Quail FFA Wins Sweepstake Award For District

Quail Future Farmers this week added two additional honors to their already impressive list, one given the chapter as a whole and the other an individual achievement.

The Quail Chapter has been named winner of the Greenbelt District Sweepstakes for the second year, Frank Kennedy, advisor, said Tuesday, April 28. This award is based on the number of places won by teams from the chapter during the year.

On Tuesday, also, Darryl Morris was declared first place winner in the Greenbelt District Public Speaking contest at Memphis. He will participate in the regional contest to be held at Tulsa Saturday, May 9.

Morris is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Morris of Marella. Winning second place on the contest was the entrant from Childress, while the contestant from Memphis placed third.

The year's winnings, which entitled the Chapter to the Sweepstakes title, number 13, and were all in district contests. They include:

County-Wide Cotton Meeting Thursday on 1953 Outlook

A county-wide cotton meeting will be held Thursday night, April 30, when specialists from the Extension Service will discuss all phases of cotton production as well as the current cotton outlook.

In charge of the meeting here will be J. W. Thomas, county agent, and Millard Brown, PMA secretary. Both of these describe the meeting as one of the most important farm meetings to be held during the current year for the cotton grower.

The meeting will be held in the county court room and will begin at 8:00 p.m.

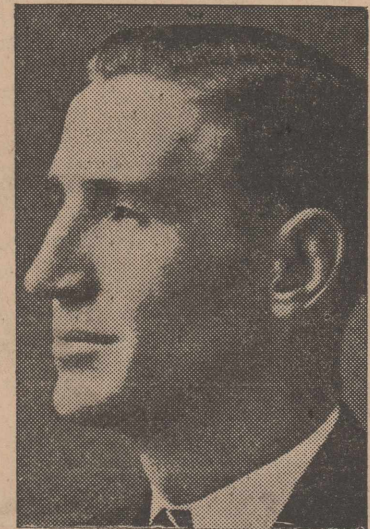

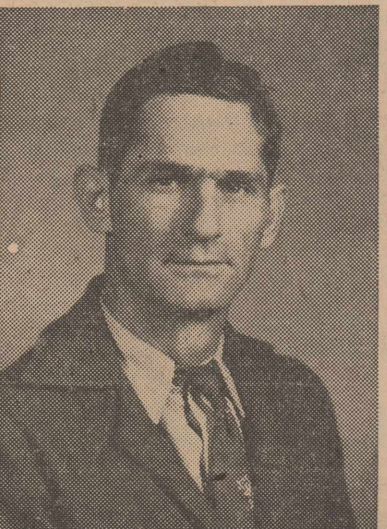

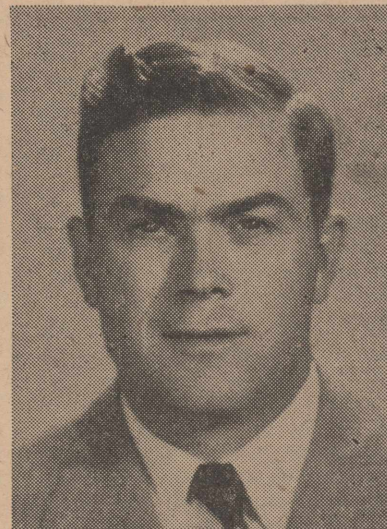

The three speakers will be Ed Bush, Fred C. Elliott, and Neal Randolph, all specialists in various phases of cotton production. Along with their talks, they will use colored slides.

Mr. Elliott will discuss the 1953 cotton situation, cotton defoliation and chemical weed control.

Mr. Randolph will cover the 1953 insect control program.

Mr. Bush will discuss mechanical weed control, handling cotton with new trailer arrangements, and mechanical harvesting and ginning machine harvested cotton.

All farmers of the county are urged to attend.

HELP WITH SOIL WEEK ACTIVITIES

Four of the men taking part in putting on the Soil Conservation tour and sponsoring other Soil Conservation week activities are, top row, Fred Squyres, work unit conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service; Lynn Courtney, conservation aide. In the bottom row are County Agent J. W. Thomas, and Logan Cummings, who is in charge of the barbecue. Not pictured is Millard Brown, PMA Secretary. Other Agricultural Agencies and the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District Board are assisting.

County Alfalfa Seed Success on Coast

Collingsworth County alfalfa seed, planted on the Gulf Coast, is doing a top-notch job of soil building, in an unusual alfalfa program, A. Y. Bell, secretary of the Wellington National Farm Loan Association, revealed this week.

The landowner is Sterling C. Evans, president of the Federal Land Bank in Houston, and owner of an extensive plantation system in that area.

This is the third year that Mr. Evans is buying Collingsworth County alfalfa seed to use in his personal soil conservation program.

And this is the surprising thing. He has found from experience that germination of seed raised here is so high in the Gulf coast area that he doesn't even buy first grade seed. He gets cleaned seconds, plants them a little thicker than is ordinarily recommended, and gets the stand he wants at considerably less cost than if he bought the top grade seed. A truck will come here from Houston some time this week to pick up his 1953 seed purchase, which will be planted this fall.

Two years ago Mr. Evans bought 4,000 pounds of seed. Last year he bought 8,000 pounds. This year he wanted 10,000 pounds, but Tuesday, only about 8,000 pounds had been located, Mr. Bell said.

The seed is collected for Mr. Evans by Singley Brothers, who buy it from any farmers of this area who want to sell their seconds.

