Excedrin recall for U.S. issued

AUBURN, Wash. (AP) — The maker of Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules asked stores nationwide to pull them from shelves today after authorities here confirmed that a cyanide-laced capsule caused the death last week of a 40-year-old woman.

Sue Snow, a bank manager, was found collapsed in her home by a relative last Wednesday, said Police Officer James Monnett. She died later that day at a hospital.

The King County medical examiner's office confirmed Monday that Ms. Snow died of acute cyanide poisoning, and Auburn police said cyanide was found in Excedrin capsules discovered in her home.

Auburn Mayor Bob Roegner declared a public emergency Monday, and all Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules were being pulled from store shelves in the Auburn area.

The maker of Excedrin, Bristol-Myers, today recommended similar action nationwide.

"This applies to Excedrin capsules only," he said. The product also is sold in extra-strength and regular strength tablets.

Strike tentatively over...

AT&T agreement set

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and a union representing 155,000 striking telephone workers today reached a tentative settlement on a new contract, a union spokeswoman said.

Under the agreement, the strike by the Communications Workers of America could end as early as Sunday, said Rozanne Weissman, the union spokeswoman.

Details of the accord were not immediately available.

Ms. Weissman said the tentative national contract agreement was reaching during a bargaining session this morning.

The settlement, however, is still subject to the successful completion of separate bargaining agreements with six different AT&T units and ratification by CWA members. A midnight Saturday deadline has been set for wrapping up those negotiations.

"The strike continues until those six agreements are reached," Ms. Weissman said. "Assuming those agreements are reached by the Saturday deadline, CWA members can return to work the following day."

Bargaining talks on the six separate agreements are continuing in New Jersey, she said.

A smaller union, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, ratified the bulk of AT&T's final three-year contract over the weekend. Most of the approximately 41,000 IBEW members employed by AT&T had continued to work during the strike by CWA members.

Federal mediators jumped into the dispute the second day after the strike began, often shuttling messages between the two sides when direct negotiations broke down.

Rain exceeds inch...

Heavy winds topple poles

Wind gusts clocked near 60 mph toppled electric poles throughout Scurry County Monday night including a stretch of 15 poles damaged due west of the city.

Crews for both Texas Electric Service Company and Midwest Electric worked through the night after storm damage reports began being received around 7:30 p.m.

Rain accompanied the storm here as amounts from 1 to 2 inches were reported. The official rain total for Snyder was 1.17 inches, bringing the year to in excess of 9½ inches.

Just west of the city around 8 p.m., a pulling unit owned by Knipe Well Servicing Inc. was damaged heavily as it was blown over in the high winds.

The unit, reportedly raised for maintenance at the well service yard, severed a TESCO electric line adjacent to County Road 221 some 1 mile north of the Lamesa Highway.

Jack Smartt, manager for TESCO here, said his crews were still working Tuesday morning to replace or repair some 25 downed poles.

The largest strip was west of Snyder 1 mile south of the intersections of FM 1606 and 1607. Some 15 poles were downed there, all serving oil field customers, he said.

Smartt said he was not aware of any large segments of Snyder being without power. He noted isolated cases of transformers being blown and some electric meters pulled from residences.

Jimmy Kiker with Midwest Electric, which serves rural Scurry County, said they had Runners now sought...

Olympic torch run slated through city

Snyder will be visited by the Olympic Torch this coming June 28 and volunteer runners are now being sought to carry the symbol of the Olympic games.

The visit is a promotional effort held in conjunction with the U.S. Olympic Festival to be staged in Houston July 25 through Aug. 3. It is sponsored through the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The torch will be carried more than 5,000 miles and through some 250 cities in Colorado, New Mexico and Texas. The run will begin at Pikes Peak June 26 and will end in Houston at the Astrodome July 25.

The run itself is being paid for by a $100,000 contribution from the Shell Companies Foundation. The run itself is not being conducted as a fund raiser, but is planned solely to promote the U.S. Olympic Festival.

The torch to be carried is the same commemorative flame carried across the U.S. to the Los Angeles Summer Olympic Games. It is on loan from AT&T.

In Snyder, the torch is to be carried over an approximate 5 mile stretch from 2 until 3:30 p.m. June 28.

Organizer for the effort is Troy Williamson, who is being assisted by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

He said individuals who would like to carry the flame should now register in person at the chamber offices. Regarding the distance they carry it — and running is not an absolute requirement — he said the shortest length allowed would be a city block.

An age limit of 10 years and older for children will be asked also. All adults are encouraged to participate.

Youth under age 18 must have an adult sign with them.

"It doesn't cost anything, you get to carry the Olympic torch and the sponsors have agreed to give everyone who participates an official T-Shirt," he said.

The deadline to register is next Monday. He said they would begin assigning people to the route by next Tuesday, June 24.

If sufficient interest is shown, Williamson said they might extend the route to allow more people to participate.

The route will begin in north Snyder at the U.S. Hwy. 84 exit onto College Ave.

From there, the torch will be carried down College Ave. to the downtown square. A 10 to 15 minute ceremony is planned at the bandstand beside the courthouse.

Making brief comments there will be County Judge Preston Wilson and Mayor Rod Waller.

The run through the city will begin again headed down College to 37th St., where it will head

TRAFFIC BLOCKED — Traffic was blocked on County Road 221 Monday night when this pulling unit owned by Knipe Well Service Inc. was toppled by high winds. The unit was on the company yard with the tower up for maintenance when the thunderstorm moved into the area. The rig also knocked down power, telephone and cable television lines, cutting off service to the area between the Lamesa Highway and the Snyder Country Club to the north. (SDN Staff Photo)

Break-in told at Boys Club

Police are investigating a weekend burglary of the Snyder Boy's Club discovered Monday morning.

Two coin-operated game machines were broken into and a third damaged in an apparent attempt to open it.

According to reports, entry was apparently gained by prying open the grating over a window on the west side of the building.

The offense is thought to have occurred between 7:30 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Monday.

An undetermined amount of money — all in quarters — was taken from the two machines.

Ask Us

Q. — Does the city plan on spraying an insecticide this summer to combat mosquitoes?

A. — The annual spray program has been in effect since the rains began. It is a joint operation by the city and county, however. The city provides a vehicle and spray unit and the county provides the workers and the mosquito spray. The effort is coordinated through the Scurry County Health Unit.

In Brief

FDA ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators do not have to tighten their control over some poisons in food, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By an 8-1 vote, the justices overturned an appeals court ruling that would have required the federal Food and Drug Administration to regulate such substances through formal rulemaking — and not by a more informal method the agency is using.

At issue was the regulation of unavoidable added poisonous materials in food — substances required in the food's production or those that cannot be avoided by good manufacturing practice.

Specifically involved in the case decided today is aflatoxin, a cancer-causing mold that commonly grows on corn and other crops.

Three caught

HUMBLE, Texas (AP) — Humble police captured three prison escapees less than two hours after they climbed over a temporary fence at the Retrieve Unit in Angleton early today, a prison spokesman said.

The three men were caught at about 9:20 a.m. in a car reported stolen in nearby Lake Jackson, said Charles Brown, Texas Department of Corrections spokesman.

In custody were Robert Daniels, 37, who is serving a life sentence for aggravated robbery in Harris County; Michael Miller, 27, who has a life sentence for murder in Brazoria County; and John Sanders, 29.

Doctors ask AMA to step up assault on tobacco usage

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association, criticized by one member as a "Johnny-come-lately" on the issue, is being asked to lead the fight for a tough crackdown on smoking including tighter curbs on tobacco sales.

"The surgeon general years ago took the lead. We should have been the organization taking the lead," St. Louis physician Dr. George M. Bohigian told an AMA public health committee Monday at the organization's annual meeting.

"I think it's kind of a shame that the AMA has been Johnny-come-lately on this issue," he said.

The committee heard a spate of reports and resolutions aimed at tobacco use and was making recommendations on them today to the AMA's 386-member House of Delegates, the policy making body of the 271,000-member organization.

AMA delegates voted last year to support legislation to ban tobacco advertising across-the-board. AMA trustee Ronald M. Davis reported at Monday's committee meeting that such legislation was introduced in Congress last week.

In Washington, D.C., a spokesman for the Tobacco Institute countered by saying a recent poll commissioned by his organization among 1,030 Americans found cigarette advertising was viewed as the least important of six issues organized medicine might address.

"The public was much more interested in seeing the AMA address the high costs of medical care, increasing the quality of care for the poor and elderly, reducing the costs of medical equipment, increasing the availability of physicians and decreasing waiting time in doctors' offices," said institute spokesman Scott Stapf.

The strongest anti-tobacco resolution, which says 314,000 deaths and $3.4 billion in Medicare costs are blamed on smoking annually, calls for:

—Developing model legislation to bar smoking on all commercial airline flights in the continental United States.

—Supporting legislation to control smoking in public places, to prohibit vending-machine sales of tobacco and to outlaw sales of tobacco to people under age 21.

—Favoring legislation to prohibit sales of tobacco in health-care institutions.

—Pushing for a higher federal excise tax on cigarettes, with the revenue earmarked for the Medicare program.

—Continuing to educate people from kindergarten age up to help them avoid using tobacco.

—Banning smoking at all AMA functions.

Another resolution calls for the AMA to oppose the use of fashion designers' logos on tobacco products.

State spending is reported up again

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite a gubernatorial order asking agencies to slash expenses, state spending continued to increase during May, the comptroller reports.

