Roosevelt Promises Surprise In Bank Situation

"I Hold No Ill Feelings," Declares Youth In Shadow Of Electric Chair

Mitchell Says He "Can Stand The Gaff"

"I hold no ill feelings, for I was kind of deserving of it; but it is double tough on me. I've suffered for shooting a man," said young Paul Mitchell Wednesday after a jury in 72nd district court had ruled he should die in the electric chair in the holdup and slaying of Robert Tharp. Mitchell and the instrument of his fate are shown above.

No Ill Feelings

Expresses A Wish To Talk To Parents Of Bob Tharp, Who Was Killed; Jury's Verdict Returned Wednesday

By GORDON WEBB
Avalanche Staff Writer

PAUL MITCHELL, facing the electric chair for an armed robbery, "can stand the gaff."

The first man to receive a death sentence from a Lubbock county jury, the 24-year-old Amarilloan told the Morning Avalanche he had "no ill feelings" for the verdict. He re-iterated a wish to talk to parents of Robert Tharp, who was fatally wounded during holdup of an M-System store here in October.

Shows No Emotion

For this confessed hijacking, a 72nd district court jury Wednesday morning demanded Mitchell's life. The verdict was returned at about 9:20 o'clock, while the young mechanic sat without visible emotion.

"It hit me kind of hard, but I can stand the gaff," Mitchell said in a cell in Lubbock county jail yesterday afternoon.

His next statement was of his mother and his wife, who had been with him in the jail a short time before.

Holds No Ill Feelings

"It will be hard on my mother and my wife," he said.

"I hold no ill feelings, for I was kind of deserving it; but it is double tough on me. I've suffered for shooting the man."

There was no bravado, no cocksureness in Mitchell, admitted perpetrator of robberies in Big Spring, Amarillo, Lubbock, and Oklahoma. He was visibly under a strain. His shirt and tie had been removed, and he had only a silk or rayon undershirt on his torso. An oval, purple scar gleamed on his right shoulder, the mark of an Oklahoma officer's bullet.

Blow From Golf Ball Takes Life

(By The Associated Press)

ABILENE, March 8.—A blow on the head from a golf ball driven off the tee by a friend brought death today to Cecil H. Folliard, 33, railroad representative here.

Folliard was hit behind the right ear Tuesday afternoon, as he stooped to place his ball, some 60 feet in front of the tee from which D. M. Dickey of Anson made his drive.

The injury at first was considered inconsequential, Folliard and Dickey completing a nine-hole round. That was late in the afternoon. About 10 p. m. Folliard developed a severe headache, and an hour later was conveyed to a hospital, in an unconscious condition. Paralysis developed, affecting the entire left side of his body. Physicians said a clot on the brain was the cause of death, which occurred at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Senate Votes Down Bill To Kill Colleges

Refusal To Print Bill Given After Reconsideration And Second Vote; Was Sponsored By Waco Senator

Small And Woodul Back Plan To Provide For Assessment Of The Death Penalty In Attempted Assassinations

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 8.—The Texas senate today refused to permit a bill proposing to abolish eight state colleges to be printed after the finance committee had reported it adversely. Refusal to print by a vote of 16 to 10 killed the bill, sponsored by Senator W. R. Poage of Waco.

The senate spent hours in debate on merits of the proposal before it finally acted. It previously had ordered the bill printed by a vote of 14 to 13, but Senator Will D. Pace of Tyler moved to reconsider, explaining he had misunderstood the questions and did not mean to vote to print on minority report. Reconsideration prevailed and the final blow was delivered.

Concurrence Refused

The house refused to concur in senate amendments to its bill making appropriations for support of the judiciary for the biennium beginning on September 1.

The senate and house state affairs committees met in joint session tonight to consider bills, recommended by a legislative committee on organization and economy, to reorganize the state governmental departments. If the plan submitted should be adopted the number of departments, boards and commissions would be reduced from 139 to 19.

Would Abolish Eight

The Poage bill would have abolished four state teachers colleges, North Texas at Denton, Southwest Texas at San Marcos, Sul Ross at Alpine and Stephen F. Austin at Nacogdoches.

The College of Arts and Industries at Kingsville, College of Mines at El Paso, John Tarleton Junior Agricultural college at Stephenville and North Texas Junior Agricultural college at Arlington also would have been abolished.

Federal Agents To Leave Speakeasies Up To States

Nervous Patrons Of Such Places Receive Assurance They Will Not Be Molested

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 8. — Nervous speakeasy patrons unable to shake off an apprehensive thought of possible raids by federal agents received the reassurance today of official word from Prohibition Director Woodcock that henceforth his men will pay little attention to such violations.

Under a change of policy made known by Woodcock, the federal government will concentrate "almost entirely" on liquor manufacturers and transporters and will leave the speakeasy problem to the states.

The new plan puts in immediate effect restrictions imposed by congress against spending any money after July 1 for wire tapping or for purchasing liquor as evidence. The regulations went out on March 3, the day before President Roosevelt was inaugurated.

In a statement Woodcock said the restriction against buying evidence "will make it virtually impossible for the bureau to be effective against speakeasies in most jurisdictions" and that "in the main" such complaints will be referred to local authorities.

"It is probably a good thing in the long run," he added, "because it will tend to focus attention upon the responsibility of local authorities upon speakeasies and similar violations, and make our work more effective by fixing a more definite

Extension Of Holiday Seen As Next Move

Government Works Busily To Complete Its Plans For A Controlled Expansion With Congress Meeting Today

Optimism Prevails

President's Message Will Be Delivered Today Or Friday; Scrip Plan Is Abandoned By Treasury Officials

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 8. — The government worked busily to complete its plans for a controlled expansion of the currency tonight as President Roosevelt drafted a message to congress asking power to continue his command of the nation's banks until the present crisis is passed.

The approach of the end of the four-day holiday brought word from the White House Mr. Roosevelt would issue a new proclamation to make sure of his grip on the national gold supply until congress can act or the banking chaos he inherited is transformed to order.

Word Is Awaited

Word was eagerly awaited tonight from the buzz of activity at the treasury building on the form of additional currency which Secretary Woodin announced would be issued in the place of previously considered national scrip.

It was made emphatic in official circles during the day this additional currency which is regarded as essential during the crisis was not a printing press money proposition, but would be based on "sound" standards of monetary practice.

The end of the third day of the banking holiday found optimism pervading the capital. Ruddy of face and smiling, Mr. Roosevelt received newspapermen in his office this morning and freely exchanged question and answer with them about the banking problem. He said he had some "surprises" for tomorrow's message to congress.

Light Is Seen

Secretary Woodin also spoke hopefully.

"We can see light here," he told newspapermen.

The continued expressions of public confidence pouring in on the chief executive and his assistants brought a tribute from Mr. Woodin.

"I am more than stunned with admiration for the cooperation of the American people in a crisis like this," he said. "Things are doing very well. It is not due so much to the efficiency of this office as it is the cooperative spirit of the American people."

Seek Emergency Powers

In his first message to congress tomorrow Mr. Roosevelt will stress, of course, the banking situation and ask for emergency powers to continue his leadership in finding the solution.

If new legislation is requred for the emergency currency that is planned, that, too, will be asked.

There was a rather definite hint at the White House also that Mr. Roosevelt is going to act tomorrow on part of the sweeping government reorganization plan by which he intends to trim government expenditures to the first of government collections.

Begins On Message

The president did not begin writing his message until tonight after

Eye-Witness Tells Story Of Fatal Belton Burning

Says Girl's Father Threw Contents Of Bucket On Her

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 8.—Tom Carpenter, Belton mail carrier, gave his version of the fatal burning of Doris Yarbrough, 16, of Belton, as testimony was started today in the murder trial of her foster father, Cal B. Yarbrough, automobile mechanic.

Carpenter, a neighbor of the Yarbroughs, said he was attracted to the garage of Yarbrough's home in time to see Yarbrough throw the contents of a bucket on Doris, his adopted daughter. The state contended the bucket contained gasoline which was ignited from a blow torch.

Child Was Groaning

"Doris was groaning a little at the time," Carpenter said. "I saw a tin bucket in Yarbrough's hand and saw the contents thrown on Doris, followed by a lightning-like flash with flames leaping to the girl's face. Then I saw Yarbrough turn around, grab a bucket of water and throw it on Doris. As soon as the water hit her, I grabbed Doris and took her out of the garage and pulled some of the clothes off of her. She was on fire until the water hit her."

