United Way drive edges closer to goal

The 1984 United Way fund drive has reached 90 percent of its goal of $275,000 with contributions turned in last week.

Donations from Cabot Corporation, its employees and its retirees edged the drive nearer its goal. Contributions from the Cabot group totaled $24,166.52.

As of Friday afternoon, contributions from individuals, businesses and industries totaled $246,918.46.

Jan Lyle, United Way secretary, reported Montgomery Wards and J. C. Penney's firms and individuals doubled their contributions from last year. In addition, a lot of donations have come in from individuals, she said.

Steve Jones, drive chairman, encouraged the division chairmen and volunteer workers to continue their efforts to raise the remaining 10 percent of the funds needed to assist the 15 agencies supported by United Way.

The latest totals increased by 20 percent over the previous reports from workers when the United Way fund "thermometers" were marked at 70 percent.

Money donated to United Way supports agencies providing many services to local and area residents, Jones said, without dependence on federal assistance.

Jones said individuals are asked to give their "fair share," based on one hour's pay per month for 12 months.

For example, a person with an annual income between $10,800 and $12,399 could make a donation equivalent to $1.35 weekly, $5.83 monthly or $70 annually. Suggested contribution for salaried, professional and executive personnel is one percent of the individual's annual income.

"Your United Way dollar is an investment from the people to the people," Jones said. "The dividends enrich all of us."

On a percentage basis, United Way funds are spent 35 percent on youth services, 22 percent on educational and rehabilitation services, 18 percent for the elderly, handicapped and indigent and 11 percent for emergency and disaster assistance. Six percent is spent on campaign expenses, with eight percent of pledges generally being uncollectable.

The United Way funds provide a wide variety of services and activities, including temporary material aid to transients and needy persons, aid to travelers with problems, disaster victim help, first aid courses, swimming lessons, life-saving training, emergency assistance and other services to military servicemen and their families, and rehabilitation for the disabled.

Half college students fail pre-teacher tests

AUSTIN (AP) — Almost half the college students who took tests required for entry into teacher training programs failed, the State Board of Education was told Saturday.

Also Saturday, the board approved the purchase of about $55 million worth of textbooks, including introductory biology books one board member said are "so weak and so diluted" that they are not science books.

Fifty-two percent of the 4,217 students who took the July exams passed all three parts. Only 19 percent of the Hispanic and 15 percent of the black students passed all three parts — compared to 62 percent of the white students.

"The discrepancies are large and continue to be large," said Marvin Veselka, associate commissioner for professional support.

Students must pass all three parts in order to advance to teacher training programs. The tests were first given in March, when 54 percent passed all three parts.

The tests include sections on math, reading and writing. Students can re-take portions of the test they fail.

Board member Volly Bastine of Houston said the July results were depressing.

"What can I tell you. It tells us what we already know about education. We need to strengthen the focus on education," he said.

Bastine said the results show that some colleges are not properly preparing students for the tests and for teacher training.

"I think some schools may not think we're serious yet. I don't believe there's that wide a variance" among students, he said.

Bastine said he is particularly concerned about the poor performance by blacks and Hispanics. Part of the problem is that "minorities traditionally scare at tests," he said.

"There was at least an attempt to make the test relevant to women, blacks and Hispanics," Bastine said, adding, however, that he was "not satisfied" that all cultural bias had been removed from the exams.

"I wasn't satisfied but I was somewhat relieved. The effort has to be greater. There may have to be different tests," he said.

Despite what he sees as problems in the tests, Bastine said minority students must stop using those as an excuse.

"The time is out to use that excuse," he said.

At a time when education officials are concerned about a teacher shortage, Bastine said the exams "could cut into the whole teaching profession" if scores don't improve.

"We're not trying to make it harder to become a teacher. We are trying to make sure the people who go into the profession are qualified," he said.

Twenty percent of the students who took the July tests passed two portions. Fourteen percent passed one. Fourteen percent passed none of the portions.

The textbook approval came after Mary Helen Berlanga of Corpus Christi fought approval of books for a biology course aimed at non-college bound students.

She complained the books included non-scientific matter — such as a supermarket layout chart.

Mrs. Berlanga could not get a board member to second her motion against the biology books. Board member Katherine Raines of Cleburne said the basic course and textbook is needed although "these are not books we would want most students to use."

Watch programs have reduced local crime rate, officials claim

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Neighborhood Watch programs in the city have been credited with a decrease in the burglary rate, with police indicating a desire to see more of them in operation.

Cpl. Bruce Denham, crime prevention officer with the Pampa Police Department, said the burglary rate so far this year has shown a 4.2 percent decline within the city limits over the same time span of 1983.

"These figures indicate that the Neighborhood Watch program works as well in our city as it does nationwide," Denham said.

Currently there are 53 Neighborhood Watch blocks in Pampa, representing approximately 650 households and 2,500 citizens. This equates to about 11 percent of the population and 14 percent of the homes in Pampa, he said.

The concept of the NW program is simple, Denham claimed. "It brings to the citizens' attention the importance of the fact of citizen awareness and stresses the idea of neighbors watching after neighbors," he explained.

Crime prevention is the act of stopping a crime before it happens, Denham stated.

"Before you can stop crime, you have to be aware of it. But awareness, unless converted into action, can lead only to fear," he declared.

Denham said only an alert citizenry can stop crime. Police usually respond only after a crime has occurred — and if present budget trends continue, there will be fewer and fewer police to do even that, he said.

A crime often is committed when three elements are combined: desire, opportunity and ability.

"Without these three elements present, a crime cannot be committed," Denham said. The NW program is geared toward removing the element of opportunity, thereby limiting criminals in their intentions of committing a crime, especially burglaries.

Citizens have at their disposal one of the most effective aids in combating crime — the Neighborhood Watch program, Denham claimed.

"This program has lowered the burglary nationwide more than four percent and is gaining ground at a steady rate," he said.

"Our burglary rate could be curtailed to an even greater extent if more of our citizens would take advantage of and become involved in the Pampa Police Department's Neighborhood Watch program," Denham stated.

"It is so very simple to do," he said. A phone call to the police Crime Prevention Unit at 669-7407 "will get the ball rolling."

Persons interested in getting the program going in their neighborhoods can contact the unit and set up an appointment for a crime prevention officer to meet with a group at a time and location of its choosing, Denham explained.

The officer will require approximately 45 minutes for the presentation, explaining the program, passing along some home security tips and answering any questions which might arise.

A block captain will be appointed or chosen to serve as a liaison with the crime prevention officer for communication purposes. A regular newsletter is also provided to the residents in the program to give security tips and other information.

The only expenses for the program total $30, which is normally split among the citizens of the block. Two Neighborhood See WATCH, Page two

Evening walks led to terror, police charge

By JEFF FLANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

For about the past three months, Donald Aaron Swindle would leave his young wife and child and go out for evening walks across the streets of Pampa.

In the "quiet" Pampa man's travels across miles of the town, he left behind an unexplained trail of terror and destruction, authorities have charged.

Swindle, 22, of 1002½ E. Francis, has viciously stabbed two people he never met and set fires in six residences for reasons known only to him, police and prosecutors say.

Did a former good student, a husband and father, a working man, a National Guardsman described as "quiet and withdrawn," just go berserk? authorities and people who know the suspect have wondered.

Swindle was arrested on Nov. 4, just hours after a man hiding inside a Pampa teenager's home attacked and stabbed her. The 14-year-old entered her home alone late Nov. 3 and was stabbed 10 times by a man who jumped out from hiding in a bathroom. The girl battled the man and escaped through the front door.

Police said they found a bent file knife inside the Varnon Drive residence and a military-type cap.

National Guard records indicated the cap had been issued to Swindle, and the suspect was arrested at his home about three hours after the assault, authorities said.

The girl lived through the frenzied attack, only because the knife's thin blade bent in the stabbing, preventing deeper wounds, authorities speculate.

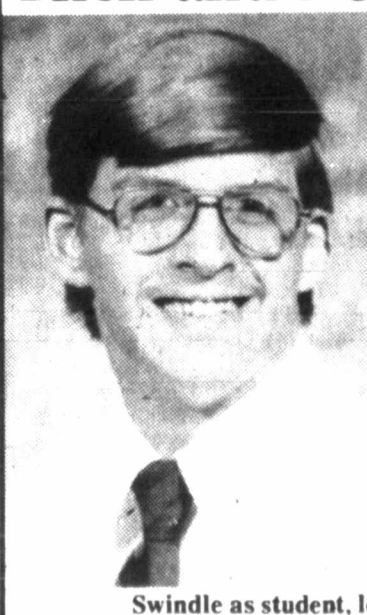

The state has charged that Swindle was hired by Edward Earl Holt, 613 Plains, to kill Holt's estranged wife, Bertha. Swindle intended to carry out the alleged assignment when he broke into the woman's home and hid inside, police charged.

But instead, the teenager, Mrs. Holt's daughter by a previous marriage, was stabbed when she entered the home alone.

Since his arrest, authorities say they have found evidence that links Swindle to equally-bizarre crimes. The suspect also stabbed Theresa Bissett, 29, 420 N. Cuyler, on Sept. 12, the state has charged.

Bissett told police at the time of the assault that a passing stranger, a man dressed in a camouflage outfit, stabbed her once in the abdomen as she walked across the railroad tracks near Tyng and Russell. The woman reported that the walking stranger said nothing when he whirled around and plunged the knife deep into her liver. Bissett was initially listed in critical condition but recovered.

Police also charged the short and stocky suspect in connection with six arson fires on six different nights last month. The fires caused an estimated $53,000 in damages.

Swindle committed each of the crimes during his evening walks, while he prowled streets, often miles from his home, Assistant District Attorney David Hamilton said.

Authorities expressed relief at the suspect's arrest, which stopped the evening travels on foot.

"This guy fits the serial-type criminal. He fits the mold," Hamilton said. "The nature of the crimes had escalated. He was headed toward committing a real heinous crime."

After his initial arraignment, the handcuffed suspect was hugged by his wife.

"He's just the nicest guy. He wouldn't do something like this," the woman told The Pampa News.

Others who know the man also were shocked by the list of charges. A member of Swindle's local National Guard unit described the suspect as "quiet and withdrawn."

"He was in a world of his own. He never said much. You could tell he was out in left field," the guardsman reflected.

The suspect is a 1980 graduate of Pampa High School. Classmates remember Swindle as a good student, a quiet boy who didn't cause trouble.

The man worked a regular job at Titan Specialties, a local manufacturing firm.

"He's a real quiet individual, without a doubt. He doesn't say much. He says what's on his mind when he gets ready to. Other than that, he's quiet," Hamilton said.

"He acts removed from where you are. He acts like he's not in the room, even though he listens and understands the questions," the prosecutor added.

The man's alleged crimes were "just a way to release anger," Hamilton speculated.

"He just got back from basic training, and that's what they teach you to do down there. They teach you to kill people with knives and guns and hand grenades. And he comes back to Pampa with all of these emotional problems," he said.

The state's attorney said he isn't surprised that the suspect's wife was reportedly flabbergasted by her husband's arrest.

"I think he was real careful not to let her know what he was doing," Hamilton said.

Swindle remains in custody under bonds totaling $62,000.

The prosecutor said he expects See QUIET, Page two

Move for non-partisan judges sparked

AUSTIN (AP) — The fallout from Tuesday's election and the ousting of many incumbent judges in Texas may result in a new push for a non-partisan judicial selection process, officials say.

On Friday, the House-Senate Select Committee on the Judiciary, an interim committee studying changes in the court system, approved a measure recommending that the Legislature take judicial positions off party ballots in general elections.

