Police: Parker claimed trip alibi

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

The accused kidnapper of June Gilkerson claimed he was home recovering from a drunken night with prostitutes in Mexico when the woman disappeared, though fingerprints on her car "exactly" matched his, according to testimony today.

Kenneth Wayne Parker, 42, was also at work on a book manuscript about a murder when he was questioned, a police detective testified on the third day of testimony. Parker is accused of two counts of conspiracy to commit kidnapping. He is on trial before U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton.

A few days after the 24-year-old woman disappeared, Parker gave a voluntary statement at the police department, police Sgt. Mike Roberts testified.

Parker told Roberts he went to Del Rio on Nov. 7, 1986, then across the border to Ciudad Acuna, Mexico, the detective told the 12 jurors and two alternates.

While there, Parker went to several bars, drank beer and rum and coke, and bought and had sex with at least three prostitutes, according to the statement he gave Roberts.

At 4 a.m. Saturday, November 8, he left the border and drove back to Midland, Roberts said. Parker told him he arrived back in Midland about 9 a.m. and stopped for a sandwich at O'Neil Grocery, 3006 Garden City Highway, according to the statement.

Ironically, Parker said he stopped at the same store — and at the same time — alleged accomplice David Alderink testified Tuesday the two had stopped to phone and "set up" Ms. Gilkerson.

After he left the store, Parker said he drove home, Roberts said.

During a Nov. 25 search of Parker's trailer home, Roberts said he found a derringer and a pile of papers.

He looked through the papers, which appeared to be a handwritten manuscript for a book, Roberts said.

The working title of the book was "No Tell Motel Murder," the detective said.

In his statement, Parker briefly mentioned Alderink, whom he had met at the Midland County Public Library, the officer said.

"He was a very nice, likable kid," Roberts read from the statement. "I liked him. I felt like I could trust him...he never caused me any trouble. I told him what to do and he did it."

Earlier, a police fingerprint expert testified a print found on Ms. Gilkerson's car "exactly" matched a print obtained from the defendant when his trailer was searched.

The left middle fingerprint of Parker's matched a latent print lifted from the exterior of the Gilkerson car near the driver's side, Lt. Hank Norton testified.

Alderink tells of kidnap plot

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

David Alderink was asked to look at the government's Exhibit No. 1. He looked at the photograph, then paused.

"It's June Gilkerson," he told a prosecutor in a quiet, deep voice. He put the photo down.

The exchange was one of many Tuesday between Alderink and Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne Speck, and marked the first time — 19 months after her disappearance — that a participant in her alleged kidnapping described publicly what happened.

The sandy-haired Alderink, 22, appeared in federal court in a coat and tie, clean-shaven. As part of a plea agreement which netted him a 20-year state prison sentence for participating in Ms. Gilkerson's abduction, he had agreed to testify against his alleged accomplice, Kenneth Wayne Parker. Prosecutors and investigators have said a trial was unlikely without help from Alderink.

As a crowded courtroom listened, Speck asked the Michigan native about his feelings for the woman, who he claimed he loved. He asked Alderink about his motivation for her kidnapping.

"Did you love her?" Speck asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"Yet, young man, what did you agree would be done with this beautiful young woman? How does that make you feel?"

"Real low. I can't explain it," he said. "It was my greed."

Their voices were the only sound in the courtroom.

"Why in the world didn't you tell him (Parker) 'hell no'?" the prosecutor continued.

"My greed for money," Alderink said. "I'd replace my life for her's right now if I could."

"If you could," Speck said.

David Alderink

Midland County Public Library, he testified, while serving a sentence for burglary at the Midland Restitution Center. As part of his sentence, he worked nights at the library for his community service obligation. Parker was the night custodian there, he testified.

Alderink and Parker spent a lot of time together, playing cards, listening to phonograph records and taking jaunts from the library out for late suppers, according to testimony.

The men talked "basically about women and sex," Alderink testified.

After a while, talk got around to Parker's war experience in Vietnam, and his trips to brothels there, Alderink said. Parker also claimed to make regular trips to Mexican brothels, and bragged about a certain affiliation.

"He came up to me and said he was in an organization where he picked up girls, and they sold them into prostitution," Alderink said. "He said he'd get $10,000 per woman...he said he'd done it before."

When he heard that, Parker shook his head from side to side and whispered to his court-appointed attorney, Tom Morgan.

"He said they picked them up, sent them to a 'safe house', got them drugged up," the witness continued. "When they got them hooked they sent them out through Mexico," or to the Orient, he said.

Alderink then said he had told Parker "quite a bit" about Susan Lindsay, the wife of a friend who had pressed an auto theft charge against him.

Parker is also on trial for conspiring to kidnap Ms. Lindsay, 25.

"I was mad and wanted to get revenge," he said he told Parker.

The older man told him they could sell Ms. Lindsay for $10,000 — but he would keep only $2,500, Alderink testified.

A month later, Alderink was scheduled to be released from the Restitution Center. Following his release, on Friday, Nov. 7, 1986, the duo left for Rockdale, where Alderink had found out Ms. Lindsay lived with her husband John, he testified.

But the plot was halted as "too risky" by Parker because John Lindsay answered the phone when he called, and the apartment complex they lived in was busy and lit up, the witness testified.

On the way back to Midland, the name of another potential victim came up when Parker suggested they kidnap "that woman you know," Alderink told the jury.

"I thought to myself I was going to Michigan anyway, and the money was there," he testified. When the two arrived in Midland, he phoned Ms. Gilkerson and arranged to meet her at the Fairmont Lanes bowling alley on Loop 250, he said.

When she drove up, he already had been dropped off by Parker. He got in the woman's car and drove off, turning north on Holiday Hill Road, he told Speck. She asked him to stop for a pack of gum, but he did not.

"Her last request to you was denied," Speck inquired.

"Yes," Alderink replied.

At a dead end, he turned left onto County Road 60 and drove for about a quarter-mile.

"Ken passed me in the truck, he waved at me, and I waved back," he said. Ms. Gilkerson asked "Who's that?"

"That's Ken," he remembered answering. The two men pulled their vehicles to the side of the road, Alderink testified.

Parker then walked to him, shook his hand, then walked to the car and got in the car with Ms. Gilkerson, he said.

"I seen her face and I freaked out," Alderink said. "I just wanted to get away," so he jumped in Parker's truck and sped about 75 feet west. Then he stopped, he said.

"She looked at me," Alderink told Speck.

"Did you go back and help her?" the prosecutor asked.

"No, I didn't," Alderink said, answering rapidly.

Parker drove away with the woman, and returned a few minutes later. She had been handcuffed, and her eyes and mouth were secured with silver duct tape, Alderink testified.

"He put the sleeping bag over the top of her, picked her up and put her in his truck," he said.

"Did you get your money?" Speck asked.

"No."

"Did you ever see June Gilkerson again?"

"No."

School expansion may lead to tax increase

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Construction of 87 new elementary classrooms may result in a school district tax rate increase, trustees said Tuesday night prior to announcing that a Fort Worth architect will oversee the project.

The Midland school board — consisting of seven freshman trustees elected May 7 — voted unanimously to proceed with 11 "pod" additions to elementary and the construction of a new 15-room primary school in northwest Midland. The proposal had been developed by previous board members.

Midland Independent School District trustees delayed deciding when and how bonds for the construction will be sold and opted to let the community help them make that decision. Midland voters May 7 approved

Fort Worth architect chosen for expansion project — 2A

$11.8 million for the construction in addition to electing the new board.

A community-input committee chaired by ClayDesta National Bank President David Jones will investigate options on the $11.8 million bond issuance explained Tuesday by the district's financial advisor.

Several of those options, however, include a debt service tax rate increase, said Mel Schonhorst, MISD's Dallas-based financial advisor.

Council OKs phone system that will allow direct dialing to city offices

By CHRIS VAN WAGENEN
Staff Writer

Midland City Council untangled its phone system Tuesday, opening the lines for Southwestern Bell to install a new system that is expected to make dialing city offices a breeze.

Council's selection of Bell's Plexar II will enable callers to directly dial between 340 and 350 new lines. The new system is tentatively scheduled to go on line July 31.

"From a public's standpoint, no one wants to talk to a switchboard," said Deputy City Manager Mike McGregor, who recommended approval of the system at an initial start-up cost of $40,000.

According to Ray Kendall, the system's annual cost will run the city about $109,000, or $3,000 more a month than the service now being provided by Universal Communication Systems.

While the Plexar II is obviously expensive, Kendall said Midland taxpayers will be getting a lot more for their dollars, given the fact that the system will require no major capital outlays.

City officials said that was a problem with UCS, which would have required the installation of a new switching system. It also would have provided less direct dialing capabilities.

McGregor said that UCS had eliminated at least 50 telephone devices from its initial proposal. He said also that the company was "slow" in providing the city with information it needed in order to make a decision.

Installation of the Plexar system is expected to take pressure off the city switchboard, which sometimes lets calls go unanswered, particularly during the peak periods of 10 a.m. to noon and 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

While the city does list direct lines in the phone book, those numbers cannot function until the cutover date. Currently, all city office lines are turned over to the main switchboard.

In the meantime, council agreed to a three-month contract extension for its consultant on the project, Ray Kendall, who now is expected to shore up police and fire communications.

Another fundamentalist minister elected as SBC president

Vines
Protestant-denomination.
The Rev. Jerry Vines, who narrowly defeated a moderate Tuesday, said the denomination has turned rightward because of "strong grass-roots feelings on the part of our people."

Vines also told a news conference he hoped "we can move in the direction of healing" the bitter conflict between conservative and moderate Southern Baptists.

Meanwhile, a moderate group, the Southern Baptist Alliance, said Vines' election left them "disenfranchised."

"Diversity is rejected and dishonored," said a statement from the group, headed by the Rev. John Thompson of Jackson, Miss. "Fundamentalist, authoritarian, hierarchical and right-wing political ideology" now prevailed, it said.

Vines defeated the Rev. Richard Jackson by 15,804 to 15,112. But similarly close votes in the past have not deterred extension of the fundamentalist platform.

Vines, 50, is co-pastor of the First Baptist Church of Jacksonville, Fla., while Jackson, 49, is pastor of the North Phoenix Baptist Church in Phoenix, Ariz. Each church has about 18,000 members.

Vines' victory represents the 10th straight year fundamentalists have gained the powerful presidency, completing a timetable set by their strategist in 1979 for solidifying their control over the denomination. The president serves a one-year term, but it is traditionally renewed a second year.

The outcome also signaled indefinite continuation of a right-wing theological and political agenda that has accompanied the fundamentalist dominance.

Because of the size and nationwide influence of the 14.7-million-member denomination, the direction set here was seen as having an impact in broader evangelical circles.

Asked why Southern Baptist positions on social and political issues have come to match those of the religious right, Vines cited "grass-roots feelings" and said members "reflect the general mood, the conservative directions of this time."

Jackson wryly discounted that explanation, saying the "grass roots are often quoted, but you don't hear them talking much."

"I feel there is manipulation," he said. "It would have been unthinkable 20 years ago that a small group could get together and work out plans" for taking control of the denomination.

The key architects of that plan, Judge Paul Pressler of Houston and the Rev. Paige Patterson of Dallas, determined that by successively winning the presidency, conservatives could gradually pack ruling boards of denominational agencies and seminaries through the appointive power of the office.

WEATHER SUMMARY

From Staff and Wire Reports

Skies will be partly cloudy tonight with a less than 20 percent chance of thundershowers, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport. The low will be in the upper 60s and winds will be southeasterly 5-10 mph.

Thursday is expected to be much the same with a less than 20 percent chance of afternoon thundershowers. The high will be in the lower 90s and winds will continue southeasterly 5-15 mph.

Tuesday's high of 89 was 16 degrees cooler than the record high temperature of 105 set for that date in 1945. The overnight low of 66 was 10 degrees warmer than the record low temperature of 56 set for this date in 1940.

STATE

A cool front drifting over the Texas Panhandle and a large area of high pressure combined to trigger showers and thundershowers over portions of West Texas, Central Texas and South Texas.

The high pressure ridge stretching from the Carolinas westward to Texas pulled moisture from the Gulf of Mexico northward into the state.

Forecasts called for scattered thundershowers in West Texas, more numerous in the Panhandle with locally heavy rain possible through tonight. It will be partly cloudy over northern and southern sections of the state through tonight.

There is a slight chance of thundershowers in North Texas Thursday with widely scattered thundershowers expected Thursday along the coastal plains and along the Rio Grande in South Texas.

To near 101 in the Big Bend area, in the 90s across North Texas and in the 90s across most of South Texas, ranging from the 80s along the immediate coast to around 100 on the Rio Grande Plains.

NATION

Showers and thundershowers dampened parts of the Midwest and the West today after a heat wave baking America's northern half smashed or tied temperature records in 34 cities from Portland, Ore., to Portland, Maine.

Showers and thundershowers fell over Wisconsin, southeastern Nebraska and central Kansas. Scattered showers and thundershowers fell in northwestern Texas, eastern New Mexico and eastern Colorado.

In eastern Colorado, a thunderstorm dropped up to 2 inches of small hail near Hartsville.

Dry weather prevailed across the rest of the country, with clear skies from the Gulf Coast to the Atlantic Coast and in the north-central United States.

On Tuesday night, severe thundershowers swept through the upper Mississippi Valley. In southeast Minnesota, the storms generated winds gusting to 60 mph, downing power lines in the Pine Island and Zumbro Falls area, and small hail which did some crop damage in Owatonna. High winds downed trees in four northern Wisconsin counties.

Tuesday's hot weather broke temperature records for June 14 in 27 cities and tied them in seven cities in the Northeast, Midwest and West.

It was 94 degrees in Pittsburgh, where the old mark of 93 was set in 1885. In Washington, D.C., the 103-year-old record of 94 degrees was tied. Alpena, Mich., reported a sweltering 96 degrees, 4 degrees over last year's record. It was 89 degrees in Portland, Ore., 1 degree over the 1961 mark and a record-tying 84 degrees in Portland, Maine.

Other cities experiencing record temperatures included Baltimore, Philadelphia; Beckley, W.Va.; Providence, R.I.; Burlington, Vt.; Cleveland; Detroit; Marquette, Mich.; and Seattle.

While not a record, the nation's high Tuesday was 110 degrees in Bullhead City, Ariz.

Today's forecast called for showers and thundershowers in southern and central Florida, from northwest Indiana to Illinois and Missouri, over central Colorado and scattered widely over northeast Minnesota and northern Nevada.

Official says lack of rain could be disaster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Searing drought that has withered fields in America's breadbasket could escalate into full-scale disaster unless rain comes soon, the nation's top farm official says.

Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng told lawmakers Tuesday that the government is providing aid to ease "what could well be a catastrophe." He said it was "still a little bit soon to say we have a general disaster nationwide, but the potential is there."

Wheat fields in Montana and the Dakotas already are in bad shape, he said, and additional weeks of scorching temperatures and no rain could cause severe damage in the Corn Belt and across the South.

Corn and soybeans are drawing on moisture stored in soil and remain viable, he said. He added that July weather is more critical to the crops and good rainfall from now on could do much to revitalize them.

Lyng answered questions Tuesday morning from the Senate Agriculture Committee and returned to Capitol Hill in the afternoon for a talk with House Agriculture Committee Chairman E. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Texas.

Lawmakers are talking about congressional action to help ease farm money woes arising from the drought. Both House and Senate have formed task forces to work with Lyng in formulating a bill the White House would accept.

Such a bill would involve a hefty payout and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., warned his colleagues against "disparate legislative initiatives hung on various bills and flying in from various places with no certainty that the administration would accept them."

"There may be no rain," Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., said, "but there's going to be a rain of various proposals with everyone trying to outdo one another, whoever gets to the press first."

Lyng said it was too early to push such a measure now but said it was important to be ready to do so before Congress adjourns this fall.

"I guess the best thing for us to do is pray for rain," Lyng said. He noted that USDA already is providing an array of emergency aid payments.

But he continued to reject opening Conservation Reserve Program acres for cutting hay and grazing livestock, a move sought by farmers facing livestock feed shortages because of the drought.

The program is a special 1985 plan to take 45 million highly erodible acres out of production for a decade and plant them in grasses and trees. It is separate from USDA's annual conservation program, which already has been opened for haying and grazing in more than 900 counties.

Norton said he found 10 matching points on the two prints, more than the eight required by modern police methods.

Parker repeated the story of his Del Rio trip at least once — to a state grand jury on Dec. 10, 1986, a Midland County prosecutor testified.

At one point during the proceeding, Parker said "the deal is, I didn't do anything, and if they can prove it, so be it." Ralph Petty said, "If I would have known I needed an alibi, I would have taken four nuns and two priests," Parker then said, according to Petty.

On Tuesday, Alderink, 22, was called to the stand by Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne Speck. After Speck's two-hour direct examination, he was questioned for an hour by Parker's court-appointed attorney, Tom Morgan.

The attorney zeroed in on the relationship between Alderink and the missing woman.

"If you really loved her, why did you brag about your relationship with June Gilkerson?" Morgan asked.

"I didn't brag about it," Alderink replied. Alderink denied showing love letters June had written him to other Retention Center inmates and he denied using the designer drug Ecstasy.

Morgan then asked the man about a videotape made by Midland police on Nov. 25, 1986. On the tape, which was shown to jurors, Alderink speaks softly while Parker shouts denials at him.

The witness insisted he was afraid of the larger man, and after a detective and municipal judge left the room at police headquarters, Alderink said "I wanted to leave, too."

"If he ever got his hands on me, there's no telling what he'd do to me," Alderink said.

"Do you really think he was going to pound you at the police department?" Morgan asked.

"I was afraid of him."

"You were afraid of the truth, Mr. Alderink."

Morgan then asked Alderink about the written statements he had given to Midland police and to his attorney, Jim Bobo of Odessa. He agreed with Morgan that he had repeatedly lied about his involvement in the abduction.

But he denied Morgan's assertion that he had gone to Austin with Parker to sell drugs.

The attorney — who frequently asked series of seemingly unrelated questions — then asked Alderink about the "cremation note" he claimed Parker wrote. After he asked Parker about the fate of June Gilkerson, Parker wrote on a note that she was cremated for $15,000, and held the note up to Alderink, he testified.

"Do you expect us to believe that, after hundreds of lies?" Morgan asked.

"It's the truth," Alderink said. On re-direct examination, Speck directed Alderink's attention to a government exhibit: a piece of the wall taken from an isolation cell at the Midland County Jail.

He told the prosecutor he had written on the wall during the summer of 1987, after he was first arrested for the Gilkerson kidnapping.

"David took his life because he took June's life," Alderink read aloud. "Now we can be together forever. I drove the car, that's it. I helped in taking June's life but I loved her."

Despite his suicidal thoughts at the time, Alderink told the prosecutor he decided against taking his own life. Speck then called several clerks from Brady and Llano — cities on the route from Midland to Austin — who told jurors Parker and another man had been in their stores the night of Nov. 7.

The clerks testified they remembered the 6-foot-7-inch Parker because of his size, and because he knocked over a soft drink display with ease.

Earlier in the second day of the trial, a Midland police detective told attorney Morgan that June's husband Ron had been a "prime" suspect.

"You told Gilkerson that he was the prime suspect because she was running around on him. Is that correct?" Morgan queried.

"Yes, sir," Sgt. B.G. Johnson testified.

A maintenance man at the Best Western motel on Interstate 20, where the missing woman's 1986 Honda Civic was found, told police he saw a blue Isuzu pickup truck parked nearby the morning of November 8, Johnson said.

The detective confirmed Gilkerson owned a similar truck at the time his wife disappeared.

Fort Worth architect chosen for MISD project

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Nearly $100,000 in architectural fees will bypass Midland because school trustees chose a Fort Worth architect to oversee the district's $11.8 million elementary expansion project.

However, local architect Gary Vandergriff will work in association with Fort Worth architect Terry Harden and the Midland Independent School District on the project, trustees announced Tuesday.

At least two Midland architects are disappointed in the district's decision.

Larry Connolly, designer of the Museum of the Southwest's new Children's Museum, said the district could have split up the project into several smaller ones, thus allowing more Midland firms a shot at the work.

"The school board nor their staff reads the Chamber (of Commerce magazine). They don't buy much 'West Texas' in the area of architectural services," Connolly said.

Ector County Independent School District trustees opted to divide their pending $8.8 million elementary expansion plan into separate projects and hired four Odessa architects to do all the work, said Marta Ebaro, ECISD business affairs spokesman.

A factor in ECISD's decision to go local was the economic condition of the area, Ms. Ebaro explained.

Several local architects contacted asked for their comments not to appear in print, fearing a "sour grapes" appearance. They also were concerned that their complaints would tarnish their chances for a future district job.

But David Messersmith, who last week was satisfied when he made the final cut of architects considered for the $11.8 million project, sang a different tune today.

"I'm disappointed. I didn't get the work," Messersmith said, but declined to speculate on why the district took its business out of town.

When architects became angry earlier this year at the district's hiring practices for project designers, trustees instituted a new selection procedure whereby all Midland architects would have a shot at the big projects, they said.

Harden stands to make anywhere from 6 to 8 percent of the total $11.8 million price tag, explained Wilson Heidelberg, MISD director of school plant services.

One consolation for Midland architects is that the school board is still looking to hire an architect who will handle projects under $100,000 during the next school year, trustee Jim Bullita said Tuesday night.

The debt service tax rate comprises about one-eighth of the total MISD tax rate, said Ted Miller, MISD communications director.

"Please raise my taxes for schools," said Gary Willis, a concerned parent. "We are," answered one board member. "The question is...how much?"

Trustees also passed a resolution mandating that the district retain in its reserves 12.5 to 20 percent of its annual $60 million operating budget.

The fundamentalist victories have been achieved under the banner of biblical "inerrancy" — that the Bible is without error, scientifically, historically and religiously.

But they have been accompanied by conservative positions on political and social issues, such as unsuccessfully supporting Judge Robert Bork for the U.S. Supreme Court, and favoring capital punishment, prayer in public schools and aid to private schools.

Vines said he hoped the denomination would not lose members over the conflict. "I want to include, not exclude," he said.

Asked if he would seek only like-minded people as trustees of church institutions and agencies, he said they must be within approved "paraeters," that is, biblical "inerrantists."

Several seminars and other church staff members have been pressured from their jobs by new screening processes instituted by the fundamentalists. Among the questions asked church employees is whether they believe Adam and Eve were real people and that biblical miracles actually occurred.

Vines said the political ramifications of the fundamentalist upsurge were "spinoffs" from the theological concerns.

Jackson said the split "obviously isn't over theology," but over different styles of leadership, since he accepts the Bible's infallibility, but he respects those holding other views.

"I believe we'll stay together, may God deliver us," he said. "I don't want anybody to panic."

PHONE

While council opened the city's phone lines, it was less than receptive to modifying its nuisance water ordinance.

Council members made it clear to Chaparral Realty President David Pine that they have no intention of changing its code enforcement procedures and will continue to issue citations.

Pine was a victim of one of those citations. Last week, he was fined $500 in Municipal Court for water coming off his Colonade at Polo Park property, located on North Garfield.

Mayor Carroll Thomas said nuisance water on city roads cost Midland taxpayers more than $2 million a year in what he described as

Britons trying to save Lady Astor's birthplace

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — English nobles may help wage the battle to save the birthplace here of the first female member of Britain's House of Commons from being bulldozed into a parking lot.

An insurance company that owns the childhood home of Nancy Astor can wreck the place if the Danville Historical Society does not buy it by August 20.

"I don't know what the pressing need is here for a parking lot," society member Gary Grant said as he stood in front of the faded white building laced with peeling green trim and punctuated by a small orange and black "For Sale" sign tacked on the front door.

The insurance firm of Blanks Pollok Lewis & Wells Inc., which is seeking to demolish the house, declined comment to The Associated Press.

The historical society began working to save the home this spring when local government decided that if no one steps in to buy the property, the insurance company can knock the building down and pave another parking lot to go with the three that flank it.

Preservationists had been aware of the house's historical significance for years but never thought it was threatened because it was occupied as apartment space.

Then the insurance company announced it wanted a parking lot.

Now, the preservationists must come up with $32,000, a price agreed upon by three independent appraisers.

As the effort to save the building got under way, society board member Susan Stilwell wrote to England to the Fourth Viscount Astor, William Waldorf Astor III, grandson of the woman born as Nancy Langhorne Shaw in this tobacco and textile city that was founded in 1793 as a tiny tobacco inspection station.

The viscount wrote back to say he and relatives might send money to preserve the place.

It is a structure with an uncertain past. Those seeking to save it agree that after being built in the 1870s, shortly before Nancy Langhorne Shaw's birth, the building was moved from one end of a small lot to another.

Nancy Langhorne Shaw went on to marry the Second Viscount, Waldorf Astor, and become a liberal, temperance-pushing English parliamentarian.

In the early 1920s, perhaps, a second floor was apparently built on and the place was divided into four apartments.

"Architecturally, of course, it's of fairly minor importance," Grant said. "But, historically, it's internationally important."

Despite the humble architecture, preservationists say, Nancy Astor recognized the building in a quiet

Danville neighborhood as her home in the two trips she made to Danville as a member of Parliament, when children tossed rose petals in her path.

The historical society is not quite sure what it would like to do with the Astor house, as the place is called on a historical marker put up on a nearby road now filling up with medical buildings and parking lots.

The preservationists talk of building a museum honoring the "steel magnolias," strong-willed women of the South, or even of making a headquarters out of the place.

First, they merely want to save the building.

Asked if they would be satisfied to move the once-moved house to another location, they said they found the idea distasteful.

"Our first objective is to protect it in this setting," Grant said. "We could be playing chess sets with houses."

Researcher says drug-related AIDS up in cocaine users

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Drug-related AIDS cases are increasingly linked to cocaine rather than heroin, and crack users who trade sex for drugs may be spreading the epidemic further, a researcher said today.

Drug-related AIDS also is spreading to parts of the developing world where illicit drug shipments originate, said Don Des Jarlais of the New York State Division of Substance Abuse Services in New York City. He spoke at the Fourth International Conference on AIDS.

The reason for the growing link between AIDS and cocaine injection may be partly due to the frequency with which cocaine users inject themselves, Des Jarlais said.

Heroin users may inject themselves three or four times per day, Des Jarlais said. But cocaine users may inject themselves as often as every 15 minutes until their cocaine supply is exhausted, he said.

"That can lead to almost continuous sharing of drug injection equipment and a much greater likelihood of viral transmission," he said.

The AIDS virus attacks the body's immune system, leaving victims susceptible to a wide variety of infections and cancers. It is most often transmitted through sexual contact. Various reports at the AIDS conference have identified the sharing of needles by drug abusers as one of the most rapidly growing components of the AIDS epidemic.

