CAL GIVEN SCATHING VERBAL LASHING

FIGHT AGAINST ANTI-AMNESTY BILL TOPPLES

Sen. Fairchild, Bitter Foe Of Shot at Ferguson, Quiets Down

ENGROSSMENT VOTED

Final Action in Senate On Measure Expected To Come Today

By Universal Service.

AUSTIN, Feb. 15—Anybody who has paid good money for a ringside seat at a highly touted grudge fight which turned out to be a sparring match, knows just how the senate galleries felt today when the Love bill to repeal the Ferguson amnesty act passed to engrossment by a vote of 18 to 6 with five present and not voting.

Senator I. D. Fairchild, ardent Ferguson supporter, had fought every attempt to get the Love bill on the floor and at times his denunciation of Senator Love and those who sought the repeal of the amnesty act was so bitter that combative resentment was aroused. But today, when he took the floor, his speech was as the cooing of a turtle dove compared to what was expected. In tossing a few bouquets at Senator Love, he said, "if I had his brains and my ability to forgive and forget, I would reach the highest pinnacle of political success."

Final Passage Today

The senate will probably pass the amnesty repeal Wednesday and then it will have to face the wildest lawmaking body ever convened under the roof of a capitol dome—the lower house of the 40th legislature.

The senate spent most of the afternoon trying to decide whether or not it wanted to repeal the manslaughter law. In the end, action was deferred until Wednesday.

The house likes almost any kind of pie except political pie and when somebody on the house floor this morning referred to Representative Harman's delinquent tax bill, authorizing the contracting of delinquent collections, as "more political pie," it was just like shaking a red petticoat in the face of a Brahma bull. The bill was killed by a vote of 79 to 35.

The house also decided to put the pharmacy business on a higher plane and passed to engrossment a bill said to be for that purpose.

The real estate license bill, which would also put real estate dealers of a higher plane, went over for special order Friday afternoon.

Regulate Auto Busses

Representative Beck's bus bill, putting busses and motor vehicles under the railroad commission was passed by the house after a long discussion in which several amendments were successfully fought off by the author.

The Jacks ice bill which, would regulate the ice industry, and put it under the railroad commission, received a cold reception in the house. After a three-hour argument in which the bill was under fire, it was amended by striking out the enacting clause.

WOMAN PRAYS AS 2 SOLONS SWAP BLOWS

Tom Blanton, Texas, And Sol Bloom, New York, In Encounter

UNTRUTH IS CHARGED

Texas Solon Loses Temper As New York Man Goads Him

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Two congressmen staged a fight which spread into a "free-for-all" melee and broke up a congressional hearing today.

It was a near riot. During the panic a woman screamed and in shrill tones which sounded above the din of battle, implored the Lord to restore order.

Rep. "Tom" Blanton, democrat, of Texas, engaged Rep. Sol Bloom, democrat of New York, and the scito wound up with Bloom lying across a table with Blanton on top of him.

Blue Law Hearing.

Strangely enough, it all happened at a hearing of the house District of Columbia committee on the Lankford "Sunday blue law" bill, designed to put the lid on capital sports and amusements on the Sabbath.

Nearly a thousand persons were present. Many joined in the fracas while the joining was good.

Harry L. Bolby, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, an advocate of the bill, landed his right fist on the jaw of the official stenographer.

L. B. Sloss, manager of a Washington amusement park, was knocked to the floor by Blanton and Bolby, according to observers. Sloss was trying to break Blanton's strangle hold on Sol Bloom.

Woman Utters Prayer.

In the midst of the tumult Miss Hattie Pitts of Washington, D. C., jumped upon a chair and repeatedly screamed, "Jesus, stop this fight."

After the storm had subsided and the crowd was dispersed, she said: "You notice that the fighting stopped when I called upon God for aid."

Rev. H. Lawson of Washington, D. C., was testifying before the committee in opposition to the bill, when the battle royal began.

Blanton, Reid, republican of Illinois, McLeod, republican of Michigan, and other committee members persisted in heckling the witness.

Sol Bloom, who was attending the hearing as a spectator, protested against the committee's treatment of the witness.

Blanton Makes Charge.

A few minutes later Blanton arose and charged Bloom with representing the amusement interests in opposition to the bill.

"Bloom's statement shows that the New York movie industry is against the bill," snapped Blanton.

"Anyone who says I represent the motion picture industry or any other class of this bill is telling an untruth," shot back Bloom.

Then Blanton, easily 185 pounds and strong, charged at Bloom, who is about the same size. He bored into him head first. He swung viciously several times and then jammed Bloom against a table, bending his back over the top. He held the New Yorker by the wrists.

Bloom Gives Yell.

"Give me a chance—let me take my glasses off—you're a fine sport—let me up," yelled Bloom.

Then Bolby, Sloss and others leaped forward and started swinging in all directions.

After the battle, Bloom said: "I am going to fight this thing out on the floor of the house, certainly something can be done to reprimand committee members who maltreat witnesses the way several members of the district committee did at their hearing today.

"And I believe something can be done toward reprimanding a member of congress, who seems to think that because another member of congress protested against such a hearing, that he could attack him.

"It is all very humiliating to me. Blanton surprised me the way he leaped forward, like a wild cat and pushed me against the table. He

Woman, Injured in Jail Cell Fire, Dying At Hospital; Accident Unexplained

Mrs. Annie Fleming of Fort Worth, arrived early Tuesday evening at the Wichita General hospital where her daughter, Miss Nettie Fleming, 33, is believed to be dying from burns received late Monday night when gas which flooded her cell in the women's ward of the Wichita county jail was ignited.

Miss Fleming was still unconscious at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday night and attendants held practically no hope for her recovery.

Due to the injured woman's condition, officers of the sheriff's department have obtained no explanation from her as to how the gas in the cell, where she was in solitary confinement, became ignited. A gas pipe connection which had been unscrewed to admit free gas into the cell was discovered by officers when they broke into the cell after the explosion.

Put In Solitary.

Miss Fleming had been in jail since Sunday night when she was arrested on narcotic charges, and until Monday afternoon was confined in the runaround on the fourth floor of the courthouse with other women prisoners, according to Mrs. D. B. Graham, jail matron.

Seeing her condition, and fearing that the woman would tamper with the gas stove in the runaround, Mrs. Graham said that she placed the woman in solitary confinement in an adjoining cell, where the gas pipe is plugged. A joint of this pipe had been removed, causing gas to escape.

Blast Shakes Building.

About 11 o'clock Monday night Mr. Graham, who is a deputy sheriff, and his wife were awakened by an explosion which shook the entire building. Graham said that he rushed into the jail ward, unlocked two doors as he went. Miss Fleming, he said, was standing in the center of her cell, her clothing aflame, while the room was a mass of fire. Before he could open the door Sheriff W. G. Bralley and several of his deputies who were in the office on the second floor, had reached the cell.

The woman was conscious and walked out of the cell door when Graham opened it. According to Sheriff Bralley, she was conscious until after she was taken to the General hospital.

Note On Table.

On a table was found a note burned so that it was almost illegible. One legible phase said "in death." another, "again on earth," and still another, "want to be—" burried by—"

The forces of the explosion was so great that the windows of the cell were shattered and the glass strewn over the courthouse yard.

REED BLISTERS COOLIDGE IN BITTER SPEECH

Failure to Punish Leaders Of Frauds Placed On President

SCORES DAUGHERTY

Demo Leader Gives Scathing Indictment Against Republicans

By Universal Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 15.—Blame for failure to punish the principals of the scandals of the Harding administration was placed squarely upon President Coolidge tonight by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who painted a hideous picture of political corruption before the Indiana Democratic Editors association.

The silver-haired Demosthenes of the senate, regarded by many as the foremost candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, traced corrupt political acts from the inception of the government to date, laying most of them at the door of the republican party. When he reached the Harding administration scandals, Reed expressed his feelings of friendship for President Coolidge but declared "I cannot excuse his conduct with reference to the matters just referred to."

President's Duty Defined

"It was the business of the president to carefully guard the public interest," declared Reed with great solemnity. "It is entirely possible that he did not know of the rape of the public domain by Fall, Doheny and Denby; but the body of the fraud was dragged into the daylight by the senate.

"The moment the facts became apparent, it was his duty to have set in motion every resource of the government in order to apprehend the culprits.

"He remained impassive and silent.

"He allowed the machinery of justice to remain under the control of Mr. Daugherty, the chief of the culprits.

"Even the White House telegraph instrument and the secret code of the government was employed to convey information to those implicated in the scoundrely transaction.

Senate Probe Blocked

"Weeks went by and still Daugherty remained in his place of power, where he could to a large extent block and render negatory the efforts of the senate to ascertain the facts.

"At last, and for an assigned reason which in itself was utterly insufficient, he yielded to public indignation and gently, ceremoniously and almost apologetically requested Daugherty's resignation.

"I declared, within my judgment, that if the president had acted vigorously and all of the employes of the government ordinarily used in criminal cases had been put to work, a number of gentlemen now at large would be behind the walls of a penitentiary.

"It was the duty of Mr. Coolidge to act. He did not act.

"The scoundrels went unwhipped of justice, and accordingly, corruption grew the more bold—the more insolent."

Scathing Indictment

This ringing indictment of President Coolidge was the most scathing, the bluntest since he has entered the White House. It appeared to make a profound impression upon the assembled editors of democratic newspapers.