It was the third month in a row that agency spending exceeded the monthly average recorded during the first half of the 1986 budget year, Comptroller Bob Bullock said Monday.

Spending from all funds, including those dedicated to specific purposes, was up 80.5 percent, Bullock said.

Spending from the general revenue fund, which finances most state agency operations, increased 2.6 percent during May, Bullock said.

Bullock said the all-funds total for May was $2.36 billion, $1.05 billion above the monthly average for fiscal 1986, because of large payments to schools, refinancing of veterans land bonds and payments on the state's unemployment debt.

Without those large payments, all-funds spending would have been 23.1 percent higher, he said.

Bullock began issuing monthly spending reports in March, the first month that some 200 state agencies came under the govenor's executive order to reduce spending by 13 percent over the last 18 months of the 1986-87 biennium.

Spending in March, April and now May has topped the average spent during the first since months of the 1986 fiscal year — September though February, Bullock said.

In February, White issued the order asking for spending cuts after Bullock predicted that falling oil prices would leave state government facing a $1.34 billion deficit by Aug. 31, 1987, the end of the current two-year budget cycle.

White lacks the constitutional power to require the cuts.

Bullock said last month that recent developments now indicate the deficit could reach $2 billion or more.

White, who repeatedly has insisted his spending cut plan will work, wasn't immediately available to respond to Bullock's latest report. Asked twice for comment, aides in White's press office said he was traveling in East Texas and could not be reached.

White's election opponent, former Gov. Bill Clements, said the Bullock report shows the governor's failure of leadership.

"For the third straight month ... the so-called austerity plan of Mark White is a bust," Clements said, repeating his belief that White should call a special, budget-cutting session of the Legislature.

"The Mark White austerity plan grabbed the headlines but did not affect the spending habits of state government one penny," Clements said. "Come off the campaign trail, Mr. White, stop your politicking. Get back to Austin and be a leader."

Bullock's report said general revenue expenses were down in some areas.

Employee pay was reduced 7.8 percent.

These Drugs and the Pill Can Be Risky Combination

DEAR ABBY: I was very interested to read your column wherein a reader described the suppressing action of certain antibiotics on oral contraceptives.

As a member of the dental profession who considers himself well-read and who prescribes antibiotics routinely, I must confess that I was not aware of these facts.

A quick survey of my colleagues suggests that it has yet to reach the dental profession in significant numbers.

You would be performing a well-appreciated public service by noting those specific antibiotics in your column. Thank you.

DONALD A JOHNSON, D.D.S., RICHFIELD, MINN.

DEAR DR. JOHNSON: I called my trusty pharmacist, David Powells, who was kind enough to share this information published by pharmaceutical companies for physicians and health-care professionals.

"Oral contraceptives may be rendered less effective and increased incidence of breakthrough bleeding may occur by virtue of drug interaction with rifampin, isoniazid, ampicillin, neomycin, penicillin V, tetracycline, chloramphenicol, sulfonamides, nitrofurantoin, griseofulvin, barbiturates, phenytoin, primidone, phenylbutazone, analgesics, tranquilizers (e.g. diazepam), and antimigraine preparations. Oral contraceptives may alter the effectiveness of other types of drugs, such as oral anti-coagulants, anti-convulsants, tricyclic anti-depressants, anti-hypertensive agents (e.g. guanethidine), theophylline, vitamins, hypoglycemic agents, clofibrate, glucocorticoids and acetaminophen."

Further, women who use oral contraceptives "should not smoke. The combination of cigarette smoking, especially heavy cigarette smoking, and oral contraceptive use greatly increases the risk of heart attack."

DEAR ABBY: You need a short course on the subject of retirement. It's not wonderful for everyone. After the retiree has traveled, gone fishing, painted the house, played with the grandchildren and sat around the house doing nothing, terminal boredom sets in.

As the wife of a husband who has been retired for two years, I would like to state that he is retired, I am not. I still have the groceries to buy, the food to prepare, the dishes to do, the laundry, cleaning, etc. My husband is from the school that all of the above is woman's work — and at 66 he isn't about to change nor does he want to.

When do I retire?

ANGRY IN ATLANTA

DEAR ANGRY: Never, if you honestly believe that your husband can't change. At 66, he's just a kid. Men fall in love, sire children and just begin to live at that age.

They can also learn how to cook, shop for groceries, do the laundry, the dishes and clean the house. Think positive, and direct your displeasure to your husband, not me. If you expect nothing, you'll get less.

DEAR ABBY: My father was a wonderful man. No girl ever had a better dad. Everyone who knew him loved him. His name was Robert E. Kreiger. He played football for the Philadelphia Eagles and piloted 30 missions over occupied Europe during World War II.

Please, dads, don't smoke.

Ongoing feud contributed to Father's Day slayings

HAWKINS, Texas (AP) — A violent family quarrel in which authorities claim a young man shot and stabbed his parents and sister and brutally injured two nephews was the result of "an ongoing feud," investigators said.

Paul Owen Beasley Jr., 27, was charged with two counts of murder Monday in the deaths of his mother, Ruth Johnson Beasley, 62, and his sister, Linda Beasley Birkinbine, 37, of Euless. He was being held in lieu of $1 million bond, said Teri Fox, a Wood County Sheriff's dispatcher.

The two women died Sunday of gunshot wounds to the face and throat and also had been stabbed, said Chief Deputy Jimmy Roberts, who called the scene of the crime "a bloodbath."

"There are indications of both knife and gun wounds, but we cannot tell which (wounds) are guns and which are knives," Roberts said.

"This was caused from an ongoing feud that has been going on for, well, we don't know how long," he said.

Beasley had gone to his parents' home to celebrate Father's Day when a family quarrel ensued, Roberts said.

Beasley's father, Paul Owen Beasley Sr., 70, was in critical condition Monday at Tyler Medical Center from a gunshot to the head and a knife wound on his neck, according to Roberts and hospital officials.

The suspect's 2-year-old nephew, Matthew Birkinbine, was in fair condition with a lacerated throat. Another nephew, Chad Beasley, 9, of Arlington, was treated and released after breaking his leg as he escaped.

Chad had been severely beaten, but escaped when he and Matthew were thrown out of a two-story window, Roberts said.

"It was a bloodbath," Roberts said. "Inside the house we found two shotguns, two knives and a pistol."

He said the weapons were sent to Dallas for forensic analysis.

Relief effort helps out

AUSTIN (AP) — Rural relief programs in 37 states are benefitting from about $4.3 million spent or committed so far by the Farm Aid project, officials say.

The project has $2.7 million remaining in its relief fund, which organizers hope will be bolstered by proceeds from a second Farm Aid concert scheduled for July 4 in Austin.

Among the programs funded to help debt-ridden farmers are food pantries, telephone hot lines, legal services, community outreach programs and scholarships, officials said.

The first concert at Champaign, Ill., which cost about $2 million to produce, and subsequent solicitations through advertisements have attracted about $9 million in donations, said Farm Aid director Carrolyn Mugar.

Bill Wittliff, an Austin screenwriter who helps oversee the funds, said the total changes daily because donations continue to come in.

Funds are deposited in a Champaign bank, but donations from Farm Aid II will be kept in an Austin bank, Wittliff said.

Singer Willie Nelson, organizer of the Farm Aid project, has made all decisions on spending the funds and signed the outgoing checks, Wittliff said. Nelson has received suggestions from many sources, he added.

Hitchhiker testifies in trial

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A hitchhiker walked onto the grounds of a state fish hatchery and told a worker there he had been chained up and held at gunpoint at a nearby ranch, the worker testified in the trial of three men accused of kidnapping drifters and forcing them to work.

Charles Shaw, a technician for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, also testified he had served on the grand jury that returned organized crime indictments against the three defendants.

Shaw was called Monday as a defense witness, but his testimony unlimately backfired on lawyers defending Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 55; his son Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 33; and former ranchhand Carlton Robert Caldwell, 21.

The three are charged with conspiracy to commit aggravated kidnapping and murder in the March 1984 death of Anthony Bates.

Prosecutors allege Bates and others were lured with the promise of work to the Ellebrachts' sprawling Hill Country ranch. Then he was forced to stay.

The state also claims Bates was tortured to death with an electric cattle prod, then his body burned at the ranch.

Novelist Charles Dickens was born in 1812.

CWC views prom dresses

Christian Women's Club met June 11 at the Snyder Country Club for its regular monthly luncheon. The club had a special treat with Snyder High School girls modeling their prom dresses.

Modeling were Kellie McLarty, Ashley Miller, Kirsten Miller, Monique Miller, Joan Godair, Janice Godair, Missy McIntire, Allison Adams, Dee Butler, Kim Butler, Camille Reed, Tara Krueger, Angie Floyd and Mandy Johnson.

Marilyn Cockran provided the music and was the guest speaker. She played the original arrangement of "Jesus Loves the Little Children."

Cockran has a one-year-old son, Brian, and her husband, Henry, is a C.P.A. She directs a young adult Sunday School class.

Cockran spoke about how special each person is. The uniqueness of your face, abilities, walk and handshake. God planned for all of us to be special.

She commented that the most important assurance as a Christian is the gift of eternal life. She added that God's provisions for our forgiveness was sending his son to take all the punishment that we deserve. We must first realize we are sinners and realizing facts about God is just not enough. We must change the directions of our lives.

Cockran said, "God created us so He is the one who knows what is best for us." She added, "Submitting to God's control is what trust is. Then you will want your actions to bring honor to Him."

