Malone-Hogan lays off 10 workers

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Malone-Hogan Hospital laid off 10 employees Friday, reducing the number of full-time hospital employees to 250, said Emily Ward, public relations director for the hospital.

In addition, the hospital has taken other steps to reduce staff, she said. It has left vacancies unfilled and cut the number of hours worked by some employees. The hospital also has notified other "as called" employees used during the hospital's peak times they will no longer be called in for work.

The other reductions, added to the 10 layoffs, means the hospital has cut staff by the equivalent of 35

Fewer patients forces hospital to reduce staff employees, Ward said. Of the 10 employees laid off, four were full-time, five were part-time and one was a temporary employee, according to Ward.

Only one full-time nurse, a licensed vocational nurse, was laid off, she said.

The layoffs were caused by "a declining number of people using the hospital," Ward said.

"Nationwide, most hospitals are experiencing a decline in the number of their patients," Ward said.

According to Ward, the average daily census for the first three months of 1985 was down 24 percent from the first three months of 1984.

The decline in in-patient numbers is caused partly by increases in insurance and reimbursement trends, she said. "Deductibles are going up," she said. "That makes us think twice about going into the hospital."

The hospital's census, however, shows that the number of people using the hospital's outpatient services has increased, Ward said. As a result, none of the layoffs came from the outpatient services areas, she said.

"Employees hired there last year are still working here," she said. "There were no layoffs there."

"The key is the increase in the number of people using out-patient services," she said. "People are taking better care of themselves."

Ward said the layoffs were a "response to the economy and the lower (hospital) census figures." "The general economy is down,"

she said.

The census at Hall-Bennett Hospital also has dropped, but not drastically, said hospital administrator Charles Weeg. "Ours is about the same."

Admissions, however, have dropped at Hall-Bennett because of a Medicare program that requires as many medical procedures as possible to be performed on an outpatient basis.

In addition to the 250 full-time workers the hospital employs, 15 part-time employees remain on the payroll, she said.

The hospital's last layoffs occurred in the spring last year, Ward said. "We had a layoff about this size in Spring 1984," she said.

'Copter crashes 19 believed dead

TOKYO (AP) — A U.S. military helicopter with 19 people aboard plunged into the ocean off southern Japan today and there were believed to be no survivors, the Maritime Safety Agency said.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman, Air Force Maj. Peter Hefler, said the Marine Corps helicopter apparently was returning from Japan to the Marine base on Okinawa. He said between 15 and 19 men were believed aboard.

"I haven't got anything as to their fate, but it does not look as if there were survivors," he said. Marine spokesman Capt. Mark Hough said the number on board was in the "high teens."

A U.S. Marine spokesman in Okinawa said an initial search found no survivors.

The Japanese Maritime Safety Agency reported that the helicopter, traveling from the Marine base at Iwakuni, about 431 miles southwest of Tokyo, to the base at Futenma in Okinawa, crashed at 12:50 p.m. local time today (11:50 p.m. Sunday EDT).

Boom going bust? Rural areas plowed under

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas was once branded a boom state, but recent statistics indicate some rural communities are rapidly losing population and may soon become extinct.

While Texas' population grew by 27 percent during the 1970s, a much different saga unfolded in the vast rural expanses of West Texas where 41 counties lost population and five others experienced minuscule gains, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

Some communities now face not only decline, but extinction. The potential ghost towns were founded on agrarian economies that are now reeling from the shift to large-scale farming and several years of low crop and cattle prices.

Many of the fading rural communities also have rapidly aging populations. The median age in some areas is 40 to 52 years. That compares with a youthful median age of 28 for the state as a whole, according to census figures.

Only a youthful, growing Hispanic population is preventing a population decline in some West Texas counties, where census figures show a striking difference in the median ages of Anglo and Hispanic populations.

For example, in Dawson County, which includes the town of Lamesa, the 1980 Census shows a median age of 19.3 years for the population "of Spanish origin." The predominantly Anglo portion of the population listed as "white" has a median age of 38.6 years.

Even Chamber of Commerce officials admit that things are far from rosy in rural West Texas.

"The metropolitan areas have absorbed the growth. That's where the action has been," said Adolph Janca, executive vice president of the Abilene-based West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

"Farming and ranching have gone down as the dominant industry," he said. "A lot of the family farms have gone by the wayside."

Some West Texas counties also have had "a real scare thrown into them" because of "the realization that oil and gas is dwindling," Janca said.

Steve Murdock, head of the rural sociology department at Texas A&M University, said the declining population in rural West Texas counties is "typical of almost anywhere in the United States where you have a primarily agricultural economy."

From 1900 to 1930, Haskell County grew from 2,637 residents to 16,660. However, by 1980 the county's population had eroded to 7,725, less than half what it had been 50 years earlier.

"Unless your family has an established business, it's pretty tough for a kid to come back here," said Haskell postmaster Joe Alves. "They really don't have a lot of options. We've lost a lot of good kids."

Another shrinking community, Weinert, lies 12 miles north of Haskell. R.S. Sanders, 64, a retired farmer and the town's postmaster for 27 years, recalled Weinert's glory days.

Weinert now has a population of 250, a single grocery store, a post office and a school building.

Foot stomper hasn't the sole to tread lightly

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A man arrested more than 40 times in the last 15 years for stomping on women's feet says he doesn't want to be released from prison for fear he'll start up where he left off.

George Mitchell, 36, said he has thought of killing himself because he can't stop stepping on feet and hasn't found anyone who can help him.

"I'd rather be dead than stomp on another woman's foot," he said in a recent interview. "It's uncontrollable."

During the past 15 years, Mitchell has been out of jail less than 11 months. He is scheduled to be released from prison June 4 after serving a two-year sentence for aggravated assault for using heavy wooden shoes to tread on the feet of three women.

"The next thing I know is that I'm busted," he said. "My stomach tightens up and I shake when I do it. I don't want to do it. There's been too damn many of them. I'm sick of it — all the publicity. But there ain't a damn thing I can do about it. I'm mixed up right now, but I ain't no bad person."

According to police records, the 6-foot-3, 160-pound Mitchell stomps or sometimes drops books on women's feet.

"Something in me says don't do it, but something more powerful says go ahead," he said.

"He's been evaluated but the reports have come back that he's sane," said Assistant District Attorney General David Komisar.

Two Germans and their people

Divided country remains one of the world's most vexing problems

BERLIN (AP) — From Prussia's rise in the 18th century to the contemporary legacy of Adolf Hitler, the world has always grappled with the "German problem."