Alfalfa seed seconds sell for from one-half to two-thirds the price of first grade seed, Mr. Bell explained, depending on the season, their availability, and other factors.

Even so, their germination is still high enough to give the Houston banker and soil conservation leader the results he wants.

Mr. Evans uses alfalfa as a soil building crop principally, rotating it with corn and oats. These he feeds to fattening steers.

One interesting phase of his farming operations is his turkey flock, raised on a commercial basis. These he raises on grasshopper's almost altogether until time to finish them for the market, when they are put on feed. Wings of the birds are clipped, so they can't get away, and small Negro boys are hired to herd them through Mr. Evans' fields.

Efforts Toward World Peace Should Begin Closer to Home

As we gripe about the seemingly hopeless situation we find ourselves in as far as world peace is concerned, we mustn't overlook things closer.

Week in and week out we overhear somebody in Minden blaming the northern part of the parish for some of the difficulties in our parish governmental operations, and then we run into someone from that end of Webster who puts the blame on the folks down here in the southern part.

What wonderful progress we could make if the leaders in business and politics from both areas would forget petty quarrels, take the chip off their respective shoulders and make an honest, wholehearted effort toward mutual helpfulness and cooperation. It seems to us that there's enough strife in the world today without us homefolks arguing among ourselves.

There isn't a problem in the world that can't be solved amicably if both parties really want to solve it. There isn't a thing Webster parish cannot accomplish if all our people work together hand in hand toward accomplishing it.

Every dollar spent in this parish—whether in the northern or southern part—benefit all of us. Every time a civic organization puts on a promotion to boost one of our communities, credit is reflected to all other communities.

We think it would be nice for representative citizens of Minden and Springhill and surrounding communities to plan an exchange of good visits similar to those undertaken by members of the Shreveport Chamber of Commerce each year. Perhaps Mindenites could make up an automobile caravan on a particular day and journey to Cotton Valley and Springhill and have breakfast or luncheon with our fellow Webster citizens up there. . . . visit around their businesses, their schools and their industries. And, in return, the Springhill and Cotton Valley resident could come down this way on a similar good will jaunt with perhaps a big barbecue or some other event out on Caney lake climaxed a day of good neighborliness.

It seems to us sometimes that we all worry too much about our relations with people outside our own parish while we let our internal affairs get pretty tangled up.

OTHER EDITORS SAY:—

Fire Lanes Become Crowded as Fans Rush For Box Seats

Every time that a fire of any consequence takes place, especially if it happens to be at a time other than working hours, the streets or highways leading to the scene of the blaze are immediately crowded by fire fans—persons who make a veritable of chasing fires.

Now it is human nature to like to watch a fire. We like it as well as the next fellow; but these fire fans around these parts make such a mess of the highways or the streets in their desire to get a box seat at the blaze that many times it is almost impossible for the fire fighting equipment to get to the fire and when they do get there, people are so in the way that it is difficult to work.

Officials have debated ways and means of correcting this serious situation, always hating to take drastic steps like arrests and fines, but if things do not improve, that will seem to be the only resource. Serious delays to fire fighting equipment, caused by thoughtless persons racing to get to a fire first, often permits added and unnecessary damage to take place. It is to try and avoid this that steps must be taken to keep things clear at all times.

The only solution seems a wholesale distribution of parking tickets and arrests with severe treatment of the guilty, on the assumption that if this is done a few times people will be more careful where they park and where they stand at a fire. Next time you hop into the gas buggy and head toward a blaze somewhere, keep in mind the fact that you may be getting in the way and delaying things. Let the Golden Rule be your guide and imagine that it is your house or barn is burning, then act accordingly.

High-Binders Cut Wide Swath

Every so often a real old-fashioned, revolving, high-binder hits our town, and cuts a wide swath until somebody catches up with him, or he falls afoul of his own toils.

Now, in this modern age, AND with a Merchants Association credit bureau as near as your telephone, such shenanigans are not only avoidable but ridiculous.

Not too long ago, a blue-sky artist of the first water hit town and put the spell on several of our townsmen with his honeyed words and grandiose promises. Thanks to the nimble wit of several soberer-minded citizens, he was checked through the Merchants Association and found to be as "brass as a tinkling symbol" — BUT, not before he had wreaked considerable.

The little moral of this story is: You have a Credit Bureau. Use it.

The Buck Creek Philosopher

Editor's note. The Buck Creek Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Buck Creek must be having oil trouble, his letter this week reveals. Bearings probably burned out.

Dear editor:

I noticed in a newspaper the other day where some organization had taken a survey to find out what the average motorist would most like to see available for his car and found out it's a dashboard gauge which would indicate the amount of oil in the engine.

I don't know where this outfit took its survey, but it wasn't around here. I have conducted a survey out here and find that what most car drivers want is an automobile that costs less to operate.

Most people used to have the notion that they were supposed to spend their lives working to support their children, but the car has edged out the children in lots of cases and it seems to me the government ought to recognize this and allow you to take an automatic $600 income tax deduction on your car the same as any other dependent.

It would be nice I guess to have a gadget on the dashboard tell you when you were low on oil, but most cars, after you drive em a while, you get to know pretty well and you come to know when they are gonna need oil the same as you know about when a growin boy is gonna get hungry. They can put the gadget on if they want to, but fillin station operators are pretty shrewd and instead of askin if your oil is low they'll switch to sayin is your oil gauge workin, and still get to raise the hood and examine the oil stick anyway.

