South Plains Crop Prospects Brightened By Snow, Rain

Quarter To Two Inches Fall In Area Thursday

Snow Melts And Soaks In As It Falls; More Moisture Is Forecast For Today

MIST, rain, and snow, falling on the South Plains from early Thursday morning until late that night, brightened crop prospects, the moisture content of the precipitation estimated at a quarter of an inch to two inches.

Lubbock's precipitation was estimated to be between a quarter and a half inch. At midnight the fall had ceased. Practically none of the snow remained on the ground, having melted because of an already soaked soil and warm temperature.

Amarillo Has 8 Inches

Had the snow remained on the ground, the fall here would have amounted to two to three inches, weather observers said. Amarillo reported eight inches of snow.

Railway dispatchers and bus drivers said conditions similar to those here prevailed in most of this area. Official forecast for West Texas from the government weather bureau at Dallas was: "Cloudy, rain or snow in north and rain in south portion today and Saturday, not much change in temperature.

Mercury Above Freezing

The mercury remained several degrees above freezing most of the day. Levelland reported rain and snow most of Thursday with an estimated two inches of moisture. A similar report came from Brownfield.

Lamesa, south of Lubbock, estimated the moisture content of its snow and rain at two inches. Only half an inch was the estimate from Post residents who reported a slow rain with a "little snow." A half to three-quarters of an inch was the report from Floydada, although snow fell there most of the day.

More Moisture Promised

Although snow had ceased falling at Plainview late Thursday night, skies remained overcast and the atmosphere was damp and promised more precipitation before morning. The day's snowfall was estimated to have amounted to three-quarters of an inch of moisture.

An inch was the estimated moisture content of the fall at Littlefield which included both rain and snow.

Skies at midnight here remained slightly cloudy although snow had stopped falling for the first time since about noon. In the early night a 10-mile north wind was reported by the Lubbock Municipal airport and ceiling was 300 feet. Visibility was cut to four miles. The barometer was steady and the temperature 33.4 degrees.

Don L. Jones of the state agricultural experiment station east of Lubbock said Thursday's precipitation boosted the moisture for February to approximately one and a quarter inches, nearly double the usual precipitation for the entire month.

BROWNFIELD, Feb. 24.—A truck accident near Post cost the life of J. F. Walker, 79, of Sulphur Springs and seriously, possibly critically, injured Raymond Pickett, 41, Brownfield trucker.

Walker died in a hospital here at 9:30 o'clock tonight after having been rushed here about noon today in a Marr Funeral home ambulance from Ralls. His death was attributed to a head injury, internal injuries, and a fractured hip.

Pickett tonight remained unconscious at his home. He had not regained consciousness since the accident, friends reported.

Details of the accident were not known here, although it was believed no other vehicles were involved in the wreck. The truck, a six-wheel machine, with a trailer was demolished. The accident happened early today about seven miles out of Post on the Justiceburg road, it was reported here. Possibility of Pickett, owner and asserted driver of the truck, having been crowded off the road by another car which failed to stop was seen as was unexpected trouble with the steering gear. Slippery roads also was offered as possible cause.

En Route To Visit Daughter

Walker, father of Pickett's first wife, Mrs. W. I. Pickett, was en route here to visit his daughter, and was riding with Pickett who had taken a load of horses to Sulphur Springs.

Walker's watch was stopped at 4:20 o'clock, but it was not known definitely if that was the time of the fatal accident. The victims reached Treadway-Daniel hospital here at 12:20 o'clock this afternoon.

Injuries Not Determined

Nature of Pickett's injuries tonight had not been determined and it was indicated X-ray pictures would be taken Friday.

Walker's body was taken to a funeral home here and Friday will be sent to Sulphur Springs to await funeral services and burial, it was reported here tonight.

Other than the daughter here, Walker is survived by four sons, D. E. Walker, H. L. Walker, and W. T. Walker, all of Sulphur Springs, and Elbert Walker of Fort Worth.

Guffey To Stay Out Of Race For Governorship

By RICHARD T. TURNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Senator Guffey (D-Pa) withdrew from the Pennsylvania gubernatorial contest today at President Roosevelt's specific request, simplifying, but by no means solving, the problem of finding important posts for all the important Pennsylvania Democrats who are seeking them.

JOSEPH P. GUFFEY

Guffey's self-elimination, in fact, left four candidates for the party nomination in the field, and party leaders were quarreling vigorously over which should receive the endorsement of the organization. The state Democratic committee must choose among them at a meeting to be held in Harrisburg tomorrow.

Made After Conference

Guffey's announcement was made after a conference with the president, to whom four influential members of the state democracy brought their bitter factional fight in the hope that he might have some suggestions for preserving party harmony to the end that Pennsylvania may be kept in the Democratic column.

The president's visitors were Guffey, Governor Earle, David Lawrence, the chairman of the state committee, and J. David Stern, Philadelphia publisher. Not present, but nonetheless a significant factor in the discussion, was John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. He is determined that with or without the state organization's endorsement, Thomas Kennedy, the state's present lieutenant-governor, and an official of the C. I. O., shall enter the gubernatorial contest.

Are To Support Earle

The other candidates are Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh attorney, backed by Lawrence and Earle; Luther A. Hard, Philadelphia's city treasurer, supported by Stern, and the state's attorney-general, Charles J. Margiotti. Earle is a candidate for the senate seat now held by Senator Davis, Republican, and all are agreed that the organization shall support him.

Earle, affable and beaming, acted as spokesman for the group when it left the president's office.

"He listened to us and was most interested and considerate," the governor said. "He told us he wanted to make no suggestions, with one exception. He said: 'I need Joe Guf-

Greater Supply Of Water Will Be Sought Here

City Commission Awards Two Contracts; Ordinance Passed Regulating Trailer Houses

By R. C. ANKINS
Avalanche Staff Writer

CITY COMMISSION, with an eye on future security of Lubbock, Thursday afternoon awarded contracts to insure more than adequate supply of water and swung a body blow at the growing "menace" of trailer house construction and its attendant problems of fire and pestilence.

Definite action on proposals to boulevard streets, or as an alternate to order installed additional traffic lights and other vehicular control, was passed.

Several Witnesses Heard

Diligent consideration allowed the body, all representatives of which were in place, to hear several witnesses and to deal with a heavy program of 19 business items before adjournment at 6 o'clock.

After considering bids from four drilling contractors, commissioners decided to accept offers of B. G. Barron and W. P. Crawford to drill a 140-foot, 24-inch well each in the northwest section of Lubbock, Marlin R. Smith, city engineer, to award a third well's contract to either Barron or Crawford after passing on relative merits of their work.

Smith Gives Information

Evidence of the need for expansion of water facilities, Smith appeared before the commission with a map showing present service of the water department and explained potentials of the proposed work.

Water would be supplied with an abundance of pressure, whereas last summer consumption was too nearly at the supply index, it was pointed out. Sixteen-, fourteen- and ten-inch mains would be constructed.

Barron offered to drill a test well for 60 cents a foot and would complete the well permanently for $4.30

Rankin Retires From Teaching

(Special To The Avalanche)

RALLS, Feb. 24. — In a lengthy, prepared statement to the Ralls Independent School district's board of trustees, Superintendent J. M. Rankin announced his retirement effective at the end of the present term.

He had been associated with the public schools here 17 years and taught two years before that in another Crosby county school.

"Rapidly expanding business interests will require my full time," his statement said.

Despite the fact Supt. Rankin's experience exempts him from the requirements of younger and less-experienced teachers, he continued to pursue his academic work. He received his master's degree about five years ago and has completed part of the work for a doctor's degree.

Points To Accomplishments

"I take pride in pointing out that when I became superintendent of the Ralls Public schools, there were four schools in the district offering high school work, a thing so manifestly inefficient and uneconomical that you joined with me at once to correct the condition," he told the board. "With your cooperation our schools have been reorganized so they are now a compact efficient organization of one central high school and three ward schools, inviting comparison with any system in Texas of comparable size."

Under his administration, the school has emerged from beneath a debt amounting to more than a year's tax collections; rates have reduced by half; and two permanent

Battle With Red River Believed Won At Fulton

(By The Associated Press)

FULTON, Ark., Feb. 24.—Fulton's river folk appeared victors by inches tonight in a grim battle with the swollen Red river.

Flooding wide areas of plantation country east and west of here, the stream was beginning a slow drop from the row of 30,000 sandbags piled atop the main levee in front of the town. The bulwark was holding sturdily.

Situation Abated Materially

Elsewhere in Arakansas the flood situation abated materially. The Arkansas and White rivers fell at nearly all major stations, sending their crests toward lowland areas of eastern Arkansas' plantation country.

Albert Evans, disaster relief director for the American Red Cross said reports showed 22,900 persons were forced out of their homes. From the situations on the Red and White rivers, he said, the relief agency expected an additional 5,000 would become flood refugees.

Three Hundred Families Are Driven From Homes

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 24. (AP) —Three hundred families, driven from their homes in Lafayette county, Ark., by two breaks in the Red river levee at Garland City, Ark., made their way to high ground and were living in tents tonight, between Garland City and Lewisville, Ark.

Red Cross and Arkansas National guard officials were aiding the refugees, setting up 70 tents on the Lewisville-Texarkana highway. Another 50 tents were stored at Lewisville tonight and a third consignment of 80 tents was en route to Lewisville from Little Rock, scheduled to arrive tomorrow.

Roughly two thirds of the refugees are negroes.

Man Is Held For Sending Clark Gable Threat In Extortion Note

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (AP)—The federal bureau of investigation announced tonight it had taken into custody a man alleged to have written an extortion note to Clark Gable, using the name of a woman neighbor against whom the man had a "grudge."

The bureau said Gaylord Forsyth, 30 years old, of Fonda, Iowa, "confessed to writing" an extortion note to the motion picture actor, demanding payment of $1,000 "if you value your life or your future."

The note, the bureau said, was written over the signature of Alice Schnetter, also of Fonda, but Forsyth said she had no knowledge of the "extortion plot and that he signed the name to the letter as a spite proposition as he had a grudge against her."

End Is Believed Near For World War General

General John J. Pershing's Stout Heart Making Valiant Fight In Tucson Hospital

(By The Associated Press)

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 24.—Gen. John J. Pershing, dauntless leader of America's World war forces, was failing rapidly tonight and members of the family who came tearfully from his bedside indicated the end was near.

A bulletin issued by his staff of three physicians at 10:45 p. m. said his heart was very irregular and his blood pressure rapidly approaching a "critical low level."

He Is Failing Rapidly

"The general's coma continues," the bulletin said. "Although he was semi-conscious for a short period, he is failing rapidly."

Elaborating on the official bulletin, Dr. Roland Davidson said: "With the very rapid progress of ailment against him, I doubt if he can last long."

Specialists labored to keep his stout heart beating.

Throughout the day the stern, gray-haired commander grew steadily weaker, his heart becoming more faint and his strength fading.

Three Physicians Attending

Three physicians, Dr. Roland Davidson, Col. S. U. Marrietta and Dr. Verne Mason, remained in constant attendance.

Miss May Pershing, an only sister, and General Pershing's son, Warren, passed in and out of the room where the World war commander lay in a coma.

Finally they paced up and down outside the room. One of the physicians cautioned them: "Keep calm now. Don't get excited."

Miss Pershing and Warren, who arrived only this morning from Palm Beach, Fla., were called to the bedside about 30 minutes before the physicians disclosed the aging soldier was sinking.

All members of the family, including Frank Pershing, a nephew, of Palm Springs, Calif., had been called to the bedside at 9:45 p. m.

'Phantom' Plane Armada Fades

(By The Associated Press)

TOKYO, Feb. 25. (Friday)—Riotous debate over a war control measure forced parliament into recess today after Japan had spent four terrified hours waiting for a "phantom" Chinese air armada that never appeared.

The uproar in the lower house, one of the most turbulent scenes in Japanese parliamentary history, broke up debate last night on the government's national mobilization bill which would impose wartime regulation of Japanese business, finance, property and private lives.

ARMY NEARER GOAL

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24. (AP)—A Japanese army racing for the glory of being first to cut the Lunghai railroad, backbone of China's resistance on the central front, was reported today attacking Kinsiang, about 75 miles from its goal.

Air Warnings Cancelled

A few hours earlier, air raid warnings had been cancelled in Kyushu, southwestern island of Japan proper, on the main island of Honshu and the colony island of Formosa, ending a scare that had proved false.

Chinese bombers, which Wednesday raided Formosa, had been reported headed across the China sea toward Kyushu.

In Tokyo, much of the reaction dwelt on the fact that Vladivostok, Russian Siberia, where a huge Soviet air fleet is concentrated, is almost as close to the capital as Formosa is to China.

The calm with which densely settled Tokyo, much of it built of paper and wood, had taken air defense practice yesterday was over.

Plainly nervous, the populace

Mrs. McCraw Takes Plane To Capital To Be With Husband

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (AP)—Mrs. William McCraw, wife of the Texas attorney general, arrived today by plane to join her husband.

McCraw, attending hearings before the house judiciary committee, said he did not know his wife was contemplating the trip, and was surprised when she walked into the committee room this afternoon.

Mrs. McCraw said she talked with her husband by phone last night and became worried over his health. She said she decided after midnight to make the trip. She said she would remain with him during the hearings "to see that he does not overwork."

Fight To Preserve Independence Is Pledged Nation

(By The Associated Press)

VIENNA, Feb. 24.—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg tonight dedicated himself to a relentless fight to preserve Austrian independence which he said Germany unmistakably had guaranteed.

Addressing the diet he defiantly proclaimed "Austria must remain Austria" and declared that since illegal political activity in the nation was finished for all time the Austrian mission now was to develop her own independent life.

Austria's independence, he declared, as both Austrians and Germans listened to an international broadcost of his speech, was guaranteed by Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany, by the Austro-German friendship accord of July 11, 1936, and the agreement which he and Hitler reached Feb. 12 in their Berchtesgaden conference.

"Milestone Toward Peace"

Schuschnigg called the agreement with Hitler a "milestone toward peace" and an assurance Austria may preserve her sovereignty.

He said it merely was an extension and confirmation of the friend-

INDIGNATION AMONG NAZIS

BERLIN, Feb. 25. (Friday) (AP) — Prominent Nazis seethed with indignation today over last night's speech in Vienna by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg.

They resented particularly the Austrian's warm praise for Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy in contrast with his failure to say a kind word for Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

They even saw a decided barb in his statement that a hard year of civil strife in Austria had ended with "a hard day" at Berchtesgaden when he met Hitler.

ship accord and each agreement, he insisted, contained:

1. German guarantee of Austrian independence.
2. A commitment by each government to refrain from interfering in the internal affairs of the other.
3. An Austrian promise that her policies always would be based on recognition of the fact that Austria was a German state.

Clarification Of Role

4. A clarification of Austria's role in the Rome protocols alliance among Austria, Italy and Hungary.
5. Agreements on practical measures to bring about internal pacification.

"Both the German chancellor and I hope the meeting at Berchtesgaden will be a milestone in the relations between the states, assuring permanent friendship," he said.

In blunt phrases, the scholarly chancellor flouted German efforts to make a one-party, Nazi state out of Austria.

Still A Free Nation

"For us it is not a question of national socialism or socialism but patriotism," Schuschnigg shouted to the diet he used as a sounding board to tell the world Austria still was on the European map as a free nation.

"We did not choose our borders. We did not make the map.

"But what we have we are bound and determined to keep."

The packed audience in the reichstag hall of the parliament building, unused since the fall of the Austro-Hungarian empire in 1918, and millions of radio listeners throughout the country interrupted almost every sentence with frantic applause.

Demonstrations Organized

Demonstrations organized by the fatherland front, Austria's only legal party, completely overshadowed any outbursts which the Nazis might have planned.

As the chancellor left parliament, 10,000 members of the front formed a noisy parade which wound through the streets of the inner city.

When several hundred Nazis

Hitler Reiterates His Demand For Lost Colonies

(By The Associated Press)

MUNICH, Feb. 24.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler tonight assured veteran nazis who shared the sorrows and triumphs of his first step toward power that Germany would insist on the return of her war-lost colonies and accept no substitute.

At the same time, he proclaimed a new drive against "jewish agitators in Germany."

Welcomed Tumultuously

Der Fuehrer was welcomed tumultuously as he entered the Hofbrauhaus where, exactly 18 years ago, he announced creation of Nazi party and proclaimed his famous program of 25 points.

Before attending the party's birthday celebration, he spent an hour listening to the broadcast of the speech in Vienna by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria.

Recapitulates Events

Hitler in his speech recapitulated the stirring events of Nazidom's early years and summarized the achievements of recent years as:

1. Consolidation of Nazi power.
2. Protection of Nazis' right externally.
3. The regaining of sovereignty over the whole reich.
4. The regaining of equality of rights for Germany among nations

The chancellor followed up his Sunday speech to the reichstag attacking "international newspaper agitation against Germany" with another attack on what he called malicious rumor-mongering.

Labor Board Intact After Senate Fight

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (AP) — A $2,955,000 appropriation for the labor board emerged intact from a senate storm today despite demands for "economy" and a charge that the board's activities were a "national disgrace."

