Agents arrest 7, charge them with bombing plot

■ Officials say militia members targeted FBI's national fingerprint record center, two other federal buildings.

Associated Press

CLARKSBURG, W.Va. — Seven people connected with a right-wing militia were arrested Friday on charges of plotting to blow up the FBI's national fingerprint record center and two other federal buildings in West Virginia.

Agents began making the arrests after Floyd Raymond Looker, the leader of the Mountaineer Militia, gave blueprints of the FBI complex to an undercover agent in exchange for $50,000, the FBI said. The agent was posing as a middleman for a fictitious international terrorist group.

The blueprints of the new $200 million FBI complex in Clarksburg were obtained by a Clarksburg firefighter who belonged to the militia, the FBI said. The fire department keeps the blueprints in case of a fire.

"There was a plot. It was ended before it could be consummated," said John P. O'Connor, agent in charge of the FBI's Pittsburgh-based division. "There were never any explosive devices constructed. There was no immediate threat to our facility."

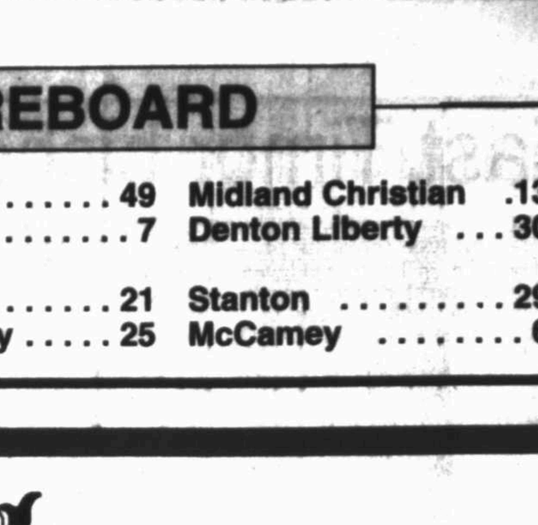

O'Connor said the militia also targeted two other federal facilities in the state. He wouldn't identify the places.

Law officers confiscated plastic explosives and detonators Friday at five places in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

The arrests came after a 16-month investigation.

The fingerprint complex is known as the FBI Criminal Justice Information Services Division. Opened last year, it contains fingerprint records that the FBI has collected from police departments nation-

Winner dies

NEW YORK — William Vickrey waited 45 years for his economic theories to be recognized with a Nobel Prize. He enjoyed it for only three days before dying Friday, collapsing in his car on the way to an academic conference. The 82-year-old retired Columbia University professor had been relishing his sudden honor as a Nobel winner since Tuesday, enjoying a champagne party with colleagues and giving interview after interview with the media. Page 5A

Dole strategy

WASHINGTON — On the eve of a strategy summit, Bob Dole's campaign was embroiled Friday in debates over whether to be more aggressive in challenging President Clinton's ethics and whether to gamble millions on a late push in California. One adviser, former Education Secretary William Bennett, told reporters that the Dole campaign next week would release a lengthy report on Clinton administration ethical lapses. Page 11A

Area synagogue celebrates its 50th anniversary

Ben Glast, above, was the first president of the Temple Beth El congregation in 1946 and a founding member of the committee that built the first synagogue in the Permian Basin. The congregation moved from the original premises to the current temple, which was built in 1961. At right, Temple Beth El's Torah scrolls rest in the Ark of the Covenant at the front of the synagogue.

This weekend marks a special anniversary for the Jewish community in the Permian Basin as Temple Beth El, the only synagogue in the Midland-Odessa area, celebrates 50 years.

"West Texas is overwhelmingly Christian, and Jews are such a small minority that having a temple here made me feel much more at ease," said David Rosen, who has been a member of Temple Beth El for about 20 years.

The temple began at the end of World War II.

"There was a Jewish servicemen's club at the Air Force base (Midland Army Air Field), and, at the end of the war, the families decided that they were going to expand and form a tem-

AUSTIN (AP) — The Christian Coalition apologized Friday for what it called a mistake in using a picture of a black man to represent a candidate opposed to positions it supports in a sample of its voter guide.

The sample was distributed to a number of churches in Texas, and possibly other states, in an effort to get the religious organizations to order the voter guides.

Criticized as racist by some religious leaders and the Texas National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the sample guide shows a white man and black man as fictitious candidates running for an unnamed Congressional seat.

'This is yet another clear example of race-baiting for a political end.'

— Gary Bledsoe, president of the Texas State Conference of NAACP Branches

The white man is listed as supporting such things as a balanced budget amendment, federal tax relief and parental choice in education.

The black man is listed as opposing those things and supporting measures like abortion on demand, taxpayer-funded abortion and allowing homosexuals to adopt children.

"This is yet another clear example of race-baiting for a political end," said Gary Bledsoe, president of the Texas State Conference of NAACP Branches. "We are shocked at these sample ballots which imply that African Americans are not Christian."

The guides explain positions taken by candidates for president, Congress and some statewide races. They are widely distributed through churches and religious organizations across the country.

Mike Russell, a spokesman for the Virginia-based coalition, said he was unsure how many Texas churches received the sample or in which other states it may have been distributed.

Complaints have come only from Texas, he said.

Surveying the damage

Steven Williams of Andrews searches through his possessions after a one-vehicle accident on State Highway 158 about five miles west of Midland. Williams fell asleep at the wheel, ran off the road, overcorrected and rolled his small pickup at least four times before coming to a rest, according to investigating officers. Williams and the two passengers sustained only minor injuries.

Innocent man spends nine months in jail because of DNA test backlog

HOUSTON (AP) — A carpet layer spent nine months in the Harris County Jail on a rape charge because of a backlog in getting DNA test results, authorities say.

The DNA test proved that 38-year-old Lynn Jones was not the rapist and on Thursday he walked out of jail, a free man.

"I still think about that girl," Jones said. "It took nine months of my life. How can I fill in that space?"

He was sleeping in his apartment Jan. 27 when police broke down his door and arrested him for sexual assault. They told him that a teen-age girl who lives in the same apartment complex had said he raped her earlier that night.

Jones said he eagerly submitted a sample for the DNA test, sure that it would prove his innocence, then wondered day after day what was taking so long for the results to come back. He was unable to post his bail, which was lowered from $40,000 to $5,000.

The district attorney called the lab repeatedly as the months passed and discovered that the results weren't ready. Deborah Keyser, Jones' court-appointed lawyer, said the lab kept saying they were coming soon.

The lawyer, who has been practicing for 12 years, said she has rarely

East Timor bishop, exiled activist receive Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The Nobel committee threw its prestige behind East Timor's independence movement Friday, awarding its 1996 Peace Prize to a Roman Catholic bishop and an exiled activist who have struggled to peacefully end two decades of Indonesian rule.

For the third time in recent years, the Norwegian awards committee used the lofty award to prod hard-line regimes in Asia into curbing human rights abuses. Indonesia, like China in 1989 and Burma in 1991, didn't appreciate the public slap.

Indonesia expressed "regret" at the decision to honor Bishop Carlos Filipe Ximenes Belo and said co-winner Jose Ramos-Horta "had been clearly involved in inciting and manipulating the people of East Timor."

But the awards committee left no doubt who it blamed for the widespread death, terror and persecution after the Indonesian army and navy invaded the former Portuguese colony of some 600,000 people in December 1975 and annexed it the next year.

"In the years that followed, it has been estimated that one-third of the population lost their lives due to starvation, epidemics, war and terror," said the awards citation. The United Nations has never recognized Indonesian control over East Timor, now one of the most backward areas in the region.

East Timor, which is 80 percent Roman Catholic, is between the Indonesian island of Java and the northwestern tip of Australia, about 450 miles from Darwin.

It is the only Christian area in Indonesia, and its people resent a steady, government-mandated influx of Muslims from Indonesia, which, with 190 million people, is the world's largest Muslim nation.

By winning, Bishop Belo, 48, and Ramos-Horta, a 51-year-old former guerrilla, receive a $1.12 million cash prize and international acclaim.

The Nobel committee honored the two men for "their work toward a just and peaceful solution" but by calling attention to a little publicized conflict, it also demanded that Indonesia change its policies.

"This is definitely also a criticism of the (Indonesian) government," said awards committee chairman Francis Sejersted after announcing the winners.

In 1989, the Nobel committee similarly enraged China by giving the peace prize to the Dalai Lama, the exiled spiritual leader of Tibet, which has been occupied nearly four decades. Burmese opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi won the 1991 prize, angering the military dictators holding her in house arrest.

"The international community recognized the two fundamental components — the religious one represented by Ximenes Belo, and the political part of the Timorese resistance personified by Ramos-Horta," added Cardoso.

Belo received word of his win with a whisper.

He was holding a Mass for about 2,000 people in the East Timor city of Dili when a church official came up and quietly told him he was the co-winner of the world's most famous peace award. Belo mentioned nothing to the churchgoers.

"I did not want to announce the news to the people congregated so as not to cause problems," he said.

From the day he was appointed acting bishop in 1983, Belo has worked for a peaceful settlement of the conflict and self-determination for his territory. He is quick to criticize those restoring to violence, whether Indonesian troops or young East Timorese wanting to seize independence.

Ramos-Horta has spent two decades acting as the exiled international spokesman for East Timor's independence movement, most often from his base in Sydney, Australia, where he teaches at the University of New South Wales.

"I hope that this award is not only a personal gain for me, that it will help the struggle of the people of East Timor," Ramos-Horta told the Australia Broadcasting Corp.

Ramos-Horta was foreign minister in East Timor's short-lived 1975 government, which lasted about a week until the Indonesian invasion. He was away in Australia at the time, which probably saved his life.

Amnesty International, the 1977 Nobel peace laureate, was delighted with the choice, but worried about what happens next for East Timor.

"There will be an outpouring, a celebration, on the ground. Our worry is that it will be met with repression," said Rory Mungoven of Amnesty in London.

Last year, dozens of people were injured in riots in Dili after protests over Indonesian Muslims getting most of the jobs in the local civil service.

Garbage avalanche threatens fishing, residents in Spain

OPORTINO, Spain (AP) — A collapsing mountain of garbage threatens to spill down the rocky northwestern coast into fertile Atlantic Ocean fishing grounds, creating what some fear would be an environmental catastrophe.

Seagulls swarm overhead while workers build dikes to hold back the 300-foot-high mountain of trash — 20 years and 1 million tons of waste, mostly from nearby La Coruna.

The 250 residents of O Portino were evacuated Sept. 10 to a sports stadium in La Coruna after 100,000 tons of garbage cascaded into the coastal village, swamping their homes and killing one man. Engineers blamed weaknesses in the dump's containment walls.

Bulldozers and dump trucks have been cleaning up the mess, but residents are afraid to return because of the risk of more avalanches. The stench is overpowering.

Joaquin Serantes was leaning on his car, reading the newspaper, and was unable to flee the avalanche's path. His body had not been recovered by Friday.

The cleanup of O Portino will take three months and cost $20 million, said La Coruna City Hall spokesman Javier Losada. A containment wall is also planned to keep the pile in place.

No one could have predicted the avalanche, Losada said, and the dump was inspected as required by law. Environment Minister Isabel Tocino has promised to propose new regulations on dumping waste by year's end.

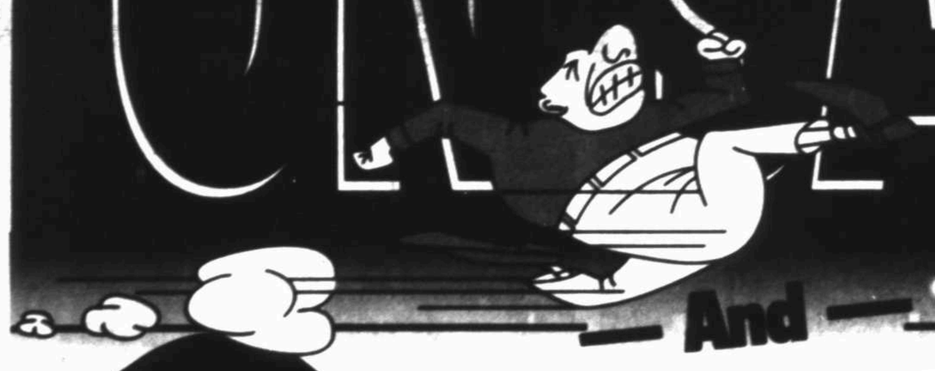

The waters around La Coruna comprise one of Spain's most prosperous fishing grounds and fishing is the region's principal industry.

United States says international intervention may be needed in Burundi

ARUSHA, Tanzania (AP) - Secretary of State Warren Christopher raised the possibility Friday of international intervention in Burundi if the ethnic conflict there deteriorates into a "humanitarian catastrophe."

Christopher came to this mountain town for discussions on the Burundi crisis with former Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere and other African leaders who have been trying to bring peace to Burundi. An estimated 150,000 Burundians have died in ethnic warfare since 1993.

A seven-nation regional summit on the situation will be held here Saturday.

"With good faith on all sides and the continued engagement of a united region, we believe that a peaceful settlement is attainable," Christopher told a news conference.

"Should the situation in Burundi deteriorate further, however, the international community must be prepared to act quickly to prevent a humanitarian catastrophe."

Christopher has been trying to persuade African leaders to agree to an African Crisis Response Force to cope with humanitarian disasters in the continent, both manmade and natural.

This is Christopher's third stop on a five-nation tour of sub-Saharan Africa, and he has been discussing the force proposal in each country. He has picked up commitments from Mali and Ethiopia to provide troops and said that Tanzanian President Benjamin Mkapa also is favorably disposed. The two men met here Friday morning.

In Ethiopia on Thursday, Christopher said "Burundi remains on the brink of an even greater tragedy." He indicated that a crisis force, financed and trained by the United States and other donors, may be needed if warfare between the majority Hutu population and the rival Tutsis escalates.

The force would not intervene militarily but instead would try to create havens where people would be protected and receive humanitarian assistance.

While a recent United Nations estimate suggests about 1,500 Burundians are being killed each month, a senior U.S. official accompanying Christopher said there was "considerably more hope" for a peaceful outcome in Burundi than there was a few months ago. He credited the mediation effort by Nyerere and the governments of neighboring countries.

These nations imposed an economic embargo against Burundi at the end of July in hopes of pressuring the country's Tutsi-led government to begin all-party negotiations.

Christopher said the United States, along with the regional leaders, supports the goal of restoring democracy, protecting minority rights and preventing further bloodshed.

"These goals cannot be achieved by force of arms or imposed by one group of Burundians over another," Christopher said.

"The United States calls both sides in the conflict to suspend their hostilities and to begin all-party negotiations."

Christopher also met with Louise Arbour, chief prosecutor for the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, which has been seeking to bring to justice perpetrators of the Rwanda genocide of 1994. More than 500,000 Rwandans — a large majority Tutsis — died at the hands of Hutu militants in the spring of that year.

Twenty-one persons have been indicted thus far and 12 are in custody. The first trial is scheduled for Oct. 31.

The Clinton administration has contributed $5 million in support of the tribunal and announced on Friday an additional donation of $650,000 which is earmarked for the prosecution of "mass rape and sexual crimes."

An administration official said such crimes may fall under the tribunal's mandate if they are "carried out with genocidal intent."

The tribunal also has received $5 million in private contributions from Americans.

Bosnian Serb police threaten American; Muslims menace Russians

TUZLA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serb police turned their guns on a U.S. Army liaison officer Friday and Muslim villagers surrounded two dozen Russian peacekeepers as tempers flared in Serb-controlled territory.

Maj. John Kershaw, an American liaison officer attached to the Russian brigade, was inspecting three Muslim homes damaged by explosions near the village of Jusici when he was confronted by 10 Bosnian Serb policemen armed with automatic weapons.

Kershaw and Russians soldiers with him attempted to intervene as the policemen arrested three Muslim men. One of the policemen leveled an AK-47 assault rifle at the major's midsection from about 10 feet away.

Kershaw and the Russians decided it was pointless to provoke a shootout and backed off, said Lt. Col. Jill Morgenthaler, a spokeswoman for the peacekeeping forces in northern Bosnia.

The automatic weapons carried by the police violated the Dayton peace accords. Jusici, 20 miles east of Tuzla, lies on the Serb side of the Bosnian war's former front line and within a zone where only NATO-led peace troops may carry such weapons.

Maj. Simon Haselock, a spokesman for the peace force in Sarajevo, said the police would be expected to surrender the weapons and deliver a formal apology over the incident. He also served notice that the peacekeepers have the right to use "lethal force" to defend themselves.

Dragan Kijac, chief of the Bosnian Serb police, said in Pale he had no information about threats to an American officer.

He said there was an explosion early Friday in Jusici. He sent about 50 of his policemen to investigate, and they found knives, hand grenades and tear gas on three Muslims, he said.

In a separate incident Friday, Muslims surrounded a group of Russian troops in the nearby town of Zvornik. The Russian soldiers cocked and aimed their weapons at the Muslims, but no one was injured.

The Muslims were demanding the release of two men who were arrested by Bosnian Serb police Friday in Jusici.

There have been several clashes involving Bosnian Serbs and Muslims who are attempting to return to their villages in Serb territory. The Dayton peace accord guarantees that Bosnians may return to their prewar homes.

Explosions damaged several homes in Jusici and two other villages on Thursday. No injuries were reported, and it was not clear who set off the blasts.

Another blast occurred in Jusici Friday morning, Kijac said.

Bosnian Serb leader Biljana Plavsic warned Friday that problems involving returning Muslims could jeopardize local elections scheduled for Nov. 23-24.

NATO's mandate to keep troops in Bosnia expires Dec. 20, but the United States expects to maintain a presence until March.

Some 5,000 soldiers from the U.S. 1st Infantry Division are moving into Bosnia to cover the withdrawal of American troops, which is expected to continue until just before the municipal elections.

WEATHER WATCH

Sunny skies, lower 90s today

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies and a high in the lower 90s. Winds will be from the south at 10-20 mph, according to the National Weather Service.

Tonight's forecast calls for mostly clear skies and a low in the upper 50s.

Sunday's forecast calls for sunny skies and a high near 90.

The high for Friday was 91, compared to the record high for that date of 94, set in 1965.

Friday's low was 57, compared to the record low of 38, set in 1990.

STATE

Strong, gusty winds made for a brisk autumn day throughout Texas Friday, with the weekend expected to bring warm temperatures and clear skies.

In North Texas skies across the area were clear and temperatures were generally in the upper 70s and the 80s.

The forecast for the region calls for lows in the 50s and highs in the mid to upper 80s.

South Texans enjoyed clear skies and warm temperatures in the 80s. Wind speeds ranged from 10 to 15 mph and were gusty along the coast.

The forecast for South Texas predicts fair skies and a mostly sunny today. Low temperatures tonight are expected to cool into the 40s and 50s over most the area and high temperatures will warm into the 80s.

Skies were sunny across all of West Texas with only a few mid level clouds over the south plains. Afternoon temperatures were mainly in the 80s and 90s except for a few upper 70s over the Guadalupe Mountains.

Today was expected to bring mostly sunny days and clear nights, with lows in the 40s and highs in the 80s and 90s.

NATION

Mornings were cool across much of the nation Friday, dipping to a record 58 degrees in parts of Florida. It was pleasant from California to the Carolinas, while 40 mph wind gusts pushed through the Plains.

Low temperatures included 24 in Muskegon, Mich., breaking the day's record of 26 set in 1964. Chicago tied its record of 27 set in 1906.

It even got cold in the Sunshine State: Melbourne, Fla., dropped to 58, breaking its old record of 59 set in 1988.

The lowest wind chill was 4 in Presque Isle, Maine.

The strongest winds were reported across the northern Plains, with 41 mph in Worthington, Minn., and Gage, Okla.

It warmed up by afternoon in many places, but cool weather was expected to return for a longer stay this weekend in the Northeast.

A weak system brought showers to the Pacific Northwest. Bremerton, Wash., reported the most rain at barely over half an inch.

Temperatures Friday ranged from a morning low of 20 at Iron Mountain, Mich., to a midday high of 95 at Palm Springs, Calif.

"The important thing is that the mistake was discovered and corrected," Russell said, adding that the sample will no longer be used.

Russell said an outside firm designed the sample and faxed it to the coalition for approval.

"The photographs were so fuzzy and dark in the fax. We approved it," he said. "We're guilty of an honest mistake."

Kyle Childress, pastor of the predominately white Austin Heights Baptist Church in Nacogdoches, about 200 miles northeast of Austin, said he accepts the coalition's apology. But he said there could be more to it.

"You wonder, what kind of message are they trying to communicate," he said, adding that he won't order any of the voter guides. "If you vote for a Democrat, they question your faith."

Russell said the concerns are valid. But he said critics should accept the coalition's sincere apology.

Cecile Richards, of the Texas Faith Network, said the mistake should give religious leaders more reason to pause before distributing the Christian Coalition material.

Ms. Richard's organization of religious and community leaders opposes the Christian Coalition and partisan politics among religious organizations.

"I think religious leaders are beginning to appreciate that Pat Robertson's Christian Coalition is a political organization who has attempted to divide and polarize our community," she said.

Robertson, who in 1988 sought the Republican nomination for president, is founder of the Christian Coalition. The organization, founded in 1989, claims it does not participate in partisan politics.

DNA: Test backlog keeps man in jail waited this long for DNA results.

"I really felt like he was telling me the truth, and it was frustrating for me to see an innocent man sitting in jail for that period of time," Ms. Keyser said. "It is totally unacceptable."

The lawyer said she had hoped the crime lab would assign a high priority to the case because of Jones' situation.

Prosecutors said they couldn't release Jones pending the results since the girl had identified him.

Joseph Chu, a criminalist at the lab, told the Houston Chronicle that the crime lab was dealing with a backlog caused by heavy workload and a shortage of personnel.

Chu said it typically takes from two weeks to three months for a DNA test, depending on which test is conducted. It is rare for a routine test to take more than three months, he said.

Chu declined to comment specifically on Jones' case, but said other crime labs across the nation have the same type of backlog.

Authorities at one time sent DNA samples to the FBI for testing and delays were often long, Chu said. He estimated there's now a one-year backlog at the FBI.

For the past five years, the city has been doing its own tests and generally they are ready much sooner, he said.

Jones served two years in prison after being convicted in 1991 on a charge of stealing a check. But he had gotten a steady job and had three children to raise, he said.

Now he has to start over.

Thieves broke into his apartment and stole nearly everything he owned while he was jail. He left the jail wearing the same clothes as those he wore the day he was taken to jail.

Jones said he fears that his 13-year-old son may be hurt by the time he was away.

He said he tried to keep busy to control his anger and frustration.

"I played dominoes and I even learned to play chess," Jones said.

"There will always be a memory there," he said, "but you have to go on with your life."

Woman kills hospitalized husband, shoots self, S.C. authorities say

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — An elderly woman fatally shot her hospitalized husband and then killed herself Friday, hours after they were told he might need supervised care in a nursing home because of his broken leg.

Robert Ray Tucker, 81, a patient at St. Francis Hospital since Monday, was shot twice in the head with a .38-caliber revolver, sheriff's Lt. Terence Brooks said.

Tucker's 74-year-old wife, Hattie Mae, was found slumped in a chair at his bedside with a gunshot wound to her head.

The couple was told Thursday that Tucker might need to be moved to a nursing home, said county Coroner Parks Evans Jr. said.

"We think that disturbed them quite a bit ... the thought of having to leave their homes," Evans said.

Shortly after midnight, nurses heard a loud noise in the couple's fifth-floor room. Tucker was dead. His wife died later.

ARREST: Officials charge seven in bomb plot wide. The identification division provides information to state and local police departments.

The fingerprint center eventually will use computer programs for converting fingerprints into electronic images. This will enable the FBI to perform fingerprint checks in a matter of hours instead of weeks or months.

Automated criminal record-keeping also will be available for background checks, whether the person is seeking a job at a day-care center or trying to buy a gun.

The seven defendants were jailed without bail pending hearings next week. The charges included conspiring to make bombs, transporting explosives across state lines and conspiring to place explosives near the FBI complex.

The conspiracy charges carry up to five years in prison and $250,000 in fines. The other counts carry up to 10 years and $250,000 in fines.

O'Connor said Looker, 56, of Stonewood and firefighter James Rogers, 40, of Jane Lew were members of the militia organization. Court papers identified Edward F. Moore, 52, of Lavalette as a colonel with the group.

O'Connor said he didn't know how the other four were connected to the militia group. They were identified as Jack Arland Phillips, 57, of Fairmont; James M. Johnson, 48, of Maple Heights, Ohio; Terrell P. Coon, 46, of Waynesburg, Pa.; and Imam A. Lewis, 26, of Cleveland.

In court papers, the FBI described several meetings this year involving Moore, Phillips and Looker at which explosives were displayed. At one meeting, according to the FBI, Moore said he was working on a rocket-propelled grenade.

An undercover source said Moore provided instruction in bombs and bomb-making, nd set off an explosion in a plasuc bag that left a hole 2 feet wide and 4 inches deep at the Mountaineer Militia's training site in the countryside.

On Oct. 2, the FBI said, a source met with Phillips, who showed him a plastic container which he said was filled with an ammonium nitrate and gasoline mixture "suitable for use as an explosive."

Looker, a real estate developer who ran unsuccessfully for state and local offices as both a Republican and Democrat, has claimed his group has members in all 55 counties of West Virginia, and in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

He has refused to say how many members are in the group, which bars outsiders from its drills.

"You don't divulge your strength or weakness to the enemy. Currently, it's Bill Clinton and the press," he told The Associated Press in April 1995.

He also claims that 1 million U.N. troops are stationed at American military bases and that the government has set up 130 concentration camps at abandoned military bases to house law-abiding citizens.

Located 120 miles south of Pittsburgh, the FBI complex eventually will employ 2,600 people. It also will house the National Criminal Information Center and the Uniform Crime Reporting Center, FBI units now in Washington.

The surrounding hills hide the complex from view, and federal officers stop all cars at two main entrances.

SYNAGOGUE: Members celebrate 50th anniversary

ple, a synagogue," said Rosen, adding that, initially, the members used space at a school before acquiring a building on the west side of Odessa that they used for some 15 years. The present synagogue opened in the early 1960s.

"They started out with around 20 families, and as the economy expands and contracts in the Permian Basin, of course the temple grows and shrinks," said Rosen.

Currently, the synagogue, in Odessa, serves around 90 families from Fort Stockton, Crane, Andrews, Big Spring, Odessa and Midland.

"The expansion of UTPB (University of Texas of the Permian Basin) and the Texas Tech (University) Medical School have brought in more Jewish families that have joined the temple," Rosen said.

The Temple's Religious School, whose principal is Charlotte Harris, serves around 50 children from age 4 through high school.