Personally, the gadget I'd like to see most on a car is not one showin whether I needed oil or not but one keepin me from needin any. I guess it's a fine system for example a bank's got for sending you a notice when you're overdrawn, but it'd make a bigger hit with me if they perfected a way to keep that situation from developin in the first place. A gadget on your livin room wall automatically showin you how much Johnson grass you got growin in your crops would be an interestin thing to have around, but what I'm lookin for is a gadget to eliminate the stuff to start with.

Scientists are great people, but they're always workin on the wrong end of a problem.

Yours faithfully,

We Must Learn Proper Use of Property

Not too far back in our history, the attitude of anyone possessing property was: "It's mine and I shall do what I please with it."

We are happy to say that feeling no longer prevails to the damaging extent that it did before.

Besides the rising tax rate which affects possessors of large amounts of property, the acquisition and use of wealth is being challenged by society as it never has before.

Nations are still working to possess, but the imperialism which was once the pride of many powerful nations must now justify itself before the world.

In spite of this we have a long way to go. The commandment: "Thou shalt not steal" must become socialized and "stealing" must be defined in relation to honesty and the basic truths.

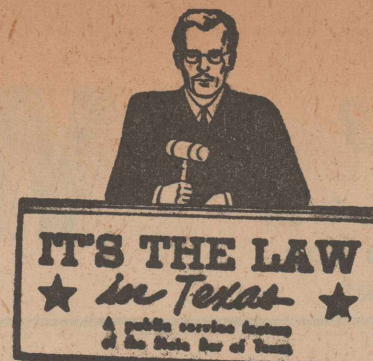

Jesus' teachings of the use of property goes beyond the limits of fundamental honesty. He relates one's possessions to his character and ideals.

No question is more important today than the proper use of property. Conflicts arising from this universal question lie beneath most of the international, national, local and personal disputes active among us at the present time.

Much of our hopes for international peace depend, in a final analysis, on the correct acquisition and use of property. Unfortunately we are still a long way from accomplishing much of the work that needs to be done.

The world is indeed still trying to solve the problem of applying the true concept of the Christian ideal of property's value and use.

But to those individuals who have already discovered this value, has come the true secret of happiness and satisfaction. They feel they are doing the best and accomplishing the most with

HOW BAIL IS SET IN IN CRIMINAL CASES EXPLAINED BY LAW

Why persons accused of crime are released on bail is a subject on which most of us have little knowledge but considerable curiosity, according to the State Bar of Texas.

In the United States a defendant action is presumed to be innocent until his guilt is established beyond a reasonable doubt. His guilt or innocence is established at his trial — not when he is arrested.

With this concept in mind it is not hard to see why the right to bail in criminal cases is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States, with the exception of capital cases. A capital crime is one which the punishment may be death. In Texas murder, treason, rape and robbery with firearms are capital offenses.

All prisoners are bailable in Texas except where the proof is evident that a capital offense has been committed and it is probable that a jury will assess the death penalty.

An officer making an arrest is required by law to take the accused promptly before a magistrate. It is the duty of the magistrate to examine into the truth of the accusation made. He determines whether the accused should be discharged or bailed or held without bail. If bail is set for the defendant, the magistrate must determine the amount. The law provides a procedure for reviewing these decisions before the things they have acquired. Theirs is the Christian way.

Looking Ahead With George S. Benson

PATTERN FOR PUBLIC SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Twenty years ago the Roosevelt administration recruited an intellectual "Brain Trust" from among the college professors of the nation. Today the Eisenhower administration recruits its "team" largely from among the nation's top-flight business men. Obviously there will be fewer governmental theories incubated and more "elbow grease" practically employed. This is in order, because American government is now America's biggest business. Its budget is six times the combined budgets of U. S. Steel, the Du Pont Company, General Motors and International Harvester.

Concrete results of the new policies and practices now being established throughout the federal government will not, however, be seen and felt by John Q. Public for a little while. As I've been making the rounds in Washington, interviewing key administration people, with the objective of spotlighting their thinking and planning, I have found no one who has completed his executive organization. All have had to spend most of their time up to now getting acquainted with their operations and selecting their first and second level administrative personnel.

OLD COMMITMENTS HURT Good management, if achieved, won't be fully reflected in the 1953-54 Eisenhower budget because the new departmental heads have too many old commitments made by the preceding administration to make good and not enough time for a thorough budget study.

The 1954-55 budget should begin to show the pattern of business-man management in government, and in the succeeding two years the full efficiency and economy heralded by the new administration may be properly expected by the American taxpayers.

A citizen making the rounds in Washington is impressed with two characteristics in the new Eisenhower official family — its high level of ability and experience in business operations, and its high level of individual character. Each new appointment to an important governmental position by the President or one of his Cabinet members seems to be based on an extremely rigid requirement in character and proven ability. In the key jobs there are no professional politicians.

EXPERIENCE AND CHARACTER

Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Defense, has headed the world's biggest private business, General Motors; and the government department he now directs spends about 65 per cent of all Federal funds. George M. Humphrey, the new Treasurer, is one of the nation's leading industrialists and financiers, and has a vast experience in big operations. Sinclair Weeks, Commerce Secretary, is another top-flight industrialist and financier, a recognized authority on problems affecting business and commerce.

Arthur E. Summerfield, the new Postmaster General, directing a $20-billion annual business, was the country's biggest individual automobile dealer. Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay is a Court of Criminal Appeals.