A perplexing people, the Germans. Their history embodies both the zenith and nadir of mankind's works.

Western culture reached a peak in the creations of Bach and Beethoven, Luther, Goethe and Einstein. Then it crashed to the depths when the Germans threw in with Hitler in 1933 and took the path that led to Auschwitz and other horrors.

Today, 40 years after the defeat of the Nazi regime, Germany remains one of the world's most vexing problems. It is artificially divided into rival power blocs and is the only place in the world where the two superpowers face each other with powerful military force — the potential flashpoint for global nuclear war.

For the postwar generation, the furor is bewildering and irritating. Half the West Germans alive today were born after 1945 and have no personal memories of World War II or the Nazi atrocities committed in the name of their nation.

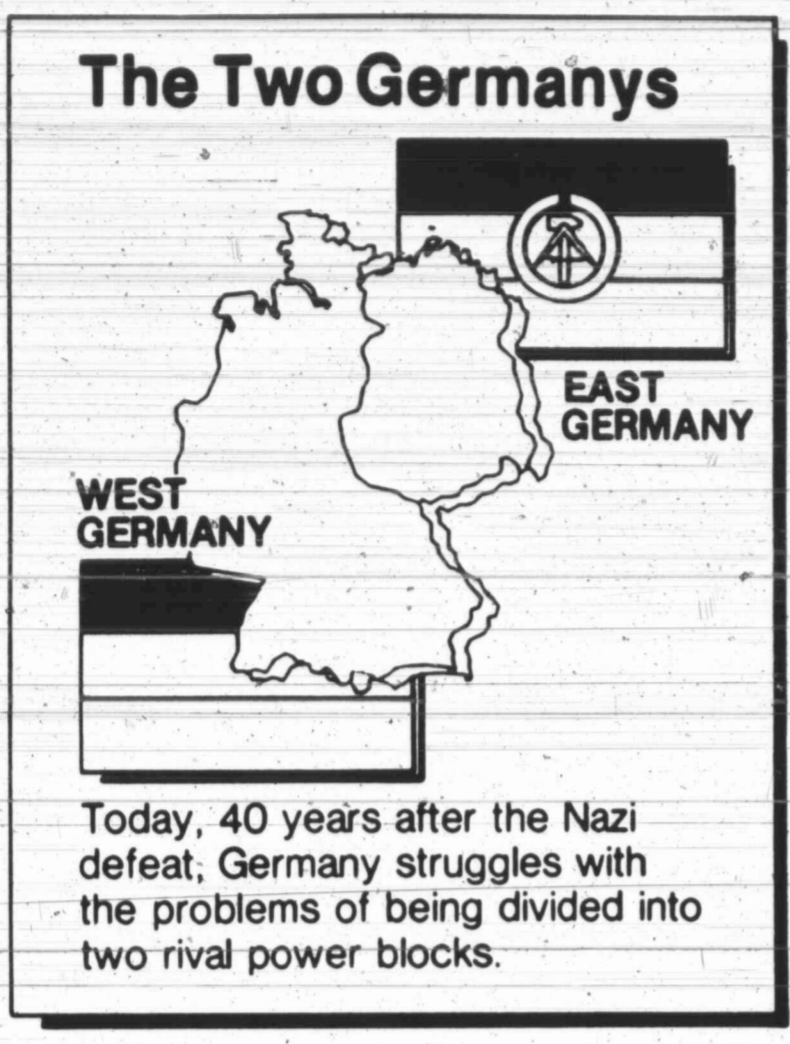

But a recent survey by Infas, a West German polling institute, indicated that 61 percent of Germans younger than 25 wanted to know more about the Nazi era, which is often treated superficially in school history lessons while the achievements of postwar Germany are stressed.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl, speaking at Bergen-Belsen concentration camp in northern Germany on April 21 on the anniversary of its liberation by British troops, said that Germans must accept "our shame and our historical responsibility... for Nazi tyranny."

Nevertheless, fringe groups of young neo-Nazis and unrepentant former members of Nazi legions still tarnish West Germany's reputation at home and abroad.

Aging veterans of SS divisions like the "Death's Head" and the "Hitler Youth" organization trigger uproars every year by insisting on staging reunions at rented halls. Police usually have to be called in to shield them from angry demonstrators.

The West German Interior Ministry, which supervises national security agencies, says West Germany has 68 right-wing organizations with 20,000 members, including 16 groups with 1,130 members who are avowedly neo-Nazi.

Interior Ministry spokesman Hans-Guenter Kowalski said there has been a "steady increase" in membership in right-wing extremist groups over the last 10 years, but he noted that far-right candidates polled less than 1 percent of the vote in the 1983 national elections.

Left-wing terrorists like the Red Army Faction pose a far greater threat in their struggle to undermine West German society with attacks on government, military and business targets.

Nearly 30 people — most of them urban guerrillas — have died in the violence dating back to the early 1970s. Authorities say that a recent rash of bombings and the assassination of a prominent West German industrialist near Munich shows the undiminished fanaticism of the Red Army Faction, which is thought to have only about two dozen hard-core members.

Having overcome the wartime disaster in material terms, Germany is now a showcase of radically different social systems — democratic capitalism in West Germany and authoritarian communism in East Germany.

The Communists have walled off their territory to prevent free movement between East and West, and President Erich Honecker of East Germany has insisted in speeches that the countries will remain apart. But between the divided German people, there is an undeniable emotional tug toward reunification.

While diplomatic relations between the two Germans have warmed considerably in the past two years, the United States and the Soviet Union have been unable — or unwilling — to guide the states toward reconciliation.

The United States is on record as favoring reunification.

Chancellor Kohl's government, adhering to the West German constitutional goal of reunification, promotes travel to East Germany and backs loans, subsidies and favorable trade arrangements with East Berlin in the name of easing the lives of East German citizens.

Judged by opinion surveys, public sentiment in West Germany favors reunification, particularly if it would mean withdrawal of nuclear arms from a region bristling U.S. and Soviet arsenals.

A poll last year by the Allensbach Institute showed that 53 percent of West Germans over age 16 want a reunited, nonaligned Germany.