The disease also can be spread in transfusions of tainted blood or blood products and from mother to child at or before birth.

Crack users do not inject the drug, but the trading of sex for drugs could be further spreading AIDS infection among the drug-abusing population, Des Jarlais said.

The spread of AIDS among cocaine abusers, which Des Jarlais has observed in New York City and San Francisco, is also of concern because of the difficulty of treating cocaine addiction, Des Jarlais said.

"We currently lack any large-scale treatment for cocaine dependence," he said. Heroin addiction can be controlled by substituting methadone for the drug, but there is no such substitute for cocaine.

As of June 6, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control had reports of 64,506 cases of AIDS, 11,914 of which, or 18 percent, were among non-homosexual intravenous drug abusers.

Des Jarlais said the spread of AIDS among drug abusers appears to be slowing. In San Francisco, 15 percent to 20 percent of cocaine and heroin abusers have been infected with the virus, but that figure has not increased for about 18 months, he said.

In New York City, 55 percent to 60 percent of the drug abusers are infected, and that figure has been stable for about three years, he said.

In a separate report, researchers said Tuesday that proportion of drug-related AIDS cases among Puerto Ricans in the United States is more than five times the rate among other Hispanic-Americans.

Hispanics make up just 6 percent of the population but have 14.5 percent of the country's AIDS cases. As of June 6, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control had reports of 9,362 cases in Hispanics, out of a total of 64,506 cases.

Richard Selik of the Centers for Disease Control said 38.6 percent of the AIDS cases among Puerto Ricans in the 50 states occur among drug abusers or their heterosexual partners.

He said that drug-related cases made up only 4.2 percent of the AIDS cases in Mexican-Americans, 5 percent of the cases in Cuban-Americans and 7.3 percent of the cases in Americans from other Latin American countries.

"Efforts to prevent IVDA (intravenous drug abuse) related AIDS in Hispanics should be concentrated on persons of Puerto Rican origin," Selik said.

In another report, a European research group said that 40 percent of infants born with the AIDS virus develop the deadly disease or a related illness by the age of 10 months.

In the largest study yet done of AIDS transmission to newborns, European researchers who have followed 219 infants of infected mothers for up to two years said it appears that 25 percent to 30 percent of infants born to infected mothers will be infected themselves.

Of the infected infants, 40 percent will go on to develop AIDS or a related illness, said the study's director, Dr. Catherine Peckham of the Institute of Child Health in London.

Dr. George Rutherford of the San Francisco Department of Public Health reported new findings suggesting that most — and perhaps all — of the 1 million or more Americans infected with the AIDS virus will ultimately develop AIDS.

Rutherford has followed 71 men whose blood had been tested regularly for up to 10 years as part of a study of hepatitis.

Tests of their blood samples show that 40 percent were sick with AIDS within nine years of becoming infected and that figure had climbed to 48 percent 10 years after infection.

Rioters arrested in melee between West German, British soccer fans

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — About 300 West German soccer fans attacked a like number of English fans, setting off street battles and window-smashing sprees that lasted into this morning. Police said 130 rioters were arrested.

Thousands of rowdy English soccer fans, many sporting painted faces and "Invasion of Germany 1988" T-shirts, have converged on this Rhine river city for what officials fear will be a major brawl with Dutch fans later today.

"Behave yourselves. Be a credit to your country and to your football team. If you don't, you are doing us no good at all," Bobby Robson, manager of England's team, appealed to fans in anticipation of his squad's European Soccer Championships game against the Netherlands national team.

At least three police officers and an undetermined number of fans were injured in the street clashes that began late Tuesday. Police arrested 90 English and 40 West German fans.

The disturbances started after German fans began arriving from nearby Gelsenkirchen, where their team had defeated Denmark earlier in the evening, and attacked English fans near the Duesseldorf train station.

The fans, many of them drunk, smashed shop windows and automobile windshields during the rampage.

On Sunday, 107 people, mostly English, were arrested in violence in Stuttgart after the English team was defeated by Ireland in the opening round of the tournament.

Afterwards, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain issued a stern warning to the traveling troublemakers, demanded an urgent report and said the rowdiness could damage Britain's business interests in Europe.

Eight English fans were arrested Tuesday after brawling in the center of Frankfurt. Farther north on the route to Duesseldorf, police in Cologne arrested 22 English and Irish fans who were smashing windows.

Police in Mannheim said one drunken English fan fell onto railroad tracks and was dragged along by an oncoming engine, suffering critical injuries.

Israel army closes schools, bus companies

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinians today shut down businesses in the occupied territories and blocked some roads after PLO leaders called for a general strike to show solidarity with Arab students held in Israeli jails.

Israel's army responded by stepping up patrols and closing 16 Arab bus companies in the occupied West Bank and Arab east Jerusalem for a week.

The army also ordered a two-day closure of West Bank schools, which military officers say are a source of renewed violence.

"We hope these two days will serve as a hint to those students who want to study, to those parents who send their children to school and to those who are behind the disturbances, so they will let the students complete the school year," Brig. Gen. Shaike Erez, head of the West Bank's military administration, said on Israel radio.

West Bank schools were shut down in February but studies have resumed gradually in the past three weeks.

In the occupied Gaza Strip, schools have remained open for most of the uprising.

Israeli authorities closed 14 bus companies in Arab east Jerusalem for a week starting today as punishment for the company's participation in commercial strikes, Arab reports said.

Virtually all shops were closed and most streets empty today from Bethlehem to the northern city of Nablus in the West Bank and in the seaside Gaza Strip.

In Bethlehem, graffiti on walls warned in Arabic: "Observe The Strike, Or Else!" Some roads were blocked by boulders. In Nablus, outlawed Palestinian flags flapped from electrical poles.

Hanan Ashrawi, an English teacher at the West Bank's Bir Zeit University, said the effectiveness of the strike shows that the uprising is still alive.

"It is wishful thinking for the Israelis to say the uprising is dying," she said. "To end the occupation, people are willing to sacrifice."

On Tuesday, the army said 2,500 Arabs had been ordered held for up to six months without charges, up 500 from last month.

Army officials said they could not provide figures on how many of the about 5,000 Arabs in Israeli jails are students. The army has said most administrative detainees are members of Shabibe, a youth group linked to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The army also said that dozens of Israeli soldiers have been convicted of or charged with use of excessive force and other violations of army policy since the uprising began Dec. 8 in the West Bank and Gaza.

The chief military prosecutor, Brig. Gen. Amnon Strashnov, said that since the uprising began, military police have opened 350 investigations.

In all, 207 Palestinians have died since the uprising began, more than 150 by army gunfire. Two Israelis have also been killed.

Dann was tragedy waiting to happen

By SHARON COHEN

WINNETKA, Ill. (AP) — At the end, she was alone, hiding from the world she'd shattered that day in wild gunfire. Outside, the tears and trauma had just begun. Inside, Laurie Dann shot one last time and her torment was over.

No one saw her place the .32-caliber revolver in her mouth or heard the shot that destroyed her demons and ended a day of terror.

Three weeks after she killed a young boy at Hubbard Woods Elementary School and ended her life in the house where she had held police at bay, authorities are still trying to piece together the puzzle of Laurie Dann's life.

"We want to answer the question why," said Winnetka Police Lt. Joseph Sumner. "What made it happen? How did it happen? We owe that to the citizens and the community. We owe it to the families of victims. If you put yourself in their spot, you'd want to know why."

"It's very possible she may have taken that to the grave with her," he added. "We can hopefully come down with a position of 'This is probably why.'"

Laurie Dann's road to tragedy was lined with signs of trouble ahead, most posted in the last two years.

In that time, she was divorced, forced out of an apartment and charged with shoplifting. She lied about her name, age and occupation; she claimed to be a teacher or a journalist.

She was suspected of making hundreds of harassing hang-up or threatening phone calls to her ex-husband, his family and others. She was charged once, but the case was dropped due to insufficient evidence.

Students and officials at two schools say she hid raw meat under seat cushions, wore knit gloves when she ate, ran her shower for hours and rode an elevator day and night in her dormitory where she was called "psycho" and "elevator lady."

"She was definitely a very, very confused woman," Sumner said. Dangerous, too, her ex-husband and others feared. But even as they were contacting the FBI, prosecutors and police, several North Shore families were unwittingly hiring Dann as a babysitter.

Two days before the May 20 tragedy, Arizona prosecutors were ready to charge Dann with making threatening phone calls to a former boyfriend. Illinois authorities were working a similar case. The FBI was closing in, too.

They moved too late. By then, Dann had killed 8-year-old Nicholas Corwin. She shot five other children at the school and a 20-year-old man who tried to disarm her when she burst into his family's house. She barricaded herself there and committed suicide.

"I don't see why this had to happen and get this far," Susan Taylor, her former sister-in-law, said on ABC's "Nightline." Taylor said Dann called her hundreds of times, saying things like "Susie, Susie, Susie, you are going to die."

Dann, police say, left behind a trail of poison: 31 packets of juice and other foods, 29 of them contaminated with arsenic or lead, sent to her ex-husband, psychiatrist, families she worked for, two Northwestern University fraternity houses and others.

Police believe she may once have known someone at the frat houses but don't know why she directed her poison at acquaintances, her gun at strangers.

It wasn't the only paradox in Dann's life.

Children she tended adored her, but adults came to fear her.

She was raised in a world of wealth and elegant homes, but she left rotting meat behind in one apartment with urine-stained floors.

Still, some say they detected no hint of growing fury.

"She really was a pleasant...quiet person...She wasn't this ghoulish person all her life," said Peter Solber, one attorney who represented her in divorce proceedings. "She wasn't the monster she turned out to be."

For most of her 30 years, Laurie Dann lived an unremarkable life. Laurie Wasserman, who had an older brother, Mark, graduated from prestigious New Trier East High School. Her father, a successful accountant, and mother live in Glenview on the North Shore, where $500,000 mansions, private beaches along Lake Michigan and three-car garages are not uncommon.

In high school "she was really quiet, kind of withdrawn. She held her head low," said ex-classmate Margie Guarelli. "There was always kind of a wall in-between...She never really gave you eye contact. She was nervous when she talked to you."

She took classes at four universities — Drake, Arizona, Northwestern and Wisconsin-Madison — over six years. At Arizona, she majored in home economics but did not graduate after four years. Later, she took courses in acting, dance and playwriting.

At Arizona, Dann pledged Alpha Delta Pi sorority, where sisters remembered her as introverted and recalled how she would make several dates for one night, then cancel all but one.

"I just perceived her to be a sweet little girl," Denise Shimer Janes, a former chapter president, told The Arizona Star.

For two years, Dann dated a pre-med student at Arizona, who later claimed she harassed him with threatening phone calls. His identity has not been made public.

However, the man's friend, Louis Spivack, an Arizona prosecutor who double-dated with them, remembers Dann as "aloof, perhaps a little unfriendly, possessive" but exhibiting no especially strange behavior.

In 1982, two years after returning to the Chicago area, she married Russell Dann, who worked in his family's insurance firm.

Solber said his client, who was 5-foot-3, described herself and her husband as both "little and cute. (She said) they looked like brother and sister. That was her perception."

The Dannes bought a $275,000 home, but the marriage crumbled by 1986. She saw a psychiatrist for part of their marriage.

Their parting was bitter. Dann, who had taken a marksmanship course in her college days, bought a .357-caliber Magnum, saying she needed it for protection. A worried Russell Dann alerted police, who contacted her parents. Wasserman told officers the gun would be locked in a safety deposit box.

Dann also accused her husband of assault, breaking into their home and setting it on fire, charges never substantiated.

Russell Dann, in turn, asserted she sneaked into his apartment as he slept Sept. 30, 1986, and stabbed him in the chest with an ice pick. He said he never saw his assailant and later claimed his ex-wife had admitted to the attack.

Author fascinated with turn-of-century circus

HOUSTON (AP) — After six years of digging, she can't stop. Marj Gurasich wants to know anything and everything about a largely forgotten turn-of-the-century Texas folk heroine, Mollie Bailey.

Mrs. Gurasich's children's book about the Texas circus queen, "Red Wagons and White Canvas" (Eakin Press, $8.95), was published last spring. But Mrs. Gurasich's curiosity about Mrs. Bailey won't die.

Mrs. Gurasich's latest finding, a newspaper article dated Feb. 26, 1906, recounts Mrs. Bailey's attempt to marry a man half her age. The story contends the wedding was opposed by Mrs. Bailey's four sons, armed with shotguns. This tidbit is Mrs. Gurasich considering a second book about Mrs. Bailey — this one for adults.

It's not just the satisfaction of making a discovery after a tedious search that keeps Mrs. Gurasich, a freelance writer from Simonton, hunting. She thinks Mrs. Bailey deserves more recognition than she's gotten for running a traveling circus from 1870 to about 1917 while rearing nine children.

MRS. GURASICH is petitioning for a state historical marker to place the circus queen's unmarked grave site in Hollywood Cemetery on North Main.

"I'm hoping she'll be a revived heroine," Mrs. Gurasich said. "I want her remembered as somebody who is making a difference in somebody's life."

Besides, after years of research, Mrs. Bailey feels like a member of the family. Mrs. Gurasich said with a sigh, "Do you suppose in another life that I was her daughter?"

Mrs. Gurasich's 83-page book tells the story of a little boy's adventures Mrs. Bailey's circus. The story, although fictitious, is based on facts Mrs. Gurasich learned about Mrs. Bailey's operation. The little boy, led Cotton in the book, was actually a performer in the circus.

It's too early to predict how the book will sell, Mrs. Gurasich says. However, she has sold at least 40 copies to friends in Simonton, a community about 35 miles west of Houston. The community threw a book-reading party in her honor at the library club there.

A friend's 7-year-old son read the book, liked it and is now begging his mother to let him run away to join a circus.

Mrs. Gurasich hopes this loose biography will not only revive the memory of Mrs. Bailey but also spark children's interest in Texas history.

NOTHING ELSE, she says, the subject has helped her, at age 65, to pick an occupation. This is the first children's book to be published, but she hopes to write more. Her fascination with Mrs. Bailey began while she was sitting in a San Antonio restaurant six years ago. She was thumbing through a magazine spotted a short story describing "Circus Queen of the South." The article said Mrs. Bailey retained three generations of fans with her traveling circus.

o Mrs. Gurasich's surprise, only a little information existed about the circus owner. Mrs. Gurasich found a biography written by one of Mrs. Bailey's daughters, but finding out more sometimes required sifting through six or eight publications to find one new fact, she says.

She visited more than 10 libraries throughout Texas. She and her husband, Steve, spent a few days last summer in Baraboo, Wis., original headquarters of Ringling Bros. Circus, looking through files at the Wisconsin State Museum. Steve Gurasich, a retired engineer, says it's a fun watching her hunt for circus stuff.

The author has collected eight photographs of Mrs. Bailey, who in a tall, stocky woman.

VE READ SHE often wore the same clothes and carried a revolver, Mrs. Gurasich said. "She was a beautiful woman by any standards, but I could tell she was a lady and was used to getting her own way."

Mrs. Gurasich says she liked Mrs. Bailey's spunk. The circus, in its heyday, had 31 wagons, 170 head of livestock and 21 ponies. It was a family affair, with her children pitching in to entertain audiences. Her daughter showed off her trained canary, another climbed a tightrope, and her son played in the band. Together, they made a respectable living from 5 cents admission charge rural areas paid to enter the big tent. Mrs. Bailey died in Houston in 1918 at 74 in what was known then as Joseph's Infirmary. Her sons, but failed to keep the circus.

Mrs. Gurasich's travels, she has met two people who still remember the old circus. She wants to tie in the Band Wagon, a magazine circus memorabilia enthusiast, just like her, to solicit more information about Mrs. Bailey.

Mrs. Gurasich recently located Bailey's final resting place, of the obituaries Mrs. Gurasich mentioned the location of the grave site, but she knew Mrs. Bailey lived in Houston and the cemetery later, she discovered.

ling it like it is ph Priestley, the same scientist who discovered oxygen, gave the "rubber" to the substance he called it. He rubbed out pencil marks on paper according to Armstrong Tire ered a Mrs. A.H. Hardesty buried at Hollywood Cemetery. Hardesty was the surname of Mrs. Bailey's second husband — evidently she did get her way and married the younger man, says Mrs. Gurasich. A son, Brad S. Bailey, is buried beside her.

SHE HOPES THE Harris County Historical Commission and state historians will approve her request for a marker for the grave site.

Mrs. Gurasich says she can't understand why it wasn't done before. "Anyhow, she's going to get one now."

Ethics investigation political, needed

Jim Wright, the colorful speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives from Fort Worth, loves to use quotations and he turned to that style once again recently when asked about the House ethics committee investigation of his dealings. Wright told an interviewer for ABC News: "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen. That's what Harry Truman said, and I'm not ready to get out of the kitchen."

In reality, there's little doubt that the probe against Wright is "politically motivated" as he charged. With a presidential election literally just around the corner in November and with Wright a forceful and sharply partisan politician, he's an understandable target for such an investigation. But that fact does not negate the potential validity in the matter up for investigation, initiated by Rep. Newt Gingrich, a Georgia Republican.

Wright surely knows the old saying about everything being fair in love and war. And, this is election-year war.

Led by Gingrich, House Republicans, who have been irritated by Wright's antics for years on such issues as the war in Nicaragua, saw an opening to even the score — politically. When the public-interest lobby Common Cause gave their complaints a bipartisan legitimacy, the GOP exploited the opening. Seventy-one House Republicans formally requested a probe. Vice President George Bush, on the campaign trail, and Republican National Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf also have called for an ethics investigation.

Political motives notwithstanding, the ethics committee has issues worth investigating. The American public and the House itself need to know if there's substance to the charges of impropriety. So does the Democratic Party.

The committee's probe will focus on six questions involving Wright's activities: his efforts on behalf of Texas savings and loans institutions, his contacts with the Department of the Interior concerning a Texas oil firm, whether campaign funds were used to pay for the publication of Wright's book, the use of a staff aide to prepare the book for publication, the use of a condominium in Fort Worth, Texas, and the speaker's dealings with officials of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. The allegations span a decade.

Questions about the Wright book, and the unusually high royalties the speaker received from the publisher, a longtime Fort Worth friend, have attracted the most attention. The other charges, however, are potentially more serious. Wright's use — or misuse — of his influence on behalf of oil companies, Democratic contributors and the interests of Texas savings and loans involved significant pieces of legislation. The questions ought to be resolved.

The ethics committee, comprised of an equal number of Democrats and Republicans, will seek to determine whether the speaker is in hot water. The people of Texas and the rest of the nation have a right to know if there's anything to the charges. The committee's investigation is welcome.

Another View:

Plenty of blame

Polls now suggest that Israelis, who will vote this fall, favor the hard-line Likud bloc and Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, adamant foes of any trade of land for peace. But whatever the outcome, the Palestinian uprising in the West Bank and Gaza has fundamentally affected attitudes, even in Mr. Shamir's bloc. The assumption has been that the occupied territories might be pacified indefinitely without doing violence to Israel's principles. After six months of rebellion, and with more now promised by last week's Arab summit meeting, the election will test that assumption.

And yet the next government, whether led by Likud or Labor, could face an even more determined and intractable Arab front. The Arab heads of state last week denied Yasir Arafat sole leadership of the uprising but joined with him in a new commitment to the Palestinians in the streets. And while they didn't reject the Shultz peace plan outright or insist on Palestinian statehood, they hardened their stance on the need for Israeli withdrawals from all occupied territories.

Israel bears part of the blame for this intransigence. Its leaders did everything to discourage the emergence of moderate Palestinians with whom to talk. Palestinians are forbidden rudimentary civic rights, and it's hard for any to step forward when the penalty is jail or deportation.

But Israel cannot be blamed for the destructive coyness of King Hussein, for the Palestine Liberation Organization's refusal to eliminate genocidal bluster from the organization's charter or for Palestinian rejection of Israel's legitimacy and permanence. Notably, Mikhail Gorbachev had to remind Yasir Arafat of Israel's valid security concerns and right to exist.

As Israel's dovish former foreign minister, Abba Eban, has remarked, Palestinians never miss a chance to pass up an opportunity for peace. Israel can't be blamed because Palestinians spurned Security Council peace plans, boycotted the autonomy talks proposed in the Camp David accords or refused to meet with Secretary of State Shultz. Symbolic of this sterile rejectionism was Palestinian insistence that a literal wall be maintained between them and the Israelis who took part in a television debate moderated by ABC's Ted Koppel.

Most morally disabling has been Palestinian justification of terror. The victims are not just Israeli schoolchildren but also Palestinians perceived as too moderate. Last week's grisly assault on an Israeli-appointed mayor of a West Bank town, and the silence that followed, is the uprising's dark side. This is not to overlook Israel's hard-fisted repression, but to complete the record.

With reason, nothing so upsets Palestinians as the feeling that their very existence is denied by their oppressors. But responding as they do closes the circle of hate. West Bankers have been ill used by PLO exiles and their let's-pretend declarations. Rejectionism is a formula for endless paralysis. Having shown their courage in defying occupying soldiers, is it impossible for Palestinians to take the harder step?

Cars offer hiding spots to smugglers

WASHINGTON — You won't read it on the window sticker with the other luxury options, but cars are perfect hiding places for illegal drugs. False trunks, secret doors, upholstery filled with marijuana — the spots smugglers find to hide drugs defy the imagination.

Jack Anderson

To the untrained eye, the car has not been altered. But drug enforcement agents can't afford to dismiss it on first glance. Sometimes they have to tear a car apart before they find what they suspect is there.

A drug intelligence unit in El Paso, Texas, makes the job a little easier by sharing the secrets of the smugglers. The El Paso Intelligence Center (EPIC) is a federal information-sharing organization. It gathers the latest intelligence in the war on drugs and shares it with enforcement officers from the Drug Enforcement Administration, the U.S. Customs Service and others.

We recently reported on EPIC's confidential list of common hiding places on airplanes. The bathrooms are the most popular spots. Drugs are also disguised as common freight on airplanes — frozen in blocks of shrimp or bagged in the aquariums of tropical fish, for example.

Automobiles take more retrofitting, but the drug smugglers have proved themselves equal to the task.

Here are some of the secrets of the highway smugglers shared by EPIC:

■ New Mexico state police found 38 kilograms of cocaine behind a backseat head rest. The smugglers had built a compartment out of sheet metal and wedged it in the framework of the seat. It was opened by a remote-control latch with the button hidden under the dashboard.

■ California police found a secret compartment behind the air conditioning ducts of a Chevrolet Camaro. Two switches had to be pushed to open the hiding place — one behind the air-conditioning control panel and the second near the fuse box.

■ False trunk compartments have been found installed in Mercury Grand Marquis cars. The tipoff is a level spot where the trunk compartment is normally depressed. One Grand Marquis stopped in Texas had been used to carry drugs into the United States and take guns back to Guatemala, EPIC reported.

■ U.S. Customs agents at the California-Mexico border followed the nose of a drug-sniffing police dog and found that the gas tank on a Volkswagen van had been shortened to accommodate a secret compartment. Inside were 200 pounds of hashish.

■ Some smugglers replace the upholstery stuffing in their cars with drugs. This is one of the easier techniques to spot, since the seats lose their bounce and the dogs can easily sniff out the drugs.

■ The hollow spot behind the headlights of certain makes of cars is a small, but effective hiding place.

■ Some of the compartments are protected by highly sophisticated locks triggered by remote-control switches. And the switches are as cleverly concealed as the hiding places — in glove compartments, under the hood, behind the parking brake.

■ Smugglers in a hurry, or those without a knack for body work, use the natural compartments in cars — door panels, steering columns, gas-line covers. Drug agents count on dogs to sniff out those hiding places. If the dogs are fooled by hermetically-sealed bags, the police look for signs of tampering with screws and bolts. Another tell-tale sign is the lingering odor of air freshener or tal-cum powder, to baffle the dogs, or the smell of glue from a quick reupholstering job.

The drug enforcement agent who doesn't keep up with the smuggler's technology must resort to the crude tactic of tearing the car apart in a blind search — an embarrassing prospect if the owner is innocent.

PEOPLE FOR SALE — The East Germans have been secretly trading in human merchandise for years. They sell their own citizens who have been jailed for trying to escape to the West. The buyers are friends and relatives in the West who will do anything to free their loved ones. The shameful traffic in human lives has been lucrative for East Germany, which has one of the worst economies in the Soviet bloc.

Western intelligence analysts tell us that about 50,000 jailed East Germans have had their freedom bought by West Germans in the past 20 years. The deals are made through the East German Inner German Affairs Ministry. The middleman is Wolfgang Vogel, a close friend of East German leader Erich Honecker. Vogel is also the man behind many of the spy exchanges between the United States and the Soviet Union.

One element that could put an end to this traffic in human merchandise is the easing of travel restrictions to the West. Recently, the East German government has been allowing more people to travel outside the country.

MINI-EDITORIAL — The threat of future punishment is a weak deterrent to illegal drug use, but the Reagan administration seems determined to use that tactic in its feeble war on drugs. The Washington Post recently reported that the administration is considering sanctions against convicted drug users. The sanctions include denying them access to a variety of government benefits — including school loans, public housing, drivers' licenses and even federal drug rehabilitation programs, if the person is a repeat offender. Drug addicts won't forego a high because they fear that somewhere down the line they will be turned down for a student loan. And yet a student loan could be a ticket to reform when an addict summons the courage to change. With the possible exception of a driver's license to a teenager, none of the proposed sanctions carry enough weight to stop drug use. They only make it harder for a person to turn over a new leaf.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

If Bodett says he'll leave light on, he will!

I don't want to sound too high and mighty here, but if it weren't absolutely necessary, I don't think I'd spend the night at a Motel 6.

I spend about half my life in motels and hotels as it is, and I've gotten to the point I need my comforts — minibar in my room, little jars of shampoo, and turn-down service where they leave a candy mint on my pillow.

I'm certain a room at a Motel 6 would be clean, but I've got the feeling the towels would be small and there wouldn't be but one pillow and there wouldn't be HBO on the television.

Regardless, I've become a Tom Bodett fan, and if you listen to radio at all, you know Tom Bodett is a national spokesman for Motel 6.

His commercials are homey and clever and he always signs off by saying, "We'll leave the light on for you," which is what your mother used to say when you were going to be out late.

In a world where an advertiser would hire that idiot from Australia to scream at you about batteries, Tom Bodett's calming voice is most welcome.

He talks about Motel 6's great room service (there's a pizza place nearby that delivers) and he even spoke the recent good news that in some Motel 6 rooms, there are new bedsprings.

