SENATE MAKES DECISION AFTER DELIBERATIONS

Coolidge Also Busy In Shaping Measure

LIKE HOUSE ACT

"Grave Consequences" Is Term Being Juggled

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—While the White House and state department considered the situation which has arisen from inclusion of Japanese exclusion clause in the new immigration bill, the senate today progressed with its task of perfecting that measure to the point which warranted predictions of its passage tomorrow.

Two per cent upon the census of 1890 was approved by the senate as the basis of immigration apportionment, thus bringing it into agreement with the house bill in the section which was expected to produce most controversy in conference.

As the measure approached a final vote, President Coolidge gave increasing attention to its provisions. He conferred during the morning with Chairman Lodge of the foreign relations committee and later with Secretary Hughes, but the impression was given that he was not yet prepared to decide whether to sign or veto the bill.

Widely different interpretations have been given by the senate and by those who conduct the country's foreign affairs, to the intent of the Japanese note which preceded the senate's vote in favor of Japanese exclusion, and the opinion on both sides remains unmodified. When the note was delivered to Secretary Hughes, and studied by other state department officials, its chief significance was felt by them to lie in its definition for the first time in succinct form of hte exact meaning of the gentlemen's agreement. They did not regard it as containing any threat against this government.

That opinion still prevails despite the construction senate leaders have placed upon the phrase of "grave consequences."

Members of the house and senate immigration committees have requested a definition of the gentlemen's agreement, and that the state department felt that Ambassador Hanihara had supplied on which the two governments could accept.

While the expression "grave consequences" was noted, it was accepted at the department as emphasizing merely the ambassador's apprehension that existing happy relations between Washington and Tokio might suffer.

Thaw Throws Courtroom In Hub-bub By Taking Stand In His Own Behalf

By The Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—Legal strategy that left the court room temporarily breathless marked the appearance on the witness stand of Harry K. Thaw, in the jury trial to determine his sanity.

With unexpected suddenness, former Judge John M. Patterson, counsel for Thaw, asked him a few perfunctory questions, which Thaw answered briefly, and then said to oposing counsel, "Gentlemen, examine him!"

Arthur C. Dickson, attorney for the trustees of the Thaw estate, and William A. Gray, counsel for Evelyn Nesbit, divorced wife of Thaw, whose 13-year-old son has intervened in the case, seemed surprised. After a hasty conference with alienists on either side Mr. Dickson said: "We have no questions to ask."

Mr. Patterson then rested his case with reservation of the right to call Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, Thaw's 82-year-old mother, later.

Thaw smiled, and after being motioned to by Mr. Patterson, left the stand. He had taken only a few steps, however, when he tottered, and had to be assisted to his seat, where he slumped down, mopping his brow with handkerchief.

Views diametrically oposite to those of alienists who had testified that Thaw was sane were expressed by four alienists who took the stand at the afternoon session of court.

Thaw was described as "psychopath," by Dr. Earl D. Bond, physician-in-chief at the asylum where Thaw is confined.

"In your opinion, has he or has he not been restored to a sound state of mind?" asked Mr. Dickson.

"I do not think he has," Dr. Bond said.

In response to another question, the alienist stated, "he would not consider it safe to have Thaw released."

Marr Made $60,000 A Day Is Claimed

Witness Tells of Enormous Receipts Coming in From Advertising Methods.

By The Associated Press.

TEXARKANA, Ark., April 17.—Pat Marr, famous Smackover and El Dorado oil promoter, at one time was receiving approximately $60,000 per day from the sale of stock in his companies, A. B. Priest, Fort Worth stock broker, testified Marr had told him at the trial of the promoter and his co-defendants for misuse of the mails today.

"I went to El Dorado to see Marr about selling some of his stock," Priest said, "and Marr told me at that time he was receiving approximately $60,000 per day from sale of stock. That was about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He stepped into another office and when he came back said the receipts for that day had already totalled $60,000."

Priest said after much lickering with Marr through the mails he obtained 650 shares of Marr's stock to sell. He started out asking $10 per share, the par value. That was in January, 1923. By July, he said, the stock had declined to $3 per share, and at present it was only worth approxicately 65 cents per share.

"I still have 55 shares on hand that I have been unable to dispose of even at that price," the witness said.

The defense has contended all during the trial that the stock purchased by the investors in Marr's various companies had been merged into the Marr Oil corporation, which they say is a going concern and worth more than $4,000,000.

Pat Marr never was an employee of the Texas company nor was he ever connected with the company, so far as the company's records shows, Otto Hartung of Houston, connected with the Texas company, declared in his testimony. It has been read into evidence from Marr's advertisements that Marr was connected with the Texas company and various other companies, that he had "made millions for the other companies" before he set out for himself.

HEFLIN OBJECTS CREAGER LETTER

Senator Says Democratic Letters Not Relevant To Case

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, prosecutor in the senate committee's inquiry into charges of fraudulent land sales in the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas, challenged as irrelevant a batch of letters introduced into the record today on behalf of R. B. Creager, Texas republican national committeeman, whom the senator has accused of being implicated in the alleged frauds. The letters, read by George A. Hill of Houston, Texas, counsel for Creager, were all signed by democrats— lawyers, bankers, judges and politicians—who expressed a high opinion of Mr. Creager's character and business life.

Senator Heflin objected that the signers of the letters said nothing to indicate they knew of land conditions in the Rio Grande valley; asserted many were written from points removed from the Rio Grande valley and suggested they had been "solicited."

Chief Postal Inspector Rush D. Simmons, the only witness during the day, was asked by Hill if he "would not regard it strange that individuals claiming fraud had not attempted to prosecute local agents making alleged misrepresentations," and replied that he would.

PILATE MENTIONED

Makes Practical Illustration Of Biblical Instant

Even a larger crowd than Wednesday heard Bishop Boaz at the First Methodist church south, Tenth and Lamar, preach on the text "What Shall I Do With Jesus?"

Bishop Boaz's sermon appears practically in full as follows:

My text for this evening is another question. This time it is a question asked by Pilate when Jesus was in his courtroom and on trial. He asked of the accusers of the Christ: "What shall I do then with Jesus, which is called the Christ?" Jesus was on trial for His life. He had been accused of treason because it was understood that He was a king, and He was crucified as "the King of the Jews." He was, also, accused of blasphemy because He had called Himself "the Son of God." Witnesses could not agree. The verdict of the court was "I find Him no fault at all." Pilate declared that Jesus had not violated any of the laws of the land. His accusers insisted that He was guilty of treason because of His claim to spiritual kingship and that He was,

SENATE BEGINS WHEELER CASE

Investigate Private And Official Life Indicted Senator

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Activities in Washington of Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, since his election to the United States senate were explored today by a special senate committee with every witness heard denying specifically knowledge of any irregular or illegal transactions on his part.

The telegram ,produced voluntarily by Senator Wheeler and the client, Gordon Campbell, a Montana oil operator, showed that the senator had "discussed" a certain Campbell permit with the solicitor of the interior department and would arrange for a conference between Campbell and the solicitor.

Edwin S. Booth, who was then the solicitor of the department, and other witnesses, denied that the indictment mentioned in the telegram constituted an appearance before the department within the meaning of the law. Campbell and others testified that the payments that had been made by the oil man to Senator Wheeler's law firm were for services rendered in Montana state courts cases and that the senator in accepting that employment had specifically stated that he would not appear for Campbell in any federal matters because of his election to the senate.

Colony Of Million Japs In Northern Mexico Is Hinted Result Of Pact

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 17 — Possible development of an "Asiatic colony" of a million persons in northern Mexico as a result of ratification of the Colorado river compact was pictured today to the house irrigation committee by George H. Maxwell, executive director of the national declamation service.

Ratification of the compact, Mr. Maxwell said, would assure northern Mexico of a constant water supply, and pave the way for such a colony.

Under questioning by Representative Raber, democrat, California, Mr. Maxwell said a man named Chester Allison made a trip to Tokio to confer with Japanese financiers in regard to promoting the colony. A group of Tokio financiers, he added, returned with Mr. Allison, with a view of acquiring the land, if an assurance could be obtained of any adequate water supply from the river.

JURY RETURNS VERDICT AFTER THREE HOURS

Charged With Murder Defendant Wins Victory

WOMEN STARTLE

Testimony of Wives In Case Most Unusual

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, April. 17.—"Not guilty" was the verdict pronounced at 7:10 o'clock Thursday evening by the jury of the 46 district court which tried E. C. Williams, Wilbarger county farmer, indicted for the murder of P. E. Pickett of Fort Worth, in one of the most sensational murder trials ever held here. The jury deliberated three hours before a decision was reached.

The concluding day of the trial was featured by feminine reactions when testimonies of the widow of the slain man and the frail, emaciated wife of the indicted man were heard. Mrs. Pickett took the stand, and under the questioning of the state's counsel, while describing the actual shooting, became hysterical. Court was recessed while she was placed under a physician's care. Her testimony was concluded by direct questioning and the defense did not question her.

Mrs. Williams, suffering from tuberculosis, pellagra and cancer, was helped to the stand by her husband. She was questioned by the state's counsel, and gave her answers in a weak voice.

Homer Brown, employed as cotton picker on the Williams farm, was the next witness. He saw the shooting, and gave evidence similarly given by other witnesses.

Marie Pickett, 12 year old daughter of the slain man, and oldest of his five children, testified, wept quietly as she told how her father had his arms folded as he approached Mr. and Mrs. Williams. She states she saw her father take his gun from a suit case as they prepared to leave the house and go to a neighbor's nearby following the dispute with Williams.