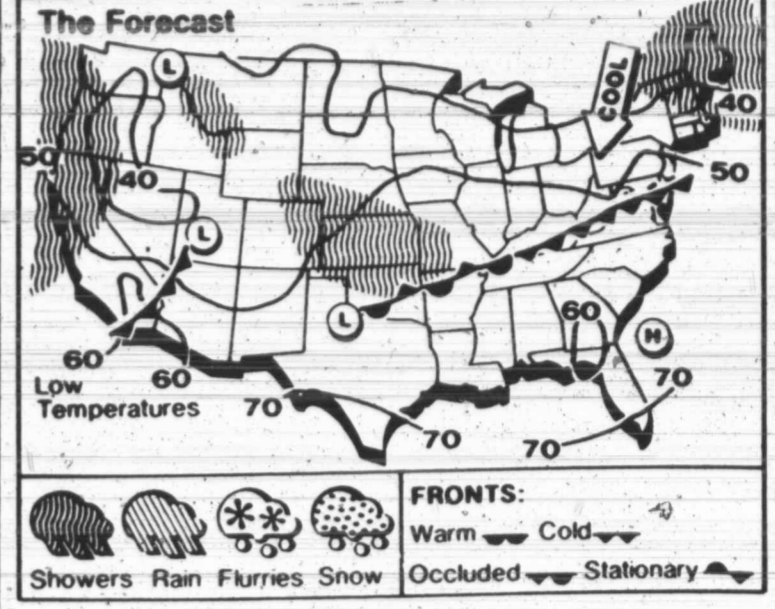

Today, the burning issue among young Germans is the presence of U.S. troops and nuclear weapons in West Germany — and, to a lesser extent, the Soviet military deployment in East Germany.

In the fall of 1983, more than 1 million West Germans staged peaceful marches against the deployment of new U.S. Pershing 2 nuclear missiles. The marchers rarely mentioned Soviet SS-20 missiles, contending they could do nothing about the Russians.

The rise of the pacifist, environmentalist Greens party — which advocates West German withdrawal from NATO — is a symptom of the anti-establishment mood in the young generation. The Greens polled 5 to 10 percent of the vote in recent elections to stake a claim as the country's third-largest party.

In one scenario for reunification, U.S. and Soviet military forces would disengage from the two Germans to permit a united country under strict neutrality.

U.N. reviews evictions

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia — A top U.N. official has flown to northern Ethiopia to investigate reports that the Marxist government forcibly evicted more than 50,000 famine victims from the country's largest refugee center.

Meanwhile, the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization said today that Ethiopia and five other African countries will face "a major disaster" if donor governments do not deliver promised food aid in the coming weeks.

Kurt Jansson, a U.N. assistant secretary-general, was expected to return today to the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa after a one-day visit to the Gondar region in northern Ethiopia, in which the Ibtet camp is located. He is to meet with President Mengistu Haile Mariam to discuss his conclusions.

Police seal off township

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — More than 1,000 soldiers and police sealed off a black township in the eastern Cape province and arrested 26 blacks after an outbreak of arson and a shooting death. Police said the security forces withdrew this morning.

Two blacks were slain in Kwanobuhle township on Sunday, while another was killed in anti-apartheid violence near Johannesburg.

Police said they searched houses for what they called agitators and common criminals.

An officer on Sunday shot a 27-year-old black in the township after arsonists set fire to three houses belonging to policemen, a police spokesman said in the capital of Pretoria. He added that soldiers swept in shortly afterward.

Cubans in Afghanistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Cuban paratroopers are fighting alongside Soviet soldiers in Afghanistan and helped execute hundreds of villagers in a recent attack, according to an Afghan rebel leader.

Commander Sanagul of the Hazbe Islami guerrilla group, speaking with reporters Saturday night, said 1,200 Cuban commandos parachuted into the Qarghaie district in eastern Afghanistan in a raid on 15 villages on April 21.

They surrounded the villages, rounded up residents for questioning and executed 360 of those suspected of supporting the anti-Marxist rebels, said Sanagul, who uses only one name.

The Cubans, backed by Soviet tanks, shut some villagers inside buildings and then set the structures on fire, he said. He added that the invaders burned houses, food stores and crops in the villages to deny supplies to the guerrillas.

Not long forgotten

President leaves behind controversial visit

HAMBACH, West Germany (AP) — President Reagan, leaving behind a difficult economic summit and controversy over a Nazi gravesite visit, urged West German youths today to "create a new Europe" and help remove the threat of nuclear war.

The president flew south by helicopter from Bonn to address German students at Hambach Castle, a former imperial fortress known as the cradle of German democracy, before traveling to Spain — and new controversies over U.S. defense policies in Western Europe.

Reagan was greeted at the French air base at nearby Neustadt by a cheering crowd that included 40 flower-bearing schoolchildren — girls in blue dresses and white aprons and boys wearing red vests.

In his speech at Hambach, Reagan said that "Europe today — divided by concrete walls, by electrified barbed wire, and by mined and manicured fields, killing fields — is a living portrait of the most compelling truth of our time: the future belongs to the free."

The president declared his support for a unified Germany, saying, "The cause of German unity is bound up with the cause of democracy."

He also told his young audience that each of them "is made in the most enduring, powerful image of Western civilization. We are made in the image of God — made in the image of God the Creator."

"This is our power. This is our freedom. This is our future. And through this power, not drugs, not materialism, nor any other 'ism,' we can find brotherhood; and you can create the new Europe — a Europe democratic; a Europe united East with West; a Europe, at long last, completely free."

The president made a pitch for his space-based "Star Wars" anti-missile defense plan, calling it a "non-nuclear defense not to harm people, but to prevent missiles from reaching our soil."

Urging the students to pursue careers in high technology, Reagan said that "technology developed by your generation could render nuclear weapons obsolete."

He pledged the United States to "never stop praying, never stop working, never stop striving" until an agreement is reached with the Soviet Union to "rid the earth of nuclear weapons forever."

Tens of thousands of protesters marched in several Spanish cities Sunday demanding the closure of U.S. military bases in Spain and a Spanish withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In addition, Reagan's policy toward in Central America and his decision to impose economic sanctions against Nicaragua have also drawn sharp criticism in Spain.

Reagan's journey ends Friday upon his return to Washington, but the lasting images of the trip will have come from the controversial ceremony in Bitburg paying homage to German war dead.

It was part of a day-heavy on symbolism.

TV makes kids chubby

BOSTON — A doctor has some advice for parents of chubby children: Turn off the television set.

His research shows that heavy doses of TV make children fat. Youngsters who spend a lot of time in front of the television in their pre-teen years often turn out to be obese adolescents.