"And so I say that the red line of corruption runs through the capitol of the nation and crosses the White House ground," said Reed.

Likening the present situation to the fall of the Roman empire, as a result of corrupt officials, Reed exclaimed:

"Are we approaching such a catastrophe?

"There is but one force that can rescue our country from this quagmire of iniquity—an aroused public opinion. A flame of public indignation can alone bring the government back to honest standards. That great work must be chiefly entrusted to the newspapers of the land.

Wallops Editors

"I do not hesitate to criticise you gentlemen. If you gave more of your pages to the discussion of public plunder and less to the exploitation of 'Peaches' and 'Bunny Browning,' more of your space to acts of this government than to the baseball score, more to public business and less to private scandal, a healthier public opinion would be created.

"The pens of writers are after all mightier than swords of warriors. The conscience is sound but it has been sleeping. It will be aroused when the press of the land exposes iniquity and rallies the people to the cause of righteousness."

Expounds Jefferson

While disclaiming any intention of attributing all the virtues and patriotism to the democratic party, Reed expounded the principles laid down by Jefferson as examples of true political liberty, and asserted that "nearly all the great political scandals which have shocked the national conscience must be laid at the door of the republican party."

America Ready to Rush Marines To Nicaragua If Need For More Develops

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15. (AP) Although President Coolidge was awaiting hopefully word from Rear Admiral Latimer in Nicaragua as to the success of new efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement of the factional warfare in that country, naval preparations to increase the marine detachments under Latimer's command for use in protecting American lives and property went forward today without check.

Admiral Latimer was in conference during the day with Dr. Cansas, liberal claimant to the presidency at Puerto Cabezas on the east coast. He notified the navy department that he was leaving that port on his flagship, the cruiser, Rochester, for Corinto via the Panama Canal, en route to Managua. If he gave any intimation of the success of his effort to promote an agreement between Sacasa and President Diaz it was not disclosed at the state or navy departments.

In the meantime the navy department ordered the transport, Henderson, under repairs at the Philadelphia navy yard, to Newport, R. I., to take aboard 800 blue jackets. The Henderson is scheduled to meet the fleet at Guantanamo, Cuba, but should the necessity arise to increase the marine force in Nicaragua, the ship probably would proceed from Newport to Quantico, Va., where 600 marines are available for embarkation.

U. S. May Ignore France in Plan To Bring About Naval Arms Slash

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15. (AP) Possibilities of a move toward a four-power naval conference at Geneva with France eliminated loomed here tonight with receipt of the French reply declining President Coolidge's five-power suggestions.

The American proposals in their present form, the French communication said, "risk compromising the success" of the preparatory disarmament commission created by the league of nations and already at work at Geneva.

That commission, it added, in French opinion, affords a place where "the American proposal can be effectually examined."

The reply reached Washington tonight, too late for consideration by President Coolidge or Secretary Kellogg in official hours. There was no authorized comment.

Earlier in the day, however, it was emphasized at the White Hous ethat President Coolidge has made his proposal because it was "perfectly evident" that no practical agreements for naval limitations were to be expected from the preparatory commission because of the participation of numerous small powers without or virtually without establishments.

AD CLUB ADDS NEW MEMBERS

Specialty Advertisments Discussed at Meet

"Specialty Advertising" served as the topic of discussion during the Ad club weekly meeting Tuesday noon at the Kemp with W. S. Abbott, Don Ross, J. A. Boyle, B. S. McCleary and Ben Williams each discoursing briefly. Williams was in charge of the program.

A specialty advertisement display was produced by Al Ellis and shown to club members by Doyle.

McCleary said that many advertisers were of opinion that appeals should be made to the women rather than the men, but declared although men are not as demonstrative as the women they will buy, too, if the special offering is put to them in a clear cut manner. He stressed tie-ups with newspapers and the maintenance of a comprehensive mailing list.

Abbott discussed specialty advertisement from a banker and financial standpoint, stressing good will and confidence.

Ross touched on outdoor and window display.

Doyle centered on novelty advertisement, stressed variety and declared a merchant or firm should follow up his trade mark in advertising and not wander from it.

Tabulation was taken of a membership drive which closed Tuesday and it was discovered that 17 new members had been added to the club roster. Abbott sketched the progress of the club the past several months and announced that it was on a sound financial basis. It was agreed that all club members who possibly can do so will attend and assist in the opening functions of the Daily Times, a local newspaper, which has reconstructed its building.

did not even give me a chance to defend myself."

Blanton Denies Attack.

Blanton said:

"Bloom and I are friends. I led the fight to seat him. He is interested in this legislation, because of New York moving picture interests. He is not a member of the committee. He butted in, the chairman said he was out of order.

"He started toward me and I met him half way and held his wrists."

Realtors Adopt Building Policy

After more than an hour of debate, in which an amendment was offered and rejected the resolution reporting the present housing situation in Wichita Falls, presented last week to the Wichita Falls real estate board was finally adopted at the regular luncheon of the organization Tuesday noon.

The article of the resolution questioned was that dealing with small houses, duplex residences, and apartment houses, with which it was claimed, the city is now "oversupplied."

Amendment Fails

An amendment was offered to the effect that "the building of duplex residences and apartment houses had just reached a normal basis," and that "loan companies should not give money to disreputable builders."

In discussing the amendment, J. M. Bland, chairman of the committee that presented the resolution, said: "Are we willing to face anything but optimistic statements? In one or two years years from now Wichita Falls will have a condition of overbuilding if the realtors do not face the situation squarely. Reports show that during 1926, more than 100 single family residences were erected. That is too many to build in any one year."

"I am not afraid of the realtors overbuilding this town. But the situation is being recognized nationally. We are better of than any place in the country, but there is a danger in publishing to the world that everything is all right, and inviting builders from all parts of the country to come on in."

He said that he was aiming his remarks, principally at the "fly-by-night builders," who erected houses on credit alone.

Surplus of Rent Houses

H. G. Helgerson, who presented the amendment to the resolution, declared that "this paragraph will not stop the building, but it will stop the buying."

The resolution was finally adopted, and it was voted to replace the expression "over supply" with that of a "small surplus of rent houses, duplex residences and apartment houses."

The resolution will be sent to national organization headquarters.

Life Insurance—

—would have paid the tax and saved the estate intact for the heirs

The "Old Man" had "piled it up." Ten million, said some. Others thought four or five. Even the heirs could only guess. For he was close-mouthed and queer . . . and the estate was all in land, cattle and property. He had believed in real assets that he could see. Insurance! he scorned.

The will was probated . . . assets inventoried . . . a bare million, even at fair valuations, said appraisers. But at forced sale at present depreciated values, much less. Yet cash must be raised to pay staggering inheritance taxes, totaling over $150,000.

"Life Insurance," said the banker, "at least to cover inheritance taxes would have saved the full estate for the heirs. He overlooked that. Otherwise he had a master mind for business."

Ask the Southland Life Agent for complete information on the Inheritance tax problem and its solution.

TOO MUCH OIL, FARISH WARNS

Humble's President Sees Rocky Road For 1927

HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 15. (AP) Not only were 1926 estimated earnings of the Humble Oil and Refining company cut nearly $3,000,000 under those of 1926, but they may go still lower in 1927, according to W. S. Farish, its president.

In a statement to stockholders at their annual meeting here Monday, he gave probable overproduction as the outstanding cause for his tentative forecast and indicated if producers generally did not "properly interpret the handwriting on the wall" oil products "will have to sell below their cost."

"No one can foresee the exact situation or what will happen over the entire year," he said. "All we can do is to analyze the facts as best we can and draw conclusions therefrom. We have done this. We have carefully studied the general situation within the industry and we are sorry to say that our conclusions as to what will happen over the year are not as optimistic as some opinions and statements that we have recently seen.

As we analyze the supply and demand situation this year, we are forced to the conclusion that considerable crude must again go into storage; and if this conclusion proves to be in line with actualities, low markets are inevitable. It is regrettable, of course, that this lower value of crude and products seems to be the only corrective influence to remedy oversupply."

Mr. Farish noted that the Humble's pipe line capacity is in excess of 170,000 barrels daily and that refineries have been or were about to be expanded to care for an expected larger supply of crude oil. But nevertheless "our experience has proven to us that it is unadvisable to carry in storage more crude than is reasonably necessary to carry on our business and keep the pipe lines efficiently employed."

Doctors know the value of vegetable iron and yeast in building up and improving the body. IRONIZED YEAST, in a highly concentrated form, contains all the blood building properties of vegetable oil with yeast It is nine times more effective than a cake of ordinary baker's yeast or iron alone.

Sickening Oil Unnecessary.

A single tablet of IRONIZED YEAST gives you all the weight-building benefits contained in 10 tablespoonfuls of cod liver oil, without the sickening, fishy taste and "repeating" that follows.

MODISH MITZI — Mitzi Starts Head First in Her Career — By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi is going to a school of designing just to visit the class in millinery. It's all very interesting, but the models she meets on the way attract her attention from the class work. What wonderfully high crowns for spring she observes. The hat in front of her attains some of its height by the chiffon flower perched on the top of the high crown in front. Then there is the hat with the accent of height given in the back by a flower. Peaks and points all show the upward movement. Mitzi has gained many ideas, chief among them is that she must go right out and shop for a hat somewhat similar.