An appropriations committee headed by Senator Glass (D-Va) had cut $345,000 for salaries and expenses, as well as $40,000 for printing, from the bill, but the senate restored the sums after hearing pleas not to "cripple' the board's activities.

Glass aimed a few pointed remarks at the board's personnel, declaring that "some of us did not want the board to extend its tentacles into every community in the United States."

It remained for Senator Burke (D-Neb), however, to voice severe criticism of the group which administers the National Labor Relations act. It was Burke who charged that the board's operations had been a "national disgrace."

Townsend Plans To Fight 'Persecution'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (AP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the movement for $200-a-month pensions to everyone past 60, decided today to fight "congressional persecution" in the supreme court instead of going to jail.

The 71-year-old California physician arrived in the capital declaring he fully intended to serve the 30-day jail sentence imposed upon him for walking out on a house investigating committee in 1936.

But after a conference with Elisha Hanson, one of his attorneys, Dr. Townsend said:

"The principle involved is so tremendous that I feel as do hundreds of my friends that this case should be fought to a finish."

A lower court judgment against the doctor has been stayed until March 12 to provide time for his attorneys to ask a Supreme court review.

Ticket Sales For Benefits This Week Are Reported Unusually Successful

The Woman's Angle

By Margaret Turner

E. R. PINCH-HITTING

TODAY'S angle, vicariously written by the society department's jill-of-all-jobs, is in a quandary.

The problems, all of them local, are concerned with two benefits that are scheduled for Saturday afternoon, the Pythian Sister baby show and some poetry we found in our mail yesterday.

* * *

If we start out by urging readers to play bridge at the Lubbock Woman's Forum Saturday afternoon, women of the Lubbock Country club will be on us—or perhaps, off us—in a great big way. And vice veirsa. The Country club women, as you possibly have noticed, are sponsoring Mrs. Gladys de Silva Bates in a review of "The Citadel" that afternoon.

This department has to work all day Saturday. Otherwise it would be at a loss as to which group to support (The conflict was accidental and unavoidable). We'd support at least one of them, however, if we had to flip a coin to select. We hope the feminine public is divided into two groups, those who would rather hear a book review than play bridge and those who prefer bridge. Then both affairs will meet with overwhelming successes and there will be—as we know there is none to date—no hard feelings of disharmony anywhere.

* * *

ALL CAN'T WIN

AS for the baby show: We also hope everything will go along without discord and that mothers of children who don't win first, second or fifth place or at least a prize will be satisfied with the judges report and understanding of the incredible fact that every child CAN'T win.

Two hundred twenty-five babies have been entered. The show, March 5, and the pageant, March 14, where winners of the first show will be paraded and rewarded, are gigantic undertakings which should, if human nature is to be relied upon, command a wide local interest.

* * *

POEMS, LIKE BABIES . . .

NEXT comes the matter of the poems. Miss Turner made a hard and fast rule several years ago that NEVER AGAIN would she print in her column poetry other than that of her own selection. She isn't here to defend this department against a deluge of other original contributions that reproducing these might bring on.

Poetry, you know, is a little like children. Everyone's own is good enough to win the prize and rejection of a department no more literary than The Woman's Angle is an insult to the author.

The poems, submitted by a reader who asked us to withhold her name are good and we're tempted to urn 'em but — Aw, heck! We've lost our nerve. Perhaps, it would be better to withhold them until the owner of this corner returns and decides for herself.

* * *

By the way, the woman's editor, chaperoned by Mrs. William Dingus and Mrs. O. D. Hargis departed in the midst of the snow storm Thursday for Fort Worth where they are attending a peace conference, thereby doing a small bit to prevent a storm of heat that current headlines seem to be presaging.

AAUW Dramatic Unit Studies Of Two Plays In Foote Home

Mesdames G. A. Foote and Garland Davis were hostesses for a meeting of the dramatic unit sponsored by the Lubbock branch of the American Association of University Women Wednesday night in the Foote home, 3501 Twenty-first street.

Sealey. In a make-up demonstration to be conducted soon by Mrs. Davis, members of the club will try to make themselves resemble Ethan Frome who, according to the story, was disfigured for life when he tried to commit suicide.

The club planned and cast the first act of "The Women" (Clara Boothe) which will be presented at the next meeting.

Gordon Koonce, Tech Student, Weds Miss Jean Findlater

Findlater of San Angelo, are announcing their marriage which took place Friday in San Angelo. Mr. Koonce plans to remain in school.

Two Bridge Parties, One Book Review And One Silver Tea Are Scheduled

With a benefit bridge scheduled for tonight and three benefits on the Saturday program, the week-end activities and Lubbock women are definitely of a philanthropic nature.

Sales Successful

Ticket sales for two benefits to be sponsored by women of Lubbock Saturday afternoon are meeting with wide success.

More than 60 tables have been sold for the Lubbock woman's Forum bridge, to be given at 3 o'clock in the Hilton hotel ballroom, Mrs. T. E. Hendrick who is in charge of obtaining a prize for each table, has announced. Prizes have been donated by Lubbock merchants.

At the same hour, Saturday, women of Lubbock Country club will sponsor Mrs. Gladys de Silva Bates of San Angelo in a dramatized review of the famous novel, "The Citadel" (A. J. Cronin) in the Hotel Lubbock ballroom.

Members of the respective organizations are selling tickets for their own benefits. Tickets to the bridge are 25 cents each. The party is being arranged by the Forum's finance committee of which Mrs. Mark Allen is chairman. Proceeds will be used in furthering the Forum's welfare projects. Mints on each table will be the only refreshments served.

Favor Is Asked

Tickets to the review are 50 cents each. Mrs. Charles Read, president of the golf women's association of Lubbock Country club, is requesting that women of the Country club turn in all tickets not sold at the Hotel Lubbock cigar counter by Saturday noon.

Mrs. J. H. Stiles, of the review committee, said Thursday that Mrs. Bates is coming to Lubbock recommended by several persons who are well-known in Lubbock's social and literary circles.

Mrs. DeWitt Landis studied dramatics at Texas Christian university, Fort Worth, under Mrs. Bates who was serving as head of the department when Dr. Fallis, the present head, was spending a year with the Emerson School of Expression in Boston. Mrs. Bates taught at T. C. U. eight consecutive summers.

Joining Mrs. Landis in praise of Mrs. Bates' ability as a reviewer and public speaker are Mrs. M. L. Price of San Angelo, mother of Lewis Price of this city; Mrs. Dwight Hunter of San Angelo, mother of Mrs. Ralph Trolinger, and Mrs. Jerome Smith who moved from Lubbock to San Angelo several years ago. All have written their friends here urging that they avail themselves of the opportunity to hear the review, Mrs. Stiles said.

A file of clippings sent the association by the woman's editor of the San Angelo Standard-Times contains the information that Mrs. Bates is also a traveler of distinction and ferquently she is called upon by San Angelo groups to lecture on unique trips she has taken.

Adept at acting, Mrs. Bates is said to always dramatize the characters when reviewing a book.

On Saturday Night

A third benefit, scheduled for Saturday, is a silver offering program which the Local Girl Scout council is sponsoring in celebration of International Girl Scout week. Girl Scouts of the city and all their parents and friends, who so desire, will contribute to the Juliette Low Memorial fund which was begun in 1927 for the purpose of sending outstanding Girl Scouts of the United States and girl guides of other countries to an international Juliette Low camp every summer.

The program will be presented at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night in the music room of Senior high school by all local troops. Mrs. Bradford Knapp, regent of Nancy Anderson chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will present a flag to the Girl Scouts as a gift from her chapter. Refreshments will be served. Anyone interested is invited to attend, Mrs. Sam Newman of the arrangements committee has announced.

The memorial fund was started to commemorate "Juliette Low's interest in Girl Scouts of all nations and her belief in friendship among them." She was founder of Girl Scouting. The first international camp in 1932, as well as those of three succeeding years, was held in Switzerland. Last year it was held in New York and perhaps again this year it will be held in the United States.

February Building Sets New High Since 1929; May Be Record Month Total

Week's Permits Stand At $59,200

Four building permits issued Thursday by City Building Inspector Jim Reid, authorizing construction and repair estimated at approximately $6,000, sent February's total to a new high for that month since 1929, a year in which more than $3,000,000 worth of permits were issued.

Specifically, the day's total was for $5,325, sending the February total to $177,502.90. To within $5,000 of $300,000 the 1938 mark climbed, specifically to $295,589.25. The week's aggregate stood at $59,200.

Only two of 1937's months boast larger figures; October with $403,500 and December with $531,956.84, according to releases from Reid's office.

The February total for 1929 was $519,662.30 and since that year no February has a total equal to the aggregate for the present month. Four days remain for additional permits.

Among Thursday's permits were: W. S. Hardgrave, owner and contractor, to construct a one-story frame and siding garage at 1941 Avenue N, $750; Avalanche-Journal Publications, Inc., owner, and C. B. Harris, contractor, to build 16x16 balcony in distributing room in building at 1211 Texas avenue, $75; W. B. Rushing, owner, and J. R. Thomas, contractor, to construct a one-story frame and brick veneer building at 2314 Thirteenth street, $3,100; and Rushing owner, and Thomas, contractor, to build frame and siding residence on rear of 2314 Thirteenth street, $1,400.

War In China Must Continue For Year At Least So That Japan May Be Embarrassed Financially, Noted Chinese Says Here

By TOM MILLER
Avalanche Staff Writer

Soft-spoken, slight of stature, Dr. Z. T. Koo, with but a trace of accent, speaks freely of existing conditions in his homeland, China.

Here under auspices of the Texas Technological college YM-YWCA, Dr. Koo lectured Thursday morning at Texas Tech gymnasium and Thursday night at the First Baptist church. Crowds at both talks applauded vigorously when the speaker had concluded.

War Strikes Close

War has struck close to members of his family only once, although two of their homes have been destroyed by bombardments on Shanghai. Each clan has a large house, while another is maintained by the immediate family in China, Dr. Koo explained. The clan house on eastern side of the city was first to be destroyed.

A brother-in-law was critically wounded by a bomb that killed 500 and injured 1200 in the city.

Crowded conditions both in cities and in the country make warfare more horrible in the Orient than it would be in America, Dr. Koo said. Even the country is dotted with well-populated villages as compared with single residences in our rural sections.

Famine Conditions Imminent

Famine conditions in the war-torn country are imminent. Rice, staple food of all China and which has been exported in great quantities for centuries, is being imported from Siam. Used to balance the rice diet, green cabbage is selling for 80 cents a pound in Shanghai, the lecturer said.

Dr. Koo came to the United States in August from England, planning to return to China after a six-month tour of Australia and New Zealand. Mrs. Koo sailed from Seattle, Wash., in time to reach the Orient safely, but for six months was unable to join three children in Shanghai. War caused postponement of Dr. Koo's return.

Fifth Tour Of U. S.

Had he returned, a projected lecture tour of India, Siam and Burma was to have been made this winter. The present is his fifth tour of the United States.

His eldest daughter is studying music in Baltimore, but he prefers for his other children to complete their college work in China unless training there is insufficient for professions they choose, he said.

Asked if he thought the war would continue long, Dr. Koo replied:

"For China's welfare the war must continue at least one year. The Japanese now have the upper hand to the extent that China would be forced to submit to policies of the invaders if war ceased now. Through guerrilla and regular warfare, the Chinese may be able to forestall the invasion long enough to "embarrass Japan financially" and gain an amicable treaty.

Hearings On Investigation Of Wool Industry To Start Soon

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (AP) — A special senate committee will start hearings soon in an investigation of the wool industry.

"I can't set a date now but the committee will get together just as soon as possible," said Chairman Adams (D-Colo.) He predicted the hearings would take several weeks.

Lengthy reports by committee investigators were completed this week, Adams said, and the committee will go over these first.

The committee, appointed to investigate all phases of wool production, transportation and marketing, includes Senators Hatch (D-NM); Murray (D-Mont); Walsh (D-Mass) and Frazier (R-ND). Frazier was named to succeed Senator Steiwer (R-Ore) who resigned from the senate.

About 29,000,000 cotton spindles were in operation in the United States in 1936.

The strawberry, which 75 years ago was produced only near a few large cities in this country is now grown commercially in every state and Alaska.

Bid Of $3,403,303 Listed Low On Possum Kingdom Dam

Joint Bid From Iowans Favored

(By The Associated Press)

TEMPLE, Feb. 24.—C. F. Lytle and A. L. Johnson, of Sioux City, Ia., with a joint bid of $3,403,303, with an offered credit of approximately $100,000, apparently was low bidder today on the general construction contract for the Possum Kingdom dam near Mineral Wells.

Bids were opened today by the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation district.

Seven Firms Enter Bids

Seven construction firms bid on the general contract. The lowest bidder without credits was the Massman Construction company of Baltimore, with a bid of $3,349,475.

Other bidders and their bids were: Morrison-Knudson-Shea, Los Angeles, $3,421,794; McCarthey Improvement company, Davenport, Ia., $3,735,813; Arundel corp., Baltimore, $4,245,265; Utah Construction company, Ogden, Utah, $4,459,679; W. E. Callahan and company, Dallas, $4,402,307.

Bids also were opened on 11,500,000 pounds of steel, 260,000 cubic yards of various types of concrete and other smaller items.

Bids In Line

John A. Norris, general manager of the Brazos district, said that generally the bids were in line with estimates and well within the $4,500,000 WPA allotment for the construction of the dam.

"We expect to let some of the contracts and see work started within 30 days," he said. It is estimated that construction of the dam, the first of 13 proposed units on the Brazos river and its tributaries, will take two years.

Officials Are Present

Supervising the opening of the bids were Lewis Mims of Houston, president of the Brazos district; S. W. Stewart of New York; president of the Ambursen Engineering corporation, designing and supervising engineers for the project; John D. McCall of Dallas, attorney for the district, and Directors J. D. Baskin of Cameron, W. A. Callan of Waco, and General Manager Norris.

Approximately 350 representatives of the various companies and bidders were here for the bid opening.

Youth Only Has To Find Right Answers To Questions And His Problem Is Apparently Solved

A letter from a practical Borger youth who apparently has an ambition to learn modern farming methods in a hurry caused Tom Gaston, business manager at Texas Technological college, to scratch his head Thursday.

"I would like to get some information on General Farming. Please answer the following questions as quickly as possible and send to me: First, how much will it cost to get a good education? Second, where are the cheapest schools located? Third, what is the length of service in this field, and when can one start? Fourth, how long will it be after I start until I can earn my own living? Fifth, what school do you think would be best to attend, and why?

Dr. J. O. Ellsworth To Address Teachers

Dr. J. O. Ellsworth, head professor of economics and business administration at Texas Technological college, will speak to teachers of the Lubbock County unit of the Texas State Teacher's association at the next meeting, February 28 at 7:30 in the Senior High auditorium.

Dr. R. E. Garlin, president of the regional organization, will also make announcements and suggestions about the procedure of the meeting of the association March 11 and 12 at Big Spring.

All teachers of the Lubbock system are being urged to attend the meeting of the local unit by W. B. Irvin, superintendent.

Chrysler Passes March Dividend

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Directors of Chrysler corp., decided today not to declare a dividend.

This marked the first omission of a Chrysler quarterly payment since 1933, when dividends were resumed upon emerging from the depression period. The quarterly dividend paid March 13, 1937 was $1.50 a share; that of Dec. 13, the most recent, $3.

Earnings for 1937 equaled $11.66 a share, compared to $14.25 a share for the previous period.

During the past two years, Chrysler paid dividends totaling $22 a share from earnings equivalent to $25.91 a share, or 85 per cent of earnings.

B. E. Hutchinson, chairman of Chrysler finance committee, said that the dividend payments of the past two years had been made because of the undistributed profits tax.

"Obscure" immediate prospects for business made the directors feel it unwise to continue such a dividend rate.

During the last quarter of 1937 the indicated net earnings equalled $2.37 per share, compared to the 1935 equivalent of $4.54 per share.

DROP $3 IN FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 24. (AP)—Chrysler shares dropped $3 under the Wall Street finish in trading on the San Francisco stock exchange, following omission of the quarterly dividend.

The last sale here as the market closed was at $54.50.

Justice Department Officials Considering Rector's Story

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (AP) — Justice department officials said today they were giving "serious" study to the claim of Rollie (Hardrock Roy) Rector that he was confined in a Texas jail when a bank robbery, for which he is blamed, was committed.

Rector is serving a 20-year sentence on Alcatraz island for robbing a bank at Saint Jo, Tex.

Daniel M. Lyons, United States pardon attorney, declined to divulge details of the justice department's investigation of the prisoner's story but said it was "worthy of very serious consideration."

Rector, also known as Roy David Wheeler and Riley Rector, has been in prison since March 1935.

Finds Gly-Cas A Medicine Of Merit

Had Suffered Thirty Years With Neuritis And Arthritis; "Gly-Cas Almost Miraculous" He Declares

"I cannot praise Gly-Cas too highly for it is the first medicine I have ever found to do as claimed," said Mr. G. H. Swift, 129 Hickory Street, Hot Springs, Arkansas. "For years my bowels had been irregular, badly constipated and my stomach had become affected, and

MR. G. H. SWIFT

I became very nervous in this condition. For thirty years I had been miserable with neuritis pains over my body, my arms and fingers were crippled with arthritis, knees and ankles badly affected too and I suffered very much. I tried all kinds of medicines and many diffecent medical authorities—but to no avail until persuaded to give Gly Cas the opportunity of helping me."

