SCHOOL OPENED ON MONDAY SEPTEMBER 13

On Monday morning, September 13th, at nine o'clock A. M. the Charles Schreiner Highway School opened for the school year 1926-27. There was in attendance the largest number of pupils that have ever attended its sessions. In addition to the regular scholastic enrollment from common school district No. 1 some fifty pupils from other school district, and adjoining counties, entered for the fall term's work.

The entire faculty, all members of the school board, the officers of the Parent Teachers Association, and the ex-officio superintendent of schools, and the largest number of patrons who ever attended for an opening day, were present for the occasion.

Superintendent Cowles introduced the Reverend Newman, who began the program with a short prayer followed by the entire assembly singing America, with Miss Lois Hankins at the piano. Then followed in order on the program, Judge A. G. Farmer, Weaver H. Baker, in behalf of the school board, Reverend Newman, and Superintendent Cowles. All of the remarks were confined to matters of general interest relative to the coming school year.

The members of the school board deem themselves fortunate in being able to retain the services of all but one of last year's school faculty and with the addition of two more teachers, we are assured of another successful school. Through the efforts of those in authority in this school in previous years, the Charles Schreiner Highway School is fully affiliated with all the requirements necessary for its graduates to enter as a Freshman in any of our educational institutions of learning in the South.

Not only has this school an efficient teaching staff, but the building is modern and equipped with the very latest laboratory devices and library facilities. The entire equipment is new and modern in every respect. The building is heated with steam, assuring everyone in attendance of a comfortable place in which to study during the cold winter months.

Professor Howard Blackburn will have charge of the athletic department for the coming year, and the school is assured of proper advice in physical training throughout the entire session. Not only will the major sports be coached but the energies of the entire student body will be properly directed, and every student in the school will be given an opportunity to take part in some branch of athletics.

It seems to be the general opinion that Junction will have a successful school, but as was suggested by members of the faculty on this occasion, it will take the efforts of the parents, faculty, and school board to get the results hoped for, and to that end let us all work.

NEW FIREPROOF PICTURE SHOW BLDG. SOON

E. G. Lockley, Rocksprings business man who recently purchased the Junction Picture show was here last week end making final arrangements for moving here and for taking over the management of the equipment and business, which he did Wednesday of this week.

Mr. Lockley has rented the H. G. Perry residence and moved his family here this week.

The picture show will continue to occupy the present location until a new building is ready. Construction work on

DESIGNATED HIGHWAY IS ANOTHER PROBABILITY

A. B. Hodges and County Judge-Elect J. B. Randolph have returned from Austin where they went before the State Highway Commission in company with other delegations from other counties which will be interested in the designation of the proposed highway from Sherman in Grayson County, to Del Rio, in Val Verde County, asking for the designation of such highway.

Mr. Hodges states that in all probability that the designation will be made and that the only question at all in the minds of the delegation calling on the Commission, the exact route, and there are at present only two proposed routes, one via Menard to Junction, thither Hext and London, and they have been assured that the Commission will put surveyors on both routes immediately and will of course choose the most feasible.

There are some thirteen or more counties interested in securing this highway, and delegations from each are at work to that end. The counties through which it passes are: Grayson, Denton, Tarrant, Hood, Erath, Comanche, Brown, McCulloch, Mason, Menard, Kimble, Edwards and Val Verde.

The most direct route would be from Brady to Hext and London, and Mr. Hodges states that in all probability that will be the route selected by the surveyors.

ties local office. The West Texas people expect to break ground for their building at an early date and Mr. Lockley will begin on his structure at the same time and both will be rushed to completion. Both buildings will be of Spanish Type Architecture, either concrete or hollow tile and will be fireproof. The building which the picture show will occupy will have a frontage of 34 or 40 ft. and a length of 80 or 90 feet giving ample floor space for the first class amusement house that Mr. Lockley states that he will operate here.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS BRIGHT THIS SEASON

Some 22 men reported for football practise Monday afternoon, which is a larger number of candidates than have reported for practise in several years.

After one week's training on the Moos Ranch, the team is fast rounding into shape, and by the opening game Saturday will be in tip top condition.

The Eden team has let it be known that they are coming down here to take the first game from the local boys. In turn the local boys are just as determined that they shall have the game. At any rate there is a certainty of a fast hard fought game.

Are we "Boosters" of the team going to do our part? Then be there Saturday and prove it with your presence. All together for a winning team.

