After a typical Tuesday afternoon at the old newspaper office, I'm hardly in any shape to reflect on the President's speech which received so much preview last week from the news media, they actually compared it to "Moses coming down from the mountain." Perhaps after the overplay, or should I say overkill, by the networks, anything less than dropping the "bomb" on the OPEC nations would not come up to expectations. However, I was disappointed. I felt it was "too little, too late."

After the sermon, the President had some forceful suggestions about the energy crisis, but our own Governor Bill Clements has already voiced many of the same suggestions and some time ago. So, I found nothing really new in the speech.

I disagree with President Carter in many areas. For instance, I have always thought the government was "corrupt and self-indulgent," not the American people as a whole. I have always distrusted the central government, not just since the assassinations and Watergate. I don't want to help the President, I want and expect him to help me. I feel like that's what he's there for.

I can't believe it will take us ten years to be free from the yoke of the OPEC rulers by way of synthetic fuels. It didn't take us ten years to invent synthetic rubber when our rubber supply was cut off in World War II, the whole war didn't last half that long. I'm afraid President Carter has surrounded himself with advisors who are not expert on their subjects. This is the real disaster and threat to this nation.

In spite of the Panama Canal "give-away," assistance to communists all over the world, a "give up" to Russia with SALT II, sanctions against democracies, I still have faith in the American system. I believe there are enough people just like me who are going to see to it that we return to the American way of life by way of the voting booth. It is significant to note what Texas voters did in the last election. There is movement all over the country for conservative change. We need to get rid of the politicians and the career diplomats and bureaucrats, for a return to sanity in this nation.

We need a tough, resourceful, responsible leader. One who will put politics aside and pick his advisors from the experts in the field. One who will make decisions and let the chips fall where they may, or you might say "stick by his guns." We've just had too much vacillation in the past 2½ years to put much trust in the present administration. What is strong policy today might just be forgotten tomorrow.

Tennis entries needed

Although over 100 entry forms have gone out for the first Ozona Tennis Tournament, only six had returned entries at the Chamber of Commerce as of Monday, Friday, July 20, is the deadline for entries.

The Chamber is sponsoring the event in hopes it will become an annual affair. It is open to the public.

MAKING WAY FOR PROGRESS—The old Perner building which housed North Grocery for so many years and more recently Western Auto, was torn down this week to make way for a parking lot in downtown Ozona. Ozona

National Bank bought the property several months ago and is in the process of making a parking lot for patrons and employees. The present bank parking lot may be seen in the background.

School faculty complete

The Ozona school faculty for the coming term has been completed and pupils will be attending classes in the buildings designated in the school improvement program, Superintendent Foy Moody announced this week. The first full day of classes will begin Sept. 4, the day following the Labor Day holiday, but students will register prior to that time. A registration schedule will be released at a later date.

Three longtime teachers retired this year and six resigned. Fourth grade teachers Margaret Tabb and Jewell Baggett retired, along with fifth grade teacher, Modene Whitaker.

Linda Wylie resigned as music teacher at Ozona Primary school. Ora Jean Eggar and Susie Childress, both sixth grade teachers, resigned at Ozona Intermediate. Robbie Biggerstaff, girls' P.E.; Barbara Baugh, H.E., and Karen Crumley, biology, resigned from the high school faculty.

New teachers include Ozona native Debbie Deaton who will teach physical education and be head basketball coach for girls at Ozona High School. Debbie returns to her high school alma mater with a degree from Tarleton State University and two years as head basketball coach at Junction.

Kelly Glaze, a graduate of Stephen F. Austin University, will be the new band director. He will replace Lane Scott, who is moving to the Industrial Arts Department. Glaze will move here from Electra, where he has been band director.

Marlene Clay, a Sul Ross graduate, is the new Junior High Special Education teacher. She has been teaching in Kerrville.

Jim White, a recent graduate of Angelo State University, will be a new fifth grade teacher.

Rosalind Williams, local piano teacher and graduate of Wayland Baptist College, will be the new Primary elementary music teacher. Teachers will report a week prior to the beginning of school for a five-day in-service training period.

Wildcat rescheduled

Odessa Natural Corp., Odessa, has rescheduled to 5,305-foot and will test as a wildcat at approximately 1,500 feet at its No. 4-2X Odessa, et al, previously scheduled ½-mile east out-post to Devonian gas production in the Ingham (Devonian and 6400 Canyon gas) field of Crockett County and 24 miles west of Ozona.

The project previously was scheduled to 8,800 feet. Casing reportedly collapsed at 2,267 feet.

Location is 990 feet from the south and 4,350 feet from the east lines of 4-FFF-GC&SF (some maps show J. Turner). Ground elevation is 2,642 feet.

used to help the farmer restore damaged farm operations and additional loans based upon the emergency designation can be used to reorganize the farm for greater efficiency and better production.

The Farmers Home Administration office in Ozona is located in the ASCS office and the office period is the fourth Thursday morning of each month from 10:30 AM to 12 noon.

All Stars down Angelo team

Ozona's Senior League All Stars were cheered on by a large crowd of Ozona fans in San Angelo Monday night as they beat the San Angelo Senior League East team by a score of 7-1. They returned Tuesday night to play the San Angelo West team, but the outcome was not known at press time.

The West team beat Sonora 9-7 Monday night in Sonora. Winner of Tuesday night's game will participate in a regional tournament in Abilene Thursday and Friday, July 19-20.

The games were played at Mathis Field in San Angelo and the first game only lasted four innings. There are no lights on the field and the game was called due to darkness.