Much interest was exhibited during the trial, and the court room was crowded with spectators at each session since the opening of the trial Tuesday.

"It is an amazing thing that a committee of the United States senate could allow itself to become the medium of broadcasting to the world the false and ridiculous charges of a witness of the character of Gaston B. Means, designed to blacken the reputation of honest and conscientous public officials," Mr. Palmer said.

MASONS ENJOY MAUNDY EVENT THURSDAY EVE.

More Than 200 Scottish Rite Members All Over County Attend

More than 200 Scottish Rite Masons, Knights Rose Croix, including a number from Burkburnett and Electra attended the Maundy Thursday banquet held in observance of the solemn ceremonial feast of the Paschal Lamb at the Kemp hotel last night.

An elaborate program with a number of excellent addresses was arranged and carried out. Following the invocation said by Judge John C. Kay, a quartet, composed of Mrs. Wayne Holmes, Mrs. Luella B. Thompson, R. E. Shepherd and W. E. Young, sang "God So Loved the World," which was well received by the audience.

A toast to "The President of the United States" was given by Judge Kay who directed his discussion to the present tendency on the part of the people to criticise men in higher office and leaders in the government. This tendency he stated creates a lack of confidence and he urged all those present to get above partisanship.

J. D. Avis who was to give the toast "To the Supreme Council and Sovereign Grand Commander," called on Frank C. Jones of Houston who is a member of the supreme council of Scottish Rite Masonry. Mr. Jones gave a brief outline of Scottish Rite Masonry and showed its growth in recent years. He also gave personal reference based on his own knowledge of the present grand commander, John C. Cowles.

High tribute was paid to the sovereign grand inspector general in Texas, Sam P. Cochran, by J. A. Kemp in his toast, "To the Sovereign Grand Inspector General in Texas."

At this point in the program, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Holmes sang "The Crucifix," by Fause.

"To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge in Texas" was the toast given by Guy Rogers who gave a beautiful description of the importance of recognizing the fundamental trutus taught by the Masons when they receive the first three degrees or the Blue Lodge degrees. He pointed out that all the higher work was based on the fundamentals taught in the Blue Lodge work.

W. A. Browning of Dallas stated in his toast "To Albert Pike," that he was a man, a patriot and a statesman, and he referred particularly to his Masonic life. He mentioned the fact that Albert Pike had a greater intellect than many men when he wrote and revised the rituals of the present day Scottish Rite Masonry.

Brief talks were made by W. D. Cline and Judge J. W. Akin. Several sacred selections were sung by the noted Shrine quartet.

The banquet closed with the assembly repeating the Lord's prayer in unison.

Peter Ames Vincent In An Address At Player's Club Bi-Monthly Meet

"In the theatre, one must always be inspired. One must feel very deeply; one must work. Always one must work. I tell you this because I want you to understand my particular viewpoint of the theatre and my regard for it. Whatever work one does, whether it is in Newport, or London or Paris or Wichita Falls—it is the theatre.

"Wherever it is, it must be of the ancient dust of the theatre—of the ancient traditions of the theatre—it must be of the old order bathed in the radiance and vitality of the new light. It must spring from hunger and a deep need—it is not a toy—it is not an elegant nor a dainty thing—it is that element of human projection beyond the bounds of reality, beyond life and beyond death—the tuneless elemental human voice asking for beauty in terms of living symbols.

Thus did Peter Ames Vincent, regisseur of Galveston speak to the members of the Player's club at their bi-monthly meeting Friday morning at the library, of an art to which he is very devoted the theatre.

"The theatre is to me the most vivid flowering of all the arts. It is it haven of refuge in a commercial world. I was not born in the theatre" stated Mr. Vincent in a delightful biographical sketch, "but I think I was born with the theatre in me."

Expressionistic Drama.

Mr. Vincent devoted a portion of his interesting talk to an explanation of expressionistic drama, a form which has created wide interest.

"In expressionistic drama, elements relating to the actual are given significant value. Incoherent broken thoughts are revealed in dialogue, dreams are acted out as actual occurences. It is a deep, serious groping beyond the surface of things into the clarity of the subconscious. It is a real case for the bare representation of things; it awakens and inspires the unimaginative, it is sometimes fantastic; it presents hidden and strange beauty in seemingly unbeautiful things. It sometimes narrates a fact in the terms of a dream."

Mr. Vincent then told of many of the recent New York successes which were expressionistic plays, stating that most of the productions had been presented by the New York Theatre Guild.

"There are many definitions of 'expressionism,' and for the benefit of those who make a cult of each apparently new form—many of their definitions are complicated and false.

"Expressionism is just a label calling attention to a certain quality always valued in art since the year one—that is—expression."

The Little Theatre.

Speaking of the Little Theatre movement, Mr. Vincent said, "I would like to say that I believe aside from ads and cults there is only one theatre—call it the world theatre—the art theatre—the community theatre—or the Little Theatre—only in its direct application to the needs and the temperament of a community can any of its lasting and genuine elements be resolved and defined.

"You love the theatre and the drama. If the theatre and the drama came to your door from New York, or Paris, or London or Siberia, you would not have a Little Theatre unless the theatre that came to your door was not the real theatre you have a hunger for. When it does not come, you create what you need for yourself. What you create in a small way, an artistic way, and a non-commercial way you call the little theatre—your little theatre—and always it is born of hunger and of love and always it is (if it is real)—the theatre."

Following the splendid talk by Mr. Vincent, who is one of the dramatic authorities of the southwest, the meeting was thrown open for a round table discussion in which many questions pertaining to the particular problems of the Player's club were asked by the members. Mr. Vincent, in answering them, gave the club many splendid and practical ideas for future production and study.

Stevenson, received the guests in the foyer.

Mrs. Cook made a charming welcome address explaining that the Wednesday Study club is not a dramatic club but was presenting this program for diversion, that it is distinctly a literary study club. She introduced the director of the Shakespeare course which the club is studying, Mrs. Wallace who in her reading of the text, "The Merchant of Venice," gave a remarkably clear setting for the play.

The following members gave dramatic readings; Mrs. McDowell costumed in an attractive gown of the Elizabethian period, representing Portia gave the entire casket scene in the play, "The Merchant of Venice." Mrs. Julian Montgomery also dressed as Portia in the role of Doctor of Laws, gave a dramatic reading of the famous trial scene. Mrs. Chenault concluded the program with an original epilogue written in blank verse in the same rythm and meter as Shakespeare embodies in his plays.

GETTING CLOSE TO NATURE.

President Coolidge has announced the appointment of a national policy committee on out-of-door life to put the chance for out-of-door pleasure with all that it means, within the grasp of the rank and file of their people, the poor man as well as the rich man. Henry Ford should have been made chairman of the committee. He is going to turn out four million cars this year and the cheap motor car has done more to put that chance for out-of-door pleasure within the grasp of the rank and file of the people than any hundred men in America. This committee will make an effort to co-ordinate state and national efforts for parks and play grounds.

Governor Neff and the lawmakers of Texas made an excellent start more than a year ago. There are to be state parks and play grounds everywhere between the Gulf of Mexico and the Rocky Mountains and the Texas plan has been launched. It isn't on paper. Many sites have been selected and the legislature to be elected this year is certain to make an appropriation to push along the cause.

President Coolidge says that within the last decade the out door recreation spirit among our people has increased rapidly. It has, thanks to the motor car and the building of thousands of miles of national highways and additional thousands of miles of state highways.

KIND-HEARTED HENRY FORD.

Henry Ford won the primary endorsement of the Michigan democrats as their standard bearer for president. To the chagin of the democratic leaders of the state. Henry is for Calvin Coolidge and it would have been galling to the delegates from Michigan to be forced to present the name of Henry Ford to the Madison Square Garden convention as the favorite son of the democracy of Michigan.

Always modest and always helpful the billionaire manufacturer has released all claims in advance of the state convention on Michigan democrats and now Senator Woodbridge H. Ferris may be made the favorite son and given an instructed delegation. Henry wishes it to be understood that he is not a republican merely because he is going to vote for Calvin Coolidge.

He wishes the American public to know that he has a hearty contempt for Secretary of War John W. Weeks, a profound respect for Andrew W. Mellon, that he believes Edwin Denby to be an honest man and certain democrats who are seeking the presidency the finest types of high fee grabbers and sellers of political influence that the nation has known.

FIGHTING THE BOLL WEEVIL.

There are two million cotton farmers in the United States. Col. Harvie Jordan, director of the boll weevil campaign of the American Cotton association, now entering its second year, is conducting a campaign of education and hopes to get in touch with every cotton grower of the country.

Col. Jordan is using the liquid treatment—that is he advocates the application of the right kind of poison in the right way to kill the boll wevil. He estimates that one pair of weevils produce ten million weevils between May and September and is satisfied that the American Cotton association has the invader on the run.

Now it is said the weevil developed in south or central America. In central America he broke up cotton planting three centuries ago. He wiped out the Mexican cotton industry in 1845. In 1892 he crossed the Rio Grande into Texas, he has caused a loss of two hundred million dollars to five hundred million dollars a year to cotton growers and the Georgia Colonel predicts that within a year or two every cotton farm in the United States will have to contend with him.

Already two democratic aspirants for presidential honors have promised to exterminate the weevil if given the high office of president of the United States. If the farmers wait for a politician in the office of president to extreminate the boll weevil then the Lord held the farmers.