Mesdames Whitehead and Hope of Del Rio are the guests of friends here this week. Mrs. Hope is a sister of Mrs. Hugh Wilson. Both ladies are former residents of Junction.

DISTRICT TEACHERS' INSTITUTE HERE IN 1927

County Judge Farmer and the teachers of this county were in Keerville last week to attend Teacher's Institute, which was a joint or district affair, the teachers from the counties of F. ndera, Keer, Kimble, Mason and Real Counties attending.

Those who attended from here were extravagant in their praise of the hospitality of the Keerville people and of the excellent program that had been arranged. This was doubtless one of the most successful and beneficial institutes ever held in this section of the state.

County Judge Farmer invited the Teacher's to meet in Junction next year and after considerable effort on the part of the Judge and the Kimble County teachers, those attending the Institute voted to meet here in Sept. next year.

There are something like two hundred teachers from the counties comprising this district, and Junction will be host to one of the largest crowds of professional men and women of any small town in this part of the country and it will be the largest number of any single organization ever to visit Junction at one time.

Judge Farmer and the teachers of this county are to be congratulated on their efforts to bring this organization here and we know the people of Junction will extend a welcome hand to the teachers of this part of the state and they will go away feeling that although Junction is only a small town, its people are hospitable and will prove equal to the occasion in every way.

Alex J. Hamer made a business trip to San Antonio Monday, returning Tuesday.

We, the officers and members of the Junction City Chapter No. 497, O. E. S., take this method of expressing our thanks to the West Texas Utilities Co., Mr. H. Pippin and Mr. Perry Tabor, for wiring.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Eaton of Rock Springs were guests at the Geo. Pepper home here last week.

SEPT. TERM DISTRICT COURT CLOSED WED.

The September Term of the District Court for this county closed its fall term here Sept. 15th 1926. The District Court officers will go from here to Fredericksburg for the next term of the District Court for the 33rd Judicial District. More work was transacted at this term of the Court, so far as disposing of cases is concerned, than any term for some time past.

The State of Texas vs. Dee Knox was dismissed. The same order was taken in the cases of The State of Texas vs. Frank Walston, The State of Texas vs. I. W. Baker et al., The State of Texas vs. Ed Newton in cause No. 1068.

The cases of The State of Texas vs. Arlie Terry, State of Texas vs. Jim Turman, State of Texas vs. Ben Simon, State of Texas vs. Roy Nelson, State of Texas vs. Vernon Walters, State of Texas vs. Frank Findlay, State of Texas vs. T. A. Jenkins, State of Texas vs. Francisco Hernandez, and State of Texas vs. F. A. Vogt were continued.

Ed Newton entered a plea of guilty in the case of State of Texas vs. Ed Newton in cause No. 1096, and an agreed verdict of a fifty dollar fine was returned by the jury. In a similar proceeding a one hundred dollar fine was assessed in the case of State of Texas vs. Cecil Smith.

In a trial of the case of State of Texas vs. J. E. Worley et al., Judge M. E. Blackburn representing the defendants, a verdict of "Not guilty" was returned.

The Grand Jury returned an indictment against Juan Gonzales charging him with statutory rape. A special venire was summoned to appear Monday Sept. 13th. A jury was impanelled and upon a trial of the cause a verdict of 75 years in the penitentiary was given the defendant. Attorney M. C. Gonzales of San Antonio, Texas, in behalf of the Mexican Government represented Juan Gonzales, who is a citizen of Mexico. Judge Coke R. Stevenson assisted District Attorney Hamer in the prosecution of the case. A motion for new trial was presented by Attorney Gonzales, which was over-ruled by the Court and notice of appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeals was given.

In the case of State of Texas vs. Ramond Leves charged with violating the liquor laws of the state, the defendant was given one year in the penitentiary and his sentence was suspended. The defendant was represented by Wilson and Wilson.

Judge J. B. Randolph disposed of the misdemeanor cases on the criminal docket, and in the case of Omega Wagner vs. Charlie Wagner obtained a decree of divorce for the plaintiff.

Of the 40 cases on civil docket, 4 were dismissed, 16 continued, 3 settled by agreement, and 17 were given judgment for plaintiff.