Hector Leal went to the mound for the Ozona stars and got the win. The remainder of the starting line-up was Kelly Buckner, catcher; Ernie Borrego, third base; Diego Leal, short stop; Kent Hokit, second base; Ken Stokes, first base; Ruben Perez, left field; Rudy Enriquez, center field, and Willie Payne, right field.

The team is managed by Tom Powers and coached by Alonzo Galindo.

The Ozona stars got seven runs off of four hits. Hits included 2 singles off the bat of Kelly Buckner, a triple by Ken Stokes and a triple by Ruben Perez.

Commissioners appoint clerk

The Crockett County Commissioners Court met Monday in a called meeting for the purpose of appointing a county clerk to serve through next year. The office will be up for election in 1980. After some discussion and two nominations, the court appointed Mrs. Jean North on a split vote.

Sessom infant services

Graveside services for Courtney Sessom, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Sessom, were held Saturday at 4 p.m. in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

The infant died at birth Friday in a San Angelo hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Sessom moved to Ozona this summer after he was hired as head football coach for Ozona High School.

Surviving besides the parents are a sister, Candra Jo, and her grandparents, Mrs. Annie Sessom of Brady and J.C. Reeves of Shamrock.

Services Sun. for Mr. Baker

Graveside services for Chester Ray Baker, 74, were held Sunday in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Baker died Saturday in Crockett County Hospital. He was born Feb. 5, 1905 in Oklahoma and was married to Nazie Engleman Oct. 17, 1926, in Uvalde. He was a member of the First Baptist Church. The Bakers moved here from Uvalde.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Audrey Glynn of Ozona, and Florence Emler of San Angelo; three sisters, and three grandchildren.

County Judge Johnny Jones opened the meeting by recommending Mrs. North, who served as deputy clerk for twelve years, be appointed. He said he felt experience in the office was the main requirement although he was aware several qualified persons were interested in the job. Commissioner Jack Williams nominated Mrs. North, but more discussion was requested.

After some discussion about qualifications and experience, Commissioner Castro nominated Edna Garza Tambunga and Comm. Sostenes DeHoyos seconded the motion. DeHoyos had submitted her name earlier along with that of Armando Gene Reina, as qualified persons although with no experience in a clerk's office. Both commissioners voted for Mrs. Tambunga.

Williams renominated Mrs. North, Judge Jones added the second and with Comm. Stuart's vote, she was named to fill the term.

Mrs. North was bonded and sworn in and began the task of moving from the county treasurer's office, where she has been payroll clerk for the past few months, back to the clerk's office to take over her duties.

The action came about after a $240,000 lawsuit, filed against county officials by Sostenes DeHoyos, was dismissed Wednesday afternoon in U.S. District Court in San Angelo. Both plaintiff and defendants agreed on the terms of the joint motion for dismissal and Judge Halbert O. Woodward granted the motion. Both sides agreed to drop litigation after terms were agreed upon.

Oil show to salute Ozona

Ozona and Crockett County will be saluted as one of the leading oil centers in the United States at the Onshore International Petroleum Exposition in Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 10-13, according to Beth Boyd, manager of the Ozona Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Boyd received word of the honor from John M. Houchin, president of the Tulsa Oil Show.

A committee of five has been appointed by the chamber to study ways to publicize Ozona and the community. The committee is made up of Mrs. Boyd, Rick Whitworth, Jack Bailey, Rex Fenton and Jay Miller. A delegation from Ozona will be welcomed by the Mayor of Tulsa and the President of the International Petroleum Exposition, Mr. Houchin, who is retired president and chairman of Phillips Petroleum Co.

The International Petroleum Exposition, which was started in 1923, has presented new and improved equipment and services to the Oil Industry through periodic exhibitions faster than oil men would have become acquainted with such without a show," Mr. Houchin said.

He pointed out that the Tulsa Show has, for many exhibitions, now, attracted attendance from all 50 states of the United States and over 60 nations of the world. The United States Government has passed a resolution inviting other nations to send delegates and the U.S. Department of Commerce has singled out the Tulsa Show as the only show in 1979 which they will sponsor from the standpoint of setting up an office at the show to help companies and/or individuals who are interested in trading with other nations.

DELEGATES TO STATE FFA CONVENTION held last week in Lubbock. Karl Vancil, Instructor for the local FFA Chapter; Jody Naron, Area II vice president; Onelta Carlisle, sweetheart and voting delegate, and Gregg Perry, District Prexy. The four members of the local chapter attended the annual affair where Naron received the Lone Star Farmer Degree, the highest degree given by the state, and the Santa Fe Educational Award for outstanding work in FFA.

THE NADER SCENARIO: A 20TH CENTURY JUNGLE

By Edwin Feulner

What we suspected all along finally has happened: the ever-predictable Ralph Nader has called on Congress to order the scrapping of the 92 nuclear power plants now under construction, and the 70 commercial plants already in operation.

Testifying before a subcommittee of the House Interior Committee on June 5, Nader said the billions of dollars it would cost would be "a cheap price to pay compared to alternative risks." The entire process, he said, should take place within the next two or three years.

We have no intention of making light of the risks involved in nuclear power generation; they are real, and potentially very serious. Yet, in the aftermath of Three-Mile Island, something has to be said about the quality of life in these United States.

As Arthur Spitzer, the self-made California business leader and original thinker — for whom the Arthur Spitzer Chair of Energy and Management at Pepperdine University is named — argues: "It is easy for Ralph Nader to preach that he would rather live by candlelight instead of nuclear energy. Since he makes a living with this kind of preaching and he knows it will never happen, he can easily preach this kind of nonsense."

