Energy still is the magic word, and various methods of conserving it continue to make news. There's a possibility, they say in Washington, that we may be back on Daylight Saving Time before Christmas. We're for that, energy crisis or not.

However, most of the activity in Washington appears to be directed toward a status quo at something less than the nation has become accustomed to rather than pushing the search for new supplies, new techniques, etc., which long had been this country's strong point.

And a significant amount of time has been wasted on trying to fix the blame for the shape we're in rather than solving the problem. The consumers are ready for some action to be interspersed with the words. There will be plenty of time to determine who caused the problem after it is solved and the nation returns to normal.

Well, we finally got that first real freeze of the season and apparently it was a good one. The thermometer was down in the twenties for several hours two nights in a row—Tuesday and Wednesday—and the mornings after looked more like late autumn than any we had seen earlier. It also offered a test on recommended practices for conserving heating fuel.

One employer said Thursday he almost had pneumonia because he worked in his shirtsleeves trying to convince his female employes that a temperature of 68 degrees was nice and warm.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe was as right as the proverbial fox in suggesting that any new speed limits that are established should be the same for all vehicles. The safety factor must be taken into account along with energy conservation in these temporary (we hope) efforts to make present sources of fuel last through the winter. All kinds of confusion could be expected with speed limits permitting trucks to move faster than cars.

Chances for a settlement of the tax suit filed the past week by SACROC against the Snyder Independent School District do not appear bright. There was a compromise last year, but school officials have indicated ever since that they felt it should be settled once and for all if it ever came up again.

Indeed it does seem that if the courts are finally going to have to decide the issue, the sooner the better. Otherwise, it might become an annual event.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Sunday, Dec. 2, the 336th day of 1973. There are 29 days left in the year.

On this date in 1823, President James Monroe outlined the Monroe Doctrine against European expansion in the Western Hemisphere.

On this date—

In 1804, the armies of Napoleon were victorious in the battle of Austerlitz in what is now Czechoslovakia.

In 1942, a nuclear chain reaction was demonstrated for the first time by scientists working on a secret project at the University of Chicago.

In 1965, Fidel Castro and a band of followers landed in Cuba to try to overthrow the Batista government.

In 1960, the Archbishop of Canterbury broke church precedent by visiting Pope John XXIII at the Vatican.

In 1964, former Argentine dictator Juan Peron was detained in Brazil as he tried to return to Argentina.

Ten years ago: Presidency Lyndon B. Johnson presented the Enrico Fermi award to Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, the atomic scientist once declared a security risk by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Five years ago: Jordan and Israel exchanged heavy artillery fire in one of the worst outbreaks of fighting since the Middle East war of 1967.

One year ago: The Australian labor party ousted the Conservative government of Prime Minister William McMahon in national elections, and Labor party leader Gough Whitlam prepared to take over the government.

Crisis Will Cost Texas Revenue

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State officials are not sure what the energy crisis will cost Texas in revenue but they are not optimistic.

And if a recession comes along it will be even worse.

All of which means a cutback in some government projects for the next year, particularly highway construction jobs, and a bigger tax bill for the 1975 legislature.

"We're guessing at this stage but we could lose up to $14 million just on highways," says Marcus Yancey Jr., assistant state highway engineer. Part of the loss would come from reduced gasoline tax payments due to the proposed 55 m.p.h. speed limit and part would result from expected federal fund cuts.

"It can't help but affect us," says Jim McGrew, director of the privately financed Texas Research League that specializes in governmental tax research, "and any negative effect it has will just mean that much more revenue need in 1975."

McGrew predicted earlier this year the 1975 legislature would face a new revenue need of $400 to $500 million dollars, even without a revision in the state's much criticized school financing system.

"On the negative side," McGrew said, "is the money we will lose from gasoline taxes due to any consumption decrease in gasoline. Also on the negative side will be the effect of any recession that may follow, which some national figures are predicting.

Nixon Sacrifices And Stays Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, spending a rare weekend at the White House to conserve energy, dropped in at a fund-raising ball Friday night and promised America "will do more" to help drought-stricken African nations.

He escorted his wife, Pat, to the Desert Ball at the Sheraton Park Hotel, a $50-a-plate event to raise funds for drought victims in the Sahara nations of Chad, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Upper Volta and Senegal.

The President pointed out that "sometimes we think we are deprived" with such things as slower driving, less heat and fewer ornamental lights because of the energy shortage.

But in the six African countries, the President said, "it is not only sacrifices, it is real suffering" that touches every family.

FIRST IN 112 YEARS

Senate To Hold Sunday Session

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate failed to make any progress today in easing the tangle created by an election reform measure that has left the federal government's debt $63 billion over the legal limit.

After less than two hours, it voted 34 to 28 to adjourn until 10 a.m. Sunday, when it will hold the Senate's first scheduled Sunday session in 112 years.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield made the motion to adjourn after several Republicans blocked a move to change the Sunday session until early afternoon, which would coincide with the Washington Redskins-New York Giants professional football game at nearby Robert F Kennedy stadium.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., had suggested the change so members could attend church services in the morning.

Despite the government's technical violation, officials said bonds and other government debts could be paid off over the next few days out of about $4.5 billion in cash on hand.

Some congressional action is likely before any real financial crisis occurs.

The situation results from the Senate's decision earlier in the week to attach a broad measure for public financing of presidential and congressional campaigns to a bill extending and raising the legal debt limit.

The House balked at the provision for congressional elections. A proposed compromise limiting the bill to presidential elections and primaries ran into a filibuster Friday by Sen. James Allen, D-Ala.

Allen blocked action to send the entire package to a Senate-House conference committee.

Even before the current debt ceiling law expired at midnight, both houses had adjourned, the House until Monday and the Senate until today.

Choirs To Join For Concert

Choirs from Western Texas College and Snyder High School will present a joint concert in the high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday Dec. 6.

This is the first cooperative venture between the two organizations, and the combined choirs will include 100 voices.

To open the program, Dr. Robert Blocker, chairman of the Fine Arts Division at WTC and director of the WTC choir, will conduct Palestrina's "Adbramus Te," Victoria's "O Magnum Mysterium," and Thompson's "The Best of Rooms."

The second half of the concert will be the Saint-Saens "Christmas Oratorio," conducted by the Snyder High School choral director, Bill Lyon.

WTC students performing solos in the Oratorio are Susan Ferrell, Pam Smith, and Jim Patrick, all of Snyder, and Patti Collier of Abilene. Barbara Penhall of Edmond, Okla., is the WTC choir accompanist.

High school soloists will be Terry Jones and Joel Loper. Members of ensembes will be Paula Andress, Benny Everett, Terry Bowden, Kyle Rosson, Ingun Grytli, Karen Cox, Steve Miller, and Teresa Doan. Miss Smith will also be in an ensemble.

Accompanists for the high school choir are Waynann Monroney, David Vaughan, and Stanley Burgess.

There will be no admission charge for the concert.

Crew Spots Laser Beam

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 3's astronauts Saturday easily spotted a laser beam flashed at them from earth in a test to determine if ground-based lasers might one day be used by a spaceship for guidance and navigation.

"Got it loud and clear," Commander Gerald P. Carr reported as the laser was triggered by scientists at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md. "It appears like a little green spot, flashing about three cycles a second."

Capsule communicator Hank Hartsfield asked if the astronauts could see it with the naked eye.

"Yes, all three of us have seen it; it's very clear," Carr responded.

The spacemen photographed the light and tracked it as they traveled several hundred miles in their orbital home, 272 miles high.

"I don't know how we missed it the other two times," Carr remarked. "It's really bright."

He referred to two unsuccessful attempts to sight the laser earlier in the mission.

The astronauts, meanwhile, remained on alert for a possible repeat of a "klunkity klunk" sound that briefly vibrated a section of the station Friday.

Neither the astronauts nor Mission Control was particularly concerned about the noise. But they would like to know what caused it.

Ben-Gurion Dies Saturday At 87

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV (AP) — David Ben-Gurion, Israel's founding father and its first premier, died today two weeks after he suffered a paralyzing cerebral hemorrhage. He was 87.

His family and close friends were by his side in the Sheba Medical Center of Tel Hashomer hospital when doctors pronounced him dead at 11 a.m. local time — 4 a.m. EST.

He had held the premiership twice and resigned for the last time in 1963. As premier and defense minister, he led Israel through the 1948 war of independence and the 1956 Suez war. He died in the wake of the fourth war between Israel and the Arabs, just as the hostile sides were taking their first tentative steps toward direct negotiations.

Ben-Gurion retired from public life in 1970. Since then, he had been working 15 hours a day on a history of Israel's early years, usually writing at his small, prefabricated cottage at a kibbutz in the Negev desert.

B.G., as Israelis knew him, last appeared in public at Israel's 25th anniversary celebration in May, hunched in the grandstand wearing an Israeli farmer's hat.

Ben-Gurion had been in failing health for more than a year and was hospitalized twice before his final illness.

He suffered a cerebral hemorrhage on Nov. 18 in his Tel Aviv apartment. He rallied at first under around-the-clock medical attention, but his condition began to deteriorate Nov. 23 with a drop in pulse and blood pressure.

During the first week after his stroke, he received numerous high-ranking well-wishers, including Premier Golda Meir.

President Nixon had cabled Ben-Gurion: "Now that peace has arisen, I anticipate the day you will see it materialize with your own eyes."

At the time Ben-Gurion died, his grandson Alon Ben-Gurion was being treated for leg wounds suffered in the October war. He also is survived by two daughters.

Ben-Gurion will be buried beside his wife Paula at Sde Boqer in the Negev Desert. But first his body will lie in state in the Israeli parliament, the Knesset, and the government will honor him with a state funeral.

Ben-Gurion, who as early as 1907 urged Jews in Palestine to arm themselves against the Arabs, declared an independent Jewish state there 41 years later.

He was the nation's dominant figure during its first 15 years. Ben-Gurion resigned as premier in 1963

Train Wreck Kills Three

COTULLA, Tex. (AP) — Two freight trains collided in this South Texas town at mid-morning today and the Texas Public Safety Department said three deaths were confirmed. Some cars caught fire.

The safety department said one train hit the rear of another in this community of 3,500 persons midway between San Antonio and Laredo.

Officers said between 10 and 15 cars derailed.

Catching fire, said Safety Department officials, were cars containing grain and automobile parts.

However, said the officers, some cars containing flouride gas which has an explosive potential were in the wreck.

Residents around the wreckage were evacuated.

Fire trucks with foam were sent from San Antonio to help fight the blaze.

Most Stations To Close Sunday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most service station owners across the country plan to close their gas pumps on Sunday either because they don't have the fuel to sell or because they're trying to conserve energy as requested by President Nixon.

The President requested the voluntary ban on Sunday gas sales in his energy speech last Sunday. A bill pending in Congress would give him the power to make the closing mandatory.

An Associated Press survey showed the great majority of stations expect to close this Sunday. Industry spokesmen and trade association representatives in 31 states said at least 75 per cent of the stations would sell no gas from 9 p.m. Saturday to midnight Sunday.

Stations in some areas already have been closing on Sundays because of lack of fuel. Spokesmen for the Oregon Gasoline Dealers Association said that between half and two-thirds of the state's 2,800 stations have been closing Sunday for several months because of the fuel shortage.

This Sunday, the spokesman said, about 90 per cent of the stations are expected to shut their gas pumps, although some may stay open to provide repairs and emergency services.

The American Automobile Association said 70 per cent of the 480 stations in Rhode Island now are closed on Sunday and another 20 per cent are expected to close either this week or next.

Spokesmen for Ohio gasoline retailers estimated that 80 to 90 per cent of the state's 12,000 service stations would close their gas pumps on Sunday. A spokesman for the highway patrol said motorists who run out of gas will be supplied by the patrol. "In this cold weather we're not going to let anyone sit out on the highway and freeze," the spokesman said.

Gordon Spidahl, president of the North Dakota Gasoline Retailers Association said there were about 1,100 stations in the state and added, "I think about 80 or 90 per cent will close Sunday. Actually, the favorable response (to Nixon's suggestion) has been overwhelming."

Charles Matties, a board director of the Connecticut Gasoline Retailers Association, predicted that 95 per cent of the 3,400 gasoline outlets in the state would stop selling fuel on Sunday.

"Of those who stay open, I don't think that they'll stay open very long. They'll line up so deep it's going to be brutal," he said.

Among the few open stations will be those on the New Jersey Turnpike. But drivers expecting to "fill 'er up" will be disappointed.

Attendants at the turnpike's 12 service areas will pump gas on Sunday, but a turnpike authority spokesman said drivers will have to convince the attendants they really need the fuel. In addition, sales will be rationed — five gallons of gasoline per automobile and 20 gallons of diesel fuel for trucks and buses.

FIVE INJURED—Five persons in this 1968 Model Plymouth were injured when it was involved in a collision with a milk truck at the intersection of FM644 and U.S. 84 near Hermleigh at 11:50 a.m. Friday. They were all taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Snyder Ambulance Service. The car was demolished.

Club Program On Alcohol, Drugs

Rayburn Burgess brought the program at the regular weekly noon meeting of the Snyder Rotary Club, held Thursday at the American Restaurant.

Burgess presented slides on "Alcohol, Drugs and You."

Max Underwood, student Rotarian from Snyder High School, gave his impressions of Rotary.

It was decided to postpone the ladies night program scheduled for next week to after the first of the year.