"If there is a problem of obesity in the family or if their child is becoming overweight, they should consider reducing the amount of television time as a way of treating that problem," said Dr. William H. Dietz Jr. of New England Medical Center.

He suspects that devoted TV viewers are fatter than other youngsters because they eat more and exercise less.

Dietz's study, conducted with Dr. Steven L. Gortmaker of Harvard School of Public Health, was published in the May issue of the journal, Pediatrics.

Saturn orbits Texas city

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. will locate its 6,000-employee Saturn plant in Elkhart, Ind., and in Lima, Ohio; in Kalamazoo, Mich., and in Lexington, Ky. — all according to published reports.

However, Sherman, Texas, is a leading contender; Bessemer, Ala., might still be under consideration; Tennessee is still in the running; the field is narrowing to Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Iowa, Pennsylvania, Texas, Indiana, Arizona and Michigan; Kentucky may have an edge; Oklahoma and Washington are long shots, and Maryland may have a good shot, other published reports say.

But Wisconsin's hope are fading and Minnesota won't be selected, still other published reports contend.

"None of those are true," says GM's Stan Hall.

Jump starting a satellite

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Astronauts on an August mission of space shuttle Discovery will rescue a crippled $85 million satellite in a spacewalking "jump-start," according to a published report.

James D. Van Hoften and Dr. William F. Fisher will install wiring that will bypass a failed electronic sequencer on the Syncom satellite, enabling the craft to fire itself into a 22,300-mile orbit, Aviation Week & Space Technology reported.

Syncom was placed into low orbit by the space shuttle last month, but it failed to turn itself on. Astronauts on space shuttle Discovery attempted to activate the satellite using improvised "fly swatter" tools placed on the end of the shuttle's mechanical arm. The tools hit an on-off switch as planned, but Syncom did not come to life.

Molesters using newsletter, advocate says

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — In an "undeclared war" against children, child molesters use their own newsletters to share techniques for seducing innocent children, a child advocate says.

Molesters concentrate on specific age groups, at certain times of the day, and have what they call easy steps to lure a child into sexual abuse, Kenneth Wooden told an audience of parents, day-care workers, teachers, police and social workers Sunday.

"I wish parents were as organized as child molesters and sexual abusers," said Wooden, the founder of a national computerized network for child victims and a part-time investigative reporter on children's issues for ABC Television's "20-20."

Wooden, of Shelburne, Vt., opened a three-day state conference Sunday in Concord on health education on children. Kay Zaso, chief of the New Hampshire bureau of health promotion, said the conference is on issues "central to helping kids grow up healthy. Preventing child abduction and abuse is one of the ways."

It is estimated that there are 68 million children in this country and that about 50,000 of the estimated 1.5 million missing children were abducted by strangers, Wooden said.

"There is an undeclared war on children in this country and it includes the children who disappear off the face of the earth, those who are forced into prostitution and those who are the victims of sadism," he said.

Wooden said molesters put out national newsletters that offer such tips as using soap crayons in the bath to get young children to take off their clothes and getting involved with church and volunteer groups to get to know kids. Molesters can learn about the newsletters through coded advertisements in pornographic magazines.

"One European newsletter told its readers the name of a man who was leading an undercover investigation against child pornography and another details how society should allow sex with children before age eight. The molesters are organized," he said.

Wooden learned the techniques of child molesters by asking those in jail, he said. He also surveyed 54 Michigan schools and interviewed children bothered by strangers. His study uncovered 782 incidents and led to 21 arrests.

Recruiters flock to glass blowing school

CARNEYS POINT, N.J. (AP) — The laid-back students taking the glass blowing class at Salem Community College are often greeted by corporate recruiters offering salaries of up to $30,000 a year.

More job offers "than I could possibly fill" pour in to what instructor Joe Luisi says is the only school in the United States offering courses on scientific glass blowing.

The 20 students, who arrive for classes wearing sunglasses and stereo headphones, come from a wide range of geographic and social backgrounds to learn the trade in this rural southern New Jersey town near the Delaware River.

Traditionally, the field has paid modestly. But the increasing demand for glass blowers in burgeoning high technology industries has driven up the scale.

Companies hire the students to make specialized equipment for scientific purposes. The laboratory is filled with elaborate configurations of spiraling and curving glass tubes.

The job offers are so bountiful that an increasing number of students are leaving before completing the two-year program.

Rules defy logic in famine relief

Bureaucracy boggles the mind. While Texans are uniting to save the starving in Ethiopia under the Project Tejas program administered by the Texas Department of Agriculture, a Fairview community farmer is prohibited from sending wheat to the same destination.

Elbert Long has grown winter wheat on land "set aside" — taken out of cotton production under federal rules — and thinks it perfectly logical to ship that wheat to Ethiopia for famine relief. But somewhere in the maze of government rules is one which won't allow him to do that.

He can put the wheat to use as grazing crop for cattle, but Long doesn't have any cattle. He cannot put the wheat to any other use — he must plow it under.

Long thinks it is "a shame to let that wheat hit the ground and all those people are starving." We think it's a shame, too. In fact, who wouldn't think it's a shame?

Of course, one reason land is set aside is to limit production in a country that is too bountiful for its own good. We have more than we can use. But Ethiopia needs all it can get, and that need will not impede the purpose of the federal set aside rules. An exception should be made for Mr. Long and any others who can use their productive land to good ends halfway around the world.

Liberty is real issue in draft

The first trumpets have sounded in a campaign to revive the military draft. Gen. Bernard Rogers, commander of U.S. forces in Europe, recently urged an end to the all-volunteer force. Democratic Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina has introduced a bill to reinstate the draft. Even President Reagan, who opposes conscription, has left Jimmy Carter's registration program in place.

Much of the support for the draft has nothing to do with defense needs: It comes from people who think we should have it whether we need it or not. But the advocates of a new draft have found some evidence that they say sounds we do need it.

There are some signs that the armed services are having, or soon will have, some trouble recruiting the number and quality of people they want. A Pentagon survey shows declining interest in military service among young people. The proportion of recruits with high school diplomas has dropped.

Critics of the volunteer force say the 1981-82 recession disguised its weaknesses by encouraging enlistments. And they predict insurmountable problems in attracting volunteers as the number of young people drops in the next few years.

But these are excuses for scrapping the volunteer system, not reasons. The services actually exceeded their recruiting quotas in the first quarter of this year, confounding predictions that they would fall short.