The crown is very high and slants backward. It's made of bands of white satin set in black milan and trimmed with a white flower. It fits so well in the popular mode of black and white. Of course, she might have been able to design one like it, but why wait?

"Well, well, Mitzi," says Dad, "I admit I never thought you would do it." "What?" asks Mitzi a little guiltily. "Make a stunning hat like that instead of buying it." "Oh," replies Mitzi, "I just got it to—er—copy." Now, wonders Dad again, where is that saving coming in—he'd like to see some of it.

Dorothy Dix Highest Paid Woman Writer, A Daily Woman's Page Feature

Husbands Can Train Wives If They'll Start at It Soon Enough, Says Dix

"Wives, like babies, can be trained, so begin early on yours," advises Dorothy Dix—"See that she gets little treats and amusements, with some personal love-making thrown in, and if you'll trade the hammer for the salve-spreader you'll have her eating out of your hand."

When you get married put in as much time and thought and effort into training your wife to be what you want her to be as you would in teaching an office boy his duties and obligations. Most brides are more or less plastic.

Virtually every girl who gets married desires to make her husband happy and to live up to his ideal of her. When she fails, it is oftener than not because she does not know what is expected of her. He spoils her at first. Then he neglects her, but he doesn't help her Don't make this mistake. If you are a man fit to marry, you are older than your wife, you are wiser, you have had far more experience of the world, so it's up to you to be her counselor and guide.

Get off on the right foot. Make her feel from the first that you regard her as your equal and that she must do her part in making life a success. Don't put up with slack housekeeping and bad cooking. Make her realize that the woman who does not make a comfortable home lays down on her job just as much as the man who is too lazy to work to support it.

Teach her how to handle money, how to spend and how to save. It's ignorance nearly always when a woman ruins her husband with her extravagance. And if you want your wife to be a companion to you, help her to develop her mind. Read with her. Talk to her about the subjects in which you are interested. Make her keep up with you in every way.

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred a man could train his wife into being what he wanted her to be if he would take the trouble to do it.

But wives are like babies. You have to begin when they are young. You can't teach an old wife new tricks.

Don't act as if being married to you was party enough for any woman. Don't be one of those husbands who think that all the diversion a woman needs is just to be married.

Don't think that your wife can put in a gay and happy evening merely sitting up gloating over her wedding ring. Don't delude yourself into believing that all the fun that any woman needs is to cook and clean and patch and mend and baby-tend for her family.

Far from it. Marriage is no picnic for women. It is a life sentence at hard labor.

It is the constant going round and round in a treadmill that exhausts the body but gives the brain no exercise. It leaves a woman too much time to think unhealthy thoughts, to brood over imaginary wrongs, to magnify trifles, to grow morbid or dull; and so, above all other human creatures, she needs to have amusement brought into her life.

Therefore, no matter whether you are tired or not or whether you enjoy it or not, take her out one or two evenings a week. Give her every little treat you can afford. Break the everlasting strain she lives under.

Give her something new and fresh to think over while she stands over the gas range or sews endless seams. You will save her life, her reason and much money in doctor bills. And you will be repaid a thousandfold in having a jolly, sane woman to live with instead of a hypochondriacal nagger who harps on the same old grievances because she hasn't anything else to think about.

Keep Up Your Love-Making

Most husbands drop their love-making at the altar and never mention the state of their affections again until they get upon their death beds. They take it for granted that their wives will know they love them because they don't divorce them. But this is cold comfort for the women who hunger and thirst for something with which to stay their starved souls.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that woman ever gets old enough or is married enough not to crave soft talk. She never does and if you don't feed her on it, she will lap it up from the first man that offers it to her.

Make it a rule to tell your wife on Sundays and Tuesdays that every day in every way you love her better and better. On Mondays and Wednesdays swear to her that she is the only woman in the world for you, and on Thursdays and Fridays and Saturdays assure her that she is more beautiful and fascinating than she was when you courted her, and you will have a happy and contented wife who will eat out of your hand.

Jolly Her

Before marriage whether you flatter a woman or not is a matter of inclination. After marriage it is a matter of necessity. The wife's happiness depends upon it. It is what makes all the sacrifices that every wife must make worthwhile.

So make it a point to notice your wife's new dress and hat and when she does her hair another way and tell her how well she looks. She will be as grateful to you for even a diluted compliment flung her way as a starving dog is for a bone. When she spent hours cooking your favorite dish, don't gobble it down without a comment. Tell her that she is a wizard with the pots and pans and that you feel like eating her dinners on your knees. Extol her economies and she will become a dime-nurser.

Vinegar catches no feminine flies, but they all swarm around the honey pot. If husbands would use the hammer less and the salve-spreader more there would be fewer disgruntled women who do not even try to be good wives because they never got a word of praise anyway, and so they say to themselves—what's the use?

DOROTHY DIX.

(The last five marriage hints to men will be given on Friday.)

MAKING MODERN MENUS

When you plan to introduce nut meats into your menu remember that one cup of nut meats represents, in fats, two-fifths of a cup of butter. To supplement meals where fats are not used in large quantities, nuts may be used in many ways.

NUT AND MEAT LOAF

One and one-half cups of round steak ground, one cup of crumbs moistened in cold water, then pressed dry, half a cup of finely chopped peanuts, one well-beaten egg and teaspoon of grated onion, with salt, pepper and paprika to taste. This should be baked for 35 minutes in a hot oven and served with a brown gravy.

BAKED CHEESE AND NUTS

One cup each of grated cheese, chopped nuts and breadcrumbs, with one tablespoon each of melted butter, chopped green pepper and grated onion, seasoning to taste and one well-beaten egg. Saute the pepper and onion in the butter, add the crumbs, and stir until they are brown. Mix all the ingredients together lightly, moisten with the egg and a little milk of necessary, bake into a loaf until crisp and brown. Serve with baked tomatoes and cream gravy.

Hundreds of coffees from many lands to choose from

...yet no single one was chosen

WHAT WOMAN has not worked lovingly over the mixing of a sauce or of a salad dressing? Stirring and tasting, adding now a bit more of this ingredient, now of that?

"The supreme art," writes one authority on foods, "lies in blending flavor with flavor." And it is in that one food, in which, perhaps, taste counts most of all, that this art has found its highest expression.

With hundreds of kinds and grades of coffees brought from distant countries, the critical men and women of America have agreed on none of them.

Such fame as never before came to any coffee has today been won—not by a single flavor, but by many skillfully mingled, by a blend of coffees from the old South.

Years ago it was approved by the great families of Dixie—that touch of extra richness in the blend which was created down in old Tennessee.

Today from New York to Los Angeles, this same blend with that mellow shade of difference, is pleasing more people than any other coffee ever offered for sale. Maxwell House has swiftly become by far the largest selling coffee throughout the entire United States.

A new experience awaits you and your family in your first taste of its full-bodied smoothness, in your first breath of its aroma. A new pleasure at breakfast and dinner, in the special, mellow goodness of Maxwell House Coffee.

"LET THE LIGHT SHINE"

MISSOURI lawmakers defeated an anti-evolution bill after 19 ministers representing eight religious denominations had entered solemn protest against the principle of the bill as well as "all legislation which could be designated as an attempt of the church to control the state." Next the Arkansas anti-evolution bill had a hearing. This bill was introduced in the lower house and would have prohibited the teaching of evolution in tax-supported schools of the state. It was passed by a vote of 53 to 49 and sent to the senate.

There the solons made short work of it.

They voted to table the bill and now it is as dead as a herring insofar as this session of the Arkansas legislature goes. It is said the vote in the senate was 25 to 6 to table the bill which would have prohibited the teaching in a tax supported school the theory that man descended or ascended from the lower order of animals. Of course, there isn't a tax supported school in this state or any other state where the pupils are taught that man descended or ascended from a lower order of animals.

In Missouri the Baptists led the fight against the anti-evolution bill. Now the education association of the Methodist Episcopal church south, has made an important declaration. In session in the City of Memphis, the association voted "we put ourselves on record as opposed to all legislation that would interfere with the proper teaching of science in American schools and colleges; and we are opposed to all legislation of that sort because we believe it to be futile and can serve no good."

The measure was introduced by Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke university of North Carolina, and Rev. Dr. J. C. Roper of the upper South Carolina conference, declared himself in favor "of the bold course." "If science can give us more light, God knows I want it," declared Dr. Roper.

Rev. G. F. Winfield, newly elected president of the association and president of the Lon Morris college in Texas, made this declaration, "the Methodist people as a whole are against religious legislation. If we stop it by law the modern youth of this country will cry, 'why our own church is trying to block our way to enlightenment,' and they will lose respect for the church. Studying the results of scientific research will do no harm, for wherever you go, in either science or theology, you'll find Christ. Truth is as eternal as God."

According to an Associated Press report of the proceedings the two dissenting votes were by unidentified delegates who made no noise after their overwhelming defeat.

PROTECT THE PANAMA CANAL

REPRESENTATIVE HAMILTON FISH of New York is a republican, a grandson of a former secretary of state in the cabinet of a republican president. Representative Fish is holding the center of the stage. He has a new plan to lift the war loans made to the allies of the United Statees in the World war.

