Edwin Meese, North met frequently

Officials say Meese approved actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney Gen. Edwin Meese III met with Lt. Col. Oliver L. North before the Iran-Contra affair unraveled last fall, on a more regular basis than the attorney general has acknowledged, according to a knowledgable government source.

Meese, who led an administration inquiry into North's activities last November, has said he held perhaps a dozen meetings with the former National Security Council aide, none discussing aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Appearing Sunday on ABC-TV, Meese declined to answer questions about his meetings or involvement with North.

According to current and former administration sources who spoke on condition of anonymity, the attorney general met often with North and, according to one source, as frequently as almost every week during a period from late 1985 through much of 1986.

However, Meese spokesman Terry Eastland said Sunday night that Meese could recall no meetings with North beyond the dozen he has acknowledged during 1985 and 1986.

North at the time was arranging the sale of U.S.-made weapons to Iran and developing a private network to supply the Contras during a congressional ban on U.S. military aid.

In a related matter, one source said the federal grand jury investigating the Iran-Contra affair has been told that complaints by other NSC aides to then-National Security Adviser Rear Admiral John M. Poindexter about North's activities were dismissed with a claim they had been reviewed for legality by the attorney general.

Meese, appearing Sunday on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," said he would answer questions when he is called to testify before the congressional Iran-Contra investigating committees.

"I'm not going to be lured into commenting on this matter," Meese said. "I will comment plenty when I have the opportunity to testify, or at an appropriate time when the facts are all out there. But I think there is no question in my mind that I have at no time done anything improper or illegal, and that my opportunity for comment will come."

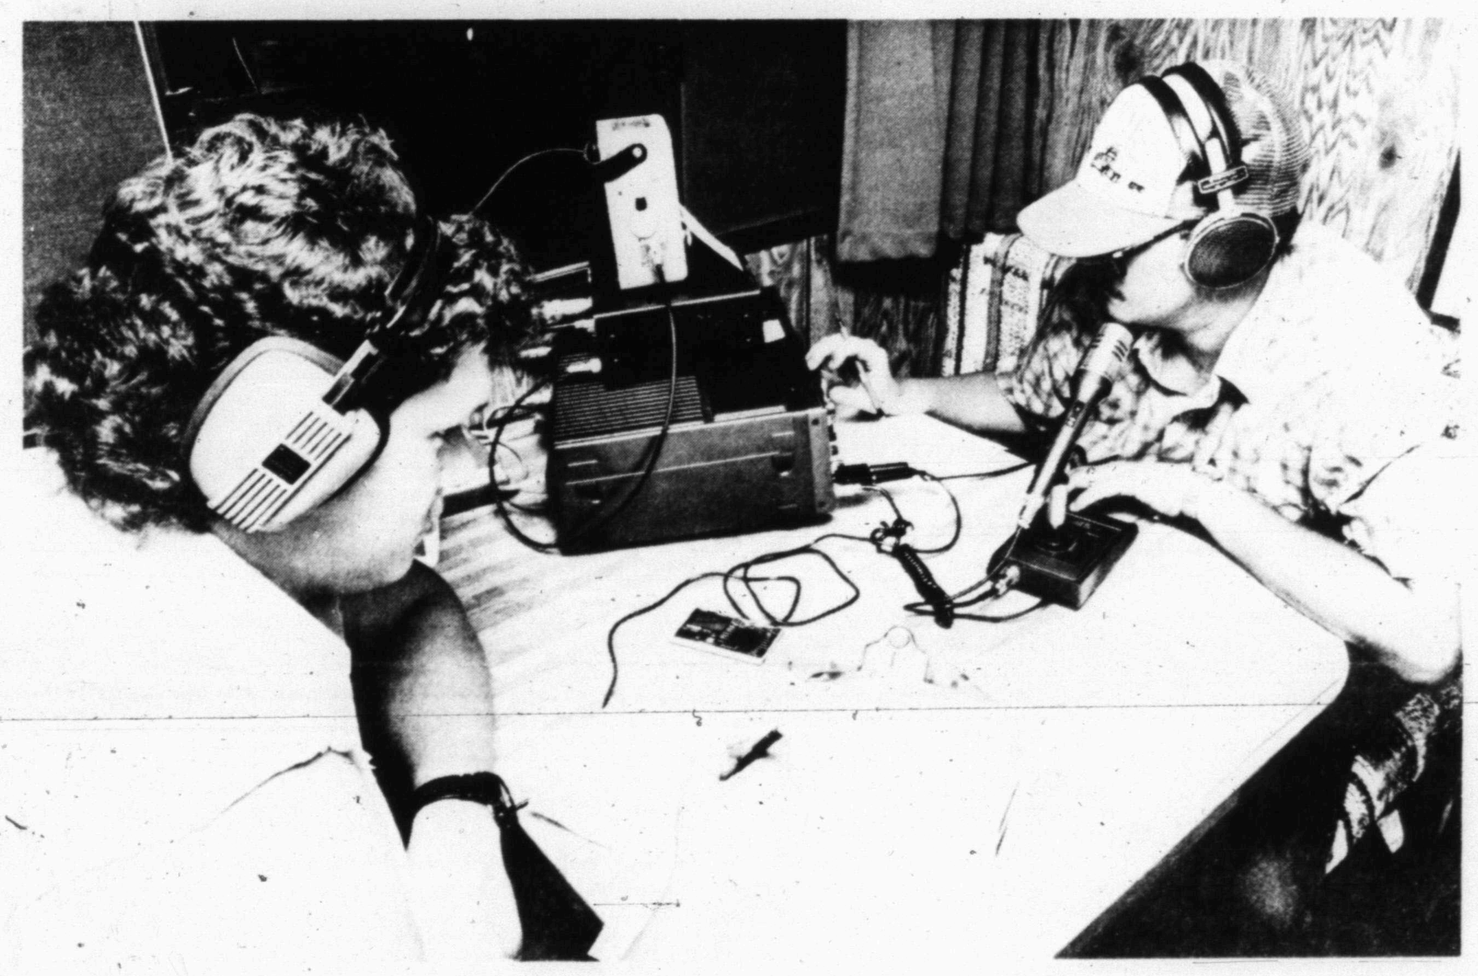

Eastland said later that Meese did not give any legal opinions or clearances for North's activities.

Asked about Meese's meetings with North, Eastland last week cited Meese's earlier statements that he had met perhaps a dozen times. Late Sunday he added that Meese could recall no meetings alone with North and the NSC staff counsel, Cmdr. Paul B. Thompson, who a source said sat in on some of their sessions.

Eastland declined to answer questions regarding North and Meese's agenda during their meetings, except to say counterterrorism "is one of the matters they typically discussed." North's job description made him responsible for counterterrorism matters at the NSC.

2 issues officially off ballot

Court removes 1611, tax question

County commissioners Monday removed two non-binding referendum issues — one to renew efforts to extend FM 1611 and one to combine county tax collections — from the Aug. 8 ballot following a discussion with County Attorney Mike Line.

Line noted that other questions concerning the special election prompted him to contact Tom Harrison, an attorney with the secretary of state's office in Austin. According to Harrison, the state's election code prohibits any action not specifically granted by statute.

"Normally, when an entity cannot find preventative legal language, governmental bodies can normally proceed. But the election code is just the opposite. We must have a specific statute," Line said.

Currently, statutes exist which allow city governments and the state to include non-binding items.

Line added that Rep. Steve Carriker (D-Roby) has been contacted. Carriker indicated he will pursue passage of a bill to change the election code.

If a bill was to be introduced and passed in the current special session, the two measures could appear on the ballot as early as November.

Also Monday, Line informed commissioners they must hold a public hearing before setting a speed limit for County Road 3236 south of Lake J.B. Thomas. The court must also publish a notice of public hearing in the local newspaper at least seven days prior to the hearing.

Although the state law governing speed limits indicates the sheriff's department will be responsible for enforcement of the limit, court members asked Line to determine if the lake patrol and Department of Public Safety officers may also have jurisdiction in the area.

Commissioners indicated a public hearing on the matter will be held during their July 13 session.