When an accused is on bail when his trial commences he has the right to remain on bail during the trial of his case. Where the punishment of a defendant has been assessed at confinement in the penitentiary for fifteen years or less the defendant has the right to remain on bail pending the appeal of his case. If the penalty is more than fifteen years the defendant is kept in custody from the moment the jury returns its verdict.

The Constitution also says that bail may not be set in excessive amount. What is considered a reasonable amount depends largely upon the circumstances and the risk involved. Bail must be set high enough to assure the court and the state that the person will not run away, but will return and submit to trial on the date set.

The judge usually will ask the prosecuting attorney for a recommendation as to the amount of bail. The accused's attorney may then ask that the amount recommended be reduced, giving his reasons. The judge will settle on an amount he believes reasonable to assure the accused's presence at the trial.

Animals with long legs also have long necks in order to reach their food without bending their knees.

Luke, author of a book in the New Testament, was a physician.

Written history is at least 6,000 years old.

highly successful business man. Joseph Dodge, the new Budget Director, is one of America's leading bankers. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson knows agriculture from the bottom up, is counted among the world's leading agricultural economists. In addition to having reached the top in their chosen fields of enterprise, all these men have distinguished records of community and public service; and, most important, I think, they are lifelong churchmen.

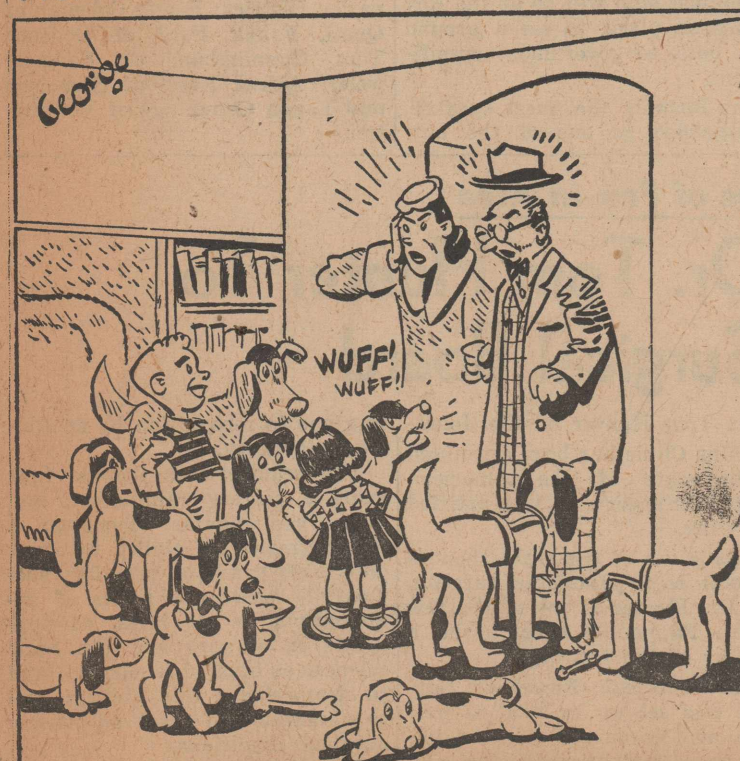

CONSISTENT RULE

This same principle is followed at the secondary level, as illustrated when President Eisenhower filled a vacancy on the highly important Civil Aeronautics Board. He appointed Col. Harman D. Denny, Jr., an outstanding authority on all phases of aviation and aviation commerce. Colonel Denny served on the Interstate Commerce Committee of Congress and was a member of its subcommittee which considered legislation affecting the CAB.

During the first World War he was a bomber pilot. In World War II, he was Air Inspector in the Graduate Command and General Staff School in Kansas. He was relied upon in Congress for his aviation know-how. Colonel Denny is one of the leading laymen of the Presbyterian Church; is a member of the National Executive Board of the Boy Scouts of America; is an influential member of the American Legion, and several other nationwide service and fraternal organizations. He brings experience and integrity into public service — an inspiring combination.

Nomad Alfalfa Looks Promising

Holland Bros. Experiment With Grasses in Dodson

Some of the best experiments on grasses adapted to this area are being carried on by two brothers of the Dodson area, Truitt Holland and Dennis Holland.

"They practically have an experiment farm of their own," Lynn Courtney of the Soil Conservation Service said, but the Hollands discount this and say they're simply carrying out some pet projects that will let them know which grasses and legumes they want to put in their permanent farming program and which they want to reject entirely.

They have had their grass tests under way for three years. Part of these are located at the Truitt Holland farm on the Dodson highway and others on a farm they operate just across the state line east of Dodson.

They believe the grasses have been put to a real test as far as drouth resistance is concerned, but on the other hand, they're not sure how much damage would result from winter-kill in a severe winter.

Three grasses they feel are ideally adapted to this area, the love grasses on sandy land, blue panic on tight land, and also on more drouthy tight land there is King Ranch blue stem.

They are now keenly interested in their plot of nomad alfalfa, a legume new to this area.

Although it has the same soil building properties of the regular alfalfa, nomad alfalfa is a creeping plant with a root system that differs from the better known variety.

"The alfalfa we're familiar with has a root system that goes deep into the ground. Roots of nomad alfalfa, besides going down into the ground, spread out. A root may run out for a foot or more, then a clump of alfalfa will come up from that point. In that way, the root system is like Johnson grass," Truitt Holland explained.

So far, they have found it unusually drouth resistant.