"The first few doses of Gly-Cas proved to me that it was no ordinary medicine," continued Mr. Swift. "By the time I had finished my second box I was feeling like a new man. My stomach and bowels are fine, I never hav any bilious attacks, and I eat and enjoy the foods I want without any distress afterwards. But best of all, those horrible neuritis and arthritis pains have been relieved and have practically left me entirely. I get around with ease, enjoy new strength and energy and find it is a real joy in living in good health again. Gly-Cas is truly one medicine of remarkable merit."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway this city, and by all the leading drug stores in surrounding towns.—Adv.

THE CHOICEST ARE USED

As I walked out one morning for pleasure,
I spied a cow-puncher all riding alone;
His hat was throwed back and his spurs was a jingling,
And as he approached me he warbled this song.

Whoopee ti yi yo, git along little dogies,
It's your misfortune and none of my own,
Whoopie ti yi yo, git along little dogies,
For you know Wyoming will be your new home.

Your mother she was raised way down in Texas,
Where the jimpson weed and sand-burrs grow;
Now we'll fil you up on prickly pear and cholla
Till you are ready for the trail to Idaho

Whoopee ti yi yo, etc. . . . . .

Early in the spring we round up the dogies,
Mark and brand and bob off their tails;
Round up our horses, load up the chuck-wagon,
Then throw the dogies upon the trail.

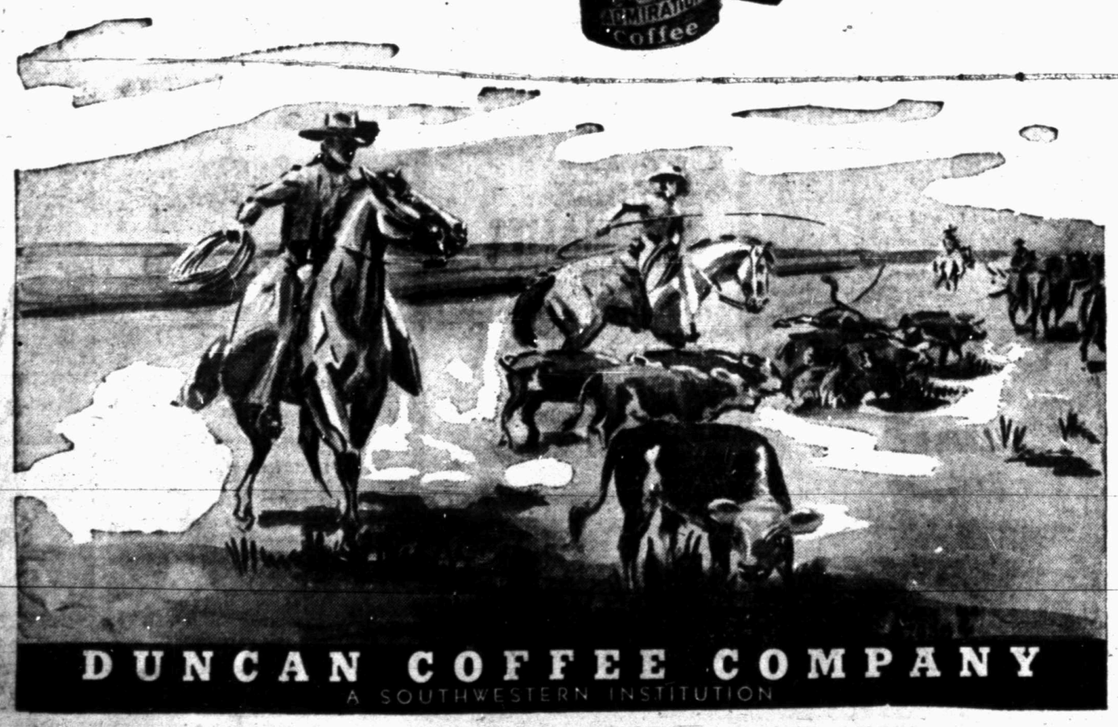

Whoopee ti yi yo, etc. . . . . .

—From WHOOPEE TI YI YO

When the yearly round-up comes, the choicest animals are cut out of the herd to be fattened for market. From them comes the nation's best beef. The poorer specimens—the luckless dogies—must hit the long trail to graze and seek their own food . . . . Out of all the coffees the world market affords, Duncan selects the choicest beans, to be blended and roasted and packed under the name of Admiration Coffee. Today, Admiration outsells any other coffee in Texas. There is just something about it's aroma that makes you want to buy it and something about its flavor that makes you keep on using it.

This is one of a series of advertisements finding inspiration in the original, authentic cowboy ballads. Selections are from the John A. Lomax collections.

Collie Charges Holbrook Departed From Custom In Mrs. McCraw's Subpoena

Other Members Not Consulted

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 24.—Sen. Wilbourne B. Collie of Eastland said today that T. J. Holbrook of Galveston, head of the senate investigating committee, departed from custom in the manner in which a subpoena was issued for the Dallas bank account of Mrs. William McCraw.

Demands for the accounts of Attorney General McCraw and his wife supplied one of the highlights at the investigators' three-day session.

Holbrook did not consult with certain other members of the committee, including himself, regarding issuance of the subpoena, Collie said, and did not obtain his signature to the summons as the committee's secretary.

It was generally reported that Holbrook and Sen. Joe L. Hill of Henderson were the only members of the five-man committee who knew of the subpoena for Mrs. McCraw's account before it was issued.

Mason Boy's Calf Is Winner In Judging At San Antonio Show

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 24. (AP)—Victor Lehmberg, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Lehmberg of Mason, was today "king" of the third annual Southwest Texas Boys Fat Stock show. A 900-pound milk fed Hereford yearling raised by him was proclaimed the grand champion.

Roy Henke of Kerrville exhibited the second best calf, a dry fed Hereford.

Lehmberg's entries swept the milk fed division. He had the best milk fed calf, the gest over 805 pounds, the best under that weight, and the best group of three milk fed calves raised by one 4-H club boy.

Charles Thompson of Pearsall carried off honors for the best dry fed calf under 800 pounds, while Harold Harkey of Crystal City had the best group of three dry fed calves.

Pottery Is Exhibited In Junior High School

Fifty pieces of pottery, work of seventh grade art students of Mrs. Bruce Bryan, are being shown in an exhibit in the Junior High school library.

Students carved tools to work the clay and studied other pottery. Pieces are designed by students. It was fired in the school furnace and again by commercial potters.

Pictures of the exhibit will appear in the Cowboy Roundup, school yearbook.

Another Zeppelin Is Nearly Ready For Regular Trips Across Atlantic To U. S.

LZ-130 Replaces The Hindenburg

(By Associated Press Feature Service)

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Feb. 24.—Undaunted by the tragic destruction of the zeppelin Hindenburg less than a year ago, Germany is counting off the weeks until she will launch a new sky giant—the LZ-130.

Nearing completion in the Zeppelin Works here, the new ship is scheduled for service between Germany and America next summer.

Tests In March

While skilled laborers work feverishly to have her ready for tests in March, a stream of spectators watches.

More than 400,000 of them have paid 350,000 reichsmarks (about $140,000 at current exchange in New York) in admissions to help pay for her.

From insurance on her elder sister (the Hindenburg was LZ-129) came about $2,000,000 more to make up most of the $2,600,000 cost.

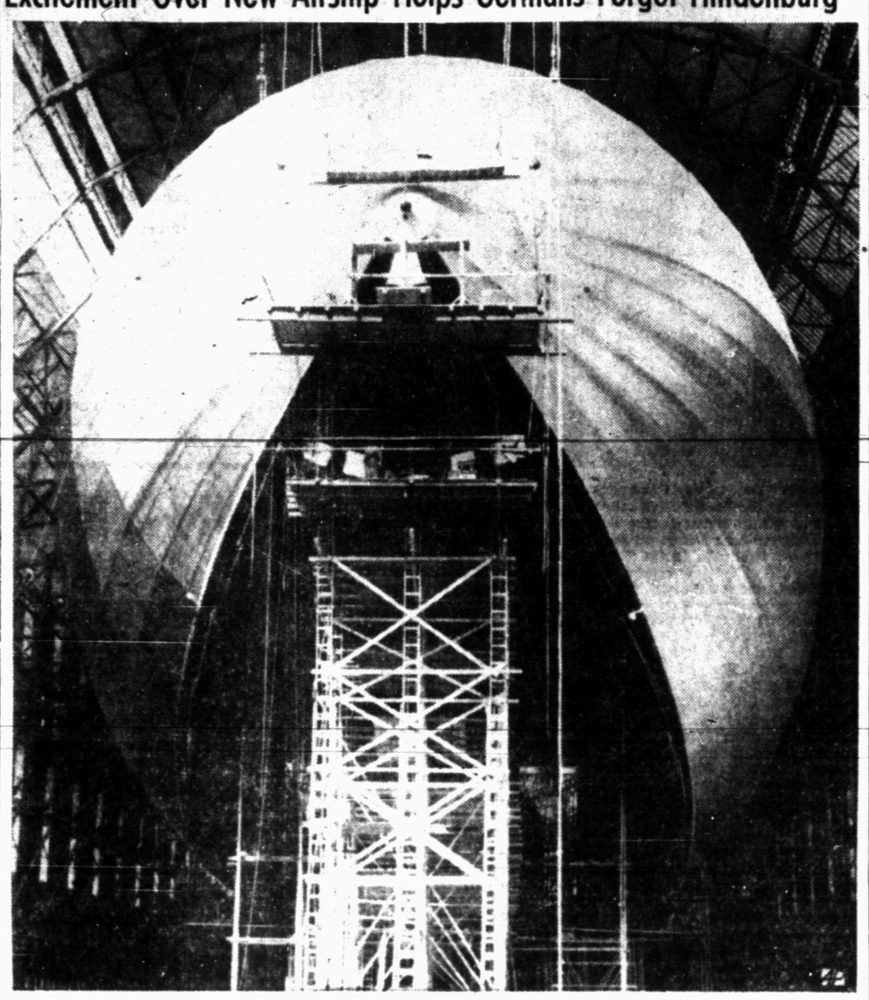

STATISTICS

	Hindenburg	LZ-130
Length in feet	803	738
Gas capacity (cu. ft.)	7,300,000	7,062,800
Motor horsepower	4,400	4,400
Passenger accommodations	70	40

Most important difference between the two ships, however, will be the use of helium (from the United States) instead of hydrogen as lifting gas in the LZ-130. Helium is non-inflammable, and its use should eliminate danger of a fire such as destroyed the Hindenburg.

Might Germany be building the LZ-130 with a view to its use in war? Zeppelin company officers answer by pointing out that a dirigible would be an ideal mark for modern anti-aircraft guns and is too slow to escape enemy pursuit planes.

Hindenburg's Survivors Are Eager To Man New Ship; Pruss Or von Schiller At Helm

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Feb. 24. (AP)—Scattered over Germany or roving the seas, but ready to return here at the drop of a hat, are the surviving officers and crew of the flame-wrecked airship Hindenburg.

Without exception they are praying for "der Tag" when they can again experience the joy and excitement of landing the new dirigible LZ-130 at Lakehurst, N. J. Zeppelin navigation is ingrained in these men, most of whom have been with the company for decades.

Have Kept In Trim

But they feel that "to rest means to rust." So, to keep in trim for taking over the LZ-130, they have taken temporary jobs on land and sea, or are helping build the new ship.

The place of the late Capt. Ernst Lehmann, a victim of the Lakehurst disaster, has been taken by Capt. Hans von Schiller, who was skipper of the defunct Graf Zeppelin.

His colleague, Capt. Max Pruss, who served on the Hindenburg, has only recently recovered sufficiently from burns he received at Lakehurst to stir about. Yet he is as anxious as anybody to climb aboard the LZ-130.

Von Schiller or Pruss probably will be appointed commander of the LZ-130, while Dr. Hugo Eckener probably will devote himself to meteorological studies during such trips as he may choose to make. His judgment as to routes, and how to get out of tough places will be accepted unquestioningly by the men he has trained these many years, whether he takes the active command himself or not.

The men building the LZ-130 also are a seasoned lot, some of them served under the late Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin. That applies especially to the chief designer and constructor, modest Dr. Ludwig Duerr.

All of them are all filled with the idea that their special mission in life is to show the world that airships have come to stay, and that every succeeding airship is better than the last.

Cardenas Raps Oil Companies

(By The Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 24.—President Lazaro Cardenas attacked foreign oil companies in an address here today as among "forces who fail to understand the work of the Mexican government and are trying to make it fail."

Speaking before the national congress of the Confederation of Mexican Workers, Cardenas charged the oil industry with "withdrawing all the economic assets" from the country as a result of conflict with labor. He admonished the workers to "be ready to resist the attack" of such forces.

Cardenas said, however, he was "respectful of the independence of the several powers" of the government, and would not interfere with the supreme court's decision "whatever it might be" in the present conflict between the government and the oil industry.

The supreme court is expected to decide Friday an appeal by the foreign oil companies from an arbitral board decision upholding an order for increased benefits of more than $7,000,000 annually to the 18,000 employes of the industry.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE
Caused by Tired Kidneys
Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

More Sun Spots In Last Year

(By The Associated Press)

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 24.—The year 1937 was the most active for sun spots since the turn of the century and may prove to have been the maximum year in the present cycle.

The number of spots fluctuates from month to month and year to year in a gradual rise or fall.

Dr. Seth B. Nicholson, astronomer of the Carnegie institution's Mount Wilson observatory, said today the spot groups are increasing again, after a lull last fall, but unless the increase gains sharply it will not pass the activity of last July.

Established New Record

"The total number of spot groups observed here in 1937 was 537, establishing a new record for Mt. Wilson," he said. "This compares with 289 in 1936, 450 in 1917 and 424 in 1927."

The years 1917 and 1927 marked the maximum of the last two previous cycles, which usually run ten or eleven years.

Previously the astronomers had learned that sun spots cause magnetic storms on the earth, disrupting telephone and telegraph service, and making the aurora borealis visible in states as far south as the Mexican border.

U. S. Engineers Are Urged To Deepen And Widen Channel

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24. (AP) — United States engineers were urged today to deepen and widen the Mississippi river channel from its mouth at Southwest pass to Baton Rouge.

Southern and mid-western shippers presented testimony at a hearing held by Lt. Col. Robert W. Crawford, United States district engineer.

"Harbors of the importance of New Orleans," said Lachlan Macgay, executive vice president of the Mississippi Valley association, should be kept in pace with the trend toward larger ships with greater draft which are definitely replacing the smaller vessels of a few years ago."

The government now maintains a channel of about 35 feet depth and 350 feet width in the middle of the river. Shippers are seeking a 40 feet depth and a 2,000 feet width.

Except for slight gains at Minneapolis, Dallas and Portland, Oregon, losses again predominated.

Gov. "Happy" Chandler May Try To Trump New Deal's Ace In Kentucky Feud

Barkley May Be Given Opposition

(By The Associated Press)

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 24.—The majority leader of the United States Senate is Alben W. Barkley—whom the President addressed as "Dear Alben" last summer just before Barkley won the leadership by one vote. He is up for re-election this year as senator from Kentucky.

The governor of Kentucky is Albert Benjamin Chandler—"Happy" to almost everybody. He is 39 years old and ambitious, and his study of state history has taught him that Kentucky governors go into oblivion when they leave office—unless they move up while in office. His term expires in December, 1939.

In that situation politicians have seen the makings of a first-rate political squabble, with teeth-gnashing in Washington as well as in Kentucky.

Governor Has Climbed Fast

Should "Happy" Chandler file for senator and beat "Dear Alben" Barkley in this year's primary, he might be a pretty important fellow at the next Democratic national convention. He has told friends that "lightning may strike," giving him a place on the 1940 ticket.

Chandler already has ridden high—partly on "breaks." He won the lieutenant-governorship in 1931 as a compromise candidate. When Governor Laffoon, his political enemy, left the state for a few days in 1935, Chandler called a special session of the General Assembly. It passed a compulsory primary election law that upset plans of the Laffoon forces to name their candidate for governor in a state convention.

But against Chandler's wishes, the law called for a run-off between the two highest candidates. That was lucky for him, for he trailed the Laffoon candidate in the first election but won the run-off handily. It was one of Kentucky's bitterest campaigns.

The Chandler Record

Chandler prefers short legislative sessions, usually makes short speeches, and smiles even in defeat. During his governorship, say his supporters, he has:

Cut the standing state debt from about $26,000,000 to about $11,000,000 and reduced the interest rate on it from 5 to 3 per cent.

Replaced the general sales tax with excise taxes on so-called non-necessities.

Started a big state building program, with a new prison and a new hospital under way.

Opponents say he has:

Taxed the state too heavily to cut down in four years a debt piled up in 30 years.

Has held old-age pensions to a low figure to satisfy desire to pay off state debt.

Injured business with an income tax.

Chandler, a married man with four children, has had his eye on the senate before, but various maneuverings aimed at winning him a seat by appointment failed.