Straight-ticket Republican voting Tuesday that knocked a number of incumbent judges out of office could persuade the Democrat-controlled Legislature to adopt a proposal for non-partisan judicial selection, said

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, the chairman of the select committee.

"There's no doubt it's very disruptive to an orderly and well-trained judiciary," said Farabee, who has twice previously introduced legislation for non-partisan selection of judges.

"As soon as somebody gets to know what they're doing, they're swept out and replaced, regardless of what their records are," he said. Republicans made strong gains in the 1980 general election, but lost ground in a Democratic domination of state offices two years ago.

Tuesday's results "certainly emphasized what we already knew from '80 and '82," Farabee said.

The committee's recommendation offers the Legislature three alternatives — all of which would require approval of a constitutional amendment, Farabee told the Dallas Times Herald.

The alternatives are: —Allowing individual judicial districts, by local option, to have the governor appoint judges from a list of names submitted by a nominating committee. Appointed judges would periodically appear on the ballot, when voters could decide whether to keep them in office or replace them with another appointee.

—Keeping the current partisan elections, but putting judicial races on a separate ballot so that voters could not elect judges on a straight-party vote.

Former fire chief returns to duty as captain for now

Pampa Fire Chief Paul Jones, arrested Oct. 19 on a charge of driving while intoxicated, is back on duty with the Pampa Fire Department as a captain at the South Fire Station.

Following Jones' arrest, Assistant Fire Chief J. D. Ray was asked to head up the department in Jones' absence. He was later named acting fire chief. Ray Fisher has been named as acting assistant fire chief.

The changes have been made in an administrative action by Allyn Moore, acting city manager.

Moore met with Jones Oct. 22 and ordered him to take vacation time. Jones remained on vacation until he returned to duty in the department last week.

Moore said Jones will serve as a captain in the department "until when and if" the city commission makes any decision on a permanent basis.

Jones was appointed fire chief on Feb. 5, 1979, by the city commission. Because of his appointment by the commission, any final decision on his job will have to come from the elected officials.

The fire chief reportedly was on duty and in uniform when he was arrested in the parking lot of the Pizza Hut, 855 W. Kingsmill, according to Moore and witnesses to the incident.

According to reports, Jones was followed by Carson County Attorney Ed Hinshaw of Panhandle, Texas Department of Public Troopers and others as he drove from Skellytown to Price Road, then over to Hwy. 60 and into Pampa. Jones vehicle allegedly swerved from lane to lane and on and off the roads, nearly missing several vehicles, including a bus carrying the Canadian football team.

Jones was arrested after he pulled into the parking lot.

Following his arrest, Jones admitted he had a drinking problem and announced he had joined the local chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Jones had pleaded no contest to a previous DWI charge on Dec. 26, 1976. He was placed on six-months probation and fined $200 by then County Attorney Don Cain. He was serving as assistant fire chief at that time.

He successfully completed the probation and was discharged on Aug. 5, 1977.

After the Oct. 19 arrest, Jones said in an interview Oct. 24, "I'm going to get my life straightened out. A lot of good people are willing to help... I realize I need help."

'Quiet' walks

The suspect's attorney to ask for a sanity hearing before a trial on any of the charges.

"I can't tell you that he's sane or insane," Hamilton said.

He said a sanity hearing could determine whether the suspect knows the difference between "right and wrong," or whether the suspect is incompetent to stand trial, unable to understand the charges and assist in his own defense.

If the suspect is judged to be mentally incompetent, he will be treated in a state mental hospital until competent to stand trial, Hamilton said.

A finding that the man was "crazy" at the time of the alleged crimes but that he had since recovered his sanity would bar the state from prosecuting the suspect, and he would be released, the prosecutor said.

Watch programs

Watch signs are required for each block ($10 each), with two 11-foot poles to mount the signs ($5 each).

"No profit is made from the program," Denham said. "It is entirely self-supporting, and all monies are put back into the program for replacement of materials."

The citizens, if able, are asked to install the poles and signs. But if they are unable to do so, the city's Street Department will install them free of charge, he said.

Law enforcement officials throughout the nation have said many burglars have told them they generally avoid neighborhoods where the signs are posted.

Denham encouraged other residents to join the Neighborhood Watch program.

"It works!" he stated.

Drive continues

supported agencies offer Red Cross youth programs, day camps, summer camps, vocational exploration opportunities, pre-school day care, diagnostic evaluations and various recreational programs.

Agencies also offer senior citizens programs, noon meals for the elderly, equipment loan for home patients, visits and meals to shut-ins, a sheltered workshop for the mentally handicapped, and detection and education for persons with diabetes or epilepsy.

Counseling services are offered for drug users, alcoholics and their families; family therapy, parent-child problems, and group and individual psychotherapy.

Local needs are assessed by the United Way board of 15 volunteers spending many hours studying the various agencies and their programs.

"It is a tough job to stretch the United Way dollars so far," Jones said. "These people work hard to see that your investment gets to programs we need the most."

Persons wanting to make contributions may drop them by the United Way office on the second floor of City Hall or mail them to The United Way, P.O. Box 2076, Pampa, TX 79066.

Stormie has big party

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Seven-year-old Stormie Jones of Cumby, Texas, reunited with the surgeons who performed the world's first simultaneous heart and liver transplant operation on her earlier this year, joined other recuperating youngsters at a party Saturday to promote research at Children's Hospital.

"It's almost like being home," a smiling Lois Jones said as she watched her youngest daughter talk to reporters.

Stormie smiled shyly and turned toward her mother after blowing out 25 candles on a brightly decorated one-layer cake with the help of Dr. Thomas Starzl and Dr. Henry Bahnson, who performed the landmark operation last Feb. 14.

The brown-eyed blonde, wearing a pink T-shirt and blue jeans, admitted quietly that she'd made a wish but refused to divulge it.

"I ain't telling," she said.

Her mother, however, was less secretive.

"She knew what she was basically here for. And she told me her wish would be for the (hospital's) research campaign make a lot of money," Mrs. Jones, 28, said.

Stormie had looked forward to her first visit to Pittsburgh since returning home to Texas last spring, according to her mother.

Legislation caused paperwork flood, administrators say

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Some West Texas school administrators say they'd like to teach Gov. Mark White a lesson or two about the amount of paperwork the state's school legislation has produced this year, and the amount of time it's taken away from teaching.

"Everything I'm doing is double what it was," said Joe White, superintendent of Reagan County Independent School District. "I don't think anybody foresaw all the things that were going to happen."

At his weekly press conference Thursday, the governor said the mounds of paperwork are the result of House Bill 246, passed in 1981, and later translated in Chapter 75.

The bill requires teachers to document how they are providing students with "the essential elements of education."

But some educators said that the 1981 bill coupled with the education reform package passed by the Legislature last summer is causing headaches. The 1984 package, also referred to as House Bill 72, deals more with rules and management.

"I think it is a combination of the two (bills). It has caused a lot of frustration and anxiety on the part of the teachers," Dr. Ernest Zamora, Fort Stockton High School principal, told the San Angelo Standard-Times.

"Basically, the confusion exists on what has to be done concerning the essential elements that came out of House Bill 246 and Chapter 75," he said. "The fact that they exist is not a problem, but how educators are going to determine if they're in place is what's causing the present problem," Zamora said.

Herschel Duckworth, principal of San Angelo Lake View High School, said the greatest burden for educators is new requirements to document the hours a student spends in the classroom with a teacher, documenting attendance records and each teacher's daily responsibilities.

Duckworth said signing documents for students enrolled in special education classes is even more time-consuming. He said there can be as many as six sheets of paper on one student, because of all the places he goes.

Most of the educators interviewed by the Standard-Times mentioned the rigid tutoring programs, additional attendance tabulations, lesson plan documentation and the career ladder — all results of HB 72 — as primary areas in which paperwork has increased.

"I think we could have handled Chapter 75 if they had gone into special session to deal with teacher salaries. HB 246 was the real reform package because it dealt with curricula and instruction," said White, the Reagan County superintendent.

He said the education reform package is a burden to small school districts that don't have the resources to handle the additional paperwork.

Dean Hudgins of Wall agreed, saying he believes some of the paperwork now required is unnecessary.

"High school teachers are having to document everything," said Hudgins, high school principal at Wall, outside of San Angelo. "If a child comes in for tutoring, they have to fill out a form. And if he doesn't come in, they have to fill out another form."

"I'm beginning to believe some of it is quite unnecessary. It's just taking away from instruction."

Public hearing unnecessary

McLean Hospital closer to reopening

BY CATHY SPULDING
Staff Writer

The McLean General Hospital, closed since 1980, came closer to a possible reopening Friday as a scheduled public hearing was waived for lack of protests.

The Texas Health Facilities Commission scheduled the hearing for Friday morning in Austin to hear comments on an application for a certificate of need to relicense the hospital. But the hearing was waived when nobody came forward to protest, said THFC hearing officer, Steve Dickman.

The application will now be sent to the Commission approval. Dickman said the Commission may approve the application as early as their next regular meeting Dec. 13.

Closed since 1980 because of a lack of doctors, the hospital was owned by Gray County until 1983, when the city of McLean. The city is working with Futura Health Care Services, a hospital management firm based in Drumright, Okla., to reopen the building.

Earlier this year, Futura executive vice president G.L. Tipsword submitted the application for the certificate of need.

"If someone had contested the application, we would have had a hearing on it," said Dickman. "But nobody contested it."

Based on the information on the application, Dickman feels the application may go on to the THFC. He added that THFC bases its application approval on eight points, including the availability of medical and administrative personnel, the need in the community, and the impact on existing facilities.

Tipsword said he is waiting on final approval from the THFC to go ahead with opening the hospital.

"Even after it is approved, there's more to be done," he said, listing such procedures as inspection and personnel screening. As a result, he could not say when the hospital could be re-opened.

"It depends on the Commission," he said.

Like many small towns, including neighboring Groom, McLean, has problems keeping doctors who are willing to operate a hospital. The hours are long, business is unstable and pay is generally low, the doctors say. Dr. Harold Fabian, who operates the McLean clinic, said he would not be willing to commit himself to operating the hospital if it is opened.

Despite the conditions, Tipsword feels confident the city can support the hospital.

"Many people don't realize that there are a lot of doctors who don't want to work in a big city," Tipsword said, adding that a community can keep a hospital "if you make the right picture that the community is supportive."

He added that, despite a changing economy, McLean can support the hospital. The town's proximity to Amarillo is a plus, he said.

Gray County Commissioners turned the hospital over to the city with the stipulation that the county repair the roof and that it will receive $200,000 if the hospital is ever sold.

Futura Health Services also operates Groom Hospital, which reopened May 29, only to close again July 6. Tipsword said then that the hospital was not making any money.

"We had to close the doors in order to regroup and take care of our accounts payable," he told the Groom News in July. Officials with Southwestern Public Service, Producers' Utility Gas Co., and the city said the hospital was as much as a month late in paying utility deposits.

Groom Hospital board members say they are not aware of any progress being made to reopen the facility, which closed in 1980.

Tipsword said that several people, including some physicians, have come into the community to look at the hospital, but no commitment has been made.

South Texas fights dump

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The Nueces River Authority Board wants the state to put a nuclear waste dump somewhere other than South Texas and vowed this week to continue fighting placement of the site in the Nueces watershed.

The board voted Wednesday to reaffirm its opposition to any radioactive waste site in the Nueces River Basin watershed.

Rick Jacobi, manager of the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority told the board he hoped to have a site selected late this year or early 1985.

Pampa native gets court appointment

Pampa native Fred Woods was recently appointed to the Los Angeles County Superior Court by the governor of California.

Woods is a 1953 graduate of Pampa High School. He attended Rice University and Loyola in California.