They seeded their ground in April, 1952—at a cost of $28 per acre for the seed! They add, however, that the price has gone down sharply, to half or two thirds last year's cost. They used five pounds of seed per acre, but with a proper seed plate, they think three pounds would be enough.

How did they find out about nomad alfalfa? They read about it in one of the stack of farm magazines that they get.

"We watch for everything new," Dennis Holland commented.

Actually, nomad alfalfa is intended to be used with pastures, and for grazing only. Apparently, it is easy to get a stand.

Some of the grasses and legumes they have planted and rejected, on their own findings, are buffale grass, brome grass, fescue 144, (this area is too drouthy), ladino clover (it didn't even come up), and crested wheat grass.

Now, they are putting their hopes on blue panic, and will plant from 40 to 50 additional acres, to be grazed, for the Holland registered Herefords, which they raise with their father, Rob Holland, are known over much of the southern Hereford territory.

"It's drouth resistant and it will furnish grazing over a much longer period than sudan," they point out. "It can be planted about as cheaply as sudan, but the main difficulty is getting a stand."

From their own experience — and they have worked with the Soil Conservation Service in much of their grass program — they have settled on planting their blue panic in rows 40 inches apart, cultivating it, and once a year adding 6-12-6 fertilizer at the rate of 75 pounds.

Last year they combined one patch of blue panic and harvested about $20 worth of seed per acre, in addition to having had three month's grazing.

Now they are feeding their white face herd a mixture of blue panic and millet hay, which seems to be highly palatable.

As to the biggest problem facing the farmer and stockman who wishes to go into a grass improvement program, Dennis and Truitt Holland quote their friend, Pioneer Elmore Dodson, who says it's the "blue winters and brown summers" that give the trouble.

Saving Soil is our Business, Too

Without soil and water conservation, we cannot maintain our present standard of living, much less improve the world. This is a responsibility that falls on the shoulders of all of us, whether we live in the country or in town.

As Butane - Propane dealers servicing many farms where soil conservation practices are being carried out, we extend congratulations to these farmers . . . and to each of the agencies helping them in their work.

County Farmers Draw $93,014 from PMA in '52

The approach of Soil Conservation Week is a good time to review the work of Collingsworth County farmers and ranchers under the PMA program in 1952. Millard Brown, secretary, reminded today.

Through the program year, county co-operators were paid $93,014.00 in program funds for soil building and conservation practices, which was distributed by the PMA county committee based on the farmer's request for assistance for the various practices.

These have included:
Constructing terraces: 820,288

feet or 155.3 miles on 46 farms.
Diversion terraces: 2289 cubic yards on two farms.

Subsoiling: 5,985 acres on 71 farms.

Deep plowing sandy cropland: 7,885.5 acres on 135 farms.

Bindweed control: 12 pounds 2-4-D on one farm.

Drilling water wells for livestock, 2336 feet, 23 wells on 23 farms.

Constructing earthen dams: 26,027 cubic yards, 7 dams on 7 farms.

Applying 20 percent superphosphate to eligible crops: 197,200 pounds on 18 farms.

Planting winter legumes: 8,694 pounds of seed on 30 farms.

Seeding rye for winter cover crop: 2,521 acres on 49 farms.

Controlling sagebrush: 1,942.2 acres on 13 farms.

Seeding pasture grasses and legumes: 26,777 pounds of seed on 153 farms.

"We know that the funds spent on conservation practices have helped considerably in preventing wind and water erosion and the building up of the soil of Collingsworth County farms," J. A. Coleman, chairman of the PMA committee, said. "We hope that farmers of the county will continue to carry on a sound conservation program to preserve our soils for future generations who are to follow."

Water Holds at the Top of the Terrace

Earl Hunter Finds Channel Type Terraces Ideal on Rolling Land

For the last quarter of a century terracing has been considered about the best thing that could happen to a Collingsworth county farm, but in the past few years a new type of terrace has appeared that landowners figure has some advantages all its own.

They are the channel type terraces, and one of the best examples of these, believes the Soil Conservation Service, is on the farm of Earl Hunter in the Needwood community, about 20 miles northeast of Wellington.

Mr. Hunter began this terrace system last year, and finished about the first of March. He has approximately 20 miles of terraces running over 525 acres of land, and before he considers his program finished, he will terrace an additional 165 acres. This will probably come next year.

"In building channel type terraces, all the dirt is thrown from the top side of the terrace, rather than from both sides as for the regulation ridge terraces," Mr. Hunter explained.

"Your water furrow is on the top side and twice as deep as on a ridge type, therefore the lower side of the terrace is not so steep."

"I saw my first channel type terraces about two years ago and at first I didn't like them at all. But the more I thought about them, the more I decided they had something."

Some earth moving contractors don't like to build channel type terraces, since because of the way their equipment is constructed, the trip one-way along the terrace built by Alfred Knoll, Precinct 2 will have to be a dead-head.

FOR ATHLETE'S FOOT A KERATOLYTIC IS A MUST. What is a keratolytic? An agent that deadens the infected skin. It then peels off, exposing more germs to its killing action. Get T-4-L, a keratolytic, at any drug store. If not pleased IN ONE HOUR, your 40c back. Today at COCHRAN DRUG STORE PARSONS DRUG

Mr. Hunter's terraces were commissioned, in whose precinct the farm is located. Commissioners of this county are allowed to do custom work for county residents. Since a maintainer with a reversible blade was used, there was no problem of a wasted trip back to the point where the terrace begins.