Since I'd never heard of Tom Bo-dett before he broke in with Motel 6, I set about to find out more about him.

I even tried to talk to the man directly, but he lives in Alaska, as it turns out, and he was off on his dog-sled somewhere.

I did learn the following about him:

Tom Bodett was born in Michigan in 1955. He has been a cannery worker, a logger, a building contractor, and a commentator on National Public Radio's "All Things Considered."

He lives in Homer, Alaska, with his wife and son.

I also found out he is an author. I am now in possession of two of his books and I have read them and they have brought me much joy.

One book is "As Far As You Can Go Without a Passport." (Addison-Wesley). The other is "Small Comforts" by the same publisher. Both books are filled with essays that come across as a conversation with your neighbor.

Tom Bodett has a lot to say about stacks of wood, McDonald's coming to Alaska, getting a truck out of a ditch, naming a baby, and machinery.

"Machinery and I have an understanding," he writes. "We hate each other."

What I like most about Tom Bodett's writing is he's not topical. He neglects AIDS, nuclear war, racism, the falling dollar, and airline deregulation and deals instead with the fact he's never been able to spit very far.

Tom Bodett has the most believable voice in radio advertising since Arthur Godfrey tried to sell me tea. And you know, he is the sort of person who would, in fact, leave the light on for you if he said he would.

Soviets may play golf, but it'll end in trap!

A small item of news from the Moscow summit was overlooked by the Western press.

Armand Hammer announced through Soviet officials that he was going to build a golf course just outside Moscow. For the first time the Russians will be able to play the sport that has made capitalism what it is today. So revolutionary is the idea that Soviet experts refer to Hammer's proposed golf course as "The 18 Holes That Shook the World."

I hate to think what will happen to the Communist system once golf makes its inroads.

Decisions now made at Politburo headquarters will be resolved on the people's putting greens. High-ranking members of the party will not be judged by their weaknesses as Soviet administrators, but rather by their handicap at the Moscow Country Club.

Brian Nessim, the top Kremlin sports watcher at Columbia University, predicts that golf could change the entire Communist order. "I am surprised that the Soviets would permit it," Nessim told me. "The Russians haven't played golf since the 1917 revolution."

"I didn't know they had ever played it."

"Oh, yes. The czar even had a driving range in St. Petersburg, and he made the serfs catch the balls with their teeth. Things were very bad and caddies were beaten with 7-irons by the royal family whenever Rasputin hit into the rough. Finally, the caddies couldn't take it any more and decided to go out on strike. The czar was furious and ordered his mounted Cossacks to run them down on the fairways. When word leaked out about what the czar had done, the greenskeepers mutinied and that was the beginning of the revolution. No one has swung a golf club in the Soviet Union since."

"So bringing back golf is a giant step for glamor," I said.

"Gorbachev knows what he is doing. He cannot improve the economy of the country if his managers do not play golf. Everyone is aware that all the deals in an advanced industrial society are made on the golf course. In a consumer-oriented economy it is impossible to have top-flight leaders unless they are able to plot five-year plans in a locker room."

"I knew that golf was essential to a high standard of living, but I didn't know it was that important."

"The sport is what made the U.S. No. 1. Never forget it was America that invented the golf cart, the greatest advance in transportation in the 20th century. The game, as the Soviets now realize, is more than just a sport. It's a way of life which gives a human being an opportunity to sell and another a chance to buy. It's obvious that if the Soviets want to catch up with us, they are going to have to construct many golf links around their major cities. This is what the Armand Hammer course is all about."

"Better late than never," I said. "There are problems. For example, who will get membership in the club and what will it all mean? Whereas the Soviet hierarchy now stands atop Lenin's tomb for all the world to see, in the future we will have to watch how they line up to tee off on the first hole. The nearer they stand to the golf pro, the more important they will rate in the Politburo."

"Could you see the day when the American and Soviet presidents meet on a Moscow golf course instead of Red Square?"

"Why not? When people drive down a Soviet fairway together, they can't help but want to make a better world. That's why Lenin said, 'A person who chokes in golf chokes in life.'"

"I didn't know Lenin said that."

"Well, maybe it was Marx. Soviet experts can never keep them straight."

"Do you believe that they will allow wives of world leaders to play on the Moscow course?" "I doubt it. I don't think you could ever put Nancy Reagan and Raisa Gorbachev in the same sand trap together."

Baker says other staff likely to leave soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Howard Baker Jr. says his resignation as White House chief of staff isn't a sign of lame-duck status for President Reagan, but says that label may not be far away if the administration makes no progress soon on its remaining objectives.

Baker conceded in an interview that other staff members are sure to leave as the clock runs down on the Reagan administration and that the lame-duck status could take hold by summer's end.

And Baker said the last major objective of a Reagan presidency — a strategic arms agreement with the Soviet Union — probably is not possible for this president.

"While it is not impossible, it is not probable that we can do that, but he certainly can narrow the differences and hand his successor major progress in this field," Baker said after the surprise announcement that he was leaving the White House, effective July 1.

Baker will be succeeded by his deputy, Kenneth Duberstein, 44, who, like Baker, has a reputation as a conciliator and shrewd negotiator, particularly with Congress.

Duberstein will be responsible for directing the flow of paper and visitors to the president's office and coordinating Reagan's schedule. He will supervise a White House staff of about 325 people including speech writers, counselors, press officials and policy specialists.

Along with Baker, White House communications chief Thomas Griscom said he, too, will be leaving soon, though he did not say when. Griscom and Baker have been longtime allies, dating back to Baker's service in the Senate.

Baker

In discussing his departure, Baker did strike himself from the list of possible running mates with George Bush on the Republican presidential ticket.

"You don't turn down requests of that sort if they are made," Baker said. "It's really something that is presumptuous in the extreme to say, 'No, I would not do that.' But I do not want to do that. I do not expect to do that, and I think it's extremely unlikely I would be asked to do that."

Baker said he had told Bush he was quitting, but did not raise the issue of whether he might be available as a running mate. Laughingly, Baker added, "More important, he's never discussed that with me."

When Duberstein replaces Baker, there will be slightly more than six months remaining in Reagan's presidency. It will be only four months before Reagan's successor is chosen.

"He will be a lame duck at some point but it will be after Labor Day, in my view, at least," Baker said.

Pentagon bugged in probe of purchasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators bugged Pentagon offices over a nearly two-year period before staging coordinated raids there and at defense contractors in 12 states as part of a massive investigation of alleged fraud, bribery and bid-fixing in military purchasing.

FBI agents searched the files of two top Pentagon officials, a former Navy official and some of the nation's largest defense contractors Tuesday. Officials said the investigation focuses on sales of sophisticated electronic gear to the military.

The investigation involves "allegations of fraud and bribery on the part of defense contractors, consultants and U.S. government employees," FBI spokesman Gregory Jones said.

A Navy source who spoke on condition of anonymity said the investigation began with a tip from a former Navy department employee to the Naval Investigative Service. The Justice Department said the probe has been under way for two years.

Federal law enforcement sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the FBI had installed court-authorized wire taps at several locations in the Pentagon as part of the investigation.

The wire taps, according to sources, were in place for much of the two-year investigation.

Search warrants were served by the FBI and the Naval Investigative Service at the Pentagon and more than 30 locations in 12 states, the Justice Department said.

A Northrop Corp. plant that was searched in Newbury Park, Calif., produces target drone airplanes and is working on development of a new tactical missile, the AGM-136A, for the Air Force and Navy.

Three offices of Norden Systems Inc. in Connecticut, which produces radar equipment for the Navy and Air Force, were among the locations searched, according to the U.S. attorney in New Haven, Stanley Twardy.

Federal investigators sealed off and searched the Pentagon office of Victor Cohen, the civilian official responsible for buying tactical battle command, control, communications and computer systems for the Air Force.

Also sealed off and searched was the Pentagon office of James Gaines, deputy assistant secretary of the Navy for acquisition management, international programs and congressional support.

In addition, a former Navy official, Melvyn Paisley, now a Washington consultant to aerospace companies, was served with a search warrant, the FBI said.

From 1981 to April 1987 Paisley was assistant secretary of the Navy for research, engineering and systems, a key acquisition post under former Navy Secretary John F. Lehman.

Law enforcement sources said the investigation involves the alleged sale of information by Pentagon officials to defense contractors through middlemen who were acting as consultants to the contractors.

The middlemen, according to the sources, were in many cases previous Department of Defense employees who had ready access to various Pentagon officials.

Federal investigators believe that information passed along to the defense contractors from the Pentagon enabled the companies to fix their bids at amounts that would ensure their winning department contracts, the sources said.

Offices of some of the nation's largest defense contractors were searched by FBI agents, including United Technologies Corp. offices in Washington, Unisys Corp. in the Minneapolis area and New York and Teledyne in Newbury Park, Calif.

United Technologies spokesman Jim Linse said FBI agents entered the Washington office around noon and were there all afternoon.

Norden, a unit of United Technologies, designs and builds military electronic communication systems with airborne and ground applications.

Rowan opposes handguns despite shooting incident

WASHINGTON (AP) — Syndicated columnist Carl T. Rowan says he still strongly opposes handguns, even though he used one to shoot a teen-ager who had taken an uninvited dip in his backyard swimming pool.

Rowan

"I am absolutely for gun control. I still am," said Rowan. "But as long as we have a situation where druggies can get guns easily, you have to protect yourself."

Rowan shot the 18-year-old youth in the wrist early Tuesday morning at his home in an affluent section of the city. He said he fired only after the young man lunged at him.

The youth, Ben Smith of Chevy Chase, Md., disputed Rowan's account, saying he was trying to flee when Rowan shot him. "That's no reason to shoot a person — for swimming in his pool," Smith said.

Smith and a companion were initially charged with unlawful entry, but those charges were dropped later on Tuesday.

Police said the .22 caliber pistol Rowan used was not registered with the city, which has some of the toughest gun-control laws in the nation. Rowan said, however, that it was registered with the federal government.

The District of Columbia passed a law in 1976 saying that only guns already then registered were legal for private possession. Police said their investigation was continuing.

Rowan said he was awakened at about 1:55 a.m. by the sound of someone outside his bedroom window.

"I lay there thinking, 'Did I dream that?' Then I heard a woman scream or shout," he said.

He said he peeked out, saw four people at his pool and called the police.

"After I called the police, I got the gun," said Rowan.

He said the weapon was given to him by his son, Carl T. Rowan Jr., an attorney and former FBI agent, after he had received several threats.

"When I saw the police cars arriving, I opened the pool door assuming the police would want to come in that way."

"I was confronted by a tall, young man striding over as if coming into my house."

"First I said, 'Freeze.' Then I said, 'I warn you, I have a gun.'"

"He said, 'Aw hell, man,' and kept coming."

"That kid was at point blank range as he tried to come into my house. I was trying to let him know he was walking into peril. I was shooting at his feet, but he was lunging at me."

Smith, who was treated at Georgetown University Hospital and released in good condition, told local radio station WMAL that he was on Rowan's property, but didn't threaten him.

"He had no right to shoot me. I mean I guess I was trespassing. That's no reason to shoot a person for swimming in his pool," Smith said.

Smith said he was trying to flee when he was confronted by Rowan.

NATION IN BRIEF

Prosecutor in Mechem trial angered by insinuations

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A prosecutor who was likened to an Auschwitz guard by Evan Mechem's attorney blasted the comparison as a vicious tactic to conceal a poor defense of the ex-governor's failure to report a $350,000 campaign loan.

The criminal trial was expected to be sent to the jury today after prosecutor Barnett Lotstein completes his rebuttal statement and jurors are given instructions.

Lotstein told the jurors Tuesday that Mechem's attorney gave a "laundry list of excuses" but no valid explanation why the former governor and his brother, Willard, failed to report the loan on financial reports required by the state.

"Perhaps I shouldn't be so hard on my colleagues (Lotstein and Cudahy) because, like the guards at Auschwitz, they're just doing their job," Scott told the court.

Principal walks out in huff

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — A meeting between Japanese anti-nuclear activists and officials of a high school whose symbol is a nuclear mushroom broke up when the principal angrily declared that the United States wasn't to blame for World War II, then left.

Tuesday's meeting was called to discuss Japanese objections to the Richland High School symbol, which celebrates the area's role in the production of U.S. nuclear arms — including plutonium in the bomb that destroyed Nagasaki in World War II. "We are not going to change our symbol because we believe it has something to do with the heritage of our community," Principal John Nash told a delegation of 35 Japanese who visited this town adjacent to the giant Hanford nuclear reservation.

"I heard some things here that made me angry," Nash said. "We can go back to history and recall a lot of things about the war and I could say some things here that would be very disruptive to you people, but I'm not about to do this," Nash said.

Nash then walked out of the classroom, to the loud applause of some residents in the south-central Washington city, leaving the visitors to talk with faculty, students and reporters.

"It was not our intention to protest," said Masa Takubo, of Washington, D.C., who served as interpreter. "We wanted to present our views and we wanted to understand his views."

Firm gives customers break

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A telephone company that left elderly residents of a housing project without service for a month apologized by serving them a catered lunch and giving them tote bags and a rebate on their bills.

"There is no good excuse for what happened. We simply didn't get the job done in time," Jack Briggs, assistant to New England Telephone Co.'s vice president for Massachusetts, told residents of Rose Manor at Monday's lunch.

While the telephone company ate crow, about 35 elderly residents dined on creamed chicken or beef. Briggs also handed out promotional canvas tote bags and told the residents their accounts would be credited for the cost of their telephone installation fee, which ranged from $35 to $50.

Women's memorial likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 10,000 American women who took part in America's longest war will be commemorated by an additional statue at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial if the House goes along with the Senate as expected.

The Senate approved the new statue Tuesday on a 96-1 vote, sending the bill to the House. A House subcommittee will hold a hearing on the bill next Tuesday.

The memorial itself was built with $11 million in private donations and quickly became one of the capital's most popular monuments after it opened in 1982. It has attracted an estimated 30 million visitors.

Transplant machine raises hopes, ethical questions

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scientists built a machine that could make transplants more available by allowing donor organs to be shipped worldwide, but it also may intensify debate over surgery costs and the fairness of organ distribution.

The machine has preserved sheep and pig hearts up to 24 hours, and should be ready in three years to preserve human hearts, livers, kidneys and other tissues, including limbs, for 72 hours or more, said co-inventor Ralph Purdy, a University of California, Irvine, pharmacologist.

Technology now in routine use by transplant centers preserves hearts for only four to five hours, livers for 12 hours and kidneys for 48 hours, limiting how far organs can be transported, he said Tuesday.

If the device works on human organs, "it would be a revolution in transplantation...because there now are a significant proportion of donor hearts that are lost because they cannot be transported to recipients in time," said Arthur Caplan, director of the University of Minnesota Center for Biomedical Ethics.

However, the machine could make it more difficult to allocate organs fairly "because more people will be eligible here and overseas to get these organs," he said from Minneapolis.

Studious hurler reads Angels

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

After the completion of most baseball games, pitchers can usually be found in the locker room dwelling over their performance. How well or how poorly they performed.

Not Dave Eichhorn. After the San Antonio starting pitcher led the way in the Missions 5-2 victory over the Midland Angels Tuesday night, he could be found nestled on a stool, with right arm in a bucket of ice, and left arm tightly clutching Robert Ludlum's novel, "The Bourne Supremacy."

As a matter of fact, Eichhorn was just as willing to talk about the book he couldn't put down as the Angels he did put down.

"It's a great book," Eichhorn said. "I can't put it down."

But when talk shifted to his throwing ability, Eichhorn opened up.

"Today, I basically got 'em on sliders and change-ups," the 26-year-old said. "I threw a lot more strikes than usual. I was just keeping it down and letting the defense do the work."

And, at that, the defense did do the work, as, while scattering nine hits and allowing just two runs through 7½ innings, Eichhorn set down the Angels in order from the fourth through the seventh innings.

Ten of the 21 batters he faced grounded out. Eichhorn struck out only one, but did retire 11 consecutive batters.

THE ONLY time the Angels really hammered Eichhorn was in the third, when Jeff Manto belted a homer to left-center field. Manto's was such a powerful shot that, had it been a few feet more to the right, it would have cleared the tall scoreboard. It was his 16th home run, tying him for the Texas League lead. With the blast, Manto now has 64 RBI, also a league best.

"I didn't even see it," Manto said. "As soon as I hit it, I put my head down. (Watching it) is not my style."

His shot briefly put Midland ahead, 2-1. But a four-run fifth inning, which saw eight San Antonio batters come to the plate, spelled doom for the Angels and supremacy for the Missions.

Centerfielder Miguel Santana led off the Mission fifth with a walk and eventually came home on a one-out sacrifice fly. With two out, the Missions scored three more runs on three straight singles and a two-run triple by shortstop Juan Bell.

It was a single in the fifth by Luis Lopez that drove home Walt McConnell for San Antonio's winning run, which clinched the first-half TL championship for the Missions.

Mike Fetters — three starts removed from the disabled list — suffered the loss for the Angels. For the Midland pitcher, who's record falls to 2-4, it was an uncontrollable night.

"I just couldn't get ahead of the batters," he said. "It's hard to pitch when you get behind. I had no command at all. It was the first time this season that I didn't have anything. But everyone goes through that. It's just a matter of concentration."

Pistons drive to even series, 2-2

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons' drive toward the NBA title stalled until they started driving to the basket. Now it's in high gear.

The championship series became more aggressive and physical Tuesday night when the Pistons evened it at two games each with a 111-86 rout of the Los Angeles Lakers.

In the first quarter, the Pistons charged down the lane and got seven of their first eight baskets on layups. In the fourth quarter, Detroit's Isiah Thomas, playing despite a back injury, charged down the lane and got hammered by his long-time friend, Magic Johnson.

"We're playing for the world championship," Johnson said. "Both of us understand what it's all about. If I go in for a layup, I know he's coming after me. If he goes in for a layup, he knows I'm coming after him."

The Pistons went right into the teeth of the Los Angeles defense, a tactic that often resulted in easy baskets or foul shots. They had 46 free throws Tuesday night compared to only 12 in a 99-86 third game loss Sunday.

They outscored the Lakers 36-28 from the free throw line. The disparity was 28-13 through three quarters.

Detroit's Adrian Dantley, who led all scorers with 27 points, made 13 of 15 free throws. On Sunday, he had only 14 points and only two foul shots.

The intensity the teams displayed Tuesday night, when Silverdome temperatures exceeded 90 degrees, is expected to continue in the fifth game there Thursday night.

"Nobody wants to be playing Game 6 being down 3-2," Los Angeles forward Kurt Rambis said. "So it's going to be the toughest and the roughest and the most physical game of the series."

"It's important for us to win our next home game," Detroit center Bill Laimbeer said. "We don't want to have to go to L.A. having to win two games."

At least they'll be going to L.A. Had the Pistons lost, the defending champion Lakers could have won the title Thursday night. Now, there will be a sixth game Sunday and, possibly, a seventh Tuesday night, both in Inglewood, Calif.

NBA Finals

Detroit's decision to return to an inside offensive game caused foul problems for the Lakers.

"We were penetrating, Adrian was going in there and we were dishing the ball off for easy baskets and we got easy fouls," Laimbeer said.

Johnson, who led Los Angeles with 23 points, picked up his fourth foul with Detroit ahead 68-61 with 7:03 left in the third quarter. He didn't return until the start of the fourth quarter and by that time Detroit had an 83-65 advantage.

Leaving Johnson in "wasn't going to make any difference in the game," Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley said. "He had four (fouls) and to put him back in in a situation where we have to play pressure defense and give him his fifth" wouldn't have been wise. "When he's out of the game they're obviously not as dangerous because he may be the greatest player in the world," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said.

Johnson got his fifth foul with 7:03 left in the fourth period. Thomas was his victim. Pistons' forward Dennis Rodman grabbed Thomas in case Thomas wanted to go after Johnson and Laimbeer advanced toward the Laker guard.

Johnson said he didn't commit the foul out of frustration because of Detroit's 89-72 lead at the time.

"My elbow's supposed to be there and he ran into it," Johnson said.

"This is business. This isn't anything personal," Thomas said. "He made the statement before it (the series) started if I were coming through the lane he'd slam me and I came through the lane and he slammed me."

By that time, however, the outcome was clear. The Lakers' last lead was 24-23 with 2:14 left in the first quarter.

Jim McCollom races toward first base after rapping another hit.

New approach spurs McCollom

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

Midland Angels first baseman Jim McCollom was mired in a two-for-20 slump going into Monday's game with the San Antonio Missions.

After flirting with a .370 batting average, McCollom's average had dropped to .342. The old Jim McCollom might have pressed even more.

But this is a new, improved Jim McCollom that Midland Angels fans are seeing. Monday's performance was indicative of his new outlook, as he collected three hits in six trips to the plate during the Angels' 8-7 loss.

The 6-foot-1, 195-pounder vaulted back into second place in the TL batting race with his performance Monday. McCollom was batting .347 going into Tuesday's game, while El Paso's Mario Monico was leading the league with his .352. His eight home runs and 37 RBI were second on the Angels' in both categories going into Tuesday's contest.

But winning the batting title is immaterial to McCollom despite his lofty figures. He just wants the consistency that has eluded him throughout an injury-plagued professional career.

"I just have to take things one day at a time," he said. "You have to try to have good games, not good seasons. When I start looking ahead, I start getting in trouble."

McCollom started off strong after being selected in the ninth round by the Angels in the June, 1985 draft, hitting .318 with 11 homers and 47 RBI at the Angels' rookie league team in Salem, Va. But a back injury sidelined him for all of 1986 and much of '87.

He returned in time to hit .273 for Class A Quad City in 88 games last season before being promoted to Midland this season.

McCollom has compiled big numbers despite being unable to shake a nagging groin injury that has caused him to miss about 15 starts at first base.

"The groin still bothers me a little bit," he said. "But it will hopefully get better."

"I wanted to try to change my luck this season, but you have to deal with the cards you're dealt with."

Thomas sparkles despite bad back

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The little man came up the court dribbling as if by memory, never bothering to look down. Isiah Thomas does not have to look. He knows the feel of the basketball and the geography of the court by heart.

His eyes darted left and then right, like a cat trapped in an alley, looking for a way out. Positioned in front of him was Magic Johnson of the Los Angeles Lakers, perhaps the best basketball player in the western world.

Thomas looked at Johnson for a split second, his brain racing. Then he did a stutter step right out of the Chicago playgrounds where he learned this game and went right around Mr. Magic. Johnson responded with a double take that would have made Jack Benny proud.

The little man was supposed to have a bad back. He had missed Detroit's afternoon shoot-around before Tuesday's fourth game of the NBA playoffs. And the pre-game reports made it sound like he'd be in a wheelchair. But here he was, dashing down the court like a thoroughbred.

What was going on here? Just a bit of Piston magic by the man with the Biblical name. A sign in the steamy Superdome proclaimed: "Isiah is God." Maybe not, but he'll do for Detroit.

With Johnson out of the way, Thomas closed in on the foul circle. This was serious time. Would the ball go left to Adrian Dantley or right to James Edwards, both driving to the basket? Only Isiah knew for sure and he wasn't telling until the last second.

Finally, the little man chose Dantley and fed him the pass, producing two points for the Pistons. It was one of a dozen assists Thomas accumulated in Detroit's series-tying 111-86 romp.

Bad back, huh? Yeah, bad for the Lakers.

Thomas played 36 minutes, contributing 10 points and nine rebounds. One more board and he would have had a triple double, the NBA's ultimate measurement of a player's contributions.

Now before you begin thinking this guy is some kind of Superman, take Thomas' word that he is merely mortal. His back was sore. He was hurting, even if it didn't look that way. "I couldn't jump and shoot," he said. "All I could do was shoot set shots."

So the Pistons had to settle for his 16-footer to start the third quarter and his 3-pointer to end it. The two baskets punctuated the period in which Detroit sealed this victory.

By the time the fourth quarter rolled around, Johnson, a mild-mannered man, was perturbed enough to take an uncharacteristic shot at Thomas, who is an old friend.

Didn't Johnson have any compassion for the little man with the bad back? No more than Thomas did when he danced past the magic man.

Johnsons battle in finals

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The NBA Championship Series is turning into a battle of Johnson and Johnson.

The play of Magic Johnson and the cooking of his mother Christine grabbed all the headlines in Game 3 as Los Angeles beat the Detroit Pistons to take a 2-1 lead in the series.

Tuesday night, Detroit's Vinnie Johnson, the one they call "Microwave," showed them what to do with the leftovers. He came off the bench to score eight of his 16 points in a key second-quarter run as the Pistons evened the best-of-series at 2-2 with a 111-86 victory over the Lakers.

"We didn't get here on talent alone," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said. "We have some determination. I don't know if we're a good team, but we've got some pride."

"We had our backs to the wall after losing Game 3 and we had some people show up ready to respond. I really liked the play of Vinnie, (James) Edwards and (Dennis) Rodman tonight."

Vinnie Johnson said the Pistons were determined to make up for their 99-86 loss in Game 3, a game in which he was held to six points.

"We can't relax," Vinnie Johnson said. "It might be the difference between winning a championship and not winning it. It's a mind game."

From Staff Reports

Several local and area golfers are in the hunt for the championship of the Women's West Texas Golf Tournament at Mission Country Club.

Lia Watson of Midland earned a quarterfinal berth in the championship flight with a 7 and 6 stumping of Dolly Thomas, while Lanell Guelker of Andrews blistered Jo Dickson of Midland, 5 and 3.

Watson will face Robin Madison of Amarillo in the quarters, while Guelker will take on Mona Jennings of Wheeler. Other quarterfinal matches pit Fran Martell of Weatherford against Candace Morgan of Odessa, and Luisa Searls of Odessa against Janene Berry of Farwell.

First flight quarterfinalists include Nancy Swann, Patty Janes, Carolyn Henry, Sharon Hughes, Lori Hardy, Ella Goughnour, Pamela Ehrenfried and Ida Goad.

In the second flight, making the quarters were Susan Bishop, Janell Glasshot, Mary Bauer, Jean Abbott, Susan Poole, Nina Colter, Jean Hassell and Susan Collier.

Third flight quarterfinalists were Ann McBride, Billie Uzell, Johnnie Rowoldt, Margaret Vann, Ann Drake, Ella Heath, Wanda Henson and Helen Brant.

In the fourth flight, quarterfinalists include Marcia Standley, Betty Harmon, Lenny Barry, Jimmie Bevers, Jere Smith, Miriam Gaddy, Leslie Foster and Billie Fowler.

Ballesteros hopeful after recent win not been playing very good. Nothing was going right for me."