The supposed decline in quality is hardly worth mentioning. In the first quarter of the year, 91 percent of recruits had high school diplomas. That is down from a peak of 92 percent last year, but still very high. Back in 1971, when we still had the draft, only 79 percent of inductees were high school graduates.

The recent health of the economy no doubt has made uniformed service less attractive. But a bigger reason for worry is the decline in salaries. The Pentagon says that military pay, which in 1983 was just about equal to civilian pay, has fallen nearly 7 percent below the private sector. If pay raises this year are limited to 3 percent, the gap will grow wider still.

What about the declining pool of young people? The picture really isn't so grim. The number of male high school graduates has dropped by about 11 percent in the last five years, but it's expected to be higher between 1986 and 1989. Then it will decline again, before starting steadily upward about 1994.

Obviously it's easier to recruit a given number of people from a large pool than a small one. But the all-volunteer force has a built-in cushion against any drop in enlistments. Since the draft was ended, the number of recruits who stay in the services beyond their first hitch has risen dramatically. That's not accidental: People who volunteer to join are more likely to volunteer to stay.

The more re-enlistments you get, the fewer recruits you need. Thanks to the high retention rates of the volunteer era, recruiting needs should remain more or less constant for the next five or six years. A draft, by contrast, would have the perverse effect of making it harder to keep trained people. That explains why scrapping the all-volunteer force wouldn't save much money, if any. Training a draftee costs as much as training a volunteer. But draftees, besides being averse to re-enlisting, traditionally serve two-year hitches, while volunteers serve four. Training costs thus would rise.

The services wouldn't save money on pay, either, unless they were to cut pay for everyone or pay draftees less than volunteers. Lawrence Korb, the assistant secretary of defense for manpower, told the New York Times that a draft might cost more: "The best you could hope for would be to break even."

A draft won't achieve any of the benefits promised by its advocates. It will only allow the government to exercise a broad claim on the liberty of young men. That's the main attraction for most of its supporters — and the reason that no amount of success by the all-volunteer force will end the demands to restore the draft.

Helicopters worry Koreans

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA WASHINGTON — The worst fears of federal officials who uncovered the illegal sale of American helicopters to North Korea have been confirmed by the latest top-secret intelligence from Seoul: North Korea apparently has already penetrated South Korean airspace with the choppers.

In fact, high administration officials have told us that the South Korean air force is so alarmed at overflights by look-alikes of the helicopters we supply that it has grounded its own U.S.-made choppers at various times.

The idea is to make sure that if ground troops (and anti-aircraft units) see one of the Hughes helicopters nosing around south of the demilitarized zone at a designated time, they'll know it's a North Korean infiltrator.

In a war-or-emergency situation, it's obvious that the North Koreans could use their look-alikes to create confusion in South Korean defense forces and perhaps gain a crucial advantage in the early stages of an invasion.

The tragedy is that U.S. intelligence had several major clues that the helicopter diversion to North Korea was taking place, but the right people in the Defense and Commerce departments — the people who certainly would have put a quick stop to it — were never informed. Here's the frustrating story:

In September 1983, U.S. Customs agents received detailed information that the North Koreans were illegally acquiring Hughes helicopters through a West German company. In fact, customs intelligence reported, two helicopters — the first of an eventual 87 — had been shipped out of the United States six months earlier. Incredibly, the bill of lading filed with the Customs Service had actually listed a North Korean company as the recipient.

For still unexplained reasons, customs did not share this alarming intelligence with the Commerce Department, whose undersecretary for international trade, Lionel Olmer, could have halted further shipments. And although customs did pass the information along to the Defense Intelligence Agency, the DIA for some reason did not pass it on to the Pentagon official who undoubtedly would have spotted the security breach: Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle.

With no one barring the door, the West German company was able to buy and send five more shipments to North Korea. The last load before Commerce caught on was sent in November. Fifteen helicopters left Los Angeles on a Panamanian freighter to Antwerp, Belgium. They were then loaded onto trucks and taken to Rotterdam, the Netherlands. On Dec. 10, the choppers were loaded onto a Soviet ship, the K.H. Prorokov, which carried them to Hong Kong and finally to North Korea.

It wasn't till January that Commerce learned in general about the illegal diversion of the helicopters and began an investigation. (Hughes Helicopter Co. was cleared; Commerce is investigating the West German businessman who was crucial to the operation.)

A high White House official described the helicopter diversion as "one of the most serious we've ever had" in more than a decade of Soviet-bloc efforts to beg, borrow and steal American technology.

The civilian helicopters North Korea obtained can easily be converted into military aircraft by adding machine guns, anti-tank rockets and air-to-ground missiles. But the confusion factor could be more important in the always sensitive DMZ area, because the South Koreans have more than 200 identical Hughes helicopters.

UNDER THE DOME: A backroom deal has put Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in charge of arms-control matters on the Foreign Relations Committee, to the dismay of those who know him as a determined opponent of arms agreements with the Soviet Union.

Although he is the senior member of the committee, Helms waived the chairmanship so he could remain head of the Agriculture Committee and protect his tobacco-growing North Carolina constituents. No senator may be chairman of more than one committee — or of two subcommittees on the same committee. Helms was already chairman of the Latin America subcommittee, and so couldn't take over arms control as well.

But the new committee chairman, Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who owes his chairmanship to Helms' refusal to exercise seniority, obligingly gave Helms the supervision of arms control he wanted — by reorganizing the arms-control subcommittee out of existence and privately assuring Helms that he would be informally in charge of arms control, which is now handled by the committee as a whole.

● Affable Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., apparently was stung by the nickname pinned on him because of his imposing girth: "Huge" Howell. The senator — whose actual weight is a tightly held secret — has gone on a diet and already has lost 20 pounds. He has confided to friends that he feels great. New monicker: Hungry Howell.

● State Department officials have been quietly urging the House Foreign Affairs Committee to temper its traditional enthusiasm for Israel. The officials want the committee to go slow on new aid requests until Israel shows signs that it will make genuine economic reforms and not just count on U.S. aid to support its fragile economy.

● Undersecretary of State William Schneider, the No. 5 man at Foggy Bottom, gave the department's view of Israeli intentions when he quipped to the committee: "Israel is waiting to see what the Foreign Affairs Committee will be doing."

Job pressures burden man

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband has always had a lot of pressures in his job, but they seem to be getting worse. Frankly, I don't see how he can take much more, although he is too old to change jobs. It just seems like there is no answer. — Mrs. K.E.