Woods was admitted to the California Bar in 1964 after receiving his law degree from Loyola. He worked with a Long Beach private attorneys' association until 1969 when he joined his present firm, Riedman, Dalessi and Woods.

He is the son of Lena Mae Woods and the late N.F. Woods of Pampa.

White gives Demo pep talk

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White on Saturday canceled his trip to Baylor's homecoming game to give the State Democratic Executive Committee a pep talk after its beating at the ballot box.

"They told me all the Democrats were dead. Y'all look pretty alive to me," White told the committee in the wake of the GOP landslide on election day.

Mixed in with his upbeat comments, White offered some suggestions. He wants Texas Democrats to give their presidential primary more impact — possibly by moving it to an earlier date.

The Texas caucuses began this year in May, after it became clear that Walter Mondale would be the nominee.

"Too often by the time they come to Texas it's already decided. The game is over. New Hampshire shouldn't be the nominating convention for the Democratic ticket," White said.

Chairman Bob Slagle called for consideration of a radically new system in which voters would be allowed to cast ballots for more than one candidate.

The "approval voting" system would reduce intra-party war, Slagle said.

"It's been highly divisive. We frequently come forward with a candidate who looks like he has been run over by a ball of razor blades — nicked, cut, gashed and hammered," Slagle said.

White called for a "broadening" of the party base beyond the traditional coalition that has counted on minorities and labor.

He must be mellowing

Sometimes I get stuck in trying to come up with a topic for a column each week.

This week, for instance, I had planned to write about the whipping taken by the Democrats on Tuesday.

I intended to give my opinion that the national Democrats had a lot of appeal this year. With the exception of the two candidates at the top of the ticket — the wimp and the abortion - pushing, bra burner — and with the exception of the party's platform adopted in San Francisco — the one calling for government protection of "gay rights" and higher taxes — the Democrats were right in tune with the voters.

Then, I thought, no, I'll let the Democrats themselves figure out the reason for their humiliation.

I also thought about expounding on the potential constitutional crisis that would arise if our elderly president became senile in office.

Who would make the decision that senility had eaten away the president's brain and force him to step down? George Bush?

What incidents would be evidence that age had taken the president's mind? Mumbling lines from old movie scripts during news conferences?

And what if the potential bouts of mental incompetence were transient, and the president refused to step aside?

But no one else wanted to make age an issue, so why should I?

Next, I thought of writing about Gerry Studds, the homosexual congressman loved so much in Massachusetts that the voters there just elected him to another term. The man was sent back to Washington, in spite of his admission that he had sex with a 17-year-old boy page.

I was even going to make some nasty remarks about "cruising" the men's rooms at Greyhound bus stations and at boys high school wrestling matches during roll call. I would have said the homosexual congressman ought to be glad his district doesn't include the Texas Panhandle.

But, no, I couldn't get worked up about politics this week. Perhaps the long campaigns wore me out.

Really, I couldn't think of any exciting topics to write about for this column. I can't even complain about the sunny, warm weather we've had recently.

I don't know. I expect to turn 30 later this month. Maybe I'm getting mellow in my old age — or senile.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Communist China changes dramatic

No communist government has ever relinquished power voluntarily or repudiated the basic economic tenets of Marxism. Could China's government be the first? This seemingly fanciful question is now worth asking because of the remarkable economic transformation now in progress in China.

Six years ago, China's post-Mao government effectively abandoned the demonstrably unsuccessful communal agriculture in favor of a household contract system. Farm families were permitted to cultivate individual plots as they saw fit and then to sell surplus production on a legalized free market. It was called the "responsibility system" and it worked wonders. Rural incomes rose dramatically, with some farm families increasing their cash earnings more than tenfold. Overall growth rates for China's agriculture more than doubled by 1981. And earlier this year, a peasant family became the first to purchase a private automobile in China since the communist takeover in 1949.

Now, the government of Deng Xiaoping has approved a package of breathtaking reforms intended to transform much of the urban, industrial sectors of China's economy along the lines already established for Chinese agriculture. Thus, for example, government subsidies for more than 1 million state-owned enterprises will be phased out and these factories and shops will be left to compete freely in the marketplace, failing or succeeding on their own.

Managers will be free to set prices for their factories' products based on market competition and the cost of production. Making a profit will be encouraged. Quality and service will count and so will the preferences of consumers. Wages and salaries will be determined at least partially by productivity and the overall success of the enterprise.

For a communist economy, these reforms are genuinely revolutionary. For China, they will be an end to the failed, Soviet-style system of rigid centralized planning adopted by the Chinese during the 1950s.

China will still be Marxist, of course, with farmers unable to own the land they till and industrial plant and equipment still owned by the state. Indeed, such basic industries as coal, steel and railroads will remain subject to centralized planning and strict government control.

But if Deng and his fellow pragmatists succeed in spreading the discipline and incentives of the marketplace from China's agriculture to its creaking, backward industry, the results could be spectacular.

And is it entirely foolish to wonder whether the next generation of China's leadership, having seen what even partially free markets can accomplish, might decide that the only way to compete with such Asian successes as capitalist Taiwan, South Korea and Japan is to scrap communism altogether?

Ladders or safety nets?

Call them poor, locked out, or disadvantaged, they've been a focal point of this year's electoral pontification. In their name the Reagan administration has been accused of being mean, insensitive, and uncharitable. Charles Murray, a Senior Research Fellow for the Manhattan Institute for Policy Research, has written a book that argues the poor have been hurt by government's good intentions. "Losing Ground" (Basic Books, Inc., 1984, $23.95) documents a blow-by-blow account of three decades of American social policy.

Murray's thesis is that the rapid progress achieved by the poor and minorities during the fifties and early sixties was slowed, stopped, or reversed by the policies of the late sixties and onward. In 1950, more than one-third (about 50 million) of Americans lived below the poverty line. By 1968 poverty had fallen to 13 percent of the population, reaching a low of 11 percent by 1973. However, by 1980 poverty grew to 13 percent. Today, official statistics peg it at 15 percent.

In light of current debate, the most valuable features of "Losing Ground" are that it demonstrates that: (1) the rise in poverty CANNOT be explained by the so-called Reagan budget cuts; but more importantly (2) the fall in poverty CANNOT be explained by the spending in the New Frontier and Great Society years. Federal public assistance cash grants are a major part of poverty spending. In 1950 federal public assistance was below $4 billion (in 1980 dollars) and never exceeded $10 billion until the 1970s. But during the Eisenhower, Kennedy, and early Johnson years (a period of low poverty expenditures) poverty fell at its fastest rate. In the late '60s and onward, poverty EXPENDITURES grew faster while our progress in eliminating poverty slowed, stopped, and ultimately reversed.

Murray makes no necessary causal connection between poverty spending and poverty. But he advances the oft-ignored relationship between economic growth and higher living standards by noting the period where the best progress occurred was also a time of rapid economic growth. The growth rate averaged 2.7 percent from 1953 to 1959. We grew at a faster 3.2 during the '70s, but by that time public policy made many poor people immune to rapid economic growth.

The post-WW II period was a time of dramatic change for the better. Flagrant racial discrimination ended, later to be mopped up by the Civil Rights Act of 1964. However, the later '60s and '70s marked the beginning of government-created dependency. Public assistance eligibility was liberalized, and the benefits increased. Disability requirements for Social Security were liberalized and increased. Unemployment insurance was broadened, increased, and extended to cover a longer time period.

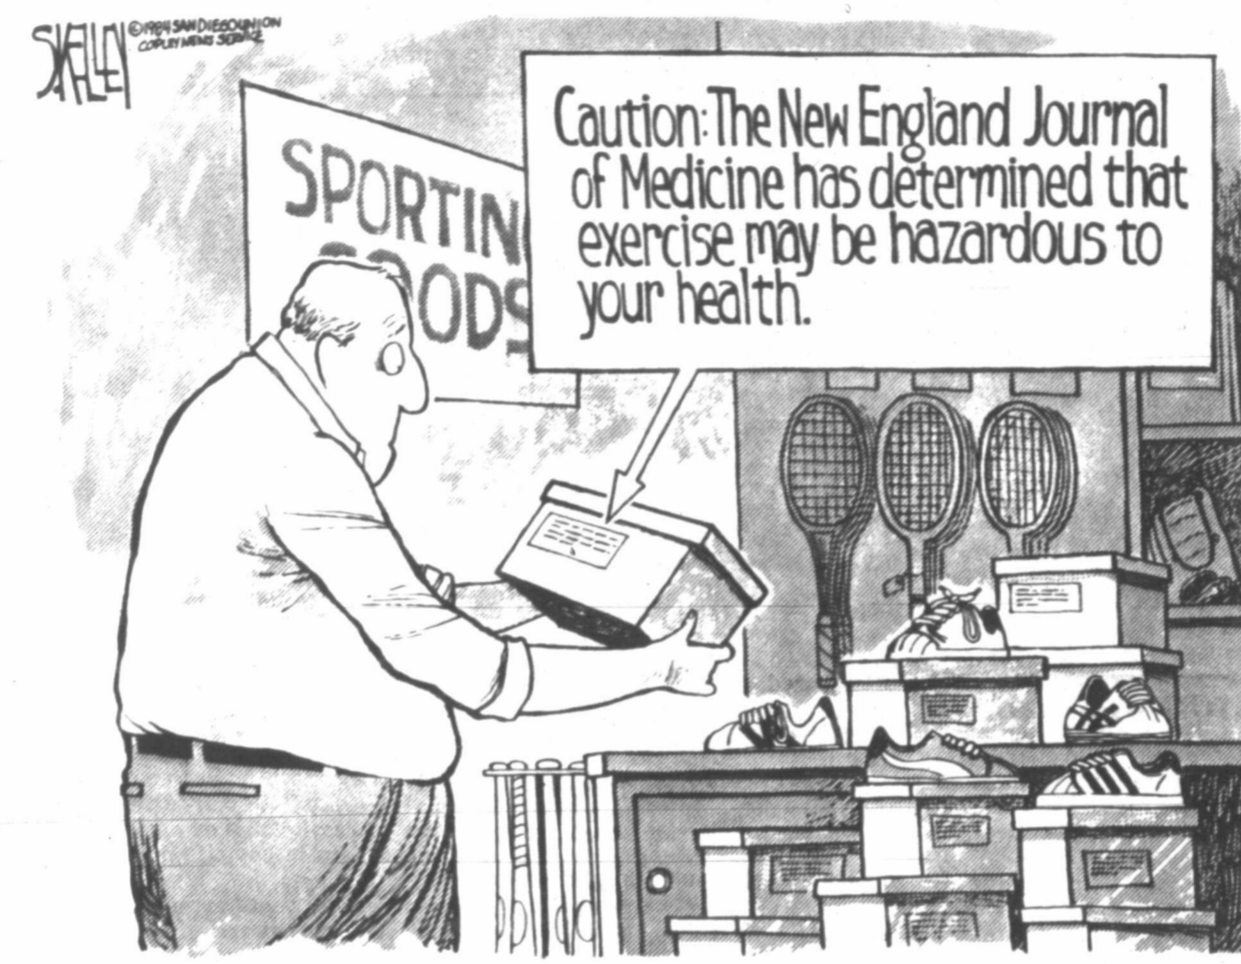

These increases, coupled with in-kind benefits, not only made welfare a way of life for many but destroyed values, institutions, an ambitions. People were no longer accountable for their actions. Society was to blame for everything.

In 1950, 17 percent of all births among blacks were illegitimate; today it is over 50 percent; white illegitimate births suffered a climb from 2 percent to 11 percent of all births during the same period. Morality is not the issue. Poverty is greatest among female-headed households in any group. To be born to a young female, no father in sight, is a virtual guarantee of another round of poverty.