Perhaps he is the mouthpiece of the national bankers, as the Fish family for more than a century has been close to Wall street and its kings. Fish is bold about his proposal. He says all the islands in the Carribbean sea should become the property of the United States, in order to adequately protect the Panama Canal "and simultaneously lift the American war debt burden from England and France." This is the Fish proposal:

"Let England and France appraise these islands, which are within our sphere of influence and geographically should be ours, and I believe we would pay ten times what they are appraised at just to get rid of European nations in the Carribbean sea and in South and Central Americas. Even if we had to cancel hundreds of millions of dollars of debt to Great Britain and half that sum to France, it would be worth it in the long run."

Representative Fish of New York is very free in his disposition of the money of the American people. He is willing to pay hundreds of millions of dollars for property that may not be worth ten millions in order to make it worth the while in the long run.

If his argument is true that the possession of these islands is necessary for the protection of the Panama Canal. Then why not Mexico and Nicarauguan. "Geographically they are ours." Otherwise they are not. These nations, friendly neighbors, are close to the Panama Canal. If the islands of the Carribbean sea are necessary for the protection of the canal, why not the nation lying between the Rio Grande river and the Isthmus of Panama.

HIGH COST OF WHISKEY

FEDERAL JUDGE WILLIAM H. ATWELL of Texas fined a negro $50 who bought bootleg liquor because he couldn't pay the high price of prescription liquor for his sick wife.

Judge Atwell said that he had been informed that one Dallas druggist sold 1700 pints of liquor in one week, and it was then that he said the high cost of medicinal liquor, which is sold to legitimate purchasers on prescription constitutes a serious weakness in the federal prohibition law.

A person compelled to pay $2 for a prescription and three dollars a pint is paying several times what the liquor is worth, according to this federal luminary of the judiciary.

He says this is a weakness in the law, but he has to administer the law as it is. Secretary Mellon discovered weakness in the law. He advised that the government should supervise the making of its own whiskey and fix the price within the reach of all. This did not appeal to Wayne B. Wheeler and others who represent the Anti-Saloon league and the ultra drys of the country. They denounced the Mellon proposal and it was strangled.

The HOLLYWOOD GIRL

© JOHNSON FEATURES INC. 1926

By Beatrice Burton
Author of
"Love Bound," "Her Man," "Honey Lou," Etc.

READ THIS FIRST:

BOBBIE RANSOM, a sweet little school teacher, is movie struck and wildly eager to go to Hollywood to break into pictures. Neither her father, a widower, nor ANDY JERROLD, who wants to marry her, will lend her the money she needs. Finally she borrows $500 from the WIDOW PARKINS, who is engaged to marry her father, and goes to Hollywood. She returns Andy his engagement ring before she goes.

At MRS. MANGAN'S boarding house she meets STELLA DELROY, an extra girl in pictures. Through Stella she gets a few days' work at the Magnifica Studios, where ROY SCHULTZ, a famous director, shows great interest in her and then seems to forget her. She becomes great pals with his wife, LOTTIE, who once taught school, too. And Schultz's assistant, GUS MacCLOUD, falls in love with her and she with him.

When she becomes discouraged and wants to go home, he lends her enough money on some jewelry she has, to keep her going in Hollywood for six months; and he promises her a good part in the first picture he is given to direct.

Lottie tells Bobbie that Gus is taking her husband out to wild parties at the flat of MONICA MONT, a gold-digging little movie vamp.

Stella Delroy becomes discouraged and blue when she was burned in a studio fire, and drinks poison, leaving behind her a note that tells of her unhappy love affair with Gus. Then Bobbie learns that he has a wife who is divorcing him. But she goes on caring for him anyway.

He gets a picture of his own to direct, and offers Bobbie a part in it and tells her how much he loves her. His wife finally frees him, but he doesn't mention marriage to Bobbie. He wants to go on making intense love to her, however, and, insulted and hurt, she refuses the part in his picture. He gives it to Monica Mont, on condition that Bobbie doesn't take it. He tries to persuade her to change her mind about it, but she won't. She makes up her mind to stay in Hollywood as long as her money lasts, and make one more effort to achieve her ambition. Lottie Schultz tells Bobbie she is going to leave Roy, because of his love affair with Monica.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER LII.

There was a special delivery letter waiting for Bobbie when she left Lottie Schultz that night and went back to Mrs. Mangan's.

It was from Andy. She knew that the minute she saw it, with its red stamp and its blue stamp, in Mrs. Mangan's work-stained hands. Nobody but Andy ever sent her special delivery letters. He always did.

"I guess that's from your young man back home," Mrs. Mangan said to her as Bobbie took it. "My oh my, if I had a young fellow like that, writin' me letters and sendin' 'em special all the time, I bet I wouldn't stay away from him for months at a go. You can't leave a man a-lyin' around like that. Some other girl's sure to snap him up."

She stood there while Bobbie tore open the envelope and read the letter. She was dying to know what was in it. Bobbie, with her face that was like a Dorothy Perkins rose, was a figure of romance to her—as a pretty girl always is to a middle-aged unattractive woman.

"Well, I suppose he's a-beggin' you to come home," she said, by way of a hint that she was curious about the contents of the letter.

But Bobbie only smiled in a wistful way, and started up the stairs to her own room.

"Never mind, I'll see it tomorrow, anyway," Mrs. Mangan thought, consoling herself, "when she goes out for her walk."

Bobbie never locked her things, and Mrs. Mangan went through her room religiously every day of her life. Bobbie would have been surprised to know that the poison-neat landlady knew most of her private business!

She took off her hat before the mirror of the blue-green dresser, without knowing she was doing it. She took off her short blue coat and hung it in the clothes closet. These things were habit with her, and she did them now before she picked up the letter.

Then she sat down in the rocker beside the window and read it for the second time. It had been written with a typewriter, and it was full of mistakes.

She could see at a glance that no red-headed stenographer had done it. Andy had struggled with it himself!

"Dear Little Bobs:

"Where in the dickens do you spend all your time so that it's impossible for me to reach you either by long distance or telegraph? I'm still wondering whether you read that fool letter of mine or not, and I'm hoping that you did not. If you did, forget it, please.

"You know that no red-headed stenographers or stenographers with hair of any other color from bright yellow to black, could vamp your truly. You've put the Indian sign on me, and I'm yours for keeps no matter what you do, or where you go, or when you come back. I'm as permanent as the weather.

"I suppose your Dad has written by this time and told you that I bought your old house. Locust street property is awfully good stuff to have, and I know you'd feel lost when you came back and found strangers in the old place.

"Your Dad's new wife took all the furniture, and I'm having Paula Ferguson do the house over. I hope you'll like it. I'm going to move in when it's finished and keep bachelor's hall until you get ready to come home.

"My mother's taken a little apartment in the new block that has gone up at the corner of Eighth street and Locust. I don't believe in having mother-in-law in the house, much as I love and respect my own mother.

"Honey, what color scheme would you like for the house? Paula says she'd be glad to know before she starts in to get a lot of stuff together. Of course, if you'd rather pick out the things yourself, just let me know. If I were a woman I'd certainly want to furnish my own house, but Paula tells me most of the brides nowadays just turn everything over to an interior decorator.

"I hired a landscape gardner to fix up the yard, and believe me, Bobs, we're going to be so sporty nobody will know us.

"I'm so doggoned lonesome for you that if I didn't have to stay here and sell used cars every day of my life, including Sunday, I'd hop the first train to Hollywood, and bring my girl home, cave-man style.

"All the love in the world from,

"ANDY.

"P. S.—I see most of the movies that come along, but haven't got a glimpse of you yet. What are you playing in, for the love of Mike?"

Bobbie read certain parts of that letter for a third time. Paula Ferguson, who had a decorating business of her own. A handsome girl with black hair and jet black lashes framing a pair of splendid blue eyes. Somehow she didn't quite like the idea of Andy seeing much of Paula Ferguson. She was so attractive, and clever. Just the kind of girl whom a man like Andy would fall for.

"I guess I'm jealous of Andy the way a sister would be jealous of her favorite brother," thought Bobbie. "Anyway, Paula Ferguson is NOT going to furnish that house!" Then her thought stopped and another thought struck her. It was none of her business who furnished Andy's house for him!

"Long Distance Call for You," She Yelled Up the Stairs

"He expects me to go home and marry him and live in it, but I'm not going to," she said to herself. "Even if I go home I won't marry him. I've told him so a million times. Then why does he keep on acting as if I were?"

She sat down at the little blue-green writing table between the windows, and started the kind of letter that would bring him to his senses.

"Dear Andy:

"I'm NOT coming home, and I'm not going to marry you, so please do anything that you want to do about the house."

"The nerve of him!" she said to herself, biting the end of her pen. "Taking it for granted that I'm going to get married and settle down with him to housekeeping on Locust street! The pure unadulterated nerve—"

"BOBBIE! BOBBIE!" the shrill tired voice of Mrs. Mangan broke in upon her thoughts, "Bob-bee-e!"

Bobbie went to the head of the stairs. "Long distance call for you, dear-ee-e!" yelled Mrs. Mangan. "Long distance call. Do you want to answer up there in the hall?"

"No, I'll come downstairs," Bobbie told her firmly. "I can hear better down there."

She knew that if she talked from the extension phone upstairs, Mrs. Mangan would be sure to "listen in" downstairs. She always did.