Visitors included Steve McMahon, Dr. Junius Evens, visiting Rotarian from Roswell, N.M., and Woody Pyett of Sweetwater.

Rex Robinson, club president, presided over the meeting.

Two Vehicles Are In Mishap

Minor damage resulted from a two car collision on Avenue M at Twenty-sixth Street at 4:06 p.m. Friday.

Involved were a 1968 Model Pontiac driven by Johnnie Lynch of Lamesa and a 1968 Model Oldsmobile operated by Emily Ann Kincaid, 3003 Thirty-third Street.

Butz Outlines Procedures

TEMPLE, Tex. (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz has outlined procedures for streamlining the field services of the Department of Agriculture at a national kickoff meeting of the program here.

Butz told nearly 300 Texas agricultural leaders and officials Friday that four agencies would be affected by the new federal move, but that the department "is not about to disband their field organization."

He said 90 per cent of all USDA employes are outside Washington and the various agencies maintain 15,000 field offices. "This department is not in Washington, it's in the field," he said.

The four agencies, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Farmers Home Administration, the Soil Conservation Service and the Federal Crop Insurance Corp., would combine under one roof in several regional areas of every state.

Under the new reorganization plan, the state directors of the four agencies will serve as an ad hoc committee to determine the location of the centers based on workloads, geographic conditions, population and other considerations which will make the services more readily available, Butz said.

The secretary said the new centers would eventually eliminate or reduce some personnel although the program didn't anticipate any forced separation. He said the program would eliminate duplication of efforts and duplicate costs.

5 Hurt In Mishap At Hermleigh

Five persons were injured in a car-truck collision at the intersection of FM644 and U.S. 84 near Hermleigh at 11:50 a.m. Friday.

Taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Snyder Ambulance Service were Gary Johnson, 30, of Irving; his wife, Callie, 26; their children, Leonard Ward, 4, and Christie Jo, 7 months; and, Johnson's mother, Mrs. Ethel Taylor, 55, of Dallas.

Mrs. Taylor was the most seriously injured. She sustained a fractured arm and was later transferred to a hospital in Abilene. Johnson sustained a shoulder injury. The others received cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Johnson was admitted for observation. She was the driver of a 1968 Model Plymouth in which the others were passengers.

Investigating Highway Patrolmen said she was going south on U.S. 84 at the same time a 1965 Model Dodge truck operated by Kenneth William Kidd, Route 1, Sweetwater, was traveling east across U.S. 84. The car was totally demolished, and there was heavy damage to the truck, which is owned by Foremost Dairies.

Neither Kidd nor his wife, Alemeda Ann, 19, who was a passenger in the milk truck, was injured.

Guide To Conserve Farm Fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the approach of winter, farmers are being advised on fuel conservation measures to meet the national energy shortage.

This week, representatives of farm-equipment manufacturers met with Nicholas H. Smith, director of energy-crisis activities for the Agriculture Department, to wrap up plans for an educational campaign to help farmers conserve fuel in their work.

After the meeting, a list of recommendatons was released that included:

—Make sure tractors, like automobiles, are kept properly tuned and otherwise in good condition.

—Store fuel in a protected or shaded area to reduce loss through evaportation.

—Adjust diesel fuel pumps so that excessive black smoke, a sign of wasted fuel, does not pour out of the stacks.

—Use wheel weights to reduce slippage when pulling heavy loads and take them off when doing lighter work.

—Match machinery and tractor size carefully to obtain full efficiency.

—Shift to a higher gear when pulling lighter loads and throttle back to maintain the same ground speed and save about 25 per cent in fuel consumption per acre.

Service Halted Temporarily

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Operations of the Galveston-to-Port Bolivar ferry was suspended for a while Wednesday when a barge ran aground on the Port Bolivar side of the channel.

Support Of Children Disputed

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — Can you support three children with $263 a month?

The Internal Revenue Service office here says yes, but the parents of the children insist, if that is so they are willing to give the kids to the government.

It all came about in a dispute between the Charles Demone family and the IRS over the standard $750 deduction per child. The agency declined to allow all deductions, Mrs. Demone said, because the three children receive $263 a month between them as Social Security benefits after the death of their father. Their mother later married Demone, a retired Army Colonel.

Tax auditor John Mangrum said the three children could not be deducted because the Demones could not prove that the parents provided more than half of their support.

"If they think the government provides the children' support, then let the government support them," said Mrs. Demone as she waited, accompanied by two of the three children, to discuss the matter Friday with an IRS official.

The three children are: Sandy Hadley, 15; Susie Hadley, 12; and Cindy Hadley, 9.

Mrs. Demone said the amount in dispute was more than $1,000.

In Dallas an IRS spokesman said there was hope for the Demones because the case would have to be reviewed by district headquarters.

And if the Abilene officials' decision is upheld, the Dallas spokesman said, the Demones have two additional local and regional avenues of appeal which are purely administrative.

"Don't give up," the IRS spokesman advised. "You still have half a dozen ways of getting around it."

Fire Department Receives Check

The Snyder Fire Department received a check for $75 recently from Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies as an expression of thanks for the Department's work on the property of Foster Watson, 611 So. Byron, Hermleigh.

The money will be used for their loss prevention program.

The Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies pay fire departments this amount when the department works at a fire in rural areas, involving property insured by them.

The Insurance Company believes fire departments have contributed to reduce the amount of loss involved by fire and more important, to prevent fires. It is their hope this money will help the Snyder Fire Department in their program, spokesmen for the company said.

Willie Brandt Phones Texan

WACO, Tex. (AP) — When Jenice Cain of Waco answered her phone at the McLennan County courthouse here Wednesday, the voice on the other end of the line said, "I am Willy Brandt."

It was no hoax. West German Chamcellor Brandt was calling on an overseas line to congratulate her on her engagement to Johann Deutchman of Frankfurt. Deutchman is studying at Texas State Technical Institute on a grant from the West German government.

Originally the call was to thank Miss Cain for the help she provided Deutchman the few months he has been in Texas.

Both Deutchman's parents died within a month of each other this fall and after his father's death the government was planning to withdraw his funding unless he had friends here.

Miss Cain and her family provided all the friendship needed to convince the German government he should return.

Joham and Jenice met when he took a tour of the county courthouse where she is a district court clerk.

"He (Brandt) explained to me that they weren't going to let Joham come back unless they knew he had friends here," she said. "He wanted to thank me."

Brandt learned from Deutchman's brother the two became engaged last Saturday. No wedding date has been set.

Deutchman is studying structural analysis at TSTI in preparation for studies at Texas A&M. He was the second highest student in German secondary schools when he graduated and was given a government scholarship.

"I think he (Brandt) worries about Johann," Miss Cain said. "He seems very down to earth. He didn't say 'I am the chancellor of West Germay'. He just said 'I am Willy Brandt."

To Johann, who has met with Brandt on several occasions, the call didn't seem that unusual.

"We are a proud people and he is proud of me. Deutchman said. "I am here as a representative of West Germany."

Conventional flirtation is getting out of hand

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd'r Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer I met a woman I'll call "Dotty" at a housewares show. We had booths near each other, and were instantly attracted to one another. I'm a 42-year-old married man, but the fire had gone out of my marriage a long time ago. Dotty is 40. She said she and her husband were on the verge of splitting up.

We had an exciting thing going for the duration of the convention, but I never made her any promises.

After I got home, Dotty started calling me at work every day. She even came to my town to see me several times! Now she says she's in love with me, is divorcing her husband, and wants to marry ME! Abby, I am not in love with this woman and divorce never entered my mind. I have three children and Dotty has two. She's talking about telling her husband and my wife about "us." That's the last thing I want.

I admit she's physically exciting, but I don't want to break up my home for her. I've been so nervous lately, my wife keeps asking me what's wrong. How do I get out of this mess? JUMPY CLUTCH

DEAR JUMPY: Tell Dotty it was just a summer romance and you're not a man for all seasons. If she's serious about telling your wife and her husband, you'd be ahead to tell your wife and start furnishing the doghouse. What Dotty's husband will do is worry number two. If you're lucky, Dotty will let you off the hook and disappear, after which you should keep your mind on your business when you go to the housewares show.

DEAR ABBY: I am a salesman in a retail store. There is a small matter with the lady customers which has been bothering me.

Now that women are wearing pants suits, many forget to zip up their flies, and they come into the store with their flies open. It's easy for one man to say to another: "Hey, Buddy, your fly is open."

But how does a gentleman tell a strange lady her fly is open? AGAPE IN COLORADO

DEAR AGAPE: If you lack the courage to tell a stranger her fly is open, tell a female clerk with whom you are better acquainted, and let her tell her.

DEAR ABBY: Recently our pet dog, a 60-pound German shepherd, dug her way out of our backyard, and was returned to us the same afternoon by two teen-age boys.

These boys found her about six blocks from our home. Since the dog had no leash, the boys had to hold her by her collar [which bore our address] and walk her home, mostly uphill.

I gave each boy a dollar for his trouble. My wife and children [both teen-agers] felt that I had cheapened and demeaned the boys' good deed by giving them money. They compared it to returning a lost child, while I thought it was closer to returning a lost wallet.

What is your opinion? F. M.

DEAR F. M.: I think a reward was in order, assuming you didn't force it on the boys over their protests.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN LOVE WITH A MAN I CAN'T HAVE IN NEWPORT NEWS, VA.": The solution is obvious. Go back to the man who will have YOU. [P. S. And a husband who will take his wife back, knowing she is pregnant by another man, can't be all bad.]

Contracts Awards Up

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas construction industry, despite impending slowdowns due to the energy crisis, chalked up strong contract awards in November, leading to another annual record in only 11 months.

Texas Contractor, in its Dec. 4, issue, will report that November contracts amounted to $170,155,390, eclipsing the November 1972 total by more than $41 million.

The weekly says that in 11 months of this year Texas contract awards have reached $1,656,086,521, surpassing the record full 12-month total in 1971 of $1,751,331,262.

In 1963, the November contracts total was $82,746,051.

Big contracts led the way in November. H. A. Lott Inc. of Houston won a $13,401,000 award for construction of the Houston Sports Arena. Robert E. McKee won a $12,204,000 contract for an engineering-science complex at the University of Texas—El Paso.

Wants Volunteers To Catch Colds

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Medical Research Council wants volunteers to catch cold.

It will pay them about 85 cents a day to stay at the Common Cold Unit at the Harvard Hospital, Salisbury, Wiltshire, for 10 days. There they live in comfortable apartments, play games and go for country hikes.

Men and women between 18 and 50 are eligible. All they have to do is take nose drops, some of which contain mild cold and flu viruses, so the effects of possible cold cures can be tested.

Training Institute In Session

HOUSTON (AP) — A four-day training institute on crime and delinquency conducted by the Association of Junior Leagues opens Sunday with more than 200 officials in the criminal justice field throughout North America expected to participate.

The institute is part of "IMPACT", the association's three-year project to reduce crime and delinquency.

Its immediate objective is to enable 223 Junior Leagues throughout North America to increase the effectiveness of criminal justice systems by promoting, facilitating and participating in efforts to effect change.

The association earlier this year received a grant of more than $200,000 from the U.S. Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. The grant was provided for the institute and to help back the League's efforts in preventing crime and delinquency.

The opening session address will be delivered by Russell W. Peterson.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Hardening of the arteries is the result of higher living, says Dr. John Houston, Dir. of Cardiology, Milwaukee Cty. Hospital. Other civilizations are less susceptible to the disease because they burn up more energy thru exercise and physical work. Dr. Houston blamed animal fats, smoking and alcohol along with lack of proper exercise. The natural effect of cigarette nicotine is to contract the arteries. Alcohol increases the appetite, encouraging overeating, a direct cause of cardio-vascular diseases, he said.

QUICK HANDOFF—Rankin High School's Eric Fitzhugh (12) hands the ball off to fullback Donnie Cole (30) during the Red Devil-Holliday Class A Regional football game here Friday night. Blocking for Cole are teammates Jimmy Matthews (11), Ernest Black (10), Tom Lindsay (75) and Charles Peterson (71). Rankin won 23-6.

Rankin Wins Class A Regional Clash, 23-6

Holliday's Eagles learned Friday night what many a good poker player has discovered: Sometimes you lose even when you play your best. Rankin's Red Devils exploded for 16 points in the final period to beat Holliday 23-6 in their Class A Regional football battle in Tiger Stadium.

Rankin, champion of District 6A, was a two-touchdown underdog to Holliday, champion of District 7A. The victory gives the Red Devils a 9-3 season record while Holliday closes their campaign with a 11-1 record.

Each team scored a touchdown in the second quarter after putting on a tight defensive clash in the opening period.

Rankin fullback Donnie Cole swept left end from the four yard line for the Red Devils' first touchdown after Brad Winn had recovered a fumble at the four. Randy Schmitz' extra point kick gave Rankin a 7-0 lead with 8:50 remaining in the half.

Just seconds earlier, Holliday had put on a magnificent goal line stand, holding Rankin four times inside the five yard line. The Eagles' Donal Ross and Tommy Allgood both made bone-shattering tackles to prevent the Rankin backs from getting into the end zone. The Red Devils got into scoring position on a 45 yard pass, Eric Fitzhugh to Winn.

Rankin had another chance to score in the second quarter following an interception by Tommy Gray at the Holliday 25. He returned the ball to the 15, then Fitzhugh kept for 10 to the 5. But Art Williams recovered a fumble at the six to stop the Red Devils.