In other action, court members accepted a proposal from Dennis Plan Administration Corp. of Dallas to implement a Flexible Benefits Plan for county employees to begin Aug. 1. The company is represented locally by Gilbert Merritt.

Pct. 4 Commissioner Ted Billingsley abstained from the vote.

Under the plan, employees will be able to deduct certain expenses, such as child care and medical expenses, from their paychecks before deductions are made for Social Security and income tax.

The company will charge an initial $700 fee to implement computer changes and a $3 fee for each employee enrolled in the program.

During Monday's session,

Jurors dismissed with plea

A jury panel summoned for duty in 132nd District Court Monday morning was dismissed after the trial defendant entered a guilty plea.

Christopher Thompson, 27, of 812 32nd St. now faces an eight-year term in the Texas Department of Corrections. He pleaded guilty to forgery by passing of a check.

Thompson was charged with passing a stolen check in Snyder on Jan. 15. The check, made out in the amount of $20, was to a closed account owned by a Gainesville man.

Thompson's offense was "enhanced" — therefore carrying higher possible penalties — due to two previous felony con-

ISD budget sessions set to open Monday

The budgets for Snyder's six elementary schools, the athletic department and the transportation department will be scrutinized Monday as the school board begins week-long budget study sessions.

The Monday meeting is expected to run from 7 until 10 p.m. at the school administration building.

The budget workshops will continue Tuesday from 6 until 10 p.m. To be studied at that session will be the high school budget and the maintenance department cost estimate.

Also Tuesday, the board will consider a slate of other agenda items.

On Wednesday, trustees will continue the maintenance budget and will view the proposal for operating costs at the junior high. This meeting will be conducted from 4:30 until 7 p.m.

The Thursday session will include a salary study report profiling the wages of the district's paraprofessional staff to include aides, secretaries and maintenance workers. This report has been completed by Cindy Holdway of the Texas Association of School Boards and will be given at 5 p.m.

Until 10 p.m. Thursday, the board is to then consider the administration budget.

A continuation of this budget session is slated "if necessary" Friday.

'Hams' contact 50 states

Members of the Snyder Amateur Radio Club, participating this past weekend in a ham operators field test sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, made contact with some 316 other "hams" in all 50 states.

The nationwide event is to test the ability of the radio operators to receive and send messages under field conditions.

In addition to contacts in the continental U.S., club members say they were able to reach persons in Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

The excercise was conducted for a 24-hour period beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday. The group set up near the radio tower north of Snyder. Some 15 members of the local club participated.

Blood effort tomorrow...

Trip offer among drive's incentives

Donors participating in Tuesday's blood drive could win a trip for four to Washington, D.C.

The Pursuit of Happiness Sweepstakes, sponsored by United Blood Services of Lubbock, is among the incentives to be offered local donors. The drive is set from noon to 8 p.m. in Towle Park Barn.

The location has been moved from the National Guard Armory.

Other incentives to be offered include a coupon book containing six coupons from Golden Corral Steak House and a coupon for a free malt or milk shake from Sonic Drive In in association with Gandy's Dairies.

Every fifth donor will also receive a free six pack of Dr. Pepper from the Dr. Pepper Pepsi Bottling Co. of Sweetwater and every sixth donor will be given a coupon for a personal pan pizza courtsey of Pizza Hut.

Lawrence IGA will again donate cookies for all blood drive participants.

Officials with United Blood Services are emphasizing a special need for persons with blood group "O" to donate.

Group "O" blood can, in an emergency situation, be transfused into almost any individual of any blood type. As a result, it is often needed in hospital emergency rooms to use in severe trauma cases until blood of the patient's correct group can be obtained.

With the increased travel seen during the summer months, severe accidents may occur and with these the increased need for group "O" blood rises.

Officials also note that all blood groups are regularly needed and used in the normal everyday needs of a blood bank.

Those furnishing outdoor sign advertising for the drive include Bar-H-Bar, Ben Wilson Supply, Burgess-McWilliams Pharmacy, Golden Corral Steak House, Kmart, Pizza Hut, Scurry County Coliseum, Showcase Video and Texas Taco.

Local drives are sponsored by the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary and the United Blood Services advisory council.

Ask Us

Q. — Why did SCAT put the new station KJTV on Channel 10 instead of Channel 7?

A. — SCAT opted to replace the Lifetime Channel rather than C-SPAN, which provides coverage of congressional hearings, "because of technical considerations and due to the popularity of C-SPAN on Channel 7," SCAT officials say.

In Brief

Wins condo

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman browsing at a weekend auction of homes foreclosed on by the Veterans Administration walked off with a free house.

"I'm very excited," Kim White said Sunday after the one-bedroom, one-bathroom condominium was awarded to her in a drawing. "I've never won anything before."

Mrs. White's new condo once listed in the mid-$20,000 range and was given away free as the final property at the auction.

Local

Booster meet

The Snyder All Sports Booster Club will hold a meeting Monday at 7 p.m. at 4512 Houston to elect 1987-88 officers and to plan next year's fund raisers.

All parents and fans are invited.

Mail holiday

Snyder post office officials announced Monday that the facility will observe a holiday schedule beginning Friday in connection with July 4th.

On Friday, mail will be delivered as usual to both postal boxes and the city and rural routes, but the post office service desk will be closed at noon.

The facility will be closed completely Saturday with no mail delivered.

City budget

City councilmen will hold a budget workshop at 6:30 p.m. Monday in council chambers at city hall.

The council will also discuss insurance needs with Jim Leonard, representative of Arthur Gallagher and Co. of Dallas.

Correction...

In last Friday's Ask Us question, it was reported that both the county and college offer an exemption on property value for taxing purposes to persons who have reached age 65. The county offers such an exemption, but the college does not.

Rev. Jesse Jackson:...

Put Hispanic on high court

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The League of United Latin American Citizens' decision to move its 1989 convention from Arizona in protest of the governor's cancellation of the Martin Luther King Jr. state holiday will help unite Blacks and Hispanics, the Rev. Jesse Jackson said.

"It will send a message to all of the citizens of the United States as well as the rest of the country," the potential presidential candidate said at LULAC's national convention Sunday.

Officials with the 100,000 member organization voted this week to move the convention to another state in response to the action by Arizona Gov. Evan Mecham, a Republican who took office in January.

Mecham rescinded the executive order by former Gov. Bruce Babbitt, which Babbitt issued last year after the state legislature turned down a move to make the slain civil rights leader's birthday a paid state holiday.

Jackson said the action by LULAC will help foster the "joint venture" he proposed the two minority groups enter on economic and political issues.

More than 5,200 attended the 1987 convention, which ended Sunday, and pumped about $1.5 million into the city's economy, convention officials said.

Jackson also called for a Hispanic appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court, as a replacement for retiring Justice Lewis Powell.

Appearances Sunday by Jackson and fellow presidential contender Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., before members of the nation's largest Hispanic organization bring to eight the total number of candidates campaigning here this week.

"There are blacks, whites, males and females (on the Supreme Court)," Jackson said. "This is a propitious moment to raise the issue at every level of the American society and make that court more representative and make it more fair."

The 45-year-old Baptist minister, who received 21 percent of the Democratic presidential primary and caucus votes in 1984, also said he would put a Hispanic in his Cabinet, as at least three other candidates have said.

He said his priorities would include providing funding for prenatal care, higher teacher pay, and lower costs for tuition, housing and health care.

Jackson criticized the movement to amend the Constitution to make English the official national language,and called for an end to funding for the Nicaraguan "Contra" rebels.

Sen. Simon also came out against the Contras and the "English Only" amendment, and called for closer ties with Mexico.

"In a Paul Simon administration, instead of sending weapons to fund the Contras to defeat Marxism, we are going to send teachers and students and Peace Corps volunteers, because that is the effective way to move down there to respond to the needs of the people," Simon said.

INS may beef up officers during upcoming papal visit

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Immigration officials have no clear idea how many people from Mexico will be coming to Texas for the September visit of Pope John Paul II.

But the Immigration and Naturalization Service may shift personnel from across the nation to major Mexican ports of entry to process the crowds.

"We're questioning our ports of entry as to what they will need," said Mario Ortiz, spokesman for the southern region of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

A plan to handle the crowds should be in place by mid-August, Ortiz said. Officers from throughout the country could be moved to the southern border with only a 24-hour notice.