Ballesteros will head a strong contingent of foreign players who may well dominate the Open on this tight, tree-lined course with small greens. Besides the Spaniard Ballesteros, the foreign favorites include Norman, of Australia, Sandy Lyle of Scotland, Nick Faldo of Britain, Bernhard Langer of West Germany and South African David Frost.

Lyle, the Masters champion, leads the PGA Tour in money winnings with $608,479 and is this season's only three-time winner.

"It just all came together this year," Lyle said, adding that he can't consider himself the favorite.

"In the end, it all comes down to putting and the breaks, doesn't it?" Lyle asked. "There are so many players who hit the ball so well, certainly well enough to win. It all comes down to what happens from 100 yards in."

Norman came from six strokes back with a final-round 64, the best of the tournament, to make the Westchester playoff. In the Open, he probably is best remembered for his 18-hole playoff loss to Fuzzy Zoeller in 1984.

"I've been close," he said. "The closer you get, the more you want to go out and win as many as you can. That all happened in the past. I can't think about that now. It's gone. There's nothing I can do about it."

Perhaps the top threat among the Americans is Curtis Strange, who set money-winning records two of the past three seasons and has won twice in 1988. His peers call him perhaps the best player in golf today.

Brookens savors six RBI night

Associated Press

Cherish was the word Tom Brookens used to describe his performance against the Baltimore Orioles. Brookens went 4-for-4 and drove in six runs with a grand slam and a two-run single to lead the Detroit Tigers past the Orioles 9-3 Tuesday night.

"I had four hits earlier this year, but I didn't have six RBI or anything like that," Brookens said. "Days like this come along every once in a while and you just have to cherish them."

Brookens gave the Tigers 5-0 lead in the second inning when he hit his second career grand slam on a pitch from starter Dickie Noles, 0-1. Brookens hit his only other major-league grand slam on May 29, 1987 against Minnesota's Joe Klink.

"Nothing can pump you up more than a grand slam, that's for sure," Brookens said. "I was in no way thinking grand slam. Maybe a power hitter would be, but I wasn't. I was just trying to drive the ball into the outfield and get the run in," Brookens said.

"We have to have someone like Brookens pick up the slack for us," Tigers manager Sparky Anderson said. "Tommy really hit the ball well tonight. He's a tough kid."

The victory moved the Tigers within two games of first-place New York in the American League East. Doyle Alexander, 6-4, pitched eight innings allowing six hits and Guillermo Hernandez pitched the ninth for the Tigers.

The Tigers took a 1-0 lead in the second when Matt Nokes' bases-loaded single scored Alan Trammell from third. One out later, Brookens made it 5-0 with his third home run.

Baltimore manager Frank Robinson was ejected in the bottom of the fifth by third base umpire Al Clark.

"He threw me out for putting my hands on my hips, that's what he said," Robinson said. "He was looking for trouble tonight. That carried over from last (Monday) night, when he told me in the eighth inning that I was gone if I said one more word."

Red Sox 7, Yankees 3

Ellis Burks broke a sixth-inning tie an RBI double and Wade Boggs drove in two runs as Boston beat New York at Fenway Park.

Mike Smithson, signed as a free agent last winter, scattered nine hits in seven innings for the victory and Lee Smith finished. Smith earned his ninth save of the season and No. 189 of his career, moving ahead of Mike Marshall for ninth place on the all-time list.

American

With the score tied 3-3, Pat Dodson started the Boston sixth with an opposite-field double to left. Dodson took third on Spike Owen's sacrifice and scored on Burks' one-hop shot into the bleachers, 420 feet away.

Blue Jays 3, Indians 2

George Bell tied the score 2-2 in the eighth inning with a bloob double and scored the go-ahead run on Ernie Whitt's sacrifice fly as Toronto beat visiting Cleveland.

Tom Candiotti, 6-6, pitched into the seventh inning with a four-hit shutout and a 2-0 lead when Whitt hit his second homer.

In the eighth, Moseby singled, advanced to second on a balk, and scored on Bell's double down the right-field line. Candiotti, who has lost five straight, then walked two batters to load the bases and Whitt hit a line drive deep to right to score Bell.

Ron Kittle hit two homers for the Indians.

Twins 3, White Sox 1

Dan Gladden hit his fourth leadoff homer of the season as Minnesota beat Chicago at the Metrodome for the Twins' 17th victory in their last 23 games.

Bert Blyleven, 5-6, allowed seven hits in 6 1/3 innings before giving way to Juan Berenguer. Berenguer pitched 1 2/3 innings and Jeff Reardon got the last three outs for his 17th save.

The Twins made it 3-0 in the fifth of Greg Gagne's two-run triple.

Brewers 5, Mariners 1

Tom Filer won his 12th straight game since 1982 and Rob Deer hit a three-run homer as Milwaukee beat Seattle at County Stadium.

Filer, 4-0 this season and 11-0 in his AL career, has not lost since June 1982 when he was with the Chicago Cubs in the National League.

Royals 2, Athletics 1

Bret Saberhagen allowed five hits in eight-plus innings and Kansas City held on to beat Oakland at the Coliseum for its 11th victory in 12 games.

The Royals improved their record 4-0 over the Athletics and pulled within 6 1/2 games of the AL West leaders.

Angels 3, Rangers 0

Mike Witt pitched a four-hitter for only his fifth victory in his last 23 starts as California beat visiting Texas.

Witt, 4-7, walked four and struck out six in en route to his second shutout of the season. It was Witt's second victory over the Rangers in a week.

Chicago Cub shortstop Shawon Dunston prepares to tag out Pittsburgh's Rafael Belliard on an attempted steal of second base in Tuesday's game at Wrigley Field in Chicago.

Father-in-law's advice helps Red hurler Rijo

Associated Press

Having a Hall of Famer in the family has made the road for Jose Rijo a lot smoother.

After finishing 2-7 with a 5.90 earned run average for the Oakland Athletics last season, Rijo was traded to the Cincinnati Reds and spent the winter working with his father-in-law, Juan Marichal, a six-time 20-game winner with the San Francisco Giants.

On Tuesday night, Rijo allowed two hits in eight innings as the Reds defeated the Houston Astros 7-1 to snap a three-game losing streak.

Pirates 6, Cubs 3

Darnell Coles hit two solo home runs and Randy Milligan hit a two-run homer to lead Pittsburgh over Chicago.

National

Expos 9, Phillies 0

Phillies 4, Expos 2

Dennis Martinez pitched a three-hitter and singled in two runs and Tim Wallach hit a two-run homer to lead a 16-hit attack as Montreal took the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

In the nightcap, Juan Samuel homered and tripled and Don Carman scattered five hits in seven innings to lead Philadelphia.

Mets 5, Cardinals 0

Bob Ojeda scattered nine hits and had his first major-league RBI and Len Dykstra went 3-for-5 as

New York sent St. Louis to its fifth straight loss.

Dodgers 5, Braves 4

Fernando Valenzuela won his 14th game in 17 decisions against Atlanta and John Shelby hit a two-run homer as Los Angeles snapped a three-game losing streak.

Padres 8, Giants 5

Marvell Wynne's three-run homer capped a seven-run sixth inning as San Diego won its sixth straight game.

The Giants, who lost their fourth consecutive game, held a 5-0 lead before the Padres took advantage of two errors to score six unearned runs in their biggest inning of the year.

Greg Booker, 1-2, the second of four San Diego pitchers, worked one scoreless inning.

Olympic hopefuls delay pro careers

MILLINGTON, Tenn. (AP) — For many players, joining the U.S. Olympic baseball team means delaying their professional careers, but outfielder Ted Wood says the decision to wait awhile for a pro uniform was an easy one.

"Playing for your country in the Olympics is a once-in-a-lifetime shot," Wood said as he joined 40 other players trying out for the USA team.

The team began its training Monday in Millington, a small town near Memphis, and the squad will have 20 players when it goes to the Olympics in Seoul, South Korea, Sept. 19-28.

Wood, who has signed with the San Francisco Giants, is one of 10 Olympic tryouts selected in the first round of the pro drafts this year.

He also is one of 11 Olympic hopefuls who played last year on the USA

Pan American team.

The team won a silver medal, and Wood said the experience of being on the squad was unforgettable.

"I remember coming out on the field for the first time at Cuba and standing there while our national anthem played," he said. "Your chest sort of goes out, and you get a tingly sensation."

"No matter if it's Isiah or the 12th man on the team, I'm going to check him," Johnson said. "My elbow's supposed to be there and he ran into it." Isiah was not disturbed by this bit of nastiness. He figured Johnson was just doing his job. "He made the statement that if I came through the lane, he'd slam me," Thomas said. "I came through the lane and he slammed me."

The Pistons were not amused, though. This team that often plays with a chip on its shoulder exchanged some ugly-looking glares with the Lakers. They protect the little man as well they should. Isiah, however, was in a forgiving mood. "It was just business," he said. "He's a Laker. I'm a Piston. We're both playing for the world championship."

That may explain why his back didn't hurt during the game. "I knew I wouldn't be 100 percent," he said. "But I wanted to get out there. My presence was all we needed. It gave us a threat. It made them conscious of me and left others open because they were trapping."

OPEN

"He's certainly among the top three, up there with Norman and Lyle," former Open champion Ray Floyd said of Strange.

And Jack Nicklaus, a four-time Open winner, thinks Strange could be one of the greats, if he fulfills a certain prerequisite.

"Curtis' recent record is very, very good," Nicklaus said. "But he hasn't yet won a major. He needs to do that to confirm his record. And I think he will. I think he'll win a major. I think he'll win more than one major."

"He's just coming into his prime years now. And his game is suited very well to the U.S. Open," Nicklaus said.

"It's the most pressure I've ever had," Strange said. "I hope I can handle it. I've always felt pressure should get you more prepared, make you play better. You want to use it positively. Sometimes it goes the other way, but you want to try to make the pressure work for you."

Nicklaus said after practice Tuesday that one of the keys to the tournament "will be to not get discouraged when you see your score three or four shots over par in the third round."

On this old, traditional-style course, the greens are small and fast, the fairways narrow and lined with trees. And the rough is high and thick. There are three par-4s on the front side that are over 400 yards and six on the back side, including the 453-yard No. 11. The course plays to 7,010 yards and par 71.

"The course really isn't that long," Norman said. "There are some 450-yard par-4s, but they're mostly downhill."

With his penchant for making pars from awkward positions and his recently refound putting touch, Ballesteros could be the one to beat. He sure would like to live down the 1987 Masters defeat when he three-putted the first playoff hole in a tournament eventually won by Larry Mize.

"Ever since the Masters play-off, I have no confidence in my putting," Ballesteros said. "I lost a lot of confidence in my game. I lost a lot of confidence in my putting. I started missing a lot of short putts at critical times."

"Everytime I would start to do something good, I miss a short putt or do something wrong."

WOMEN — Cruz hopes victory is step toward title

Fifth flight quarterfinalists were Pat Barton, Pat Reid, Judy Hunnicutt, Frances McAfee, Nelda Johnson, Diana Bowser, Dorothy Warman and Phyllis Maxwell.

In the sixth flight, Janice Watts, Frances Austin, Edie Conner, Ruth Florey, Donna Cox, Jean Elkin, Lila Ryals and Gloria Robertson were the quarterfinalists.

Seventh flight quarterfinalists were Brenda Absher, Jane Jones, Pat Dougherty, Sue Ward, Denise Jones, Shirley Mays, Kathy Gowdy and Patsy Koenig.

In the eighth flight, making the quarters were Annette Sikes, Zee Hale, Pat Price, Shannon Wilkerson, Doris Madison, Mary Ray, Mildred Wise and Cleo Stroman.

Play continues through Friday.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former WBA featherweight champion Steve Cruz said he hoped his victory over fellow Texan Alfred Rangel for the WBC Continental Americas championship would be a first step toward regaining the title.

The fight was stopped at 1:45 into the fifth round Tuesday night after Cruz knocked Rangel down for the third time.

"Now I just sit back and wait for the phone to ring," Cruz said after the fight, referring to his hopes for a title match against Calvin Grove.

His manager said before the fight that Cruz, with 29 victories and just three losses, hoped to use Tuesday night's fight in the Louisiana Superdome as a stepping stone to a title bout.

"There's a good possibility that we will fight Calvin Grove in the fall," said David Gorman, Cruz's manager.

Cruz lost his WBA featherweight title March 6, 1987, when Antonio Esparragoza of Venezuela knocked him out.

Injuries aside, McCollom had been dealt a pretty good hand considering that he had been ignored by major college recruiters after playing at G.W. Hewlett High in Valley Stream, N.Y. He was trying to decide on whether to attend either New York Tech and C.W. Post, but a Clemson recruiter saw him playing summer baseball and signed him to a half-scholarship his freshman year.

McCollom spent his first three years at Clemson as a catcher, before moving to first base his senior year. He's split his pro career between first base and the outfield, while also being able to fill in at third base.

He's hoping his versatility catches the attention of the parent California Angels, because Wally Joyner — only a year older than McCollom — seems entrenched at first base for many years in Anaheim Stadium.

"I don't think I can be an everyday player for the Angels," McCollom said. "If I made it up there, I would play two or three positions."

"I don't think the organization sees me as an everyday player, (on the big league level), either." Meanwhile, there's this season and a challenge that McCollom has to face.

"I want to work things out here," he said. "I think I have to be able to go out every day."

"I feel like I'm a liability right now, because they never know if McCollom can play today."

Right now, McCollom would like to see his M-Angels be competitive in the second half of the Texas League season.

"We were lousy Sunday. That was embarrassing."

Magic Johnson was the Lakers' only force in Game 4. He scored 23 points, but picked up his fourth foul with 7:03 remaining in the third quarter and Detroit went on to outscore the Lakers 25-14 in the period, taking an 83-66 lead into the fourth quarter.

"With four fouls, it's kind of tough to do anything," he said. "They took it to us, instead of us taking it to them."

He sat out the remainder of the third quarter.

When Magic got his fourth foul which put him out of the game, that makes your job a little easier," Daly said. "He's such a great player. But we know that they're going to be back Thursday."

Daly was asked if the Pistons had any plan to take care of Magic Johnson. "Just work, baby," Daly said. "Just work. All you can do is work and hope."

With 7:03 remaining in the fourth quarter, Magic picked up his fifth foul when he slammed an elbow into the face of Isiah Thomas, his best friend — off the court.

Thomas said the friendship would survive the incident.

ANGELS

THE GAME came complete with controversy when Midland left-fielder Dan Grunhard apparently reached first on an error, only to be thrown out by first base umpire John Lipsey.

Second baseman Manny Francois threw the ball to first to nab Grunhard, but first baseman Lopez bobbled and dropped the ball. Grunhard, according to Lipsey, then made an attempt to round first after the ump's out call.

Lopez dropped the ball and Grunhard was called out for what the umpire ruled Grunhard's attempt to head for second.

Grunhard, though, contended he was only going back to the dugout after the out call.

Had the Angel outfielder not attempted to go to second, as the ump suggested, he would have been safe on the dropped ball.

"Initially, all I heard was the out call," Grunhard said. "It could have changed the complexion of the game. I'm not blaming the umpire, but he's gotta take more control. I don't know if (the umpire) was intimidated by the presence of the (San Antonio) manager, but if he's going to change his call, he's got to yell it out where I can hear it."

Angel manager Max Oliveras also called for the umpires to be more decisive.

"It was a judgement call," he said. "All (Grunhard) was doing was coming back to the dugout (after the umpire called him out)."

"The umpire told me he made a mistake by calling the play too soon. How are you going to make an attempt to go to second if you're called out?"

"I was going to appeal the play but I make up my mind to try not to argue as much as I do."

"They (the umpires) are ordered by their supervisors to be more aggressive. I think they think being more aggressive means to throw people out of the game. But being aggressive with them is not going to make them a better umpire. A lot of them hold grudges. They get even with me by calling my pitcher, fielder or hitter."

The Angels, 28-37, and still in last place, hope to redeem themselves tonight in Game 4 of the six game series against the Missions.

Hogan has ace, man shoots age

From Staff Reports

Wray Hart shot a hole-in-one on the 165-yard #6 at Hogan Park Golf Course Tuesday, using a four-iron.

Hart's playing partners were Nub Keller, Gordon Walker and Bo Bohannon.

Also, 73-year-old Jim Goldman shot his age at Hogan Park on May 16.

From Staff Reports

ARLINGTON — Four boys soccer teams from Midland played in the competitive division of the Dr. Pepper Open here recently.

The Terrors were eliminated from the tourney by a 3-1 loss to the defending district champion Dallas Hornets, while the Arlington Blast knocked out Midland Excalibur.

The Spirit of '76 also competed in the tourney.

OPEC decision slows oil price slide

relieved by price extension

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices opened slightly lower today after rebounding Tuesday on word that OPEC ministers had ended their meeting in Vienna, Austria, by extending their current pricing agreement until the end of the year.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the July contract for West Texas Intermediate, the U.S. benchmark crude oil, rose 40 cents to settle at $16.83 per 42-gallon barrel. The contract had dropped 90 cents over the preceding three sessions.

Among refined products traded on the exchange, unleaded gasoline rose 1.02 cents a gallon to 49.53 cents, and home heating oil picked up 0.57 cent to close at 44.32 cents a gallon.

Members of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries ended their meeting after agreeing to extend their existing production accord for six months.

Traders who sensed animosity among the various factions within OPEC were relieved by the end of the session, said Richard Redoglia, a trader with Merrill Lynch Energy Futures.

"The people were very, very nervous that these guys would come out with a full-blown price war," Redoglia said.

When that (animosity) abated, then the market was able to rally."

Much of Tuesday's buying came from short-covering, Redoglia said.

In a short sale, a trader borrows a contract and sells it, hoping to replace it later with another contract bought at a lower price. In such cases, a price rise can cause a flurry of buying as traders quickly try to cover their positions.

Some analysts have predicted that if production controls fail and a price war does erupt, prices could sink to as low as $13 a barrel.

OPEC's inability to come up with a new production agreement was already digested by the market on Monday, analysts said.

OPEC has been divided into two main camps. The majority, led by Venezuela, wanted to cut production to boost prices closer to the group's target level of $18 a barrel. A minority, led by powerful Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer, wanted to increase production to take advantage of an expected increase in demand during the rest of the year and to maintain market share.

The agreement extended Tuesday calls for production quotas for the 12 OPEC members other than Iraq totaling 15.06 million barrels a day.

Iraq has refused to sign the accord because it wants a quota equal to Iran's. The two countries have been at war since 1980.

Current OPEC production is estimated at 18.5 million barrels a day.

Icahn gets boost in Texaco fight

By ROBERT J. COLE
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Carl C. Icahn's chances of winning a proxy fight against Texaco Inc. appeared to improve substantially after a 7.7-million-share block of Texaco stock crossed the ticker tape on the New York Stock Exchange shortly after trading opened Tuesday.

The 7,996,300 shares, a 3.2 percent stake in the nation's third-largest oil company, sold at $50.25 a share, costing the buyer, or buyers, nearly $387 million.

But the stock exchange, as is its practice, would not identify the buyer or the seller. The only information available was that Bear, Stearns & Co., the big investment house and widely known brokerage firm used by Kohlberg, Kravis, Roberts & Co., a major Texaco stockholder, had represented both the buyer and the seller.

There was immediate speculation that Kohlberg, Kravis had sold the block. The buyer, or buyers, who were widely thought to be friendly to Icahn, could measurably enhance his chances of electing himself and four associates to the Texaco board.

Texaco has repeatedly said it regarded Kohlberg, Kravis as friendly. The Wall Street firm, which has often come to the rescue of takeover targets, declined all comment. Even so, people who are thought to have intimate knowledge of this kind of transaction said they understood that Kohlberg, Kravis had sold the block. It is thought that Kohlberg, Kravis had been willing to sell the block much earlier at $37.625 a share, suggesting that its profit might be close to $150 million.

The Kohlberg, Kravis block has been on the market at least twice in recent months, according to depositions taken or unsealed in recent days in Texaco's suit against Icahn.

Only one other entity, the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., controls a block representing a 3.2 percent stake in Texaco, according to figures assembled at the end of March.

Icahn, Texaco's largest shareholder with a 14.8 percent stake, was conspicuously silent Tuesday about the giant trade.

Although there was also speculation that Icahn might have bought some of the shares, he was unlikely to be the buyer because such a purchase would set off the terms of the

Restructuring plan near for First RepublicBank

DALLAS (AP) — The financially troubled First RepublicBank Corp. and federal regulators are near to completing a restructuring plan, officials say.

Meanwhile, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has been negotiating with at least two companies, and possibly three, interested in acquiring First RepublicBank with government assistance, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Tuesday.

At least one of those companies is a banking institution, an unidentified source told the newspaper.

Last week, FDIC Chairman William Seidman said the agency is negotiating with several possible investors and hopes to help the Dallas-based holding company regain its financial footing in the "reasonably near future."

Albert Casey, who replaced Gerald Fronterhouse as chairman and chief executive officer for the holding company two months ago, presented a formal proposal for restructuring First RepublicBank to the FDIC Thursday, officials said Monday.

"We and the FDIC agreed not to discuss details," said holding company spokesman Joe Bowles. "But we hope to finalize our plan next month."

The proposal mainly follows a recapitalization plan the new chairman outlined last month, Bowles said.

Congress' General Accounting Office estimates the First RepublicBank recapitalization would cost the government $2 billion, Seidman said.

SEC OKs proposals on customer orders

By KENNETH N. GILPIN
New York Times News Service

The Securities and Exchange Commission has approved a series of proposals by the National Association of Securities Dealers aimed at restoring public confidence in a stock trading system that was nearly paralyzed by customer orders during the October stock market crash.

The proposals were voted on by the NASD board in January and sent to the commission after a comment period by market makers in about 3,000 over-the-counter stocks.

The proposals are designed to strengthen the NASD's small-order execution system and the commitment of market makers to these issues.

Firms can get help with smoking policy

From Staff Reports

With more companies establishing smoking policies for their employees, the American Lung Association of Texas has decided to assist in the effort, says Jana Jahns, program administrator for the American Lung Association of Texas.

Many companies are already complying with clean indoor air ordinances which have been enacted in 29 cities and four counties throughout the state, according to Jahns.

She said the American Lung Association of Texas is prepared to provide both materials and staff support for companies who want to implement a non-smoking policy.

The organization provides a program, "Freedom From Smoking at Work," which includes two booklets entitled "Taking Executive Action" and "Creating Your Company Policy." These booklets include policy preparation assistance, an employee involvement and communications program, implementation, ongoing enforcement and conflict resolution, and smoking cessation programs for those who want to quit.

Companies who wish to implement smoking policies at work may contact Jahns or Teresa Jednak at the American Lung Association of Texas, 3520 Executive Center Dr., Suite G-100, Austin, Texas 78731, or call 1-800-252-LUNG.

Retail sales rise slightly during May

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail sales, held back by lagging car buying, rose a scant 0.1 percent in May, after a relatively rare decline in April, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said that sales increased $119 million last month to a seasonally adjusted $131.9 billion.

It was the sixth increase in seven months, but it was the second consecutive weak report. The figures are not adjusted to take inflation into account.

Most economists had been expecting a slightly stronger 0.4 percent gain. Initial sales statistics are revised heavily in subsequent months, however, and the May increase could prove to be stronger.

Analysts said the preliminary May report, evidence of weak consumer demand, could somewhat ease the fears of those who believe inflationary pressures are building in the economy.

The May increase followed a 0.4 percent decline in April, revised upward from the previously reported 0.6 percent drop, and strong gains of 1.6 percent in March and 1.1 percent in February.

Lackluster sales in April had been attributed to the fact that Easter fell early in the month than usual, pushing holiday buying back into March.

Sales in May were held back by a 1.2 percent fall in automotive sales to $29.3 billion. That followed a 0.8 percent drop in April.

Trade report buoys dollar in Europe

LONDON (AP) — The dollar rose in early European trading today and dealers predicted it would continue to climb following the improvement in the U.S. trade deficit. Gold prices also rose.

In early trading, the dollar was selling at 1.7484 marks, up from 1.7400 late Tuesday.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose 1.27 yen to a closing 126.32. Later, in London, it was quoted slightly lower at 126.20 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Tuesday's rates: — 1.4637 Swiss francs, up from 1.4615

— 5.89475 French francs, up from 5.8840

— 1.96335 Dutch guilders, up from 1.9600

— 1.29850 Italian lire, up from 1.29250

— 1.2192 Canadian dollars, up from 1.2162

In London, the dollar rose against the British pound. It cost $1.782 to buy one pound, cheaper than $1.7925 late Tuesday.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $449.70 a troy ounce and at mid-morning, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $450.30. Both were up from Tuesday's late bid of $448.00.

In Zurich, the bid price was $450.40, up from $448.00 late Tuesday. The Hong Kong Chinese Silver and Gold Society, which quotes rates for the metal in Hong Kong, was closed today for the association's elections. The society will reopen on Thursday.

Silver was quoted in London Wednesday at a bid price of $7.04 a troy ounce, up from late Tuesday's $6.91.

Late selling saps strong stock rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks hit a post-crash high Tuesday after rallying hard on a better-than-expected trade report, but a late wave of profit-taking prevented the market from posting even sharper gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which had been up more than 38 points during the session, finished at 2,124.47, up 25.07. Broader market indices also closed at post-crash highs.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 5 to 2 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 1,001 issues up, 432 down and 466 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the NYSE came to 227.15 million shares, up sharply from 125.31 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trading at regional exchanges and on the over-the-counter market, totaled 261.597 million shares.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market increased $24.197 billion, or 0.90 percent, in value.

The NYSE index was up 1.50 at 154.52. Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials rose 3.18 to 317.10, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 2.87 at 274.30.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 0.74 to close at 308.88. The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 388.52, up 1.71.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Austin insurer ordered into receivership

AUSTIN (AP) — Bluff Farmers Mutual Insurance Co. of Austin, with 11,000 policyholders, has been declared insolvent and put into temporary receivership with the State Board of Insurance by a district court.

Judge Mary Pearl Williams put the company into temporary receivership after insurance board regulators said it had more than $1 million in claims for which no money was available.

Permanent receivership probably will be sought by the board, officials said.

Another reason the state moved against Bluff Farmers was because the company had $9 million in reinsurance — insurance for insurance companies — with Best Lloyds Insurance Co. of Houston, which was put into temporary receivership in April.

Black & Decker renews trimmer recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission has warned that a half-million weed trimmers made by Black & Decker Corp. that could pose an electrocution hazard remain in consumer hands, despite an earlier recall.

The safety agency said Tuesday it issued the new warning because of a lower than expected return rate for the trimmers. Involved are Black & Decker Model 82209 and Model 82210 bump-feed string trimmers used on grass and weeds.