"They go for a couple of hours on Sunday morning and a couple of hours during the week where they study Hebrew language, Jewish law and custom and history," Rosen said.

Some area church congregations have availed themselves of the opportunity to attend services at Temple Beth El to increase their understanding of Jewish practices and services.

"We often have groups of Sunday School classes come to visit during services and that gives the children who aren't Jewish a better understanding of what other practices people do," said Rosen.

The Temple also has a youth group for teenagers, who not only get involved in social activities but also do some community service.

"Occasionally, members of the Temple are invited to schools or churches to explain Judaism or particular holidays," Rosen said. "And we've been doing that for 50 years."

Judaism has no one person as its head and no international body with authority over religious practices. Each congregation selects its own rabbi and manages its own affairs. Currently, Temple Beth El has no full-time rabbi.

"Because we're a small community, we can't afford, right now, to hire a full-time rabbi," Rosen said. "From time to time in the past, we have had full-time rabbis who've lived in the Permian Basin. In the recent past, we've had student rabbis from Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati who will come here once or twice a month and perform religious services — teach religious school and, in general, take care of the congregation's needs."

When a rabbi isn't at the Temple, services are handled by lay leaders. The congregation is run by a president and board of directors elected annually by the congregation. The current president is Harry Leventhal, who was also president in 1990-91. Dr. Norman Harris, a past president, is vice president.

Also, the synagogue has an active Sisterhood, which Rosen calls "the backbone of the Temple." The current president is Andree Rosen, who is serving her second term as Sisterhood president.

"Because there's so few of us, we often find ourselves pressed into service year after year," said Rosen. "We're lucky to still have a few of our founding members as current members."

The list of founding members includes Ben Glast, Sam Fisher, the Winkler family of Fort Stockton and the Yudin family of Odessa, all of whom are being honored during the special services this weekend along with relatives of people who were founders. Invitations were mailed to past members whose addresses could be found. About 50 families are here from out of town.

Anniversary activities at Temple Beth El began Friday night with a buffet dinner and services. Another special Sabbath service is planned this morning, a luncheon in the afternoon and a banquet tonight, with entertainment provided by the Austin Klezmorim.

"We're bringing in a Klezmer band," Rosen said. "When you hear what people would think of as Jewish music from Eastern Europe, that's what they play."

The special activities conclude with a Sunday morning brunch. In Judaism, the Sabbath is the seventh day of the week, Saturday, which is a holy day of rest. The Sabbath begins at sundown Friday and ends at nightfall Saturday, at the time when it is calculated that three stars could be seen in the evening sky.

For Rosen, Temple Beth El has provided a "sense of community" in a largely Christian population.

"It's a community of people that are already established that are instantly friends and families although none of them are my relatives," said Rosen. "My nearest immediate family being 2,000 miles away.

"Before I moved to West Texas, I was barely aware of my Judaism because I lived in a city where 25 percent of the population was Jewish. It wasn't a big deal to me. But here, where Jews are less than 1 percent of the population, it's been very significant to me."

Temple Beth El belongs to Reform, Conservative movements

By Georgia Temple
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Judaism in the United States encompasses four movements — Reform, Conservative, Orthodox and Reconstrucionist.

"Our synagogue (Temple Beth El) belongs to both the Reform and the Conservative Movement in order to better accommodate all the people who belong," said member David Rosen. "Some people consider themselves Conservative. Some people consider themselves Reform. We do our best to accommodate everyone we can."

On Reform Judaism, The World Book Encyclopedia speaks of the early 1800s when some Jews started to question the traditional teachings of how the sacred writings of Judaism came into being.

"For example, they considered the Talmud (a collection of legal and ethical writings, as well as Jewish history and folklore) a human creation rather than the revelation of God, and so its authority was weakened for them. These people, who founded Reform Judaism, claimed that Judaism is def ned principally by the Bible (what Christians call the Old Testament).

"Today, Reform Jews believe that moral and ethical teachings form the most important part of Judaism. They feel that many of Judaism's ritual practices have no significance for them. As a result, Reform Jews have discarded many of the traditional customs and ceremonies of Judaism."

On Conservative Judaism, The World Book observes, "Conservative Jews consider the Talmud as much an authority as the Bible. However, they believe that the Scriptures should be interpreted in light of modern knowledge and culture. Like Reform Jews, Conservative Jews de-emphasize the rituals of Judaism. But they follow more of the traditional practices than do Reform Jews."

The prayer services in Reform Judaism, Rosen said, are probably 70 percent English, 30 percent Hebrew, and Conservative services are around 60 percent Hebrew, 40 percent English.

"Reform Judaism, I think, acknowledges more of the modern world," said Rosen. "It started in the 1840s in Germany, and Conservatism actually arose as a reaction to Reform Judaism."

Reform Judaism could be considered in a social context to be a "more liberal" version of Judaism than Conservative, Rosen said, citing as an example the Jewish practice of determining a child's Jewish roots.

"In Judaism, people were considered the religion of their mother, so if the mother was Jewish, the child was Jewish, but, consequently, if the mother was not Jewish but the father was, historically the children were not recognized as Jewish. But Reform Judaism has decided, in recent years, a child born of Jewish parents regardless of father or mother can be considered Jewish if the child grows up in a home that practices Judaism."

Orthodox Judaism accepts all the traditional Jewish beliefs and ways of life.

The World Book says, "Orthodox Jews believe that God revealed the laws of the Torah and the Talmud directly to Moses in Mount Sinai. They strictly observe all traditional Jewish laws, including the dietary rules and the laws for keeping the Sabbath. Orthodox Jews pray three times daily — in the morning, in late afternoon and after sunset. Orthodox men wear hats or yarmulkas (skull-caps) at all times as a sign of respect for God."

Rosen noted that the term encompasses Modern Orthodox and Traditional Orthodox. "Not all Orthodox people will not travel on the Sabbath," said Rosen, adding, "Orthodox Jews keep kosher homes."

Reconstructionist Judaism is an ideology and a movement in U.S. Jewish life that owes its inspiration to Mordecai Menahem Kaplan. The founding of the Reconstructionist Movement may be dated from the establishment of the Society for the Advancement of Judaism in January of 1922. The Society served both as a synagogue center and a forum for Kaplan ideas.

Volume 13 of the Encyclopedia Judaica defines Kaplan's "greatest success" as "his impact on Jewish educators, social workers, and rabbis, especially students of the Jewish Theological Seminary where he taught from 1909-1963. He left an indelible mark upon many of the leaders of the Jewish community. The movement was, however, less successful in recruiting a mass following."

Briefly, Kaplan argued, says the Encyclopedia Judaica, "With the breakdown of certain traditional beliefs, Jewish identity had become attenuated. Jews remain loyal to their faith despite hardship and suffering because they believe that adherence to Judaism assures them of salvation in the next world.

"But in Kaplan's view this is no longer credible, consequently Judaism must transform itself from a civilization oriented toward hereafter into one which can help Jews to attain salvation in this world. Belief in the possibility of this salvation is crucial to Kaplan's thought. It means the progressive improvement of the human personality and the establishment of a free, just and cooperative social order. Kaplan maintains that there are adequate resources in the world and capacities in man to achieve such salvation."

The various movements will use, Rosen said, "Different prayer books, but it's all very similar. They'll have different translations of the same prayer."

Netanyahu says he's eager to end talks soon

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has advised Yasser Arafat that he is eager to complete negotiations on the West Bank city of Hebron by early next month, diplomats close to the negotiations said Friday.

They said Netanyahu had sent the Palestinian leader a message through the United States' chief Middle East negotiator, Dennis Ross, and its consul general in Jerusalem, Edward Abington, saying he was serious about arranging a partial withdrawal of Israeli troops from Hebron as soon as possible, and was not just "buying time."

A Western official said he would be "very surprised" if the negotiations were not concluded by Nov. 5.

At the same time, the diplomats said this did not represent a breakthrough in the talks themselves, in which the two sides are reported to remain far apart. Israel is seeking to tighten the security arrangements for the 450 Jewish settlers living in the center of Hebron, where nearly 100,000 Palestinians reside. But under arrangements agreed to in September 1995, Israel was to have withdrawn from most of Hebron by last March, and the Palestinians have rejected any alterations to the agreements.

Friday's reports, which appeared first in a Hebrew and an Arabic newspaper, ran counter to a speech by Arafat to the Palestinian Legislative Council on Thursday in which he said no progress was being made in the talks, and warned that this could have dire consequences.

Said Erekat, the chief Palestinian negotiator, also dismissed the idea that Israel was eager to reach agreement. "They say they are committed to a Hebron redeployment, then they use a 'but' and put their list of conditions," he said, referring to the Israelis. "The Americans are positive, the Americans would like things to progress, but they know better, they know Israel is maneuvering."

The conflicting signals reflected the delicacy of the talks and the erosion of trust between the Palestinians and Israelis since Netanyahu came to power in June, and especially after the violent clashes that erupted last month around Palestinian towns. It also reflected what a diplomat described as the inevitable "public posturing" that accompanies negotiation.

Officials on both sides said the United States was seeking to reduce the negotiating teams to essential participants to prevent time-consuming statements. On Monday the talks are supposed to relocate to the neighboring resorts of Eilat and Taba on the Red Sea, where the negotiators would be together day and night, beyond the range of publicity and political pressures.

The negotiations have reportedly included meetings between security officials from both sides to discuss the details of Israeli military redeployment. The participants were Maj. Gen. Shaul Mufaz, the Israeli negotiator on security issues, and two Palestinian security chiefs, Jibril Rajoub from the West Bank and Mohammed Dahlan from Gaza.

The Palestinian daily Al Quds reported Friday that at their meeting, Mufaz assured the Palestinians that the Israeli government had taken the "political decision" to redeploy the troops now in Hebron.

According to a report in Haaretz, a liberal Hebrew daily, one reason for the Israeli government's haste was the fear that Arafat would try to delay the talks until after the American election in the hope that President Clinton, once freed of campaign pressures, would turn tougher. Haaretz also reported that a military officer had said a date had already been decided for the Israeli withdrawal.

But a senior Israeli official rejected the reports. "There is no deadline in place by us," he said. "The election is not a principal factor. It's not like Clinton is going to turn into an Eisenhower the second day after the election and come after us with a stick." The reference was apparently to President Eisenhower's forcing an end to the seizure of the Suez Canal by British, French and Israeli forces after Egypt nationalized it in 1956.

The latest negotiations on Hebron were convened after an emergency meeting in Washington attended by leaders of Israel, the Palestinians, Jordan and the United States. Convinced that the violence was the result of frustration with the lack of movement in the negotiations between Israel and the Palestinians, the Americans moved to open immediate talks on Hebron, with the goal of a quick Israeli withdrawal.

The talks opened on Sunday after a quick visit to both sides by Secretary of State Warren Christopher, and they are being attended by Ross in a capacity officially described as that of a "facilitator."

So far, the Americans have indicated satisfaction with the pace of the negotiations.

The Israeli defense minister, Yitzhak Mordechai, has announced that the measures taken against the Palestinians since the violence would be eased.

Economist collapses in car, dies three days after winning Nobel Prize

NEW YORK (AP) — William Vickrey waited 45 years for his economic theories to be recognized with a Nobel Prize. He enjoyed it for only three days before dying Friday, collapsing in his car on the way to an academic conference.

The 82-year-old retired Columbia University professor had been relishing his sudden honor as a Nobel winner since Tuesday, enjoying a champagne party with colleagues and giving interview after interview with the media.

"We were all a bit concerned that maybe this was too much," said Professor Ronald Findlay, chairman of Columbia's economics department. "He said, 'No, no, don't worry. I'm perfectly OK.'"

Findlay described Vickrey as an "absent-minded professor type" who used to park several blocks from Columbia and roller-skate to work. The vigorous, heavy-set man never lost his enthusiasm for his ideas.

"I'm very invigorated," Vickrey told The Star-Ledger of Newark, N.J., on Thursday in one of his last interviews. "I feel that at long last I may have some audience."

"Forty-five years is a long time to wait for your ideas to take hold," he said. "I want to make the most of the good bully pulpit. And I have a couple of books to write."

Vickrey, who had been driving alone to Boston for an academic conference, was found Thursday night, slumped over his steering wheel in a northbound lane of a parkway in Harrison, about 30 miles north of New York City, said Columbia spokeswoman Suzanne Trimel.

He was pronounced dead at St. Agnes Hospital in White Plains. At the family's request, the cause of death was not immediately released.

Bill Bortree, clerk at the Quaker Meeting House in Scarsdale, where Vickrey had been a member for 40 years, said he spoke to the professor's wife, Cecile, early Friday. He quoted her as saying, "He was overdoing it as usual, driving up to Boston."

> 'We were all a bit concerned that maybe this was too much. He said, 'No, no don't worry. I'm perfectly OK.'

Vickrey shared the economics Nobel — and a prize of $1.12 million — with James Mirrlees of Britain's Cambridge University for their separate work on "asymmetric information." That field seeks to maximize economic efficiency when two sides have incomplete information about each other.

Vickrey had focused on practical matters like efficient use of public transportation.

Vickrey failed to persuade New York's City's transit authority to use a progressive fare system, charging more for long trips than for short rides and putting a premium fare for rush-hour travel.

Vickrey had greater success at applying his theories on auctions, another example of asymmetric information. In the form of auction now known as a "Vickrey auction," bids are sealed, but the person who submits the highest bid pays only the price stated in the next-highest bid — a system the Nobel committee called "socially efficient."

Some elements of Vickrey's theories were used last year when the Federal Communications Commission auctioned licenses for slices of the nation's airwaves.

Lars Werin, chairman of the prize committee, said it was not immediately clear what would be done with the money. Another committee member, Peter England, said the disposition of the prize would be up to the Nobel Foundation.

Vickrey, a Canadian-born American citizen, grew up in New York, Switzerland and New Jersey and studied mathematics at Yale. He earned a master's in economics from Columbia in 1937 and a doctorate in 1948. He lived in Hastings-on-Hudson, 12 miles from where he was found.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete. He is survived by his wife of 45 years. "He was an endearing companion," she said.

Analysts: Widespread layoffs at GM plants are weeks away

DETROIT (AP) — Widespread layoffs may still be weeks away for workers at General Motors plants that depend on factories struck by the Canadian Auto Workers.

Analysts say GM has left itself well stocked with parts to keep operating despite the shutdowns in Canada.

"The truly significant impact would likely come at the end of October," said Joseph Phillippi, an analyst with Lehman Brothers of New York City. "They don't have six months in parts stashed to be able to run the U.S. plants. ... If it goes beyond the end of October, you will start to see one or two plants close every few days."

Canadian Auto Workers President Buzz Hargrove said from Toronto on Friday that the union deliberately increased the strike only gradually to avoid big layoffs in the United States. But even with the strategy, he said U.S. plants will be able to operate only for a few more weeks.

GM added no layoffs Friday to the 2,000 already announced — 1,050 at an engine plant in Tonawanda, N.Y., and 950 at a transmission plant in Ypsilanti, Mich. The plants make parts that aren't needed in Canada during the strike.

More than 177,000 GM workers were laid off in March as a strike by GM Delphi Chassis workers in Dayton, Ohio, rippled through the company.

Laid off workers are eligible for 95 percent of their gross base wage.

Ed Ptasznik, a union leader at GM's Detroit-Hamtramck plant, said some workers at the plant expect to be sent home as soon as Monday. Hamtramck assembles the Cadillac Eldorado, Seville and DeVille and depends on trim parts from the Windsor, Ontario, a plant that went on strike Wednesday night.

Except for the lead bargainers, negotiators for the CAW and GM have been sent home for the long Canadian Thanksgiving weekend. They are not expected to reconvene in Toronto until Tuesday.

Names of victims AIDS has claimed stretch nearly mile on quilt

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it was first displayed in the nation's capital in 1987, the AIDS quilt was about a city block long.

With eight more years of deaths from the epidemic, the colorful patchwork remembering the victims now stretches nearly a mile from the Washington Monument to the foot of the Capitol.

Even so, the full quilt — on display this weekend for the first time in four years — commemorates only about 11 percent of Americans who have died from AIDS.

"I have several friends who will be laid out in the panels," said Joe Wassam, a Takoma Park, Md., volunteer helping put the quilt down on the grassy Mall. "This is a way of being back with them."

The quilt, bearing the names of more than 70,000 people on 38,000 panels, is the centerpiece of dozens of weekend events sponsored by several groups, designed to again focus attention on the epidemic.

Hundreds of thousands of people are expected to see the quilt over the long Columbus Day weekend.

Friendly crowds greeted President Clinton and his wife Hillary Rodham Clinton when they strolled, sometimes hand in hand, through sections of the sun-dappled quilt in late afternoon.

"This means a lot to us," someone shouted. "We love you," cried another.

Another volunteer thanked Clinton for being the first president to visit the quilt. When it was here in the late 1980s and early 1990s, either President Reagan or President Bush were in office.

The Clintons, both with somber expressions, stopped for a minute or more to inspect several individual quilt panels. Returning briefly to campaign mode, Clinton waved to the crowd as he walked back to his car.

Earlier Friday, with throngs already crowding the black fabric walks between quilt panels, Vice President Al Gore and his wife, Tipper, joined poet Maya Angelou and others to read aloud some of the names displayed on the quilts.

"I just hope I was pronouncing them right," said Betsy Schissel, 16, of Ithaca N.Y., a volunteer reader.

As with the nearby Vietnam War memorial, family and friends of the victims touched panels, wrote messages, prayed, cried or remembered them in their own way. Bouquets of flowers lay beside some panels, one with a card signed "Love Always. Mom."

AIDS activists protested Friday that the combinations of AIDS drugs they must take cost tens of thousands of dollars. Today, actress Elizabeth Taylor is expected to lead a candlelight march from the Capitol to the Lincoln Memorial.

Singer-actress Cher highlighted a rally Friday evening for "National Coming Out Day," encouraging gay men and lesbians to be honest about their identities — and participate in the coming election.

Cher told more than 1,000 people how she struggled when her daughter, Chastity Bono, said she was a lesbian.

"It's the most difficult thing to achieve — to love people who are different than you, who believe differently, who look different," she said.

In opposition to "National Coming Out Day," a group called Parents and Friends of Ex-Gays held a news conference to announce its message that homosexuals could become heterosexual.

Quilt organizers said they brought the full quilt here to remind Congress that the disease still has no cure, although new drugs for the first time give hope of better controlling it.

Cleve Jones, who came up with the idea for the quilt in 1985, said the United States "possessed the knowledge, the resources, the institutions and the people to find a cure for AIDS and there can be a cure if the president and Congress lead the way. They should get with the program."

Also on many people's minds was Congress' recent bill, signed into law by Clinton, that denies federal recognition to homosexual marriages.

The AIDS quilt panels, made by family and friends and given to the NAMES Project, are decorated with car keys, condoms, flags, merit badges, motorcycle jackets and photographs.

There are panels made for people known only to a few others and panels remembering such famous people as tennis star Arthur Ashe, actor Rock Hudson and MTV star Pedro Zamora.

Usually, the quilt is divided and travels the country, where organizers say it is seen by 1 million people each year. Organizers said this may be the last time it is displayed in its entirety.

Latinos rally for immigrant rights march

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Latinos, spurred by the new welfare and immigration laws and what they see as a rising tide of anti-immigrant feeling, were rallying around the country and preparing to march today in the capital.

The first march for Latino and immigrant rights calls for a streamlined citizenship process, extended immigrant amnesty and a $7 hourly minimum wage. Organizers say they expect around 100,000 people for the pre-Columbus Day event.

"We have to cut the edge off the xenophobia that is being created in this country," said Juan Jose Bocanegra, a member of the coordinating committee, Coordinadora '96, who lives in Seattle. "We're not here to be bashed around like pinatas. We demand respect."

Bocanegra said marchers are expected from 39 states, with big groups coming from New York, Chicago, Phoenix, Los Angeles, San Antonio, Houston, Little Rock, Seattle and Portland, Ore.

'I'm tired of the racism, the discrimination," Jose Baballo, who drove here from Los Angeles for the march, said through a translator. "I'm tired of being vilified as an illegal immigrant when in fact I pay taxes, I contribute to the community."

At a rally in Tucson, Ariz., on Wednesday, Isabel Garcia, director of the Pima County legal defender's office, said, "We are going to introduce ourselves to our nation's capital. We are affirming our place in this country."

"This is the beginning of a campaign to change the hearts and minds of a public that has reacted in a negative way to my people out of fear and, I hate to say it, ignorance," said Garcia, who is a longtime Latino rights activist.

Anger boiled over in New York's Hispanic community this week after the police officer charged in the choking death of Anthony Baez was acquitted. About 200 protesters marched to the police precinct in the South Bronx neighborhood where the Baez family lives, carrying signs and chanting anti-police slogans in both English and Spanish.

Many shouted "Sin justicia, no hay paz" and its English equivalent "No peace without justice," and "Asesino policia" ("Killer Cop"). About three dozen police officers in riot gear were deployed, but no arrests or incidents were reported during the 90-minute demonstration.

Today's march in Washington is starting near the site of riots in May 1991, when Latino frustration and resentment against the police erupted into two nights of violence.

Also in the march's platform: human and constitutional rights for all, equal opportunities and affirmative action, free public education for all from kindergarten through university, expanded health services, citizen police review boards and labor law reform.

Landmark legislation to crack down on illegal immigration, including a doubling of the size of the Border Patrol, was passed in Congress' waning days recently. In negotiations with White House officials, Republican lawmakers agreed to limit the degree to which legal immigrants would be susceptible to losing certain benefits after a year on welfare.

March organizers said they were relieved that some of the harsher provisions were taken out but they remained concerned about the effect of the immigration law and the new welfare reform law on the Latino community.

Police Reports

Drug arrest

Cipriano R. Gonzales, 58, of Odessa, was arrested Thursday after police said five ounces of cocaine, valued at $6,000, were found in his horse trailer during a "buy-bust" operation on West 57th Street in Odessa.

Stolen property, worth $3,000, also was recovered at Gonzales' home, police reported.

Gonzales was charged with delivery of cocaine, a first degree felony, by Permian Drug Task Force investigators and Ector County Sheriff officials

Gonzales is being held at Ector County Jail on $50,000 bond.

State, national agencies plan crackdown on border brawls

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — When rowdy crowds of youngsters return from across the border looking for fights and drinking illegally, they'll find a multi-agency task force sent to keep order.

The weekend crackdown is part of a project called Assist Our Kids, combined with the U.S. Customs Service, Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission, Cameron County Sheriff's Office and the Brownsville Police Department.

The South Texas enforcement effort was to begin this morning, authorities said.

"We'll be here and we'll be here in force," International Bridge system Director Jose Galvan told The Brownsville Herald this week.

The agencies plan to put an end to numerous fights and incidents of underage drinking on the United States side of the Gateway International Bridge.

Officials say teen-agers cross the border where drinking laws are not enforced, and then return, raising ruckus in areas near Brownsville.

"The main purpose is to disperse the crowds," said Customs Supervisor Ernest Tijerina. "The main purpose is to keep our city safe."

Sen. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, said the days of unruly behavior near the bridge are over.

"They're going to encounter officials from every unit of the government," he said.

Deaths

Ernest Hall

Graveside services for Ernest Hall of Midland are set for 3 p.m. today, Oct. 12, at Resthaven Memorial Park with the Rev. Bob Porterfield of West Kentucky Baptist Church officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Hall

Hall died late Thursday in a Midland hospital.

He was born March 27, 1909, in Mitchell County to Alan E. and Ada Hargrove Hall.

He was reared in Mitchell County and Sand Springs where the family farmed.

Hall moved to Midland in 1927 and he married Helen Buffington here in 1928.

He worked for Eldor Chevrolet as an auto mechanic for more than 30 years.

He was preceded in death by his wife.

Survivors include four sons, Rex Lloyd Hall and Larry Everett Hall, both of Midland, Ronald Edward Hall of Kilgore and Dennis Hall of Weatherford; two daughters, Helen Loretta Oldaker of Weatherford and Carolyn Holcomb of Carlsbad, N.M.; one brother, Floyd Hall of Midland; 13 grandchildren; 18 great-grandchildren; five great-great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Ray Radney

Services for Ray Roe Radney, 72, of Pasadena are to be at 3 p.m. today, Oct 12, at SouthPark Cemetery in Pearland. Arrangements are under the direction of SouthPark Funeral Home in Pearland.

Radney died Thursday, Oct. 10, in Pasadena.

He was born Aug. 9, 1924, in Tyler.

He graduated from Pasadena High School.

He was a senior mechanical draftsman with Exxon in Midland and Houston before retiring in 1969.

He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and earned a Navy Air Medal and Purple Heart. He had also served as a master sergeant in the U.S. Air Force Reserves. He was a member of VFW Post 4395, American Legion Post 521, Air Force Sergeants Association and Boy Scouts.

He was preceded in death by two brothers, Doyle Radney and Junior Radney and a son, Gary M. Radney.

Survivors include his wife, Lorraine G. Radney of Pasadena; two sons, Robert W. Radney of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Raymond D. Radney of Pasadena; a daughter, Colleen G. Radney Sieker of Pasadena; two brothers, Jerry D. Radney and Wayne C. Radney, both of Picton; and four grandchildren.

Joy Rambo

Services for Joy Frances Rambo of Midland are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

Simpson judge says defense can assert police frame up

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — Handing a notable victory to O.J. Simpson's defense lawyers, a Santa Monica judge ruled Friday that they could assert in their opening arguments that a police detective had planted the famed bloody glove behind Simpson's guest house in an effort to frame him.

"The evidence is very thin to support a planting theory argument," Judge Hiroshi Fujisaki observed. But he said he had been swayed by the Oct. 2 perjury conviction of Mark Fuhrman, the detective who Simpson's defenders say orchestrated a frame-up.

Fuhrman pleaded no contest last week only to charges that he had lied about using racial slurs in the recent past. But Fujisaki said that though the conviction concerned only "a collateral matter," it was "sufficient for the court to allow reference to that matter."

The ruling was a departure from the initial tone Fujisaki set in the civil trial, which began Sept 17, accusing Simpson of causing "wrongful death." In his earlier pretrial rulings, he had said that he would not tolerate unsubstant ted allegations that the Los Angeles Police Department was racist, incompetent and cynically intent on sending Simpson to jail.

Those allegations had been the basis for the successful defense that won Simpson an acquittal last October. He had been accused of murdering his former wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ronald Goldman. Dissatisfied with the criminal-court verdict, the families of the two victims are bringing the civil suit, which is now in the stage of jury selection.

The ruling on the bloody glove "makes a huge difference for the defense," said Victor Gold, a professor at Loyola Law School, because the defense has never managed to come up with any other explanation for the circumstantial evidence against Simpson, aside from its claims that the police had planted it.