The witness said Yarbrough did not come to the girl's assistance. The girl ran to the Mayfield home, next to the Yarbrough home, Carpenter said, while he (Carpenter) stayed in the garage with Yarbrough. There, he said, Yarbrough explained the occurence.

Occurence Explained

Carpenter quoted Yarbrough as saying Doris had been cleaning the rear hub of an automobile.

"Yarbrough said he was reaching for a gallon bucket sitting on a scaffold, intending to clean the top of the car," the witness continued. "He said the bailing slipped on one side of the bucket and caused the gasoline to spill on Doris. He said a lighted blow torch was on the running board of the car."

Mrs. Elizabeth Gregory, a neighbor, testified Yarbrough frequently had punished his foster daughter severely.

Mrs Gregory said she saw Doris

One of the suspects, Carl W. Pearce, 36, Burlington, Colo., insurance salesman, confessed, police said, he wrote the ransom notes to young Boettcher's wealthy father, Claude K. Boettcher. Pearce said he copied the notes on a typewriter from penciled notes written by Verne Sankey, 41.

Local Banks May Reopen Tomorrow

Unless other instructions are received from Washington or Austin, Lubbock banks will open at 9 a. m. Friday, March 10, local executives said yesterday.

The Lubbock officials had not been advised of what restrictions will be placed upon their operations by state or national banking authorities, but whatever those restrictions may be their handling of business will be bounded by such restrictions.

Lubbock bankers are of the opinion the national moratorium likely will be extended until Monday morning, March 13. Holders of safety deposit boxes continued yesterday to enter their vaults. The Lubbock Clearing House money changing depot at the chamber of commerce continued in operation.

Governors Sound Appeal For Unity

WASHINGTON, March 8. (AP)—An appeal for national unity, unexampled in peace-time history, was issued today in simultaneous proclamations by the governors of the states.

Acting at the suggestion of a non-partisan committee, including civic, political, and religious leaders and the heads of important national organizations, the state executives asked for a solid front, in this time of trial, behind President Roosevelt and American institutions.

Reports to the committee tonight were that every governor had joined in the proclamation except where legal technicalities prohibited it.

Blazing Artesian Well At Refugio Continues Burning

CORPUS CHRISTI, March 8. (AP)—Fed by an unchecked gas supply, the blazing artesian well which already had razed 13 homes at Refugio continued to resist fire fighting efforts tonight.

The well crater was widening slowly as its walls crumbled and flames were shooting from numerous cracks in the ground around it. The area involved approximated a city block. Firemen roped off several blocks and detoured traffic around the danger zone. One house was moved to safety.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The seventy-third congress, dominated by Democrats and pledged to support President Roosevelt's proposals, assembles tomorrow in extraordinary session to enact the new administration's emergency banking program.

Preparing to meet the executive's demand for speedy action, both senate and house Democrats and Republicans rushed their organization plans today. Leaders of the two major parties at both ends of the capitol have promised cooperation on the Roosevelt emergency program.

Speedy Organization

Within about two hours tomorrow, the organization will be completed and a joint congressional committee will be dispatched by the two branches to the White House to notify President Roosevelt the congress is ready to do business.

Either late tomorrow or early Friday, Mr. Roosevelt will send his first message to congress. It is expected by congressional leaders to be limited to the banking crisis and a request for the widest authority possible to effect economies and balance the federal budget, as the initial steps toward restoring financial stability.

Issuance Of Local Scrip May Be Started On Friday

WASHINGTON, March 8. (AP)—To clarify past instructions, treasury officials said definitely today that local clearing houses are permitted now to begin issuance of scrip locally beginning Friday, March 10, as set forth in rules issued by Secretary Woodin yesterday.

The one qualification on this authority, however, is that the treasury retains full power at any time to revoke the scrip issuing power from any or all clearing houses. In the meantime, however, it is not necessary for them to request specific treasury permission.

New Farm Aid Plan For Quick Passage After Bank Problems Are Out Of Way Being Studied

Leaders Of Farm Organizations Asked To Attend Conference Friday; Speedy Enactment Will Be Sought

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 8. — The preparation of a new farm aid plan to be enacted soon after the special session of congress disposes of emergency financial legislation is commanding the close attention of President Roosevelt's agricultural advisors.

Leaders of farm organizations were asked today to attend a conference Friday by Secretary Wallace who is anxious to make the new plan effective for this year's crop. Planting begins March 15 in many sections and enactment of needed legislation as soon as possible has been set as the goal.

Modification Planned

Wallace was reluctant to discuss the framework of the new plan other than to admit it "is to provide for an orderly retreat from production of lands now devoted to cotton, wheat and corn." He said it would be a "modification of the allotment plan and will involve renting of lands devoted to surplus production."

From other sources it was learned details of the plan have been worked out by Wallace and Dr. Rexford Tugwell, new assistant secretary of agriculture, and that President Roosevelt has approved the principle of the measure.

Determine Acreage

From the allotment scheme the new proposal will take the plan for having the secretary of agriculture determine at the beginning of the crop year the acreages of wheat, cotton and corn needed to fill domestic needs. The corn estimate would be figured in terms of requirements. A possibility exists that tobacco would be added to the list of commodities.

After the quotas of lands to be removed from production would be figured for every state, county and

Fifteen Men Reported Saved From Extensive Ice Floe In Lake Superior; Others Are Still Missing

(By The Associated Press)

ASHLAND, Wis., March 8.—Reports reaching here late today told of the rescue of fifteen fishermen, seven of them Indians, from an extensive ice floe drifting into Lake Superior south of Madeline island. As a blizzard closed in over the region rescuers said a number of men were still on the floe.

The fishermen, carried toward the main body of the lake when an eight mile ice field broke away from the shore, were rescued by Eddie Madosh and John Bennett.

They made several trips in a small boat. On their last journey to the floe Madosh and Bennett said they saw, in the distance, several more men walking over the floe. The storm increased and the rescuers lost sight of the men. There is a possibility that they were taken to shore by some other boat, but it was feared they remained on the floe.

Mr. And Mrs. John Doe Finding But Few Worries

By ROBERT ST. JOHN
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, March 8. — Mr. and Mrs. John Doe, average American citizens, found by tonight that the banking holiday is interfering little with their normal mode of living.

Although they might have little cash, few of their creditors were insisting on cash.

Checks, technically, might not be worth, at the moment, more than the paper they were written on, but most everyone was accepting them in good faith.

And if Mr. and Mrs. John Doe happened to have their money tied up in savings accounts or in some other manner that prevented them from being personally in a "liquid" condition, there was still little to worry about.

There were many other moratoriums than the one on bank withdrawals.

In scattered sections of the nation moratoriums were detailed on insurance policy payments, court fines, storage charges, telephone, gas and electric light bills, and other forms of personal debt.

The Alabama legislature received a bill proposing a six-month postponement of foreclosures, judgments and liens.

In Kansas the state commissioner of insurance directed all life insurance companies doing business in the state to grant a 30-day additional period of grace on premium payments due after March 4.

In many cities magistrates and judges declared a moratorium on the payment of fines.

New York City gas, electric light and telephone companies established a policy of accepting checks, but even if the patron was unable to tender a check, his service was not cut off as long as he demonstrated he had funds which were tied up.

The interstate commerce commission ruled that the period of the bank holiday should not be considered in figuring demur-

DRESS FOR THE KITCHEN

THERE was a day when the kitchen was not considered a part of the house at all. No beauty was arranged there. It was merely a utility corner, often dark and certainly no place to be made attractive. Something or other changed the attitude of people. Now we have color schemes for kitchens as much as for any other room. The modern housewife makes her kitchen a place where she can be glad to live.

Of course, the change from having darkies in the kitchen to living there might have caused a lot of this change in attitudes among women who manage homes.

Kitchen color schemes, we are told, should follow the scheme of mother nature that is used in other interior decoration — floors dark and warm in color, walls light and ceilings tints of the sky. Paint is said to be the most practical and cheapest wall treatment, however washable papers and other coatings are good. One is urged now to let her imagination run to colors in decorating a kitchen — matching woodwork, pans, table covers and all the rest.

THE GOOD OF IT

SOME good comes from almost everything. A depression has brought a decided drop in the number of children that are employed according to figures released by Miss Grace Abbott, head of the children's bureau in the United States department of labor.