In 1940, 86 percent of white households and 77 percent of black households were two-parent families. While white two-parent families remained relatively constant, black two-parent families dropped to 69 percent (1968), then to 59 percent (1980), and are still falling.

Murray documents other reversals such as: massive increases in black crime and black victimization, gross deterioration in education, and spectacular unemployment. You don't have to be a sophisticated scientist to figure something went wrong. Good intentions are no guarantee of good results.

My two conclusions from this excellent book are: (1) the best anti-poverty program is a job; which means (2) we need to worry more about economic ladders than economic safety nets.

Today in History

Today is Sunday, Nov. 11, the 316th day of 1984. There are 50 days left in the year. Today is Veterans' Day.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 11, 1918, fighting in World War I came to an end with the signing of an armistice between the Allies and Germany inside a railroad car in the Forest of Compiègne in France.

On this date: Ten years ago: The Ford White House formally agreed to let special Watergate prosecutor Henry S. Ruth have access to all of former President Richard M. Nixon's records relating to cases under investigation.

Five years ago: In a speech that was widely hailed in Iran, Ayatollah Khomeini denounced President Jimmy Carter as an "enemy of humanity" and criticized Pope John Paul II for attempting to mediate the hostage crisis.

One year ago: President Reagan became the first U.S. president to address the Japanese parliament. He called upon Japan to join the U.S. in a "powerful partnership for good."

Today's birthdays: Former State Department official Alger Hiss is 80. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., is 69. Author Kurt Vonnegut Jr. is 62.

Dale Evans still the queen

I had a wonderful experience the other day. I interviewed Dale Evans Rogers. It's not everybody who gets to interview the Queen of the Cowgirls.

Dale Evans Rogers, Roy's wife, is 72. She and Roy, the King of the Cowboys - as everybody who was born back when the world had some order to it came to know and love him - have been married 37 years.

Despite her advancing age, Dale still has the energy to write books and to haul herself around the country autographing them. Her latest, "God in the Hard Times," is about how to survive when you have been run over by the tumbling tubeweeds of misfortune.

Dale and Roy have had their own share of hard times. Their own child was born retarded and later died. An adopted child was killed in an accident, and a son later died while in the Army.

But they are still together, and often I think perhaps my own problems staying married stem from watching Roy and Dale on television when I was a kid.

Roy rode off on Trigger every morning to make life miserable for such ornery galoos as cattle rustlers and horse thieves while Dale stayed back at the ranch and did what was known in those far-distant days as wifely chores.

When Roy came home, they smiled at each other and then broke into their theme song, "Happy Trails."

"My problem being married," I said to Dale Evans, "is I was always looking for somebody like you who knew all the words to 'Happy Trails.'"

"Unfortunately," I went on, "you apparently are one of a kind, and Roy's already spoken for you."

"That is one of the sweetest things anybody ever said to me," she replied, and I was proud I had said it.

The primary purpose of my interview, however, was to find out about Roy, my all-time favorite cowboy star.

"Roy's had some health problems," said Dale, "but he's better now. He spends his time raising palominos on our ranch. He's trying to get another horse just like Trigger, and he wants one so badly."

"We had a new colt the other day. Trigger had four stocking feet, white all the way to the knees, and a blaze. This colt had the blaze, but only three stocking feet."

"Roy's always been an outdoorsman. He loves to hunt and fish and work around the ranch. That's one thing that kept us together, I think. We never enjoyed the Hollywood scene with the parties. We always preferred being home with the family."

During the interview, I did find out about a domestic quarrel between Roy and Dale. It has to do with the original Trigger.

"After Trigger died, I told Roy we ought to give him a nice burial," said Dale. "He had been performing all his life, but Roy wanted to put him in our museum. He said, 'He's my horse, and he's going in the museum.'"

"I said, 'Fine. But when you go, I'm going to put you on top of him.'"

I didn't want to butt in, but I mentioned to Dale Evans that I was one of Roy's fans who wouldn't mind at all if she stuffed him and put him on top of Trigger in the museum after his last trot into the sunset.

What better thing for the King of the Cowboys than to ride eternity's happy trails atop the best horse a man could ever have?

A plot makes it different

NEW YORK (NEA) — When Pope John Paul II was shot while greeting the throngs in St. Peter's Square on May 13, 1981, and a lone Turkish gunman, Mehmet Ali Agca, was arrested on the spot, the episode at first seemed to fit neatly into the long and dreary series of assassinations and attempted assassinations carried out by single individuals, usually deranged.

That had been the case with Ronald Reagan's would-be slayer, John Hinckley, less than two months earlier. So, too, with the killers or attempted killers of George Wallace, Bobby Kennedy and John Kennedy. In each instance we wanted to believe, and eventually succeeded in believing, that the deed was the act of a solitary psychotic. Such a belief somehow makes the outrage slightly more endurable.

Where the facts clearly point to a conspiracy (as in the assassination of Indira Gandhi), or where there are at least hints of dark forces behind the actual killer (as in the case of Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassin, James Earl Ray), we accept the conclusion, or keep an open mind, because we must; but we would vastly prefer to believe in a solitary assassin if only we could.

Agca, in the beginning, appeared to present no special problem. He was a young and footloose member of a right-wing Turkish political faction, and it seemed not terribly unlikely that he might have developed a personal hatred of the pope sufficient to explain the attempted slaying. True, there were all sorts of unanswered questions about Agca's wanderings around Europe prior to the shooting; but there are always plenty of dubious types wandering around Europe. That proved nothing.

Even after the Italian authorities launched a serious investigation of a "Bulgarian connection," and arrested specific suspects, and such respected reporters as Claire Sterling and Marvin Kalb laid their reputations on the line, many sophisticated Americans insisted on pook-pooking the idea that there had been any major international conspiracy. As Zbigniew Brzezinski has observed, one of the strangest aspects of this whole business has been the stubborn reluctance of our own CIA and State Department to credit the possibility that Agca (who had now begun to talk to his jailers) was, at least intermittently, telling the truth.

Now at last, three-and-a-half years after the shooting, the Italian magistrate in charge of the investigation has recommended the prosecution of four Turks and three Bulgarians for conspiring to kill the pope.

Letters to the editor Don't fear nuclear destruction

To the Editor,
Nuclear destruction is a hoax!
I'm a student of political and theological intrigue, and here are the documented facts:
We will not be destroyed by nuclear bombs, but as a result of their cost of manufacture. Our national debt in 1983 was one trillion, 383 billion dollars. In 1983, it took $128.6 billion to pay the interest to the Bolsheviks. Our national debt is like a snowball rolling down a mountain, getting bigger and going faster until it crashes at the bottom.
Lenin, a former Bolshevik of Russia, said, "The United States will fall into our hands like a ripe fruit from a tree."
In 1917, President Wilson was responsible for a secret alliance with the Bolsheviks of Russia, and it is still in effect. The United States Bolsheviks in 1917 were the leading financial supporters of the Russian Revolution, supplying mercenaries with military expertise that defeated the Czars. These Bolsheviks are U.S. citizens and remain bosom friends of those in Russia.
The Bolsheviks control the military armaments manufacturing industry in the U.S. and Russia. They are responsible for organizing and controlling the satanic United Nations and placing it in the U.S. The Holy Bible verifies the fact that the U.N. building is the prophetic Temple of Babylon.
The Bolsheviks are representatives of Mystery Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots and Abominations of the Earth; Revelation, 17:5. They do not believe that the worship of money is the root of all evil, I Timothy, 6:10.
The citizen with common sense can now see that the "partners in crime" will not destroy themselves with nuclear bombs.
The crash of the U.S. monetary system is inevitable, and it will bring the World Government that the Bolsheviks want. This will be the end of freedom, and enslavement will be the result.

Two columns that deserve reading

To the editor,
With deep concern I read the "Off Beat" articles by Larry Hollis, Nov. 1, under the heading "My vote: None of the above," and by Wally Simmons, Nov. 2, under the heading "Winner won't have a mandate."
I sincerely admire each of these two men (although I have not had the opportunity to know them) for speaking their views.
Today, our leaders are shouting "Civil rights...civil rights." In one of Paul Harvey's articles, he made the statement "The criminals have the civil rights and we lock ourselves in the house."
I firmly believe if we could go to Webster's dictionary to define these two aforementioned articles as we do for words, the definition would be "American, American."
Folks those articles are certainly food for thought. If you failed to read them, dig out those papers and read them or ask the Pampa News to reprint them.

Reagan approves disciplinary action

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan today approved disciplinary action against junior operatives of the Central Intelligence Agency involved in the preparation of a manual for anti-Sandinista guerrillas in Nicaragua which has been interpreted as advocating assassinations.
Reagan accepted the findings of reports by the CIA inspector general and the President's Intelligence Oversight Board which concluded that while there had been "no violation by CIA personnel or contract employees of the Constitution or the laws of the United States," there had been instances of "poor judgment and lapses of oversight at lower levels inside the agency."
Reagan's acceptance of the report comes three days after he dismissed concern about the manual and its advice on "selective use of violence" to "neutralize" Nicaraguan officials as "much ado about nothing."
Recommendations for corrective measures to strengthen management and oversight within the CIA were approved as well as disciplinary action where lapses in judgment or performance occurred," the White House press office said in a statement.
The statement, issued in the name of chief presidential spokesman Larry Speakes, said Reagan has directed CIA Director William Casey to brief the intelligence oversight committees of the House and Senate on the findings and recommendations contained in the inspector general's report.
Peter Roussel, the deputy White House spokesman, said that while disciplinary action could include letters of reprimand and suspension he does not know exactly what punishment will be meted out.
He said he doesn't know the number of junior CIA employees involved, but intelligence sources said they included several junior level officials in both the CIA's Central American

'Three Servicemen' statue unveiled

Vietnam memorial dedication today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam War veterans are preparing to dedicate a statue honoring survivors of the Southeast Asia conflict that they added to a controversial memorial for comrades who died or disappeared.
The statue, depicting three young and weary GIs in combat gear, stands 80 yards from the 2-year-old black granite monument that bears the names of 58,022 servicemen killed or missing in the Vietnam War.
"The statue unveiled today brings to fulfillment the purpose of the memorial in paying respect to all Americans who accepted the responsibilities of their citizenship," retired Army Gen. Michael S. Davidson said, at Friday's unveiling ceremony.
"This memorial says to those who served in Vietnam, both those who returned and those who did not: we respect you, we admire you, we honor you, and we offer you our profound gratitude," said Davidson, a field commander in Vietnam and an original proponent of the statue.
Some 4,000 people crowded around at the grassy memorial site to watch the 40-minute ceremony. Vietnam veterans wearing rumpled camouflage uniforms watched with public officials, sightseers and reporters.
"I think the wall was beautiful. Some people have put it down, but I think it is great, and so is the bronze statue," said Jack Wojewoda, an Army veteran from Rockford, Ill. "We should have another monument for the over 60,000 service people who have committed suicide since the war."
Both the bronze statue and granite wall, located near the Lincoln Memorial, were paid for with private funds.
On Sunday, the entire memorial will be dedicated and formally handed over to the National Park Service. President Reagan is scheduled to fly from Santa Barbara, Calif., to accept the memorial and take part in a wreath-laying ceremony.
The statue, created by Washington, D.C., sculptor Frederick R. Hart, is designed so that the GIs — a black, a white and one representing other minorities — appear to be looking for names on the granite walls.
It was added to the site after some veterans complained that the memorial's design failed to honor those who fought and survived.

