pressure.

The very momentum of the decline may contain it itself the most promising possibilities. A sudden bit of good news might find the list in position to enjoy a brisk rally, somewhat of the sort equal or greater than Saturday's upturn on the startling wheat crop estimate. The action of wheat indicates how sharply a market might turn under the auspices of suddenly-developed good news.

The securities exchanges are mainly under pressure in fear that congress may continue its wild action. If the senate suddenly demonstrates a desire to proceed toward a logical tax program in place of the house of representatives proposals, the market might enjoy a substantial rally. Continuance of any improvement must, in the main, of course, depend upon a pick-up in business.

$410,707 Spent on Federal Building To April 1, Engineer's Report Shows

Total cost of construction of the new federal building in Wichita Falls as of March 31, was $410,707, according to a report released Monday by Federal Engineer M. E. Myers. The structure was 31.6 per cent complete on March 31, as compared with a normal completion percentage of 39.5, or 7.9 per cent behind schedule with form and mechanical work responsible.

The concrete work on the building is complete past the attic floor and brick work has been started in the basement. Most of the drainage system has been completed below grade, Mr. Myers said.

Delays now met in construction are lack of approval of the supervising architect of Leuders limestone facing. Those in charge of construction believe the building will be completed by Nov. 13, the date already established for completion.

Models for the building have been completed by Mrs. H. E. Girdlestone of Wichita Falls, who is finishing a contract taken by the late Mr. Girdlestone. No delays in the structure because of failure to approve samples have been met. James Wetmore is acting supervising architect while Voelcker & Dixon are local architects.

Parker Trial Postponed In 30th Court

Two defendants in felony cases were given suspended sentences Monday after entering pleas of guilty before Judge Allan D. Montgomery in the 30th district court, and a third was acquitted on an instructed verdict returned upon the recommendation of state's attorneys.

Regger Cole and Charles Edward, charged by separate indictments last week with burglary, each received a five-years' suspended sentence. Cole was accused of burglarizing a garage and Edward a drug store on Park street.

Eva Postell, negress, charged with burglary in connection with the theft of a ham and shoulder of pork from the back porch at the home of Mrs. Maude Carrigan, 1104 Nineteenth street, last month was acquitted.

The trial of James E. Parker, oil operator and refinery owner, charged with assault to murder on his wife in January, was passed by agreement of attorneys for both state and defense. No date for its hearing was set. Mrs. Parker was shot twice before her home in this city after being called from the house late at night. Parker shortly thereafter surrendered to city police.

Alex Doran, returned from Corpus Christi last Saturday by Sheriff Perry Browning to face trial for theft over $50, was charged in a new complaint filed Monday with burglary of a private residence. He is accused of having burglarized the home of Dr. Frank H. Harrison on March 19.