There was a drop of 33 per cent in 1930 and another drop of 26 per cent in 1931, while the rate for child labor has continued to drop since then.

However, Miss Abbott has an admonition that should not be overlooked. "Unless there is a further strengthening of the child labor and school attendance laws, an increase in employment opportunities will again draw children into industry in large numbers," she warns.

Without occasional reminders we are inclined to forget the good that a panic brings and look to prosperous times as having every good thing.

WHAT THEY READ

AMERICANS who look to France as a sort of Utopia because there are different moral standards there and who believe that French women have many traits that might be desirable here, may be interested in the opinions of Mme. Paul Dupuy, an American-born woman who is owner and editor of three French periodicals.

American and French women demand and read different types of newspaper stories, she asserts. In France the papers do not print divorce scandals. They have no editorials on sex. There are no articles urging "easier divorce" with personal opinions of famous people. There are no success stories about business or professional women, she states.

Those who are interested in reforming American women and their opinions might develop an argument through the opinions of this editor.

And, those who wail over standards of American youth might take a tip here and watch what they read.

WE MIGHT ALL LAUGH

IF WE could see ourselves as others see us there might be one hearty laugh all around.

The traditional idea of lawyers and their dislikes of each other might be blasted if people generally knew the fun that these men have together and the general respect and like they have for each other, even though they do argue on different sides of cases. The good-humored sessions that preachers have together might come as considerable surprise to those who think that these men are solemn and generally sedate. The quite ordinary interests of professors might be unbelievable to those who think all teachers consistently wear a scholarly mein.

And the prosaic lives that newspaper reporters lead on the whole would shatter the ideas of those who base their opinions of the Fourth Estate from picture shows and novels.

NORA BECOMES A PERFECT HOSTESS

BY DISCOVERING THE SECRET OF COFFEE MEN CAN'T RESIST!

TWICE THE RICHNESS —TWICE THE FLAVOR

Not Just a Different "Brand"—A Different KIND of COFFEE . . . From Central America

Folger's is not merely another "brand" or blend. But brings you the flavor of rare coffees from a totally different producing region.

These coffees are grown chiefly in tiny, isolated districts along the steep West Coast of Central America. A region that's famed for coffees which experts concede are not duplicated anywhere else in the world.

They differ from other coffees largely because they are mountain-grown. Because they are produced in an odd type of volcanic soil where altitude and steaming tropical rainfall impart a richness and winy tang that nature has never bestowed on any other coffee.

These are the coffees that give such a distinctive flavor to Folger's—the coffee that appeals especially to men. Brought to you with all its original mountain-freshness, faithfully preserved in key-opening, vacuum tins.

Please note that Folger's is particularly economical to serve. For, because of greater richness and body, one pound of it goes as far as a pound and one-third of cheap, paper-package coffees. In other words, you use ¼ less and still have richer coffee!

he had completed his talks with advisers and officials who have been drafting the emergency program.

While the government has abandoned the plan for use of a national system of clearing house scrip — paper based on the assets of depositors in the closed banks—it is ready to permit their use in localities where the emergency requires, reserving the power to cancel such permission at any time. The president has definite ideas in mind about the uniform banking system which he wants to prevail and about the extensive reorganization by which he desires to guard against any future banking collapse.

But he believed events are moving so swiftly just now and new situations developing so quickly that it will be impracticable to attempt to lay down his permanent program for two or three weeks. If congress wants to adjourn or recess after enacting the emergency program he is willing.

Leaders Are Called

Congressional leaders who are rallying steadfastly around the Roosevelt leadership to assure quick action were called to the White House tonight to talk over plans of procedure.

Considerable sentiment prevails on capitol hill for the disputed bill for guarantee of bank deposits but there is no sign that this step is in the Roosevelt emergency program. He' has given assurance of protection for new deposits now acceptable by the banks with the requirement that these be kept in trust funds for the depositors and be subject to withdrawal upon demand.

Steady relaxation of the banking holiday to permit the orderly release of funds to keep up the normal activities of life is receiving every consideration. Secretary Woodin planned immediate inquiry into reports from Kansas City that the federal reserve bank there was not advancing funds to member banks for food shipments and deliveries.

Morgenthau At Work

Henry Morgenthau, jr., new chairman of the farm board, went to work on the requests of representatives of the principal grain exchanges for regulations to permit immediate reopening of their markets to both cash and futures tradings.

The plea was that the nation's food supplies might otherwise be seriously disturbed.

The steady stream of callers in the White House was confined almost entirely to persons involved in working out the banking proposition. These included Attorney General Cummings, J. David Stern Philadelphia publisher and student of the monetary problem; and Bilbert N. Hitchcock, former Nebraska senator and expert on the federal reserve legislation.

Seen As Appointee

Hitchcock is regarded as a likely appointee to the federal reserve board. He related to the president the plan he advanced in the senate when the federal reserve bill was under consideration to establish an insurance fund in the federal reserve system for protection of depositors of closed banks.

Governor Ritchie of Maryland called to ask protection of the small town and county banks in the reorganization plan and said he was satisfied with his conference.

A balanced budget to assure the national credit is going to be insisted upon by Mr. Roosevelt as one essential step in his program. He is going to slash government costs as the first move and a sweeping program is believed nearing completion.

In asking continuance of the broad powers he has assumed under the war-time trading with the enemy act, the president's main objective is to make sure that the national gold supply is kept under strict guard from the raiders abroad and the hoarders at home.

Bill Is Killed

of Gonzales for writing the 25 per cent expense reduction plank in the state Democratic platform and then moving the previous question to assure the death of a bill which would have eliminated several state colleges.

Senator Tom Deberry of Bogota described Hopkins as the "senator who wrote the 25 per cent reduction into the Democratic platform and who doesn't try to write it into the appropriations bills."

Amendments Proposed

Poage asked the bill be sent back to the finance committee where he would have a chance to offer some amendments. He said he was willing for John Tarleton to be continued and for the College of Arts and Industries to be maintained as a teachers college.

He argued that the bill was entitled to consideration by the senate, even though that body should decide to make radical changes in it.

The senate reached consideration of the county home rule constitutional amendment but opposition developed, and the resolution was placed back on the table subject to call.

A bill was introduced in the senate to provide for assessment of the death penalty for attempted assassination. It was offered by Senators Clint Small of Amarillo and Walter Woodul of Houston. Under the existing statutes the maximum penalty for assault to murder is 15 years.

the result of that bullet wound. It was while he was believed dying that another Amarillo youth was held here for the Tharp slaying, Mitchell said.

"I heard the doctor say I couldn't live; he thought I was unconscious," Mitchell said.

Jailer Parum Posey, who heard the interview, said that the lead pellet could be removed from Mitchell's back while he was awaiting outcome of his appeal.

Wanted It As Souvenir

"I kind of wanted it for a souvenir of Oklahoma," he said.

Mitchell was asked if he believed he ever would be placed in the electric chair.

"I don't know," he replied. "I'd be glad to get a 99-year sentence. I knew I was liable for this when I pleaded guilty, but I wanted to tell it all.

"They blocked every chance I had to prove I had been leading a straight life since then."

Of the Rev. and Mrs. Ed Tharp, the victim of the holdup, Mitchell said:

Like To See Tharp Family

"I hope the Tharps don't hold me too much ill will, because I didn't do it on purpose. I would like to see some of them, if they could come up here."

Then pensively:

"They must hate me, things being like they are."

From an operating table at Lubbock sanitarium shortly after he was shot through the abdomen, Tharp, wan from loss of blood and shock, repeatedly asked:

"Why Did He Shoot Me?"

"Why did he shoot me? I did everything he told me to."

"He got what he deserved I guess, but I hated to see it done," the Rev. Mr. Tharp, Brownfield Methodist minister, said yesterday. The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Tharp attended the trial.

From District Attorney Daniel A. Blair, came this comment:

"It's about time Lubbock county juries took action on cases of this kind."

Members Of Jury

Blair was assisted by Burton S. Burks in the prosecution. J. E. Wells of Idalou was jury foreman. Other jurors were: M. J. Barton of Lubbock; Sam Awtrey, L. E. Parks, Acuff; C. O. Marricle, Lorenzo; Joe Tate, Slaton; A. Cope, Abernathy; J. C. Jones, Slaton; I. E. Crooks; S. R. Pangburn, Lubbock; and E. C. Bush, Becton.