"Hello," she said into the mouthpiece, and almost at once she heard Andy's voice—sharp and clear as if he were in the next room instead of so many, many miles away!

"Bobbie? Hello, dearest," he said, and the sound of his voice brought back to her the memory of his lean brown face with its straight nose, its fine humorous mouth, and the clear gray eyes under level black brows. Andy. No one like him in the whole world. No one so good and so decent and so honest and true.

"Just called you up to hear the sound of your voice," he was saying. "Did you get my letter?"

"Just got it, Andy."

"Well, what did you think of what I said in it?"

"I thought you had your nerve to write it," Bobbie told him. She always spoke her mind to Andy.

He laughed, and Bobbie found herself smiling. Andy had the most infectious laugh in the world—the kind of laugh that made you feel that life was awfully funny and awfully good, and that nothing ever went wrong anywhere.

"Did you?" he said, "I thought you might." And then he laughed again.

"Well, I was just answering it, anyway," Bobbie broke in upon that laugh. "I was just telling you that I'm NOT coming home for a long time, if I ever do—and that I'm NOT going to get married if I DO come home—and that if I did marry a man, I'd want to furnish my house MYSELF, instead of turning it over to some pie-eyed simp like Paula Ferguson! I think she has the worst-looking things in the window of her shop, and I wouldn't give them house-room!"

"That's what I wanted to know. I'll let the house stay empty until you come home," Andy answered. "Then you can do what you want with it!"

"But I'll never want to do anything with it!" Bobbie was fairly shouting at him when she heard him say, "Goodby, darling," and hang up.

She ground her teeth together as she banged the receiver back on its hook. Oh, he did make her so angry, sometimes!

She went back upstairs to her room, and sat by the window wondering what makes a man go on caring about a girl who doesn't care a snap of her fingers about him—not as she should care about a husband, at any rate.

"Of course, I do love Andy in a way," she confessed to herself, "but it's such a peaceful chummy kind of way. Not the way I care for Gus."

She could almost feel her heart skip a beat whenever she thought about Gus, and the way he looked at her when he was going to kiss her, and the way his arms went around her—slowly and softly at first, and then tight and vise-like.

It was queer, but whenever she thought of Gus, she thought about herself in his arms. The way she felt when he kissed her. Whereas, when she thought of Andy she thought of the way he looked and the things he said and did.

She had never heard of "being in love with love." And so, like many another girl who has made that same mistake, she didn't know the difference between her feeling for Gus MacCloud, and her feeling for Andy Jerrold.

But she went to bed that night and dreamed that she was picking out blue curtains for the house on Locust street back home!

The Man Nobody Knows

INSTALLMENT XI

Appeal For Women.

Men followed him, and the leaders of men have very often been physically strong. But women worshiped him. This is significant. The names of women constitute a very large proportion of the list of his close friends. There were women from widely varying stations in life, headed by his mother. Perhaps she never fully appreciated his genius; certainly she was not without her periods of serious doubt as we shall discover later on; yet her loyalty to his best interests, as she conceived them, remained true, and she stood tearful but unwavering at the foot of the cross.

There were Mary and Martha, two gentle maiden ladies who lived outside Jerusalem and in whose home with Lazarus, their brother, he enjoyed frequent hospitality; there was Joanna, a rich woman, the wife of one of Herod's stewards—these and many others of the type which we are accustomed to designate as "good" women followed him with a devotion which knew no weariness or fear.

The important, and too often forgotten, fact in these relationships is this—that women are not drawn by weakness. The sallow-faced, thin-lipped, so-called spiritual type of man may awaken maternal instinct, stirring an emotion which is half regard, half pity. But since the world began no power has fastened the affection of women upon a man like manliness. The men who have been women's men in the finest sense, have been the vital, conquering figures of history.

The other sort of women came into contact with him, too—women of less fortunate experience and reputation — whose illusions regarding men were gone, whose eyes saw piercingly, and whose lips were well-versed in phrases of contempt.

As he taught in the Temple, one of them was hurried into his presence by a vulgar crowd of self-righteous Scribes and Pharisees. She had been taken in the act of infidelity, and according to the Mosaic law she could be stoned to death. Shrinking, embarrassed, yet with a look in which defiance and scorn were mingled too, she stood in his presence, and listened while their unclean lips played with the story of her shame. What thoughts must have raced through her mind—she who knew men and despised them all—and now was brought to judgment before a man? They were all alike, in her philosophy; what would this one do and say?

To her amazement, and the discomfiture of her critics, he said nothing. He "stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not." They craned their necks to see what he wrote and continued to taunt him with their questions:

"Moses says stone her; what do you say?

"Come now, if you are a prophet, here's a matter for you to decide."

"We found her in the house of So-and-So. She is guilty; what's your answer?"

All this time he had not once looked at the woman's face, and he did not look at her now. Slowly he "lifted himself up," and facing the evil-minded pack, said quietly:

"He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone."

And again, says the narrative, he stooped down and wrote on the ground.

A painful silence fell upon the crowd: he continued writing. Writing what? Some have ventured the conjecture that he traced names of people and places that brought a blush of shame to men in that crowd. That may be so, but it is more impressive to think that he wrote nothing of significance; that he merely busied his fingers in the sand, not to add to her discomfiture by looking in her eyes. He wrote—and one by one the thick-lipped champions of morality drew their garments around them and slipped away, until the court was empty except for him and her. Then, and only then, his glance was lifted.

"Woman, where are those thine accusers? Hath no man condemned thee?" he inquired, as if in surprise.

Amazed at the sudden turn of affairs she could hardly find her voice.

"No man, Lord," she murmured. "Neither do I condemn thee," he answered simply. 'Go, and sin no more."

From the moment when the noisy vulgar throng had broken in upon him, he was complete master of the situation. Those were men not easily abashed, but they slunk out of his presence without waiting for his command. And she, who knew men so much more truly than men ever knew each other, felt his mastery, responded to his power, and spoke to him reverently as "Lord."

He that speaketh truth sheweth forth righteousness: but a false witness deceit.

There is that speaketh like the piercings of a sword: but the tongue of the wise is health.

The lip of truth shall be established for ever: but a lying tongue is but for a moment.

Deceit is in the heart of them that imagine evil: but to the counsellors of peace is joy.—Proverbs, 12:17-20.

BO BROADWAY ..... By Joseph Van Raalte

NEW YORK, Feb. 15. (EFS)—"I'll try to get up this afternoon an' do the job," said the Truthful Plumber over the phone. "The trouble is I'm such a liar you can't believe a word I say."

He didn't show up for three days, thereby establishing the reliability of his word concerning his own unreliability.

* * *

The other day a New York woman handed a red-cap at the Grand Central station a dollar bill. She wanted to tip him and didn't have any change. She stood around a few minutes, never expecting him to return. When he finally showed up she was furious. He had abused her childlike confidence in his dishonesty.

* * *

In the capital of the commenplace the prevailing idea of "civilization" is a state of being in which a person with sufficient money to squander on "service" may be relieved of all but the most elementary functions of existence.

In a recent advertisement Sadie Secretariette, in return for a meagre honorarium, promises to "relieve the hostess of the detail of dinners, weddings, luncheons, bridge, original parties and theaters."

After every "funny man" in New York had tried for several years—and failed—to dispose of the city's traffic situation in a few succinct terms, along comes Phil Guedella, English historian, and after a casual glance at the snarl on Fifth avenue remarks:

"You should erect a monument over here to the Unknown Pedestrian!"

* * *

Saptown's 6,322,550 population is a never-ending source of wonder and inspiration to the statistician. When all else fails him, he can fall back on the old Six Million, secure in the knowledge that new phosphorescence may be stirred.

According to a recent list of trick figures, of all those engaged in gainful occupations from the Battery to the Bronx, males outnumber females by more than eight to three.

The Worthy Brother who worked on the list didn't "specify." That is, he didn't celebrate on "gainful occupations," and he thereby leaves a Gentleman of the Old School wondering whether he included alimony coaxing among the endeavors y-cleped "gainful."

He probably did not, which accounts for the lop-sided ratio.

* * *

My belief is that the statistician also slipped off the trail in the matter of the number of New Yorkers employed throughout the city as miners. He lists only 676, which certainly cannot include the army of Broadway taxi men and serious young night club "hostesses," many of whom joined the gold rush some years ago, left their homes and never got farther west than Mazda Lane.

The report likewise takes cognizance of some 7977 persons, "engaged as farmers within the city's limits."

Farming as a lucrative endeavor, strange to say, has never obtained much of a foothold in New York. Thousands of farm boys have left their old homes to settle here, but they soon lose all desire for bucolic pursuits and become stock brokers, bank presidents, newspaper men and bottlbacks.

There used to be a farmer's son who conducted an elaborate shoeshine place in the Forties just off Eighth avenue. A patron of the place asked him why he had deserted the farm. He said the life there was to circumscribed.

"But pop still hangs on to the old place," he said.

"I see," murmured the patron. "The father makes hay while the son shines."

* * *

The wife of a New York City farmer went into a hardware store one day last fall and told the man she wanted the smallest glass jar in the shop. He showed her many glass jars but none of them was small enough.

"Why must it be so small?" he inquired.