Church officials are expecting up to 125,000 Mexican worshipers for the pope's Sept. 13 Mass near San Antonio.

Jerry D. Neighbors, Del Rio port director, said he planned to base his crowd estimate for the papal visit on talks with the local U.S. Consulate, area Catholic bishops and the chamber of commerce in Ciudad Acuna, Mexico. A firm prediction will be difficult.

"You can't just go across the border and take a poll and say, 'Hey, are you going to see the pope?'" Neighbors said.

Workers often are shifted from other ports of entry for crackdowns on problem spots along the border, he said. But moving people for a specific event is uncommon.

The U.S. Customs Service had not made special arrangements at the border to handle the influx, and hours-long delays could be possible.

Dear Abby

Father Pleads With Son To End His Long Silence

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I hope this reaches you in time to make your Father's Day column. It's a message to my son:

"Dear Son: I haven't heard from you in several years, but want you to know that you are our last thought in the evening and our first thought every morning. Your sisters cannot understand why you have not at least contacted them. The situation has changed totally since you left home. There is no reason for you not to contact us. We want you to know that there is a big hole in our lives where you belong. You are a young man now, and there is so much we want to know about you: Where are you? What are you doing? Are you married? Do we have grandchildren?

"It would be the greatest Father's Day gift in the world if you would just pick up the phone and call me — collect. If I could just hear your voice and know that you were all right, I would cry for joy. If you can't come home, please let us know where you are, and we will come to you.

"No matter what happened since you left, you are still our son, and we love you. With tears, Your Father".

Abby, we pray that you will print this, that our son sees it and calls us. But even if he doesn't, maybe it will be read by someone else's son, and he will call his parents. And that will have made this effort worthwhile.

WJL

DEAR WJL: Although your letter missed the Father's Day deadline, it's worth space in this column any day. Please write again and let me know if by some miracle your son calls. And if someone's daughter has left home years ago, I hope this message inspires her to make that call. I cannot imagine a greater pain the human heart endures than that caused by a missing child.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Our son sent out high school graduation announcements to all our relatives — many live out of town. (We have a large family.) He received some very nice gifts — some checks, too. Maybe you have already guessed what the problem is. He flunked his final examinations for two classes, and he didn't graduate.

He plans to go to summer school and make up the credits he is short, but we aren't sure what we should do about the gifts and checks. Maybe some of your readers have had this happen to them. If so, how did they handle it? And how would you handle it if you had that problem? To be perfectly honest, we knew he was on thin ice, and told him not to be in such a hurry to send out the graduation announcements, but he wouldn't listen.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: If it were my problem, I'd ask my son to write to all the gift givers, thank them for the gift and tell them he did not graduate with his class, but plans to attend summer school to make it up.

If he does not make it up in summer school, he should return the gifts, with his thanks and an apology for his hastiness.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Could you please settle a dispute between us? Is it possible for a woman to rape a man? My wife says no way! I say that although it's unlikely, it has probably occurred. My guess would be between a woman and a teen-age boy.

Also, can a woman rape another woman?

TOM AND KATHLEEN IN FLORIDA

DEAR T. AND K.: My trusted legal adviser, Arthur Groman, says the answer is yes to both questions.

Your Birthday

Tuesday, June 30, 1987

There is going to be a pleasant turnaround in financial conditions in the year ahead. This could be one of your luckiest cycles where money is concerned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Use your common sense regarding who you take into your confidence today. Nothing will be achieved by telling your troubles to people who can't help. Major changes are ahead for Cancers in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even if you are not treated as kindly as you think you should be by an acquaintance today, don't lower yourself to his level by responding in a like fashion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't take credit for someone else's ideas at work today. You'll fare better in the long run by being first to acknowledge the author.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Things will go smoother for you today if you don't take yourself or others too seriously. Be at peace in the knowledge that anything that goes wrong can be mended.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll have better luck today if you work through a competent intermediary. Pick someone who knows the ropes — and all the angles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you'll be innovative and imaginative, but also a bit impatient. This could cause you to put a bright concept into action prematurely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep both outsiders and in-laws out of your confidential family affairs today. People from either classification could upset something that should go without a hitch.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Take extra pains with any project assignments for which you're responsible today. You'll be the one held accountable, even if others make the mistakes.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your material prospects look very encouraging today, but your possibilities for personal gain aren't apt to come from chancy enterprises.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An associate who likes you will cover for you today. He'll repeat what you should have said instead of what you did say.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Gains and losses can be balanced out today if you conduct your affairs wisely. Decreases in one area can be recouped by what you pick up in another.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In your dealings with others today, be careful not to jump to conclusions. Their suggestions have merit if you take time to listen.

CLASSIFIEDS ARE FOR EVERYONE!

Legislators are urging application flexibility

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — Mexican and U.S. congressmen, ending their 27th Interparliamentary Meeting, called for flexibility in applying the new U.S. immigration law and agreed to step up cooperation in battle against narcotics trafficking.

In a joint communique Sunday at the close of the two days of talks in this Caribbean resort, the congressmen also said Central American peace efforts should be revived and strengthened.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of the four-member U.S. Senate delegation, said the Simpson-Rodino immigration law "provoked some hot discussion" and "some annoyance on the part of the Americans here because they thought they had done a good job with that law."

"I think there was some disappointment that there was as much criticism of the law," Dodd told reporters after the closed sessions.

Mexican complaints about the law included the handling of paperwork for undocumented workers applying for legal residency under a one-year amnesty and for a temporary worker program, and the division of families when not all members qualify to stay in the United States.

The U.S. delegation stressed that "unfortunate discrepancies had arisen between the spirit" of the law and its application through regulations, the communique said.

The communique also called for the use of "peaceful means and negotiation" to find a solution to the Central American conflicts.

Mexico opposes the Reagan administration's support for Contra rebels fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government, as does Dodd.

Discussions of drug issues, Dodd said, were "a love-in" in comparison with recent years when the subject was a a main source of tension between the countries.

New York Reps. Charles B. Rangel and Benjamin Gilman said the delegations agreed to try to obtain specific targets and timetables for drug eradication and seizure in the joint Mexico-U.S. drug control program.

The communique was less specific, but called for several actions, including updating laws on drug trafficking and abuse, exchange of information, education to combat drug abuse and formation of a commission agreed upon at last year's meeting.

"We trust each other's commitment" to combat illegal drugs, "but we're losing the war," Rangel said in a interview.

Rangel chairs the Select Committee on Narcotics and Gilman is its ranking Republican.

The proposed commission of congressmen and officials from both countries would monitor the anti-drug efforts and recommend improvements.

Mexico is the largest supplier of heroin and marijuana and a transit point for nearly one-third of the cocaine used in the United States.

Mexican Rep. Juan Jose Bremer, of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, told reporters a U.S. anti-drug law passed last year "hurts our spirit of cooperation and our mutual confidence."

He won the spade ace, played king and a diamond to dummy's ace, and then took the ruffing finesse in hearts. That enabled him to pitch his two losing spades on dummy's good heart honors and bring in the contract.

This winning play risked nothing. Even if East had the nine of hearts, South could still fall back on playing East for both spade honors. And a reasonable split in diamonds would give declarer enough dummy entries to take that double finesse.

Spotlight on a spot-card

By James Jacoby

Seymon Deutsch of Laredo was South in today's deal. Watch his action. Despite his strong hand, South was content to overcall only one diamond since he did not expect his bid to be passed out. When North raised and East bid two hearts, Seymon introduced his spade suit. After North rebid diamonds on the three-level, East bid four clubs and South closed the auction with five diamonds.

With a club led, declarer had his problems. He was off a club and a heart, and it therefore looked as though he needed both the queen and the jack of spades to be with East to avoid a spade loser. But there was one other possibility. What if East held the A-K of hearts, but West had the nine? That was worth a try, so Seymon promptly led the heart eight at trick two and played low from dummy. East did what he could, false-carding by winning with the ace. East then cashed a club before leading a spade, but declarer was ahead of the game.