Reagan, advisers to decide on goals of foreign policy

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan will sit down with his chief foreign policy advisers this week to begin deciding which foreign policy goals, besides arms control, to pursue in his second term.
Reagan's national security adviser, Robert C. McFarlane, and Secretary of State George Shultz were expected to present a list of perhaps a dozen or so such options during the meeting.
The president, who has been vacationing at his mountaintop ranch near here since his landslide re-election victory Tuesday, will fly back to Washington on Sunday to attend the dedication of a statue at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial.
In addition to his foreign policy meeting, which probably will be scheduled toward the end of the week, Reagan also will use the week to begin preparing the fiscal 1986 budget he will submit to Congress in January.
While Reagan already has said his top foreign policy goal will be the control of nuclear arms, other subjects on the list include Central America, in which the administration already is keenly interested, and the Middle East, where diplomatic success remains elusive.
A senior White House official, speaking on the condition that he remain anonymous, said Reagan had asked Shultz and McFarlane last July to compile a list identifying what his foreign policy priorities should be in a second term.
Once selected, these two or three priority areas would then form a sort of foreign policy theme for the administration. For instance, Reagan would use his priorities to help determine where he should travel abroad, what topics he should address in major speeches, what issues he should press with Congress and where money will be spent.
Besides the Middle East and Central America, areas to be discussed include Eastern Europe, southern Africa, nuclear non-proliferation, improving cooperation among disparate Asian nations and helping Europe move from welfare-state policies toward less government involvement, the official said.
Reagan and his top advisers already have made clear that the main focus of their activity will be nuclear arms reduction talks with the Soviet Union. Officials say they are hopeful the Soviets will agree to resume such negotiations soon, perhaps under an umbrella concept that would link at a high level all of the separate arms control talks.
The Soviets abandoned talks on strategic nuclear weapons a year ago to protest deployment of intermediate-range U.S. Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe.
Relations between the United States and the Soviet Union deteriorated steadily in Reagan's first several years in office, but officials believe the president's September meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was a signal that Moscow was prepared to do business.
In the Middle East, the official said the United States would like to foster improvements, such as helping to upgrade the quality of life on the West Bank, that would "offer real promise of altering the climate for peace talks in the next six months."

Fed keeping looser grip

By The Associated Press
Federal Reserve policymakers decided last month to maintain their looser grip on the nation's credit reins, according to newly-released minutes of their October meeting.

Meanwhile, wholesale prices fell 0.2 percent in October, the third consecutive monthly decline and the longest string of decreases in 17 years, the government said Friday.

In a separate report, a real estate trade group said the average median sale price of a home rose only 3.5 percent from the third quarter a year ago.

On Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average closed out the week with a gain of 2.32 points. On Friday, the Dow dropped 9.72 to 1,218.97.

But the inflation report cheered the bond markets, where prices of actively traded long-term Treasury issues rose as much as 7 for every $1,000 in face value.

In Friday's report on its October meeting, the Federal Reserve said the vote for maintaining the softer credit policy was 9-3.

Private analysts look for interest rates to decline further, arguing that the Fed officials probably loosened their grip even more at a closed-door meeting held Wednesday to plot monetary policy for the coming weeks. The minutes of that meeting will not be released until next month.

The October decline in the Producer Price Index matched the 0.2 percent September decline, which followed a 0.1 percent drop in August. It marked the longest streak of declines in the index since a six-month drop which began in October 1966.

The government said wholesale prices have risen a slight 1.5 percent over the first 10 months of the year, far below the 5 percent inflation rate predicted as 1984 began.

In the report on home prices, the National Association of Realtors said the average median resale price for homes was $73,600 nationally.

In other economic developments Friday:

—The Agriculture Department revised its estimate of the 1984 corn crop to 7.53 billion bushels, up from its 7.5 billion bushel estimate a month ago and 81 percent more than the 1983 harvest of 4.17 billion bushels.

Prison psychologist indicted

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — A former state prison psychologist whose job involved counseling inmates convicted of sexual crimes is being indicted on charges he raped a teen-age girl.

Armando Simon, 33, who served as a psychologist at the Texas Department of Corrections III Unit near Rosharon, is charged with rape. He is accused of having sex with a 15-year-old girl repeatedly over an 18-month period.

The grand jury, which handed down the indictments Thursday, also accused Simon's 20-year-old wife Angela on charges of sexual assault of a child and indecency with a child.

Seven Texas Department of Corrections inmates were also indicted on various violence and escape charges.

The Simons, who are free on bonds totaling $40,000, met the teen-ager after she answered a local newspaper advertisement asking for someone to participate in a game, said Assistant District Attorney John Davis. Police in Angleton said Mrs. Simon watched her husband have sex with the girl and encouraged the teen-ager to go to bed with him.

Investigators raiding the couple's Angleton apartment said they found photo albums showing the couple in sex acts with several people — most of them teen-agers.

Simon was a psychologist with TDC from October 1981 until August.

Also indicted Thursday were seven Texas prison inmates.

John McAdams, 33, an inmate at the Ramsey III unit, is accused of stabbing two prisoners at the unit. The prisoners were hospitalized and have recovered, said Warden Michael Moore.

THE IMPORTANCE OF FAITH

"and without faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing unto him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that seek after him." (Hebrews 11:6.) By this verse of Scripture we learn that it is absolutely necessary to believe in God in order to please Him. Since eternal life is a gift from God, we can certainly understand the necessity of pleasing Him (Romans 6:23.)

The Hebrew writer had mentioned some individuals of the past, Abel and Enoch, who had, by faith, pleased God. Verse six emphasizes two main points. We must believe that God exists and that he rewards those who obey Him.

Jesus emphasized the importance of believing in Him as the Son of God, indicating that such faith is equally necessary to eternal life. In John 8:24, He said, "I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins." The Jews consistently questioned the Deity of Jesus. It was evidently inconceivable to them that Deity could be in the flesh. The apostle John tells us that such a concept of Christ is the spirit of the anti-Christ (1 John 4:2-3.)

While we have to be impressed with the importance of faith in God's scheme of redemption, we, at the same time, need to recognize that just not any kind of faith will avail. In the text of Hebrews 11, the many examples of faith realized their justification in the works following their faith. It was because of faith that Noah prepared an ark to the savings of his house. It was because of his faith that Abraham offered his son Isaac upon the altar, etc. Thus we see that their faith prompted them to do what Jehovah commanded them to do.

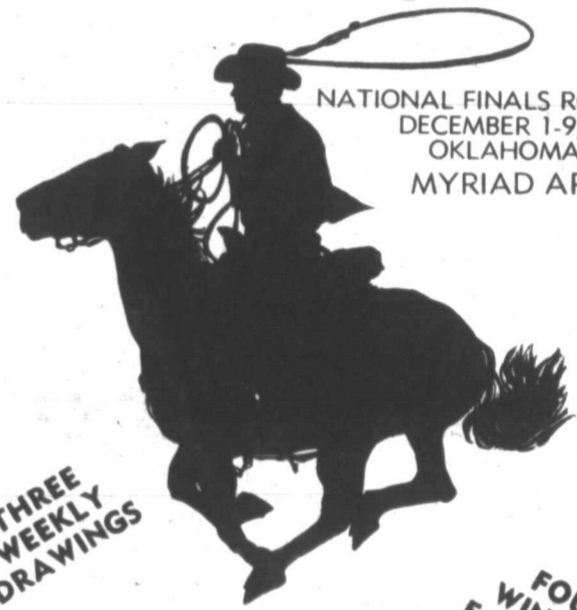

The same is true with us today. The recorded account of Jesus' miracles and signs are in order to us believing Him to be the son of God (John 20:30-31.) Such faith, in turn, will lead us to obey Him (Hebrews 5:9.) Thus faith is perfected in our works (James 2:14-26.) The works we do, by faith, are the works of God, even as faith itself, is a work of God (John 6:29.)

Billy T. Jones.

It was an awful night for Demos

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — Had it been a card game instead of an election, Texas Republicans now would be counting their money while Democrats would be saying, "Shut up and deal."
But it wasn't poker, it was politics. So Republicans tally their gains while Democrats talk about 1986.

An AP News Analysis

"Texas conservatives have finally gotten the message that conservatism is not welcome in the Democratic Party anymore," said Texas GOP Chairman George Strake.

"This year, we finally got them to say, 'The heck with the Democrats, let's vote a straight Republican ticket.'"

Democrats see it differently. Rep. Martin Frost of Dallas, who survived a close race against Republican Bob Burk, joined the Democratic chorus in attributing the GOP successes to President Reagan's popularity and saying that could change in two years.

"It was an awful night for Democrats," Frost said. "But I think the pendulum could easily swing all the way back in 1986."

This year, the pendulum swung a long way to the GOP side.

Republican candidates won races from the White House down to the courthouses. They gained seats in the U.S. House and the Texas House. They ousted incumbents and elected first-time candidates.

President Reagan crushed Democrat Walter Mondale. He won some 90 percent of the state's 254 counties. He beat Mondale in every region of the state, every major city and every age group.

U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, co-author of Reagan's economic program and a staunch conservative, overwhelmed liberal Democrat Lloyd Doggett to win the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by a retiring John Tower. No narrow victory, Gramm won by 17 percentage points.

In U.S. House races, Republicans ousted three incumbent congressmen, including 10-year veteran Jack Hightower. They also picked up the seat being vacated by Democrat Kent Hance, who had lost to Doggett in the Senate primary. In all, the GOP gained four seats and trimmed the Democrats margin from 21-6 to 17-10.

In legislative races, the Republicans picked up one place in the Texas Senate and 16 in the Texas House, giving the GOP more than one-third of the 150 seats.

All the way down the ballot, Republicans made substantial gains in local races. Among others, they swept the judgeships in Dallas County and knocked off eight Harris County Democratic judges.

With the dust beginning to settle, two basic viewpoints are being given on the outcome.

The way Democrats see it, the election was a Reagan popularity contest that helped some other Republicans along the way. But that doesn't explain why GOP candidates did well all the way down the ticket. Indeed, Republican John Thomas Henderson, 77, came within 31,000 votes of upsetting incumbent Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace in a race where Henderson got little party help and spent just $14,000.

The way Republicans see it, the election was definitive evidence that fundamental changes are taking place. Conservatives are giving up on the Democratic Party to join the GOP, they say.

But that doesn't explain why, when President Reagan got a 50-point margin over Mondale in some West Texas counties, GOP congressional candidates in some of those districts won by only a few percentage points.

"It took a 50-point margin at the presidential level to bring some of the Republicans across the line with a one- or two-point margin," said Gov. Mark White. "That's hardly what I would call the depth of strength to insure those seats against Democratic victories two years from now."

Strake, who has been rumored to be considering a bid against White in 1986, sees a big shift taking place.

"I honestly believe that this is the beginning of a realignment in the political pattern in Texas. This has got to be of real concern to the Democrat leadership in this state," he said.

Strake's Democratic counterpart, Sherman lawyer Bob Slagle, said the good economy and Reagan — not a realignment — explain the outcome.

"People like Ronald Reagan a lot. You can't defeat a popular personality for the presidency when economic times are good," the Democratic leader said.

Statewide, top members of both parties are analyzing what has happened and what might.

Discovery set for rescue try

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Discovery's astronauts successfully deployed a second satellite Saturday and then concentrated on the most daring part of their mission — tracking and rescuing a pair of errant satellites that are trapped in less orbits.

The Leasat 2 satellite, whirling like a flying pie plate, slipped out of its berth and spun away, leaving the shuttle cargo bay empty and ready to receive two satellites that were salvaged on Monday and Tuesday.

As the satellite spun free, astronaut Dale Gardner leapt and pounced. "She's away.... The satellite is on its way...."