The Eagles took over and spanned the 94 yards to the goal in six plays with Tommy Allgood, the quarterback, scoring on a keeper from the three. Danny Vaughn attempted to kick the extra point but it was blocked by Doug Brazil, leaving Rankin ahead with 1:14 remaining in the half.

Big play in the Eagles' long drive was a 62 yard pass, Allgood to Stan Mason. The other yardage was accounted for by halfback Larry Rains, playing in place of the injured Byron Redden (the Eagles' leading ground gainer), and by fullback Donal Ross.

The turning point in the game occurred in the fourth quarter when the Red Devils put up a magnificent goal line stand that thwarted an Eagle drive that carried from their 33 to the Rankin one yard line.

Rains and Ross gained most of the yardage in the steady march and Allgood had two complete passes, to Ross and to Greg Stone.

The pass to Stone set up first and goal at the six. Ross gained two to the four, Allgood kept to the one. Then Ross was stopped for no gain on third down, and Allgood was slammed down at the half yard line on fourth down.

Holliday seemed to go downhill after that. They had good field position after the Red Devils punted out to the 29. But a 5-yard penalty and a 10 yard loss and two incompletions by Allgood spoiled the bid late in the third quarter.

Rankin took over on its 20 and spanned the 80 yards to the goal in six plays. The touchdown resulted from a 60 yard pass and run play, Fitzhugh to Brad Winn. The fleet halfback took the reception at the 20 at full stride and raced untouched into the end zone. Brazil's kick made it 14-6 in favor of Rankin with 9:42 remaining in the game. Fitzhugh, Ernest Black and Donnie Cole all contributed yardage in the drive.

A couple of minutes later, Winn intercepted a pass at the Rankin 46 and returned it to the Holliday 45. Rankin covered the 45 yards to the goal in eight plays with Cole and Black doing the running. A face mask penalty of 11 yards kept the drive in motion and gave Rankin a first and 10 at the 11. On the next down, Black charged over right tackle all the way to the goal. The snap from center was fumbled on the conversion play and Fitzhugh tried to pass for two points, but the ball was off target, leaving Rankin ahead 20-6 with 5:26 remaining.

Rankin took over the Eagle 10 late in the game when Holliday was held on fourth down, but the Red Devils couldn't score a touchdown on the first three downs and elected to go for a field goal on fourth down. Randy Schmitz' kick from the 10 was accurate and Rankin had the final 23-6 margin with 2:28 remaining.

Allgood, Ross and Mike Miley all were outstanding on defense for Holliday. Winn and Doug Brazil were outstanding on defense for Rankin.

Ross, Holliday's fullback, was the leading ground gainer with 64 yards on 16 efforts.

Rankin will meet the winner of Vega and Stinnett, who met Saturday night.

Bronco-Poke Tilt Highlights Pros

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

First place is at stake. The Denver Broncos are trying to hold onto it. The Dallas Cowboys are trying to get back into it.

The Broncos, who have their fans higher than the Mile-High city, are higher than they've ever been this late in a National Football League season.

They're first in the American Conference West—but their lead over Oakland and Kansas City is a tenuous one at best.

The Raiders and Chiefs, who usually find themselves in a two-way dogfight for the divisional lead around this time of the year, are in a dogfight again—but this time it's for second. Going into Sunday's action, they're tied in the runner-up spot and their 6-4-1 records have them just one-half game back of the 6-3-2 Broncos, which took over the divisional lead last Sunday with a 14-10 squeaker over the Chiefs.

Denver, which has made it through the last seven games without a defeat—two of them have been ties—plays its last home game of the regular season Sunday against the Cowboys, a team nearing the desperation point for another victory. They're well-rested following their 14-7 Thanksgiving Day loss to Miami.

Dallas, 7-4, is one game back of first-place Washington, 8-3, in the National Conference East. And equally important, the Cowboys are scrambling not only to move into first place but also to stay in wild-card playoff contention.

"It's going to be a tremendous football game," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "There are two hot teams in the league right now—Denver and Atlanta—and we're catching one of them in their own park. It'll be a tough chore for us.

"They've always been a very interesting offensive team. They have all the weapons you need. Their defense really has played well the last few weeks...This is the big difference in their football team."

Sunday's other games are Cleveland at Kansas City, Oakland at Houston, the New York Giants at Washington, Baltimore at the New York Jets, Buffalo at Atlanta, Detroit at St. Louis, Los Angeles at Chicago, Minnesota at Cincinnati, New Orleans vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Philadelphia at San Francisco and San Diego at New England. In a key Monday night game, Pittsburgh is in Miami.

The wild-card slot in each conference goes to the divisional runner-up with the best record.

In the AFC, only Miami, 10-1 in the East, has clinched a division title. Denver, Oakland and Kansas City in the West, plus Pittsburgh, 8-3, Cleveland, 7-3-1, and Cincinnati, 7-4, in the Central Division are all vying for a title or the wild card. In addition, runner-up Buffalo, 6-5 in the East, also has wild-card hopes.

In the NFC, though, things are a bit stickier.

Minnesota, 10-1, has clinched the Central title and the rest of the division is virtually out of playoff contention.

That leaves two-team tangles in the East, with Washington and Dallas, and in the West, with Los Angeles, 9-4, and Atlanta, 8-3.

A few weeks ago, when it seemed the Steelers were running away with the AFC Central flag, a lot of fans were counting Cleveland out. But now, having knocked off Pittsburgh last weekend behind Greg Pruitt's running and receiving for their third straight victory, the Browns are back in the thick of the race, just a half game out of first.

The Raiders have beaten Houston the last six times they've met to raise their record against the Oilers to 12-7 in regular-season play. Houston with a 1-10 record that gives them the NFL's worst record, has one bright spot in Fred Willis, who could become the first running back in 40 years to win a pass-receiving title.

The Redskins, like Dallas well-rested since beating Detroit 20-0 on Thanksgiving Day, are looking for a season sweep against the Giants, having beaten them 21-3 on Oct. 14. A triumph would give Washington a chance to lock up their second straight NFC East title the next Sunday against Dallas..

The Jets beat Baltimore 31-14 in the second game of the season, the one in which Joe Namath suffered his shoulder separation. The Jets' fans are looking forward to a repeat of last year, when Namath threw for 496 yards and six touchdowns in a 44-34 victory, then beat the Colts a second time 24-20 in a last-minute 83-yard touchdown pass.

The Falcons, staying hot on the heels of Los Angeles, have already assured themselves of their best season ever and will be out to run their winning streak to eight games. They'll also be out to slow down Buffalo's O.J. Simpson, who has 1,447 yards and is within 416 of Jim Brown's single-season rushing record.

Detroit's major objective now is to salvage a .500 season. A loss to St. Louis will knock the Lions down to 4-7-1 and wreck that goal. The Cards, meanwhile, at 3-7-1, have already lost a shot at the break-even mark but are still trying to stay ahead of New York and out of the NFC East cellar.

The Bears, just about consigned to the NFC Central basement, take on the Rams, the conference's No. 1 team on offense and defense. The Bengals, clinging to their wild-card hopes and hoping for a fourth straight victory, face Minnesota for the first time ever in their final home game.

The Saints need three straight victories to finish at .500 for the first time in their brief history. One more victory will give them five and equal their best previous effort. The 49ers are used to facing Roman Gabriel—but not in an Eagles uniform. He leads NFL quarterbacks in passes with 341, completions with 206 and yards with 2,381.

The Patriots haven't beaten San Diego since 1966—but Jim Plunkett has New England moxing well now and they're gunning for a third straight victory.

Tech Loses To Fresno

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southwest Conference basketball teams lost three of four games against intersectional opponents Friday on the opening night of the 1973-74 season, which isn't too bad considering one of the opponents was awesome UCLA.

The UCLAN's opened their quest for an eight straight national collegiate championship by trouncing Arkansas 101-97, Texas Tech lost 76-51 to Fresno State, Wake Forest nipped Rice 75-70 and Texas A&M put the SWC in the win column with a 85-72 victory over Houston Baptist.

Arkansas junior guard Rickey Medlock led all scorers against UCLA with 27, but App-American Bill Walton, who had 23 points and 17 rebounds, held Dean Tolson to seven points.

Tolson averaged 17.8 last year.

Texas A&M trailed 35-26 to HBC late in the first half, but the Aggies' 15-2 spurt gave them a 41-37 halftime lead that was never headed. Sophomore Ray Roberts had 18 points for the Aggies and Mike Floyd chipped in 16.

Texas Tech fell far behind Fresno in the first half by shooting only 15 per cent from the field. The Red Raiders finished the game with a paltry 25 per cent, and leading scorer Bill Johnson had only 15 points.

Rice led Wake Forest with as little as seven minutes left in the only close SWC game of the night. The Owls, sparked by Scott Fisher's 22, points fought back from a 41-31 halftime deficit to a 54-53 lead, but they couldn't hold.

Jeffries Is Top Coach

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Willie Jeffries, who turned South Carolina State from a last-place football team to a bowl participant, Friday was named Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference coach of the year.

Jeffries, in his first year with the Bulldogs, took a team that went 1-9 last year to a 7-2-1 record and a berth in the Orange Blossom Classic against Florida A&M Dec. 8.

He was selected over Earl Banks of Morgan State, Ed White of Howard, and Willie Smith of N.C. Central in the balloting by conference coaches.

Orsburn Wins Grid Letter

Randy Orsburn of Snyder is a sophomore letterman on the Austin College football team at Sherman. Austin College, coached by Larry Kramer in his first year, posted the best record the school has had in four years, winning three, losing five and tying one. There were a total of 48 lettermen.

New York Knicks Lose 5th Straight

By HOWARD SMITH
Associated Press Sports Writer

"New York is like a machine," explained Chicago forward Chet Walker, "and if you take out two or three parts, they fall by the wayside."

Walker and Co. caught the Knicks' machine in low gear Friday night and romped to a 115-97 victory. It was the fifth straight loss for the National Basketball Association's defending champs and dropped their overall record to 12-12. New York trails first-place Boston by six games in the Atlantic Division.

"Anytime you play a team without Willis Reed, Jerry Lucas and Earl Monroe, you're going to have it pretty easy," said Walker. "Most of the other Knicks are young guys who are not used to playing together."

Reed, Lucas and Monroe are all out of action due to injuries. New York forwards Dave Debusschere and Bill Bradley both played but the Bulls held the pair to a combined total of just eight points.

In other NBA games, Milwaukee whipped Boston 117-93, Capital defeated Buffalo 121-113, Houston topped Detroit 110-95, Cleveland edged Philadelphia 112-110, Los Angeles routed Kansas City-Omaha 123-107 and Phoenix dumped Portland 107-99.

Bucks 117, Celtics 93

Bob Dandridge scored 15 points in the fourth quarter as Milwaukee snapped Boston's win streak at 12 games. Dandridge finished with 27 points, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 24 and Oscar Robertson had 20 for the winners.

Bullets 121, Braves 113

Elvin Hayes poured in 43 points, mostly from short range, and collected 19 rebounds in the Capital victory. Phil Chenier added 33 points for the winners, 19 of them in the third quarter. Jim McMillan led Buffalo with 30 points.

Rockets 110, Pistons 95

Houston built up a 21-point lead in the third quarter and coasted to victory. Rudy Tomjanovich led the Rockets with 25 points and Mike Newlin added 20. Bob Lanier netted 11 points in the first period for Detroit but scored just eight points the rest of the way.

Cavaliers 112, 76ers 110

A stuff shot by Dwight Davis with just 16 seconds left assured Cleveland of its third straight triumph. Cavalier guards Austin Carr and Lenny Wilkins scored 34 and 28 points respectively. Tom Van Arsdale topped Philadelphia with 29 points.

Lakers 123, Kings 107

Gail Goodrich netted 30 points and Jerry West added 28 as Los Angeles handed Kansas City-Omaha its 10th consecutive loss. Connie Hawkins chipped in 21 points for the Lakers who have won eight of their last nine. Don Kojis scored 22 points for the Kings.

Suns 107, Blazers 99

Clem Haskins scored 36 points and Charlie Scott had 27 for Phoenix. The Suns wrapped it up midway through the final quarter with eight straight points, six of them by Haskins. It was Portland's fifth straight loss.

Marathon Rips Bulldogs 55-30

BIG LAKE—Bobby Estrada bombed the Ira Bulldogs with five touchdown passes here Friday night as the Marathon Mustangs from the borderland romped to a 55-30 decision in their six-man semifinals football game.

Estrada launched the attack with a 47-yard scoring toss in the first period. Ira then retaliated with a 30-yard TD run by Richard Daves and Tom Daves kicked the extra points to give the Bulldogs a temporary lead.

However, Ira suffered a telling blow when tailback Dale Wiggins sustained a shoulder injury in the opening minutes of play. He was taken to a hospital to have the injury checked and finally returned to the bench in the fourth period. He re-entered the game on a spot basis, but was unable to perform at full speed.

Estrada passed for three more touchdowns in the second period, a three-yarder to Alfredo Garcia, a 29-yarder to LoLo Villareal and a 36-yarder to Toby Cavness to take a 34-6 lead at the half.

Coach Patrick Sadler's Ira Bulldogs regrouped at half-time and came back to actually outscore the Mustangs in the second half, but the odds were too much to overcome.

