Two Are Dead After Blow In East Texas; Alabama Again Is Hardest Hit; Relief Is Rushed To Areas

(By The Associated Press)

LORRETTO, Va., March 28—Leslie Dishman, 8, was fatally injured and his parents and two brothers were seriously hurt when their Essex county home was demolished by a twisting windstorm striking here today.

The Dishman home collapsed as the storm swept through the village blowing the roof off of the chapel, smashing windows and blowing down telephone lines and trees.

The boy died within a few hours.

Nine Additional Casualties Added

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 28. (AP)—Tornado's fury struck again in Alabama, Georgia and Texas yesterday, added nine names to the list of 362 persons it killed last week and scattered buildings over the countryside like so much straw.

The eastern storm killed seven in Alabama, where 298 perished in twisters a week ago tonight; one in Georgia, where 40 were killed last week, and claimed two lives in Eastern Texas.

Form Relief Groups

Governor Miller of Alabama telegraphed congressional representatives of that state today, saying local agencies cannot cope with the needs for rehabilitation work.

American Red Cross workers already were in the field in Georgia and Alabama following last week's storm and they, in cooperation with local agencies, formed groups of relief workers for the newly stricken areas.

Visited Second Time

Yesterday's storm in Alabama visited some of the communities where lives were lost in last week's twister. Austin Laurence, Perry Hicks and Jane Green were killed in Lawley, Ala., and C. M. Stubbs and a man named Pate lost their lives at Pleasant Grove. Two other members of the Laurence family, Ellen K. Laurence and her father, Walker Laurence, also were fatally injured.

Travis District Judge Monday Sustains Validity Of State Statutes Invoked Against Oil Firm Defendants

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 28. — Another milestone in the lengthy trial of the state's suit to penalize major oil companies for alleged anti-trust law violations was passed today when Judge J. D. Moore of Travis county district court sustained the validity of the statutes invoked against the defendants.

It was the fourth straight victory for James V. Allred, attorney general, prosecutor of the suit, in which questions of law and constitution were involved.

The defendants contended that the state's anti-trust statutes were rendered unconstitutional when special exemptions were authorized by the Texas legislature in favor of farmers and stock raisers who were authorized to organize cooperative organizations.

Missing Hansford County Man Found Frozen To Death Early Monday; Wide Search Started

Rancher Lost In Snowstorm On Saturday; Body Found Near House; Hundreds Searching In Rescue Parties

(By The Associated Press)

GRUVER, March 28—The body of Sophahas Brandzik, 65, Hansford county rancher, lost in a snow storm late Saturday, was found early this morning in the rugged country 13 miles north of here.

The discovery woe made as hundreds of searchers were redoubling their efforts to continue the search that started at dawn Sunday morning. Brandzik died of exposure, having been weakened by a recent attack of influenza.

Found Near House

Two men found the body about a mile from a vacant farmhouse which it is believed the victim was attempting to reach.

The discovery ended a search that grew in its intensity from the time the alarm was spread about his disappearance. Citizens from Texhoma, Goodwell and Guymon, Okla., and Gruver early Sunday ignored Easter services and quickly organized searching parties which combed the broken terrain covering eight sections of the Coldwater breaks.

Gruver school children, taught by Brandzik's daughter, Helga, joined in the search this morning.

Brandzik became lost when he entered Coldwater canyon in the face of a sweeping wet snow late Saturday night. His failure to return home caused his wife to spread the alarm. Scattered parties searched throughout the night and Sunday morning organized themselves into a directed group.

Brandzik had been a resident of Hansford county for a quarter of a century. His widow, a son and three daughters survive. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Raging Revolt In House Over Tax Plan Ends

Steadying Influence Of Party Leadership Seen In A Very Determined Drive For Plan To Balance Budget

Garner To Speak

Texas House Leader Today Is To Take Floor To Explain To His Colleagues Problems Now Facing Nation

BY CECIL B. DICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 28—The revolt that raged in the house over the revenue bill for two weeks began crumpling today and the steadying influence of party leadership was seen in a determined drive for a measure that will balance the budget.

Speaker Garner and Representative Snell of New York, the republican leader, have realigned a majority of their forces despite the insurgency that swept the ranks last week, and caused the defeat of the sales tax proposal.

Will Take Floor

Taking an unusual course for a speaker, Garner plans to go on the floor tomorrow to urge his colleagues to approve a bill that will meet the prospective treasury deficit.

The revived strength of the party leadership was evidenced in the overwhelming defeat of Representative LaGuardia (R., N. Y.), a leader of the successful sales tax fight, on an amendment to restore publicity on income tax returns. It was defeated, 123 to 18 and it was La Guardia's first major setback.

To Tell Of Needs

When Speaker Garner takes the floor, he plans to tell his colleagues of the financial condition of the country and the imperative need to re-establish the stability of government finances.

At a conference with newspapermen he said:

"It is my view that the budget must be balanced. I have consistently stated that the running expenses of the government will have to be paid. It has come to a point now where the worst kind of taxes are better than no taxes at all.

"I advocated the sales tax because I thought it was the easiest way to balance the budget, as a temporary measure. But the house did not care for that kind of tax.

"Unless the budget is balanced foreign exchange will depreciate and I don't know what would happen. You would find the dollar would be affected in foreign exchange."

Annual Easter Frolic Staged For Big Group

More Than 11,000 Youngsters Of Washington Swarm Across White House Lawn; Hoovers In Role Of Hosts

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Rain fell and chill march winds blew here today but 11,000 youngsters swarmed over the White House lawn for the annual Easter Monday egg-rolling fete.

It was a new low record for recent years, 30,000 braving weather only slightly less inclemnt last year and 48,000 attending the year before.

Is Colorful Affair

But there was color aplenty, particularly after the sun broke through in mid-afternoon to brighten the day a bit for the thousands at the executive mansion and others who filled Washington hotels over the week-end.

White House policemen had a busy day, despite the small crowd, in restoring strayed youngsters to their parents.

Mrs. Hoover joined in the outdoor celebration, standing bareheaded in the brisk weather to distribute colored eggs to the children who thronged about her. The chief executive appeared once to wave a smiling greeting.

Acts As Hostess

Earlier, the first lady acted as hostess inside the executive mansion to several hundred children of capital officials. She stood in the green room surrounded by Easter baskets, and as the youngsters filed past almost in the manner of formal White House receptions, handed each a colored Easter egg.

There was dancing in the east room by children dressed in colonial costumes, while heavy laden tables of refreshments awaited the youngsters in the dark panelled state dining room.

Optimism Is Being Felt For Baby's Safe Return

Church Dean States He Has Contacted The Kidnapers

(By The Associated Press)

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 28.—On a mission he considered so important he flew nearly 300 miles through storms which had grounded most other planes, the dean of a Norfolk (Va.) church came here today to tell Col. Charles A. Lindbergh of a "contact" made with the kidnapers of the famous flier's son.

After an hour behind closed doors with the colonel, the clergyman, the very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock started back home with the statement there probably would be another conference with Lindbergh within three or four days.

Expresses Optimism

He declined to discuss information he had passed on to the father of the child who was stolen 27 days ago from his crib, but twice he spoke of the "optimism" he and two other prominent Norfolk residents, acting with him as intermediaries, have that the missing baby will be returned to his parents.

"The conference was the result of a contact made with the kidnapers," he said.

"Did Col. Lindbergh receive your information with optimism?" he was asked.

Speaks For Trio

"I cannot speak for Col. Lindbergh," he replied. "All I can say is that we are optimistic."

He apparently referred to himself, John H. Curtis, Norfolk boat builder, and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, who have been associated since March 9, in efforts to secure return of the child.

Over the week-end Curtis made a mysterious airplane trip for the purpose of meeting the abductors

It Must Be Enameled To Hold Ends In Place; Bobbed Hair Is The Thing, But Long Bob Has Gone The Way Of Short Skirt; Bronze Henna Supplants The Platinum Blonde

BY RUTH COWAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, March 28. (AP) — Powdered hair in the modern manner—colored to match the evening gown and enameled (not lacquered) to hold the ends in place — made its debut today at the annual midwest beauty industry show.