Leasat was released in a similar way during a September flight of the shuttle. The satellite is used by Hughes Aircraft and leased to the U.S. Navy, which uses it for worldwide communications. Forty-five minutes after release, Leasat ignited a rocket in the tail of a series of firings that will rotate the craft to its working orbit of 22,300 miles.

"We saw a complete burn, 51 seconds," Gardner said. "Good news," replied Mission Specialist Ellison S. S. Onizuka. "Sounds like you're two for two."

The launch followed Friday's successful deployment of a Canadian communications satellite and frees the astronauts to concentrate on preparations for a long space-walk capture and recovery of Palapa B2 and Westar 6, two satellites that were left in useless orbits by rocket misfirings following their launches during another shuttle mission last February.

Mission commander Rick Hauck and pilot David Walker planned a small rocket firing Saturday to keep Discovery on track for a rendezvous with Palapa on Monday.

The astronauts unpacked and checked the space suits and equipment that Gardner and Joe Allen will use to corral Palapa and Westar. They almost immediately found a minor problem — flashlights that failed to work.

Gardner reported that the left light in each of two pairs of work lamps worn on the spacesuits failed to turn on during a test.

"On both sets of lights," he said, "the left light does not operate.... It's something in the electronics of the lights."

The astronaut said small pieces of metal floated away when the left batteries were removed.

Worn like miner's lamps on the helmets of the spacesuits, the lights focus beams at arm's length and are used by space-walking astronauts when the shuttle is

Artist's drawing of planned rescue

orbiting through darkness. Failure of the left lights will give the astronauts only half their normal illumination, but flight director Larry Bourgeois said this presented no problem.

The space walk, he said, "can be accomplished with just one of the lights, or actually, without any of the lights at all." A hand spotlight also could be used, he added.

Since its launch on Thursday, Discovery has been stalking Palapa and Westar on a 1.6 million-mile hunt through the heavens.

The wayward satellites are in an orbit of 224 miles, about 34 miles higher than Discovery. Palapa is trailing Westar by about 760 miles and both are moving at about 17,000 mph.

Rocket firings by Discovery have slowly closed the gap between the shuttle and Palapa. By Saturday, the distance had narrowed to about 4,300 miles, and Discovery was closing in at 142 miles an hour.

On Monday, Hauck will guide Discovery to within 35 feet of Palapa and then fly in formation.

Allen and Gardner will corral the satellite and lock it into the cargo bay. Allen, wearing a rocket backpack, will fly free from the shuttle and out to Palapa. He will attach a handle on the craft, using a pole-like device called a "stinger."

Astronaut Anna Fisher will use the shuttle's 50-foot arm to grasp the handle and bring the satellite into the cargo bay.

On Wednesday, Gardner will fly with the backpack to attempt the salvage on Westar.

The satellites, each worth about $35 million, are to be returned to Earth for refurbishment, resale and new launches. Insurance underwriters are paying the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $5.5 million to attempt the salvage.

AA grounds small airline

PAMPAS, Fla. (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration grounded all Provincetown-Boston Airlines flights Saturday for non-compliance with FAA regulations, stranding travelers in New England and the South, the agency and airline said.

The agency issued an emergency order of revocation of its operating certificate for Provincetown-Boston Airlines, said FAA spokesman Jack Barker. The agency's regional headquarters in Atlanta. The line, which had two fatal crashes this year, has been the target of a two-month FAA investigation into maintenance, flight and training procedures, according to published reports.

PBA, one of the nation's largest commuter carriers, was helping passengers who were left holding tickets find alternate flights or was reimbursing them, said Mary Hantzen, a spokeswoman at the airline's Florida headquarters.

The shutdown will affect about 150 PBA flights a day, including 150 to New England, even though the FAA investigation centered only on PBA's Florida routes, said Peter Van Arsdale, the airline's president.

The FAA cited the carrier for non-compliance of regulations in 13 areas, Barker said.

"We suspended our operations as of 8 a.m. this morning. As far as we know, we have no further information, we don't know any," said Ms. Schantzen. "We, ourselves, suspended operations until we find out what is required."

Van Arsdale said the FAA informed him Friday night of its plans to halt operations for an undisclosed period.

recovery of Palapa B2 and Westar 6, two satellites that were left in useless orbits by rocket misfirings following their launches during another shuttle mission last February.

Mission commander Rick Hauck and pilot David Walker planned a small rocket firing Saturday to keep Discovery on track for a rendezvous with Palapa on Monday.

The astronauts unpacked and checked the space suits and equipment that Gardner and Joe Allen will use to corral Palapa and Westar. They almost immediately found a minor problem — flashlights that failed to work.

Gardner reported that the left light in each of two pairs of work lamps worn on the spacesuits failed to turn on during a test.

"On both sets of lights," he said, "the left light does not operate.... It's something in the electronics of the lights."

The astronaut said small pieces of metal floated away when the left batteries were removed.

Worn like miner's lamps on the helmets of the spacesuits, the lights focus beams at arm's length and are used by space-walking astronauts when the shuttle is

Favor to a friend led murder victim down that fatal path

By DENISE GAMINO
Austin American-Statesman
HOUSTON (AP) — As the second youngest of nine children, Debora Sue Schatz knew about money problems, so it was no surprise when she finished her mail route early and offered to earn overtime pay June 7 by delivering letters for a colleague who wanted the afternoon off.

Just before 3 p.m., the 23-year-old woman parked her blue U.S. Postal Service Pinto in the grass at the edge of an unfamiliar dead-end street and began a door-to-door walk from which she would never return.

Before Miss Schatz could complete the favor for her friend, she was dead of two gunshot wounds to the back of the head.

Miss Schatz's family frantically searched for her that night, but did not find the Pinto until a resident of the West Houston neighborhood told police the next morning that the car had been there overnight. Her body was found the next day, dumped in a remote area.

Postal Service bloodhounds traced Miss Schatz's last scent to a brick house one block from the Pinto in the affluent neighborhood, where it is not uncommon to see 10 or 12 trees shading one yard.

Police later found blood-spattered mail, bullet holes, blood stains, six guns, ammunition, and empty shell casings in the house, which is owned by Bernard and Odette Port. They lived there with their 17-year-old son, David.

The slaying of Miss Schatz, a bashful woman who ate dinner at her parents' home every night before retiring to her own apartment, rocked this city.

Since then, the slaying case has taken some of the most peculiar twists in American legal history, whipping up emotions around the country.

Unusual about the case is that: David Port, the high school junior accused of the killing, is not in jail. Instead, his father and stepmother are behind bars for refusing to tell a grand jury what they know about what happened in their home.

Miss Schatz's mother says the killing cost her not only her youngest daughter, but also her husband of 34 years. He died of a heart attack two months after the slaying, and Mrs. Schatz said his death was caused by overwhelming grief. She has filed a $5 million lawsuit against the Port family.

In a controversial move, the Ports cited their Jewish faith as one reason their consciences would not allow them to testify.

The Ports' silence has created a test case on whether Texas should protect parents from testifying against their children, much like the privilege between lawyers and clients, husbands and wives, and physicians and patients.

No evidence has been made public that would suggest a motive for the killing.

Miss Schatz was one of 15 U.S. letter carriers killed on the job in the past 11 years, but unlike her, most of the others were killed in connection with robberies.

Police theorize the younger Port shot Miss Schatz after she approached the house to deliver mail and dumped her body that Thursday night in an isolated area about 20 miles away.

The teen-ager did not return home that night, and by the time he drove his maroon Chevrolet Malibu toward his street the next day, a full-scale police search of the neighborhood on foot and by helicopter was underway. The youth sped away when he saw police, but officers arrested him a few minutes later when his car crashed in the parking lot of a nearby apartment complex.

In the automobile, police found blood, hair, and soil believed to be relevant to the case.

Police said the teen-ager confessed to killing Miss Schatz, whom he had never previously met, but because his statement was neither signed nor recorded on tape it is not admissible in court. He has been free on $20,000 bail since the day he was arrested.

Although a Harris County grand jury has indicted Daviators say they do not have the evidence to seek the more serious charge, but that information known by the Ports would probably provide the evidence.

To prove capital murder, prosecutors must show that the victim was killed during the commission of another felony, such as robbery, rape, or kidnapping.

At present, the Schatz murder case is in a sort of holding pattern, with all attention focused on Harris County Jail where the elder Ports have been held in separate cells since Sept. 12. They are not accused of criminal wrongdoing in the case, but have been granted immunity from prosecution and cited for contempt of court for refusal to testify.

The Harris County grand jury's term has been extended until Jan. 31. Prosecutors say they have every intention of keeping the Ports in jail until then if they do not break their pact of silence.

John B. Holmes Jr., the Harris County district attorney, said the parents should remain in jail "until the 21st century."

Woody Schatz, 32, the eldest child in the Schatz family, said he would like to see the couple stay in jail "until hell freezes over."

Jim Lavine, an assistant district attorney, said the Ports' living conditions in jail are "probably not very unpleasant."

"They're getting three squares a day, and they don't have to mow the lawn or do the dishes," he said.

Randy Schaffer, the Ports' attorney, has filed motions eight times in various state and federal courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court, in attempts to win the couple's freedom. A hearing is scheduled Nov. 15 on a motion to move the trial out of Harris County.

Schaffer said the Ports are being punished by the state "with a vengeance."

He called the prosecutors' statements about needing the Ports' testimony for a capital murder charge "just a sham."

"They'll never make capital murder," Schaffer said. "She wasn't raped. She wasn't robbed. I don't know whether she was kidnapped or not. Only the victim and her assailant or abductor or any other person who was there at the time would have any information about that."

"They're making a big public show out of this," he said.

"If they are smart prosecutors, and I know they are, they'll realize they (the Ports) are upper-middle class people who are intelligent, very conservative, and a Reagan-type family and they're not the kind of people who are going to cower in controversy," Schaffer said.

The elder Ports were not at home the afternoon of June 7, but they returned to their home at 10314 Lynbrook Hollow about 6 p.m.

Although Houston police say the Ports apparently saw the blood stains, bullet holes, and other signs of a shooting, they did not contact authorities until the next morning when police were conducting a door-to-door search of the street. By that time, the quiet street had been transformed into a swarm of activity with a crowd of searchers that included Miss Schatz's father, younger brother, and other relatives.

James Schatz, 23, one of the brothers who helped search for his missing sister, said he believes the elder Ports are trying to cover up a crime.

"They knew it happened the night before. They could have been the ones who cleaned up the house," he said. "They're using this parent-child privilege for sympathy. They're using that just to get him off completely."

The Ports decline all press interviews, but after a recent court appearance Bernard Port said of his jailing, "If anybody here has ever read Dante's Inferno, you know there are seven circles of hell. Well, this (jail) is the eighth."

Jail rules prohibit the couple from telephoning or writing letters to each other, so there has been little communication between them since they were jailed more than seven weeks ago.

"I just want to tell her I love her," Port told reporters in a message to his wife after a court appearance.

Schaffer said Port is on the ninth floor of the jail and spends his time writing. He wears a tan, short-sleeved jumpsuit marked "County Jail." Odette Port, wearing a baggy, dark brown smock, passes time in her second-floor isolation cell by mopping the floor, over and over again.

Port, a self-employed financial consultant, has not been able to conduct any business from jail.

Lavine, the assistant district attorney, said he believes the Ports' argument that their Jewish faith prohibits them from testifying has backfired.

"The feedback I got was that the Jewish community was upset with the Ports trying to use their religion to hide behind," Lavine said. "Jews have been persecuted long enough, and they didn't feel like it was right for them to (use) something that didn't exist."

Rabbi Shaul Osadchey, of Congregation Brith Shalom in Houston, agreed that there is nothing in Jewish law that prohibits the couple from testifying about their son.

