Judge favors FDIC stand over Eagle

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton today ruled in favor of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in determining that Eagle Properties Ltd. owes FDIC $25 million in a dispute over financing of the 24-story First National Bank building.

Further, the judge ordered that the FDIC is "entitled to foreclosure" on its second deed of trust on the building.

The judge likened the bank, which was established in 1890 and failed 93 years later, to the Titanic. "The analogies are poignant."

"The First National Bank, like the vessel, was a magnificent, extravagant, enviable camelot. It was regarded as unsinkable, said to be designed and engineered to withstand the formidable forces of natural laws. The bank, like the liner, was doubly-supported, tightly-compartmental. If one of its parts were weakened or damaged, the other sections were designed to keep it afloat."

Like the captain of the ship, which sank in 1912, the bank president, Charles Fraser, was "born to command." But both failed "to heed the hints of conditions in the West. ...Each commander's monument sank in the morning hours to the depths of ignominy to the brutal shock of their respective communities."

In the dispute, heard in a trial last March by U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton, FDIC contended it was due $25 million in Eagles Properties Ltd. notes which were assigned to FNB. The FDIC contended the loans were in default and had been secured toward purchase of the building. Eagle says not so.

The First National Bank, which became Texas' leading independent bank and Midland's No. 1 corporate citizen, was housed in the 24-story down FNB Building, and "quite possibly" was the most prestigious building in town.

The bank, which had more than $1.8 billion in assets in the spring of 1983, was closed on Oct. 14, 1983, when it failed and the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency declared the bank insolvent

Panel votes to give coastal states share oil revenues

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Senate Energy Committee Tuesday voted to settle a raging federal-state dispute over $5.8 billion in escrowed outer continental oil shelf revenues by giving coastal states 27 percent of the pot.

If the settlement — already agreed upon in a House Committee — holds up in floor action, Louisiana would get about a third of the existing account. Texas and California would not be far behind with about $500 million, followed by Alabama, Alaska, Mississippi and Florida with lesser amounts.

The 11 to 7 vote came after Texas Gov. Mark White argued at a morning hearing that states should get a share of all revenues, including royalties and taxes, from so-called 8-G lands adjacent to the state's offshore lands.

Introduced also was a letter from California Gov. George Deukmejian pointing out that at present few of the tracts covered by the escrow account are producing royalties. This source of revenue will become increasingly important over the next 20 years and beyond if energy development continues at its present pace off California shores, he said.

"The state and affected local governments argued that the state and affected local governments urgently need this source of funds if they are able to accommodate this development.

Last June, the administration approved a House Budget Committee plan to give the states 27 percent of the escrow account, including bonus bids, rents and interest from so-called 8-G lands but excluding royalties and taxes.

Interior Secretary Donald P. Hodel, also a morning witness, agreed Congress should settle the long-running dispute to avoid numerous lawsuits stretching perhaps into the next century.

"The only question now is how big to make the 'pot,'" said Hodel.

The House Interior Committee last week voted to fatten the pot by adding royalty revenues to bonsues, rents and leases.

Also, the House Merchant Marine Committee claims jurisdiction and plans to take up the 8-G issue at its budget reconciliation markup on Thursday.

The 8-G revenue comes from federal OCS leasing on tracts with common pools of oil located three to six miles from shore — the area adjacent to state offshore lands.

It is called 8-G for a section of the 1978 OCS Lands Act Amendments that requires "fair and equitable" sharing of this money with the coastal states. It does not, however, define "fair and equitable," and the 8-G money was put in escrow while state and federal officials argued over how it should be divided.

When Gov. White was attorney general of Texas, in January, 1979, he filed suit in federal district court in Beaumont against the Department of Interior to force the government to share the federal offshore revenues.

Church official describes Weir release

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The 60-year-old Presbyterian minister who was freed Sept. 14 from his Shiite terrorist captors in Lebanon is a "very gentle, very religious, very got-his-feet-on-the-ground guy," said Marj Carpenter, national news director for the Presbyterian Church U.S.A.

"He had done tremendously," Ms. Carpenter said of the Rev. Ben Weir. "I can't imagine being in solitary for 14 months, held captive for two more months and coming home with jet lag and being de-briefed by the CIA (Central Intelligence Agency) and coming into all of that television. I would have fallen apart.

"He's probably the most famous preacher in the country right now."

Ms. Carpenter, a former West Texas newspaper columnist, reporter and editor, was charged by the Presbyterian Church with maximizing news coverage of Weir, one of eight original American male hostages. Now there are six. One, a Cable News Network reporter, escaped.

"'You're the news reporter for the church,'" Ms. Carpenter said church officials told her on Sept. 18. "'You've got to get this man good press.'" She said she was aghast.

Among the Americans still in captivity are a Catholic priest, an Associated Press reporter, a U.S. Embassy political officer, and a librarian, hospital director and dean of agriculture for the American University in Beirut.

Ms. Carpenter said Terry Waite, aide to the archbishop of Canterbury in England, had visited with the Pope of the Roman Catholic Church and that they had "made contact" with the terrorists. Possibly that had something to do with Weir's release, she said, but that is uncertain.

"It is sometimes easier for church people to talk to these people (terrorists) than for the government. The government gets involved in the political implications."

Rescuers free babies from Mexico City rubble

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rescuers saved two small babies trapped for more than five days in a hospital ruined by two major earthquakes, and President Miguel de la Madrid pledged that rescue efforts would go slowly to protect others who still may be alive.

Mayor Ramon Aguirre's office said late Tuesday that the death toll had reached 3,500 from the quakes last Thursday and Friday. The federal Health Department reported 11,000 injuries.

The mayor's office reported 1,700 earthquake victims hospitalized — 1,100 more than the Mexican government listed a day earlier.

Relief workers pulled the two crying babies from metal cribs in a smashed hospital Tuesday. One was a boy born the day before the quake, and the other was a 2-month-old girl, said the Red Cross workers who found them said.

Miguel Gonzalez Juarez, one of the rescuers, said the babies, whose faces were covered by stones and dirt, were in "terrific" shape considering their ordeal.

The workers said the babies were in a small pocket of air in the wreckage of the Juarez Hospital, and that the sturdy metal frames of their cribs apparently had saved them.

Workers listened intently with ultra sound equipment, and specialily trained dogs sniffed and pawed in a desperate effort to find the estimated 1,500 people still trapped.

Doctors combine ancient 'tool,' microsurgery to save boy's ear

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON — Doctors who reattached a boy's severed ear with microsurgery feared the operation might fail when drugs didn't overcome a complication, so they turned to one of their profession's oldest tools: leeches.

"It wouldn't have worked if we hadn't been able to use the leeches," said Dr. Joseph Upton, who headed the team of Children's Hospital surgeons that operated on Guy Condelli, 5, of Medford, who had been attacked by a dog.

Reattachments of severed ears are rarely successful because the ear's blood vessels are exceptionally tiny — so small they can't be seen with the naked eye. The only reported success was five years ago in Australia, Upton said.

In the past few years she has become active as a public speaker with particular interest in the field of alcoholism and chemical dependency.

Mrs. Ford has received numerous awards including the 1984 National Arthritis Foundation's Harding Award, the 1984 California Women's Commission of Alcoholism's annual award, the 1983 President's Award from the National Federation of Press Women, the 1983 American Lung Association's Humanitarian Award and she was proclaimed "Woman of the Year" in 1976 by Ladies Home Journal magazine.

She was born in Chicago on April 8, 1918, the daughter of Hortense and William Stephenson Bloomer. She moved to Grand Rapids, Mich., with her family when she was 3.

Mrs. Ford began studying dance when she was 8 and discovered a passion that would be lifelong. After graduation from Central High School in Grand Rapids in 1936, she attended two summer sessions of the Bennington School of Dance in Bennington, Vt., where she first met Martha Graham. Her dance career continued with Martha Graham in New York City where she studied at the Graham School. Mrs. Ford eventually performed as a member of the Martha Graham Concert Group. During this time she also modeled part-time with the John Powers Agency.

Iraq claims 11th attack on Kharg Island oil terminal

MANAMA, Bahrain, (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes hit Iran's badly damaged Kharg Island oil terminal for the 11th time in six weeks Tuesday.

An Iraqi military spokesman in Baghdad, the capital, said the flames of fire started by the Iraqi warplanes will not be extinguished until the war is settled."

He said Iraqi jet fighters carried out the attack on the Persian Gulf terminal to destroy its remaining installations. The terminal handles 90 percent of Iran's oil exports.

The raid came after oil and shipping executives in the Persian Gulf reported that Iran's oil exports had diminished by half as a result of previous raids on Kharg.

Iraq began attacking Kharg on Aug. 15, with the aim of cutting off all Iranian exports and pressuring the regime of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini into a negotiated settlement of the 5-year-old war.

The latest raid came on the eve of the celebration of the Shiite Moslems' holiest feast, Ashura, which commemorates the murder of Hussein, grandson of the Prophet Mohammed. Hussein's death occurred in the year 680 in Karbala, Iraq.

Because of the feast, most oil and shipping businesses in the gulf were closed and there was no independent confirmation of the Iraqi raid.

Persian Iran is a predominantly Shiite Moslem country. Arab Iraq also has a large Shiite community.

The previous Iraqi raid on Kharg occurred Thursday.

U.S. hears speculation on Soviet arms control proposal

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

UNITED NATIONS — Reagan administration officials are welcoming indications that the Soviet Union is about to unveil new arms control proposals in Geneva, but Moscow is keeping the administration guessing on whether it has such a plan.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz hoped to learn more at a four-hour meeting today with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze at the Soviet U.N. mission here.

U.S. officials were hopeful the Soviet minister would unveil a proposal to break the current impasse at the arms control talks in Geneva and they seized on a statement by Shevardnadze in his U.N. address Tuesday as confirmation he would do so.

"We welcome Mr. Shevardnadze's indication that the Soviet Union will bring new proposals to the Geneva talks," said Charles Redman, the State Department spokesman, speaking for the administration.

He referred to Shevardnadze's statement that "The Soviet delegation has brought to the current round of the negotiations substantial, large-scale and far-reaching proposals."

But a Soviet spokesman, Vladimir Lomeiko, told reporters that Shevardnadze was speaking about the proposals Moscow has already made, which Washington has deemed insufficient.

Redman acknowledged that he didn't know anything more than what was in Shevardnadze's speech and that the administration has heard nothing new so far.

It appeared that if the Soviet Union had a new proposal, they were going to unveil it at a time and place of their own choosing.

Reports persisted Tuesday that Shevardnadze was about to propose a 40 percent cutback in offensive nuclear warheads — in exchange for curbs on Reagan's "Star Wars" plan, known as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The Soviet foreign minister planned to confer with Reagan at the White House on Friday. If he has a new plan, he probably would reveal it then.

U.S. officials say the Soviets have to budge from their current stand if the Nov. 19-20 summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva is to be successful.

Reagan appeared caught off-guard when asked about the reports the Soviets would propose a major percent reduction in nuclear weapons.

He first said he hoped the Soviets would propose more than 40 percent. Later, he said the United States would take what it could get, adding that in his initial response, "I was not turning down any offer. We've received no offer."

Shevardnadze was uncompromising in his U.N. address, saying the Reagan's Star Wars plan posed the chief stumbling block to an arms control agreement and warning it could set in motion an "uncontrollable and irreversible" global arms race.

"In the final analysis, this is a road leading to a nuclear catastrophe," he said.

It was Shevardnadze's first address to the United Nations since being named earlier this year to succeed Andrei Gromyko as Soviet foreign minister.

While firm in laying blame for global tensions as the doorstep of the United States, Shevardnadze, 57, did not use the same harsh language to denounce the United States as Gromyko used in recent addresses.

U.S. officials agreed the tone of the address "was dramatically different" but said the substance was unchanged. "They still blame all the world's ills on the United States," said the official, who insisted on not being identified.

"In terms of the problems and the issues, there was in fact no discernable change in Soviet positions in what are in fact the major issues before us today," Redman said.

Foreign ministers of other nations who met with Shevardnadze also found his approach somewhat different. The foreign minister of Denmark, Uffe Ellemann-Jensen, for example, described him as "a very charming man who unlike certain predecessors is interested in personal contact."

He said that in the past when he had submitted to Gromyko a list of names of people Norway wanted the Soviets to let emigrate to Norway, the Soviet foreign minister refused to accept the list, saying the matter was an internal prorlem.

But when he submitted the same list to Shevardnadze on Tuesday, he took the list, Ellemann-Jensen said. Whether that meant there would be any action, he said he didn't know.

LEECHES

When Guy and his severed ear were rushed to Upton after the attack Aug. 16, "I decided to give it a try, even though the success rate is almost nil."

Members of the surgical team worked for 12 hours under microscopes that magnified by 40 times the torn veins and arteries they had to reconnect. The operation worked, and blood flowed through the reattached vessels.

But Guy's recovery was complicated by poor circulation. Although blood flowed into the ear, clots formed in the veins so it could not return to the heart. Three days after the operation, the ear turned blackish blue with congested blood.

At first, doctors gave the child heparin, a medicine that prevents clotting, and made cuts in the ear to let out blood. However, the child was losing a lot of blood, and doctors feared the operation would fail.

As a surgeon in Vietnam, Upton had sometimes used leeches to heal wounds, and he decided they were worth a try.

"I started calling around the country to my friends trying to find some hungry leeches," Upton said. He eventually found a variety of medical leeches, known as Hirudo medicinalis, in England and had some flown to Boston.

He attached two of the 1½-inch-long worms to the child's ear. They slowly filled with blood and eventually became 8 inches long and looked something like fat cigars.

Besides sucking blood, the leeches inject an anesthetic and anticoagulant into the flesh to keep blood from clotting.

"The ear perked up right away," Upton said. "It was obvious it was going to work."

The doctors continued the therapy for a week and used up about two dozen leeches. By that time, normal circulation was restored in the child's reattached ear.

The boy's mother, Darlene, said Tuesday she had no doubts about the leeches. "I said, 'If it works, do it. Whatever it takes.' He put the leeches on, and it was incredible how much better it looked."

Guy was discharged from the hospital about two weeks after the operation and is going to kindergarten. "His ear looks terrific," Mrs. Condelli said.

FORD

On Oct. 15, 1948, she married Gerald Ford, a young Grand Rapids lawyer and the Republican candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives from Michigan's 5th District. Her husband was elected to Congress just a few weeks after their wedding.

The Fords made their home in Alexandria, Va., for many years and reared four children - Mike, Jack, Steve and Susan. During the 50's and 60's most of her time was dedicated to the Republican party, the Episcopal church and her family. In August of 1974 the Ford family moved to the White House, after President Richard Nixon resigned and Ford took office.

WEIR

TO THIS DAY, the terrorists are unidentified, Ms. Carpenter said. And Weir's capture probably was a random thing: He was an American male in Beirut.

And the captors' apparent goal is to gain the release of 17 prisoners in Kuwait on the Persian Gulf.

The captors' scheme in releasing Weir was to "take the message" that the six Americans would be killed if the prisoners in Kuwait weren't released. The seven Americans had voted among themselves that the AP correspondent, Terry Anderson, be released , since they thought he could get the "most press." Instead, the captors let Weir go.

He was in Washington, D.C., last week and this week is in New York. He and the families of the six hostages have met with Vice President George H.W. Bush but not with President Ronald Reagan. Aside from getting nationwide newspaper coverage, Weir has appeared on such television programs as the "Today Show," "Good Morning, America," "CBS Morning News," and the "Larry King Show."

"So, we're happy about that," Ms. Carpenter said. "He fielded questions very well. He was sensible. He's just really sharp."

"A lot of people said the terrorists were using us (the Presbyterian Church). I said, 'I don't know about that.' But if they (terrorists) tell me they're going to kill all these people because we don't get press, I'm going to get press."

MS. CARPENTER, 59, who became the Presbyterian Church's national news editor in January 1979, was former columnist and area editor for The Big Spring Herald. Before that, she was news editor for the Andrews County News. And when she worked on the Pecos Independent in the early 1960s, Ms. Carpenter had helped expose the Billie Sol Estes scandal. For that, she was awarded the Associated Press Community Service Award "for cleaning up the community," she said laughingly.

She returned to West Texas on Sunday to conduct workshops for church newsletter editors. And at 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. today in the First Presbyterian Church in Midland, she is to speak on "The World Is In A Mess, But The Presbyterian Church Is Not."

In the last five years, she has traveled to 36 countries in missions for the church and is to travel to Brazil next month.

Ms. Carpenter said Weir, who had spent the past 32 years in Lebanon as a church missionary, was fed well and was not tortured by his captors, although he was held in solitary confinement for 14 months, was transferred four times and was never allowed to view his captors. He and the others were blindfolded whenever guards appeared. And after the CNN reporter escaped, Weir and the others were chained by their captors. "He'd look at symbols in the room, trying to think of God. He gave God a lot of credit."

"THEY NEVER tortured them (Americans)," Ms. Carpenter said. "They treated them with respect." In July, the captors gave each of the seven Americans a New Testament printed in Arabic. "They didn't think they could read Arabic; he could. He'd read the New Testament."

Weir, an ordained minister from Berkeley, Calif., and his wife Carol raised four children in Beirut. "They all speak Arabic," she said. "The kids loved Lebanon." Weir had been a "preacher and a teacher" in Lebanon for those 32 years.

His wife returned to the United States last spring to generate publicity on the American captives. Ms. Carpenter described her as a "tough" woman.

Next week, Weir will be "doing press" in New York, then will go on vacation for two weeks and will get a year's furlough "to decide what he's doing to do."

"He is an ordained preacher," Ms. Carpenter said. "He could take a church or he could teach in a college or he could go back to another mission field. But he said he didn't think he would go back there (to Lebanon).

"He said he cried when he left because he had lived there most of his life."

Are Shiite captors ready to ease demands on hostage release?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says it has no information on a report that the Shiite captors of six Americans kidnapped in Lebanon may be willing to drastically scale down their demands for the hostages' release.

As the price for the Americans' freedom, the kidnappers have insisted on the release of 17 terrorists imprisoned in Kuwait. But a report Tuesday indicated the captors may demand freedom for only two of the Kuwaiti prisoners.

The Washington Post, which reported the compromise proposal in its Tuesday editions, said the two are related to "the big and religiously important Mussavi family of Lebanon."

State Department spokesman Peter Martinez said the administration has received no such proposal and does not negotiate with terrorists in any case.

Peggy Say, sister of one of the kidnapped Americans, Associated Press chief Middle East correspondent Terry Anderson, said the hostage families were aware that two or three of the Shiites imprisoned in Kuwait were particularly important because of family ties to some of the kidnappers.

She said she does not recall hostage relatives suggesting the Americans be swapped for these two or three. But, she said, the hostage families have encouraged the administration to find out whether there is a lesser number than 17 that the Lebanese captors would settle for.

FDIC

Eagle partners Thomas C. "Tom" Brown, M.W. Branum, Gene Sledge, J.L. Davis, Clint Hurt and Carl F. Lawrence, all of Midland, and Charles R. Perry of Odessa had arranged financing to purchase the building for $75 million. The partners, all FNB stockholders, agreed on the purchase on Dec. 31, 1982, in negotiating with former FNB President Charles Fraser. Each partner had paid $150,000 in cash to activate the partnership and to arrange financing for the $50 million downpayment for purchase of the building. That funding came by letters of credit from Texas Commerce Bank of Houston and InterFirst Bank of Dallas. In addition, the partnership signed $25 million in notes to FNB.

The $50 million was funded in June 1983 — six months prematurely. The bank had sought the early funding, as deposits were dropping, energy loans had turned sour, crude-oil prices were dropping and InterFirst Bank and Texas Commerce Bank had not fulfilled earlier commitments to infuse the bank with more capital by buying $200 million in loans.

Eagle contended that the $25 million was not payable to FDIC, as FNB's receiver, until after the $50 million in loans had been repaid. Eagle also contended that that the 10 percent interest on the $25 million doesn't start until the notes are funded.

Eagle's plan was to pay off the note's indebtedness with rent money gained from leasing about half the building to FNB for $6 million a year; other rental income was to come from other tenants in the building.

In his judgment against the seven Eagle partners, Bunton order Brown and Branum, principal partners in Eagle, each to pay $6.25 million and $1.7 in accured interest; and ordered each of the five other partners to pay FDIC $2.5 million plus $682,191.38 in interest. Interest was figured at 7.91 percent.

Bunton noted that "every trial is a mosiac of circumstances, personalitis, and occurrences."

The bank failed in mid-October 1983, FDIC became receiver and liquidator, and RepublicBank assumed FNB's deposit liabilities and paid of premium of $51.1 million to FDIC, purchased tangible assets appraised at $35 million and secured the right the purchase loans in excess of $200 million.

FNB President Tom Wageman assumed the presidency of the new bank, RepublicBank First National of Midland.

Earlier, in July 1983, FNB had named Wageman, 51, as president. He succeeded Fraser, who resigned in April 1983.

Fraser joined the bank in 1966 as a petroleum engineer, was promoted to managing the bank's oil department and became vice president about 1970. He was president from Jan. 1, 1980, until his 1983 resignation and had been the bank's chief executive officer and chairman of the board since Jan. 1, 1981.

Midland cattleman Clarence Scharbauer Jr., whose ancestors had helped establish the bank in 1890, became chairman of the board.

OIL

After he became governor, the court ruled for the state's position on most of the questions presented and the federal government appealed. That appeal is pending.

"Now we have an opportunity to end seven years of bitter litigation," White said. "The national interest requires that it be done."

Hodel called the settlement proposal "a huge giveaway of federal revenue, far beyond the original intent of Section 8-G," and warned that it ensures litigation over federal leasing will continue well into the future.

Hodel claimed that the federal Treasury will have to borrow an additional $1.4 to $1.6 billion to comply with the proposed legislation because the government is not sitting on the money but is investing it. To replace that income would require additional borrowing, he said, thus increasing the federal deficit.

For his part, White was irate at the notion the money supposedly in escrow actually might not be available without federal borrowing.

White rejected the analogy to money in a savings account at a bank that is not actually in the bank vault but invested.

The difference, he said, is that the bank produces the money if a depositor asks for it. "If it doesn't, the next stop is the attorney general's office where you get a warrant for theft," he said.

MEXICO

"The priority is rescuing lives and because of that we have to take our time because a precipitous action might provoke the death of trapped people," the president said. He spoke to reporters after touring some of the harder hit areas of the city of 18 million.

There had been some speculation among rescue workers that officials would soon start demolishing the more seriously damaged buildings and leveling the mounds of rubble.