As described by E. Rhode, Chicago hair dresser, the colored powder, generally flecked with metal, is put on the hair when it is waved and set. If the wearer desires two colors, the crests of the waves are tinted with a brush. Then the head is sprayed with an enamel and dried.

To get it out a dry-cleaner is used, he said.

And among the host of other late ideas in gilding the human lily, it was learned that:

Hair with one or more streaks of powder in gold, silver or colors and enameled is also very new for evening wear.

Bobbed hair is the thing, but the long bob has decidedly gone the way of the short skirt. The hair, authorities said, should not be longer than one inch below the back hairline.

Platinum blonde has been supplanted by bronze henna, for red hair is the present ruling favorite.

The 1932 spring moder bob, as described by Max Hoefer, president of the Illinois Hairdressers' association, has a sculptured effect—sleek, close to the head, well-trimmed and well-groomed.

Bangs are in, only they are not called bangs but "feathers," which is descriptive of fringed ends.

Scores Of Lubbock Women Gather In Church Society Meetings Monday

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

GALVESTON — After wandering over Galveston for a week without a guide, I made a trip along the wharves and to the beach today with Miss Virginia Gwin, woman's editor for the Galveston News, and heard some interesting stories about the town. Her home is here and she has been connected with the paper for several years so she has a wealth of knowledge from which she draws.

After a breakfast together out where we could watch the Gulf waters sparkle in the sun, we drove out to the ferry landing, sat on a huge block of granite and watched the ships pass. It was here that my coat of tan took on a deeper shade but it was worth all of that.

Later we drove for several miles along the docks watching the various types of ships that were tied up there. Long strings of cars were standing along the wharves filled with sulphur that glistened in the sun. Piles of lumber were awaiting shipment. Cotton was stored in large sheds to be shipped to the four corners of the globe.

There is a Mallory passenger ship here now that will sail Sunday. Another will not dock for two weeks. Freight ships come and go every day.

Dozens of shrimp and oyster boats stand at one pier and draw the name of "mesquite fleet." Here one may buy seafoods, fruits and a variety of other things. Crabs and shrimps are sold alive to those who wish them in this form. On a sunshiny morning when the water is smooth, these small ships fleck the waters immediately south of this city, spreading nets there all day and filling the holds of the boats. In the afternoon and evening, the fishermen turn back into the bay and to their pier to sell their catch.

Many of them apparently live in the boats. Last Sunday we saw their washing flapping from ropes as the men cleaned their ships.

Small Boy Philosophy

ONE LITTLE newsboy who flagged me several blocks from town yesterday, paid for his ride by reading the paper as we drove. He took the job seriously, first reading the headlines and then launching into the story concerning Ann Harding and her husband, Harry Bannister.

Half-way through he stopped to discuss their announced plans to seek a divorce. "He shouldn't feel that way about things," the boy expostulated. "Why, I wouldn't mind beind called by my wife's name if she made a living for me—as it looks like this woman did for her husband. Looks like he is giving up a good thing!"

A ten-year-old's opinion. But a man's viewpoint is likely to be entirely different.

THE WORST TRAVELER

MY IDEA of the worst sort of traveler is the one who can't see any good in the places to which he goes. There was a woman from New York in the party this evening when we were having dinner and she assumed that the rest of us were a lot of country people who were in for a treat in having her about.

She ordered her supper with the air of one who believes that "since I am out of New York there is really no hope anyway," she appeared bored and actually was not evenly remotely interested in us or in her surroundings, yet she made an attempt to dominate the conversation and the meal through her pose.

A person of this type is almost as bad as the one who is so tiresomely effervescent, but neither makes an interesting traveler or companion.

It isn't the type of personality one finds among people who have fame. Men and women who have "arrived" in almost any field are usually the most charming companions, the kind who can see good things in the worst towns and in the most insignificant people. They are the good travelers and the cheerful companions. In fact, that is usually one of the greatest factors in their success.

How to Escape
FLU
and Grippe

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Gets lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly, to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin; remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. And if you have a sore throat, dissolve some Bayer Aspirin tablets in water and gargle; this relieves the soreness, and it usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

"Does amazing amount of work," says Mrs. O. A. Swenson of Minneapolis
"I NEVER knew one large box of Rinso would do so much work. And it takes the drudgery out of washing yet it gets the dirtiest clothes clean and white. With one package I did this big wash:
2 bed spreads, 3 bureau scarfs, 4 tablecloths, 14 face cloths, 6 napkins, 10 pillow cases, 7 sheets, 2 table cloths, 21 towels, 7 dish towels, 9 window curtains, 51 handkerchiefs, 1 overalls, 11 shirts, 8 pair socks, 21 pieces of underwear, 6 women's aprons, 10 dresses (women's), 5 night clothes, 10 pair stockings, 5 pair pajamas
Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Even in hardest water, you will be amazed at the amount of washing one big box of Rinso will do. Recommended by the makers of 40 famous washers. Great for dishes, too.

The "Young Fellers"

More than 200 young men called rookies are in the spring training camps of the major league teams this spring. Officially the figure is something like 169, but a great many have driven their own "jallopies" or hitch-hiked their way to the campus to volunteer their professional services.

The camp of the Cincinnati Reds at Tampa, and the Browns' headquarters at West Palm Beach were overrun with these volunteers.

"Something will have to be done about these guys," said Dan Howley, foreman of the Reds. "Three or four come driving up to the hotel every day, introducing themselves as the pitchers or outfielders you have been looking for. And most of the time they arrive here dead broke and we have 'em on our hands.

"Last year we had five Ty Cobbs sleeping in the clubhouse. I think they live on the oranges they can swing with." (Editor's Note: To "swing with" something means to snatch it—thus: "Pepper Martin sure can swing with those bases.")

The Least of These

The young men who can talk fast enough to crash their way to a cot in the club house constitute the lowest class of baseball rookies. Most of them are very willing, and very dumb.

They toil feverishly in the outfield, or on the mound pitching to batters, and when they achieve any notice from the manager they write long letters home to the family or the sweetheart, announcing they now have reasons to believe they will make good.

Often their efforts are awkward to the point of comedy. Hardly ever does one of these ambitious recruits make the grade.

You Can't Miss 'Em

Then there is another class of rook—the young man who scored the most doubles in the Three-Eye or the Piedmont League last year, or the pitchers who struck out the most batters in the Southern. For scores of these chaps this is the first trip to the majors, and you can see it sticking out all over them. They converse in little groups. They wear expressions of anxiety, as though waiting for the bad news.

Some of them, who have made a bad impression and are aware of it, know they could have done better if given another chance, but realize that it's "back to Beaumont, or Peoria, or Hartford."

The Big Shots

Then there is the third class, the expensive talent, purchased for fancy prices from AA clubs in the American Association or Pacific Coast League. As a rule the bearing of these "ne plus ultra" rookies is freighted with the burden of their responsibilities. They are going to help some big league team win a pennant.

How would you feel yourself, if a major league ball team paid all the way from $25,000 to $75,000 just for the privilege of hiring you."

Well, that's the way they feel—and even some of these last will be going back to the farm teams for more schooling. For these the awakening will be rudest.

Speaking of rookies, the arms that bloom in the spring, tra la la, often have nothing to do with the case.

Sooner Officials Deny Rumor Lynn Waldorf Slated Mentor At University Of Oklahoma

NORMAN, Okla., March 28. (AP)—Denial of reports that Lynn Waldorf, football coach at Oklahoma A. and M., is slated for the University of Oklahoma coaching job was made today by Ben G. Owen, Sooner director of athletics.

"It is true we were seriously considering Waldorf, as we were others," Owen said. He added that an unofficial canvas of the O. U. athletic council, which will meet Thursday, had showed that some members are not wholeheartedly in favor of Waldorf, as they believed his salary would be too much to permit the employment of an assistant.

Owen said he had had only one conversation with Waldorf, more than a week ago, and "just wanted to find out how he felt and if he could be induced to take the job. he didn't apply for it, and there was no question of terms or salary."

Carey Selph-White Sox Controversy Is Ended As Former Buff Agrees To Play

Chicago Drafts Houston Citizen

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO, March 28.—Carey Selph leaned on a telegraph desk in the lobby of a Houston hotel one day in midwinter and sent Chicago White Sox officials the following telegram:

"I'll play nowhere this summer except Houston."