W. L. O'Connell of Illinois says that George S. Brennan stole the state delegation from William Gibbs McAdoo. O'Connell was licked. Why the yelp?

PANTOMIME -:- By J. H. Striebel

WONDER IF A SENATOR EVER TRIED TO HIRE ONE?

The Kiss of Pharaoh

The counsellor nodded.

"It is much to my grief that I have to report again, and more correctly, on this matter, O Egypt. The slave whom I sent proved false. His words were lies. I.."

A deep frown furrowed the monarch's brow.

"Thou was careless in thy choice, Hiljah. What now?"

"I have more reliable news, O One of Wisdom. There was much of consequence, I now learn, at this secret meeting, in the chamber under the temple of Karnak. Rah Neb and his evil companions have deep designs upon thy throne, O Egypt! Indeed, Great Master there is within their care whom they aspire to place upon the throne of Egypt!"

"What?" stormed the king, his eyes blazing. "Who, then, is the one whom these vermin nurture in their evil breasts? Dost thou mean that Rah Neb threateneth my royal person, seeketh to defy my imperial dominion and . . ."

He strode over to the Nubian and clutched his neck, pressing his fingers into the counsellor's throat as though he would strangle him.

"Tell me, thou, what lieth behind thy words! Uncoil thy silly tongue, Hiljah, and speak! What knowest thou of this?"

"Master, I. . . . . I know the whole of this story. Release thy servant, I beg of thee."

Pharaoh stepped back.

"Now, then, do thou hurry, or it will go poorly with thee!"

Hiljah did not hesitate.

"I have heard, O Egypt, that there is a boy whom one or other of his followers hath brought to Rah Neb. This boy is of noble birth, it seems, and the evil priest of Amon hath made it known that this boy shall conquer thy kingdom, O Egypt, rule in thy stead, restoring the name and the worship of the god Amon."

For a long time, Pharaoh seemed unable to speak. He commenced to pace the apartment heavily and then came to a sudden halt before the cringing form of Hiljah.

"Listen to my words, slave! I, Pharaoh, speak! Go thou at once, with a body of soldiers to the secret chamber beneath the temple of Karnak. When thou returnest to my palace, anon, see that thou bringest with thee Rah Neb, this vile youth and all the priests of Amon. Let not one escape thee. Go! There shall be a feast tomorrow, and Aton shall see the fall of those who have defied Pharaoh.

It was almost evening when Hiljah returned to seek audience with the king. Pharaoh was awaiting him and the counsellor approached and addressed his master with a peculiar hesitation.

"Well, counsellor?" Pharaoh questioned impatiently. "Thou hast done well?"

"We have taken many prisoners from among the priesthood of Amon, O Egypt. They lie in thy prisons beneath the palace."

Pharaoh frowned irritably.

"Thou hast Rah Neb and this boy also?"

"Thou hast Rah Neb and this boy also?"

But Hiljah faltered, bowed his head and was silent.

Akhnaton at first seemed puzzled and then, very slowly, his feature became contorted with unbridled rage.

"Speak, thou! What of Rah Neb and this youth?"

With an effort, the Nubian met the king's angry gaze and, in a voice that was little more than a whisper, he spoke the truth.

"It was unfortunate, O Royal Egypt . . . .Rah Neb was warned of our approach even as we came to his laid. . . . .We were too late. . . . He and the boy . . . . have gone!"

CHAPTER X.

Aton and Pharaoh Prevail!

Pharaoh's wrath at the news of the escape of Rah Neb and his charge, the youth of mystery whom the worshippers of Amon aspired to place upon the throne of Egypt, knew no bounds.

If Rah Neb had eluded him, if the old priest and his charge were safely hidden in the purple mists of the desert, at least his priests should pay full toll for their leader's freedom.

Within and around the palace of Pharaoh was held a mighty deathfeast. The common people of the land were summoned to pay further tribute to the majesty of Aton, whose effigy was held aloft in exaltation, while the priests of Amon, who since their capture had lain in the dungeons of the palace, were slain before their eyes.

In Pharaoh's court the wine flowed freely and Egypt's monarch celebrated in debauchery the downfall of the priesthood of Amon.

"But yesterday," he boasted, before the assembled court "there met within the precincts of Karnak a hoard of vermin, who, with high words and confident demeanor, paid homage to a weakling of a boy upon whose head they had already placed the name of a king. I . . . Pharaoh . . . was doomed!" His ironical laughter rang through the hall. "I . . . Egypt . . was to be overthrown that this child . . . this stribling . . . . might reign upon my throne.

"Today," and now he spoke with all the dignity at his command, "today I, Pharaoh, have spoken. Without the bodies of the priests of Amon are rotting in the noonday heat. My people's voices are raised with mine in worship of the god of the Sun. Where is this youth who aspired to reign in my stead? Where is this priest who dreamed, but yesterday, of another Pharaoh?"

"Aton, to thy name be glory and majesty! Thy foes are vanquished, thine enemies are slain. Aton . . . Aton and Pharaoh prevail!"

With a gesture of dignity he surveyed the assembled courtiers and, curving his lips into a mocking smile of triumph, he sank back onto the seat of his throne and called loudly for more wine.

CHAPTER XI.

Message of the Crystal.

And then it seemed as if the words of Pharaoh were words of truth indeed.

The days passed into weeks, weeks into months, and months into years. Yet still Aton prevailed and Pharaoh's dominion remained unchallenged.

The few priests of Amon who had escaped the deathscythe of Akhnaton's hosts were scattered, and the temple of Karnak slumbered in desolate silence while within its walls the effigy of Amon bore, as so much wood and stone, the dust of time and neglect.

But if the armies of Pharaoh had searched in vain for the old high priest and the boy, these two had journeyed far and, bearing without a murmur the burden of poverty, and want, they came at last to a little cavern in the desert of Deir el Bahri, wherein dwelt a weird and mysterious woman-god the dread leader of the necromancers, famous in old Egypt for their power of casting spells, of divination, crystal-gazing and magic.

Her name was Sampi the Serpent-woman and she had once been the despair and terror of Pharaoh's vast domain.

Here, in the filthy cavern that was her home, her temple, and her palace of mysteries, combined, Sampi received the old high priest with a primitive, almost eagerness, and to her Rah Neb confided the secret of the birth of the young lad whose destinies had been given into his hands.

Sampi had no love in her heart for Pharaoh. Indeed, a sullen hatred had matured in her breast against Akhnaton—a hatred that may have been unreasonable or just. Communing with her magic, the Serpent-woman found great things in store for the boy, who came with the old Rah Neb to seek sanctuary in her cavern. She predicted, even as old Rah Neb had done, the fall of Pharaoh's throne. One day the high priest found her chuckling harshly on her stool, her bloodshot eyes fixed upon the crystal before her and her parched lips trembling under great emotion.

"What is it thou seest, Sampi?" Rah Neb inquired, impressed by the mysterious force that held the old woman in its grip.

Sampi laughed hoarsely and pointed a long-nailed finger at the crystal.

"I see," she croaked, "the figure of Akhnaton."

"Ah!" Rah Neb was all attention. "And seest thou him upon his throne?"

"Nay, I see him, rather at the foot of his throne."

"The foot? How so, I do not understand thee."

Sampi turned to meet his gaze and her fingers seemed to be playing upon the air as the hands of a pianist manipulate the keys of his instrument.

"I see our monarch at the foot of his throne," she persisted with glowing delight.

"Seated. Dost thou see him seated there upon the steps of his throne?"

"Nay, he lieth upon the steps, Rah Neb. He lieth upon the steps of his throne. There is blood . . blood . . . . upon his face, and blood . . . . blood . ."

She burst into cackling laughter and her whole body trembled.

"Dead!" she shrieked. "Pharaoh is dead . . I see it . . . the crystal is never false. It is the future . . . the future."

She arose from her stool and went out of her cavern, cackling insanely

So Goes It

By BURNS HEGLER

Yesterday we had something to say about baseball. Perhaps we said too much. At least L. G. who is a good friend of ours, has complained about it.

But we like baseball because the folks like it, and we generally try to trail along with the folks, because they always are right.

Furthermore, we operate on the theory that if we want to write about baseball or bobbed hair or senatorial investigators or any of that stuff, its mostly our business, for this reason:

This is our kolume. We write it because it is a habit and not for pleasure. Business is business. And here is the beauty about it:

If you don't like the kolume you don't have to read it. As we may have remarked before there is nothing in the constitution of the state of Texas or the laws of the Lone Star State, which compels you to read the kolume.

But if you do, of your own accord, read said kolume, we expect you to be reasonably satisfied with same. We have no objection to your complaining about the kolume, but we like to feel that it is mostly our business.

If you feel that way about it, most anything goes. No one knows any more or less, about the newspaper business than the fellow who isn't in it. And having a high regard for that fact, we have no desire to start a debate.

But baseball, getting back to the subject, is a national institution. Just as much as the Teapot Done investigation has been recognized as an item in our national affairs.

So if the kolume don't "start out" to suit you, skip it there's a lot of other more readable matter in the paper. It's for you to choose.

SOILS AND SOIL PHYSICS
Nitrogen Phosphorus and Sulphur

Nitrogen sulphur and phosphorus are the three elements that seem to have the control of the life processes in most plants.

As we mentioned yesterday, carbon, hydrogen and oxygen form the great bulk of all plants. The woody fibres, the starches, the gums and the sugars are all formed largely from these three elements in various combinations. But as near as can be ascertained it is through the medium or influence of phosphorus, nitrogen and sulphur that these various combinations are formed.