Attorneys general take fight to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state attorneys general of New York, Massachusetts and Texas have urged Congress to repeal the insurance industry's federal antitrust exemption.

The McCarran-Ferguson Act, passed in 1945, grants the antitrust exemption. A number of states have filed suit claiming that dozens of insurance companies, under the guise of the exemption, conspired to create the liability insurance crisis of 1985-86. Insurance during that time period became unavailable or too costly for many governments and businesses.

Midwestern drought threatens to be disaster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farms across the nation's midsection must have rain soon or a fierce drought that is scorching fields could become a national disaster, according to Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng.

"I guess the best thing for us to do is pray for rain," Lyng told the Senate Agriculture Committee on Tuesday. But he said USDA already was providing drought aid, and he agreed with lawmakers that congressional action may be necessary.

Lyng also told the panel, which is considering legislation to bolster drought-plagued farmers, that it is too soon to assess the full impact of the drought.

New customs service aids local firm

By MELLA McEWEN

Taking advantage of the new U.S. customs service at Midland International Airport is NELSON HALL IMPORTS, owned by Nelson Hall and Ron McFadden.

Hall explained that the company imports handcrafted, woven hammocks with Mayan designs from Mexico's Yucatan peninsula. He noted that he and McFadden currently sell the hammocks via mail-order ads in national magazines.

"We plan to continue using mail order, and to become a distributor for major retailers such as Wal-Mart," he stated.

The larger hammocks are 13 ft. long, can hold two adults and sell for $59.95. Smaller hammocks are available for such uses as hanging up in a child's room to hold toys.

Hall and McFadden have other suggestions for the hammocks as well. "We're advertising them in sailing magazines as extra bunk space on sailboats. We're also marketing them as Father's Day gifts," Hall said.

The company is located at 702 E. 7th in Odessa. The mailing address is P.O. Box 2069, Odessa, Texas, 79760.

Midland Park Mall is looking forward to welcoming two new tenants in the next few weeks, according to manager Shawn Gardner.

Gardner anticipates an early July opening for B DALTON SOFTWARE, to be located near Dillard's in the former Kiddly Winks location.

Expected to open in August is Eye-Pro, an eye-care center owned by Eye Care Centers of America of San Antonio. It will be located near J.C. Penney's in the former Summit Stationers and So-Fro Fabrics stores. Eye-Pro is currently accepting applications for employment.

Gardner also reported that March sales figures were up 9 percent over a year ago. Despite the loss of three stores recently — So-Fro, Summit and Stuarts — she said the mall is still 90 percent full and the percentage will increase when the two new stores open.

She attributed the dip to both the current softness in retailing nationwide, and also to the fact that the mall is "seasoned, and we're settling into lease rollovers." She asserted that there is still a lot of interest in Midland Park Mall.

NEATHERLIN MAZDA-JEEP/EAGLE has opened a second used car lot at 3413 W. Wall, the former Stovall's location.

Darrell Hopkins, used car manager, stated that the expansion would give Neatherlin "over 80 cars totaling $1 million in inventory." Neath-erlin is also leasing space at the new location to Kevin Gafford, who does auto detailing.

Sevriano Fabila has opened THE SILVER LEAF at 2101-B N. Big Spring.

Fabila designs and builds gold or sterling silver belt buckles and repairs jewelry.

Dr. Gary Smith has opened an office for family practice at 2800 W. Illinois. Hours are from 2 to 10 p.m. daily.

Relocating is the accounting firm of TOM HARRELL AND CO., moved to 708 W. Scharbauer, Building 4.

Brokerages may levy fee for holding bonds

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I invested $20,000 in tax-free municipal bonds a year ago. When I did not receive the bonds, I called the broker through whom I made the purchase and was told those bonds are in "book-entry" at the brokerage. Early in January, I received a bill for $24 from the brokerage for keeping my bonds.

I consider this very sharp practice, indeed. When I made the investment, I was not told I would not receive the bonds. Nor was I informed of the brokerage's $24 annual charge.

The bonds are due to mature Aug. 1, 1989. Is the brokerage firm required to pay me the entire $20,000 at that time. Or do they have some device by which it can keep part of my money?

Doyle

A. Unless you can talk them out of it, they'll probably keep $72. That's $24 for each year, or part of year, the bonds were in your account.

Many brokerages levy similar charges — sometimes larger — on customers whose securities the firms are holding. In most cases, however, brokerages waive that charge for "active" customers — those who buy and sell securities reasonably frequently — thereby generating commissions.

Although you don't say so, I have to assume you did no other business with the brokerage last year and, as a result, were hit with that $24 charge. Brokerage firms argue, with some validity, that it costs money to maintain inactive accounts such as yours.

But that's a real kick in the rump in the case of those municipal or corporate bonds which come only in book-entry form — meaning no certificates are printed and ownership is recorded on a computer. "Sharp practice" is a mild denunciation.

The broker with whom you placed the order to buy the bonds should have explained this to you. If it was a new bond issue, the broker was required to give you an "official statement," detailing that feature and much more information about the bonds. A municipal bond official statement, also called an "offering circular," is a disclosure statement. It's similar to a prospectus for mutual fund shares and new offerings of corporate securities.

Q. Who keeps records of the actual owners of book-entry municipal bonds — the issuer, the interest paying agent bank, the brokerage which sold the bonds, or all three?

A. Only one — the seller. That can be a brokerage firm or a bank. Let's not forget that many banks sell municipal bonds. Municipal bonds are issued by states and their political subdivisions, such as counties, cities, school boards and highway authorities.

The issuer deposits one "master" bond certificate, which is kept in a vault — usually at Depository Trust Company in New York City. From that point on, ownership is recorded on computers to brokerage and banks whose customers own the bonds. In turn, each brokerage and bank keeps records of the bonds owned by its customers.

Q. I own book-entry municipal and corporate bonds through a brokerage firm. Can I have the interest payments sent to me by check or to my local bank, without going through the brokerage?

A. Nope. The interest goes from the issuer to its interest paying agent, to Depository Trust Company, to brokerages and banks whose customers own the bonds and then to the accounts of those bond owners.

This makes book-entry municipal and corporate bonds different than book-entry U.S. Treasury bonds, notes and bills in the "Treasury Direct" system, through which interest and principal payments automatically are sent to the bank accounts of owners of Treasury securities.

Current accounts deficit widens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deficit in the broadest measure of U.S. foreign trade widened in the first three months of the year to $39.8 billion as the country suffered its first deficit in investment earnings in 30 years.

The deficit in the current account, which had narrowed to $33.5 billion in the fourth quarter of 1987, jumped a sharp 18.6 percent from January through March in something of a surprise to analysts, who had been expecting further improvement in this trade measurement.

The current account is the most important of all the trade statistics released by the government because it covers not only trade in merchandise but also trade in the so-called services category, which reflects primarily the flow of investment earnings between countries.

For 16 of the last 17 years, the country has run deficits in the merchandise trade category. But the current account registered a surplus as recently as 1981 because Americans' earnings on overseas investments were enough to offset the merchandise deficits.

Texas gas producers plan consumer summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Natural gas industry representatives will meet in Boston next month to map out a strategy that would allow Texas producers to provide energy-hungry New England with a power source independent of foreign oil interests, Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy II and Texas Railroad Commissioner John Sharp said Tuesday.

The Massachusetts Democrat said a $500 million expansion of pipelines from Pennsylvania up through New England would carry natural gas equal to the power that would be produced by five Seabrook nuclear power plants.

"We as a nation have seen too clearly the price we pay when we become captives of foreign energy suppliers," Kennedy said at a Capitol Hill news conference. "We have before us a tremendous opportunity to address our domestic energy needs while we improve the health of our nation's economy."

Sharp said natural gas is the "new golden goose for Texas energy," and producers need new markets.

Sharp and Kennedy said they hoped a July 4-5 Boston "summit" would allow Texas producers and New England consumer interests to develop a strategy to overcome the regulatory hurdles of building new pipeline capacity.

"We're bringing together Texas producers and Massachusetts consumers, national and regional regulators, financiers and environmentalists to see if we can't figure out a way to get gas to New England faster," said Kennedy, who started a non-profit energy company to help low-income families before coming to Congress.

The Boston meeting will help rid the two regions of the "us against them mentality," Sharp said.

The Texas official, citing an American Gas Association study, said an estimated 345 billion cubic feet of potential Northeast gas demand by 1990 could shift to other fossil fuels if new pipeline capacity is not built.

"Those aren't just gas sales we are losing, those are jobs," Sharp said.

"In Texas, we can't afford to let that potential for economic development to get away without a fight."

The Boston conference, which Sharp described as a first, will be paid for by energy and natural gas interest in both regions. Southwest Airlines of Texas is providing at cost a chartered jet to fly an estimated 100 Texans to Boston.

First law to regulate VDT terminals passed

"There's no doubt that this will greatly encourage many labor groups to put this on the top of their legislative agendas," said Louis Slesin, editor of VDT News, a New York-based industry newsletter that estimates 15 million workers use computers nationwide.

"I'm ecstatic," said Jan Pierce, vice president of Communications Workers of America, which supported the measure. "The Legislature stood up to big business and held its ground."

The workers must have 15-minute breaks or a new work assignment after three hours with a video display terminal.

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (AP) — The nation's first law designed to protect workers from eyestrain and other complaints associated with long-term use of computer terminals could serve as a model for other measures, proponents say.

"There's no doubt that this will greatly encourage many labor groups to put this on the top of their legislative agendas," said Louis Stesin, editor of VDT News, a New York-based industry newsletter that estimates 15 million workers use computers nationwide.

The law was enacted Tuesday by a 135 vote of the 18-member Suffolk County Legislature, one vote more than was needed to override County Executive Patrick Halpin's veto. Halpin had predicted the measure would turn business away.

"Opposition to this bill was based on overreaction," said legislator Gregory Blass. "We've heard the doom and gloom from business in the past," when bottle-deposit and anti-smoking bills were enacted.

"I'm ecstatic," said Jan Pierce, vice president of Communications Workers of America, which supported the measure. "The Legislature stood up to big business and held its ground."

Delaware anti-takeover law by pushing his holding above the 15 percent threshold. If that occurred, he would either have to bid on all the remaining shares or delay a bid for three years.

Frank P. Kneutzel, an analyst at Prudential-Bache Securities, said, "It's hard to see an institution buying that many shares."

"Somebody has got to feel that Icahn is going to win the proxy contest, or that Texaco's restructuring plan is going to provide the same value over the long run," Kneutzel speculated.

The election of the Texaco directors will be held on Friday but results may not be known until several days later or perhaps longer.

Wall Street traders, once convinced that Texaco had the edge, said Tuesday that the sale of a large block of Texaco's stock might mean that the race would be much closer. This, in turn, raised the possibility that Texaco might once again try to reach some accommodation with Icahn, but that still seemed remote.

Texaco's trading volume soared to 12.25 million shares, although it closed at a cautious $50.875, up only 12.5 cents. It was the most active issue of the session.

Asked who the buyer might be, one trader said, "Almost anybody who wants to buy a piece of Texaco."

Some traders theorized that the buyer or buyers of the block probably want some of Texaco's oil and gas properties and know that the best way to get it would be to back Icahn in his bid for a board seat.

Speculation centered on several Canadian buyers, but people familiar with Canadian investment thinking counted out the Belzberg and Reichmann families, both had been mentioned earlier, particularly the Reichmanns, who control Gulf Canada.

In his testimony on June 3 in Texaco's suit against Icahn, Alan C. Greenberg, the chairman of Bear, Stearns, said that at one point Marc Belzberg had bid $37 a share, for the Kohlberg, Kravis stake, but the investment firm had stuck to a price of $37.625 a share.

Greenberg testified that he made contact with Belzberg after "Icahn found him."

Speculation also centered on Coniston Partners, a Manhattan investment group that already owns big blocks of Macmillan, the publishing house, and Gillette, the razor blade maker. Also mentioned as a possibility was Husky Oil Ltd., already known to have an interest in Texaco's Canadian oil and gas properties.

In similar situations, senior partners in deals have often guaranteed allied buyers against losses if the stock falls below the purchase price. Icahn spoke Tuesday in conference calls with several investment houses about the sale of the block but refused to respond to questions. As a result very little could be learned of his involvement.

Financing would include substantial FDIC assistance, which injected $1 billion into First Republic Bank in March after the institution posted a $1.5 billion first quarter loss, officials say.

"If our plan is accepted by the FDIC, we will be ready to file for securitization with the Securities and Exchange Commission in August," Bowles said.

In May, Casey said First Republic Bank would pursue a plan for raising capital that could include spinning off some bad loans and securing loans by selling bonds to new investors.

George Varughese, first vice president of junk bond specialists Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., said he attended the Washington meeting between Casey and FDIC officials.

James Erwin, the holding company's chief credit officer, also attended the meeting, officials said.

The association said it planned to put the approved changes into effect on June 30.

"The SEC's approval of our program is a very real service to individual investors, who hold approximately two-thirds of the market value of Nasdaq issues," Joseph R. Hardiman, president of the association, said in a news release Tuesday.

"During the market's October collapse, the association came under severe criticism from customers who asserted that market makers in over-the-counter issues failed to cope with the crush of customer orders.

In its proposed changes, the association asked for, and received, permission from the SEC to prohibit market makers from doing business on the small-order execution system for 20 business days if they suspended business for other than a very narrow group of excuses, including regulatory constraints, mechanical failures or religious holidays.

The NASDAQ small order execution system trades 1,000 shares or less electronically by computer.

Participation in the small order execution system, which had been voluntary, will now be mandatory under the new guidelines.

The new rules also call for a "tiering" of the amount of stock required to be traded according to the size of the firm and the size of the issue that is traded.

Earlier, the NASD board approved a limit of 1,000 shares for nearly 2,000 of the system's most actively traded issues.

Those issues represent about 98 percent of the trading volume. A 500-share limit was placed on some 600 less active issues, and 200 shares on the 400 issues in the system that are least active.

A PICNIC WITH A CALYPSO BEAT

Colorful, flavorful and satisfying, Caribbean cooking is catching on as Americans search for intriguing new cuisines to try. One of the best ways to savor the tastes of the islands is to prepare several dishes for a picnic. Being products of the warm tropics where outdoor dining is a tradition, Caribbean creations are particularly well suited for alfresco eating.

The customary food for West Indies picnics is roasted pork, often barbecued with a sweet sauce. Spareribs St. Croix gives a favorite American grill item a Caribbean twist with the addition of zesty Florida grapefruit juice. Refreshingly tart-sweet, grapefruit is a citrus variety that developed in the West Indies. In the 18th century, a variation of a Polynesian fruit called the shaddock appeared that was thinner skinned, sweeter and yellower. This new type of citrus fruit, the grapefruit, quickly enriched the cookery of the West Indian peoples. Fortunately, some of the finest grapefruit in the world is now grown in the Indian River region of Florida, making it easy to prepare a Caribbean-style feast.

In salads like Sweet Mama's Potato Salad, grapefruit juice balances the savory flavors of garlic, green onion and hot pepper sauce. The careful mixture of fruit flavorings and spices is characteristic of cookery in the isles. The bounty in produce and the mingling of African, Indian and European seasoning traditions has led to imaginative combinations as in this side dish.

For dessert, cool, creamy sweet things are common. In Grapefruit Pie Jamaica, preserved ginger complements the luscious fruit taste of the filling. Sweet spices such as ginger, nutmeg, clove and allspice are very much in evidence in West Indian cookery, even in meat dishes. Here, the use of gingersnap cookies to form the pie "crust" adds another dose of the right flavoring and simplifies pie preparation.

To complete your West Indian meal, serve Pink Sand Cooler, a tasty variation of the planter's punch, which is a blend of rum and fruit juices. A few sips, while indulging in various Caribbean specialties are reputed to have a restorative effect in warm weather.

|---|---|
| 2 large sweet potatoes or yams (about 2 pounds) | 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf thyme, crumbled |
| 1 cup Florida grapefruit juice | 1/4 pound fresh snow peas |
| 1/3 cup vegetable oil | 2 Florida navel oranges, peeled and sectioned |
| 1 teaspoon sugar | 4 green onions, chopped |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt | 1 cup green grapes |
| Dash hot pepper sauce | Lettuce leaves |
| 1 clove garlic, minced | 1/4 cup toasted, slivered almonds |

Cut potatoes in half. In large saucepan cook potatoes in boiling salted water to cover until almost fork tender, 20 to 30 minutes. Cool; peel; cut into 1-inch cubes. In medium bowl blend grapefruit juice, oil, sugar, salt, hot pepper sauce, garlic and thyme. Pour 1 cup of the dressing over warm potatoes. Cover. Let stand 2 hours to allow potatoes to absorb dressing; pour remaining dressing over snow peas and orange sections; toss gently. Cover. Let stand 2 hours. Combine potato mixture with onions and grapes. To serve, arrange lettuce leaves on serving platter. Mound sweet potato salad in center. Garnish with snow peas and orange sections. Sprinkle with almonds. Yield: 6 servings.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1 can (6 ounces) Florida frozen concentrated grapefruit juice, thawed, undiluted | Fresh mint |
| 1 can (18 ounces) pineapple juice (about 2 cups) | 1/3 cup light rum |
| 3 tablespoons grenadine syrup | Ice cubes |
| | 1 Florida orange, sliced |
| | 1/2 pint strawberries, washed, hulled and halved |

In large pitcher combine grapefruit juice concentrate, pineapple juice and grenadine syrup; mix well. Add rum and ice. Serve in tall glasses. Garnish with orange slices, whole strawberries and fresh mint. Yield: 3 cups; 4 servings.

SPARERIBS ST. CROIX

- | | |
|---|-------------------------------|
| 1 rack of pork spareribs, about 3 pounds cut into serving-size pieces | 1/3 cup molasses |
| 1 onion, quartered | 1/3 cup catsup |
| 1 1/2 cups Florida grapefruit juice | 2 tablespoons cider vinegar |
| | 1 tablespoon prepared mustard |
| | 1 clove garlic, minced |
| | 1 tablespoon cornstarch |

In large kettle cover ribs with water; add onion. Cover kettle. Bring to boiling; reduce heat, simmer 35 minutes. Remove and drain. In medium bowl combine grapefruit juice, molasses, catsup, vinegar, mustard and garlic; mix well. Set aside 1 cup marinade. Grill or broil ribs 5 inches from source of heat 10 minutes on each side, basting frequently with remaining 1 cup marinade. While ribs are grilling, stir 1 tablespoon cornstarch into reserved 1 cup marinade. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens; boil 1 minute. Serve with grilled ribs. Yield: 6 servings.

GRAPEFRUIT PIE JAMAICA

- | | |
|---------------------------------|--|
| 21 gingersnap cookies | 2 1/2 cups Florida grapefruit juice |
| 2 envelopes unflavored gelatine | 1 cup heavy cream |
| 1 cup sugar, divided | 1 tablespoon drained and chopped preserved ginger in syrup |
| 4 large eggs, separated | |

Line bottom of a 9-inch pie plate with cookies; stand remaining cookies around edge of plate. In medium saucepan combine gelatine and 2/3 cup sugar. Beat egg yolks and grapefruit juice together; stir into gelatine mixture. Cook over medium-low heat, stirring constantly until gelatine dissolves and mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually beat in remaining 1/3 cup sugar. Beat until stiff peaks form. Fold into grapefruit mixture. Whip 1/2 cup heavy cream until stiff; gently fold into grapefruit mixture. Fold in ginger. Spoon into prepared pie plate. Chill until firm, about 3 hours. Whip remaining 1/2 cup heavy cream; garnish pie with whipped cream and additional ginger, if desired. Yield: 8 servings.

WHAT'S COOKING

Community service vital part of Lioness organization

EDITOR'S NOTE: "What's Cooking" currently is featuring non-profit organizations that have published cookbooks along with some of their members' favorite recipes. This article is the third concerning the Midland Suburban Lioness Club.

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

Kim Hutchins' desire to find a worthwhile use for her spare time led her to a major commitment in community service. She joined the Midland Suburban Lioness Club in November 1985.

Mrs. Hutchins said, "My husband and I joined — he joined Suburban Lion's Club a couple of months before I joined the Lioness. After I quit working to have my little girl, I decided I had a lot of spare time. I wanted something to make me feel good about how I spent my spare time... a little community service never hurt anybody."

Her "spare time" has stretched into involvement with many of the club's service projects. "I've been head of the projects committee this year for making money. I was on the committee last year. I helped put out our cookbook, help with the highway cleanup — that's always a lot of fun — (and) this year we made gift baskets full of goodies to sell for Christmas."

"We had our White Cane day in March, which is to help out our district eye bank. White Cane is specific for the eye bank — other fund-raisers have been for the club's general fund" to spend on other projects, she said.

And "we had a couple of garage sale," she added.

Mrs. Hutchins has found the Lioness Club and its projects to be a valuable part of her life. "I've discovered anything you want to do, you can make time for," she said.

Community service involves a commitment of several hours each week, which naturally cuts into Mrs. Hutchins' time in the kitchen. "I pick the recipes I do because I can make up a big batch of stuff, freeze it and then take it out of the freezer and put it in the microwave. I don't have to spend a lot of time fixing meals — it's already fixed."

Her husband's recent discovery of Chinese food inspired Mrs. Hutchins to learn how to make egg rolls at home. "What I like about this recipe is that I can use a lot of leftovers to make them. You can use leftover meat — (but) hamburger is not good. It's a little too fatty. You have to keep the egg roll filling dry — it gets soggy if the filling is wet or oily."

The following are some of Mrs. Hutchins' favorite recipes.

EGG ROLLS
1 package egg roll skins (16 to 18)
1 small head cabbage
1 8-ounce can bamboo shoots

Chili paste adds oriental taste

Associated Press

Don't be chicken! For faster cooking and easier carving, try an honorable oriental cooking trick. Remove the backbone from a chicken by cutting up each side of the back bone with kitchen shears. Then press on the breast bone with your hands to flatten it.

The basting sauce has a Far Eastern flavor, too. Look for small jars of chili paste at an oriental market. It gives a kick to beef, pork or chicken stir-fry, too.

SPICED CHICKEN

1 (2½ to 3-pound) broiler-fryer chicken
1 tablespoon olive or cooking oil
Pepper
¼ cup dry red wine
2 tablespoons lime juice
2 tablespoons sodium-reduced soy sauce
1 to 2 tablespoons peeled, grated gingerroot
1 to 2 teaspoons chili paste
2 to 3 cloves garlic, minced

Remove backbone from chicken by cutting up each side of backbone with kitchen shears. Flatten chicken by pressing on breast bone with hands. Rinse chicken; pat dry. Place chicken, skin side up, on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Brush chicken with oil and sprinkle with pepper. Roast chicken in a 375-degree oven for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, in a small saucepan stir together wine, lime juice, soy sauce, gingerroot, chili paste and garlic. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Boil gently, uncovered, for 15 to 20 minutes or until mixture is reduced to about ¼-cup. Baste chicken with the basting sauce and continue roasting 30 to 40 minutes more or until drumstick moves easily in the socket. Brush chicken twice with the basting sauce during the last 10 minutes of roasting. Makes 6 servings.

Doug Schreier/Reporter-Telegram

2 8-ounce cans water chestnuts
1 bunch (6 to 8) green onions
1 red bell pepper
2 carrots
2 stalks celery
Salt
Pepper
Garlic powder
Cilantro
Powdered ginger
Paprika
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 pound meat (pork, beef, chicken or shrimp, or a combination)
1 beaten egg
Oil for deep frying

Use any combination of vegetables. Slice all thinly and dry with paper towels. (The filling should be dry.) Put into large bowl. Slice meat thinly and stir fry in non-stick spray. Drain and cook; add to vegetables. Add spices to taste, and soy sauce. Toss well to coat all of filling. Heat oil in deep fryer. Beat egg in bowl and set aside. Place one egg roll skin on plate and spoon 2 tablespoons filling mixture in center. Envelope-fold all corners and seal last edge with beaten egg (bottom up, then sides, top last).

Deep fry in very hot oil just until light brown, 2 to 3 minutes. Do not over cook.

May be frozen when cool — wrap in foil. To re-heat, unwrap foil and place on cookie sheet. Bake at 400 degrees 8 minutes; turn and bake an additional 4 to 6 minutes.

Serve with sweet hot mustard or fruit preserves. Any leftover filling can be added to rice and stir-fried for extra meal.

BEST BEAN SOUP

2 cups bean mix*
8 cups water
2 ham hocks (smoked) or leftover ham (peel fat off)
1 large onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, crushed
6 carrots, pared and sliced
4 stalks celery, sliced
1 teaspoon marjoram
1 teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon oregano

1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes, chopped

* BEAN MIX — ½ cup each dried light red kidney beans, dried lentils, dried chick peas, dried pinto beans, dried split peas, dried Great Northern beans, dried black turtle beans, dried navy beans.

Pick over bean mixture and wash. Put into large kettle or slow cooker and add 4 cups water (or enough to cover). Let stand overnight. Do not drain.

Bone meat from hocks and cube; place meat and bone into kettle with beans. Sauté onion, celery and garlic in small amount of margarine until slightly brown. Add onions, celery, garlic and all other ingredients to beans and ham. Add remaining water and stir to mix. Bring to boil; lower heat and cover. Simmer for 2 hours or until beans are tender. If soup is too thick, add more water.

"This soup is great served with cornbread, and freezes well," Mrs. Hutchins said.

SQUASH CASSEROLE

2½ pounds yellow squash, boiled, drained and mashed ¼ cup onion, chopped
¼ cup celery, chopped
¼ cup picama, grated
1 egg
2 tablespoons plain yogurt
1 package Equal sweetener
¼ teaspoon Tabasco sauce
Salt
Pepper
3 ounces Cheddar cheese, grated
18 saltines, crumbled
1 tablespoon margarine

Cook onion and celery in butter until tender. Combine with all other ingredients except saltines; mix well. Pour into 9x11-inch baking dish sprayed with non-stick vegetable coating. Crumble saltines over the top. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings at 100 calories each.

SHREDDED CABBAGE SOUP

2 medium onions
3 tablespoons bacon fat or butter
2 10-ounce cans condensed beef broth
2 soup cans water
1 small head green cabbage
2 carrots
2 medium potatoes
1 stalk celery (with leaves)
2 tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper
Sour cream

Slice onions, carrots and celery. Cube tomatoes and potatoes. Shred cabbage coarsely. Cook onions in bacon fat in large Dutch oven until tender. Add beef broth, water, cabbage, carrots, potatoes and celery. Heat to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer until vegetables are tender, about 20 minutes.

Stir in tomatoes, salt and pepper. Simmer uncovered about 10 minutes. Top each serving with sour cream.