"I'll be frank with you," she answered. "You have a kind face and I know I can trust you. A large jar would be useless to me. I merely want it to preserve the vegetables my husband raised in our garden last summer."

ISSUE DODGED

Texas House Shuns Move to Oppose Irrigation.

AUSTIN, Feb. 15. (AP) — The house today shunned a concurrent resolution by Representative Merritt that would have memorialized congress against passage of the Swing-Johnson bill providing a seven states irrigation dam project in Colorado on grounds that cotton acreage would be increased in the section affected.

KID DUGAN By Dick Dorgan

Friend Al:

Well, here I am back managing Kid Dugan, and I might have been boss of the World's Champion except he hurt his ankle two days before the fight, but from what I seen of the Champ, Dugan could have gone in there on a crutch and beat him. Now I'm managing a prize fighter on a crutch so I don't know whether I'm a fighter, ball player, or manager (editor's note—He's a fool) But I ain't going to sign up with a ball club for chicken feed. Hope you're O. K.

Yours,

Jack Keefe.

Rawls Leads in Individual Points—Draughon Off Form

By NORMAN D'OLIVE

Panhandle Refiners turned back the Draughon's Business college quintet, 41-15 in the opening game of the city league basketball series on Junior college court Tuesday night, while Stinekoenig's Guardsmen shaded the Conocos 25-10 and Chubby Neal's Landon-Hill basketeers took the final tilt from the Hub Clothiers by a 38-20 score.

Riley Rawls, Panhandle forward, staged a comeback in his goal shooting with 19 points as a final count. Metzger's crew showed more fight and seemed to have the wind not heretofore displayed during the season, but the collegiates were off on sinking points. Wolford, Rawls and McCasland clipped off the floor play in neat fashion for the Panhandle Longhorns, while Ross and Tyson worked out in good form at guarding. Huffman and Metzger lead the attack for the Collegiates together with Jones in a rush on floor play and checking back for a defense. Kelm and Hennessy, Draughon guards, kept the Refiners at fast pace in order to sink their goals.

The hopeful Continentals' winning streak was shadowed by Stinekoenig's Guardsmen in the second scrap. Ray and Gay featured in the floor running, ably assisted by Smith and Keevil, while reliable Gilbert spotted his men and passed the ball with accuracy. Hill and January lead the military five in floor play and goal shooting. Van Horn and Miller furnished the balance of goal sinking for the Guards, while Clifton warded off the Conocos' breaks for their basket.

Mike Goldstucker's Haberdashers got off on an 8-6 lead in the first quarter of the scrap with Chubby Neal's sports but the Landon-Hill trio, Gantner, Allen and Blackerby, stepped out and run up a 30-15 score at the end of the third quarter. Sisk and Andree displayed rapid passes on the Hub aggregation and Brashear, Hub center, run the floor in good form. Mike Caskey and Manning put up a tight guarding affair throughout. John Clary, Landon-Hill guard, played the floor as well as guard while Deems stopped the Hub's rushes at the goal.

Grip Cops Lucky Win From Jack

Reynolds Has Victory Within His Clutches, But—

Apparently they can't find any boys smaller than he is to turn the trick, nor can they find any boys his own weight to beat him, and since they seem very much in earnest when they yelp for his bald scalp, about the only method left is to gather up and sic a few of the big boys on him.

Wichita Falls' grapple, grab and grovel enthusiasts Tuesday night at the Palace were afforded the acute displeasure, something that has become more or less a habit, of seeing Charley Grip, the loquacious Lithuanian, win another.

The midget, Jack Reynolds, Indiana claimant of the world's welterweight wrestling championship, gave away from six to 10 pounds and came off very much the worse dropping the verdict in fluke fashion when he had victory almost within his clutches.

Grip captured the first and third falls. Just how and why, nobody but fickle little Miss Fate can tell you.

Out-maneuvered and outclassed from a strictly wrestling standpoint, the Buffalo bullet-head lunged into a freak slam from a crouching position that sent Reynolds spinning on his head. Then lunged in a crab-like wiggle and dive into Reynolds' ribs before the latter could squirm clear, sinking a shoulder nearly to the backbone—from the front side, yeah, buffeting the breath out of the Indiana speedster and simplifying the matter of scoring the fall.

Reynolds returned a bit the worse for wear but grew stronger little by little until he had Grip very much on the run from a headlock sortie and hook scissors annoyance. The Lithuanian went to the ropes several times to gather his wits and catch a little air, purging an alibi that Reynolds was gouging him in the eyes. Reynolds was not. Grip, by persistent stalling, under the headlock barrage, finally rang down a forfeiture of the fall. Time was 15 minutes.

Another Fluke

The deciding fall ran 16 minutes. Reynolds had Grip on the defensive again and was leading by a large margin when the break came. The wind-up was knocked off in such startling style that the large gathering of fans was stunned. Reynolds, after headlocking Grip into a groggy state, went after a body slam close to the ropes. He hauled Grip chin high, but just as he got set for the smash the Lithuanian closed around the top rope. Reynolds tugged back and Grip let go, taking Jack off balance and smashing down in a heap on the welterweight king, knocking him cold. That was all.

Teddy Waters, Wichita Falls middleweight, made the mistake of getting rough with Swede Jensen. Swede popped the local boy lopsided with a crack on the chin and maneuvered a body slam in 43 minutes for the first and only fall. Waters was unable to return, due to a neck injury.

Oh, yes, Charley ran true to form, bawling out everybody present, including the announcer, who issued a Jensen challenge for a melee with the bullet-dome.

YUS, YUS

Spring days when a young man's fancy lightly turns to foolishness.

Great baseball training weather and the grass is getting green in the Spud pasture.

The annual refrain, "It Won't Be Long Now," is warbled again.

Wee Pete, the banker, becomes restless on his transit departmental stool. Pretty soon Charley McCutchen will lose an earnest understudy.

* * *

They expect another great year for Turgeon, who last summer, if you cull your statistics, was the top all-around keystoner on the Texas circuit—contradictory comment of critics in rival diamond centers notwithstanding.

And Freddy Fussell lilts—whatever that may infer, a merry tune as he jockeys his flotilla of oil field trucks over the bumpy terrain of the petroleum prairies. Fred's ready to go—and with ample ambish. The noble lefthander, for once in his life, is just about satisfied with the world at large. This particular portsider in that particular mood is a menace to welfare of any and all opposition clubs. Concrete illustration of that piece of psychology: the 1926 span—when Fred dropped a string of one and two-run losses during the early stages of the drive and sank still further by pitching a number of entirely negative affairs, then rallied at the mid-way and knocked 'em all for a loop. Fred wasn't satisfied with every little thing as every little things go during that those first two and a half months or so. But at the season's turning point several little things, as several little things eventually would be, were readjusted. Straightaway Frederick enacted both a physical and mental reversal of form. Fred got right. From there on, seven Texas league teams called out the fire department each time Fussell blew into town. He burned 'em up. And then burned 'em down.

Spring, hay fever and foolishness.

It always had been opinion of mine that the rib rockers were smarter business men then the knuckle knockers. But my faith in the grunting gentlemen of grapple, waddle and wobble has caught a stiff punch in the solor plexus. These land-going whales, I had understood, to be the most thrifty, hence the most wealthy of all sports performers. And in a majority of cases this holds true. For a certainty there is no thriftier gentleman than one Charles Grip. As A. Mantell words it, "that guy is the closest nickel nurser in the United States." One reason attributed to the wealth of this share of the crumpled-ear fraternity is the average wrestler comes of the frugale farmer boy stock, hasn't got that smart-egg strut and funny abandon of the boys from the bowery who in many cases learned the fistic game with apprenticeship in alley warfare, and—seldom (the wrestlers) are socked enough on the nerve centers to become punch drunk. But I have discovered a couple of wrestlers who are punch drunk or something similar. We have it on straight info that Grip and Swedish Thor Jensen, a match that is a "natural" in Wichita Falls, refuse to heed the call of the golden eagle, but would lock in private scuffle no later than this Wednesday night. A feeling of rancor has stewed all along between these noble exponents of the rip, rap and grab game. And last week's battle here served not as a mode of alleviation for the ire each holds for the other. So, ignoring the wail of an indignant promoter who feels dollars and cents slipping right out of his clutches, Charles T. and Swede T. plan barring the door and going to it with purpose of settling once and for all this matter of malice and malignity. No referee, no judges and no police protection.

* * *

Grip, as I understand it, refuses to take Jensen in public, or anywhere the Swede may get a cut in on the gate receipts—unless he (Grip) is awarded the lion's share and a prohibitive guarantee. That's out. Swede is said to have taunted Charles into a private squabble. And there you are. The next move will be made by Police Chief George Hodgins.

Tris Will Hold No. 3 In Order

Speaker's .300-Carat Stick Will Aid Senators

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15. (AP) Tris Speaker and his trusty .300 carat bludgeon will occupy third place on the Washington Senators' batting lineup next season—the same batting place he had while manager of the Cleveland Indians.

This was the announcement of Manager Stanley Harris at the Washington training camp at Tampa, Fla.

Buddy Myer, shortstop and a .309 hitter in 1926, will be the leadoff batter for the Senators followed by Sam Rice, the manager said, while Goslin, Judge, Harris, Bluege and the battery will compose the remainder of the lineup.

"That first five should give us from 3 to 4 runs per game," is Harris' belief.