The jurors, who decided to postpone deliberations until yesterday morning, received the case late Tuesday. The verdict came after about two hours study yesterday morning.

Mitchell is under indictment for Tharp's slaying, as is Clyde Shaffer, another Amarillo youth. Mitchell also faces a charge of robbery of an M-System store on Nineteenth street, held up the same night. Shaffer is named as an accomplice. A man, Bill Doupe, is involved in the hijackings and slaying.

Tharp was shot when a lone bandit held up the store at 1704 Broadway. Mitchell admitted on the witness stand Tuesday afternoon that he was the gunman in both robberies, and pleaded guilty of the offence for which he was on trial. Prior to his arrest January 29 in Kingsville, another suspect had been charged in the case. H. C. (Buddy) Blanton, '21, also of Amarillo, the suspect, was exonerated of all connection with the crimes.

Homer L. Pharr was presiding judge of the trial which began Monday.

Tharp, as a McMurry college football player, was known as "The Galloping Ghost."

Information obtained by Sheriff Tom Abel led to a wide-spread search for Mitchell.

rage and storage charges.

Some of the largest life insurance companies announced at their New York headquarters that checks were being accepted; that policies thus paid up would lapse technically, but that in event of death the benefit would be paid, after a deduction of the amount represented by the checks.

Checks were being accepted for the payment of income taxes, and in New York City Mr. Doe could use checks to pay his taxes, buy theatre tickets, go on a cruise or transact most of his personal affairs.

One other result of the bank holiday, credit men confided, is that the average citizen, even though he has bills which are overdue, is receiving few if any "dunning" letters this week.

The government would then contract to lease and retire from production the lands not needed to fill domestic needs.

One reason for haste is that the expense per acre would be increased if bids were not called for until after plowing, planting and other farm expense had been incurred.

The Mitchell Verdict

DAN BLAIR, Lubbock's new district attorney, set a record in this county yesterday when his victory in the case of State of Texas versus Paul Mitchell resulted in the latter's conviction with death penalty in 72nd District court here yesterday.

The case of Mitchell, admitted hi-jacker and slayer of young Robert Tharp in a crime which incensed this entire community, is the first in the history of Lubbock county to climax in the death penalty.

It was also the first important case prosecuted by District Attorney Blair, who has been in office scarcely more than 60 days.

That Mitchell would be convicted and given a heavy sentence was a foregone conclusion when the case was called. He had admitted his guilt in the robbery to officers after his arrest; he further admitted from the witness stand that he held the death gun here on the night of October 15. Yet that he would receive the maximum penalty was doubtful, in-as-much as only once before in the history of the South Plains had a defendant been given a death sentence. It is thorough prosecution, resulting in the electric chair sentence, that constitutes Mr. Blair's record in his first big case.

There may be in Lubbock—and probably are—many citizens who are constitutionally opposed to the state's taking life in payment for crime. Yet it must be remembered that the laws of the State of Texas provide for a supreme penalty. And when Paul Mitchell, by his own admission, fired the shot during a holdup and killed a fine young man who was doing nothing except minding his own affairs, Mitchell placed himself in a position to receive the supreme sentence of death at the hands of constituted authority.

He showed no mercy to his victim.

He was acting of his own accord. His eyes were open when his bullet snuffed life from the body of his unarmed victim who, by his labors, was contributing to society and not detracting from it, as was Mitchell.

If the verdict passed in 72nd District court yesterday has shaken the community, as well it might, it goes without saying that it also stands as a warning to others who live outside the law, and who might otherwise be tempted to ruthlessly rob and kill.

MR. BRISBANE'S IDEA

Arthur Brisbane, who is Mr. Hearst's right hand man as well as the richest—and probably highest salaried—writer in the world, is out with a plan of his own to eliminate hoarding. Calling foolish the criticism of the small hoarder, Columnist Brisbane raps the government—city, state and nation—for offering in the form of bonds the greatest opportunity of all for hoarding.

"Once more," he pens, 'this writer suggests that the government call in ten thousand millions of the national bonds, issuing in payment for them nice, fresh, new money, bearing no interest but carrying the government's promise to pay, on green paper, every bit as good as that promise to pay, on yellow bond paper.

"In that way the taxpayers would save about four hundred million dollars a year in bond interests and ten thousand million dollars would be spent, or invested in some productive fashion, that would help the depression more than ten years of talk."

There is undoubtedly something in Mr. Brisbane's idea, even though, as he suggests, it might be necessary to pass a constitutional amendment to make it work out.

The trouble with the world is the stagnated money situation and some means of releasing the current is the principal thing for which all of us are looking.

The scientist who gives us another trillion years to live on this planet ought to permit one renewal in case those South American bonds aren't redeemed in that time.

Manner Cost Him His Job

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 8. — As I said once before, Chairman Charles E. Mitchell of the New York National City Bank's board of directors made a great mistake when he expressed himself with the profound contempt he plainly felt for his questioners, on the witness stand before the senate's stock market investigating committee recently.

Charles E. Mitchell

That he offended the senators did not matter to him, of course.

Much more to the point, his financial bosses evidently did not like the tone he took—with the result that the National City's board of directors already has a new chairman and Mitchell has severed his official connection with all the institution's affiliated concerns likewise.

In itself, there was nothing surprising in the incident.

Haughty

Mitchell, as he has shown in similar situations in the past, has a haughty temper. Senate committees have teased him on a number of previous occasions. In the latest instance, it was obvious that he had decided to tell the solons where to "get off".

It was the wrong time.

Public opinion is not attuned to any impudence from Wall Street.

Mitchell's superiors in the financial world manifestly realize this. It would seem that they had no patience with his attitude toward the senatorial inquisitors. Anyway, he appears to have had no difficulty in persuading them to accept his resignation—or resignations, for he offered as many as he had jobs with them.

Clearly it was his manner, rather than the information he supplied, that caused the trouble.

"Inside"

His account of Wall Street methods was not, it is true, the sort of thing one would suppose the "street's" best minds would care to have broadcast, but the fact is that there was no news in it. Congressman Louis T. McFadden, who knows the "inside" of "high financeering" as well as Mitchell does, has been telling the same story, over and over (in greater detail), for the last three years—and no one, in congress or out of it, has paid the slightest attention to him.

The "international bankers" simply pooh-poohed him—and it worked perfectly.

Mitchell's cue manifestly was to be polite to the investigators, make his testimony as complicated and technical as possible, and he unquestionably could have said all that he did say with no more disastrous consequences than to bore the committee members.

Instead, his position, in effect, was, "The particulars are so-and-so. What are you going to do about it?"

This did the business.

Even yet, McFadden cannot get himself listened to.

It is the concensus that this will be his policy.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

A HOLE 35 MILES LONG:

The longest hole ever played at golf was one measuring 35 miles in actual play, the tee being in Linton Park, near Maidstone, and the putting green at Littlestone on Sea, England. This remarkable golf match took place as a result of a wager to determine the number of strokes in such a long hole.

The start was made in the early morning from the north gate at Linton Park. At the 65th shot the River Beult was reached; at 11:25 Mr. Oyler reached Hertsfield Bridge; at the 915th stroke the players made Brensett. The main sewer draining Romner March had to be crossed, and the 1000th stroke bounced off a sheep. A mashie shot landed the players on the first green of the celebrated links at Littlestone, a putt rested within four feet of the hole, and with the 1087th stroke Oyler holed out at 11:38 on the 3rd day.

GIACOMO PUCCINI:

The famous composer of Madame Butterfly was the son of Michele, the grandson of Domenico, the great-grandson of Antonio, and the great-great-grandson of Ciacomo, who had all been professional musicians of distinction.

THE PARADOX OF A BUSHEL OF PLUMS:

Conflicting state laws regarding the contents of a bushel of some particular products render this measure extremely variegated. A bushel of plums in Florida is equal to 40 pounds, in Iowa it equals 48 pounds, while New Jersey, North Carolina, and some other states are legally bound by a bushel of plums equal to 64 pounds.

TOMORROW: "THE CURIOUS METAMORPHOSIS OF A FRENCH AUTHOR."

SPOTLIGHT

by H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SHEILA SHAYNE, dancer is discharged from a new play because MARION RANDOLPH, the star, is jealous of her. Sheila searches for work and finally secures a part in a musical show soon to go on tour. DICK STANLEY, rich and socially prominent, asks her to give up this job and marry him but Sheila refuses. Her idea of marriage is a home in some little town far from Broadway.