The American people, however, the 80 million workers who need cars, electricity, oil, gas, and coal for their livelihoods, cannot enjoy the luxury of gambling with their futures.

"It is easy to imagine a scenario when people in this country will not be able to get gasoline or we will have shutdowns of electricity," says Spitzer. The results — nothing short of "chaos."

(For an extremely well-documented and detailed account of life in these United States without adequate electricity, we would suggest you get a copy of an excellent report by Milton Copulos, "Closing The Nuclear Option: Scenarios For Societal Change," published last year by The Heritage Foundation.)

Obviously, the risks and dangers inherent in nuclear power are many: radiation leakage, transporting and storing nuclear by-products, water treatment for the cooling systems, and so forth.

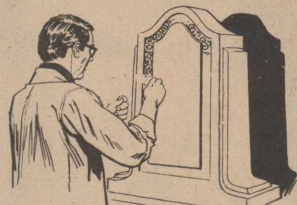

Yet this interesting but largely overlooked incident took place during Senate hearings immediately after the Three Mile Island accident:

Dr. Alvin Weinberg of Oak Ridge, Tennessee, brought a Geiger Counter — used for measuring radiation — into Room 3302 of the Dirksen Senate Office Building in Washington. He turned it on. And to the astonishment of most of those present, the instrument showed a reading of 250 "millirems," a much higher dose than the people in the vicinity of the Three Mile Island facility received. The reason is quite simple — the granite used to construct the Dirksen office building, thanks to Mother Nature, is radioactive, and always will be. Not dangerously so, but radioactive nevertheless, just the way sunlight is radioactive.

Everything has its risks. Eating chicken can be dangerous, if you happen to choke on a chicken bone. Walking across the street presents a risk. Eating peanut butter, which contains (again, thanks to Mother Nature) a powerful, naturally occurring carcinogen, might be said to be risky.

"There is risk in everything we do," says Spitzer, but we have to learn to live with and control risks, not run away from them.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Energy—how to produce more of it—remained the topic of state officials in Austin, as well as at Camp David where President Jimmy Carter was meeting with his staff to draw a new energy policy for America.

Texas Governor Bill Clements fired more criticism at Carter last week while attending a National Governor's Association meeting in Louisville, Kentucky. A governor's panel there rejected a recommendation backed by Clements for a Carter-supported plan for a windfall profits tax on higher-priced oil at 50 percent.

Clements had proposed a 100 percent tax on windfall profits that would not be reinvested in some form of energy development. Clements told the group even the oil companies are against his version because it is too restrictive.

Earlier on "Issues and Answers" television interview, Clements said he favored production of synthetic fuels, including gasoline, but would do all in his power to defeat Carter in 1980.

In The Same Boat

Meanwhile, back home in Texas Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, rapped Clements for his constant criticism of Carter, saying both men share similar energy policies.

"As far as I'm concerned, there's not a bit of difference between the president's ineffectual leadership and Gov. Clements' actions," Ogg said.

Clements' recent statements that fuel would be channeled to the cities and also saying that rural areas would not suffer were "as inadequate and confusing as the president's."

"First, he (Clements) vetoes a gasoline program for Texas. Then, on national television, he calls for production of alternative energy sources."

Ogg said in reality no solutions have been offered by either of the two leaders.

Hearing on Fuel Shortages

A Senate subcommittee hearing on fuel shortages in Texas suffered a shortage of its own—no oil producers showed up to testify.

The absence of a witness to testify for the oil industry prompted Consumer Affairs subcommittee chairman Sen. Ron Clower of Garland to blast the industry's invited spokesman for "not showing the people of Texas the courtesy to come here and present the oil industry's side of the story."

Clower was referring to Bill Abington, general counsel for Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

Those who did testify included representatives from the U.S. Department of Energy, the governor's office, service station operators, tourist development groups, businessmen, labor, consumer groups, farmers and truckers.

All testified the gasoline shortage is having serious and adverse effects on the state.

English Inevitable

Secretary of State George Strake said Wednesday he would like to see a "serious, honest" debate on bilingual voting and bilingual education in Texas.

The Republican's remarks were made in response to a Federal Election Commission report that said Spanish-speaking Texans are poorly served by state and local election officials. The report's data "are old and on a fairly small sample" and ignored other facts about Texas voting, he said.

Strake said he does not favor immediate repeal of a federal law requiring bilingual ballots, but "if the Mexican people come to the conclusion that they don't want it, I would be in favor of dropping it."

"It seems to me the longer you continue bilingual training the more you're continuing the inevitable. The sooner you get (Mexican-Americans) into an English world, the better it will be for them," Strake said. He stressed he would do all he could to involve all Texans in the political process.

Death Penalty Upheld

Texas Supreme Court rejected convicted murderer David Lee Powell's arguments that the state's execution procedures were illegally adopted and should be overturned.

The Court upheld without comment lower court decisions on Powell's appeal. Prison rules set injection with sodium thiopental as the method of execution. Powell was convicted of killing an Austin policeman with an AK-47 assault rifle.

Family Farm Security

Farmers and others are organizing to pass a constitutional amendment to authorize the state to guarantee loans to buy farm and ranch land. The bill's intent is to combat high interest loans which prevent young Texans from entering farming and ranching.

State Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, said most young persons cannot afford the almost 30 percent down payment required for farm and ranch loans. If the amendment is approved on Nov. 6, the state will issue bonds which will eventually guarantee as much as $100 million in loans.