The cost Mr. Hunter figures to be somewhere in the neighborhood of $100 per mile. Cost of the terrace construction alone is $78, which is also the amount the government will pay under the PMA farm program, but the additional cost comes in bulldozer work that must be done, at $10 per hour, to smooth the fills. For this reason, the actual cost of channel type terraces depends on how rough the land is.

"I think that on more rolling land, like mine is, channel type terraces are the best," Mr. Hunter commented. "I think that to get your water furrow on the top of the terrace, rather than at top and bottom both, gives you a better chance to hold the water."

The furrow, being twice as deep, may in itself hold as much water as the terrace does."

Actually, channel type terraces aren't as high as they look to be. Mr. Hunter estimates his at 14 or 15 inches tall. Terrace lines were run by the Soil Conservation Service.

The area where Mr. Hunter's land is located is tight and inclined to be drouthy. That he made any cotton at all last year was due to his terrace system, he believes.

"Above the terraces, where the water had collected, the cotton was good, and on up the slope for six or eight rows. Then closer to the next terrace, it got poorer, where he had't held as much moisture. Then above the next terrace, it would be good again," Mr. Hunter said.

He is completely sold on terracing for rolling or sloping land.

"I think the secret of making terraces worthwhile is lots of them and close together. I know some people say they are too close together. Lots of farmers don't like to work a field that is terraced and I don't blame them for not liking it, it is harder.

"But you can take any old hilly place, terrace it, and in two or three years you'll be surprised at what it will produce."

"The water that runs down Red River isn't going to help me make any cotton," he commented.

"I hear people who have lived around here for a long time say that the dry straws and streams that used to run bank-high with water and top soil after a heavy rain, never do that any more. There've been enough tanks and enough terraces built that hold the water where it falls that we just don't see that any more."

Quail Juniors Top Dodson

By JAMES GLASSCOCK

Behind the two-hit pitching of Don Johnson and Daryl Morris the Quail Jr. Quails triumphed over the Dodson crew by the one-sided score of 31-1. The Quails started off in good style by scoring 12 runs in the first inning of the ball game. Warner Ford started on the mound for the Easterners but was replaced at the end of the first inning by Jesus Hernandez. Hernandez went the last six frames and gave up 18 runs.

The best hitter for the Quail's was Joel Young, (CF) for the Quails with four hits for five times at bat. James Young was next with four hits in 6 times. The latter Young is the third-sacker for the Quails.

Both Quail hurlers were backed up with a 23 hit barrage, while the Dodson crew could not manage more than two hits. However, these two did not net them a run. Johnson started on the mound for the Quails and worked five innings, giving up no runs and one hit. In the fifth Morris replaced him and he gave one run and one hit.

Both teams will engage each other on the Quail diamond on Tuesday, May 5.

Soil Conservation Is Practical Business

Help Preserve and Improve the American Standard of Living
Let's Keep Our Soil at Home

The blowing of soil does no one any good. It robs the farmer of his productive topsoil. It damages crops and the land on which the wind dumps the sand.

Nobody likes wind erosion and everybody loses by it. So why don't we all get together and put an end to this soil blowing? It can be done. It's simple Here's all we have to do. Crop Residue Management . . . Cover Crops . . . Strip Crops.

It's never too early to get busy on it. Let's keep our soil here.

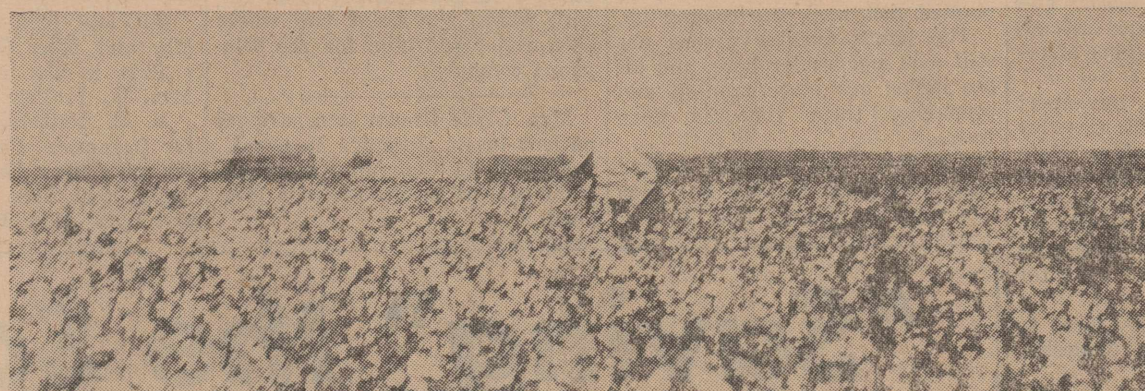

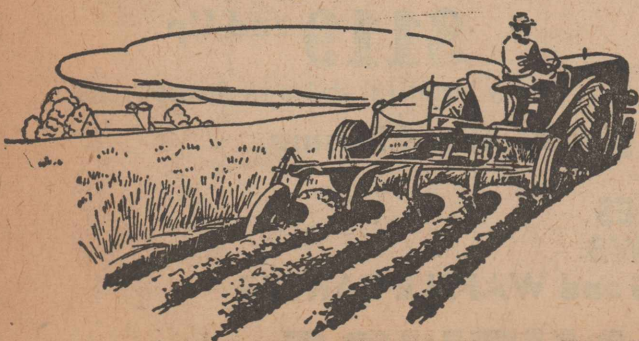

We invite you to come to the Soil Conservation Tour, Wednesday, May 6.

