'Operation Neighborhood Watch' Program Headed By Sheriff

Aransas County Sheriff Bob Hewes announced today that he has been chosen to participate in the National Sheriffs' Association's efforts to reduce burglary and larceny nationally and in Aransas County.

The National Sheriffs' Association (NSA), with headquarters in Washington, D.C., is a professional law enforcement association with more than 24,000 members in all American states and territories. Sheriff Hewes has been chosen, according to NSA executive director Ferris E. Lucas, because of his demonstrated concern for the safety of the citizens of Aransas County.

The program to combat burglary and larceny, known as Operation Neighborhood Watch, is designed to make the citizens aware of these specific crimes as well as to enlist citizen support to reduce these offenses. The program is supported by a grant awarded by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration of the United States Department of Justice (LEAA). The National Sheriffs' Association was chosen to administer the program because the sheriff is traditionally the chief law enforcement officer of his county, with countywide law enforcement authority and responsibility.

Advisory assistance and pledges of cooperation have been received from the United States Chamber of Commerce, the United States Jaycees, and the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Sheriff Hewes was notified by NSA Executive Director Lucas that he will be furnished with informational and educational material which will explain the citizen's role in Operation Neighborhood Watch in Aransas County. Lucas commented that, for the program to be successful, the cooperation of the law-abiding citizens of Aransas County is essential.

The specific crimes of burglary and larceny were chosen as the focal point of this program by the National Sheriffs' Association because burglary has increased 70% and larceny has increased 109% during the past five years. They therefore represent a countrywide pro-

The Yard of the Month Award has been presented to James H. Sorenson, Jr., Picton Lane, Rockport, according to Mrs. B.F. Street, chairman of the project sponsored by Rockport Home and Garden Club.

Under a covering canopy of windshaped, tall, live oak trees -- a front yard of well groomed appearance surrounds a house foundation planting of colorful caladiums, roses, natal plum, poinsettias, kolanche, lillies, and sweet alyssum.

Two large planter pots of wax leaf ligustrum accent each side of the house entrance door. Spot planting of pampas grass on front law is eye catching.

A symmetrical Norfolk Island pine tree stands in pure beauty at right corner of lawn.

Brick planters, flowering with geranium, petunias, lillies, periwinkle, caladium and native greenery line the driveway.

A V-shape planting area -- with small trees and low shrubs -- on each side of driveway entrance, give balance to curving drive.

The back yard is charming. There is an off center rock and lava rock fish pond with flowing water, complete with live fish.

White stone yard furniture, giant live oak trees with vines twining, yellow cannas, pampas grass, native shrubs -- a bird bath with cardinal bird on perch, hanging baskets -- complement the trees. All this combines to a yard of serene, quiet beauty.

The Yard of the Month Award is given by the Rockport Home and Garden Club. Anyone is eligible to receive it. Nominations by mail may be made to Mrs. Curtis Kalteyer, new chairman, 1422 Alamito, Rockport, Texas 78382.

City Decides Against Increasing Taxes for Coming Fiscal Year

Here's good news for owners of property within the city limits of Rockport.

The City Council decided Monday NOT to increase city taxes for the coming fiscal year. This action followed about a month of deliberation during which the aldermen considered voting an increase in the assessed valuation ratio to produce an additional $25,000 in revenues during the coming year to provide sufficient funds to carry on the many city services.

The decision NOT to raise taxes was made after members of the city staff investigated the revaluation program now going on throughout all of Aransas County.

After this investigation, city staff members informed the City Council that it appeared likely that the revaluation program will increase total valuation of property in Rockport enough to produce sufficient tax revenues for the City of Rockport to maintain all city services without boosting the assessed valuation ratio for tax purposes.

In another action, the aldermen agreed on the following appropriation for $28,032 in revenue sharing funds due from July 1, 1974 through June 30, 1975:

Bookkeeping machine, $8,600; revaluation program, $6,000; new police car, $3,600; street marking machine, $700; tractor for street department, $4,600; street and drainage improvements, $4,136; Concern Center, $360; and publication fees, $36.

The allocation of $360 for the Concern Center was a last-minute action which was decided on after representatives of the American Association of Retired Persons, operators of Concern Center, appeared before the City Council.

They explained that they needed new headquarters with air conditioning for the comfort of volunteer workers and that they could rent a building at 208 N. Magnolia which owner Chester Johnson had offered for $30 a month even though the normal rent is $50 a month.

Members of the City Council praised the work of Concern Center, thanked Johnson for offering the building at such a reasonable rate, and agreed to pay the rent for a year from revenue sharing funds.

Speaker Says Fishing Same As 20 Years Ago

"There is no concrete proof that fishing is any better or any worse in this area than it was 20 years ago", said Ernest Simmons, director of coastal fisheries for Texas Parks and Wildlife department, at a luncheon meeting of Rotary Club June 5 at Ramada Inn. However, he added that redfish were a definite exception to this statement, pointing out that large brood fish of this variety are in short supply along the southern coast.

He blamed trotliners mainly for this situation, asserting that their method of fishing killed a disproportionate number of small redfish, 10 to 18 inches long. He explained that artificial bait used on trotlines was especially attractive to small redfish.

Simmons said that the Parks and Wildlife Commission has ruled out this type of bait for trotliners, who, starting in September, must use live or cut bait.

He pointed out that many trotliners "ran" their lines at high speed, stopping only to harvest large fish, and allowing small reds and other fish to remain on their lines. He said two fishermen who were trotliners in Laguna Madre at one time had as many as 40,000 hooks set out, far too many to be tended properly. Also, he said so-called "week-end" trotliners who ran their lines only once a week, must share the blame for indiscriminate killing and wasting of small fish.

Simmons, who has been involved in fishing problems in this area for 24 years, said records show that while the volume of fish available and caught varies sharply from year to year depending on a number of factors, the average over the past 20 years has been little changed.

He pointed out that weather, including freezes and droughts, was largely responsible for upswings and declines in fish population. In answer to a question, he said, in his opinion, if all fishing, both commercial and sports, were halted, it might have little effect on the fish population. He added that fish should be harvested. Again he said that at present redfish do need protection.

Simmons asserted that the regulatory responsibilities delegated to Parks and Wildlife is a difficult assignment because the department is forever in the middle between commercial and sport fishing interests. "They have been fighting each other for as long as I have been on the job, and I am sure some will continue to do so", he asserted.

He explained the difference between regulatory and non-regulatory counties, the former authorizing Parks and Wildlife to establish and implement fishing regulations, while the latter looks to the state legislature for regulations. Aransas County is a regulatory county, he added.

Simmons detailed how decisions on fishing regulations were made by his department, including receipt of recommendations from field men, advice from the department's biologists and wardens, drafting of tentative regulations, public hearings at the county level, and hearings by the Parks and Wildlife Commission before final regulations are adapted. He stated that final decisions were made by the Commission.

He explained that data on the current status of supply of fish and probably effect on it by various methods of fishing are obtained through surveys conducted on a continuing basis by department personnel. Included are reports from fish houses and weighing, counting and measuring of fish by department people at fishhouses and at marinas and fishing piers.

In addition, department people get first-hand information by using all types of nets, trotlines and sports fishing equipment, Simmons said.

In response to a question, Simmons said prohibition of trotlines, crab traps and nets except shrimp trawls in certain bay areas adjacent to Fulton and Rockport was based on an act of the state legislature several years ago and cannot be changed without further legislative action.

Bank Asks For Pennies

One of the most patriotic things Americans of all ages can perform today is emptying the family piggy bank of pennies and turning them in to the bank, according to R.D. Mosier, Jr., executive vice president of First National Bank.

Right now the nation is facing a penny shortage that costs taxpayers millions of dollars in tax money because people are withholding an estimated 30 billion pennies from circulation, Mosier said. In common with banks throughout the county, First National is experiencing a severe penny shortage. This shortage in turn affects local merchants who need pennies to make change in conducting business.