Here are nine essentials for success:

First, the three R's, read-in', writin', 'rithmetic. Second, the three L's, living, learning, loving. Third, the three S's, serving, satisfying, saving.

An open mind affords the opportunity of dropping a worthwhile thought into it.

Some folks won't mind their business. The reason is, you'll find, they either have no business, or else they have no mind.

Optimism is patiently unraveling a piece of knotted string that you know won't be long enough anyhow.

To do a great and important work, two things are necessary: a definite plan and not quite enough time.

One thing about silence—it can't be repeated.

you and the LAW

PRESENTED BY THE
STATE BAR OF TEXAS

Q: I've been living with a man for three years, and we consider ourselves married although we never got a marriage license or had a wedding. If we decide to split up, do we have to go to court and get a divorce?

A: Because a common law marriage is just as valid as a traditional marriage, a divorce is necessary in both types of marriages. Accordingly, any property or children from either type of marriage must be divided between the husband and wife. Furthermore, neither party is free to re-marry until the common law marriage is dissolved. The law defines a common law marriage as one where the partners agree to marry, hold themselves out as being married, and live together. Contrary to popular belief, there is no minimum number of months or years a couple must live together to have a legal common law marriage.

Q: I was married here in Texas a couple of months ago. I want to keep my maiden name as my legal last name for both personal and business reasons. I still use my maiden name at work and I haven't changed my name on my driver's license. Is this OK?

A: There is no law requiring a wife to use her husband's last name or any particular name for that matter, so long as she is not attempting to defraud creditors. As far as your driver's license goes, the Texas Constitution prohibits governmental agencies from requiring a woman to use the husband's name on official documents, including a driver's license. However, to make sure that merchants carry accounts in the maiden name, you may need an order from a district judge making the decision official.

Q: Can a finance company look to a man for payment of a debt which his ex-wife agreed to assume in their divorce settlement? Both parties had signed at the time of the loan.

A: When a husband and wife sign a note to a creditor, they are jointly liable to the creditor, regardless of whether they later divorce and assign that community debt to the wife. If a creditor successfully sues the wife for payment, but is unable to collect the judgment, the creditor can then seek a judgment against the former husband.

Q: My wife and I are planning to buy a house that is presently under construction. The builder promised us he'll complete the house in 90 days if we'll sign the purchase contract. How can we protect ourselves and make sure he keeps his promise?

A: A promise for a particular completion date should be included in the written purchase contract. Further protection could be achieved by insisting that a damage clause be included in the contract to provide for alternatives in the event he failed to meet the completion deadline. Your lawyer could draft the damage clause to give you the option of rescinding the contract or of collecting damages for the contractor's breach of promise.

Q: A district court has appointed me guardian of the estate of my brother, who is incompetent to handle his own affairs. Does this give me the authority to place my brother in a private home, rest home, or state institution for his physical care?

A: No. Your appointment as guardian of the estate of an incompetent is limited to management of the incompetent person's property. Commitment to a state mental hospital, a private mental hospital or a state facility for the mentally retarded involves a separate proceeding in the county court. The legal requirements for obtaining a commitment order from a county judge vary according to the length of commitment and whether the person is mentally ill or mentally retarded.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club
by
Mrs. Bailey Post

Here it is the middle of summer and it seems only yesterday that spring was beginning. Our countryside is browning again without a good soaking rain to carry through these hot days.

This always calls for constant watering day after day to keep gardens and yards from looking unkempt and dying. Especially shallow rooted and potted plants need attention everyday.

On a drive around our city the last few days there are many beautifully colorful and well pruned landscaped yards that you will enjoy seeing.

It isn't too late to plant zinnias for a colorful fall border or bed. All-American winners are wild cherry, carved ivory and mildew resistant Zenith Hybrids: Rosy Future, Torch, Firecracker, and Yellow Zenith. The key to maintaining zinnias in good condition is to keep faded blooms removed and avoid powdery mildew.

Cut back leggy geraniums now for more compact shape. Prune long stems back to a point just above a short side shoot, and keep flowerbuds pinched off the first month. Plants should bloom well by late fall.

Collect seeds of wildflowers now for sowing this fall or next spring. Harvest early in the evening to avoid morning dews which may dampen and rot the seeds.

CHRIS CARLISLE RECEIVES AWARD

Chris Carlisle, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Don Carlisle attended both sessions of the tennis camp at Texas A&M University. The first week's session was June 1 and second session began July 8. Chris received the award given to an outstanding player during the second session of camp. It was "Most Potential Award."

Mrs. Sherman Taylor, Mrs. Joe Friend and Mrs. Charlie Applewhite returned Monday from Ruidoso, N.M., where they spent several days at the Inn of the Gods.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adams announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Kathy, to Randy Stephens, son of Mrs. Colene Stephens. The couple will be married Sept. 22, in Ozona United Methodist Church. Mr. Stephens is a graduate of Woodson High School and is employed by Delta Drilling Co. The bride-elect is a graduate of Ozona High School and is employed at Westernman Drug.

Mrs. Adams hosts C.C. Bridge Club

Mrs. Clay Adams was hostess for bridge at the Country Club Thursday.

Winning high was Mrs. J.J. Marley, while second high went to Mrs. Rip Sewell. High couple was Mrs. Beecher Montgomery and Mrs. Gene Williams. Mrs. C.O. Walker won the bingo and Mrs. Larry Braden was low.