He's From Harvard, Too

The story goes that he started his career as "the little boy with the red sweater and a five-dollar bill"—his chief possessions, earned as a newspaper carrier, when he left his home town.

He has been a professional baseball player, football coach, window washer, waiter, oil field worker and an enlisted man in the army. Some of these jobs helped him get an education—at Transylvania college, the University of Kentucky and Harvard Law School.

After his return from a recent White House visit he told friends: "I wasn't scared and I told the President I was a Harvard man myself."

fey in the senate and request that you leave him there."

"I am going to comply with the president's request, of course," Guffey said.

The problem of the party leaders in the state has been simply that there are not enough jobs to go around. It has been complicated by Kennedy's determination to seek the governorship as an independent, if the organization should reject him.

It had been suggested that, in addition to Guffey's withdrawal, the snarl might be untangled, if President Roosevelt should offer Earle a high governmental post, and if Kennedy, frankly desirous of a senate seat, should receive organization support for the senate nomination.

Consistent Athletic Winners

"Fifteen of the 17 years of my service here, Ralls has been winner of the spring Interscholastic league meets. We have been frequent winners and strong contenders for district honors in football and basketball. When Ralls first had district championship basketball and football teams, I had full responsibility for all management and coaching. Since then I have had the responsibility for checking the eligibility of players and never has our school and community been humiliated by a protest sustained against one of our players in a major sport."

". . . of all these I speak; but proudest I am of friends made in performances of my duties, and grateful I am for the opportunity given me by citizens of the community, by patrons of the school, and by the school board of the Ralls Independent district," he concluded.

Furs worth $2,285,700 were shipped from Alaska in 1937, an increase of $368,000 compared with 1936.

May Mess Up Things

GOVERNOR CHANDLER
Thinks "lightning may strike" him in 1940

Wrong Man Arrested In Check Forgery; Right One Taken Too

Sheriff Tom Abel returned from McCamey with the man named in a complaint, but on delivering the suspect to Slaton authorities learned that the man held was not the one who had passed a forged check, so he went to McGregor for another man.

Albert Grubbs had been charged with the asserted offense, alleged to have happened at Slaton. Grubbs had quit work at a compress there and headed toward Arizona. A suit case was sent to McCamey to, it later turned out, a brother-in-law.

Postoffice Window Watched

Sheriff Tom Abel of Lubbock and R. W. Wicker, Slaton chief of police, went to McCamey and watched a postoffice window several hours. They arrested Grubbs and returned him to Slaton, where a store proprietor said he was not the man wanted, although he had been so charged.

The sheriff gave the man bus fare to McCamey and released him.

The complaint was changed to read Floyd Meyers, who had quit employment at the compress about the same time. He was arrested at McGregor and taken to Waco. The officers returned Wednesday night.

The check was for $29.70, said the sheriff.

Recognizes No Party

"The government stands firmly behind the 1934 constitution and is directing all its efforts toward Austria's freedom and independence," Schuschnigg said, his voice trembling with emotion.

"The constitution recognizes no parties and no party state."

It was his answer to world fears that his historic Feb. 12 meeting with Hitler had opened the way for nazi domination of Germany's little German-speaking neighbor and eventual loss of Austrian independence in union with the reich.

Single Compact Front

"What we Austrians want cannot and must not be designated by political conceptips of red, black, brown and green, and right and left—it is not a party-bound people's front but a single compact front of our people."

Young members of the fatherland front and the sturmkorps, organized to fight Nazi influence, flanked the rostrum from which Schuschnigg spoke.

Cordons of police were thrown about the parliament building. All traffic was stopped for blocks around to guard against any attack on the chancellor's life.

Speech Tensely Awaited

The audience of 1,200 persons in the huge reichstag hall was more like that at the premier of an opera in the gay Vienna of the Hapsburgs than a tensely awaited political speech from the man in whose hands lies the fate of the tiny remnant of that once great empire.

Generals glittered in World war uniforms; women wore brilliant evening dresses; the bright red and white colors of Austria dominated the scene.

Schuschnigg said that Austria had shown herself worthy of independence and if her material progress was not as great as that of othe nations, "we at least are able to demonstrate a most respectable showing for a land which has been tried as sorely as Austria."

Austria's future, he said, depends "upon the strong will for freedom in every Austrian heart.

"I take courage from the example of Dollfuss and all martyrs and I place my trust in God who will not forsake Austria."

He ended his speech on that second reference to Austria's assassinated chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, who was killed in an abortive Nazi putsch.

a foot. He offered to begin work in seven days and to complete it in 75 days.

Complete In 60 Days

Crawford submitted a bid of 60 cents a foot for the test well, $3 for completing it for permanency, saying he could begin activities in five days and complete them in 60 days.

Flack and Pierson of Seagraves would have undertaken the construction at the rate of 80 cents and $4, starting in fou days and completing in 30 days.

L. A. Peebles submitted a bid of 50 cents and $4.50, beginning in five days and completing in 60 days. He agreed to use his own engine equipment which would have precluded building of a power line and setting of transformers by the city. His $5 bid, however, was high for those submitted.

Ordinance Is Passed

Paced by Mayor Ross Edwards' suggestion, interpreted in his opening statement that "This thing soon will be too big to handle," the commission passed on first reading an ordinance governing trailer houses, the motion h ng so worded that the city attorney may revise an ordinance submitted by W. H. Rodgers, city manager, to the body.

The ordinance would define size and construction of houses, as well as where they might be placed and other factors designed to end an expressed peril of unsanitary conditions, unsightliness and other factors.

One Man Building 100

John R. Sechrist, hotel proprietor of 1315 Avenue F, testified before the commission in regard to the trailer houses. He said the dumping of wastes from them, since few assertedly have facilities for disposal of ewage, slops or garbage, was prevalent. Furthermore, he said, he had been informed one man "is building 100 of them (trailers) now."

J. A. Fortenberry, commissioner, interposed a statement he had been informed the houses are being placed in the back yards of prominent residential areas to be rented to Texas Technological college boys. Other commissioners said negroes had been rented such places in increasing numbers.

Verging On Emergency

All agreed the situation not only is alarming but verging on an emergency.

Sechrist suggested the city provide a place where the nomadic and semi-nomadic (depending on whether they have permanent wheels) types of abode might be congregated outside the city limits, at a sufficient distance to protect Lubbock's thousands.

The city manager read excerpts from a control plan used to advantage for wheel-equipped trailers exclusively in a greater population center. A two-weeks time limit in any given location was suggested, and an extra-careful and regular sanitation check.

Commissioner A. J. Richardson made the motion.

Proposal Is Passed

An alternate proposal that heavy traffic arteries be made into boulevards or that traffic signals be installed at Broadway and Avenue Q and at Sixteenth street and Avenue Q with stop signs on the north side of the intersection of Tenth and K, the south of Thirteenth and J, the south of Fifteenth and O, and the north of Fifteenth and V, was passed. Pushed over for future consideration also was a proposal for stop signals at Main and L and for parking meters on L from Main to Broadway. Police submitted the plan, an outgrowth of a recent survey.

Aplomb of the commission was slightly jarred just before adjournment, when Commissioner Richardson answered Mayor Edwards' "That about all, gentlemen?" with, "Yes, there's just one more thing."

Favors Higher Salaries

He launched into an explanation that the city of Lubbock, having annual revenues of approximately $500,000, should be taken "care of" by a commission "paid higher salaries."

He suggested, in substance, the mayor should be paid a monthly salary of $200, commissioners $100, and that the mayor "should devote his full time to the duties" of seeing city business "conducted in a businesslike manner."

He compared county and city commissions, attempting to show the county commission has a more favorable basis for conduct of business affecting those they represent, since, in effect, their remuneration is greater and they feel they can devote more time to their official duties.

Received No Support

In connection with his plan, which received no support from other commissioners, Commissioner Richardson proposed the city commission should meet four times monthly.

Asked if the plan would not conflict with provisions of the city manager plan, Commissioner Richardson said it might, "to some degree."

Other commissioners, W. G. McMillan and W. B. Price, as well as Mayor Edwards, firmly reiterated to Commissioner Richardson's occasional questions punctuating a continual explanation of his plan that they would prefer serving "without any remuneration whatsoever" to seeing salaries of mayor and commission hiked.

Mayor Edwards said, "Plenty of Lubbock persons would take the positions of mayor and commissioners at the same price we're getting."

McMillan Expresses View

Commissioner McMillan said (and his statement brought approving nods from the rest of the opposition bloc ranged about Commissioner Richardson's suggestion): "I would be willing to meet four or five times a month, or even more if business demanded, without asking more remuneration—for would do so without remuneration whatsoever."

Commissioner Fortenberry said he "would nt consider more pay" and that "some of the greatest cities pay their commissioners nothing."

Mayor Edwards said duties of the commission should be considered a "civic duty."

Richardson Proposes Election

Commissioner Richardson, who in the same breath informed "... and I am not running for re-election," proposed calling a special election "to let the public decide" the question. He was informed he might have the city attorney prepare his motion for amending the city charter, since there was some doubt expressed by the proposal's author as to necessary procedure.

J. A. Lindsey appeared to learn the commission's plan toward renting all or part of the 400-acre tre "Boles tract" southeast of the city, recently acquired for sewage disposal purposes. He said he would farm the land "for the city" for 50 cents a cultivation and for 50 cents a watering, exclusive of constructing necessary ditches. In return, he said the city would need to secure a right-of-way under the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad track for passage of a water conduit. It was decided, on motion of Commissioner McMillan, to advertise for cash rental bids, returnable at the next session of the commission.

To Investigate Complaints

Commissioner McMillan, supported by Commissioner Richardson, said investigation should be made into complaints some city employes had been doing electrical contract work, despite their asserted failure to have executed bonds for that purpose. The body also discussed an asserted practice of some lumber yards "actually to be contracting construction projects" without having posted bond, or having provided compensation insurance for employes.

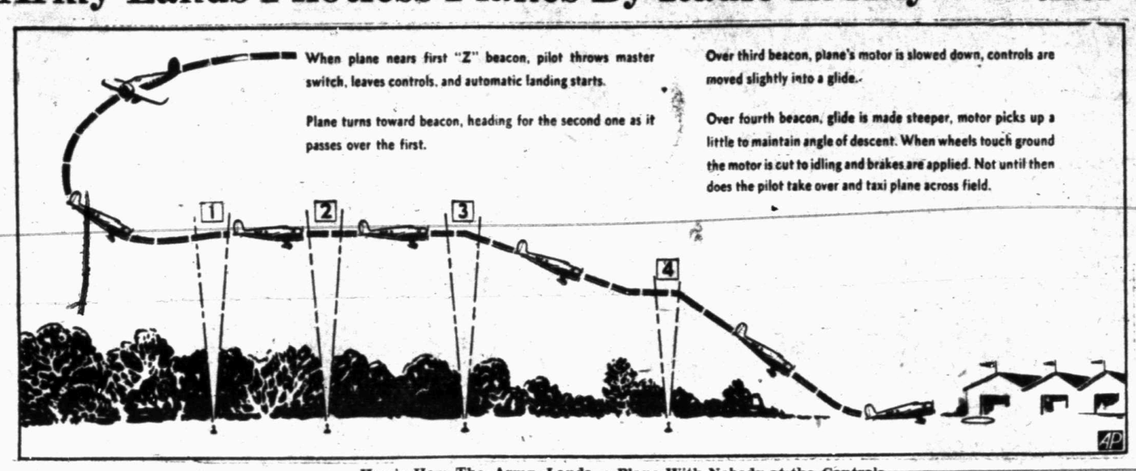

Resolution was made that one mill per square foot of floor space would be sufficent basis for building permit requirements in instances governing specific construction, which would be defined closely. Three mills is the present rate. One cotton warehouse recently constructed cost $60, "and only one inspection was required," said Commissioner McMillan. "That is too much for such type of construction." The building department will draft an amendment to the building code.

Other Matters Handled

Also handled: Commissioners will seek to effect a settlement either in money or in hospitalization with Jack Strickland, who was injured when working for the city in 1936 and concerning whose damage action against the city failed in 99th district court recently when the jury absolved the city from negligence, but through a mistake failed to award the plaintiff a percentage of damages he had asked; to release Paul Barrier from a paving lien in front of Seventh street property he recently sold; approved a sign bond for C. E. McGehee, an electrical bond for H. L. Burden, and general contractors' bonds for C. T. Book and J. Ray Givens; agreed to pay D. J. Schlag, until recently building inspector for the city, for a two-weeks vacation allowed him, but which he did not take; acceptance of a lot between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets on Avenue K which Hurley Carpenter agreed to deed the city in case a tax of approximately $260 against it were absorbed; to avoid "skips" in pavement; discussed sale of green grubs owned by the city and how to dispose of them, and the possibility of having to borrow on paving certificates or issue warrants.

Miss Lavenia Williams, city secretary, and W. D. Wilson, law partner of Durwood H. Bradley, city attorney, also attended the session.

Army Lands Pilotless Planes By Radio In Any Weather

Here's How The Army Lands a Plane With Nobody at the Controls

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer

WRIGHT FIELD, Dayton, O., Feb. 24.—The army can pluck an airplane out of the sky in any weather and set it gently on earth by radio more expertly than a human pilot can land a ship in clear weather.

There are three elements to the system. The first is a new beacon, called a "Z" beacon. It not only controls the flight of a plane laterally, as the present fixed radio beams do, but also works rudders, ailerons and engine speed.

It operates through a special radio receiving set hooked up to a gyropilot such as those in use on commercial planes for routine flying.

Army engineers foresee development of this apparatus into a system that will permit automatic flying from coast to coast.

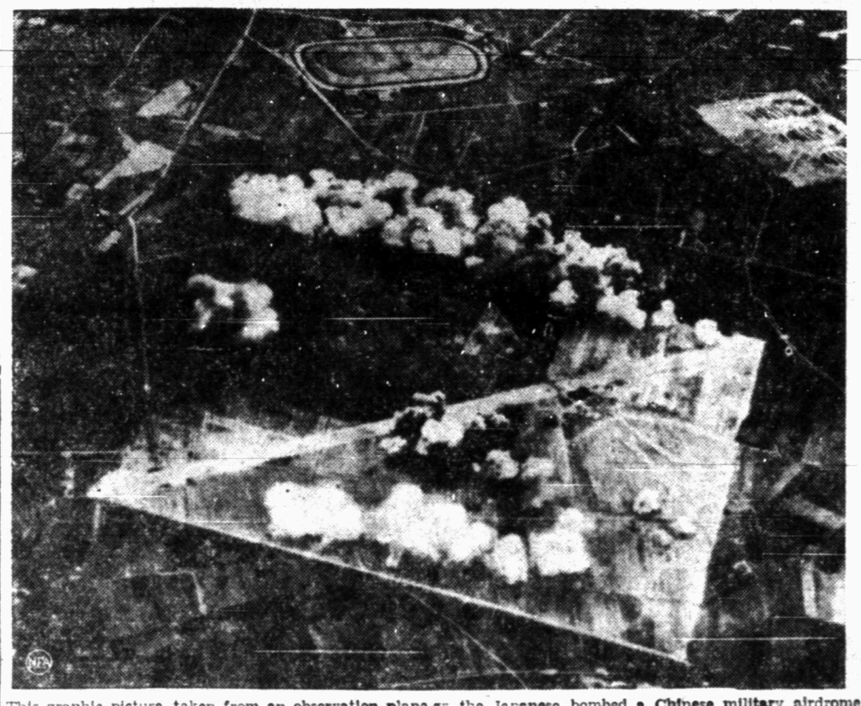

'Phantom' Air Armada

obeyed the screams of sirens and the shouted alarms of motorcycle squads warning of "enemy air raiders" as the rehearsal continued.

Defense headquarters at Fukuoka, on Kyushu island, gave the first warning, Domei (Japanese news agency) reported. Japanese air patrols fanned out far over the 800 miles of China sea to search for the Chinese planes.

Looking Down From A Japanese Bombing Plane

This graphic picture, taken from an observation plane as the Japanese bombed a Chinese military airdrome at Hankow, shows how the unfortunate earth appears to the men who fly the Nipponese bombers. Note the great clouds of smoke and dust rising from the ground as almost countless bombs explode. Such bombing expeditions as this have caused great loss of life and tremendous property damage in the Sino-Japanese war.

Perils Of Journey Through Rock-Studded St. Helena Canyon Told By Historian

(By The Associated Press)

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 24.—Perils of a rowboat journey through rock-studded Santa Helena canyon on the Big Bend of the Rio Grande in Texas were described here by Dr. Walter Prescott Webb, University of Texas historian.

Dr. Webb headed a party of three whose metal boats ranged their way through Santa Helena's dangerous rapids last summer. Details of his report wrere made public today for the first time by the National Park service. Santa Helena canyon is in the proposed Big Bend national park.

Cautions Against Attempts

Describing the canyon as an area of "gorgeous scenery, the like of which few people have ever seen," Dr. Webb cautioned against inexperienced persons endeavoring to make the passage. There is constant danger in the rapids, he said, and there is always a possibility of being trapped by a rising river, or injured by blocks of stone falling from the cayon walls that rise, in places, nearly 2,000 feet above the river.