DEAR MRS. K.E.: I don't know exactly how God will help you and your husband — but I do know that He will help and guide you if you turn to Him. God is interested in our problems because He loves us, and He is able to help even when we think our situations are hopeless. The Bible urges, "Cast all your anxiety on him because he cares for you" (1 Peter 5:7).

Therefore, commit your lives and future to God. If you have never opened your heart to Christ, ask Him to come into your life and forgive your sins, and then commit each day to Him. True, it is hard to trust God when the way seems dark — but God can be trusted because He knows what is best for us.

The Bible says, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make your paths straight" (Proverbs 3:5-6).

How will God help your husband? He may help by giving him strength to cope with the daily pressures he feels, or God may show him some specific ways in which he can lessen the pressure. He may open up a way for your husband to share his problem with his supervisor — who may not be aware of the problem and will want to help. God may even open the door to another job.

No situation is a dead end when we know Christ. He is always with us, and when we look to Him, He will help us. And when we look at things from Christ's point of view, many of the pressures and irritations we feel every day fade into insignificance because we know the important thing is eternity.

Texas Nurses Week

RNs, LVNs invited to luncheon

In observance of Texas Nurses Week May 5-19, District #24 of the Texas Nurses Association will sponsor a luncheon at 12 p.m. Wednesday at the LaPosada. All area Registered Nurses and Licensed Vocational Nurses are invited.

Cost is $6 per person, and reservations are needed by today to Mary Butler by calling 267-8216. The Howard College R.N. graduating class will be guests.

The nursing profession has changed dramatically over the past 45 years, says Micki Potter, a psychiatric nurse. The changes resulted from the advent of antibiotics, the introduction of medical insurance, the development of new equipment, new and improved procedures and a greater understanding of how the human body works. Today's emphasis is the 'holistic' approach, treating the 'whole person'.

Nurses used to be trained in hospital-affiliated diploma schools, a three-year program of which only two remain open in Texas. The hospitals depended on student nurses and new graduates to staff their units. Then, nurses worked in the kitchens, laundry, central supply, housekeeping plus handling all work done by the LVN, aide and technician of today.

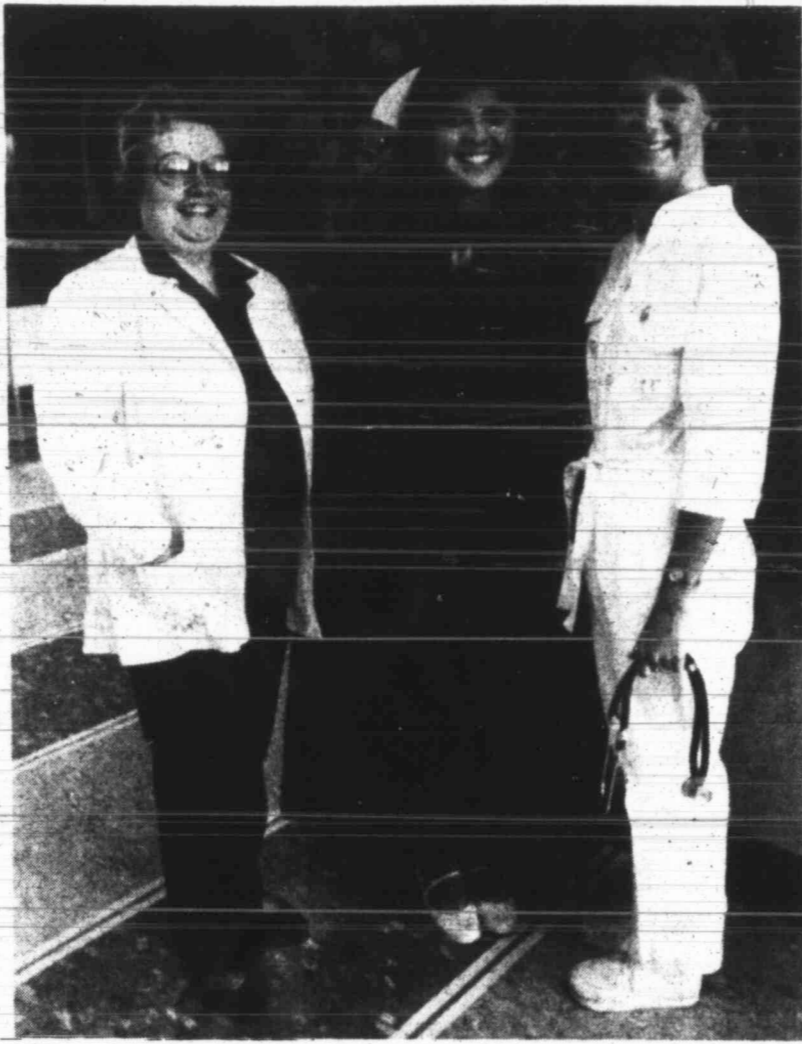

Today's R.N. programs fall into several categories: the 2-year associate degree, the three-year diploma, and the four-year bachelor's degree in nursing. Master's degrees in nursing and PhDs in nursing science or nursing education are becoming common.

Libby Dirks' school had their nurses prepare and serve the special diets, make the compresses and poultices used on the units and recycle everything from IV tubing to dressings, all for $70 per month, meals and having uniforms laundered. Dirks, recently retired, graduated in 1940.

No benefits were available to nurses; whereas a nurse today can earn an average $20,000 a year and is accorded benefits like hospitalization insurance, pension plans and paid vacation and sick days.

Prior to the discovery of antibiotics, Isolation Wards were common. Since no medical insurance was available, patients sought treatment only as a last resort. Dirks and Clare DeRyke, a recently retired registered nurse, dealt with only the acutely ill in their early practice. "Improving was the name of the game back then," said Dirks. Disposable supplies were not available in the past, and everything had to be reused.

Documentation is important in today's nursing, and accountability for one's actions is of primary importance. Law suits are a great concern of the modern nurse.

DeRyke, a 1941 graduate, believes nurses were held in high esteem and were easily identified by their uniforms at the beginning of her career. Today, R.N.s are misidentified as LVNs, techs, aides or housekeepers.

Dirks was "never able to talk to a doctor just to carry out his orders." Today, R.N.s have more input in patient care. They are listened to and are allowed to express opinions or offer suggestions.