"If the judge had deprived them of that theory, they would have been left to come up with something even wilder, like space aliens or Colombian drug lords," Gold said.

The judge's decision to allow the defense to try to implicate Fuhrman involved a big jump in logic, but one that made some sense, Gold said. "The logic is that if one of the principal investigating officers was willing to lie under oath about one thing, then maybe he lied about other things more directly connected to the investigation," he said.

Along with allowing the mention of the bloody glove found on Simpson's Brentwood home, Fujisaki also said the defense could argue that some bloody socks and some blood taken from Mrs. Simpson's back gate had been planted.

But he said it could not contend that blood found in Simpson's Ford Bronco the day after the slayings on the night of June 12, 1994, or a knit cap found at Mrs. Simpson's condominium, had been planted. He also denied the defense's request to allow jurors to visit the scene of the killings and Simpson's home.

The judge had told the defense as the trial began that if it wanted to accuse the Los Angeles Police Department of ill-doings, it would have to provide concrete evidence to that effect.

Friday's rulings came as the result of the defense's response to that challenge: a document of more than 100 pages in which Simpson's lawyers contended that blood found on socks in Simpson's bedroom and on Mrs. Simpson's gate contained an anti-clotting preservative found in commercially sold blood and that the bloody glove showed no sign of having remained on the ground overnight, as it would have if it had not been planted.

According to a transcript of ABC News' 20/20 program Robert Kardashian said that he had been talking to Simpson over the telephone during the famous slow-motion Bronco chase, and that Simpson had said, "Bobby, I put a gun to my head and I pulled the trigger and it didn't go off."

Kardashian, who may be called as a witness in the civil trial, said that at first he had thought Simpson was joking, but that after he hung up, "I just kept hearing his voice, and I realized that he was telling the truth."

FBI ready to begin family interviews, considering reward for Flight 800 info

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. — In a further search for clues in the crash of Trans World Airlines Flight 800, federal investigators will begin interviewing relatives of the 230 victims in the next few weeks, and are considering offering a reward for information that helps them solve the mystery.

James Kallstrom, an assistant director of the FBI who heads the New York office, said at a press briefing Friday that he has delayed beginning the interviews out of deference to the grieving relatives and because investigators have been occupied with other tasks around the world.

In preparation for the interviews, FBI agents have been counseled by relatives of victims of previous air disasters on how to deal sensitively with family members. Friday, Kallstrom said the relatives would not be interrogated as much as they will be made "part of the team."

"They're part of the solution," he said. "They're not part of the problem."

Many relatives have already come forward on their own to talk to investigators, and law-enforcement officials have said that based on reviews of the backgrounds of the passengers and flight members, none of the victims are suspected as culprits or intended targets of the crash.

In an Oct. 1 letter to the relatives, Kallstrom wrote that agents would be contacting them "to discuss the investigation, any concerns you may have concerning the investigation and any information you may be able to share which could help us in our efforts."

Kallstrom also said Friday that the government was considering offering a reward for information leading investigators to suspects, even though investigators have yet to determine whether the July 17 crash of the Boeing 747 was caused by sabotage or mechanical failure.

He said it would be unorthodox to offer a reward for information leading to the solution of a crime before knowing whether a crime had been committed. "Typically, you'd want to know what you're offering a reward for," he said. But he said cash rewards often work and "we want people to talk."

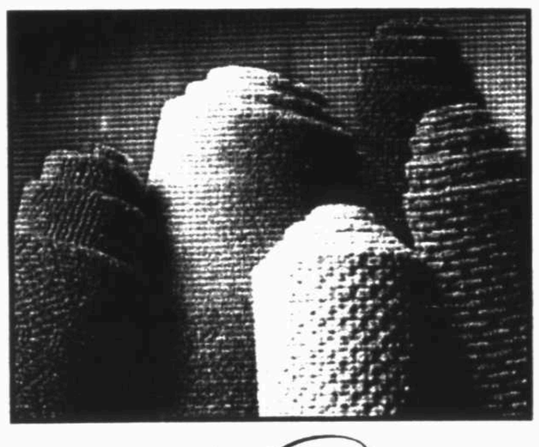

Kallstrom said it remains possible that the mystery of the crash could be solved through intelligence information, but he said the most likely means is examining the pieces of the airplane. Officials have said since the day after the crash that the three possible causes are a bomb, a missile or a mechanical failure.

"We think if we get all the parts of the airplane, we'll know what happened," he said.

While more than 90 percent of the airplane has been recovered from the Atlantic Ocean off Long Island, officials said Friday that they were continuing to find pieces of the airplane on the ocean floor using sonar equipment.

Many of the nearly 400 sonar "hits" — objects detected by the sound detection system — are believed to be airplane parts, and remain to be examined by divers. Robert Francis, the vice chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, said it would take about 10 days of diving to retrieve all those pieces.

Controversial book pulled from Baltimore schools

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Froggy's decadent lifestyle — the smoking, the criminal activity — got him kicked out of school.

The controversial illustrations in Kevin O'Malley's book "Froggy Went A-Courtin'" prompted officials to yank it from library shelves in Baltimore County.

Froggy is depicted as a 1930s gangster — burning money, robbing, smoking and toting a revolver as he speeds away from police, portrayed as cats.

O'Malley, 35, who has authored and illustrated 14 books, said the school district should have given him a chance to defend his work before banning it.

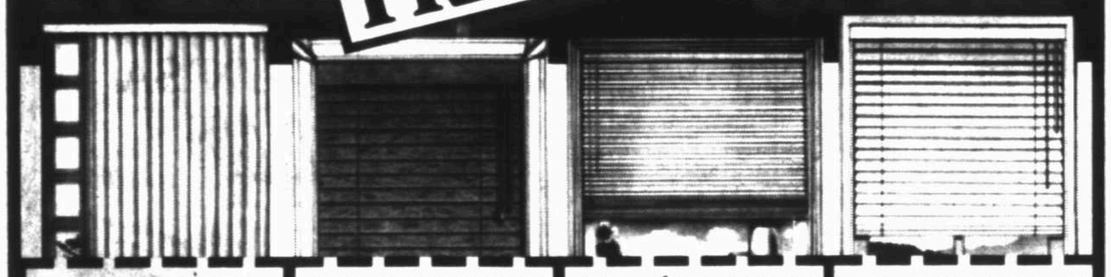

"I'm angry that they put me in this position without being heard," he said in Friday's editions of The (Baltimore) Sun.

School library coordinator Della Curtis said the ban isn't censorship, but "selection" — although she acknowledged that she couldn't remember the school district doing such a thing previously in her 27 years there.

The unanimous decision, made several weeks ago by a committee of elementary school teachers and administrators, followed a complaint from the parent of a first-grader at Wellwood Elementary School.

Dole campaign debates over stance on Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the eve of a strategy summit, Bob Dole's campaign was embroiled Friday in debates over whether to be more aggressive in challenging President Clinton's ethics and whether to gamble millions on a late push in California.

One adviser, former Education Secretary William Bennett, told reporters that the Dole campaign next week would release a lengthy report on Clinton administration ethical lapses. He said it would include material on the collection of FBI background files by the Clinton White House and legal work by Hillary Rodham Clinton that has come under scrutiny by Whitewater investigators.

"These are very serious charges and go to the issue of the public trust," said Bennett, one of several Republicans who has publicly urged Dole to turn a spotlight on Clinton's character and ethics. "Sunlight is the best disinfectant."

After listing several alleged Clinton administration ethical lapses, Bennett said, "If Bill Clinton is re-elected, these issues will become more and more serious ... and we may go through something like we went through with Watergate."

When asked about Bennett's remarks, two top Dole aides initially said they knew of no plans to issue a report. Later, one said Bennett was pushing the idea on the campaign, and that Dole had given it a qualified blessing by saying he had no objection to the campaign compiling such a report. But Dole was unlikely to personally take part in releasing it, this aide said.

Another idea being discussed was having the Republican National Committee pay for harder-edged advertising focusing on alleged administration ethical lapses, although senior Dole aides are divided over whether such an effort would be effective.

Speaking more generally about comments from Republicans that Dole has been too soft on Clinton, Dole communications director John Buckley said: "Flailing away at Clinton and calling him a bad guy might make everybody feel good for a minute and a half, but it is not going to defeat him." Buckley said it made more sense to address the character issue by highlighting broken promises.

Dole was taking a day off the campaign trail to preside over Saturday's strategy meeting at his Washington campaign headquarters. The major goal was to map out a state-by-state electoral strategy for the final three weeks of the campaign, including advertising targets and topics, and the travel schedules for Dole, running mate Jack Kemp and top campaign surrogates, primarily Elizabeth Dole.

With just 19 campaign days left after Wednesday's final debate, there is little time for Dole to counter a lopsided Clinton electoral advantage that includes double-digit leads in the big industrial battlegrounds.

New Democratic polling also found Clinton with a double-digit lead in Kentucky and an eight-point lead in Montana, two must-win states for Dole.

School-bus driver sentenced to 6 years for having sex with minor

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — A self-proclaimed witch was sentenced Friday to six years in prison for having sex with a 14-year-old boy who said she put him under a spell and sent him love letters signed in her blood.

Kerri Lynn Patavino also was ordered to serve five years' probation before friends and fellow practitioners of the Wicca religion led her from the courtroom, having raised the $2,750 needed to keep her free on bond during her appeal.

The 28-year-old woman could have been sentenced to 115 years in prison for her Aug. 21 conviction of five counts of second-degree sexual assault, six counts of risk of injury to a minor, third-degree burglary and sixth-degree larceny.

Patavino, the boy's school-bus driver, also was accused of giving the boy drugs, and stealing a ring, skateboard, videotapes and other possessions from the boy's home.

Neither Patavino nor her lawyer, Joseph Mirsky, would comment. Her friends, however, denounced the sentence issued by Superior Court Judge Joseph Gormley Jr., saying it amounted to religious persecution.

"I think this whole thing is a mockery of the witch trials," said Patti Clark. "It doesn't matter whether you're a witch, a Christian, a Jewish person — you should be afraid today."

Wicca is an ancient, nature-based religion whose practitioners call themselves witches.

Prosecutors have said the case had nothing to do with Patavino's religion, and was based solely on sexual misconduct.

"The jury's verdict was not a referendum on her personal lifestyle or beliefs," prosecutor John Blawie said. "What this conviction is about is that it is wrong for an adult, male or female, to use a child for purposes of sexual gratification."

During the trial, the youth, now 16, testified that he had a sexual relationship with Patavino from March through June 1995.

The teen said they had sex four times a week for the next four months. She also gave him love letters when he got on her school bus each day, including one that was signed with her blood, he said.

The boy said he sought to break off his relationship with Patavino when she started making him do "weird things," including cutting herself with a razor during sex and forcing him to lick her blood.

The boy also testified Patavino cast a witch's spell on him to make him stay. He finally told this story to his mother, who brought him to police.

Patavino, who has three children, plans to appeal. She is being backed by a national network of Wicca practitioners.

Medical marijuana movement leader arrested

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The founder of a club that provided marijuana to people with AIDS, cancer and other terminal diseases was arrested Friday, accused of selling pot to drug peddlers.

Dennis Peron, also an organizer of a ballot measure to legalize marijuana for medical uses, was arrested two months after state agents shut down his Cannabis Buyers Club and seized more than 100 pounds of marijuana.

San Francisco's prosecutor and other local officials who had tolerated the club for years criticized the raid, which was ordered by California's attorney general, Dan Lungren.

Cartoonist Garry Trudeau also ridiculed the raid in his Doonesbury comic strip, and Lungren responded by accusing Trudeau of encouraging a "wink-and-nod" attitude toward drugs.

City District Attorney Terence Hallinan said Friday's arrest was an "abuse of the prosecutorial power" by Lungren to influence the November vote on the medical marijuana ballot measure — Proposition 215.

But Lungren said a two-year investigation was initiated by city police, and he noted that state drug agents found the club was providing marijuana to children, drug peddlers and people who weren't really ill.

"The timing has nothing to do with 215," said Lungren, who also ordered the raid of the Los Angeles Cannabis Buyers Club last month.

The indictment, which charged Peron with conspiracy, and possession and sale of marijuana, was obtained across the bay, in Alameda County.

"They didn't have the guts to charge us in San Francisco," Peron told the San Francisco Examiner from Santa Rita Jail. "They just barged in this morning."

Hallinan said he would try to have the case prosecuted in San Francisco rather than in Alameda County.

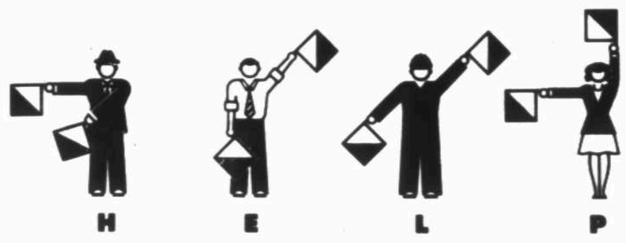

The club openly sold the illegal drug since 1991, operating from a storefront on a busy street and claiming 11,000 members. Members insisted they had rigid restrictions and required proof of a patient's medical condition to sell marijuana.

But the indictment says undercover agents were able to obtain marijuana with faked notes.

Agreement puts tomato-dumping case on hold until after elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — A complaint that threatened the supply of cheaper and arguably tastier Mexican tomatoes was put on hold Friday, allowing imports this winter season and defusing a major trade issue in some states before the November election.

The Commerce Department announced the proposed agreement, which suspends an anti-dumping case brought by U.S. tomato growers and the Florida Department of Agriculture. A final agreement should be announced after Oct. 28.

The proposal will allow continued shipments of Mexican tomatoes, especially during the winter months, but at a price floor comparable to the minimum that Florida growers say they need to make a living.

The trade spat was highly sensitive for an administration that has strongly supported the North American Free Trade Agreement but wanted to avoid angering voterich Florida.

"It's a very good day for Florida agriculture," said Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford. "We don't mind competing with Mexico. We just want to make sure we didn't go out of business."

The Mexican government released a statement that complained about the heavy-handed nature of the U.S. investigation and suggested the United States acted "outside the disciplines" of NAFTA and the World Trade Organization.

Florida has typically supplied the United States with fresh tomatoes, the state's leading winter vegetable crop, worth as much as $800 million. But Florida has begun losing ground.

Floridians and others complained that Mexico was flooding the market with cheap tomatoes, undercutting U.S. prices and putting domestic growers out of business.

Mexico's statement disagreed with that contention.

Under the agreement, Mexican tomatoes cannot enter this country at less than 21 cents a pound.

"The agreement will provide strong relief to the tomato growers in Florida and other states, and help preserve jobs in the industry," said Commerce Secretary Mickey Kantor. "Mexican growers will have continued access to the U.S. market, but only on fair terms."

Not all U.S. interests were happy with the agreement, however. Republican Rep. Jim Kolbe of Arizona, which is a major entry point for goods from Mexico, said the agreement "is further demonstration of the contempt this administration has for international trade agreements and for the process of settling disputes," he said. "It is, simply stated, blackmail."

Whether shoppers will notice is doubtful because of markups on the way to the produce counter. About 20 cents of every consumer dollar spent on fresh vegetables goes to the farmer.

A pound of tomatoes averaged $1.50 in supermarkets last December, higher than in any previous December. But the January and February prices, at $1.10 and $1.08, were lower than in previous years.

If the Commerce Department had ruled Mexico was dumping tomatoes, the United States could have curbed imports through stiff duties.

Consumer advocates and even Agriculture Department economists note that other factors have led to a Mexican import surge beyond the easing of limits under NAFTA.

Weather problems, the peso devaluation, and cheaper Mexican labor have counted. So, too, have the quality of Mexican tomatoes and advances in farming and irrigation.

The climate lets Mexicans grow tomatoes that stay ripe long after picking. Florida tomatoes are picked green and hard, then given a dose of ethylene gas to turn them red.

Shoppers like the Mexican tomatoes, while the firmer, gassed tomatoes are used more in restaurants.

Clinton signs bills on intelligence funding, economic espionage

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton signed a bill Friday that boosts intelligence agency spending and another that makes theft of trade secrets a federal crime.

Clinton said he signed the 1997 Intelligence Authorization Act despite his objection to three of the bill's provisions, including one that establishes three new assistant directors of central intelligence under CIA Director John Deutch.

Although the nation's intelligence budget is an official secret, it is reported to total about $30 billion for the 1997 fiscal year, up 4.9 percent from 1996.

In a written statement issued at the White House, Clinton said he would support Deutch in asking the next Congress to repeal the provision that created assistant directors for intelligence collection, analysis and administration.

"I share his concern that these provisions will add another layer of positions requiring Senate confirmation" without a corresponding increase in the CIA director's authority to manage the intelligence agencies, Clinton said.

The bill:

— Gives the FBI power to subpoena local telephone records.

— Authorizes the CIA and the National Security Agency to collect data on foreign citizens abroad for U.S. investigations.

— Requires Senate confirmation of the CIA's general counsel. That is meant to prevent political influence over a position designed to block illegal covert operations.

— Prohibits federal employment of senior intelligence officials for three years after their departure from government.

It also prohibits the CIA from using American journalists as spies. But the restriction could be waived in extraordinary circumstances and the CIA could still have its own agents pose as journalists. The bill would not prohibit journalists who choose to provide information from doing so, according to Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., the primary author of the provision.

News executives had urged that the prohibition be tighter.

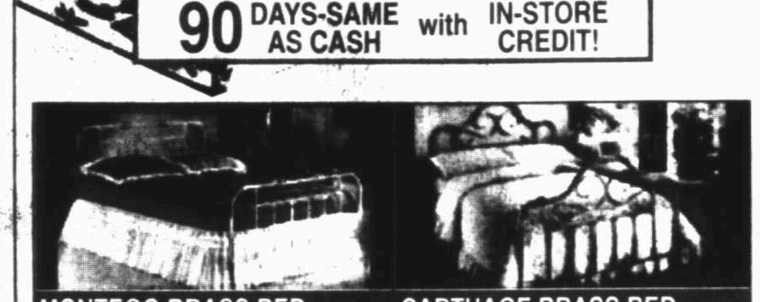

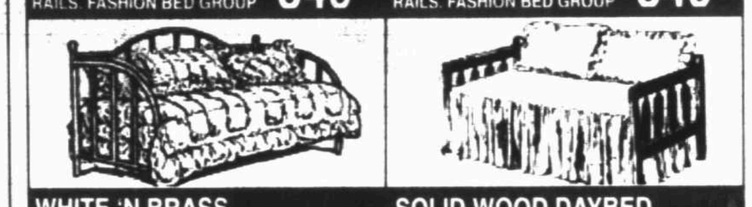

In his statement Friday, Clinton made no mention of the journalist provision but said he objected to a provision which requires the CIA director to concur or be consulted in the appointment of certain other intelligence officials.

AOL's good news

America Online is readying a new Mac version, and it's a big improvement. The leading online service has rebuilt itself from the ground up.

In version 3.0, expected to be released this fall, everything is different. There's a sharp new look and lots of new features.

Gone are some annoying things, like the delay when AOL was updating artwork. And now the service will automatically update itself when necessary. No more downloading the latest version.

While not yet commercially distributed, version 3.0 is available for a test drive. AOL is letting members download beta copies. Next time you log on, type in the keyword Mac Beta. You'll enter an area where you can download a free test version of 3.0.

Be forewarned, though. This is not commercial software yet. It's still buggy. But after six weeks of testing, I found the beta version of 3.0 fairly stable.

Here's what I found. That familiar greeting, "you've got mail," is still there. But that's about it.

The first new thing you'll notice is something called the toolbar. It sits atop your screen, although you can move it anywhere or turn it off.

The toolbar is a strip that holds a series of buttons. Each button represents an automated, common task. For example, click on the pencil-and-envelope button and up pops the format to send electronic mail.

Electronic mail has been greatly improved. This popular feature is more powerful yet easier to use. It's been rebuilt to resemble a tabbed notebook. Click on a tab to read current mail, see saved mail or see a history of what you've sent.

You can now drag and drop e-mail addresses and text. For example, you can drag an e-mail address from a message into your address book.

The address book also now resembles a tabbed notebook. From it you can edit addresses, drag in new ones and address mail.

AOL 3.0 has greatly enhanced its Internet service. Now there's a button in the toolbar (it's the globe) that takes you right to the World Wide Web.

Alums keep tabs on teams on Internet broadcasts

By David Wilkison
Associated Press Writer

Andy Johnson had a hard time explaining to his wife why he was out driving around the Boston suburbs at 10 o'clock on a Saturday night.

But as he tuned his car radio to a distant AM signal and heard his beloved LSU Tigers football come through the static, Johnson knew he wasn't alone.

"My wife has no idea what college football in the South is all about," said Johnson, 33, of Swampscott, Mass. "I told her there were probably people all over doing this."

For Johnson and thousands of other frustrated fans who try to follow their college teams from afar, the solution may be just a mouse click away on the Internet.

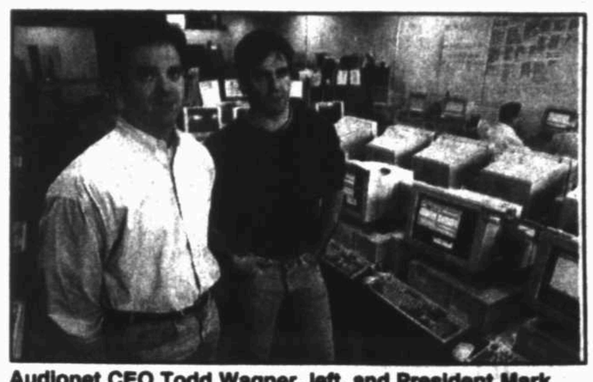

"We're their connection to salvation," said Mark Cuban, president of Dallas-based AudioNet. "Alumni are just going gaga over it."

Cuban's year-old AudioNet helps relay live radio broadcasts each week for more than 80 schools, from Division I-A Miami to Division III Albion College.

The result on a home computer with audio capability and the right software is usually clear, AM radio quality sound.

"It's basically like being able to listen to the radio, but you can listen to it anywhere in the country or anywhere in the world," said Dharm Guruswamy, 24, an Atlanta resident who uses the service to follow his alma mater, Maryland.

■ Participants in high tech-low tech merger see it as wave of the future.

SEMINOLE — If opposites attract, a rural West Texas farm machinery dealer and a slick Internet content provider based in New York's trendy SoHo district would be electromagnetized.

Yet, the seemingly out-of-place merger between Texas Equipment Co. and Marinex came about for the same reasons any companies merge: Each side perceives the other as a valued financial partner entering the next century.

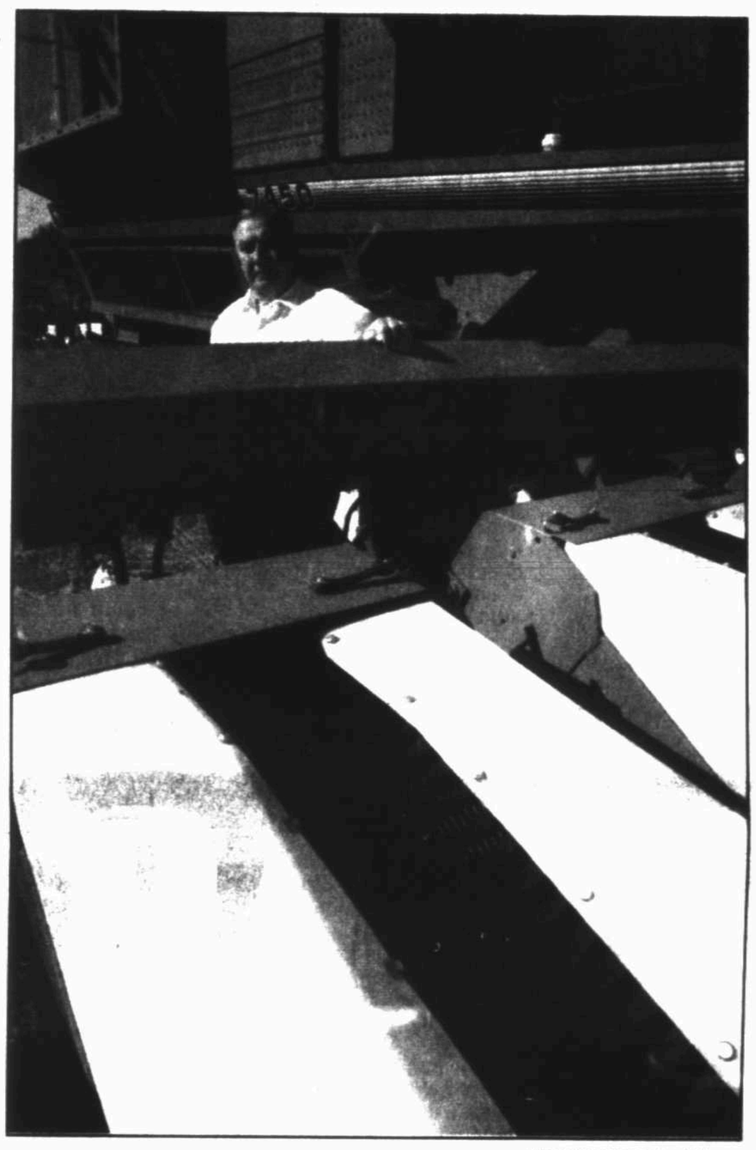

Paul Condit, an ex-farmer and founder of Texas Equipment in this small city halfway between Lubbock and Midland, sees the Internet company as a superhighway to his dream of creating a gigantic retail outlet that can supply farmers everything from seed to silos.

"The only thing I knew (about Marinex) was that I could merge with this company and I could get on NASDAQ," he said.

Marinex benefits from the capital infusion offered by Texas Equipment's profitability and $25 million in annual revenues, said Jonathan Braun, the Columbia University-educated former journalist who co-founded the internet provider six years ago.

Marinex stock, which traded at 2 7/8 on the NASDAQ bulletin board on Sept. 12,

Expectant moms find help online

By P.J. Huffstutter
Los Angeles Daily News

LOS ANGELES — When Debra Young Krizman discovered she was pregnant, her first impulse was to share the experience with another woman. But her grandmother lived in Mississippi, her mother was in Louisiana and her best friend in Texas. And though two of her twentysomething neighbors in Studio City were also pregnant, both were significantly younger than Krizman.

In this most intimate of relationships between a woman and her body, hundreds of people like Krizman are using the Internet to build a unique, and equally personal, virtual sisterhood. Tucked in the corner of her sunny breakfast nook, Krizman's computer became her link to nearly 300 other pregnant women who were all due in the same month.