During the party's night encampment in the canyon, falling rocks "hit the ground almost like comets."

Similar Warning Issued

A similar warning was given by Thomas Skaggs, experienced riverman of McCamey, Texas, who accompanied Webb.

"The boulders, blocks, and debris of the constantly crumbling walls," Skaggs said, "become an increasing hazard to boats going through the canyon."

The party, which included James W. Metcalfe of Alpine, acting chief inspector of the U. S. immigration service border patrol; and Joe Lane of McCamey, started from Lajitas, just across the narrow Rio Grande from Mexico. Approaching the head of the Santa Helena, they were "picked up" by four heron, which Webb said "actually led us through the canyon."

Saw Wild Horses, Cattle

"Occasionally," his report related, "we would see some cattle or horses, all wild and of low breed, on the Texas side. We were so strange to them that they would follow us along the bank. With the herons leading and cattle and horses following, we made quite a procession.

"At 5:45 we came to the swift rapids at the head of the canyon. The Cinco de Mayo started through but had considerable difficulty with the rocks. Skaggs signaled us not to follow, by firing his pistol. Joe Lane took the large boat through alone, in grand style. The second rapids were run with one man in each boat.

Mountain Worn Down

"We had now come to the entrance of Santa Helena canyon, a gash that appears to have been caused by a mountain cracking open in order that the river might find its way to the sea. The geologists tell us that the mountain did not crack open, that the river wore the gash as the mountain rose very gradually in its path.

"We started camp at 6:10 on the Texas side of the river. The boats were tied up in a cove and unloaded. At the entrance it is impossible to see into the canyon, because the stream makes a sharp right turn to shut out the view. We put out a signal—a white cross—to indicate to the air observers (coast guard) that all was well so far. At 7 o'clock we heard the roar of the motor. The plane passed over without making any sign of high water or danger up the river.

"We ate supper at about 8 o'clock and spread our scant beds on the hot sands, but there was little sleep in camp that night. Whether this was due to the excitement of the prospects for the next day, to the heat that quickly made its way from the sands through our blankets, or to the strong coffee we had drunk, we could not say. Joe Lane fished nearly all night—without any luck!

"No Danger" Signaled

"We arose to prepare breakfast at 5:20. At 6:30 the airplane came along to look into conditions high up on the river. We awaited its return with some anxiety, as heavy clouds had gathered in the night, accompanied by lightning, and there was every indication of rain. We knew that a sudden rice in the river would increase the hazards of the day, and were quite relieved when the plane returned in half an hour and signaled 'no danger'. We entered the canyon at 7:30.

"Skaggs and I walked into the canyon and Joe Lane and Chief Metcalfe brought in the boats. The bed of the canyon is about the width of a city street and the water fills a third or a fourth of it. This meant that sandbars lay on one side or the other of the meandering stream, making it possible at places to walk a considerable distance. There were no signs of life save rock wrens that twittered and flitted about the cliffs that rose 800 or 1,000 feet on either side.

Pass Dangerous Spot

"In the center of the stream at one spot a large bowlder protrudes three or four feet above the water. Skaggs took complete charge, in spite of Joe Lane's desire to carry the boats through. Skaggs stripped off his clothes and entered the swift stream above the rock and going with the current managed to catch on the rock. He threw one end of the rope he had carried to the small boat, manned by Metcalfe. This boat now entered the swift current and was drifted and rowed safely to the Mexican bank.

"Joe Lane and I followed in the second boat. Skaggs was now picked off his perch in midstream and all were once more on safe ground, fairly confident that we had passed the most dangerous point of the journey, which proved to be correct."

Webb suggested that any future expeditions through the canyon should be equipped with at least 150-feet of rope, and should portage the boats at the rockfall. Attempts to carry boats through the channel at that joint, he added, "are almost sure to meet disaster."

Met Another Party

"Once on the Mexican side," the report goes on, "we unpacked the boats and started carrying our baggage across the rockfall. This baggage included grub box, cork vests, paddles, poles, cameras, and bedding. We soon found that every pound counted, and when we were 200 feet up and 100 yards from the starting point we lightened our burden by eating dinner at 10:45 and throwing away the grub box. We got the baggage to the edge of the water at 11:30. Here we were met by Berry Wilson and State Game Warden Ray Williams. After experimenting at the mouth of the canyon with the speed boat they had found it useless because of the shallows and hidden rocks. They then took the Indian canoe and learned that it is the ideal craft for those that know how to manage it in swift currents. They had come from the mouth of the canyon up stream to the rockfall, bringing some extra food, which was most welcome, as our appetites were voracious. It is probable, though of this I am by no means certain, that this was the first time anyone had ever come up the Rio Grande from the outlet of Santa Helena to the rockfall.

Felt Like Tons To Us

"We started portaging the steel boats at 12:40. These were taken apart, and although a section weighs only about a hundred pounds it felt like tons to us. Berry Wilson and Ray Williams assisted us in this labor. By 1:40 we had made one-half the distance and reached the highest point of the rockfall with the two front and lighter sections. In going up the rockfall we had to lift the boats from one stone to another, and rest every few feet.

"We made better progress down hill and as the steel boats were moved from rock to rock the sound reverberated down the canyon like distant thunder.

"All the afternoon we had worked against the east cliff with the western sun beating down on us. The sharp rocks had cut to pieces the shoes of some of the men. Chief Metcalfe suffered severely because he had brought only a pair of tennis shoes, suitable for use in the boats but not to the land work. Game Warden Ray Williams had ruined a pair of boots by working alternately in the water and among the rocks.

"During the day we had made six trips across the rockfall, a distance of aproximately 300 or 400 yards, climbing in each case to a height of 250 feet and carrying heavy burdens three times. The rocks we climbed over ranged from the size of a bathtub to the size of a room. While making this passage we put out a 'delayed' signal to the airplane, which came over at 11:15 in the morning and in the afternoon at 5:30. It came again at 7:30 and we signaled 'everything okay.'"

The party camped there overnight, and started the final lap of their trip at 8 o'clock the following morning.

Irrigation Data Is To Be Sought

Arrangements for communicating with all irrigation farmers of the county to obtain data relative to promotion of additional truck farming were made at a meeting in offices of the chamber of commerce Thursday night of a committee from the Lubbock County Irrigation association.

Four of the five districts of the county were assigned to persons Thursday night and plans will be completed, probably today, for working of the other district before meeting of the association in the courthouse Monday night.

Members Are Listed

Members of the committee "to determine if the irrigation farmers of this section will grasp the opportunity now before them, . . . and to determine what the farmers want to do and will do" are F. [illegible] Revier, general chairman; T. M. Nelson, T. J. Foster, J. E. Hancock, J. I. Exum, Travis Tubbs, R. M. Lowe, W. O. Fortenberry, Aubrey Edwards, W. R. Birchfield, Charles Adams, jr., C. D. Crump, E. F. Steen, and C. R. Ballard.

Plans are for a form blank to be distributed to every irrigation farmer in the county to obtain information. On the blank, farmers are asked to designate a list of truck farm products they would prefer to grow, an estimated acreage which would be devoted to each crop, and, to express whether they have a desire to cooperate in a marketing plan. Other information asked includes: extent of farmer in producing irrigated truck crops in the past; size of irrigation well in gallons per minute; make of the pump used; and capacity of the pump in gallons per minute.

Purpose Is Cited

Main purpose of the association as outlined in material to be distributed to irrigation farmers, is to promote production of cash crops in a sufficient quantity to make profitable methods for marketing.

"As a general rule, our vegetable products will be on the market after exhaustion of South and East Texas crops and before Colorado crops come on," the pamphlet said. "Our irrigation truck farmers have every natural advantage to make money—provided they will take it."

A tentative plan for marketing, as suggested in the pamphlet, is: "It is probable that the marketing of these crops would be handled through a home-owned, home-managed cooperative marketing association."

Reports on information obtained from the canvass will be made at the Monday night meeting of the association as will reports from several other committees.

Five Juveniles Are Charged In Theft Of Milk, Tires And Gas

As the result of investigation which led to breaking of an alleged juvenile ring, five juveniles Thursday were charged with theft of milk, tires, and gasoline, and hearings are expected to be held possibly today before Judge E. L. Pitts of 99th district court.

The complaints against the youths were sworn to by Bill Mabray, police identifications officer, before Hugh Anderson, assistant county attorney.

Mabray said the ring had been engaged in a series of petty thefts and a splurge of malicious mischief. Members of the group admitted burning grass in Twenty-third street park and theft of milk, gasoline, and old tires.

LUCKY CONTRACT

RANDSBURG, Calif. (AP)—Part of Leonard Hoge's contract for acting as watchman on the Chamberlain placer property was that he could "dry wash" for gold wherever he wanted. Now he is $700 richer as the result of finding a single gold nugget in the canyon sands.

Spanish Insurgents Reach "Gate Of Valencia" In Drive To Mediterranean

Picked Forces In Drive To Coast

(By The Associated Press)

HENDAYE, France, at the Spanish Frontier, Feb. 24.—Picked Spanish insurgent troops tonight reached the "gate to Valencia"—the mountain pass of Escandon—in their drive toward the Mediterranean coast.

Insurgent tacticians ordered the troops to advance into the rugged hills on both sides of the highway at Sagunto, southeast of Teruel, which are defended by strong government barricades.

To Avoid "Death Trap"

General Jose Varela, commanding the offensive sought thus to avoid what he called a "death trap" between the precipitous La Clavela mountains to the southwest and the barren hills above the Valbona river valley to the northeast.

Two fronts had been created in that sector, each about six miles long.

On the left flank, one extended from the Sagunto highway, the government's last broad communication line to Valencia, back to Murmich and the Escriche river valley. On the right flank, the other spread toward the southwest and west into the hills above the Guadalaviar river valley.

El Brendel, Glad To Combine Dollars And Scents, Is Climbing Back To Limelight

(By The Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 24. — Smelling like a fish cart on Friday, but glad to combine dollars and scents, El Brendel climbed back into the movie limelight today.

Penguin Pete was perched on his shoulder and sliced halibut was in his pocket as Brendel took Shirley Temple by the hand for a crucial scene in her new picture.

It was the scene where Shirley, as "Little Miss Broadway," gets an idea how to lift the mortgage on a hotel for down-and-out actors.

"Jumping Yimminy!" cried Brendel, one of the down-and-outers.

But Pete, the penguin, merely looked wise. He earns $100 a day in the movies. No matter what the script says, he has all the halibut he wants to eat.

For El Brendel, Hollywood's "Forgotten Swede," the penguin is a bird of good omen.

A decade ago, he scored his first big film hit when he carried a goose around in "You Never Know Women." Then he teamed up with a cat in "Happy Days," a donkey in "The Big Trial," and a dog in "Olsen's Big Moment."

"When I ran out of animals," Brendel says, "I ran out of a job."

His bland face, a map of Scandinavia, wrinkles into a wry grin as he says it. And you might never suspect it wasn't funny.

No more Swedish than Robert Taylor, Elmer Goodfellow Brendel was born in Philadelphia and has been a comedian 30 years.

Razorbacks Favored To Clinch Southwest Cage Title In Series With Ponies

One Win Would Mean Tie For Tall Porkers

(By The Associated Press)

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Feb. 24.—Arkansas' Razorbacks dribbled confidently about a practice court today, glowing with the knowledge that only the most stunning upset could keep them from bagging at least a tie for the Southwest conference championship.

Their faltering opposition, Southern Methodist university, came here primed for a last-chance stand, but no one believed the Dallas team could sweep the two-game series starting tomorrow night.

An even break would cinch a tie for the title for Arkansas; victories in both games would assure it the championship.

A Tough Assignment

Southern Methodist would have to win both games and keep spotless the remainder of its play this season to win the pennant. In view of the fact that the Mustangs were bowled over by the lowly University of Texas five, 25 to 23, Tuesday night, that seemed a little too much to expect.

The Mustang coach was the first to admit that. "I don't think we can stop them both Friday and Saturday nights," Whitney Baccus said dolefully, referring to the Razorbacks.

The series will bring Arkansas' 12-game schedule to a close and will represent the last chance Don Lockard, Razorback forward, will have to get enough points to win the individual scoring race.

He is trailing Hubert Kirkpatrick, Baylor center, by four points. Lockard's prospects for retaining his title appear slim, however, as Kirkpatrick has not played in as many contests as Lockard.

Added to the difficulty presented by the Razorbacks themselves, the Mustangs must face the fact that the Porkers are always extremely hard to handle on their home court. The long train ride, too, will not help S. M. U.'s chances.

Pete Acker, guard, is the only member of the Methodist squad who has played at Fayetteville. The others have not been on the varsity long enough to make a trip to the Ozarks.

If Southern Methodist should get by Arkansas, it still would have an extremely difficult hurdle in Baylor in the season finale. Baylor, like Southern Methodist, has lost two games, but has beaten Arkansas once.

New Deal Tourney Games Postponed

Unfavorable weather cut short the schedule of games in the New Deal invitation independent basketball tournament last night, and caused postponement of tonight's games until Saturday night.

Hugh Snodgrass, New Deal High cage mentor and sponsor of the tournament, said that the schedule of second round games originally set for tonight would be held at the same hours Saturday night, with finals probably next Monday.

Only two games were played last night, as three more teams moved into the quarter-final round. Meadow won by default from New Lynn.

Hub Clothiers of Lubbock ran roughly over a Monroe entry, and Anton defeated Abernathy. In Wednesday games, Peel Packing company of Lubbock had won from Ropesville, Idalou defeated Halbert Grocery and New Deal won from Wilson. Texas Tech freshmen, which meets Peel in Saturday night's first game, advanced on a bye, as did Lamesa, which plays Anton in the third game, following the Idalou-New Deal clash. Hub Clothiers play Meadow.

North Texas Teachers Cinch Lone Star Basketball Title

HUNTSVILLE, Feb. 24. (AP)—With the pennant cinched by North Texas Teachers college of Denton, three teams in the Lone Star conference today had their eyes on second place in the basketball championship.

Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin quintets, two of the three teams tied for second place, clash at Nacogdoches tomorrow night. East Texas Teachers college also is in the second-place bracket. Each of the teams has won three games and lost four.

North Texas has won six and lost one. They are pitted against East Texas Teachers this weekend.

BERG, HEMPHILL ADVANCE

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24. (AP)—Flaming-haired Patty Berg of Minneapolis swept over Sally Guth, Webster Grove, Mo., 6 and 4 to gain the semi-finals of the South Atlantic golf championship today.

Mrs. William Hockenjos of Lake Hopatcong, N. J., won one up in a thrilling finish match with Mrs. Jane Cothran Jameson of West Palm Beach.

Faulkner Meets Old Friends, Makes New Ones Here

Harry Faulkner, professional baseball's emissary to Lubbock, "caught on" quickly with baseball fans and athletic men here yesterday, and was otherwise greeted enthusiastically by local business and professional men. Faulkner is shown above, at extreme left, being "greeted" yesterday here by Sam Rosenthal (in the handshaking act), president of the Lubbock Baseball association and sponsor of semi-pro ball until this year, while Pete Cawthon, Texas Tech head coach and long time friend of Faulkner, and Sammy West, local druggist who represents Lubbock in major league baseball, look on. West leaves early next month to report to the St. Louis Browns training camp, while Cawthon starts his own "spring training," with gridders, shortly thereafter. Faulkner, employed by the Chicago White Sox, is to guide the destinies of the Lubbock entry in the West Texas-New Mexico league this season. He is here on a "good will" trip before bringing his club from the Longview training base early in April. He will be guest of the American Business club at luncheon today, after meeting with Kiwanians yesterday. (Photo by Reeves)

Junior High Cagers Set Record In Good Season

Coach Lovic Liston's Junior High school Cowboy cagers closed out a successful season yesterday, although defeated in their final game by a team of junior high faculty members who felt called upon to demonstrate "who's papa."

The Teachers beat the Cowboys, 24 to 22, Liston himself being forced to score 18 points to overcome a lead his boys made against the starting Teachers.

During the regular season, the Cowboys won 7 games, lost three, scored 248 points to 139 for the opposition, and produced a forward who broke all junior scoring records.

Harris Goes To Town

Captain Floyd Harris, 155-pound, 5-foot-9 forward, scored a total of 60 points in the ten games, or an average of ten per game, "which is mighty good for a junior high player," Coach Liston agreed. Liston boasted of another player, Guard DeWitt Moore, who played his first game of basketball during the recent season. "Undoubtedly, one of the strongest guards I ever saw," his coach said, pointing out that he also scored 30 points during the season. Roland Nabors, younger brother of the heavyweight grid player who is now in Texas Tech, was another star Cowboy, although he scored few points. He was the "feeder," and a fine ball handler.

Liston Retaliates

The Cowboys yesterday jumped away to a 6-point lead in the early minutes against a team of faculty men who had never played basketball. Kennedy, Walters, Gordon, Davis and Crouch composed the starting lineup, and the "regulars," Cox, Liston, Hancock, Nichols and Thompson, had to do some fast playing to overcome the lead. They trailed at halftime, 6-15, but went ahead in the last half due to Liston's scoring spree.

Robert McKinnon, Nabors, Harris, Moore and Francis Bearden started for the Cowboys, and Prim was a substitute. McKinnon, with 8 points, led the scoring for the losers. Harris scored 6 and Nabors 4.