Correction

In Tuesday's article on the cost of living figures released by Clay-Desta National Bank, there was an error in the medical category.

Lower prices for over-the-counter drugs were offset by higher hospital costs in Midland, not Odessa, and by higher dental costs in Odessa, rather than Midland, as the story stated. Information provided to the Reporter-Telegram was incorrect.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

Have we made an error? Call 682-5311, extension 130, and a correction will be published.

Officials report brisk early turnout in Punjab elections despite threats

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Election officials in two main cities reported a brisk early turnout today in state elections that followed three days of Sikh terrorism in which eight people died.

The army was on 24-hour alert. More than 120,000 heavily armed paramilitary troops and police were deployed, three to a polling station, to discourage terrorist violence aimed at disrupting the election.

On Tuesday night, two campaign workers of Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's Congress Party died after eating poisoned bread given to them near the Golden Temple, the Sikhs' holiest shrine, in Amritsar, police said.

N.S. Aulakh, a spokesman for the Punjab police, said no violence had been reported today.

Election officials in Amritsar and Ludhiana, the state's two major cities, reported a heavy early turnout, and predicted that at least 60 percent of the state's 10.7 million voters would participate in the election despite calls by Sikh militants for a boycott.

"The large turnout today shows that the voters have not succumbed to threats and terrorism," said Inderjit Singh Sidhu, police chief in Amritsar.

However, there were no early reports from rural areas, where more than 60 percent of the state's 17 million people live and where support for the boycott was believed strongest.

Sikh militants have been touring towns and villages urging voters to stay away from the polls to protest Gandhi's July 24 peace accord with moderates. The accord ended three years of agitation for greater autonomy for India's 13 million Sikhs.

Militants regarded the agreement as a sellout.

Black flags fluttered from homes, shops and temples in many Punjab villages as a sign of support for the boycott.

Sikh militants have called for a peaceful election boycott, but police have predicted that other underground Sikh terrorists would try to sabotage the election by assassinating candidates and campaigners.

Voters were choosing 115 members of the state assembly and 13 members of the national Parliament. More than 900 candidates were running, and they had been permitted to carry guns and keep bodyguards to protect them from terrorism.

The elections are seen as a referendum on Gandhi's agreement with the moderates. The moderate wing of Akali Dal is contesting the election against the Congress Party and several small parties and independents. The balloting also is seen as a test of strength between Sikh militants and moderates.

The moderate Sikh who signed the accord, Harchand Singh Longowal, had warned Gandhi that early elections would provoke violence. He was assassinated last month.

Punjab has been under direct federal control since the state government was dismissed two years ago for failing to control violence by extremists.

France names army chief to head secret service

PARIS (AP) — The government named the army chief of staff to head France's secret service after a scandal over the sinking of a Greenpeace vessel cost the former intelligence chief his job, a government spokeswoman said today.

Spokeswoman Georgina Dufoix said Gen. Rene Imbot, the new head of the General Directorate for External Security, would "reestablish order", reorganize the body and report on its role in the mining of the Rainbow Warrior in Auckland harbor on July 10.

She said Socialist President Francois Mitterrand stressed to a Cabinet meeting "the great toughness of character" of Imbot, 60, a 20-year veteran of the French Foreign Legion.

Adm. Pierre Lacoste, fired last week as intelligence chief for refusing to answer official questions on the sinking of the ship by French agents, was retired from active service, she said.

Premier Laurent Fabius has admitted that the bombing of the Rainbow Warrior, which killed a photographer, was carried out by two French agents.

The newspaper Le Monde says former Defense Minister Charles Hernu may have ordered the vessel to be "neutralized" and that the agents possibly interpreted that as permission to use violence. Hernu resigned last week during the uproar over the Greenpeace affair.

Gen. Maurice Schmitt will become chief of staff.

In other developments, a lawyer for Police Capt. Paul Barril, sought in connection with leaks to the press over the Greenpeace affair, said today he was "at the disposal of the judicial authorities."

South African goverment proposes second controversial land swap

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government said today it was proposing a major land swap between white-ruled sections of Transvaal province and black homelands in which both blacks and whites would be forced to move.

The plan, the second land swap proposal to surface in three days, involves adding about 890,000 acres of territory under white control to three black homelands, and shifting 280,000 acres from three black areas into the white area.

Chris Heunis, the minister for constitutional development and planning, did not say in his statement where the land was located. However, major urban centers in Transvaal such as Johannesburg and Pretoria would remain white. Heunis did not say how many people would have to be moved.

Forced removal, as the practice is called, is one of the most widely criticized aspects of the system of white-minority rule known as apartheid. Earlier this year the government said it was halting the practice.

It was unclear why at this time, when the white-minority government is under increasing pressure from abroad, the government would announce plans that include more forced removals.

Heunis said the redrawing of homeland boundaries in Transvaal would be debated in Parliament after the first of the year. It was unclear what reaction members of Parliament would have, but the governing National Party has a large parliamentary majority.

The announcement came two days after a government commission drew heavy criticism for proposing a land swap in Natal province along the Indian Ocean. Heunis said that proposal did not represent government policy.

In other developments, police said they shot and killed a black man in a stone-throwing mob, and a newspaper said seven blacks near Cape Town alleged they were beaten by police.

The man was shot in New Brighton, a black township outside Port Elizabeth, 600 miles south of Johannesburg, police said. More than 700 blacks have been killed in 13 months of anti-apartheid violence. Most were killed by police, and the rest perished at the hands of blacks who accused them of collaboration with white officials.

In Cape Town, the Cape Times newspaper reported that seven residents of Guguletu, a black area east of the city, said they were beaten in or near their homes by white and black policemen on Monday afternoon.

The paper also said the Guguletu residents complained that policemen looted a shop in the riot-weary township.

The residents "all had bruises, cuts, welts or marks which bore out their allegations," the paper reported. There was no immediate comment on the report from police.

On Tuesday, mobs of blacks killed a laborer and a bus driver in anti-apartheid violence, and police said they were trying to determine how a black political activist died in custody.

Officials said that 35-year-old activist Mbuyiselo Mbotya died in police custody in East London, outside Port Elizabeth, on Saturday. He had been detained a day earlier, and was the 11th black in 18 months to die in custody.

Police said they were investigating Mbotya's death, and offered no explanation for it. By unofficial count, more than 65 people, all blacks but one, have perished while being held by police in the past 25 years.

For Germans, maneuvers not just 'games'

By ROBERT BURNS

WALSRODE, West Germany (AP) — A farmer peered out a barn doorway as an army helicopter whirred by. A little boy on a bike stopped to watch a tank cross his path. Two girls in a school hallway glanced up at men in camouflaged uniforms and went back to jumping rope.

NATO's annual war games were under way, and ordinary West Germans for miles around this northeastern town found themselves in front-row seats.

It's not much as entertainment, but people here have little choice. They live amid the greatest concentration of military forces — and the biggest and most frequent NATO maneuvers — in the Western world.

Reminders abound, and they are especially obvious during the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's peak autumn season for practicing war.

For nine days in mid-September, 60,000 West German, British, Dutch and American soldiers split into two teams in northeastern West Germany and simulated a large-scale air and ground battle. They used nearly 22,000 tanks, helicopters, jet aircraft, jeeps, trucks and other vehicles over 120 square miles in Lower Saxony's colorful patchwork of farms and tiny towns.

With twice as many men on their side, the "blue" friendly forces successfully beat back an invasion by the "red" enemy side.

And just as sure as the "good guys" won the mock war, the West German authorities were flooded with angry calls from residents complaining of noisy aircraft, blocked roads and torn-up fields.

This is part of the social burden that West Germany bears for being at the dividing line between East and West, a potential flashpoint of conventional or nuclear war. It's a burden that West German officials say is usually overlooked when American politicians complain that the Europeans are not paying their fair share of the cost of maintaining a credible military presence in Europe.

"It's a burden you can't express in dollars," said Lt. Col. Wulff Bickenbach, a West German. "It's difficult for others to realize this."

The cost sometimes goes beyond the inconveniences of noise and environmental damage.

In this year's exercise in Lower Saxony, one soldier was killed in a jeep accident and an army major died in a helicopter crash. Two civilians were seriously injured in the helicopter accident and hospitalized, according to Lt. Col. Eckhard Rieck, a West German army spokesman.

Salvadoran kidnappers demand rebels' release today

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The abductors of President Jose Napoleon Duarte's daughter have demanded that the government release 34 leftist rebels today, government sources said.

One source said the kidnappers contacted Duarte on Monday using a special walkie-talkie radio hookup, but they did not specify what they would do if their demand was not met by the deadline, 2 p.m. (4 p.m. EDT). He spoke on condition he was not identified.

The president said he was willing to negotiate, according to the source, but said the government held only 22 of the rebels. Duarte said he also wanted to discuss the kidnapping of about 20 mayors and other unidentified people, but there was no indication his request was met, the source said.

The kidnappers, who say they are from the Pedro Pablo Castillo Front, a group representing political prisoners, also rejected the president's request that Roman Catholic Church officials or Red Cross representatives be allowed to visit his daughter, Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran, 35, according to the source.

The source's report was confirmed today by officials in the president's office and his Christian Democrat Party. They declined to give further details.

Ms. Duran and a friend, Cecilia Villeda Sosa, 23, were kidnapped Sept. 10 as they left a university class in the capital.

Les Miserables

If you're looking around for somebody to blame for the seat belt law which took effect Sept. 1, we'd like to recommend the U.S. Department of Transportation.

A casual survey of Midland drivers indicates that more motorists are beginning to comply with the law — even though that compliance may come begrudgingly. It's not so much that Midlanders and others question statistics that show seat belts can prevent passengers in automobiles from being killed or seriously injured in accidents, although some obviously do question those figures. A number of those objecting to the new law are doing so, they tell us, because of the manner in which it was done.

Well, if that's the legitimate gripe, the Department of Transportation should bear full blame. Here's the story, straight from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

In July 1984, the Department of Transportation ruled that car manufacturers must install passive restraint in 10 percent of all new cars starting next September. Three years later, the equipment — namely air bags or other automatic crash protection devices — would be required in all new cars unless states with two-thirds of the U.S. population enacted seat belt laws by April 1, 1989.

Auto producers and dealers — and the Reagan administration — have fought the move to require passive restraint crash protection like air bags, primarily on the basis that such installation would significantly boost the cost of new automobiles.

But the compromise to prevent the federal requirement for air bags from taking effect was distasteful itself, although not as damaging to the national economy. It was, in the game of politics, the lesser of two evils — a compromise that stripped away a little individual liberty in the interest of keeping the economy's head above water.

The status of the trade-off is this: At the same time Texas' seat belt law took effect, the seat belt law also took effect in Illinois, Michigan, Nebraska, New Jersey, and New York. This Saturday the seat belt law will become effective in Missouri and in North Carolina on Oct. 2. Laws in Connecticut, Hawaii, Indiana, Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma will be phased in by July 1987.

The final state needed to make the compromise effective is California, which has 10 percent of the nation's population. But in California, legislators scoffed at the federal government by including a "sunset" provision that makes it impossible for the federal government to count the state toward the two-thirds goal needed in order to abandon mandatory passive restraints.

What that means is that if other states follow California's lead in passing laws that can't be used at the federal level, the Transporation Department may require automatic crash protection anyway. And the attempt to circumvent that costly addition to new cars will be meaningless.

That's the story — and if you're miserable as a result, remember the old saying "misery loves company." You'll have plenty of company around much of the nation!

Records show inequities

The accusations made against me by members of the Midland Central District in a recent letter to the editor published by the Midland Reporter-Telegram were deliberate falsehoods.

Since I had not protested the valuation of my property for the last two years, why would I have been sent forms to appear before the appraisal board? And since I had never met nor talked to Mr. Wilkinson until last Thursday how could he have possibly volunteered to make an appointment for me to appear before the board, and for what reason?

Furthermore, any questions that arose as I systematically examined the public records during the past year were answered by the staff or the records themselves. These records are the facts and speak for themselves. Inasmuch as I did not know that I had been invited to meet with the board, I therefore would welcome the opportunity to meet with the appraisal board if such a meeting is open to the public and held at night so that many of the other concerned citizens can attend.

The appraisal district files show gross inequities in the evaluation of a large number of Midland properties. This is contradictory to their so-called effeciency rating. Many of these inequities are directed toward our senior citizens and the poor. It is unfair for these Midlanders to bear an inequitable portion of the tax burden. Something must be done to rectify this situation.

'Machine' overwhelming

I saw a production by the teen group "Esteem Machine" on Sunday, Sept. 15, at First Methodist Church. To say I was impressed would be an understatement. I was overwhelmed! Our children are not yet teenagers, but we had heard so much about the Esteem Machine that we decided to see this group for ourselves.

Could we have seen the same performance, the same subject matter so heavily criticized by other parents? Surely not. I consider myself a concerned parent. I would recommend this "show" to anyone with children. I would accompany my own teenagers to it, and go again next season.

These kids dealt with subjects such as divorce and step-parents, drinking, drugs, pre-marital sex, birth control, suicide, venereal disease, teen stress, and parents' alcoholism tastefully and informatively.

I don't see how anyone could be offended by this group. These skits deal with everyday problems that teens encounter. Some are funny. Some are touching.

The one about teenage suicide had most of the adults in the audience teary-eyed.

Two basic messages are delivered over and over in the skits. The first is that "everybody" is not "doing it." That each person has the right (should I also add, the responsibility) to make up his or her own mind about how to behave. And secondly, the Esteem Machine suggests communication with parents, other adults and each other as the way to work through a problem.

My hat is off to the Esteem Machine. Please keep bringing your message to teens and their parents. We need it!

As nations battle, AIDS spreading

WASHINGTON — While thousands are dying in agony from AIDS, the French and U.S. governments are engaged in an obscene battle over the patent and royalties on an AIDS blood-testing kit. This not only isolates the virus that causes the deadly disease, but could lead to a cure.

Jack Anderson

As we reported last month, the French claim the U.S. National Cancer Institute pirated research done by the Pasteur Institute in Paris and illegally secured a patent on the AIDS test kit. The French want their share of credit and their share of the royalties, which already have reached about $2 million. So far, the U.S. government has brushed off the French claims.

In the last month, however, the French have delivered documents outlining their case to Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler. Among other things, the French claim that they were the first to file for a patent in the United States. Their application was put on hold, they said, while patent applications filed later by National Cancer Institute doctors were granted.

French officials have warned that a long court battle is inevitable if the United States continues to refuse France the credit to which it is entitled. Already, the patent feud has hurt Franco-American cooperation in seeking a cure for AIDS.

"There is a situation which can create a very difficult climate and will certainly not contribute to the conditions of an effective cooperation," said Pasteur Institute Director Raymond Dedonder in a private statement to HHS officials. A transcript has been seen by our associate Corky Johnson.

"The granting of the patent to the NCI, while our earlier application is still under consideration, may imply consequences which can be deleterious for the Pasteur Institute and its licensees, and that we cannot accept," Dedonder said.

Dedonder said his doctors are committed to cooperation with the Americans for public health reasons, but vowed that the French will fight for their rightful credit.

"It is a well-established fact that the virus responsible for AIDS has been discovered by the group working at the Pasteur Institute," Dedonder said. "We think that we are entitled to a full recognition of this fact and consequently to a full recognition of our right to a patent."

Among the evidence submitted to support the French claim were copies of newspaper articles, including one in which the head of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta was quoted as saying that the AIDS virus was discovered by French researcher Luc Montagnier.

"If a satisfactory agreement is not attained, the Pasteur Institute is prepared, determined and even compelled to utilize all available procedures to obtain complete recognition of its rights," Dedonder warned.

Dedonder added that an unseemly public brawl over the AIDS test patent will tarnish the "good image of science and scientists."

But Dr. Robert Gallo, the leading American AIDS researcher, insisted the feud is wholly on the French side.

Gallo, who the press has given equal credit to, along with Montagnier, for the discovery of the AIDS virus, said his staff has been cooperating with researchers around the world. He indicated the French are not as far along in their research as U.S. scientists, saying, "The French don't have anything I need."

UNDER THE DOME: Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., has been conducting a one-man campaign to focus attention on the bizarre fact that the United States supports the anti-Soviet Afghan rebels but still gives the Soviet puppet government of Afghanistan "most favored nation" trade status. When Humphrey brought this anomaly forcefully to the attention of the State Department, it wrote him in support of legislation that would rescind the favored status. "We stand ready (to help) in any way during the drafting of the legislation and in facilitating its rapid movement through Congress," the department wrote Humphrey. The bill, however, is stuck in committee.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: The Iran-Iraq War is an ill wind that is blowing some good to Egypt. While the oil sheiks' budget tightening (because of the drop in prices) has forced them to cut back on their use of Egyptian laborers, Iraq has had to hire Egyptians for its wartime manpower needs. The money the Egyptians send home is important to the troubled Egyptian economy.

PENTAGON WATCH: The Army wants to replace its basic infantry rifle, the M-16, and not just because it tends to jam in the heat of battle. The generals have concluded that when grunts with M-16s are "stressed" — meaning under stress — "there is an induced aiming error which results in a much reduced probability of a hit." Veterans may comment, "No kidding!" or words to that effect, but the brass hats seem to think combat tension can be overcome by weapons designers. They have told potential rifle makers that the M-16 replacement "must compensate for stress-inducted aiming errors." They don't say how.

'The Children' won't let Uncle Sam down

WASHINGTON — In late September, the quietest hideaways around Washington lie along the banks of the Potomac. And always when he gets the itch, Uncle Sam drops down from his heavenly abode to ask how things are going.

James Reston

This week, the Old Gentleman drifted down over the Blue Ridge with his whiskers and red, white and blue tails flying, and landed on the lawn of Donald Regan's house near General Washington's old spread at Mount Vernon, where he was met by leaders of the Cabinet, the Congress and their children.

Is it true, asked the visitor, that you are having some money problems?

The White House chief of staff said that was no longer his department and turned the question over to Jim Baker, the secretary of the Treasury, who gave him a dirty look.

Inflation was down, Baker said, interest rates were down, unemployment was down — there were eight million new jobs in America since President Reagan took over. The United States is doing better than all the Western European countries together.

Uncle Sam: That's not saying much. How about the budget, and the trade deficit?

Baker: Not so good, but that's the fault of the Democrats in Congress.

Sam: We'll get to the faults later. What about that, Rostenkowski?

Rosty: They blame us Democrats for everything, including the earthquakes in Mexico. If we had our way and their means, we wouldn't be in this mess.

At this point there was a cry from a child on the edge of the chief of staff's lawn. "Go out and play," said Regan quietly.

"Grandpa!" insisted the child. "Get lost," said Grandpa, not so gently.

Uncle Sam: If I could have just the facts, Mr. Secretary.

Baker: The budget deficit this year will be about $180 billion, give or take a few. As I figure it, we will buy about $150 billion more abroad than we take in at home, which of course is the fault of the unions and the Democrats.

Uncle Sam: Is it true that we now borrow more abroad than we lend abroad and that the United States is now the No. 1 borrower in the world?

Baker: No sir! Brazil is still ahead of us, but if the Congress will raise the debt ceiling to $2 trillion this month, we'll soon be No. 1.

"Grandpa! Grandpa!" came a shout.

Uncle Sam: Let the child speak.

The child came forward in the sunshine, and said, "Maybe I shouldn't have been listening, but I just thought, if you couldn't agree to cut the budget or raise taxes, why not just pass the hat?"

"Go out and play," said Grandpa. "Go out and play yourself," said Uncle Sam. "Let the child go on."

"Well, I was just thinking that since the country was good to us in trouble, we should be good to it in trouble," the child said.

Baker: Maybe the kid's on to something.

"That's what we do at our school," the child continued. "At the end of the year everybody just tries to help out. Grandpa does it at his church."

"Gee," said Grandpa, "that's what we do at our country club, too. We just divvy up the debt voluntarily. No taxes on members, no debts, just sort of working together to deal with the problem. I must tell the president about this. He'd like this spirit of free enterprise."

Uncle Sam: By the way, where is the president?

Grandpa: He's out to lunch with Cappy, who thinks he's Churchill, and is explaining how to organize outer space.

Uncle Sam: I want to talk to the children. These old geezers have lost their way.

So saying, Mr. Whiskers took the children down to the end of the lawn, where they looked quietly over the Potomac, and he pointed out to them General Washington's place, and told them to keep going on this idea that the people should save the government rather than the other way around.

And it came to pass that the children got together and created a vast rescue operation under the direction of Uncle Sam and with the support of the chief of staff in the White House, the secretary of the Treasury and the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Dan Rostenkowski.

They called it "Operation 1989" and vowed that on the 200th anniversary of the Constitution, they would not only balance the budget but prove that Grandpa was wrong, and have fun.

"How did you do it?" asked Grandpa.

"We just looked at Uncle Sam," the child said. "Such a nice old geezer. We didn't want him to think we'd let him down."

Moral of the fable: If you don't know what to write about, write about the children.

ART BUCHWALD

Venusians have high hopes of life on Earth!

There was great excitement on the planet of Venus this week. For the first time Venusian scientists managed to land an unmanned space craft on the planet Earth, and it has been sending back signals, as well as photographs, ever since.

Art Buchwald

The craft was directed into an area known as Manhattan (named after the great Venusian astronomer Professor Manhattan, who first discovered it with his telescope 200,000 light-years ago).

Because of excellent weather conditions and extremely strong signals, Venusian scientists were able to get valuable information on the feasibility of a manned flying saucer's landing on Earth. A press conference was held at the Venus Institute of Technology.

"We have come to the conclusion, based on last week's landing," Professor Zog said, "that there is no life on Earth."

"How do you know this?" the science reporter of the Venus Evening Star asked.

"For one thing, Earth's surface in the area of Manhattan is composed of solid concrete, and nothing can grow there. For another, the atmosphere is filled with carbon monoxide and other deadly gases, and nobody could possibly breathe this air and survive."

"What does this mean as far as our flying saucer program is concerned?"

"We shall have to take our own oxygen with us, which means a much heavier flying saucer than we originally planned."

"Are there any other hazards that you discovered in your studies?"

"Take a look at this photo. You see this dark black cloud hovering over the surface of Earth? We call this the Consolidated Edison Belt. We don't know what it is made of, but it could give us a lot of trouble, and we shall have to make further tests before we send a Venus being there.

"Over here you will notice what seems to be a river, but our findings indicate it is polluted, and the water is unfit to drink. This means we shall have to carry our own water, which will add even greater weight to the saucer."

"Sir, what are all those tiny black spots on the photographs?"