When Cockran spoke of her marriage to the Miami, Fla. native, she said that they love the Lord and are able to pray together. They were not able to have children and turned it over to the Lord with many prayers. They found a Christian adoption agency and knew God was in control. They never doubted that He would place a special child with them. June 3, 1985 Brian came into their lives, and God had answered their prayers.

BEAUTY BRIEFS

Split ends

When you wear your hair long, the ends, which are the oldest part, tend to erode and fray — this is commonly called split ends. Years ago, it was thought that singeing ends would "seal" them and stop the splitting, but all it did was burn the ends. To remove eroded ends, occasional trimming is required. However, ends can last longer if protected with a protein conditioner after each shampoo. Use scissors to trim ends with a blunt cut. Tapered razor cutting will result in weaker ends.

Brushes

The choice of a brush should depend on the character of your hair. If it is thick and strong, a man-made bristle brush may actually be preferable. However, soft, fine hair may break or pull out unless a natural-bristle brush is used. Treat such a brush gently.

A HEALTHY STATE

NUTLEY, N.J. (AP) — If New Jersey's size were equivalent to its importance in the health products industry, the state would cover the entire United States east of the Mississippi.

A study by Hoffmann-La Roche says New Jersey ships almost a quarter of all health products produced in this country and employs a quarter of the nation's health product workers. More than a quarter of the drug research conducted in the U.S. is done in New Jersey. ———

Recipe Box

There's a new trend abroad in the land. Some party-givers are having Dessert Buffets. "Come after dinner," they tell their friends, "and sample several desserts."

When a young friend of mine recently gave just such a Dessert Buffet, she had these offerings: Cheesecake; Chocolate Pound Cake; crisp and buttery spice cookies; a bowl of strawberries; and ice cream. Here's a recipe for a refreshing Lime Cheesecake.

LIME CHEESECAKE
(Processor Method)

Graham cracker crumbs
1 cup small curd cottage cheese
8-ounce package cream cheese, cut into 8 equal pieces
¼ cup butter, cut into 4 equal pats
2 large eggs
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons grated lime rind
2 tablespoons lime juice
1 cup sour cream

Grease an 8-by 3-inch springform pan; dust with crumbs.

In a food processor, using metal blade, process cottage cheese for 45 seconds; scrape down sides of bowl as needed. Add cream cheese; process about 30 seconds or until creamy and smooth. Add butter; process about 30 seconds or until blended. Add eggs, sugar, cornstarch, lime rind and lime juice. Process about 15 seconds or until blended. Add sour cream; pulse 8 times or until smooth. Pour into prepared springform pan.

Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until firm around the edge — 1 hour. Turn off oven control. Let cake stand in oven 1 hour. Remove and cool completely on a wire rack. Refrigerate several hours or overnight.

Educated guess

By James Jacoby

If the North-South hands look familiar to you, that's because they are the same as last Saturday's. Against the odds-on 3-2 trump split, the approach on Saturday was to take a spade finesse, next bang down the spade ace, play out your high diamonds and hearts, and then put either opponent on lead so that he would have to lead clubs for you. But what about today's variation, in which West holds four trumps to the K-Q? The answer is that you must make an informed, educated play in the club suit. You need to figure out which of your opponents is likely to hold only two clubs, and then play accordingly.

Here's how that should work. On the second lead of spades from dummy, East shows out. To maintain ease of communication, you put in the jack and West wins another trump trick. Because East has only one spade, it is much more likely that he will be the player with four clubs. If so, there will be only two clubs in the West hand. Hope that West holds one of the two missing club honors. Play clubs from the South hand, leading up to the jack in dummy. You will probably get some reaction from West if the lay of the cards fits your plan. If West goes up with the king, you will later play a club from dummy, finessing against the queen held by East. If West ducks, you play the jack, which loses to East's queen. Later you plunk down the club ace, dropping West's king and making your 10-spot the game-going trick.

A follow-up report was given on the auxiliary sponsoring a girl's softball team. The auxiliary and Snyder Police Association are co-sponsors of the Bluebonnets' team in Division I of the UGSA.

Future projects were discussed and the meeting was adjourned.

Refreshements were served by Jane Neeley and Betty Morgan.

Teachers' tests are argued still

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A lawyer for the state teachers association argued in court that the state's literacy test is discriminatory and violates a 1971 federal desegregation order.

Frank Petramalo Jr., lawyer for the Texas State Teachers Association, said Monday in a federal court hearing that a little more than 18 percent of the black teachers failed the test, while only 1 percent of the whites failed.

"That establishes without a doubt a prima facie case of racial discrimination," Petramalo told U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

But lawyer Kevin O'Hanlon, representing the Texas Education Agency, said the exam scores merely illustrate the need for teacher testing.

"Certainly the state recognizes that minorities are not performing as well as Anglos on the test. But the state takes that as an indictment of the education system — that we're not doing a good enough job teaching these kids. That's why the tests were implemented," he said.

The arguments were part of a one-day hearing on whether the TSTA should be allowed to intervene in the 16-year-old statewide school desegregation case still under Justice's purview.

The judge took the issue under advisement Monday without making a ruling.

O'Hanlon urged the judge to reject the case, saying the final effect won't be known until teachers who failed the test in March take it a second time June 28.

In a related issue, lawyers for three minority organizations on Monday dropped their request for an injunction after learning that college graduates who haven't passed the required Pre-Professional Skills Test can still get jobs as teachers under an emergency employment plan.

The G.I. Forum, the League of United Latin American Citizens and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People had sought an injunction allowing education graduates who had failed the test to teach in public schools until the legality of the examination is determined.

Justice did not rule on the test's legality Monday.

Shuttle engines...

Troubleshooting masked problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space shuttle main engines, "built at the edge of, or outside of, previous engineering experience," may have a risk of failure many times greater than that estimated by NASA management, according to a report by Nobel physicist Richard Feynman.

Moreover, Feynman concluded, the NASA troubleshooting on the engines "is closely analagous to the deterioration seen in the rules" for the booster rockets whose failure caused the Challenger catastrophe.

In a 13-page personal report that focuses attention on the shuttle's most complicated component, the Rogers commission member described the problem-solving process as "a slow shift toward decreasing safety" at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The hardware is 15 years out-of-date.

Feynman's study is to be published next month by the commission as part of an appendix to last week's commission report, but Feynman provided copies at a news conference last week in California. He is traveling and could not be reached for comment.

NASA spokeswoman Shirley Green said, "We have no comments on Dr. Feynman's views, but we are aware that he is a distinguished physicist, a dedicated member of the commission who devoted a lot of time to his study."

Feynman noted that "the engine is a much more complicated structure than the solid rocket booster," and added, "Generally, the engineering seems to be of high quality and apparently considerable attention is paid to deficiencies and faults found in operation."

Nonetheless, his paper draws parallels between how both the liquid-fuel main engines and the solid-fuel booster rockets were tested and certified by NASA and how NASA has responded to problems within each.

Feynman reports that NASA's estimate of the odds of a disastrous engine failure are the same as its estimate of a booster failure — one in 100,000.

But Feynman said engineers at Rocketdyne, manufacturer of the main engines, calculated a one in 10,000 chance of failure. He added: "Engineers at Marshall (Space Flight Center) estimate it as one in 300, while NASA management, to whom these engineers report, claims it is one in 100,000. An independent engineer consulting for NASA thought one or two per 100 a reasonable estimate."

The commission's main report pointed out that NASA had never deliberately tested the main engines to the failure point to see what their limits are, and urged that be done.

Senate may approve hidden tax breaks in new tax bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, marching toward approval this week of a landmark overhaul of the federal tax code, appears ready to preserve scores of special tax breaks buried in the legislation when it was drafted by the Finance Committee.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the Finance Committee chairman, has given up optimistic predictions that the Senate would complete work on the measure by today and as discussion of the remaining amendments drags on, Senate leaders now are looking toward final passage by Wednesday or Thursday.

After the Senate gives what is expected to be overwhelming approval to the bill, negotiators from the House and Senate will meet to draft compromise legislation. The House passed its version of the measure late last year.

Packwood said Monday that those negotiations will not begin until after Congress returns from its Fourth of July recess.

Through seven days of consideration, the legislation remains intact except for one amendment.

Last Friday, the Senate agreed to a move by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, removing a $50 million tax break for Union Oil Co. of California — Unocal.

On Monday, however, by a 73-14 vote, the Senate rejected a Metzenbaum amendment to eliminate $106 million in tax cuts for the Oklahoma-based Phillips Petroleum Co. and use the money to give a tax benefit for farmers.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., defended the break, saying the company had been reeling from the costs associated with fending off two hostile takeover attempts in 1984 and 1985.

He said the hardships of the Bartlesville, Okla., company involved "real people who have real problems."

But Metzenbaum said, "The taxpayers of the country shouldn't be called upon to dig into their pockets for $106 million to subsidize takeover games."

Five newspapers said purchased

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — The Donrey Media Group has purchased the Athens Daily Review and four other publications, Daily Review owner and publisher Dick Dwelle announced.

Donrey, based in Fort Smith, Ark., on July 1 will assume ownership of the Daily Review, the Athens Weekly Review, the Cedar Creek Pilot and the Malakoff News from the Community Information Center, Inc., of Athens, Dwelle said.

The Advertiser, an Athens-based free distribution publication, also was purchased, he said.

The five newpapers have a total circulation of about 53,000.

Ponder early warning pacts

RENO, Nev. (AP) — International experts will meet next month to draft an agreement requiring nations to warn their neighbors if a nuclear accident spews radiation outside their borders as the Chernobyl accident did, an official of an international nuclear power agency says.