Tom Daves scored from one yard out in the third period, and also kicked the extra points. In the fourth period, Richard Daves passed 12 yards to Tom Murphy for a touchdown and scored himself on a 35 yard run.

Estrada hit Cavness on another 15-yard pass for Marathon and the Mustangs scored other second half touchdowns on runs of seven and two yards by Villareal.

Ira rolled up 196 yards rushing compared to 51 for Marathon, but the Mustangs collected 323 yards passing as Estrada hit on 20 of 40 attempts, while Ira got only 13 yards through the air.

Coach Retires Son's Uniform

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State basketball coach Gus Ganakas, ever the proud father, told reporters recently, "I'm proud to announce that the uniform worn by my son Gary at MSU has been retired."

Since Gary, at 5-foot-6, and 138 pounds, a steady play-making guard, never really set the Big Ten on fire during his three varsity seasons at MSU, those present must have looked surprised.

"We had to," Ganakas added. "No one else could get into it."

The Women's International Bowling Congress membership totaled more than 3,340,000 bowlers for the 1972-73 season. There were more than 132,000 sanctioned leagues for the season ending July 31.

Finley To File Suit?

CHICAGO (AP) — Charles O. Finley, the unpredictable owner of the world champion Oakland A's, is at it again.

This time Charlie O. says he's going to sue baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn because Kuhn fined Finley and placed him on probation for Finley's actions during the recent World Series.

Finley has paid a total of $7,000 in fines including $5,000 for the Mike Andrews case. He says the suit will be filed "within the next few days" in Federal Court either in Chicago or New York.

Finley made his announcement Friday after he had been notified by the commissioner's office that Kuhn was sustaining disciplinary action against Finley in the wake of a hearing held in New York two weeks ago.

At that hearing, Finley had sought to have the $5,000 fine lifted for placing Andrews on the medically disabled list after the second baseman had made two successive errors in a World Series game against the New York Mets.

Finley said he is filing suit in order to have the fine lifted and get himself off probation. He reiterated that Andrews willingly signed a medical report by Dr. Harry R. Walker stating Andrews had a chronic shoulder disability and was unable to compete.

"The Commissioner is saying 'Finley is lying, the doctor is lying, I am God looking down from my baseball heaven.'

"I like to feel that right is right and wrong is wrong," said Finley "And no one, even the commissioner, can deal with you unfairly."

Pine Bluff Gets Series

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — The 1975 Babe Ruth World Series will be played at Pine Bluff, Ark., Aug. 16-23, officials said Wednesday.

It is the first time that the series will be played twice in the same city. Pine Bluff was host for the 1972 series.

Houston Faces Raiders

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, coming off their worst game of the season, and the Oakland Raiders, trying for the playoffs, tangle in the Astrodome Sunday in a matchup between the American Football Conference's best and worst.

The Raiders, 6-4-1, with a shot at the AFC's Western Division playoffs, rank first in the AFC in both total offense and defense. Oakland is averaging 340 yards on offense and yielding 232 yards on defense.

Raider defenders have held the opposition to 145 points this season. Houston, by contrast, is last in total offense and 12th in total defense and has yielded 370 points.

The Oilers, who may be headed for their second straight 1-13 season, were beaten 32-0 last week by the New England Patriots to extend Houston's record to 1-10 this season. Despite the loss, Oiler General Manager-Coach Sid Gillman said he was keeping the faith.

"One of these Sunday afternoons everything is going to fall in place and this week against Oakland would be a good time to start," Gillman said. "Oakland is a superb football team and it will take a supreme effort from all of our players but I honestly believe that they are capable of giving the type of effort needed to win."

Oakland's left-handed quarterback Ken Stabler, who replaced Daryl Lamonica this season, leads the AFC in passing while Marv Hubbard and Charlie Smith rank eighth and 10th in rushing to balance the Raiders attack.

Despite their poor record, the Oilers also have players among the league leaders. Running back Fred Willis, who leads the AFC in receiving with 48 catches, has a chance to become the first back to lead a league or conference in receiving since 1963.

Most of Houston's offense has been generated with the passing game—which ranks sixth in the league. Quarterback Lynn Dickey ranks fifth among league passers and wide receiver Billy Parks is fifth in receiving behind Willis.

There could be some excitement generated on kickoffs in the game. Four of the top 10 kickoff returners in the AFC play for the Oilers or Raiders.

Oakland blasted San Diego 31-3 last week with the alert defense accounting for two touchdowns on a 59-yard return with a fumble recovery and another fumble recovery at the Charger 13.

Kickoff time is 1 p.m. CST.

Abilene Cooper Nips Tigers 68-67

IRVING—Abilene Cooper shaded the Snyder Tigers 68-67 in the first round of the Irving Basketball Tournament here Friday afternoon.

Snyder met Paris in the second round in the losers' bracket Saturday morning.

Reggie Leffal sank a layup with 14 seconds remaining to give Cooper a 68-65 lead. Welton Cobb connected on a shot for Snyder at the final buzzer as the Tigers pulled within one point.

Cooper started off strong and led 24-15 after one period. Snyder cut into the lead in the second quarter as Abilene led by 36-31 at halftime. Cooper took a 54-48 lead after three periods and Snyder outscored the Abilene team 19-14 in the final frame to almost pull it out.

Cooper led by only 64-63 with 2:15 left, but Leffall put Cooper ahead with a 15 footer. Cooper later went into a stall as Leffall hit another basket before Cobb connected on the last two baskets for Snyder.

Larry Johns was high point man for Snyder with 22 points. Leffall sparked Cooper with 19, and Larry Bradford netted 18. Baum meshed 13.

The loss left Snyder with a 1-3 record for the season while Cooper raised its record to 6-1.

New Venture In Jazz Sets

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The busy Smithsonian Institution has just produced a comprehensive collection of classic jazz, unprecedented in that it draws on the archives of all of the major recording firms.

There are six long-playing records in the boxed set, containing 86 selections from the great figures of American popular music. It is both a beginner's library and a rare collection of records, some of them long unavailable.

Several record companies have issued historical jazz sets, but they were drawn from their own catalogues. This one enlisted the cooperation of 17 companies, the first time such a venture has been possible.

"It took an outsider like us to do it," Martin Williams, director of the Smithsonian's jazz program, said in an interview. "The album might change everyone's ideas about the real achievements of American music."

The project has been two years in the making, but Williams said much of that time was required to prepare releases of rights in acceptable legal form. All of the recording firms cooperated fully, he said.

In most cases the firms owned the recordings outright, he said, but in some it was necessary to negotiate also with the estates of musicians who have died.

"There are only three or four I wanted in the album that I had to pass up," he said, "and I won't tell which ones they are. That's not a bad record."

The Smithsonian had to agree that the record set will not be sold in commercial outlets. The public may buy it from the museum's shops by mail, for $21.50 including postage and handling.

The set begins with a recording of a piano roll of "Maple Leaf Rag" made by composer Scott Joplin.

The set moves to Jelly Roll Morton's transformation of "Maple Leaf" into a jazz performance; it ends half a century later with John Coltrane's "Alabama."

There are eight selections each by Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington, six each by Charlie Parker and Thelonious Monk.

Among the others represented are Bessie Smith, King Oliver, Sidney Bechet, Earl Hines, Bix Beiderbecke, Fats Waller, Billie Holiday, Art Tatum, Ella Fitzgerald, Roy Eldridge, Lionel Hampton, Benny Goodman, Erroll Garner, Sarah Vaughan, Sonny Rollins, Charles Mingus, Max Roach, Cecil Taylor and Ornette Coleman.

The records list price of $20, plus $1.50 for postage and handling, is less than the usual retail price of the same number of LP records. It may be ordered by mail by writing Classic Jazz, P. O. Box 14196, Washington, D.C. 20044.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

Interview:
Fred Williamson

Fred Williamson, an athlete turned actor in the tradition of Johnny Weismuller and Jim Brown, is being recognized as one of the fastest rising stars to emerge from the current spate of black films. His performance in American International's "Black Caesar" represents his third starring role in less than a year. As a football player, Williamson played with "The San Francisco 49ers as well as Pittsburg Steelers, the Oakland Raiders and the Kansas City Chiefs. His outstanding play won him a place on the AFL All-Pro eleven, and then in 1968, he quit "Because I became bored with it." Searching for a career as an actor, he has appeared in such movies as "Mash" and "Tell Me That You Love Me Junie Moon." Television audiences remember him from "Laugh-In" as well as Diahann Carroll's love interest in "Julia."

MAURICE: Academically, you majored in architectural engineering. How did you become involved in acting?

WILLIAMSON: I get bored very easily. I was bored with engineering so I became a football player and when I got tired of that I went into acting. Who knows, when I get tired of acting what I will do next.

MAURICE: What do you dislike most about being in show business?

WILLIAMSON: I really like everything about show business. It's fun and I'm able to make a living at it. Of course, there are a lot of phonies in this business but as long as they don't try to impose it on me, they can be whatever they are. I don't judge them. I just go over them, around them, or through them, if they get in my way.

MAURICE: It sounds a bit like football. Is there any comparison between that game and show business?

WILLIAMSON: Yeh, only in the terms of discipline. I have learned that there is no obstacle which is unmovable for me. There is always a way to get around an obstacle. If you apply that to your life with discipline you can overcome anything.

MAURICE: What do you think surprised people the most about you becoming an actor?

WILLIAMSON: I think you said it in your opening statement. The fact that I was an athlete turned actor. People are really dumb. They think that football players are basically stupid. They think that all athletes can do is play football, basketball or whatever. They feel that they can't cope with anything that's mental.

MAURICE: Are you trying to tell me that it didn't help you - being a football player?

WILLIAMSON: That's right man. I had to keep proving myself over and over again that I had the ability to be a great actor. They would not give me a part because I was Fred Williamson the football player. They kept putting me on the testing grounds and the proving grounds against actors who had been in the business a long time so I really had to get my things together in a hurry.

MAURICE: How do your friends feel about you being a star?

WILLIAMSON: Well I have always been a star all my life. There was no great transition for me to come to Hollywood and become a star. I was a star in high school, in college, and in football. I have been a star all my life and people expect me to be a success because I have never failed at anything.

MAURICE: One thing you have plenty of is confidence. Was football responsible for it?

WILLIAMSON: No, I've had confidence ever since I was a kid. I realized very early that I had one thing going for me. That is, I'm tall, dark, and handsome. Rather than feeling negative and down on myself I let my looks become part of my positive motivation.

MAURICE: What are the disadvantages of being tall, dark and handsome?

WILLIAMSON: There are only so many hours in the day to do the things that are presented for me to do and all the female companionship that is allocated to me - I don't have time to become well acquainted with all of it.

MAURICE: You co-starred with Diahann Carroll in the television series "Julia."

WILLIAMSON: I'm sorry you mentioned that.

MAURICE: Why?

WILLIAMSON: I totally disliked the show. It was a terrible experience for me.

MAURICE: It must have been quite profitable for you.

WILLIAMSON: That's the only thing that you can say for it and I guess you can say that it provided me with an opportunity to show that I could act.

MAURICE: The character that you played was named Steve Bruce.

WILLIAMSON: That shows you something right there. Are you ready for a name like Steve Bruce? I smiled all the time and Diahann smiled all the time and there ain't nobody that nice. It was sickening.

MAURICE: Do you have any plans for getting married in the near future?

WILLIAMSON: Yeh, when I'm about 94 and slowed down considerably. And if I can be caught. But until that age comes around, I doubt seriously that I will ever get married.

MAURICE: What's the funniest thing that ever happend to you when you were playing football?

WILLIAMSON: Once when I was playing I got my pants ripped off me and I don't wear anything underneath my pants and so I proudly and boldly walked off the center of the field as I waived to my fans.

MAURICE: You have jumped from profession to profession. Isn't that a form of insecurity?

WILLIAMSON: No because I don't jump from one profession until I've accomplished it. If you jump before you accomplish it, you can relate that to insecurity but everything that I left I had accomplished.

MAURICE: The first time you saw yourself on the screen, what was your reaction?

WILLIAMSON: My reaction was that I look just as I do in person - great! I must admit that when you see yourself do something you say gee, I could have done that better. And when I reach the point that I'm completely satisfied with how I act on the screen then perhaps I'll give up acting and go on to something else. I think I'm super-cool and there is nothing that I can't accomplish because as I always say I'm tall, dark and handsome.

The most gigantic polar bear on record weighed 2,210 pounds and stood more than 11 feet tall.

REHEARSING WTC PLAY
... tense scenes from "Look Back in Anger"

Reviews Changed On 'Look Back In Anger'

When "Look Back in Anger" by John Osborne first opened in London in 1956, it received a few extremely good reviews and some not-so-favorable ones. But as the play became one of the most successful of the decade, most of the unfavorable ones changed.

Snyder theatre-goers will have an opportunity to form their own opinions of the play as WTC's drama department presents "Look Back in Anger" Dec. 12-15.

Director Charles Holland cast the show with four people familiar to Snyder audiences. They are Jamie Boren (Jimmy Porter), Bill Martin (Cliff Lewis), Donna Messimer (Alison Porter), and Retha Boyd (Helena Charles).

"Look Back in Anger" has been termed a classic example of the literature produced by England's "angry young men" of the '50s. Angry at society, trapped by his heredity and colorless environment, Jimmy Porter feels he must lash out. Cruelty vies with real sensitivity in his nature. He is unable to accept Cliff's easy-going nature or Alison's apparent passivity.