However, he said, the Ports "have every right" to cite their faith as a reason for remaining silent "just like anyone else can say 'It violates my Christian beliefs.'"

"Jewish law doesn't support them, but Jewish values might," he said, explaining that the family is a sacred unit.

Until the Ports were jailed, the couple and their accused son continued to live in the home thought to be the site of the slaying. Since Sept. 12 the teen-ager's whereabouts has been unknown, but Schaffer said he is in Houston. A short, white-haired woman believed to be Bernard Port's mother answered the door at the home earlier this week and told a reporter to "Get out, please."

Neighbors said they have not seen the teen-ager since his parents were jailed.

Telephone callers to the house get a busy signal, but until the couple was jailed a phone answering machine recorded a flood of obscene calls, lawyer Schaffer said.

Unique state agency brightens Christmas for institutionalized children

By BILL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Many may want a pair of skates and Susie may want a doll, but if they are in an Oklahoma institution they may have to settle for a teddy stuffed animal or a calculator.
But a state agency, believed unique in the country, will make sure that there is a present for each of these children when Santa makes his rounds.
Vivian Nail and three helpers have been working since mid-September to make the Christmas wishes come true for Oklahoma's institutionalized children. They start with a $2,500 state appropriation, supplement it with about $15,000 in donations, visit wholesalers and finally bring it all together in a large, sparsely furnished room in a building near the Capitol.
Miss Nail is executive secretary of the Oklahoma Santa Claus Commission, an agency spawned in the depths of the Depression and the height of the Dust Bowl and established by legislative act in 1937 to provide "a real Christmas for all children in all Oklahoma orphanages and homes of like nature."

"Every child in any institution funded wholly or in part by the state gets one present," Miss Nail said. These range from children housed in state- and church-operated orphanages to those in juvenile detention homes.
There have been occasions in the past when some legislators protested against spending state money to buy presents for children held for juvenile offenses. But although the amount of money appropriated each year has varied, rising in some years to as high as $7,500, state funds have been allocated to the agency each year since its inception.

"But we always need money," Miss Nail said.
The agency is overseen by three commissioners, appointed by the governor, and each maintains a list of potential contributors. Annual letters are sent asking for donations. The commission's account is kept in a downtown Oklahoma City bank, which is authorized to accept contributions on behalf of the commission.
To stretch funds as far as possible, Miss Nail and her helpers — Betty Hunsucker, Josephine Smissen and Lawrence Barrett — make their own bows for the packages. Old Christmas cards are cut up and the fancy artwork — and sometimes even the large letters — are used as decorations.
Lists of available presents are sent to each institution in the state. These are broken down into classifications — presents for infants through 7 years, girls 8 to 12, boys 8 to 12, girls 13 to 18 and boys 13 to 18.

Presents range from pull toys and rag dolls for the youngest through transistor radios, photo albums, hair dryers, a mirror, comb and brush set to chess sets and popular board and card games for older children.
"This has always been one of our most popular presents," Miss Nail said, holding up a Monopoly game. "Would you believe we didn't get a single request for one this year?"
Older girls also have the choice of cook books and materials suitable for sewing blouses and skirts. Sports items range from footballs and basketballs to a baseball glove and badminton set. There are models to assemble, paint-by-number sets, Bibles, picture books and jigsaw puzzles.
Children in the institutions make their first, second and third choices from the list. Then Miss Nail and the others do their best to match the requests with the presents on hand.

"Normally, the superintendents send in a list of all the children and the presents they want," she said. "We don't get very many letters from the children themselves."
Most of those who do write just make their choices from the list, but once in a while someone will go off into left field and ask for an automobile or something like that.
"Josephine and I buy the presents in July and August," Miss Nail said. "Around Thanksgiving we buy various kinds of wrapped candy and sack it. Each child gets a pound of candy in addition to the present."
While the three women — each retired from other jobs — wrap and decorate the packages, Barrett checks that the footballs are full of air and puts batteries in the radios and calculators. The women are on the state payroll for four months, September through December, while Barrett is on loan from the state Department of Human Services.
After the presents are wrapped and tagged with the recipient's name, they are boxed for delivery. State Transportation Department trucks carry the packages to the institutions as they travel around the state.

The Santa Claus Commission had its inception in the fall of 1935 when then-state Budget Officer R.R. Owens and his wife visited the orphanage in Helena. They found that the children expected little for Christmas, perhaps an orange, an apple or some candy.
With the help of some friends, they returned to the orphanage at Christmas with a gift for each child.
Containers for donations were set up around the Capitol the following year, and state employees gave their own time to pack gifts for shipment. The bill establishing the Santa Claus Commission was introduced in the 1937 Legislature by Rep. Sandy H. Singleton of Stephens County.

Restored Danish town carries on traditions

By WILLIAM C. MANN
Associated Press Writer
RIBE, Denmark (AP) — "All we've got is the old town," said Ribe's town crier, "but that's enough."
Age Grann, 63, knows better an most what Ribe has. Every summer for 10 years, wearing a heavy cloak and hat and carrying an lantern and a spiked staff called morning star, Grann has led packs of tourists and locals on nightly treks over Ribe's cobblestones.
After one of his rounds, he sipped beer in a centuries-old pub called "eis" Stue and chatted about the story his job has taught him.
"The whole town is a tradition," he said: its half-timbered gingerbread houses, its streets so narrow that a bicycle makes more noise than a car, Grann himself.
Grann is Ribe's natvaegter, or night watchman, the last of a line of men who acted as policeman, fire inspector and authority figure, keeping the riffraff off the streets as Danish towns slept.
On his walks, Grann sings in his rich baritone the same "vaegters" that his predecessors did for 100 years on their 10 p.m. rounds: Go to bed. Obey the Lord. Be careful with fire.
Traditionally, the natvaegters made 10 rounds a night, one each hour, singing a different song for each round. Grann's duty is a single round, at bedtime.

The only other difference between Grann and his predecessors is that, between chants, he conducts open-air classes: Here's the site of Scandinavia's first school; there's the house of the first Lutheran bishop of Ribe; over there is where Laurids Splyt was burned as a witch in 1641.
Despite its size — only 3,000 people in the old town — no town outside Copenhagen has so many houses protected by the Danish Culture Ministry as historical landmarks. Virtually every building has been restored to its appearance when it was new, which with many was 450 years ago or more, and the centerpiece is the city's 850-year-old cathedral.
The Culture Ministry erected signs across Denmark a few years ago to designate landmarks. Rather than mark Ribe's appearance by posting signs all over, the ministry put up one landmark sign outside the town, just giving its name.
Between 800,000 and 900,000 tourists come to Ribe every year, almost all day-trippers, said Heinz Lorenzen of the Ribe Tourist Association. Most are Britons, who drop in for a day after arriving on a North Sea ferry at Esbjerg to the north, or West Germans, who motor up for a day from Schleswig-Holstein or from summer houses nearby. Thousands of Danes also drive in from summer houses.

Grann says "all we've got is the old town" because Ribe is not the place to go for excitement unless you're thrilled by what he calls "one of the finest collections of preserved, privately owned houses perhaps in the world."
In 1969, the private Ribe Tourist Association financed a study by Danish architect Hans Henrik Enquist of the inner city's buildings. His "Preservation Plan" became the basis of the citywide restoration effort, emphasizing details even down to the banning of neon signs.
"The main thing we have achieved is we have motivated the local population to do this," said the tourist association's Lorenzen. "The shopowners are interested because they want tourists, of course. But for most people it has nothing to do with tourism. They just want to live in such a place."
Alterations performed on the 117 buildings protected by the Culture Ministry and others covered by the town's own ordinances must be approved by the official Ribe Tourist Bureau. Unlike Lorenzen's association, the bureau is financed by the town council.

Interest-free loans that must be paid back only when the owner sells the building finance approved changes.
From torn-down old barns and dilapidated rural homes, the association stockpiles timbers, old bricks, roof tiles and other materials not otherwise available. Often the town council's Employment Department provides labor to tear down buildings in exchange for the materials.
The result is a town so well-restored that its citizens often find themselves looking out through their windows at tourists peering in, especially at night, while Grann is on his round.
"The tourists seem to feel they're in a museum, and I try to be as gentle as I can in explaining that these are real houses, with real people," he said.
"But the local people are used to it. Sometimes, they even come out and invite the visitors inside."

Sangor bird collector says it's hard to keep them from 'hitting the roof'

By DON GEIGER

Denton Record-Chronicle
SANGER, Texas (AP) — Thomas Moore's birds hit the roof when he walks in the door — and that can be a problem.

"The hardest thing about raising these birds is to keep them from killing themselves," Moore said. He has collected birds for three years and now has six pairs of colorful pheasants and about 100 quail. Wire cages fill the section of his garage that is walled off for fowls, but many bobwhite quail fly free in the section.

To keep newly hatched quail from drowning, he puts gravel in their water dishes. One night, he said, 12 of his quail drowned anyway.

About 200 quail eggs are kept warm in an incubator in his bedroom and are expected to hatch soon.

"Some people might object to having an incubator in the bedroom with them," Moore said.

"It's like a rainbow. I don't know how in the world anyone could paint one of those," Moore, 71, said of his golden red, yellow gold and ring neck pheasants.

Moore, who has five grandchildren, was a building inspector for Southwestern Bell for 15 years before retiring.

He bought two or three pheasants after they were adults and "raised the rest." They live to be 7 or 8 years old, he said.

The pheasants cost $75 or $100 a pair, but some are more expensive at $100 apiece, he said. "Hens are never as expensive as the males are. Males are always prettier than the females."

He gets some of his quail from a hatchery in Oklahoma that distributed 33,000 birds last year, he said.

Moore said he is building a "foundation" of birds in his collection and may sell some of the surplus birds when he runs out of space for them.

Moore, who has "been in construction since I was big enough to hold a hammer," built some of the cages for his fowl.

"If there is any prettier birds in the state, I'd like to see them," Moore said of a few other pairs of pheasants kept in a three-tiered cage in his back yard. "I'd put them up against anybody's."

His pair of Reeves pheasants may be the best in the country, he said. "If there are any better, I don't know where they are."

Moore, who had a herd of cattle until he had heart surgery, said he now collects the birds.

White: states show the way

AUSTIN (AP) — The Democratic Party's future, in the wake of Walter Mondale's crushing defeat, is down the middle road being traveled by state party organizations but not by the national leaders, Gov. Mark White says.

The election was "a very unfavorable comment about the national Democratic structure," White said.

"It has to recognize that we are no longer in a position, we haven't been for many years in a position, to rely solely upon the constituencies that they have."

While arguing that President Reagan's huge win over Walter Mondale was a victory for Reagan's personal popularity, the governor also said it showed that Democrats nationally must appeal to more middle-of-the-road voters.

White, who talked with several other governors on Wednesday, said state Democratic parties have done a good job of soliciting wide-ranging support, while the national party has relied mostly on traditional backers such as minorities and labor unions.

"They have to broaden their base. They have to have an appeal for small business people. They have to have an appeal for the jobholder, not just the unemployed. I think we've done it in Texas. I'm very proud of the business support we have," White said.

Asked when the Democratic rebuilding program would begin, White grinned and said, "We started sometime around eight o'clock Wednesday morning."

For one thing, he repeated his belief that Texas Democrats should switch from the convention system of choosing presidential candidates to a primary election.

"Apparently a lot of people don't go to the convention anymore. It's a sign of the times," White said.

"They like to make their political choices quickly and efficiently. They don't like to spend all day arguing about issues that may not be relevant to their conditions in life. And I think the Democratic Party has to recognize that."