All of the regulars will be in senior high school next season, candidates for Goober Keyes' Westerner cagers.

Emery Shines In Houston Joust

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON, Feb. 24.—Nervy Walter Emery, his big black cigar curling smoke at every stroke, dropped Reynolds Smith, doughty Walker Cup star, from the Houston Country club invitation tourney today with an amazing bunch of golf shots.

Barely able to squeeze into match play after being forced to go four holes in a playoff after the qualifying round, Emery came back in the first round to eliminate, one up, a youngster who turned in a fine 69 two shots under par.

Square Through 16

Square at the end of nine holes, the pair came into the seventeenth hole still even. Emery, 1935 National amateur finalist, and former Walker Cup star, cracked a tremendous second shot that nestled on the green of the 483 yard hole. He was down in two putts for a birdie and held the lead at the home hole when Smith's desperate 12 footer for a birdie brushed the side of the hole and stayed out.

Smith, Dallas golf columnist, and favorite in the Calcutta pool selling, bagged four birdies on the round and seldom was in trouble, but Emery's putter was admittedly "hotter" than it has been in many tournaments.

Meets Jack Munger

Emery tomorrow faces another Dallas par snubber, bespectacled Jack Munger, former Southern amateur titlist and twice quarter finalist in the National amateur.

Johnny Goodman, National amateur champion, sliced two strokes off par with his usual down the middle shooting to eliminate Bobby Riegel, Beaumont, former Southern amateur title holder. Goodman, around the first nine in 34 two under par, stayed with par to run out the match.

Six birdies dropped in the hole for Johnny Dawson, Chicago stylist, in his 5 and 4 victory over Bill Skeeters, former Southern Methodist football star of Dallas. Tomorrow Dawson plays the feature match against David (Spec) Goldman, Dallas' iron man who went into the finals of the 1934 National amateur meet.

Favorites, with the possible exception of Smith, got by the opening round. Don Schumacher, Dallas, Trans-Mississippi champion, beat Nelson Munger, Austin, 2 and 1, while Ed White, former National intercollegiate king, Walker Cup player and medalist, was near par in beating M. C. Kelley, Baytown.

Champion Still In

Rangy Harry Todd, still another Dallas product who held the state title in 1935, clipped three shots from par in a 4 and 2 triumph over Ed Rotan of Houston and appeared to be headed for a quarter final berth opposite Goodman.

The American amateur champion, however, had a hard customer to handle tomorrow in Bill Welch, Southwest conference champion the past two years and a rugged match player. Welch, four up on Jim Goldman, with only five to play, finally won, 1 up, after losing four holes.

Defending champion Ed McClure of Shreveport, La., who slipped only two shots over par in beating Jack Chambers of Houston, faced long driving Gus Novotny, little Chicago veteran, in another feature match. Novotny, four up at the end of nine holes in his match with Milton Ward of Corpus Christi, finally had to win the home hole to dispose of his awakened opponent.

Par was back at 36-35—71 on the course after flood waters from a bayou that caused shortening of a par four hole had receded.

Max-Joe Fracas To Be Crowded

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—All fistic paths led unswervingly to the forthcoming return match for the world heavyweight title between Champion Joe Louis and Challenger Max Schmeling. And it looks like they are going to be crowded, whether the big fight of 1938 is held in the Yankee stadium, as expected, or, on a sudden shift play, in Chicago or Detroit.

On the heels of his three-round knockout of Nathan Mann last night, before a $100,000 "house" Louis was matched today for the second of three "title tune-ups." It will be held in the Chicago stadium, April 1, and the brown bomber's opponent will be Harry Thomas, the Eagle Bend (Minn.) trial-horse who was bounced all over the Madison Square Garden ring last December by Schmeling and stopped in the eighth round.

Jim Knows When To Quit

Thomas got the match, not only because he offers a special yardstick for further comparison of Louis and Schmeling, but because of his "fighting finish" against Young Jimmy Adamick of Detroit in the Garden last week. Adamick, who won a close decision, turned down an offer to become Jarring Joe's next victim.

Meantime Schmeling is booked, in April at Hamburg, for the third and last of his own tune-up series. Steve Dudas, veteran New Jersey heavyweight, will be the party of the second part.

It all adds up to the best and undoubtedly the most profitable heavyweight build-up program since 1927, the year of the second Dempsey-Tunney fight. Regardless of where the return Louis-Schmeling match takes place, it figures to draw close to $1,500,000. It's a "natural" that is now being thoroughly re-flavored, to offset the two year lapse since the German flattened the negro.

The movement to get back on the Louis band wagon was well under way today. Frank (Doc) Bagley, veteran fistic handler, spoke up for a big contingent when he remarked: "The Louis of last night would have stopped Schmeling in five rounds." Referee Arthur Donovan opined Louis has "come back a long way" and that there's more paralysis than ever in the negro's left hand.

That Right Hand

Mann, by his rushing tactics, fought a "made to order" fight for Louis. But he also proved the negro can still be "tagged" with right hands. It happens that right hands are the main Schmeling asset. The German's American delegate, Joe Jacobs, emphasized this point in concluding today: "Max will polish Louis off sooner than he did before." And so on—far into the spring time.

Louis-Thomas arrangements call for the same percentage split that prevailed last night—40 per cent for the champion, 12 1-2 for the challenger. Joe's share of net receipts of $102,999, including radio and movies of last night's encounter, amounted to $40,522. Mann drew $12,158, five times as much as he got for any previous bout.

Roy Henderson's Successor, Rodney Kidd, Brings Qualifying Record

(Special To The Avalanche)

AUSTIN, Feb. 24—Announcement has been made by T. H. Shelby, dean of the division of extension, University of Texas, that the recommendation of Rodney J. Kidd for the position of athletic director in the Interscholastic league, has been approved. Mr. Kidd will replace the late Roy B. Henderson.

"Mr. Kidd's training and experience seem to fit him admirably for the position to which he has been appointed," Roy Bedichek, director of the Bureau of Public School Extracurricular Activities in which the league's activities are centered, said. "He comes to the university from the faculty of Southwestern university where he served as assistant professor of education, having come to that position from the directorship of physical training in that institution.

Started At Kingsville

"He has served Southwestern as manager of Mood Hall, men's dormitory, as freshman counselor, as chairman of the teachers' placement committee, as director of practice teaching, and as chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, chairman of student help committee, member of the athletic committee, and in numerous capacities.

"His Interscholastic league experience has been wide and various. As a participant during his high school days in Kingsville high school, he won his way to the state meet in track and field events, and to the district contests in debate. As a student in Southwestern university, he served as judge and official and organizer in county meets, and managed the district meet of district 23.

Coach At Georgetown

"On graduation he became coach of all sports in the Georgetown High school, and was promoted to the principalship of that school, serving it four years, and always active in the extracirricular field. For the past few years he has been director of the Interscholastic league district meet held at Southwestern university.

"His college athletic career was outstanding. He lettered in three sports—basketball, football and track. The teams of that institution are known as the Pirates, and during his participation there he became known in the sports pages as 'Captain Kidd of the Pirates.' He is remembered as a star athlete during his undergraduate years.

"His postgraduate work pursued at the University of Texas has been in the physical education field; he was awarded the master of education degree in 1934. His thesis is entitled 'Intercollegiate Athletics and Physical Education in the Southwest Conference Schools.'

"He has been closely identified with the health and physical education section of the Texas State Teachers association, and has been a member of the executive committee of that section.

"Upon his graduation from Southwestern University, he married Miss Von Lunsford, graduate of the same institution. They have four boys, ages 1, 4, 8 and 10, respectively. He is a member of Pi Gamma Nu, national honorary society in the social sciences; Phi Delta Kappa, national honorary society in education."

Golfers May Qualify Here For State Amateur Joust

Possibility of an early season golf tournament in Lubbock was indicated yesterday by Charles Akey, professional and general manager at Lubbock Country club, following communication from the Texas Golf Association.

The event would be for the benefit of public course players desiring to compete in the Texas Amateur championship tournament.

A letter from Ralph B. Baldwin, secretary-treasurer of the association, read, in part:

"We want the public players of Texas to know they can play in the Texas Amateur Championship tournament, and to be eligible, must compete in a qualifying round, of not less than 18 holes, to determine winner and runner-up.

"The course holding the qualifying event should notify the secretary of the Texas Golf association at San Antonio, or the Colonial Golf club, Fort Worth, where the amateur tournament will be held. Tournament dates are May 4-7, at the Colonial."

Local Club Willing

The letter writer asks that the information be spread, so that public players may enter a qualifying round.

Charles Akey, at Lubbock Country club, would like to hear from local and South Plains golfers regarding their attitude toward a one-day qualifying tournament in Lubbock. If enough interest is shown, the Country club will accommodate the extent of conducting the qualifying tournament to decide two players from this section who may compete in the Texas Amateur.

Schoolgirl Cage Tourney Opens At Meadow

Teams of Ropesville and Fairview, champions of Hockley and Dawson counties respectively, are scheduled to meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the curtain raiser of the District 3 high school girls' basketball tournament.

The tournament, to be conducted at the Meadow High school gymnasium, lists ten entries, each of them a county champion. Winner is to be sent to the state A.A.U. tournament, since the Texas Interscholastic league does not sponsor women's sports past county tournaments.

Five games are scheduled for this afternoon and tonight, the first four to be first round games. First second round game starts at 9 tonight and continues through Saturday, with the championship game set for 9:30 tomorrow night.

Consolations Saturday

A consolation bracket gets under way at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, first round losers to play out for the consolation prizes.

In other games booked for today, the Muleshoe and Morton teams, champions from Bailey and Cochran counties, play at 4 o'clock; Wilson, the Lynn county champ, meets Hale Center, Hale county representative, at 7:30 tonight, and Meadow, Hockley champ, plays Littlefield, Lamb county champ, at 8:30.

Roosevelt, the Lubbock county champ, meets the winner of the Muleshoe-Morton game at 9:30 the day's final game.

Southland, the other team which drew a bye, plays the Ropesville-Fairview winner at 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

Frazier Hunt's New Book Advises Uncle Sam To Stop Being Everybody's Stooge

...racks Taken At ...reat Britain

Frazier Hunt, world-famed "globe-trotting correspondent" whose more recent impressions of his fellow Americans and of the European scene he gained on reportorial tours which he made on assignment from NEA Service and The Avalanche, now has written a widely heralded book "One American," which crystalizes his observations of the world and its people. The following interview with him is reproduced here by courtesy of the New York World-Telegram.

* * *

By ASA BORDAGES

"WHAT this country needs," said Mr. Spike Hunt, "is a new ...claration of Independence from ...t Britain. This old hoopla about eternal brotherhood and the ... cause of the English speaking ...ples is a lot of hooey. It's time ... stopped being everybody's ...ges. The new rhythm of the ...ld hasn't got a Made in England ...mp on it. For us, it is primarily ... American rhythm, and it's time ... got wise to ourselves."

Spike Hunt, more formally known ... Frazier Hunt, for twenty years a ...rter-at-large with the world ... the wars thereof for his beat, ... at the Lotos Club by order of ... publishers to talk about his ...iography, "One American and ... Attempt at Education." But he ...t mention his book, although ... a salty job that'll be hard on ... blood pressure of a lot of stuffed ...s. For Mr. Hunt, six-foot-four ... green-eyed, rawboned, ruddy ...le Westerner, had some things ... wanted to get off his chest.

Given Acute Pain

"...st, all this about a world war ... just around the corner and ...necessity for America to fight ...

"...t gives Mr. Hunt an acute ... For Mr. Hunt stakes his years ... sporting, his years in the midst ... international intrigue, war and ...lution, that there won't be any ... war.

"...ok here, just get a pencil and ...em up and you'll see what I'm ...ing at.

"Over here we've got the prowling ...ions—Germany, Italy, one or two ... fellows, just tagging along, and ...an. Maybe seven in all.

Odds 12 To 7

"And here we've got Russia, ... a flock of little fellows, ...land and, way in the back-...und, the United States. That's a ...en.

"Now that makes the odds 12 to ... and those odds are too heavy for ... prowling nations to take on. ... they aren't a bunch of dopes. ... might want to take on the ...ld, but they know the only di-...ds the Don Quixote business ...re cracks on the head."

Japan Doesn't Need One

"The Far East? Sure, Japan's on ... rampage, but it won't become a ... war. The one thing Russia ... want is war, and Japan's ... chorus girl and the book. ... don't need a war. Hell, she's ... war."

"...ikes wants America to hoe her ...row, to fight out our own war ... we have to make in our own ... He puts it this way in his ...k:

"Here lies the battleground of ... future; here are arrayed the ...ponents of two great ideas of ... One is the idea of privilege; ...es under the name of capitalism. ... other is the idea of life for all; ... things for all; health for all; ...urity, jobs, decent homes, leisure, ...ations with pay—for all."

And Frazier Hunt, who has seen ... of the workings of govern-...ts and the world than most ... is sure that the little man ... win the struggle, for he sweeps ...g in the new rhythm of the ...ld.

Can't Get The Swing

"The trouble with our generation ... people over 25—is that we ... understand this new rhythm," ...t said. "We can't get it. We ...t realize it isn't political at all. ...isn't Democratic or Republican. ... just a whole new thing that's ...e, a machine of plenty that's ...ng geared to a new tempo. ...Things have changed more in ... past thirty years than in the ...000 years before them, and the ...pact is too much for poor puny ...man to take. It may take a couple of generations for us to get into tune with this new machine of plenty.

"It's like this:—we're all dancing to the old music—the waltz, say, or the turkey trot—and this new rhythm is swing time. We can't take it. We don't understand about it. So we howl and fight against it.

Something You Can't Fight

"But it's not something you can fight. It's a fact. It's here.

"The big guys of America aren't smart except in little ways. But the little man's smart in big ways. He's a swing guy instinctively.

"A few other happy souls have the elasticity to understand the new rhythm, to move with it. Franklin D. Roosevelt's one. That's why he's leading the parade. He'll lead the parade only as long as he's in time with the new rhythm. If a leader gets too far ahead of the parade, it turns a corner and leaves him. If he goes too slow the parade walks over him.

"Whatever happens, the little people will find their own way. For the first time in history the little man has a place now. The new rhythm. It's the little man's world."

Bitter Over Poverty

All of which wasn't the sort of stuff you'd expect from a journalistic star who made a lot of money and, as he wrote, "rolled over on my back and played dead dog" because he liked his bread with "lots of butter and brown sugar to boot."

But when Spike Hunt went through his own country digging into the minds of the people of all classes from coast to coast, he was bitter that men should be hungry and homeless; that men should be made jobless by machines that could have given them plenty and leisure. He saw the little people massing for their fight; saw them learn "that the only thing that counted was what they did for themselves."

And Frazier Hunt, whose great-grandfather took his bride westward across the mountains by packhorse caravan in 1799, made up his mind at 52 and said:—

"When I had finished studying both sides, I decided that I would cast my lot with the humble people."

Expresses Opinions

FRAZIER HUNT . . . is done with rolling over on his back and playing dead dog.

Production Of Oil And Its Allied Products Set Mark In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24. (AP) — Basic production of oil and allied products in Louisiana in 1937 reached the record-breaking value of $129,430,011.

State Conservation Commissioner William G. Rankin, said the 1937 production was a 29 per cent increase over 1936 and better than a 100 per cent jump over 1935 when the value of the petroleum, gas, natural gasoline and carbon black output was $64,000,000.

What! Snow In Coliseum? But It's Manmade

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24. (AP)—It verges on heresy to talk about it, but Memorial Coliseum in the heart of Los Angeles, a place that has never, never seen real snow, will be the scene of a ski jumping contest Sunday.

Once, a few years ago, transplanted easterners swore they saw snow in the Coliseum, but the local chamber of commerce hastily explained that the stuff was merely some strange white matter, possibly blown down from San Francisco, and the ugly rumor was squelched.

The ski-jumping affair is a fact, however, with "man-made snow" sprayed out of an ice mashing machine supplying the effect. A steel skeleton slide has been erected, towering above one end of the Coliseum, and gliding gracefully down into the pit of the stadium.

A host of professional ski jumpers, as well as Norway's famous Birger and Sigmund Ruud, was signed for the contest.

Armstrong Battles Rightmire Tonight

CHICAGO, Feb. 24. (AP) — World featherweight champion Henry Armstrong aided by Everette (Young) Rightmire of Sioux City, Ia., will present the first number in a revival of major league boxing in Chicago tomorrow night at the international amphitheater.

The 10-round non-title battle between the two little fellows, and the signing in New York today for a world championship bout between Heavyweight Boss Joe Louis and rugged Harry Thomas of Eagle Bend, Minn., at the stadium April 1, gives Chicago two fistic attractions of major ranking in less than two months. Such a situation in the industry has not existed here in more years than the promoters care to dwell on.

Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic commission, approved the April Fool's day heavyweight championship bout today, judging Thomas would prove a "capable opponent," for the brown bomber.

New Flying Plan Is In Operation At Airport

In order to bring flying within the reach of Lubbock's John Q. Citizen, a new plan for students and flyers is in operation at Lubbock Municipal airport, according to Clent Breedlove, manager.