The show opens on a normal, casual Sunday afternoon in the Porter's flat. The casual atmosphere drops away as the intense emotional conflict is revealed. Lighter moments in the play serve to release some of the tension that mounts as Jimmy pushes Alison and Cliff into irrevocable actions.

The four characters in the play are victims of their situation and their own natures. While Jimmy's bitterness disturbs, it evokes pity as well. He is fighting for a cause in which he believes. Helena, although seemingly a predatory female, draws sympathy, too. She feels herself to be a helpless victim of her circumstances. Cliff is caught in the middle of all these people, in a sort of no-man's land, trying to prevent the impending destruction.

"Look Back in Anger" is not a character study of a vindictive, cruel young man, nor is it a cynical, pessimistic play. It offers insights into human nature that will stir pity and understanding in the perceptive viewer.

British critic Ken Tynan expressed his opinion of the play when he wrote, "I doubt I could love anyone who did not wish to see 'Look Back in Anger.'"

Though Tynan's view is hardly universal, it does express some of the magnetism embodied in "Look Back in Anger."--Donna Messimer

Hardy Asian alfalfa was introduced to Spain by the invading Moors. In the 16th century, Spanish goldseekers brought this variety with them to South America.

Modular Shower Stalls Shown

MIAMI (AP) — A modular shower stall that can be installed even in a finished bathroom was shown by Owens-Corning Fiberlgas Corp. at the fifth annual National Apartment Builders-Developers Conference & Exposition here.

The unit has four components: a base, two end walls and a back wall. The components are joined along positioning channels molded into the edges.

Mispelled Words Catch The Eye

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Throughout the country there are billboards for Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 here.

"What catches the eyes of the motorists most is that there are misspelled words on each of the billboards," points out Lester B. Dill, cave owner. "Motorists keep telling me that I should learn to spell."

Mrs. Murphy Is Mailing Christmas Dolls Again

BY DOROTHY COX

It's the magic month of December. The Christmas month. A month filled with secrets, suspense and happiness. A month for building snowmen, for popping corn and for having a house smelling of cedar and sweet, spicy odors, and for memory making. It's also the month for Mrs. Ed (Freida) Murphy to mail the heavy cardboard boxes she's filled with dolls she's made by hand to some little girl somewhere; to a little girl that except for her capable hands might not receive a doll this Christmas.

For over 20 years Mrs. Murphy has worked long hours at making dolls. At 82 she believes that old age is not for rocking by the fire and twiddling your thumbs; it's for making some little girl happy by making her a doll.

From her sewing machine, an old sock, a scrap of pretty material, a bit of cotton, and a heap of love, she creates the dolls. Soft little rag dolls with pretty hand-painted faces and hair made out of braided yarn, cotton linters, human hair, or even the hair from a curly black billy goat! Dolls with mini or maxi length dresses, pant suits and lace underwear; dolls with hats and caps and saucy hair ribbons; dolls that captivate any little girls heart.

"I don't make the dolls to sell," Mrs. Murphy says, "for selling them would take away the pleasure. I just make them to give to some little girl to make her happy. I wonder, sometimes, when I'm making a doll, who will receive it and how they'll like it and how they'll take care of it, but no matter...if only it gives them one moment of happiness it's well worth my time."

One of the first "batches" of dolls Mrs. Murphy gave away was a box of one hundred to the Indian Mission Church in Canton, Okla. Perhaps the giving to this particular mission gave her more pleasure than others in that she's continued to send them a box of a hundred dolls every Christmas since.

"I received dozens of letters from the little Indian children thanking me for the dolls. Some of them drew me little pictures," Mrs. Murphy recalled, "and that more than paid me for the time I spent making the dolls."

She makes around a thousand dolls a year, and has given them to orphan homes throughout Texas and joining states, and to the patients in Big Spring State Hospital so that some of the little old ladies can have a "baby" to hold and rock and sing to; and many of her dolls help to fill the baskets our own local Good Fellows distribute.

Mrs. Murphy likes to display some of the dolls for her own injoyment and to delight visitors. A visitor seldom goes home without their arms laden with dolls to give to some little girl they know. The "doll room" is about 10 by 12 feet and contains over 1100 dolls, and Mrs. Murphy has a story to tell about every one of them.

Mrs. Murphy lives alone in the rock house she and her late husband built on the north shore of Lake J.B. Thomas. The house is not only a landmark but a show place as well, in that the rocks are a family collection, some of them coming form the Mammoth Cave in Kentucky. The rich colors and formations of the rocks make for interesting viewing.

The rock fireplace in the living room is also a good conversation piece. One rock in particular has a natural hollow which Mrs. Murphy uses as a match holder. The warmth from the fire reflects the warmth and hospitality of the home.

Yes, December is indeed the magic month, and for Mrs. Murphy it's also a month of fullfullment when the last of the jam-packed boxes of dolls have been mailed to some little girl she's never seen to help make her Christmas merry and bright. Truly, Mrs. Murphy knows what the Spirit of Christmas is all about.

MRS. CHRISTOPHER LEE MILNER

United In Double Ring Ceremony

Miss Pamela Gail Hartsfield and Christopher Lee Milner were united in marriage November 25, at 3 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church. The altar was centered with a brass arched candelabra holding fifteen tall burning tapers. Matching spirals holding twenty-eight tapers and single candelabras complemented the center arch. Boxwood foliages and pew bows completed the bridal setting. Rev. Ken Anders, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hartsfield, Jr., 2204 Forty-fifth Street, are parents of the bride. Christopher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen L. Milner of Santo Domingo, The Dominican Republic.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Barbara Mott played the following selections at the piano: Preludes, OP. 28, No. 4 and No. 15 by Chopin; First Arabesqued by Debussy Prelude in E flat, Op. 23, No. 6 by Rachmanioff, Interemezzo in A Major, Op. 118, No. 2 by Brahms. The processional, "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin by Wagner and the recessional, "The Wedding March", by Mendelssohn, was played at the organ by Mrs. Lynn Bethel. Passages from "The Prophet" by Kahil Gibran, and the book of Ruth from the Bible were read by Mr. Jerry Worsham. Bradley Maule sang "Sunrise, Sunset" and "Sabbath Prayer" by Sheldon Harnick and Jerry Bock.

Miss Cindy Spires was the bride's maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Carla Clements, and Nancy Milner, sister of the groom. White Venice lace edged the long sleeves, neck, and accented the empire bodice of the burgundy velvet dresses. Each attendant wore a woven nylon burgandy hat and carried traditional colonial nosegays of pink, white, and burgundy Pixie carnations interlaced with baby's breath and white satin streamers.

The groom's father served as his best man and groomsmen were Geoffrey Milner, brother of the groom and Cliff Atherton. Ushers were Jack Hartsfield, brother of the bride, Marc Maze, Leo Gordon, and Ricky Glasscock.

The bride wore a formal length gown of silk-faced faille, fashioned with a high ruffled neckline, long narrow sleeves appliqued with Venetian lace, and ruffles at the wrist. The Grecian bodice was softly gathered on the long A-line skirt with a ruffle forming the hemline. Venetian lace appliques accented the bodice and a narrow band of Venice lace interlaced with satin ribbon encompassed the waistline, edging the ruffle of the skirt and long detachable chapel train. Her headpiece was a Venice Camelot cap holding full length tiers of English illusion edged with tiny seed pearls. For something old and borrowed the bride wore a single strand of pearls belonging to her mother; something blue, her garter; something new, her bridal attire; and in her shoe, she wore silver coins minted in the years of their births. Her bouquet of garnette red sweetheart roses, stephonotes accented with English ivy and baby's breath was fashioned into a graceful cascade.

The reception was held at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Presiding at the bride's table were Mrs. Patricia Moody and Miss Ruth Ann Fagan. The bridal table was centered with a four branched table silver candelabrum holding fifteen inch burning white tapers and a mixed nosegay of the brides' chosen colors. The four tiered wedding cake was decorated with a nosegay fashioned after the bridesmaids' nosegays. Individual flowers and leather-leaf foliage complemented the cake.

At the groom's table were Mrs. Debbie Bohannon and Miss Chere Reneau. The groom's table was centered with a candlebraum holding five votive candles and decorated with garlands of English ivy and frosted pink pixie carnations. Serving in the houseparty were Mmes. Suzanne Ferrell, Eloise Lambert, Billie McCormick, Sondra Johnson, Margaret Watkins, and Miss Faye Cook. Miss Vonee' Reneau presided at the guest registry.

The bride is a 1971 cum laude graduate of Snyder High School where she won honors in drama as a member of the all star cast at UIL contests in 1970 and 1971. She attended Lon Morris college, Texas Tech, and the University of Texas at Austin. The groom attended St. Andrew's Preparatory School in Middletown, Delaware. He is a 1972 graduate of Rice University where he was a National Merit Scholar and captain of the soccer team. He is presently taking a leave of absence from the University of Texas Law School and is self-employed. After a short honeymoon trip, the couple will make their home in Austin.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents Saturday evening at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Out of town guests were from Houston, Lubbock, Austin, El Paso, Orlando, Fla., North Carolina, and Santo Domingo.

The Skylab crew named their spider mascots Arabella and Anita.

TO WED—Mrs. Sally Collazo of 2112 Forty-first Street, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Jackie Maxine, to Robert Torres, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Varela of Post. They plan a December 22 wedding at Our Lady of Guadalupe Church.

PLANS REVEALED—Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard J. Bartels, Roby Highway, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Cynthia Jean, to Robert S. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.B. Brown of Houston. The couple plans to exchange vows in the First United Methodist Church January 19.

Voice Travels On Light Beams

NEW YORK (AP) — There's going to come a time, says the Bell system, when your voice will travel not only with the speed of light, but by light itself.

Bell Laboratories scientists are working on methods of controlling light beams for the purpose of carrying telephone calls, data and video signals.

If successful this will mean great savings and a tremendous increase in telephone transmission capacity. Experiments thus far involve a pinhead-size laser and optical glass fibers no thicker than a human hair yet able to carry hundreds of telephone calls simultaneously.

The first telephone was installed in the White House by President Rutherford B. Hayes, who took office in 1877, the World Book Encyclopedia says. The installation was ordered after the President saw Alexander Graham Bell demonstrate his invention.

Astronaut Reveals Problems

RETURN TO EARTH. By Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr. and Wayne Warga. Random House. 338 Pages. $7.95.

It's disturbing to read a book by an American hero telling of his feet of clay. And if you watched in the hours when the Eagle landed on the moon and that man became a hero by sticking the American flag into soil undisturbed for millions of years, it's even more disturbing because of that phenomenon of television that intimately introduces the viewer to the person at the other end.

In the case of this book, the sensation of reading about a tarnished hero is a personal thing. It's being made privy to problems of a friend.

Former astronaut Buzz Aldrin describes the man behind the astronaut and the events in his background before and after the moon landing that made him seek psychiatric care. He holds nothing back, including his affair with another woman which almost broke up his marriage.

There are some extremely valuable lessons taught in this book, lessons much more real and meaningful than those portrayed in NASA's image-building ventures during space flights. DUDLEY LEHEW

White, Northcott Exchange Vows

In an afternoon ceremony November 18, Virginia Gale White and Stephen Ray Northcott exchanged nuptial vows in the Ira Baptist Church. Rev. Sam Parker, pastor of the Knapp Baptist Church, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Udell White of Ira are the parents of the bride. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Northcott of Snyder.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a white formal length gown accompanied with a chapel train. She carried a traditional bridal bouquet of gardenias.

Debra Sterling of San Angelo served as maid of honor. She was attired in a blue chiffon gown and carried a light blue nosegay. Peggy Hicks was the bridesmatron. Her ensemble was fashioned similarly.

The groom's father, Mr. James Northcott was the best man. Mr. Creig Wall of Austin, served as groomsman. Ushering guests were Donald Sellers of Snyder and Kirby Sterling of Ira. Candlelighters for the afternoon affair were Art White, brother of the bride, and Kathy Northcott, sister of the groom.

Gwen Calley provided organ music during the ceremony. Mrs. Marshal Parham, vocalist, presented the musical selections.

A reception for the couple was held in the Ira Community Center following the service. The attendant's nosegay's enhanced the bride's and groom's tables.

After the wedding trip, the couple plans to reside in Odessa.

The bride is a graduate of Ira High School and attended Western Texas College. The groom is a Snyder High School graduate and also attended Western Texas College. He is presently employed with Halliburton Co.

Fruit Cake With Oranges

AUSTIN—Orange Fruit Cake is one that breaks all the traditions, says Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

It doesn't have to be baked weeks ahead of time or wrapped in rum-soaked cloth. It does have to be iced.

The result is a delicious fruit and nut cake stuffed with dates, candied cherries, and pecans and moistened with buttermilk.

"It's as much in the holiday spirit as great-grandmother's most treasured recipe," Commissioner White said.

The cake, tested by Texas Department of Agriculture home economists, is topped with a tangy orange juice frosting.

ORANGE FRUIT CAKE

½ pound margarine or butter
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
2½ cups enriched white flour
1 tsp. soda
½ tsp. salt
½ cup buttermilk
½ pound chopped dates
½ pound chopped candied cherries
1 cup chopped pecans
2 T grated orange rind

Cream margarine or butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Sift flour, soda and salt and add alternately with the buttermilk. Coat fruit with ½ cup flour and add to mixture with pecans and grated orange rind. Grease and flour tube pan. Pour mixture into pan and bake in a preheated oven at 325 degrees for 1½ hours and ½ hour at 300 degrees.