Texan is named grand champion

WEISER, Idaho (AP) — Six days of intense fiddling ended in the Weiser High School auditorium Saturday night when Jimmie Don Bates of Austin, Texas, was declared the grand champion of the 1987 National Oldtime Fiddlers' Contest.

He outfiddled 19 other contestants who competed in the grand champion division, including Randy Pollard, the 1986 defending champion. Pollard did not survive the final cut that determined the five finalists, who played the final round.

During the afternoon, the 20 went bow-to-bow to determine who would play in the finals and try for the $1,400 top prize. Two Idahoans were among the top 10 who stepped on the stage with two guitarists each to play a hoedown, a waltz and a song of their choice.

Economists urge relocating farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Instead of spending billions on commodity programs, the government should buy surplus land and help farmers move into other jobs, economist Lester C. Thurow says.

"Those in farming and related industries should be retrained and relocated, voluntarily, of course, to areas where jobs are available," said Thurow, the newly appointed dean of the Sloan School of Management at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"The sum that we now spend on farm subsidies would go a long way toward paying for such programs."

In areas of marginal production, Thurow said, entire farms should be purchased and permanently retired. The government has been operating a "whole-herd buyout" program for dairy cows in an effort to curb surplus milk production, and "there's no reason why we can't do the same for land," he said.

Thurow made his comments in an article, "Time to Retrain the American Farmers," in the current issue of Technology Review, an MIT publication.

What Thurow recommends would sanction as official policy much of the attrition that has occurred in agriculture over many years. The number of farms has been declining, people have been moving off the land, and small-town America built on local agriculture has been fading since at least World War II.

"To do what we do now — pay farmers not to produce — is to pretend that at some point in the not-too-distant future these farmers and their land will go back into production," Thurow said. "This sort of system discourages the very transitions that must be encouraged."

Thurow said a system of transitional aid for farmers and surrounding communities is the "only one realistic option" available to policymakers.

"This option, of course, is not attractive politically since those who would be aided by such a program don't want to leave farming," he said. "Furthermore, those who represent farmers don't wish to see them leave. As farm states become depopulated, some of the politicians will lose their constituents and their jobs."

Thurow said most of the underdeveloped world has benefited from improved technology used to produce more food.

Real gold is a real problem

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I can wear white gold with no problem, but yellow gold turns my fingers black. What in my body chemistry causes this?

DEAR READER — I don't know. Usually the reverse is true, because white gold contains a higher concentration of other metals, such as nickel. Other readers have written me about similar problems with gold. I would appreciate hearing from anyone who can solve this mystery.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am worried about my sister. She's overweight and has borderline diabetes, gallbladder problems and intermittent high blood pressure. During the last year she's been popping blood vessels in her eyes. They look horrible and cause her pain. Her doctors aren't concerned, but I am.

DEAR READER — So am I. Obesity, diabetes and hypertension often go together. These diseases are a bad combination because they accelerate arteriosclerosis and vascular damage.

Your sister should find a doctor who is concerned about her problems and will help her do something about them. Losing weight would be an appropriate beginning.

To give you and your sister more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. Other readers who want a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Do you consider the basal temperature test valid for initial diagnosis of low thyroid?

DEAR READER — If taken properly, the basal temperature will be low in patients with hypothyroidism. However, it is a cumbersome method that most people find too difficult to follow precisely.

Blood tests for thyroid disease are quicker and more accurate. By ordering a T4 test, your doctor can tell you with certainty, in a couple of days, if your thyroid gland is underactive. In addition, the basal temperature can be lower than normal in patients with metabolic diseases that are not related to the thyroid. Therefore, even if you take your temperature in the recommended way, you still won't know exactly what the problem is.

In my opinion, blood tests are the way to go. Basal temperatures are best used by women who need to know the time of ovulation so that they can become pregnant.

Supreme Court...

Nomination expected within 2 weeks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan likely will nominate a successor to retiring Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell within the next two weeks, said Attorney General Edwin Meese III, who called for speedy Senate action on the nominee.

"I think the president will try to make that nomination quickly and I would think within the next week, or two weeks at the most," Meese said Sunday on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley."

"And that means that definitely it is imperative that the Senate commence hearings on that nomination before the August recess, so that they can have a justice in place through the whole process in time for the October sessions in court," Meese said.

Reagan, returning Sunday from a weekend at Camp David, Md., refused to answer reporters' questions about his intentions regarding the Supreme Court appointment.

However, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr. had indicated to him that the selection process had not begun, but that a meeting was scheduled for today.

"It's my impression that the president and the attorney general and the chief of staff will meet tomorrow to begin the process in earnest of considering who," Biden said Sunday on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

Reagan said he will move swiftly to fulfill what he called "one of the most significant duties of my office."

Powell made the surprise announcement Friday that he was retiring from the nation's highest court after 15½ years. The 79-year-old justice cited health problems and age as the reasons for his decision.

Throughout his tenure, Powell avoided the rigid ideology that at times isolated the court's liberal and conservative wings. He was considered the court's pivotal vote, siding with "pro-choice" forces on abortion while voting conservatively on law-and-order issues.

Biden, whose committee is the first stop for judicial nominees, emphasized the importance of a balanced court in light of Powell's record.

"I think that if they try to find someone in Justice Powell's mold, there will be little or no problem in confirmation," Biden said. "Conversely, if ... there is a desire to move to ... someone who has predisposition on every one of the major issues and the social issues and wishes to move the court in the direction that's where it was 20-25 years ago, I think there will be some controversy."

The legality of abortion and future vitality of programs advancing minorities and women, among numerous other critical issues, may be at stake when Reagan picks a successor to Powell. And the president's decision could shape American life and the nation's law well into the 21st century.

Possible candidates mentioned for Powell's job include U.S. Circuit Judge Robert H. Bork, Republican Sen. Orrin G. Hatch of Utah and two other appeals court judges, Robert A. Posner of Chicago and J. Clifford Wallace of San Diego.

Meese said there will be "a considerable list" of people and did not rule out candidates without a judicial background.

Biden, interviewed in Los Angeles, noted that despite the speculation on the list of candidates, none has been mentioned by administration officials.

Dad plans to revive lawsuit

DALLAS (AP) — The father of a child slain 11 years ago in the Fort Worth mansion owned by oilman Cullen Davis says he plans to seek a new trial of his $16.5 million wrongful death lawsuit against Davis.

In the first trial, which ended June 22 with the jury reporting it was hopelessly deadlocked, car dealer Jack Wilborn had sought $16.5 million from Davis for the wrongful death of Andrea Wilborn, 12. Jurors were deadlocked, 8-4, in favor of returning a judgment against Davis.

The girl was shot to death in the Davis mansion Aug. 2, 1976. Davis' ex-wife, Priscilla, was wounded. Her boyfriend, Stan Farr, was shot to death and a friend, Gus Gavrel Jr., was also wounded.

Priscilla Davis, the mother of Andrea Wilborn, contends that Davis, then her husband, was the "man in black" who carried out the shootings.

Wilborn said Sunday he was heartened when he learned that jurors had almost reached the 10-2 verdict required for civil suits in Texas. He said he and his lawyers are convinced they can win the case a second time around.

"I wouldn't plan on going back if I didn't," Wilborn said. "When we go back, there will be things brought out that they have never been brought out before."

He did not elaborate.

One of Wilborn's lawyers, Hal Monk, said Sunday he is optimistic about retrying the case.

"We won 8-4, that would be a good score in a baseball game," Monk said. "I still think the jury system is the best way of solving disputes, but I think it just didn't work this time."

Wilborn said he had not discussed the possiblity of another trial with Mrs. Davis.

Two guardsmen recount helicopter's 'wild flight'

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — Two National Guardsmen said investigators gave scant attention to their report that a helicopter appeared to be on a wild joyride before it crashed at Fort Hood, killing all 10 people aboard.

"We've seen a lot of choppers fly over around there but we'd never seen any guys hotdogging the way they did," said Sgt. Roy Villareal, 28, an eight-year guard veteran with the 133rd Field Artillery of the 49th Armored Division, speaking of the helicopter's last airborne minutes.

"They were like, you know, showing off to the people that were in the chopper," he told the Austin American-Statesman. "They were playing with their lives."