This can perhaps be best illustrated by referring to the common match which we use every day. The wood part constitutes by far the greater part in bulk and weight, but if it were not for the sulphur and phosphorus in the tip it would be impossible to ignite the wood. We must have the tip on the match before the chemical change we call fire will take place in the wooden part.

In other words it is apparently the nitrogen, sulphur and phosphorus in plants that cause the other elements to combine in the forms they do.

Some scientist think that nitrogen has more to do with the functions of plant life than does any other element.

Nitrogen is a very unstable in combination with other elements. It is nitrogen that causes the explosion of gunpowder, dynamite, T. N. T. gun cotton and other similar substances. It is thought by many that when the changes in temperature and moisture conditions occur in the spring that is the nitrogen stored in the plant starts the work of growing. It is the tip of the match that starts the fire of growth in the plant.

In any event nitrogen is a most important and essential element in all plant life. A supply must be maintained if good crops are expected.

GETTING THE FACTS

"Go summon the sheriff," the senators said,
"And put these officials in jail.
The world will approve us, as soon as it's read
This witness's terrible tale.
He must speak the truth for he said on his oath,
(Not the kind that begins with a d—)
'Yes; somebody told this to somebody else,
And somebody else to somebody else,
And somebody else to somebody else,
And somebody else to me!'

"The cabinet members are driving swell cars,
That their partners the bootleggers buy,
They all get their cut from the blind-tiger bars,
When they gather at night on the sly.
The witness declared, and with tears in his voice,
When we asked him if such things could be!
'Yep somebody said that to somebody else,
And somebody else to somebody else,
And somebody else to somebody else,
And somebody else to me!'

"The crime wave that made the metropolis blench,
And has only been lately put down,
Was started by eminent men on the bench—
Big judges of widespread renown.
Said the lady who solmenly testified this—
And you all to its truth will agree:
'Sure! somebody told it to somebody else,
And somebody else to somebody else,
And somebody else to somebody else,
And somebody else to me!'"

Business a Profession

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Rather a remarkable pamphlet has been issued by Harvard university. It is entitled "Business a Profession."

It is remarkable in that it is a recognition, by a university that for long has been consecrated to the "learned professions," of the fact that business, or working for money, is entitled to rank with any other human occupation in dignity and importance.

Time was, and that time is not so far past, that only those would be profited by education or welcomed to educational institutions, who had in mind to become gentlemen (by which was understood to be an idler living on dead men's money and devoting his life simply to play) a physician, a lawyer, a clergyman, a school teacher, or some variety of book worm.

The nineteenth century was not only the age of science but also the age when the world began to realize that the value of science and of all learning consisted in its use to humanity.

Business simply means using science for the service of mankind.

The two dominating nations of the world, the British empire and the United States, are business nations. It was not the lust of conquest, it was the desire to extend trade, that has made the British empire.

The rapid development of the United States has been due to men whose motive was to apply the theories of science and the discoveries of inventors to the building of railroads, the opening of mines, the harnessing of waters, and commercial useages of electricity and the conversion of raw material into finished products.

It is the practical application of the spirit of democracy; for democracy means the welfare of the whole people.

The great fortunes of these days have not been founded on robber raids or filibustering expeditions nor military conquests. Men have become millionaires in meat packing, oil, steel, clothing, transportation and similar activities for the general well being of the populace.

If the university is to justify itself in the future it must train men for work and not for play; it must equip men for work and not equip them in the art of getting along without work.

It must recognize that the only excuse for talent, brains and genius, is the superior service that can be rendered to mankind. For the superior man is tolerable only when he lives for his fellows and not when he lives on them.

In any right system of education, business, which is nothing but the honest service of man, the clothing, the feeding, sheltering, transporting and beautifying of the life of the multitude, should rank as one of the worthiest of professions.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

ARIES.

Today's aspects are of an adverse nature, and incline to haste, overpositivity and anxiety. These factors all create undesirable states of mind, as well as attitude. Strong efforts must be made today to remain tranquil in mind and good natured in disposition. Avoid all hurry and flurry, and keep a good hold of yourself.

A child born today will have a merry and congenial disposition, without any marked predilection for hard work or study.

If today is your birthday, you are optimistic, and always have the knack of looking on the bright side of things. For you, "every cloud has a silver lining." You are not carried away, however, by your cheerful outlook on life to do silly things, or dream silly dreams; you have good judgment and exercise it; you have real ability and employ it. If you hear ill spoken of a person, your mind intuitively seeks some defense, and you emphasize the good characteristics of all, whilst minimizing those unworthy of emulation.

You are sometimes "up against it." However you never lose heart, but peg away until failure is changed to victory, or adversity to success.

You have hosts of friends who stick to you and admire you, as you possess the quality of courage which they, in many instances, lack.

Your home life is quite happy, and though trouble comes to you as it comes to all, you are able to shoulder responsibility, and, with a smile, face the issue, ever looking forward to a bright future.

You are not very keen about money for money's sake; you are, no matter what your vocation may be, more interested in achievement, for achievement's sake.

If a woman, you are, with your optimistic cheerfulness, a wonderful helpmate for either lover or husband; if a man, you can dissipate gloom and sadness whenever they surround either your sweetheart or your wife.

Optimism is as necessary to a happy life, as a good digestion is essential to a healty body.

Gateway to Siberia Urges Japan to Recognize Soviets

TOKIO.—Tsuruga, the principal port for communications between Japan and Siberia, wants the Japanese government to recognize the Soviet.

The action of the Soviet authorities in stopping the direct mail service between Siberia and Japan and in refusing recognition of the Japanese consul in Vladivostok, thereby practically cutting off travel from Russian territory to Japan, has proved a serious blow to the trade of Tsuruga. A mass meeting of Tsuruga citizens has passed a resolution urging recognition of the Moscow government.

Irish Plan Postoffice C. O. D. From Producer to Consumer

DUBLIN.—The free state government has decided to introduce at an early date legislation on the cost of living. There is universal complaint of profiteering by retail traders, and it is admitted that farmers and fishermen get only a trifling percentage of the prices at which their produce is sold to consumers.

It is argued that, nevertheless, the traders are not found to be making large profits, and the explanation is given that the reason is the multiplicity of small traders in Irish cities where there are hardly any big stores.

It is suggested that the government may consider as part of its scheme the possibility of establishing direct contact between producer and consumer through the postoffice, and enable farmers to sell goods direct to consumers by parcels post on the cash on delivery system.

Rail Supply Buyer Has Many Big Experiences

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., April 16.—Buying a railroad car is like building a house, only far more expensive, according to C. B. Porter, purchasing agent for the International-Great Northern railroad. Mr. Porter has just completed purchase of 10 cars, six locomotives and other new equipment, reaching into the millions of dollars.

Few who ride in a modern railroad car know of he many elements assembled for their comfort. From the wheels up to the roof there are innumerable details and almost endless specialties to consider, Mr. Porter said. There is no such thing as taking a railroad car "out of stock," like a ready made suit of clothes. Every purchase means something different, because the styles, and at least the specialties on a cave are constantly changing. Someone is inventing something new and better all the time, so that each order means new specifications.

First, the road officials decide what tye of car they need to meet their transportation requirements. Will it be a steel or a frame car, how many seats will it contain, will it be a chair car with reclining chairs or will it be an ordinary coach with seats? In the southwest it probably will be a reclining chair car, Mr. Porter said, because more people in this section sleep in chairs, while they are traveling, than in any other part of the country. In the east, it is said, people like the sleepers at night, but many people of the southwest dislike the trouble of going to bed while traveling.

When the type and number wanted have been decided, the purchasing agent is given the order and told to go ahead. Then the fun begins. He wires the car builders what he wants, giving them specifications. At the same time he notifies all the specialty manufacturing concerns of the order. These are the companies which make the special equipment for the car. The car builder has a certain basic or standard design, but energetic gentlemen are always inventing and devising new devices and equipment and these are sold as specialties. If the railroad wants these devices on their coaches they must buy them from the firm making them and not from the car builder. The car builder quotes a basic price based on his standard design, and then the specialties are figured as a variation of this price, some being higher and some lower than the basic price.

Then shortly after the specialty houses have been notified of the rich plums the railroad has to dispense, there descends upon the defenseless purchasing agent a small army of men, grips in hand, from the specialty houses, all determined to sell him their devices and equipment.

The purchasing agent must determine the type of wheels he wants, the truck frame, the brake rigging, the air-brake, underframe, the flooring, the seats, chairs, chair upholstering, window fixtures, weather stripping, windows, curtains, curtain fixtures, platform, springs, ventilators, light fixtures, toilet fixtures, storage batteries for he lights, water coolers, paint and varnish and a large number of other types and details. All these things, even to the tires on the wheels, are specialties which must be individually selected.

There is, for instance, a new type of brake, called the clasp brake, which grasps each side of the wheel in a squeezing manner and is said to be much more effective than the break which merely pushes against one side of the wheel. Then the purchasing agent must decide whether he wants the "fish belly" type of underframing, which is of an underslung construction designed to take up the swaying and make riding more comfortable. What kind of composition cement flooring will he select? What color will he have the seats done in? Will it be a soft green or a dark red? Here the taste of an interior decorator and the color eye of an artist are required.