ICING

1½ cups powdered sugar
¾ cup orange juice
¾ T grated orange rind

Mix and pour very slowly over hot cake.

Food And Your Teeth

COLLEGE STATION---A person's teeth reflect what he eats, one foods and nutrition specialist points out.

Mrs. Karen Walker with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, said cavities are influenced by three factors:

—a tooth's natural resistance to disease,

—bacteria in the dental plaque (film adhering to tooth surfaces), and —properties of saliva in the mouth.

"Foods consumed and the person's nutritional status affect all three factors," she emphasized.

"Good nutrition furnishes adequate calcium, magnesium, vitamin D and protein required to develop cavity-resistant tooth quality.

"Since milk-group foods supply these nutrients, everyone needs two servings of them daily. Children, teenagers and pregnant women need more than two servings," Mrs. Walker added.

Foods also influence the bacteria contained in dental plaque.

"Instead, choose fresh raw fruits and vegetables for between-meal 'munchies.'

"A high-protein diet influences the composition of saliva—by helping neutralize the the acids formed by sugars," the specialist said.

For healthier teeth, she advised following a balanced diet—including all four groups. "Also avoid excessive amounts of sugar-rich, sticky foods—and clean teeth after eating or drinking."

Cows take nine months to produce a calf, from conception to birth.

Sellars Home To Be Toured

The Christmas season brings to mind many traditions as friend and family gatherings, good food, Santa Claus and gifts, and the remembrance of the birth of Christ. Each year brings something special during this season and a special treat to Snyderites again this year will be the Christmas Tour of Homes presented by the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Diversity would be the best word to describe the homes scheduled for the tour this year. Each home is quite different from the others and presents to the visitor the interests and life style of its occupants.

A landmark of our town is the home of the Bert Sellars. Many times old homes are torn down to make way for a new modern home but the Sellars family chose instead to take a home built in 1912 and formerly occupied by two hometown doctors to renovate and redecorate. Although no basic changes were made in the structure of the home it has been completely sheetrocked, papered and carpeted throughout. The 13 rooms of the home restored by May of 1969 provided ample room for the 250 guests of the wedding reception for their daughter, Mrs. Mike (Brenda) Otto. Although the restoration is complete the search for true antiques goes on. Mrs. Sellars said she felt the home deserved only the best antiques they are able to acquire and most of the furniture was collected by scouting antique shops and then refinishing it by themselves. Much of the glassware on display has been handed down through the family. Mrs. Sellars wanted to add something special for the tour and she located and purchased a lovely antique wash stand.

The fascinating tour of the home unfolds a downstairs built primarily for entertaining. In the "sitting room" a baby grand piano, a Chickering of Boston and made of rosewood, graces the room. Mrs. Sellars said the actual age of the piano is not known but the date 1853 found on the piano was the last date it was worked on prior to their acquiring the piano. The walls of the room are wallpapered in a flocked velvet design and Mrs. Sellars gracefully mixes an authentic French love seat and chair with Spanish furniture of our own period. A most unusual piece of furniture is a recliner which is of the very first type of recliners built.

Although a new heating system is being installed in the home there could be ample heat for the home if all four fireplaces were put to use. All have unusual designs on the copper, bronze or brass frontings. One features the well-known Pony Express rider with his mail sacks.

The other downstairs rooms consist of a library, a formal dining room completely furnished in antiques, kitchen, bath and one bedroom.

The golds and whites used in decorating the downstairs unfolds to the more vibrant blues and reds of the second story. One bedroom is done in red velvet set off by a gold velvet sofa and chair. A corner vanity featuring a triple mirror which is a family heirloom over 100 years old completes the room.

A fascinating object to most visitors is a pump organ that sits in the upstairs parlor. The organ, 140 years old, is an Ann Arbor model and is still played. A stained glass window looks down over the staircase, hallway and front door below.

The man who built the house, a Mr. George Harris, allowed no smoking downstairs so a smoking room is on the second level and opens onto a veranda so the smoke would have a place to escape. Mr. Sellars now claims this as his special room now and in it are found items of interest to him.

As history is carried throughout the house, a "fainting bench" is found in the hallway. Mrs. Sellars explained that during the period of time when women wore long dresses with hooped skirts and very tight corsettes, the women would sometimes faint while dancing and were placed on these benches until they could catch their breath.

Even if your "cup of tea" is not antiques this is a most delightful home to visit because it opens up to you the beauty of the period preserved here. To see this and the other homes on the tour pick up your map at the Woman's Club between the hours of 5 and 9 p.m. this Friday, December 7. Admission to the complete tour is $1.00 per person with advance tickets on sale by members of the club or at the door of any of the homes on the tour.

A bazaar and sandwich plate supper will be held in conjunction with the tour at the clubhouse from 4 to 9 p.m. Bazaar items are being made and donated by the club members. Tickets for the sandwich plate supper are being sold in advance or at the door for $1.00 per person.

Auxiliary To Hold Election

The Ladies Auxiliary for the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8231 will hold election for one year trustee at their regular meeting this week. This will be December 3 at 7:30 The meeting will be held at the V.F.W. Post home.

HEIR WITH HEIRLOOM—Freddie Bert Otto stand proudly beside an antique hall tree which dates back to the period around 1790 at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Sellars at 2311 Thirtieth Street. This home along with several others will be on display for the Woman's Club Tour of Homes scheduled for next Friday night, December 7th.

Snyder Art To Be Hung

The San Angelo Art Club will honor the Snyder Palette Club by hanging their pictures throughout the month of December in the Kendall Art Gallery in San Angelo. They will sponsor a tea from 2 till 5 p.m. Sunday in the Art Gallery. Between 65 and 70 pictures from Snyder will be hung with most being priced to sell. There will also be pottery on exhibit.

MRS. RANDALL ODELL BOYCE

(Photo by Craft)

Stewart, Boyce Wed In Ceremony

An afternoon ceremony in the First Assembly of God Church November 22 united Frieta Lou Stewart and Randall Odell Boyce in marriage. Rev. John Grappe, pastor, officiated in the double ring service.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Stewart of Rt. 3, Snyder, are the parents of the bride. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Boyce of Coyle, Oklahoma.

Escorted down the aisle by her father, the bride chose a formal length gown of nylon organza with an acetate nylon yoke. The high necked bodice of the fashion was complemented with shepherdess sleeves. Chantilly lace edged the wedding attire and the mantilla, which secured a floor-length veil. The bride carried a dozen white rose buds atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Marilyn Kinsey of Abilene, the bride's sister, attended as matron of honor. The maid of honor was Sharon Sue May of Hamlin, cousin of the bride. Each wore formal length fitted gowns of winter green and carried long stemmed mums.

Curtis Boyce of Coyle, Oklahoma, brother of the groom, served as best man. The groomsman was Ronald Tracy, also of Coyle. Ushering guests were Gaylin Kinsey, of Abilene, brother-in-law of the groom, Herschel Houghton and Russell May, cousins of the bride from Hamlin. The bride's brother and sister, Patricia and Joe Stewart lit the candles for the afternoon affair.

The wedding vows were repeated under an arch of greenery and white roses. Candelabraes also enhanced the sanctuary setting.

The musical selection "Whether Thou Goest" was presented by Mrs. Gaylin Kinsey of Abilene and accompanied by Mrs. Clay Sullivan of Snyder.

The couple's reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Appointments in crystal were accented with a white satin tablecloth and white roses. The bride's bouquet served as the centerpiece for the table. The three tiered wedding cake was served by Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart. Denice Boyce, sister of the groom, registered guests in the white bridal book.

For the two day wedding trip to New Mexico, the bride wore a street length dress of green and beige with beige accessories. The couple plans to reside in Coyle, Oklahoma.

The bride is a graduate of Hamlin High School, attended Hardin-Simmons University and Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing. The groom is a graduate of Perkins High School, Perkins, Oklahoma. He attended Murray State College, Tishamingo, Oklahoma and is now a student at Langston University, Langston, Oklahoma, majoring in law enforcement. He is employed by Tracy Plumbing and Heating, Coyle, Okla.

Gives Teacher Pig

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Lt. William Wilbanks, head of the Tulsa Police Training Academy, will think twice before using pet names for his students again.

In recent weeks he has referred jokingly of his class members as "my little piglets."

The class gave Wilbanks a present Thursday: a live pig, named "Willy."

Santa Arrives Month Early

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (AP) — Santa Claus has arrived a month early for the hardy beer drinkers of the Yukon Territory — Canada's most prodigious consumers of alcoholic beverages.

Faced with a 20-cent increase in the retail price of a dozen bottles of beer, the territorial government decided this week it would hold the line on prices and absorb the increase itself.

Yukoners, who have the highest per capita rate of consumption of liquor, beer and wine in Canada, will continue to pay $4.10 a dozen for beer purchased in territorial liquor stores and $6 a dozen for beer purchased at licensed premises.

Constantine, Wife Move Into Mansion

LONDON (AP) — Ex-King Constantine and his wife plan to move into a Victorian mansion about 20 miles from London, according to the Daily Express.

They have lived mostly in Rome since Constantine was ousted by a Greek military coup in 1968. Recently they have been staying at London's Claridge Hotel. The paper said Constantine was not immediately available for comment.

Museum News

Two hundred visitors registered at our Museum Room at Western Texas College during November.

Among these visitors were seventy third and fourth graders from Loraine. We are always glad for our Museum to be used as an educational aid! On Nov. 13, 26, and 27, Mrs. Donelson showed their Brownie troops through. Perhaps you noticed a picture of one Brownie troop in Wednesday's newspaper. Mrs. Donelson makes it all come alive for the children and gives them a good background on local history and heritage.

Docents for November were: Golda Thorpe, Katherine Williamson, Mary Blum, Margie Key, Virginia Johnston, Sue Walker, Henrietta Lee, Mary Boch, Bess Johnston, Lida Rhoades, Esther Boren, Irene Jones, and Martha Webb.

Many, many thanks to these ladies for faithful service during the year. Syvola Waller (573-2995) is in charge of the Docent program. Many thanks to her, too

Several of the Retired Senior Volunteers (RSVP) came by the Museum office on Wednesday morning for a visit. Mrs. Bills explained general restoration procedures to them. When we get in our new building and can spread out more there will be many acquisitions to be worked on.

We have several publications that would make excellent Christmas gifts for your history-oriented friends. We have two sizes of Red Walker's Scurry County and Area maps–a great mini-history of this area, fully researched. We also have reprints of newspapers, '97 Years of Scurry County History "From Buffalo...to Oil" in two types of bindings. Hurry out and purchase some of these as the Museum will close for the holidays on December 21st. Memberships (including a subscription to "Scurryly Speaking") make great gifts, too! Call Mrs. Sims at 573-3229.

Perhaps you have read in the Snyder Daily News of the latest acquisition the Museum has. It is one of J. Wright Mooar's buffalo guns– a Sharps-50 dated 1846. We would like for everyone to have a part in bringing this gun gack to Scurry County. After the holidays our Board President, Ernest Sears, plans to take it around the the schools for the students to see. In the meantime donations may be mailed to P. O. Box 696.

The Museum Room will close December 20th and will open January 15, 1974,...Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!

Quotable Women

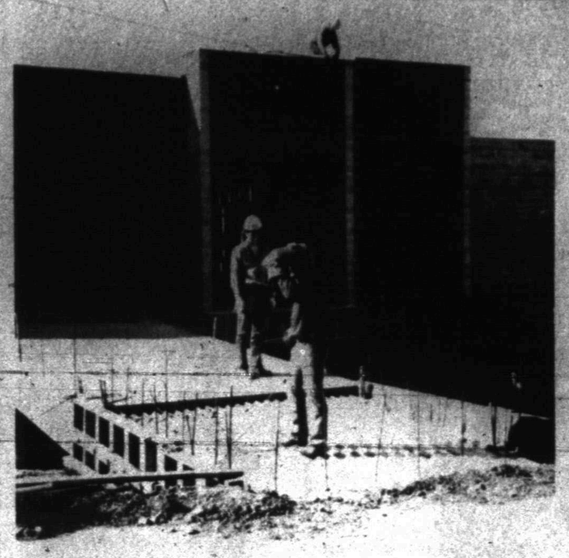
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"I have never been a strong women's libber because I feel that women get ahead by doing a good job. And my initial reaction to the idea of the bank was that it was a strange one. But the more I thought about it, the more it seemed to me that there was an opportunity to provide a good service." Madeline McWhinney, the first woman bank president in New York State.

"Our generation has been so remiss in preparing kids for life and caring about them. I dedicated my life to changing that." Gladys Burleigh, executive director of the New York Region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the first woman to hold the post.

"The important thing is that the child knows he's being listened to. His problems are not just his. They're being understood by others and this gives the child a chance to open up." Peggy Mann, author of "My Dad Lives in a Downtown Hotel", a TV special which deals with divorce from a child's point of view.



VIEWING INTERIOR—The interior of new museum at Western Texas College is progressing as well as the outside of the building. The men are working hard to enable the building to be completed by its deadline.

Cancer Society Promotes Films

The Scurry County Unit of the American Cancer Society is sponsoring a series of educational films to be shown on SCAT channel 2 at 6:30 p.m. Monday, December 3.