"You can make a good diet recipe (from this soup) if you take out the bacon fat and saute the vegetables" in non-stick vegetable spray and use a low-sodium broth mix, Mrs. Hutchins said.

Mrs. Hutchins learned the following two recipes from her mother. "She's a good Swedish cook."

COFFEE CAN BREAD

3 to 3½ cups all-purpose flour, sifted
1 package dry yeast
¼ cup milk
¼ cup water
¼ cup oil
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs

Mix 1½ cups flour and yeast together. Combine milk, water and oil in saucepan; add sugar and salt and heat until just warm. Add to yeast mixture and beat until smooth. Blend in eggs. Add remaining flour and blend well.

Divide evenly between two greased 1-pound coffee cans. Let rise 1 hour until dough reaches 1 to 1½ inches from rim of can. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Let cool 15 minutes before removing from cans.

SWEDISH RYE BREAD

1 package yeast, dissolved in ¼ cup warm water
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup molasses
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 tablespoon salt
1½ cups hot water
2½ cups rye flour
¾ to 4 cups all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons caraway seed

Combine sugar, molasses, oil and salt. Add hot water; mix well and allow to cool. Stir in rye flour and beat well. Add yeast and caraway. Stir in flour to make dough soft. Cover and let rise 10 minutes. Knead on floured board 10 minutes.

Place dough in greased bowl, turning to coat all sides. Cover and let rise 1½ hours. Punch down and divide into two loaves on floured board. Place in greased baking pans; cover and let rise 1½ hours. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 to 35 minutes. Brush with butter after baking for soft crust. Cool on rack.

AT&T ANNOUNCES UPCOMING PRICE CHANGES FOR SOME TEXAS INTRASTATE SERVICES

AT&T announces the following price changes for some of its Texas intrastate services. These changes, which more closely reflect the actual costs incurred by AT&T in providing these services, will become effective on August 1, 1988.

• SDN (Software Defined Network) Schedule A prices will be reduced 1.5% during the initial 30-second period. Schedule B prices will be reduced 16.4% overall. Schedule C prices will be reduced 4.2% overall.

• WATS 80 service prices for both the initial 80-hour usage period and the additional usage period will increase 5%.

• The monthly prices for some of AT&T's Analog Channel Services will increase between $7.05 and $25 per channel termination for Analog services.

• The monthly prices for some Dataphone Digital Service (DDS) will decrease up to $9.65. Other DDS monthly prices will increase up to $18.35. Overall, AT&T's DDS monthly prices will increase less than 1%.

The combined effect of these price changes is expected to produce approximately $3.4 million in annual revenue, which is approximately 0.3% of AT&T's annual revenue for all Texas intrastate services.

If you have questions regarding these price changes, please call your AT&T Account Executive, or our business consultants toll-free at 1-800-222-0400. AT&T's tariffs reflecting these changes will be filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on July 1, 1988, with an effective date of August 1, 1988.

Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may also contact the Public Utility Commission of Texas in writing, at 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or by calling the Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 for teletypewriter for the deaf.

Families gather in summer

Not too late to honor graduates

By MELANIE BARNARD
and BROOKE DOJNY
Copley News Service

A graduation is a milestone that deserves a party. High school and college graduates feel justifiably excited and proud and (whether they'll admit it or not) pleased to be the center of attention. And since the ceremony can draw friends and relatives from near and far, it's nice to have some kind of festive get-together, either before or after the graduate dons that cap and gown.

When one of our children graduated from high school last year, we served a buffet supper after the ceremony that included a large, mildly smoked, baked and glazed ham as the centerpiece. Ham is a good choice because it can be unattended while people are away from the house, to be quickly glazed when you return home. Or it can be made entirely ahead of time and served at room temperature. A whole turkey can be served the same way.

Along with the ham, the buffet table held rich macaroni and cheese casseroles, a couple of other vegetable casseroles brought by guests, a large and colorful tossed green salad, condiments such as mustards and pickles and baskets of breads.

A beautifully decorated graduation cake (made by a special friend who loves to bake) graced a small table of its own. Another table held a punch bowl, filled with a large block of ice and a tart-sweet punch, and decorated with colorful fresh fruits.

The meal should be a combination of familiar and well-loved foods for the people of different ages, but those special touches, such as a gorgeous and elegant cake and the colorful punch, make the honorees feel very special.

A green salad for a buffet should be comprised of sturdy greens and dressed with a light dressing. Since the bowl may stand on the table for awhile before all of the guests serve themselves, the lettuce can't be too delicate, nor can they be dressed with a heavy or creamy vinaigrette, or the salad will get soggy and wilt and die before your eyes. Our Buffet Green Salad offers some suggestions for greens and a dressing that will stand up well to these requirements.

We also offer you our recipe for Triple Cheese and Macaroni, a wonderfully cheesy casserole, which can be assembled ahead and baked just before serving.

The recipes are written to serve six, but can easily be doubled or tripled to feed a crowd.

TRIPLE CHEESE

AND MACARONI

4 tablespoons butter

CBS Graphic

1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup coarsely chopped red bell pepper
1/2 cup coarsely chopped green bell pepper
2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 cup heavy cream
1/2 cup white wine
1 cup ricotta cheese
1 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese
10 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, divided 12 ounces cooked and drained small hollow pasta tubes, short fusilli or elbow macaroni
Salt, if needed
1/2 cup fine fresh breadcrumbs made from 1 slice firm white bread

Preparation and cooking time: 35 minutes.
Yield: 6 servings.

Generously butter 2-quart baking dish.

In large skillet heat butter and saute onion and both bell peppers for about 5 minutes over medium-low heat until softened. Sprinkle flour and pepper over vegetables and cook, stirring for about 2 minutes.

Add cream and wine and bring to boil, stirring constantly. Lower heat and simmer, stirring for about 3 minutes until somewhat thickened. Take pan off heat and stir in ricotta, cheddar and 6 tablespoons Parmesan cheese.

Add sauce to pasta and blend well. Taste and season with salt, if needed. (Cheese can be quite salty, so no salt may be needed.) Turn into prepared baking dish. Combine breadcrumbs with remaining 4 tablespoons Parmesan cheese and sprinkle over top of casserole.

If dish is to be served immediately, preheat broiler. If you wish to serve several hours later, cover and refrigerate but bring back to room temperature before placing in preheated 350 degree oven.

Broil about 4 inches from heat source for 1 to 2 minutes until bubbly and crumbs are browned. Or bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes until heated through and crumbs are browned. (If crumbs are not browned, run under broiler for a few seconds.)
Serve hot.

BUFFET GREEN SALAD

1 medium head romaine lettuce
1 head radicchio
1 bunch arugula or watercress, tough lower stems discarded
About 1/4 cup light vinaigrette (recipe follows)
Halved cherry tomatoes, if desired, for garnish

Preparation time: 25 minutes.
Yield: 6 servings.

Wash romaine and arugula or watercress, tear into bite-sized pieces and dry well in a salad spinner or by wrapping in paper towels. Tear or slice the radicchio into bite-sized pieces. Chill greens.

Place in large salad bowl. Just before serving, drizzle on enough dressing to just coat greens, not drown them, and toss gently. Garnish with halved cherry tomatoes, if desired.

LIGHT VINAIGRETTE

3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
3 tablespoons olive oil
1/2 cup light vegetable oil
3 tablespoons chopped shallots or the white part of scallions
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper

Yields about cup.

In small bowl or plastic container with lid, combine vinegar and mustard. Whisk in oils and stir in chopped shallots and salt and pepper. Cover and refrigerate until ready to use. Dressing can be stored for up to 4 days. Rewhisk before using.

Layered dish assembled ahead for quick dinner

By NANCY BYAL

Associated Press

You've probably made a breakfast strata with layers of bread, cheese and custard. It's such a convenient and well-liked recipe that our editors adapted it to make a dinner entree you can put together the night before.

MICROWAVE

CHICKEN-HAM STRATA

1 10-ounce package frozen cut broccoli
4 slices rye or whole wheat bread

1 2 1/2-ounce package thinly sliced smoked chicken
1 6-ounce package sliced fully cooked ham
1/4 teaspoon onion powder
1 10 1/4-ounce can ready-to-eat chunky creamy mushroom soup
1/4 of a 6-ounce package shredded Swiss cheese

Rinse broccoli under water to thaw and separate; pat dry. Line bottom of an 8x8x2-inch microwave-safe baking dish with bread. Top with chicken, ham and broccoli. Stir onion powder into soup; pour over all. Sprinkle with cheese. Cover; chill overnight, if desired.

To cook, cover dish with vented microwave-safe plastic wrap. Cook on 50 percent power (medium) 18 to 20 minutes for chilled casserole, 13 to 15 minutes for unchilled casserole, or until heated through, giving dish a half-turn once. Makes 4 servings.

Nutrition important to elderly

Changes in diet gradual, basically painless

By RUSS PARSONS
Hearst News Service

Moderation is a virtue, nutritional speaking, and the older we get, the more virtuous we must become. That's the bad news. The good news is that, barring serious illness, there's really no reason why you can't eat as well the second half of your life as you did the first.

"My basic guidelines are that one should not eat too much, too rich, too fat or too late," says Jane Weston Wilson, a spokesman for "Modern Maturity" magazine and author of "Eating Well When You Just Can't Eat the Way You Used To" (Workman Publishing, $12.95). "I like to quote Camus: 'Indulge in moderation.'"

In this instance, medical opinion seems to support the existentialist.

"The nutritional needs of the healthy elderly differ very little from anyone else," said Wayne Bidlack, an associate professor in the University of Southern California's Department of Pharmacology and Nutrition who is writing a book about nutrition and the aging process.

"In most cases, as people get older they don't even notice anything different (about their dietary needs)," said Dr. Loren Lipson, chief of the division of geriatric medicine at the University of Southern California's School of Medicine and an associate professor of medicine and gerontology. "It happens very slowly, but as we get older we tend to stop doing as many activities and our basal metabolism rate slows. What this means is we need less energy to keep alive."

FOR EXAMPLE, said Lipson, a normal 25-year-old man will burn up roughly 2,800 calories a day. A 75-year-old man will use only 1,800 to 2,000. The same is true for women. A 20-year-old woman will typically expend 1,800 calories a day while her 75-year-old counterpart will use up only 1,400.

At the same time, the body's composition is changing. In a 25-year-old man, muscle makes up roughly 45 percent of body weight. By the time he reaches 75, that percentage will drop to around 30 percent.

"If the person's weight stays the same, the difference is made up by an increase in fat," said Lipson. "That's why you see a greater amount of relative obesity among older people. They really should weigh less than they did when they were younger."

But, barring serious illness, these changes can be taken care of within the general nutritional rules: watch your total calorie intake, eat a lot of starch to make sure you get enough fiber make sure you get enough vitamins and eat a wide variety of foods.

"You still have to be a little bit careful as you're making your diet that you're getting decent nutrients," said Bidlack. "You want to cut down on fat. Mainly, you need to concentrate on eating very nutrient-dense foods. I think a multi-vitamin is usually a good idea as well."

OF COURSE, as Bidlack noted, "as you get older, you have a larger percentage of the population having problems. Gastro-intestinal dysfunction and other digestive disorders become more prevalent."

"When you're young, you think all those words like arteriosclerosis and diverticulitis only happen to other people," said Wilson. "When you get older, you find out differently. But a lot of these problems can be helped by keeping a good diet."

And it is getting easier to maintain a good diet all the time, Bidlack said. "First, because in the last 25 years, people are much more aware of the importance of diet. It is much harder to find people who are eating thoroughly bad diets than it used to be."

"Secondly, inflation really hurt elderly people when it was on a ramp page 10 to 12 years ago. They were having to make choices between eating and keeping warm and that created lots of problems. But I think now things are easier on those on a fixed income than anytime in the last 20 years."

"The third thing is that in this country we have the least expensive and best supply of foods, affordably priced, at everyone's fingertips."

Adds Wilson: "The most important thing is taking charge, taking creative responsibility for your health. You have to be aware of what is going on and you have to be mindful of how you can take better care of yourself."

GALA VEGETABLES (Makes 4 servings)

1 carrot, trimmed, peeled, and cut into 1/4-inch matchstick strips 2 inches long.
1 yellow squash, trimmed and cut into 1/4-inch matchstick strips 2 inches long.
1 zucchini, trimmed and cut into 1/4-inch matchstick strips 2 inches long.
1 sweet red pepper, seeded and cut into 1/4-inch matchstick strips 2 inches long.
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
1 tablespoon chopped fresh dill

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a small saucepan over medium heat, blanch the carrots in boiling water 3 to 5 minutes.

Place all the vegetables in a medium-size baking dish or aluminum-foil tin and toss. Dot with the butter and sprinkle with the dill. Cover with foil.

Bake in the oven until crisp yet tender, about 15 minutes.

NOTE: To serve cold, blanch the carrots. Combine with the other vegetables and chill (omit steps 3 and 4). Serve with a vinaigrette.

For two cousins, bread is more than staff of life

By ELAINE LOUIE
New York Times News Service

Some fathers leave their sons money. The fathers of Marvin Korman and Jess Korman left them a passion for bread.

For 20 years, Marvin, the 60-year-old president of Korman Mohamed Korman, a Manhattan advertising agency, has baked onion rolls as well as loaves of challah, rye or pumpernickel every week for his family. His cousin, Jess Korman, a 52-year-old freelance writer in New York City, has become something of a bread connoisseur, buying a fresh loaf every day.

For both men, bread is not just food. "Our father's bakeries were our lives," Marvin explained. Today, bread is the cousins' link to the past and to each other.

Marvin's father, Nathan Korman, was a co-owner of the Grossfeld & Korman bakery in the Bronx. Jess's father, Rubin, was a co-owner of the Horn & Korman bakery in Brooklyn. Marvin's mother, Lily, and Jess's mother, Beatrice, worked as cashiers. Neither bakery exists any longer.

Although the families lived in different boroughs, the brothers built their businesses together, using pay telephones as tie-lines. At 10 a.m. every day for 40 years, they asked each other the same question: "What are you going to bake?" The answer could be corn bread, onion rolls, crescent rolls, salt sticks, poppy seed rolls or white bread. But never bagels or bialys. "Those were made by a different union," Marvin said. And since the brothers were strictly bread bakers, they hired cake bakers, who belonged to another union, to make the pastries. "Cake bakers were paid more money and fancied themselves artists," Jess said.

Deciding what to bake meant consulting a collection of recipes. The bakers also relied on Nathan's logs, in which he listed, item by item, the day's output from the two shops, along with the weather.

"If the next day was going to be rainy, they would bake fewer breads because there would be fewer customers," Jess said. "They would also bake sturdier cakes — babkas instead of strawberry shortcakes — because no one wanted to carry a fragile cake home in the rain."

Whenever the cousins visited either shop, the bakers gave them special treats and told them stories, like the one about the man who came into Horn & Korman and pulled out a gun. "The bakers stood helplessly," Jess recalled. "Their goosy hands, dripping with butter cream and coconut flakes, were held aloft as the gunman helped himself to the morning's take." One baker had bought a gun only weeks before, but he was too scared, and his hands were too sticky, to use it.

Over the years, the cousins learned to squeeze strawberry jelly into doughnuts and to distinguish between an onion roll and a Miami roll (the Miami roll has onions tucked inside). They were also taught some tricks of the trade, including how to make kaiser rolls by wrapping dough over the thumb, and how to remove the bread paddle, or peel, while leaving the bread in the oven. "It's like removing the tablecloth and leaving the dishes on the table," Marvin said.

Now, Marvin and Jess share an office in the SoHo section of Manhattan, eat lunch together at least twice a week and explore local bakeries for the breads of their childhood. Most days, there is also a telephone call, a pattern carried over from the past. Not a "Hello, how's business?" But, as the sons of bakers would ask, "How's the Danish going?"

DEAR ABBY

Doctor wants to open eyes to contacts' dangers

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a busy ophthalmologist whose time is spent in treatment and eye surgery. I do not sell contact lenses. In fact, I forbid my patients to wear PERMANENT-wear contact lenses.

Van Buren

The main group desiring permanent-wear contact lenses are myopic (nearsighted) people who want to put something in, and wear it all day and all night. It works most of the time, but there are enough devastating consequences of these permanent-wear contact lenses so that I personally refuse to authorize them for my patients. If a patient asks for extended-wear contacts, I say no. And if I get an argument, I simply ask, "Would you wear your shorts or panties for 30 to 50 days?" The answer is, "No, never!"

I then explain that contact lenses collect moisture, mucus, sugar and other proteins from the tear fluid that will grow bacteria. The eye is a warm, moist place where all types of severe parasitic diseases can flourish. As far as I am concerned, the best contact lens by far is a soft lens that is placed into a heat sterilizer after each wearing. Every day the wearer starts with a clean lens, which cannot grow enough bacteria or fungus in 24 hours to harm the eye.

As a physician, I feel responsible for my patients' care, and I think the legal system would probably feel that I bear some responsibility were I to prescribe permanent-wear lenses that damaged my patients' eyes. I simply don't want my patients to take the risk, although the major manufacturers would have you believe there is none. — JOHN WM. DICKERSON, M.D., NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR DR. DICKERSON: Your letter was a real eye-opener, and I thank you for it.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to your comment about the letter you just received and noted that it had been mailed on Oct. 5, 1984. You said, "I realize that the Postal Service is having its problems, but this is ridiculous."

I assure you that the employees of the U.S. Postal Service are as upset as you are. However, I would have appreciated it very much if you had mentioned the thousands of letters you have received on time.

The U.S. Postal Service delivers over a hundred billion pieces of mail a year, of which 98 percent are delivered promptly.

The U.S. Postal Service is the best in the world, and our rates are the lowest anywhere in the free world. For you to publicly criticize us over a 2 percent error rate seems very unjust to me. — OFFENDED IN LAKE CHARLES, LA.

DEAR OFFENDED: Sorry, I did not mean to offend you or any employee of the U.S. Postal Service. However, when it takes a letter three years and six months to get from Lynn, Mass., to Los Angeles, Calif., that's news — bad news.

DEAR ABBY: I am what you might call an "older gentleman." Recently a young woman offered me her seat in a crowded church. I refused it because I didn't feel right taking her seat knowing that she had come early to obtain it.

After standing for two hours, I realized that I had made a big mistake. I hope I didn't embarrass her by refusing her kind offer.

I just want to say to her — and other courteous younger people — don't stop offering a seat to older people. The person you don't ask is probably the one who needs it the most. Print this, please, Abby; it's important. — SMALL TOWN IN N.Y.

DEAR SMALL TOWN: I'll do better than that — I'll add my own message to yours: "And if your offer is declined, don't be too quick to take no for an answer."

Wedding bells? Wedding bills! Who pays for what and everything else you need to know if you're planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Hors d'oeuvres hot from grill

NEW YORK (AP) — Hors d'oeuvres can be served hot, right off the grill!

The Barbecue Industry Association offers these suggestions for planning a party the features hors d'oeuvres from the grill:

■ Use a grill with a substantial cooking surface. A covered cooker or a brazier is ideal. However, if guests will be doing their own barbecuing, several small portable grills are more convenient.

■ Start the fire at least 30 minutes before you plan to cook. Since coals stay hot for a long period of time, it's a good idea to get this task out of the way before guests arrive.

■ Do as much advance preparation as you can. Any marinating should be started ahead of time. But it's also a good idea to clean and trim vegetables and thread the meat on skewers. Arrange all of the ingredients on several platters and refrigerate them until needed. Bring out a fresh platter of ingredients from time to time so that just-cooked hors d'oeuvres will be available throughout the party.

■ You can smoke almonds, pecans or peanuts in an open pan in your smoker alongside anything you happen to be cooking. Smoked nuts can be served with drinks. Smoked nuts stay fresh for weeks when refrigerated in airtight containers.

■ Smoked cheese is also a wonderful treat to have on hand. Whole gouda or large wedges of cheddar may be smoked in open foil pans in the upper level of your smoker or in a covered grill when the embers have nearly died out. Try adding a few soaked hickory or apple chips to coals for extra flavor. Smoked cheese is especially delicious when served warm on crusty bread or cold with slices of apples and pears.

■ Smoked seafood also adds a special elegance to party menus. Fatty fish such as salmon and bluefish work especially well, but shrimps, clams and mussels also bring superb results. When smoking salmon, use soaked alderwood chips to add flavor.

■ If you want to guarantee raves from your guests, go for the true smokehouse flavor and succulence of foods cooked in a water-smoker. Try smoking a pork butt over apple cider and charcoal that has been spiked with hickory chips. Serve the shredded pork on small buns, liberally doused with a South Carolina-style peppery vinegar sauce. An added advantage: the meat is smoked and shredded hours before guests arrive. Wrap the buns in foil and, just before serving, all you need to do is warm them up on the smoker.

The Barbecue Industry Association is a trade organization whose members include charcoal briquet and barbecue grill and accessory manufacturers. THURSDAY, JUNE 16, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE:

A relationship will work only if you have the right partner. Taking a more serious approach to business will bring fantastic results. Reinvest profits. People will fight for the chance to be entertained by you. Turn the management of investments over to someone who will make them grow. Travel to the mountains or the sea will prove most exhilarating. Borrow a page from the past to resolve present problems.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Jack Albertson, comic Stan Laurel, poet Joyce Kilmer, author Erich Segal, opera star Helen Traubel.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Wait for the emotional fog to lift before reaching a final decision about a relationship. Timely medical appointments help you stay healthy. Children rally round in times of crisis. Show appreciation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You sense something unusual is about to happen in a relationship. Your intuition is correct, but the results will be positive, not negative. Your faith in a friend will be richly rewarded.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Postpone a spending spree until you have put more money in savings. You can now see the light at the end of the emotional tunnel. Business affairs progress nicely. Be patient. Avoid impulsive actions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Travel boosts your spirits. A friendship could be turning into a romance. Companionship is more important to you than physical attraction. Look for both! New career gains are part of the picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get your second wind when a burden is lifted from your shoulders at work. A financial situation will turn around by summer's end. An intelligent compromise saves a promising relationship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pull yourself together and take action. Do not continue a partnership that has proven to be a waste of time and money. Arguments over finances can be unsettling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get a workable idea about improving your home or health. Trust your instincts when trying to solve a professional problem. Employ more self-discipline. Keep any diet and exercise resolutions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Morning hours are very productive, thanks to a better understanding of joint financial matters. A surprise visitor brings welcome news about the folks at home. Your personal magnetism soars tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Use your imagination when trying to solve an employment or health problem. You could reap unexpected financial benefits! Being honest could get you out of hot water.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone you meet at a community event could play a big role in your professional future. New partnerships are formed. A young person needs direction. Be supportive, but encourage an independent approach.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Ask questions if uncertain what is expected of you. Clear up odds and ends before starting a new project. Short trips and visitors from nearby make this a day to remember.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your responsibilities could weigh heavily now. Your intuition may not be wholly reliable regarding health or job matters. Excellent legal news stirs you into action. Reach out to those who share your goals.

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♦

We have often remarked on how well pessimists fare at the bridge table. Here is another hand to prove our point.

South's opening bid of two hearts showed a hand of 11-16 points with specifically four spades and five hearts. North decided that his key cards in partner's suits made his hand worth a jump to game.

When this hand was dealt in a pair tournament, most declarers at four hearts ruffed the opening diamond lead and drew two rounds of trumps with the king-queen. When the 4-1 trump break was revealed, it was too late to recover. They tried to counter by playing off ace, king and another club, but when they were forced again with a diamond they had lost control of the hand and could not come to more than nine tricks.

The only declarer to make his contract was M.F. Tai, of Taiwan. He ruffed the opening lead, cashed the ace-king of clubs and, when both went through, 10 tricks were virtually assured. After cashing the ace and king of hearts, he ruffed another diamond. Next came the king-ace of spades, followed by another diamond ruff. In all, declarer scored two tricks in each black suit, three ruffs and three hearts.

This technique is known as a dummy reversal. Usually, dummy's trumps are used to extract all of the opponents' fangs. However, as this hand illustrates, it can succeed even when a defender has longer trumps than dummy. Dummy reversals crop up fairly often, and is a technique worth mastering.

Gabor files $30 million libel suit

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor has filed a $30 million libel suit against the New York Post over a story that quoted her as saying, "Hitler had his good points," according to her attorney.

The lawsuit says the comments were falsely attributed to Miss Gabor and that she was emotionally distressed by the report, said Paul Monzone, an attorney with Melvin Belli's law firm in San Francisco. The lawsuit, which names the New York Post Co. and several unidentified individuals, was filed Monday in the Los Angeles County Superior Court here, a clerk said.

An editor at the Post referred questions to attorney Charles Moerdler, who had left his office and was not available by telephone Tuesday afternoon. He did not return The Associated Press' telephone call Tuesday night.

Monzone said the Post's April 22 story described a confrontation that Miss Gabor had with another guest on The Regis Philbin Show, a talk show televised in the New York City area.

"She was so upset by the confrontation on live television she began making statements and comments, but at no time did she ever say the things that the Post stated were her statements," Monzone said.

The lawyer said the alleged libel described Zsa Zsa as getting into a limousine, drinking some vodka and then launching into a diatribe — "the gist of which was that Hitler had his good points."

"Miss Gabor is not a drinker and never has been, and so to attribute that practice to her is just flat out wrong," Monzone said. "But even more damaging is attributing the statement to her that Hitler had his good points."

Monzone said the newspaper subsequently published a retraction, saying it was unable to confirm that Miss Gabor had made the statement. But he said the retraction wasn't given sufficient prominence and should have unequivocally stated that the Hungarian-born actress never made the statement.

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (AP) — A women's club that asked celebrities for their favorite recipes to include in a cookbook was overwhelmed with contributions from likes of first lady Nancy Reagan, actor Tom Selleck and others.

"I was just surprised we got so many back," said South Hadley Women's Club member Ruth Ryder, who received recipes from 24 of the 35 politicians, actors, sports figures and other celebrities she wrote "just on my own."

Jimmy Carter, for example, the peanut farmer who became president, forwarded instructions for fish fillets fried in, naturally, peanut oil. His wife, Rosalynn, sent a recipe for a cheese ring she said is a specialty of the Carter hometown of Plains, Ga.

Other first lady contributions include Mrs. Reagan's cold cucumber soup, Betty Ford's blueberry and banana bread and Lady Bird Johnson's branched fruit.

"Cooking with Friends," containing 336 recipes, is on sale for $5 in the public library in this town of 16,000 people, and is selling like hotcakes.

Mrs. Ryder, one of 88 club members, said Tuesday that more than 400 of the 536 copies published have been sold a few weeks after the first printing.