Under the plan a flying club has been formed, whose members, by paying an initial fee and monthly dues, receive reduced rates on instruction and flying. The more a member of the club flies, Breedlove explained, the less it costs him proportionally.

A 1938 model J-2 Cub and a Taylorcraft with side by side seating are being used in instruction. The planes have different types of controls. Thus, said Breedlove, the student becomes acquainted with the various types of planes he may later fly.

The Lubbock airport manager has recently been rated an "approved instructor" in connection with an aviation insurance company. He explained that under this rating his students may now carry insurance of that company at low rates.

The Lubbock Aero club includes Dr. Ben Hutchinson, Robert H. Bean, Fremont Burger, J. P. Giles, Robert Ragsdale, William Jones, and Dr. Burleson of Lamesa.

LEADING ISSUES BACK DOWN

NEW YORK, Feb. 24. (AP) — The stock market ran out of recovery fuel today and leading issues backed down fractions to more than a point.

Profit selling dribbled into the list from the start and only mild comeback attempts were in evidence through the slow-motion session.

A few aircrafts, utilities and specialties contested the trend sufficiently to emerge with small advances, but steels, motors and other heavy industries ended not far from their lows of the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down ⅝ of a point at 46 compared with Wednesday's upturn of 1.1 points. Transfers totalled 719,607 shares against 1,299,315 the day before.

Drying up of volume on the reversal was cheering to analytical forces. These recalled that activity in the past week or so generally has been on the upside.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24. (AP)—Cotton partially recovered today from an early decline which had carried new crop positions more than 50 cents a bale net lower. The close was steady at net losses of 3 to 6 points.

Selling was not aggressive but persisted until final trading when spot houses accumulated contracts and shorts covered in near months.

Starting 1 to 5 points lower the market continued to recede during the morning and early afternoon trading until active positions were 9 to 12 points under the previous close.

The subsequent demand, however, erased a good portion of the early loss and last prices were at or near the highs of the day.

March closed at 9.33, May at 9.36, July at 9.44, Oct. at 9.82, Dec. at 9.83 and Jan. at 9.83. Spots declined 5 points with middling at 9.48. Sales totalled 2,382 bales.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton at 10 southern spot markets today was 9.29 cents a pound; for the past 30 days 8.78 cents a pound.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 24. (AP)—Cotton turned reactionary today under increased realizing. May sold off from 9.28@9.20 and closed at 9.28, with final prices 5 to 10 points net lower.

The market opened unchanged to 4 points lower with the influence of easier cables partly offset by continued absence of March notices. The selling soon increased, however. Prices at the lows showed net losses of 10 to 18 points but the market rallied partially at the close on covering and trade buying.

Cotton goods were moderately active today at steady to firm prices. Spot cotton houses reported a little more hedging here today.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Feb. 24. (AP)—Swayed by official reports of generally satisfactory growth conditions for the domestic winter crop, wheat prices tended downward today, but declines were only fractional.

A sustaining influence was an authoritative estimate that less than 30,000,000 bushels of United States hard winter wheat now remained available for export. It was predicted all this wheat would be taken by importing countries because of smallness of the world supply of hard milling wheat at present.

On the other hand, North American wheat export business today totaled but 300,000 to 400,000 bushels, including United States hard winter wheat as well as wheat from Canada. Vladivostok, however, was reported as again after wheat both from Australia and the United States Pacific coast.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were unchanged to ⅜ lower compared with yesterday's finish, May 93⅝@93⅞, July 80⅜@80½, corn ⅛ to ¼ down, May 50¼@50⅜, July 61¼, oats unchanged to ⅛ off, rye showing ⅛ to ⅜ decline, and provisions varying from 2 cents setback to 7 cents advance.

Attorney Hopes To Add Millions In Hidden Treasure

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24. (AP) — A Philadelphia attorney who hunts hidden treasure with a law book instead of a spade expected to add nearly $4,000,000 to his bank balance as an "informer" under Pennsylvania's escheat law.

At Michael Edelman's behest the Dauphin county court yesterday ordered State Secretary of Revenue J Griffith Boardman to collect $16,000,000 in unclaimed corporation funds.

The court ruled a 1929 law entitled Edelman to 25 per cent of net collections because he filed the information on which the state can base its claim to the "lost" money.

Edelman estimated that collection would cost $640,000, leaving him a split of approximately $3,840,000—to be paid him after the money actually is in the state treasury.

The funds, including unclaimed dividends, stock and debts on which interest has matured, are held by 150 corporations, some of them railroads and major utilities.

By escheat, such funds revert to the state when citizens fail to claim them after seven years, but ordinarily no action is taken until the original owners die.

An offer of a $5 bounty on wildcats has made hunting them a popular sport in Cape Girardeau county, Missouri.

Capitalism And Democracy Are Drifting Apart, Wallace Says

BERKLEY, Calif., Feb. 24. (AP) — Modern capitalism and modern democracy originally held much in common, gradually have been drifting apart, says Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

"While many people believe that capitalism is absolutely essential to democracy," he told Interdenominational Pastoral conference here last night, "there are others, who", like Thomas Jefferson, would gravely question the possibility of any permanent and healthy alliance between democracy and capitalism.

"Jefferson felt that capitalism led to great cities and that great cities destroyed democracy. Jefferson believed in small farms and small industries, and he hated capitalism and corporations as he knew them."

Diagnosis Of Rail Ills Is Imminent

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Imminence of the Interstate Commerce commission rail rate decision and President Roosevelt's forthcoming week-end conference to formulate administrative rail policy, today focussed financial discussions on diagnoses of and remedies for the national railroad sickness.

There is general agreement in financial and governmental circles that all is not as well as it might be in the rail business, but also broad differences of opinion as to how serious the difficulties are, what caused them, and what should be done about them.

The roads as a whole during the latter part of 1937 presented an earnings picture as gloomy as that during the worst years of the depression.

Rate Increases Expected

This has brought almost uniform expectation in financial quarters that the I.C.C. will hand down rate increases in some form. Washington news that the President's conference would take place after the rate decision, has led to local belief the I.C.C.'s ruling might be expected before the end of the week.

However, in quarters not overly friendly to railway management, there is a spirit of skepticism as to the need for the full increases asked, based largely upon the contention railway accounting and operating methods permit a temporary showing gloomier than a broader study would warrant.

Tech Freshman Class To Plan For Annual Class Day Event

Rumors that petitions would be circulated by members of the freshman class at Texas Technological college in an effort to obtain approval of a "Fish day" observance were crushed Thursday night with a statement by Joe Horne, Freshman day committee chairman, that action of this type would not be taken.

Horne, who asked Mrs. Mary W. Doak, dean of women, to approve plans for the proposed Freshman day, has prepared a letter to the Student council asking that body's sanction of the proposal. Mrs. Doak, Horne said, desires the student council's ratification of the plan before presenting it to the Administrative council for final action.

Besides seeking approbation of the "Fish day" plans for a picnic at Buffalo Springs, the freshman class has made plans for a rally preceding the tree planting program Wednesday and has changed date of its annual dance from March 18 to April 2.

The class has been assigned an area in which 200 trees will be planted Wednesday.

Max Barnes, president of the class, has appointed a committee consisting of Lucille Winters, chairman, David Castle, Louise Atkinson, Bill Treadway and J. Brown to plan the dance.

Farmers' Vote Factor In Act

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and final installment of a series of articles on how the farm act will apply to Texas cotton farmers.

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. — Texas farmers will vote March 12 on whether quota restrictions shall be placed by the secretary of agriculture on the 1938 cotton crop.

If two-thirds of the cotton farmers of all producing states approve the proclamation of a marketing quota it will be effective. If more than one third vote against it there will be no marketing restriction.

On Total Production

The vote will not be on a state, but on a total production basis. If more than one-third of the Texas producers oppose the marketing quota but enough producers of other states vote for it, it will apply to Texas sales as well as sales of all states.

The two-thirds sentiment necessary for marketing quota application must be computed on the basis of the number of farmers who vote in the referendum rather than on the total number of producers in the state.

Penalties Are Provided

Penalties provide the method for enforcement of the marketing decree. Any farmer who sells more than his individual quota will have to pay two cents a pound on the excess sold. The buyer would collect it.

If a producer's quota seems unfair to him, appeal can be taken to a review committee of farmers other than members of the local committee which apportioned it.

No penalty will apply to cotton produced on any farm on which the production is 1,000 pounds of lint or less.

The secretary of agriculture also will proclaim a national cotton acreage allotment divided into allotments for each state.

Will Get Allotment

Texas producers will each be given an acreage allotment as a prerequisite to their receiving payments under the soil conservation act.

If any exceeds his acreage allotment he will lose claim to soil conservation payments, the price adjustment payment and the opportunity to obtain a loan on his marketing quota.

The individual farmer's cotton marketing quota will be the amount he produces on his allotted acreage or the normal production on his allotted acres, whichever is the greater.

If, because of a short crop, his production falls below normal, he may use as much of any reserve stock or carryover he may have to make up the defference.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 24. (AP) When the automobile of Palmerino La Falce, Buffalo inventor, exceeds a speed of 30 miles an hour, a buzzer warns him. He says it helps him to obey the law.

The device, attached to his speedometer, also switches on lights on the front and rear of his car when it attains any speed set as a maximum. This, it was assumed, would notify traffic police that the driver was speeding.

Tree Planting---A Good Work

TEXAS Technological college fittingly will observe the 102nd anniversary of the Independence of Texas with the planting of 20,000 trees on its campus. That will be next Wednesday and college authorities are planning a great occasion.

It is one ceremony the residents of the entire South Plains can afford to emulate on their own properties. More trees and still more trees are needed in this area to make life a little brighter and more colorful, and to take out of it a lot of sameness.

The Lubbock state experiment substation has fostered the Chinese elm, that great answer to the semi-arid sections of the nation where shade is needed. One of the orginal trees, brought here from China in 1919, is still rearing its limbs upward towards the heavens. It now is more than 42 feet tall.

Present trees around the campus of the college were planted when the school was started. They have not had any water, other than that which nature has provided, in all these years. That fact shows what Dame nature can do without human agency.

The highway division here has done a great deal of work in fostering tree planting on highway locations. More can be done if garden clubs, service clubs and others join with the department in providing trees and shrubs.

The experiment station has worked with the extension service in these counties in farm planting of trees. Thousands were planted last year and as many more this year. Still more are needed. County agents are urging farmers, and rightly, to plant windbreaks. One county, Cochran reports 6,000 trees planted to date and possibly another thousand or two.

Commercial nurseries are prepared to serve with thousands and thousands of trees. Several million, no doubt, will be planted this year over the West Texas area. It is not too many. Double that number should be planted for the 1939 season and in turn could be doubled within a year or two.

McLaughlin Is Honored Again

J. EDD McLAUGHLIN of Ralls was honored by his fellow bankers of West Texas by being named chairman of the seventh district of the Texas Bankers association in the annual session at Fort Worth the other day.

Edd, as he is known to his many friends, is a South Plains-grown business man, reared over at Ralls and popular all over this part of the state. He came to Crosby county as a boy, worked on a farm, got into business and now has taken over the reins of the family bank at Ralls. He also is governor of Rotary clubs in this district.

A good business man, he is also a mixer and at home in any kind of a crowd. For years he has taken part in every phase of life in his home town, has helped other men build and plan for the area and has made friends for himself, his town and the entire area wherever he goes.

The honor that has come to Edd is well deserved. It has not come because of luck, but because of deserved appreciation of service.

His banker friends know he has the ability to do the job well.

Empire For A Lady

By Alan LeMay
C. By The Associated Press

SYNOPSIS: Carrying a gun-cargo for Rajah Mantusen, we find Sumantung island seething with a revolt of savage Dyak tribes against the Malays. Christine Forrester, a young English girl, is supplying the Dyak guns, but Mantusen accuses my uncle, James Clyde. While Clyde is held as hostage, I (Paul Thorne) am to bring our fortified trading vessel, the Linkang, up-river to aid the Malays. Then Christine tells me her father started This war, the Dyaks are sharpshooters, and not even the Linkang can live an hour in the river.

Chapter 15

WORSHIP OF THE GUN

Over there through the heat waves, the whole coast was pulsing with the excitement of Dyak drums and agongs.

"Please explain to me now that there's a war on shore," I said.

Christine ignored this. "If you don't believe me, you and your men will be cut to pieces before you have got into the Siderong river a mile."

"You may as well remember this," I told her. "James Clyde doesn't live by luck. His life is never dependent upon the kindness the natives sometimes show to innocent old fussbudgets. The tribes probably thought your father was a coconut head, and no doubt it saved his life. But if you're going to tell me how Clyde ought to fight a river you're wasting your time, and mine too."

Some color came into her face then. "You are very glib, for an ignorant man. But you're going to have to forget that you thought my father was a fool. What I'm trying to tell you is that the rifles we've put into the jungles are in the hands of sharpshooters, and they are sharpshooters that my father made."

I remembered a bullet that had come a good 400 yards to miss Grogan by a whisper; but I could not believe her. In the dark reaches of the Siderong I had felt that something strange was going on, and that this girl knew what it was. But here in bright noon on my own deck I was simply impatient and angrily worried.

Seen in broad sunlight, Christine Forrester seemed more nearly an ordinary human—a girl in slacks and a silk shirt slapped against her body by the heat and the sluggish wind. Daylight was kind to her, in spite of her fatigue. She had dark eyes and a wide, impatient mouth, and there were freckles across her nose, showing through the deep-ivory tan which comes from water-reflected sunlight. I liked all this, but none of it made her mysterious. To imply that she knew more about what was going on in the jungle than I did seemed nonsense.

She said, "You don't understand this because you don't know Sumantang—you don't bother to know it." A flare of spirit came into her voice, offsetting her fatigue. "An African from Senegambia and a Dyak from the Tomarrup are the same thing to you. You say that we don't know our business. I tell you that you don't know yours or even begin to. You don't know the least of your working materials. How many island languages do you speak, Mr. Thorne? One? She turned on me. "Let me hear you say 'elephant' in Malay," she commanded.

"Hathi," I said.

"You see? You brought a corrupted word out of India, hardly known even there. I will say 'elephant' for you: gaji in Singapore, opah in Kanoyan, chidah in Tomarrup, chidan in Palowit. Want some more?"

"God forbid!"

The drawing down of her mouth matched the contempt in her voice. "You've made it your sole business to swindle ignorant islanders out of their things—and how you bungle it! How do you expect to cheat them skillfully, when you can't even understand what they say?"

Secret Society

I was silent for the moment and she took advantage of this, running ahead with her quick, nervous speech. She said, "I'll tell you exactly how these sharpshooters were made."

It seemed that seven years ago her father had lived for six months with a small tribe of hill Dyaks, up at the headwaters of the Tomarrup. Forrester knew Dyaks; he knew things about their religion that their priestesses didn't know. And he was able to bring them the white man's semi-magical gifts. Somehow he managed to form a little secret society, admitting 10 chiefs and sons of chiefs — the picked men of the tribe. Upon these he brought to bear everything he knew about their religion—all to a single purpose. And the thing he centered his society upon was a single gun.

"They surely must have seen guns before," I said brusquely.

"They had a few gaspipe guns. But they had never seen a gun like this. My father could knock the eye out of a calao at 200 yards with this piece. What the Dyaks learned at once was that the gun would only work for him. When they saw that he could also make it work for them, they were his."

I was worried and restless; and I could not understand why Blair had not yet done anything about the boarding nets. But I was beginning to sense something here that might change everything I had thought about the Balingong revolt. Uncertainly, I said, "If it's true that Forrester—your father—could teach a bunch of fizzle-topped Dyaks to shoot—"

"What I'm trying to explain to you is that my father found a way to teach Dyaks to shoot."

"But—"

And then I remembered again the unaccountable accuracy of two or three random rifles spitting death at Balingong.

I still thought the whole notion was fantastic, but I was listening now.

"Twice they tried to kill him to get that gun. They came to worship it as an unattainable thing. And then—he gave it to them. . . ."

Forrester had given them the gun which was his hold upon them. But he gave it only with many ceremonial conditions. If they did not carry out those conditions, the gun would not work for them— which of course was true in actual practice. Dyak marksmanship being what it is. She told me what some of the conditions were, hurrying her words as if fearful I would stop listening before she had backed her story up. When the gun was resting it always had to be wrapped in silk, and at dawn and sunset it must be rubbed in mankoban oil. The highest honor in the society came to the man who was permitted to clean its bore. The gun had its own house; a guard sat before it night and day. Certain sacrifice had to be made to the gun, so if it had been a messenger from a god. The gun had a song and various rituals of its own, all built out of the Dyaks' own beliefs. . . .

A Gun To Every Man

Somewhere forward a pounding began to sound, where Blair was mounting the tripod of a rocket gun. We were moving ahead with our work, but—I had become uncertain what we were moving toward. I stood up and propped my back against the rail, trying to see in this girl's face the face of Anthony Forrester; but I could not.