"We're not certain. They seem to be metal particles that move along certain paths. They emit gases, make noise, and keep crashing into each other. There are so many of these paths and so many metal particles that it is impossible to land a flying saucer without being smashed by one."

"What are those stalagmite projections sticking up?"

"They're some type of granite formation that gives off light at night. Professor Glom has named them skyscrapers since they seem to be scraping the skies."

"If all you say is true, won't this set back the flying saucer program several years?"

"Yes, but we shall proceed as soon as the Grubstart gives us the added funds."

"Professor Zog, why are we spending billions and billions of Zilches to land a flying saucer on Earth when there is no life there?"

"Because if we Venusians can learn to breathe in an Earth atmosphere, then we can live anywhere."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Group seeks to stop play

BERLIN (AP) — A Jewish group on Tuesday said it would file criminal charges in an effort to stop next month's premiere in Frankfurt of a Rainer Werner Fassbinder play it described as "anti-Semitic to the core."

The Jewish Culture Forum in Berlin said at a news conference that it would file charges of racial hatred and incitement against a people.

Michael Lang, the forum's spokesman, said that if criminal charges failed, the group would file a civil suit to try to block the Oct. 31 opening of "Garbage, City and Death."

In a statement, the group said, "The negative identification figure of the play is the rich Jew, who, like the caricatures in the Nazi newspaper 'Stuermer,' arouses abhorrence and hatred."

The play's premiere already has been held up twice. Plans to stage it have sparked heated debates in the Frankfurt City Council and brought protests from B'nai B'rith and from Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders.

Ethiopians continue sit-in JERUSALEM (AP) — Ethiopian Jews protesting rabbinical rules that they take a ritual bath before marriage refused Tuesday to end their 21-day sit-in near Jerusalem's main synagogue despite intervention by Prime Minister Shimon Peres.

Peres' help was requested after a 50-minute meeting of Jerusalem's chief rabbis.

The protesters are among thousands of Ethiopian Jews, recognized as members of a branch of Judaism, who were were rescued from their famine-stricken country in a secret airlift last year.

Peres, in a 15-minute meeting with three Ethiopian leaders, failed to persuade the nearly 500 demonstrators to pack up their tents and belongings and end their protest before Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, began at sundown.

Quake telethon scheduled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Julio Iglesias, Herb Alpert, Vicki Carr and Placido Domingo will be among celebrities in five U.S. cities performing during a 12-hour telethon Sunday for Mexico's earthquake victims, organizers say.

More than 340 TV stations and cable outlets will carry the telethon based at the KMEX-TV studios in Los Angeles with studio hookups in four U.S. cities and Puerto Rico, KMEX spokesman Steve Moya said Tuesday.

Some of the celebrities will be televised from the annual Los Angeles City Street Scene festival downtown, where Stevie Wonder, Richard Pryor, Conway Twitty, James Brown and Joan Rivers are scheduled to perform, Moya said.

It was not known which acts will be televised, he said. The telethon, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. PDT Sunday, will feature performances from various cities.

Babies found under rubble

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Two babies found crying in their cribs, their faces covered with rubble, were rescued Tuesday after surviving for five days in the wreckage of a hospital that collapsed in the first of two killer earthquakes.

The infants were a boy born last Wednesday, the day before the first earthquake, and a two-month-old girl, Red Cross workers who found them said. About eight other cribs in the pocket of ruins reached through a tunnel were empty, they said.

Miguel Gonzalez Juarez, the first to hear the babies' cries, said they appeared to be in "fantastic" condition, considering how long they had been without food or water.

Cool weather to continue

From Staff and Wire Reports

Light jackets may once again be needed in the Permian Basin area Thursday morning as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional predicts the cooler temperatures will continue.

Fair skies will accompany a low near 50 tonight as winds blow from the northeast at 10 to 15 mph, becoming easterly at five to 10 mph after midnight, according to forecasters. Continued fair skies and a high near 80 are expected Thursday as winds increase from the southeast at less than 15 mph.

Tuesday's high of 86 was 15 degrees below the 1977 record of 86. This morning's low was 12 degrees above the record of 46 set in 1984.

STATE

A fast-moving cold front was moving across Texas today, bringing with it some scattered showers and thunderstorms and windy conditions.

The National Weather Service said the front should move completely across the state by early tonight.

The front was located at dawn from southwest Oklahoma across the Texas plains into southeast New Mexico.

Forecasts called for widely scattered showers or thunderstorms today over North Central Texas today. It was to be windy across North Texas during the day and in South Texas by late afternoon and tonight.

Lows tonight were to be mostly in the 50s and 60s. Highs Wednesday are to be mostly in the 70s and 80s.

Widely scattered heavy thunderstorms were being reported in the Gulf of Mexico about 80 to 125 miles southeast of Galveston early today. Some fog was being reported in South Central Texas and along the upper Texas coast.

NATION

Nippy fall weather dominated the upper Midwest today and rain was widely scattered across the nation as forecasters kept watch on a powerful hurricane in the Atlantic.

Rain was scattered across New England and from the middle Mississippi Valley across the middle Missouri Valley, Central Plains and Oklahoma to the northern Rockies.

Snow and blowing snow prompted a travelers' advisory for elevations above 10,000 feet in the northern and central Colorado mountains.

Fair skies and low temperatures, mostly in the 30s early today, prevailed from the northern and western Great Lakes across the upper Mississippi Valley to eastern North Dakota. Chicago's low temperature Tuesday was 35 degrees to tie a record low set in 1942.

Stanton's sights hinge on injuries

Area Football

After a painful weekend of worrying over injuries to his two star offensive players in the Crane game Friday, Stanton coach Dale Ruth was greeted with a double dose of good news this week, finally.

After opening the pre-district season with a big 20-6 win on the road at Tahoka, Ruth's Buffaloes have now dropped two straight games to fall to 1-2. Stanton again takes to the road this week against winless Ozona, and Ruth would like to keep them that way. But bogging things down for the Buffaloes, both quarterback Kevin Glaspie and top receiver Derek Sorely spent the weekend with their playing status in doubt.

Good news wasn't far off, however. At the top of the list was the expected recovery of quarterback Glaspie from a knee injury suffered on the Buffaloes final offensive play of the game in the 35-6 loss to the Golden Cranes.

GLASPIE, A 6-1, 175-pound passer, underwent arthroscopic surgery Monday, but doctors have declared Glaspie should be ready for action in two weeks, just in time for the District 8-2A opener at Eldorado. That is if his recovery is complete.

Despite having a tough time with the stingy Crane defense (5-18 passing with three intercepts), Glaspie has been a vital component of the Stanton offense. The senior signal-caller had thrown for four touchdowns and 226 yards in the first three games and for Stanton to contend in the tough district race, Glaspie's strong right arm will be needed.

"The doctors said after he lays out for a couple of games he should be ready to return," said Ruth. "(Crane) really had the pressure on him all game, though in the first half his timing was off, he wasn't hitting his receivers on some of our roll-out patterns. I think they broke his concentration."

THE OTHER half of the good news tandem for the Buffaloes is the return of wingback Sorely after suffering a slight concussion and a blow to the throat in the first half of the Crane game. Sorely was taken to the hospital and did not return, but he was to return to the practice field Tuesday and was expected to play Friday. Sorely will be equipped with a special air-pumped helmet that will provide him with extra protection in the head area.

Ruth's problems were compounded by the double-injury on Friday because Sorely had been working out as the No. 2 quarterback behind Glaspie. But with Sorely ready to return, and Glaspie out at least two weeks, Ruth decided to leave his best pass catcher at his natural position. So for the next two games, first at Ozona then home with Seagraves, Ruth has called up Skip Hopkins from the junior varsity to run the plays.

"HE'S A quick, little kid, about 5-9, 140 pounds. It'll slow up our passing game a little, but we'll try to get back to running the ball more," Ruth said. "Our biggest decision was whether or not to keep Derek at his regular position."

Now that Ruth has decided on the inexperienced Hopkins, Stanton can get back the business of evening their season mark at two against struggling Ozona, 0-3.

"Everybody is holding out OK after the weekend. We played a good team, we can't look back on that. Our attitude is good, we're just out there getting ready for the district season," Ruth said.

Bulldogs' volleyball hopes dim

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

All of a sudden, things are looking pretty dim for Midland High in its quest for a volleyball playoff berth. Tuesday night, the Bulldogs ran into a vastly improved Odessa High squad and suffered a 15-5, 12-15, 15-12 defeat, and have fallen to 0-3 in District 4-5A play.

The Bronchos, now 2-1, used intense, aggressive play on both sides of the ball, making the saves on defense when they needed them and putting the ball down for scores on offense.

Part of the OHS game plan took advantage of continued MHS passing problems. It seemed every time the Bulldogs sent a low flying ball over the net, the Bronchos would immediatley kill it instead of setting up their attack. It was a pressure that caught the Bulldogs off guard time after time.

"That's a new rule," said OHS head coach Margie Ephriam. "They can block a serve now. Everybody did it to us last year so we're doing it back this year."

Ephriam attributes her team's improved play to a new attitude toward sports at OHS. Long the doormat of the league in both girls volleyball and basketball, the Bronchos finally look like a team to contend with.

"Our attitude is better, we're trying to build a better attitude for ourselves," said Ephriam. "We know how everybody in the district feels about us and we don't intend to take it anymore."

"I'm real familiar with their coach," said MHS coach Sonja Pittman. "We played USVBA together and I knew last year she would build a strong program. They had a very strong junior varsity last year. Their JV won district I believe."

Baptist Temple recovers quickly from injury bug

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

It didn't take Midland Baptist Temple long this season to surpass last season's win total in six-man football.

In fact, it took just one game, as the Eagles scored a 25-6 win over New Life last Friday to move to 1-0 on the season.

As you might guess, things are looking brighter for Midland Baptist after last year's 0-5 season. But you wouldn't have thought so just a week ago.

After entertaining high hopes in preseason practices, the Eagles were struck by a rash of injuries. First it was Bob Calendar that was lost for the season with a broken collarbone, then the entire backfield came down with the injury bug.

But after a win and some cheerful news on the medical front, coach David Piearcy is again expecting big things out of his squad in 1985.

"WE'RE REALLY looking to be competitive this season," Piearcy said. "We've been hurt by injuries, but we're getting all of our people back, so we're gonna' be OK. Our chief concern is in our line when we get them out there for good.

"Everybody came through in our first game, though."

Coming through with the big numbers in the opener with New Life was senior fullback Joe Wasson who piled up 160 yards and three touchdowns for the Eagles. Wasson was joined in the backfield by brother Josh Wasson for the first game, but the younger Wasson will move back to safety this week when freshman Keith Blake returns after a week's layoff because of injury.

Blake, the younger brother of Rockin' Robin Blake the boxer and lightweight title contender, is young and inexperienced, but he has no fear and shows good quickness.

"He's really developed well, he's going to be a good back," says Piearcy. "He's like his brother, he really likes to hit people."

ALSO RETURNING to the Eagle backfield in about four weeks will be Chipper Piearcy at tailback. Piearcy has had knee trouble dating back to last season, but has been given the go-ahead later this season.

"Our backfield was going to be our strength, it still might be if we can get Chipper back," coach Piearcy said.

Running the plays for Midland Baptist this season will be junior quarterback Eli Kuhlman, a big, strong signal-caller, and Piearcy said he is looking for ways to utilize his running ability more after the first game.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

While hyperventilating over 4-5A Friday

Midland fans have been hyperventilating since early August over the prospect of watching District 4-5A football, gobbling tickets at record rates. The waiting has almost ended.

Forget the past three weeks. Everyone is 0-0 again. The first three games mean absolutely nothing in terms of district championships and playoff glory. The next seven games mean everything.

Stub your toe now and the foundation of West Texas shakes. A seismograph at Texas Tech picks up the tremors every Friday night just after 10 p.m. Television has been called in to record one of the quakes on Oct. 10 for the first time in league history. Fans in record numbers will witness the other tremors.

THE ONLY thing the first three weeks of the football season did was to whet the appetites of what will start in earnest on four fronts Friday night. District 4-5A football is upon us and we may never be the same.

Early indications are that this 4-5A campaign will be the most competitive in years — maybe ever. If your hair is beginning to turn gray and you can't stand the thought of the prospect, stay away from high school football in 1985.

Not in this particular memory of 14 years has there been such anticipation over an opening night around the league. On nearly every front, major confrontations abound. Things will open on a nasty note and the heat will build before this season is over.

No one I've talked with is ready to give playoff berths to any two teams in the league. The heart-felt belief is that this war may take its toll on every team. Don't look for an undefeated team to escape loop play.

Just look at this Friday's games. Midland Lee hosts San Angelo in what could be a sellout. Both teams are figured to make a strong title run. Odessa Permian, ranked No. 1 in the state, travels to Abilene High, a team that owns a perfect 3-0 record and back-to-back shutouts. It's one of the few times that an Abilene High team is looking forward to playing Permian.

AND WHAT looked like a rubber stamp game for Midland High against Big Spring, has turned into the looks of a thriller. Big Spring came out of its cocoon last week with a 35-0 win over Lubbock Monterey, a team that scored 19 points against MHS in the season opener. And MHS is coming in after a tough loss to Lubbock Estacado.

While this is a mecca for West Texas football fans, these prospects have Lee coach Jack Tayrien and MHS boss Doug McCutchen reeling.

Tayrien put it best, "This thing is going to be a dad-gum dog fight. We could be headed for another four-way coin flip kind of deal."

Tayrien's Rebels will be facing a Bobcat team that remembers the pasting it took a year ago, costing San Angelo a playoff berth. San Angelo hasn't lost in Midland over the past three years and defeated Lee, 14-9, in 1983 at Memorial Stadium, the year that Lee went on to the state finals.

"I'm scared flat to death of San Angelo," said Tayrien. "We're still making too many mistakes and I can tell you that we will have to play a near flawless game to beat San Angelo. The Bobcats are good and they're after us. Coach (Jimmie) Keeling has promised to be prepared for us. I've heard that they even worked against the wishbone during spring training. We're going to have to play way over our heads if we are to beat them. We're going to have to get better this week — or lose.

"San Angelo feels like it can win in Midland. When they beat us in 1983, San Angelo got 14 points on our mistakes quick in the game and we're making the same kind of mistakes this year that we did in that game. We're bobbling too many punts and kickoffs."

AND McCUTCHEN isn't feeling too much better about his Bulldogs.

"Our kids are playing hard, but you can't win with the turnovers we've been having. In fact, we must've played a whale of a game against Estacado to be as close as we were with six turnovers," said McCutchen.

"I really don't understand the turnovers. We went through spring training with a minimum of that kind of thing. We had only one in our first game and we thought we had turned the corner in that area. Then we have 10 in the last two games. We can't win that way.

Young Bobby Nichols on the senior tour?

It seems almost criminal. Maybe the hint of a wrinkle around the eyes and mouth, but Bobby Nichols looks about like he did when he was an assistant pro at Midland Country Club fresh out out of Texas A&M back in the late 1950s.

That just served to strengthen the shock of his declaration, "I'll be eligible for the Seniors tour next year and I can't wait. Those guys are having so much fun...." and, he might have added, "making so much money."

It's also a little surprising since Nichols enjoys the security and prestige that most beginning Touring Professional Association golfers dream of. Nichols, as a former PGA champion, is exempt from qualifying for a tournament. If he feels the urge to play, he just enters and no one questions his right to be there.

If there was any gray in his hair, it wasn't visible out on the practice tee at Green Tree Country Club before Monday's benefit Pro-Am, so, despite the Seniors' tour announcement, the next disclosure also came as a shock.

"I've got three in college, one on a golf scholarship, two at the University of Florida and one at Southeast Louisiana."

NICHOLS LIVES in Naples Florida and plays out of nearby Fiddlesticks CC. Up the coast a ways, Billy Maxwell, another regular at the Odessa Pro-Am back in the good old days, has a club pro job.

"Like it? It's all right," but Nichols leaves the impression he wouldn't mind living in the West.

Nichols, however, is a native Kentuckian who was a promising football prospect back in high school He had caught the eye of the new Texas A&M coach, Bear Bryant.

An auto accident ended Bobby's football career, but Bryant awarded him a golf scholarship anyway.

Nichols, a football and basketball star at St. Xavier High in Louisville, was a passenger in a car that failed to negotiate a curve Sept. 3, 1952. He suffered a broken pelvis, back injuries, a brain concussion and internal injuries. He was paralyzed from the waist down and unconscious for 13 days and hospitalized for 96.

Basketball and football were ou , but once he regained the use of h legs, he resumed playing golf. It wa while he was winning a series of ju nior tournaments that Bryant mad his offer.

"AT THE time, Bear didn't knov anything about golf, although he' come over and watch us practice a A&M." Bobby recalls. "After he went to Alabama as coach, he took up the game and became very serious about it. In fact, we played together in a lot of celebrity tournaments over in the Alabama, Georgia, Florida area."

Nichols was wearing a Fiddlesticks sweater, but on the collar lapels of his sports shirt there was no mistaking the A&M insignia.

"I got the shirt from Jackie Sherrill. I told him I'd be able to wear it longer than he could, if he doesn't start winning some games," Bobby grinned.

After graduation from A&M, Nichols came to Midland as assistant pro and his start on the pro tour in 1960 was sponsored by members of the club, who put up $8,000. Within two years he had won the Ben Hogan Award for his courageous comeback from the accident that threatened his athletic career.

Nichols, however, had another brush with tragedy again. In 1975 at the Western Open, he was with Lee Trevino and Jerry Heard when lightning struck. Bobby was hospitalized from the effects of the bolt. Some say his game still isn't what it was before the close call.

Now on the verge of the Seniors Tour, Nichols admits the years have taken their toll on his game. "Let me put it this way, I can still jump as high as ever. I just can't stay up as long."

AREA RUMBLINGS: Andrews fell to 1-2 after a shocking 13-0 upset at the hands of Levelland in a game that was played Saturday after a storm canceled the game Friday night. The Mustangs recorded five penetrations on the afternoon, punching the ball inside the 10 on four occasions, but never crossed the goaline.

The Mustangs' Danny Neighbors continued to throw the ball effectively completing 14 of 26 for 203 yards, though his receivers dropped a few balls in the end zone. With a week off before opening District 2-4A play, Ronnie Elmore, Mike Moisant, Jimmy Barrera and Neighbors will all have time to nurse injuries and should be ready for Lamesa, Oct. 4...

The Tornadoes also take a week off before the district opener with Andrews, and head into the matchup at 3-0 after a solid 20-3 win over Seminole. Tailback Kenneth Williams built his season total to 426 yards rushing with a 223-yard evening. Danny Brackeen should be ready to return for the Andrews' game after missing last week with a deep thigh bruise, and fullback Greg Hogg should also return full strength...

Down in McCamey, free safety Vivien Garza came up with three big plays to account for a trio of touchdowns in the Badgers' 48-0 rout of Alpine. Garza picked off a pair of Alpine passes for touchdowns worth 30 and 35 yards, then grabbed a halfback pass from Adam Arana good for a 58-yard score. Quarterback Rob Adams continues to do a commendable job filling in for injured Nandy Zarate, completing 5-of-7 for 101 yards...

Greenwood continues to plow through its pre-district schedule, chalking up a 55-6 win over Presidio. The Rangers' string of shutouts ended at nine quarters, however. Coach Joe Longley got a good look at his kicking game and liked what he saw from junior Chad Cottrell. Cottrell was 7-of-7 in extra points and kicked field goals of 23 and 26 yards.

The Rangers will lose tackle Anthony Vega for the season because of a move-off and junior Hoyt Handley, a 225-pounder, will step in...

The Golden Cranes take their 3-0 mark to Alpine Friday with both offensive and defensive units working full throttle. Quarterback Abel Sena threw for three touchdown passes and 154 yards in the first half, while tailback Gerald Mitchell gained 118 yards, also in the first half...

In Rankin, the 2-1 Red Devils are gearing up for a showdown with Forsan, ranked No. 8 in one A poll. Coach Dwayne Turner has got his team on the comeback trail with two straight wins after a 26-0 shellacking on opening night.

Fullback Randy Fulton has broken out for TD runs of 65 and 58 yards while compiling 316 yards on the ground in three games. Fulton is hampered by a deep thigh bruise suffered in the 35-13 drubbing of Water Valley Friday, but may be back in time for the Forsan contest...

While upping its pre-district record to 2-1 with a 21-6 win over Ozona, Reagan County did not make the kind of progress coach Ronnie Reeger would've liked. Tailback James West moved the ball well finishing with 118 yards, but had trouble fumbling the ball.

The entire Owl squad had trouble with turnovers, losing four fumbles, two interceptions and having a punt blocked. Receiver Scott Lipsey could miss this week's game and quarterback Bobby Gunnels has been fighting a virus. The Owls will also miss tight end Marvin Davis who moved...

Mojo retains ranking in prep poll

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Odessa Permian in Class 5A and Munday in Class A once again were the top vote-getters in retaining their No. 1 rankings in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Permian received 24 of the 26 first place votes cast and Munday, the defending A state champion, got 25 first place votes from The AP's panel of Texas sports writers and sportscasters.

Tomball in 4A, Hempstead in 3A and Electra in 2A also maintained leads in their classifications.

Permian defeated Fort Worth Eastern Hills 41-7 and held a 258-204 point margin over the new No. 2-ranked team, Houston Yates.

Yates, third last week, moved ahead of Conroe, which lost to No. 4 Houston Aldine and dropped to No. 9.

Aldine jumped from sixth to fourth in the new listing and Temple, 2-1, dropped from eighth to 10th despite a 45-14 victory over Abilene Cooper.

WEST ORANGE Stark moved from ninth to seventh after a 38-6 victory over Texarkana High and Sugar Land Willowridge moved to eighth with a 26-0 shut out of LaMarque.

Tomball received 18 first place votes and a 248-234 margin over runnerup Denison in Class 4A.

Sixth-ranked Wichita Falls Hirschi dropped out of the rankings after a 48-6 loss to Denison and No. 8 Brownwood fell to No. 10 after a 7-0 loss to Class 5A Killeen.

Brownwood's loss kept veteran coach Gordon Wood from securing his 400th coaching victory.

Hempstead blasted Somerville 63-0 and easily held its 3A lead over No. 2 Navasota by a 249-223 point margin. The two schools from District 24-3A are headed for a showdown at Navasota Oct. 18.

Defending 3A state champion Medina Valley lost its second game of the season and dropped from No. 10 out of the poll. Cameron, which has outscored three opponents 83-7, moved into the No. 10 spot.