He received a reply that read:

"You'll play nowhere except Chicago."

He didn't like it a little bit. In the first place he didn't want the Sox to draft him from Houston at the end of last season. He desired to remain at Houston where he conducts an established business.

All this exchange of telegrams occurred during cold winter days when baseball wasn't even good stove league gossip.

Spring Alters Things

Now spring is in the air, and one of the hardest working fellows with the Sox during pre-season training has been Selph.

He hopes to land a regular job, and his chance is excellent. He is classed as the outstanding prospect among the new players.

Selph has several years of consistent Texas league baseball behind him, and had a trial with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1929.

Texas League's Best

As second baseman for last year's Houston team, he was selected as the league's best allround player. He was the vital spark in Houston's drive to the pennant. Dizzy Dean of the same team was more sensational, but Selph was the foundation of the club.

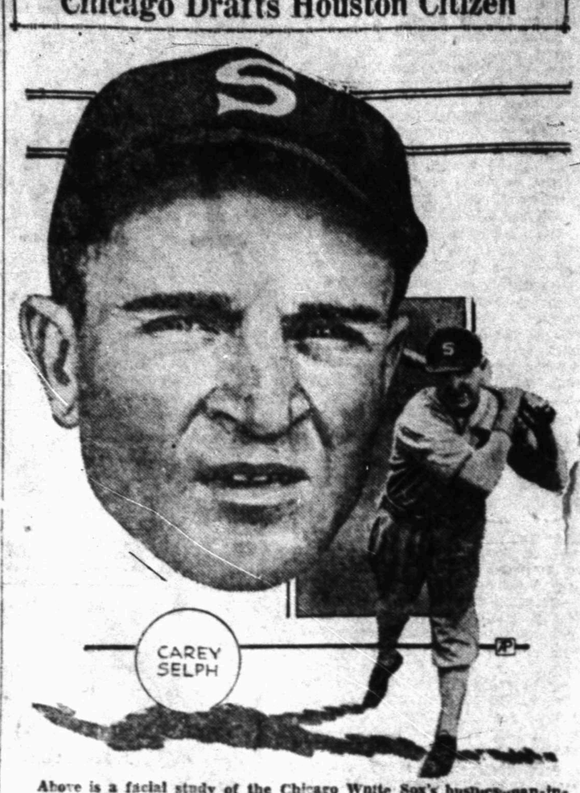

Selph played in 156 games last year, figured in 99 double plays and fielded .954. He hit .322.

Majors No Thrill

Selph is not thrilled over his chance to play under baseball's big top. He had still rather play at Houston, but he loves the game too much to quit.

"I'll give this club the best I've got. I'll bear down each minute I'm in the game but in case you fellows decide to send me back to Houston, I'll be ready," is Selph's assurance to White Sox officials.

Manager Lew Fonseca is confident he will find an open spot to place Selph as a regular.

Above is a facial study of the Chicago White Sox's bushess-man-infielder. Does he look like a hitter or a man at his best before a luncheon club? The Sox believe the former and finally persuaded him to leave Houston, Tex., where last year he combined business with baseball.

Radium is reported to be worth $1,500,000 an ounce at the present time.

Families in London are growing smaller, according to last year's census, which showed that despite a decrease of 87,702 in population, the number of families has grown 61,842.

Behind Our Warm Welcome

TO this bank the desire to serve far beyond the expected is not merely an attitude of mind. Nor is the warmth so noticeable in its welcome to a visitor just a gesture. Both are expressive of a creed that makes of service a real privilege.

For a bank, after all, has only service to sell—whether it is a service of counsel, of guardianship or of capital. To dispense that service is but a duty; to dispense it well is an expected trust; but to dispense it cheerfully is a real pleasure.

Legion Plans To Work Farm

Post Legionnaires Working To Build New Legion Home For Group; 95-Acre Tract Being Put Under Plow

POST, March 28. (Special)—Preparation for the raising of a crop by James C. Cole post of the American Legion was begun the past week on a 95-acre tract of land one mile west of Graham Chapel community in this county. The land is being furnished to the Legion post by the John B. Slaughter estate for 1932 free of rent and the crop will be worked and harvested by the members of James C. Cole post together with whatever outside assistance may be donated.

Seven Legion members with teams and plows and one with a tractor, aided by L. O. Thuett and G. W. Lee with tractors and O. M. Davis with teams and plow, who are not ex-service men, began plowing and completed the job of bedding the land. Several other Legionnaires undertook and completed the job of removing the brush along the fence rows around the field.

John Wallace of the Graham Chapel community is in charge of operations of the farm and the raising and harvesting of the crop, the proceeds of which will be used to build a Legion home in Post.

Lunch Is Served

At the noon hour the restaurant men of Post appeared at the scene of activities and served an excellent lunch to the men who were performing the labor.

J. B. Slaughter, Jr., was on hand with his motion picture camera and took pictures of all activities and as the working and harvesting of the crop proceeds pictures of all activities will be made in order that the Legion post may have a complete record and history of its initial attempt to build a home in this city.

Post Commander N. C. Outlaw states that all ex-service men are enthusiastic over the program of building a home by raising a crop for that purpose and are undertaking the task in a determined manner.

Slaton Chamber Favors Payment

SLATON, March 28. (Special)—Taking a stand opposite to that of the tax committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the Slaton Chamber of Commerce has expressed itself by resolution as "favoring the payment of the soldiers bonus now."

"We do not think it advisable, or the opinion of the majority of the local chambers of commerce of West Texas, to save at the expense of the soldiers," declared the Slaton resolution.

"We are of the opinion that the cost of the government must be reduced, national, state, and county, but, do this by elimination of useless bureaus and commissions, and if necessary radical reductions of salaries of the higher brackets," it continued.

"We are opposed to striking at the soldiers bonus at this time as the payment to them will be much more welcome than to have to wait till 1945."

J. W. Hood is president and A. J. Payne secretary of the Slaton chamber.

Injunction Will Halt Business Of Lubbock Firm

A temporary injunction restraining the Farmers and Merchants Insurance company of Lubbock, a local mutual aid association, from continuing to operate an insurance business was granted Monday by District Judge W. F. Robertson in 126th district court at Austin, an Associated Press dispatch last night said.

Elmo Wall, an insurance man, of Lubbock was appointed receiver. Mr. Wall Monday night said he had not received notice of the appointment, but indicated he probably would serve if "arrangements are satisfactory." H. B. Prothro of Lubbock is manager of the association.

Petition Is Filed

Petition asking that the charter be forfeited was filed by the attorney general's department. The state alleged the company was operating in violation of the insurance statutes by "writing and assuming risks not provided for in its charter. The specific allegation was that it was writing accident insurance."

Prothro said his company, a consolidation of several small local associations, began operations in 1929, and that "it has been an uphill fight from the beginning, due to the depression which began immediately after receiving the charter from the state insurance department. I am doing everything possible to protect the interests of my policyholders."

A Blunder By The WTCC

IN taking an aggressive stand against the soldier bonus and in leaving no stone unturned to let everybody know about it, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce made its outstanding blunder since the days of the 'hoorah' side of the organizations.

The Morning Avalanche has no desire to dictate the WTCC's opinion in the bonus matter but we do have a criticism of the action which tossed the organization into the wrangle. It looks like somebody, somewhere along the line, decided that it was time for the WTCC to get some more publicity and used the bonus question as a vehicle. To our way of thinking it was an error in judgment of the first water.

Whether the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is for or against the bonus makes not one whit difference in Washington. No matter how much we might enjoy kidding ouselves, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce exerts 99 and 44-100ths per cent of its influence in West Texas—not out of it. And while the organization's stand made no difference in Washington it did make a difference in West Texas, where former service men are aroused in indignation.

The Morning Avalanche happens to be in favor of the bonus but that doesn't necessarily make it right. The WTCC is against it, and that is satisfactory to this newspaper which has a policy of agreeing that people and organizations may logically disagree with it without our getting mad.