Sheila is friendly with JIM BLAINE, another actor in the company from which she was discharged. When Jim offended Miss Randolph quite unintentionally she asks CRAIG ABBOTT, who is backing the show financially, to discharge Jim. Abbott, tired of Marion and her demands, goes to see Jim and through him secures an introduction to Sheila.

A few days later Jim calls Sheila and tells her Marion is out of the show. Abbott sends Sheila a huge basket of red geraniums. He takes her to tea that afternoon and offers her the part Marion had. Sheila says she does not want it. Then Abbott asks her to marry him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

Sheila could almost hear her heart beating against her breast. "You're asking me to marry you and go back home?" she asked slowly.

Craig Abbott smiled. "Home for me," he said, "is wherever I hang my hat. I love Broadway. I've played up and down this street and played in luck, too. Every show I've been interested in so far has made money.

"Did you know 'Lucky Lady' was mine? It was, and it ran for 40 weeks. Now there are two companies playing it on the road. Your play, 'Heigh-ho,' has been a big success. With you in the cast it will be even bigger."

He took Sheila's hand. "I'm sick of the life I've been leading, though. I'm sick of late parties, hangovers, dinners and dancing. I want a home. Every man does, I think in his heart. Every woman, too. I want a home, Sheila, and I want you."

Still she did not answer.

"You can have any part in any show you want!" he urged. "Your name shining in electric lights! You can name your own company—be the toast of Broadway!"

"You mean that you'd be willing for your wife to keep on in the theater?" Sheila asked. She was incredulous for a moment and then she understood. This man was in love with what he believed would be her fame. He was the sort to sit in a theater box and beam when his sweetheart appeared from the wings, admired and desired by all—but her charms reserved for him alone. He wasn't in love with Sheila at all but with the fame she might win. After that fame had dimmed and the glamour had passed his interest in her would fade as well. She would be like every other girl then.

"I'll make you the talk of New York," Abbott was promising. "I'll make you a figure in theater history."

"Another Duse?"

"A second Pavlowa! I'll make your name go down in history and—"

"And up in electric lights."

"Please, Sheila! I mean it so—!"

"I'm thinking," she told him. Her cheeks were flaming and her eyes burned like dark coals. Craig Abbott loved her no more than he loved the theater. Probably not so much. If she should accept his offer it would mean only that Marion Randolph had been supplanted by Sheila Shayne. There would be a wedding ring, of course. That would be the only difference.

The girl lifted her head suddenly. "Craig," she said, "when I marry I don't want it to be that way. I want to marry someone who loves me—not my stage career. I—I guess it wouldn't work out very well for either of us."

Abbott looked at her curiously. Fifteen minutes later she was saying goodby and hurrying toward the theater.

It was the next afternoon that Myrt asked Sheila with careful casualness, "How's the geranium boy friend?"

Sheila shrugged. "I don't know," she said. "I don't expect to see him soon."

The following evening the "Heigh-ho" company set out on its road tour. Dick Stanley accompanied Sheila to the train. As they were crossing Times Square in a taxicab he said to her, "You know how I feel about you, don't you, Sheila?"

"Yes, I know."

"And do you still feel the same way about this road tour? About living in the country and marrying one of the leading citizens?"

"You know I do, Dick." She slid one hand into his confidingly. "They say show business gets into your blood." Her eyes took in the glittering electric signs they were passing, the stands where fruit drinks were sold, the shop windows, the knots of men and women who would be homesick if they found themselves five blocks away from Broadway.

"Somehow I don't feel that way," Sheila went on. She shook her head. "Show business hasn't got me yet. I want a real home, Dick, and I'm going to have one."

"I wonder," thought Dick. He wondered, too, what would be this slim girl's reception in the world she envied so. There was no doubt that her beauty would receive its due of admiration. But Sheila Shayne was of the stage, born and bred. It was in her very marrow. Could such a girl make a place for herself in a small town?

To be sure Sheila was far from typical of Broadway. Her hands, though nicely manicured, were not gleaming with crimson dye. Her trim little suit was simple and inconspicuous. Her face did not reflect the sophistication of the thoroughfare on which she was most at home.

Dick Stanley thought of small towns as he knew them. He thought of young girls, sheltered, but worldly. Inexperienced yet assured. Confident and also critical.

"Just how are you going to go about all this?" he asked bluntly.

Sheila laughed. "You mean how am I going to make some man marry me and give me a home? I'm not going to." She grew wistful. "It's just that in such an atmosphere I'm happier. I can't explain it."

"Don't try, dear."

How good Dick was! Sheila's heart softened as she watched him, assured and world-wise, helping her from the cab, calling the porter and arranging about her baggage. He took her ticket, walked with her to the tables and gave it to the official. Then, the red cap following, he moved with her toward the train.

"I exchanged that ticket and got you a lower berth," he explained.

"That was nice of you but you shouldn't have—"

"Oh, surely I can do that little for you!"

They were standing now at the entrance of the car. The red cap, struggled with Sheila's baggage, had gone inside.

"Are you going to write me?" Dick asked.

"Of course."

"Going to miss me?"

"How could I help it?"

Dick halted a train man to ask how much time remained and was told there was barely a minute. Four tiny blond chorus girls came rushing down the stairs, laughing and waving at their escorts who had been detained by a ruthless conductor. The girls spoke to Sheila as they crowded past. The comedian appeared, a red cap at his heels. A tall young man, pacing the platform, flecked ashes from his cigaret, preparatory to boarding the train.

"The leading lady seems to be having a party," said Dick. He and Sheila moved aside as a gay group of men and women emerged from the train, laughing and chatting. The leading lady, in evening clothes, appeared and bade them farewell.

"Well—" said Sheila hesitatingly. It was time to get aboard.

"Well—!" Dick began and then his jaw squared. "Look, pleasant, please! I'm going to kiss you. And listen, young lady, it's not for goodbye either!"

"No? For what then?"

"For instance!"

He gathered her, unprotesting, into his arms. There was a moment of tumult, unforseen, unexpected. Dicks first kiss! Another instant and he was gone.

As the train pulled out of Manhattan Transfer Sheila, cozily abed, watched the lights twinkling far beyond. Apartment houses. Factories. Crowded, hurried places, as bustling as New York. But tomorrow there would be wide sweeping meadows, winding rivers, towns twinkling past, just waking in the early morning. Children would be flocking to school, herded into safety zones as the express thundered past.

Small towns with everyone knowing everybody else. Calling out good-mornings, "Hello, Bill", "Hello, Mary." Family groups bidding a cousin or sister farewell.

That was the world in which she would find herself tomorrow. It was going to be an adventure. Sheila sank back with a sigh.

Letters To The Editor

L. C. Robertson Points Way Out Of Depression

Editor, The Avalanche: The present depression that now prevails all over the world has engaged the most astute minds on economic conditions. And all seem at sea as to its cause, and its remedy. Some attributing causes of which they themselves are unable to supply a remedy. Others attribute to other causes of which they are not able to make a satisfactory solution of bringing it to an end. That there is causes for this depression is patent to every observer, for this is revealed, but the future is an unsolved problem. No man, I don't care what his attainments may be, can pierce the gloomy future, and even tell the consequences that may yet follow, let alone the "how." We may escape its mighty grip on the resources yet remaining.

The world is out of joint, somewhat erratic. Its line of march is impeded. Some obstacle or obstacles has intervened, and how to remove these obstacles is yet to be solved. And the wisdom of man seems to have reached its limit. Not taking into account that there is a higher intelligence that sways the destiny of the world. Man's puny efforts to contrive by his own wisdom, to bring light out of darkness is as impotent as lighting a broom straw to help the sun shine. The causes of these economic conditions are the products of worldly wisdom as man so conceived it, yet ignorant of its consequences must suffer the consequences until this higher intelligence shall be pleased to better conditions through the instrumentality of man. Man's folly has brought on this condition. Man shall through instrumentality designed of God, bring back better conditions.