A member of the July "moms' club" — one of 12 Internet mailing lists created for women expecting their babies around the same time — Krizman has found the support she needed during her pregnancy and has built friendships that could last throughout her child's life.

"I don't mind car pooling to preschool or Little League with my neighbors," said Krizman, 41, a national sales manager for a production music library. "But I don't want them knowing about the kind of birth control I prefer or the sexual positions my husband and I find the easiest to use."

Like the round-robin letters their grandmothers used to keep the family in touch, these women are using the Internet to update each other on their daily crises and celebrations. After subscribing with a simple command, each woman can send messages to one address and have it automatically forwarded to everyone else on the list.

The women are a mix of young and old, career-oriented and stay-at-home, first-time and more experienced moms. Each group fluctuates in size from 100 to 400 members, with some subscribers to the free e-mail list being more voluble than others.

"When I became pregnant, I suddenly felt isolated from everyone else around me at work, in my community and on the Internet," said Dixie Ann Conley, 28, a data management specialist for an engineering company and a member of the November list.

"Most of my co-workers can't even remember my due date, much less muster up the interest in the details of

It's official: Here's what's cool on the web

By James Ryan
N.Y. Times News Service

In the peculiar lexicon of the Internet, "cool" has become the prime adjective to distinguish between the wheat and the chaff among the 300,000 or so sites on the World Wide Web. Members of the emerging Web design industry wore their synthetic finery last Thursday to toast the best in their field at the Cool Site of the Year Awards held at Webster Hall, a nightclub in the East Village in New York City.

The five nominees in each of nine categories were selected by Richard Grimes and his staff from among the 365 sites featured on their Cool Site of the Day Web site, which has become an arbiter of taste on the Internet. Selections, which were then voted on by the public, ranged from the multimillion-dollar Discovery Channel Online site, with a staff of 30, to Gurl, a neofeminist site created by a group of New York University women.

Discovery Channel Online, which changes its content daily and dispatches digital correspondents to the Amazon rain forest, was named Cool Site of the Year over Damaged Californians, a black-humor site created by performance artists; iMusic, a new music site, and two Web magazines, Salon and Word.

Discovery Channel Online picked up a second award for Cool Design of the Year. Two graphics artists who design Salon, Mignon Khargie and Elizabeth Kairys, won for Cool Web Designer of the Year.

Tongue in cheek, the awards contained a category titled Still Cool Site of the Year. Tellingly, all the nominees — Crash Site, Dominion, Internet Underground Music Archives, Total New York and the winner, Hot Wired from Wired magazine — have yet to celebrate their third birthday in operation.

Just what constitutes cool is, of course, open to interpretation. Official-

Dear Amy: I went to this Web page and some of the things I clicked on didn't work. The computer said I needed a plug-in. What's that?—Karin, Lynchburg, VA
Dear Karin: Some Web sites offer special downloadable files that are animated movies or sounds. They are very cool and worth checking out. Plug-ins are software that extend the capabilities of your browser software so these movies or sounds play within the browser window. Most of these Web sites have a link to a place where you can download what you need. Helper applications do the same kind of thing but they are like running another program in addition to the browser. There's a page that explains all the Netscape plug-ins and helper applications at http://home.netscape.com/comprod/mirror/navcomponents_download.html

Dear Amy: I am working on my school's Web page. Do you have any suggestions on what I should do?—Elliot, Lafayette, IN
Dear Elliot: There are lots of things you can do. Some basics are pictures of your school, the school's mascot or logo and maybe a description of your town or community. Lots of schools have calendars of upcoming events or a favorite links page made up of suggestions by your fellow students and teachers. To see what other schools have done or for some help, go to Web 66 at http://web66.coled.umn.edu/

COMBINE: Merger means one-stop shopping for farmers nears reality shot to 4 on Sept. 17, the day the merger was announced. The concern, which isn't traded every day, since has settled at 3 1/8.

The new company will remain in Seminole among the cotton and peanut fields, although the paper holding company that technically owns both companies is based in Nevada. Marinex will stay in SoHo.

Condit says the merger will move the company toward "one-stop shopping" for agricultural producers.

Condit plans to supply financing, equipment, raw products, insurance and virtually anything else a producer could want, and he intends to do it from this city of 6,500 residents.

"The Mom and Pop operations are on their way out. We're going to be able to buy in volume, which will make us more money and save the consumer money, he said. "The farmer can come to our facility for everything that he'll need."

Lining up loans for such a venture would have been quixotic fancy, Condit says, so he pursued a partner with which he'd go public.

Unbeknownst to him, Braun's securities lawyer, Charles Barkley, had pinpointed Texas Equipment in February with similar intentions.

"We don't know how long the incubation period for (the Internet) industry is, whether it's six months or six years or whatever," Barkley said from his North Carolina office. "What we had was a speculative venture merging with a proven moneymaker, and I think (Wall Street) will respond to that."

Some analysts were taken aback upon hearing that a New York company that produces an Internet soap opera and an upbeat CD-ROM called "Trouble & Attitude" would unite with a tractor dealer.

"It doesn't sound like there are very many synergies between those two kinds of companies," said Mark Jordan, a high-tech stock analyst for A.G. Edwards in St. Louis. "I think investors would rather see (an Internet) company merge with another from its own field."

Braun said he knows naysayers will say he's hitched his company to a tractor instead of a star, but he attributes that to urban attitudes as provincial as those found in the smallest American towns.

"It's just perception," he said. "In New York they'd look at it like that, but someday they'll say we're very forward-looking."

Braun, who lives in a rural area 1 1/2 hours north of New York, said whether rural consolidations are good or bad, it's the historic trend.

"One of the driving forces is the need to get larger to be able to compete in terms of volume, purchasing, competitive pricing, and especially in financing," said Cary Mathis, the head of Texas Tech University's agricultural economics department.

The void that could be left as small-time agribusinesses disappear in the shadows of Texas Equipment and larger concerns doesn't mean the small rural company is dead, Mathis said.

"By the time you say that, then enterprising entrepreneurs discover a niche and become successful and specialized," Mathis said, pointing to emerging Internet companies, like Marinex, that hope to make money alongside monoliths like Microsoft and IBM.

"If I only knew what those new agribusinesses were, I'd have my money ready."

Merging 'Net, farm equipment polar opposites

By Mark Babineck
Associated Press Writer

SEMINOLE — Customers will have about as much chance of buying a provocative men's CD-ROM at Paul Condit's Texas Equipment Co. here as they will a cotton stripper at Jonathan Braun's Marinex Multimedia in New York.

The two companies are married on paper, though, and will fall under the umbrella of the 24-year-old farm machinery dealer.

Condit's company finances, sells and services John Deere equipment, though he intends to use capital raised by the merger to expand into an agricultural equipment superstore.

"Operating loans, insurance, equipment, financing of equipment — it's a concept that all your big retailers are taking," Condit said. "That's what I've been working with me and my people for the last year and a half."

Workers screech out of the Texas Equipment parking lot at the lunch hour to hit one of the few restaurants in this small West Texas town. The Dairy Queen is across the street for those who prefer to walk.

Meanwhile, the number of delis, coffee houses and knish stands within a few block radius of Marinex's SoHo office might outnumber the people in Seminole.

Inside, co-founder Jonathan Braun heads up the creative side of the business. Among its innovations are "Trouble & Attitude," a CD-ROM magazine aimed at young men, and "The East Village," billed as the first virtual soap opera available over the Internet.

Marinex also runs another website called "The Biz," crammed with entertainment news and features. Like most other content providers, Marinex is losing money while waiting for the industry to explode.

"I liken it to being in television in 1946," Braun said, "two years before the golden age began."

COOL: Leary's page recognized

ly, Grimes listed his criteria as changing content, usefulness, navigability, downloading time, design and graphics, sense of identity, purpose and entertainment value.

But Ms. Kairys defined it as "simple and elegant but still cutting edge," while Andrea Meditch, executive editor of Discovery Channel Online, defined it as "something that engages your senses, your emotions, and, if you're lucky, your heart." Total New York's editor, Guy Garcia, had a succinct definition: "Still being in business after two years."

In general, the evening was designed to celebrate the independent spirit of the Web and its designers. Microsoft's much-publicized Web magazine, Slate, was conspicuously absent from the nominees and its browser, Internet Explorer, which did receive a nomination for Cool Browser of the Year, was roundly hissed. Netscape's popular Navigator browser won in the category.

Winning in the Personal Web Site category was Timothy Leary's home page, a site that chronicled the life and death of the counterculture figure, LSD proponent and, most recently, on-line aficionado.

In other awards, Ask Dr. Science, a light' arted science site, was ho. red with Cool Site Script of the Year. The programming language Java from Sun Microsystems was named Cool Innovation of the Year over Real Audio, Pointcast, Shockwave and The Palace.

Alta Vista, from Digital Equipment, which is rapidly catching up to its pioneering brothers Lycos and Yahoo, was named the Cool Search Engine of the Year.

The master of ceremonies, Penn Gillette, talking half of the comedy team Penn and Teller, did not miss the humor in holding a live-awards ceremony to celebrate accomplishments in a virtual arena. He juggled, performed magic tricks and brought a beautiful model on stage, while a videotape of his introductory speech, playing on a large screen behind him, was broadcast to the Internet audience.

"You're not missing a thing on the Web," he assured his virtual audience.

MOMS: Internet's advantage is no one knows when you're blushing my running battle with food intolerances during this pregnancy. To the people on my list, these things are all-important because we're all going through the same experiences at the same time."

The flurry of mail is a blend of gossip and medical advice, ranging from "What do you think of Ariole as a girl's name?" to "Will the amniocentesis hurt?" Sheila Monrovin, a member of the November list, worried she wouldn't be able to breast-feed her baby because of a pre-pregnancy breast reduction.

"When I first found out I was going to have a baby, one woman actually said to me, 'Well, if you didn't have that operation you would have been able to feed your baby like a true mother,'" said Monrovin, 33, who lives in Denver. "I felt terrible for months, like I was some sort of failure and my baby would have to suffer for it. But then I started reading the list and learned other women had gone through the same thing. I couldn't find that kind of sense of relief by reading a book."

Nor, say the women, do they always feel comfortable turning to their obstetrician. Just ask Karla Jenkins, an OB-GYN herself and a member of the January list. When members of her group have fears about medical procedures or concerns about changes in their bodies, Jenkins says she tries to offer whatever comfort she can.

"The list is not a substitute for seeing your doctor. It's more of an emotional supplement," said Jenkins, who works in Seattle. "It does help the women figure out a list of specific questions they can ask their doctor at each check-up, as well as questions about the latest medical advances."

Part of these lists' appeal, say subscribers, is the Net's inherent sense of anonymity — particularly when discussing their changing physiology.

"On the Internet, no one knows you're blushing," said August list member Tandy Ratliff, 26, a former director of operations at a Portland, Maine-based on-line service provider. "I felt so close to these people that I made sure my husband brought his laptop (computer) from work to the hospital so I could dial out and send e-mail right away to announce the birth of Brigit."

FOOTBALL: Audiences have topped the 75,000 mark

(From 1B)

Fans unable to see their teams on television have long relied on creative ways to follow games, whether it be a sports ticker on TV, a costly telephone service or a friend's phone beside a radio in another city.

Since many people pay a monthly flat fee for unlimited Internet use and the software is free, costs are small compared to the alternatives.

Fewer than two dozen schools had their games on-line at the end of last season, but the selection exploded this year. Cuban expects more than 100 by the end of this season, many of which will also offer basketball and other sports.

"The Internet is another medium for us to get our name out there," said Jon Jackson, sports information director for Southern Methodist. SMU's Sept. 9, 1995, game with Arkansas was the first to be broadcast on the Internet.

"Obviously, I think it's most beneficial to alums around the country that may not have the chance to come see us play live or can't pick up the local radio broadcast," Jackson said. "I don't think it would be a wise decision for a school not to do it."

Guruswamy listens to Maryland games, and coach Mark Duffner's weekly talk show, from a Georgia Tech computer lab.

"It's just really convenient," the graduate student said. "There are some games that aren't televised and it actually gets me into school to get some work done for two or three hours unless the game is a blowout."

Rutgers University officials had no idea their games had entered cyberspace through broadcaster WOR until happy alumni began calling. The athletic department soon will begin promoting it in all its alumni mailings.

"It's excellent and it costs me nothing," said associate athletic director Kevin MacConnell. "It's a no-brainer."

That was the idea, Cuban said.

"We wanted to create a scenario where there was one place to go where you could find almost any college football game and it had to be something unobtrusive for the schools," Cuban said. "It had to be easy to do."

While the technology comes from a Seattle company, the broadcasts were the brainchild of Cuban and partner Todd Wagner — two frustrated Indiana alums who found it hard to catch all of the Hoosier basketball games.

"We thought if there were a way to allow people to listen to games from their hometowns, that would be cool," Cuban said. "We said, 'Let's see if we can make it happen over the net,' and we started running with it."

They haven't stopped. On a recent Saturday, more than 75,000 people tuned in to listen to nearly 50 college games, some attracting as many as 5,000 listeners, Cuban said.

"They're willing to put up with the quality, or the lack thereof, because they can finally have access to the live broadcast," said Rob Deakin, general manager of Capitol Broadcasting Inc. of Raleigh, N.C.

Capitol Broadcasting owns the broadcasting rights to North Carolina State and Duke football while helping East Carolina get its games on the Internet.

"For people who can't tune into the radio or watch it on TV, it's very valuable," Deakin said. "We constantly get e-mails from people overseas — Hong Kong, Tokyo, the U.K.

"N.C. State has some avid fans in Hong Kong and we get e-mails from them constantly," he said.

AudioNet gets revenue from web page advertising and commercials which run when a user connects to a game. Commercials specifically aimed at the Internet audience could eventually be dropped into the broadcasts.

"This gives us the opportunity to reach people who are outside the standard radio audience," said Roger Gardner, general manager of the sports division of Learfield Communications Inc. of Jefferson City, Mo.

The company holds the broadcast rights to Arizona, Indiana, Iowa, Maryland, Missouri, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Purdue and Wisconsin games and makes them all available on the Internet.

"We don't have a full appreciation of where this will be able to take us in terms of marketing," Gardner said. "We're really in the infant stages of this thing."

The broadcasts use Progressive Network's RealAudio software, which encodes the sound, transmits it in data packets over the Internet, decodes it on the other end and then plays it back, all within seconds.

"This is exactly the kind of things we would have hoped would come out of this technology," said Jay Wampold, a spokesman for the 2-year-old Progressive Network. "This is a great use for it, to have the ability for people to listen to games who otherwise wouldn't be able to."

John Hook, 36, of Knoxville, Tenn., used to spend as much as $15 to catch the end of a Penn State game through a pay-to-listen telephone service. Hook, who occasionally uses the Internet service, hopes the technology progresses beyond improved audio.

"In another two or three years, I expect to be able to pull in the television broadcast of the game right through my computer," he said.

The Web site for AudioNet broadcasts is http://www.audionet.com.

Games broadcast by Learfield Communications are available at http://www.gamecruiser.com.

The RealAudio software is available at http://www.realaudio.com.

Prison audit shows questionable expenditures by contractors

One provider charged the agency more than $7,400 for expenses in unrelated programs that never should have been allowed.

AUSTIN (NYT) — Some agencies and firms doing business with Texas' prison system illegally used taxpayer money for $1,200 worth of Christmas presents for judges, a $2,600 fine for federal safety-law violations and for political campaign contributions, a new state audit revealed Thursday.

And like other audit reports made public in recent months, it blamed sloppy and ineffective rules and program supervision at the Texas Department of Criminal Justice for the problems — this time, primarily in the agency's division that oversees local probation departments.

Prison officials insisted the wrongdoing has been corrected, through new rules and operational changes imposed since allegations of contract infractions earlier this year raised by the VitaPro scandal.

"There is no question that that this agency is very different from what it was 12 months ago," said Allan Polunsky, chairman of the prison agency's nine- member governing board. "This audit was requested by us ... and I definitely feel the problems have been remedied."

Among the violations highlighted in the new audit, criticizing the agency's Community Justice Assistance Division for failing to monitor its allocations to local probation programs:

Companies and agencies under contract with the prison system — "providers" — used contract money to pay for staff parties and other entertainment, donations to charities and other associations and even lobbying expenses for public officials, although state law typically prohibits such expenses.

The audit found $1,200 spent to frame prints for Christmas presents to judges, $1,000 donated to the National Foundation for Women Legislators, $337 for flowers for employees and $176 for dinner for one contractor's managers and various public officials.

One provider paid $2,600 in legal fees to resolve a federal safety violation, in violation of state law, and paid $2,000 to settle another claim that also was questionable.

One provider charged the agency more than $7,400 for expenses in unrelated programs that never should have been allowed.

Another paid more than $2,100 in property taxes, although the provider was a non-profit that should have been exempt from such taxes.

One spent $4,200 on travel without proper documentation and one local probation department spent more than $5,700 for furniture with state money without approval.

The audit does not name which providers or local probation departments were involved in the alleged misspending of state money. Officials at the State Auditor's Office said Thursday they could not elaborate on details.

Despite apparent violations of state law, auditors reported recovery of the misspent money may be unlikely: In its contracts the prison agency failed to provide for such recovery. Under state law, the prison agency allocates state money to local probation ion agencies — called Community Supervision and Corrections Departments — to pay for locally run programs. In 1995, that allocation totaled about $240 million.

The audit criticized the agency's monitoring and supervision of how those local agencies spent that money — either by themselves or through other non- profit agencies or private firms, commonly called providers. Like other recent audits, which have castigated the prison agency operation, Thursday's report also criticized the agency's purchasing system. It noted that auditors found wasted state money, but did not confirm fraud. The report also criticized construction projects involving the locally run state jails, blaming a lack of contract scrutiny for lingering questions about costs and whether the best sites were selected.

Wayne Scott, executive director of the prison agency, said he was confident that "everything of any magnitude" had been corrected. Scott noted a new director appointed for the Community Justice Assistance Division months ago, as well as other personnel changes in the prison system's purchasing and contracts divisions.

Gov. George Bush remains confident that corrections are being made, his press secretary, Karen Hughes, said.

"The problems identified in the report are significant and unacceptable (and) Governor Bush wants it cleaned up," Hughes said. "He wants to be able to assure taxpayers that their money is being spent effectively and wisely."

Curriculum changes may rekindle text-book disputes

AUSTIN (NYT) — Control over the content of Texas public school textbooks — severely restricted by the state Legislature last year — may be raised again as the State Board of Education grapples with wholesale revision of curriculum standards, board members said Thursday. This time, textbook critics — and some State Board of Education members — not only are targeting textbooks, but also the little-known proposed overhaul of curriculum standards for all public schools. "There's a faction that feels, 'We can control textbooks by controlling the curricula,'" said Alma Allen, a Board of Education member from Houston. "We're headed for a Battle Royal."

Uncertainty over how far education board members can go in controlling textbook content aggravates new disputes over the curriculum standards, board members said. The curriculum change is called Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills.

Once unlimited in its power to determine textbook content, the 15-member education board now can only reject textbooks on three criteria — including coverage of essential skills and knowledge.

"Texas textbooks are driving the (curriculum) process," said Donna Ballard, a board member from The Woodlands near Houston.

As the nation's second-largest textbook consumer, Ballard said, Texas textbooks will be the prototype for schools across the nation.

Ballard, Allen and all 12 other education board members are overseeing the bumper-to-bumper overhaul of curriculum standards for all grades. Educators, parents and business leaders who over two years devised the 2,000-page curriculum document call it a blueprint for educating children in a more technologically advanced world.

Board members will hear public testimony today on the new curriculum standards.

But others see the curriculum overhaul as a door into textbook content after the Legislature in 1995 aimed to give local school districts more choices and diminish textbook struggles over religious and political ideology.

Books that are free from errors, meet manufacturing requirements and contain essential academic elements must be recommended for school districts to purchase, regardless of board members' opinions of their content. Board members have challenged the rule, which is awaiting an attorney general opinion.

The new curriculum standards, which will be used to develop textbooks and can be used to reject textbooks, may give board members another way of controlling textbook content.

"The feeling of our committee is that we realized that the (curriculum changes) do more than one thing," said Neal Frey, appointed by Ballard to a committee charged with reviewing proposed social studies standards. "They not only set learning standards for students, but they set textbook-content standards for publishers."

Signs of that surfaced Thursday. Board members were handed alternative proposals for two academic areas — social studies, which includes world history, and English and language arts, which includes reading standards. The alternatives were offered as substitutes for the curriculum standards drafted over the past two years.

Tensions have strained members of the curriculum writing and reviewing teams, as well as some education board members. They complain that Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills standards are too vague, don't correspond to individual grades and don't specify the content teachers should cover in their classrooms.

"I've got to know what my students have been taught before they get to me," said Donna Garner, a teacher from Waco. Garner said her dissatisfation with the new standards, which she helped design, led her to push a substitute that spells out the skills children should learn in each grade, such as phonics, grammar and writing skills.

Frey, a frequent textbook critic who has faulted books for containing only benefits of labor unions or defects of the capitalism system, has asked State Board of Education members to use his social studies-world history alternative for world history textbook bids the board will seek over the next year.

"Our review team is charged with ensuring academic rigor. In order to ensure that, we must first define it," he said.

STATE IN BRIEF

■ Police officer loses lotto lawsuit

HOUSTON — A New Jersey police officer has lost his chance to become a Texas millionaire.

On Friday, U.S. District Judge Ewing Werlein Jr. dismissed the case of Scott Wenner. He had sued the Texas Lottery Commission over a $10.4 million Texas Lotto prize he says he rightfully won in 1994.

"We are very pleased with Judge Werlein's ruling," said Nora Linares, executive director of the Texas Lottery Commission, in a prepared statement.

A copy of Werlein's ruling was not immediately available.

Wenner's saga began when he paid $2 for the $1 ticket at a Pennsylvania hardware store that was selling tickets for a company called Pic-A-$tate, which actually bought the prize ticket at a north Houston liquor store.

■ Moncrief recovering from surgery

AUSTIN — State Sen. Mike Moncrief, D-Fort Worth, is recovering from surgery to remove a small, malignant tumor from his left kidney and is expected to leave the hospital soon, his doctor announced Friday.

"There are no signs the malignancy has spread," said Dr. Arthur Sagalowsky, a professor of urology at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas. "He is having a smooth postoperative course ... his prognosis for full recovery is excellent."

Moncrief underwent surgery at Zale Lipshy University Hospital in Dallas for three hours Wednesday.

David Quin, spokesman for Moncrief's office, said the senator is expected to be discharged Monday or Tuesday.

"He's looking good and making a good recovery so far," Quin said.

Moncrief is expected to complete his recovery at home in Fort Worth over the next few weeks.

"I am anticipating a swift and complete recovery, and plan to be back at work soon, both here and in Austin, preparing for the 75th session," Sen. Moncrief said.

■ Pregnant woman labeled child abuser

ABILENE — A pregnant 20-year-old Abilene woman was sentenced Thursday to 80 years for fatally injuring her 8-month-old daughter.

The prosecution labeled Cynthia Seals as an intentional child abuser. She was convicted Wednesday in Abilene of first-degree injury to a child. She faces from five years to life in prison, but could also get probation.

A jury deliberated for more than two hours Wednesday and found her guilty of wrapping her small child tightly in a king-size blanket to it covered her mouth, and then placing the child face down on a sofa. The child suffocated.

There was testimony about other abusive treatment. A woman testified that Ms. Seals left her daughter unattended in a car for three hours on one occasion and 90 minutes on another.

Compiled from Reporter-Telegram wire services.

Major acquitted of sodomy quits

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An Air Force major, acquitted this summer of a sodomy charge involving another woman and another charge of conduct unbecoming an officer, retired Friday.

Maj. Debra L. Meeks said she has no hard feelings toward the Air Force and was looking forward to civilian life.

"It's hard to be bitter at something which has been so good to me all my life," she told the San Antonio Express-News. "I don't blame the military (for the court-martial). A couple of people in the Air Force haven't changed with the times — but that could be in any organization."

In a case that reawakened the debate over the military's "don't ask, don't tell" policy on homosexuality, Meeks, 41, was accused of having a two-year, live-in relationship with civilian Pamela Dillard, who the defense called an untruthful predator bent on destroying a military career.

Defense attorneys claimed the court-martial violated the military policy, under which gays and lesbians are allowed to serve but must keep their sexuality private.

Ms. Meeks also was acquitted of conduct unbecoming an officer, a charge stemming from Ms. Dillard's claim that the major had threatened her with a gun.

The officer with 19 years of active-duty service has refused publicly to disclose her sexual orientation.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Church anniversary

The Greater Ideal Baptist Church, 411 S. Tyler St., in Midland will be celebrating its 47th anniversary, at 3 p.m. Sunday.

There will be musical selections from various churches of the city. The Rev. E.C. Wilson, pastor of Mt. Bethel Baptist Church in Big Spring, will bring the 3 p.m. message.

Rev. Terry Walker is paster of Greater Ideal Baptist.

■ Singles ministry

The Catholic Singles Ministry, Single and Single Again, invites all singles to join them in celebrating the Knights of Columbus Octoberfest, being held in the gym at St. Ann's Catholic Church from 8-12 p.m. today.

A sausage dinner, beer and dance are covered by the $15 donation. For questions call 689-4639.

■ Community day

"Women and Violence and the Church" is the subject of the 1996 World Community Day, an annual national worship service of Church Women United. In Midland, it will be observed on Friday, Nov. 1, at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

World Community Day traditionally focuses on issues of justice. This year's service deals with violence against women, a national issue that affects our communities and has global implications.

In this World Community Day service the questions of the individual's and the church's response to the problem of violence against women are raised.

A covered dish lunch will follow the service. A nursery will be provided and a sack lunch should be brought for each child. Offerings from "Women and Violence and the Church" will support the women's ecumenical ministries of Church Women United for peace and justice, including its commitments to advance the social and economic power of women.

Additional resource materials and background information on the 1996 World Community Day may be obtained by contacting the national offices of Church Women United at 475 Riverside Drive, Room 812, New York, N.Y. 10115. 1-800-CWU-5551.

■ Guest speaker

Supt. K. Weatherspoon will be guest speaker at White's Chapel C.O.G.I.C., 1106 E. Cherry Lane, at 3p.m. Sunday.

The public is welcome.

■ Mission Fair

First Presbyterian Church's Annual Mission Fair is to be held this Sunday through Oct. 20, beginning at 9 a.m. in and around Lynn Hall where the mission's program from General Assembly to the local mission will be highlighted.

Groups represented will be from Presbyterian Women, the Diaconate, Presbytery, Synod, General Assembly and international missions. Displays will be on-going through Sunday, Oct. 20.

Luncheons will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 15, Wednesday, Oct. 16 and Thursday, Oct. 17. Cost is $4 and reservation deadline is Monday, Oct. 14. For reservations call 684-7821.