The proposed agreement, and another pact covering emergency aid after such an accident, could be endorsed as early as September when the 112-nation International Atomic Energy Agency holds a general meeting, said Morris Rosen, director of the agency's division of nuclear safety.

Nuclear experts will meet July 21 in Vienna, where the agency is based, to work out drafts of the agreements to be submitted to the general meeting Sept. 29, Rosen said in an interview Monday.

"There is a consensus we should have the agreements," he said, adding that he was optimistic that if approval doesn't come in September, "it will be a reasonable period afterward."

Rosen, who also spoke Monday to a session of the American Nuclear Society annual meeting, said the energy agency had drafted guidelines for early warning and accident assistance before the Chernobyl disaster.

But the move toward the agreements is "clearly a result of the accident," he said. The fact that radiation from the Soviet reactor crossed national boundaries "emphasized the need for more international cooperation," he said.

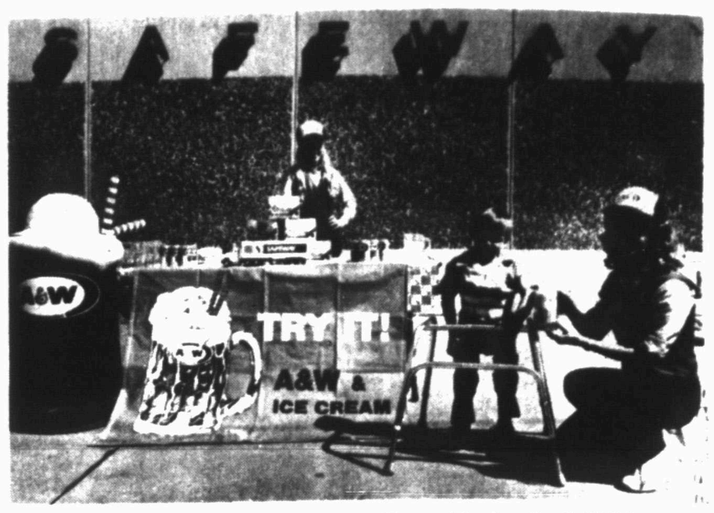

The Soviet Union, which is a member of the international agency, came under sharp criticism after the April 26 Chernobyl disaster for not warning other nations of the drift of radiation. Western nations first learned of the accident after radiation was detected in Sweden.

Rosen also said Soviet officials have promised to send a team of experts to Vienna the week of Aug. 25 to present a detailed review of the accident and its consequences.

"I think right now they don't have all the answers," he said. "They're still doing the analysis."

Rosen said reactors outside the Soviet Union are different from the Chernobyl reactor. Other reactors that use graphite rather than water to aid in the nuclear chain-reaction are different from the Chernobyl reactor in size and other key aspects, he said.

"You cannot in any way draw immediate implications from that accident" for American reactors, which differ substantially in design, he said.

Sesquicentennial medallions ready

AUSTIN (AP) — A Houston numismatist said Monday he hopes to sell 25,000 gold and 200,000 silver versions of the Texas Sesquicentennial medallion minted by his firm.

The state's Sesquicentennial Commission will get 2 percent royalties from the sales. The medallions, which are exempt from the state sales tax, cost about $6 each for the silver version and $375 for the gold.

The gold medallions will cost slightly less for buyers who purchase 10 or more, according to Dr. George Vogt, president and chairman of Colonial Coins Inc. of Houston.

Vogt's company had the medallions made at a Mesa, Ariz., mint. That mint has been purchased by Colonial Coins and will be moved to Houston, Vogt said. So far, about 5,000 silver and 300 gold medallions have been made.

Two Dallas firms also have been authorized by the Sesquicentennial Commission to make similar medallions.

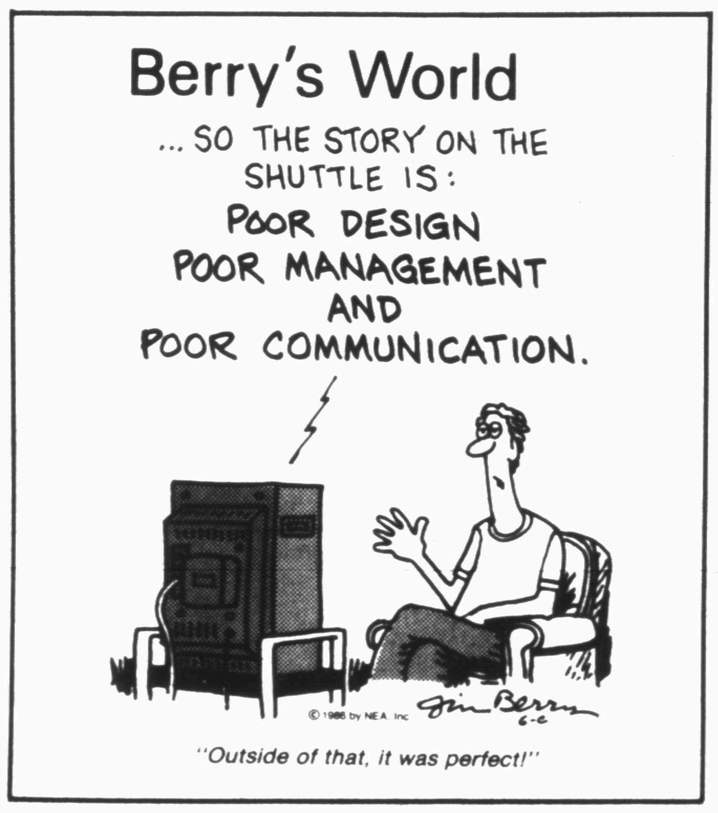

Vogt on Monday sold the first two gold medallions to Houston state Rep. Ralph Wallace, who pushed the legislation that exempted the medallions from the state sales tax.

Sesquicentennial Commission director Patrick Terry said the royalties will be passed on to the Texas Tourist Development Agency and the Texas Commission on the Arts.

The medallions feature both sides of the state seal.

"We didn't even know until this year that there was a back side to the seal," Wallace said.

He said the Texas medallions could be an attractive investment alternative for people who do not want to buy gold or silver coins minted by other countries.

"Outside of that, it was perfect!"

Companies unite for Easter Seal

Safeway Stores, A&W Root Beer and Lucerne Ice Cream have combined efforts to sponsor the 1986 Great Together promotion for Easter Seals. On Saturday, all Safeway Stores in the area will have a booth set up from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. where employees will sell 16 ounce root beer floats for just $1 each. All proceeds benefit the Texas Easter Seal Society.

The float promotion is part of a nationwide project being sponsored this summer by Safeway and A&W Root Beer. As a national corporate sponsor, Safeway raised $1,405,000 for Easter Seals last year. Over $250,000 was raised by Safeway employees in Texas.

The Texas Easter Seal Society is a non-profit voluntary health agency providing direct services to children and adults with physical disabilities. Funds raised through the float promotion will be used to support the society's programs and services for disabled individuals in this area.

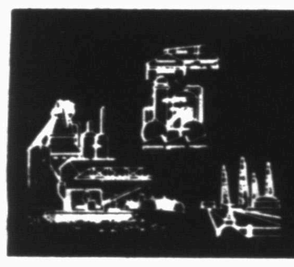

Court upholds murder conviction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today let stand the murder conviction and death sentence of Texas death row inmate Lawrence Lee Buxton.

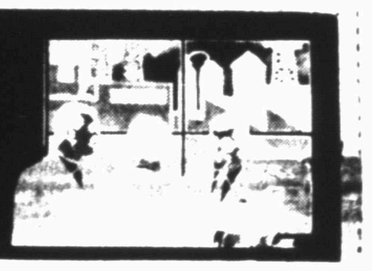

The justices refused to hear arguments that Buxton's trial was tainted by a pretrial identification of him made by a key witness under conditions he said were unduly suggestive.

Buxton was convicted of the Sept. 19, 1980 shooting death of Joel Slotnik during a supermarket robbery in Houston.

Rhode Island was purchased from the Indians in 1683.

Delta has filed complaint against American Airlines

ATLANTA (AP) — American Airlines has been feeding false figures into its SABRE computerized reservation system to portray faster elapsed flight times than actually exist, rival Delta Airlines complains.

The complaint, filed Monday with the Department of Transportation, said the use of a "paper-only" schedule lures customers away from other airlines by making the American flights appear more attractive.

Loud music and deafness

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently my 16-year-old went to a party where a D.J. played records. The music was loud, and when my daughter came home, her ears were ringing. Can permanent damage result from blasting amplifiers? Would earplugs help?

DEAR READER — You raise an extremely important question. Noise pollution is an issue that I have been campaigning against for years.

We are able to hear because sound enters the ear and is transformed into liquid waves within the fluid of the inner-ear hearing organ (cochlea). Extremely delicate cells line the cochlea of each ear. From these cells, tiny hairs project into the cochlear fluid. When a fluid sound wave stimulates these hairs, they weave back and forth, setting up an oscillation that produces an electrical current within each hair cell. The impulses are carried to the brain, where they are interpreted as sound.

The louder the sound, the more vigorously the cochlear hairs move. Very loud sound can actually shake off hair cells from the cochlear lining. The cells never grow back. After repeated exposure to loud noise, a person can become permanently deaf. This phenomenon is well-known in noisy occupations — such as those connected with aircraft — and workers in these fields are required to wear noise-dampening earmuffs.