Mr. Porter picked soft green as being most restful and pleasing to the eye of the traveler. Someone is always inventing a new water cooler or an improved make of toilet fixtures, and all these must be considered. For example, a spring window frame was recently purchased for one of the International-Great Northern cars. When the window is broken, the spring permits removal of the entire frame and substitution of a new window in a minute.

When all the specialties have been selected they are sent to the car builder and he attaches them and completes the coach.

A modern railroad car costs about as much as the town house of a city banker. Even the freight car covers the price of two or three automobiles.

Gainesville Band To Iowa Park Rodeo Meet

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Tex., April 16.—Arrangements have been completed by the local chamber of commerce whereby the business men and chamber of commerce of this city, will bring to Iowa Park the famous Gainesville Boys' Band of Gainesville, Texas. It is planned to bring 50 pieces of this large band who will perform during the four days of the Triangle Ranch rodeo, which is being staged on a larger scale than ever this year by Tom L. Burnett. This band was the guest of the chamber of commerce last year at the first Triangle Ranch rodeo, and made such a tremendous hit, it has been secured again.

This band, under the direction of C. C. Shell, is probably the largest boy's band in the southwest, having a total of 100 pieces, the members in the main being high school boys. In connection with the bringing of this band here for this occasion, a trade excursion will be run from Gainesville to Iowa Park, more than 35 cars having been secured to carry the trippers, and bring the band here through the country by auto. The caravan of cars is to be highly decorated, and banners setting forth the wonderful opportunities of Wichita county in general, and Iowa Park in particular, will be prominently displayed by all cars in the parade.

Arrangements are being made also, to thoroughly decorate the city during this event, as an estimated 60,000 visitors are expected to be in attendance during the four days.

Korean Foreign Trade in 1923 Exceeded All Previous Years

By The Associated Press.

SEOUL, Korea.—The foreign trade of Korea for 1923 broke all previous records, reaching a total of 527,45 -000 yen or 46,200,000 yen more than in 1922, the record year previously according to official figures just published. Imports were slightly in excess of exports, $263,780,000 yen against 261,660,000 yen. The large total gain was due principally to increased exports of rice to Japan following the earthquake.

The United States is third in the list of countries selling to Korea, with a total of 11,172,550 yen, ranking after Japan and China. Practically all Korea's exports go to Japan, and the United States, fifth in the list of Korea's customers, is shown as having purchased only 99,000 yen worth.

Osborn Wins Duel, Errorless Game, 2 to 1

SPUDDER PITCHER HAS EDGE ON TAYLOR, AND GIVES ONLY THREE HITS TO TAKE SECOND

Hurling a near-perfect game of baseball, Bob Osborn out-pitched Taylor in a pitcher's duel that assumed all the proportions of a mid-season contest, and won the second of the series with Shreveport, Thursday, 2 to 1. Not an error marred the staging of a diamond battle.

Osborn turned back the Gassers until the ninth inning with a lone hit, but two more were garnered by Shreveport batsmen in the last frame in a desperate effort to rally. With two men out, a single and a double threatened to cut the one-run lead, but Osborn, with lots of stuff, whiffed Sargent for a victory.

The first of these last was a base hit to shortstop, which bounced high to make Turgeon muff it over his head. The last was a double by Orr, which was retrieved by Fitzgerald in time to save the run. Tightening, the young Spudder moundsman came out of the hole with lots of stuff, whiffing Sargent for the third out. Shreveport's first safe blow came in the sixth, by Riley, who scored French for the only Gasser tally.

Wichita Falls assumed the lead in the first with one run, and behind the wonderful pitching of Osborn held the lead all the way. The second and winning score was in the fifth, a frame ahead of the Gasser counter.

Up to the sixth, four Gassers only were admitted to first base, three of these getting on on walks and the other on a fielder's choice. None of them ever reached second base. Osborn had the edge in strike-outs, but was forced to accede walking honors to the Gasser. The Spudder was using a fast ball and hook for his work, while an accurate cross-fire delivery did most damage for Taylor.

Great Support.

Behind the two pitchers, both clubs worked in perfect support. Turgeon was a shining light at the shortfield, and handled eight chances without a bobble. Sargent had his fielding eye tuned to accord, and with Orr were high assistants in the put-outs. Turgeon and Orr were given a row of grounders in the first three innings, and took them all in splendid fashion.

Turgeon caught and threw from every angle. He did not let Sullivan's grounder in the ninth get through him, but knocked it down as it took a sudden leap over his head.

In all the fielding jamboree and batting funeral, not one double play was chalked up. Due to the fact that the bases were empty and silent, a greater part of the time, opportunities for getting two were a scarce thing. The outfield crews held up their portion of the burden, and got away with some winning fielding.

Getting the first out of two extra-base hits of the game his first time at bat, Buddy Tanner started the victorious march. In that first innings, Coombs, first up, struck out. Tanner doubled sharply to left field fences. Weiss whiffed for the second of that kind, but Fitzgerald, after taking a count of three-two, singled through pitcher's box. Tanner scored on the blow, with an exhibition of base running. Fitzgerald was thrown out by Graham at second.

The fifth inning saw the last of Spudder scoring. Turgeon, first man at bat, drove out a one-base clout to right field. Callaghan followed with a single past second base, Turgeon taking second. White was out on an infield fly to Orr, Jonnard sent a long fly to Eichrodt, and Turgeon raced in from second for the winning score. Callaghan circled to third, beating Eichrodt's throw by a second. Osborn walked, but was thrown out at second on Coombs' grounder to Orr.

A Gasser.

It was the sixth inning when Riley, coming to bat with two down and two men on base, broke the long silence with a clean single past second base.

Graham, first Gasser to bat in that memorable frame, was hit by a pitched ball, Taylor fanned, French was safe at first on a fielder's choice, but forced Grilham at second on his grounder, White to Turgeon. Zeider was the second passed to first that trip. Riley came to bat. His one-ply crack scored French, who raced in from second with the lone tally. Rollo Zeider was caught off second when Riley attempted a steal from first, and went out, Jonnard to Turgeon to Tanner.

The Ninth.

The rally in the ninth was close. Zeider, first to the bat, sent a long fly to Callaghan, and was out. Riley struck out, Sullivan, sterling left gardener, who had struck out his previous three times at bat, sent the galloping ground ball to Turgeon. The ball rose on the evening air, descended, and rose sharply in front of the Spudder shortstop who had played a great game. He reached high for it, but the tips of his fingers sent it to the ground behind him. Sullivan was on first base, safely, for the first time in four attempts. Orr came to bat and laced out the Gasser's real hit of the day, which bounded to the fence in right centerfield. Fitzgerald had the ball in time to hold Sullivan at third. Joe Sargent came to the plate to wreck or end a ball game. It was all over when Osborn, caught in a corner, hurled five balls at the batter. Two were balls, but three were strikes. Sargent whiffed cleanly at the crack of the last one, and ended the game.

New York fans have been told that young Harvey Hendrick, former Vanderbilt university star who is now listed as an outfielder with the Yankees, may star in the role of pinch hitter for the champs this year.

Today's Iron

By T. T. HUNT.

'Twas a pity the crowd of opening day did not get out to see the second game Thursday. That was a baseball game from away back.

Starting off with plenty of stuff, against a man who was in just about the same class, Robby Osborn came near doing that for which all pitchers strive and very few attain—a perfect game. The first hit, by Riley, was a hit, alright, but was not a clean drive to the outfield. It was, instead, a scorcher past second base, to the right. Had walks not let men on base, that might have been raved. On the other hand, much might have happened differently, had the cards been stacked otherwise.

The hits in the ninth were a scratchy base-hit and a clean smash for two bases. It was Sullivan's time, however, for had he not struck out, whiffed and fanned his other three times at bat. As it turned out, he was one of three Gassers to hit, yesterday.

All credit must be given to Pitcher Taylor. He had Spudders looking funny from his cross-wise slants, and sent back enough men to win the game. His batting support failed to materialize under the pressure, and thereby lies the tale.

When Sargent whiffed in the ninth, ending the game, there was a noticeable change in the offerings of Osborn. With two men on base, occupying second and third, a hit would have meant probably a loss. Two men were down, and instead of walking the Gasser slugger, he took it all into his hands and pitched ball to the batter. It worked. There were somethings on that ball not seen previously in all the good pitching, and the reserve pulled Osborn through.

It was left to Dallas and Fort Worth to pull the magnanimous game yesterday. Only 22 runs in one game, and then, some would have had it 25. Mr. Palmer is now the Cat's as far as Cat fans are concerned. With three on and one down in the ninth, the mighty Panther swatted the apple into a double play, thus closing the day.

Beaumont and Houston fell into the first rough, when they laid off the second day on account of rain.

Fitzgerald was the one player yesterday selecting two hits from the varied offerings. The centerfielder sent one through pitcher's box and the other over first for a Texas leaguer.

Buddy Tanner was well pleased after the game. As Prexy Harvey well remarked, honest effort will bring its reward. Buddy has labored early and late for his club, and is due all credit. And the skipper got a two-bagger, one of his favorites down third-base line.

A shutout was recorded in the city league Thursday. They play some big-time baseball.

NORTH-SOUTH TENNIS SEMI-FINALS TODAY

By The Associated Press.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 17.—Howard Voschel, Brooklyn, former national indoor champion, G. Carlton Shafer, Philadelphia, and Miss Martha Bayard, Short Hills, N. J., and Miss Leslie Bancroft, Boston, won their way into the finals of their respective divisions in today's play of the annual North and South Lawn Tennis tournament.