Among other contributors are Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, the Democratic presidential hopeful. He sent recipes for chicken casserole, an eggplant dish called "tourlou" and apple apricot pie.

His Republican rival, Vice President George Bush, sent a recipe for Caesar salad.

Selleck, star of the television series "Magnum, P.I.," rushed a recipe for chicken with wine from his home in Hawaii, but it arrived too late for publication, so the club copied and slipped it between the pages.

Proceeds go to scholarships for high school students, dogs for the hearing impaired and handicapped, and a week at a summer camp for a Boy Scout.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — On the eve of his 56th birthday, Gov. Mario Cuomo said he may not get a present from his wife, Ma-tilda, because she is angry over his attempts to cut funding for a state council she runs.

Cuomo, facing a potential $900 million budget deficit, has proposed cutting all sorts of spending, including $500,000 of the $4 million budget for the Council on Children and Families.

"She was very unhappy, but businesslike," joked Cuomo, whose birthday is today. "She said, 'Why did you do it to me?' I said, 'We didn't do it to you.'"

Cuomo said he then offered her the same deal he made to his cabinet members and other agency heads facing cuts.

"I said, 'If you can find a better cut, we'll consider it,'" he said Tuesday. "She said, 'Good, we'll start with your birthday present.'"

NEW YORK (AP) — August Wilson's Pulitzer Prize-winning play "Fences" is closing on Broadway and heading to the West Coast, its producer says.

The play, which opened March 26, 1987, will have had a run of 526 performances at the 46th Street Theater when it closes June 26, producer Carole Shorestein said Tuesday.

On Sept. 22, it will begin a 10-week run in Los Angeles, where the cast will include James Earl Jones, who won a Tony Award for his portrayal of an embittered ex-baseball player in the play.

"Fences," which currently stars Billy Dee Williams and Lynne Thigpen, also won a Tony as 1987's best play.

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Patrick Duffy, star of the nighttime television soap opera "Dallas," has been named grand marshal of a Buddhist parade here.

Duffy, who plays Bobby Ewing in the TV series, will lead the July 10 parade that kicks off the 25th Northeast convention of the Nichiren Soshu Soka Gakkai.

The actor, a longtime member of the Buddhist sect, also will ring a Liberty Bell replica that the Nichiren Soshu commissioned in honor of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

The 500,000-member Nichiren Soshu is the nation's largest lay Buddhist organization. Duffy was introduced to it by his wife, Carlyn, whom he met during his senior year at the University of Washington.

About 10,000 Buddhists are expected to attend the convention.

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman sued rock 'n' roll star Chuck Berry for $5 million, saying he punched her in the face, causing severe physical and emotional injuries.

Marilyn O'Brian Boteler said Berry, 62, struck her in the face on Dec. 18 in the Gramercy Park Hotel. She said in a police complaint that the punch caused a cut that required five stitches inside her mouth.

Ms. Boteler, who is in her 30s and lives in New York City, appeared at the trial-level state Supreme Court building in Manhattan with her lawyer to file the suit Tuesday.

Vegetables not just side dish anymore

Copley News Service

The use of vegetables in the daily diet has been increasing ever since this century began, due in part to better shipping and storage practices, and in part to our increased awareness of the nutrients vegetables provide.

Today, everyone knows how important vegetables are to maintaining good health—but even vegetarians can underestimate their versatility. Carrot sticks are a crunchy addition to the lunch box, and steamed carrots make a nice dish with supper. But carrots are just as good in a cake or a batch of cookies as they are on the dinner table. (Everyone who ever has tried carrot cake will agree.)

Adzuki beans are the sweet red beans used in many popular Oriental desserts (you'll find them in any Oriental market). Try today's recipe atop ice cream, custards, rice pudding or yogurt. I've even had adzuki beans over snow cones drizzled with fruit syrup—a real Hawaiian treat. You'd never guess beans could be so good for dessert.

Don't limit vegetables to lunch and dinner dishes. With a little experimentation, you may find a whole new realm of desserts, sweet breads and snacks that benefit from the addition of a veggie or two.

SPICED ZUCCHINI NUT WHEELS

1 cup butter or margarine, at room temperature
1 cup brown sugar, packed
¼ cup honey
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups shredded zucchini
2 cups whole-wheat flour
1 teaspoon each baking soda and ground ginger ½ teaspoon each baking powder and ground nutmeg

¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup rolled oats (uncooked)
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

In large mixing bowl cream together butter or margarine and sugar. Beat in honey until smooth, then beat in eggs (1 at a time) and vanilla. Stir in zucchini.

In separate mixing bowl combine all remaining ingredients except nuts, tossing well with fork. Add gradually to creamed mixture, stirring to blend well. Fold in chopped nuts. Cover and chill.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Drop batter by scant ¼ cupfuls 1½ inches apart onto ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in preheated oven 12 to 16 minutes, or until light golden-brown.

ADZUKI BEAN DESSERT SAUCE

1 cup dry adzuki beans
2 cups water
1 (2-inch) stick cinnamon
¼ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Rinse beans thoroughly and soak overnight in water to cover. Next morning, drain beans and rinse well under running water. Combine beans, 2 cups water, and cinnamon stick in heavy saucepan. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat to low and simmer until beans are tender, 35 to 45 minutes. Remove from heat and discard cinnamon stick. Let cool to lukewarm, then turn half of mixture into blender container. Add brown sugar and vanilla. Blend until mixture is smooth, then stir in reserved whole beans. Serve warm or chilled over ice cream, custard, pudding, plain yogurt, etc.

CARROT CUCUMBER CAKE

1 cup light brown sugar, packed
1 cup vegetable oil
½ cup honey

3 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
1½ cups grated raw carrot
¼ cup grated raw cucumber
2 cups whole-wheat flour
2 teaspoons each baking soda and cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup light raisins
1½ cups chopped nuts
4 ounces cream cheese, at room temperature
¼ cup tofu
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
1 tablespoon honey
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. In large mixing bowl combine brown sugar, oil, honey, eggs and vanilla, beating well with wire whisk or electric beaters to blend thoroughly. Fold in carrot and cucumber.

In separate bowl combine flour, baking soda, cinnamon, and baking powder. Add to carrot mixture, stirring well with wooden spoon to moisten. Fold in raisins and nuts.

Turn batter into a buttered and floured 9x13-inch baking pan. Bake in preheated oven 50 to 60 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Let cake cool completely before frosting.

To frost, combine cream cheese, tofu, powdered sugar, honey, vanilla and lemon rind in mixing bowl. Beat well until smooth, then spread evenly over cool cake.

SWEET POTATO PRALINE PIE

PIE CRUST:
1½ cups whole-wheat pastry flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup cold water

FILLING:
½ cup brown sugar

¼ cup honey
2 teaspoons each ground cinnamon and ginger
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 cup mashed cooked sweet potato
2 eggs, well-beaten
¼ cup hot milk

PRALINE TOPPING:
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine, at room temperature
¼ cup chopped pecans
Whipped heavy cream (optional)

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. For pie shell, combine flour and salt in medium mixing bowl. With pastry cutter blend in butter or margarine until mixture is crumbly and forms balls the size of peas. Slowly drizzle in water, a little at a time, tossing flour mixture with fork to distribute evenly. Add water (slightly more or less than ¼ cup may be necessary, depending on humidity) just until mixture holds together in a ball.

Shape dough into a ball with hands, transfer to floured surface, and roll out with floured roller into a circle a little larger than 9 inches around. Fit gently into a 9-inch pie plate, flute edges, and prick bottom all over with fork; set aside.

Combine brown sugar, honey and spices in medium mixing bowl; stir to combine. Blend in mashed sweet potatoes and beaten eggs, then stir in hot milk, blending well. Turn mixture into prepared pie shell and bake in preheated oven 25 minutes.

Meanwhile, prepare praline topping. In mixing bowl combine brown sugar and butter or margarine, blending well. Fold in pecans, then spread mixture over partially baked pie. Continue baking 25 to 30 minutes longer, or until pie is firm and toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm or chilled with whipped cream, if desired.

Salads super in summertime

■ Asparagus: 1 pound, 2 cups cut
■ Beans, green: 1 pound, 4 cups cut
■ Broccoli: 1 pound, 6 cups cut
■ Cabbage: 1 pound, 1 small head, 5 cups shredded
■ Carrots: 1 pound, 6 to 8 medium carrots, 3 cups shredded, 2½ cups diced, or 2¼ cups chopped
■ Cauliflower: 1 small head, 4 cups sliced or 3 cups flowerets
■ Celery: 1 medium bunch, 4½ cups chopped
■ Corn: 1 ear, ½ cup cooked kernels
■ Mushrooms: 1 pound, 6 cups whole or sliced
■ Onions: 1 large, 1 cup chopped; 1 medium ½ cup chopped
■ Pepper: 1 medium, 1 cup strips or ½ cup chopped
■ Potatoes: 1 pound, 3 medium or 2 cups cubed, cooked
■ Spinach: 1 pound, 12 cups torn
■ Tomatoes: 1 pound, 4 small; 12 whole cherry 1 cup halved

CLEAN GREENS

■ Wash greens before storing them.
■ Iceberg lettuce: Hit the stem end sharply on the counter top. Then twist and lift out the core. Wash core side up under cold running water; to drain, just invert and let water run out.
■ Large-leaf greens: Wash under running water; drain on paper towels.

els. Pat dry with additional towels.

■ Small-leaf greens: Dunk in a large bowl of cool water. Lift out and repeat if necessary until no sand collects in the bowl. Drain on paper towels. Pat dry with additional towels.

■ Store greens in clear plastic bags in refrigerator.

■ Exceptions: Store arugula dry, it yellows and rots quickly if stored damp. To store watercress, stand it up with stems in a container of water. Cover leaves loosely with a plastic bag. Refrigerate.

CHILL OFF

■ For a refreshingly cool salad, chill the ingredients thoroughly before you make the salad.

■ Or, prepare salad, cover, and chill at least 1 hour.

■ For a quick cool down, place the salad, covered, in your freezer for 20 minutes.

SALAD ON THE HALF SHELL

■ For an appealing presentation, show off your salad in a shell: seeded tomato, blanched green pepper, cantaloupe or honeydew melon half, papaya half, seeded zucchini or cucumber half, cooked and drained giant pasta shells.

■ To make a crisp tortilla shell, cut two 10-inch circles from heavy foil. Heat a 10-inch flour tortilla in a large skillet for 1 minute or until just pliable. Place the tortilla on the foil circles. Bring foil up, shaping foil and tortillas together into ruffled shells. Place on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake in a 350 degree oven 10 minutes or until crisp. Cool on rack. Remove foil.

Bacteria can spoil fun at picnic

By JONATHAN PROBBER
New York Times News Service

A pop quiz: What are Escherichia coli, staphylococcus and salmonella? No, not toga-clad characters in a "Masterpiece Theater" series. They are bacteria, and they might be uninvited guests at your next picnic or barbecue if you don't heed some simple rules of warm-weather food handling.

In general, the foods to be watched are moist ones that contain animal proteins. You won't have too much trouble with bread, snack foods or vegetables.

The bacterium designated as E. coli O157:H7 has been implicated in outbreaks of food poisoning over the past three years in the United States.

Salmonella is frequently associated with food poisoning. While there is a danger of salmonella with all animal-protein foods, chicken poses a particular hazard because so many people cook with it.

Staphylococcus is a microbe passed to food from the skin of food handlers. Rita Storey, the spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association, a professional group, noted that one does not need to have a cut or a lesion on the skin to infect food with staph. A misdirected sneeze or a hand brought to the nose and then to food can also do it.

Another organism, Clostridium perfringens, which is found in meat, also causes food poisoning.

ALL THESE bacteria are killed when food is cooked completely and stored properly. For poultry, that means an internal temperature of at least 160 degrees. How it gets to that temperature is a potential problem, though. Slow roasting of whole chickens and turkeys causes the outside of the bird to heat up, but lets the interior meat, near the bone, stay in the dangerous range — 40 to 140 degrees — for too long. Ideally, you should cook chicken immediately after it comes out of the refrigerator, at a temperature around 375 degrees.

Transporting raw chicken pieces to a cookout on a hot day might be hazardous, especially if they are not thoroughly iced. But what happens to your chicken or hamburger meat at the picnic site is most important, said Dr. Julie Parsonnet of the enteric diseases division at the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"There should be no problem as long as the chicken is thoroughly cooked," she said, adding that since most picnickers are unlikely to have meat thermometers with them, they will have to make sure the chicken is cooked. While cooking, just make sure the juices running from chicken pieces are completely white and that there is no pink at the bone.

A MORE pressing danger, the doctor said, is cross-contamination. That means you're asking for it if you cut raw chicken on a wooden cutting board, then cut the cooked chicken or prepare a salad there, too.

E. coli O157:H7 bacteria in hamburger meat have caused diarrhea in varying severity, and she recommended that people think twice about eating purple, still-quivering hamburgers.

For outdoor grilling, consider using thin cutlets of chicken or turkey kept in an acidic marinade. They will transport neatly: just put the cutlets and marinade in a sturdy plastic container with a tight lid. The thin cutlets require no cutting or last-minute preparation.

Cutlets will also cook through completely and quickly, and the acid in the marinade will help retard growth of unwanted bacteria. As a bonus, the meat will taste better and can even be tucked into a sandwich.

Mayonnaise, another mainstay of summer foods, has received a bad rap as a very finicky food: look at it the wrong way and it will give you food poisoning.

Not true. The problems involve the protein foods often mixed into the mayonnaise: chicken, shrimp and egg, for example. The mayonnaise, containing acidic lemon juice, acts to retard bacterial growth.

BUT YOU would do well to stay away from homemade mayonnaise, containing fresh raw egg. Eggs have recently been implicated in a dramatic rise in reported cases of salmonella in the East.

Generally speaking, the rules for keeping food safe do not change during the hot months; you just need to be especially aware of them. When food is left on the counter during the summer, it takes less time to warm up to 40 degrees, the temperature at which bacteria wake up, stretch and jump out of bed. Be especially vigilant, therefore, about putting leftovers back in the refrigerator as soon as possible. At a picnic, if there is food left that you wish to save, return it to the cooler for the trip home and then refrigerate it right away.

Do not use a family picnic to try out your new recipe for eclairs, or anything else that contains cream or pastry cream. The filling is a moist medium with just the right acid-base balance and the correct nutrients to feed many a meandering microbe.

FOR MORE information, call the meat and poultry safety number run by the Agriculture Department: 800-535-4555. Calls are taken from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, so if you think you will be in a bacteriologically compromising situation over the weekend, call ahead of time.

Stuffed fillets thawed, cooked in microwave oven

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

When you make this easy entree, you can thaw both the fish and spinach in your microwave as well as cooking the stuffed fillets.

To thaw frozen fish, cook, uncovered, on 50 percent power (medium) for 4 to 5 minutes or until nearly thawed, separating and rearranging fillets once.

MICROWAVE STUFFED SOLE 4 fresh or frozen sole, flounder, catfish or other thin fish fillets (about 1/4 pound total), thawed

1 (10-ounce) package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and well drained
1 beaten egg white
1 cup herb-seasoned croutons
1/2 cup cream-style low-fat cottage cheese, drained
1 small carrot, shredded (about 1/4 cup)
2 tablespoons cocktail sauce
Non-stick spray coating

For stuffing, in a mixing bowl stir together egg white, croutons, cottage cheese, carrot and cocktail sauce; stir in spinach. Spray four 10-ounce microwave-safe custard cups with non-stick spray coating. Line inside of cups with fillets, trimming and piecing as necessary. Spoon stuffing into center of fish-lined cups. Loosely cover with wax paper. Cook on high 5 to 6 minutes or until fish just flakes with a fork and stuffing is heated through, rotating and rearranging the cups once during cooking. Slide fish and stuffing out of cups onto plates. Makes 4 servings.

Coffee bread made with whole wheat flour

By NANCY BYAL
Associated Press

To lower risk of coronary heart disease and some forms of cancer, we should eat more fiber, say medical researchers. One good source of fiber is whole wheat flour. This bread is made with all whole wheat flour, which gives it nutty flavor and full-bodied texture. Use your favorite homemade or purchased preserves as an easy filling. The recipe makes two coffee breads, one to eat at once and one to wrap in moisture- and vaporproof wrapping and freeze for a special occasion up to six months.

WHEAT-FRUIT COFFEE BREAD

4 to 4 1/4 cups whole wheat flour

2 packages active dry yeast
1 1/4 cups milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup margarine or butter
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 1/2 cups fruit preserves
1 cup sifted powdered sugar
Milk

In a large mixer bowl combine 2 cups of the flour and the yeast. In a small saucepan heat and stir milk, sugar, margarine and salt until warm (115 to 120 degrees F) and margarine is almost melted. Add to flour mixture along with egg. Beat with electric mixer on low speed for 1/2 minute, scraping bowl. Beat 3 minutes on high speed. Stir in as much additional whole wheat flour as you can stir in. Cover dough with clear plastic wrap; chill 2 hours.

Divide dough in half; on floured surface roll each half to a 14x10-inch rectangle. Place each rectangle on greased baking sheet. Spread half the fruit preserves lengthwise down the center third of each rectangle. Bring long sides of dough up and over filling, overlapping edges. Moisten edges; seal.

Diagonally slash at 1 1/2-inch intervals through top layer of dough. Cover; let rise 1 hour. Bake in 350-degree oven about 25 minutes. Cool. Stir together powdered sugar and enough milk (about 2 to 3 teaspoons) to make a drizzling consistency. Spoon over loaf. Makes 14 to 16 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 335 cal., 6 g pro., 63 g carbo., 8 g fat, 21 mg chol., 251 mg sodium.

Ex-Odessa bank president gets probation

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Former Odessa bank president Jimmy Reagan Brown steadfastly denied any wrongdoing even as U.S. District Court Chief Judge Lucius D. Bunton placed him on probation for five years and ordered him to serve six months in an Odessa halfway house after a federal jury last month convicted the 41-year-old Brown of five counts of bank fraud.

Bunton could have sentenced Brown up to 19 years in prison.

"I did nothing in my heart intentionally wrong," Brown told the judge Tuesday. "I've never done anything intentionally wrong," he said.

"The only one that can convict Jimmy Brown of anything is Jimmy Brown," said Brown, who said he resigned as president of First State Bank of Odessa after he was convicted by a federal jury on May 12.

The jury deliberated more than 7 1/2 hours before convicting Brown of making false statements to National Bank Examiners, making false financial statements in securing bank loans, embezzling and misapplying $15,000 and making false bank entries.

In one count, Brown was convicted in signing the name of his father, former Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown, to a $15,000 bank note. However, both father and son testified that the son had the father's permission to sign the senior Brown's name on the note.

"Mr. Brown, the jury found you guilty...of five violations of our federal laws," said Bunton, who said that sentencing was a "distasteful" part of his job as judge.

"No one likes to deprive anyone of their liberty except in rare instances," Bunton said, "and you are not one of those."

After he pronounced the sentence, Bunton assured Brown that he would revoke probation and order Brown to serve prison time were Brown to violate terms of probation.

"I'm giving you an opportunity I don't give most folks," the judge said. "I will see to it that you do every bit of the time" if probation is violated. "Good luck to you."

Bunton told Brown that it was apparent that the bank had lost "no money" by Brown's deeds, which led to the indictments and convictions. "It's also apparent that you did some foolish things," the judge said. "It's obvious that the jury found compassion for you."

Since 1985, when the FBI heightened its investigation into white-collar crimes in West Texas, Brown became the 10th banker or ex-banker to be indicted for bank fraud and the ninth one convicted.

Brown, who was on paid leave of absence from First State Bank while the case was pending, resigned his presidency after he was convicted by a jury.

Previously, three former Midland-Odessa bank presidents have been indicted and convicted of fraud, but Brown was the first bank executive to be indicted while still managing a bank in Midland or Odessa.

Midland-Odessa ex-bankers who have been indicted, convicted and sentenced for bank fraud since 1985 include three former bank presidents, an ex-director, three former vice presidents and a chief executive officer. Sentences have ranged from 24 years imprisonment to one year. And court-ordered restitution has been as high as $550,000.

One indictment, against a former Midland bank vice president, was dismissed.

Earlier, in asking Bunton for leniency, Brown noted that he was sustained by the continuing support of his family, friends, and bank and bank-holding company officials before, during and after the trial.

Brown said that the FBI was tenacious in its investigation of him even though bank officials "found no criminal wrongdoing" on his part.

The judge noted that it was "unusual for banking people to stand behind" an indicted bank officer.

"That doesn't happen very often," Brown said he lamented the loss of his career and standing in the community as a result of the conviction but said that he and his wife, Julie, "have a lot of talent" and will regroup and begin anew.

Brown, who holds two degrees from Texas A&M University, cited his military service and devotion to country and said that his 67-year-old father as a Texas Agricultural Extension Service agent and as Texas Agriculture Commissioner was "on the road trying to build Texas and make Texas a better place in which to live."

In the more than three years when he was president of the Odessa bank, the bank "continued to grow and continued to prosper," Brown said. "We never lost money. That bank was sound and is sound today."

Further, Brown said that he had paid off his bank debts "long before" the FBI investigation was launched. "I hope today will be a step forward in a new life for Jimmy Brown," he told Bunton. "I'll never let you down."

Following the sentencing, Reagan V. Brown, who had wept after his son was convicted last month, said Tuesday that his faith in the judicial system was restored by the judge's sentence.

"This has re-established my faith in the judicial system," the father said. "Judge Bunton was extremely fair, and he gave us a chance to regroup and to rebuild a life. And he (Bunton) is going to be proud of Jimmy Brown."

Husband, wife team goes to the top

By RICK BROWN
Assistant City Editor

Gary and Carol Goodman are do-it-yourself kind of people.

So a hail storm three weeks ago left parts of their roof lying hither and yon? No problem. They cashed their insurance check, gathered their tools and got to work.

If good weather holds, the Goodmans should finish re-roofing the 3,200 square-foot expanse on their 2214 Hughes St. home by the end of the week, Mrs. Goodman said Tuesday, eyeing the sky nervously.

"That hail beat it to death," Mrs. Goodman said of the May 25 storm. "The shingles came off, and there were chunks missing. Our backyard was full of hail, so we knew something was wrong."

Jealous of other neighborhood front-yard signs announcing work by professional roofers, Mrs. Goodman erected her own note to passersby: "Husband and Wife Roofing. Last Job."

"People just drive by and laugh," she said. "We tell them we have an extra hammer with their name on it."

"When they drive by, other women just can't believe there's a woman up on top of the roof, but I'm not going to let him do it by himself," she said.

"We've even had roofers come by asking if we'd like to come by and roof their homes," she said.

Husband Gary took a week's vacation from his job as a Texas Utilities service man to complete the job, he said. Goodnaturedly, he added, "You're supposed to relax on your vacation..."

Other projects during other vacations the Goodmans have taken on include wallpapering, painting and installing kitchen appliances, said the wife.

The roofing work represents the Goodman's "largest project so far this summer," she said, adding that pouring concrete for a patio remains on the docket for warmer weather.

They credit the help of a friend and co-worker of Goodman's, Ray Barron, for putting them on the right track in their roofing endeavor. Barron previously had roofed houses for a living.

"I'll tell you, it's hard work," said the husband. "I don't know how a roofer can do this day in and day out."

The couple look forward to a feeling of accomplishment after finishing the roof. "Not only for the job," said Mrs. Goodman, "but how many husbands and wives work together like this?"

They feel sure that their workmanship will match or exceed what professional roofers could accomplish, adding disappointment in the workmanship they've seen while completing the job.

"All it is to them is a job, but to us, this is our home — it's our protection," said Mrs. Goodman.

Added Goodman: "This way, if you have a leak, it's nobody's fault but your own."

Board, local group seek to land private funds for projects

By CHRIS VAN WAGENEN
Staff Writer

If first impressions are lasting, then it's little wonder why Ed Vogler wants to paint a sea of green for first-time visitors flying into Midland International Airport.

Vogler, chairman of the airport board, would like nothing better than to plant hundreds of trees along La Force Boulevard and Windemere Street. "That first impression when they arrive and the last when they leave is important."

Impressions are important to Shelia Hotchkiss, too. As executive director of Keep Midland Beautiful, she and others want to see a five-mile long stretch of the Union Pacific Railroad running off Route 80 also lined with trees, wildflowers and other vegetation.

Keep Midland Beautiful took their cue from Abilene, where residents there spent more than $500,000 over a six-year period to plant more than 1,000 trees along its railway, with cooperation from the city.

Uniquely, both Vogler and Hotchkiss want to fund each of their projects with private money.

Vogler — although low-key in his effort — said he's already received enthusiastic support for the airport project from airlines, those that use the airport and others.

"Nearly everyone I've approached has been 100 percent in favor of it," said Vogler. "We want to do this at no cost to the taxpayers."

Phase I calls for the planting of 100 trees along the two main entrances to the airport — entrances that Vogler said could be cultivated into an oasis. "We're still formulating a plan...it just seemed like this was a worthwhile project that the people could get behind."

Certainly, the beautiful Midland group could use the same support, but their approach is likely to take a number of years.

The group is seeking $25,000 in Community Block Grant Development funds that would be used to design a master plan — a plan, that in theory, already exists on the city's long-range agenda.

Hotchkiss said the group is not seeking city funds for trees or flowers. However, they are seeking council backing for Midland to assume the maintenance of those areas as they're completed.

And the group wants to do that through "xeriscape" planting, using trees and flowers that are naturally adaptive to the climate and require minimal upkeep.

At a planning session Tuesday, council indicated they were receptive to the idea, but need more specifics, particularly right-of-way information from the Union Pacific and the state highway department.

Hotchkiss called the entrance to Midland along Route 80 "disgraceful." She said the railroad route had become dumping ground for other people's garbage.

"It's a wonderful deal for the city at a minimal investment," she said, referring to financing for the study.

The group's intent is to get the private sector involved in the same fashion as the state's adopt a highway program.

Hotchkiss said Abilene has offered its professional expertise to assist the city in its effort to beautify the rail tract. However, she admits, working with Union Pacific is no easy task, given the fact that its management is shifted around so often.

"This is a long term project, but so was Volunteer Park and it came to be," she said.

Vogler says one way persons can participate in the Midland Plant A Tree Project is by sending a check to the Midland Chamber of Commerce. Noted on the check should be that the money is intended for airport beautification.

Former Midlander found hanged in Odessa jail cell

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — A 36-year-old former Midland man being held on misdemeanor theft charges in the Ector County jail apparently hanged himself in his cell late Tuesday afternoon, according to officials.