Most young people seem unaware that amplified rock music is loud enough to shear off hair cells and cause irreparable hearing damage. Unfortunately, this damage is most likely to occur within the mid-range of hearing — the area of pitch with which we hear ordinary conversation. Very low- and very high-tone hearing is often spared. Ringing in the ears is the earliest sign that damage has occurred. The situation may progress to a point at which a person is unable to hear a conversation in a crowded room.

As a general rule, if sound is loud enough to cause pain or ringing, it is doing permanent damage. Earplugs do help; so do other methods to reduce the shock of the sound waves. As a useful alternative, I advise putting a finger firmly in each ear. Although it's hard to dance that way, it will preserve hearing.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am an elderly woman just about to become 90. I'm active, but get dizzy spells. My heart and eyes are fine. Two doctors differ on whether it's my ears, and one guessed it was circulation. What do you advise?

DEAR READER — Dizziness or lightheadedness is common in older people when they stand or sit suddenly. This is due to an inadequate amount of blood reaching the brain, because arteriosclerotic (hardened) blood vessels do not readily constrict to force blood upward when elderly persons rapidly change position. You may be helped by seeing a specialist in circulatory disorders. However, in my experience, the condition you describe (orthostatic hypotension) is usually something people have to put up with as they age. Try sitting and standing more slowly to allow your circulation to adapt to each new positon.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I get tennis elbow quite frequently. What can I do for it? Would an oversized racket absorb some of the shock?

DEAR READER — Tennis elbow is a painful condition that results from chronic inflammation of the tissues of the elbow joint. It is usually made worse by improperly hitting backhand shots. Anti-inflammatory drugs may help relieve pain, but if your sore elbow is really a handicap, I suggest you see an orthopedic surgeon. Some forms of Velcro band supports can be helpful, but you may need an injection of cortisone into the inflamed area. As far as I know, the initial enthusiasm for oversized rackets has waned; they may help your net game, but they seem not to affect the actual mechanics of striking the ball.

Ellis Island to advice column

EDITORS' NOTE — Most immigrants arrived at America's port cities with little but the contents of satchels or a single family trunk. But all left legacies, like the Russian-born parents of advice columnists Abigail Van Buren and Ann Landers.

By Jerry Schwartz
By the Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1905, Abraham Friedman and Rebecca Rushall were faced with the decision of a lifetime, whether to leave Russia, and there was no Dear Abby, no Ann Landers to help them make up their minds.

It would be 13 years before Rebecca gave birth to the twins who would become America's best-loved advice columnists. But first she and Abraham would join the exodus of Jews from Russia to America, the Golden Land.

"My parents came with nothing. They all came with nothing," said Pauline Phillips, known to millions of newspaper readers as Abigail van Buren.

Her sister, Eppie Lederer, is best known as Ann Landers. Their parents were not known to the public at all; they were immigrants who came from Russia, through China and finally to the American Midwest, drawn by the siren call of a better life, driven by the desire to escape czarist Russia.

The turn of the century marked the zenith of anti-Jewish violence under the czars. From the 1881 assassination of Czar Alexander II onward, Jews were subjected to mounting oppression: anti-Jewish laws, expulsion from some cities and a series of programs, officially condoned mob violence against Jews.

Abraham and Rebecca, engaged to be married, had even more to fear. They were 20 years old, and Friedman was a prime candidate for the draft.

One army hitch? Twenty-five years.

"As I understand it, he desperately did not want to be conscripted into the Russian army," Mrs. Phillips said.

So they left their homes in the Ukraine — he was from Kiev, she from Minsk — and made the 4,000-mile journey to the Chinese port of Harbin.

They stayed there a while. To raise money, Friedman sold Singer sewing machines to the Chinese. Finally, they set off for America — a long trip across the Pacific, around Cape Horn and all the way to New York.

About 2.4 million Jews entered the United States from 1881 to 1924, 75 percent of them from Russia. The height of the Jewish immigration was 1904 to 1908, when 642,463 came to a country that promised religious freedom, justice and equal opportunity for all who worked hard.

Abraham and Rebecca landed at Ellis Island, passing the Statue of Liberty. "It's amazing the impact the lady of the harbor had on them. They always held her dear, all their lives," Mrs. Phillips said.

Unlike many of their fellow Jewish immigrants, they did not stay in New York, in the East or even in an urban area. They first went to Omaha, Neb., where Abraham's older brother, Ben, lived.

The Jews who went to the Midwest generally had similar ties.

"Why on Earth would they go to Minnesota? Iowa? Nebraska? I could see them staying in Brooklyn, N.Y., but why go all the way out there?" asked Mrs. Phillips. Then she answered her own question: "Because they had somebody there — a relative, a friend, someone who could help."

Abraham and Rebecca married in Omaha, then moved to Sioux City, Iowa, where another relative had a jewelry store.

Restaurateur's roots began in Greece

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — When Spero Cotseone arrived in Texarkana in 1950, his track record hardly indicated he would stay for good.

During the two decades before that he had wandered from Greece to Chicago to West Texas to the Gulf Coast. Along the way, he opened and closed a string of restaurants, making money about as often as he went broke.

But after 36 years in Texarkana, he's still here, still operating the same restaurant, and unlikely ever to leave — or go broke.

"I couldn't leave Texarkana," says Cotseone, who immigrated from Greece in 1929. "I go downtown, everybody wave; I know everybody. I go in a department store, they know my name. I make a world of friends and earned a lot of respect. That makes me feel good."

His Spero's Cafe has been in continuous operation longer than any other restaurant in Texarkana. And Cotseone, 70, has been in the restaurant business virtually every day of his adult life.

He arrived in Chicago at the age of 14 from a tiny village in Greece near Tripolis. "I had to learn the language. I didn't know any English," says Cotseone, who still bears a trace of his Greek accent.

His father had gone to Chicago several years before and started a chain of restaurants there. The chain had grown to 31 by 1929. "I was brought up in restaurants," Cotseone says.

But in 1934, the chain went under with the Great Depression, and Cotseone's father returned to Greece. A couple of years later, Cotseone headed south to see if his luck might improve in Texas.

In 1936, he and several partners opened a food stand at the Texas Centennial celebration staged at the state fairgrounds in Dallas. "But we didn't do too good with it," Cotseone recalls. "Too many partners."

So he set off by himself to follow the oilfield boomtowns in West Texas. "Every time a new oil field strike came in, I would go there and open a new restaurant."

When the busts began to outnumber the booms, Cotseone found himself broke again. So he settled in Lubbock for a few years before moving to the coast and opening restaurants in Beaumont and Port Arthur.

While there, Cotseone got to know Texarkanian Charley Pappas, who hunted geese near Beaumont. Cotseone's wife had never liked the coastal climate, so when Pappas suggested Coseone move to Texarkana, it sounded like a good idea.

Cotseone opened a little cafe on West Ninth Street and served chicken, hamburgers and seafood. But the going was rough at first. The crowds that now line up outside Spero's on Friday and Saturday nights did not come until much later.

Joyner spoils 1-hit pitching by Hough

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Wally Joyner made sure his 24th birthday was a happy one. While he did so, he added knuckleballer Charlie Hough to the long line of pitchers he's made miserable this season.

Because Hough's knuckleball was so difficult to hit, the 38-year-old right-hander entered the ninth inning of Monday night's game against the California Angels with a no-hitter.

Because his knuckleball is so tough to catch, Hough and the Texas Rangers wound up dropping a bizarre 2-1 decision to the Angels.

It was Joyner, the Angels' rookie sensation, who broke up Hough's no-hit bid with a one-out single to center which drove in Jack Howell from third base to tie the game at 1-1. Howell had reached third on a three-base error by Texas left fielder George Wright.

Shortly later, Joyner, who leads the majors in home runs with 19, raced home from second base with the winning run when Texas catcher Orlando Mercado couldn't hold a Hough knuckleball on a swinging third strike by George Hendrick.

Hendrick had swung and missed on a 3-2 pitch with two outs. Joyner at second and Reggie Jackson at first were running with the pitch, which glanced off Mercado's glove.

Hough didn't cover home on the play. Joyner, who turned 24 Monday, never broke stride rounding third and scored standing up, reaching the plate a few steps ahead of Mercado.

"It was just a mental lapse on Charlie's part, not to cover home," Joyner said. "But he'd been out there for nine innings. He was tired and relieved to strike out Hendrick and just forgot (to cover home).

"I was going the whole way. I was going just in case George got to first. I see the ball go by the catcher, my job is to go home."

"The strangest, you talk to guys in this room in the game for 20 years, they'll tell you it's the strangest game they've seen," winning pitcher Kirk McCaskill said. "It was great to be involved in it. It's unbelievable. It still hasn't sunk in."

McCaskill, 6-4, hurled a four-hitter while walking three and striking out 10. He allowed just one hit after the second inning. The only run scored by the Rangers, in the second, was unearned because of an error by Pettis.

Hough, who finished with the first one-hitter of his career, took the blame for not covering home.

"I just flat out blew it," he said. "It was definitely my fault. We'd have had the guy (Joyner) if I had just walked up there."

Hough walked four and struck out eight. Ironically, he struck out the side in the ninth. But the third one ultimately beat him.

The heartbreaking defeat reduced Texas' first-place lead in the AL West to 2½ games over California and Kansas City. The Royals beat Oakland 3-2 in 11 innings.

Cards pull plug on Pirates, 4-1

by The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates felt like someone had pulled the plug on them.