But the point in the whole matter is that the WTCC was talking when it should have been listening; that it poked it's head through an open window and got a crack for its trouble; that it tried, with usual results, the hazardous old game of trying to crowd into some one else's fuss.

TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT

The one-horse days have passed but we still conduct our governmental affairs along the same lines and in the same channels as we did before the advent of the automobile, with its rapid means of transportation, and before the radio, the telephone and telegraph came into general use as quick means of communication. We have made progress in practically everything except in governing ourselves.

Thirty years ago it took us a full day to reach grandmother and grandfather 40 miles out in the country via the horse and buggy route. Today an hour's drive brings us to the same destination. We no longer depend on the mounted rider with his saddle bags to carry important communications or deliver urgent messages to our neighbors in the next county or state. The telephone, the radio, the telegraph do this quicker and more effectively.

And yet our governmental units of the state are the same in number as they were years ago. The township as a unit of government, so our leading political scientists tell us, is obsolete and contributes only to our burden of taxation. Consolidations and eliminations appear to be in order. This also holds true of school districts. Certainly these are branches of our government that offer fertile fields for cultivation by those who sincerely desire to reduce the taxpayer's burden.

DEFECTIVE AUTOS

An analysis made by the National Conference on Highway Safety places at 15 per cent the proportion of the 33,060 traffic fatalities in 1931 that were caused by defects in motor vehicles. Some state highway officials estimate it even higher. But at 15 per cent it vindicates the spreading practice of compulsory periodic inspections of motor vehicles.

These defects are largely attributable to improper maintenance by the automobile owner and to the use of superannuated vehicles which have frequently changed hands through resales. To the automobile owners the moral of the foregoing is plain—keep the car in good order, with especial attention to the brakes and steering mechanism, or keep it off the highway.

The conference points out as a warning to drivers that an increase from 20 to 30 miles an hour in the speed of city driving represents an increase of 50 per cent in speed, but an increase of 125 per cent in the energy and destructive power of the moving vehicle, because the energy is proportionate to the square of the speed. Partly offsetting this added threat are the recent radical improvements in the strength and efficiency of brakes, in the construction of tires and in the balance and ease of handling of motor cars.

It is incontrovertible that the modern motor car can be driven with greater safety at higher speeds in city traffic than models of four or five years ago, but it behooves every driver to bear in mind the destructive force of speed.

FEWER SALESMEN

Traveling salesmen are vanishing which probably accounts for the decline in number and popularity of traveling salesmen jokes noted of late.

There has been rapid decimation of the drummer ranks in recent years, according to the managing director of the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Associations, and the survivors are authority for the statement that selling "on the road" is becoming increasingly difficult.

This condition can not be blamed on "hard times." One opinion is that modern business demands a new type of traveling salesman, who is an expert on merchandising and capable of seeing problems through the eyes of the buyer, and that he is not being developed fast enough to meet the demand.

Disagreeing with this theory are a number of business executives, who contend that the rising costs of travel and the current policy of small-order buying by retail establishments have sounded the death knell of the high-salaried salesman who makes long trips over the country calling on customers in many states. His place is destined they contend, to be taken by independent commission salesmen who represent several non-competing lines in a restricted territory.

So we learn that labor-saving machinery is not the only job-annihilator and that business is undergoing so many fundamental changes that the lay mind cannot follow them nor comprehend their significance.

Only Emergency Move

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 28.—"Which is the real problem? To help the unemployed? Or to end unemployment?

"With all the sympathy in the world," says Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, "for the motives of those whose first thought is to relieve existing distress, I still must insist that this should be viewed as only an emergency task.

"It is not an end in itself, but an incident.

"Our essential work is to correct the conditions responsible for so much suffering."

Cordell Hull

PROGRESSIVES, seeking a congressional remedy for unemployment evils, do not, indeed, advocate outright charity for the unemployed in any out exceptional cases. Their plan contemplates the creation of a governmental demand for labor, to the extent that there is an insufficient demand for it from other sources.

"Ah, but the government's business," answers Senator Hull, "is to avoid steering the country into situations in which trade and industry will languish.

"If it does avoid such situations, there will be a demand for labor.

"If the demand for labor declines, that in itself is a sure sign that the government has erred in its policies.

"It will not mend matters by persisting in its errors and applying palliatives, in an effort to counteract the trouble which these same errors are causing.

"In fact, the country which mistakes a palliative for a cure, and sticks to it, is likely to exhaust the palliative's efficacy finally. In the meantime the basic difficulty will have been aggravating itself, and the unlucky country probably will find itself worse off than ever."

"ENGLAND," said the senator, "has had just such an experience.

"In an attempt to carry on, without an adequate investigation to determine the fundamental character of the British national complaint, the labor government continued its superficial treatment, of dose after dose of unemployment aid, until sufficient quantities of the drug simply no longer were available.

"Then the crash came; the liberal and well-meaning, if ill-informed Labor government is overthrown and blind reaction is in power."

BRIEFLY, it is Senator Hull's view that any such program of public improvements as the progressives have would amount—except in so far as the work actually is needed—merely to an excuse for a dole.

He is frank to declare that he has no faith in a dole to take up the slack of unemployment.

"No artificial device," he maintains, "can restore prosperity.

"It must be a natural development.

"Until the causes which retard it are removed unemployment will continue and the cost of any machinery set up to offset it not only will continue also, but will continue to grow."

AND THE CAUSES which do retard improvement?

"The great cause," replied the senator, "is tariff interference with world trade—the network of barriers which we set the example by beginning to build and ought to set the example now of beginning to tear down.

"And the excessive cost of government."

A medical publicist is asked, "What is the reason for a booming sound and a ringing in the ears, as of bells?" Our music advisor suggests it may be the 1812 Overture."

France has little technological unemployment, says a world survey. Then how do they rate dozing beside a fished-out stream all day with a bamboo rod?

Practical Health Problems

INFANT DEATH RATE SHOWS NEW DROP

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

THE infant mortality rate is the number of deaths under one year of age for each thousand children born alive. The control of deaths among infants is a problem to which health authorities have given special attention in recent years.

As a result, the number of such deaths has constantly fallen and today the infant mortality rate in a community is taken as a standard of measurement for the health condition of the community.

It must be remembered, however, that the infant mortality rate is the result of many forces, including the social and economic status of the community, the customs of different races and nationalities, the health knowledge of the people and the presence of hospitals and medical centers for suitable advice.

For 1930, Chicago and St. Louis led all other large cities with a rate of 54. Cleveland had 55; New York 57; Philadelphia 59; Los Angeles 61; Detroit and Baltimore 65, and Pittsburgh and Boston 69. These are our ten largest cities. In each case, except that of Boston, the rate for 1930 was lower than for 1929.

Show Improvement

A FEW cities in the United States have shown remarkable improvement and infant mortality rates in some are so low that they represent an extraordinarily healthful situation.

One small city in Pennsylvania has a rate of 259, but it happens to be the location of an important state institution for children, and it draws infants from all over the state.

For many years large cities in Oregon and Washington have had astoundingly low rates. Thus Seattle has a rate of 37; Spokane and Tacoma 47 and 44, and Portland, Oregon, has a rate of 41.

Whereas Chicago has a rate of 54, Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago, has a rate of 28 and Evanston a rate of 39. This should show the advantage of good air, sunlight and plenty of room for keeping good health.

Industrial Rates High

SEVERAL industrial centers in close approximation to Chicago have rates much higher than the city proper; thus, Blue Island has a rate of 71 and Forest Park a rate of 80.

Altogether, however, most of the cities in the United States may be very proud of their advancement in this field. When it is remembered that many of our large cities had rates as high as 200 and 300 but three decades ago, we have strong reasons for congratulations.

EXPLANATION OF SATURDAY'S CARTOON

THE MARRYING SPECIALIST

In 1863 Rainiliarivony, described as a man of great sagacity and ability, was Prime Minister and Commander of the Armed Forces of Madagascar, a huge island in the Indian Ocean. In that year King Radama II was murdered and succeeded by his widow, Queen Rasoaherina, on the throne of the island, Raini, who was already married and the father of many children, promptly married the Queen, adding the title of Prince Consort to the numerous dignities he was holding. Eventually the position of Prime Minister and Royal Consort must have become quite an obsession with him, for after the death of the Queen he lost no time in marrying her successor, Queen Ranavalona II (1868). And again, when Ranavalona II died in 1883, he promptly entered into matrimony with her successor, Queen Ranavalona III. The latter was deposed by the French and deported to Algiers in 1897, thus ending the independence of Madagascar.