The guardsmen told the newspaper they were interviewed for less than 10 minutes by senior officers investigating the June 22 crash of a UH-1 Huey helicopter during annual summer training exercises.

Six-year guard veteran Pfc. James Mayo, 23, who is in the same unit as Villareal, said he and Villareal watched the helicopter for 20 to 25 minutes before the crash.

"I was in the trees and all the trees just opened up 'cause he (the pilot) was so low the wind just spread all the trees apart," Mayo said. "You could see the crew chief. His leg would fly out like this, hang out when they'd make the turn, and you could see where he was trying to hold his leg in but they'd be hanging out like this. If those guys weren't strapped in, they'd have all fell out."

Both men said they watched the helicopter because its flight path was so unusual, sometimes banking at 80- to 90-degree angles. They said investigators appeared skeptical.

"When we told them what we saw they looked at each other like 'These guys don't know what they are talking about,'" said Villareal said.

A message was left at Ft. Hood for comment on the men's statements, but the spokesman on duty did not return the call to The Associated Press on Sunday.

The newspaper said the statements from the two men were consistent with accounts given by two other witnesses interviewed by the newspaper.

Spokesman for the National Guard have not described the helicopter's mission other than to say it was on an "orientation flight." The newspaper said the Army and National Guard refused to provide the names, ranks, duties or postings of members of the investigation team.

BOY'S ALL-STAR GAMES TONIGHT

The 8-9 Year-Old and Farm League all-star games are scheduled to get underway at Logan Field early this evening.

The 8-9 Year-Old League will hold its all-star game at 6:30 p.m. It will be followed by the annual Farm League contest.

Little League All-Stars will be announced following the Farm League game.

MAKES THE THROW -- Tornadoes' second baseman Haley Brown makes a good throw to first base to get a runner out during a game of the Division I girl's softball tournament, held last weekend at Towle Park. The Tornadoes took third place in the tournament which was won by the Wildcats. The Jets were second. (SDN Staff Photo)

USGA CLOSING CEREMONIES

Closing ceremonies for the local girl's softball league will be held Tuesday evening in Towle Park at approximately 8:15.

The ceremonies are due to start following the final regularly-scheduled game of the season between the Comets and the Blue Angels. That contest is set for a 6:30 p.m. start.

All-star teams will be announced at the end of the closing ceremonies.

GIRL'S SOFTBALL
DIVISION I TOURNAMENT
E.D. Walton Wildcats 16,
Frontier Petroleum Jets 2

Mandy Baker slugged a triple and Nicole Lawrence added a single but it wasn't enough as the Jets ran out of steam in the second and final championship game of the Division I Tournament on Saturday.

The Wildcats put together a six-hit attack to win the tournament. The attack included a double and a single from Jodi White and a double from Mendy Winter. Shauna Huddleston, Jennifer Hancock and Christy Whitney contributed a single apiece.

Erin Maytubby was the winning pitcher.

Wildcats 7, Jets 5

The Wildcats forced a second championship game with this victory Friday evening, then went on to capture the crown in the girl's Division I Tournament.

Four fourth-inning runs provided the difference for the 'Cats. Shauna Huddleston rapped two singles in a five-hit attack while Melissa Beall, Mendy Winter and Christy Whitney added one apiece. Jodi White took WP honors.

The Jets got a triple from Gwen Loper, a double from Kristina Kornegay, two singles from Monica Barboza and one single from Michelle Silva.

Wildcats 5, Police Auxiliary Tornadoes 3

Mendy Winter plugged a triple and Jennifer Hancock, Belinda McCoy, Christy Whitney and winning hurler Jodi White punched a single apiece to lift the Wildcats to a hard-fought win over the Tornadoes.

The Tors came up with three hits, including a triple from Monica Harbin. Amy Vaughn and Brandy Fisk knocked one single each.

Wildcats 11, Musslewhite, Y-Z Shamrocks 9

The Wildcats cracked a half-dozen hits, including two singles from Jennifer Hancock, to erase the Shamrocks in Game 8 of the Division I Tournament.

Mendy Winter, winning pitcher Erin Maytubby, Christy Whitney and Belinda McCoy each popped a single for the 'Cats.

The Shamrocks also managed six hits. Haley Ingram and Brooke Gladson knocked two singles each and Katie Thornton and Bridget Moore added one single each.

Jets 2, Tornadoes 1

There were only two hits recorded in this low-scoring contest, which was one of the best of the girl's tournament.

Tabitha Dunham lashed a single for the Jets while Amy Vaughn popped a double for the Tornadoes.

Nicole Lawrence was the winning pitcher. Jami Brown did a fine job pitching for the Tors.

Wildcats 10, Depot Video Blue Jays 7

Jodi White slammed a double and a single and took winning pitcher honors to lead the Wildcats past the Blue Jays in Game 6 of the tournament.

Jennifer Hancock and Amy King each cracked two singles for the Wildcats. Brandi Bates and Mendy Winter added one single each.

The Jays were led by Stephanie Hernandez's home run. Andrea Corkran and Ashley Lewis drilled a single each.

Shamrocks 16, Dairy Queen Red Hots 12

Winning pitcher Jessica Rocha clubbed three singles and teammates Bridget Moore and Haley Ingram added two each as the Shamrocks overcame the Red Hots.

Katie Thornton and Brooke Gladson chipped in a single each for the winners.

The Red Hots were led by Michelle Roemisch's double and single. Katie Potts, Heather Ward, Rita Rubio and Lyndee Brown uncorked two singles apiece for the Red Hots. Amber Duncan and Holli Burns added one single each.

Wimbledon roundup...

Martina, Shriver win easily

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Defending women's champion Martina Navratilova and fifth-seeded Pam Shriver advanced to the fourth round at Wimbledon today with straight-set victories in all-American matches.

Navratilova, aiming for a record sixth consecutive singles title, defeated Peanut Harper 6-2, 6-2, while Shriver, who plays doubles with the top seed, beat Beth Herr, also 6-2, 6-2.

For the 12th time in the tournament, a seed was eliminated. Ros Fairbank of South Africa ousted women's ninth-seeded Bettina Bunge of West Germany 7-6, 6-4, closing the match with an ace.

The second week of the grass-court Grand Slam tournament opened under decidedly different conditions than the first.

A week ago, the opening day was rained out, and bad weather claimed another 1½ days of the next five.

But British summer was in force Monday, with hazy sunshine, high humidity and temperatures expected in the mid-80s.

Not much had changed, however, for Navratilova, and Shriver. Both moved into the final 16 without having lost a set.

Harper used well-placed groundstrokes to take as many games from Navratilova as the defending champion had lost in her two matches combined.

But Navratilova's serves and volleys were too strong and she wrapped up match in 47 minutes, losing just five points on her serve on Court No. 2.

She served seven aces, including match point, and just three faults, meaning she had to make a second serve just three times, as she stretched her Wimbledon winning streak to 38 matches.

Shriver, playing on Court No. 1, also used a strong serve-and-volley game to beat Herr.

Also winning in the women's draw was Mary Joe Fernandez of the United States, beating another American, Alycia Moulton, 7-6, 6-2. Fernandez, a 16-year-old from Miami, ousted 13th-seeded Barbara Potter on Friday.

The men's field was wide open as the second week started, following the ouster last Friday of defending champion Boris Becker of West Germany.

It also has seen the emergence of a "Yankee killer," Alexander Volkov of the Soviet Union.

Ranked 503rd in the world, the 20-year-old left-hander from Moscow made the men's field through the qualifying rounds, beating Americans Brian Teacher and Bud Cox in the final two rounds.

Since the 101st grass-court championships began one week ago, Volkov has kept up the attack on U.S. players to become the first from the Soviet Union to reach the fourth round at Wimbledon since Alex Metrevelli was a finalist in 1973.

The latest Yank to fall was Brad Gilbert, the 12th seed, beaten on Saturday by Volkov 7-6, 0-6, 6-3, 6-4.

America had the most players, 41, in the men's draw when the tournament began. By the start of today's play, with the third round less than half finished, that number had been cut to five - Jimmy Connors, Tim Mayotte, Lief Shiras, Paul Annacone and Johan Kriek.