"That's the quickest I've ever seen a game called in any league. This has to go down in the Guinness Book of World Records," Pirates General Manager Syd Thrift said after Monday night's rain-shortened 4-1 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Pirates felt the umpires reacted precipitously, considering that National League instructions direct the umpires' crew chief to wait 75 minutes after the first delay in play and 45 minutes after a second delay before calling a game.

"I've never heard of any game being called in less than 45 minutes," said Pirates Manager Jim Leyland, who said he would file an official protest. "We didn't get something we had coming."

In other NL action, New York beat Montreal 4-1 in 10 innings; Chicago stopped Philadelphia 7-5; Atlanta edged Cincinnati 4-3 in 10 innings and San Diego blanked San Francisco 4-0.

Jack Clark homered to back Danny Cox's four-hit pitching as the Cardinals climbed past the Pirates by a half-game into fifth place in the NL East. Cox, 2-5, maintained his mastery over the Pirates, who have beaten him only once in nine career decisions.

A half-hour after the game was called by crew chief John Kibler, it had stopped raining and the Three Rivers Stadium outfield contained only several small puddles.

Mets 4, Expos 1

Darryl Strawberry singled home the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning as New York scored three times to beat Montreal in a game delayed for more then two hours by rain. The victory fattened the Mets' lead to 11½ games over the Expos in the National League East.

Cubs 7, Phillies 5

Leon Durham's two-run homer and a two-run double by Shawon Dunston helped make Jamie Moyer's major-league pitching debut a success as Chicago defeated Philadelphia.

Braves 4, Reds 3

Ken Oberkfell's third hit, a run-scoring single in the 10th, lifted Atlanta over Cincinnati. Dale Murphy had walked with one out and took third on Bob Horner's third single of the night before Oberkfell came through with his game-winning single off John Franco, 0-4.

Padres 4, Giants 0

Andy Hawkins pitched a seven-hitter and Garry Templeton highlighted a three-run seventh inning with a two-run single as San Diego defeated San Francisco.

It was the first shutout of the season for Hawkins, 5-4.

Steve Garvey collected his 2,500th career hit with a seventh-inning single.

4A tournament rescheduled pending outcome of lawsuits

AUSTIN (AP) - The court-mired Class 4A state high school baseball tournament has been tentatively rescheduled for Friday and Saturday nights in Austin, assuming several Texas courts can process several pending lawsuits by then.

If one or more court orders prohibit play by then, the 4A state tournament may be canceled for this year, University Interscholastic League director Bailey Marshall announced Monday.

He noted that the current school year has already ended across the state and "many of the players have obligations that will prohibit them from playing later in the summer."

The new tentative schedule calls for semifinal games at Disch-Falk Field on the University of Texas campus at 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Friday, with the championship game at 7 p.m. Saturday, Marshall said.

"This schedule is being set on the assumption that all litigation is settled or dropped and that the court settlements allow the games to be played on these dates, times and location," Marshall said.

"We regret that these court actions have delayed the tournament and, for the sake of the players, we hope the tournament can be resumed and completed," Marshall said in a statement.

Snyder, Brenham, Mercedes and Austin Westlake earned spots in the state tournament, but Westlake advanced after rain washed out the last two games of a scheduled best 2-of-3 series with Waco Richfield, which then went to court seeking completion of the series.

Several other court suits then followed, and injunctions kept the UIL from having 4A semifinals last weekend, when the championships for 1A, 2A, 3A and 5A were decided..

If litigation prohibits play by Friday, Marshall said, the UIL will "give serious consideration to cancellation of this year's Conference 4A tournament."

At least seven motions have been filed in four different courts over the disputed quarterfinal series between Austin Westlake and Waco Richfield.

In Waco Monday, State District Judge Bill Logue issued a temporary injunction barring the Eanes Independent School District and the UIL from proceeding with a hearing set for today in Austin.

Margaret Cooper, an Austin attorney representing the UIL, said the UIL would have no choice but to be represented at the hearing in Austin Tuesday.

State District Judge Juan Gallardo "has told us to be present (in Austin). Anything we do to obey one judge is going to be in violation of another judge," Ms. Cooper said.

The legal battle started after Westlake beat Richfield in the first game June 5 and rain prevented play in games 2 and 3. Pressed for time, the University Interscholastic League invoked a 27-year-old rule and decided that Westlake should advance to the state tournament.

Not happy with the rule, Richfield supporters filed suit.

Gallardo in Austin then ruled that the tournament could not proceed unless Westlake was one of the teams.

Later Wednesday, State District Judge Homer Salinas in Edinburg issued a restraining order on behalf of Mercedes, which would have faced Westlake, saying the tournament couldn't be played on artificial turf.

Braves play tonight in tournament here

Snyder's Braves, rained out in their debut of the Snyder Little League Area Tournament Monday evening, will play Winters at 6 tonight, it has been announced.

Monday's late game was postponed after strong wind and rain swept Logan Field during the Rotan-Tri County contest. Rotan took an 8-4 victory in the rain-shortened, four-inning ballgame.

Weather forced some rescheduling of the week-long tournament, including moving the Snyder-Winters contest to tonight. Also this evening, at 8, Merkel and Hamlin will play.

Ballinger, which received a bye, is scheduled to play Rotan at 6 p.m. Thursday. Also on Thursday, the Snyder-Winters victor will play the Merkel-Hamlin winner at 8 p.m.

Friday's championship game in the double-elimination tournament has been set for 7:30 p.m. The winner will advance to play the champion of an tournament being held simultaneously in Anson. That game will be held at 7:30 p.m. June 21 at Logan Field.

Undefeated pitchers pace all-state tournament teams

AUSTIN (AP) - Three undefeated pitchers - Scott Scudder of Pattonville Prairiland, Jerry Dubose of Colmesneil and Todd Hotz of Riviera - are among players selected to all-state tournament baseball teams announced Monday by the University Interscholastic League.

Dubose and Hotz were unanimous selections. Scudder tied teammate Jack Kindle as the Class 3A all-tournament pitcher but was a unanimous choice at first base.

Scudder, 18-0, is a Texas Longhorn baseball recruit and No. 1 draft choice of the Cincinnati Reds. At the state tournament, he won his only start and had three hits for seven RBIs.

Dubose and Hotz, also seniors, made all tournament in 1985 and repeated this year as their teams successfully defended state titles. Last year, Hotz was the all-star first baseman.

Dubose, 18-0, and Hotz, 20-0, were the winning pitchers in both of their teams' games this year. Hotz set a 2A strikeout record of 14 in the seven-inning semifinal Thursday and matched that performance in the championship game Friday.

Hotz said he will enroll at the University of Texas next fall. Dubose said he will go to junior college but hopes to transfer to UT.

Oklahoma recruit Wade Inman of Round Rock Westwood also made all tournament as a pitcher.

In addition to Colmesneil in Class A and Riviera in 2A, Houston Bellaire won the 5A championship and Prairiland captured the 3A title.

Class 4A competition has been held up by court orders, and UIL director Bailey Marshall said Monday if play is not resumed by Friday the UIL will "give serious consideration" to canceling that portion of the state tournament.

Here are the all-state tournament teams, by conference:

Clemens wins 12th start for Red Sox

NEW YORK (AP) - Just another game of catch for Roger Clemens. Just another victory for the Boston Red Sox.

Clemens raised his record to 12-0 with a four-hitter Monday night, and the Red Sox scored early and often in routing the New York Yankees 10-1.

"It's a lot easier pitching with a big lead," Clemens said. "With a cushion, I could just throw fastballs."

The Red Sox rapped 16 hits and gave Clemens all the runs he needed by scoring three times in the first inning. Jim Rice had a two-run single in the opening inning and added RBI singles in the third and fourth.

"After that, I could go out and play pitch-and-catch with Richie (catcher Gedman)," Clemens said.

Clemens' start is the best in the major leagues since Ron Guidry opened the 1978 season with 13 straight victories. Guidry was the loser Monday night, getting pounded for five runs in less than three innings. It was the sixth straight loss for Guidry, 4-7, the longest skid of his career.

"I wish I could've faced him tonight with the same stuff I had eight years ago," Guidry said. "I'm sure he feels the same way I did in 1978."

"He can almost tell the guys what's coming and get them out," he said. "He's not afraid - just like I was."

Clemens lowered his American League-leading earned run average to 2.17. He struck out four and raised his total to 108, also best in the league.

Clemens did not walk a batter.

Tennis briefs

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) - Top-seeded Martina Navratilova ousted Catherine Taniver of France in the opening round of the Pilkington Glass Ladies Tennis Championships, while Larisa Savchenko of the Soviet Union shocked fourth-seeded Kathy Rinaldi.

Navratilova scored a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Tanvier while Savchenko surprised her American opponent 6-2, 6-2. Second-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslova also moved into the second round, stopping Australian Janine Thompson 6-2, 6-1.

Jury clears 'Hot Rod' of point shaving charge

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A six-member jury cleared John "Hot Rod" Williams of point shaving charges and the former Tulane University forward made plans for a professional basketball career that has been in limbo for a year.

Williams was acquitted Monday of five counts of conspiracy and bribery, charges that could have cost him 17 years in prison and $35,000 in fines.

Tulane abandoned its men's basketball program in the wake of the point shaving scandal and allegations of numerous NCAA violations disclosed at the same time.

Williams was arrested on March 26, 1985, indicted two days later and tried for the first time in August. That trial ended abruptly in a mistrial and Monday's verdict came on the sixth day of his second trial.

"It's been rough on me, but now I can get on with my life," Williams, 24, said after being found innocent.