It occurred to me now that I might not have seen Anthony Forrester as he really was, and perhaps neither had Clyde. Always I had pictured him on the afterdeck of the Avon, under that impractical wooden awning scribbling away forever on a teawood table littered with stacks of moulding reports. I had never thought of him enduring fatigue and heat and the shadow of instant death far up a fever river, or lying sick in the place of honor in a jungle-smothered Dyak guesthouse that was festooned with stinking heads. Very difficult to associate the scholarly old gentleman with such doings, even yet. It made an ugly sort of phantasm; but it was a phantasm that easily made itself a part of the heat, and the sundazzle, and that fluttering beat of agongs, like the pulse of a fever patient too weak for delirium.

"Little by little he taught them to fire," she was telling me. "It took a long time; but he had them now, because of the religious side. You people who rush in and out, grabbing at things, have no idea of what can be done with a patience like his. There are no finer shots in the world than those 10 men—at least not in the islands. They honor the gun with a worship that is very real; every man in the society lives for the little time each day when he holds that gun in his hands. Remember it is not a gaspipe gun. That gun is the power of death-at-a-distance—something no Sumantang Dyak has ever had before."

I began to see the rest coming. "Ten men with one gun can't be all. He must—"

"That isn't all. The Tomarrup society was only the beginning. In that first society my father learned more than the Dyaks did. He learned enough, and he proved enough to himself so was able to go on. He did go on. He went on when he was deadly sick, giving the whole rest of his life for this time which he was never going to see. Today, as you sit here, there are more than 30 of those secret rifle societies camped on Siderong river."

"With one gun to every 10 men?"

"With one gun to every man. That's why the Avon is here—why the Avon had to come, even after my father died. They have not all been issued their rifles yet. But every one of them will get his own gun—trust me. If the Avon stays afloat."

Christine Forrest shivered a little, there in the warm air. Whether I believed what she was telling me or not, I could not doubt her own sincerity any more.

Can Christine complete her father's plan? Continued tomorrow.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

SENSATIONAL reports revealing that the 1937-1938 recession shows a sharper and deeper decline than the 1929-1932 slump account for President Roosevelt's recent monetary and economic moves. The disclosure shocked him out of his optimism.

The comparative figures on industrial activity tell the story. From a level of 110 in January of 1930 the economic curve dropped 50 points by July of 1932 — over a period of 30 months. But from a post—depression high of 124 in August of 1937 it sagged 40 points by February of this year—over a period of only seven months. The one consolation for F. D. R. in his latest checkup is that the decline has at least temporarily stopped.

"Whether or not the anticipated spring recovery in industrial activity," says the latest survey to cross the White House desk, "proves to be the beginning of a general recovery in 1938, or another 'false start' such as occurred in 1930, depends upon a number of circumstances which are difficult to evaluate. The consensus of business analysis, however, seems to be that 1938 will witness some improvement, with the last quarter having the best prospects." Meanwhile, New Deal experts are holding their breath and crossing their fingers.

* * *

RESTRAINT: President Roosevelt's self-imposed exile from the Capital over Washington's birthday was a remarkable demonstration of presidential restraint. It dramatizes the censorship he is supposed to have imposed on attacks by fiery New Dealers on private industry.

Ordinarily a Chief Executive celebrates the day by delivering an oration before a joint session of Congress. A private invitation to comply with custom was extended to Mr. Roosevelt, but he declined. He apparently felt that, in this period of domestic and foreign tension, the less he said the better. He resisted the impulse to make a speech and hiked off to Hyde Park to escape temptation.

Numerous advisers — friendly and otherwise — have dinned into his ears that speeches reflecting official hostility toward private enterprise were blocking recovery, quite as effectively as specific policies. Messrs. Kennedy and Jones and Garner have continuously protested against this type of oratory. F. D. R. at last seems to agree with their viewpoint.

* * *

SCARED: Radio men have used smart strategy in meeting the threat of federal investigation, censorship, discipline. They have placed their destinies in the hands of a fiery young New Dealer — Mark Ethridge, who publishes the Louisville paper of the late Ambassador Bingham.

Mr. Ethridge, in fact, owes his present job to President Roosevelt. It seems that, on one of his trips home, Mr. Bingham casually mentioned to F. D. R. that he was seeking a new editor and wished he could find one in a hurry. Mr. Ethridge had visited the White House a few weeks before, meeting the President for the first time, but the latter was impressed by the editor's New Deal outlook. So Mr. Roosevelt recommended him and Mr. Bingham took him. He was a success from the start.

Various crackdowns from Washington have scared the broadcasters, who operate vast properties under six-months' licenses revocable by the McNinch commission. Now they hope that a combination of their reform spirit and Mr. Ethridge's leadership will spare them a severe federal whipping.

* * *

DIPLOMAT: Ambassador Joe Kennedy has informed friends that he doesn't intend to confine himself to routine duties at London. Whether they like it or not, he may invade the Hull-Morgenthau field of trade and debts. Through his personal intimacy with the President he'll probably get away with it.

Mr. Kennedy's No. 1 assignment is to remove all causes of friction which jeopardize the prospect of an Anglo-American understanding in the field of international diplomacy. As an Irishman and a Roman Catholic, he can discourse eloquently on this subject from his own emotions and experiences. As a financier, he can impress the British with the need for paying war debts if they want the friendship and confidence of Americans on both Main Street and Wall Street.

Though it's not mentioned officially, another problem ranks high on the new ambassador's list — the Irish question. He cannot, of course, suggest publicly that London solve the controversy between South and North Ireland. But he can point out privately that nothing would boost John Bull's popularity in politically important places—Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, etc. — more than a friendly settlement of this racial and religious dispute.

* * *

ETHICS: President Roosevelt's approval of serious thrusts at several powerful Democratic machines throughout the country has provoked muttered speculation in high political circles. He seems determined to break the grip of the old-fashioned bosses.

Last fall he helped to smash Tamany in the New York mayoralty election by his left-handed support of LaGuardia. A few weeks ago he reappointed a Missouri district attorney whose chief accomplishment was the indictment and conviction of Kansas City Tom Pendergast's election captains. Now it is understood that "internal revenooers" are poking into the tax returns of a mayor who has become a multi-millionaire on an annual salary of $6,750. The mayor, incidentally, is a vice-chairman of the national committee.

A high sense of official and political ethics dictated the President's course in every instance. But it isn't making him exactly popular with the party bigwigs who turned out the votes for him in 1932 and 1936—and who will handpick delegates to the national convention in 1940.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

MANY New York leaders are privately convinced that the government will sooner or later have to take over the railroads to keep them running. A number of Washington officials also admit that public ownership is probably inevitable. The administration would like to postpone the rail showdown until after 1940 — but this may prove as impossible as postponing a hurricane.

Senator Burton Wheeler and others keep harping on overcapitalization as a primary cause of current railroad woes. Undoubtedly there are roads which would benefit from a trip to the wringer. But as a solution for the rail problem in general, financial reorganizations would be as futile as trying to stanch a shrapnel wound with court plaster. The real trouble is that the railroads as a whole are not earning any net revenue under their present expense burden. No business can long survive on that basis.

A rise in freight rates might prove a temporary palliative, but it won't cure anything. The railroads may run headlong into a dramatic crisis much sooner than is generally expected.

* * *

SUSPICIOUS: There was no apparent relation between the anti-lynching filibuster and Congressional nervousness about the possibility that the United States may be dragged into war. But keen New York observers spot a significant connection in the heavy Senate vote against cloture to force a vote on the anti-lynch bill.

These sources are convinced that a number of Senators opposed cloture because they feared to set a precedent that might be used to try to shut off debate in the event that Congress were suddenly asked to vote on a declaration of war. Hostility to foreign entanglements of any kind is very strong. If things come to a showdown, the peace-at-any-price bloc in the Senate will be much larger and more effective than it was in 1917.

This sentiment will not block the President's armament program, which will probably be enacted by a safe margin after a protracted debate. But many legislators who vote for it will do so on the basis that it will stimulate heavy industry, not because they favor it as a national defense measure. The pacifist element is highly suspicious of the administration's foreign policy, and no quantity of assurances that we have no commitments to other nations will allay their uneasiness.

AS you probably noticed the other day, the buffalo is to be taken off'n the nickel.

Prime mover in the matter is Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint, who says the buffalo on the nickel jars her artistic sensibilities, largely because the bison is too big for the space on the jitney.

* * *

Far be it from us to argue with a lady, especially a very personable, handsome lady who used to be governor of —er, ah —it was Wyoming, wasn't it?

But when it comes to money, our artistic sensibilities have always been pretty well dulled. It never has mattered much to The Plainsman whether a nickel, dime or quarter were artistic in design and pleasing to the eye. What has bothered him all along is where he could get hold of one!

AS far as we are concerned, nickels with skunks on 'em would be fully as acceptable as nickels with buffaloes, or nickels with violets on 'em.

What we want is the nickels—and we'll take 'em as they come and, of course, they will go in the same way!

* * *

While we can't see any reason for the government laying out a lot of dough on new dies and stamps just because a nice lady doesn't like buffaloes, we are happy that Thomas Jefferson gets the buffalo's job on the new nickel.

The Sage of Monticello has has always run second to General Robert E. Lee in our list of American heroes, although barely edging out the great George Washington.

Since Mrs. Ross insists upon cabbaging onto taxpayers' money to vent her dislike of bison, she couldn't have selected a better man to honor.

* * *

That Man on Avenue Q says a hustler doesn't care whether Opportunity knocks on his door or not, since he's always on the front porch waiting for it!

* * *

IN yesterday's Journal, Paul V. McNutt, former governor of Indiana, who has started a fairly good boom for the 1940 Democratic presidential nomination, coyly denied being a candidate for the honor.

In the files of this column of June, 1932, there appears an item written from the Democratic National convention in Chicago. Among other things, it says:

"Mark down on your cuff the name of Paul V. McNutt, the handsome Indianan. You're going to be hearing a lot about him before long and the wiseacres around here say he might be the presidential nominee at a future Democratic powwow."

Remember?

* * *

It's all right with us if Mr. Allred doesn't like Mr. McCraw.

But we're getting darn tired of reading about it—especially in a political mudslinging contest that nobody—not even the investigators—can keep heads or tails of!

JUST now in a long lope there went past The Plainsman's office door a little fellow in a mackinaw.

He is Frank Skinner and he has been in and out of Avalanche-Journal offices—always in a long lope—so often and for so many years that mayhap we should be used to it by now.

But we're not used to it, simply because every time we see Frank we are impressed with the fact that here's a guy who does his job, who does it to the satisfaction and everlasting thanks of the customer and who never seems to take time to rest from one task to another.

* * *

The Plainsman doesn't know just exactly what job Frank has with the phone company. We know he's in the department that keeps the service gcing and for many years we had constant business with him because he was charged with keeping the Associated Press equipment so that the steady flow of news—day and night at 60 words per minute—was not interrupted.

But whatever his job, he ought to be president of Southwestern Bell and all the other Bell companies.

Because he's a past master of carrying out the slogan "the customer is always right," even if the customer is as wrong as he can be!

* * *

NOT talking about any local utilities firm but, instead, taking all the big ones in the East in one category, if they had been run by guys emulating Frank Skinner they wouldn't be in the jam they're in now.

Their attendance to the job, no matter how minor, and their treatment of the cash customer, no matter how individually unimportant, would have been such that not even a Roosevelt could have run them to cover—where most of 'em are "at" today.

The little guy in the mackinaw could teach a lot of lessons to big guys like Wendell Wilkie in the matter of public relations.

And probably in the matter of devotion to duty, as well.

THE other day there came to our desk a little booklet titled "Death Begins at 40"—meaning 40 miles per hour. The booklet is being distributed by a great insurance company which believes the expenditure entailed will be worthwhile in reduction of benefit claims.

As Lubbock continues to turn its collective mind and action toward safety, The Plainsman reprints here a touching verse, written by Anne Sutherland Brooks, which appeared in the booklet. Illustrated by a pair of boy's shoes before a picture of the little boy himself, the poem "O. Little Shoes," packs a terrific punch.

It won't hurt anybody to read it, and it goes:

"O little shoes with scuffed-up toes,
That look so small in his father's hand.
Weren't you proud, and big and grand
When you started this morning for No-One-Knows?

"No-One-Knows, with its belfries tall,
Its golden ramparts and shining towers,
Knights and fairies and magic powers
To tempt the heart of the traveler small!

"Now dusk has come and his feet are still
'Ere ever his knightly spurs are won,
For his body was broken and crushed and done
While yet he trudged to the first green hill.

"Oh little shoes with the blood-stained toes,
O light gone out of a boyish face,
Was this the end of his splendid race?
Was this his City of No-One-Knows?"

The Plainsman, with three little boys, typed that poem with tears in his eyes.

Let's all be careful for the sake not alone of our own little boys and girls, but for the sake of those of us all!

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT No. 35 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan and Lord were thrust into a dismal cell. The guard wheeled and was gone. Tarzan admitted to himself that they stood now in the shadow of doom, for he knew the wily Woora would surround him with all manner of devilish devices to block their escape.

. . . Meanwhile, Stanley Wood, after he had eluded his friend, Tarzan, trudged back toward the evil land of the Kaji. He was afraid, yet he was drawn on and on up the mountain trail by that impelling urge which, he believed, had its source in the mind of Mafka.

He sat down to rest. With heavy heart he gazed back at the low country from which he had come. Then suddenly he found himself surrounded by Kaji women warriors. "Ai-ya!" they cried; "the slave of the Queen sought to escape! To the castle with him."

Into the walled city they led him, helpless and hopeless. From a window Queen Gonfala beheld that awful procession. A grasp of horror parted her lips, and she began to sob. "They have caught him. Now Mafka, my father, will kill him—kill the man I love!"

Railroad Commission Extends Sunday Shutdowns Of Oil Wells Through March

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 24.—The state railroad commission today ordered Texas' statewide closing of oil fields, in effect for the last five Sundays, extended through March.

Except for minor adjustments to meet foreign contracts or local demand, the current proration schedules were not changed.

The allowable production effective March 1 was estimated at 1,493,173 barrels daily, not considering the Sunday shutdown, which compared with the allowable last December 18 of 1,357,573.

Daily Average Is Cut

The commission estimated, however, the daily average production during March, due to the Sunday closings, would be reduced 192,667 barrels, to make the daily allowable for foreign and domestic shipments, 1,300,506.

In addition, it stated 55,970 barrels of the authorized production in March would go to supply foreign markets, which would give a daily average allowable for domestic use of 1,244,536 barrels.

Below Bureau's Figures

The federal bureau of mines estimated 1,344,900 barrels daily would be required from Texas in March. On the basis of production for domestic use, the commission estimated the state's allowable would average 100,364 barrels below the bureau's specifications.

The allowables by districts as of December 18, Feb. 18 and March 1, respectively, not considering the Sunday shutdowns, were as follows:

East Texas 489,517, 495,949 and 497,643; Panhandle 70,443, 72,928 and 76,613; North Texas 60,610, 65,635 and 67,086; West Central Texas 67,316, 75,183 and 73,341; West Texas 167,110, 185,914 and 186,531; East Central Texas 86,469, 107,050 and 109,068; Southwest Texas 230,980, 262,559 and 266,056; Gulf Coast 185,088, 209,372 and 216,885.

Christian Editor To Speak Here

Harold A. Ehrensperger, speech professor at Northwestern university and editor of the Christian Student, will deliver two addresses and conduct an open forum here today, under auspices of the Wesley Student association of the First Methodist church.

"Drama With a Purpose" will be his subject at 10 o'clock this morning at a meeting of speech students of Texas Technological college in room 202 administration building. The open forum, at 5 o'clock this afternoon, will be conducted in the Methodist Student Center at 2405 Thirteenth street, rather than at the women's dormitory as formerly scheduled. The discussion will deal with student problems. It will be open to anyone wishing to attend.

Addresses Public Tonight

At 7:30 o'clock tonight he will address the general public at the First Methodist church on "Drama in Social Action", which will deal with student and world problems and how drama can help solve those problems.

After tonight's speech, a round-table discussion will be conducted at the Student Center, with Wesley Players, the student religious dramatic club here, and others taking part.

Has Studied In Europe

Ehrensperger, a graduate of Harvard university, has served as national executive secretary of the Drama League of America, has studied in Europe, has been head of the department of Plays and Pageants of the Methodist Episcopal church, and has served as editor of the Little Theater Monthly and as member of the editorial staff of Drama magazine. In 1936 he was a delegate to the Moscow Theater festival in Russia. He has written and edited a number of pageants, articles, and pamphlets on drama.

On Saturday morning, he will be available at the Student Center for conferences with students, by appointment. Students may make appointments by calling Rev. Cecil R. Matthews at the church, No. 489.

Slaughter Is Assured Of Support In Electrification Application

POST, Feb. 24. (Special) — Congressman George Mahon and Senators Connally and Sheppard have advised Jay B. Slaughter that they will assist in any way possible the furthering of a new proposed rural electrification project for this section.

Slaughter had written the members of congress about the proposal to merge units in Garza, Lynn and Terry counties. The combined grouping will represent 634 customers for 216 miles of high line. Only a few irrigation wells are included in the unit, the bulk being domestic customers.

Harry N. Roberts, Lubbock engineer, who has been advising the groups, made the suggestion for consolidation. He said he believed the unit would have a better chance for securing an allotment after the first of July when a new federal appropriation for Rural Electrification administration is to become available.