Moses begins new streak; Lewis stars at Mobil meet

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) - Three weeks after his nearly 10-year reign ended in Spain, Edwin Moses has crowned himself king of the hurdles again.

"I'm old and washed up?" the 31-year-old Moses questioned. "They said the same thing about Kareem (Abdul-Jabbar) years and years ago. I feel I'm in good enough condition to go on for a long time ... The streak is starting at one."

Moses, whose amazing 122-race victory streak was snapped in Madrid on June 4 by Danny Harris, made the 21-year-old look like a harried commuter chasing an express bus.

Moses ran away from Harris and the rest of the field early in the 400-meter hurdles Saturday night at the USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships and crossed the finish line while Harris was about 25 feet behind in second place.

They both thought Moses ran faster than his time of 47.99. Harris uttered an obscenity when he heard his own time, 48.70, which was considerably slower than the time he posted in Spain.

While Moses re-established himself, quadruple Olympic gold medalist Carl Lewis affirmed his status as America's top sprinter and long jumper despite losing the 100 meters at the nation's premier outdoor track meet.

Mark Witherspoon, who trains with Lewis in Houston, was the surprise winner in the 100, nipping Lewis by a hundredth of a second in 10.04.

The second-place finish, however, gave Lewis the chance to go after four gold medals at the World Championships in Rome on Aug. 29-Sept.6. Lewis won the long jump and 200 on Friday, and his second-place finish in the 100 put him on the 400-meter relay team.

Lewis, who said he should be healthy in time for the World Championships, blasted meet officials for scheduling the more grueling 200 meters before the 100 meters. In the past, the shorter race had been run first.

"It's not fair to some of the athletes," said Lewis, one of several sprinters who doubled in the 100 and 200. Olympic double gold medalist Evelyn Ashford also tore a hamstring muscle on Saturday running the 100.

Azinger sweats out victory in Davis Jr.-Hartford Open

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) - Even though he had a three-stroke lead, Paul Azinger felt jittery when he awakened to play the final round of the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

Considering the harrowing round of golf he was to play, he had good reason to be uneasy.

"I told my wife I was probably the only one in the field who was nervous," Azinger said. "Wayne Levi was three shots behind. I knew he needed to charge, and I know when I'm three shots back I'm not nervous."

Azinger had broken out of a slump to shoot rounds of 69 and 65, respectively, on the first two days of the tournament.

On Saturday, the 27-year-old shot what he called the round of his life, a bogey-free 63, to pull away from Levi and the rest of the field.

On Sunday, he needed every bit of that three-stroke margin to hold on and win the $700,000 tournament by one stroke over Dan Forsman and Levi and retake the PGA's earnings lead.

"With a three-shot lead at the start of the day I really felt a little defensive, like the other guys really had to come and get it," he said. "I didn't hit well at all. I was incredibly lucky to win."

Nonetheless, he finished at 15-under 269, tying Peter Jacobsen and Mac O'Grady for the 72-hole record over the par-71, 6,786-yard Tournament Players Club of Connecticut course.

Azinger's round of 72 included one birdie, two bogeys and a lot of scary moments.

Forsman, who shot a 67, and Levi, with a 70, couldn't make up the necessary ground and fell one stroke short.

The victory made Azinger the first three tournament winner on the PGA Tour this year. Scott Simpson and Corey Pavin, neither of whom played this week, each have two.

The $126,000 winner's check puts him ahead of Simpson for first place on the tour's earnings list. Azinger had been first until Simpson overtook him last week in the Open.

Azinger, who finished in a tie for third for last year's GHO, missed a six-foot putt for par on the 12th hole, but made a shorter one for birdie on the next hole.

Then he hit his drive into the large lake along the right side of the fairway on No. 17.

He hit his next shot about 15 feet over the green, but was able to chip back within two feet and make the putt to salvage a bogey.

Azinger's drive on the 18th hole went right again, but it bounded back out of the crowd and into the fairway.

He hit his second shot on the par-4 hole on the fringe of the green, about 20 feet from the flag then rolled the ball past the cup, leaving himself a seven-foot putt coming back to win.

Yankees tourney champs

CLYDE -- The American State Bank sponsored Yankees defeated Clyde 14-8 in a multi-county Little League tournament which finished up here Saturday evening.

The Yankees overcame a seven-team field in Rotan during the week, then met and defeated the Clyde Giants on the weekend. Clyde had also survived a seven-team tournament style bracket to reach the finals.

Post-season action now ends for the Yankees team. Little League All-Stars will be named tonight, Monday, at Logan Field in Snyder. All-Star play begins July 13 in Hamlin.

Snyder won Saturday's game easily, though Clyde provided a scare in the sixth inning. The Yankees scored six runs in the first inning, seven in the fourth and one in the fifth for a 14-3 advantage.

Clyde rallied for five sixth-inning runs to give the game a closer finish.

Raymond Ware was the winning pitcher. He also aided the cause offensively by belting a home run, a triple and a single. Teammate Steven Bollinger also slammed a home run and two singles for the Yanks.

Others hitting for Snyder were Anthony Alvarez, a triple, a double and a single; James Herrera, a triple; Wesley Evans and Wyatt Webster, two singles each; and Valerio Torres and Jared Graves, one single each.

Rangers sweep Twins

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The Texas Rangers may not be out of the woods as far as the American League West race is concerned, but they're talking now as though they can see a light through the trees.

"It's one of the things that can be a turning point," center fielder Oddibe McDowell said Sunday night after the Rangers had beaten Minnesota 6-3 to complete a 4-game sweep of the first-place Twins. "It could be what we need to get us going right now."

The 4-game sweep moved the Rangers to within 6 1-2 games of the Twins, the closest they've been in two weeks.

"Now we have them in sight," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "We've got to keep up the intensity."

Jose Guzman, who was sick several times during the game because of the flu, squared his record at 6-6 with 7 1-3 innings of 7-hit pitching. He allowed three runs, walked one and struck out four.

"I had to go back to the clubhouse to be sick," said Guzman, who has allowed fewer than 3 runs a game in his last four starts. "But I was getting ahead of the hitters and getting my curveball over. Maybe I should be sick more when I pitch."

Former Ranger Mike Smithson, 4-4, suffered the loss. He went seven innings and allowed six runs on six hits, including McDowell's 2-run homer in the fourth that broke a 2-2 tie.

Hispanics said gaining electoral strength

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The re-election of a supporter of Ronald Reagan and Gov. Bill Clements to a third term as president of the League of United Latin American Citizens is seen by some as evidence of growing political diversity within a group long associated with the Democratic Party.

And most agree that the Republican presidential candidates who did not accept invitations to the convention, which ended Sunday, made a mistake.

All seven top Democratic contenders delivered campaign speeches to members of the nation's largest Hispanic organization, with an estimated membership of 100,000.

Oscar Moran, who was re-elected Sunday with 86 percent of the delegate vote, said, "The level of awareness as to our political clout is much more acute than it was four years ago."

Not long ago, LULAC's conventions used to mean little to national politicians.

"None came," said Roberto Ornelas, national LULAC president from 1967-69.

"Our concern at the time (the 1960s) was civil rights. That was the big issue," he said. "At that time, Hispanics were really just getting involved."

All of the candidates this week stressed more mainstream issues — jobs, economic development, foreign policy, social services and education — and geared their speeches to appeal to the predominantly Hispanic audience.

"The fact is that they're not going to take us for granted any more," Ornelas said.

LULAC is about 75 percent Mexican American, 10 percent Cuban American, and 10 percent Puerto Rican, with others making up the balance.

Observers say the Hispanic vote is becoming less of a block vote.

"The organization is ready to be impartial, to be receptive, to be bipartisan," said Jorge Rodriguez, an assistant to Moran in LULAC's Washington, D.C. office. He and others were offended that only one Republican presidential candidate, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, accepted an invitation to the convention.

"The Republican Party has a very great opportunity here, and they're not taking advantage of it," Rodriguez said.

The membership generally agrees on many basic issues, but with different approaches, says Andres Tobar, a Democrat who challenged Moran this year for the presidency.

"For too long, we were supporting the Democrats almost blindly, and as a result, the Democrats would take us for granted and the Republicans would ignore us," Tobar said.