The public is asked to join with the Presbyterian Women as they celebrate the collection of the 1996 Thanks Offering (including health ministries) and learn what is happening at St. Andrews Mission, Midland. Men are invited. It is not just a women's event.

■ Adolescence class

"Preparing for Adolescence," a CLER Ministries Workshop for fifth and sixth grade boys and their parents, will be conducted from 2-4:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon at Trinity Presbyterian Church. The cost is $10 per family. Interested persons should call Linda Goddard, 697-5078, for more information and to register.

"The Singer and the Song" is the title of Dr. Fane Downs' sermon for the 10:55 a.m. worship service at Trinity. Sunday School is at 9:30 a.m. and there are classes for 19 months through adult. There are four different adult classes available, including three Bible studies and a study of the book, "As For Me and My House."

A nursery is available during Sunday School and the worship service. Those needing transportation for Sunday services call the church, 682-2514, for assistance.

Senior High Youth will go on a Magical Mystery Tour from 5-8 p.m. Sunday evening (bring $5).

A Service For Wholeness with scripture, intercessory prayer and laying-on of hands, is planned for 7:30 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 20.

Wednesday night fellowship classes for children and adults begin at 6:15 p.m. Children from kindergarten through the sixth grade participate in songs, games, arts and crafts and Bible studies in Kid's Club. The youth/adult class is studying the Book of Psalms. Dinner is available, beginning at 5:15 p.m. at a cost of $4 for adults and $2 for children with a maximum of $12 for a family. Reservations are required and may be made by calling the church.

Children's choirs, ages 4 to sixth grade, meet for rehearsal from 4:30-5:30 p.m. Wednesdays. Youth choir rehearsals are on Sunday from 8:30-9:30 a.m., and Adult choir rehearsals are from 7-8:30 p.m. Wednesdays. New members are welcome.

A service of Prayer and Holy Communion is held at 7 a.m. on Wednesdays.

■ Children's ministry

Children's Pastor's Conference is conducting its national Children's Ministry Seminar, Monday, Oct. 28, at the Golf Course Road Church of Christ in Midland.

Children's Pastor's Conference is the premier organization in America for resourcing and training Christian leaders who minister to children. This one-day seminar is part of a 83-city seminar tour covering most major metropolitan cities in the United States.

Duane Lawrence, children's minister at Mount Corinth Missionary Church in Houston, and Evelyn James, a professional storyteller from Tyler with more than 25 years experience in puppetry, clowning, acting, writing and directing for radio, TV and stage, will lead the six-hour seminar. Workshops have been developed to assist both ministry staff and lay volunteers and include the following topics:

■ Twelve Keys of a 21st Century Children's Ministry

■ When Church is a Children's Magnet ... Reaching and Keeping Children and Families

■ Spiritual Houses Begin During Early Childhood

■ Partnering with Parents

■ Using Drama and Storytelling in the Classroom

■ Ten Great Ideas for Communicating Vision in Children's Ministry.

The seminar will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 2:30 p.m. and is open to the general public. Seminar tuition starts at $29 for individuals and $25 for groups of five or more from the same church or organization. Lunch is also included. To register or for more information contact Children's Pastor's Conference at 1-800-324-4543.

■ Temple Beth El

Temple Beth El, the only Jewish house of worship in the Permian Basin, will celebrate its 50th anniversary this weekend. The celebration started Friday and will continue through today. For more information call David Hoff, 682-4789 or 683-5697, David Rosen at 683-2773 or Roy Elsner at 366-7500.

■ 'The Sound'

Midland Calvary Assembly of God welcomes "The Sound" to minister in word and song at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The church is located at 908 S. Johnston.

"The Sound's" message is contemporary in its unique blend of driving rhythm sections and powerful vocal performances.

Admission is free.

For more information call the church at 682-8473.

■ Teen Ministry

The Teen Ministry of Second Baptist Church will be hosting a Sports Collectibles Auction at 7:45 p.m. Sunday. The church is located at 3125 Travis Ave. and the auction will take place in the children's education building at the west end of the church complex.

The proceeds from this outreach auction will be used to sponsor teenagers on mission trips, camps and spiritual retreats throughout the coming year.

The list of items to be auctioned is considerable, but a few of the autographed balls, plaques and other collections are signed by: Alonzo Mourning, David Robinson, Michael Irvin, Ray Floyd, Jose Canseco, Nolan Ryan, Emmitt Smith, Nick Price, Tom Kite, Willie Mays and many more.

■ Aim for Success

Golf Course Road Church of Christ has announced that Aim for Success will be presenting several programs at the church today and Sunday.

Aim for Success is a nationally acclaimed educational organization that promotes sexual abstinence among young people. This year more than 100,000 students and their parents will hear these programs. The parent program will be presented at 7 p.m. today and the student program will be at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. After the student program, there will be a communication workshop for parents and their children beginning at 3:15 p.m.

The presentation to parents includes a preview of the student program. The unique teaching techniques and factual information offered in this program will also help parents know why, when and how to talk to their children (toddlers to teens) about sex. Creative ideas will be given to help them talk openly with their children and

The Bigger The Trouble, The More You Need Faith's Help

There comes a time in the lives of many of us when trouble strikes, on a scale larger than anything we could have imagined possible.

An example of this might be a pending lawsuit resulting from a traffic accident, or any number of things that could generate much grief and anxiety, plus, as in the case of the lawsuit, financial ruin. After you have done everything possible, visit your House of Worship. Just being there for the service will help a lot, but in addition to that, have a talk with your clergyman. He will give you some sound, practical advice and also say a prayer for you, and for a satisfactory outcome of your situation.

Nothing is worse than the suspense of a waiting period, and at least your faith can provide you with the peace of mind needed to carry you through this ordeal. In times of trouble, turn to God.

By speaking of our misfortunes, we often relieve them.
–Pierre Corneille

RELIGION IN BRIEF

encourage family values without embarrassment.

Aim for Success believes parents should be their children's primary source of sex education, but many parents don't know how. Sex is an awkward subject for parents and their children, and there are few role models to follow. The parent program and communication workshop will provide parents with tools and information needed to talk openly and comfortably with their children.

■ Recital series

The Bach Lunch Recital Series is planned for Wednesdays in October at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave.

This series includes a half-hour concert from 12:05 to 12:35 p.m. each week with lunch available a half-hour before and after each performance. Admission to the concerts is free. The cost of lunch is $4. The concerts are an outreach of the Music Ministry of the church.

Future performers will be: SuSun Wong, lyric coloratura soprano, Oct. 16, concert artist and teacher at Schreiner College, Kerrville, with a doctoral degree from the University of Texas, Austin; Randy Stevens, organist, Oct. 23, director of music for Trinity Presbyterian Church, Midland, with degrees from McMurry University and Indiana University; and Rebecca Sawyer, organist, Oct. 30, music associate for First Presbyterian Church with degrees from Judson College, Marion, Ala., and the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Child care is provided with reservations made by Tuesday. For more information call 684-7821.

■ Blood drive

The Health and Welfare Work Area of First United Methodist Church (Main Street at Ohio) will host a combination blood drive with the Permian Basin Regional Blood Center and a bone marrow donor drive through the National Marrow Donor Program at Cook Children's Medical Center in Fort Worth.

This drive will be held in the church fellowship hall from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 27.

To join the National Marrow Donor Program one must be between 18 and 60 and in general good health. Those joining the program will be asked to donate a small blood sample which will be typed for a match. If a person is also donating blood to PBRBC, a bone marrow sample can be taken off that unit.

Because of limited funding, the National Marrow Donor Program will be able to test the first 25 Caucasians free of charge; afterwards there will be a fee of $20. Minorities will be tested free; this includes Caucasians with any ethnic backgrounds i.e. American Indian, Hispanic, African American or Asian.

PSA screening will be offered at a charge of $15 for blood donors and $20 for non-donors.

For more information regarding this blood drive/bone marrow donor drive, call Diane Zemkoski at 683-7130.

Each Wednesday Night Live session is preceded by a meal at 5:30 p.m. for which reservations are required. Study and fellowship opportunities begin at 6:30 p.m. For further information, call the church office at 682-3701.

■ Church concert

Recording artist and evangelist Brenda Macaulay and special guest Paitra Macaulay of Dallas will perform in concert at the Greater Mt. Zion Baptist Church, 810 Cloverdale Road.

The performances is scheduled for 7 p.m. Oct. 19. The church's pastor, the Rev. Alvin Mills, invites the public to attend. All seats are free.

■ Church classes

The membership of Grace Presbyterian Church invites the public to attend its Sunday morning adult classes and Wednesday class.

Sunday morning classes include "Simple Secrets — How we can apply God's promises to our daily lives," being taught by the Rev. Hilton Chancellor, "An Introduction to C.S. Lewis," being taught by the Rev. Allen Whitman and "Kerygma: Bible Discovery," a 30-week overview of the Bible led by the Rev. Bill Clark.

Wednesday night the 7 to 8 p.m. class on "The Wonder Years — Living With Teens" is being led by Dr. Jim May and Dr. Kathryn Wortz. All are invited to attend.

Port chaplains tend to human side of shipping

By Kevin Moran
Houston Chronicle

HONG KONG — The captain of the Serifos waved the chaplain's launch away from his ship, anchored near the main channel from the South China Sea.

But a crewman ran along the deck, waving for the launch and port chaplain Peter Ellis to stand by. Second engineer Ivovic Mijomir, 35, grease-smeared from Sunday morning engine room work, clambered aboard.

The ship's Greek owners had sent money that weekend to send another crewman home. Mijomir, from Montenegro in the former Yugoslavia, still was stuck on the rust-eaten, 22,000-ton scow. The Serifos, flying the flag of St. Vincent in the Caribbean's Windward Islands, had been detained by Hong Kong government inspectors for mechanical violations.

Mijomir said he was five months without pay and 40 pounds off normal weight because his diet lacked fresh vegetables, fruit and meat.

Mijomir's story and others worse are told in one port or another every day.

Almost always, the people who first hear them are port chaplains. They spend their lives letting the world's most mobile — and invisible — labor force know that someone ashore never forgets them.

Ellis, an Anglican priest, has been at it for more than 25 years. He also has worked in Britain and Singapore as a chaplain with Missions to Seamen, founded in England in 1835. Today, the ministry's flying angel symbol hangs at more than 100 seamen's centers around the world.

Ellis is senior chaplain at the Hong Kong Mariners' Club, an interdenominational facility with Danish, German and Belgian chaplains. They'd like to visit all 36,000 ships that call in Hong Kong annually, but they can only get to about 3,000.

"A ship like the Serifos can take days of going back and forth," said Ellis. "There are other times when you can be on and off a ship in 10 minutes or so."

Worldwide, Missions to Seamen chaplains made 57,000 ship visits last year and hosted 750,000 people at seamen's centers, Ellis said.

The Hong Kong club offers religious and social services. It also includes a library, video service, restaurant, bar and small bowling alley.

Other seamen's centers around the world are not nearly so plush.

In the same week that Ellis visited the Serifos, Father Roland Doriol, a French Jesuit priest, was excited about the addition of a third room to Stella Maris Seamen's Center in the Philippine port of Cebu City.

Each "room" is a large metal cargo container. The crude but serviceable center is affiliated with the Catholic church's worldwide Apostleship of the Sea.

Missions to Seamen and Apostleship of the Sea are two of the world's major maritime ministries. Others are the Norwegian Seamen's Church, the British Sailor's Society and the Seamen's Church Institute of New York and New Jersey. Founded in 1834, SCI is North America's largest seafarers' agency.

"No other group of individuals has a better insight on the human side of shipping than port chaplains," said Doug Stephenson, director of SCI's Center for Seafarers' Rights.

"Because port chaplains are trusted and such an institution in the maritime world, seafarers disclose things to chaplains they won't tell anyone else," said Stephenson. "When they visit ships, they go not only to see the captain but also to the mess deck and crew quarters, the heart and soul of the ship."

Doriol is an electrician who has spent most of his ordained life working on ships. He started on French ships with French crews but ended up working alongside Filipino, Indian and other Third World seafarers on foreign-flag ships, his pay down $600 to $800 a month.

"My father was a fisherman who did not want me to become a seaman," said Doriol, one of about 15 French priest-seamen who started "Mission de la Mer" in 1968. "So, maybe it was a way for me to disobey him."

The French priests signed on ships not to proselytize — they rarely offered Mass —but to serve as examples, reporting conditions at sea to church people and others ashore, Doriol said.

"The proximity to the people is more important than formal prayer," he said. "The chaplain has to feel a lot and not speak too much. The practical service he will give is to bring a newspaper, to bring information, to take a letter."

Today, chaplains throughout the world are linked.

Doriol visited Ellis in Hong Kong in April on his way back to Cebu from an Asian port chaplains' meeting in Madagascar. Stephenson has helped Doriol with seafarers' problems. Doriol knows Karen Lai, the lay Catholic port chaplain at the Galveston Seaman's Center.

Lai, employed by the Diocese of Galveston-Houston, has attended maritime law seminars conducted by Stephenson.

The international network helps chaplains track troubled ships. If pure moral suasion fails to resolve problems, chaplains can call in government inspectors or union organizers who can make business more difficult for ship owners and operators.

"I don't think there is anywhere where the church is more a necessary part of an industry than it is in the maritime industry, every bit as necessary and legitimate as shipowners' agents and cargo shippers," said Stephenson.

International law and international conventions require nations to ensure the welfare of crews on visiting foreign ships.

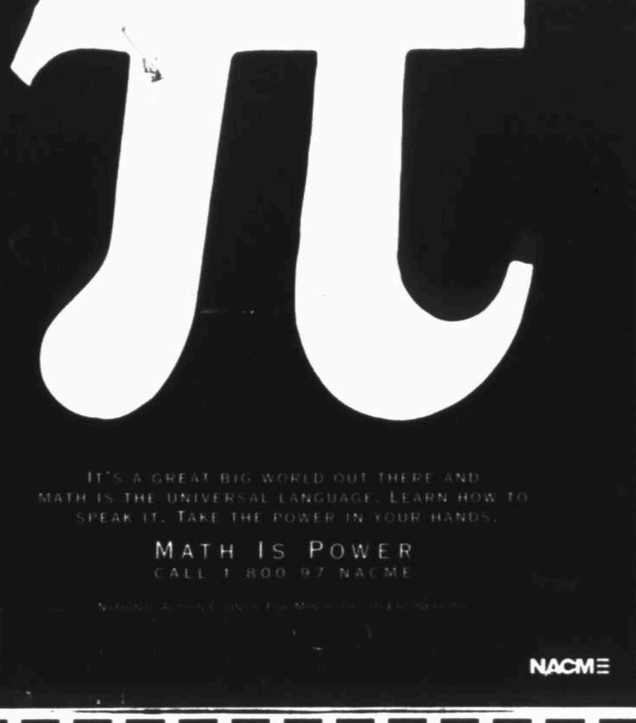

"In most countries, this national, legal obligation to provide for visiting crews is not satisfied by the state but rather by private, voluntary church-related organizations," said Stephenson. "They are on the cutting edge."

Shipowners in the last 20 years have deserted their own nations' flags to register vessels in countries that offer low fees, few taxes, lax regulation and infrequent inspections.

Consequently, chaplains say they end up spending a lot of time trying to help crew members like Mijomir get fair treatment and safe conditions on ships.

Still, they say, their main service on most ships is simply spreading brotherly love to the seafarers.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1996

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Continue to do what has made you successful in recent months. The financial and emotional pay-off will be tremendous! Loved ones draw closer together as the winter holidays approach. Focus on health concerns early in 1997. A career decision you make next February will bring new financial rewards along with public recognition. Consideration is the key to a happy home life. Marital bliss is linked to your willingness to meet your mate halfway.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: actress Susan Anton, tenor Luciano Pavarotti, comedian Dick Gregory, golfer Sally Little.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Kick back and relax today. Be logical if you have a difference of opinion with loved one. A sense of humor helps you get through trying times. Dine at home, then watch a good movie.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A good day to visit libraries, museums or art galleries. A community theater production may also hold strong appeal. Say "yes" if someone offers to play Cupid.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Donating no-longer-needed items to charity will make your home seem more spacious. Your love life improves when you meet someone with strong spiritual values.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An on-again, off-again approach to romance is counter-productive. Make a real commitment! Old friends urge you to bring greater balance to your life. All work and no play will leave you depleted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be candid with a friend. Trying to hide your feelings could damage your relationship. Have more faith in your abilities. Meditation will help you sort out difficult matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The more you connect with nature, the better you will feel. Take a favorite canine companion for a long walk. Judge others by their actions, not their reputations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You feel liberated from recent pressures. Have fun, but avoid behaving irresponsibly. A former romantic partner may still be available.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your company is in great demand. Choosing between two desirable invitations will be difficult. Find fun things to do with your mate. Your romantic fate is in your hands.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Self-improvement projects enjoy highly favorable influences now. Strong impulses steer you in the right direction. Start a new class or exercise program but talk with your doctor before going on a strict diet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Welcome a chance to socialize this weekend. Accept the invitations that appeal to you most. True friends will understand if you cannot change previously made plans at the last moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Investment offers may sound better than they really are. A friend offers to play Cupid. Welcome the chance to meet someone eligible. Wear something elegant, not flashy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Issue an invitation to someone you find attractive. Do not appear too eager, however, or you could blow it. Try to keep a sense of humor if you must deal with an older person's whims.

John Kennedy, Jr., his new bride host party for those not invited to wedding

NEW YORK — Publish this: John John and Carolyn had a glamorous party for those who weren't invited to their very hush-hush wedding. And the press dined on cold shoulder.

John F. Kennedy Jr. and his new bride, Carolyn Bessette-Kennedy, arrived separately Thursday night — he on a mountain bike, she by taxi a few minutes later.

He just barely made it past the horde of reporters and photographers before they noticed. She stepped right into the pappa-razzi, who nearly blinded her with their flashbulbs.

Inside the Park Avenue home of John's sister, Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg, the guests included Julia Roberts, Sen. Ted Kennedy and his wife, Victoria Reggie; William Kennedy Smith; his mother, Jean; Pat Kennedy Lawford; and Ethel Kennedy.

The couple were married on the sly Sept. 21 on a Georgia island, thwarting the press, which missed t'e biggest Camelot event in years.

ORLANDO, Fla. — The guy who bought Pete Rose's Porsche is accusing him of playing dirty.

Car dealer Tim O'Brien says the former Cincinnati Reds player was a no-show at an auto auction conducted by O'Brien Motors in 1994. Rose had promised to appear after O'Brien bought the 1986 Porsche for $46,500.

What's worse, O'Brien says, the Porsche sold for only $28,000.

Last summer, O'Brien obtained a $10,000 judgment against Rose, but the former ballplayer has yet to pay.

O'Brien and his lawyer asked a court Wednesday to force Rose, who operates a restaurant in Boca Raton, to present proof of his assets.

"If it takes me $25,000 to get $10,000 in this particular case, then I'll spend $25,000," O'Brien said. "Pete Rose will understand he cannot step on the little guy all the time."

Rose's lawyer, Mario Garcia, said there are certain conditions under which his client may not be forced to pay the judgment. He did not elaborate.

BOSTON — James Brown has a choice: Give it up or turn it loose.

That 1970s song title from the Godfather of Soul's career could easily apply today.

Under an agreement with federal prosecutors, the 68-year-old Brown must forfeit $120,000 — nearly half the money seized from his lawyer last year at Boston's airport when he returned with proceeds from Brown's European tour.

Brown gets to keep $140,743 of the $260,743 the Customs service seized, under the deal announced Thursday. Authorities said the lawyer reported he was carrying only $100,000 from Paris.

A federal law aimed at preventing tax evasion and money laundering requires the filing of written reports when more than $10,000 in currency is brought into or taken out of the country.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — You can take the woman out of the country, but don't expect her to leave the straight talk behind.

Former U.S. Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders says when you're poor, you don't have time to beat around the bush.

"When you're poor people, you don't have time to beat around the bush," former Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders said.

Ms. Elders autographed copies of her recent autobiography, "Joycelyn Elders, M.D." on Thursday at the 20th Book and Author Dinner at The Racquet Club of Memphis.

She credits her rural upbringing in southwestern Arkansas for the straight talk that cost her the high-profile Washington job.

President Clinton appointed her to become the nation's top doctor. He fired her in 1994 after she was criticized for remarks about masturbation as an element of human sexuality.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — When country singers Marty Stuart and Travis Tritt aren't touring together, look for them at the nearest fishing hole.

"We don't make it up for the press," Tritt said. "If we're not touring together, we're calling each other up, shopping for guitars or fishing."

The two singers met backstage at the 1990 Country Music Association Awards.

"We just pointed to each other and said almost simultaneously, 'I really like your stuff,'" Tritt recalled before a concert Friday at the University of Tennessee.

A few weeks later, Stuart sent over "The Whiskey Ain't Workin'" to Tritt, and they recorded the song for a Stuart album.

Rebs survive Cooper scare

■ Cougar running back Dominic Rhodes rushes for 187 yards, but the Lee defense came up big in key spots to preserve a 27-22 District 4-5A win.

The Midland Lee Rebels met its arch gridiron enemy at Memorial Stadium Friday night — and it wasn't ODESSA PERMIAN.

Abilene Cooper's stubborn Cougars again put a scare into the Rebels before No. 9 state-ranked Lee pulled out its first come-from-behind victory of the season, 27-22, to remain undefeated after six games.

A year ago in this same setting, Cooper tied Lee 21-21, giving the Rebels its only blemish under head coach John Parchman, who is now 14-0-1 in regular season play in two seasons.

And this game had instant replay on it until Lee's highly touted defense finally came up with two huge plays to win the game.

Leading 20-15, Cooper's stellar running back Dominic Rhodes, who had 187 yards rushing and two touchdowns against a Rebel team that had given up no points and only six first downs in its last two games, dropped the ball at the five-yard line where defensive end Fred Pertile pounced on the ball and stepped the short distance into the end zone for a 27-15 lead.

But the drama wasn't over as Cooper marched 64 yards for a score as quarterback Michael Anderson hit Miles Durham for completions of 37 and 28 yards to narrow the gap to 27-22.

Cooper then held Lee on downs, but the defense rose again, this time with John Norman entering Midland's football record book with his 17th career interception, tying him with Midland High's Dan Black, who also had 17 in the early DALLAS — Kyle Willey scored a touchdown with 7:44 left to life OHS over Dallas Jesuit in a non-district game.

Willey finished the game with 105 yards as the Bronchos (2-4) won their second game of the season.

ODESSA PERMIAN 31, SAN ANGELO CENTRAL 10

ODESSA — A struggling San Angelo Central Bobcat team shocked Odessa Permian with an early 10-0 first half lead, but the Panthers roared back with 24 second half points to take a 31-10 District 4-5A football victory.

Ja'Quay Wilburn had his third consecutive 200-yard game with 232 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Permian attack.

Bulldogs lose heartbreaker

ABILENE — Midland High's 14-7 loss to Abilene High wasn't the product of a big game by one or two people. Actually, the problem that plagued the Bulldogs in the second half wasn't so much the guys lined up against them.

No, what killed the Bulldogs on Friday night in Shotwell Stadium was the battle for field position and the yellow hankies that decorated the field right when David Browning's team needed them least.

"Field position is the name of the game, and tonight with the wind blowing like it was, and that is what we had to play for," Browning said. "The penalties were also a problem. Being able to win is something that I have tried to get across to this team. Tonight, we had our chances and came up short."

In the second half, Abilene High came out and decided to take the wind behind their back. Abilene High's goal was to stop MHS early and get ball in good territory. It seemed small at the time but it paid off over and over and over again.

"They decided to do that (take the wind) and I would have done the same," Browning said.

On the first possession of the second half, Midland High started on its 25, but back-to-back penalties moved the ball back to the 10, a punt followed. That would become the on-going theme.

In the third quarter, MHS, 3-3 for the season and 0-3 in District 4-5A, started drives at the 25, 20, 15 and 20. Twenty-five yards in penalties and having a less than 100 percent Camar Jackson didn't help things at all. Midland High faced third and long situations time after time having to make yardages of 27, 15, 10 and 19 for first downs. The result was 13 yards of total offense, one first down and an interception during that time.

"We would have a good punt but they had the field position," said Browning, whose team had nine penalties for 79 yards. "A lot of things just went wrong.

Stanton slams McCamey 29-6

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

STANTON — Late word from Martin County after Stanton's 29-6 win over McCamey Friday shows city officials intent on passing a new ordinance. As of today, the term "rebuilding" can no longer be used to describe the 1996 Stanton Buffalo football team. "Rebuilt" and "re-loading" are acceptable, but the other word has long since outgrown its usefulness in reference to the 5-1 Buffs.

Stanton walloped a talented Badger football team here in the District 6-2A opener for both schools. The win against the team considered the Buffs' primary challenge for a playoff spot puts Stanton in position to reach the post season for the second year in a row. This after losing several players off last year's bi-district championship squad.

And while the offensive line and defense made big contributions to Friday's victory, quarterback Kyle Herm and receiver Leo McCalister make the difference between Stanton being a good team and a superior one.

"That quarterback of theirs is quite an athlete," a rather shell-shocked sounding McCamey coach Stan Caffey said. "21 (McCalister) is quite an athlete. It's hard to prepare for a kid like (Herm) when you don't have anything in practice to simulate that kind of speed."

Stanton scored the final 23 points of the game after a 6-6 tie early in the second quarter. The game was billed as a passing duel. But what McCamey quarterback Isaiah Navarrete couldn't do with his arm, Herm could with his legs. The 115-pound sophomore was as elusive as a waterbug in running for 145 yards on 15 carries. He ran for two touchdowns and threw for two others.

Still Stanton coach Mark Cotton was quick to point out the play of his offensive line.