Raini, the perpetual Prince Consort, was born three years after the death of his mother's first husband. Throughout its independent existence Madagascar was a matriarchy and its laws made the first husband of a woman the father of all children born to her, regardless of the time of his death and her remarriage.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, employed at Barclay's Department Store, works nights as a dance hall hostess. She lives with her mother, MOLLY ROSSITER, her elder sister, MYRA, and her brother, MIKE.

STEVEN BARCLAY, 57 and owner of Barclay's, is in love with Ellen. Twice she refuses to marry him, because she loves handsome LARRY HARROWGATE, an artist she has met at the dance hall. She loves him despite the fact that his engagement to ELIZABETH BOWES, a debutante, has been announced. Ellen agrees to pose for Larry. One night at his studio she sees a photograph of Elizabeth Bowes. Larry says casually that she is a friend.

Ellen decides to break with Larry but he comes to the dance hall and asks her to lunch with him and his mother next day. For the first time he kisses her. Next day Ellen receives a note from Larry, saying he cannot keep the date.

In a newspaper she reads that Elizabeth Bowes is back from Europe. Broken-hearted, the girl flings herself into her work at the store and at Dreamland to forget. Gradually she comes to think less of Larry and more of Steven Barclay.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STODY

CHAPTER XXVI

The morning at the store had been a happy one for Ellen. The pleasantness of the evening before lingered through the opening hours of the day.

Noon came. Ellen and Lorene yawned, looked at each other interrogatively and began tidying up for lunch. Lorene tentatively suggested a newly discovered tea room with a bangup 75-cent luncheon. They set off and talked shop through the lazy unhurried hour. Ellen found it pleasant to lunch in such a comfortable fashion. Afterwards when they were strolling back to the store, Lorene said suddenly:

"I've decided to let you try Blumstein's yourself this afternoon. I hear they have some cute sports dresses at $9.10—a new line. Carney & Co. has a whole window display from there."

"Oh! said Ellen, flushed and thrilled.

"Get three or four. Green is a good bet, I think. And nothing too fancy. Use your own judgment. Afterwards, if you want to, you can go on home and not bother coming back till tomorrow. Your loot won't be delivered till morning anyhow."

"You don't know how proud—" Ellen began inarticulately.

"Forget it! If you make any bloomers I'll come down hard enough! Not that I think you will."

It was 4 o'clock when Ellen finished with the manufacturers and walked up Pine street toward home. She reviewed the purchases she had made and found them good. Underneath lay the pleased consciousness that she was through with Barclay's for the day. Myra should be home from the library. Tea and muffins in the kitchen, perhaps. Ellen's steps hastened.

She entered the dusky hallway and had started up the stairs when Myra, wearing an old faded apron and bedroom slippers, her head wrapped in a towel, came flying down. Ellen saw disaster in her sister's eyes.

"Ellen! Mike's been hurt. An accident—!"

Ellen leaned against the bannister. Her heart seemed to stop. Her brain—everything—seemed to stop for a terrible, timeless moment.

"He's unconscious. They carried him in our bedroom."

Myra was gone. Ellen ran up the stairs and into the shabby familiar living room filled with silent people, women in dust caps and aprons, a few coatless perspiring men. Mike's bicycle was propped against the wall. They were all looking at it.

"It's the other sister," Ellen heard someone say.

"Poor thing! Let her through."

Stirring, moving uneasily, they made a path for her, all the curious, kindly neighbors, but Ellen did not notice. She ran past them to the bedroom. Mike lay unconscious on the bed, Mrs. Clancy, concerned and anxious, was leaning over him. Molly sat still and white in a chair drawn close. She did not move as Ellen entered.

"Oh, Ellen, it's you! I thought Myra—" Mrs. Clancy turned and spoke quietly.

Ellen's breath came in great gasps. She could not speak.

"Sit down."

The Irishwoman left the bed and took her hands in an effort to force her to a chair. Ellen leaned against her, spent, exhausted, her eyes on the little motionless figure on the high white bed.

"What happened?"

"It was the bicycle," said Mrs. Clancy patiently. "At Pine and Chestnut. He was wheeling it across when a truck, a big truck—he pushed the bicycle clear but—"

"The doctor?"

"We've called him. Myra's gone to see."

Myra came in just then.

"Dr. Ellis is on his way," she said.

"I'll go clear out the living room," Mrs. Clancy offered and left.

"Oh, Myra, Myra!" Ellen whispered.

"He—he's breathing, Ellen. We

Letters To The Editor

Ferguson's Work In Schools Is Stressed By Local Reader

Editor of The Avalanche: Free government can not long survive when the thousands enjoy the wealth of the country and millions share its poverty in common. Even now we hear among the rich an occazionally expressed contempt for popular government, and among the poor a protest against legislation which makes them "toil that others may reap."

Let me appeal to you to help restore justice and bring back prosperity while yet a peceable solution can be secured. We have mourned with unhappy Ireland whose chief patriot and fearless defender, Chas. Parnell, sacrificed himself upon the altar of his country, in their defense of home rule and their brave stand against alien land owners who drained the country of its home created wealth. But we may reach a condition, if present tendencies continue, when our position will be like theirs—and when some poet may write of us as Goldsmith did of the "Deserted Village."

"While scouraged by famine from a smiling land,
The mournful peasant leads his humble band,
And while he sinks without one
hand to save,
The country blooms—a garden
and a grave."

The first quarter of this century witnessed a rapid and a hitherto unparalleled group of men who made quick fortunes—fortunes not due to financial and administrative ability of those who came into possession of them, but by reason of the development of the natural resources by those who came to till the soil. The land that came into the ownership of the few who inherited it or by reason of purchase when land was cheap, later built up a landed aristocracy. High rents were exacted of those who undertook to live off the soil to the point that it forced poverty upon the tenant class. To relieve this condition there appeared in 1914 on the horizon of these oppressed landed tenants a political Moses. This was the year that Jas. E. Ferguson announced for governor. The first call in his campaign speech at Blum (I was present) was for, and in behalf of humanity—for the tenant farmers of Texas. All over this state "The man with the hoe" was again being exploited by landlords laying excessive rentals on them and which landlords were assisted in th's respect by laws of the state governing landlords and tenants. The large majority of Texas farms are operated by tenant farmers and they were not only poorly housed but were being charged a bonus for the land on which they lived, making their burdens so great that it was necessary for them to keep their children out of school and work them on the farms in order to meet these rents and provide the common necessities of life.

These landlords in this landed aristocracy argued that their lands were very valuable and that the tenants had to have them upon which to make a living. Ferguson said, "Yes, your lands are valuable because you have these tenants—these men and women and children to toil on these lands, and without them your land would be worthless and you shall not oppress them." The landlord said: "But this is our land and we can charge what we want to." Ferguson said: "Yes, it is your land, but you hold it by limited title which is inferior to the doctrine of a square deal as embodied in the police power of this state and the state can limit the rents which you can charge."

Then the other proposition as taught by the philosophy of history evidenced itself and he became the object of hatred, abuse and slander of this "Aristocracy." So far as I know, Ferguson was the pioneer in this country advocating the proposition that the state has the right to limit rental upon real estate. The doctrine is acknowledged now everywhere.

The people of Texas approved his position. The legislature passed a law embodying it. The court invalidated it on a technicality, but the publicity given to the proposition brought about an extensive cure for the conditions as well as any law could have done.