We are proud of the part our big plows have played in the deep-breaking program for Soil Conservation.

Few Emergencies Require Quick Action

FIRST AID SHOULD HELP PATIENT, TOO MUCH MOVING MAY HARM

"First aid" should be truly AID and should not harm the patient. There are very few real emergencies, that it, conditions if unchecked may cause death. Too much or prolonged bleeding, lack of breathing, or poisoning are three in which it is necessary to act fast and do the right thing.

First aid usually doesn't involve extensive treatment. For the inexperienced, some don'ts might be memorized. (1) Don't move the patient unless danger exists in leaving him where he is; consider the use of splints if he must be moved. (2) Don't waste time treating minor wounds if he has deeper injuries. (3) Don't force fluids down if he is unconscious. (4) Don't give whiskey as a stimulant, as a rule. (5) Don't use a tourniquet if bleeding can be controlled by other means.

In most cases, it will be enough to keep the patient quiet and warm, relieve pain as much as possible, and reassure him while the doctor or ambulance is on the way. When the doctor is called he should be informed where the patient is, how serious his wounds are, what kind of first aid equipment is available, and what treatment (if any) is being given. Accurate direction for reaching the patient must be given or valuable time may be lost.

What if an unconscious, unidentified patient is found lying in the street? Assuming there had been no traffic accident or apparent injury, the good Samaritan would be wise to (1) a doctor or ambulance and (2) a policeman. Even supposing the victim is an epileptic or diabetic patient who carries a card stating what should be done and the name of his doctor, a search might be interpreted as an attempt at robbery. Also, the right kind of treatment might take a medical expert.

Another reason for calling the legal authorities is the possibility of attempted murder or suicide. All traffic accidents should be reported, of course.

Once the patient has been identified, his next of kin should be notified and his own doctor, if another physician hasn't already been called. The patient's head and shoulders should be lowered when possible to that if he vomits his breathing won't be cut off or the stage set for pneumonia. If the victim regains consciousness, he may be able to tell what should be done for him, such as giving him a piece of candy or other sweets if he is diabetic.

To stop bleeding, one of the following methods should be tried: (1) Press against the wound, using a freshly ironed handkerchief or sterile gauze. (2) Press the fingers against the blood vessel above or below the wound as it crosses a bone. (3) Tie a tourniquet (a band of some kind, such as a handkerchief, tie, belt) around the limb to cut off the circulation. Loosen it every thirty minutes to see if bleeding has stopped and keep it in sight so that it will not be forgotten.

If the patient quits breathing, remove any obvious cause such as a heavy piece of metal on the chest, any foreign object in the mouth (loose teeth, dentures), or tight clothing. Do not place your fingers between his teeth because the bite that may result may be dangerous and troublesome. If these measures fail, start artificial respiration and keep it up until the patient begins and continues to breathe naturally.

For suspected poisoning, search the patient's surroundings to find out whether to take or was given poison and if so, what kind. Give several glasses of water to dilute the substance, make the patient vomit, and give the antidote if it is known. One exception in which vomiting should be induced is if a strong acid or alkali has been swallowed, because the stomach wall may rupture.

So that first aid may be given promptly after an accident, a kit should be kept in the home or camp, automobile, and office or factory. A good kit will contain at least a first aid manual, eye pads, large and small sterile gauze squares, finger dressings, adhesive tape, absorbent cotton, rubbing alcohol, baking soda, aromatic spirits of ammonia, an antiseptic, a burn ointment such as petroleum jelly, three 2 inch roller bandages, and two triangle bandages made of muslin or other strong material. In addition, a good flashlight should be carried in the car.

Dodson Jinx Traps Quails 3 to 2

By JAMES GLASSCOCK
The Dodson jinx trapped the Quail "9" last Thursday afternoon, April 23, on the Quail's home diamond. The Quails led by a small 2-1 margin going into the last of the seventh inning. However, Coach H. C. Yarbrough's Dodson crew bunched four consecutive hits off of the left-handed offerings of Quail's top flinger, Dewey DeBord. After these fireworks the score showed Dodson had pulled the game out of the fire by a score of 3-2.

Both teams scored one run each in the first inning. Quail took the lead in their half of the second frame with a one run rally. For the next innings both pitchers displayed their stuff and each one got 14 strike-outs.

The seventh frame of the ball game proved to be the turning-point of the ball game. The first man to face DeBord was the ace catcher, Lonnie Robertson, who promptly singled. Percy Dempsey the Dodson hurler, crashed a double and moved Robertson to third. Bud Wynn got an RBI with a single. The score at this point of the game was knotted 2-2. Ed Bonneau broke the game wide open with a single to score Dempsey. After this DeBord retired the side, but the damage had been done. Brilliant control by both hurlers made the game one of the most interesting to be seen in a long time.

Dodson now posts two wins over the Quails.
Pitchers' records: Dempsey (2-4); DeBord (0-2).
The Quail Bobwhites volleyball team clobbered the Dodson girls by scores of 15-0, 15-1, 15-4, and 15-0. This is the second time the Bobwhites have won over the Dodson squad.

CARD OF THANKS

We are indeed grateful for the many and great kindnesses shown us at the death of our husband, father, and brother, Porter Loving. Without the splendid friendship of those of you who gave so generously of your time and your sympathy, that our deep grief might be lightened, this hour would have been dark indeed.