ELECTRA had an open date but retained its Class 2A No. 1 rank by a 255-212 margin over runnerup Hamlin. Alto was a close third with 209 points.

Agua Dulce earned the No. 9 ranking in the Class A poll with a 14-12 victory over Runge, which dropped from fourth to 10th. Flatonia, No. 10 last week, lost for the second time and fell from the rankings.

VOLLEYBALL

THE BRONCHOS showed they weren't going to be pushovers in the opening game of the match, tying the score at four and following with 10 unanswered points for a 14-4 lead. MHS managed only one point on four different serves before the Bronchos claimed the game, 15-5.

The final two games were as close and hard fought as the final score in each indicates.

In the second, MHS did manage to build a strong 12-5 lead, but the Bronchos never gave an inch, tying the game at 12 before the Bulldogs could put it away, 15-12.

The final game was close most of the way. The Bulldogs took a 3-0 lead but the Bronchos fought back to tie the game at three for the first of five times. At 8-8, MHS had momentum in its court, overcoming an 8-4 lead, but could only build a 10-8 margin before the Bronchos came storming back.

The Bronchos finally tied the game at 11-11 and MHS retied it at 12-12. However, two net hits and two OHS spikes were too much to overcome as the Bronchos finished the match with a 15-12 victory.

"THEY'VE GOT fire power," said Pittman. "They had four different hitters putting the ball away. They played good defense but were strong on offense also."

"We're trying to make both parts of our game strong," said Ephriam. "Our back court played aggressive but our front line went to sleep (near the end of the third game). It's why we held a tie score so long. We weren't aggressive enough."

Now, with a 0-3 start and 6-10 overall record, the Bulldogs have "anywhere to go but up," said Pittman. "I really think our abilty belies our record. We've had some really close matches and we're going to keep going at it, make it a tough district for the other teams to play in."

Pittman credited Amy Cummings and Amy Hubbard for playing a super game, especially Cummings, who "has never played the game before. She did an outstanding job spiking across the front row. I would say she hit about 95 percent of her kills. Amy Hubbard did a good job serving and setting."

If anything, things could get tougher for the Bulldogs before they get better. On Saturday, Midland High hosts perennial power San Angelo in a 2 p.m. contest at MHS GYM. The Bobcats are unbeaten at 3-0 after posting a three-game victory over previously unbeaten Abilene High, 15-8, 8-15, 15-2.

Midland Lee fell to Permian in another three game match, winning the first game 15-8, then losing the next two 15-3, 15-3 in the Permian gym. The Rebels are now 1-2 in district play, and 6-12 overall.

"We did everything wrong we possibly could," coach Janice Baulch said. "One thing that really killed us was we couldn't relay the ball, and if you can't relay the ball, you can't score."

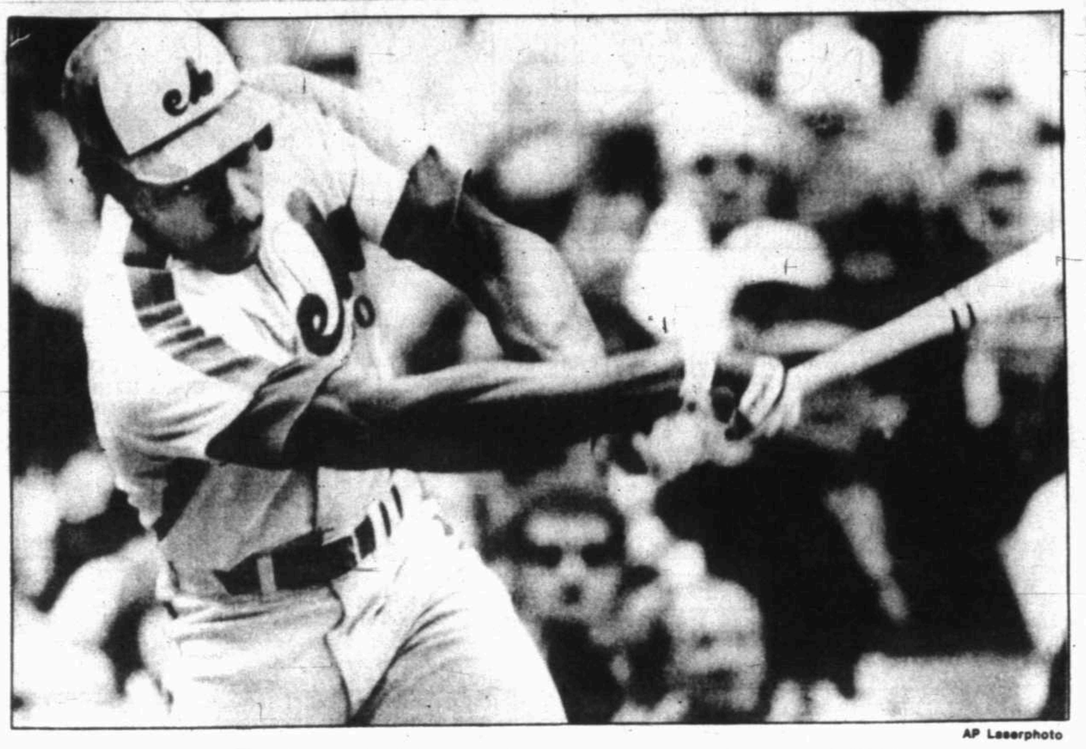
'Tired' Cardinals roll on, still hold 3-game edge



AP Laserphoto

Montreal's Andre Dawson reached the seats in Wrigley Field three times yesterday and tied a major league record with six RBI in one inning. The Expos won the slugfest, 17-15.

Maybe the St. Louis Cardinals are starting to get tired. But no one would know it by looking at the scoreboard.

"We weren't very sharp. We've played 27 games in a row and have still got five more games left," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said after a 5-4 victory Tuesday night over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cardinals withstood errors by shortstop Ozzie Smith and second baseman Tommy Herr on the first two balls of the game and did not allow a run, and then scored twice in the third when Pittsburgh center fielder R.J. Reynolds dropped a fly ball.

"Everybody's got to be the goat at least once in their lifetime," Reynolds said. "I didn't take my eye off it. I just closed my glove too soon."

"This was kind of a gift," Herzog added. "We didn't play good."

Despite the somewhat sloppy effort, the Cardinals held a firm grip on their three-game lead in the National League East over New York, which beat Philadelphia 7-1.

St. Louis, which has been making a habit of coming from behind recently, led the entire way in winning its fifth straight and 12th in 13 games.

Terry Pendleton singled home two runs in the first inning, and Reynolds' error let the Cardinals go ahead 4-1.

After the Pirates scored twice in the fourth on doubles by Tony Pena and Bill Almon around a single by Sammy Khalifa, St. Louis made it 5-3 in the fifth when Vince Coleman snapped a 1-for-18 slump with an RBI single.

"We've been doing what we have to to win ballgames lately," said winning pitcher Rickey Horton, 3-2, who made his second start of the season.

Lee Tunnell, 4-10, took the loss and lasted just 3 2-3 innings.

National League

Mets 7, Phillies 1

Sid Fernandez pitched a two-hitter and Keith Hernandez set a major-league record with his 23rd game-winning RBI of the season.

Fernandez, 8-9, struck out nine. Among pitchers who have worked at least 145 innings, Fernandez leads the majors with an average of just 5.73 hits allowed per nine innings and 9.82 strikeouts.

The first hit Fernandez gave up was an infield single to Rick Schu, which loaded the bases with two outs in the second inning. Fernandez got out of trouble by striking out losing pitcher Dave Rucker, 3-2.

Luis Aguayo homered in the eighth inning for Philadelphia's other hit.

Padres 4, Giants 3

Kurt Bevacqua's two-run homer capped a four-run fourth inning, while Dave Dravecky won his fourth game in four decisions against San Francisco this season.

Steve Garvey led off the San Diego fourth with a single and later scored on a single by Terry Kennedy. After Kevin McReynolds tripled, Bevacqua hit his third homer of the season.

Expos 17, Cubs 15

Andre Dawson hit three homers and tied a team record by driving in eight runs as Montreal raced to a 15-2 lead in the sixth inning and then hung on in Chicago.

Dawson took advantage of the wind blowing out at Wrigley Field. Tim Wallach and Sal Butera also homered for the Expos, while Gary Matthews, Jody Davis and Billy Hatcher connected for the Cubs.

Dawson hit a pair of three-run homers during a 12-run explosion in record last accomplished by Jim Ray Hart of San Francisco on July 8, 1970, and became the the eighth major-leaguer to drive in six runs in an inning.

'It's no big deal. It was all in a day's work," said Dawson, who has seven homers in his last five games.

Dawson, who also hit two homers in an inning on July 30, 1978, joined Willie McCovey as the only major-leaguers to accomplish the feat twice.

The Expos finished with 17 hits, while the Cubs got 20.

Bryn Smith, 17-5, was the winner for the Expos, working six innings. The Cubs scored one run in the sixth, three in the seventh, four in the eighth and five in the ninth to make the game close before Jeff Reardon got the final out for his 36th save.

Dodgers 7, Astros 2

Bob Welch pitched a six-hitter and drove in two runs to help Los Angeles maintain its six-game lead in the NL West over Cincinnati.

The Dodgers reduced their magic number to seven while mathematically eliminating Houston.

Welch, 12-4, held the Astros hitless until the fifth inning. He delivered a two-run single that capped a four-run seventh.

Mike Marshall had four hits for Los Angeles. He had an RBI single in the first inning as the Dodgers took a 2-0 lead against Bob Knepper, 15-11.

Reds 7, Braves 5

Rookie Tom Browning won his 10th straight game and raised his record to 19-9. No rookie has won 20 games since Bob Grim went 20-9 for the New York Yankees in 1953.

Browning became the first Cincinnati rookie to win 19 games since Harry Gaspar in 1909. Browning pitched 6 1-3 innings and allowed eight hits before Ted Power got the final six outs for his 24th save.

Eddie Milner's two-run homer keyed a four-run burst in the second inning that made it 5-1 against Pascual Perez, 1-12.

Mariners are a Royal thorn in pennant duel with Angels

Associated Press

If the Kansas City Royals fail to repeat as American League West champions, their lost crown probably could be traced to the Seattle Kingdome.

The fifth-place Mariners, coming off four straight losses to last-place Texas, beat Kansas City for the 10th straight time this season Tuesday night. The 5-2 defeat kept the Royals from taking first place from the California Angels, who fell 8-1 to the Chicago White Sox but remain a half-game in front.

"It's not a jinx, it's just been good pitching on their side," Royals Manager Dick Howser said after Mike Moore held Kansas City to seven hits. "We've scored 21 runs in 11 games. They've just shut us down."

"I don't have the answers about the streak," Mariners Manager Chuck Cottier said. "I have no idea why. If we could put it in a bottle, we'd all make a lot of money."

"Moore pitched a great game," Howser said. "He's a tough pitcher.

Eight days before, Moore beat the Royals 5-1 with a complete-game five-hitter.

"Mostly, I just go right at them," Moore said. "Against a guy like (George) Brett, you have to go after him with your best stuff and hope that he just gets a single or two."

Brett was 1-for-4 in the game — a single.

Phil Bradley hit two homers for the Mariners, including a three-run shot off reliever Dan Quisenberry with one out in the bottom of the eighth inning to break a 2-2 tie.

Seattle began their winning rally when loser Mark Gubicza, 13-9, walked Spike Owen and pinch-hitter Ken Phelps singled.

Quisenberry relieved Gubicza and Bradley fouled off a squeeze-bunt attempt before hitting the next pitch into the left-field stands for the game winner and his 23rd homer of the season.

Bradley's first homer of the game tied the score 2-2 in the bottom of the sixth.

White Sox 8, Angels 1

Carlton Fisk drove in three runs, two of them with a homer, and Tom Seaver won his 302nd game as Chicago defeated first-place California.

Fisk's homer in the fifth, his 36th of the season overall and 32nd as a catcher, equaled Lance Parrish's record for American League catchers set in 1982. Fisk later doubled home a run to give him 100 RBIs for the season.

"A hundred RBIs is a measure of production, as opposed to hits and average," said Fisk, whose only previous 100-plus RBI season came in 1977. "RBIs and runs scored are the two most important statistics in baseball."

Seaver, 14-11, went seven innings, losing his bid for a shutout when Brian Downing singled in a run in the sixth.

Blue Jays 6, Red Sox 2

Dennis Lamp, continuing to rebound from his disappointing season in 1984, improved his record to 11-0 with 4 2-3 innings of shutout relief as Toronto moved closer to the AL East pennant.

Lamp relieved rookie left-hander Steve Davis with the score tied 2-2 and the bases loaded in the fourth, but he got Jackie Gutierrez to ground into a double play to end the threat. Lamp, who gave up three hits, gave way to Bill Caudill in the ninth.

"My preference is to pitch a lot, but last year was my fault," said Lamp, who was 8-8 and pitched only 85 innings in 1984. "I was determined to put last year behind me and have a good season this year."

Toronto snapped the 2-2 tie in the fourth on singles by Lou Thornton and Damaso Garcia, and Red Sox first baseman Bill Buckner's throwing error and a run-scoring groundout by Cliff Johnson. The Blue Jays added two insurance runs in the eighth on Jesse Barfield's 26th homer and an RBI double by Garcia.

American League

Tigers 9, Yankees 1

Niekro failed in his third bid to win his 300th game, getting bombed for eight runs in four innings as Detroit routed New York.

"It seems like they were on every pitch I threw," said Niekro, 15-12, who is 0-4 against Detroit this season. "And the harder I threw, the harder they hit it."

John Grubb hit a three-run homer over the center-field fence in the first inning to get the Tigers started, then added a two-run double in the third. Niekro was finally replaced in the fifth after Lance Parrish hit a two-run homer.

"I basically stunk the pitcher's mound up," Niekro said. "It was a terrible exhibition of pitching."

Frank Tanana, 10-14, pitched a five-hitter for seven innings for the victory. Randy O'Neal gave up the Yankees' only run in the eighth on Don Mattingly's 30th homer, and Lou Whitaker homered in the ninth to establish a club record for second basemen with 21.

Brewers 10, Orioles 6

Milwaukee scored five runs in the fourth inning and four more in the fifth to subdue Baltimore.

The Brewers reached five Baltimore pitchers for 14 hits, including a homer by Paul Householder, Jim Gantner's two-run triple and Cecil Cooper's two-run double.

Scott McGregor, 13-13, who lost to the Brewers for the first time since May 1980, was relieved in the fourth after giving up three runs without retiring a batter in the inning.

Fred Lynn and Floyd Rayford homered for the Orioles. Bill Wegman pitched five innings to improve his record to 2-0.

Rangers 5, Twins 0

Texas won for the fifth straight time, its longest winning streak of the season, as Pete O'Brien drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly.

Matt Williams, 2-0, allowed only two hits in seven innings for the victory, while Rich Sufhoff pitched the last two innings, allowing one hit to complete the three-hitter.

Wayne Tolleson singled in the bottom of the first inning and came home on O'Brien's 400-foot shot into the center-field seats. He became the first left-handed hitter to hit 20 homers in a season for the Rangers.

A's 10, Indians 8

Oakland handed Cleveland its sixth straight defeat, breaking an 8-8 tie in the seventh inning on pinch-hitter Mike Heath's squeeze bunt that resulted in two runs.

Jose Canseco started the inning with a single, his fourth hit of the game, and took third on Mickey Tettleton's single off Vern Ruhle, 2-10. Heath's perfect bunt was fielded by third baseman Brook Jacoby, who threw the ball past first base down the right-field line, allowing Tettleton to score behind Canseco.

Earlier, the Indians had taken an 8-3 lead with the help of Joe Carter's 15th homer and Jacoby's 19th — both two-run shots. Carter, who had four hits, and Julio Franco each hit two-run doubles.

Tettleton had three RBIs with a pair of doubles for the A's.

Opening lead: King of ◇.

How many trump tricks would you expect West to take against a contract of two spades? One? Perhaps two? Would you believe that, when this hand was played in a tournament a while back, West scored three trump tricks?

After North's takeout double South elected to bid his spades first so that, if the opponents competed, he would be able to get both suits in by bidding hearts next. Unfortunately for the best-laid plans, that opportunity never presented itself. North made an off-beat raise to two spades and South ended up playing in his side's second-best combined holding.

West led the king of diamonds and, in response to East's signal with the nine, continued with a low diamond to the ace. East shifted to a low heart and declarer allowed West's ten to win. West continued with the king of hearts to the ace.

Entries to declarer's hand were at a premium. Since he desperately wanted to take the club finesse, declarer decided that he would try to force an entry to his hand by leading the jack of trumps for dummy. West won the king and played another diamond. Since ruffing low would again leave him without an entry to his hand, declarer elected to ruff with the table's ace.

Now declarer led dummy's remaining trump and, after taking all that trouble to turn the queen of spades into an entry, he chose to finesse the nine. West won the ten and led a fourth diamond. East ruffed with the eight and declarer at last reached his hand by overruffing with the queen. In the process, though, West's seven of trumps had been promoted to a winner.

The club finesse won, but that was little consolation to declarer. He had to lose three trump tricks, two diamonds and a heart for down one, on a hand where most North-South pairs were making a part-score in hearts.

Cosby 'excited, embarrassed' by honor

Cosby

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Comedian Bill Cosby called it embarrassing but wonderful that the town where he grew up decided to honor him after a benefit concert for a voting rights fund.

Mayor W. Wilson Goode and the Rev. Jesse Jackson saluted Cosby at the Citizenship Education Fund benefit Tuesday night at the Academy of Music. The fund is a national, non-partisan voter education and registration group.

Goode praised Cosby as "the person who has done more in his lifetime to enhance the image of the city than any other single person I know."

He also called the comedian "an absolutely perfect role model for our society."

Jackson praised Cosby for his achievements and for his contributions to society. "Many people make money but don't make sense. Bill combines the best qualities in all of us," he said.

Cosby grew up in a Philadelphia housing project and graduated from Temple University. His comedy on NBC-TV won three Emmys Sunday, including the award for best comedy show. Cosby shunned the ceremony, saying he did not believe in competition between performers.

Vincent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Jan-Michael Vincent, charged with punching a woman in the face and with two counts of probation violation, is "adamantly protesting" the latest accusations, his lawyer says.

The star of TV's "Airwolf" series was charged Tuesday with felony battery for allegedly punching a woman, breaking her nose and splitting her lip Sept. 6 outside his Malibu home, district attorney spokesman Al Albergate said.

Vincent, 41, arranged to surrender today, prosecutors said.

Chenoa Lee Ellis, 34, a friend of the actor's, said she was attacked by Vincent for causing trouble between him and his girlfriend, Albergate said. The nature of the dispute was not disclosed.

The actor is on probation on charges of disturbing the peace by fighting at a party and for drunken driving.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — So what is an Englishman doing collecting rent from an Australian on New York Avenue?

Winning, that's what.

The cutthroat world of international Monopoly is no kids' game.

Jason Bunn, 25, of Leeds, England, dethroned two-time world champion Greg Jacobs of Australia on Tuesday with a devastating demand for $700 rent when the man from Down Under landed on New York Avenue with Bunn's luxury hotel.

Jacobs, heavily mortgaged to pay for his own buying sprees in the real-estate trading game, was a little short.

Earlier, the two had knocked out finalists from Austria, Japan and Peru. A lot earlier, America's hope, Jim Forbes of Winter Haven, Fla., went down to defeat.

"I like games. I like competition, really intense," said Bunn, whose victory earned him a Monopoly game containing $15,140 in real money — exactly the amount of funny money contained in a regulation Monopoly set.

On hand was Esther Darrow, widow of Charles Darrow, who invented the game 50 years ago in the midst of the Depression and named the streets on the board for the thoroughfares of Atlantic City, where he had spent happy times.

Bunn, a medical company engineer who has been playing Monopoly since he was 7, downed Jacobs in 1¾ hours of play at the Claridge Hotel and Casino.

The competition, which drew players from 20 countries, began with local tournments sponsored by the companies that sell Monopoly in 32 countries, said tournament director Chris Campbell.

HONOLULU (AP) — Actor Sylvester Stallone has joined a group of investors planning to build homes on a site on Kauai Island, but hasn't decided what to do with another parcel he bought last year, his attorney says.

"It's really a very beautiful site," said John Ferry, the real estate agent who brokered the latest deal, for building eight homes on an 8-acre site on Kauai's north shore. "He (Stallone) really likes it here."

Last year, the 39-year-old star of the "Rocky" and "Rambo" films bought five acres on Kauai's north shore. No decision has been made about development of that parcel, said Jake Bloom, Stallone's Los Angeles attorney.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Ted Knight, who played Ted Baxter on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," should be released Thursday from the hospital where he had abdominal surgery last week, a spokesman says.

Knight, 61, star of television's "Too Close For Comfort," underwent "surgery to remove a blockage," spokesman Henry Ballinger said Tuesday.

Production of Knight's current, syndicated show was interrupted, and filming would resume Oct. 14, Ballinger said. The program is being renamed "The Ted Knight Show," he said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The disputed property in a palimony case against pianist Liberace by a former live-in companion amount to a couple of robes and a bathing suit, the entertainer's lawyer said.

Superior Court Judge Norman Epstein ruled Tuesday that there were enough issues for dancer Scott Thorson, 25, to get his day in court on an amended suit filed after his original $113 million claim for support was thrown out in 1983.

Epstein said there were grounds for a hearing on allegations that Liberace refused to turn over some of Thorson's personal property that was inside a plush Las Vegas, Nev., home.

Senator says conservation top issue in TRC race

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

Texas State Senator, John Sharp, D-Victoria, announced candidate for the Texas Railroad Commission was in Midland, Tuesday, on the campaign trail. He said the top issues in the campaign will be oil and gas conservation, environmental protection and transportation safety.

Sharp, who is completing a four-year term in the State Senate, will file for the place now held by Commissioner Buddy Temple, who has said he will not run for re-election in 1986.

Said the South Texas real estate broker, whose legislative district includes much of the production in the Austin Chalk trend: "Conservation of our oil and gas resources through sound regulatory policies is one of the most important functions of the Railroad Commission. The Commission must develop short and long-range policies that ensure we receive the most production over the longest possible period of time."

He said such policies were important not only to the Texas economy but also to world stability, and that while the Commission could not control oil and gas prices it could control rates. "I believe the agency should set the lowest possible gas rate possible without interrupting supplies," he added.

Sharp said the one thing he would like to see changed if he became Railroad Commissioner was the administrative procedures which forbid the commissioners under penalty of a felony to talk to each other, constituents or the industry on matters before the Commission.