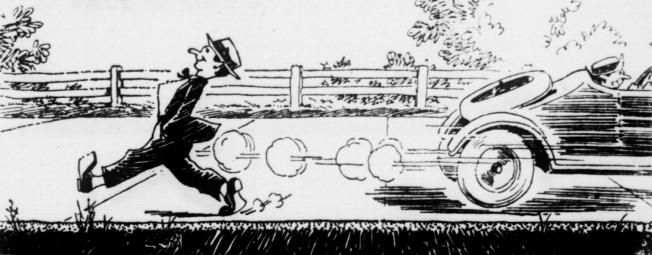

AUSTIN, Tex.,—Leslie Cox, former Texas University star pitcher, who was sold by the Palestine Pals to the Chicago White Sox, stopped here Tuesday en route to Chicago.

The White Sox paid $5,000 for the tall right-hander, who was one of the outstanding twirlers of the Texas Association during the season just closed. It is expected that Manager Eddie Collins will give him his major league baptism of fire during the coming three weeks.

SALLIE IS DISSATISFIED.

Finding an attractive house at a rental Curtiss thought was reasonable, was no easy matter. While he was working on his plans for the mining sub-division, I looked at many places.

One afternoon Harriet Crawford took me, in her new limousine, on a house-hunting expedition. Salsby Crawford, to whom she was married, was the scion of a fabulously wealthy family and we had become intimate with them because of the fact that he and Curtiss had been classmates at college.

It didn't take me long, however, to analyze the feminine member of the House of Crawford. She was undeniably snobbish. Herself a child of luxury, she was absolutely unaware that there were others who were not in the same financial status. Naturally she took me to see large and prepossessing places whose owners were abroad or in Florida, and who wished to lease their homes for the season. Finally I thought I might as well be frank with her about the type house that we wanted.

"Just a small place," I explained. "We can't afford anything very good looking."

"Nonsense," she interrupted. "Salsby told me just last night that Curtiss Wright had already made a name for himself as an engineering-architect (I believe that's what he called him) anyway, he mentioned several developments that he already has to his credit."

I couldn't bring myself to go into details about our recent financial trouble and besides my new acquaintance was not the sort to inspire confidential disclosures. With her beautiful home, her smart clothes and endless servants it would be impossible for her to understand or sympathize with a less prosperous condition.

Later I gave the excuse of letter-writing and so she ordered the chauffeur to turn back and take me to the Tutwiler Hotel, at which we were staying. When Curtiss came in at twilight he found me sitting beside the window, unsmiling and sullen.

"What's up, dearest? Where's my little Life of the Party?"

No answer. "Come, now; tell us all about it," he pleaded, coming over and gently tilting my face so that he could study my expression.

"Oh, I guess I'm still under the influence of Harriet Crawford," I said as he sat down beside me. My tone was sullen. "She does act a bit Ritzie," he admitted. "But my dear, you're so much more attractive that you should get quite a kick out of being in the presence of Mrs. Crawford."

"It isn't that, Curtiss; it's just that they have such an awful lot of everything," I concluded. "Look at their house; it's simply stunning!"

"Ought to be; it cost over a hundred thousand. Besides Salsby had a bunch of gold-dust handed to him on a silver platter. In fact all the chaps I've met here have seemed to hit it off in one way or another. You mustn't let that make you unhappy. Besides, you'll naturally be thrown with girls who have plenty. You know, 'water seeks its own level' and the crowd you'll be congenial with will be—what is it the newspapers call them? Oh, yes—the can make me very happy; if not then there is only one other course that is open. You may return to your father until I can woo you back with a fortune."

I started to reply. What my answer would have been, I do not know, but woman-like, I suppose I would have attempted to defend my position. However, he silenced me before the opening words of the sentence had been uttered.

"No, I don't want you to decide in a hurry. This is a serious and vital moment in our lives, Sallie, and I want you to think it over. I'm going out for a walk and when I return, you can give me your decision."

HONORS THAT ARE FLEETING.

Rudolph Valentino is dead. Dr. Charles Eliot is dead. Both passed from this life on the same day. The former was a young man, an Italian immigrant, who flashed across the horizon of the amusement world much as a meteor crosses the sky and disappear to be forgotten while other meteors come and go much in the same manner. The latter died at a ripe age of ninety-two after a life of service. The news of his death was flashed to all parts of the world, as was Valentino's, but judged from the standpoint of newspaper publicity and the visible effect upon the people of the country, Dr. Eliot was of less importance than was the hero of the screen. Thousands besieged the hospital where Valentino lay stricken and many more thousands struggled to view his body after it had been prepared for burial. On the other hand, the body of Dr. Eliot lay in state while sorrowing friends passed by to view for the last time the face of the man who had worked diligently throughout a long life in an effort to serve his fellow men.