The return of money and the consequent prices of such magnitude stimulated trade and money flared in such volumes that it became so cheap as to be intoxicating. That our country went to the extreme in a mad rush after worldly pleasure. The mode of travel so intoxicating gave excess to all plans of entertainment. In our passion for worldly gain and pleasure we forgot God. We in a few years spent our money. Our customers abroad had spent theirs. So we had no buyers for our surplus. The consequences are that the fictitious prices of land, its products, meat, animals, that have prevailed have so deteriorated as to have no value. The markets are so glutted with all these things as hardly pays the transportation. They have no value at home, and no money abroad to buy. Why all this? We have spent our time and money "in riotous living" and like the prodigal son in rags and starvation we may like him descend to the low calling of feeding swine. Men who once were in opulence today are without a home. They have mortgaged their homes when money was plentiful to buy more land, more stock, took chances to add to their wealth. Today they can't even pay the interest and taxes, say nothing of the principal. We see our folly now, but it is too late. No man can see the future. The crutches offered by our government to bolster up the economic conditions are only a temporary affair, they only prolong the malady, but do not mitigat it.

What we need is to put on sackcloth and ashes, pray mightly to God, as did the Ninivites of old, build altars in our homes, in our communities, yet, in the churches; in the halls of our lawmaking bodies. Perchance the Lord will hear us, and turn this depression to our good, and to the honor and glory of God. Not simply the alleviation of our present condition but learn our duty, take God into partnership and continue therein—and soon this depression will disappear as a midnight delusion.

Respectfully submitted,

L. C. ROBERTSON,
Lubbock.

Haskell Indians To Play Tech Here Next Fall; West Texas Buffs Win

Second Battle Between Teams Is November 4

Lone Star Dietz To Bring His Indians To Lubbock On First Trip Here; Five Other Games On Matador Card

Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kansas, will send its football team to Lubbock next fall to play the Texas Tech Matadors.

After several weeks of telegraphic and postal communications between the schools, Tech and Haskell came to an agreement yesterday, Dutchy Smith, athletic department business manager, announced last night.

Cawthon In Austin

Before he left for Austin yesterday to attend the Texas Interscholastic league basketball tournament, Head Coach Pete Cawthon stated that Tech and Haskell probably would come to terms.

Date for the game was announced as November 4, and will probably be played at night, winding up the nocturnal season. Tech meets Simmons university on November 11 in a daylight game.

Coach Lone Star Dietz hopes to bring a colorful team to Lubbock next fall. Negotiations for the game began last summer when Dietz was here to attend the Texas Tech coaching school.

Replaces St. Louis Game

The game replaces the tentative agreement between Tech and St. Louis university. Tech officials did not say whether the Matadors would play St. Louis university this year.

The Matadors and Indians met for the first time in 1931 at the state fair at Dallas, the Indians carrying off an 8 to 0 victory. They were a colorful lot that year, but slumped in 1932. With a new business manager coming in at Haskell as a result of considerable agitation this winter, a new era in athletic history at the Indian school is expected, and Coach Dietz has intimated that his team will be strong in 1933.

Full Schedule Soon

A full schedule for the Matador gridsters probably will be released later this week, Smith said. Two or three games are hanging fire, but Smith expects signed contracts by Saturday.

Five other games are definitely signed. The Southern Methodist university Mustangs will return here this year, playing on September 30. The University of Arizona meets Tech in a Border conference game on October 14, but a definite place has not been announced. Louisiana Tech will be at Lubbock on October 20. Baylor university sends its Bears here on November 17, and the Kansas Aggies will play here on November 30, winding up the season.

Previously Hurst announced he would await legislative action in Pennsylvania on the blue law bill before making any salary demands, since passage of the measure, allowing Sunday baseball, would increase the Phillies' revenue this season.

GALVESTON RUNS TO COLORS

GALVESTON, March 8. (AP)—The Galveston Bucs joined the movement for loud uniform colors today. Roy J. Koehler, vice president, ordered road uniforms of dark orange and black uniforms for home stays.

The home uniforms will be black trimmed in white, with a white skull and cross bones.

George Darrow, left hand pitcher, was the latest man to agree to terms and was wired transportation today. He brings the list to 26 men under contract.

Wichita Henry Cagers Oppose Buffs Tonight

Burton's Team Rallies Late In Game To Beat Central Teachers Of Warrensburgh, Mo., In Second Round Game

KANSAS CITY, March 8. (AP) — The three-time champion Henry team of Wichita, Kas., and the towering West Texas Teachers of the Panhandle country will play their rubber game of the season in the quarter-final round of the A. A. U. national basketball tournament tomorrow night.

The Texans, forced to rally to survive both the second and third rounds, defeated the Central Missouri Teachers of Warrensburg, 33-25 this afternoon. The Missouri team yesterday defeated the Brown Paper Mills team from Monroe, La.

The Henrys never were challenged in their 44-18 third round victory over the Gridley Motors team, Kansas A.A.U. champion, also of Wichita.

Split At Canyon

In a two-game exhibition stand at Canyon, Tex., several weeks ago, the Henrys lost to the lanky Buffaloes, 26-29, and then squared it up by winning, 39-37.

West Texas was the only winner which had trouble with its opposition during a 3-game afternoon program.

The Hutchinson, Kas., Renos triumphed by 41-25 over the Southeastern Oklahoma Teachers of Durant, from whom the Renos had taken the high score honor of the tournament last night by winning a 61-21 game. The Oklahomans were behind by only a point once, however.

Tall Texans Rally

The Texas tall men trailed Warrensburg by 6-16 at one time and were behind by 13-18 at the end of the first half. Their height advantage settled it in the second half when Joe (College) Fortenberry, 6 foot 7 inch center, stood flatfooted in the midst of the Warrensburg defense and batted the ball through the hoop. The Buffaloes made only two of their 15 goals from outside the opposition defense.

Paced as usual by Melvin Miller, the trick-shot forward, the Henrys pulled away from the other Wichita entrant after a slow start and had control of the situation to the end. Miller registered eight goals and made good on all seven free throws awarded the Gridleys' futile attempts to stop him.

Third round basketball scores:

Kansas City Life 21; Philips university, Enid, Okla., 24.

Tulsa Oilers 32; Johnson Floors Los Angeles 15.

Mrs. O. S. Hill Advances To Semi-Finals At Belleair

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 8. (AP)—Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, Barbara Pyman and Kathleen Garnham of England, and Diana Fishwick, former British Women's champion, advanced into the semi-finals of the annual Belleair women's golf tournament today.

Miss Fishwick, overwhelmed Mrs. E. B. Gibbs, England, 7 and 6, but the other semi-finalists were forced to play at top form to advance.

Mrs. Hill shot a round of 82 against Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis., but was unable to win with the regulation distance, when Miss Wall squared the match on the 18th hole with a par four to Mrs. Hill's five. On the extra hole Mrs. Hill played perfect golf for a four while Miss Wall required seven strokes.

The Chicago Bears, pro football team, lost several footballs when point-after-touchdown goal kicks sailed over the Wrigley field fence, so in late games they substituted old, worn out balls for the goal kicks.

It's Giants Or Nothing For Him

If Perseverance Counts, Irving Should Become A Major Leaguer Soon; Hitch-Hikes From Gotham To L. A.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 8 (CP)—Irving Patron, 20-year-old Brooklynite, who hopes some day to wear the spangles of the New York Giants in a real major league game, ought to make the grade if perseverance counts. And it usually does.

Irving has been yearning for a trial with the Terriers ever since he was old enough to think seriously about adopting baseball as a career. But the Giants weren't spending money taking an untried youth all the way from Brooklyn to Los Angeles. Not in the spring of 1933 they weren't!

So Irving wrapped up his extra shirts and set out for California—on foot. He hitch-hiked all the way across these broad United States. Taking a head start he got to Los Angeles just as the main host of the Gothamites poured into town. The trip took 11 days.

It would have been far easier—and the trip would have been much shorter — if Patron had gone to Florida. But he wasn't interested in the major league clubs training in the Grapefruit state, not even his hometown Brooklyn or the high and mighty Yankees, The Giants are his club.

Manager Bill Terry has found a suit for Irving, and Coach Bill Southworth is giving the youth some special instructions. Members of the pitching staff are also interested in seeing that Irving learns a few tips on how to handle a baseball.

IRVING PATRON

Athens And Jeff Davis Listed As Pre-Tournament Favorites

Lamesa Meets Temple, Defending Champions, In A First Round Game Friday; Dallas Tech Looks Promising

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pre-tournament favorites for the 1933 Texas Interscholastic league basketball championship are the Athens Hornets and Jeff Davis of Houston.