Aching Battlers Face Hard Test

Delaney and Maloney Maul Sparring Partners

NEW YORK, Feb. 15. (AP) Free from threat of intervention on the part of the New York boxing commission Jack Delaney and Jimmy Maloney Tuesday summoned bruised and aching sparring partners about them for two final days of battering. Thursday the principals in Tex Rickard's belting festival at Madison Square garden will taper off their toil into a wait for the opening gong on Friday night.

Delaney, champion of the light heavyweights, will not weigh over the 186-pound limit of his class when he climbs through the ropes to meet Boston's latest "strong boy." A rule of the commission requires that a boxer make the weight limit of his own division even when fighting men of a heavier class.

A deputy commissioner put Delaney on the scales at his training camp in Bridgeport, Conn., Monday after the French Canadian had completed his workout. The hand marked 174 3-4.

Maloney weighed 203 pounds after a six-round session, but expects to lose three pounds by Friday.

Junior Quintets Bill Two Games

Opening Melee on Zundy Court Tonight

Zundelowits and Reagan Junior high schools will tangle Wednesday night in their first clash of the basketball season on the Zundy court and are to meet again on Friday night.

Reagan school carried off the honors in football last fall and is hoping to add basketball to the list.

Both teams have had a good year in basketball and are looking for two fast games in this series. Both have been playing good basketball, and each is confident of a victory.

Wilson, Blanchard, Dickey and West are the men the Reagan crew are depending on to come through for victory. They have been playing a great brand of ball and will be herd to stop.

White, Dulaney and Barrett are the big guns of the Zundy crew and have been the outstanding players this year with Coach Golden's five. Their strong five-man defense has been the most talked of part of the Zundy machine. This has made it hard for any opponent to score on them for very many points.

JACK CONFIDENT

Sharkey Says He Can Whip Either Delaney or Maloney

NEW YORK, Feb. 15. (AP)—All the fuss over the coming Jack Delaney-Jimmy Maloney fight is silly, in the opinion of Jack Sharkey, Boston contender for the heavyweight title.

After all, says Jack, it does not matter who wins. "The lucky guy will be the one to get licked. The other one will have to fight me."

CRUCIAL GAME ON FLAP CAGE SLATE TONIGHT

Conocos Tackle Kilowatts In Women's Loop Strife For Top Rung

THE CARD.

P. B. M. versus Whippets.
Conocos versus Electrics.
Time: 7:30 Wednesday night.
Place: Junior college gym.

The four Amazonian detachments billed in Wednesday night's cage encounters wound up preliminary training preparations Tuesday and each has been declared primed for battle. Many close followers of the sport look for a dope upset in the curtain raiser when the Whippets clash with the speeding P. B. M. girls. The Whippets haven't copped a contest yet but they've been coming along rapidly until Coaches Neal and Clary feel they're just about ripe to break into the victory column. The last several games played by the Whippets were hum-dingers all the way. Although defeated, they gave their victors a mean run for the money.

The Conoco-Kilowatt struggle draws the heaviest attention tonight. These teams played a 16-16 tie game four weeks ago and meet this evening for the first time since then. They are deadlocked at the top of the percentage column and appear just as evenly matched as they were in the first game.

Spirited rivalry has been developed and each club intends to bring out a heavy coterie of rooters. A sell-out at the box office is predicted. No overflow, however, will be allowed on the side-lines, according to League Secretary Leon Horn. No fans will be given admittance to the court as has been the case at past games and the only side-line gathering will be that of the contesting teams.

It is planned by the Electric to have on deck the Electric company 40-piece band as an added attraction.

The number of Buffaloes now under contract for the season totals 13.

Abilene Farmer Installs Big Plant To Produce Rabbits For City Sales

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, Feb. 15.—There may be some things that are grown in other parts of the world which can't be produced in Taylor county, but rabbits are not included in the list. It has been known for a long time that large droves of "mule-ears" and "cotton-tails," originated and habituated in this section, without any care or effort being given to the propagation of that species, but the breeding and production of domesticated hares for commercial purposes has been scantily considered.

Now that condition is to be changed. W. C. Lindamood, living three miles south of Abilene on the Buffalo Gap pike, is planning to go into the rabbit business extensively. He has placed an order with one of the foremost breeders of Belgian hares in this country, for 12 highly bred does and a buck and he will prepare special hutches and runs at his home for the accommodation of the little animals.

Lindamood has already arranged for marketing locally of all the hares he produced. Not only the flesh, but also the fur of the rodents has a commercial value. The fur is extensively used for cap, glove and coat linings and is always marketable.

It is claimed that there is always a demand for the rabbit meat for domestic use. The flesh of the domesticated hare, such as Lindamood is securing, is greatly different from that of the wild rabbit, which abound in this section. It is of a delectable flavor and is considered as a very desirable meat.

Lindamood will breed the Flemish Giant variety of the hares. These animals are of a steel gray color and attain a weight of some five or six pounds when dressed at a year old. The rabbits propagate very rapidly and can be sold for as high as $5.00 per pair, Lindamood says.

Lindamood lived in California for a number of years and in the community where he resided there was located a large rabbit breeding ranch where the Belgian hares were grown. The concern operating the ranch also maintained a packing plant in which the animals were slaughtered and various kinds of products were prepared. Lindamood says this plant put up rabbit sausage, stew meat and other kinds of fancy preparations. The products were readily disposed of and he says he don't see as there is anything in California that makes that state a better place for rabbit production, than can be found in this section.

Lindamood expects to have his ribbits on display at the West Texas Fair in this city during the next showing.

ABILENE BUYS SITE FOR LAKE

$500,000 Reservoir Project To Be Installed

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, Texas, Feb. 15. — A tract of 420 acres of land located five miles south of Abilene on Cedar creek have been bought by the city commission as part of the site on which a new $500,000 reservoir for the city water supply system will be built. The recent purchase brings the total holdings of the city in the area where the lake will be situated to 1034 acres, as 614 acres adjoining the lately acquired tract have been owned by the city for some time.

A price of $44,500 was paid for the 420 acres bought.

Construction of the dam is expected to be started within the next three or four months, as soon as numerous preliminary work is finished preparatory to awarding the contract for the embankment.

With the completion of the new lake, Abilene will have two of the largest municipal owned water storage basins in the southwest. Lake Abilene, finished five years ago at an approximate cost of $1,000,000 now furnishes water for the city. Rapid growth of the city has made the building of the new reservoir necessary.

With the completion of the new reservoir many extensions will be made to the water distributing system of the city. A number of outlying residential districts, in which several hundred new homes have been built during the past three years will be given better water service.

EVERYTHING ELSE FAILED BUT TANLAC SAVES HER

Corpus Christi Woman Spent Hundreds of Dollars In Vain Search for Relief From Nervous Indigestion

"Utterly unstrung and almost hopeless," is the way Mrs. W. R. Smith, of 607 Artesian St., Corpus Christi, Tex., describes her condition at the climax of a breakdown, 8 years ago.

"I had spent hundreds of dollars for different remedies and treatments," she continues. "I was almost a skeleton after years of severe dieting, had to spend many days in bed, and frequently failed to get any sleep till after midnight. Going to bed was like a nightmare.

"A few bites of food would feel like a ton of lead in my stomach, and gas would create such pains I would be in agony for hours.

"My sister, who had taken Tanlac and who thinks the world of it, got me to try it. Tanlac helped me immediately. Six bottles left me with energy to spare and feeling strong and happy. Now I work every day, helping my husband conduct our 'Do Drop Inn,' and have gained over 30 lbs. Tanlac is wonderful!"

Many have had experiences such as Mrs. Smith relates. If you have tried other treatments without benefit, turn now to Tanlac. Tanlac is Nature's own remedy—safe, pleasant and effective—made from roots, barks and herbs. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today.—Adv.

GEOLOGISTS TO MEET AT TULSA

National Association Gathers March 24

TULSA, Feb. 15.—The American Association of Petroleum Geologists will hold its twelfth annual meeting in Tulsa on March 24, 25 and 26, M. M. Valerius, geologist and independent producer of Tulsa, who is general chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the convention, said today that the meeting this year is expected to be the greatest in the history of the association, and 1500 geologists are expected, not only from the United States but from Colombia and South America, and every country in which oil is produced.

After the convention proper a series of trips will be made in Oklahoma. One is planned over the fields in the northern part of the state and another field trip to the southern part of Oklahoma.

Special cars will leave here on the night of March 26, which is Saturday, for Ponca City. A complimentary breakfast will be given to the geologists when they get off the train in Ponca City Sunday morning. Trips will be made to the Marland refinery. Transportation will be furnished to the 101 ranch at noon where the Miller Brothers, noted Oklahoma showmen, will have a barbecue serving buffalo meat. Members of the show will be assembled preparatory to going on the road and an entertainment program will be given to the visitors. Col. Miller has sent word to Chairman Valerius that entertainment will also be provided for the women of the party. One feature will be the riding of elephants and camels.

Sunday night the party will leave Ponca City for Ardmore. A trip through the Southern Oklahoma oil fields and into the Arbuckle mountains will be under the direction of Charles N. Gould, director of the Oklahoma geological survey. Dinner will be served by the Ardmore Chamber of commerce.