During the past 15 years 62 billion Lincoln pennies have been minted. Because of the huge number produced they do not have and never will have any numismatic value, according to experts who point out that scarcity is always of first importance from a collector's standpoint. Also the value of pennies as metal has dropped because the copper market has declined.

Nearly half of the pennies produced in the last 15 years are in hiding, Mosier said. The mint is still producing pennies at the rate of 35 million a day, he added, yet there still aren't enough pennies to go around.

Mosier urged that families gather pennies that are in hiding in pickle jars, old socks and piggy banks and bring them into the bank to help get Mr. Lincoln back among the people where he belongs.

June has been declared Penny Redemption Month by the U.S. Mint in an effort to cure this artificial shortage, Mosier said.

"For every $25 worth of pennies cashed in at the bank, the U.S. Treasury is going to award an Exceptional Public Service Certificate to the individual or group responsible," Mosier said.

OUTDOORS 'n things

by L. D. NUCKLES

One of the most useful items in our gear that we've collected to make our outdoor recreation more enjoyable is binoculars. Everybody who spends much time outdoors should have a good pair, and they should be well taken care of. There are a couple of simple tests we should perform at least twice a year to be sure the glasses are delivering maximum efficiency. If the glasses fail either test they need professional attention.

First is the cleanliness test. There are at least 8 glass surfaces in the interior of each side of the binoculars where dust and moisture can collect. Every speck of dust on any of these surfaces can reduce the effectiveness of the glasses. To make this test, simply turn the glasses with the eyepieces away from you and hold them about 10 inches from your eyes. Look INTO the glasses - not through them and you will be able to spot any dust or moisture. If any fog or very many dust particles can be seen they need to be dismantled and cleaned by a professional. Don't try to do it yourself.

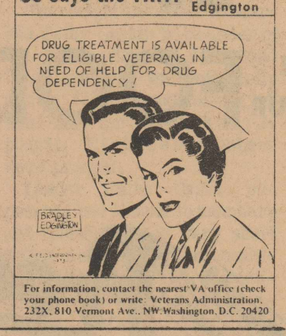

The other test you can make is the alignment check. This takes a little more time but it's simple and very important-even on new binoculars. If there is some minor misalignment you may not be aware of it because the muscles of the eye may be strong enough to correct it. Using the glasses for a long uninterrupted time would probably not cause any signs of anything wrong, but intermittent use, the way we would normally use glasses, would cause eye discomfort and headaches.

To check this you need a sturdy table looking out an open window. Focus the glasses on a horizontal line at least 100 feet away. Place a large hardbacked book on the table with the back facing away from the window. Place a ruler in the book and lay the glasses on the book. Look through the left eyepiece and slide the ruler backward or forward (this will raise and lower the objective lens of the binoculars). Stop when the horizontal line is right at the bottom of the circle. A roof line or a window sill makes a good line to focus on. Now, without moving the glasses, look through the right eyepiece. If the horizontal line is not right at the bottom of the circle, the glasses are out of alignment and you need professional help.

I was able to get a little free leaflet explaining these procedures in detail from the Mirakel Optical Company, 14 West 1st Street, Mt. Vernon, New York, 10550. I suppose it is still available.

'Dust of Death' Reviewed for Lions

Mrs. Elsie Barton, RFHS Librarian, reviewed Os Guinness' "Dust of Death" at Rockport Lions Club's "Bob Thornburgh Day" at Ramada Inn, June 6. Lion Thornburgh had been brought from Doctors' Hospital for the honor day.

In presenting the substance of the Guinness book's comprehensive picture of a study of world culture of today, the reviewer showed how the young English writer substantiated his realization that humanism and the sub-cultures and occultism of today ends on a "dead end" road. The "third way" he supports was shown as the same Christianity which confronted a very similar nihilistic culture 1900 years ago.

Installation of the 1974-75 officers and directors was announced for a Monday, June 17 Ladies Night, at Ramada Inn. With Lion Jerry Iles taking Cub Master responsibilities for the Pack sponsored by the Rockport Lions Club, Lion Josef A. Barton was elected treasurer in his place, and Lion Tom McClung was elected tamer in the place of Lion Barton. Lion Truett A. Roach will be president of the Rockport Club for the new year beginning July 1.

Certificates and plaques from the convention of Lions International District 2A-3 held recently at Red Carpet Inn on Padres Island were shown to the club: 100% participation in support of the Kerrville Crippled Children's Camp; full participation in the C.A.R.E. rural school building program in Guatemala; and full participation in funds for the new Valley Lighthouse for the Blind in Harlingen and McAllen.

Lion Governor-elect J. Henry von Pein of the Fulton Club was welcomed as a visitor.

HUNT, OWENS WIN IN RUNOFF ELECTION

Joe Earl Hunt, presently chief deputy under Aransas County Sheriff Virginia Shivers, won the Democratic nomination for sheriff in a close race in a runoff election in which 1,790 votes were cast.

Hunt won by a close margin of 17 votes over E.A. Stautzenberger, former Rockport chief of police.

Hunt received 893 votes to 876 for Stautzenberger who led the field in the May 2 primary, receiving 745 votes to Hunt's 536 at that time.

In the other contested race in the county -- that for Commissioner from Precinct 3--Raymond Owens, present Navigation District commissioner, unseated long-time incumbent A.L. Davis by a vote of 299 to 236.

GEMINI -- Geminians are fun loving. They are almost always popular with their peers. Variety is the spice of life for those born under this sign. Most possess a quick mind.

GEMINI -- May 21 to June 20 -- New ideas for gain will bring solid future rewards. During this period you have a virtual storehouse of such thoughts. The Geminian, with his twin signs, possesses an equal amount of business and artistic talent.

CANCER--June 21 to July 22 -- Although you are able to make money with ease, you are equally talented in spending it. Use self-discipline

LEO -- July 23 to Aug. 22 -- For many born under the sign of Leo, a journey to the place of their birth can be expected. Happiness abounds when the opportunity to greet family and friends arrives.

VIRGO--Aug. 23 to Sept. 22--Plan a reunion with family, friends or old classmates. If this is not possible, have a get-together at your home, inviting those friends whose company you enjoy the most.

LIBRA -- Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 -- Self-image is important to you. When you learn to like yourself better, others will have a better opinion of you.

SCORPIO--Oct. 23 to Nov. 22 -- Study and plan! Most Scorpios are not in-between intellectually. Generally, they are exceptionally bright or extremely dense. Dogged determination leads them to achieving desired goals.

SAGITTARIUS -- Nov. 23 to Dec. 21--Self-motivation is now a problem with you. Your desire to do well comes from wanting self-gratification.

CAPRICORN--Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 -- You would do well to cultivate the friendship of a Taurean. His conservatism will modify some of your over-aggressive traits.

AQUARIUS -- Jan. 20 to Feb. 18--Schedule your time, so you can pursue a pleasurable hobby or sport. With planning you can accomplish much more in a shorter time.

PISCES--Feb. 19 to March 20 -- Be patient with loved ones. You have their full respect. Expect to be rewarded for your generous nature, even though you are not one who seeks praise.

ARIES--March 21 to April 20 -- Control that temper that flies off the handle so easily. You can arrive where you want to go, if you keep your cool. The key to your success is tact over temper.

TAURUS--April 21 to May 20 -- The current trends allow you to generally sell anything to anyone. Whatever you wish to sell should be put on the market now.

Hot Weather Care for Pets

COLLEGE STATION---Pets deserve special consideration with the approaching summer weather, believes a veterinarian for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"A dog always should have access to shade and plenty of clean drinking water. He should be fed early in the morning when it's cool and again late in the evening after the heat subsides a bit," says Dr. James Armstrong with the Texas A & M University System.

"Continue to exercise your pet but not in the heat of the day. Think of your own comfort and treat your dog accordingly. That means brief exercise during the cool of the day, so the dog won't become overheated."