He said he would be glad to see the Republicans take a greater interest in reaching Hispanic voters.

"It's a very diverse group, and I think that's very healthy," Tobar said.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, a veteran Texas politician and Democratic operative, who said he was "working my troops" at the convention, does not agree.

"If they were to be able to lock on one candidate and in effect represent the voting block of Hispanics, they'd have the clout they're trying to have," Mattox said. "But I don't know if they're able to lock on one candidate."

There was a clear rift at the convention between the forces of Moran and liberal Democrat Ruben Bonilla, who organized the convention. At one point, Moran supporters nearly walked out of a dinner when they thought the seating arrangement was disrespectful to Moran.

Henry Molina, a Republican LULAC member who owns a public relations firm in San Antonio, said with Hispanics, "the Republicans make one step forward and eight steps back."

"But we have a lot of closet Republicans here. There's no doubt in my mind."

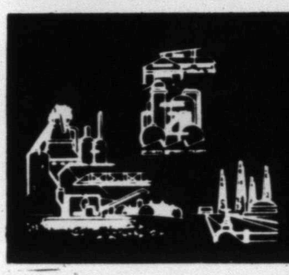

William Velasquez, president of the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, said in Texas, Hispanics make up 15 percent of the voting-age population, but in the May 1986 primaries cast 20 percent of all votes, he said.

With a rapidly growing population, successful voter registration drives and the emergence of single-member districts, there was a greater than 100 percent increase in Hispanics elected to office in the Southwest between 1973 and 1985, Velasquez said.

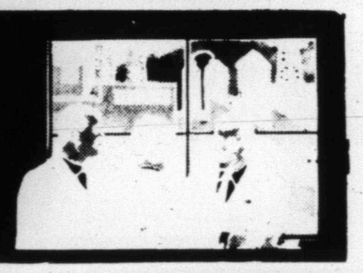

Interest in Texas has come early during this presidential race, he said, because it is the most populous state in the early "Super Tuesday" primary on March 8, 1988.

In 1986, only 1.6 percent of registered Hispanics voted in the Republican primary, he said, adding that in general elections they are much more likely to vote Republican.

In November 1984, 27 percent of Hispanics voted for Ronald Reagan, considerable growth since 1964 when 8 percent voted Republican, he said.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL NEWS

Hillside serves area for many years

Hillside Memorial Gardens, located on the Colorado City Highway, has been serving Snyder and the Scurry County area for many years.

Hillside Memorial Gardens is a perpetual care cemetery governed by the State Banking Department. The one price you pay for perpetual care is the only one you ever have to pay. There are no yearly dues necessary for the upkeep of the property.

The staff at Hillside Memorial Gardens is committed to serving your best interests. W.C. and Greg Graves will be glad to help you with any of your pre-need planning. Everyone plans for the future in one way or another whether with savings or insurance to take care of something that might happen. Why not prepare for the inevitable? Making the decision to purchase a Family Memorial Estate plan now insures that the decision is made together and one is not left to make it alone. Statistics show that these decisions are made 67 percent of the time by widows and children and 33 percent of the time by husbands. The purchase of a Family Memorial Estate plan can also be a savings plan because the deed is the equivalent of a paid up insurance policy.

Lots at Hillside Memorial Gardens are reasonably priced and they offer a Pre-Need Financial Plan of only 20 percent down and small monthly payments without interest or carrying charges. If the only time you have is on the weekends, Greg can be contacted at 573-5864 and will be glad to help you anytime.

Granite and Bronze memorials are available at Hillside Monument Works and Greg goes to great lengths to see that the finished product is one that pleases the family members and reflects the individualism of the loved one for whom the monument has been created.

The staff at Hillside realizes that they provide an important service to the community and work hard to maintain the trust and confidence of the people. They will be happy to counsel with anyone at anytime concerning their present or future needs. Give them a call at 573-5251 or go by and visit with them at Hillside Memorial Gardens and Monument Works on the Colorado City Highway.

Reagan's polyps benign

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, described by aides as "feeling great," spent the weekend at Camp David following tests showing that polyps removed from his colon were benign.

Mark Weinberg, a White House spokesman, said the president was informed of the news by his physician, Col. John Hutton Jr.

"He feels great," Weinberg said. "He was pleased."

Two polyps were removed during an exam Friday and the test results were released by the White House the next day. Since he had surgery for colon cancer in July 1985, the 76-year-old president has had four colonoscopy checkups.

Each time, doctors discovered and removed small polyps, which are fleshy growths often found in the intestines of older people.

On Friday, White House chief of staff Howard Baker Jr. said the doctors "had fully expected to find these polyps and fully expect to find them benign."

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, left the White House shortly after the exam to spend the weekend at the presidential retreat at Camp David in Maryland.

The colonoscopy was an internal examination of the full length of the large intestine.

During the last colonoscopy, conducted Jan. 4 at the Bethesda Naval Hospital, doctors found and removed four benign polyps from his colon. They said tests of those polyps also showed no evidence of any recurrence of the 1985 cancer.

The examination is done on a regular basis, and Weinberg said Saturday that Reagan will undergo another such check in six months.

Union strikes NBC

NEW YORK (AP) — The union representing 2,800 producers, writers and technicians in six cities went on strike this morning against NBC in the third and largest strike against a network this year.

NBC implemented its final contract offer at 12:01 a.m. after last-gasp negotiations failed.

Members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians then calmly walked off the job as promised at NBC headquarters here.

"Everyone went quietly," NBC spokesman Dom Giofre said early this morning from company headquarters.

Picketing also began at network-owned stations in San Francisco, Cleveland, Chicago, Washington and Burbank, Calif.

Union leaders charged that NBC's proposed two-year contract threatened job security and the union by demanding that non-union workers and management be allowed to do tasks now strictly performed by union members.

NBC pointed out that the National Labor Relations Board last week dismissed seven unfair labor practice charges filed by the union, and accused the union's leadership of ignoring members.

"For the last 11 weeks, NABET employees working without a contract have never been given the opportunity to vote on the proposed agreement presented to the union by NBC on March 31," said a network statement read by spokeswoman McClain Ramsey.

"We believe that if union members had been given the opportunity of working under the new contract, they would agree with NBC that it is a fair, reasonable and balanced agreement for the company, the union and their employees."

A 3½-hour session called by a federal mediator Sunday failed to produce an agreement or push back the midnight deadline. It was only the second session since the contract expired March 31.

This is the third strike against a network this year as networks look for ways to cut costs and unions try to hold onto gains of past years. A total of 575 CBS and ABC editorial workers struck for nearly two months this spring, also over job security.

Shultz 'sickened' by revelations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz says he finds some of the revelations about the Iran-Contra affair "sickening" and denies that the details emerging from the congressional hearings sum up the Reagan administration's foreign policy.

"This is not a portrait of American diplomacy," Shultz said Sunday on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" program. "It's a portrait of what happened in a particular instance, and some of the things that have been revealed I find sickening."

Shultz was particularly upset with claims by Iranian-born businessman Albert Hakim that the United States would be willing to swap Kuwaiti prisoners for American hostages in Lebanon.

"I found ... the idea that people who were representing themselves as in some way speaking for America would talk about ... prisoners in Kuwait as something we would be willing to discuss.

"That is totally wrong, totally against the president's policies and I found that just a terrible thing," Shultz said.

Hakim, a middleman in the secret sale of U.S. arms to Iran, testified earlier this month that he negotiated a plan with an Iranian official close to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in October 1986 to sell weapons in exchange for the release of the American hostages.

The plan also included possible freedom for Moslem prisoners in Kuwait and south Lebanon, according to a copy of the plan released by congressional committees investigating the Iran arms sales and the private resupply effort for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

One Moslem Shiite sect holding American hostages in Lebanon has demanded the release of 17 compatriots who were jailed in Kuwait after explosions rocked the American and French embassies in 1984.

Another group that seized Americans wants freedom for about 400 prisoners held in south Lebanon by an Israeli-controlled militia, the South Lebanon Army.

Hakim said the plan was "accepted by the U.S. side," even though the State Department says the United States does not believe in hostage swaps and does not have control over other countries' detainees.