Walter Hagen, one of the greatest of all golfers, started out to be a professional pitcher, and once had an offer from a big league club which he turned down only after serious consideration. He was an ambidextrous hurler, sometimes changing from one side to the other in the middle of a game.

Sammy Bohne, infielder of the Cincinnati Reds, has worked on the stage many times as a magician and card manipulator.

Stymies-Bunkers To Tilt at Muni Course Saturday

Hot biscuits and steck will await the hungry winners of the Wichita Falls Municipal Golf club dinner tournament to be staged at the municipal course Saturday afternoon. The tourney will be played in foursomes, two "Stymies" and two "Bunkers" to each party.

The "Stymies" and "Bunkers" are new names given the former Roughnecks and Sparkplugs of the municipal club. To the winning team will go the eats, while the loser assumes the deficit.

Playing will start not later than 2:30 o'clock, those players desiring to begin later than 3:30 will be required to shoot only twelve holes.

According to rules the tournaments, of which this is the first of the year, winners will be those making better medal scores than their opponents, or, lower number of strokes for the eighteen holes. The foursomes will have absolute right-of-way over the course. Every player plays from scratch.

Officials and other members of the club are of the opinion this is only a started to what will be put on this spring. The club has had a big growth since its organization, and it is believed that some attractive tournaments will be possible, later.

"Why Golf Took Me Up," will be the subject of Judge B. Y. Cummings, a contestant, after the dinner.

Mr. Kendall, Mrs. Kendall and Miss Kendall, who have full charge of the club house, have guaranteed a bountiful feast for the tired golf bugs after the tournament and enough to suave the feelings of loser as well as winner.

TOKIO, Japan.—Korean laborers, who left Japan in large numbers after the September earthquake, immediately after which hundreds of them were killed by Japanese in the panics of the disaster, are beginning to return to this country in search of work. The port returns in Shimonoseki, principal gateway for Japan-Korea traffic, shows that recently about 150 Koreans a day have been entering Japan.

Dr. Selecman To Speak to Women And Girls Today

"Witness of the Spirit" was the subject of the sermon which Dr. C. C. Selecman preached to a large congregation at the First Methodist church last night.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock he will give a special talk to women and girls, taking for his subject, "Mother, Home and Heaven."

A praise service will be given by Dr. Selecman Sunday afternoon, directed to the converts and the family, it was announced.

At 10 o'clock Sunday morning, children will be received into the church, following the service of the preceding Sunday.

WHAT SHALL

likewise, guilty of blasphemy because He announced Himself as the Son of God.

When Pilate asked "What shall I do with Jesus?" they answered, "Crucify Him! Away with such a fellow! He is not fit to live!" Pilate was not willing that Jesus should be crucified and undertook to release Him. Pilate was warned of his wife to have nothing to do with that "just man" and Pilate being superstitious and afraid, sought some way of escape. He had Jesus on his hands, and some disposition must be made of Him. He could not sidestep the issue. He could not avoid meeting the situation face to face. Jesus was in his courtroom and on trial for His life and some disposition must be made of Him.

Jesus is on trial before you now in a certain sense. When He is presented in a gospel sermon some disposition must be made of Him in each mind. You cannot sidestep the issue. You cannot avoid facing the question fairly and squarely, "What shall I do then with Jesus?" "Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man hear My voice and open unto Me, I will come in and sup with him." Everyone in this congregation tonight and everyone who may read in tomorrow's paper this question, must make some disposition of the Christ.

Destiny is determined by the disposition you may make of Him. He stands before you now, but later you will stand before Him, for it is written in the book, "All must appear before the judgment seat of Christ." In a certain sense Christ is before the judgment seat of your mind at this time, but the day is coming when you and I will stand before the judgment seat of Jesus Christ. It is said that He should sit on the throne of His glory and all the nations of the earth will be gathered before Him. He will separate them one from another, even as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats, sending the sheep on the right and the goats on the left.

Some Who Reject.

There are some who reject Him entirely. There are some who hold that Jesus is only a myth like the myth of Hercules or Jupiter. No man of reputation today as a scholar assumes such position. That position was exploded long years ago, and only a few ignorant and unlearned assume such position at this time. The fact of Jesus Christ as a person is the most dominating fact in all history. No man of learning days denys the existence of the man Jesus any longer, any more than he would deny the existence of Julius Caesar. The fact of the Christ is just as authentic as the fact of Socrates or Julius Caesar or Marcus Aurelius.

If you accept Him simply as a great and good man, there is no salvation in His name. The Jews rejected Him while He was in the world and were cast off. If we reject Him now as the Son of God and the Saviour of the world, we, likewise, shall be rejected in the last great day.

Beginning today, the seven Piggly Wiggly stores of this city will be able to serve their customers with freshly barbecued meat, according to statements made Thursday from the management of the stores. A device especially designed for the preparation of barbecue has been installed, and the markets of the Piggly Wiggly stores will carry the cooked meats.

Only the highest grade Kansas City meats will be used in the barbecue, it was stated, and the cooking device is placed so that the preparation of the barbecue may be seen. It is the purpose of the Piggly Wiggly stores in adding this device to their markets to be better able to serve their patrons.

Jimmy Welsh Seattle first baseman is right now the most talked of player on the coast. Four or five big league teams are already on his trail. Elmer Bowman obtained from New Haven was slated to play first for the coast league outfit but Welsh just naturally took the job away from him. Figure on seeing Welsh in the big show by next fall.

Appoint Judges For Big Burnett Rodeo Exhibition

Bronc r[illegible] and other contestants of the Triangle ranch rodeo which will be staged on Tom L. Burnett's ranch April 24-27 will have to win on their merits. It is said that three of the best known rodeo judges in the country have been appointed by Burnett to award the six thousand dollars in cash prizes which have been hung up for the winners.

The judges are Floyd Randolph of Ardmore Okla. Captain Tom R. Hickman of Company B state ranger forces and Lee Robinson of Kingman, Ariz., who will look each contestant over as they perform the various stunts and award the prizes, while Bob Malone of Merkel, Texas, will act as special saddling judge in the bronc riding and will see to it that no contestant takes an unfair advantage in saddling.

Entries from all parts of the country are pouring into rodeo headquarters, it is said, and many more contestants than were ever assembled at a contest in this section before are expected to take part.

As thousands of seats for the rodeo are erected and the arena corrals are completed, they make an imposing sight on the prairie next to the Burnett ranch house and all preparations are being arranged on a large scale.

Contestants are beginning to arrive and from now until the opening of the rodeo there will be much activity around the Triangle outfit.

Grafton-Hodges To Insure Morals On Trade Trip

The first 1924 trade trip will be well looked after from a standpoint of morals according to advices from the chamber of commerce as Dr. N. F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and George H. Hodges, chief of police, will be numbered among those present.

The final arrangements for the trip are being made and the traffic manager reports that word has been received that all of the equipment is available and will be on the track at the designated time.

All of those who will make the trip are to meet in the chamber of commerce rooms Monday afternoon at two o'clock for the purpose of drawing for reservations on the five Pullman cars which will be provided.

"This trade trip is being run for the good of Wichita Falls and if any one having signed up to go, finds that he cannot ,we will not be in a position to refund his $25," is the statement made by M. A. Bundy chairman of the trade extension trip to be made April 22 and 23.

"The trip will be a benefit to all business houses in this city and the money will be spent for the handling of the trip. therefore any concern will get a big benefit from it whether it is represented or not" Mr. Bundy declared.

NO STRAW HATS BEFORE EASTER

Men Just Won't Discard Old Felts

"No use talking you can't push a straw hat on the head of a man before Easter," observed a clerk in a Wichita Fall's haberdashery. "You can't even make him think of it," he added with half a sigh.

"Aw, this is the jazz period for hats, just like everything else," observed the proprietor as he eased over to where the conversation was the thickest. "People don't care so much about their head dress now as formerly. They think they do, but they don't give the matter of approaching the pinnacle of masculine attire the consideration that it deserves.

"The hat goes a long way toward making the man," he mused, "yet a lot of peole think the modern man is made in a correspondence school. I knew a man who some years ago was winning success out of as fine a crop of previous failures as anybody could wish upon his enemy. He loved two things in life—himself and a Sunday school song called 'Scatter Bright Smiles.' His luck turned and as soon as he had the back rent paid he bought himself a new silk hat—plug, they called them. Then he bought a cane—gold headed. And he demonstrated the art of wearing a smile as befits a gentleman. But it took practice to get it. This guy used to get up at night, and in his nightshirt, put on his plug hat, take a cane and parade in front of a pier mirror which his wife had inherited and refused to pawn. He practiced poses and salutations until he had reached Chesterfeldian perfect, as they say in cigarette ads.

"Believe me or not, he got the graceful movement down to such a point that the president of one of the local banks one Sunday just before Easter, intimated to him that should he require a little loan at any time he was sure it could be arranged at the bank.

"This plug hat guy spent all the week before Easter in picking out a straw hat for Easter Sunday and when he went to the bank on the following Monday to hold the president to his promise, they wouldn't let him have a cent. I'll tell the world, its the hat that makes the man. But they don't seem to care now. A man will come in here now, slap a lid on his head.

"Ziss awright?" he sips and out he goes satisfied.

"Another will try on about two hats a day for a week and then select one that looks like a mail-order purchase."

A prominent Indiana avenue dealer said customer were probably less particular in the selection of headgear from the standpoint of actual vanity, but at the same time, he experienced a lot of trouble in selling the first spring straw hat.