Food intake can be adjusted to exercise and energy used during hot weather. Like a human, a dog should not overeat or eat when he is hot or exhausted, advises Armstrong.

Cats that are running free will generally take care of their own needs for rest, exercise and comfort. But they also should have constant access to shade and fresh drinking water.

Armstrong has a word of caution for those who take the family dog wherever they go, especially in hot weather. "If the car windows are open, the dog can leap out and be lost or hit by another car. If left in the parking lot with the windows closed or nearly closed, the dog can suffer intolerably as sun-reflecting windows quickly heat an automobile to extremely warm temperatures.

"Leave the dog home when you go shopping and when you go on vacation in the automobile," suggests the veterinarian. "At tourist stops and camping grounds your dog can be a nuisance."

The boarding kennel is best for your dog when you leave town, unless you have a friend who knows and likes the dog and will keep him while you're gone.

WEDNESDAY BRIDGE

Mrs. J. V. Ferguson entertained the Wednesday Bridge Club at her home last week. Members playing were Mrs. Fred Bracht, Miss Mabel Bracht, Miss Genevieve Bracht, Mrs. Fred Christilles, Mrs. Charles Cleveland, Mrs. Fred Hunt, Mrs. Joe Slocum, and one guest, Mrs. W. E. Blackshare. High score was won by Mrs. Fred Hunt, second high by Mrs. W. E. Blackshare and Mrs. Fred Bracht won the bingo.

Railroading on a new track—The replica of an old-time caboose is actually a traveling showroom. Large enough to display a half-dozen Baldwin organs, Watson Piano and Organ Company's "caboose" takes the merchandise to the people. Complete with its own PA system, air conditioning, heating and generating systems, and fold-down stage, the "caboose" can be used to demonstrate the ease with which Baldwin organs can be played, as a setting for organ shows, or even for delivery with the organ playing. The "caboose" will be at the Sea-Aire Shopping Center, June 13, 14 and 15.

Local Girl Makes Recording

Miss Marjorie Pratt, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Pratt, won a vocal contest sponsored by the Pentecostal Young People's Assn. in this district.

As a result of this, Marjorie was selected to sing the song, "Sweet, Sweet Spirit," as part of a recording made by winners of similar vocal contests held throughout Texas. Marjorie was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Leslie Crawford.

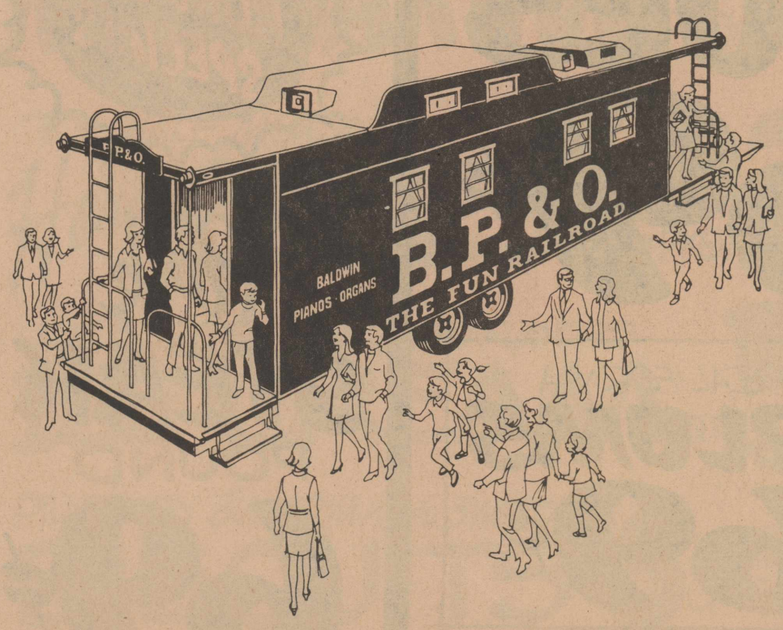

Misses Susan and Julie Freeman of Littleton, Colorado, are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Smith.

Buoys on Water Can Help Boaters

AUSTIN -- The many different buoy-marking systems used across the state may serve to confuse rather than inform boating enthusiasts, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department water safety officials.

Officials say there are two common buoy-marking systems with which boaters should familiarize themselves. One is the "Lateral" system, and the second is the "Uniform State Waterway Marking System."

Coastal boaters are probably most familiar with the Lateral system. A boater can navigate from one point to another by using these buoys and nautical charts. The shape of the buoy, its color, the number painted on it and, when it is lighted, the light characteristics tell the boater where to pilot his boat.

The Lateral system incorporates buoys of several shapes including:

-- The "can" buoy, a cylindrically shaped buoy, usually painted black, with an odd number on it.

This type of buoy is normally found marking the left side of a channel (as you return from seaward) and is often used to mark obstructions. Sometimes a can buoy will be marked with red and black lateral stripes. In this case, it is marking the junction of two channels.

-- The "nun" buoy, a cylindrically shaped buoy capped with a cone, painted solid red and with even white numbers (2,4,6, etc).

Nun buoys are almost always used to mark the right side of a channel, as you return from seaward. Other nun buoys may be painted with horizontal red and black stripes. Like striped can buoys, these buoys also mark channel junctions.

-- The lighted buoy, painted with any of the aforementioned colors, with a light (or sometimes a radar reflector, bell, gong or whistle) so it may be more easily located in times of low visibility.

-- The "spar" buoy conically shaped, painted either red with even numbers or black with odd numbers. This buoy marks the center of the channel and is sometimes found marking obstructions.

On inland lakes and streams, a buoy system based on "proceeding from seaward" would not make much sense. So the Uniform State Waterway Marking System was devised and is now used by most states.

Under the USWMS, buoy shapes have no meaning. The buoys come in two categories--regulatory markers that inform the boater of dangerous or controlled areas and "aids to navigation" to mark safe channels.

Regulatory buoys are white with international orange bands. One band is at the top of the buoy with a second band just above the waterline so that both orange bands are clearly visible.

Different international symbols are to be found on the white portion of the buoy. A diamond symbol means "beware," and a cross within the diamond means "boats keep out." Words painted on the buoy tell boaters the specific hazards to avoid.

An orange circle is a traffic control buoy and will give the speed limit for the area.

Finally, a square outline in bright orange gives some form of piloting information such as instructions on how to reach a certain point.

Navigational aids used in the USWMS are normally black or red and are used to mark channel limits. Generally, they are used in pairs, and the safe path lies between the two buoys.

Special colored buoys are used where there is no marked channel or where there are scattered underwater hazards.

For example, a white buoy with a red top means that a boat must pass to the south or west of the buoy.

A white buoy with a black top means the safe water is to the north and east of the buoy. Finally, a buoy with vertical red and white stripes marks a dangerous area between it and shore.

Buoys are protected by law. Water safety officials pointed out that it is not only a violation of common sense, but also a criminal offense to damage or hinder the operation of buoys, and this includes defacing, altering, moving or destroying the buoy.

Boaters should never tie their boat to a buoy, day beacon or light structure, nor should they anchor in such a way as to obstruct the buoy from the sight of other boaters.

Should the boater unintentionally or unavoidably collide with or damage a buoy, he must report the accident to the proper authorities.

Davis Graduates From Air Force Academy

Mrs. Arthur L. Davis of Fulton has returned from Colorado Springs, Colorado where she attended the graduation of her grandson, Cadet Colonel Barton Bolling Davis, from the U.S. Air Force Academy. Davis is also the grandson of the late A.L. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. S.F. Jackson of Rockport and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce G. Davis of Houston, formerly of Rockport.

Cadet Davis graduated with a B.S. degree in Electrical Engineering and was commissioned a 2nd Lieut. in the U.S. Air Force. The Commencement Address was delivered by Vice-President Gerald Ford.

During his senior year Cadet Davis served as Cadet Colonel and Commander of the Second Basic Cadet Training and as Commander of First Cadet Group (Commander of ten squadrons) for which service he was awarded The Air Force Commendation Medal for Meritorious Service.