Valentino received the applause of the amusement-loving masses for a brief period of time and passed on to be forgotten. Dr. Eliot earned the love, admiration and respect of millions of thoughtful people, including many of the admirers of Valentino, and lives on in history until the end of time. Both were successful men. Both were honored, but Valentino's honors were fleeting. His popularity would have waned—his star would have soon disappeared beyond the horizon had he lived, while other stars equally as brilliant would have risen to attract attention. Not so with Dr. Eliot. Men of his character, ability and breadth of vision are the product of a century and they live on and on in the minds of succeeding generations as examples worthy of emulation by all those who would unselfishly contribute in a large measure to the advancement of civilization.

Valentino filled his niche in the world. He earned applause by reaching the topmost round in the ladder of success in his chosen line. He amused the masses in a much less harmful way than were the people amused in the days of ancient Rome.

He appealed to popular fancy as do the newspapers of the day, and for that reason newspapers should not be too severely condemned for capitalizing his spectacular popularity even in death. The newspapers will soon forget Valentino, while the editors and copy readers will continue to value Dr. Eliot's five-foot shelf of books.—Farm and Ranch.

County Fair Draws Crowd

The United States Census gives Kendall county a population of less than 5,000 and Boerne, the county site, less than 1,200. Despite the small population of the county and town, there were 12,000 paid admissions at the county fair one day recently, and at one time more than 4,000 automobiles on the fair grounds. County and community fairs are becoming quite popular in Texas, and they indicate the prosperity of a section. If assured good entertainment, Texas people are liberal fair patrons.

Some of the finest merchandise ever selected, with a view of satisfying the wants of the most exacting trade were purchased by us for our fall business. Everything is now going to be closed out at most drastic reductions. ALEX J. HAMER CO.

KEEP JUNCTION FIRST IS GOOD SLOGAN

Why not work together for:
A LIVE Chamber of Commerce.

An Incorporated town.
Paving for Main Street and Court Mouse Square.

A paved road from Keerville to Junction.

Completion of our Highway to Sonora.

That Railroad from San Antonio to San Angelo.

Completion of the FULL plan of our Modern Tourist Hotel now under construction?

The election is over and whether we have won or lost lets shake ourselves, wake up and bury that old hatchet and let's all work together for the Greater Junction. Surely no one could object to any of the above mentioned subjects. Every one is for the betterment of our town and certainly we are not going to get anything without going after it and pulling and pushing for it. Our neighboring towns are working for their interests and we can't blame them. Kerrville is not going to build up Junction. Menard is not going to build up Junction. Mason is not going to build up Junction neither are any of our other neighbor towns going to build up Junction and the only people responsible for a live town or a dead town are the people living in that town, you and I and the rest of us. Those of you who have given it any thought and have travelled a good deal have you found any place that is located like Junction among hills and rivers and fine shade trees? Have you found any better looking town of its size? Have you found a cleaner town with nicer kept business houses, streets, etc. than Junction? I have not and the more I see of other towns the better I like Junction and am always glad to get back home.

Now then lets get together. Lets have a Revival of our Chamber of Commerce. Lets get behind our new hotel. The hotel committee would like to see every business represented on our subscription list. We do not want to be partial, we want our visitors to feel that everybody is behind this one of the greatest moves for Junction. We want them to trade with everybody in the town and when employee in our various enterprises could buy a share of hotel stock and as the town grows it will come back to him in many ways. Opportunities will present themselves that we could never hope for if the hotel had not been built. So let's all pull together and put it over big. Very few know that this hotel will be different from any other. It was designed by a man who made a special trip over all of our States studying hotels from a tourist standpoint and he knows what he is doing. It would be a credit to any town date twenty or thirty years from now, built not only for the present time, but for the future. Now why shouldn't we be proud of it and why shouldn't we all help and let it be a community enterprise?

Let's all pull together for our Home Town, the best located and the best small inland town in Texas. Already a number of strangers have been in Junction looking for investments on the strength of the new hotel going up. I am looking for many more and indirectly every citizen of Junction and Kimble County will derive benefit from it.

Let's invite all our country people and have a real business revival and go ahead and build up our town and our country first.

JESUS ENTERED INTO ONE OF THE SHIPS—Luke 5:3.