"These are not appointed commissioners," he explained. "These are elected officals and they should be allowed to talk to whomever they please in the state that can shed light on an issue." Addressing the possibility of the Commission being exposed to undue political pressure, he said being railroad commissioner was a political post and should be subjected to the political process, which includes getting input from the constituents. Sharp said that the administrative procedue had only been in effect for the past five years.

On the "white oil" issue, Sharp said it was unfortunate that a multi-million dollar industry had been allowed to develop and a decision had not been made sooner on the process which uses refrigeration units to liquefy natural gas in order for some wells to be classified as oil wells. "The loss of this industry will prove a serious economic burden to the panhandle."

Sharp said that despite threats to place additional taxes on the oil industry in the event state revenues decline too far as a result of slipping oil prices, he didn't think on the industry would be placed on the industry at a state level.

"We hear rumbles about getting a severance tax comprable to Louisiana's 12 percent, but with property tax, severance tax and other taxes on the Texas oil industry it already pays more in taxes than Louisiana," he said.

He said that removal of intangible drilling costs as an incentive to independent operators may be the kick that could do independents in.

Sharp said he understood first-hand the economics of independent oil operations. "I had to divest myself of all oil and gas holdings when I announced for the Railroad Commission," he said. "I only had one well which was costing me $114 every month. I had to pay a business partner $3,500 to take it off my hands."

Official says U.S. not planning intervention

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige says the United States does not plan massive intervention to drive the value of the dollar down, but that a dollar decline of 25 percent is needed to make the U.S. competitive once again in world markets.

Baldrige on Tuesday defended the administration's latest moves to improve the country's disastrous trading performance, saying the effort was superior to any protectionist plans being considered by Congress.

Those moves included an agreement with major U.S. trading partners to work in a concerted effort to lower the value of the dollar, with the United States embracing a greater need to intervene — or sell dollars — in currency markets.

The administration has adamantly opposed most efforts in the past to intervene, saying the value of the dollar should be established by the open market.

Baldrige confirmed that the administration has modified its position on intervention from the previous policy of buying or selling dollars only to calm disorderly markets. But he added, "I don't think we would get into massive intervention."

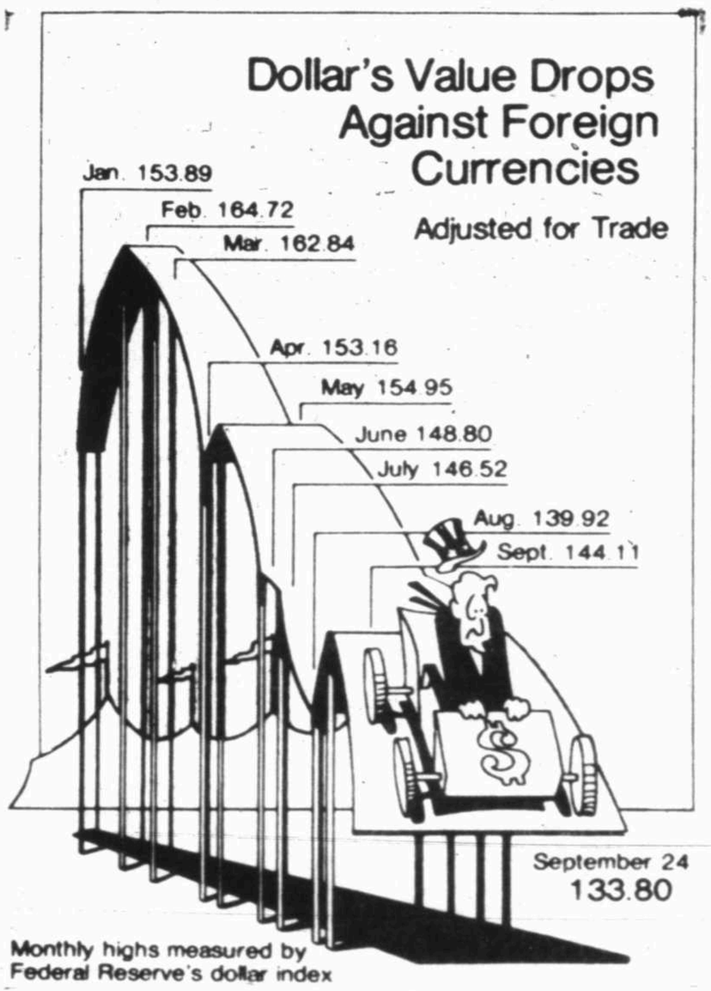
The dollar recovered from the largest single-day plunge in 12 years Tuesday, and then held steady as jittery currency-exchange markets waited for further signs that the United States is willing to sell off more dollars to improve the balance of international trade.

After dropping 4.29 percent Monday against a trade-weighted basket of currencies, the dollar inched up 0.4 percent Tuesday, according to U.S. Federal Reserve calculations. Late Tuesday in New York the dollar was quoted at 2.72 German marks, up 0.7 percent from Monday, while yen were offered at 229 to the dollar, up 1.3 percent from Monday.

Traders and analysts said that the Western industrial nations' new effort to lower the value of the dollar, announced Sunday, was now reaching a critical phase. They said that while the governments gained an immediate advantage in the wide publicity surrounding the announcement, they would need further proof of the nations' resolve if the dollar is to continue its decline.

The nations believe that a sustained decline in the dollar would make imports into the United States more expensive and ease the bulging U.S. trade deficit, thus reducing protectionist pressures in Congress.

Traders and analysts said Tuesday's stabilizing was probably a favorable development, since too rapid a fall would disrupt currency markets and harm economies.



Turnaround expected for Elcor Corp.

MIDLAND (SWN) — Roy E. Campbell, president of Elcor Corp., said, "We expect to be profitable in our first quarter ending September 30, 1985, and in our fiscal year ending June 30, 1986.

"This represents a substantial turnaround from last year when the company lost $1.9 million in the first quarter and $13.7 million for the fiscal year," he said.

"Elcor's improving outlook is a result of the successful introduction of new products, better operating performance, and the closing of two unprofitable operations at the end of fiscal 1985.

"As the year progresses, we expect earnings will further benefit from increasing sales of several new products."

Campbell announced that Elcor's Directors declared a $.09 per share quarterly cash dividend payable Nov. 13, 1985, to shareholders of record Oct. 11, 1985.

Elcor manufactures roofing products and industrial products and engineers and constructs modular facilities for the chemical, petrochemical, refinery and natural gas processing industries.

Each of Elcor's principal operating subsidiaries is the leader or one of the leaders within its particular market. Its common stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

The company is located at 2100 Wilco Building in Midland.

Pickens gets advance for autobiography

AMARILLO (AP) — Oilman and corporate takeover tycoon T. Boone Pickens Jr. will receive an advance of $1.5 million for an autobiography to be published in 1987, the Amarillo Globe-News reported today.

After several meetings in New York this month, the president and founder of Mesa Petroleum Co. signed a contract Monday night with Houghton Mifflin Co. that also guarantees royalties, the newspaper said.

The Amarillo resident had been meeting this month with other publishers when Houghton Mifflin approached him, said Carolyn Amussen, a spokeswoman for the Boston-based publishing company.

Pickens couldn't be reached for comment but a Mesa spokesman confirmed that a contract had been signed.

In addition to tracing Pickens' early childhood in Oklahoma, his high school days in Amarillo and his rise to fame as president of the second largest independent oil company in the nation, the book is expected to detail Pickens' philosophies on corporate restructuring, Amussen said.

T. Boone Pickens

Pickens will work with Joseph Nocera, a senior editor of Texas Monthly magazine, to write the book, the newspaper reported.

Nocera has written seveal articles on Pickens in the past inluding a Nov. 1982 in-depth piece on Pickens' initial attmpts to wrest control of major oil companies from their management.

Pickens' company has walked away with pre-tax gains of about $978 million and investments in takeover attempts of Supron Cities Service, General American Oil, Superior Oil, Gulf Oil and Phillips.

Although reviled by some people as a "corportae raider" whose only interest is profit, Pickens also has been lauded as a major force in compelling oil companies to operate more efficiently. His takeover attempts have resulted in stock profits of $15 billion for 857,000 stock holders, he has said.

Pickens, one of Amarillo's most famous citizens, often has been in the national limelight since Mesa first began making acquisition attempts in the early 1980s. Articles on Pickens have appeared in the Wall Street Journal, the Los Angeles Times and New York Times as well as Buiness Week and Time.

Attorney says Getty never okayed merger

HOUSTON (AP) — Getty Oil Co. trustees did not accept a tender offer from Pennzoil Co. but approved a price of $110 a share for their company's stock strictly as a "basis for negotiation," an attorney testified.

"Everybody believed a better price was merited than the $100 (a share) Pennzoil was offering," Patricia Vlahakis, an attorney for the J. Paul Getty Museum, said in a videotape shown Tuesday in state district court Tuesday.

The videotaped statements by Ms. Vlahakis, who works for the New York firm of Wachtel, Lipton, Rosen & Katz, were presented during the 13th week of testimony in Pennzoil's $15 billion lawsuit against Texaco Inc.

Last year, Texaco acquired Getty's outstanding stock for $10.1 billion — or $125 a share — in the second largest merger in U.S. corporate history.

Pennzoil attorneys allege that when Texaco moved to acquire Getty Oil, it forced Getty to break a previous agreement to merge with Pennzoil. But Texaco claims Pennzoil and Getty never had a definitive agreement for their merger.

Pennzoil announced on Dec. 27, 1983 its $100-a-share tender offer for 20 percent of Getty Oil's stock.

Justice blocks restart of Three Mile Island

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court justice Tuesday temporarily blocked Wednesday's scheduled restart of a nuclear reactor at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania, site of the nation's worst commercial nuclear plant accident in 1979.

Justice William J. Brennan postponed the restart until he fully studies an emergency request from a citizens' group that said it is too risky for operations at the plant to resume.

Brennan gave the company that runs the plant until mid-day Friday to respond to the group's claims.

The citizens' organization, Three Mile Island Alert, told Brennan the restart of the plant's Unit 1 reactor now will mean "residents who live in the TMI vicinity will suffer irreprable psychological damage and risk irreparable physical harm."

Howard Johnson Co. sold to Marriott Corp.

BOSTON (AP) — Howard Johnson Co., the nationwide chain of orange-roofed restaurants and motels, was sold Tuesday to Marriott Corp. and Prime Motor Inns for $300 million, but it could be years before travelers see any changes in the 60-year-old roadside institution nicknamed HoJo's.

The company, which once dominated the eat-and-sleep business along the country's highways, has been losing money since 1980. Its owner, the Imperial Group of London, has been looking for a buyer for more than a year.

General Foods receives unsolicited offer

NEW YORK (AP) — General Foods Corp., which has been the target of takeover rumors for months, said Tuesday it has received an unsolicited offer to negotiate the sale of the company. It did not identify the suitor.

The Rye Brook, N.Y.-based company said it received a proposal over the telephone to negotiate for the purchase of its outstanding shares at a premium over current market value.

General Food's stock, whose trading was halted for about 1½ hours pending its announcement, soared $16.62½ a share to close at $101.50 in composite New York Stock Exchange trading.

Unusual scene result of Chrysler, UAW talks

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — The United Auto Workers, upset about Chrysler Corp. subcontracting parts work, brought engineers, designers, accountants, blue-collar workers and skilled tradesmen for a protest at the bargaining table.

The unusual session Tuesday came as the UAW and the No. 3 U.S. carmaker try to reach a new national contract before the current one expires Oct. 15.

BUSINESS SCENE

Seniors may flock to skies with new low-fare flights

By SUSAN LINDSAY
Business/Oil Writer

Midland senior citizens, 65 years or older, may soon take to the airways in "flocks" for flings and visits to grandchildren, as SOUTHWEST AIRLINES has announced a new, super-low fare of $25 one-way to any city served by the airline.

The senior citizens program is valid for all travel between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, through November 15.

To qualify, senior citizens simply make reservations in the normal fashion at the ticket counter or through a travel agent. Senior citizens may travel, using the specially-priced tickets, as often as they like until November 15. Identification with proof of age will be requested at time of travel.

One of Texas' long-time largest industries, the MOBILE HOMES business is still strong, but slipping.

Enough mobile homes were sold from January to May to stretch from San Antonio to Corpus Christi, but that number is down from the previous year's sales.

Texas dealers sold 12,316 mobile homes, down 23 percent from January to May 1984. Sales helped add $6.9 million in manufactured-housing sales tax to the state's coffers.

Congradulations are in order for Olin and Elizabeth Horne, owners of the MIDESSA KOA. The KOA has recieved an award of excellence for 1985 by the Billings, Montana-based company.

To attain "excellent" status a KOA campground must pass two stringent quality control inspections.

Art Peterson, KOA President, said this is the company's highest award. "It reflects pride of ownership and the hard work it takes to provide quality camping facilities which exceed the rigid standards KOA sets for all campgrounds," he said.

CASTLE GAP JEWELRY CO. will have a ribbon cutting and open house for its second Midland store, located in the Courtyard at Midland Park, at 2 p.m. Friday.

The store carries an extensive collection of diamonds and gold, plus a selection of Indian homemade silver, turquoise jewelry, Concho belts and Navaho rugs.

The store is also located at 1028 Andrews Highway. In addition to the two Midland locations, they have two stores in Dallas.

Another business expanding in Midland is THOMPSON'S GIFTS AND FLOWERS at No. 6 ClayDesta.

The store, which opened September 1, offers fresh and silk flowers, fruit baskets and other gifts. The store has another location at 515 W. Texas. Peggy Thompson is owner.

Some food for thought: PIZZA INN, 3316 W. Illinois is utilizing its billboad to humorously counter the competition.

The message on the sign reads: Help Stamp Out Square Meals.

Campus activism explodes, apartheid protester says

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A student leader says eight-day jail terms given her and other anti-apartheid protesters hastened the State University of New York's divestment of stock in South Africa-related companies by demonstrating "the absolute sincerity of our actions."

SUNY trustees voted 9-4 Tuesday to sell $11.5 million worth of stock in 13 companies that do business with South Africa.

Jane McAlevey, 20, president of the 200,000-member Student Association of the State University of New York, said that without the jail term she completed Friday, the victory might not have been possible.

In April, when trustees rejected a student demand for divestment, Ms. McAlevey and 25 other students staged an 11-hour sit-in in the SUNY business office to protest the action by the nation's largest university system.

The students contend the investments are unjustified because they aid a government that is oppressing the nation's black majority through its system of racial separation known as apartheid.

The protesters were convicted of minor charges. Ms. McAlevey and three others chose eight days in jail rather than pay fines of $250 each.

On Tuesday, the trustees changed their position, saying the investments might lose money because of racial unrest in South Africa.

Fifty-four colleges and universities, 31 cities and nine states have passed some form of divestment resolution as protests against the South African government have increased in recent years.

"I think the jail terms helped win divestment because they kept the issue alive by getting us publicity," Ms. McAlevey said Tuesday.

"The jail terms confirmed to the trustees the absolute sincerity of our actions and really added to the pressure on them. There's no question in my mind that the student actions hastened our victory."

But she said going to jail was not something to do just for publicity. "I wouldn't want to do it again, but I might have to," Ms. McAlevey said.

She said her jailing and the trustee's change of stand Tuesday were sign of a reawakened American student protest movement.

Apartheid protester Jane McAlevey, president of the Student Association of the State University of New York, began the school year in a jail cell.

"Protests will explode on campuses around the country this year," she predicted. "The South Africa issue is the straw that broke the camel's back and is launching student activism again on a lot of issues."

With their victory on SUNY divestment, Ms. McAlevey said students will tackle the more ambitious task of winning state legislative approval of a bill to cut state government ties with companies doing business in South Africa.

About 250 students marched on the state Capitol after the SUNY board vote Tuesday and staged a rally to launch the new campaign.

In May, the Democratic-controlled state Assembly passed a bill calling for divestment, including about $6.7 billion in investments by two pension funds. The measure has been blocked by the Republican-controlled Senate.

Miller, OMB nominee, enters clash on minority-hiring plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., is threatening to hold up a Senate vote on the nomination of James C. Miller III to be budget director in a dispute over a controversial Reagan administration proposal to do away with minority hiring goals for government contractors.

Eagleton, senior Democrat on the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, told Miller he was unsatisfied with the nominee's refusal to take a stand on the Justice Department proposal.

The clash between Miller and Eagleton on Tuesday was the only hitch to the expected confirmation of the conservative economist Reagan named to succeed David A. Stockman as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

"This (proposed) executive order is in part generated by OMB. It is working its way through the process. This committee has the right and responsibility to know what your thinking is on this order," Eagleton said.

In addition to preparing the president's annual budget, the OMB has responsibility to review all rules and regulations issued by federal agencies.

Eagleton said he would withhold a decision on whether to try to formally delay the nomination to await a written explanation from Miller on what his agency may do about the affirmative action proposal.

Eagleton could delay the vote but probably will not seek to block it, according to Eagleton aide John Austin.

Miller, 43, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission since 1981, has wide support among both Democrats and Republicans for the post, congressional leaders said.

James C. Miller III

Led by Attorney General Edwin Meese III and asistant attorney general William Bradford Reynolds, the Justice Department's civil rights chief, various elements in the administation have been pushing for a major overhaul of a 20-year-old presidential executive order that gave the Labor Department authority to impose numerical minority hiring goals on businesses holding government contracts.

Eagleton deplored the proposed revision, claiming it could thwart civil rights progress.

NTSB probes rising rate of air incidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The near-collision of an Eastern jetliner and a private helicopter at Washington's National Airport highlights a growing concern among aviation safety experts over a rising number of hazardous incidents at busy airports.

Within hours of the incident Tuesday, investigators for the National Transportation Safety Board were making arrangements to impound tapes of conversations between the airport tower and both the jetliner and the helicopter to determine what happened.

"We're very concerend with the problems of runway incursions," NTSB spokesman Ira Furman said. The board last summer began a special inquiry into such incidents after receiving reports of more than a dozen cases in which pilots had to take action to avert a possible collision on an airport runway.

The Federal Aviation Administration also has acknowledged that such problems appear to be more numerous and troubling this year — a year in which the aviation industry also is going through an alarming number of airplane crashes that have claimed more than 1,500 lives worldwide.

Furman said investigators would examine both the cockpit voice recorder aboard Eastern Flight 1500 — the 5 p.m. shuttle between National and New York's LaGuardia Airport — and the tapes of radio communications between the airport tower and the Boeing 727 and a helicopter which was said to have crossed in front of the jetliner.

The most harrowing incursion incident this year involved two Northwest Airlines DC-10s that averted a collision by an estimated 50 feet last March in Minneapolis when one plane was given instructions to take off and another was told it could proceed across the same runway.

A similar incident involving a commuter aircraft and a private plane occurred four months later at the same airport. Last May, the pilot of a Lufthansa Airlines DC-10 aborted a takeoff at Philadelphia after noticing a Republic Airlines DC-9 crossing the same runway.

In late July, FAA Administrator Donald Engen issued a directive to controllers to pay more attention to scanning the runways, citing a one-third increase in hazardous incidents at airports during the first six months of the year. He said there had been 54 such incidents during those months, compared to 41 during the first six months of 1984.

FAA spokesman Stephen Hayes emphasized that the incident Tuesday at National did not appear to involve an error on the part of controllers.

He said the helicopter, which was departing from a general aviation area of the airport west of the main north-south runway, was directed to depart toward the northwest, which would have taken it away from the runway being used by the Eastern plane. Instead, the helicopter went in an easterly direction toward the runway being used by the Boeing 727.

Copter, jetliner avoid collision near Potomac

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators are listening to cockpit and air-traffic control tapes as they try to determine why a crowded Eastern Airlines jetliner had to abort takeoff to avoid a helicopter, skidding to a safe stop just shy of the Potomac River.

Eastern's 5 p.m. flight from National Airport to New York, a Boeing 727 with 175 passengers and a crew of seven, came to rest on ground that had been a river inlet before being filled in only last year. The plane stopped about 130 feet from the river on a runway safety extension.

One person sustained minor injuries, and neither aircraft was believed damaged in the Tuesday incident.

"A helicopter crossed in front of him," Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Bob Buckhorn said of the jetliner. "The captain aborted the takeoff."

"The (airline) pilot was just about at top speed," witness Andy Sawicki said. "I thought he was going into the water. He zig-zagged when he left the runway. I guess he was trying to stay on land as long as he could."

Buckhorn said the near-collision came when Eastern's Flight 1500 made its takeoff roll and a Bell Jet Ranger helicopter lifted off from the airport's general aviation area west of the main north-south runway 36.

The helicopter pilot was cleared for departure to the northwest, heading away from runway 36, but instead went east and into the path of the jetliner, Buckhorn said.

However, WJLA-TV said the helicopter pilot, Jesse Hadaway, told the station he had been cleared to take off along the same flight path as the plane.

"When I saw him (the plane), I did a climbing left turn to avoid his flight path at which time he aborted his takeoff and pulled to a stop," said Hadaway, who was bound for Greenbelt, Md.

It was not immediately known how close the aircraft came to each other. National Transportation Safety Board officials interviewed crew members of both aircraft, FAA spokesman David Hess said.

NTSB spokesman Ira Furman said investigators would examine both the cockpit voice recorder and the tapes of radio communications between the airport tower and the plane and the helicopter.