We are especially grateful to the men who joined the searching party; to those who sent the lovely flowers and food, to each of you who spoke or wrote words of consolation, and to Rev. Chester O'Brien for his comforting message.

Words are not adequate to express our gratitude, but the things you have done for us will never be forgotten.

May God bless each of you.

LAND IS THE SOURCE OF ALL MATERIAL WEALTH - USE IT WISELY

Conservation of the soil is the greatest problem facing America today. It is the responsibility of every American citizen to see to it that we conserve the soil of our nation and especially the top soil that is the life blood of production of the nation. Another wasteful generation or two with our soil will so deplete it that our future is imperiled and our ability will be limited.

JUNIOR SKATERS, SKILLED AND UNSKILLED

First try on ice was a little bumpy for 12-year-olds "Chip" Davidson, at left, and Lincoln Privett, of Darlington, S. C. "Chip" was helped to his feet by pretty Alice Foster, 18. His friend was steadied by Patricia Foster, 13, at New York's Rockefeller Center.

One of the most popular winter sports is ice skating. New recruits are enlisted every year. Several seasons' experience on the ice gives our figure-skating champion, seen at left, the ease and grace of an adult professional. But equally enthusiastic are the two 12-year-olds from South Carolina at right. "Falls" and "drops" are taken good naturedly while being taught by two pretty northern girls.

Newmans Return Pennsylvania

By MRS. G. T. STEPHENS

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Newman and Mrs. Helen Pruett, their daughter, left Friday, April 10, for Philadelphia, Penna. Mrs. Pruett was going to join her husband at Bristol, Penna., where he had been employed by the Kaiser Metal Products, Inc.

They went by Fort Campbell, Ky., where Sgt. Charles Wayne Rose, a relative, is stationed, to visit with him. Sgt. Rose was permitted a three-day pass so he went to Philadelphia with Mr. and Mrs. Newman.

Mrs. Newman stated that they saw many interesting and beautiful places on the trip. One of the most interesting was the Pennsylvania turnpike, which is sometimes called the super-highway. It is a toll pike, costing a penny a mile to drive on it. The turnpike is 327 miles long. It is between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh through the Appalachian mountains. It was designed to be "fool-proof" — no bad curves, no steep grades and no cross traffic. There are seven tunnels on the route.

Mr. and Mrs. Newman returned home April 14.

Practice Begins on Quail Class Play

Production is now underway for the first annual Quail junior class play entitled, "Betty Jane from Punkin Lane," according to Mrs. J. I. Morgan, play director.

"The entire cast has been chosen and the whole group is waiting for the opening performance. This is the first time any junior class at Quail has ever tried to present a play. And from the looks of things it could be a sell-out crowd," the director stated.

In the cast is Junior Sturgill, Alice Wilkinson, Sharlene Marsh, Norman Kennedy, Erma Farris, Fayteen Peoples, Dale Johnson, Joan Kirkland, Shirley Robinson, Van Parrigin, and Sonja Atkinson.

Members of the production department include Wayne Lacy, Janelle Langford, Vivian Minaretta, Tommie Davis, Milton Havens, Glen Norman, Charles Wright, Barbara Weaver, A. C. Price, Jimmy Langford, Tony Winkler, Virgil Patterson, Mrs. Ben Ratliff, Mrs. Morgan, and Mrs. Bill Phillips.

Six inches is considered the average depth of topsoil today, and in those six inches lies the whole wealth of Collingsworth.

Under natural conditions, it takes 300 years or more to make one inch of topsoil. One inch of topsoil can be removed from an unprotected field by one big rain. Sometimes the entire layer of topsoil on a freshly plowed field is washed away.

Soil Conservation Saved this Field!

The right kind of equipment is necessary for the best results in Soil Conservation.

Our equipment is adapted to farming Collingsworth County soil. We carry a complete line, plus the repairs you will need through the farming season.

FIFTH GRADE STUDENTS TOUR PALO DURO, AMARILLO AND CANYON

By NEIL RUSSELL

Mrs. Welch's fifth grade class of Elementary school went on a trip Friday, April 17 and 18.

We went to Lane's Ice Cream in Amarillo. We saw how they made popsicles and ice cream, not any of the popsicles or ice cream is touched by a human hand. Then we went to the Elwood Park, we played for about an hour then we ate dinner. After that we went downtown, to Woolworth's 5c and 10c store and had a coke. We talked to the "Man on the Street." We also went to KGNC, we got there in time to see the Gordon Suits' Show, the Old Red Robin, that is. We went to the Fedway Store and rode the escalator, we had a lot of fun doing that. After that we went to the Globe-News, it was very interesting. The printing press there produced 1,000 papers, folded and had them ready to read in a minute.

After we got out of Amarillo we went to Canyon to see the Museum. We had a very interesting hour and half in there.

We went on out to Palo Duro Canyon. We went down into the Canyon and had a weiner and marshmallow roast. Then we sailed boats down the rocky stream and climbed the cliffs. We went back up to the edge of the canyon and got our cabins. The girls got two cabins and the boys got two cabins. We went down to a little store and bought souvenirs and trinkets. The next morning we went down into the Canyon. We saw the Balanced Rock and the Lighthouse, then we came home and had a restful night.

Sincere Congratulations

To The Sponsors of The Soil Conservation Tour

Farm land of this area is comparatively new, but even new land can lose its fertility without care and conservation. We are happy to see more and more Collingsworth farmers adopting soil conservation methods, which will mean better land, to give us a better way of living.