BARTON BOLLING DAVIS recently graduated from the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Also attending June Week in Colorado Springs were Miss Ann Kostas, fiancee of Cadet Davis, and her two sisters, Georgia and Pamela Kostas of Houston who were all house guests of the Academy Commandant, Brig. General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Jr. and his wife. Other guests attending June Week festivities were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Davis, Mr. and Mrs. George Kostas and Cynthia Kostas, all of Houston, and Mr. and Mrs. M.M. "Fritz" Schwab and two sons, of Fulton.

Rockport Fire Department Meets

The Rockport Fire Department met June 6 for their regular business meeting. The meeting was called to order by Asst. Fire Chief Edward Truelove with 25 men answering roll call.

Trucks were reported in good shape. Two more trucks have been secured from E.I. Surplus.

Cakes for the meeting were furnished by Sarah Belle Smith and Joan Truelove.

Immunization— Key Against Polio

COLLEGE STATION --"The most successful assault against paralytic polio is immunization of infants and preschoolers," Dr. Barbara Sears, health education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System, said this week.

The specialist noted that no polio cases were reported in Texas in 1973. But she said that if the virus appears, it will strike any unprotected population -- infants and preschoolers in this case.

Dr. Sears said Texas preschoolers and infants are particularly susceptible to outbreaks of polio and other communicable diseases because of lower immunization levels in Texas, higher disease levels in Mexico, and the frequency of border crossings.

"The major means of polio transmission is from direct contact with throat secretions of infected persons," Dr. Sears said.

Spread of communicable diseases such as polio, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, and measles can be controlled by immunization.

Since infants and preschoolers are the most susceptible group, they form the main target for upcoming immunization programs this summer, the specialist said.

T.E.L. Class Holds Meeting

The T.E.L. Sunday School class of the First Baptist Church met in the Educational Building of the Church on June4.

Mrs. Florene Davenport, class president, was in charge of the meeting. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Evelyn Townsend, class secretary.

As this was the last meeting for the summer a nominating committee was appointed consisting of the following:

After the business meeting games and a covered dish luncheon was enjoyed by 15 members.

Type of Water Can Affect Insecticide

COLLEGE STATION -- So you've been spraying your garden with a recommended insecticide and still haven't gotten rid of all those bad bugs?

Well, it just may be that you're using the wrong type of water in preparing your insecticide mix.

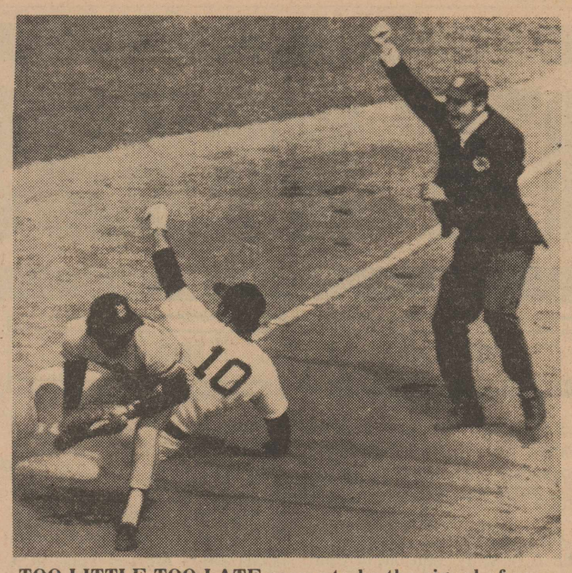

"Water from municipal supplies is generally alkaline in nature and therefore reduces the effectiveness of many insecticides when used in preparing a spray solution," points out Dr. Charles Cole, area entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

So what's the solution?

"Using distilled water helps," says Cole. "Also, rain water is good to use in mixing insecticides.

"Set out a few tubs or buckets during the next rain and collect some of that good water," suggests the Texas A&M University System specialist. "The rain water will not only put more life in the insect sprays you prepare, but it's also better for watering flowers, pot plants and the like."

So, don't go blaming that insecticide you bought or the store where you bought it the next time you get poor results when spraying for insects. The problem just might be in the water.

TOO LITTLE TOO LATE seems to be the signal of umpire James Evans as he calls Boston's Bob Montgomery out in a recent game between the Red Sox and the Detroit Tigers. Detroit's Aurelio Rodriguez made the put-out.

Artificial Baits Outlawed On Redfish Trotlines

CORPUS CHRISTI -- Plastic strips, gold spoons and other artificial baits were prohibited for use on saltwater trotlines, sail lines, and throwlines by Texas Parks and Wildlife Commissioners in a specially called session May 17.

The commissioners met to consider changes to saltwater and commercial fishing regulations to be effective Sept. 1, 1974.

Some of the impact of the meeting however was negated by an eleventh-hour ruling from Texas Attorney General John Hill.

Attorney General Hill ruled that House Bill 833 as passed by the recent session of the Texas Legislature did nothing to modify or repeal existing statutes which govern the manner of taking fish in coastal waters.

Many fishing regulations proposed earlier under authority of HB 833 were not considered by the TP&W Commission as a result of the Attorney General's opinion.

Texas Parks and Wildlife department Executive Director Clayton T. Garrison said that with a ban on artificially baited trotlines and throwlines much of the fishing pressure on small redfish will be reduced.

"Artificial baits continue to fish after trotlines are abandoned by fishermen," said Garrison. "The lines are particularly attractive to small redfish many of which are under the 14 inch minimum standard.

"Natural baits tend to catch legal, saleable-size redfish and speckled trout."

To help TP&W law enforcement officials identify nets used in saltwater, the commission authorized the department to require that all sport fishing nets set in public waters be identified with a tag constructed of a material as durable as the net, bearing the name and address of the fisherman and the date set out.

At present, commercial nets must have a numbered metal tag for each 100 feet of net. The fee is $1 per tag. After Sept. 1, game wardens will remove any nets which are not so marked or tagged.

To help allieviate the litter problem on high use areas of the Gulf beach, the operators of drag seines in Gulf waters will be required to return to the water all unused aquatic life.

The only coastal waters closed to netting by the commission was Swann Lake in Jackson County.

The small body of water is immediately upstream from Lavaca Bay and will be closed to seines and nets, except cast nets, dip nets and minnow nets not more than 20-feet long used for taking bait.

Commissioners also approved standard regulations for the construction, material, marking and spacing of trotlines in Kenedy, Kleberg Nueces and Refugio Counties.

These counties recently came under full regulatory authority of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Standard rules for the harvest of crabs in these counties were also approved.

Instead of the usual effective date 15 days from the time of enactment, the commission voted to make the rule changes law on Sept. 1.

Most of Corpus Christi Bay and all of Nueces Bay, however, are open for the use of nets by passage of HB833 by the legislature. Previously no nets were permitted within Corpus Christi Bay or within one mile of the Corpus Christi city limits which extend well into the bay.

The Lieutenant Governor's Report

By BILL HOBBY

The Texas Tourist Council has just completed its report on "Ten Years of Texas Tourist Growth 1963-1973" and the information is impressive.

Since we are entering one of the busiest tourist season for Texas, I felt that each reader would appreciate an in depth report of just what kind of return he is getting on his investment in tourist attraction.

The Texas Tourist Council was chartered in 1962 as a privately financed organization devoted to increasing visitor travel to and within Texas. It supports and supplements our state's efforts to attract more visitors and works closely with the Texas Tourist Development Agency.

From the late 1950's until 1962, Texas' travel market declined. One reason for this decline was a constitutional prohibition against the Legislature's spending money to attract "immigrants". "Immigrants" was interpreted to include tourists. With other states advertising for tourism, Texas was at a decided disadvantage.

A predecessor group to the Texas Tourist Council led the fight which finally saw the lifting of this constitutional restriction in 1958. With the beginning of the Council's active programs of tourist development and the growing efforts of the Tourist Development Agency, Texas' tourist industry began a steep growth that continues today.