In other developments:

—Attorney General Edwin Meese III, interviewed on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley" program, refused to comment on reports of his dealings with fired National Security Council aide Lt. Col. Oliver L. North.

"I'm not going to be lured into commenting on this matter," Meese said. "I will comment plenty when I have the opportunity to testify, or at an appropriate time when the facts are all out there.

Court accepts equipment bid court members also accepted a bid from Jack's Roadboring and Pipeline Construction Co. for a 1970 Mack diesel truck tractor for use in all precincts. Commissioners voted to purchase the vehicle for $9,000. The price bid was $13,500 less $4,500 in trade-in of a Martin collapsible trailer.

Also, Jim Leonard, representative of Arthur Gallagher and Co. of Dallas, presented his company's comprehensive insurance plan.

Representatives with Bane, McCrary, Bane Surveyors and Engineers are slated to appear before the court at 2 p.m. to discuss bids for paving and electric work scheduled at Winston Field.

Commissioners will also resume budget discussions Monday afternoon.

No driver listed in one accident

Three minor traffic accidents were reported in Snyder Saturday, one involving a driverless vehicle.

The Snyder Shopping Center on College Ave. was the scene for this mishap at 1:01 p.m.

According to reports, a parked 1985 Plymouth owned by Pat McCowen of 4116 Kerrville Ave. rolled from its parking place and struck a parked 1971 Chevrolet owned by Darren Greenway of Rt. 1 and a building owned by Guy Sullivan.

Police worked two other Saturday wrecks. Involved in the first — at 10:33 a.m. in the 2700 Block of 37th St. — was a 1977 Dodge driven by Blas Baez of 807 27th St. which struck a parked 1975 Chrysler owned by D.L. Irwin of Snyder.

A hit-and-run accident was reported at Whataburger on south College Ave. at 6:59 p.m.

Linda Proctor of the Arah Rt. told police that her 1985 Ford had apparently been struck by another vehicle while parked at the restaurant.

Vehicle break-in reported to police

Police are investigating a vehicle burglary complaint filed Saturday night.

Chad Hall of 2707 28th St. reported at 10:02 p.m. that a Sony "Walkman" stereo and 10 tapes had been taken from his 1978 Buick while the vehicle was parked in the 2000 Block of 27th St.

Value of the missing property was estimaed at $219.

In other weekend action, officers logged four misdemeanor arrests.

Three suspects were jailed for driving while intoxicated and one was picked up for public intoxication.

One of the DWI suspects was also charged with misdemeanor counts of driving with a suspended license and evading arrest.

Oil agreement may help OPEC rebuild

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Oil once again is going OPEC's way.

Prices look rock solid at the cartel's official mark of $18 a barrel, and many of the members are enjoying a pickup in sales.

An agreement reached Saturday to open the oil taps a little wider this summer — but cancel a further increase this fall — seems to confirm that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is back on track.

It still could stumble over such sensitive problems as the widening war between Iran and Iraq, and the tendency of some members, including the United Arab Emirates, to cheat on production quotas.

But as world oil demand rises and the United States and other oil-importing countries grow more dependent on foreign supplies, OPEC may find it easier to get away with a few holes in its overall strategy.

"This is a new OPEC," beamed the usually somber oil minister from Venezuela, Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, as he emerged from the final session of OPEC's three-day conference. He said the cartel had a new-found solidarity.

OPEC suffered a disastrous 1986. Oil prices plunged by more than 50 percent and the organization itself teetered on the brink of collapse. The lesson it learned was that it no longer had the power to enforce an oil price substantially higher than the free market would accept.

AP analysis

Now it is holding its production low enough to keep prices steady. It hopes that in time a stable price will encourage more oil use in the industrial world at the expense of alternatives such as nuclear power.

This is the sort of oil-market management that OPEC had been unable to employ in past years because of deep political divisions within its ranks.

Those tensions have not disappeared, but they have diminished enough to allow the OPEC oil ministers to negotiate compromises on key issues, such as price levels and production quotas for individual members.

The key change within OPEC emerged late last year with an apparent warming in relations between traditional enemies Saudi Arabia and Iran, the cartel's two most influential members. This coincided with Saudi King Fahd's firing his longtime oil minister, Ahmed Zaki Yamani, who had led his country's oil battles with Iran.

At a meeting last December in which OPEC reimposed production controls and slashed its official oil price to $18 a barrel, the Saudis dropped their refusal to cut production while Iran gave up its fight for a higher price.

They found a compromise again at last week's meeting. The Iranians sacrificed their desire for lower production — and thus, possibly, higher prices — this summer in exchange for the Saudis' agreement to cancel a production increase scheduled for fall.

Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh tacitly acknowledged this tradeoff when he told reporters after the meeting that he considered the outcome "a very good, nice compromise."

His Saudi counterpart, Hisham Nazer, also said he was pleased with the agreement.

OPEC sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Saudis made a further concession to Iran by agreeing to stop providing Iraq with war-relief crude. The Saudis are believed to be giving the Iraqis about 190,000 barrels a day of free oil to aid their war effort.

Iran gave up its demand that Iraq be forced to accept an OPEC production quota that would, in effect, mean an Iraqi cut in output.

The Baghdad government has refused to participate in OPEC's production-sharing system since it was put into effect last January. Iraq repeated at last week's meeting it will go its own way until it is granted a quota equal to Iran's.

The Iranians say they are filling their quota of 2.25 million barrels a day, which is scheduled to rise to 2.37 million on July 1. The Iraqis were asked to accept a quota of 1.54 million barrels a day, compared with their estimated current rate of 2.1 million.

Iraq is expected to substantially increase its production again this fall when work is completed on expansion of its pipeline through Turkey.

McDonald's has Welding Machines and Supplies

McDonald Welding Supply has gained a reputation for service, and for good reason. The staff at McDonald Welding Supply comes early and stays late. This is especially important to the area's busy oil fields, and this is why so many companies have depended on McDonald Welding Supply for their supply needs.

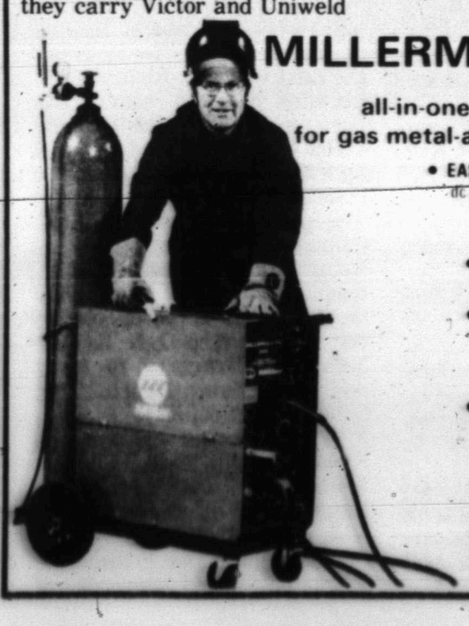

The firm serves an area bounded by Sweetwater to Loraine to Colorado City and Big Spring and back to Snyder. The Company has three 18 foot bobtail trucks for delivery to farms, businesses and well locations.

In stock at McDonald Welding Supply is the Miller and Lincolin Welding equipment line, which includes small engine drives and electric machine for farm and home use. They also have a large stock of smaller welders. They vary in size and can fit in the rear of a foreign truck as well as a two-ton truck. In addition, they carry Victor and Uniweld welding and cutting equipment and Walton vises.

If you need steel for oilfield fabrication, you can find exactly what you need at McDonald Welding Supply. The firm has a complete line of Milwaukee heavy duty electric drills and grinders. They have Williams hammer wrenches and heavy tools.

Safety equipment of all types is stocked including goggles, first aid kits and refills, hard hats, liners and fire extinguishers. This popular business also stocks chains, cable, tubing and chain hoists. They have recently added a complete line of Grade "8" Hard Bolts and Nuts in sizes from 5/16 to 1 ¼. Blocks as well as all types of pulleys may be added to the list.

The available list of supplies is almost endless, just ask for it. Stop by and see Gayle or Jack McDonald and the staff at McDonald Welding Supply, 1110 College Ave.