The next people who challenged the attention of Ferguson in that announcement were the children of Texas. The public schools at that time were without statutory organization—without adequate support—limited in all facilities and had been for years, and so far as the state itself was concerned was the ragged child of slothful neglect. In hundreds of districts the school houses were run down, dilapidated, old and unfit for use. In other districts there were no school houses at all and the term was less than six months and in many places no over four. The per capita for the school children was less than ten dollars. Ferguson promised to relieve all these conditions. Up to that time no appropriation had been made from the general revenue of this state to aid the rural school districts. Ferguson told the people that he would make appropriation from this general revenue to relieve these conditions. He became governor, and one of the very first acts of his administration was, with the aid of the legislature, to take a million dollars of the people's money from the people's treasury and give it to the people's children of this state to build or to renovate, remodel, or repair the rural school buildings of Texas. And within two years after his election, by virtue of this legislation alone, every child that was in attendance upon rural schools in Texas was the immediate beneficiary of the private thought and the public efforts of Governor Ferguson. But he did not stop there in his efforts to bring about the education of the childhood of Texas. It was under his supervisions that the construction was amended authorizing the levying of additional taxes for public schools and the providing of free text books for the children of this state. It was under his administration that the compulsory school attendance bill was passed and became a law. What higher or holier cause to which man can dedicate his life and career than to the education of the childhood of the country?

ave to hope and pray."

Their fingers closed together ightly; their terrified eyes met and illed of reassurance.

Molly sat motionless, tearless, peechless. Myra tried to make her eave but she would not. Ellen nelt beside the bed, not daring to ouch Mike except to take one of his tubby nailed hands, still grimy rom play. She hardly knew what went on about her. She was not ware that Myra had at last succeeded in getting Molly into her own bedroom. She was aware only of Mike and his death-like pallor nd his death-like stillness.

Dr. Ellis came. Another doctor came. Ellen hardly understood that they had forced her from the room so they could make the examination. After a long while—it was dark outside now—the doctors reluctantly announced they still could not say how gravely the boy was injured. Internal injuries undoubtedly—the persistent coma due to that —one leg broken, perhaps his spine affected. The child should be in a hospital. They wanted another opinion before moving him.

"How soon will we know the best —or the worst?"

It was the ghost of Molly's voice.

"We-ll," Dr. Ellis hesitated, "if he holds out through the night we should be able to move him by morning. An immediate operation would be too dangerous."

Ellen returned to her vigil beside Mike. Myra moved in and out, but most of the time she stayed in the next room with Molly who lay sleepless, staring, tearless. Sometimes Mike's breathing grew heavy and the strange, stertorous sound filled the watcher with panic. Yet never would Ellen allow her hopes to flag. Toward morning Mike stirred for the first time and murmured something incoherent about a bicycle. Ellen looked quickly toward Dr. Ellis at the other side of the bed.

"That's good," he said.

Presently the doctor gave a deep sigh. "You can tell your mother and Myra we'll be moving the young man to the hospital in an hour or so."

He bent and fumbled for Mike's pulse, looked across at Ellen and smiled wearily.

The ambulance came for Mike. There was a crowd on the street when they carried him out into the morning sunshine. Molly rode in the ambulance. Ellen and Myra followed in a cab and told each other with courageous lips and frightened eyes that everything would be all right. Dr. Ellis had said . . . .

They reached the hospital and saw Mike wheeled away. In a long, white brightly lighted hall, heavy with the smell of ether and iodoform, the three women waited. Again and again Myra or Ellen would importune a crisp, starched nurse for news that did not come. They started at every ring of the telephone and then sank back looking at each other with bleak eyes and faltering hearts.

The great hospital seemed to have swallowed up little Mike as though he had never existed. At 11 o'clock Ellen, haggard and heavy-eyed, remembered that she had not notified Lorene of her absence from the store. She whispered to Myra and slipped to the telephone, haunted by a vision of Molly's face. If anything happened to Mike she was afraid that Molly . . .

Ellen tore her thoughts from the unthinkable future. She explained what had happened and was back on the bench again. Hours had never been so long or so empty.

It was 12 o'clock. Then 1, 2, and nearly 3. Still no word. Dr. Ellis appeared but he could tell them nothing. At 3 o'clock he approached again.

This time Ellen read the news on his weary face before he spoke. Good news! She had not known until that moment how great her fear had been.

"He's going to pull through," the doctor told them. "We were afraid for a while that he wouldn't rally from the operation."

"Oh!"

Molly began to sob. She struggled to her feet, tears raining down her face, the first tears she had shed since the accident. Her cold, desperate fingers tugged at the doctor's sleeve.

"Where is he? Let me go to him —at once."

"I'm afraid you can't now," Dr. Ellis said gravely.

The nurse, standing at his elbow, intervened. "That will be impossible. The little boy is very tired now and sick. He's in a ward with a number of other children who also cannot be disturbed. Our visiting hours are on Tuesday and Thursday at 3 o'clock. In view of the circumstances if you come early tomorrow we might make an exception."

Ellen's eyes appealed to Dr. Ellis. "But won't Mike need a room by himself, special nurses and all those things?" she asked.

"I don't think it will be necessary," he answered slowly.

She knew that he was thinking of their poverty. She stepped nearer, said in a low voice that Mike must have every attention.

Egg Plant Is In Operation

Thirty-Five People Employed In New Egg Breaking And Drying Unit Of Lamesa's Milk Products Plant

LAMESA, March 28 (Special) Thirty-five people are employed by the new egg breaking and drying factory of Lamesa. There are 108,000 eggs being broken and dried daily, and this amount is increasing each day. The egg plant is operated by the Henningson Brothers of New York City. The powdered milk machinery used for the powdering of milk at the plant is used alternately by the egg drying company. Three products are manufactured by the egg drying company at this time, so states John Dillon in charge. The egg drying plant powders every other day, or one-half the time, while the milk plant powders the other half.

South Plains Leads

John Dillon, in charge of the egg drying plant, states the reason for the location of this plant in Lamesa are, "For the past six months we have been surveying production, and find that the South Plains Area of Texas leads in the Southwest, the facilities of the milk plant located in Lamesa attracted our attention in that we could secure a lease of machinery and thereby save the enormous investment of building an egg drying plant; the European or Sino-Japanese trouble, and the heavy duty of 27 cents per lb. on egg dried products recently imposed by the United States, all figure in inducing their operations in the United States, and to Lamesa."

Mr. Dillon further stated that as long as the price of eggs are as low as they are, it would be profitable to carry on this work. He stated, "We expect to, in the near future, add another product, giving us four products made in this plant, which will be frozen egg whites."

Officials of the egg drying plant state that they had no trouble in securing eggs, and that the products, powdered yellows, powdered whites, and powered whole eggs are shipped to Chicago, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and other large cities in ready demand.

Officials of Scotland Yard will not take up the investigation of crime outside London unless and until a special request has been made by a local police force to the British Home Office

Muscular-Rheumatic Aches and Pains

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Distressing muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond pleasantly to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant," because it gets action and is not just a salve. Musterole helps bring soreness and pain to the surface, and thus gives natural relief. You can feel how its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy; jars and tubes.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

MUSTEROLE

BETTER THAN A MUSTARD PLASTER

Three Minute Relief From Periodical Pains

It is so unnecessary to suffer month after month from inorganic pains, because "B. C." will bring soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a diffrent principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of common colds, headaches and neuralgia, muscular aches and pains, reducing fever and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. Get "B. C." in 10c and 25c packages, wherever drugs are sold. (adv.)

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 28. (AP)—The cotton market was active today and prices moved downward sharply. Liverpool continued closed for the easter holidays and prices here opened lower on Saturday's decline in stocks and wheat. Later prices eased off further on liquidation and stop loss orders as well as in sympathy with some early weakness in stocks. Uneasiness over the tax problem now before congress was an added bearish influence and prices dropped to levels 24-35 points below the previous close.

Late in the afternoon prices made new lows for the day at 6.14 for May 6.28 for July and 6.49 for October.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 28. (AP)—There was a decline of over $1.75 a bale in cotton today under a renewal of last week's selling movement and liquidation, stimulated by the early heaviness of the grain and stock markets, and nervousness over the uncertainties of legislation pertaining to taxes and the budget.

Prices for all positions made new low ground for the movement with May contracts selling off to 6.13 or 37 points net lower and 106 points below the high price touched earlier in the month. That delivery closed at 6.20 with the general market closing steady at net declines of 26-31 points.

Baby's Return

His associate, however, did not make it clear this afternoon whether the "contact" to which he referred had been made by Curtis on this trip or at some earlier time.