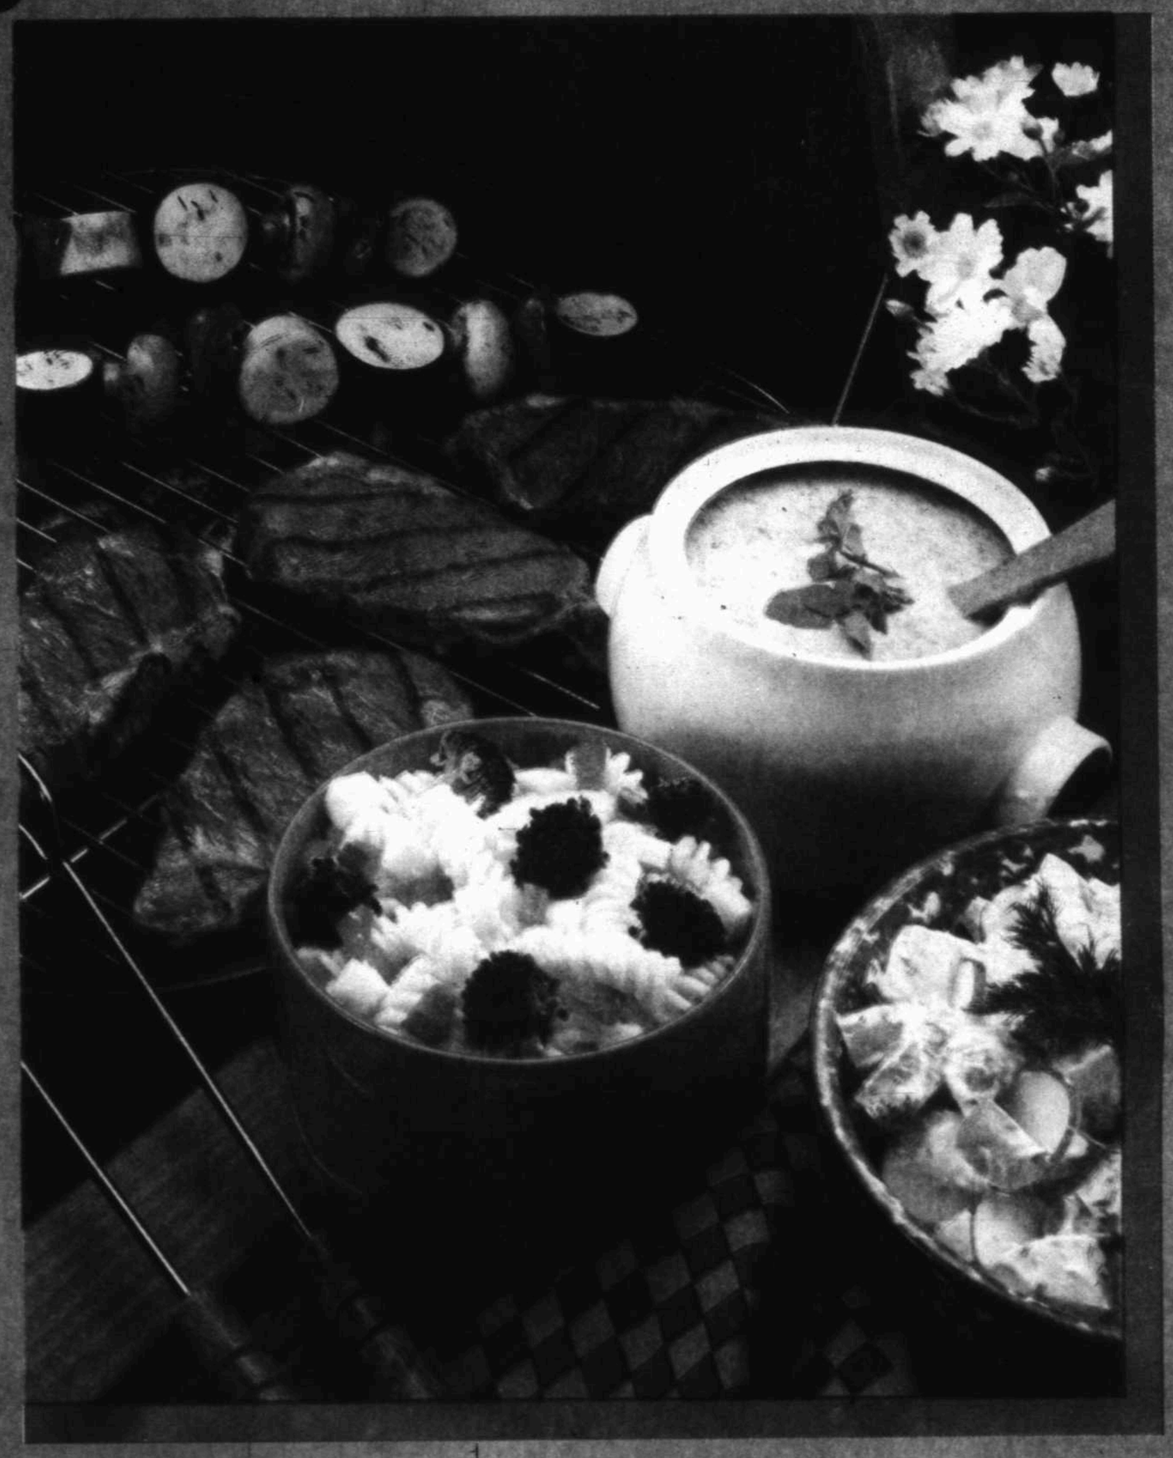
NUTRITIOUS OUTDOOR BUFFET



During warm weather months, thoughts turn to outdoor activities such as swimming, jogging, picnics and barbecues. The focus on summertime fun usually results in eating-on-the-run, so it's important to plan nutritious meals while thinking convenience for you and your family.

One important aspect of good nutrition is maintaining a balanced diet that meets daily needs. Two of the most neglected nutrients are calcium and iron. The best sources of these minerals are foods found in every household: dairy foods supplying calcium and beef supplying iron. Today's beef is not only high in minerals, but is also low in calories. Dairy foods are, as they have always been, excellent sources of nutrients — and they can also be low in calories.

Beef contributes a significant portion of our RDA for iron. In fact, a three-ounce serving of lean beef offers 26 percent of the adult male RDA and 15 percent for the adult female RDA for this essential mineral. Calcium is found in a wide variety of dairy foods. In fact, an eight-ounce serving of 2 percent milk supplies 37 percent of the RDA for this mineral.

The aroma of steaks sizzling over hot coals will convince you that cooking beef outdoors is one of the best ways to bring out its great flavor. Beef not only tastes wonderful, but contributes "heme" iron, the type of iron which is far more usable in the body than nonheme iron. Nonheme iron is found in plant foods (and part of the iron in animal foods) and is absorbed five to ten times less than that of heme iron. When eating beef with a vegetable such as broccoli or carrots, the absorption of the total iron available in both foods is enhanced. The RDA for iron is 10 milligrams for adult men and 18 milligrams for adult women.

Beef grilled to perfection is only the beginning of an outstanding outdoor buffet menu — it's the accompaniments that make a good meal great. Flavorful, fresh vegetable kabobs cooked on the barbecue grill and basted with a savory herbed butter make a tempting, nutritious side dish.

Dairy foods such as milk, cheese, yogurt, and ice cream provide another easy answer to the summer meal-time dilemma of too little time. These foods are versatile, require little or no preparation and are rich in many essential nutrients — especially calcium. Many people think calcium is necessary only for growing children. But many family members require the mineral as well, including teenagers whose bones are still forming and who are recommended to consume 1200 milligrams or 50 percent more calcium each day than children. Post-menopausal women need to consume up to 1000 to 1500 milligrams of calcium also. The RDA for calcium for adults is 800 milligrams.

Chilled Yogurt Watercress Soup is a great way to begin a meal. Served cold, it's a change-of-pace everyone will love.

Outdoor eating also naturally evokes cold salads. The challenge in making salads different is to make each distinctive in taste and texture. To achieve this balance, a vinaigrette Pasta Salad and a creamy Cheesy New Potato Salad with Dill Dressing feature various dairy foods, vegetables and herbs.

Add a refreshing pitcher of milk and a casual get-together for family or friends can be both convenient and nutritious!

Concealed appliances popular in newly remodeled kitchens

CHICAGO (AP) — Kitchens are being redesigned with a minimal look that requires little maintenance, reports a major kitchen remodeling franchiser, which predicts that this year nationwide kitchen remodeling sales will be up 20 percent from 1983 levels.

"Today's trend is toward sleekly designed European-style cabinets with smooth, easy-to-clean laminate finishes," said Mark Honigsfeld, president of the firm, Facelifters.

Also popular, he says, will be "garages," compartments with pull-down doors that conceal gadgets and small appliances. According to industry sources, Americans will spend more than $15 billion on kitchen remodeling this year.

Mayonnaise not cause of food spoilage

Associated Press

Contrary to popular belief, it is not the mayonnaise in sandwiches and salads that encourages food spoilage, but rather the foods you mix with it that carry bacteria, says Family Circle magazine. It advises that mayonnaise mixtures be kept cold.

Southwestern Bell Telephone introduces five new TELE-HELP booklets.

TELE-HELP is a special information program created by the employees at Southwestern Bell Telephone. We've designed it to provide answers to our customers' questions as well as reaffirm our company's commitment to the community.

Home security is something that concerns us all. But, in reality, many people don't know how to prepare for an emergency in advance. This booklet gives you tips on how to do just that.

Annoying phone calls can happen to anyone at anytime. But you don't always have to be a victim because there are a few steps steps you can take to deal with this nuisance. We developed this booklet to tell you about them.

Home wiring tells you how you can save money by installing new wiring or changing existing wiring in your own home. It also tells you about the options available if you would rather have someone else do the work.

A guide to establishing new service tells you about all the steps involved, and what to expect, when setting up your new phone service.

Local service options tells you about the range of services that can enhance the value of your phone, including Custom Calling Services, Easy Access Dialing and Touch-tone service.

Liver dumplings perfect dish for traditional Oktoberfest

By TOM SIETSEMA
Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

Crown Prince Ludwig might be surprised that we're still celebrating his marriage in 1810. But 175 years after the fact, nothing heralds the arrival of autumn in Bavaria so much as the appearance of those hearty foods and spirited carnivals we associate with Oktoberfest.

In Munich, where the festival is scheduled for a 16-day run, beginning the latter part of September, Oktoberfest is as enthusiastically welcomed as Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

Whether or not you join the festivities, you can sample a warm and homey regional German favorite, liver dumplings.

To make this dish, oil and salt are all you'll need on hand after a waltz through the express lane.

Express-lane list: onion, bread, milk, calf or beef liver, suet or salt pork fat, eggs, marjoram or parsley, sauerkraut (optional).

LIVER DUMPLINGS

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 onion, chopped
5 slices stale white bread
⅓ cup milk
1 pound calf or beef liver
2 ounces kidney suet or fresh unsmoked salt pork fat
2 small eggs, slightly beaten
Salt
Marjoram or parsley to taste
Sauerkraut for serving, if desired

Heat oil in a large skillet. Add onion; saute until tender. Soak bread in milk. Remove skin or membrane from liver. Put bread, liver and suet or fat through a grinder with a fine disc to make a smooth-textured paste. In a medium-size bowl, combine liver paste, eggs, salt, marjoram or parsley and saute'ed onion. If mixture is too moist, add 2 to 3 tablespoons fine bread crumbs. Using a spoon, shape mixture into small balls. Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Drop liver dumplings into water and cook for 10 to 15 minutes. Do not overcrowd pot with dumplings; if necessary, cook in batches. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Bitter boiled coffee made better

Associated Press

When coffee is bitter, make it better: don't despair if you've overboiled it.

The bitter taste should go away if you simply add two ounces of club soda to each 12 ounces of hot coffee; remove the basket and then reheat the coffee pot, according to Family Circle magazine.

Yom Kippur holiday calls for light, festive, delicious foods

From Staff Reports

Yom Kippur, the most solemn holiday on the Jewish calendar, calls for lighter foods than most holy days. After a 24-hour fast, the body is not prepared for a heavy meal.

Two dishes ideal for such light eating are Orange Spongecake, with a delicate, airy texture and a light orange filling, and Orange-Chocolate Holiday Parfait, which brings out the best of the two flavors.

HOLIDAY ORANGE SPONGE CAKE

5 large eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar
½ cup frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted
1½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
⅓ cup flaked coconut
Confectioner's sugar

In small mixer bowl beat egg yolks and sugar until thick, about 4 minutes. Stir in concentrated orange juice. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; blend into egg yolk mixture.

In large mixer bowl beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Gently fold yolk mixture into egg whites.

Spoon batter into ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Bake in preheated 325° oven for 50 minutes, until cake tester inserted in center of cake comes out clean.

Place cake upside down on wire rack; cool one hour.

Remove from pan; slice horizontally in three layers. Spread half Orange Filling on bottom layer, sprinkle with half the coconut. Repeat with second layer. Place top layer on cake.

If desired, place paper doily on cake and sift confectioners' sugar over top. Remove doily carefully to leave a pattern. Makes 12-14 servings.

Orange Filling:

⅔ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup water
½ cup frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted

In medium saucepan combine sugar and cornstarch; gradually add water and orange juice. Stir until mixture boils and thickens. Remove from heat; cool to room temperature. Makes about 2 cups.

ORANGE-CHOCOLATE MOUSSE PARFAIT

3 eggs
¼ cup sugar
¾ cup milk
⅓ cup frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted
2 ounces (2 squares) semi-sweet chocolate, melted
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

In top of double boiler combine eggs and sugar; beat until thick, about 4 minutes. Blend in milk and orange juice. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and coats a metal spoon, about 8 minutes.

Remove from heat; divide mixture in half. Stir melted chocolate into half the mixture. Chill.

Fold half the cream into orange mixture. Fold remaining cream into chocolate mixture. Spoon layer of orange mixture into six dessert glasses. Add layer of chocolate mixture. Repeat until all mousse is used. Makes six servings.

Newark: Needles and the damage done

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a six-part special series, running through Friday, focusing on how various cities are coping with the AIDS epidemic.

AIDS

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — In this poverty-plagued city, 80 percent of AIDS victims are drug users who want a fix more than a cure and pass the deadly disease on to their children as well as their sexual partners, health officials say.

The drug users' down-and-out lives frustrate efforts to provide medical attention. Unlike in the homosexual community, there are no support groups for junkies.

"They're addicts before they're AIDS patients," said Gloria Rodriguez, a social worker who assists AIDS victims at University Hospital. "And if they have to share a needle, that's fine. It's the nature of the beast."

One of her AIDS patients described passing his needle among his three brothers and two of their wives.

Because the disease incubates for several years, "people are out sharing needles and transmitting the disease for a long time until they find out they have AIDS," said Joyce Jackson, a state Health Department AIDS specialist.

Already, doctors estimate, half of the 15,000 drug users here have been exposed to AIDS through shared hypodermic needles. There is no way to determine how many will develop AIDS, but the city currently ranks No. 5 in the nation with 326 cases confirmed since 1979. Statewide, there have been 791 cases and 482 deaths.

"We have a worse problem than probably anyone in the nation," said Bob Baxter, a social work consultant with the state Health Department who noted that Newark's AIDS patients had a mortality rate of about 70 percent, far above the national average of about 50 percent.

BECAUSE THE AIDS population here is mainly heterosexual, children are getting the disease from the addicted parents. And few of the victims are receiving adequate help.

"We've got your hardcore inner-city addict, and they are not the best users of medical care," said Ms. Rodriguez. "They're very suspicious, so they will not come in until they're literally dying. They know they won't get a fix here."

Addicts who contract AIDS often confuse its symptoms, such as fatigue, with the usual ill-effects of their habit, said Baxter.

Homosexuals, the other high-risk group for AIDS, are educated about the disease and have organized to fight its spread. In Newark, health officials get no help.

"Intravenous drug users don't come from stable backgrounds. And let's be honest. Who's going to mobilize for IV drug users, for junkies?" Baxter asked.

As elsewhere in the nation, AIDS victims are shunned here.

No private ambulance service in the city will transport AIDS patients, Ms. Rodriguez said. She could find no ambulance to take one of her patients to a clinic for thrice-weekly tuberculosis treatments.

"One (ambulance) person had the audacity to say, 'Why don't you give him bus fare?'" she said. "This man is so sick he can't walk."

Ms. Rodriguez said she had also been unable to find dentists to treat her 24 AIDS patients, and no nursing home or rooming house in the state will accept them.

About $2.5 million in state and federal funds are being spent in New Jersey this fiscal year to fight AIDS, but those battling the disease here say the money is far from adequate.

FEAR OF AIDS has in the past eight months helped fill Newark's drug treatment programs to overflowing, said Ms. Jackson. More than 1,000 people are in residential and out-patient programs here, and she said about half of the new arrivals listed fear of contracting AIDS as a reason for enrolling.

Some health officials are advocating decriminalizing the possession of needles and syringes, currently a disorderly persons offense in New Jersey, to discourage sharing by addicts.

In an effort to educate Newark's drug users about the risk, the state has hired two ex-addicts to go into the streets "carrying printed material and basically rapping with people," Ms. Jackson said.

Dr. George Colon, the city's medical director, said the AIDS crisis in New Jersey's largest city is compounded by poverty.

"Newark is among the poorest major cities in the nation. There is a high incidence of intravenous drug abuse and a high incidence of just illness in general," he said.

Eating habits help health

Hearst News Service

Autumn is an ideal time for parents and children to improve their eating habits. As children settle into a school schedule, young and old alike tend to return to a routine meal pattern. Here are some ways to incorporate healthy habits into that schedule.

The best way to cut calories and keep pounds off is to prepare three or four small meals at home each day. Use a variety of foods, measure portions and count calories. Remember the nutrition basics: Rely on breads and produce for quick energy; avoid fats and oils. For protein, choose fish, poultry and lean cuts of meat. Drink at least two cups of skim milk each day.

Tests conducted in the classroom and at work in the morning show that the most alert people are those who eat breakfast. Tests administered in the afternoon show that workers who felt tired were those who selected large servings of easily-digested sugar for lunch. Instead of fruit, carbonated beverages or candy, children and adults should switch to foods containing complex carbohydrates, proteins and fats which digest more slowly and provide energy over a longer time period.

Yeast now aids AIDS research

NEW YORK (AP) — Yeast, that single-celled fungus that puts the bounce in bread and bubbles in beer, is now offering AIDS researchers food for thought.

According to biologists, yeast is quickly rising as the medium of choice in the field of biotechnology. Yeast cells can be engineered to produce not only vaccines and medicines, but to provide fundamental understanding of the disease itself, especially AIDS and cancer.

DEAR ABBY

Apron strings still bind

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive, single, career woman, 32 years old. For the last three years I've been in love with a kind, successful, gentle man who is 48. We share common interests, he treats me very well and he says he loves me. We've talked extensively about marriage. (He brought the subject up initially.)

The problem: At 48 he still lives with his 79-year-old ailing mother. He never married. As much as he cares for me, and I do believe he loves me, he can't bring himself to leave his mother. I've tried patience, persuasion, confrontation and ultimatums, but he can't deal with the idea of leaving his mother. I'm frustrated, jealous and angry. My friends tell me I'm wasting my time. I've tried to break off with him, but I was miserable!

We've been to two different family counselors without success. He won't return to either one because they both told him his mother is the root of his problem. Now he refuses to see another counselor.

Have you any suggestions, Abby? I don't want to be his "girlfriend" until his mother dies. — TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR TIRED: I suspect a symbiotic relationship between mother and son. (He needs her as much as she needs him. Possibly more.) Frankly, I think he's using his mother to avoid marriage. Further, a man who ducks counseling because he doesn't want to know the truth is just putting his problems on hold. Don't fight too hard for this prize. You might get him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's father passed away recently after a long illness. He couldn't go home for the funeral because he had just been there the week before to visit his father in the hospital. His folks live nearly 3,000 miles from us.

My question: Do you think my husband should have sent a condolence card to his mother? He called her up and sent flowers, but no card. One of my husband's sisters said he should have also sent a card. I've asked several friends and relatives, and they all agreed that it wasn't necessary for my husband to send his mother a card. In keeping with my sister-in-law's line of thinking, shouldn't my mother-in-law send her son a condolence card? After all, he lost his father.

Was my husband remiss in not sending a card? And what do you think of his sister? — JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: I think your husband said it all when he called his mother and sent flowers. His sister is in one of the first stages of grief — anger. Forgive her.

DEAR ABBY: The next time the subject of pedestrians or joggers comes up in your column, please mention the old rule that anyone on foot, regardless of rate of speed, should always walk FACING the oncoming traffic.

I've seen people in some very hazardous situations because they're walking with the traffic instead of against it. — KATHRYN IN ROCK CITY, ILL.

DEAR KATHRYN: Why wait for it to come up? It's worth bringing up. And in case pedestrians don't know it, they should always walk on the left side of the road.

DEAR ABBY: Please help settle a family dispute. Do you or don't you peel a banana from the stem? — GOING BANANAS IN SEATTLE

DEAR GOING: To my knowledge, there is no "correct" way to peel a banana, but I peel mine from the stem.

Medical supplies are loaded aboard the Memphis Aero charter plane bound for Dallas, where more supplies were to have been picked up. The supplies were to have been transferred to a 707 cargo plane in San Antonio today to be taken to Mexico City.

Group of Midlanders taking supplies to Mexico

From Staff Reports

A group of Midlanders and one New Mexico man with family members in earthquake-stricken Mexico City are en route to that area with relief supplies ordered with donations and pledges during a hurried campaign to raise funds, according to Midland Mayor Thane Akins.

"There was between $6,000 to $7,000 of pledges the last I heard," Akins said.

Akins stated that the group, including Lillian Wallis who organized the Midland Earthquake Fund, flew to Dallas Tuesday afternoon where they picked up medical supplies and then went to San Antonio where they were to have transferred to a 707 cargo plane bound for Mexico City.

According to Akins, the group missed the cargo plane, however, which had left earlier than expected and had to wait until its return from Mexico City.

"They were supposed to have caught another flight at around 2 p.m. today," said Akins.

The group included Antonio Gamiochipi, 34 of New Mexico, a priest who has relatives in Mexico City, several media persons from KOSA-TV, KTPX-TV and Midland Reporter-Telegram and Ms. Wallace, who also has relatives in the area. The plane was piloted by John McCall of Memphis Aero Corp.

The group was to have picked up medical supplies in Dallas that had been ordered after the fund-raising efforts over the weekend. Other donations, which included seven truckloads of items collected during a KWEL-KBAT radio fund-raiser Sunday at Hogan Park were taken to the U.S. Armed Forces Reserve Center at Midland Regional Air Terminal, where they were sorted and packed. The items, including canned goods and clothing, were to have been flown to San Antonio for transport on the cargo plane.

Team coordinates relief efforts

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bure

AUSTIN — Requesting "a dollar from every Texan," Gov. Mark White's Mexican earthquake relief team Tuesday outlined its goals for transporting Texas help to the "extraordinary devestation" in Mexico City.

The 26-member Texas Response — Citizens for Mexican Relief met behind closed doors in White's offices for almost two hours Tuesday morning before emerging to discuss its plans with the press. White aide Tom Adams will coordinate the team and can be reached with offers of help or requests for information at (512) 475-0510.

"This is not an effort to centralize," said San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, co-chairman of the committee. "This is an attempt to make sure what's going out meets the needs."

Cisneros said the "dollar from every Texan" campaign would raise about $15 million. The money would flow through InterFirst Bank in Austin directly to the Mexican government to help buy specialized equipment such as acetylene torches and blood transfusion equipment.