In 1963, Texas had 11.1 million visitors. In only ten years this figure doubled to reach 22.7 million in 1973.

Tourism is the nation's third largest industry with 130 million Americans taking trips and spending $60 billion each year. Texas is definitely getting its share of this boom. Tourist dollars are important because they are earned elsewhere but spent here. This builds strong, vibrant economies.

In 1963, Texas received $532 million from its tourist industry. Last year, we got $2.1 billion.

While in Texas, visitors contribute additional millions of dollars to our state treasury through taxes on their expenditures. In 1963, state sales, lodging, gasoline and excise taxes received from our tourist industry amounted to $42 million. In 1973, they were $193 million.

The state "invested" a total of $1.9 million in 1973 to attract visitors. This figure includes the combined budgets of the Texas Tourist Development Agency and the Travel and Information Division of the Highway Department.

With state taxes paid by visitors totaling over $193 million, Texans received a $101 return on each $1 invested. In addition, about 12 per cent of all Texas jobs, or some 600,000 are related directly or indirectly to the visitor industry.

It is obvious that our tourist industry is important to our economy. And, it is no surprise that many millions of Americans come, again and again, to Texas. We have much to offer -- hospitality, beautiful weather, clean air and water, recreation facilities, historic sites, and much more - -

As long as Texas remains the remarkable place it is today, we can count on a thriving tourist industry for years to come.

CHAMBER CORNER

BY LOUIE HILL

Ahoy, avast me hearties and all that nautical stuff!

A group of sailors from Houston and the surrounding area hove into port late last Wednesday competing for the "One of a Kind Invitational Multi-Handed Cruising Endeavor" trophy, and Drew Farmer and his crew--wife Dorothy and sons Drew, Jr. and Tommy -- sailed away with the prize on their boat the "Procrastination". And what a prize!! .... a brass compass from the "Carpathis's" No. 4 motor launch used during the rescue of survivors from the "S.S. Titanic", mounted on a handsome teakwood stand finished with 40 coats of lacquer!

This all began when the competitors, whose boats are berthed in the Seabrook/Kemah area, started discussing the many sailing races. They decided to create a "fun race" all of their own and award a trophy to "the vessel and crew that most nearly approaches the sailing proficiency and ability for enjoyment of the good life as the fabled Captain Anthony J.A.S. Loungbow." The true spirit of fun of the race is perhaps best shown by a look at their general rules which included items such as "All boats must carry charts, preferably of the area of ocean in which the race is to take place. (Placemat type charts may be used.)" or "Start times are determined by the skipper. (He should plan to start on the same day as the other participants.)"

Rockport was chosen as the destination because some of the participants have been visitors to our area in the past and were favorably impressed, and because it was an easy cruising distance from Houston. Seven boats sailed June 1 at five a.m. from Seabrook and spent the first night at Freeport. The following night they anchored at River Bend on the Colorado River and the race ended June 3 when the group arrived in Rockport at approximately seven p.m.

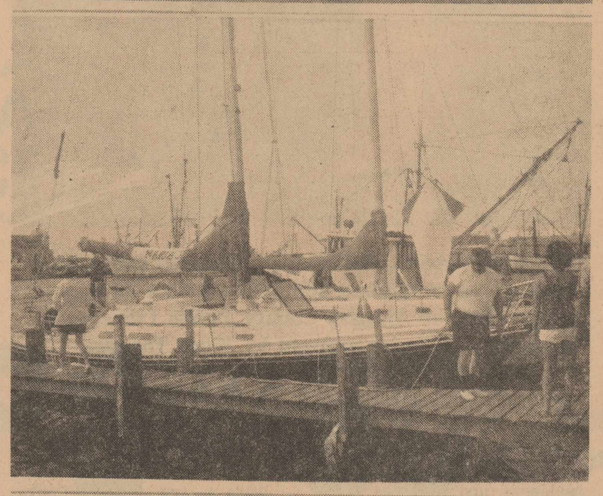

Roy Hicks and Dave Connery noticed the boats coming into the harbor and stopped to visit with the contestants. They then contacted members of the Rockport Sailing Club and planned an informal party for the visitors.

In addition to the Farmers, others making the race were Guy, Gerry and Donna Sue Matthews, sponsors of the cruise, Gordon and Gail Stoops, Pat and Linda Moore, Mike and Georgie Bass, Richard and Jane Cole, Carl and Phyllis McQueen, Jerry and Marie Lowery, a cocker spaniel named Sadie, and a regal beagle with a propensity for scotch named C. Worthington Chatsworthy, III. Of the sailors Jerry and Marie Lowery have won second place this year in the Lipton Cup and third place in the Moreland Cup races, and will race in Corpus Christi June 29 and 30 and the Corpus to Galveston race July 4.

The contestants, executives in the Houston area, are variously associated with Brown and Root Company, Arthur Anderson Company, NASA, First Mortgage Company, Matthews - Daniel Company, Knoll International, American Rice Growers Association and the University of Houston. It was good to have them visit our town and will be nice to have ambassadors for Rockport in so many areas!

We hope they enjoy their visit and the words of John Masefield, "I must down to sea again, to the lonely sea and sky, All I ask is a tall ship, and a star to steer her by," tickle their sailing fancy and they come again soon.

April Shrimp Landings Down

Shrimp landings in Texas during April amounted to 1.4 million pounds, the lowest April total since 1967. The value was $2.5 million.

The Brownsville-Port Isabel area reported the heaviest catches with 541,800 pounds. However, the area continued to run behind last year's total for the first four months of the year.

The area reported 3.2 million pounds for the first four months last year.

The area reported 3.2 million pounds for the first four months last year compared to 2.4 million this year. All the other major ports have been showing an increase in the landing of headless shrimp for the first four months.

The Aransas Pass-Rockport area reported the second highest total with 317,100 pounds of shrimp in April. This area also is second in the four-month total with 1.9 million. The four-month total this year compares with nearly 1.7 last year.

The Galveston-Seabrook area totaled 212,700 pounds in April and nearly doubled their four-month total this year in comparison to last year. The January-April total for last year amounted to 400,600 pounds while this year the area has reported catches totaling 788,800.

Freeport reported 116,900 pounds of shrimp caught in April which brought their four-month total to 904,500 pounds in comparison to 659,600 pounds last year.

Other ports and their April landing totals are: Port Arthur-Sabine, 19,800; Matagorda - Palacios, 34,500; Port Lavaca-Port O'Connor - Seadrift, 86,600; and Port Mansfield, 42,800.

The Port Mansfield area has the largest percentage of increase in landings for the first four-months of this year compared to last year with 229,100 pounds. The area reported only 48,000 pounds during the same period last year.

Trawl vessels working brown shrimp made poor catches of 80-200 pounds a night on all major grounds south of Louisiana.

Blue crab landings of 430,000 were 10 per cent below the volume in April, 1973.

Oyster landings of 6,000 barrels climaxed the poorest spring harvest in recent years.

FATHER'S DAY - JUNE 16

Evening TOPS Holds Meeting

Rockport TOPS #493 met on June 4 at the Wagley Office Building. Faye Cowdrey, the leader, presided over the business meeting and Judy VonHeuvel, the weight recorder, reported 13 members present with a loss of 6 pounds. Beulah Dedmon was the Queen for the Week with Thelma Sours a runner-up.

Theo Johnson won the Ha Ha prize. The blue team is several steps ahead in the "Stairway to Success" contest.

"Making Faces" was the humorous but beneficial program presented by Bernita Kinsey and all participated in the exercises. Great hilarity prevailed as the club members worked at pulling their face muscles into unnatural positions.

The Evening TOPS cordially invites those in the area who are interested in an evening dedicated to "Taking Off Pounds Sensibly" to join them on Tuesday evening of each week at the Wagley Office Building with weigh-in from 6 until 6:40 p.m. followed by business and a short program from 7 until 8 p.m.