"The man will come in here and try on a hat. It don't look like the old thing he has been wearing all winter and the trouble begins. He can't get used to himself in a new lid, and, therefore, he thinks it's not becoming. I will not sell a hat to a man if I think it does not look good on him, but it is hard to convince him of the fact. Once in awhile a man will bring his wife with him to help in picking out a becoming hat and then—oh, well, I pity the fellow who don't seem to be able to keep his troubles at home.

"No, the men are not as particular as they used to be but they have less decision and that makes the task of selling about 50-50 and holds the yearly average level. And its no use to try to sell many hats before Easter. In fact it is a brave man who will wear one before that date.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Pre-holiday dullness characterized today's stock market which developed moderate strength on a resumption of short covering operations by professional traders.

Steel shares gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength, net gains of a point or so being registered by U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem, Republic and Crucible. Some of the buying in this group was in expectation of optimistic statements by Chairman E. H. Gary at the annual stockholders meeting of the United States Steel corporation next Monday.

Active buying of Southern Pacific which advanced nearly 2 1-2 points to 90 7-8 was one of the late features. Other strong spots in the rail group included Norfolk and Western, Lackawanna, Frisco preferred and Reading and Lehigh Valley Coal "Rights," up one to two points.

Weakness again cropped out in the motor and motor accessories group, Chicago Yellow Cab and Yellow Cab closing at net losses of 3 1-2 and 4 points respectively. Fisher Body broke 4 points, Studebaker old stock touched 86 and then fell back to 85 5-8, up 1-4.

Publication in the financial district of an interview with Secretary Mellon in which he stated that the New England textile industry was in a period of depression was used as an excuse for a bear attack on American Woolen which was hammered down more than 3 points to 65, a new 1924 low. It rallied later to 66 5-8.

Oils held relatively firm despite a sharp increase in domestic crude productions, special buying being noted in Cosden and Phillips Petroleum.

Call money opened at 4 1-4 per cent and then dropped to 4 where it closed. Time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchanges held relatively firm on the light volume of trading. Demand sterling ruled just under $4.85 and French francs were quoted around 6 1-4 cents. Another break in Japanese yen carried them down to a record low around 40 1-4 cents.

MONEY At Work

When you go to buy a home consider its rental. This will give you a key to its cash value.

When buying a home it is well to bear in mind what the particular property in question would rent for should you ever have to leave it. This point is likely to be overlooked since the home features, as a rule, make the first and strongest appeal. Nevertheless, the buying of a home should be looked at partly from a business standpoint.

If you had to rent it how much would the rentals pay you on your investment? Unless they would pay you 10 to 12 per cent gross, it is not an extra good investment. Taxes and insurance have to be paid. It must be redecorated, repaired, and allowance be made for its remaining idle part of the time. Then too, the property depreciated from 2 to 5 per cent each year and that must be considered.

Considering all of these things could you make the home you are about to buy a paying investment if you had to leave it?

COTTON MARKET SHOWS QUIET

Market Opens Steady And Advance Follows To Fall Soon

Opening: May 30.65; July 29.08; October 25.30; December 24.65; January 24.30 bid.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The cotton market was very quiet today and after a fairly steady morning, turned easier under pre-holiday liquidation. May sold off from 30.54 to 30.20 and closed at 30.33. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 14 to 24 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 4 to 15 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables. There was selling on the more favorable showing of the weather map and reports of continued poor demand for cotton goods which eased prices off several points during the forenoon. The market steadied up again, however, on covering promoted by the larger exports for the day. July advanced to 29.00 and new crops recovered most of the losses, after which the demand tapered off and the market weakened owing to rumors of further price shading in the goods trade and reports of an easier early afternoon tone in the stock market.

July declined to 28.60 and October to 25.00 and last prices were the lowest of the day on all positions except May which increased its premium over July to 167 points at the close, compared with 158 points at the close yesterday. Exports today 35,538, making 4,857,227 so far this season. Port receipts 13,874. U. S. port stocks 568,766.

FARM BILL BOOSTS GRAIN

Wheat Prices Rise On Reports of McNary-Haugen Bill

CHICAGO, April 17. — Higher prices witnessed in the wheat market today were largely a result of attention given to consequences of the possible enactment of the McNary-Haugen bill. Wheat closed unsettled at 1-2 to 7-8 cents net advance, May 1.02 7-8 to 1.03; July 1.05 to 1.05 1-8, with corn varying from a shade decline to one cent gain, and oats a shade to 3-8 cent up. In provisions the outcome ranged from 2 cents off to a rise of 5 to 7 1-2 cents.

Corn averaged higher in sympathy with wheat and owing to smallness of receipts. There was also a slightly improved shipping inquiry from the east.

Oats displayed independent strength, all of the 2,000,000 bushels stock at Duluth being reported sold except 225,000 bushels.

Provisions were at first eased by the downward trend of hog values but were later affected in the opposite direction by grain.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, April 17.—May liquidation and scattered local selling on easier crude oil and slow cash trade, depressed cottonseed oil values today, the close being easy at net declines of 11 to 15 points. Switching operations comprised a good part of the day's business. Sales 13,500 barrels. Prime crude 8.75 nominal; prime summer yellow spot 10.00 bid; May closed 10.18; July 10.55; September 10.76; October 10.15, all bid.

CORSICANA OIL AREA MAINTAINS STEADY OUTPUT

General Field Production Holds Up Pipe Line Runs

Special to The Record News.

CORSICANA, April 17.—Interest in oil operations centers about the two tests nearing completion in the southwest end of the field and the Richland area. General field production holds up to practically the same figures of last week. Some new drilling has been started the last few days but few new wells have been completed.

Langford and Wortham, on the Homer Holmes tract, are swabbing their test. The liner has been re-set at 2,998 feet, where eight feet of good looking sand has been encountered. Taylor et al, who have an offset test on the same tract, are setting liner. In each of these tests it is reported good shallow sands were passed through in going to the deeper structure.

Another important location is the Nenney test in this same area, which is drilling at about 1,800 feet. McIntyre is shut down on the T. E. Boyd area a little to the east, awaiting casing. These four tests crystallize the interest of activities along the extreme fringe of the Navarro-Mildred area.

Other operations of importance, however, are to be found in the western fringe in and about the Humble tank farm on the Hill, Wolens, Great Alexander, Cerf and other tracts.

Whitworth is drilling on the Wolens abandoned test and likely will pick up the deeper sands. Wells expected in shortly include the Showers and Peacock Hill, Parker-Alexander-McIntyre-Alexander.

Hooser brought in the No. 1 B-1 on the Hill tract this week. It is good for about 4,500 barrels a day. The original Hooser well on the A lease sanded up again Friday and for a time ceased to flow.

Several new derricks have gone up on the T. & B. V. right of way. A new test is being started by Parker on the Wolens 12-12-acre lease formerly held by Osborne-Elliott and Whitworth.

Royalty trading has been brisk in the Richland area. Lease buying is reported active west of Richland. The Godley Oil company and the Boyd Oil company each started a new test offsetting the one already drilled which has shown production.

The Patterson Lake Oil company Swink No. 1 is flowing at the rate of 600 barrels a day, the Godley Oil company Allison No. 1 is pumping about 200 barrels, and the Sun Oil company Brown is reported pumping about the same quantity. Drilling is going ahead at the several tests on the Brown and Swink tracts by the Patterson Lake Oil company.

Ealike is drilling on his test on the Moran tract at around 1,800 feet. Mead is drilling on the Graves tract and other locations for drilling in that territory are reported to have been made the last two days.

Little of interest has been noticeable in the Brazette area. The Crantill Brothers and Penn test on the Barnett tract has been abandoned as a dry hole. Gilbert Johnson is drilling on the Skyles tract, and Boyd Oil company on the Conner Bros. tract, but so far with less favorable showing.

Several oil scouts, representing the various major companies, visited the Kaufman county test near Prairieville and are looking over the several counties in the northeastern part of the state.

Pipe Line Will Be Extended To New Oil Field

The Wichita Pipe Line company will extend its line from the Wilmot pool to the Greene and Flowers district as soon as production in the pool west of Archer City will justify. Plans are also being considered whereby the proposed extension will connect with the Swastika field, according to directors of the carrier who met recently.

The construction of the 6-inch line to Archer county is near completion and work has started on the pumping stations. The company plans to be running oil through the line within 15 days.

Two 55,000-barrel steel storage tanks will be erected by the company. The tank farm will be in the vicinity of local refineries.

Wildcat Opens New Territory In South Archer

The Major Oil company's Mrs. J. Turberville No. 1, section 50, Cowan Ranch lands, Jefferson County School Lands survey, abstract 240, Archer county, was bailed Thursday morning and is estimated 75-100 barrel well from sand encountered at 1,023 feet.

The well is in wildcat territory, the nearest production being on the Benson land seven miles south in block 1397, just over the line in Young county.

The completion of the well opens up a vast amount of territory south and southeast of Archer county for exploration, which has been looked upon by operators as being unfavorable for production. Acreage buying was reported as brisk in the area near the new oil discovery.

ELECTRA GULF IS REPORTED HAVING WATER TROUBLE

MUCH ACTIVITY LOUISIANA AREA

Wildcats in Different Territories Reviving Interest North Part of State

Special to The Record News.