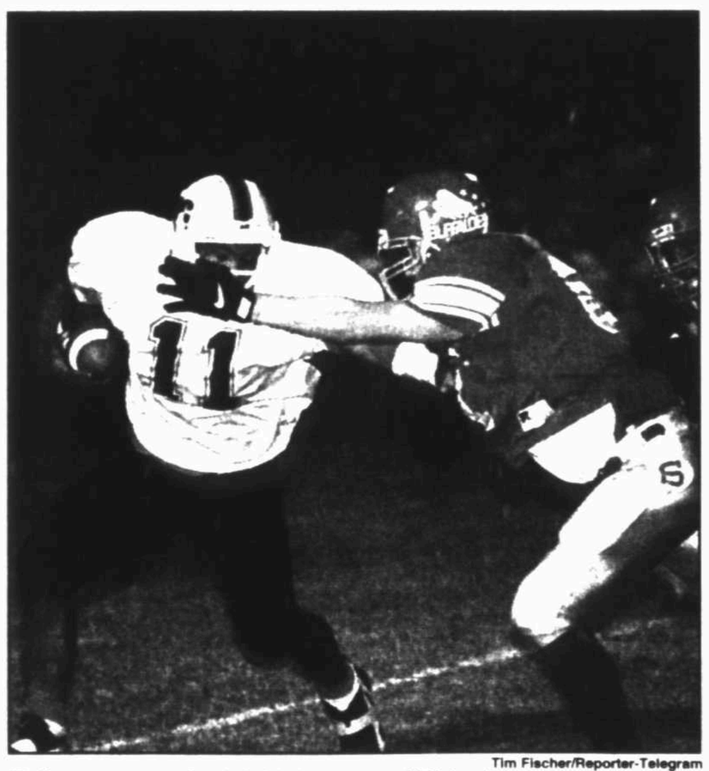

"The real battle was won in the offensive line," Cotton said. "Our offensive line was just out of this world tonight."

McCalister plays as Stanton's answer to Deion Sanders. He wears number 21, like the Dallas Cowboys' two-way player, and lines up as a wide receiver on offense and a safety on defense. He made two interceptions in the first half that helped turn the game around.

"I thought Leo had an all-state performance," Cotton said. "Leo just amazes me every week what he can do."

With the score tied at 6-6 McCalister

Big Spring jumps on young Pecos for 50-0 drubbing

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

BIG SPRING _ All of the indications were there that it was going to be a big night for the Big Spring High football team Friday night.

The Steers were hosting their District 4-4A opener against a young Pecos squad which appeared to be perfect fodder as a Homecoming foe. After losing four of its first five games, Big Spring needed some of that good fortune on its side for a change.

As it turned out, the Steers got it in spades. Big Spring seemed to be able to do anything it wanted to offensively, scoring on its first four possessions while Pecos had trouble executing the simplest tasks. The results were predictable, with the Steers drilling the Eagles 50-0 to jump-start their district schedule.

Yankees find another way to beat Orioles

By David Ginsburg
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE — Strange things keep happening to the Baltimore Orioles, who found yet another way to lose to the New York Yankees at Camden Yards.

The Orioles appeared to be on their way to their first home win against the Yankees this season when a bizarre error sparked a four-run eighth inning that gave New York a 5-2 victory Friday night and a 2-1 lead in the best-of-7 AL championship series.

Jimmy Key pitched eight innings of three-hit ball for the Yankees, overcoming a shaky start before steadying himself in his longest career playoff outing.

"Jimmy Key was spectacular," Yankees manager Joe Torre said. "Jimmy Key just kept us right there. He made it possible by keeping us as close as he did."

The Yankees trailed 2-1 in the eighth before rallying to tie the score. Mike Mussina, bidding to beat New York for the first time since May 1993, had retired 10 straight batters before Derek Jeter hit a two-out double and Bernie Williams grounded an RBI single to left.

Tino Martinez then hit a double to left. Left fielder B.J. Surhoff made a nice play cutting the ball off before it could get in the corner and threw the ball to Todd Zeile at third. Zeile faked a throw to second but the ball popped out of his hand and rolled toward shortstop as Williams sprinted home with the go-ahead run.

"I really don't know if he was trying to make a snap throw or what," Baltimore manager Davey Johnson said. "I think he was going to fake a throw and get someone."

Torre, thinking the play was over, didn't even look up until the ball was rolling loose.

"I saw Bernie stop and figured it was second and third," Torre said. "I was starting to look ahead to what might happen next, and of a sudden I look up and he's halfway home."

Cecil Fielder followed with a towering homer to left for a 5-2 lead. That chased Mussina, who has lost seven straight decisions to the Yankees.

It was the Orioles' seventh straight loss to the Yankees at Camden Yards. Baltimore was 0-6 against the Yankees at

Greenwood earns respect in loss

By Tom Rutz
MRT Correspondent

GREENWOOD — RESPECT... Aretha Franklin sang about it, and the Greenwood Rangers earned a lot of it in their 25-21 District 4-3A opening loss to the Colorado City Wolves here Friday night.

The Wolves (5-1) were ready to play against Greenwood, but they were in no way prepared for what the Rangers had in store for them.

And what Greenwood (1-4) had in the works was a performance that will be talked about for weeks, as this district darkhorse came to the finish line and nearly pulled of the upset.

"I am just so proud of our kids. If they didn't win any respect tonight I guess they never will." Greenwood coach Bob Purser said.

"They came to play tonight. It was one heck of an effort on their part," said Colorado City coach Bill Grissom.

The Rangers used a smothering defense that held Colorado City's star running back Arian Emmerson in check with only 49 yards rushing in the first half and one yard in the third quarter.

In last week's game against Lamesa, Emerson roamed for 281 yards averaging 15.9 yards per carry. In the first two quarters against Greenwood, the Rangers held him to 3.9 yards per carry.

"They took away our field position in the first half and made us look to pass a little more than we wanted to," said Grissom.

But the Rangers did more than that, they played smash mouth football against the defending district champs. Every time Emmerson got the ball he paid the price as the Ranger defenders rang his bell on more than a few occasions.

With Greenwood leading 14-7 at the half, the Rangers were thinking major upset. "I told the kids, we can win, were bigger, stronger and we were pumped," Purser said.

And the Rangers believed they could win. They took the opening third quarter possession and went 62 yards on eight plays and extended their lead to 21-7 when Michael Otho hit pay dirt from 10 yards out.

And then came the fumble. The Rangers were driving again when they fumbled at the Wolves 30 yard line. The Rangers' defense however, prevented Colorado City from taking advantage of the gift.

BUFFS: Stanton gets District victory picked off a Navarrete pass and returned it 27 yards to the McCamey 25. Herm ran for 20 yards and then snuck over from the 1-yard line for a 13-6 tally.

Herm scored the Buffs' first touchdown on a 17-yard quarterback draw. He had another draw on fourth and nine that went for 16 yards to the Badgers' 5-yard line to set up his pass to Tyron Davis for a 27-6 Stanton lead.

But Herm's most spectacular play of the night came near the end of the first half. With less than a minute to go Herm appeared to be trying to run out the clock as he ran to the right side. But he reversed his field, jitterbugged along the line of scrimmage and ended up racing down the left sideline for 30 yards.

The Badgers (4-2) advanced the ball well on their first two possessions. But they failed to cross the goal line and came away with field goals on both occasions. Navarrete had 16 yards passing in the first half but threw for only 32 in the second. He came into the game with one interception in five contests and threw three with Herm getting the other pick.

"I think our pressure on Navarrete on the outside was the difference in the second half," Cotton said. "He has such a tremendous arm. In the second half he didn't have a lot of time to throw."

Stanton's Jody Louder sacked Navarrete for an eight-yard loss in the third period.

The Buffaloes still have to beat Tornillo, Van Horn and Anthony to secure a playoff berth. But the team that dominated McCamey in the second half Friday should be able to accomplish that. Now that it is completely rebuilt.

"It gives us a leg up because we did beat them," Cotton said. "But this is just the first (district) game. I don't know if we'll be in the playoffs, but we are a playoff caliber team."

STEERS: Green rushes for two TDs

like it was running a dummy scrimmage much of the first half, outgaining Pecos 233-26 in yardage. The Steers initially picked up ground against Pecos (0-1, 3-3) through the air, running a hurry-up attack on its first possession with quarterback Gabriel Mendoza completing his first three passes for 48 yards, setting up a one-yard scoring run by Antowoyne Edwards for a 7-0 lead.

Running a hurry-up was a new wrinkle which the Big Spring coaching staff installed earlier in the week.

"We feel like district is the start of a new season and running a new offense gets the kids more focused early in the ball game," Big Spring coach Dwight Butler said.

The rest of the half, though, Big Spring preferred to plow over the Eagles. Steers' runners, most notably Edwards, stampeded for big gains through huge holes in the offensive line. Edwards had 157 yards on 30 carries and scored the second touchdown on a nine-yard run to give the Steers a 14-0 lead.

"It helped," said Edwards of how the hurry-up strategy coincided with his big night, which included three touchdowns. "(The Eagles) didn't know what to do and they couldn't keep up with us. I could hear them breathing hard at the end of the drive."

Pecos' offense, on the other hand, was almost inert in the first half. Its lack of yardage is misleading since the Eagles twice suffered huge losses on bad punt snaps. The first one came on the first play of the second quarter when the snap sailed over the head of Richard Gutierrez, who scrambled to recover the ball and was tackled by Josh Fernan at the Pecos 3-yard line. Three plays later, Brock Gee scored from the one to make it 21-0.

Later in the second quarter, another bad punt snap got past Gutierrez, who was tackled in the end zone to make the score 30-0. At that point, any additional breaks Big Spring got seemed gratuitous.

"You get on a roll in a game like this and hope you can keep it going," Butler said. "We needed both sides of the ball to play equal to each other."

The defense even got involved in the scoring in the second half. Pecos backup quarterback Oscar Luna, on only his third play of the game, tried a screen pass from his own end zone. Steers' defensive end Kade Bowermon read the play and intercepted the pass in the end zone for about as easy a defensive touchdown as a team can score.

Big Spring was a juggernaut on the ground, piling up 297 yards and averaging over six yards a carry. Frankie Green had the best yards per carry average, gaining 68 yards on five carries and scored twice, including a 30-yard touchdown run to end the scoring.

Butler is hoping that the rout of Pecos can give his team some momentum entering next week's game against San Angelo Lake View, a 4-4A power.

"We're going to run into a buzzsaw," Butler said.

HSU downs Lady Falcons

Former Midland Lee spiker Kasey Wolters had 11 kills as the University of Texas-Permian Basin fell in a tough volleyball match Friday to Hardin-Simmons, 15-13, 7-15, 15-11, 15-11.

The match lasted four hours.

Former Odessa Permian standout Mercedes Alvarado had 17 digs and four blocks defensively for the Lady Falcons while Mika Decker had four blocks.

UTPB hosts Sul Ross Monday at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

Lee, Midland top 9th grade

Midland Lee White and Midland High White both hold a league record of 6-1 to lead the conference standings in ninth grade volleyball action.

Midland Purple is third at 5-2 while Lee Maroon is in sixth at 4-3.

Hillander ends with victory

The Hillander School's fifth and sixth grade coed soccer team completed the MOPES 1996 regular season Thursday with a 3-0 victory over Odessa St. Mary's.

Crawford Smith, Zack Sledge and Jake Davis all scored goals for Hillander, which remained undefeated in the regular season.

OHS survives Dallas Jesuit

DALLAS — Kyle Willey rushed for 105 yards and the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter as Odessa High survived Dallas Jesuit 14-7 here Friday night in a non-conference football game.

OHS is now 2-4 for the season and host Abilene High next week.

Willey scored on a 13-yard run with 7:44 left in the game to give the Bronchos the win over the Dallas private school, which is now 0-7 against 4-5A teams.

But Jesuit scored with no time left in the first half to tie the Bronchos at 7-7 to throw a scare into the Permian Basin team. Jesuit fell to 3-3 with the loss.

Permian awakes against Central

ODESSA — A struggling San Angelo Central Bobcat team shocked Odessa Permian with an early 10-0 first half lead, but the Panthers roared back with 24 second half points to take a 31-10 District 4-5A football victory.

Permian is now 5-1 on the season and 3-0 in league play while Central fell to 1-5 and 0-2.

Ja'Quay Wilburn had his third consecutive 200-yard game with 232 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Permian attack.

The Bobcats owned a 10-7 lead at the half, stopping Permian once inside the 10-yard line. Quarterback Julio Guerrero passed for 202 yards, but the Bobcats couldn't keep pace with the Panthers in the second half.

Permian will face Abilene Cooper in a key match in Abilene next week while Central travels to meet Midland High.

Edberg ousted by Siemerink in CA Trophy semifinals

Associated Press

VIENNA, Austria — Jan Siemerink of the Netherlands ended Stefan Edberg's run at the CA Trophy tournament Friday, ousting the Swede 5-7, 7-5, 7-4 in the quarterfinals.

Edberg, 30, who plans to retire at the end of this year, was coming off of a three-set upset of No. 1 seed Thomas Muster on Thursday.

Fifth-seeded Boris Becker of Germany advanced to the semifinals Friday, but Goran Ivanisevic of Croatia and Yevgeny Kafelnikov of Russia, the Nos. 2 and 3 seeds, were beaten.

Becker defeated Mark Rosset of Switzerland 7-6 (11-9), 7-5, while Ivanisevic was beaten by No. 7 Todd Martin, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 and Kafelnikov lost to Arnaud Boetsch of France 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (7-2).

Siemerink and Boetsch, both unseeded, will meet in Saturday's semifinals.

BULLDOGS: Eagles gain key 4-5A win

(From 1C)

Camar got hobbled up and that put us in a bind. They would pressure us, but he (Camar) could not escape. He is important to our offense and that hurt us."

What AHS, 5-1 and 2-1, did was what Midland High couldn't and, in the process, also help insure the first winning season for the Eagles in 10 years.

"Earlier this week I asked them where they were 10 years ago," said AHS coach Steve Warren. "One guy said he was in the second grade."

Warren's team took that first possession of the second half and went 50 yards before quarterback Ahmad Brooks strolled around the right side and into the end zone from two yards out.

Brooks and company would come back early in the fourth quarter after the interception of Jackson by Julius Crisp. The Eagles took MHS' only turnover of the game and turned it into another seven points with when Brooks hit Devon Sample from six yards out.

"We wanted to play to our potential and are still waiting to do so," Brooks said. "We are not satisfied. Midland High controlled the line of scrimmage (in the first half), and in order for us to do something, we had to gain control."

Warren enjoyed the victory even if it was not textbook in the minds of his players. He knew holding Midland High to minimal yardage (120 yards in total offense) was important. He was right.

"We felt like we had to swarm the tailback (Sammy Powell)," Warren said. "We were making them beat us with the pass. We just tackled poorly in the first half and in the second made the proper adjustments."

The eight-man fronts and constant keying of Powell did wonders. Powell had only 36 yards and MHS couldn't pass with much success. The Bulldogs completed one pass for 20 yards.

"That (passing) is something we have been trying to improve on and working every day in practice to do so," Browning said.

Midland High had one last drive going, but on a fourth-and-two, a delay of game was called on the Bulldogs and forced them to punt. Abilene High got a few first downs and ran down the clock.

Midland High's defense played quite well, not giving up the big play to an AHS offense with many players that could do so. Brooks finished the game with 73 yards rushing and Chuck Newman had 77 on 19 carries. The Eagles had 312 yards in total offense.

The first half was one that Abilene High would probably like to forget and MHS' Richard Henigan might not. The senior defensive back/fullback provided spark to the offense when it needed it the most. Henigan came into the game with one carry for the season. However, Henigan rushed the ball nine times for 43 yards in the first. He finished with 50 and as the Bulldogs' top rusher.

But two Henigan carries on a three-play, 23-yard scoring drive proved to be key ones of his season. Following a fumbled exchange by the Eagles that was recovered by junior linebacker Devin Butts, Henigan took the ball right at the Eagles for 12 yards and 10 yards respectively to set up the one-yard plunge by Jackson.

For Abilene High, its offense and key player, Brooks were kept in check for the most part. Midland High gave up nine yards rushing to Brooks, who had to leave the game for a series after getting the wind knocked out of him. Brooks also had 22 yards throwing but the majority of the passing came from fill-in John Lackey, a two year-starter at quarterback for AHS before being replaced Brooks.

Lackey came into the game and immediately led the Eagles to on a 56 yard drive. The senior completed two big passes on third-and-long situations for 20 and 18 yards. The Eagles bid for point came up short as an error on the hold forced a 30-yard field goal attempt to fell short.

It wasn't the only miscue for AHS. The Eagles, who ranked among 4-5A's top teams in give away-take away ratio, muffed a punt right off the bat, had the fumbled snap that led directly to six points, missed a 54 yard field goal and committed six penalties for 45 yards.

"We turned the ball over twice and you can't do so in this district and be successful," Warren said.

REBELS: Lee gets first comeback win

1950s.

"It feels great, not so much to tie the record, but that it came on a big play in the game when we had to have it," Norman said. "We didn't always play great defense tonight, but we stepped it up when we had to have it. That was the key."

But Cooper was to get another chance and this time it was cornerback Antwan Alexander who knocked Durham loose from a pass completion where Lee recovered to halt any last threat Cooper owned.

"We were just trying to keep everyone in front of us and then make a big hit," Alexander said, who certainly did that. "The offense helped us when we needed it, and the defense came through when they needed us. It was a team thing."

Lee came out like it would blow Cooper out of the water, marching 80 yards on the game's first drive with quarterback David Smith getting the final eight yards for a 7-0 lead.

But Cooper roared back behind Rhodes to drive to the Lee 2-yard line, but came up empty on points. However, Smith was sacked in the end zone for a safety as Lee held a 7-2 lead.

Lee led 14-2 at the half on another Smith touchdown, but Cooper struck with Rhodes twice to open the second half on runs of seven and 70 yards to give Cooper a 15-14 lead as the Rebels saw a deficit for the first time this season. But the Rebels drove 48 yards early in the fourth quarter for a 20-15 lead as Leroy Robinson, subbing for a slightly injured Josh Norman, got the final one yard. Then the Lee defense took over.

"Lee made one big play on us (the Pertile fumble recovery) and we couldn't overcome it," Cooper coach Randy Allen said. "We came out at the half and scored two touchdowns and had the momentum. We knew Lee would make a run at us, but we stalled on a couple of drives."

Parchman was happy to see this one end since his team now has a week off to regroup for the final season push.

"For the past five or six years, the game with Cooper has been a battle," Parchman said. "This is a big win because it's against a district contender. I told our kids this was going to be like a Summer Slam wrestling match. Cooper was breathing fire and I saw it coming since they were so flat last week against Amarillo High. They had a good plan and they were breathing fire.

"You have to realize that it isn't just Permian any more. Cooper is a playoff veteran and you're happy with any kind of victory. This game is going to help us become a better team."

Liberty Christian downs Mustangs

DENTON — Denton Liberty Christian scored with less than half a minute remaining to cement a 30-13 victory over Midland Christian here Friday night in a battle of two top-ranked teams in the Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools District 2-4A.

Liberty Christian (5-1) was ranked No. 2 coming into the game while the Mustangs (4-2), playing their first season in 11-man after winning five straight six-man title, were ranked No. 9.

Midland Christian hosts No. 1-ranked Fort Worth Christian next Friday.

The Mustangs were down 17-0 to Liberty after the first half and fell further behind, 23-0, to start the third quarter.

But Chris Patteson scored twice (1- and 6-yard runs) to pull the Mustangs within 23-13. Liberty, however, held Midland Christian scoreless after that and then added an insurance touchdown with 26 seconds remaining.

Andrew Hufford was MC's leading rusher with 119 yards on six carries. Alex Awtry passed three times for 86 yards.

Irvin's return might be what Cowboys need

AP Football Writer

This is the week the Dallas Cowboys have been pointing to all season, the one in which Michael Irvin returns from his five-week drug suspension.

It's as much a psychological lift as anything for the Cowboys, whose offense stumbled badly for most of the first five games. After a big win in Philadelphia and a bye week, they go into Sunday's game with the Arizona Cardinals 2-3.

"It feels like our group is now closer to being back together," says quarterback Troy Aikman. "As much as anything else, along with having a great player on the field again, it gives us a lot of confidence."

One thing Irvin's return does is rest Deion Sanders, who's been playing both wide receiver and cornerback. Although Kevin Williams, the other wide receiver, remains out, Sanders will probably play less on offense.

It also gives Aikman the third-down receiver he's lacked. Irvin and tight end Jay Novacek have been his favorites over the years, but neither was in the lineup for the first five games. Novacek is still out with a back injury.

Arizona is probably the best possible opponent for Irvin.

The Cowboys have beaten the Cardinals 11 straight times and are two-touchdown favorites against a team that started 0-3.

The Cardinals have gotten their spark from two unlikely players: running back LeShon Johnson and quarterback Kent Graham, who replaced an ineffective Boomer Esiason.

Johnson, who gained only 97 yards in his two previous seasons, is averaging 8.5 yards per carry. Graham threw for 366 yards and four touchdowns in a 31-28 overtime win over St. Louis.

The Cardinals are also trying to get a lift from Irvin's return.

"A lot of national attention will be on this game because of Michael," says safety Matt Darby. "We're viewing this as an opportunity to show the country that we are for real."

The biggest game of the week takes place Monday night, when San Francisco visits Green Bay.

Denver, Kansas City, San Diego and Seattle are off.

San Fran. (4-1) at Green Bay (5-1)

Despite the similar records, the Packers have been far more impressive this season. Their 204 points are by far the most in the league, and they've allowed only 72.

They've also won 20 of 21 at Lambeau Field, where the only thing going against them is the possibility one of their stars will be injured jumping into the stands after a touchdown.

Brett Favre's 116.4 rating is 31 points better than any other NFC quarterback and 14 points better than anyone else in the NFL.

The teams the 49ers have beaten are a combined 2-14. Both Steve Young (groin pull) and Elvis Grbac (cracked vertebrae) are hurting.

But the 49ers have incentive: avenging the 27-17 playoff loss to the Packers in San Francisco.

"We've been pointing toward this game all season," says Jerry Rice. "We feel like they embarrassed us at our place."

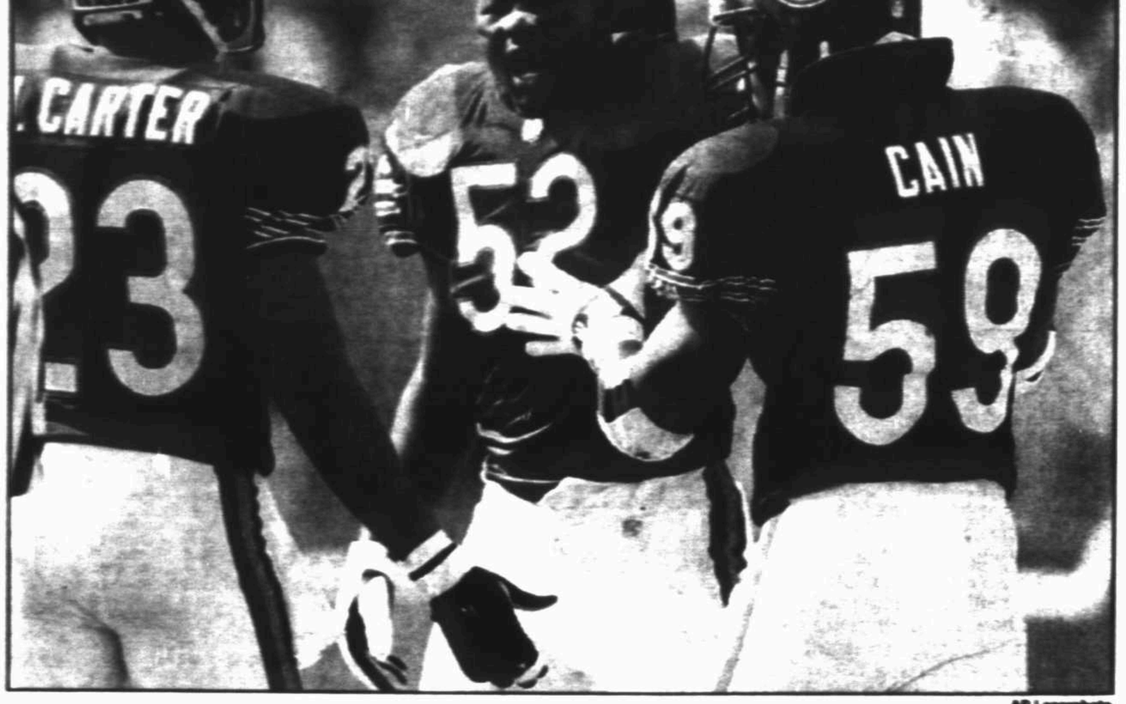

That was the doing of Mike Holmgren, who was offensive coordinator at San Francisco before taking over the Packers, and Fritz Shurmur, the defensive coordinator, who had plenty of experience against the San Francisco offense during his years with the Rams.

Miami (3-2) at Buffalo (4-1)

Jim Kelly could return, which isn't entirely a good thing for the Bills. He was at the bottom of the AFC quarterback ratings when he was hurt and the Bills are 2-0 with Todd Collins.

But Miami has more problems, particularly with Dan Marino gone for another month and Craig Erickson and Bernie Kosar in charge. After a loss to Seattle, Jimmy Johnson cut veteran safety Gene Atkins, whom he deemed responsible for allowing the winning touchdown.

Cincinnati (1-4) at Pittsburgh (4-1)

AP Laserphoto

Chicago Bears' Marty Carter (23) and Joe Cain (59) try to calm Bears linebacker Bryan Cox in last week's game with Green Bay. Cox has been fined $17,500 this week and is threatening the NFL with legal action.

If the Steelers coach were someone other than Bill Cowher, this would be a spot for a letdown after Monday night's 17-7 win in Kansas City. But Cowher's teams rarely stumble that way, even though Mike Tomczak is unlikely to throw for 338 yards again.

Washington (4-1) at New England (3-2)

Drew Bledsoe seems to have re-emerged for the Patriots, who have three straight wins after starting with losses in Miami and Buffalo. Coach Bill Parcells has won 10 of his last 13 games against the Skins, but that was Parcells' Giants against Joe Gibbs' Redskins.

This is a good test for Washington, which has been inconsistent defensively against a soft schedule.

Baltimore (2-3) at Indianapolis (4-1)

This game would be more interesting if it were in Baltimore, where fans could get worked into a frenzy at the sight of horseshoes on the helmets of a team from Indianapolis.

It wasn't too surprising that the Colts lost in Buffalo, a tough place to win against a tough defense. It would be surprising if they lost here, since the Ravens' only wins were at home against New Orleans and Oakland.

Bam Morris returns from a drug-related suspension to make his debut at running back for the Ravens.

Detroit (3-2) at Oakland (2-4)

Wayne Fontes' Lions often lose on the road against a struggling team, particularly when they're hurt, and nine regulars are banged up.

The Raiders' 34-13 victory over the winless Jets quieted for one week talk that owner Al Davis would fire coach Mike White. Last week, White found one answer — the running game, led by Joe Aska's 136 yards in 21 carries.

This game will probably be decided by defense, particularly with Ty Detmer at quarterback for Philadelphia in place of injured Rodney Peete. Detmer has had the bye week to practice, but still has thrown just 35 passes in four NFL seasons.

Philadelphia (3-2) at New York (2-3)

The Giants defense has improved. It's only 22nd in the league because the offense can't keep it off the field, but the unit hasn't allowed a touchdown in the last two games.