Denies Three Reports

All further questions brought the same reply:

"I cannot discuss the conference. If Col. Lindbergh chooses to, that is all right. I can say nothing more than that we are optimistic."

He did, however, deny three reports in saying he was not taking back any ransom money, that he had not seen the kidnaped child, and that he had not brought to the Lindbergh home a piece of baby's clothing as proof of the identity of the child held by those with whom the negotiations have been conducted.

He spoke emphatically in denying the kidnapers had allowed him and the other two intermediaries to see the child they held.

No Ransom Demands

He shook his head when asked if any ransom demands had been discussed at the conference.

After Curtis returned yesterday from his mysterious airplane trip, he said he believed the negotiations had reached a "semi-final" stage, and the very Rev. Dobson-Peacock said:

"We expect sometime this week to have the baby either in our hands or in the hands of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh."

Col. H. Norman Schwartzkoff, state police superintendent, made no mention of the Norfolk phase of the case in his morning and afternoon bulletins.

Stocks Are Steadied After Decline Had Carried Them Close To Bottom

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, March 28. (AP)—Covering in the last quarter hour steadied stocks today after a slow decline and carried them uncomfortably close to the old average lows.

A hair's breadth separated the early afternoon level from the bear market minimum. But with a violation of that figure hanging in the balance by early afternoon, activity diminished to nominal proportions and prices steadied. Shorts finally took in enough sail to effect a fairly spirited improvement which reduced or cancelled declines. Some leaders closed higher. Sales totaled 1,346,120 shares.

Wall street's concern over the national budget appeared to receive considerable support from abroad, for the dollar was weak against foreign currencies, especially sterling and French francs. Construed in the same light was the break in U. S. government bonds and the much softer tone of the entire investment market.

bama was not estimated, but it was known it will run into the scores.

Houses Are Destroyed

In Georgia, Mrs. Harvey Lewis of Buchanan was fatally injured as a tornado destroyed houses in Haralson county. Reports to the Red Cross in Atlanta said 100 were injured in that county alone. The Georgia storm also struck Heard county, injuring three and destroying six houses. The loss in Coweta county, where the damage was less severe, was not estimated in reports to the Red Cross.

In Texas, Coy Herd, a negro farmer, and his baby were killed near the town of Clarksville. Twenty were injured in another tornado near Selman.

Three persons were hurt and seven houses were razed at Pattison, Miss., and some damage from wind, rain and hail was felt at Columbus, Grenada and Aberdeen in that state; Chattanooga, Tenn., and Zwolle, La.

Plot To Murder Mexican Archbishop Is Uncovered

(By The Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—An alleged plot to abduct or assassinate Archbishop Francisco Orozco y Jimenes of Mexico at a Catholic mission where he was a guest here caused the prelate to move to more secure quarters under guard today.

A request by the Rev. Edward J. Whelan, president of San Francisco university, for a police guard about the Catholic Dominican fathers priory disclosed the alleged plot. The archbishop moved from the priory to a carmelite mission.

Jap Troops Are Ordered To Proceed Against Insurgents

CHANGCHUN, March 28. —(AP)—Japanese troops at Harbin were ordered today to proceed against a Chinese insurgent force numbering about 7,000 in the vicinity of Nungan where Japanese aviators bombed a rebel camp this morning.

The fliers reported they had inflicted heavy casualties and that they had seen a considerable insurgent force advancing in the Nangan district against a small Japanese unit. The advance, they said, might become a serious menace to Changchun.

Continuance Is Granted In Trial Of Man At Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, March 28. (AP)—Attorneys for W. S. "Tony" Phillips, charged with the murder of E. L. Churchill, oil operator, in the lobby of a hotel here, March 14, indicated today they will not attempt to obtain release of Phillips on bond before May 2, date for trial.

Because of the absence of witnesses, a continuance was granted today when the case was called.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, March 28. (AP)—Cattle receipts at eleven markets for the opening session of the week approximated 53,500 as compared with 48,450 last Monday and 49,000 for the same day a year ago. Trade on most killing classes was slow at prices unevenly steady to 25 lower, the big end of the decline falling on the better grades of light weight steers, yearlings and few heifers. Chicago had a top of 8.15 on heavy steers. The season's first sizable shipments of Colorado fed steers were received at Kansas City with seven loads of good medium weights selling at 6.25-60. Stocker and feeder classes found a fairly active outlet at firm prices. Choice stock steer calves in Omaha reached 7.00 and 6.75 was secured for light yearlings.

Comparatively light supplies stimulated demand for hogs and values were steady to 10 higher than Friday's average. Strong weight butchers sold little better than steady. The day's extreme top of 4.60 was realized at Chicago.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, March 28. (AP)—Hogs, 2,000; truck hogs mostly steady to 5 lower than Friday; no rail hogs offered; early truck top 4.30; practical truck top 4.20; bulk better grades 175-250 lb. truck hogs 4.15-20; few packing sows 3.25-50 or steady.

Cattle—2,000; 500 calves; slaughter steers rather slow, barely steady; morning sales 4.25-5.00; some good fed steers unsold late; slaughter yearlings slow tending weak to around 25 lower; few good grades 5.00-50; general trade on other classes slaughter cattle poorly tested, unchanged; few fat cows around 3.00; stockers fairly active, fully steady, one load well bred stock steer yearlings 5.60; several sales stock steers 5.00 including good stock heifer calves; two loads fairly good stock steer yearlings 4.65; slaughter calves steady, few good heavies 4.75-5.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 28. (AP)—For the first time in more than a year, the United States wheat visible supply today showed a decrease as compared with twelve months previous. Largely as a result, grain values averaged higher, notwithstanding numerous transient setbacks.

Temporary weakness shown by cereals was associated with Washington reports that President Hoover frowned on any attempt to abolish the farm board. Bearish effects also followed word that J. W. T. Duval, head of the grain futures administration, had been in conference with the house sub-committee which was seeking ways and means of raising taxes.

Wheat closed nervous, 1-2 to 2 1-8 higher than Saturday's finish, corn 3-8 to 5-8 advanced, oats 1-4 to 1-2 up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

NEWS BRIEFS

One Shallowater man pleaded guilty in county court Monday afternoon of a fighting charge and paid off a fine and court costs totaling $23.15. Three other Shallowater men—father and two sons—are named in similar complaints. They have not appeared in court yet. The father and his sons are reported to have engaged in a fight with the man who pleaded guilty here yesterday.

Carson county will have a large number of dairy cattle in the fifth annual Panhandle-Plains dairy show at Plainview April 11-14, George P. Grout, Panhandle, said here yesterday. The county plans a Guernsey herd in the contest.

Plans are under way for a poultry judging contest for boys of vocational agriculture classes at the annual Panhandle-Plains dairy show at Plainview in April A. R. Bateman, vocational agriculture teacher said yesterday. A dozen or more teams are expected to compete, he added.

Abernathy business men are anticipating a large number of entries in their second annual dairy show April 8 and 9 according to V. S. Payne, vocational agriculture teacher, who was here yesterday.

Fines and costs totaling $13.15 were assessed three women and six men by Justice H. K. Porter Monday. The nine were arrested Sunday night in a hotel here by the sheriff's department, which filed charges of gambling against each. One of the women had $136 in cash before her, supporting her poker bets, when the raiders entered, they said.

Cash bond of $750 was posted by Robert Wayne Hudson of Lockney, charged with inter-state movement of a stolen automobile, J. P. Edgar, deputy U. S. marshal, said. The deputy marshal said Hudson was charged with stealing an automobile in Oklahoma City and driving it to Lockney.

A suspect in the robbery of a packing company truck driver at Sudan was returned to Lamb county late Monday. The man was arrested by the sheriff's department here Sunday morning.

Three men entered a Sudan hotel room and took about $50 in cash and about $50 in checks from the driver about three weeks ago, the Lamb county attorney said.

Twenty-five or 30 pairs of trousers taken late Sunday night or early Monday from the A. L. Hawkins dry cleaning shop at 1310 Broadway had not been recovered late yesterday, police reported.

Glass was broken from a rear window to gain entrance, and exit was through a west side-door, an investigator said. No suits were taken, as a locked partition-door to the front of the shop separated them from the trousers there for cleaning and pressing.