Dr. James Tulley, Dean of the Learning Resource Center at Western Texas College, will be in charge of the presentation. This program is being presented to stress the theme of the American Cancer Society, "Let's Cure Cancer In Our Lifetime."

Vows Repeated In Afternoon Service

Before an altar enhanced with pink carnations, spider mums and burning pink tapers, Miss Beverly Kay Autry and James Lee Pfau repeated wedding vows. Rev. Myron M. Crawford, former pastor of the Fairview Baptist Church, officiated in the 2 p.m. service at the Vincent Baptist Chruch November 23.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Autry of Route 1, Colorado City and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pfau of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of feminine white crepe. The formal length attire featured bouffant sleeves and dainty lace trim. The elbow length veil was secured by a decorative floral band.

Linda Autry of Brownwood, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Sharon Garwood of Atkinson, Neb., and Angeline Autry, sister of the bride. Each attendant was attired in a formal length, pale pink gown and carried a nosegay of Magenta mums. They also wore floral decorations in their hair.

Best man for the service was Cory Pfau, brother of the groom. Gordon Jones of Atkinson, Neb. and David Autry, brother of the bride served as groomsmen. Ushering guests were Lance Autry, brother of the bride and Troyce Wolf of Vincent.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Hubert Dunn, pianist, and LaRoy Shafer, vocalist.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the education building of the church. The bridal table featured a three tiered confection accented with light pink flowers and pink punch. Members of the house party were Phyllis Solomon of Ira; Becky Rhodes of Lubbock, cousin of the bride; and Becky Pfau, of Long Beach, Calif., sister of the groom. Guests were registered by Petti Pfau of King City, Calif., sister of the groom. The reception music was played by Mrs. Ray Conningham.

After the wedding trip to New Orleans, the couple plans to reside in Longview.

The bride is a graduate of Ira High School. The groom graduated from Santa Barbara High School and is currently attending Le Tourneau College in Longview.

Out of town guests for the occasion were from Lubbock, Colorado City, Longview, Ira, Santa Barbara, Calif. and Atkinson, Neb.

Desertion Charge Dismissed On Scott

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — A Municipal Court judge has ruled that actress Sheila Scott did not abandon her 4-month-old son when she left him at the front gate of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio.

Investigators said a note was left with the child instructing actor Chad Everett, star of the television series "Medical Center," on how to care for him.

The Oct. 5 incident came a few weeks after a Superior Court judge ruled in a paternity suit filed by Miss Scott, 42, that Everett was not the boy's father.

An attorney for the actress said the desertion charge was dismissed because "she didn't relinquish custody permanently, but left the child with a guard to give to the person she said was the father."

In Corsica, under the unwritten code of collateral revenge, vendetta trasversa, if the enemy himself could not be reached, any member of his family would do.

Interior Designers Launch Program

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Some furniture manufacturers are 16 weeks behind in orders, others aren't even taking orders until 1974, and many will never produce the furniture that has been ordered. At least one company is building a new factory to cope with all the new business.

So says interior designer Patricia Harvey, explaining how uncertainties in the home furnishings field are posing enormous problems for interior designers and confusion for their clients. It is one reason, she says, the American Institute of Interior Designers is embarking on a nationwide program to educate the consumer.

The AID program will be launched by its 42 chapters and will provide audio visual presentation in a forum that will be tailored to the needs of individual communities, says Miss Harvey, spokesman for the institute.

"For example, the average person has misconceptions that designers make a lot of money. This program will explain how the money is spent, how much time and effort goes into each project, and how the money must now be amortized over a longer period. It will also show how the designer saves a client time and money."

The manufacturer's dilemma in producing furnishings has been compounded by a lack of skilled craftsmen, a depletion of our wood supply and transient employes who do not have the long-time worker's pride in their work, she insists.

"In the past an interior designer could give a client a firm price that would still hold when the home was decorated. Now our quotation is for only three days. Manufacturers now must have big service departments to handle complaints, which is costly, and in this past year furniture prices have gone up about 15 per cent. We no longer can give delivery dates although we do everything physically possible to speed up orders.

Fabrics too have become "the bane of a designer's existence," she observed.

"Some mills aren't producing. You often get wrong colors after waiting many months...lots of things come through in the wrong quantitites."

The long-range decorating program enforced by these problems has added considerably to the expense of handling a client. Designers formerly absorbed small expenses, but the long term cost of pursuing a project might make out of pocket expenses as much as $250. Phone calls alone are a big item. Most designers now take a retainer that is tallied at the end of a job.

"We try to provide talent and service, but never in our wildest dreams did we think that we would service one client for as long as eight months whether she has a one-bedroom apartment or a mansion..."

Because so many things are wrong upon delivery, the merchandise must be inspected thoroughly because a manufacturer must be notified within 24 hours if there has been a mistake, she explained.

The AID's national committee has prepared a large book for its chapters outlining the forum. Each chapter also will use the audio visual tape that will portray a contact from the first meeting with the client through floor plans, renderings, shopping trips, before and after room settings in color. Designers from local chapters will explain their qualifications and activities during the forum.

It will also advise consumers whether they need a decorator. Many wives are encouraged by their husbands to do the decorating job themselves, but many suspect they need help and often secretly consult with interior designers, Miss Harvey remarked.

And there will be education in the area of financial arrangements that may be made.

"Some clients want to buy well and finish the job when they get more money. Others like to work on a service fee basis. Five year plans are popular with young people, who might start out with $5,000, and continue the decorating as they get more money.

Many people go in for decorating trends, and while the decorator will use most of the furniture a client has at hand and the notion will be dispelled at the forum that all the old furniture is tossed away, trends are a big mistake, Miss Harvey insists. She has determined that the following year "they hate it all." She doesn't mind working with one gimmick in a room — but a whole collection, it's something else. She tries to educate a client, not only to quality but to styles and periods.

Most designers are rewarded by the client's enthusiasm, although that phone call of praise might not come until her first big party and the approval of her friends. Sometimes a husband is so pleased, he asks to have his office decorated, she explained.

Many clients hire decorators to do the homes of their children, and Miss Harvey likes such assignments, she says, "because the beautiful part of it is that the parents usually pay the bills."

Ceremony Set For Dec. 21

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gracey, 2700 Thirty-third Street, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Barbara Ann, to Steven Lawrence Metzger, son of Mr. Russell Metzger of El Paso and the late Mrs. Russell Metzger.

Miss Gracey is a graduate of Snyder High School and Texas Tech University. She is presently teaching homemaking in El Paso. Mr. Metzger graduated from Isletta High School and the University of Texas in El Paso. He is now a Captain in the U.S. Army.

The wedding will be December 21 in the St. Christopher's Episcopal Church in El Paso.

Energy-Related Woes Dominate Week's News

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
AP Business News Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — The list of energy-related business problems grew longer this past week, as Americans felt the pinch of short supplies and worried about other pinches yet to come.

The stock market plummeted, rose, and fell again.

The widely watched Dow Jones industrial average, based on generally sturdy stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, took its biggest one-day drop in 11 years at the first of the week. It fell 29.05 points to a two-year low of 824.95.

A further 7.22-point loss Tuesday left the indicator down a whopping 169 points in about four weeks.

Brokers said the declines were a continued reaction — overreaction, many said — to fears that fuel shortages would seriously hurt business operations and profits.

Monday's plunge was also blamed on President Nixon's Sunday night energy message. The President asked for curbs on gasoline sales and other conservation measures and brokers said the outlook was gloomier than many had expected.

For all that, the Dow then soared 22.05 points Wednesday, its biggest daily gain in six months, then slipped only 4.67 points Thursday. Analysts said many buyers were taking advantage of reduced stock prices. Others, they said, were buying to cover previous short sales. A short sale is the sale of borrowed stock with the expectation that the stock's price is going down. When it does, the borrower can repurchase the stock and repay the lender while making a profit on his original sale.

"The market has been hysterical and historical," said Charles M. Lewis, an analyst with Winkler, Cantor, Pomboy & Co. "People are beginning to realize that their panic has caused overselling."

The market ended the week on another decline. The Dow fell 12.86 points Friday to 822.25.

Elsewhere, worries over energy were translated into lower sales and layoffs.

Mid-November auto sales of Detroit's Big Three — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler — were off 4.2 per cent even though sales of each company's compact cars were up. The decline came in bigger models which use more gasoline and analysts said buyers were worrying about fuel supplies.

American Motors, whose main models are generally smaller than the full-size Big Three products, said its sales for the period were up 22 per cent.

Chrysler announced a number of plant shutdowns to trim production of large-size cars, following the lead of General Motors the week before.

Chrysler said it was extending a week-long Christmas shutdown at two plants by three days, would close a third large car plant for two weeks to convert it to small car production, and would close four small car plants for three days to permit a balancing of parts supplies.

General Motors had announced the week before that some assembly lines in 16 plants would be shut down the third week in December, cutting large car production by 79,000 units.

United Air Lines, faced with reduced fuel supplies, announced plans to lay off 300 pilots and 650 cabin attendants as of January.

American Airlines said it had told 214 of its 3,979 pilots they would be laid off Jan. 2. It said more cuts might come later.

Frontier Airlines in Denver announced it was furloughing 150 flight crew members and other workers as of Dec. 8.

The Securites and Exchange Commission said it was working on proposals requiring companies to make public some of their energy arrangements. The SEC said its idea was to provide some guidance for investors.

The agency said it probably wouldn't ask for specific predictions about profits, but it might ask about the adequacy of fuel contracts, the likelihood of those contracts being met and the availability of other sources of fuel.

The Senate vote was 59-28 in favor of holding the session, the first in more than 112 years.

Bentsen Tuesday voted against tabling a Kennedy-Scott campaign financing proposal. Tower voted for tabling it. The Senate vote was 59-36 against tabling it.

Legal Answers Sought On Death

EDITOR'S NOTE — Death. What is it? When does it come? Is it the end of the heartbeat? Or the brainwave? Two men figure in a struggle to find legal answers. The answers will determine the fate of a third man, charged with murder. And they could affect heart transplant surgery across the nation.

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The wreaths of gold chrysanthemums have withered on a mesquite-shrouded grave in a country cemetery at Manor, Tex. A small aluminum marker says: "Samuel Mitchell Allen Jr. 1944-1973."

Visitors to his family plot are few, and a hot, dry wind rushes across the country where he was born, and where he was borne back across 1,500 miles. Allen, victim of a single bullet to his brain, is buried without his heart.

In another grave near Salt Lake City, Utah, lies Blaine Wixom, who received Allen's heart Sept. 12 in a transplant at Stanford University Medical Center by a team of surgeons headed by transplant pioneer Dr. Norman Shumway.

Allen's young family never thought much about death. Wixom's family lived intimately with it. The two men never met. But now they figure in an epic struggle to find a new definition for death.

Does it occur when the brain stops functioning?

Or when the heart stops beating?

On that decision rests the fate of a third man, Andrew D. Lyons, charged with murdering Sam Allen. And if the decision goes to the U.S. Supreme Court, it could affect, as well, heart transplant surgery across the nation.

Allen, 29, was a black unemployed cook. He was shot in the head during a tangled family dispute at an Oakland housing project.

The last three days of his life — or death, depending on the definition — will unfold Dec. 18 in Alameda County Superior Court, where Lyons, a 36-year-old automobile polisher, goes on trial.

"How could my client have killed him when his heart was still beating?" asks John Cruikshank, the defense attorney. "I'm just a common man ... When someone tells me a man's heart is beating and his lungs are filling up, I figure he's alive.

"While they were pronouncing Allen neurologically dead, or whatever, his heart was pumping merrily away."

Allen was pronounced dead on criteria for neurological death developed in 1968 by a Harvard University committee of doctors.

The pronouncement was made after Allen was observed, tested and surgically probed for 2½ days as he lay comatose at Highland Hospital in Oakland.

Allen fulfilled these Harvard criteria for brain death:

—No response to any stimuli, even those that normally would cause intense pain.

—No spontaneous movement or breathing.

—No reflexes.

Three electroencephalograms showed no electrical activity in brain cells which, once damaged, cannot be repaired.

But when did Samuel Mitchell Allen Jr. really die?

One public part of Allen's life began soon after midnight on Monday, Sept. 10. It was only a few months after Allen, husky and good-natured, arrived in California from Austin, Tex., to start a new life — so he could send for his wife and three children.

Allen drove his two cousins, 17-and 13-year-old girls, to 65th and Fenham streets, apartment 1228 F in Oakland.

They walked in unannounced, looking for the girls' blind mother.

It was the apartment of A.D. Lyons, and Allen argued with James Owens, the girls' stepfather, about the way he was treating them. The two men struggled. Lyons tried to break up the fight and grabbed a gun, police said. Allen was shot in the head.

He fell unconscious to the floor, his wound bleeding profusely and exuding brain tissue. He was propped against a square wooden chair in the kitchen.

"It's a no-class shooting. Happens all the time," said Sgt. Conrad Blevins, a homicide inspector who arrived soon after midnight.

At 12:20 a.m. Allen was examined in the emergency room of Highland Hospital by Dr. Robert Burns, 29, head surgical resident, and other physicians.

A .22-caliber bullet had entered the left temporparietal scalp, plowing a 4¾-inch track through the brain and destroying the hypothalamus gland.

Allen was comatose but responsive to deep pain and showed some reflexes. His blood was typed-0 plus.

"His chances of survival were zero. I've never seen a case in which brain tissue exuded from the wound and the patient survived," Dr. Burns said.