Others playing were Mrs. Tommy Wilson, Mrs. Dick

Use pattern in decorating scheme

Incorporate pattern into the over-all decorating scheme, says Sue Young, a housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Use room size and location to determine whether or not to use pattern in the first place.

A living room is no place for a large, decorative wallpaper. An overpowering pattern tends to make the space look busy and visually jarring.

An effective living room should be easy on the eyes and inviting.

Conversely, patterned fabrics, such as a colorful chintz spread for the sofa or the same fabric used as draperies, can give a room a sense of warmth.

Small rooms or tiny areas—such as the ceiling and walls above the tops of kitchen cabinets—will do justice to patterned wallpaper. Rooms that are used infrequently are other candidates for wallpaper, Mrs. Young continues.

Bathrooms are fine for all kinds of small prints.

The size of the pattern or design is important. Wallpaper patterns range from large, insistent designs to tiny, small-scaled geometrics, narrow stripes, and linen textures, which are subtle enough to lend texture rather than pattern to a scheme.

ture rather than pattern to a scheme.

Avoid trend-setting patterns. Their popularity may wear thin in a year, and the room will look as dated as last season's hemline, the specialist cautions.

When using a pattern, select it first, with the color for walls, trim and ceiling cued to it.

Otherwise, you may search in vain for a pattern which blends in with a desired scheme and an established wall color, she adds.

Ms. Huffman Arthritis chairman

Mrs. Penny Willhite, Chairman of the West Texas Chapter, today announced that Betty Huffman, has agreed to conduct a Special Event in Ozona to raise funds for the West Texas Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

Mrs. Willhite said that funds raised from this event will help to support services for Arthritis and their families in this area and to advance the National Foundation's research programs that are directed at finding the cause and cure to Arthritis.

More than 31,000,000 Americans are afflicted with Arthritis serious enough to require medical care, 500 right here in Crockett County. Arthritis, the Nation's #1 Crippler, costs the national economy a staggering $13 billion annually in lost wages and medical care bills. The cost in human suffering, in pain and disability, is beyond measure.

Children need a wide variety of learning experiences to help them cope in their changing world.

The information children need to know in order to develop into healthy individuals probably will not come about without help from others. Someone must provide an example, encouragement and opportunities for reinforcement.

Parents, teachers, older brothers and sisters, friends and relatives can help children develop attitudes and skills which encourage successful growth and development.

A child needs to learn to: Trust self and others.

The child who has enjoyed a close relationship with his family since babyhood is eager to experience life and everything it has to offer.

Trust is built by having repeated successful experiences with family and friends. Children who feel safe and secure become adults who are open to reaching out to others.

Accept his or her own body.

A person's own body is his or her most important possession. Children become aware of and fascinated by their bodies at an early age.

Parents and others can encourage acceptance of the body by first accepting their own body. They can help the child learn about the body. Parents can play games to help the child learn the names of the body parts.

Be familiar with the world around them.

Such items of knowledge are the bits and pieces that make up thinking. The brain is capable of storing miscellaneous facts picked up in everyday experiences and using them when they apply to the problem at hand. The more information a child has, the more detailed and clearer his thinking.

Establish satisfying relationships with others.

It is crucial that the child observe adults who are successfully relating with others.

Find acceptable ways of expressing feelings.

Anger, fear, jealousy, joy, sadness, regret, concern and hostility are all practical and normal emotions.

Adults who provide examples of acceptable ways to express emotions, who accept the child's feelings and who patiently guide the child toward self-control are teaching invaluable lessons.

Be responsible. Adults who show appreciation for tasks well done are likely to have children who enjoy working and who willingly take on more responsibility.

Children can learn to approach even the routine chores of life in a positive manner. The time to develop this attitude toward work is when the child is young and wants to help. Solve problems efficiently. Children learn decision making from observing how adults make decisions.

Laugh. Mirth and joy give one's outlook on life a glow and warms relationships. Accept humans as mistake-makers.

On All Spring and Summer Fashions

No one wanted the old country church torn down when the new building was put up across the road. It just didn't seem respectful. Charlie Swenson suggested, "Why not make it a museum?"

You should have seen the activity here one Saturday. Everyone for miles around turned out, bringing mops and paint brushes — and, of course, chicken salad and apple pies. Then we had a dedication ceremony. Charlie Swenson's wife accompanied us on the old piano as we sang "The Church's One Foundation."

Now tourists from the city come out to see the pot-bellied stoves, rustic pews and old lamps in our church museum. Once each summer we worship here.

For some of us there will always be a place in our hearts for this little church where we first learned about the teachings of God's Son. We love the new one, too. It is leading new generations into finding the same enduring values.

Energy shortage caused by regulation

The Federal government's efforts to regulate energy production, distribution and use have caused the current energy shortage and it's time to get "the regulators out of the energy business," says the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association. The livestock producer group, meeting in Corpus Christi July 6-7, sent a resolution to President Carter and his energy advisors calling for deregulation of U.S. energy so that "this country's vast energy resources may be located, developed and distributed to the American consumers in the most expeditious and equitable manner ever devised by a civilized society."

Texas Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent of Kerrville told the 410 cattlemen in attendance that the long-term energy picture for Texas is bleak unless alternate sources of energy are developed. He pointed out that Texas is the leading state in lignite coal supplies, has a burgeoning gasohol industry, is rich in shale oil and has an excellent potential for solar and geo-thermal energy production.

In a bullish short-term outlook on cattle prices, Dr. Ed Uvacek, Texas A&M University livestock economist, warned that double-digit inflation was short-changing cattlemen and deflating current cattle prices.