Minnesota (5-1) at Tampa Bay (0-5)

Are the Vikings a legitimate 5-1? They lost to the Giants, then barely beat banged-up Carolina at home last week.

Tampa is certainly a legitimate 0-5. The Buccaneers scored just 45 points, 23 of them in the one game they were in, a 27-23 loss against Denver.

Chicago (2-4) at New Orleans (1-5)

Bears coach Dave Wannstedt understands how Saints coach Jim Mora's been feeling. When you expect to win and don't, the fans want you gone.

Now Wannstedt also understands the problems Don Shula had with Bryan Cox: At some point, Cox will explode, as he did after last week's 37-6 loss to the Packers. The Saints, 0-5 last year before winning seven of 11, come in off a 17-13 win over Jacksonville.

Houston (3-2) at Atlanta (0-5)

It's familiar ground for the Oilers, since there often are as many empty seats in the Georgia Dome as in the Astrodome. And with the Falcons unable to foist disgruntled quarterback Jeff George on Seattle, there's not even the curiosity factor of a new quarterback to watch.

This is a big game for the Oilers, the only likely challenger to Pittsburgh in the AFC Central.

The Oilers have put together two good games in a row, despite losing to the Steelers two weeks ago. Houston went into Cincinnati and won, a place where wins have been few and far between for the Oilers in years past.

St. Louis (1-4) at Carolina (3-2)

Which one is the expansion team? The all-rookie Rams have Tony Banks at quarterback, Lawrence Phillips and Derrick Harris at running back and Eddie Kennison at wide receiver.

But the Panthers have the longer casualty list. Four key defenders — Sam Mills, Tyrone Poole, Brett Maxie and Duane Bickett — all have muscle pulls and didn't practice this week.

N.Y. Jets (0-6) at Jacksonville (2-4)

Again, which one is the expansion team?

Most of the guys who signed contracts worth $82 million with the Jets in the offseason are injured, including Keyshawn Johnson and Neil O'Donnell. Frank Reich replaces O'Donnell at quarterback, but Glenn Foley could get a look if Reich falters.

The one thing going for the Jets is that Jacksonville is 1-11 outside the AFC Central and lost to New York last season.

Injured neck could mean end of career for Kramer

By Mike Nadel
AP Sports Writer

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — In a matter of days, Erik Kramer should know if the two herniated disks in his neck will end his season — and maybe even his football career.

Chicago Bears coach Dave Wannstedt said Friday that his record-setting quarterback will spend much of the weekend talking with team orthopedist Michael Schafer, who in turn will be conferring with out-of-town specialists who examined Kramer on Wednesday and Thursday.

After the injury occurred Sept. 22 at Detroit, Schafer thought Kramer would be ready to play the final six weeks of the season. But Kramer's recovery has been slower and more painful than expected.

"We would have hoped he'd have been a little bit better at this point," Wannstedt said. "As for his future, that's totally the doctors' call."

It's been a whirlwind week for Kramer, who last season set team records with 3,838 passing yards and 29 touchdowns.

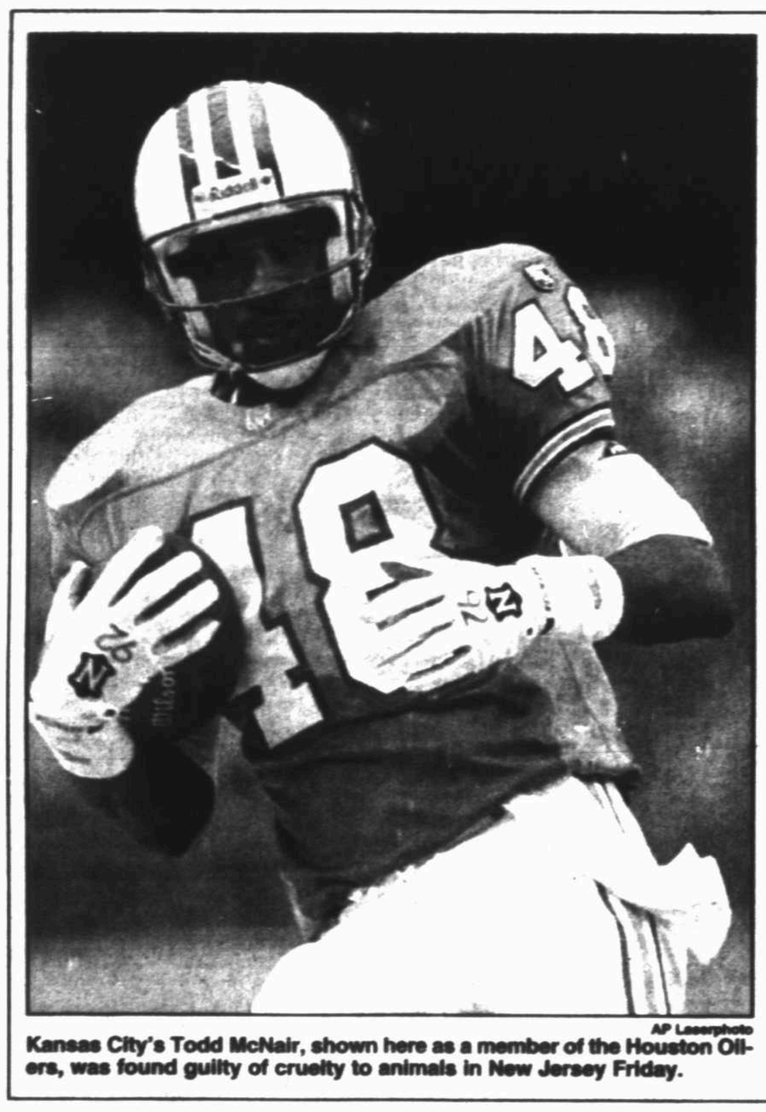

He went to a Chicago hospital Monday to receive a pain-killing injection, flew to California to meet with a specialist Wednesday and jetted to Georgia to see yet another doctor Thursday. On Friday, he met briefly with Bears trainer Fred Caito at team headquarters before going home to rest — and mull his future.

Kramer is in the final season of a three-year, $8.1 million contract.

Dave Krieg will be making his third start Sunday, when the Bears (2-4) visit the New Orleans Saints. He led Chicago to victory over Oakland but played poorly in last week's 37-6 loss to Green Bay.

Krieg, who turns 38 on Oct. 20, is backed up by two recently signed players who have never thrown a pass in the NFL — Shane Matthews and Mark Butterfield.

Steve Stenstrom, supposedly the Bears' QB of the future, played late against the Packers but broke a bone in his right ankle and has been lost for the remainder of the year.

Kansas City's Todd McNair, shown here as a member of the Houston Oilers, was found guilty of cruelty to animals in New Jersey Friday.

Chiefs' running back McNair found guilty of cruelty to animals

Associated Press

EAST GREENWICH TOWNSHIP, N.J. — Kansas City Chiefs running back Todd McNair has been found guilty of mistreating 17 pit bulls seized at his property and was fined $4,510.

Municipal Judge J.R. Powell found McNair guilty on 17 counts of cruelty to animals following a daylong trial Thursday, said court administrator Edna Melis. He was ordered to pay the fines and restitution to the local animal shelter that cared for the dogs since they were seized last April.

McNair was acquitted on charges that he was training the dogs for professional dog fights.

With the guilty verdict, McNair was forced to forfeit custody of the dogs, which were found chained at a vacant property he owned, authorities said. He was allowed to keep four pit bull puppies that the judge said had been properly cared for, Melis said.

McNair's attorney, John Yetman, declined comment Friday.

"I still have the puppies. I'm going to raise them up and make sure (their shelter) meets all the requirements," McNair told The Philadelphia Inquirer. "I love my dogs."

McNair, of Voorhees, said he bought the property in East Greenwich after a dog got loose from a fence at his property in Paulsboro.

Authorities began investigating after neighbors reported hearing dogs barking and crying and seeing dogs in cages filled with feces. Investigators said they found most of the dogs without food or water and some had serious illnesses or injuries.

All the dogs had scars on their heads and faces and many appeared to be malnourished and nursed fresh, bleeding wounds, authorities said. One dog had a broken leg, authorities said.

The 6-foot-1, 202-pound running back from Temple spent five years with the Chiefs before signing a free agent contract with the Houston Oilers in 1994. He returned to the Chiefs in July.

Ford offers $40 million to name new Detroit stadium

By John Hughes
Associated Press

DETROIT — Ford Motor Co. will pay $40 million for the right to name a domed stadium proposed for the Lions in downtown Detroit.

"We view this as an excellent marketing opportunity for the company," Ford chairman Alex Trotman said Friday.

The name of the stadium will remain a mystery, possibly for several months. Trotman said Ford may sponsor a naming contest.

But he said one thing's for sure — "Ford" will be part of the name.

And he said there is a high probability that the dome will have a giant Ford insignia across it.

The Lions want to build their stadium near a proposed Detroit Tigers open-air ballpark. Both would go up in a planned $485 million complex that would stretch over about 40 acres centered around the Fox Theatre district.

But two obstacles loom this month for the stadium. By Nov. 1, the Lions must acquire land for the stadium and also persuade private industry to contribute $10 million.

Detroit mayor Dennis Archer said he was optimistic. "I believe we will be able to meet the conditions preceding Nov. 1," he said.

In financing the stadium, the Lions would contribute $70 million, Wayne County would add $20 million from the sale of surplus land, and $45 million would come from the Detroit Downtown Development Authority, which would sublease the stadiums to the teams.

Wayne County voters, on the other hand, on Nov. 5 must approve excise taxes of 1 percent on hotel rooms for stays less than 30 days and 2 percent on car rentals, measures that would raise $80 million over 30 years.

Trotman said he hopes his announcement whips up support for the tax.

"We think what we're getting is very good value for the Ford shareholders," he said.

Yates bearing down on Pro Stock crown

By John Sturbin
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

ENNIS — Jim Yates' drive to his first Pro Stock drag-racing championship is the byproduct of a steady supply of horsepower, and a healthy fear of failure.

"I'm motivated a lot by a fear of failure. It makes me work harder and harder," said Yates, who can lock up his first National Hot Rod Association title during the 11th annual Chief Auto Parts Nationals at the Texas Motorplex on Sunday.

"I'm not the greatest driver out here, but I win my fair share of races," said Yates, one of three professional drivers in the McDonald's/Joe Gibbs Racing organization. "I try to drive not like I'm 10 rounds ahead in the points. I drive like this is the last race of my life."

The winner of seven national events this season, including the past two, Yates has forged a 226-point lead over three-time and reigning NHRA Winston Pro Stock champion Warren Johnson. Yates needs to qualify on the 16-car ladder today or tomorrow and win the first round of eliminations Sunday to displace Johnson.

"We've got the championship 90 percent locked up," said Yates, who will attack the quarter-mile in qualifying scheduled today at 3 and 7 p.m. with a record-shattering ally. Supplying the horsepower for Yates' Pontiac Firebird will be a 500 cubic-inch engine nicknamed "Nita" by crew chief Richard Maskin.

"Nita set the national record (6.947 seconds) last month," said Maskin, referring to the Pioneer Keystone Nationals in Mohnton, Pa. "And she's up about three horsepower from the best she's been this season."

That normally would give Yates one less thing about which to fret. But Yates' fears at Billy Meyer's all-concrete Motorplex are justified.

This will be Yates' seventh appearance at the Chief Nationals. He has one DNQ (did not qualify), five first-round losses and one second-round defeat on a smooth surface reputed for its superb traction-producing/horsepower-enhancing qualities.

Why should this weekend in the Ennis countryside be any different?

NHRA Winston Drag Racing

Pro Stock Top 10

Driver	Points
1. Jim Yates	1,530
2. Warren Johnson	1,304
3. Mike Edwards	955
4. Steve Schmidt	897
5. Chuck Harris	873
6. Kurt Johnson	864
7. Rickie Smith	832
8. Tom Martino	777
9. Jerry Eckman	692
10. Bob Glidden	687

"Well, we're coming in hot," said Yates, a 43-year old resident of Alexandria, Va. "We'd really have to mess up to lose the championship."

Yates, whose elimination round record is 45-10, will be seeking a third consecutive victory.

Yates, who entered the NHRA's Pro Stock ranks in 1989 from the Bracket ranks, said he finally has learned how to win. In 1995, Yates reached the final round in seven races but won only once. This year, he has seven victories in 10 final-round appearances. He has improved his final-round record from 2-13 at the beginning of the season to 9-16.

"Jim makes good decisions on race day, and I think he's going to be a better driver than he is today," said Maskin, who is seeking his first world championship as a crew chief/engine-builder after 25 years in the business.

"We've all got to be perfect, because if we make a mistake the world sees it. Jim's part is the toughest. He's in there alone."

Yates said the fact that he has outrun Johnson, the "Professor of Pro Stock," speaks volumes about his McPontiac.

"I'm not gloating, because that's not what motivates us," Yates said. "But we've proven we can run with the best in the country.

"This is our first championship and it's very special for us. Because where we've come from — which is nowhere — to where we're at — which is on top of the heap — is a long way."

Damon Hill of Britain drives his Williams-Renault during untimed practice for Formula One Japanese Grand Prix at the Suzuka Circuit Friday. With one point in Sunday's race he will clinch the points championship.

Hill poised to climb F1 mountain

■ Damon Hill, son of Formula 1 legend Graham Hill, needs just one point in final race to clinch the driving points title.

By Mari Yamaguchi
Associated Press

SUZUKA, Japan — Damon Hill is the sentimental choice for this year's Formula One championship. Even Frank Williams, who dropped him for next season, agrees.

Hill, the son of two-time Formula One champion Graham Hill, has long dreamed of winning the title. Now he's got his best, and possibly his last, chance.

In Sunday's Japanese Grand Prix, the season's final race, Hill needs only one point — or a sixth-place finish — to clinch the title.

"It will be nice if Damon wins the championship," Williams, the owner of Williams-Renault, said.

Recently, Williams refused to renew Hill's contract for next season. Instead, he gave Hill's place in the 1997 lineup to a young German, Heinz-Harald Frentzen.

Hill is going from one of Formula One's fastest teams to one of the weakest — Arrows.

In Friday's practice sessions, Hill was fifth-fastest, as he circled the wet and slippery 3.636-mile Suzuka circuit in 1 minute, 43.747 seconds, an average speed of 126.157 mph.

"I think that was a good start," Hill said. "I was pushing quite hard to find the limit in the slippery conditions. The car feels very controllable, so I'm encouraged by that."

Hill's Williams-Renault teammate and rival, Jacques Villeneuve, finished fourth in Friday's practice.

Trailing Hill 87 points to 78, Villeneuve can win the title only if he wins the race and Hill finishes seventh or lower.

A tie in points would give Hill the title because he has more first-place finishes this season — seven to four by Villeneuve in 15 races.

A Formula One rookie, Villeneuve is familiar with the Suzuka circuit's curves and straights from having driven in the Formula Three series in 1992.

Gerhard Berger of Austria turned the fastest lap at 1:42.350 in a Benetton-Renault with a top speed of 127.879 mph. Berger, who finished second to Villeneuve in the British Grand Prix in July, is sixth in the point standings with 18.

Mika Hakkinen of Finland, driving a McLaren Mercedes, was second at 1:42.954, and two-time defending champion Michael Schumacher of Germany was third at 1:43.321. With 53 points, Schumacher is third and out of contention for this year's championship.

Hill reportedly had become too expensive for Williams, earning an estimated $7.5 million this year and looking for a substantial increase after four years with the team and 20 Grand Prix victories in 66 starts — one of the highest success rates in the sport.

On Friday, Hill's new team announced that his teammate will be Pedro Diniz, a Brazilian who is 15th in the drivers' standings driving for Ligier-Mugen-Honda.

Qualifying will be held Saturday to determine the positions for Sunday's race.

Chavez gets into ring again

By Tim Dahlberg
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. — It's not a great time to be Julio Cesar Chavez, who lost his title to Oscar De La Hoya only to suffer the indignation of being wanted in his native Mexico for tax evasion.

Joey Gamache, though, thinks it's a great time to be fighting Julio Cesar Chavez.

"If you can ever get Chavez, this is the time to do it," Gamache said. "Chavez isn't the same Chavez. The wars he's been in, the tough times he's had. It's a great time to catch him."

Gamache gets the chance Saturday night when he takes on the great but aging champion in a scheduled 10-round bout that figures to tell a lot about the boxing future of the 34-year-old Chavez.

In his first fight back since being stopped by De La Hoya in the fourth round June 7, Chavez desperately needs a strong performance to regain the credibility of some who think he's a shot fighter.

"I have to win big, I don't have any alternative," Chavez said. "I have to knock him out."

The Chavez-Gamache fight tops a card that was moved from Las Vegas to the Anaheim Arena after the previous main event, De La Hoya versus Miguel Angel Gonzalez, was postponed when De La Hoya suffered a shoulder injury.

Also on the card, which will be televised on pay-per-view, is an IBF light flyweight title defense by Michael Carbajal against Tomas Rivera.

For Chavez, the fight is a test of whether he can put away a boxer who he easily could handle in his prime. Now, he's in the twilight of a 16-year pro career that saw him win titles in four weight classes.

"I have to demonstrate I can still do it in the ring," Chavez said. "It's going to be a hard fight with a young kid who has a lot of desire."

Chavez has been in virtual exile in the United States since early September when the Mexican government issued a warrant for his arrest, charging him with evading some $1.4 million in taxes.

Davies surges to Betsy King Classic lead

Associated Press

Pro Golf Roundup

KUTZTOWN, Pa. — Laura Davies, trying to top the money lists in Europe and America, surged into the lead at the Betsy King LPGA Classic with a 7-under-65 in the second round Friday.

Davies' two-round total of 134 gave her a one-stroke lead over first-round leader Annika Sorenstam in the $600,000 tournament being played at the 6,075-yard Berkleigh Country Club.

Davies trails rookie Karrie Webb, who took the week off, by $56,275 on the U.S. money list. The $90,000 first-place prize would move her ahead of Webb; the $55,855 second-place prize wouldn't.

Both Davies and Webb are scheduled to appear in two more LPGA events, the Toray Japan Queens Cup and the ITT Tour Championship.

Sorenstam, of Stockholm, shot a 69. A shot into the creek on the par-4 17th led to her only bogey on the round, and she had four birdies, including one on the par-3 6th that came on a 30-foot putt.

Her score was good enough for a share of third place with Kristi Albers and Juli Inkster, who also shot 69. Albers, who opened with a 72, shot a 67 — the day's second-best round.

Transamerica Seniors

NAPA, Calif. — Tommy Aaron, Bud Allin and Senior PGA Tour rookie Bob Eastwood all shot 5-under-par 67s Friday and shared a one-stroke lead over six others after one round of the $700,000 Transamerica Senior Golf Championship.

Aaron, the only player among the threesome who has won as a senior, had six birdies in his round on a warm, windless day at Silverado Country Club.

Allin and Eastwood both had five birdies on the 6,632-yard layout.

Bobby Stroble, Tom Wargo, Jay Sigel, Bruce Crampton, Brian Barnes and Frank Conner all shot 68s.

Chi Chi Rodriquez, last week's runner-up in Los Angeles, and four others were another stroke back.

Eastwood, who has four top-10 finishes this year including a runner-up effort in March at the Toshiba Classic in Southern California, is recovering from a freak tendon injury last April while playing with a 4-year-old nephew.

Allin, a third-year Senior Tour player who has three top-10 finishes this year, chipped in from 25 feet on No. 18.

Defending champion Lee Trevino, trying to become the tournament's first three-time winner, shot 71 and was in a group with 11 others. Gil Morgan, who last week became the youngest player to win a Senior Tour event, fired a 74 and was among a group of 14.

Jim Colbert, the Senior Tour's second-leading money winner, also shot 71. Arnold Palmer carded a 78.

Dunhill Cup

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland — The Old Course has had some memorable doings in five centuries of golf, but perhaps none as shocking as India traveling to the home of the game and knocking Scotland out of the Dunhill Cup.

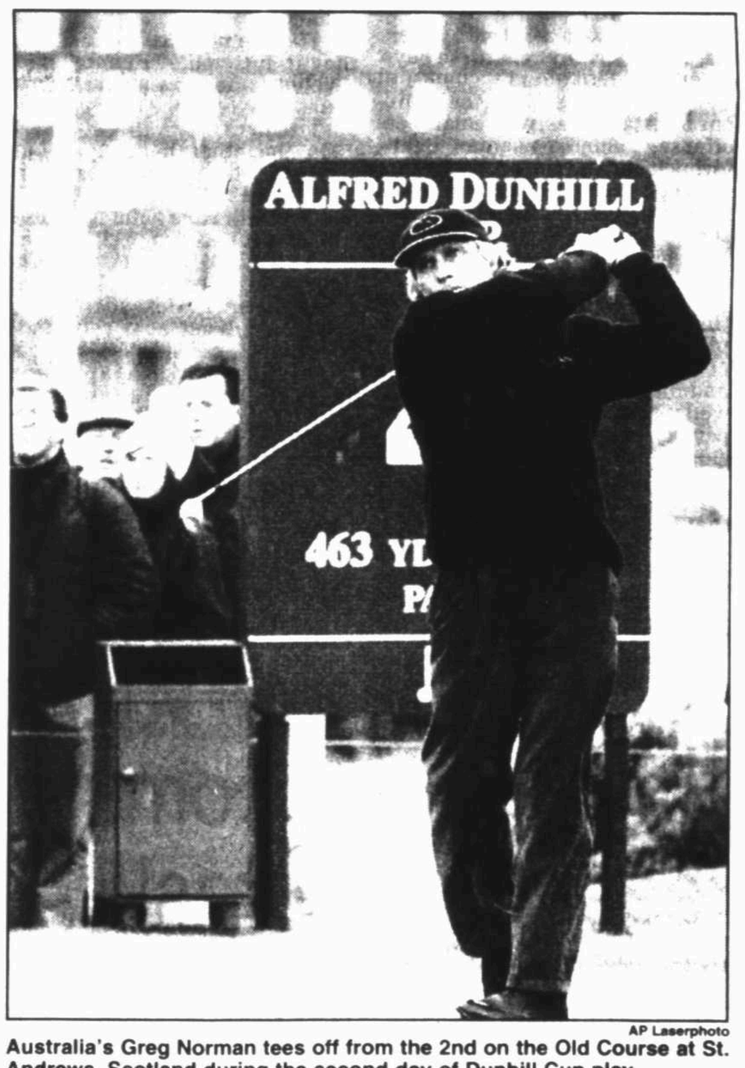

The legal bookmakers made India the 1,000-1 last pick in the 16-team field while Scotland was 1-20 to successfully defend its title.

There seemed to be no way Scotland could lose. But it never even made it to the last match on Friday.

The stunning development completely overshadowed everything else on a day in which the United States ran its record to 2-0 with a 2-1 victory over England and Greg Norman led Australia to a 3-0 victory over Germany.

The U.S. team of Phil Mickelson, Mark O'Meara and Steve Stricker were 2-0 after matches with Italy and England, but Friday's match could easily have gone the other way.

O'Meara, who made 11 birdies in shooting a 63 against Italy, managed only three in a 75 against Barry Lane, who parred every hole to shoot 72.

Ogrin uses hometown edge to lead Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO — David Ogrin used his hometown edge to shoot a 7-under-par 65 Friday for a one-stroke lead over Jay Haas after the second round of the Texas Open.

Ogrin, who lives in nearby Garden Ridge and plays regularly at La Cantera Golf Club, started the day at 2-under and moved to 9-under with a round buoyed by two birdie streaks.

Haas shot a 66. Tiger Woods, Bob Tway and John Huston — one of the co-leaders after the first round — were two shots back.

Both Huston and Mike Heinen carded 66s Thursday to share the lead after the first round. Heinen had a 75 in the second round, and was six shots back at 141.

Ogrin, 62nd on the money list, made par on each of the first four holes, then went on a birdie binge beginning with the par-5 5th. He just missed a 40-foot eagle putt, then tapped in for a birdie. Ogrin finished the front nine with birdies on the final four holes.

After bogeying No. 10, Ogrin had another flurry of birdies from the 12th through 15th holes, then finished the round with a bogey on the par-4 18th. He hooked his drive left under a tree, and missed a 20-foot putt.

Haas, 54th on the money list, started the day at 2-under and played the back nine first. He birdied the 11th, then made par on every hole until No. 1, which he birdied. Haas went on to birdie the 2nd, 4th, 5th and 8th holes.

Tway is 31st on the PGA money list with $518,046 in winnings, while Woods is 40th with $437,194 and Huston is 35th with $463,717. All are battling for the top 30 and the chance to make the Tour Championship in two weeks.

The winner of the $1.2 million tournament earns $216,000.

Woods, 20, the three-time U.S. Amateur champion, began the day at 3-under. He started his round with a birdie, but quickly started to slip. He three-putted for a bogey on the par-3 3rd, and four-putted for a double bogey on the par-3 6th.

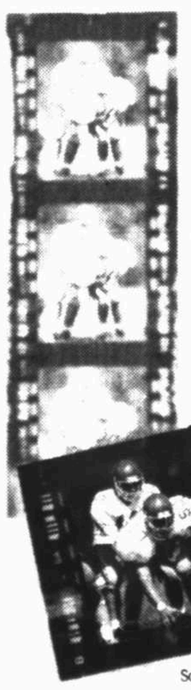

Redemption came on the back nine. Woods made six birdies, his final one coming on the par-3 17th, when he sank an 18-foot putt.

David Frost and Mark Calcavecchia finished the day at 6-under, a stroke behind Woods, Tway and Huston.

TCU's year a nightmare on, off field

By Mike Cochran
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH — What began as the Year of the Frog is becoming a nightmare on and off the field for Texas Christian University and its Heisman Trophy football coach Pat Sullivan.

With the season barely a month old, four players are under criminal indictment, four others are under suspension and Sullivan is under fire.

On the field, things are no better, despite an auspicious start.

Armed with rich but raw talent and celebrating their 100th anniversary, the Horned Frogs loomed as potential contenders in their first year in the Western Athletic Conference.

"The dedication and work ethic and unity of our kids is about as good as I've ever been around," Sullivan said in September. "If a few things fall right, we're a dark horse to have a really good year.

"I like this football team."

TCU opened with a stunning (at the time) 20-7 upset of O' homa in Norman, and forecasts of a th.. d straight winning season seemed valid.

Then came lopsided losses to Kansas, New Mexico and Tulane.

They are 0-1 in the WAC entering Saturday night's game against Mountain Division opponent Texas-El Paso.

"We just need to keep working on stuff and make a few plays to gain some confidence," Sullivan told reporters. "That's all we need is a little confidence and we can get this thing turned around."