IGNORE MYTHS, EAT OYSTERS

AUSTIN -- Some myths go on and on.

Take one about oysters for example. Back when there was no way to refrigerate oysters, that old saw about not eating oysters during months with an "R" in the name may have had some validity.

But the fact is that oysters are tasty and available in May and June, and there is nary an "R" in either month. So if you let myths guide your life, you're missing out on a real treat, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department seafood marketing officials.

Modern refrigeration and storage techniques make the oyster a year-round food. You can keep fresh oysters in the refrigerator or packed in ice for up to 10 days.

So, suggest officials, don't deny yourself the pleasure because of some old wives' tale. Treat yourself to some oysters. The following top-of-the-range recipe is one good way to prepare your summertime oysters.

CAJUN PANNED OYSTERS

1 pint oysters
1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons dry white wine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 teaspoon liquid hot sauce
Toast points

Drain oysters. Melt butter in skillet. Add oysters and cook about five minutes at moderate heat, or until edges begin to curl. Add wine, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, salt and hot sauce. Heat. Serve with toast points. Makes four to six servings.

Additional seafood recipes are available by sending a postcard to Seafood Marketing, Texas Parks & Wildlife Department, John H. Reagan Building Austin, Texas, 78701.

We Are Pleased and Flattered—

By the warm and enthusiastic reception given our new banking house by hundreds of customers, friends and visitors during our first weeks of operation at No. 1 Broadway Plaza.

This outpouring of favorable comments and warm good wishes for success is most gratifying to us. It justifies our decision of more than a year ago to provide the Rockport-Aransas County community with the finest and most modern banking facilities available anywhere.

From the beginning we planned a banking plant that would meet all financial service needs of the community now and for years to come. In addition, we wanted a structure that would become an object of civic pride. Apparently we succeeded in both of these objectives.

We thank all of you who helped make this possible with your loyal support.

Morning TOPS Holds Meeting

Rockport Morning TOPS met June 4 at the Methodist Youth Building. Weigh-in commenced at 8:30 a.m. followed by the business meeting at 9:30 a.m.

The weight recorder announced Cathy Gaskin to be Queen of the Week with a 3 1/4 pound loss. Runner up was Betty Kelly with a 2 3/4 pound loss. Club total loss for the week was 24 pounds. Eighteen members were present.

Leader Cathy Gaskin expressed her thanks to members and friends who at very short notice decorated a float enabling the Morning TOPS to participate in the recent riding association parade. The float received an Honorable Mention which was very gratifying and has made the club more determined than ever, that next year the Morning TOPS Float will be up there with the big winners.

The recent garage sales have proved very successful and the club has several more projects in mind, that will enable the club to send a record number of members to the State Recognition Day convention which is going to be held in Abilene next year.

New members are always welcome. Further information on Morning TOPS #849 may be obtained from Cathy Gaskin at 729-2116 or Betty McMeredith at 729-6213.

The club has obtained the services of a baby sitter, Miss Patricia Smith, who will care for the young children of members for the amount of 25¢ per hour per child.

Children and Death

A child's understanding of death reflects his parents' experiences and attitudes concerning life and death, one authority said this week.

Knowledge of death actually depends on a child's age and maturity, Ilene Carrington, family life education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, added.

"Before age five, a child does not realize death is irreversible. At this level of understanding, he sees death as something gradual or temporary."

The specialist said parents further confuse such children with explanations like, "grandmother will be gone a long time," or "grandad is sleeping."

"Children five-to nine-years old, on the other hand, view death as a separate personality. Although accepting its existence, they don't fully understand its finality.

"After age nine, children can understand that death--cessation of physical life--is an inevitable, universal experience."

Miss Carrington suggested permitting--even encouraging-a child past the age of seven to attend funerals.

Since he's part of the family, he needs an opportunity to participate in this sad, significant family experience, she explained.

"Parents further promote understanding by answering questions about death briefly, honestly and without too much extreme emotion. In all discussions, parents should consider the child's age and level of understanding.

Support and security also help young children comprehend and accept the reality of death.

"Through words and touch they help a child feel secure about his future. Maintaining a daily routine also aids adjustment while providing security."

Reactions to death include denial, guilt, hostility, anxiety, bodily distress and idealization of the deceased, the specialist continued.

Children often experience guilt feelings since they associate unpleasant happenings with their own misbehavior, she added.

"But through honest, open communication--along with opportunities to express emotions--parents can help children reduce these guilt feelings.

"Stressing that people aren't perfect--and avoiding association of death with sin and punishment--also lessens guilt."

One reason discussing death with children isn't easy stems from parent's emotional involvement and fear of the unknown, Miss Carrington noted.

"For many children, loss of a pet represents the first confrontation with death. This experience offers a good opportunity for family members to share grief openly," the specialist concluded.

Letter to the Editor

DEAR EDITOR,

I would very much like to correspond with someone in Texas. If possible, could you please publish my request for pen pals in the Rockport Pilot? I have tried to find a pen friend in the United States for many years, but have never been successful.

Anyone would be most welcome. I am English speaking, and my interests or hobbies are most things in general.

Hoping my little request will be met with success.

Yours Sincerely,

Vaccinate Young Cattle for Blackleg.

All cattle under two years of age should be vaccinated for blackleg every year, advises D. P. Pawlik, county agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Blackleg is a disease which is usually fatal to young cattle. The death or lameness of the best young calf in a herd often signals an outbreak of the disease. The most common sign that an animal has the disease is a swelling of the heavy muscles in the hip and shoulder.

Blackleg has been around for a long time and seems to show up wherever cattle are raised. It is caused by bacteria which are usually ingested with feed. The infection ends up in the heavy muscles of the animal, where it causes great damage and forms large quantities of gas in the tissues. When pressure is applied to the affected area, the gas in the tissues makes a crackling sound, like paper being crumpled.

An animal which has died from blackleg has a characteristic posture. Because of the terrific swelling soon after death, the animal has its legs extended and stiff like a sawhorse.

Once animals are stricken with the disease, they usually die in 12 to 48 hours. The disease can be prevented by vaccination with a bacteria made from the organism which causes the disease. Since animals under two years of age are the ones usually affected, they are the ones which should be vaccinated.

Although annual vaccination means that some animals be vaccinated more than once, this will not hurt the animals and will keep resistance at a high level, explains Pawlik.

If there is an outbreak of blackleg on your farm, the best thing to do is to vaccinate all the young animals and hope you are getting ahead of the infection. You may continue to lose animals for about two weeks. After that much time has passed since vaccination, the animals are generally safe. However, an annual vaccination program for all cattle under two years of age will eliminate chances of an outbreak.

SSI Beneficiaries Must Report Changes

People getting supplemental security income payments should promptly report changes in their other income to social security, according to A. L. Finck, Jr., Social Security District Manager in Corpus Christi.

Supplemental security income payments have established a nationally uniform income floor for people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over or blind or disabled.

"Increases or decreases in income may affect the amount of monthly supplemental security income payments," Finck said. "People getting supplemental security income checks should report changes or expected changes in their wages, self-employment earnings, pension payments, and other income from any source except general increases in social security benefits."

Changes can be reported by contacting any social security office.

People getting supplemental security income checks should also promptly report change of address, marriage, separation, and any other circumstance that might affect their payments, according to Finck.

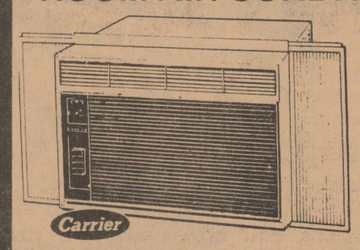

The Federal supplemental security income program is run by the Social Security Administration. "But supplemental security income payments are made from general revenues, not from social security contributions," Finck said.

The Social Security office in Corpus Christi is at 5733 S. Padre Island Drive. Changes can be reported by calling 992-1201.