A 10 per cent decrease in beef supplies for consumers in 1979 will be offset by an almost two per cent increase in total red meat production. He also said cattlemen are beginning to rebuild depleted cattle numbers.

Feeder cattle this fall will not be in tight supply as expected earlier. Light calves should bring no less than 85 cents a pound this fall. He expected feeder prices to follow the fed cattle market, but with higher grain prices, that market's profit margins will be slim.

J. Evan Goulding, legal counsel for the National Cattlemen's Association in Denver, reviewed cattlemen's struggle to remove a ban on 2,4,5-T, a herbicide used in brush control for decades. NCA and other livestock associations have joined Dow Chemical Company in a lawsuit to overturn the Environmental Protection Agency ban. Goulding warned that negative publicity and attempts to link the cost-saving tool to the controversial Agent Orange of Vietnam notoriety by the media, environmentalists and emotional elements within the Veterans Administration could force manufacturers to abandon production entirely.

Dr. George Race, special advisor to Texas Governor Clements on human and social diseases, reviewed his report to the governor on the brucellosis eradication program. His recommendations were similar to those prepared by TSCRA President John B. Armstrong of Kingsville for the Senate Committee on Appropriations recently.

The cattle raisers passed three other resolutions:

Opposition to any limitation of hide exports which would have a negative effect and cause financial losses to the cattle industry.

Endorses efforts of National Cattlemen's Association and other cattle organizations to have hexachlorethane reinstated or the delay of a ban by the Food and Drug Administration until adequate substitutes are provided. The drug is used in the treatment of liver flukes in cattle.

TSCRA also endorsed efforts to procure for Texas cattlemen the British product Valbazen, a drug used in 20 countries and available in Mexico for the treatment of the costly and debilitating parasites.

Asked for a postponement of the ban on DES, an estrogenic drug used to promote growth in cattle, and the possible ban of Synovex, a similar drug, until a high-level, impartial study by a qualified organization is made on the merits and demerits of both.

A detailed explanation of the recent law allowing agricultural lands in Texas to be taxed on productivity rather than speculative cash value was made by Ed Small, TSCRA attorney. Agricultural landowners have until July 16 to file for this valuation in 1979.

The two-day meeting concluded with a tour of King Ranch.

Armstrong said the next quarterly meeting of the 13,090-member group will be in Laredo, Texas November 9-10.

Crockett County Care Center News

By Joan Nicholas
Activities Program Director

We had a wonderful time, Thursday evening, at the Center when residents entertained with an ice cream party honoring volunteers serving during the past year.

Gandy's very generously donated all the ice cream, and families of many residents, along with Mrs. Farris and Ann Mayo, assisted me in baking a large variety of cookies.

Presiding over the guest book and greeting guests at the front door were Lisa DeHoyos, L.V.N. and resident, Ruby Cooksey, looking very charming in a deep violet dress.

Refreshments were served to over one hundred people commencing at 6:30 p.m. in spite of the fact that several volunteers were out of town on trips, and some of the young folks were working.

Carol Carlisle, president of the Auxiliary, presented service pins to the junior and senior auxiliary members, and I presented certificates from the State Department of Health for meritorious service to members and other volunteers who have served regularly covering a broad spectrum of services to the Center.

Jamie Knox and his Band, including Don Kilgore, Jean Ann and Ollie Sudduth, entertained the large group with lively music which kept feet tapping from the youngest to the oldest. We finished up about 9:15 p.m. which is pretty late for us!

My thanks to Gandy's and their salesman, Bert (whose last name escapes me at the moment), to those who brought cookies and helped serve the refreshments, and to the band. We will make this get-together and awards night a regular thing in July of each year.

As to other news--see that Shorty Flores has made a new friend during his patio meditating each day. One of our latest family of kittens has become quite tame and really enjoys Shorty, cigar and all!

Due to the fact that we were preparing for the party on Thursday afternoon, I delayed our reading and discussion group until Monday afternoon. Subject matter was taken from a magazine on the mother of Rosalynn Carter, our First Lady, entitled "My Extraordinary Mother." Allie Murray

Smith was only thirty-four when her husband died leaving her with four young children and no income. Rosalynn is her oldest child. When the story was over we naturally started to talk about the President and his plans. Gertrude Daniels was the only resident who stayed up late enough to catch most of his speech on Sunday night. One resident stated that they could not do much to influence matters one way or another, but when we discussed the appalling lack of voters in elections, we decided that before the next election we would all get together, discuss the issues and candidates, and then vote...this much we could, and would do.

Monday morning, Jessie Deaton decided that she would join the dominoes group. She confessed that it had been twenty to twenty-five years since she had played the game. Well, one would never know it! She was only five points behind winner Eleanor Bradford at table No. 1. Paul Cavin, August Prugel, Mike Pena, and Ruby Cooksey played at the other table. Paul won and Mike and Ruby tied for second place.

Bingo winner of the week was Mary Seelye who seems to be in the winning groove lately, and received the gift certificate donated by Watsons Department Store. Mary Pender, Gertrude Daniels and Ruby Cooksey all tied for second, and received prizes.

The sad news is that Swede Lundgren and Grace Cotter both had falls over the weekend and are in San Angelo hospitals recovering from surgery. We trust they will be back with us very soon. Floy Clare Short had some more bad luck, and is wearing a cast on her left hand.