Twenty-First Club Formed; Over 400 Women In Program

By Staff Correspondent

LEVELLAND, March 28 — The 21st home demonstration club has just been organized in Hockley county, in the Oklahoma Flats community, and there are over 400 women and girls now following the home demonstration program for 1932, Miss Nannie Hill, county demonstration agent says.

"Twenty-six women joined this new club," Miss Hill said. "They are very enthusiastic over their work and I am expecting a great deal from the club.

"With this club, we have 12 women's clubs and nine for girls. The girls and women have done some excellent work this past year and we have planned a large program for this summer."

Some of the communities have both types of organizations, while others have only one. Communities with two clubs, girls and women, are: Sundown, Cobleland, Pep, Petlit, Hodges, Whitharral and Anton. Women's clubs are at Fairview, Clauence, Oklahoma Flats, New Hope and Farm Home. There are girls' clubs only at Smyer and Ropesville.

Taking The Air Via Aquaplane

The bounding main doesn't bound vigorously enough to supply a thrill to these aquaplane enthusiasts, so they have to work in a thrill or two of their own making. Photo was made at Winter Haven, Fla., where Bob Eastman, Carl Bryson and Dave Leonard invented this novel method to keep from growing old. They are shown soaring clear over a speedboat on their aquaplane, which is being towed by another power boat at 40 miles an hour. The takeoff is worked by means of an inclined platform on the course. One wonders whether thrills or spills are in the majority.

WICHITA FALLS, March 28. (AP)—The City of Munday was restrained from interfering with efforts of the Stamford and Western Gas company to collect an increased rate for gas by an injunction order issued Monday afternoon by Judge W. H. Atwell of federal district court. In its application the gas company alleged that the present rate of 85 cents was proving confiscatory.

Attorney for the City of Munday stated that the new schedule the company sought to establish was $1.50 for the first 1,000 cubic feet, decreasing as the amount of gas consumed increased.

Modern Prototypes Of Pie-Throwing Comedian Come First In Movie Poll

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., March 28 (AP)—Modern prototypes of the keystone cop and his pie-throwing gang, who made their debut when films were in their infancy, are the favorites of the screen, a nation-wide survey indicates.

Running the slapstick comedies a close second for honors are the heroes and heroines of the "thrill pictures" based upon mystery plays detective stories and the like.

Then come the travel pictures and films of explorations. Western pictures have lost but little of their popularity and follow next.

These preferences were noted in the first ballots to be analyzed in a national movie poll being conducted in many cities by the Association of Motion Picture Producers Inc.

H. L. Mencken, describing himself as a casual movie-goer, wrote: "If I had to go to the movies regularly, I think I would prefer low comedy to anything else; after that travel pictures."

Wild life and exploration films are the choice of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania whose trip in his yacht to the Galapagos Islands was filmed.

Dr. Alvert Shaw, magazine editor, finds nothing like the detective thriller "to prepare one for a good night's sleep."

Domestic comedies rival humor in many household affairs, otherwise taken too seriously, thinks William Jennings Bryan, Jr., son of the great commoner.

The animated cartoon is a favorite of William Allen White, Emporia, Kans., editor, with stories of wild life and historisal themes for his more serious moments.

Two Former Detroit Tigers Are Occupying Jail Cells

LOS ANGELES, March 28. (AP)—Shortly after a man identified by police as Jerry Downs, one time professional baseball player, was locked up in the city jail in connection with a $52,000 jewel robbery, police took into custody a man giving the name of Frank Stark, 35, who said he pitched for the Detroit Tigers in 1922.

Stark was arrested when found with several new pairs of shoes. He was booked for suspicion of theft of the shoes.

"You don't mean to tell me Jerry Downs is here?" Stark asked police when a newspaper reporter inquired what kind of a game was going on. "Why Jerry played second base for the Tigers, my team, before my time."

The two men, each of whom insisted he gave the right name and identified himself correctly as a former ball player, were given adjoining cells.

Porter Speaks For Students

Two-Day Speaking Program Is Completed In Address Here Monday; Former Employe Of A Newspaper

Describing the present economic order as "a system which has elevated money values above spiritual and cultural values," Paul Porter, field secretary of the League for Industrial Democracy, of New York City completed a two-day speaking program here Monday afternoon, when he addressed nearly 40 students, alumni, and faculty folk in an administration building classroom at Texas Technological college.

The youthful lecturer, a former newspaper reporter and magazine writer, agreed with a 19th century economist that "capitalism carries within it the seeds of its own destruction." His subject Monday afternoon was "Students In a Changing World." Monday morning, he spoke to two classes at the college. He lectured on "Starving In the Midst of Plenty" in the district courtroom Sunday afternoon. About 400 persons attended.

Social Earthquake

"No crisis has been as severe as the one we are now experiencing; it is the most profound social earthquake which capitalist society has ever experienced," Porter said Monday afternoon.

"We are witnessing the emergence of a new social order," he opined. Capitalism, which had benefited mankind particularly by creation of competitive production and an economic interdependence, was past its prime by 1914 and its decline was marked by 1924, Porter asserted.

Cooperation Thwarted

"Competition now thwarts effective cooperation" and "as capitalism replaced feudalism some three centuries ago, a new economy—a cooperative commonwealth—will replace it," Porter prophecied.

Quantity production of complimentary products, as automobile wheels and bodies, has not been balanced; workers have been laid off until a surplus, as caused by a hypothetical production of seven wheels for each body, is absorbed; buying power of the workers has been curtailed drastically, so they often are unable to buy what they helped produce. Porter used that as an illustration.

Build New Social Order

The attraction of quick, speculative gains whittled down activity in other fields, and intelligent planning was not effected, as Porter reviewed it.

"Our problem is to build a new social order that will not go into these dizzy tale spins every few years," the League for Industrial Democracy representative continued.

"Till demand, which exists, is backed up by purchasing power, supply and demand can not balance."

In a cooperative commonwealth, said Porter, "no one is going to have a chance to accumulate income he has not earned." In answer to a question, he advocated individual retention of personal property.

Hurts All Classes

"Maldistribution of wealth hurts the rich as well as the poor. Why racketeering? Because a class is vulnerable." Porter referred to the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

The young lecturer left by train for Denver late Monday afternoon. He came here from the University of Texas at Austin. The Lubbock unit of the league sponsored his appearance here. Miss Inez Hensley, a Technological college student and president of the unit, introduced Porter at Sunday's mass meeting and Monday afternoon's assembly.

Steps to organize an open forum were taken Sunday afternoon at the mass meeting. J. J. Smelser was elected temporary chairman and Bradner J. Moore, jr., temporary secretary. In Sunday's talk, Porter attacked principles of both the Republican and Democratic parties and criticized the administration of President Hoover.

Site Here Is Named "Shannon Park" In Memory Of First Lubbock Judge

The county commissioners court Monday honored the first Lubbock county judge in voting unanimously to designate the county park, adjoining this city on the east, as "Shannon Park." The action was taken after a petition signed by 267 local citizens, most of whom have resided here for half a generation, was presented to the court.

Judge J. D. Caldwell, pioneer citizen, suggested ten days ago through The Plainsman's column in The Journal that the designation be made in honor of the late Col. G. W. Shannon, first judge of Lubbock county. The idea caught on instantaneously and Judge Caldwell had no difficulty in securing signers for his petition calling for the naming of the park.

Judge Caldwell, accompanied by Chas. A. Guy, appeared before the county commission this morning and made formal request for the honoring of Judge Shannon. Commissioner Claude Burrus moved that the request be granted, Commissioner L. C. Denton offered the second and the vote was unanimous.

Former warrior in the ranks of the Confederacy, Colonel Shannon was a leader in the early days of Lubbock. He was elected as county judge in 1891 as the county was organized.

Judge Shannon has been dead many years. He was past his prime of life when he was elected to office here.

Efforts will be made soon to have a suitable marker placed at the park, Judge Caldwell said. It is possible that unveiling ceremonies will be held next August when the Lubbock County Pioneers association holds its annual meeting at the fairgrounds.

Among signers of the petition presented to the commissioners were eleven men who voted for Judge Shannon in the county's first election.