The Cleveland Cavaliers gambled a second-round choice on Williams in last year's draft, picking him despite a letter circulated by the National Basketball Association warning that he could not play in the league as long as the legal cloud hung over him.

Cavs owners George and Gordon Gund have paid Williams' legal expenses, although they had to withdraw their contract during the preseason when Williams' first trial failed to clear up his legal status.

Monday, the Cavaliers said Williams is under contract to Cleveland.

Normally, a player unsigned for a year becomes a free agent, but NBA general counsel Gary Bettman said Monday Williams is a special case, and the Cavs retain his rights.

At an impromptu news conference on the courthouse steps after the verdict, Williams avoided saying he would be playing for the Cavs, even when asked specifically.

"I'll be somewhere, and I'll make the team," he said.

Williams' reluctance to answer was on the advice of his lawyers, an apparent ploy to use the threat of free agency as a bargaining wedge in contract talks.

Williams, at 6-foot-11, is an inch taller and substantially bulkier in the upper body than he was when he left Tulane. He played center at Tulane and was used at power forward when he made the all-star team last year in the United States Basketball League.

Keith Lee, whose name figured prominently in Williams' trial, played both power forward and small forward for the Cavs last season.

Lee was an all-American at Memphis State in 1985, and prosecutors said Williams deliberately guarded Lee loosely, allowing him to score freely in one of the games allegedly fixed.

Mavs thinking tall in Tuesday's draft

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Mavericks, still without an impact center after six frustrating tries, planned to go after the next-best-thing today in the first round of the NBA draft.

It was almost certain the best available 7-footers - Brad Daugherty of North Carolina and William Bedford of Memphis State - would be taken by the time of Dallas' seventh overall pick.

Furthermore, 6-11 Chris Washburn, a center-forward from North Carolina State, was expected to be drafted in the early part of the first round.

But the Mavericks' probable first-round draftee, Roy Tarpley of Michigan, is only a half inch shorter. And he's not bad, either, said Rick Sund, the Mavericks director of player personnel.

"Reminds me of Herb Williams," Sund said. "He has a very good turnaround jumper. He has not peaked yet. If he reaches his potential, he could be a fine player."

Besides Tarpley, the Mavericks interviewed 6-8 Walter Berry of St. John's, 6-8 John Williams of LSU, 6-6 Ron Harper of Miami of Ohio and 6-4 Dell Curry of Virginia Tech.

If he is still available, Berry likely would be the first-round choice if Tarpley is taken or the Mavericks change their mind.

Although this year's NBA draft class lacks big-name, impact players, it is quality deep, Sund said.

"The best position once again is forward," Sund said. "There are no name players like Patrick Ewing and Wayman Tisdale this year. This year there will probably be just three centers taken in the first round compared to last year when seven were drafted.

James Donaldson, obtained early last season from the Los Angeles Clippers, helped relieve some of the growing pangs as the Mavericks made the playoffs and pushed the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers to six games in the second round.

To get more height, it's no secret the Mavericks could trade even star player Mark Aquirre, a 1981 first-round draft choice who engaged in an on-and-off personality confrontation with Dallas coach Dick Motta throughout the season.

The Mavericks also will pick 25th and 35th in the second round.

Rockets needing help at guard

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Rockets advanced all the way to the NBA finals without a true point guard after John Lucas was dismissed from the team March 15 for failing a drug test.

Robert Reid stepped up from his sixth-man position to take over the reins and got help in the latter stages of the playoffs from Allen Leavell, who was recovering from a broken bone in his hand.

Some of the point guards likely to go high in the draft included Johnn Dawkins of NCAA runnerup champion Duke, Dwayne Washington of Syracuse, Michigan State's Scott Skiles and Alabama-Birmingham's Steve Mitchell.

If the Rockets were unable to grab a top guard from the collegiate ranks, their shopping list could even include going for another big man to add to their Tower Power of Ralph Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon.

Jim Petersen offered relief off the bench this year but beyond that, the Rockets have no solid help.

Another area of concern could be the championship series performance of guard Lewis Lloyd, who averaged 16.8 points in the regular season and 16.7 in the first three rounds of the playoffs.

Spurs pondering 10th draft spot

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - If the San Antonio Spurs have an ace up their sleeve in the NBA draft, it has to be new coach Bob Weiss.

Weiss came to San Antonio from an assistant's position with the Dallas Mavericks, where he helped mastermind several key draft picks.

"I feel I'm a pretty good judge of talent," Weiss said.

Weiss, who replaced fired Spurs coach Cotton Fitzsimmons, was a scout behind the Mavericks' selection of Mark Aguirre, Rolando Blackman, Sam Perkins and Detlef Schrempf.

Weiss and other Spurs officials were tossing around several names as possible choices for the team's No. 10 draft slot.

General Manager Bob Bass said guards Johnny Dawkins, 6-2, of Duke; Ron Harper, 6-6½, of Miami of Ohio; or Dell Curry, 6-5, of Virginia Tech would be considered if they were still available.

He also named as possibilities 6-8 forward Kenny Walker of Kentucky, 6-9 forward John Williams of Louisiana State University, 6-10 forward Roy Tarpley of Michigan and 6-11 forward Brad Sellers of Ohio State.

Variables include the team's five free agents and the questionable status of point guard Johnny Moore.

Yorks leads the way...

WTC up and down at CNFR

BOZEMAN, Mont. -- Coach Bob Doty said Western Texas College's opening day performance at the College National Finals Rodeo was "like a roller coaster" and if so, Paul Yorks' effort was the highlight.

Yorks won the first go-round in the steer wrestling with a time of 4.1, earning Western a quick 120 points here. His effort was the only point-garnering one of the near-completed first go-round, though some of his teammates have set themselves up for a good finish.

Bliss Mayhan, for instance, is splitting second and third in the first round of the bareback with a 71. The round concludes this evening.

In team roping, Yorks and Chuck Smith timed a 7.6 to tie for sixth. Hermleigh native Kenny Riley, of Tarleton State University, and Russ Smith, of Texas Tech, also clocked a 7.6 in the first go-round.

Cody Foster and Jim Smith of Western turned a 9.5 in the first go and were 20th in the team roping.

But the roller coaster ride took some dives along the way. Mayhan missed his saddle bronc horse out, Chuck Smith took a 24.4 in the steer wrestling and Keith Hudson no-timed in the steer wrestling.

On the "up" side again, Hudson was 12.9 in the calf roping which is splitting 14th and should keep him in good shape for the average.

And back down...

Jim Smith was 23.6 with a broken barrier and Tobin Tate and Yorks both had no-times.

"It was like a roller coaster," said Doty. "We did well in team roping but Paul's calf got back up on him in the calf roping. Then Jim broke the barrier and Bliss missed his bronc out. Then Bliss made a good ride in the bareback. It was up and down.

"I was disappointed we didn't do better in the calf roping becase I felt like that was an event we really had a chance to do well in. But, I felt like anything we got from steer wrestling and team roping would be a bonus and we did pretty well in those," the coach said.

Yorks had clocked a 10.5 in the calf roping - good enough for third place - but his calf got up.

"That was a pretty big disappointment because he had made a good run," the coach said. "His horse just started backing up and pulled the calf up."

Western's women's team didn't fare especially well.

Niki Moist timed an 8.2 in the goat tying for 13th in the first round. Mistri Davis was 9.0 in the same event and took 29th place.

In the breakaway, Moist was 4.4 for 27th. Shelly Eldridge was 12.4 with a broken barrier and Davis took a no-time.

Eldridge also had an 11.4 in the goat tying.

In the barrels, Davis turned a 15.07 which finished 30th in the first round. Eldridge's run was a 15.37.

In other results from first-day action, Snyder's Van Hale, rodeoing for Sul Ross, missed his saddle bronc horse out. Odessa's Jim Sharp also missed out.

Sul Ross' Todd Watkins scored a 62 in the bull riding and Riley turned a 6.1 to place 16th in the steer wrestling.

McLelland signs pact

J.D. McLelland, graduate of El Paso Coronado, has signed a golf scholarship with Western Texas College.

"I'm looking forward to working with J.D.," said Coach Dave Foster. "He comes from a golfing family and was highly recruited in the New Mexico and Arizona area. We're fortunate to have him."

McLelland was a captain of the Coronado team which finished sixth at the Class 5A State Golf Tournament in Austin. He placed fourth at district and seventh at regional as a senior.

He was also ninth in district and 11th at region as a junior and seventh at district and 15th at region as a sophomore.

He was won numerous high school and summer tournaments and in 1985 was a member of the America's Cup team which placed fifth at Calgary, Canada.

JURY

Memphis State, a four-point favorite, beat Tulane by 11 points in that game after Lee hit three quick baskets to open the second half and erase a six-point Tulane halftime lead.

The other game that prosecutors say was fixed was at Tulane against Southern Mississippi. Tulane, a 10-point favorite, won 64-63.

Most of the testimony against Williams came from six young men who admit being part of a conspiracy - three former Tulane teammates and three East Coast fraternity brothers.

1 driver flees scene following rural wreck

Snyder-based Department of Public Safety highway patrolmen investigated a hit-and-run two-vehicle accident Monday.

It was one of two minor traffic accidents worked during the day.

The hit-and-run accident occurred on U.S. Highway 180 at 11:10 p.m.

According to DPS reports, Billy Bob Sutton of Snyder was driving a 1983 Ford pickup east bound on 180 when his vehicle was struck by an unidentified car at the intersection of 180 and County Rd. 221.

The unidentified vehicle was reportedly southbound on 221 and ran the stop sign before striking the Sutton vehicle and fleeing the scene to the west.