Curtis Lloyd Ray, 1479 S. Jackson St., who was being held in an isolation cell after being transferred from the Odessa city jail Tuesday morning, was found hanging from an overhead beam, according to Sheriff's Capt. Gene Kloss. Ray apparently secured a bedsheet to the beam and looped it around his neck, Kloss added.

Kloss said a jail nurse had given Ray some medication about 4:15 p.m. and there was no indication of any problem. About 15 minutes later, a jailer checking on Ray found him hanging from the overhead beam. Deputies cut Ray down and an ambulance was called, but it was too late. Ray exhibited no signs of life, Kloss said.

Kloss termed Ray's hanging suicide "puzzling," noting that he was to have been released from jail Saturday.

According to Kloss, the charges against Ray involved Class B theft, shoplifting, failure to identify himself when he was arrested and failure to pay a fine on an earlier Class B theft charge.

Kloss said when Ray was arrested last March he gave officers a Midland address.

A "routine investigation" is being conducted, Kloss said, and once it is completed and autopsy results are received, the information will be forwarded to the Texas Commission on Jail Standards. He noted Ray was in the cell by himself and there was no evidence of any foul play.

Midland man in serious condition after accident

From Staff Reports

One Midland man was listed in serious condition and another was stable today at Midland Memorial Hospital after a Tuesday night head-on collision at the intersection of Midland Drive and Raleigh Court.

MMH spokeswoman Sue Ristom said 31-year-old Jesus Castillo, 4315 Neely, underwent surgery Tuesday night to repair a fractured femur and abdominal injuries. He was listed in serious condition this morning. Meanwhile, surgery was scheduled this morning for Victor Sirgo, 30, 4035 Angelina, who also sustained a fractured femur in the collision, which occurred about 10:50 p.m. Tuesday. He was listed in stable condition, Ms. Ristom said.

Witnesses told police Castillo was traveling north on Midland Drive when his 1983 Chevrolet El Camino collided head-on with Sirgo's 1985 Ford pickup.

The police report said Sirgo, who was southbound on Midland Drive, was attempting to make a left turn when the accident occurred.

Man convicted of bank fraud in federal court

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 57-year-old Lovington, N.M., man who was convicted of bank fraud 1 1/2 years ago in New Mexico pleaded guilty Tuesday in Midland federal court to bank fraud in Texas.

The man, William Hal Graham Jr., admitted to U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton that he had made false financial statements to obtain more than $100,000 in loans from two banks on April 1, 1983: $40,000 from Western State Bank of Midland and $62,686.59 from the now-defunct First National Bank of Midland.

The government charged that Graham had overstated his net worth in seeking approval of the two loans.

He is to be sentenced by Bunton at noon on July 13 and could receive up to two years in prison on each of the two offenses.

"I shall be here, sir," Graham told the judge.

In January 1987, Graham pleaded guilty before U.S. District Judge John E. Conway of Albuquerque, N.M., to making false statements on April 14, 1983, to obtain a $45,000 loan a Lovington bank. He was ordered to make restitution and to serve time in the Federal Prison Camp at Big Spring.

A 1984 FBI report indicated that Graham held "some 80 loans" in 35 banks as of July 1984.

The FBI report said Graham had secured loans in New Mexico to invest in Eddy County and Lea County oil wells. The report said Graham had overstated his investments in television stations in Colorado and Oklahoma. In addition, Graham said that he had obtained a $203,000 mortgage on his house from a Lovington bank but that the bank had listed $65,000 as liability on his financial statement, according to the FBI report.

"Graham could not recall why he had a difference between the $65,000 and the $203,000 actual mortgage on his home," the FBI reported.

"When asked why he had only listed six different banks in the liability section of his financial statement and did not include some 20 to 30 other loans that were outstanding, Graham stated he really could not answer that," the FBI report said.

Convoy, Customs face off at Laredo bridge

LAREDO (AP) — A showdown over export inspection began this morning between U.S. Customs officials and the Veterans' Peace Convoy to Nicaragua after the group arrived at an international bridge in this border city.

Customs officials blocked the convoy about one block from Bridge No. 1, spanning the Rio Grande, and attempted to reroute its passage to a satellite inspection area shortly before 10 a.m. CDT, but the group refused to budge.

"We're insisting that we be allowed to proceed right up to this inspection area, as previously agreed upon," said Gerry Condon, one of the convoy's organizers.

"The difference is we know this inspection area; that's where the media is, that's where our supporters are, that's the agreement we had with them. We're not going to let them lead us by the nose and take us out of sight of people."

One convoy vehicle, driven by Bob Livesey of Dorchester, Mass., later drove up to the bridge, where customs officials refused to allow it to turn south toward Mexico.

Condon said he expects federal officials to impound the group's vehicles.

"My instructions are that I am not to allow you to leave," said James Purser, chief customs inspector in Laredo.

As police and customs officials stood by the roadblock, convoy members and supporters sang the song, "Give Peace a Chance," and chanted "Let the Convoy Pass."

Witnesses say a small caravan left the convoy campsite shortly before 9 a.m., headed toward the bridge.

About 20 supporters of the group held signs that said, "Embargo South Africa, Not Nicaragua" and "Let The Convoy Pass."

It was about 5 miles from the campsite to the international bridge, where the 106-member group wants to enter Mexico and travel farther south.

About 200 convoy members and supporters held a rally Tuesday night at a camp in northern Laredo. Many shouted, "Viva Nicaragua libre!" ("Long live free Nicaragua") when candles were lit during the rally, which featured leftist folk songs and an appearance by U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston.

"I'm here to do what I can to see to it that the convoy gets across the border and to Nicaragua to deliver the humanitarian aid that they have," Leland told The Associated Press.

Leland met earlier Tuesday with Customs officials in Laredo and spoke by phone with U.S. Treasury Secretary James Baker trying to convince him to ease the ban on donating vehicles to Nicaragua, said convoy member Tom Hansen.

DEATHS

George D. Friday Sr.

CANTON — Services for George Daniel Friday Sr., 86, of Canton and formerly of Midland will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday in the Eubank Funeral Home Chapel of Canton with the Rev. Bill Lane of Good Hope Baptist Church of Canton officiating.

Burial will be in Cool Springs Cemetery in Van Zandt County.

Friday died Tuesday in a Tyler hospital following an illness.

Friday was born on July 4, 1901, in Colfax, La. He first moved to Midland in 1926 and later lived in Athens and San Angelo before he moved to Canton in 1959.

Friday, a retired custom boot-maker and saddle-maker, and his brothers operated boot-and-saddle shops in Midland for many years. Friday, who had made custom boots for Western movie star Gene Autry, had devoted more than 50 years to boot-making and saddle-making.

In Midland, Friday served on the rodeo committee and sheriff's posse. He was a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Ethel Mae Pitts Friday of Canton; two sons, George D. Friday Jr. of Midland and Donnie R. Friday of Fort Worth; a daughter, Roxie Wheeler of Odessa; four stepsons, John A. Pitts of Abilene, Billy J. Pitts of Farmington, N.M., and George A. Pitts and Robert H. Pitts, both of Canton; two stepdaughters, Thelma Holt of Las Vegas, Nev., and Wanda Peters of Eufaula; a brother, O. Friday of Midland; and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

A son, George Friday, died at an early age.

Katie Wheeler

Funeral services for Katie Wheeler were to be at 1 p.m. today in the Ellis Funeral Home chapel, with the Rev. Bob Porterfield officiating. Burial was to follow at Resthaven Memorial Park.

Pallbearers were to be Huck Davis, Eddington Bruton, Charlie Bruton, E.L. Collins, Jim Goldman and Charles Dickson.

French woman claims to be mystery boy's grandmother

PARIS (AP) — U.S. officials said today a French woman has told them she is the grandmother of a deaf boy found wandering in Mexico who authorities have been trying to identify for more than six months.

Christopher English, chief of special consular services at the U.S. Embassy, said he was contacted Tuesday by a woman living in a Normandy village who saw a picture of the boy on the television news and recognized him.

"She called and calmly said she had reason to believe that she was the boy's grandmother," English said.

Authorities found the freckled, brown-haired boy, named Sabat by his Mexican guardians, wandering near Juarez, Mexico, last November.

He had scars that looked about two years old and could have come from home-treated injuries.

He was unable to identify himself to authorities or say where he was from.

Sabat suffers from impaired hearing and communicates mostly by drawing pictures and gesturing. His pictures seem to indicate that he survived the crash of a four-seat, single-engine airplane that killed his parents and sister.

After Mexican authorities noticed Sabat preferred hamburgers and hot dogs over Mexican fare and responded more enthusiastically toward American cartoon characters, they contacted their Texas counterparts.

Lobbyist, firm bought copies of Wright book

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Washington lobbyist, a Boston insurance company, a third-grade teacher and a member of Congress were among bulk buyers of a book that netted House Speaker Jim Wright nearly $55,000 in royalties.

Wright, D-Texas, mentioned the purchasers Tuesday when reporters asked him who had bought multiple copies of his 1964 book, "Reflections of a Public Man."

Critics of the speaker have alleged that the book, which was sold primarily in bulk and at political rallies, was a thinly disguised way for lobbyists and others seeking favors to give money to Wright, who was House majority leader at the time. The book deal is among the items being examined by the House ethics committee in its investigation of Wright.

Wright has defended his receipt of royalties from the slim, 117-page volume as proper and contends the attacks on him are an election-year gambit by Republicans. Wright is to be chairman of the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta next month.

The New England life insurance company in Boston was among bulk buyers of the book. Senior vice president Gordon MacKay said the company had invited Wright to speak to a management group about three years ago, and bought $2,000 worth of Wright's books instead of giving him an honorarium.

There is a limit on the amount of honoraria a member of Congress can receive each year, but there is no limit on income from book royalties.

MacKay said he found the book "enjoyable. It gave insights into the man." The company sent its 336 copies to be distributed to local high school civics classes, he said.

The book was published for Wright by a Fort Worth friend of the speaker, William Carlos Moore, who also has done some $600,000 worth of campaign work for Wright over the years. Wright received a 55 percent royalty, or $3.25 for each $5.95 volume sold, totaling $55,000. Nearly all 20,000 copies printed have been sold.

The ethics panel, formally known as the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, also is looking into the propriety of Wright's use of a congressional staff member to compile and edit the book and Wright's use of tax money to pay the aide's expenses for a three-week final editing trip to Fort Worth in late 1964.

Craig Raupe, a former Wright aide who now lobbies Congress for a long list of private businesses, also bought numerous copies, the speaker said. Raupe said he bought only 10 and gave them away to family members.

But Raupe also said he arranged for the copies to be purchased by The New England life insurance company. "I'm not saying he's a great author or anything, but I'd do this for him whether I was on staff or not," Raupe said.

Lobbying records show Raupe represents The New England life insurance company, along with a number of energy and transportation companies.

Another bulk purchaser was a Wright constituent, Clarence Swor, who owns a sand and gravel company near Fort Worth. Dorothy Harkness, an longtime employee of Swor, said he was hard of hearing and could not come to the telephone. But she acknowledged her boss had bought 200 copies and sent them to relatives.

She said Swor had known Wright since the speaker was mayor of Weatherford, Texas, in the 1950s and felt gratitude since Wright once stopped and gave him a ride when his cattle truck was broken down. "They have been friends ever since," she said.

Charlene Bice, a third-grade teacher in Fort Worth who is on the board of directors of the National Education Association, sold about 250 copies to other teachers.

Noted Hispanic activist Velasquez dies of cancer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — One of the country's most respected Hispanic pollsters, Willie Velasquez, died early today after a brief bout with cancer, officials said.

Velasquez, 44, who recently took a one-year sabbatical from his job as president of the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, died at 12:55 a.m. at Santa Rosa Medical Center, hospital spokeswoman Terrie Carter said.

Velasquez also had been undergoing treatment for kidney cancer at M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston the past few months.

Velasquez, who coordinated the San Antonio-based group's tracking of Hispanic voter trends, had been at Santa Rosa since Monday and was transferred to medical intensive care unit Tuesday after his condition worsened, Ms. Carter said.

The SVREP has helped increase Hispanic voter registration from about 2.5 million in 1976 to what is expected to be 5 million by the general election in November.

"Willie was a man of great vision and I believe he did more for Hispanics than most people have done in three lifetimes," said Jose Garcia de Lara, Texas director of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

"He brought about Hispanic awareness, as far as the importance of the Hispanic vote, and the benefits that not only we as Hispanics would receive, but also the benefits that American would receive as a country because of more participation by its citizens," Garcia de Lara said.

Funeral services were pending this morning.

Velasquez, who was born in Florida May 19, 1944, grew up in San Antonio.

He was one of the founders of the Hispanic activist groups La Raza Unida Party and the Mexican American Youth Organization in the mid-1960s.

While in his last semester of graduate school of economics at St. Mary's University in 1968, Velasquez was recruited by the United Farm Workers to organize a strike in the Rio Grande Valley.

After the strike, he never returned to graduate school and became director of the Mexican-American Unity Council of San Antonio.

In June 1970, he was named the field director in Phoenix of the National Council of La Raza, the parent organization of the Mexican-American Unity Council.

He rose through the organization's ranks before helping found the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project in 1972.

The organization sought to register Hispanic voters and, with other Hispanic civil rights organizations, has sued local entities throughout the country to change from at-large voting districts to single-member districts in order to elect Hispanics.

The non-profit organization has grown in size and influence under Velasquez.

"There is a sense of loss, but there also is a sense of building. Everyone here is working and the theme is we're going to keep it going," said Richard Martinez, field director of the SVREP.

He said the cancer took its toll on Velasquez quickly.

"He lost weight very quickly over the last month or two months," Martinez said. "He's had the cancer about a year, but it did not begin to take its complete toll for last couple of months."

Velasquez was scheduled to introduce Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis to the state convention in Houston next week.

He also was debating an offer to join the Massachusetts governor's campaign as an adviser on Southwestern politics.

"His loss is, perhaps, the most severely felt of any Hispanic figure in America today," Corpus Christi attorney and Hispanic activist Ruben Bonilla said.

"He was a giant among Americans and loved by everybody. You cannot replace or emulate a man like Willie Velasquez. You can only use his works to inspire others to achieve his demand for excellence," said Bonilla, president of the Mexican-American Democrats political action committee.

Graham, however, admitted that he had "carelessly and incompletely" prepared bank financial statements. The FBI reported Graham said he sensed that the banks were "lenient in their documenting for loans" and that he "did not attach much importance to the financial statements."

"Graham stated he did not omit loans on his financial statements in order to get loans," according to the report.

Nevertheless, Graham admitted to the FBI that he was "culpable in the submission of erroneous financial statements and he knew that what he had done was illegal."

In 1964, the FBI said Graham admitted that he then owed approximately $1 million in loans to banks and that he had "no assets for them to claim."

BROWN

The older Brown said that his son "never did anything wrong" and observed that some of the jurors were in tears when they returned the guilty verdicts a month ago.

Like the father, the son said that Buntun was "very fair" in sentencing.

ing. The younger Brown said that he and his wife have "several opportunities at hand now" to start a new career.

"We are talented," he said. Brown said that he and his wife have a history of being "contributors" in their community, "and that will be our future."

Police probe gun theft

From Staff Reports

Midland police are investigating a theft of handguns valued at more than $3,000 from a local pawn shop, according to preliminary reports.

Details of the theft were unavailable today. The theft occurred sometime Monday, when 11 handguns valued at $3,225 were stolen from the Alamo Pawn Shop, 2705 W. Wall Ave., reports said.

Woman says witnesses lied

AMARILLO (AP) — A Houston woman charged with hiring someone to kill her former boss' wife said at least nine state witnesses lied when they testified she orchestrated the murder.

In a surprise move, Jane Ada Callaway, 36, took the stand Tuesday and denied any involvement in the shooting death of Judy Saragusa on Sept. 2, 1967.

"As God is my witness, I did not," Ms. Callaway said when her attorney, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, asked her if an indictment accusing her of hiring the killer was true.

In six hours of testimony, Ms. Callaway accused nine state witnesses — a homicide detective, her former best friend, a bank official, four of her former co-workers at Quality Beverage and a co-defendant, among others — of lying about her on the witness stand.

Ms. Callaway told jurors Mrs. Saragusa, 39, authorized her to move $138,000 of her boss Michael Saragusa's money to a different bank. And she said Michael Richardson, the accused middleman in the killing, actually was acting in collusion with Mrs. Saragusa.

Why Mrs. Saragusa would have been involved with Richardson, 24, was not discussed, but Ms. Callaway said the large sums of money, $10,000 and $20,000 in two instances, were given him at the murder victim's specific instructions.

She admitted knowing Richardson, who is charged with conspiracy to commit murder, but adamantly maintained she has never even seen his stepbrother, Leon Hawkins Jr., who is in Harris County Jail accused of capital murder.

Lubbock hospital to be shut

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Summit Health Ltd. said it will close one small Texas hospital and sell another in a cost-cutting move.

The 76-bed Oakwood Family Hospital in Lubbock, Texas, will be closed and the 78-bed South Park Medical Center in Levelland, Texas, will go on the market, Summit announced from its Los Angeles headquarters.

The move is part of a plan to consolidate services at the company's 69-bed South Park Medical Center in Lubbock, and to cut costs, Summit said.

The company has 21 hospitals, 20 nursing centers and four retirement hotels, for a total of 5,730 beds in Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa and Texas, and Saudi Arabia.

gua is not being qualified as humanitarian aid."

Actor and activist Ed Asner spoke on the phone to convoy participants Tuesday.

Tuesday night's rally also included the reading of a message the Rev. Jesse Jackson sent to Baker, urging him to allow the convoy to pass.

"I hope that you will be guided by their example, expressed in their words, 'Feed the children, not the war,'" the Mailgram from Jackson said.

Members of at least 40 groups in vigils of 15 to 200 around the country met Tuesday night, Hansen said, including more than 200 in San Francisco.

The convoy left from four different regions of the United States on May 21, and arrived in Laredo last Tuesday night. It has been camped in Laredo since then, after Customs served notice there would be problems getting the vehicles exported.

Convoy members have held daily vigils, holding protest banners at Laredo's Bridge No. 1.

Cisneros says he's already had offers to fund Ramses II exhibit

Hearst News Service

SAN ANTONIO — Mayor Henry Cisneros says he already has received "several corporate offers for six-figure contributions" to bring the priceless Ramses II exhibit here.

And museum officials, some of whom were skeptical about the exhibit coming, appeared convinced Tuesday that the agreement with the Egyptian government is substantial.

After a closed-door meeting with San Antonio Museum Association officials, Cisneros also said the city is "not really considering any other option" for housing the 72-piece exhibit other than the San Antonio Museum of Art.

"These are tough times, but I'm confident San Antonio will be the centerpiece of all of Texas for a major artistic endeavor using a statewide base of funds," the mayor said after the meeting at the Witte Museum.

Cisneros would not disclose who was offering money, nor would he discuss specifics of an agreement signed by the city and Egypt last week.

"I want to hold off on the numbers," he said.

Although several figures have been reported for the cost of bringing the pharaoh exhibit, a museum source who asked not to be named said the agreement calls for $1.63 million in advance payments.

A guaranteed loan of $1.1 million already is in place.

The total budget for the exhibit has been estimated at between $4 million and $5 million.

"It is one of the more substantial agreements I've seen," Museum Association President E. Laurence Chalmers said of the Ramses II agreement.

Museum officials, who studied the agreement for the first time at the meeting, are now more confident the exhibit is on its way to San Antonio.

"The information reported by Bob Krueger (who helped hammer out the agreement) suggests the agreement is firm," Chalmers said. "There is a sense that if everybody puts their shoulders to the wheel it's doable."

INS opening shelter just for undocumented alien children

LOS FRESNOS (AP) — U.S. immigration officials plan to open shelters to help cope with an increasing number of undocumented alien children appearing in the United States without their parents.

Since November 1987, more than 280 alien juveniles have come under Immigration and Naturalization Service custody in South Texas, according to agency records.

"Just the past two months, an increasing number, and we don't know really what the cause is, but an increasing number of minors are coming into our custody," said Jerry Sewell, INS director in Harlingen.

The INS saw a need for the new International Emergency Shelter after the agency found itself no longer dealing exclusively with undocumented workers between the ages of 18 and 32, said Mary Ruth Calhoun, a detention program specialist with the INS' central office in Washington, D.C.

"In the last 10 years, we have been experiencing a different kind of population which includes minors, juveniles, females, grandparents. We did not have the facilities, nor were we prepared to handle that population," Ms. Calhoun said.

The new shelter, located near this lower Rio Grande Valley city, is designed to protect the unaccompanied minors from the dangers of street life and to try to reunite families, INS officials say.

"The goal is not to institutionalize anyone, it's to get them into a normal family environment," Ms. Calhoun said.

But critics of the INS say the children's facilities may be luring parents for deportation.

Ninfa Krueger, executive director of the McAllen-based Border Association for Refugees from Central America, said she approves of the idea of a shelter, but expressed doubt about the INS running the operation.

"The children are really going to be thoroughly interrogated and asked to divulge a lot of information," Ms. Krueger said.

Agency officials say some parents may find themselves in the hands of the INS if they show up looking for their children, but added the shelter is a better alternative than placing children in centers with adults.

Children as young as 4 years have shown up in the United States with other siblings, said Juan Sanchez, executive director of the shelter.

"They are in danger of being abused, because they are young, they are out on the streets day and night, they are hungry," Sanchez said.

With the opening scheduled for next month, the new center is expected to house 24 male and female minors up to the age of 17.

The Brownsville-based International Educational Services, a non-profit corporation, has contracted with the Justice Department's Community Relations Service to operate the center in a converted residence equipped with a swimming pool.

An 18-member staff will provide food, shelter, medical care, schooling, recreation and counseling, for an average stay of 30 days, Sanchez said.

WTSU regents pledge support for president

CANYON (AP) — T. Boone Pickens Jr. came to the rescue of West Texas State University's embattled president, pledging support for Ed Roach and blasting faculty critics of the president.

Pickens, chairman of the school's board of regents, defended Roach at an emergency meeting of the regents Tuesday.

Faculty members have accused Roach of retaliating against some of their ranks who speak out against his policies and say his management style is dictatorial.

"We have heard the grievances of the faculty and while individually some were substantive, most were petty," Pickens said.

Acknowledging that many faculty have called for Roach's resignation, Pickens said WTSU's president "serves not at the pleasure of the faculty, but at the pleasure of the board of regents."

"We will not bow to pressure tactics nor will we be intimidated by those who spread dissension through rumors, innuendoes and false reports," he said.

About 50 faculty members present then shouted for the board's resignation.

After cries for Roach's ouster escalated during the spring semester, the regents brought in an external review panel of academics to examine faculty charges that academic freedom was being violated under Roach.

But the board Tuesday rejected the panel's finding that academic freedom is "virtually non-existent" at the school.

"The plain fact of the matter is that almost all of the charges that have been made, including those contained in the panel's report, which can be in any way substantiated, are trivial in nature," said regent Dee Osborne of Houston, reading a regents' committee analysis of the panel's report.

"There simply are no fundamental issues of academic freedom at stake in this situation. No faculty member is being punished for what he is teaching or researching. Tenure has not been denied to anyone for having controversial views."

Faculty senate president Gary Byrd, who has helped publish an underground newsletter lambasting Roach and whom Pickens charged had lied in presentations to the board, declined to comment after the meeting.

The board voted 8-1 to implement a plan under which Roach would allocate more time to planning the restructuring of the university and fund-raising. Daily administrative duties would fall under the purview of the school's vice president for academic affairs and the Deans Council.

The board's analysis of the panel's report found "a number of factual errors in the allegations cited by the Review Panel," Osborne said.

The report cited 13 examples of academic freedom violations, he said, but those examples showed no violations of WTSU policy.

Men to be back at work on collapsed overpass

EL PASO (AP) — Workers plan to again try building an overpass on Interstate 10 in west El Paso that has been plagued by construction accidents, the latest of which killed one man and injured seven others.

The middle third of the 250-foot-long bridge, which spans a drainage arroyo, collapsed Tuesday, dumping wet concrete, huge steel girders and construction workers about 25 feet into the arroyo.

Jesus Soto, 52, of Fort Hancock, died at Sun Towers Hospital of massive internal injuries and multiple fractures, spokeswoman Anne Moncure said Tuesday night. The seven other workers were admitted into four different hospitals and none was critically injured. At least one was treated and released Tuesday afternoon.

The laborers were rebuilding the overpass, which had almost been completed when a worker accidentally backed an earth-moving machine into a support column last February. The bridge buckled and had to be rebuilt.

Texas Highway Department crews were dispatched Tuesday to the collapse near the not-yet-opened Resler interchange, said Betty Best, highway department spokeswoman. They were assessing the damage, she said.

It was not known immediately what caused the collapse or whether it was related to the February accident.

Workers quickly began hauling away the debris before the wet concrete could dry in the bright sun, said Craig Marshall, an employee with J.D. Abrams, the project's prime contractor.

The overpass had been subcontracted to Jon T. Hansen Constructors of El Paso, Marshall said. He estimated the monetary damage to be $20,000, but added, "it could be twice that much or half that much."

LET'S DO LUNCH

...for RESTAURANT REVIEWS?

We think so...and beginning JUNE 16 a new column in the Reporter-Telegram will do just that!

"LET'S DO LUNCH" will be geared to that growing number of Midlanders who are "eating out" at lunchtime and will include a review of a specific meal at a local restaurant along with information on specialties of the house, price ranges, hours and other pertinent facts.

"LET'S DO LUNCH" will be of interest to those who eat out regularly now. And by giving an inside view of the variety of eating places as well as the range of dishes available in Midland it might be just the encouragement others need to join the crowds...

"LET'S DO LUNCH...beginning June 16...and on alternate Thursdays thereafter in our LIFESTYLE SECTION."

Family tradition reborn

HITCHCOCK (AP) — It's getting to be a family tradition.

Maria Foster, 25, kept the tradition alive Tuesday when she gave birth to a son in the back seat of a car at a convenience store while enroute to a Galveston hospital.

Mrs. Foster was also born while her mother was enroute to the hospital.

Joyce Barton remembered her daughter's birth after helping deliver her grandson.

"When she (Mrs. Foster) was born, I had to do the same thing," said Mrs. Barton, 51, who lives with her daughter in the Brazoria County town of Sweeny.

"I only made it down the street to the doctor's office, and she was born 10 minutes later," she recalled.

Mrs. Foster, who also has a 4-year-old son, awoke about 7 a.m. in labor and the women were on the road to John Sealy Hospital by 7:30 a.m.

They got to Hitchcock about an hour later.

"She said, 'Mama, I'm scared.' I knew it was fixing to happen," Mrs. Barton said. "We pulled into the first parking lot we could find and got on the ball."