Arrangements have been made so that those who do not care to make the trip to Ponca City, may go direct from Tulsa to Ardmore Saturday night. A special field trip into the Crines hills will be made for the second party and the two parties will join Monday. Another trip will be made through the oil fields Tuesday.

Special entertainment is to be provided in Tulsa during the convention.

FIND TREASURE IN JUNK.

NEWARK, N. J.—Joseph and Frank Hyer, ironmongers in South Amboy, did the best stroke of business in their career when they purchased a rusty, old safe from a farmer for $2. Carting the heavy strongbox to their shop, the brothers forced open the doors and found a fortune in stocks, bonds, jewels and cash. The value of the contents was estimated at $75,000. Who owned the safe and its treasure is a mystery.

Cotton--Stocks--Latest Market Quotations--Grain--Cattle

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.(AP)—The cotton market was generally higher today on trade buying and covering which seemed to be promoted by the relative firmness of Liverpool cables and reports of continued steadiness in the southern spot markets. May contracts sold up from 13.90 to 14.15 or 25 points net higher and closed at 14.11, the general list showing very steady, at a net advance of 19 to 25 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 3 points, the initial response to Liverpool buying being modified by over-night selling orders brought in by declines yesterday. Prices sagged back to about yesterday's closing quotations after the call, but offerings were soon absorbed, and the market made a generally steady showing the rest of the day.

There was considerable buying here during the first hour against sales in Liverpool. This demand tapered off after the close abroad, but there was further buying here against sales in New Orleans, while slight dips appeared to bring in spurts of covering. Both Wall Street and southern shorts were credited with buying on the afternoon advance which carried the price of March up to 14.20 and October to 14.34 in late trading, or about 20 to 25 points net higher on active positions.

Private cables said the advance in Liverpool had been due to good trade calling for London and continental buying and there was an active business in cotton clothes for shipment to India.

Exports for the day 77,795, making 7,340,949 so far this season. Port receipts 56,313; U. S. port stocks 2,855,921.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15.(AP)—The cotton market bulged today under the steady pumping of Liverpool trade influences and the belief that even should the McNary-Haugen bill expire under the veto prices would be influenced for the better because farmers would be forced to decrease acreage.

Pin pricks of profit taking and scalpers selling had little effect on the upward bulge and the close was steady with a net advance for the day of 22 to 25 points.

Liverpool cables were six penny points better than due with spot sales of 12,000 bales in Manchester reporting an active demand for cloths, particularly from India.

Under these influences, the opening was five to seven points up but this soon was absorbed by realizations. A rise set in immediately afterward, however, which stretched March to 13.95, May 14.11 and July 14.25, 22 to 24 points above the previous close.

Profit taking and scalping again allowed the market to recede five to eight points before a second rise set in which carried the list to new high ground, 25 to 26 points below the last closing levels, with March at 13.94, May 14.12, and July 14.29. Th close was near the top. The day's exports totalled 26,588 bales.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.(AP)—Speculators for the advance encountered stiffer resistance in their operations today, due largely to the hardening of call money rates, but they succeeded in bringing forward new leaders in both the rail and industrial groups whenever the old favorites showed signs of lagging. Trading was again in heavy volume, the day's sales crossing the two million mark for the sixth time this year.

Calling of about $20,000,000 in loans, incidental to mid-month payments, accounted for the stiffening of the charge on day to day borrowings from 4 to 4½ per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. There was little business news of importance during the day although the declaration of extra dividends on the common stocks of the Standard Oil companies of New Jersey and Nebraska, in the face of the recent large increase in crude production, had a bullish effect on the oil shares.

Speculative interest shifted again today from the industrials to the rails. Lackawanna and Wabash were the individual features, both stocks being heavily bought on unconfirmed reports that the former might lease the latter and guarantee a 4 per cent dividend. Lackawanna and Wabash were the initial gainers, the highest price since the declaration of the 100 per cent stock dividend in 1921. Wabash preferred made a gain of nearly 5 points by touching 65⅝, the highest price since the re-organization of the road over a decade ago, but it lost part of its gain. The average of 20 leading railroad shares touched the highest level since 1920.

Efforts to push U. S. Steel common through the record high of 169⅝ established last December were unsuccessful, large blocks of stock being offered around the 169 level, but it advanced to within quarter of a point of the high figure and then fell back to 168 for a small net loss on the day. Baldwin received better support, closing 1⅝ points higher, but General Motors, American Can, U. S. Rubber, Texas Gulf

ROMANCE IN THE MORGUE

JERSEY CITY, N. J. — It now develops that Dan Cupid was the spook who caused residents in the vicinity of Charles Breese's undertaking shop in Asbury Park, to shiver with fear when they saw uncanny lights flickering in the mortuary chamber after midnight. Breese laid for the spooks and discovered the chilly death chamber was being used a a trysting place by a pair of lovers who apparently could find the solitude they desired nowhere else. "They were meeting there among the caskets," Breese said. "I haven't been able to catch them, but if they come back, I'll be waiting. Let them go make love in some nice cemetery. This is a private business establishment."

LOVE FINDS A WAY

VALLEY FALLS, R. I. — Dr. Stephen W. Goold, British surgeon, is working in nearby Pawtucket for $25 a week because he intends to woo and win Miss Grace Conway, Valley Falls stenographer. Dr. Goold's employment is caused by the suspension of his allowance by his mother, Mrs. Jean C. Goold, London and Aberdeen society leader. A large fortune left to Goold by his father is in the care of his mother. He is unable to practice medicine because of the state law which requires a certain term of residence. He came here while on a world tour, met Miss Conway, and has ignored his mother's pleas to come home. Miss Conway says they aren't engaged.

Today { At the Theaters

Majestic: Elinor Glyn's "It," with Clara Bow; comedy, Topics of the Day and Pathe News.

Olympic: "Everybody's Acting," with Betty Bronson; comedy, Fox News. Also special vaudeville attraction.

Strand: "The Masked Woman," with Anna Q. Nilsson and comedy.

Mission: "The Sea Beast," with John Barrymore and No. 5 "The House Without a Key."

Gem: Mary Brian in "More Pay, Less Work," and western picture.

Garden: "The Sheriff's Girl," a western, starring Fangs, the dog; comedy.

"I can't get 'im up. I can't get 'im up"—remember that one, boys.

Well, buddies, go to sleep with your shoes on next Friday night because the old bugle, in the same old way, is going to play that unwelcome tune Saturday morning.

But, this time it is going to be welcome because Robert Sparks, manager of the Majestic theater, is going to have a reveille showing of "Tin Hats."

And you will have to fall in line again—just at daybreak, but instead of "counting off" you're going to receive coffee and doughnuts from a regular G. I. can. And what could be better than receiving the "sinkers" and "muddy water" from the hands of two girls—that's just what is going to happen.

Its all going to be free for ex-soldiers, show, "sinkers," girls and all.

"Tin Hats" is a post-war comedy starring Conrad Nagel, Claire Windsor, George Cooper, Bert Roach and Tom O'Brien.

War-time favorite songs will be played by Albert Harris on the organ while the picture is being shown. You'll be able to sing, if you can early in the morning.

"It" has gone over with a "bang" during the five days days of its showing at the Majestic theater. "It" is one of the pictures that everyone says they just can't miss and after they have seen it, all exclaim over how "cute" and "darling" Clara Bow was! Which is the truth! "It" is her best picture.

The following is a clever poem sent to this column by Manager Robert Sparks of the Majestic:

"If your face looks a fight, if you are a homely sight and you're spineless, dull and lack the grit, no need for you to sigh, no need for you to cry as long as you are possessed of 'IT.' If in company you're rude, in society you're crude and at parties like a silent sphinx you sit. That's still no reason, why you should want to die, as long as you are one possessed of 'IT.' Now you're wondering what is 'IT,' so we'll wise you up a bit and tell you all the things you ought to know. 'IT' cannot be defined, 'IT' is but a state of mind, if you have 'IT' you are bound to get ahead. 'IT's' not virtue, 'IT's' not sin, but according to Miss Glyn, 'IT' is that certain something that knocks 'em dead."

SINGERS PRAISED
Wichita Falls Student Writes of Rhondda Welsh Company

Praise for the Rhondda Welsh singers, who will appear in Wichita Falls, March 4, was vouchsafed in a letter received by A. K. Presson, president of the Wichita Falls Teachers association, from Shumake Baber, Wichita Falls student at Baylor university, Waco.

The concert will be presented under the auspices of the teachers' association.

Baber, who is president of the University Glee club and who recently attended a concert given by the singers in Waco, told Presson that attendants at the Wichita Falls concert would be more than satisfied with the program.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh. Adv.

RAIL RATES HERE CHANGED

Wichita Falls and Southern On New Scale

A new rate for passenger fares on the Wichita Falls and Southern railroad goes into effect Wednesday, it was announced by H. L. Hollister, traffic manager of the road. Under the new rate the fare is 3.6 cents per mile instead of 3 cents, the rate under which the road has operated since its organization.

The Wichita Falls and Southern was the only road in Texas maintaining the 3-cent rate since the federal law went into effect in 1921, Mr. Hollister stated. This was due to an oversight in drawing up the measure, he stated.

The Texas legislature passed a special act recently allowing the Wichita Falls and Southern to charge the uniform Texas rate, according to Hollister. The new fare went into effect at 12 a. m., Wednesday.