Children and Summer Camps

COLLEGE STATION--Sending a child to camp represents a major decision, Dr. Jennie C. Kitching points out.

"Going to camp means the child is growing up and getting ready for a life of his own," the family life education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System, said.

Reasons for sending a child to camp vary, but most feel camp offers a rewarding experience.

"If the camp is the right one for a child, he can have a happy time. He'll gain a sense of independence and a new awareness of comradeship with peers.

"In addition, the child learns new skills and may discover new strengths he never knew existed.

"He will be exposed to nature's beauties that surround almost every campsite--which may impress him and awaken new sensibilities."

Some parents push their children off to camp before they're ready to go--wanting them to have opportunities they themselves never had, the specialist continued.

Others keep their children home or say they don't believe in camp -- even when the children want to go. This stems from the parents being unable to face an "empty nest"--a reminder that parents and children are always destined to part, she added.

Turning to preparation for camp, Dr. Kitching said a child is ready to go "when both he and his parents recognize this is what he wants--whether he says so or not--and when his parents feel comfortable about sending him away from home.

"Age for a first camping experience can vary from six--to 12--years--old, depending on the child and family situation.

"For example, a seven-year old who has several older brothers and sisters may cope with camp experiences at an earlier age than a friend who's an only child--and less at ease with other children."

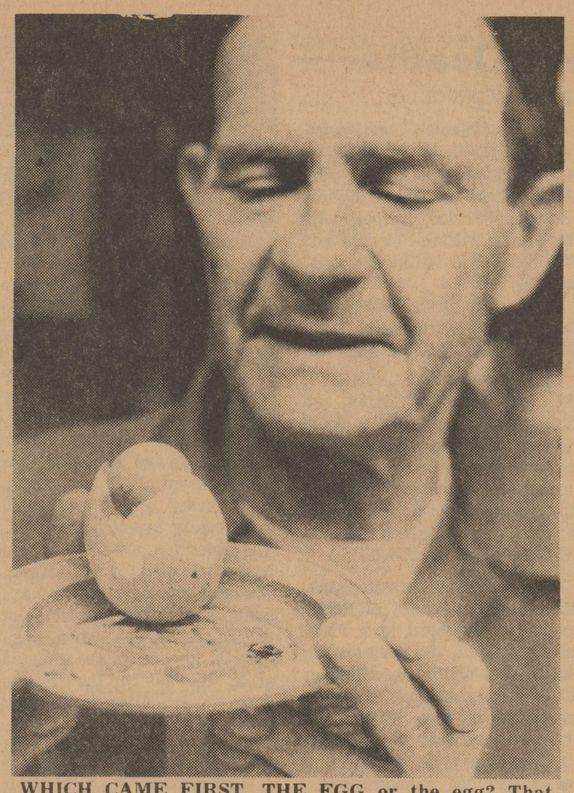

It's just as important to send a child to the right camp as it is to send him at the right age, the specialist contended.

"Once again, parental feelings sometimes get in the way of selecting 'the most suitable' camp.

"They should remember the experience should be fun for the child--and not choose a camp just because it's nearby or it's where all his friends go. These factors are important and deserve consideration, but they are not the only criteria for camp selection.

"If parents choose a camp specializing in the child's weaknesses rather than his strengths --wanting it to bring about a miraculous change--it probably won't be a happy experience for the child.

"In addition, if the camp has a wide enough range of activities for him to shine where he's able and accept others in which he's not so good--then it can be fun and contribute to his overall growth," she concluded.

WHICH CAME FIRST, THE EGG or the egg? That seems to be the question on the face of Ira Jennings, of Wooster, O., who recently discovered this "billion to one" phenomenon. The uniqueness of the find was confirmed by poultry science expert Dr. Wayne Bacon.

Peninsula Oaks Garden Club Meets

The Peninsula Oaks Garden Club met for its monthly meeting June 6. Mrs. Frances Naquin presided.

During the business meeting Mrs. Dorothy Leslie gave the gardening tips for June; tips for June include pruning, cutting back of poinsettias, mulching, etc. The members also decided to continue meeting through the summer months.

The group enjoyed a very fascinating program on dried arrangements. It was presented by Mrs. Bea Stafford. She explained where to find plants for dry arrangements, when to pick the dry plants, and how to clean them. Then she discussed various ways to use the dry plants.

Mrs. Stafford presented a fantastic display of dried plants and arrangements. Among the plants displayed were the needle pod rush, buckwheat, thistle, cat-tails, coral bean, Queen Anne's lace, sea lavendar, broom weed, and hore-hound. Everyone enjoyed the most informative presentation.

Refreshments of cookies and lemonade were served by Mrs. Johnnie Callam and Mrs. Frances Naquin.

The following guests and members were present: Miss Mary Green and Mesdames Betty Kucera, Frances Naquin, Alice Morrison, Dorothy Leslie, Thelma Sours, Inez Boney, Betty Abt, Flora Davis, Erna Schmidt, Sue Stephens, Johnnie Callam and Bernita Kinsey.

Editorial

Father's Day

American fathers make more money than those of most nations and give their families a higher living standard. But in spite of such plenty, American families are not much of an example to the world as to permanence, child behavior, juvenile behavior.

On the contrary, American children are pushing the juvenile crime rate to record highs, the nation's divorce rate is constantly increasing and the breakdown in the rate of stability and endurance of the American family seems to parallel the breakdown of paternal authority in the home.

One of the major reasons for this turn of events is the "dunce" role so often played by the American father these days. Whether the average American father is brainwashed by television programs constantly stressing female dominance (selling women the products being advertised) or whether he has simply abdicated his role as the rock of stability, security and authority in the home, is a question.

Psychiatrists tell us wives want a husband they can respect, look to for guidance and the maintaining of discipline in the home. Too many of them aren't getting much of it from American fathers and husbands.

As wives and children remember them Sunday on Father's Day, this is something they should be thinking about.

Longer Life For Cut Flowers

COLLEGE STATION--Keeping cut flowers attractive for the longest time is a challenge many home gardeners face, one horticulturist noted.

"Certain steps will prolong life of cut flowers--whether homegrown or from a florist," says Dr. William C. Welch, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System.

He offered the following suggestions to maximize cut flowers' beauty:

--For best results, cut flowers in early morning or late afternoon.

--Then, select flowers not fully open--avoid cutting old ones.

--Remove foliage from the lower third of the stem, along with all broken and bruised parts.

--If possible, wash flowers and foliage to remove dirt, sprays or dusts. Also, store cut flowers in a cool area or refrigerator until arranged.

--Cut stems on a slant, using a sharp knife or shears.

--Before using a container for an arrangement, make sure it's washed clean with soap and water.

--When receiving bulk flowers from a florist, recut ends of stems about one inch above the original cuts.

--Don't place an arrangement in direct sun, near gas fires or oil burners. When possible, place it in a cool area during the night--but not where drafts may occur.

--Change the water of an arrangement and recut stems of flowers to give them longer life. Use warm, but not hot, water. For most species, repeat this every other day.

With a chemical flower preservative, recutting and changing the water aren't necessary.

According to Dr. Welch, a very weak lemonade solution--lemon juice, sugar and water--helps extend life of cut flowers.

Aspirin and copper pennies, on the other hand, are useless as flower preservatives, he maintained.

Ridley Turtle Makes It Back To Padre Island

AUSTIN - All those years of watching for turtles have finally paid off for the volunteers of "Operation Ridley."

The first Atlantic Ridley sea turtle to come to South Padre Island beaches in more than 50 years struggled up on the beach last week and laid 117 eggs.

The event was the latest act in a drama which began several years ago when members of the Valley Sportsmen Club decided to try to bring the Ridley back to South Padre Island, a one-time Ridley paradise which has been void of the turtle for decades due to man's greed for turtle meat and eggs.

The club's project, "Operation Ridley", is headed by Dearl Adams, a Brownsville contractor with dedicated assistance supplied by Mrs. Ila Loetscher, a South Padre Islander who is widely known as the "turtle lady."