The Saviour who stood by Gennesaret's Lake
Is here in our midst today,
With winning power and healing touch
And the same tender words to say.

This morning I fain would press close, for I hear
The Loving "Come" of the Master dear.

A ship for Jesus is standing by—
With net just mended and clean—
But useless, like Simon's, until at the helm
The Master's presence is seen.

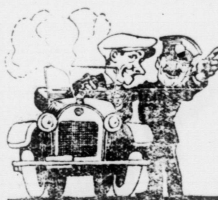

Lord Jesus, enter my ship to-day
And teaching, teach me, I would learn Thy way.

The toil of the night has been in vain
With many failures before,
Yet, at Jesus' command I will let down the net
In the very same place once more.

For Thine own glory, Master take away
Of ship, and net, and water to-day.

No longer self confident, trusting to Christ
At His feet I humbly fall
Asking forgiveness, cleansing and strength
Bringing to Him my "All".
Close by this wonderful Saviour I'd bide
Ready for "fishing" at any tide.

Tourist Thieves

Unless thievery on the part of auto tourists is stopped, the tourist in Texas will soon become as unpopular as in some other states. Complaints are becoming more frequent that tourist often do not hesitate to take anything away from them if they think they can get away with it. Kansas newspapers say that about one in three auto tourists recognizes property rights in that state and that the others do not hesitate to steal chickens, fruit, melons, vegetables or anything else conveniently near.

A Western banker, a little troubled with his English as most of his banking business is done in a German settlement, was attending a bankers' convention. TEXAS AND TEXANS.

(By Will H. Mayes.)

The Monday newspapers have become largely chronicles of the serious auto accidents of the Sunday before, and it is well known that not half of such the papers. Of course, the reason there are more accidents on Sunday than on other days of the week is largely because there are more cars on the road. Another reason is that Sunday riding is largely joy riding, and many people think that the joy secured depends on the speed made. It seems that most of the car drivers out on Sunday are in a great hurry to get somewhere. Most of them care little where they go so it is somewhere else than where they are, and when they get to that "some where" they are in just as great a hurry to get elsewhere. Sunday has become the busy day for the hospitals, the ambulances and the doctors.

Victoria Junior College

Victoria has voted bonds to erect a building in which to conduct a junior college. The college is not to be under the supervision of the University of Texas, but will be managed and sustained by the local school board. The junior college idea is gradually spreading in Texas. Boys and girls can get their first two years of college training in such schools at less expense than at the larger colleges and universities and be under the direct care of their parents at the age when most of them need the home influences. With a junior college in every populous county Texas would at once become known for its educational advancement. From "a high school in the reach of every Texas boy or girl," the watchword will soon be changed to "Junior Colleges in reach of all."

Making Tomatoes Profitable

Although some places have complained that the tomato crop has been unprofitable this year, San Augustine county has found it highly profitable. Some growers have netted $350.00 an acre and many have made $300.00 to the acre. The secret, according to the county farm agent, is in early planting, proper cultivation and co-operative marketing. The average price paid the growers was 46 cents a crate. That county is now marketing its sweet potato crop at $1.25 a bushel. The county is learning the advantages to be secured by intelligent diversification.

City Dog Nuisance

Recently 13 young children, some of them playing on their home porches were bitten or scratched by a little puppy that was so small that little attention was paid to the slight wounds until some one suspected the dog might have hydrophobia. A test proved the suspicion correct, and now 13 little children, with their lives endangered, are suffering from the effects of the rabies treatment. There may still be some excuse for keeping dogs in the country, but city dogs should be caged just like other dangerous animals, and should not have opportunity to bite any one except their keepers, who voluntarily assume that risk.

How Troubles Accumulate

For many years a raft of drift wood and debris of all kinds has been accumulating at the mouth of the Colorado river in Matagorda county, extending twenty miles up the river and causing frequent damaging overflows. danger increased from a small beginning until the prosperity and the safety of a large part of the county became so imminent that $185,000 was paid a contractor to remove the raft. After a year's work, which began at the mouth of the river the head of the raft has been broken and a fourteen mile channel has been opened. Two more years may be required to complete the removal of the raft but the cost will be justified by the benefits to the county. The lesson of this paragraph is so apparent in community affairs, in business and in private life that no further comment is necessary to make it clear.