Ranking second as favorites are the Dallas Tech Wolves and Thomas Jefferson of San Antonio.

The tournament will be held Friday and Saturday at Austin and promises to be one of the most interesting of the twelve state championship events.

Athens 3-Time Champs

The Athens Hornets are the only aggregation to win the scholastic title three times. They won in 1927, 1929 and 1931. Should the Hornets come through this week-end it will give them a record that may stand for many years—four state championships within seven years.

Dallas Tech Wolves

Coach "Doc" Hayes of the Dallas Tech Wolves will send a redoubtable team into the tournament. It breezed through the Dallas city series without a defeat and then won the district and bi-district rights to enter the state tournament.

Tech will show he tournament a five-man offense with Red Sledge the chief goal shooter. In the six district and bi-district games played by Tech, Sledge scored 48 points. In the six games, Tech scored 187 points to the opposition's 125. Coach Hayes is a graduate of the North Texas Teachers college at Denton where good basketball and higher education go hand in hand. His quintet plays a hard-driving game that should be to its advantage in a short two-day tournament such as the state scholastic event.

Temple Defending Title

The Temple high school Wildcats will be defending champions. Temple was defeated several times in regular schedule games this season, but when time arrived to bear down and win the district and bi-district titles the Wildcats proved they had the ability. The Wildcats meet Lamesa in a first round game.

The list of championship quintets follows:

1921—El Paso.
1922—Lindale (later disqualified.)
1923—Oak Cliff at Dallas.
1924—Oak Cliff at Dallas.
1925—Beaumont.
1926 — Brackenridge at San Antonio.
1927—Athens.
1928—Austin (later disqualified).
1929—Athens.
1930—Denton.
1931—Athens.
1932—Temple.

Of the 19 players on the trimmed University of Wisconsin varsity basketball squad, 12 are 6 feet or taller and the whole squad averages 6 feet 1 inch—with an average weight of 172 pounds.

Keeping Up With Tech Athletics

BY ED McKEEVER
Tech Sports Correspondent

Texas Tech will send a boxing team to the A. A. U. tournament at the New Mexico Military institute in Roswell the 24th and 25th of this month. Nine schools will be represented. Wrestling will be excluded, thus depriving the best mat team in Tech ring history from competing in a nationally recognized meet.

It is interesting to note that during the month of February there were 17,093 spectators at the various athletic events held in the gym, 3,943 boy students used the gym for physical education. There were also 3,580 girls in 112 classes, making a total of 24,616. Besides this approximately 2,000 used the tennis courts at various times during the month.

Jack Durham, four year letterman and captain of the Matador football team of 1930 and 1931 is back at school in preparation to enter school again for the spring term.

"Shorty" France, star half back of the 1930 and 1931 Tech team, has signed a contract to play short stop for the Galveston Buccaneers of the Texas League.

All indications point to dual meets in boxing and wrestling with T. C. U., Texas and Oklahoma A. and M. next winter. The signing of the renowned Ed Gallagher of Oklahoma A. and M. for the coaching school should help to stimulate interest in both wrestling and boxing at Tech.

SIMMONS' HEALTH O. K.

PASADENA, Cal., March 8. (AP)—White Sox worries over Al Simmons' health vanished today as the big outfielder drove ball after ball over the fence in battling practice.

"If he's sick, show me to a good hospital at once so I can get some more like him," Manager Lew Fonseca shouted.

Manager Fonseca intimated he may use Red Kress in right field this season.

Westerners To Meet Sandies Here Friday

Chapman Holds Preliminaries In Effort To Pick Team For First Track And Field Meet Tomorrow At Tech Field

Final trials for places on the Lubbock High school track and field team in its meet tomorrow with Amarillo High school will be held this afternoon, Coach Weldon Chapman has announced.

The Westerner thinly clads have been working over time this week in an effort to round into shape for their first inter-school meet.

May Go To Snyder

A detachment of the Westerner track team may go to Snyder Saturday to compete in the invitation track and field meet, although Coach Chapman made no definite announcement regarding the invitation. The Snyder meet is open to teams of this section.

In preliminary trials at the Texas Tech track, where the meet with Amarillo will be held, the following athletes placed in the order named in the following events:

100-yard dash—Dalton Blagg, Joe Nelson, Rufus Ryan; Alfred Arnold and Paul Warren tied for fourth place.

220-yard dash — Robert Stone, Charles Young, Joe Nelson and Rufus Ryan.

440-yard run — Charles Young, Robert Stone, Leonard Knight and Hugh Huff.

880-yard run—Kendrick Green, Dick Chapman and Wilson Chapman.

1 mile run—Graham Stanfill.

Low hurdles—Artie Hicks, Dalton Blagg, Clarence Mast and James Hunt.

High hurdles — Robert Stone, Clarence Mast, James Hunt and Maurice Cowan.

Blagg Wins Two

High jump—Dalton Blagg, Maurice Cowan, Robert Stone and Robert Hale.

Broad Jump — Dalton Blagg, Rayburn Hale, Joe Nelson and Artie Hicks.

Javelin — Maurice Cowan, Paul Warren, Robert Hale and Rayburn Hale.

Shot put—George Janes and Robert Hale.

Discus — George Janes and Robert Hale.

Pole vault — Maurice Cowan, Artie Hicks, Hugh Snodgrass and Earl Miller.

No preliminaries had been held in the mile relay.

Two lads believed to be valuable additions to the track and field team are the Chapman twins, Dick and Wilson, who formerly attended Amarillo High school but who are eligible to compete against their former home town tomorrow.

The meet will begin tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Cubs And Giants To Renew Training Camp Feud Friday

LOS ANGELES, March 8. (AP) — Two ailing pitchers returned to mound duty today as Manager Bill Terry sent the New York Giants through another tough practice session in preparation for a renewal of combat with the Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field Friday.

Adolfo Luque, veteran relief hurler, and Ray Starr, obtained from the St. Louis Cardinals, put on uniforms again after a temporary absence. In the afternoon workout an eight inning practice game was held.

Babe Ruth Shows Up For Practice But Limits It To "Catch" With Pennock

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 8. (AP)—Babe Ruth, homerun slugger, was the only member of the Yankees "big three" in the holdout group to report for practice with the regular squad this morning.

Lou Gehrig and Rufus Ruffing the other holdouts, are expected to remain away from camp until their salary differences are ironed out.

Ruth played catch with Herbert Pennock, batted a few long flies, and then ended his workout with a half hour drill at first base.

One of the first long-distance runs was from New York to Chicago in 1908, the 1,200 miles being covered in relay by 2,000 boys in 120 hours. M. D. Crackel of Cleveland conceived the idea.

Johnny Vaught, selected as an All-American guard on the Associated Press consensus, is a star guard for the Texas Christian basketball team.

Snyder Invites Track Teams To Meet There On Saturday

SNYDER, March 8. (Special) — An invitation track and field meet, with added 440-yard relay, will be held here Saturday, March 11, with all high school teams in this section eligible to compete.

Entries should be mailed at once to the track coach at Snyder High school.

HOLKE REACHES CATS

FORT WORTH, March 8. (AP) — Manager Walter Holke will arrive here tomorrow for the start of Fort Worth's spring baseball training Friday. On that day the battery men are to report, the others joining the March 15.

Two weeks of training will be spent at Mineral Wells.

The Sulphur Springs dog racing plant at Tampa, Fla., built at a cost of $80,000 and opened this season, is rated the finest of its kind in the country.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
THE STATE OF TEXAS.
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Lubbock County, Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon J. O. Biffle by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest County where a newspaper is published, to appear at the next regular terms of the 99th District Court of Lubbock County, to be holden at the Court House thereof, in Lubbock, Texas, on the first Monday in April, A. D., 1933, the same being the 3rd day of April, A. D., 1933, then and there to answer a First Amended Original petition filed in said Court on the 27th day of February, A. D., 1933, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court as No. 4947, wherein Higginbotham-Bartlett Company, a corporation, is Plaintiff, and J. O. Biffle, the Goodland Consolidated School District No. 7 and Aetna Casualty and Surety Company, a corporation, are Defendants, and said petition alleging that about December 27, 1930, defendants, J. O. Biffle and Goodland Consolidated School District No. 7, made and entered into a contract in writing, whereby J. O. Biffle agreed, for a consideration, to build and construct a one story, four room, brick and tile school building in the town of Goodland, Texas, at the same time, J. O. Biffle also executed and delivered to the School board of said School District his bond for the faithful performance of his contract, executed by defendant, Aetna Casualty and Surety Company.