The day's first accident was reported at 12:15 p.m. 14 miles south of Snyder on Texas Highway 208.

Involved in that mishap were a 1985 Ford pickup driven by Jack Walter Huckelbridge of Sweetwater and a 1981 Ford pickup driven by James Bryant Lancaster of Idalou.

According to reports, both vehicles were traveling south on the highway when the Lancaster truck struck the Huckelbridge vehicle from the rear.

No injuries were reported from either mishap.

Trucking Co. under investigation

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A trucking company is being investigated for a toxic-chemical leak that went unreported for nearly a day, a state official said.

Hector Villa, an environmental quality specialist for the Texas Water Commission, said Monday that the chemical, described as a clear resin with an alcohol base, leaked inside a tractor-trailer rig Sunday in the parking lot of Roadway Express Inc., on the city's eastside.

He said the liquid, which was to be shipped to the Utah state prison for use as a sealant in the manufacture of license plates, potentially is fatal if inhaled or absorbed through the skin.

Villa said four 55-gallon drums of the chemical were in the trailer. It was uncertain how many of the drums leaked, he said.

The Fire Department dispatcher said the Environmental Protection Agency has taken charge of disposal operations. Villa said the barrels will be returned to a 3M plant in Brownfield, Texas, where the drums were shipped from.

Company officials noticed the leak sometime Sunday but waited until Monday afternoon to report the leak to the El Paso Fire Department, Villa said.

Torch slated for appearance back to the east to East Highway.

The run through the city will officially end there.

Also on June 28, the torch is scheduled to leave from Lubbock to be carried through Posey, Slaton, Southland, Post and Justiceburg before reaching Snyder.

From here, it will also go to Dunn, Colorado City, Silver and Robert Lee.

Parked vehicle said hit here

Police investigated one minor hit-and-run traffic mishap Monday.

Homer Holloway of Snyder called police at 3:50 p.m. to report the incident.

He told officers that his 1980 Pontiac had apparently been struck by another vehicle while parked at Furr's Supermarket.

Items stolen from pickup

Snyder police are investigating a misdemeanor theft report filed Monday morning.

At 8:34 a.m., Abraham Rodriquez of 409 20th St. reported the theft of three fishing poles and reels, a Coleman lantern and a traveler's check refund check.

He told police the items were taken from his pickup — parked outside the residence — sometime between 11:30 p.m. Sunday and 7 a.m. Monday.

In other action Monday, police jailed one suspect for public intoxication late Monday night.

2 women jailed

WHARTON, Texas (AP) — Two women have been sentenced to serve a year in jail because seven of their children perished in a fire that occurred after the women left them alone for several hours.

Jacqueline Williams, 24, of El Campo, and Marsha Taylor Owens, 30, of Glen Flora, were sentenced Monday by State District Judge Daniel Sklar to one year in the Wharton County Jail after they pleaded guilty to charges of causing injury to a child.

The mothers were at a bar in a nearby Bay City on Feb. 13 when their unattended children, ranging in ages from 2 months to 8 years, died in a fire at the Williams' ramshackle home in El Campo, authorities said.

Five of Mrs. Williams' six children and two of Mrs. Owens' four children died in the fire. The surviving children were staying with relatives elsewhere at the time of the fire.

Mrs. Williams pleaded guilty to five counts of injury to a child and Mrs. Owens to two. The women were sentenced on each count, but the sentences will run concurrently, said Roland Carlson, Wharton County district clerk.

News report delayed ruling

HOUSTON (AP) — A news report that the U.S. Supreme Court would issue a ruling on the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget bill kept the court from doing so, one of the authors of the bill said.

"My guess is, given the leak, the Supreme Court is unhappy and is deciding to show the leaker by holding it up," Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, told 750 people attending a Houston Chamber of Commerce luncheon on Monday.

The court had announced previously it would hand down three decisions Monday. But it announced only two, neither involving the balanced budget law.

"I've told the President and I've told the Sen. (Robert) Dole that if the Supreme Court strikes down significant provisons of Gramm-Rudman, there'll be a Gramm-Rudmann II. I'm not about to let Congress off the hook on balancing the budget," he said.

Dole, R-Kansas, is the Senate majority whip.

Gramm said if the high court finds problems with the bill, then "we'll go back and fix it."

ABC News reported Sunday that the court would announce in a 7-2 ruling Monday that the legislation violates the constitutional separation-of-powers doctrine.

The network had reported that the court was about to announce a decision striking down the law's provision giving important powers to the comptroller general, an officer of Congress.

The Gramm-Rudman law calls for eliminating the federal deficit gradually by 1991. If the deficit rises above yearly targets, automatic spending cuts go into effect. The comptroller general, who heads Congress' General Accounting Office, is in charge of ordering the across-the-board cuts.

Gramm, who referred to the ABC report as a rumor, said the problems with the comptroller general's role in the budget process would be easy to correct.

"To this point, the only challenge is the involvement of the comptroller," Gramm said. "If that's a problem, it's a problem with a 1921 law. We can correct that by simply repealing the offending provision."

A three-judge appellate panel said on Feb. 7 that, by calculating the precise amount of budget cuts for each federal agency and program, the comptroller general would be exercising "the sort of power normally conferred upon the executive."

Gramm said there is a fallback provision in the bill to get around using the comptroller. Congress also could amend the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921, which gives Congress the ability to remove the comptroller. That provision in the 1921 law creates the separation-of-powers problem, Gramm said.

In 1978, ABC carried leaked reports from the Supreme Court over a period of two weeks.

One was the court's ruling on a controversial New York case involving newspaper efforts to gain entry to pretrial proceedings. The high court determined that the right to a public trial did not entitle the press and public to attend such hearings.

After the ABC leaks, an employee of the Supreme Court's print shop was transferred to another job.

The first round of Gramm-Rudman budget cuts, $11.7 million worth, went into effect March 1.

The deficit for this year is estimated at more than $200 billion. The Gramm-Rudman law requires the figure to be no higher than $144 billion for the next fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1.

The suit against the Gramm-Rudman law was brought by 12 members of Congress and unionized federal workers.

Storm damage noted locally reports of some 17 poles being toppled by the storm. He said these were in scattered areas throughout most of the county.

In addition Monday, units of the Snyder Fire Department were dispatched to two storm-related incidents.

The first was officially classified as a smoke scare at the Cisneros residence at 4611 Ave. Z at 7:45 p.m.

According to fire officials, high winds pulled the electrical service connection from the side of the house and resulting sparks prompted the fire call.

At 8:23 p.m., firemen were dispatched to a reported range fire 18 miles west of the city on U.S. Highway 180.

A tree at that location had apparently caught fire after coming into contact with fallen high voltage power lines.

Other storm-related damage noted in Snyder Tuesday morning included toppled trees and broken limbs plus damage to lighter utility buildings due to the high winds.

A front glass pane at The Grocery Store located in the 100 Block of 25th St. was broken out by the high winds also.

While high winds were reported, the heavy rain skirted Lake J.B. Thomas, which only received some .30 of an inch.

Other area rain totals included 1 inch at Hermleigh; some 2 inches just west of Snyder; 1.25 inches at Ira; and 1.30 inches at Fluvanna.

Thunderstorm were noted in other parts of West Texas Monday night also.

Tornadoes were reported in Jones and Callahan counties near Abilene, but officials said no one was injured and no damage was reported beyond downed limbs and power lines.

Also, power lines were toppled and trees uprooted by heavy thunderstorms that hit the Dallas area.

About 4,000 Dallas residents were without power for almost an hour after heavy winds and rain downed six major power lines across the city.

Bad weather conditions at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport forced several large jets to divert to Abilene Monday.

The stronger thunderstorms were in a line that stretched from northwest of San Antonio to Eagle Pass and over the upper Texas coast.

The forecast for the Snyder area Tuesday called for a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms, some with locally heavy rainfall.

The long range forecast through Saturday for all of West Texas was for partly cloudy conditions with near normal temperatures.

AIDS costs projected for 1991

WASHINGTON (AP) — The people and government of the United States are likely to pay $8 billion to $16 billion or more a year to care for AIDS victims by 1991, and public health experts say they don't know where the money will come from.

At a time of rising health costs, planners in and out of government are exploring new and cheaper options for AIDS patients, such as expanded home health care for those with families and group homes for AIDS patients without families. They are also looking at an expanded role for nursing homes and hospices, or creation of hospital-affiliated out-patient care centers.

The Public Health Service, a branch of the Health and Human Services Department, offered the cost estimate last week but left open the question of financing the gigantic tab.

"We very carefully stayed away from saying who should pay for it," said Dr. Donald Ian Macdonald, acting assistant secretary for health. "But we're obviously not going to get it all done in this department."

The cost would be only about 1.2 percent to 2.4 percent of the expected $650 billion total U.S. spending on personal health in 1991.

In 1980, the most recent figures available, direct medical care for heart disease and stroke cost $19.9 billion and cancer cost $10.6 billion, excluding nursing home costs.

But AIDS care is a new medical expense, and health planners are looking fearfully at the added cost.

The health insurance industry is pressing for creation of high risk insurance pools for those testing positive for the AIDS virus, as well as those with high-risk markers for other expensive diseases. It also wants the right to refuse individual policies to people carrying the AIDS virus.

"We see it as a societal problem," said Amy Biderman of the Health Insurance Association of America. "And I just don't think anyone has the answer."

The health service predicted that 145,000 people will be sick with AIDS in 1991.