SHREVEPORT, April 17.—North Louisiana appears to be threatened with three new mineral districts, two of them possibly oil and the other possibly gas or oil or both, all the "threats" making their appearance during the week. As yet definite results are to be offered by all three, nothing beyond reported shows having been produced by the two and the gas blow-out constituting the third having shown no signs of oil, while a test in the vicinity reports preparations under way to test an oil show. Most definite reports come from Alexandria, Rapides parish where a decided show of oil was reported in an artesian well being drilled to supply the state colony and training school for the feeble minded with water. Next is a report that for sixty hours there has been a showing of oil in the pit of a well being drilled in West Carroll parish, thirty-five miles northeast of the Monroe gas field, and the third is a show reported in a well in 21-11-3e, LaSalle parish, for which arrangements for a test are being made, coupled with the Stovall and others wild gasser in 27-10-2e, and oil shows in one of three wells in 20-10-2e drilled by the Urania Petroleum company, an English syndicate, all of which failed to produce commercially.

Production in both north Louisiana and south Arkansas proved areas showed an increase totaling 5,000 barrels, or a recovery of 50 per cent of the loss the week before because of a wind storm which wrecked 500 derricks in Smackover, El Dorado and Haynesville. Completions were not as numerous as in the preceding week, particularly in Louisiana, where only four were recorded for the entire north tier. There were thirty-nine completions in all districts. Smackover having thirty-one and Stephens two. Bellevue, in Louisiana had two producers and one failure, and Elm Grove one small gasser. El Dorado east side yielded two producers. Five of Smackover's thirty-one completions were failures.

Is $210.00 Every Month Worth Having?

Visiting a little old property last week we found four wells producing 20 barrels daily, pumping into an open top wook tank and thence to light steel tanks, the milk can covers of which had been rusting out in the adjacent mesquite for years.
The oil was just one degree beaume less than the higher grading, although hydrometer test at the casing head showed gravity well above the dividing line.
The installation of a small gunbarrel and two 65-barrel stock tanks, all with tight tops, raises the gravity 25 cents per barrel and saves 30 barrels a month evaporation.
WE REPEAT—Is $210.00 a month worth having?

JEWS OBSERVE PASSOVER TODAY

To Begin Services At Synagogue This Evening For Congregation

Beginning this evening at 7 o'clock the local Orthodox Jewish congregation of the House of Jacob will celebrate the eight-day holiday of the Passover, according to Rabbi A. Rabinowitz. The congregation will assemble at the synagogue, 709 Ohio avenue. Other services will be held at 6 o'clock Saturday morning, 7 o'clock Saturday evening, and at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Opening services of the holiday will begin at Temple Israel, Eleventh and Burnett, Friday evening at 7 o'clock At 7:30 o'clock the Passover supper will be served with the usual ceremonies. It was stated that since this church has no rabbi at the present time no other than the concluding service on the night of Friday, April 25, will be held.

The eight-day holiday is observed by the Jewish people because they are today the sole survivors of all ancient peoples and they take pride in tracing their history backward to the 15th century before the Christian era, as one of the proofs that their ideals are still needed in the world today, it is explained.

REMORSE AND JAIL PENALTY OF TWO YOUTHS HELD FOR THEFTS

Remorse, poignant and uncompromising, stalked through the city jail last night and searched out the cell of Ray Day, school boy of seventeen, charged with forgery and the theft of an automobile. Laying her cold, clammy hands upon his youthful brow she told him a tale of the ways of the transgressor and the hard, rocky path he must travel.

In another part of the city his accomplice, Winburn Gaither, at liberty on a thousand dollar bond, was undergoing the same sort of experience. As he tossed about on the soft white bed in his room the memories of the boy that was recurred again and again and kept the deep blanket of sleep away until just before the dawn.

A week before they were blithesome and gay with sanguine hopefulness of youth in its springtime; last night they lay awake and thought of the prison sentence that they faced. And ever, from out of the night came the still small voice whose only word was of the boys they might have been.

The two with three companions, all seemingly imbued with the purposelessness of youth, started out early last week on a pleasure jaunt across the country. They traded a Dodge touring car they had stolen for a "baby" Overland and set out for the glorious west.

By the time they had reached Lubbock their car had broken down on them and dissention had begun to creep in between members of the party. A stop at Lubbock proved their undoing, for the sheriff there, acting under instructions from the police here, arrested them and placed them in jail to await the arrival of Wichita Falls officers.

Night Chief Will Allen went from Wichita Falls to Lubbock after the prisoners bringing them back with him in his car and leaving the stolen car, much the worse for wear, in the care of the sheriff there. One of the prisoners, a woman, was also left in Lubbock where charges of vagrancy had been filed against her.

On the return to Wichita Falls two of the party who seem to have been duped by the other two were released, there being no charges against them.

Day was charged with forgery and automobile theft and remanded to jail in default of a thousand dollar bond. Gaither, charged with passing forged instruments, made bond and was released.

Neither of the boys are over seventeen, it is said.

Oriental Studio Featuring Many Fine Paintings

Exhibiting a remarkably beautiful collection of modern paintings and water colors, R. Dudensing is in the city at the Oriental Studios for two weeks, from the Dudensing Galleries of New York City.

Representative works of contemporary American and foreign artists of practically every school make up the collection of over three hundred paintings which constitute the largest group of moderate priced paintings in the country, although the aggregate value is over $25,000,000.

Paintings in oils of rare beauty show the versitality of color and line of the various painters of the present time. There are marines in bold choppy splashes with clear brilliant skies, and in contrast, soft summery landscapes in fine quiet detail with delicate skies, clear pools of shadowed water, and browsing sheep. A group of snow scenes are especially notable for their artistic quality, and several splendid dog pictures are included in the collection.

The atmosphere of the newer schools and the manner of canvas portrayal which gives a distinctive depth and tone to the painting, makes the collection compare in an interesting manner with the works of the old masters, and is attracting wide interest among local art lovers.

Notable among the water colors exhibited are those of Italian masters which are minutely fine in detail. The coloring is beautifully executed and so clear are the shadings and the variations of color tones that milady's satin gown can easily be distinguished from her lord's velvet knee breeches. The faces of the subjects are clear cut as a cameo, and the color is applied with a delicacy and beauty that make Italian water colors distinct from any other water colors in the world.

Bogart, Charlet, Cooper, Charreton, Cormaldi, Curran, Cruppe, Muiertt, Ochtman, Osthaus, Powell, Ritschel, Rix, Symons, Waugh, and O. D. V Guillonett are noteworthy among the artists represented.

Submit Possible Names Of Directors To Be Voted On

Announcement of the coming election of officers of the Rotary club was made by President Walter D. Cline at the noon luncheon of the club yesterday at the Kemp.

At the next meeting of the club members will ballot for six new directors to serve the club for the two years beginning May 1. A committee composed of Morris Marcus, Al Beidenharn and R. E. Shepherd chosen from among the retiring directors submitted the following 12 names for the officials ballot as follows: Lester Boardman, Walter Curlee, Fred Elbert, J. Will Gray, Joe Jones, Frank Keim, W. P. Killingsworth, Theo Lawson, Bob Penick, C. A. Rogers, Jack Sheers, Carl Williamson.

Immediately after its election, the new board will meet and choose officers for the coming year.

It was also announced that a new system of drawing by the captains of teams with 100 per cent attendance would be put into practice at the coming meeting.

It was voted by the club to hold a boys' parade Friday, May 2, for all boys under 21 years of age, in observance of the Rotary International boys' week to be held between April 22 and May 3. The parade will be conducted through the assistance of the organized bodies of boys in the city, as the DeMolay, Boy Scouts, Boys' club of the Salvation Army, and the Hi-Y club of the high school.

Mr. Cline praised the work of the women of Rotary in making the convention recently held here a success. He also praised the clubs of Burkburnett and Electra for their co-operation during the convention.

Bishop H. A. Boaz who is now conducting revival services at the First Methodist church told members of the club that a Rotarian who believed in and lived by the principles set down by the organization, but who was not a professed Christian could not be far from the Kingdom of God.

Selections were given by members from the cast of the operetta, "In the Garden of the Shah," musical production to be given at the Junior College auditorium Monday, April 21, by the music department of the local high school. The students asked the support of the Rotary club in presenting their operetta. Those taking part in the music preceding the luncheon were Carlton Bowman, Ridley Maples, and Miss Leota Tucker.

OFFICERS MAKE BIG BOOZE RAID

3 Stills, Whisky, Mash And 5 Arrests Features Raid

Three large copper stills, five gallons of corn whiskey, and 600 gallons of mash were confiscated and five men placed under arrest when officers of the sheriff's and constable's department, headed by Ranger Sergeant J. W. McCormick, raided a distilling plant near Windthorst yesterday noon. The place had been under suspicion for some time and Ranger McCormick had been working on the case for the past three or four days. The successful completion of the raid is said to stop one of the most resourceful of Wichita Falls' supplies of liquor, it being estimated that as much as 50 gallons a week from this source have been sold in the city.

Two of the three stills were in operation at the time of the raid, about 20 barrels containing 600 gallons of mash surrounding the stills. Five gallons of corn whiskey was found near one of the stills.

The raiding force included Ranger Sergeant J. W. McCormick, Constable Frank Morgan, Deputy E. S. Richardson, Deputy Sheriff George Hawkins and Sheriff Cunningham of Clay county. There was no opposition made to arrest by the five men found on the premises. Four of these men are said to be kinsmen.

Officers are especially elated at the success of this raid, the plant having been in their estimation the most prolific of Wichita Falls bootlegger suppliers.