The greatest emphasis for nurses in the 1930s and 40s was treatment of symptoms and curing diseases. Today's nurse promotes wellness, imparts patient education and deals with treating all the areas of the "bio-psycho-social-spiritual-being" called a patient.

Nurses today are expected to keep up with advances in technology, equipment, medications, theories and information on a daily basis. This is done through seminars, workshops, classes, personal reading and self-study courses.

SELECTED QUEEN — The Big Spring Evening Lion's Club Queen, Cynthia M. Mason, was recently selected as District 2 A-1 Queen. A senior at Big Spring High School, Mason will represent the district at the state convention and Queen's Contest, May 17-19, in San Antonio.

Dear Abby

Small point big deal to fans

DEAR ABBY: Every time I see Harry S. Truman's name spelled Harry S. Truman — with a period after the "S" — I am annoyed because I know it doesn't belong there. Concerning Truman, the following appears in the Encyclopedia Americana, volume 27, page 174 (copyright 1973):

"His birthplace was south of the west-central Missouri area into which his grandparents had moved from Kentucky four years earlier. The middle letter "S" in his name is not an abbreviation; it reflects the family's reluctance to choose between his grandfathers — Anderson Shippe Truman and Solomon Young — in selecting his name."

Practically every news source I have ever read about President

Truman has made this mistake. Worse yet, I recently came across an advertisement for a gold coin being minted to commemorate the 100th birthday of President Truman, and on the face of it, this glaring error appears!

I am writing to you because your column appears in just about every important newspaper in the United States, and I hope your readers as well as your editors will see this, and quit perpetuating this mistake.

DAVID LOOMIS
DEAR DAVID LOOMIS: I, too, had heard that there should be no period after the "S" in Harry Truman's name, but I noticed there was one on the jacket of the book titled "Harry S. Truman," written by his daughter, Margaret, so I wrote to Margaret and asked: (a) What the "S" in her father's name stood for; and (b) should there be a period after the "S"?

Margaret replied: "The 'S' in Dad's name stands for nothing. There was a family argument about what his middle name should be, so to keep peace in the family, he was baptized Harry S."

Margaret further stated: "My father always put a dot after the letter 'S'; that's why it appears on the cover of the biography I wrote about him."

So, dear readers, even though the "S" in Harry Truman's name stands for nothing and is not an abbreviation for anything, because Harry himself always put a dot after the letter "S."

Dr. Donohue

Calcium absorption at night

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When I showed my doctor your item about calcium being absorbed better at night, he raised an eyebrow and said he hadn't heard of that. Do you stand behind your statements? — B.W.

I didn't want to make that observation about calcium absorption sound like a life-and-death proposition for those using supplements. I am sure I added that the difference was really not great whether you took them at night or in the daytime. Here is the rationale: Some authorities say that levels of hydrochloric acid rise during the night hours. And thus, since hydrochloric acid does aid in calcium absorption, taking it before retiring might provide a slight edge.

But let me repeat: Whether you take the calcium at night or not, the effect is not going to be significant so far as total absorption is concerned.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 7, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite some delays and confusion today, you will be able to work out some new and improved arrangements for accomplishing the goals and ambitions to which you are committed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have to be more aware of what your true potential is if you are to gain the big success you desire.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find more modern ways of operating so that you can become more successful and forget the obsolete.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A partner has been detrimental to your best interests for a long time, and now you know how to handle the matter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Early handle work affairs that need solving, and then get at the work that is ahead of you.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Use a more modern talent if you want to be more successful. Also get rid of some deep-rooted ideas that annoys your mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get rid of that condition at home that is not functional and replace with more modern system that will work fine.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get busy at practical affairs so that you need not suffer lack or delays where money is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Go to experts for advice on how best to gain your most personal wishes, and then use good judgment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get that situation from the past nicely cleared up during day hours and then study into new outlets in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Work on some long-term project during the day, but study more important goals in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get that business completed in the morning, and tonight you know how to improve your status.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure you follow the Golden Rule during the day and see how you can improve your lot in life in the evening.

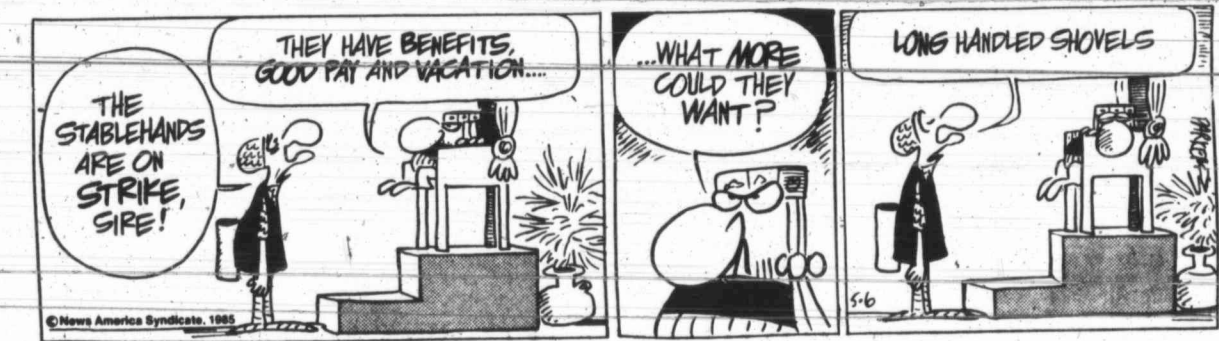

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to study into all kinds of philosophies, old and modern, so be sure to give as fine a college education as you can. Teach to listen to advice of experts. Much travel is indicated here, so expose to foreign languages.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Pistons, Blazers hang tough; Utah, Sixers keep on rolling

By The Associated Press
The Detroit Pistons are even in their best-of-7 playoff with the Boston Celtics because they have a few good men... in reserve.
Backup guard Vinnie Johnson almost singlehandedly crushed Boston Sunday with 22 of 34 points in the fourth quarter as the Pistons outscored the Celtics 26-12 in the final 12 minutes for a 102-99 victory. The two teams are now tied 2-2 in their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference playoff series.

Detroit's bench, now known as the "Elite Second Fleet," outscored Celtic reserves 58-13 on Sunday.
Tyler and Johnson might be contributing as much on defense as on offense against the Celtics. They helped the Pistons hold superstar Larry Bird to 9-for-23 field-goal shooting and guard Dennis Johnson to 5-for-13.

But Celtics' center Robert Parish said Detroit's 49-45 rebounding advantage was as important as Boston's scoring slump.