Work That Will Count

The Junior Chamber of Commerce at Gainesville, co-operating with the rural school of Cooke county has launched a county-wide cleanup, campaign. Prizes of $25.00, $15.00 and $10.00 are offered to the schools in the communities having the best kept premises. This should stimulate community pride in every school district. For the cleanliness will apply to the schools and the homes alike. A movement of that kind in every county in the state would soon make Texas famous for cleanly schools and home premises.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By E. R. Waite)
N. H. Booth, Assistant Managing Editor of the Manchester, (England) Daily Dispatch, says
That the greatest force in the world is the written word. Speech may be silver, but, notwithstanding the catch-phrase, it is not silence that is golden, but the thoughts of men set down in print. "Let me see your proposals on paper," cries the statesman. "Put it in writing," says the man of affairs.

You have goods to sell. Don't talk about them. The world is too noisy for you to be heard. If you penetrate the noise how many folks do you reach? If you reach the few, how many heed? The spoken word is too fleeting. It is the written word that is abiding—abiding, that is, if you have anything worth saying and if you say it often enough.

Therefore, put the "finish" to your advertising that you put to the goods you are selling. Let there be snap, but not froth. Your advertisements should be news, and news is a world commodity. The more newsy your advertisements, the more their pulling power. For there is nothing more certain in this year than that news is the world's meat and drink.

You have coined your slogans and you can deliver the goods. You have prepared your message for the printer and you are ready to honor your written word. What then? Your medium of getting your message to your town, your community, your state, your country, the world, is the newspaper. A second's reflection, and this is obvious. The newspaper presses will whirl your written words where you will. The world's business, to borrow from the humorist, is wrapped up in newspapers.

PSYCHOLOGY OF GHOSTS.

(By Wesley Peacock, Ph. B.)
Why do horses shy at imaginary objects? Why do chickens shy at mocking birds? Why do children shy at phantoms in the dark? For the same reason that you and I shy at the ghosts of things imagined, of things feared, of things looked for and dreaded, and of the things that never happen.

The impulse to flee is instinctive, that is the disposition to escape what we fear or dislike. The emotion that goes with this instinct is fear. An emotion is a stirred up feeling attached to an instinct. Man has more instinct than animals, and therefore, he has more fears, dreads and troubles than animals. But for hte instinct of fear the weaker animals would become a prey to the stronger, and man would have succumbed to beasts long ago.

As I have said, instincts are inherited to preserve the species from extinction. Emotions are beneficent for the same reason. But unless regulated and controlled, we may run wild, with emotions and develop dreads, phobias, and complexes, that make our lives unhappy. Lower animals and lower people are not involved in dreads, phobias, and complexes because they haven't intelligence enough to pack up their troubles in their conscious minds, or to pack them down in their subconscious minds.

Horses still shy at phantom lions, and chickens still shy at imaginary hawks because they have inherited the instinct for their protection, and they will continue to shy at their imaginary enemies long after lions and hawks have disappeared from the earth. Instincts are unreasonable, or sensible people would so modify them as to overcome their fears. The real battle of life is between instincts and intelligence, or between imagination and will power. What is inherited is stronger than what is learned fect faith overcomes all evil, even the evil of fear of hell.

Ghosts are of two kinds, inherited and acquired, or hand-me-downs and tailor-made. Inherited ghosts are good ghosts, but the dummy ghosts assume so many forms and characters that it takes a great deal of time and energy to propitiate them, or buy them off; and they inhabit our nervous system, feed on our subconscious energies, populate our dreams, prey upon our weak moments of sickness, disrupt our personalities, and sometimes drive us to suicide.

We can't overcome our ghosts by will power. That is certain, any more than we can go to sleep by will power, or overcome fear by will power, for our ghosts hide deep down in the subconscious in the day time, only to play havoc with our dreams and, by transference, to direct our bodily movements in many unaccountable and unrecognizable symbols.

A Career of Contradictions

THE career of Capt. John Phillips as a pirate was a short one—it lasted only nine months—but it was one filled with many queer contradictions. A carpenter by trade, Phillips sailed from England for Newfoundland in 1723 in a ship that was captured by the noted pirate leader, Captain Anstis in his ship the Good Fortune. Anstis forced Phillips to become his ship's carpenter.