Thanks go to volunteers serving during the past week: Velma Marley, Mattie Cooper, Grace Dorsey, Carol Carlisle, Sophie Kyle, Lois Lock, Louise Johnigan, Lola Rios, Maria Vitela, Maricella Dunn, Doris Karr, Georgia Kirby, and Junior Auxiliary members: Deniese and Reinita Hedrick, Doreen Watson and Tasha Light. Deniese is the new president of that group. Bro. Lanham conducted the Sunday devotional and brought along his guitar.

Farm land on decline

The amount of rural land available for farming, ranching, and forestry declined nearly 37 million acres between 1967 and 1977, while the proportion of good, fair and poor agricultural land remained about the same. Of the total rural nonfederal land, 414 million acres are fairly level, while 1 billion acres have gentle to very steep slopes. Nearly 270 million acres are wet, while about 402 million acres are droughty or lack enough water to grow agricultural crops or trees. Many of these conditions, singly or in combination, limit the use of land.

Land available for grazing has increased sharply since 1967, rising to 541 million acres in 1977. Today more than half the nonfederal agricultural land is used for native pasture, pastureland or rangeland. There has been a corresponding decline in nonfederal forestland.

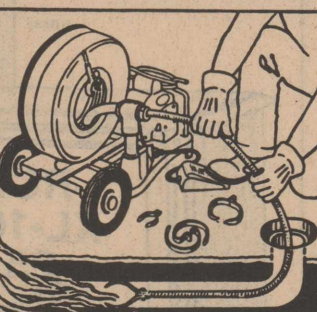

Homes, businesses, roads and ponds are swallowing rural land at the rate of about 3 million acres a year. Most of this irreversible change is related to urban expansion. Nearly one-third of the rural land lost to development is cropland. Small water areas increased by more than 1 million acres in the 1967-77 decade.

Record book workshop scheduled

A 4-H Record Book Workshop will be held July 23, 24, and 25th from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. at the Ozona Community Center. All 4-H members are welcome to attend. 4-H members will be able to complete their record books during the three sessions. The record books will be judged in the district office on July 31. 4-H members will receive ribbons for completing their record books.

To enter a record book, kids need to be 9-19 years of age and have completed a 4-H project. The book contains their 4-H project records and a story telling what 4-H means to their family. Younger 4-H members are encouraged to complete record books in order to apply for trips, scholarships, and other 4-H awards.

CB base station antennae can kill "Breaker one-nine" for a warning on CB radio base station antennas--and other home gadgets. They pose a death threat-by electrocution.

Almost 1,200 people died from 1975-1977 in the United States from accidental electrocution, says Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Antennas for television and CB radio base stations were the number-one hazard.

Most deaths linked with antennas happened when the device hit an overhead power line as the victim put it up or took it down.

As a result, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission now requires manufacturers and importers to include warning labels--and insulation instructions--with all outdoor television antennas and those for CB base stations.

They must do the same with masts or other devices intended to support these antennas.

Other electrocutions involved hair-care equipment and other devices.

Hair dryers were a major culprit--killing children who dropped a plugged-in hair dryer into a sink full of water or into a bathtub while bathing.

Many appliances can kill when not turned on--only plugged in, Ms. Kerbel warns.

Even better, do not use electrical appliances in the bathroom.

Industry has agreed to put stronger warnings and more visible markings on hair dryers to caution against their use in or near water.

Estrogens investigated, possible cancer risks

Estrogens, the female sex hormones, are being investigated at the Southwest Foundation for Research and Medicine here to confirm suspected cancer risks and seek safer substitutes.

Among the hormones under study is DES (diethylstilbestrol) which the U.S. FDA is considering banning because of its confirmed risk of vaginal cancer in daughters of women who took the drug during pregnancy.

The potential of estrogens for causing cancer (carcinogenicity) or for permanently transforming a cell line (mutagenicity) is being probed by Dr. Robert H. Purdy, a Foundation Scientist. His research is supported by an American Cancer Society grant.

Scientists have found that mutagens, such as certain chemicals or some forms of radiation, in addition to causing mutations can also usually cause cancer. DES is a confirmed mutagen but its potential as an actual carcinogen has not yet been confirmed. The Foundation scientists will use some of the established criteria for detecting mutagens in probing the ability of estrogens to cause cancer.

The research at the Foundation includes other estrogens, natural and synthetic, which are now being given for treatment, particularly to women who have problems brought on by endocrine changes following menopause.

Dr. Purdy and his colleagues are examining cell chemical "intermediates". These substances, produced by the hormone during metabolism before end-products appear, can disclose two possibilities. One will provide clues to the mechanism that makes hormones effective, which is still unknown. The second could yield designs for substitute hormones with harmless side effects. Some of the chemical questions can be answered by using constituents of liver cells from baboons raised at the Foundation.

The estrogen investigation was deemed especially important by Dr. Purdy in light of recent statistical studies. These show a much increased risk of uterine (endometrial) cancer among women having had estrogen treatment, usually for menopausal difficulties.

One such study by Dr. Carlos F. Antunes and others at Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health, published in the New England Journal of Medicine last month, included 451 cases of cancer of the body of the uterus along with Stockmen and livestock industry groups who've attempted to keep track of rapidly escalating federal control over private matters have cast many nervous glances in the area of endangered plants. They've done so after seeing the often insane developments surrounding so-called endangered animals.

Texas Sheep

Goat News

It's the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association's happy task to inform interested parties that the excesses prevalent in much of the government's wildlife protection schemes don't appear to have migrated to endangered plant regulations. At least not so far.

The U.S. Interior Department's recent regulations concerning endangered or threatened plants apparently won't go near as far as they could have toward disrupting livestock production.