Kevin McHale, who led Boston with 24 points, tossed in a 17-foot shot and Bird nailed a three-point goal in the final 37 seconds of the third period to give the Celtics its nine-point lead going into the fourth quarter.

But a five-minute scoring drought spelled doom for the Celtics.

76ers 121, Bucks 112
Philadelphia, which finished one game behind Milwaukee in the regular-season Eastern Conference standings, completed a surprising sweep of the Bucks. Moses Malone had 31 points and 13 rebounds and Andrew Toney 23 points and 11 assists to lead the 76ers, who rallied from an eight-point deficit in the third quarter to overcome the Bucks.

Philadelphia, which reached the second round by eliminating the Washington Bullets, outscored the Bucks 20-6 for an 83-77 lead at the end of the third period.

Milwaukee, which got 25 points apiece from Paul Pressey and Sidney Moncrief, never got closer than five points in the fourth quarter, the last time at 113-108 with 1:41 left. Toney, who hit 11 of 14 shots from the field in the game, was 6-for-6 in the final period.

Trail Blazers 115, Lakers 107
Mychal Thompson scored six of his 17 points in the final 30 seconds, including four straight foul shots, to help Portland avoid a sweep and hand Los Angeles its first loss after six straight playoff victories.

Clyde Drexler had 15 points, 10 assists and seven rebounds for the Blazers and also keyed a trapping defense that forced Los Angeles into 28 turnovers.

The Lakers led 30-23 after one period, but the Trail Blazers outscored Los Angeles 36-19 in the second quarter for a 59-49 halftime lead.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 31 points and 13 assists for the Lakers, while Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 21 points.

Nuggets 125, Jazz 118
Denver led 62-38 in the second period, then had to hold on as Utah cut the deficit to one in the final minute of the game.

Alex English hit 14 of 19 field-goal attempts and scored 42 points for the Nuggets, while Adrian Dantley had 33 points and Darrell Griffith 28 for the Jazz.

Thurl Bailey, who had 21 points for Utah, hit a layup to make it 119-118 with 45 seconds left. After Dan Issel hit a long jumper for Denver, Dantley was fouled and had a chance to cut the deficit to one again, but he missed both free throws and Denver got two free throws and another basket by Issel in the final seconds.

Hawks drop two games to Ranger

RANGER — The Howard College Hawks ended their regular season on a dismal note as they dropped two games in a three-game series with Ranger this weekend.

Ranger won the first game of the series 5-4 in a marathon 15-inning contest. Howard hurler Chuck Ashcraft got a no-decision while pitching 14 innings. Bryan Willis, 4-4, took the loss in relief.

Ranger also won the second game 9-4 as Doug Myers got his second loss in nine decisions. The Hawks won the final game of the series 11-7, behind the pitching of Chris Segrist, who raised his record to 4-1.

Designated hitter Joe Cuellar led Howard in the series with six hits. Center fielder Steve Carrasco had five hits in the series.

Howard end the regular season with a 30-12 overall record and 15-7

Region V slate, good for second place behind McLennan.

Howard will compete in the State Junior College Tournament May 15-18 in College Station. Their first round opponent will be Panola College.

Kite hangs on to win the MONY

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Going into the Masters at Augusta, Ga., Tom Kite "expected to win the golf tournament, or at least play well."

But he missed the cut. It was the low point of one of the rare slumps the gritty little man has had in a 14-year PGA Tour career.

He came into the MONY Tournament of Champions expecting very, very little — improvement, perhaps, but nothing dramatic.

He won by an impressive 6-stroke margin after leading all the way against an elite field composed only of the winners of Tour titles from the last 12 months.

"To have such a quick turnaround in my game is quite a surprise. I didn't expect to play great golf. I was just hoping to improve a little each week," Kite said after his solid, 3-under-par 69 in the final round had slammed the door on any would-be challengers.

He acquired a $72,000 check and the eighth title of his career with a 275 total, 13 shots under par on the La Costa Country Club course. He was over par on only three holes all week, took the lead with a tournament record-tying 64 in the first round and was never headed.

"I had a few missed shots, but that is to be expected with the changes I'm trying to make in my game," said Kite, who recently rearranged his playing schedule to spend some time with his teacher, Peter Kostis. And Kite, long regarded as one of the game's most consistent players, said the practice sessions, built around an attempt to more fully extend his swing, helped enormously.

"It's not 100 percent ingrained in my swing. It's still a conscious thought."

"But it's got me back to playing the way Tom Kite is supposed to play," he said.

For the record

A photograph published in Sunday's sports section contained an identification error. The picture of the Saturday evening dedication of the Little League's American League baseball park should have identified Johnnie Hobbs, a longtime Little League coach. The park was renamed in his honor. The Herald regrets the error.

Cruz powers Astros by Phillies, 4-3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jose Cruz is often talked about as an underrated player, but the way the Houston left fielder is performing, he won't carry that description much longer.

Cruz hit a two-run homer and a double Sunday and made several fine fielding plays in leading the Astros to a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Cruz, who batted .312 last year, has nine hits in his last 18 at bats and has boosted his average to .355. His manager, Bob Lillis, thinks it's about time someone noticed.

"He got the big hit for us, again, today," Lillis said. "People don't recognize how good he is. He keeps putting the numbers on the board year after year."

Cruz's homer in the first inning off loser Shane Rawley, 3-2, gave Houston an early 2-0 lead.

"I love to hit in this ball park," he said. "But then I love to hit in every ball park."

The Phillies got a run off winning pitcher Joe Niekro, 2-3, on Von Hayes' RBI single in the first, but the Astros made it 3-1 in the second when Niekro doubled in Dickie Thon.

In the fourth, the Phillies scored on a single by Greg Gross, a passed ball by catcher Mark Bailey and Glenn Wilson's single.

Jerry Mumphrey hit a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the fifth that enabled the Astros to take a 4-2 lead. The Phillies scored their final run in the seventh on another RBI single by Wilson.

Niekro, who tied a Houston team record held by Larry Dierker by recording his 157th win, went seven innings, giving up seven hits. He was helped by Bill Dawley, who pitched 1 2/3 innings, and Frank DiPino, who got the final out by getting Hayes on a line-drive to Cruz with the tying run on second.

Niekro threw two wild pitches, while catcher Bailey was charged with three passed balls.

"I had a real good knuckler today," Niekro said. "And it's tough