Turtle watchers believe that the Ridley which visited the beach last week may have been one of 79 hatched in 1966, eight years ago. If this is true, then there is a possibility that there will be more females visiting the beach next year since 1,102 turtles were hatched and released in the Padre Island surf in 1967.

The problem is, say turtle watchers, that no one seems to know much about Ridleys. Volunteers were first told that it took five years for a Ridley to become sexually mature, but the latest information is that it takes eight years.

They do know that the species spends most of its life at sea. The females come ashore only to lay eggs and are the only turtle to do so during daylight hours. The males stay out to sea.

Turtle watchers also know that Ridleys come back to the beaches where they were hatched to lay their eggs. This is why they obtained 2,000 eggs in 1967, with permission from the Mexican government, from a barren stretch of beach at Rancho Nuevo, about 50 miles north of Tampico, Tamp. Mexico. These eggs were transported to South Padre Island and carefully buried in the sand.

If it does take eight years for the turtles to mature, then some of these turtles should be coming back to Padre Island next spring. Adams said turtle watchers began looking for turtles last year. They camped out on the beach for 2 1/2 months and patrolled a 17-mile stretch at least once a day. At the end of last year's stay, they returned to their normal lives a very discouraged group.

They returned to their encampment again this year and were rewarded when a bulldozer operator working in the area and who was familiar with the Ridley project saw the female Ridley come to shore.

The 'dozer operator immobilized the turtle before it could return to the surf and hurried to the encampment to inform the volunteers.

When the volunteers returned the turtle was released. She dug a hole in the soft sand and laid her eggs. The eggs were recovered from the sand and placed in a wire protector to keep predators away from them.

The Ridley was tagged by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and released. In 49 to 54 days the eggs will hatch and volunteers will be on hand to escort them to the surf. And they will be on duty 24 hours a day, watching for more returning Ridleys.

Fix-It Tip

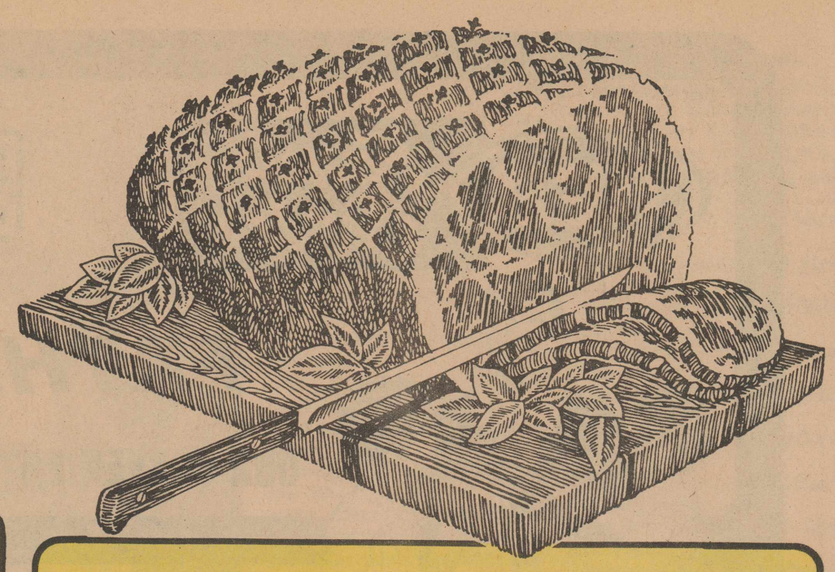

Take a look outside to see what winter did to your house and property. It probably did plenty. Figure out what should be repaired right away and what can be left until warmer weather.

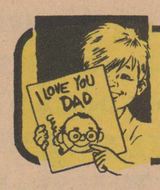

Inspect masonry and concrete work. Cracks in foundation, walks and drives that were tiny last fall are probably bigger now. Wait for a warm day and patch these spots. Use ready-mix patches to which you add water, mixing only what you will need for a job. Clean out loose material and undercut the crack so that it is wider at the bottom than the top, Keep the patch moist.

Take a look at the paint on the house. Full scale painting is best left for warmer weather but bad spots can be scraped and primed a few at a time.

37,106 Veterans Take GI Bill Training

A.A. Hunter, Director of the Veterans Administration Office in Houston, which services the south half of Texas, said today that April 1974 figures show 37,106 veterans and servicemen were taking some form of GI Bill training during the spring school period. This is an increase of 6,140 or 19.8% over the same period last year.

Hunter said 29,422 of these were taking training at the college level. An additional 5,748 were training at below college levels, and 1,936 were engaged in on-the-job training programs.

Vietnam Era veterans have surpassed both Korean Conflict and World War II veterans in percentage of eligibles using the educational benefits of the GI Bill. With a single veteran drawing $220 and a married veteran with two dependents receiving $298 monthly, the VA paid $87,686,652.00 GI Bill subsistence to South Texas veterans in fiscal year 1973.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN -- Vacation bound? There's a chance you might also be heading for trouble if you haven't taken certain precautions before leaving home.

Law enforcement experts and our Consumer Protection Division attorneys say that what is vacation time for most folks is working time for many burglars, pickpockets, and con men.

They suggest that you plan in advance to burglar-proof your home and to guard against possible thefts or consumer frauds on your trip. While the number of such occurrences is small compared to the number of vacationers, it only takes one bad experience to ruin a trip.

Here's a list of things to check before you leave:

--Stop mail, newspaper, and other deliveries.

--Tell a neighbor or your apartment manager that you will be gone and ask them to keep an eye on the place.

--Leave a few lights on or buy an automatic timer to turn certain lights on and off each evening.

--Cut your lawn just before leaving and, if you will be gone a long time, have someone cut it while you're away.

--Check all windows and doors to make sure they are locked. A sliding glass patio door can be more securely fastened by wedging a stick at the top or bottom of the door.

--Check with your local police if you plan an extended vacation. Many forces offer a "close patrol" of homes where persons are away. If your police force does, you will need to tell them what cars or persons, if any, will be making authorized visits to your house.

--Have your telephone put "on vacation." Your callers will be told that the telephone has been temporarily disconnected at your request, and you can have them referred to another number if you wish.

--Avoid mentioning to casual acquaintances or strangers that you will be on vacation. Also, avoid telling your newspaper's society editor of your trip until you have returned.

--Before leaving, engrave all valuables in your home and those you will be taking with you in the car with your driver's license or social security number. Some police forces will loan you an engraver to mark your belongings and will register your number on their master list. This may discourage burglars from taking your goods and can make identification of recovered stolen goods much simpler.

After taking precautions to secure your home from burglars while you are gone, don't let down your guard when you get into the car and drive away. There are a few things to remember during your trip too:

--Make sure you have had your car serviced and thoroughly checked before leaving and always get out of the car to watch when having it serviced on the road. There are a few unscrupulous persons who sometimes take advantage of tourists with out-of-state license plates. If your car was given a clean bill of health before you left, you can better evaluate warnings about faulty fuel pumps, air filters, batteries, etc.

--Take traveler's checks or use credit cards, and keep a list of your credit card numbers in a safe spot.

--Men should avoid keeping billfolds in back pockets, or at least button the pocket if possible. To discourage pickpockets, use the inside coat pocket or a money belt.

--Women should select a purse with a secure clasp or zipper and keep a hand over the opening when carrying it.

--Don't wear unusually expensive or flashy jewelry or display large rolls of bills.

--Never boast of wealth or possessions or tell strangers your home town or address.

--Check valuables at your hotel desk for safekeeping.

You could be taken advantage of in more subtle ways, too. Many people spend large amounts of their money on vacation souvenirs without examining them carefully. Many souvenir items are cheaply made, over-priced, and of little or no practical value. Try to set a limit on the amount of money you spend on things you're likely to throw away or put in a closet later.

If you have a consumer problem, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.