Most notably, there is no prohibition against the "taking" of such plants. In other words, intentional or accidental destruction of obscure but officially protected plants will not be illegal. Comments in the text of the new regulations note that the laws under which they were drawn up don't allow for "taking" prohibitions.

Naturally, stockmen as a rule have no desire to go around massacring rare and endangered plants on their land, so what should they care about whether or not that type of practice is illegal?

Notice of REWARD

I am offering

$500 Reward for apprehension and conviction of guilty parties to every theft of livestock in Crockett County - except that no officer of Crockett County may claim the reward.

Billy Mills

Sheriff, Crockett Co.

Seriously though, had "taking" prohibitions been included in the regulations, it could have led to nightmarish complications. Consider the case of range plants toxic to livestock; given the federal penchant for extravagantly expanding protection lists to include undeserving species, stockmen might have been prohibited by law from controlling such poisonous range plants.

There are numerous other potential problems stockmen have escaped. One thing they apparently haven't escaped, however, is the possibility of losing federal cooperative programs in cases where they might conflict with listed plants. This obviously includes ASCS cost-shares on range improvements as well as SCS planning services and the like. As for graziers on public lands, well, there's no telling what new headaches they'll end up suffering.

The important thing, however, is that it could have been worse--much, much worse. Thank heaven for little miracles, and Washington for big ulcers.

Ozona Royals blank Big Lake Tigers

By Orlando DeHoyos

The Ozona Royals reaped revenge as they swept a double header from the Big Lake Tigers by the scores of 3-0 and 7-3 here Sunday. Excellent control pitching and an infield that found the right potion and jelled for a solid defensive effort were the key ingredients in the two victories for the Ozona team.

In the initial game of the twinbill, pitcher Robert Mendez 2-0, nipped away at the strike zone throughout the game as well as throwing harder as the game progressed, to virtually handcuff the Big Lake batters on just four hits and seal the victory. A couple of timely double plays didn't hurt his cause either. With the game scoreless, Ricky DeHoyos received a base on balls in the top of the third inning and then advanced to third on a faulty pickoff attempt by the Big Lake pitcher. He later scored on a groundout by Rudy Martinez. In the fourth inning, the Royals pushed across another run as team batting average leader John Galvan led off with a hard hit double to left field and scored on a single up the middle by team RBI leader Orlando DeHoyos. The final run came in the sixth as Orlando DeHoyos singled, stole second base and came in on a deep single by Richard Sanchez.

The second game began on a bit of controversy as Big Lake manager Juan Levario began mingling with the Ozona fans after being loudly jeered. To the dismay of both teams, Levario had one fan ejected for being "noisy" and to top it all, he got the local sheriff to actually arrest that fan!

In the second game, pitcher Rudy Martinez, 9-2, began where Robert Mendez had finished, namely by displaying good control pitching. The Royal offense began its support of Martinez in the first inning as Martinez led off with a walk. Hector DeHoyos also walked. Romaldo Cervantez then struck out and hot-hitting John Galvan and Orlando DeHoyos followed with RBI singles for the first two runs of the game. In the fourth inning, Richard Sanchez singled across Edward Ybarra and Jimmy Tambunga. In the sixth, the combo of John Galvan and Orlando DeHoyos were at it again as Galvan opened with a single, stole second and came home on a double by DeHoyos. The final two runs for the Royals came in the top of the seventh when Ben Badillo singled with two outs and went to third on a single by John Galvan. Galvan stole second, and then both runners came home as the Big Lake catcher wildly threw past the third baseman on a pickoff attempt. The three Big Lake runs came in the sixth by way of the only error for the Royals all day as a cinch double play was booted by the shortstop with one out. The next Big Lake batter proceeded to triple across both the runs and scored himself on a sacrifice fly.

This Sunday the Royals 27-8, travel to Sonora to take on the Red Sox. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By Jerry Lay

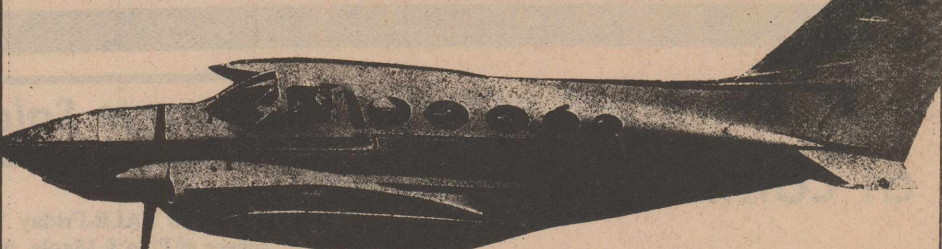

Here's a tough baseball question...Who holds the all-time big league record for batting in the most runs in one season?...Answer is NOT Babe Ruth or Hank Aaron or Ted Williams or any of the sluggers you usually think of first..Record is held by Hack Wilson who drove in 190 runs for the Cubs in 1930.. Nobody in the majors has ever topped that.

Did you know there was once a professional boxing match in which both fighters KNOCKED EACH OTHER OUT!..It was a match some years ago between Earl Williams and John King..In the 4th round, both men threw a knockout punch and connected on each other at the same time.. Both fell to the floor and were counted out!..How was the fight scored?.. It was called a draw.

I bet you didn't know...L-B Motor has the prettiest Chevrolets, Buicks, Pontiacs, Cadillacs, and Oldsmobiles around. Come by and take your pick and if L-B doesn't have what you're looking for they will order what you want.