But the problems off the field are mounting for Sullivan, the former Auburn quarterback who won the Heisman Trophy in 1971.

In the latest episode, quarterbacks Jeff Dover, Derek Canine and Kevin Colon were suspended indefinitely after an incident early Thursday on the Southern Methodist University campus in nearby Dallas.

Canine, a former SMU student, is

'I deeply regret another unfortunate incident involving TCU football players.'

— William E. Tucker, Texas Christian Chancellor accused of creating a disturbance in a dormitory and assaulting a male student who apparently complained about the noise.

Dover, a redshirt freshman who started the four TCU games, and Colon, a sophomore transfer from Texas A&M, were present but reportedly not involved.

Canine was charged with misdemeanor assault and fined $200.

Neither he nor Colon is eligible this season because of NCAA transfer rules.

Sullivan also suspended a fourth player, Gaylon Hyder, a starting defensive tackle, for missing practice without an excused absence.

Earlier this year, four TCU players, including former Midland Lee center Ryan Tucker, an All-American candidate, were charged in the May 11 beating of a TCU student outside a Fort Worth bar.

Chancellor William E. Tucker called the incidents "unsettling" and "troubling" and said:

"As in the past, we are firmly committed to sustaining and growing a football program with character and integrity. Anything less is unacceptable to the university."

The four players involved in the May affair face a criminal trial but were not suspended, and Sullivan has been roundly criticized for permitting them to go unpunished.

He faced renewed criticism Friday.

Gil LeBreton of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, in a sports column headlined "A new blow to Sullivan's credibility," maintains that Sullivan's judgment calls have put TCU's credibility on the line as well as his own.

"Nary a day goes by that the news doesn't contain mention of a college football player's brush with trouble," LeBreton wrote. "Some of them, it seems, major in trouble. But this isn't Miami or Oklahoma. Parents send their kids to TCU to avoid incidents like this.

"But when one of the May 11 alleged combatants is an All-America candidate and doesn't get suspended, people wonder. And Sullivan starts looking like just another football coach whose only goal is to win games."

In a statement issued Thursday night, Sullivan said: "As soon as the criminal justice process runs its course and the facts are known, appropriate action will be taken."

He also defended Thursday's suspensions.

"Was my decision in the latest incident too harsh?" he asked rhetorically. "No. I have tried to instill in every player that such conduct will absolutely not be tolerated.

"Anyone who breaks a team rule will pay the price. Again, the incident that occurred Thursday was a total embarrassment. I deeply regret it and I apologize."

Win over Longhorns could erase bad start

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — The miserable start to John Blake's coaching career at the University of Oklahoma can be erased Saturday if the 22-point underdog Sooners can somehow ambush the 25th-ranked Texas Longhorns.

The winless Sooners have lost to the likes of Texas Christian and Tulsa, at home, but strange things can happen when the Sooners and Longhorns meet in their annual Red River rivalry in the Cotton Bowl.

The two teams are in the same league now, the southern division of the Big 12 Conference. But the only thing that matters is that the two schools don't like each other. A win over the other can be a season saver.

Blake says the Sooners are down but members of the team still believe in each other.

"These guys dealing with adversity has really brought these guys together," Blake said.

If anything, he said, the team has been too hyper, particularly on offense, behind freshman quarterback Justin Fuente.

"They need to calm down and relax and put the ball in the end zone," Blake said "We've got an outstanding offense, one that gives people problems.

"When our offense is running on time, when we're able to call the plays, when we're in a good sync of what we want to do on this down and distance, then we usually do well. Then all of the sudden a penalty occurs, a player jumps offsides, all of the sudden we get rattled ... and it costs us."

Blake said the Sooners aren't that far from being a winner.

"I'm really pleased with the attitude of these kids," he said. "We all hope and pray one day that a big game will occur, that they win so they can feel rewarded."

The new coaching staff also is feeling its way along, Blake said.

"I'm not frustrated with anybody. I look at the film and see the things I missed," he said.

Texas coach John Mackovic said he has sympathy for Blake.

"Going through a coaching change is tough," Mackovic said. "I remember when people were talking about coach Mackovic getting fired a few years ago and a lot of the players wanted him to stay no matter how bad it got because it's just hard to pick up and start all over with a new coach. You have to learn a new system. It's tough."

The Longhorns have suffered losses to Notre Dame and Virginia that sent Texas spinning out of the top 10.

However, the Longhorns mauled Oklahoma State 71-14 last week to warmup for the Sooners.

Quarterback James Brown, who beat Oklahoma 17-10 two years ago, is expected to start for Texas.

Brown is 16-4-1 as a starter but has struggled this year.

"I just need to play the way I know I can play," Brown said.

Meanwhile, Fuente will face the strongest part of the Texas defense, the experienced secondary.

"They're old, they're fast, and they'll hit you," Fuente said. "We've got to grow up in a hurry. Texas is favored and they've got to not lose to us."

On the other hand, an Oklahoma upset would rank as one of the biggest in this storied rivalry. The Sooners have nothing to lose.

Kickoff is set for 2:30 p.m. before the usual sellout crowd. The two teams tied 24-24 last year when Jeremy Alexander of the Sooners missed a 42-yard field goal with 31 seconds left.

The game marks the 91st meeting between the two schools since the first game in 1900, and the 68th consecutive meeting. Texas owns a 52-33-5 advantage in the series.

The teams last battled as members of the same conference in 1919 as the Sooners won 12-7 in Norman. The two schools were members of the Southwest Conference from 1915-19 before OU joined the Missouri Valley Intercollegiate Conference.

The last three games have produced one win for Oklahoma (38-17 in 1993) one for Texas (17-10 in 1994), and one tie (24-24 last year).

Baylor homecoming feast for Nebraska

By Ed Howard
Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. — Nebraska fans always expect to win, at least during the regular season.

And why not? Coach Tom Osborne's No. 5 Cornhuskers have never failed to win at least nine games in any of his 23 seasons.

But with a loss to Arizona State this season, Nebraska's hopes for a third consecutive national championship depend on what happens to other teams.

A homecoming victory Saturday over Baylor (3-1 0-1 Big 12) depends on Nebraska (3-1, 1-0 Big 12) showing up.

The Cornhuskers' offense stumbled badly in the loss to Arizona State and now starting I-back Ahman Green is sidelined with an injured toe.

Osborne decided to start senior Damon Benning in Green's place instead of freshman DeAngelo Evans.

Benning, a senior from Omaha, had to sit out last week's game because of a sore groin, but has recovered fully, Osborne said.

"Damon is a guy who shouldn't lose his turn in the rotation because of injury," he said. "DeAngelo figures to play a lot. We're still not in real bad shape at I-back."

Evans put on a show against Kansas State last week after Green was injured at the start of the second half. He gained 168 yards on 21 carries.

Evans was philosophical about it.

"It's been fun, but I'm kind of scared," Evans said. "It seems like it's almost too good to be true. I guarantee you that I won't take it for granted or let it slip away."

Benning is recovering from a groin injury and clearly doesn't want to let his previous spot as the No. 2 running back slip away.

Nebraska's offense has not been the smooth machine that Osborne has fielded in recent years.

The 19-0 loss to Arizona State that knocked the Huskers out of the No. 1 ranking had Osborne wondering how good his 1996 team might be.

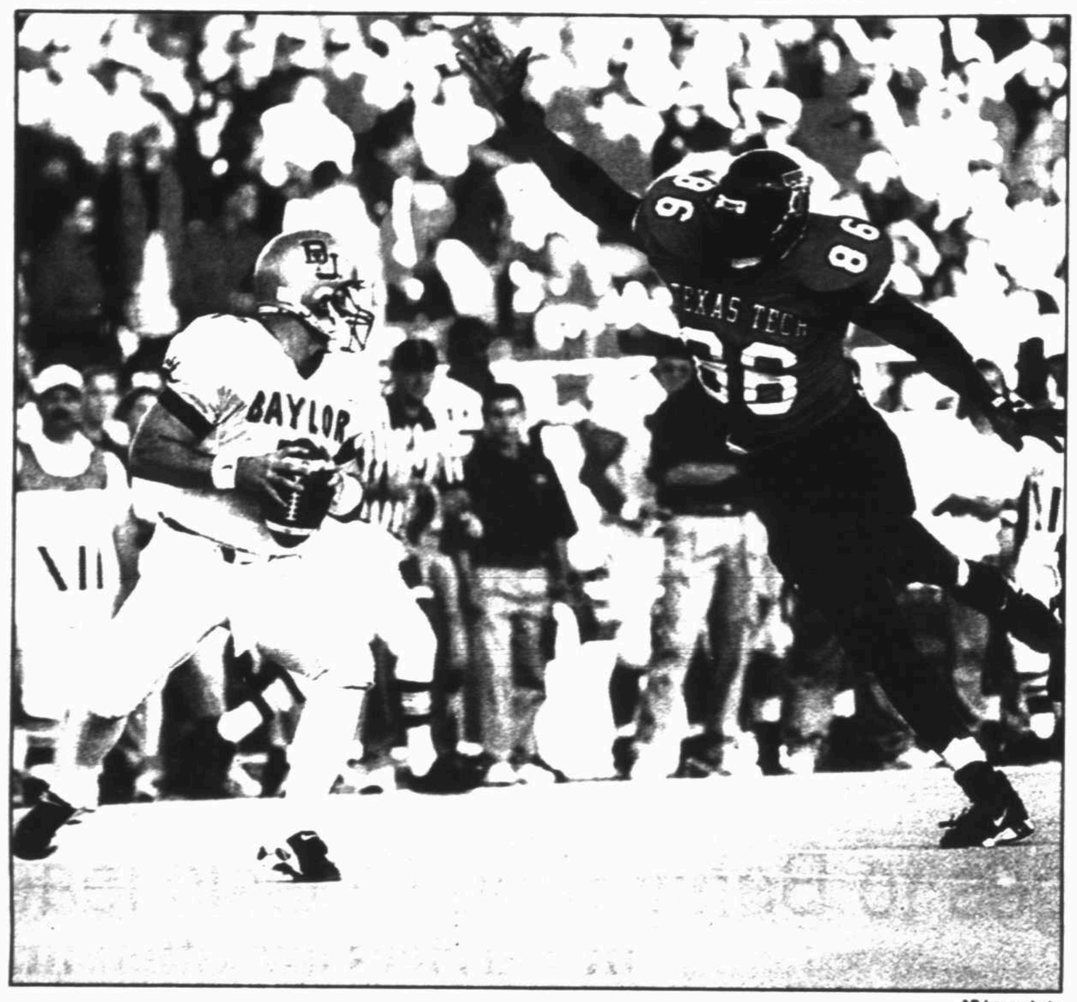

Successive victories over Colorado State and Kansas State have built confidence and brought better concentration into the huddle, he said.

Quarterback Scott Frost, the junior transfer from Stanford, has shouldered responsibility for leading Nebraska. He has also shouldered endless criticism from fans.

Bears coach Chuck Reedy said it seemed Baylor was going from the frying pan (a loss to Texas Tech) to the fire with the trip to Lincoln.

Kansas finally back home to face Texas Tech

Associated Press

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Last time June Henley and friends heard the cheers of their home crowd, Kansas fans were wearing suntan lotion at the lake.

Now they're raking leaves and unpacking heavy blankets. Forty-four days after opening at home with a 35-10 victory over Ball State on Aug. 29, the Jayhawks are finally coming back, the weirdest stretch of this weird 1996 schedule behind them at last.

"I didn't think it would be that big of a deal, but it sure seems like it was a long time ago," said coach Glen Mason, whose team hosts Texas Tech on Saturday in the first Big 12 conference game in Memorial Stadium's 75-year history.

For admirers of great running backs, however, the 44-day wait will have been worth it because this one puts on display two of the country's finest runners.

Henley, with a terrific start, has vaulted into all-star consideration and positioned himself for a run at Kansas' all-time rushing record. He comes into the game as the third-leading rusher in the nation, but only No. 2 in the game. While Henley has been averaging 166.8 yards, Texas Tech (3-2, 2-1) has been giving Byron Hanspard the ball. The ordained minister is No. 2 nationally with a whopping 222.4 yards an outing.

Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes compares Henley, a rugged 5-foot-11, 215-pounder, with Earl Campbell and former Tech star Byron "Bam" Morris.

"He's got great vision. I guess that's why he is one of the top rushers in the nation," Dykes said. "He's got a lot of raw talent."

Henley had been averaging more than 200 yards until Oklahoma held him to 63 yards last week in the Jayhawks' 52-24 win. But he's also caught 12 passes and is tied for first in the nation in scoring with 18 points a game.

"He's pretty big," said Tech cornerback Tony Darden. "We've got to go in hard and try to make the tackles."

Hanspard has gone over 100 yards in 11 straight games and over 200 in six of his last seven. In a 45-24 victory over Baylor last week, the fluid junior broke his own school record with 287 yards.

"When Byron steps on the field, there are no limits," said Tech quarterback Zebbie Lethridge. "We know there is no telling what he can do. I know he makes my job easier."

As a team, the Red Raiders are No. 2 in the nation with 336.2 yards per game.

"When you are No. 2 in the country in rushing the football, two things are apparent," Mason said. "One is that you have a good offensive line. No. 2, you have a pretty darn good running back. They have both of those things.

"They are a high-powered offense, and we are sure going to have to play a lot better defensively than we have the last two weeks to put ourselves in position to win. We have to play better all-around, both offensively and defensively."

Buckeyes, Sun Devils look Rosy?

Associated Press

NCAA

If Ohio State and Arizona State are to meet in the Rose Bowl as expected, the Buckeyes will have to buck recent history, and the Sun Devils will have to buck tradition.

Arizona State, which has appeared in the Rose Bowl only once, in 1987 against Michigan, plays its first road game of the season Saturday after five impressive home victories. The fourth-ranked Sun Devils travel to UCLA, which is 2-2 this year, but at least can boast of 11 Rose Bowl appearances.

"We don't want to look too far down that road," Arizona State quarterback Jake Plummer said. "It's exciting to be considered. We're going to try and keep playing like we have."

Ohio State is a 12-time Rose Bowl participant, but its last visit was 1985, and since then, archrival Michigan has been to Pasadena six times.

Recently, the Buckeyes have stumbled on the doorstep to the Rose Bowl.

Twice in the past three years, the Buckeyes have risen to the No. 2 spot in the nation, and each time they fell back.

In 1993, after eight convincing wins and a No. 2 ranking, a 14-14 tie at Wisconsin preceded a 28-0 loss at Michigan two weeks later.

Last season, Ohio State reeled off 11 consecutive wins before Michigan again doused the Buckeyes' Rose hopes with a 31-23 win.

Against Wisconsin on Saturday, they meet a team that is 3-1, including a narrow loss to No. 10 Penn State, which was manhandled 38-7 by Ohio State. After that loss, the Badgers had a week off.

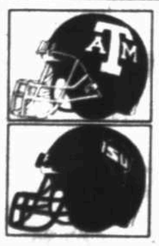

Arizona State's five victories have been by an average score of 44-17, and the Sun Devils showed their defensive mettle by shutting down defending national champion Nebraska 19-0.

"I expect it to be very difficult," UCLA coach Bob Toledo said. "We've got to keep from losing the game first. We've got to keep them from making a bunch of big plays, play smart. And we've got to play for 60 minutes.

"There's obviously a reason why they're 5-0. There's a reason they beat Nebraska. If they can go undefeated for the rest of the season, who's to say they won't compete for the national championship?"

Band on the run: Cyclones take on A&M ground defense

By Chuck Schoffner
AP Sports Writer

AMES, Iowa — Now comes the real test for Texas A&M's defense.

Through five games, the Aggies are third nationally in defending the run, allowing just 60.4 yards a game. But coach R.C. Slocum is reserving judgment on that figure until Saturday, when A&M visits Iowa State and national rushing leader Troy Davis.

"I think our rushing defense, our stat, is a little bit unrealistic because we have faced teams who rely heavily on the pass and who have taken great pride in throwing the ball," Slocum said.

"In all honesty, we have not played a team that has the philosophy Iowa State has — a great running back and a big offensive line and we're going to line up and run the ball at you."

Iowa State (2-2 overall, 1-0 Big 12) certainly does that. The Cyclones are fifth nationally in rushing with an average of 286.3 yards a game and Davis has run for 917 yards after leading the nation last year with 2,010. Only once in the last 15 games has Davis been held to less than 100 yards.

A&M (2-3, 0-1) hasn't seen a back like that yet. Still, the Aggies' numbers are impressive. Opponents are averaging only 2.1 yards a carry against A&M, which has allowed just one rushing touchdown. Colorado, usually a pretty good running team, netted only 91 yards in 29 carries and managed a measly 10 first downs.

"I don't care who you've played or what their emphasis has been offensively, when you line up and play five football games and those five teams are averaging only 60 yards per game rushing, that's phenomenal defense," Iowa State coach Dan McCarney said.

"So it's going to be a real challenge for our offensive line, Troy Davis and everybody else involved in our offense this week to be able to move the ball and move the chains and try to run the football on them."

With 83 yards Saturday, Davis would become the first player to twice rush for 1,000 yards in five games. He had 1,001 through the first five games last year. In his last game, a 45-31 victory over Missouri on Sept. 28, Davis ran for 378 yards — the third best ever in NCAA Division I-A.

Orioles' protest denied by league

By Ronald Blum
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Orioles' protest of Game 1 of the American League championship series was unanimously denied Friday by baseball's ruling executive council and AL president Gene Budig.

The council and Budig made the decision during a telephone conference call that lasted less than an hour, choosing not to overrule Wednesday's blown fan interference call by umpire Rich Garcia.

"It is not relevant that umpire Garcia admitted or was quoted as admitting that he called the play incorrectly," Budig said in a two-page decision. "In the case of a judgment call, postgame statements or quotations attributed to the umpires by the press cannot form the basis for overturning the result of a game and replaying it from a certain point.

"Apart from the chilling effect it would have on umpires, such a rule would create havoc for all involved."

Baltimore had asked that Game 1 be resumed with the Orioles ahead 4-3 in the eighth inning and Derek Jeter at the plate.

'...Apart from the chilling effect it would have on umpires such a rule (in favor of the Orioles) would create havoc for all involved.'
— Gene Budig, American League President.

Jeter hit a fly ball to right field at Yankee Stadium, and Orioles outfielder Tony Tarasco appeared to be about to catch it against the wall.

But the ball was pulled over the wall by a 12-year-old fan, and Garcia failed to call fan interference, awarding a home run that tied the game. New York won 5-4 in the 11th on a home run by Bernie Williams.

Garcia admitted after the game that he blew the call.

Baltimore owner Peter Angelos made the protest both to Budig and to the executive council, which acts in place of a commissioner. The commissioner is empowered to protect "the best interests of baseball," and Angelos asked Selig to use that power to disallow the home run.

"The best interests power of the commissioner does not apply in this case," Selig said. "It is not intended to be used to circumvent the on-field judgment of the umpires or the express authority of the league presidents to decide game-related protests. This is consistent with precedents throughout baseball history in which judgments made by umpires on the field have been given deference."

Orioles manager Davey Johnson had expected the ruling to go against Baltimore.

"I don't know of any protest that has ever won," he said. "A lot of times you protest just to bring out what you feel is inequity in the game. I think it was 99.9 percent sure that it was going to be denied."

After Baltimore's Roberto Alomar received only a five-game suspension for spitting on umpire John Hirschbeck on Sept. 27, umpires complained they hadn't received proper backing from baseball officials and twice threatened to strike. A walkout was averted only when the American and National leagues obtained a federal court order.

Lefty Avery wants to stay with Atlanta

By Tom Saladino
AP Sports Writer

NLCS Notebook

ATLANTA — Steve Avery, who missed nearly two months of the season with a pulled muscle in his side, is eligible for free agency following the season, but says he wants to remain with the Braves. "I'd like to be here for the opening of the new ball park and be a part of it," he said prior to Thursday night's game. Avery said he was willing to agree to a one-year contract. He was 7-10 with a 4.47 ERA this season. The left-hander was 7-13 with a 4.67 ERA in 1995, but has an overall 72-62 record and won 18 games in 1991 and 1993. He's only 26, but there could be one major hangup. He made $4.2 million this season and the Braves may not have the money.

AWESOME THREESOME: St. Louis catcher Tom Pagnozzi wouldn't mind handling Atlanta's big three of John Smoltz, Greg Maddux and Tom Glavine. "They have a great staff. I'd love to catch them," he said. "You go out last night and face the probably Cy Young winner from '96. Then tonight it's the four-time Cy Young winner (Maddux), then tomorrow (Saturday) it's the 1991 Cy Young winner (Glavine). "I think that speaks for itself."

ST. LOUIS BLUES: Atlanta was 6-0 during the regular season at Busch Stadium, extending the Braves' winning streak in St. Louis to seven games.

NOT-SO-GREAT GREG: In his six career NLCS starts, Maddux has allowed 29 runs, 22 earned.

ALCS: Wild eighth puts Yankees in control of series home this season, but this one hurt more than all the rest.

Game 4 is Saturday with the Kenny Rogers of the Yankees going against rookie Rocky Coppinger in a matchup of No. 4 starters.

Zeile was destined to be the hero until his misplay. Playing in his first postseason, the late-season acquisition from the Philadelphia Phillies, hit a two-run homer to give the Orioles a 2-0 first-inning lead. It was his second two-run homer in two games.

That was the extent of the Baltimore offense. After the home run, Key allowed only a second-inning single by Surhoff and a fifth-inning walk to Eddie Murray, who was wiped out on a double play.

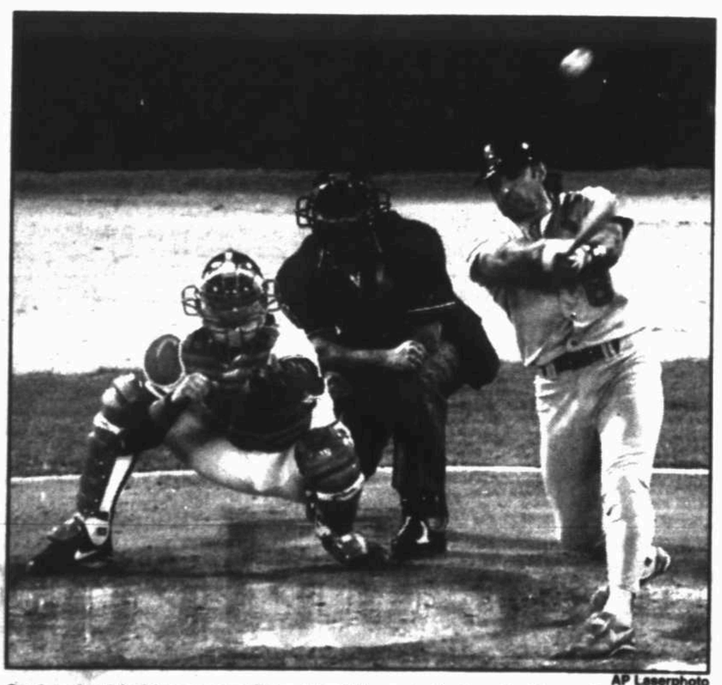

The sellout crowd of 48,635 was not a factor as it was in Game 1 at Yankee Stadium when a 12-year-old fan reached over the right-field wall and interfered with Orioles Tony Tarasco, giving Jeter a controversial game-tying homer.

Key struck out five and walked one, retiring the last 11 batters he faced. John Wetteland worked the ninth for the save, his eighth against the Orioles this year.

Another benefit of Key's effort, besides the victory, was that the Yankees were able to give setup man Mariano Rivera a second consecutive day off after his two-inning effort in Game 1.

"I gave the bullpen a night off, which it needed," Key said. "Now we have Rivera ready tomorrow if we need him."

It was the first victory by a New York starter in seven postseason games. Andy Pettitte and David Cone both struggled in Games 1 and 2 at Yankee Stadium.

St. Louis third baseman Gary Gaetti's grand slam in Game 2 pulled the Cardinals even in the NL Championship Series with Atlanta.

Cards not out with LaRussa at controls

By Ben Walker
AP Baseball Writer

ST. LOUIS — Tony La Russa, wearing sunglasses and standing alone, was watching from the far reaches of the shaded right field corner while his players basked in the bright glow of victory.

The St. Louis Cardinals had bumped off Greg Maddux and the Atlanta Braves Thursday night to even the NL championship series 1-1. Now, they were a confident bunch Friday as they worked out at home at Busch Stadium.

"There's a way to beat every guy on their staff," said John Mabry, who singled following Gary Gaetti's game-breaking grand slam. "They're not machines."

Had La Russa been able to hear his young first baseman, he might have smiled, which he does not often do on the field. Because there's no doubt where Mabry learned to talk like that — his manager is the one who always uses the phrase that players "are men, not machines."

"You see a lot of Tony rubbing off on the guys," said Cardinals third base coach Tommie Reynolds, in his eighth season on La Russa's staff.

From the way they talk, to the way they hustle, to the way they win. As was shown again with the Cardinals' 8-3 win over Atlanta, no team with La Russa in the dugout is out of contention.

"If you work hard, he'll keep you close," said another La Russa disciple, Mike Gallego, who singled to start the five-run seventh inning that finished Maddux.

The Cardinals, heavy underdogs at the beginning of the best-of-7 series, will try to take the lead Saturday when Donovan Osborne pitches against Tom Glavine. The Braves went 6-0 at Busch Stadium this season, including a victory by Glavine this year.

But La Russa, who put his runners in motion against Maddux and had his batters hit to the opposite field, also has a plan ready for Glavine. He'd already noted that Cincinnati roughed up the left-handed Glavine with a slew of lefty hitters in September, and will adjust his lineup accordingly.

Any edge he can find — like talking to his players in the postseason for the first time, letting them know what to expect — he uses. Even last week, he tried to parlay an innocent comment by Atlanta third baseman Chipper Jones, who said Los Angeles was the team the Braves feared, into a rallying cry.

"I take the responsibility of managing serious," La Russa said. "The biggest responsibility is on the players. But being a manager or coach, you're supposed to contribute a piece. I hate when players feel they have to overcome a bad manager. That's embarrassing."

REALTORS & BROKERS

BasinLink & the Midland Reporter-Telegram announce the arrival of HomeSearch. . .a database driven internet web site which allows prospective home buyers locally, or from around the world, to search for homes in our community via the internet.

One can search for homes by price range, square footage, number of bedrooms, etc. And, search elements can be combined to further narrow your search. Or, one can simply search by neighborhood using the online maps!

Once a search has been narrowed, detailed information about each home can be viewed along with curbside picture! And, after determining those of interest, the realtor and brokers information, phone numbers, and e-mail address are a mouse-click away! HomeSearch. . .your 24 hour a day access to homes in the Permian Basin.