That during the construction of said building, plaintiff sold and delivered to defendant, Biffle, goods, wares and merchandise and materials which were used by defendant, Biffle, in the construction of said building. And that there is a balance due on said account in the sum of $6,663.21 with interest thereon from completion of said building to this date at 6% per annum, which defendant, J. O. Biffle though often requested, has failed and refused to pay to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $7,000.00.

That this plaintiff duly filed itemized and verified accounts within the time required by law and sworn to as required by statutes as to mechanic's lien claims and filed the same with the County Clerk of Bailey County, Texas, and that by reason of the execution of said contract and bond and the filing of said liens, defendants, J. O. Biffle, Goodland Consolidated School District No. 7, and the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company, became liable and bound to pay to plaintiff said sum of $6,663.21, together with interest due thereon.

Plaintiff further alleges that said School District contains in its hands the sum of $6,414.62 out of the contract price said to J. O. Biffle. That it has a valid and subsisting first lien on said funds by reason of having given notice as required by law.

In the alternative, that if the said Biffle and said Surety Company have withdrawn said funds and have given a bond therefore, that it is entitled to recover against all the defendants, jointly and severally, the amount due it, including its reasonable attorney's fee, which it alleges to be the sum of $1,000.00, to be taxed as costs.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays for judgment against the defendants for its debt, interest, costs of suit, foreclosure of lien, etc.

Herein fail not, and have you before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said Court, at office in Lubbock, Texas, this the 27th day of February, A. D., 1933.

Slightly More Than Two Thirds Of 900 Miles Of Highway To Mexico City From The Texas Border Is Paved

DEL RIO, March 8. (AP)—Slightly more than two-thirds of the 900 miles of highway into Mexico from the Texas border is paved, according to a road log made by Lisandro Pena, former consul here, who has just returned from a trip to the Mexican capital.

From Del Rio travel is over the Villa Acuna-San Carlos road to Allende through the vast irrigated farms area, a project completed last year by the Mexican government.

Beginning at Allende the highway is paved to Victoria, 200 miles southeast of Monterrey on the Meredian highway.

A dirt road in fairly good shape runs from Victoria to Valles, a distance of slightly more than 150 miles. Several detours are necessary because of bridge construction work, but during rainy weather the detours are impassable at points, Senor Pena explained.

From Valles to Tamasunchale a distance of more than 80 miles, travel is through one of the most primitive sections of Mexico. Here are tiny Indian villages where the clothing of the male population consists of one garment rolled above their knees. The women wear clothing almost as scant, Mr. Pena said. The scenery in this section is gorgeous, a panoramic view of the valley being possible for 60 miles. To leave the valley an upward climb for miles is necessary. The rich, black soil with the frequent tropical rain often makes the road impassable. According to Pena, the cultivation of coffee and banana plantations in the valley is carried on much as the villagers' forefathers did perhaps hundreds of years ago.

Leaving the little Indian village of Tamasunchale, the road winds out over a dangerous one-way passage to Jacala, some 60 miles distance. From Jacala on the road is in fairly good shape. The road bed, dynamited from rocks, does not become impassable during rainy weather but is dangerous unless driven carefully. In this section it winds about the tops of mountains on sheer cliffs while masses of feathery, rainbow-hued clouds float below in a sea of exquisite color.

Eighty-five miles out of Mexico City a highway pavement begins and continues into the city, which is entered by the Guadalupe shrine.

MARKET REPORTS

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, March 8. (AP)—With reopening of the cotton futures market here contingent upon re-establishment of adequate banking facilities, uncertainties both as to spot cotton values in the south and foreign exchange rates continued today.

Owing to the increased demand for piece goods, a more active inquiry for spot cotton and quotations is being received from the mills and efforts are being made to arrive at a definite price basis.

Some cases spot houses are reported to be offering cotton, basis middling 7-8 landed at southern mills at prices ranging from about 7 3-4 to 8 cents per pound. Mills are hesitating to pay these prices, although it is said some small sales have been made at prices ranging up to 8 cents per pound both in the southwest and the mills in the east where merchants, as a rule, hesitate to sell at fixed prices in the absence of hedging facilities.

Meanwhile, some spot business has been done with mills on buyers call at a slight advance in the basis as compared with last Friday, with prices to be fixed after futures markets reopen. Taken altogether, however, spot men here say only a small amount of cotton has changed hands since last Friday.

A tendency to scale down estimates of the probable rate of sterling exchange was noted today and was promoted by a further advance in the Liverpool cotton market, which showed net gains of about 10 to 11 points for the day with May closing at 4.79 pence compared with 4.63 pence at the close of last Friday, when sterling was quoted at about $3.45.

According to a cable received by the New York cotton exchange service today from Liverpool, the British authorities continue to pay sterling to francs at the equivalent of a dollar parity of around $3.50.

The Egyptian futures market in Alexandria was 56 to 58 points higher while the spot quotations for Indian cotton in Liverpool was 22 points higher at 4.44. The Havre market closed 4 to 5 francs higher.

According to reports reaching cotton men here from Worth street business in cotton goods continued extremely active and it was rumored some cotton commission house clients unable to trade in cotton had diverted their orders to the goods market. Exports today 9,424 making 5,852,744 so far this season. U. S. port stocks 4,507,601.

Livestock

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, Mar. 8. (AP)—Receipts of livestock in all three departments—cattle, hogs and sheep—were increased considerably over the corresponding day last week and selling prices in each division were pushed downward after two days of limited receipts and unevenly higher values.

Excepting a few sales of strictly choice fed steers and yearlings of all weights, deals were completed mostly on a 25 to 50 lower basis with spots as much as 75 off. Most centers reported slow trade. Best yearlings in Chicago cleared at 7.00 and 1300 lb. steers brought 6.50. Other markets secured around 5.75@6.60 on good to choice lighter weights while the general bulk of all weights were eligible to sell around 4.00@5.25. Trade in stockers and feeders continued almost at a standstill.

Hogs were unevenly 10 to 40 lower. Chicago securing a practical top of 4.15.

Lamb values were lowered 25 to 50 with most desirable fat kinds selling at 5.25 @5.75.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, March 8. (AP)—Hogs 2,100; market closing 35 lower than Tuesday; top 3.60; packing sows steady to 25 lower, mostly 3.50.

Cattle 1,300; calves 400; slaughter steers slow to 25 lower, slaughter yearlings 25 lower; butcher cows weak to lower, stockers steady, slaughter calves steady to 25 lower. Slaughter steers in 3.50@4.50 spread, stock show yearling sorts up to 5.50; fat cows 2.25; sausage bulls 1.50@2.00; heavy fat calves 3.85@4.50; select vealers up to 5.50.

Eight Teams Are In Tourney Here

Eight high school debate teams, from Lubbock, Amarillo, Sweetwater, Canyon, Quanah, Olton, Ralls, and Snyder, will compete in an invitation debate tournament which will begin Friday afternoon and continue through Saturday at Lubbock High school under auspices of the local institution.

Loving cups, donated by Lubbock Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, will be given winning teams in the two divisions, boys' and girls'. J. W. Reid, Lubbock High school debate coach, announced.

First meeting of contestants will be at 2:30 p. m. Friday in room 192 of the high school building. Places will be drawn. The first contest will begin at 3 p. m. Local residents will provide homes for out-of-town contestants Friday night.

The question, selected by the state interscholastic league, to be debated is, "Resolved, that at least one-half of local and state revenues in Texas should come from sources other than taxes on tangible property."

Virtually all schools in the Southern Conference rank boxing and track about on par as their third rating sport, following football and basketball.

Action Expected On Petition Here

Action on a petition asking removal of J. T. Inmon as corporation court judge is expected at a meeting of City commission this afternoon at City hall. The petition, signed by twelve local criminal lawyers, asked removal of Inmon and appointment of another judge or appointment "monthly of a lawyer to hold the position without pay until permanent."

Reason for asking the dismissal, the petition said, was that the lawyers "consider the city of Lubbock is short of finances, and has now increased in population, until the city court has become a matter of importance." They asked that "an attorney at law, residing in the city of Lubbock, be appointed so that the cases tried may be handled in a legal and proper manner."