"The strongest need is money," said former U.S. Ambassador to Mexico Bob Krueger, the other co-chairman. "We are hoping every day to be able to wire this money to Mexico through this account. A dollar given will be a dollar received in Mexico."

Cisneros, who visited Mexico City over the weekend, said vaccines, water and water-transporting devices have the top priority after cash. "Saturday we saw people lining up on corners as water tank trucks came by," he said.

The task force is also arranging air and truck staging points to ship donated supplies such as surgical masks, pain killers, light fixtures and sleeping bags into Mexico every day. Two flights a day are leaving Houston and San Antonio, while truck convoys are flowing through Laredo and Brownsville.

Judge denies motion for new murder trial for Skelton

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Three new witnesses and testimony that the state failed to disclose evidence that might have raised doubt about the guilt of convicted murderer John C. Skelton, was not enough to gain a new trial for the former Odessa businessman. He was given a death sentence July 8, 1983, for the bomb death of 46-year-old Joe Lee Neal.

District Judge Tryon Lewis, while ruling that Austin attorney David L. Botsford had produced new evidence and showed the state had been "in constructive, if not actual, possession of material evidence exculpatory to defendant prior to trial" overruled Skelton's motion for a new trial during a six-hour hearing Tuesday afternoon.

Botsford's new evidence included the testimony of a 22-year-old Midland woman, Connie Lopez, 905 S. Marienfeld, who said she called Botsford's Austin office Monday after reading "five or six times" an article about the Skelton trial that appeared in the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

The article caught her attention, she said, because she had had an experience similar to Odessan Bob Byard at Furr's Cafeteria the night before Neal was killed when a bomb planted in his pickup truck exploded.

An affidavit signed by Byard, 2301 E. 14th St., was the basis for the "second motion for a new trial" filed by Botsford June 6, 1985.

In his affidavit, Byard, an electronics technician who has worked for Texas Instruments 23 years and lived in Odessa since 1977, related how he went to Furr's Cafeteria between 7:30 and 8 the night of April 23, 1982, to pick up a food order for his family.

Byard stated he first tried to park in a space next to a "two-toned red pickup," but a "big white pickup" pulled in and blocked the space. He found another parking space and went into Furr's.

As he was coming out with his food order, he was hailed by a man he didn't know who asked him "if it had rained here in the last 24 hours." During a brief conversation with the man, Byard said, the man kept looking toward the north side of the parking lot and he turned to see what attracted the man's attention. Byard said he saw a man stand up alongside the two-toned red pickup, brush off his clothes and walk toward a car that was parked next to his. He described the car as "an old dark blue or green (with an old white vinyl roof) car."

Mrs. Lopez testified she and her sister had gone to Odessa and called Furr's for a takeout food order. The Midland woman related how she and her sister drove onto Furr's parking lot between 7 and 7:30 p.m. and encounterd a white pickup truck parked behind a "two-toned red pickup" she described as "pretty new."

Councilman offers land so owners can park dump trucks

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Dump truck owners who park their vehicles at their homes are getting a 90-day reprieve from paying fines for violating a 10-year-old ordinance. To help the owners, a councilman has offered property where the trucks can be parked at no cost.

During the Midland City Council's regular session in City Hall Tuesday, the group also approved a permit for selling Christmas trees and specific use permits for sale of alcoholic beverages.

Ernest Gutierrez, 1506 N. Terrell, asked the City Council to allow dump trucks to be parked in residential areas.

"We need time," he said. "For the past three years, we've been going down. My father has had to refinance his truck twice. I've had to refinance mine once."

Gutierrez said lack of work in the oilfield industry has hurt these dump truck owners and many are barely finding work. Recently, these owners have been going out of town for work at less pay than what they were receiving two years ago. In addition, these truckers have to pay traveling, food and motel expenses, he said.

In 1982, dump truck owners sought help from the City Council and were told to find places elsewhere to park the vehicles, according to Councilman Bart Hotchkiss.

"We thought a parking lot would be built," said Gutierrez of that session in which a fenced lot with security and lighting was discussed. The council had considered allowing the city's vehicle impoundment area be used, but that proved unfeasible.

Owners are concerned that parking trucks elsewhere without fencing and security would lead to vandalism of their vehicles. "We need to keep the trucks parked at the house, and we still get things stolen," he said.

In addition, during winter the trucks need to be plugged in so the engines can be started in the mornings.

The 90-day extension, said Councilwoman Katie Heck, is to allow the owners "to do something positive, to find a place and set up something for the trucks."

Councilwoman Oralia Corrales had proposed the motion for a 90-day extension, provided the trucks are parked in the back yards.

Gutierrez said he couldn't see the difference between a dump truck and a recreational vehicle. Recently, the council revised the RV ordinance to allow those vehicles to be parked in front according to certain guidelines for 15 years. But eventually all must be parked in a covered area in the back yard or in special storage units elsewhere.

Hotchkiss contended that RVs and dump trucks are two different issues. With dump trucks in a residential area there are the problems of noise, wear and tear on the streets and the amount of fuel in the trucks if there were an explosion.

"One is a commercial vehicle and the other is not. You're almost running a business out of your home (with a dump truck)," he said.

Local investigation leads to drug arrest

From Staff Reports

A two-week-long investigation by Midland Police Department narcotics officers and Drug Enforcement Agency officials led to the arrest Tuesday of two men in Austin on charges of possession of a controlled substance with the intent to distribute, police Lt. Jim Colburn said today.

Trent Kerr, 22, of Austin remained in Austin City Jail this morning on $15,000 bond; and John Wood, 25, also of Austin, was being held on $50,000 bond, following their arraignment Tuesday in District Court, Colburn said.

The two men were apprehended by narcotics officers following a "transaction" whereby officials reportedly intercepted 450 pills believed to be the designer drug, "ectascy," Colburn said.

Colburn said the men are believed to be "major suppliers of this drug to Midland-Odessa."

The pills reportedly have a street value of $13,500, according to Colburn.

He added that additional charges are expected to be brought against the two men and other arrests are pending as the result of the investigation.

MISD SAT scores fall, stay equal to average

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland Independent School District Scholastic Aptitude Test scores fell during 1984-85, but remained above or equal to equal to the state, regional and national averages, Becky Ferguson, MISD coordinator of communications said Tuesday.

MISD's combined verbal and math score was 906 compared to 878 for the state, 888 for Texas' southwest region and 906 for the nation, Ms. Ferguson reported.

She said the average score at Midland High School, where 32 percent of graduating seniors took the test, was 937. Thirty-nine percent of Lee High School students took the test and the average score was 882.

In general, the higher the percentage of students taking the test, the lower the average score, according to the College Board which administers the SAT.

Midlander appointed to education committee

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland oilman William B. Blakemore II will join 18 other high profile Texans on a new blue ribbon committee to study potential reforms of Texas' colleges and universities.

The new committee is expected to tackle many politically sensitive issues such as whether to close or merge some schools, including the always volatile question of the future of the University of Texas at Permian Basin. Other study topics include: whether some schools should limit their course offerings and specialize, how the state should split its limited tax dollars among the various institutions and whether to recommend tougher admission standards and a sophomore-level test for student advancement.

House Speaker Gib Lewis appointed Blakemore, the 62-year-old president of Alpha Twenty-One Corp., to the Select Committee on Higher Education late Monday. A secretary in Blakemore's Midland office said he caught an early morning plane Tuesday and could not be reached for comment.

Many Midlanders pessimistic about summit agreement

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

Discussion and preliminary stories in the media have been going on for months building up to the Nov. 19-20 summit between President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. During the summit, Reagan and Gorbachev are expected to discuss a general agenda, including arms control.

In light of the all the media attention on the summit, 18 Midlanders picked at random were asked whether they thought anything substantial, such as a new arms control treaty, would result from the November summit.

The majority of Midlanders surveyed voiced a pessimistic opinion about Reagan and Gorbachev coming to any kind of agreement. Thirteen said they did not think anything substantial would result from the meeting of the two leaders. Five said they did believe an arms control or some sort of agreement would be reached by the two leaders.

Most of the people who said they thought Reagan and Gorbachev would not reach an agreement, based their pessimism on past failures of the two superpowers to agree on anything.

"They've never gotten anything together before. I think Star Wars will stop it totally," said Don Wallace, 4710 Cindy Place, a drilling company president.

"It's the same old thing. A lot of talk and nothing ever gets done," said Doug Wagner, 1800 East Taylor, a supply company owner.

Geophysicist Brian Foley, 5244 North Loop 250 West, said, "If history is anything of an indicator, I'd say nothing substantial...that nobody's really too sincere about making an honest effort towards controlling the arms race."

Clint Byrd, 515 Holmsley, who works in a welding shop, said, "It seems like hype because they're (the Soviets) not going to stop what they're doing. They're adding to their stockpiles and I'm sure they are going to keep adding more."

Art Newton, a maintenance worker who lives at the Lexington Hotel, said, "There's too much distress between the two countries. A lot of things will be said, but nothing will be meant. I do believe at this time it's just a political ploy for both countries involved."

Others said they didn't believe the Soviet Union and the United States could ever come to an agreement because of their different ideologies.

"I think it's a waste of time to try and negotiate with people who have an entirely different philosophy and moral base than we do," said Jim Sommer, 1701 Harvard, who is self-employed.

Terry Teate, who didn't want to give his address, said if an agreement was reached between Reagan and Gorbachev, he wouldn't trust it.

"Whatever agreement we made, we better have a Plan B. Because if you understand the Communist doctrine, they have one goal and that is to expand communism," said Teate, owner of a well-logging company.

Salesman Eddy Merket, 5118 Reeves Circle, said, "They (the Soviets) are not interested in getting anything settled. There is just no telling what those people have on their minds."

Midlanders optimistic about an agreement resulting from the two superpowers meeting included Ken Baker, 5114 Bel Aire, an engineer, who said, "It seems like both countries have been preparing for it for the last couple of months. They - the leaders of the countries - recognize the importance of the situation. Something has to be done."

Salesman Mike Becker, 2433 Whitmire Blvd., said, "I think if anything of substance can come out of it, Reagan can pull something out of it. I feel Reagan is for peace. He's not there to say he is powerful. If he has a chance to negotiate for peace, he will."

'Rings of Empowerment' seminar to be at Hilton

From Staff Reports

Barbara Marx Hubbard will present a workshop, "Rings of Empowerment," from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday at the Hilton Hotel, corner of Wall Avenue and Loraine Street.

The seminar is sponsored by the Permian Church of Religious Science. Mrs. Hubbard has been mistakenly connected with Karl Marx and L. Ron Hubbard, founder of the Church of Scientology; however, she is not related to either. Her father was Louis Marx, a self-made multimillionaire, who was one of the first to mass produce toys using plastic. She was married to Earl Hubbard, a New York artist, and for two decades they raised five children in Connecticut.

The 12-hour seminar is designed "to promote a personal spiritual breakthrough to a more complete lilife," said Merrilyn Walker, spokesman for the sponsoring church. Mrs. Hubbard is known as a "visionary and profit of potential."

A candidate for the Democratic vice president in 1984, she spent a year on a grass-roots "Campaign for a Positive Future."

"Although she wasn't a nominee, Mrs. Hubbard continues to spread her message of positive human potential through various speaking engagements, TV appearances, authoring four books and as the founder of the Committee for a Positive Future," Ms. Walker said.

"The local seminar will stress the necessity of cooperation from the viewpoint of each individual first becoming aware of his inner spiritual potential and then radiating his knowing outward through the different 'rings,' such as unconditional love, vocations, purpose and entrepreneurship, thereby transforming our world from one of distress to one of joy and excellence."

Mrs. Hubbard's model for the "Rings of Enpowerment" comes, she has said, "from her study of how evolution leaps from simple to more complex systems, and how humans are now joining in deep 'resonance' for personal and social change.

"If we can seed our organizations and communities with synergistic social units, we can make an immense contribution to peace and world betterment," Mrs. Hubbard said. "From my experience in several resonating cores, this model accelerates personal and spiritual breakthrough faster than any other method that I know."

Mrs. Hubbard calls synergy a tool of conscious evolution, learning how to form whole systems and how separate parts work together to form a new whole which is greater than and different from the sum of its parts. "Our body is a synergistic whole, far different from the sum of trillions of unique cells."

Attendance for the Midland seminar is limited to the first 100 people who sing up. Cost is $65 and is payable to the Permian Church of Reiigious Science. For more information call The Book Store, 697-4188.

SKELTON

She was also stopped by a man as she left Furr's who asked her "if it had rained here in the past 24 hours." She kept her conversation with the man short, she said, because the man had "a killer face." Mrs. Lopez said she also saw a man get into a car she described as "dark green or dark blue old beat up car," that had a white vinyl top or half vinyl top.

In Byard's affidavit, he noted Botsford had asked him not to include a description of the two men "in order that their possible disclosure and discovery by law enforcement personnel not be compromised."

Late Tuesday afternoon, Botsford pressed Mrs. Lopez for a description of the two men. He offered photocopy pictures of three men and Mrs. Lopez picked one of the pictures, identifying it as resembling the man she had seen get up from alongside the two-toned red pickup.

According to Botsford, the man identified by Mrs. Lopez was one of the witnesses that testified during Skelton's original trial in 1983.

District Attorney Eric Augesen questioned Mrs. Lopez concerning why she had watched the man walk all the way from the two-toned red pickup to the other car. "I was being nosy," replied the Midland woman.

Pressed for a description of the man who had questioned her about the weather, Mrs. Lopez shrugged and again described the man as having "a killer face."

Other witnesses called to testify during Tuesday's hearing included former Ector County Sheriff Elwood Hill, Odessa police Sgt. Maria Allaire and Lt. Jerry Don Smith and Peggy Neal, Neal's widow.

In his affidavit, Byard said he had initially contacted the FBI with his information and later went to the Odessa Police Department, where he talked with a woman, later identified as Sgt. Allaire, a detective in the crimes against persons unit at the time Neal was killed.

Under questioning by Botsford, she recalled much of the same information related by Byard in his affidavit. She didn't relay this information to her superior, Lt. Davis, Allaire said, because she forgot, explaining Byard conveyed the information to her the weekend before Skelton's trial was to begin.

It was Allaire's failure to relay this information that caused Botsford to contend the state possessed information that might have affected the outcome of Skelton's trial but failed to make it available to Skelton's attorneys.

The former sheriff, who owned Catfish Hill restaurant, related a conversation he claimed to have had with Davis at the restaurant.

Shortly after the explosion, according to Hill, Davis told him about a couple of guys who were in Harrigan's restaurant bragging about doing the bomb job.

Hill said he called the police department twice to see if Davis had made any headway in identifying the two men. Davis told him no, he said.

Davis followed Hill to the stand and refuted the statement. Davis said, "That conversation did not occur." Davis also stated he had never received any calls from Hill concerning the investigation.

Davis said he was called out around midnight April 24, the day Neal was killed, by Sheriff Bob Brookshire, who told him Jerry Don Skelton, Skelton's stepson, had reported two men being in Harrigan's, bragging about killing Neal. Davis said he watched Harrigan's until about 2 a.m. April 25 and followed two men to the Sunchase Apartments.

Davis told Augesen one of the men was identified as being from Austin and the other from Midland.

Botsford asked Davis if he had attempted to check on Roy Allen Dees' vehicle to determine if it was the one that left Harrigan's. Davis said he had not.

Dees, reportedly from the Austin area, was one of two men Skelton is subsequently accused of trying to hire to kill two former business associates. Dees purportedly owed Skelton $30,000, which Skelton allegedly agreed to forget about if Dees did the job for him.

Mrs. Neal was questioned by Augesen about the time her late husband had arrived home the night of April 23. She explained they were supposed to have left their home at 3405 Brentwood at 8 p.m. to take their daughter, Becky, to Bonham Junior High School.

She said her husband parked on the Furr's parking lot at exactly 8:05 p.m., that he hurriedly took a shower, changed clothes and they left within 10 minutes. She added that she had not been asked to make a statement about the time.

Botsford also questioned Mrs. Neal about a civil lawsuit she has filed against Skelton, seeking $12 million in a wrongful death action and well as a later lawsuit filed on behalf of her children seeking an additional $12 million.

Skelton's attorney asked Mrs. Neal if she had discussed with her attorney what would happen to the civil lawsuits if Skelton got a new trial. She said she had had no such conversation.

The district attorney's office had argued Lewis' 161st District Court had no jurisdiction to hear a motion for a new trial since the case is currently on appeal to the Texas Court of Civil Appeals in Austin.

Lewis, in rejecting the new trial motion, held that his court did have jurisdiction, that Botsford had presented new evidence, that the state did fail to disclose evidence in the original trial, but that the evidence would not have materially affected the outcome of Skelton's first trial.

He gave prosecutors and Botsford until Oct. 14 to file briefs on the hearing and agreed to allow the hearing transcript to be forwarded to the appeals court for review in its consideration of the Skelton case. After reviewing hearing briefs, Lewis could reverse his decision, but Augesen said this was not a likely possibility.

Guidelines to be set to deal with AIDS in school

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein and Education Commissioner William Kirby are meeting today to develop guidelines on how to deal with with the deadly disease AIDS in the public schools.

The number of reported AIDS cases in Texas has jumped from 641 to 711 in the last three weeks, according to Health Department records. Bernstein said that although no cases of AIDS have been reported in Texas public schoolchildren, health officials want to be prepared for the worse.

"I think it's a little early, because we don't have any cases (of schoolchildren with AIDS)," Bernstein said of the meeting with Kirby. "But we don't want to wait."

Kirby could not be reached Tuesday, but a Texas Education Agency spokeswoman said he has scheduled a meeting with Bernstein for 2 p.m. today.

AIDS, an acronym for Acquired Immunity Deficiency Syndrome, predominantly strikes members of the male gay community, and has killed 391 Texans since physicians began reporting AIDS cases in March 1983.

While Bernstein did not elaborate on the precise nature of the proposed guidelines, he said he has no reason to believe that AIDS can be transmitted through casual contact.

"If a child has AIDS and if the child is toilet trained and well-behaved - and if there are no open lesions - then that child should be admitted to school," he said.

Residents of the New York City burrough of Queens have appeared on national television recently to vehemently protest a decision to allow students with AIDS into public schools.

As of Sept. 2, the state of New York had reported the highest number of AIDS cases, according to Texas Health Department records. Texas ranks fifth on the list of reported cases, behind New York, California, Florida and New Jersey.

Midlander treated after accident

From Staff Reports

A 29-year-old Midland woman was treated and released Tuesday at Midland Memorial Hospital following a two-car mishap at the intersection of Front and Terrell streets, police reported.

Police said Vetalia Gutirrez, 513 E. Montgomery, was traveling west on Front Street, when the 1976 Oldsmobile she was driving collided with a 1969 Lincoln Continental driven by 35-year-old Alonso Urias Carrasco of McCamey.

Carrasco, who was traveling east on Front Street, was attempting to make a left turn on to Terrell Street when the accident occurred. He was not injured in the collision.

TRUCKS

Hotchkiss said he and a partner own land along Garden City Highway within city limits, and he is willing to let the owners park their trucks on the property. It would be up to the truck owners to put up fencing and find security.

"It would take the property off the market for a year or two," he said, "but it would get them through the burden of bad times."

A permit for Christmas trees to be sold at the northeast corner of Andrews Highway and Midkiff Road was granted to Oregon Trail Trees. Sam Listi, city planner, said this is the second year for the request and there were no problems reported last year.

Maurice Cole, 4203 Nelson Road, objected to the issuance of a permit for any business and cited the problem of a high traffic count at that intersection.

"We talked of vendor permits this morning and the way in which they're being abused," said Councilman David Godfrey. The council has instructed the planning department staff to research how the permit could be changed to be issued for a site and not to a person. "We have a different situation with this tree lot. We'll have more requests come in — we do every year," said Godfrey.

Mrs. Heck agreed with Cole's complaints about the vendors. "I don't like to have to look around the rugs to see if a car's coming. It's trashy looking."

In addition, a beer permit was granted to Wanda Brooks for a restaurant on Wall Street between Main and Baird streets. Jeanie Sau and Allan K.C. Yee were granted a permit to sell beer and wine in a restaurant in the Village Shopping Center.

The council appointed Joe Nuessle to the Board of Directors of Midland Central Appraisal District and selected Dec. 17 as the only meeting date that month.

TEAM

"Laredo is the trade link," said task force member Gary Jacobs, president of the Laredo National Bank. Jacobs suggested White, Krueger and Cisneros work with U.S. State Department officials to finance specially needed projects such as field hospitals.

With Mexico's enormous foreign debt already threatening the stability of the country's economy, Krueger said the quake-induced problems will further burden Mexico's ability to pay its creditors. "This is a time when bankers as well as others are going to have to show some restraint (towards collecting the debt)," he said.

Jacobs agreed, saying he would look to U.S. Treasury Secretary James Baker for leadership on the issue. "This would be an appropriate time for the U.S. to reconsider our whole posture towards refinancing Mexico," Jacobs said.

Cisneros downplayed the importance of his nationally televised war of words with Undersecretary of State Elliott Abrams Friday night on ABC-TV's "Nightline." In a heated exchange, Abrams asked Cisneros not to travel to Mexico City the next day.

"Our relationship with the State Department is good," Cisneros said Tuesday. "This is a neighborly effort."

But in Washington Tuesday, White told reporters Abrams should apologize to Cisneros. "Mexico is our neighbor," White said.

"When your neighbor's house is on fire you don't wait for him to invite you to come to help. You go to help."

Train derails with acid residue

GRAPEVINE (AP) — About 100 people were evacuated before dawn today when seven train cars derailed, two of them carrying sulfuric acid residue, fire officials said.

Deputy Fire Chief Don Wilson said the midnight derailment of the St. Louis & Southwestern train occurred in downtown near an apartment complex.

He said the apartment residents were evacuated as a precautionary measure in case the sulfuric acid residue caught fire.

The residents were allowed to return home about four hours later, after the tankers were moved.

The other cars were carrying plastic pellets and lumber and presented no problem, Wilson said.

MISD receives anonymous $120,000 grant

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

The Midland Independent School District received a $120,000 grant from an anonymous foundation to be used for staff development and elementary school computer labs, the board learned at its regular meeting Tuesday.

MISD Superintendent Dr. Joseph P. Baressi told trustees the grant would enable MISD to expand its district-wide computer program at a faster rate than would be possible otherwise.

School officials initiated a project to place computers in every classroom several years ago, he said.

Having reached that goal, he added, the next goal is to increase the number of computers to provide greater accessibility to students and to provide increased training to computer teachers.

Trustees also approved a student teacher cooperative program with Texas Tech University to be implemented this fall.