After leaving Anstis Phillips worked for a while in a cod fishery in Newfoundland. Then one night, he with four others, stole a vessel from Peter harbor and sailed away, with Phillips as captain. Articles of agreement were drawn up among the crew which he soon collected and, in the absence of a Bible on board the ship, these articles were sworn to upon a hatchet! Among these articles were these two curious ones: "There shall be 40 stripes lacking one, known as Moses' law, afflicted for striking a fellow-pirate" and "If at any time you meet with a prudent Woman, that Man that offers to meddle with her, without her consent, shall suffer present Death."

The pirates were successful almost from the start. They captured several fishing boats and in one of them found an ex-convict named John Rose Archer, who had served his apprenticeship under the notorious Blackbeard and who they at once promoted to quartermaster. They next sailed to Barbados, but their luck was poor.

At last when they were almost starving they sighted a big French ship, much larger and better armed than their vessel, but so terrified was the French crew when Phillips' men hoisted the black flag that they surrendered without firing a shot. As time went on and Phillips continued to be successful, he became even more desperate and bloodthirsty, often butchering his prisoners without any provocation. Occasionally he did have a "quail of conscience come athwart his stomach," as one chronicler quaintly records it, and on one occasion when he had captured a Newfoundland vessel and prepared to scuttle it, he decided because he found that it belonged to a Mr. Minors. Phillips had stolen his first vessel from Minors. "We have done him enough injury already," he said and returned the ship to its owner.

Although this pirate captured no less than 30 ships and a vast amount of loot in the nine months of his career, it ended in disaster at last. His crew mutinied in April, 1724, off the coast of Newfoundland, where his first act of piracy had been committed, seized Phillips and threw him overboard. (© 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

Is There Another Car At Any Price, That Will Do This?

One hundred miles in low gear at the rate of 12 miles per hour, without stopping and without adding any water to the radiator or any oil to the crank case is the unchallenged record made by a Star Touring Car, July 2nd, 1926 at San Antonio.

At the end of the run it was found that the water had not boiled in the radiator and that the car had used only one pint of water and one pint of oil.

The disinterested San Antonio citizens who witnessed this test, made affidavit as to the correctness of the above stated facts before a notary public.

We will be glad to show and explain to any interested person, the advantages of a car using a correct lubricating and cooling system, such as is used in the motors of all Star Cars.

A FEW FAVORITES

Here are a few recipes that other folks like, and they may appeal to you.

Bon-Ton Omelet.—Beat the yolks and whites of four eggs separately. Mix one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cornstarch with one-half cupful of milk, then add to the beaten whites, add salt and pepper to taste and pour into a hot, smooth frying pan in which a tablespoonful of butter has been melted, and cook slowly, loosening the edges with a knife occasionally until done. Slash the opposite side and fold over on to a hot platter. Serve at once. If the top of the omelet does not seem to be well cooked, set in a hot oven for a few minutes before folding.

Quick Tea Cakes.—Cream two tablespoonsful of butter with one cupful of sugar, add two-thirds of a cupful of sour cream, one-fourth teaspoonful of soda, two beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of vanilla, and one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat well; add a few raisins or one on top of each; bake in gem pans or tins and serve warm.

Prune and Date Jam.—Cook one pound of prunes until soft in a small amount of water. Remove the stones and add one pound of stoned chopped dates which have been cooked in a small amount of water. Add the juice of half a lemon with half a cupful of honey. Cook the mixture until thick.

Prune Cake.—Mix together and boil five minutes, the following: Two cupfuls each of brown sugar and boiling water, three cupfuls of soaked pitted prunes, stoned and chopped, one teaspoonful each of salt and cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg. Dissolve a teaspoonful of soda in two tablespoonsful of warm water, and add four tablespoonsful of fat. Sift two cupfuls of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and add the first mixture with a cupful of chopped nut meats. Bake in a tube cake pan for one hour.

The Ford car is a better car today, in both workmanship and materials, than ever before in its history. Here are a few of the reasons why:

For 22 years the Ford car has been constantly improved in workmanship and materials. For 22 years it has been a leader in the automobile world in price, design and quality, and it is today (and the greatest industrial organization on earth will continue to make it) the most economically operated and altogether and by far the best value—a car supreme in its class.

In this country where cars are put to the supreme test over all kinds of roads, steep hills, river crossings and where they are used for every conceivable purpose, Fords stand the test, day in and day out. Fords are given the hardest treatment, yet those who have them know their value, the low upkeep and low depreciation, and half the new cars sold are Fords.

Give your Ford the same consideration and care that you would give any other car and you will get many more years of service.