About 2:20 a.m. Allen became decerebrate, or without discernable brain activity. His reflexes decreased, but he was breathing and his heart was beating.

"We felt this was definitely a fatal injury," Dr. Burns said. "We were aware that Dr. Norman Shumway was in need of a heart donor for a Stanford patient and that the necessary blood type was 0 plus."

Requests were made for transplant permission to police, the district attorney and coroners — both here and in Santa Clara County where Stanford is located.

The Alameda County coroner said it was against policy to use organs of shooting victims for transplant. He must by law perform a full autopsy, examine all organs and determine the precise cause and time of all violent deaths.

But the coroner said the patient could be transported to Santa Clara County, where death could be pronounced and the transplants performed.

Dr. Burns called Stanford and explained he had a potential donor but was limited by the coroner's office.

At 5:30 a.m. he telephoned the victim's wife, Gwendolyn Joyce Allen 23, a nurse's aide in Austin Tex.

"I was wakened by a doctor who said my Sam was fatally shot. He wondered, if Sam didn't make it, if I would okay donation of his heart and kidneys," she said.

"I was pretty upset. We were both young and never thought about death," she recalled. "We never thought about what one would do if the other one died.

"But I figured if his brain was dead, then he just couldn't be Sam anymore, and he would have wanted his heart to help others."

Junior Editors' Quiz on THE GANNET

QUESTION: What is a gannet?

* * *

ANSWER: The gannet is a large white sea bird with black on wing tips, a strong sharp bill, webbed feet and a small pouch beneath the throat. It is a huge bird about 3 feet long and with a wing spread of 6 feet. In flight, gannets appear to taper at both ends.

The gannet belongs to the Sulidae family of birds. They breed on small rocky islets off the coast of Britain and Iceland, and also nest on the rocky cliffs of Canadian islands. They frequent the seacoasts in various parts of the world. These pure white goose-like gannets are a beautiful sight at sea. They are graceful birds and are master gliders. When fishing, they plunge from a height, sometimes 100 feet up, head first into the water, resulting in a large splash. They are often helpful to fishermen, since they show where the fish are located. Relatives of the gannet are called Boobies and live in the tropics.

Early Birds Get Summer Jobs

Career Corner
by Joyce Lain Kennedy

In my last column we touched on summer jobs with Federal agencies. You may get trampled in the elephantine competition no matter when you apply, but your cause is certainly lost if you don't apply soon.

Your chances depend on the number and kind of summer jobs in the area where you apply, the number of applicants in that area, and your qualifications. Here's how the jobs stack up:

GROUP I. These jobs range in grade from GS-1 through 4. This is the only group of jobs which requires you to take the Summer Employment Examination. Last deadline for applications is Jan. 25, to take the exam between Feb. 23-Mar. 9. Education or experience requirements and weekly pay for each grade are: GS1, no education or experience requirement, $96. GS-2, high school grad or 6 months' experience, $109. GS-3, 1 yr. college or 1 yr. experience, $123. GS-4, 2 yrs. college or 2 yrs. experience, $138.

By next summer, you must be 18, unless you're a high school grad who is at least 16. Jobs in this group include engineering/science aid positions and such clerical jobs as typist, steno, clerk, office machine operator, etc. The Defense Civil Preparedness Agency plans to hire a limited number of architectural and engineering students as data collectors.

GROUP II. This category includes other jobs in grades GS-1 through 4 which do not require the Summer Employment Exam. You apply directly to hiring agencies. As a rule, Federal agencies each require certain fields of college study or experience, The Forest Service, The National Park Service, and the Veterans Administration.

GROUP III. This is a grouping of professional and administrative positions in grades GS-5 and above that require at least a bachelor's degree or equivalent experience. You apply directly to any of some 50 Federal agencies and departments. Education requirements and approximate weekly pay are: GS-5, 4 yrs. college, $155; GS-7, 1 yr. graduate work, $192; GS-9, masters' degree or 2 yrs. grad work, $234; GS-11, doctoral degree, $282; GS-12, doctoral degree – research positions only, $336.

GROUP IV. Most of the jobs in this group are laborers' jobs and no particular kind of education or experience is required. A very small number of summer jobs are also available in the trades. For these you must have had appropriate experience. To work as a carpenter's helper, for instance, you must have had some experience in carpentry. Trade and labor workers are paid according to local prevailing rates. You apply directly to the Federal agencies where you wish to work before Apr. 15. Listings of Federal agencies can be obtained from any U.S. Civil Service Commission Area Office, and are also listed in the white pages of the phone directory under "U.S. Government."

GROUP V. These are special Government-wide summer employment programs and include the Student Trainee Program (not strictly a summer job program but a work-study career plan), Summer Employment for Needy Youth program, and the Federal Summer Intern program.

FOR MORE DETAILS: Get a copy of "Summer Jobs in Federal Agencies" (Oct. '73). It's free and available in many major post offices, college placement offices, Federal Job Information Centers, and U.S. Civil Service offices.

Tooters Important As Shooters

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Are tooters as important as shooters to the national defense?

Army M. Sgt. Clinton Edwards of Ft. Benning's 283rd Band thinks they are.

He responded Thursday to a statement by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., who demanded proof that "piccolo players are vital to the national defense."

Aspin complained to the Defense Department about more than 100 military musicians being granted special re-enlistment bonuses because their jobs had been designated "critical military skills."

Edwards, an accomplished piccolo player who saw combat in both Korea and Vietnam, recalled a 1968 battle at Dak To in Vietnam.

"I was with the 4th Infantry Division and they decided to show the enemy that we were secure. So we set up on top of a hill and had grilled steaks and dancing girls—and the place was bristling all around with enemy troops.

"We had a 16-piece stage band playing jazz right on top of the hill. I could see the psychological effect it had on the men," the sergeant said.

PRINT SALE—Samples of the prints which will be offered for sale Monday by the Artisans' Club at Western Texas College are shown above. The prints will be displayed from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the Student Center, and will sell for $3 each. Club members will be at the display throughout the day to assist buyers. Pictured above with the prints are three club members, (left to right) Donna Orsburn of Snyder, Cathy Holton of Big Spring, and Sherry Taylor of Abilene.

Cotton Harvesting

Looks as if we are headed toward another bale per acre cotton crop. Reports from the ginners over the county show 27,375 bales either processed or on the yard.

The per cent completed varied from 10 in the Ira and Dunn Area to around 75 in the Inadale Area. An average on this would place the county at about 45 per cent complete and with this, we would estimate that 50,000 bales is quite evident for Scurry County.

Grades being received also indicate a much higher quality cotton this year over last. Especially is this true of the micronaire readings. This is to be expected since we do have well matured cotton over most of the area.

The number of bales and per cent complete for each gin looks like this:

Paymaster	4,525	35
Dunn 460	just started
Layfield (Ira)	175	10
Snyder Coop	4,256	45
Hermleigh	2,440	55
China Grove	5,204	50
Fluvanna	3,023	45
Inadale	7,292	75

Its unlikely, but we could possibly wind up with the majority of this crop in by Christmas. At least maybe we won't be gathering cotton in April like we did last season.

We have been able to get a couple of the cotton variety demonstrations harvested. Carl Williams and Billy Joe Clifton were able to harvest the ones they had. The results have not been received from the Research and Extension Center at Lubbock yet.

The result of verticillium wilt demonstrations on Joe Landrum and Bert O'Neal have not been completed as yet, but should be forthcoming soon.

Parasites on Livestock

The first chance you get, you might check your cattle for lice, as the weather has been ideal for them to build up to pretty high numbers.

Low numbers of lice survive the summer, but during fall and winter lice can multiply rapidly. Some types of cattle lice suck blood while others feed on skin scales and hair. They usually cause intense irritation and unthriftness.

While the weather is still mild and before too much damage is caused to the cattle would be a good time to spray.

There are several insecticides in sprays, dips and pour-ons that you can use. Check labels and use as directed.

Production Meetings

January 21-23 there is going to be five Short Courses Conducted at Texas A&M University at the same time. This will enable producers to travel together even though they may not want to attend the same subject matter short course.

Short courses scheduled are being offered in beef cattle, dairy cattle, horses, swine and forages and pastures. I have more information on them if you are interested.

Ditmars Lizard In Tuscon Museum

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Scientists had to stir around in the stomach of a lizard preserved 75 years to come up with the latest attraction at the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum here.

The Ditmars Horned Lizard was discovered in the desert of Sonora, Mexico, in 1897 by Raymond Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York Zoological Park. It was declared a new species in 1910, but no new specimen was found for three quarters of a century.

Then M.D. Robinson of the University of Arizona combined records of an 1890 lizard-collecting expedition with clues taken from the stomach of one of the preserved reptiles.

Identification of ingested grasses, pebbles and insect remains helped scientists pinpoint the creature's habitat and rediscover the ditmarsi population.

Queen Orders Heat Reduced

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II has ordered heating in Buckingham Palace cut to the mid-60s as a royal contribution toward easing Britain's energy crisis.

The palace also announced Wednesday the royal family would travel by scheduled train services when possible. "Wherever economies can be made, they will be made," a palace spokesman said.

'March' Set Here By Arthritis Unit

Mrs. Nellie Smith is serving as chairman for a "Victory March" to be conducted here Tuesday in behalf of the West Texas Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

H. W. Cargile is special gifts chairman and residents will receive letters and information from him soon.

Others working in the campaign are Mrs. Travis Rhoades, Mrs. Ray Hollister, Mrs. Alice Lane, Mrs. Johnny Bishop, Miss Ruby Butts and members of the Gay 20 Club.

Arthritis is the No. 1 crippler, with 10 per cent of the population suffering from the disease in some form to the extent that medical care is needed, said Mrs. Charles Linehan, Midland, chapter executive director.

"We don't like being No. 1 in this respect," declared Mrs. Linehan, who said the foundation is working to improve diagnosis and treatment techniques to reduce the pain and crippling and to find a cause, cure or preventive so that in the future no one will have to suffer as so many do today.

A quarter of a million of those afflicted are children, says Dr. Charles Sisk, Foundation Medical Director, and over 250,000 new cases are diagnosed annually. In many cases early diagnosis and proper treatment can "manage" the disease, he said, so that victims can live more normal lives longer.

One of the main problems is that there are not enough specialists in practice today, nor is there enough research being done, says Dr. Bruce Bartholomew, rheumatologist and head of the new department of rheumatology at the new medical school at Texas Tech. Dr. Bartholomew serves as medical director for the West Texas Chapter. He expresses appreciation to the chapter for the support offered through research grants and fellowships for graduate students at the medical school who choose this field as their speciality. In the future, this should help West Texas arthritics by providing more specialists to practice in the area, he said.

Contributions to the West Texas Chapter are allocated as follows: one third for support of national programs of research and education and the remainder for research and fellowships at the Texas Tech Medical School and for patient services and public and professional education in the chapter's 83-county area.

The chapter provides programs with panels of doctors and other speakers and hopes to have units in all counties. Anyone interested in developing a unit here may contact Mrs. Linehan at the chapter office at 2101 West Wall Street, Suite 6, Midland 79701, or Mrs. Nellie Smith at 3800 Noble in Snyder.

Senate Okays 11% SS Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted overwhelmingly to increase Social Security benefits 11 per cent and set up a system of grants for low-income working families.

The 66-8 vote Friday night sent the legislation to conference with the House, which also has approved an 11 per cent across-the-board boost in Social Security payments for the 30 million persons now on the rolls.

The House provisions were in a different bill than the one cleared by the Senate.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., manager of the Senate version, said he was confident a compromise would be sent to President Nixon before the 1973 session ends.

The Senate debated the legislation for three days, adding dozens of provisions including $2.8 billion worth of new Social Security benefits.

The Social Security increase would take effect in two steps, 7 per cent effective immediately and 4 per cent next June.

Solar Heating Of Homes Seen

DALLAS (AP) — A solar energy specialist from Tempe, Ariz., said here Friday that solar heating of homes will be very common in the United States before too long.

John I. Yellott said at a symposium on solar energy at the Dallas Country Club that the country is "over a barrel, an oil barrel, and it's empty."

He said that while electricity derived from solar energy is possibly "far down the line," the sun can be used to heat homes, provide hot water and give a reasonable degree of air conditioning, Yellott said.

"We know most of the basic technology already," he told the press.

Flat plates or panels called "solar collectors" can be placed on the southward side of an arched roof. The energy from the sun is collected by the plates, then fed inside the building through a variety of technical methods.

At the time of World War I, "there were thousands of solar water heaters," he said. But growth of the oil and gas industries blotted out solar energy, he added.

Yellott is president of John Yellott Engineering Associates, consultants in solar energy. He hopes to help produce solar energy units low enough in price to be bought by homeowners.

But better storage systems are needed for the collected solar energy and at present solar energy systems are more expensive than using gas, he said.

Floyd A. Blake, program manager of solar power research for the Denver Division of Martin Marietta Aerospace, said solar power systems "should have a prominent place in the nation's electrical energy supply inventory."

He stressed a system converting solar energy to steam and then to electric power.

The "Sun Bowl" area of the United States, running roughly from California down through Arizona and New Mexico to far southwest Texas, is the most suitable for solar energy conversion using direct sunlight-powered systems, he said.

A brief demonstration of the power of concentrated sunlight took place earlier on a porch of the DCC. Two batteries of ordinary shavinr mirrors collected energy which in turn powered by steam a small wheel-driven unit nearby.