Dr. Lamar Hebert, MISD assistant superintendent of instructional services, told trustees the program, proposed by the Texas Tech College of Education, will aid the district in its recruiting efforts and, in turn, provide education students "with a quality program here in this district."

Hebert said MISD will interview all student teacher candidates prior to their being accepted into the program.

He added MISD will contribute $500 to the Texas Tech College of Education. Student teacher candidates also will be given priority when permanent positions become available throughout the school year.

In other business, the board:

- Heard a summary of the process for the appointment of the Midland Central Appraisal District Board of Directors. Trustees are scheduled to nominate its three members for reappointment at the Oct. 8 board meeting.
- Approved the secondary speech and junior high school reading improvement and basic English curriculum guides.
- Authorized the Lee and Midland High School bands to attend the State University Interscholastic League Marching Contest.
- Appointed officials to conduct the district's normal business activities. They include Baressi, Donald R. Furgeson, business manager, and Tony Timmons, director of finance.
- Approved MISD football game reports.
- Approved the tax collection report through Aug. 31. To date, MISD has collected $31,348,336 in taxes. MISD has yet to collect about $756,584 in delinquent taxes, Ferguson reported.

SAT

Ms. Ferguson said although local scores are considered "good," they "are not as good as they were last year."

Preliminary analysis indicates a "significant" percentage of Midland students taking the 1984-85 SAT test were "below-average students," she said.

For instance, 35.4 percent of the LHS students reported themselves in the bottom three-fifths of their graduating class compared to 23.7 percent last year.

Ms. Ferguson said "the reasons for the increase of below-average students taking a test designed for college-bound students are not known but officials believe these students had a significant impact on the district's average score."

School officials are continuing analysis of the scores, she said.

Does food need fat, salt labels?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans trying to avoid high levels of salt and cholesterol in their diets would get a helping hand if Congress passes new legislation calling for improved labeling of processed foods.

Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., joined forces Tuesday to introduce the bill they say will give Americans one of the most important tools to help combat heart disease and cancer.

The measure, which is scheduled for a hearing Oct. 10, would require labels that tell consumers the amount of salt in the product and the amount and type of fat.

Currently, federal regulations require foods to list the amounts of nutrients if they make any sort of nutrition claim of if they are fortified with extra vitamins and minerals, as is often done with breakfast cereals.

But otherwise there is no requirement to state the amount of fats, cholesterol, salt and so forth. About half of all processed foods now contain such labeling.

Metzenbaum said hundreds of thousands of Americans annually are told by their physicians to reduce their intake of saturated fat and salt.

"However, when they go to the supermarket they will discover that the information they need to adjust their diet is not available," Metzenbaum said.

Dr. John LaRosa of the American Heart Association said salt is associated with high blood pressure, while saturated fat in foods is linked with heart disease and stroke. Fat in foods has also been associated with some types of cancer, said Alan C. Davis of the American Cancer Society.

Metzenbaum cited Kraft mayonaise as an example of a product that already carries nutrition labeling.

"They're doing it, and they're not going bust," Metzenbaum said. "We are not proposing something industry can't live with. It's realistic, it can be attained."

And, he said, the cost would be infinitessimally small compared to the health costs of not providing the labels.

Block calls new dietary guidelines 'good motherly advice'

WASHINGTON (AP) — When he was questioned about nutrition nearly five years ago during his Senate confirmation hearing, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said he thought people were as good as hogs at selecting the proper foods.

A hog will "eat about the right amount of protein to go along with the grain," Block said. "He won't overeat on the grain. And people surely are as smart as a hog."

Block on Tuesday announced a revised set of dietary guidelines to help Americans eat better. He was asked about his 1981 Senate Agriculture Committee testimony and whether he had changed his mind.

"I don't think I've changed, entirely, anyway," Block replied, noting that the guidelines said there is some confusion about what to eat "because we don't know enough about nutrition to identify an 'ideal diet' for each individual."

The government's new dietary guidelines say Americans should use common sense and eat a variety of foods, being careful not to overdo it — something a good parent might tell a child.

"I always thought our mothers gave us pretty good advice, and I think that motherly advice was good then, I think it's good today," Block said.

The recommendations were in "Nutrition and Your Health: Dietary Guidelines for Americans" issued by the departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services.

The nation's eating habits were also the topic of hearings and proposed legislation on Capitol Hill on Tuesday:

— Sens. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, introduced a bill requiring food labeling telling consumers the amount of salt in the product and the amount and type of fat. Currently, federal regulations require foods to list the amounts of nutrients only if they make any sort of nutrition claim or if they are fortified with vitamins and minerals.

— A senate subcommittee heard medical experts and physical fitness experts decry the diets of young people, saying they are endangering their future health by eating the wrong foods and not exercising enough. "A great deal of evidence demonstrates the childhood origins of heart disease," said Dr. David W. Harsha, a professor at the Louisiana State University Medical Center. "I don't think kids feel good," said physical fitness advocate Bonnie Pruden.

The USDA guidelines announced Tuesday "present sensible information that doesn't pretend to define an 'ideal' diet that ensures good health — something we need more research to determine," Block said. "Instead, the guidelines suggest variety, balance and moderation in the diet and leave the specific food choices to the individual."

A consumer group, Public Voice, urged USDA to apply the guidelines throughout the department's policies and information materials relating to food and human health.

The basic guidelines include:

— Eat a variety of foods.
— Maintain desirable weight.
— Avoid too much fat, saturated fat and cholesterol.
— Eat foods adequate in starch and fiber.
— Avoid too much sugar.
— Avoid too much sodium.
— If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation.

A committee of nine nutrition experts headed by Dr. Bernard S. Schweigert, chairman of the department of food science and technology at the University of California-Davis, prepared the guidelines.

NATION IN BRIEF

Military OKs AIDS test

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials will almost certainly accept a recommendation that all active-duty personnel heading to overseas posts undergo blood tests for an antibody associated with the disease AIDS, sources say.

The sources, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said Tuesday there was a "99.9 percent" certainty that the recommendation by medical experts on the Armed Forces Epidemiological Board would receive a go-ahead.

The policy, an extension of a Pentagon directive already announced regarding new recruits, will be announced formally next month, one source said. In the meantime, the Pentagon is still grappling with related issues, such as whether to conduct blood screening on military personnel who already are posted overseas.

Another unresolved question is whether active-duty personnel being sent overseas just for a brief exercise should be tested also, another source said.

Acid-rain act on hold

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is trying to delay action on reducing acid rain despite acknowledgment by its chief envoy that the airborne pollution "is a problem" and even though a court has ordered new regulations within a year.

The Justice Department and the Environmental Protection Agency on Tuesday appealed a federal court order giving EPA nine months to begin controlling smokestack pollution from electric power plants in the Midwest.

Those emissions are widely blamed for higher acidic levels being found in lakes and forests of the Northeast and Canada.

However, the coal and utility industries, along with President Reagan, have maintained that the scientific evidence so far is too weak to establish a definite link with sulfur dioxide pollution from the coal-burning power plants.

Resistant crops sought

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — University of Massachusetts scientists will begin looking next month for a way to tell farmers and horticulturists which crop strains are the most resistant to acid rain, ozone and other pollutants.

The study is part of a series of research efforts announced Tuesday by the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs.

The university will get $90,000 next week begin the studies, Richard P. Taupier, the office's assistant secretary for research, said, and more funds are being sought to continue the projects beyond one year.

Plant pathologist William Feder, of the university's Suburban Experiment Station in Waltham, said they want to be able to tell farmers: "Don't use variety A of squash. Use variety B."

Soviets buy U.S. corn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says the Soviet Union has bought more corn from the United States but is still holding off buying more wheat.

An additional 200,000 metric tons of U.S. corn — about 7.9 million bushels — was bought for delivery in the year that will begin on Oct. 1, the department said Tuesday.

Officials said the sales were reported to USDA by private exporters as required by law. No prices or other details were disclosed, but the latest sales would have an estimated farm value of about $18 million.

Under a five-year agreement, which will begin its third year on Oct. 1, the Soviet Union is committed to buy at least nine million tons of wheat and corn annually. At least four million tons of that must be wheat and four million tons corn.

The report said that so far the Soviets have bought 1.8 million tons of corn and no wheat for delivery in 1985-86.

Constable could be out of Old West

STATE

ROCKDALE (AP) — Thirteen years have passed since H.N. "Spud" Caywood pinned on a lawman's badge, strapped a pistol to his hip and fulfilled a lifelong dream of becoming a law enforcement officer.

Caywood's system of law enforcement is simple. "When I arrest somebody, I try to treat them like I would want them to treat me if I was in their shoes," Caywood said. "I think it has paid off for me."

Caywood, Milam County constable for Precinct 4 — which includes the Rockdale-Thorndale area — operates his constable's office in the rustic surroundings of his gun shop on North Wilcox Street in Rockdale.

Dressed in cowboy clothes, boots and hat, and armed with one of his favorite six-shooters, Caywood, 71, could easily pass for a lawman of the Old West.

Caywood, who said he is a skilled marksman, has never fired his gun in the line of duty.

"When I first got to be a police officer, I had to draw my gun on several people, but I never did have to shoot anybody," Caywood said.

"I always told them that if they ever jumped on me, I was too old and crippled to fight them and that I would have to shoot them. I never did have to shoot anybody.

"There's been some people I was maybe scared of. Well, not really scared. I just wasn't going to get scared, 'cause I would have shot them and I think they all knew it," he said.

The walls of his gun shop are lined with certificates from law enforcement schools, photographs, a collection of pistols and rifles and several valuable mementos. Hanging on a wall is a framed, authentic 19th-century wanted poster of the notorious Texas outlaw Bill Longley.

In the center of a group of photographs is one of his most treasured items — a plaque given to him recently when he was named Milam County Lawman of the Year. Caywood said he cannot understand why he was chosen for the honor.

But to the community, Caywood is a friend as well as a law officer.

"The difference between Spud and other law officers is that Spud adds a human element to law enforcement," said Jay Wilson of Rockdale. "Everbody knows if you have a problem, even if you don't live in his precinct, you can call Spud and Spud will get something done about it."

Caywood said he loves his job, adding that "once you get to be a lawman, you either hate it or you love it." No one enters law enforcement for its pay, he said.

Perhaps the most difficult aspect of the job is arresting friends. But Caywood will give most folks — "unless they are an out-and-out crook" — the opportunity to surrender to him at his gunshop.

"Honest people get charged with things sometimes, too," Caywood said. "I tell them, 'If it was me and you were going to arrest me, I would rather I came to see you than have you come arrest me and bring me in.' That's the way I feel about it and most people feel the same way."

Caywood is described by his friends as one who believes "that what's right is right and what's wrong is wrong."

"It doesn't make any difference whether he knows you or not," Wilson said. "If you are a fellow who has the influence of 50 votes for him and you do something wrong, you go to jail. It's the same for everybody, it makes no difference."

Caywood said he fears that Texas will follow the trend of several other states which have abolished constables.

"If you do away with constables, the small peopl, the ones with the complaints who want to talk to a lawman, regardless of how small a complaint is, ain't going to have nobody, because the deputy sheriffs don't have time to fool with you and the city police don't have time."

During the past 13 years, Caywood has had to cope with changes in the law, and now spends a good bit of time studying legal pamphlets.

"Years ago when I first become a constable, I didn't have to have a warrant to arrest somebody," Caywood said. "I could go get them and put them in jail and go the next day and carry them before a justice of the peace.

"Now, if you don't actually see it happen, you've got to have a warrant before you can do anything. The law has changed so much that you can't do nothing you used to do.

"When I was first sworn in as constable, all I did was raise my hand and got sworn in. They didn't give me a badge, a law book or anything," he said. "I went to different schools, some for burglary, some on alcohol. They teach you investigation and all kinds of things. I even got a certificate for running radar. I've never run radar in my life, but I've got the authority."

Caywood says he is content to be a constable and has no retirement plans.

"I could tell a jillion stories," he said, reflecting on his job. "There have been lots of things that were funny. A lot of them were funny after it was over with, but it wasn't a damn bit funny while it was happening."

Soviet defector: U.S.S.R. doesn't like it if U.S. 'soft'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The United States should not make unilateral concessions to the Soviet Union during the upcoming U.S.-Soviet summit meeting, a former Soviet diplomat says.

Arkady Shevchenko, former under secretary general of the United Nations for the Soviet Union, said the Soviets "do not appreciate if you are soft, if you give them something. They consider you are stupid fools."

Shevchenko made his remarks at a news conference prior to a speech at Trinity University.

The former diplomat, who defected to the United States in 1978, said the Nov. 19-20 summit will be beneficial if the two sides can agree on some guidelines for arms control.

Even though some summits in the past have accomplished little, Shevchenko said "it would be a more dangerous world" if there are no talks at all.

Shevchenko said he is not surprised at the hard line taken Tuesday by new Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Shevardnadze, in a speech at the United Nations, said the United States has "sinister plans" to militarize outer space in a plot that would ignite an uncontrollable and irreversible global arms race.

Taking such a firm stance before a summit is a routine Soviet tactic, Shevchenko said.

"We just have to disregard these harsh pronouncements, particularly if they are before the United Nations," he said.

"For the Soviet Union, it (U.N.) is a propaganda forum," he said.

Shevchenko said the Soviets like to take a hard line before summits because if they make any concessions they can brag about how flexible they are.

Arkady Shevchenko

As a Soviet diplomat, he said, "we always had instructions to take positions impossible to achieve."

One of the reasons the Soviets are so opposed to the Star Wars program, Shevchenko said, is because developing a similar system of their own would cost them a great deal of money.

"They don't like to be engaged in a competition with enormous expenses," he said.

The primary concern in the Soviet Union now, he said, is bolstering the sagging economy.

"The major flaw in the Soviet economy is technological backwardness," he said.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev understands that the future of the Soviet system is in danger with its economy behind the rest of the world, he said.

Eyewitnesses' testimony contradictory in slaying

BROWNWOOD (AP) — Contradictory testimony has been given by the only two eyewitnesses to the slaying of the wife of a wealthy Brownwood man.

The accounts given by a convicted killer and the victim's wife were different as the trial of Michael Leigh Gillett continued here Tuesday.

Gary Don Zackery, 21, who pleaded guilty in the slaying in exchange for a prison sentence, testified against Gillett, who is accused of promising Zackery $100,000 to kill his grandfather, James R. Beadel Jr.

Zackery testified Monday that Gillett promised him $100,000 to kill Beadel.

Prosecutors contend that Gillett wanted Beadel dead so he could share in the estate.

Beadel, who witnessed the shooting, told Brownwood Police Investigator Ray Reven that he and his wife were watching television when the doorbell rang, Reven testified.

"He started to answer the door, but his wife said, 'Wait, let me see who it is,'" Reven said. "He thought he heard Grace say it was Bobby, and he answered the door."

As Beadel opened the door, his wife came to stand behind him, and he "saw a flash, heard a loud bang ... and then Grace was grabbing him," Reven testified.

Beadel's account, as told to the state witnesses, contrasted sharply to what Zackery said Monday.

The convicted killer said Mrs. Beadel opened the door, not Beadel, and Zackery and his victim spoke before he pulled the trigger.

When he saw Beadel walking up behind his wife, Zackery grabbed for his gun, which was standing by the door and fired, he said.

Panel wants to expand cancer-fighting efforts

AUSTIN (AP) — A $7 million fight against cancer in Texas has been launched by the Texas Cancer Council despite protests from some members that the program slighted the eastern part of the state.

The council was created by the 1985 Legislature after a task force appointed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis recommended emergency action to halt the spread of this disease.

Members of the 16-member council indicated Tuesday they would have recommendations for the 1987 Legislature to expand the effort to find and treat cancer in Texas.

Dr. Donald C. Spencer, Austin private physician, and former state Sen. Don Adams, vice chairman of the council, disagreed with a Texas Department of Health plan that would not require hospitals with fewer than 100 beds to report cancer cases.

Hospitals required to make reports would get $6 for the "abstract" of each cancer case, describing in detail the circumstances.

"Most of the hospitals in East Texas are under 100 beds, as well as in South Texas," said Adams, an Austin attorney and lobbyist who formerly was a senator from Jasper.

"Region 7 (which includes most of East Texas) has the highest incidence of cancer in the state but it is not included in the payment for reports on cancer patients," Spencer said.

"It would take only about $100,000 more to get these reports from East Texas," said Dr. Joaquin Cigarroa, Laredo physician.

Dr. Robert Bernstein, state health commissioner, said when the 1985 Legislature cut the apppropriation from $11.7 million to $7 million for the next two years, the Department of Health was forced to ask for cancer reports only from hospitals with more than 100 beds in "high priority" areas for the Texas Cancer Registry.

Bernstein said his department believed these reports would represent about 90 percent of the cancer cases in Texas since they would include the Dallas-Fort Worth and the Beaumont-Port Arthur and Houston areas.

"I am convinced this cancer registry can be the most important thing we do," said Spencer. "I am very anxious we work on a very firm basis."

State Sen Chet Brooks, a member of the council from Pasadena, said he was convinced the 1987 Legislature would "add money to the pot" for the cancer registry if the council's current efforts are successful.

James Dannenbaum, Houston, chairman of the council, said he hoped there might be additional funds from "outside sources" to supplement the cancer registry appropriation.

Bentsen: Waste won't be burned off Texas coast

Hearst Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Research on burning hazardous wastes at sea will not be conducted off the Texas Gulf Coast next year, as the Environmental Protection Agency had planned earlier, according to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

The EPA is expected to issue two research burning permits late this year. Each permit would allow one cruise of an incineration ship, with several ignitions, for areas off the East Coast in the Atlantic Ocean.

"I believe that a solution for disposing of PCB's (polychlorinated biphenyls) and other dangerous wastes must be found, but it is obvious that a lot more work must be done before we can be satisfied that ocean burning is the answer," Bentsen said.

Texas Gov. Mark White, in Washington for a Senate Energy Committee hearing, told reporters he is pleased with the decision. "A hazardous waste spill in the ocean could affect the life cycle of everything that grows in the ocean, and the world."

Bentsen, White and Gulf Coast citizen organizations challenged EPA plans for ocean incineration at hearings Bentsen chaired this summer.

They contended EPA should conduct further tests before approving the new technology.

As a result of those hearings, EPA agreed to conduct additional research burns.

STATE IN BRIEF

Councilman dies while making plumbing repairs

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Port Arthur City Councilman Joseph "Joe" F. Cuccia — owner of a plumbing service — died Tuesday afternoon while making plumbing repairs beneath a house in Groves, authorities said.

"We won't be sure until after the autopsy, but it looks to be accidental electrocution," said Jefferson County Justice of the Peace John Borne. "He was doing some plumbing work under the house when it happened."

Police said they received a telephone call for help about 3:52 p.m. Tuesday from a Groves house where Cucci,52, was replacing water lines. When police arrived, one of Cuccia's co-workers had pulled the councilman's body from under the house.

Cuccia retired in January 1984 from the Port Arthur Police Department, where he had worked 25 years. He was elected councilman in April 1984.

He also owned and operated Cuccia Plumbing Service.

Mauro praises proposition

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Land Commissioner Gary Mauro made a stop in Lubbock to tout a proposition on the Nov. 5 ballot that he says will benefit young farm families.

Proposition 10 earmarks $500 million in state general obligation bonds to fund long-term, low-interest loans for farm land purchases, Mauro said. Eligible ranchers and farmers can purchase at least 50 acres and borrow up to $100,000, he said Tuesday.

To be eligible, applicants must be at least a five-year Texas resident, be a member of a household deriving at least 35 percent of its gross income over the past three years from farming or ranching and have a net worth of less than $250,000.

Lawmaker not running

HOUSTON (AP) — State Rep. Al Edwards has pulled out of Houston's mayoral race — a contest he never officially entered.

When Edwards, D-Houston, began talking about running for mayor last month, he said he was doing so because of issues of concern to minorities — crime, unemployement and housing for example — weren't getting the attention they deserved in city government.

Edwards minced no words Monday in announcing his decision not to run, saying the media never gave his minority-based campaign a chance.

"The media has decided who your two candidates will be," Edwards said in reference to incumbent Mayor Kathy Whitmire and former mayor Louie Welch.

Unpaid taxes collected

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock said Tuesday he collected $1.2 million in unpaid sales taxes after he padlocked five businesses in Dallas and Houston.

"The threat of nasty notoriety has the miraculous effect of turning delinquent taxpayers into law-abiding citizens," Bullock said in a statement.

Bullock said his agency has collected more than $2 million in delinquent taxes from voluntary payments and seizures this month.

"Most of the 400,000 sales tax permit holders have no difficulty taking the customer's tax money and see that it's paid to the government on time. A few delinquents are giving honest merchants a bad name," Bullock said.

UTA enrollment down

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas officials said Tuesday the preliminary fall semester enrollment at UT Austin was 47,833, a .3 percent drop from last fall.

The 1985 total includes 36,633 undergraduates and 11,200 graduate and law students.

The preliminary enrollment figures include 37,017 white students, 1,643 black, 4,273 Hispanic, 1,780 other, including Asian-Americans and native Americans and 3,120 foreign.

Judge named district head

AUSTIN (AP) — State District Judge Weldon Kirk of the 32nd Judiciaal District in Sweetwater was named Tuesday as presiding judge of the Seventh Administrative Judicial District.

Kirby, 59, replaces Judge Ray L. McKim of Odessa, whose term expired.

Gov. Mark White also named state District Judge Curt F. Steib of the 119th Judicial District in San Angelo to be a member of the Texas Judicial Council.

Steib, 65, succeeds Chief Justice John L. Hill of the Texas Supreme Court who now is an ex-officio member of the council.

Man identifies wife's killer in court

MCKINNEY (AP) — A Greenwood, La., man Tuesday identified Toby Williams as the man who fired a bullet that killed his wife and wounded him last Dec. 20.

For more than an hour, Johnny Moore Jr., 26, described for the district court's seven-man, five-woman jury the events leading to the shooting death of his wife, Deborah, 22.

Moore said he was holding his wife in his arms when Williams, who is charged with first-degree murder, fired a single shot from the 30-30 rifle.

"I reached down to give my wife a kiss on the neck. And when I did, I just went backwards," Moore said.

On Monday, Victoria Hinton, 25, testified that she was not thinking of murder when she, Williams and a 16-year-old girl robbed the Louisiana couple.

The two were shot after being driven to Texas because Williams feared they could identify him and his helpers, Ms. Hinton told the jury.

Ms. Hinton said she and the other two went to the Moore home in northwest Louisiana to rob them.