Analyzing Tuesday's election, the governor noted that Franklin Roosevelt in 1932 was the last Democratic presidential candidate to win a landslide victory without being an elected incumbent.

"Even after Watergate and even against the man who pardoned Nixon, we were barely able to squeak out a victory with Carter," he said.

But at the state level, White noted, Democrats hold 34 governor's offices and Democratic candidates picked up two seats in the U.S. Senate despite Reagan's big win.

"The party needs to recognize that the successes at the state level have not been enjoyed at the national level. And that may be a reflection on the way in which we do business nationally."

As have other Texas Democrats, White tried hard Thursday to credit Reagan's popularity for other GOP successes — including a gain of four seats in the U.S. House, one in the Texas Senate and 16 in the Texas House.

Reagan's influence was greater than many Democrats had expected, White insisted, adding that the lack of a strong state candidate high on the Democratic ticket kept many voters in the Republican column.

"If there'd been a Lloyd Bentsen or someone of that sort at the senatorial level as an incumbent, I think you would have found that to be the stopping point on the ballot," White said.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Financial trends could be a trifle tricky for you today, so try to avoid deficit spending. Funds you're counting on may be delayed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Back off from partnership arrangements today if you think you're getting tied in with someone who can't equally contribute what you can offer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Be charitable to those who need your help today, but also be sure you're doing it for the right people and for the right reasons.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Overindulgence or excessiveness today may carry a fine for exceeding the feed limit. Keep your eye on your waistline and practice moderation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Normally you are not the type of person who is deterred by challenges or obstacles, but today, if the conquest isn't easy, you'll sidestep it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today try to avoid the company of people who hold strong opinions that diametrically oppose yours. A conversation could turn into a heated debate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extremely cautious and prudent today if you are managing the affairs of another. A big bungle could put both of you in the red.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In order to get others to cooperate with you today, you must first show a willingness to be cooperative yourself. If you balk, they will as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) "Never do today that which you can put off until tomorrow" is a policy that will cause you later regrets. This is not the time to sweep duties under the rug.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take with a grain of salt today promises made to you by a big shot acquaintance. This person talks better than he or she delivers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Strive to be self-sufficient today because others cannot be relied upon to help you fulfill your personal ambitions. You're the only sure bet.

LEAPING CATCH— Pampa end Carl Graves makes a leaping catch of a pass thrown by quarterback Jimmy Bridges during second-half action Friday night against Lubbock Estacado.

Harvesters end season with loss to Estacado

Fullback Rodney Jackson keyed a swift Lubbock Estacado backfield with 118 yards and two touchdowns as the Matadors blanked Pampa, 22-0, Friday night at Harvester Stadium.

The loss finished the Harvesters' season at 1-9 overall and 1-5 in District 1-4A play. Estacado is now 4-5 overall and 3-2 in the district standings.

Jackson, a 170-pound senior, rushed 24 times and scored twice on one-yard touchdown runs. His scores were sandwiched around an 8-yard touchdown pass from Reggie Gibbs to Rodney Davis in the second quarter.

Pampa's offense struggled throughout the night, managing only 150 total yards and never advancing past its own 45. Estacado, fumbled the ball away three times, but still racked up 337 total yards.

David Carter and Brian Kotara rushed for 35 and 34 yards respectively to lead Pampa. Kotara, the Harvesters' leading rusher for the season, played with a sore ankle and didn't get into the game until the second quarter. He ran the ball only once before halftime.

"We weren't able to complete our passes and that hurt us," Kendall said. "Estacado played good pass defense though. Twice they jarred the ball loose from the receivers."

It was third game this season that the Harvesters went without scoring. After being blanked the first two outings, the Harvesters got on the scoreboard the next seven games.

Estacado coach Louis Kelley had his usual assortment of quick backs. Eight different running backs were shuffled in and out throughout the game. Eloy Perez added 50 yards on 9 carries for the Matadors.

"We played well at times, but Estacado is a much-improved ballclub since last year," said Pampa head coach John Kendall. "We had trouble containing their speed and we gave them the ball in good scoring position twice. On their second touchdown we had them fourth and three when they threw that touchdown pass."

Jackson's first one-yard plunge came at the end of an 8-play, 78-yard drive at the beginning of the second quarter. The Matadors had only 35 yards to go on their next scores after recovering a fumble and forcing a Pampa punt from the Harvester end zone.

Three times, however, Pampa's defense stopped Estacado drives inside the Harvester 20.

On Estacado's final possession of the first quarter, the Matadors drove to the Pampa 20, but Trace Robbins picked off David Taylor's pass in the end zone to stop the threat.

In the second half, Estacado fumbled twice at the Pampa 6 and 17 yard lines with Dwayne Robertson and Mike Parker making the fumble recoveries for the Harvesters.

"It's been a disappointing year for both the players and coaches, but the kids showed a lot of character by coming back each week and playing hard," Kendall said. "That shows they have a lot of pride."

Pampa cagers hold first scrimmage

The Pampa Harvesters have a lot of rough edges to smooth out after their first basketball scrimmage of the season Saturday against Altus, Okla. and Amarillo Caprock.

Overall, Pampa head coach Garland Nichols wasn't too disappointed with the Harvesters' showing.

"We accomplished some things and saw some of our weaknesses," Nichols said. "That's what a scrimmage is for, to find out what the weak points are and work on them."

Nichols said Pampa's offense looked sharp, but the passing was "terrible."

"Our blocking out on rebounds was terrible also, but the kids realize it. We're going to look at the films and try to improve over the next three days," Nichols said.

Pampa handled Caprock with relative ease, but had trouble with Altus' halfcourt press.

"Altus runs a halfcourt press like no one else and the kids just weren't prepared for it," Nichols said. "That's my fault, not the kids, but there's no sense wasting three or four days working on it when we'll never see it again," Nichols said. "That halfcourt press is a trademark of Altus and they do a good job on it."

Pampa will have another scrimmage Thursday, starting at 4:30 p.m. against Amarillo Tascosa in McNeely Fieldhouse. Pampa's junior varsity will also scrimmage.

The Harvesters open the 1984-85 season Nov. 19 at home against Amarillo Palo Duro.

Pampa's ninth-grade team scrimmages Monday at 5 p.m. against Canadian.

Bucks capture title

By JEFF LANGLEY
Pampa News Sports Writer

WHITE DEER — The White Deer Bucks finished league play undefeated and took the District 2-2A title at home Friday, escaping with a 13 - 10 win over the Clarendon Broncos.

The Bucks' close win knocked the Broncos out of the chase for the league's second playoff berth and dropped Clarendon to 3 - 2 in the district standings.

Memphis also dropped to 3 - 2 after being shocked by Quanah, 28 - 7, on Friday, but takes the league's second playoff spot because of its earlier win over Clarendon.

With the hard-fought victory, White Deer earned the right to open bi-district play next week in a match with Spearman at Canadian.

Both teams refused to quit with the playoffs on the line. The defensive struggle, which was played with winds howling up to 50 mph, wasn't decided until the last seconds ticked off the clock.

Neither team had much success moving the ball into the wind and had to take advantage of each precious possession going with the gale.

The Broncos finished the half with a 3 - 0 lead on a 15 - yard chip shot by quarterback - kicker Trent Sharp. The scoring resulted from the advantage of a 13 - yard Buck punt into the gale that gave the Broncos the ball on the White Deer 38 on Clarendon's third possession of the half.

Bronco fullback Stanley Gardner carried the ball twice to the White Deer 11 - yard line. But the Bucks got tough, stopping senior sensation Rodney Smith twice and forcing Sharp to fumble the snap on 3rd and goal. The Broncos settled for the field goal with 1:09 remaining in the first quarter.

Neither team scored again in the half, and the Bucks missed two good opportunities going with the wind. The good drives each ended with White Deer facing fourth and long, deep in Bronco territory. With the wind at his players' backs, Buck Coach Paul Wilson went for the six points, once on the Clarendon 20 and once on the Bronco 29. Incomplete passes left the hosts with nothing at the half.

But Buck quarterback Will Brown rallied the home team after the break, hitting four straight passes, the final one good for six points.

White Deer's first touchdown came after a controversial call on a Bronco punt into the wind. The 29 - yard boot hit the ground and bounced and rolled toward Ron McIntosh, who danced out of its way. But the officials ruled the ball had knicked the Buck return man's jersey. They gave it to the Broncos after they pounced on the pigskin at their own 49.

The call seemed to fire up the hosts. They dropped the Broncos for three straight losses, and forced them to punt again.

Then it was time for Brown's heroics, starting on the Buck 36. The quarterback first hit a leaping McIntosh, who couldn't hang on after a hit that sent him flying end-over-end.

The vicious tackle didn't change the aerial tactics.

On the next play, Brown hit Kane Barrow with a 17 - yard toss. The next pass went 11 yards to McIntosh. Then Barrow pulled down another for 11, going all the way to the Bronco 12.

On the next down, Brown sent a special delivery to Johnny Furgason, who waited all by himself in the end zone and hung on to the tummy shot for a 6 - 3 lead at 3:35 in the third quarter.

The snap on the attempted extra point was fumbled, and a scramble with the loose ball was stopped short.

White Deer's final touchdown came with 10:48 to play. The Bucks got the ball on the Clarendon 26, after downing the Bronco punter on a fumbled snap.

But the Bucks ran into a stout defense and were pushed back to face 4th and 14 on the Clarendon 30.

On the desperation play, Brown lobbed a short toss to McIntosh coming out of the backfield. The back hauled down the catch. He zigged and zagged through the defenders and scooted all the way for the touchdown.

Sophomore John Shakelford raced in for the two - point conversion, but it was called back on a holding penalty. The Bucks then kicked the extra point and relaxed with a 13 - 3 lead.

White Deer defensive backs Jamie Pohnert and Andrew Rapstine kept the hosts on top, each killing Bronco drives with interceptions.

But with the end of the season ticking away, Clarendon refused to fold. The Bucks also seemed to play cautious ball near the end in trying to protect the 10 - point lead.

The Buck defenders, who had throttled the Bronco offense, played loose and opened a few cracks for the flashy Smith.

With time running out, Smith grabbed two straight passes for 24 and 46 yards. The senior capped the desperation drive with a six - point run from three yards out. The kick was good, and Clarendon trailed, 13 - 10, with 19 seconds to play, time for an on - sides kick with the wind.

The Broncos squeezed around their kicker and formed a flying human wedge for the skittering, on - sides boot up the middle. The Bucks recovered, but a penalty allowed Clarendon to try the wall of terror once again with 17 seconds remaining.

It nearly worked. The second short kick bounced off a Buck front man, but he fell on it as the swarming Broncos closed in.

A final Buck snap finished the season for the Broncos and coach Buddy Sharp.

Turnovers had decided the game in which both teams played outstanding defense. White Deer lost two fumbles. Clarendon lost one fumble and two interceptions, and the bobbled snap allowed the Bucks to tackle the Bronco punter and led to their second touchdown.

The White Deer defense shut down Smith and Gardner on the ground. Smith, who has more than 1,000 yards rushing in each of the past two years, was held to just 45 yards on 16 carries (2.8). Gardner managed only 40 yards on 13 carries (2.3).

Sharp passed for 104 yards (7 - 17), pushing Clarendon to 190 yards total offense and nine first downs.

The Bucks had 208 total yards and 11 first downs. Brown finished with 119 yards (7 - 15) through the air and rushed for 20 yards on six carries. McIntosh led the Bucks on the ground with 32 yards on eight carries. Barrow had 17 yards on seven carries; Shakelford added 18 on six.

White Deer finished the regular season with an 8 - 2 record and a perfect 5 - 0 mark in district play. Clarendon dropped to 4 - 6 and 3 - 2.

Lefors downs McLean in season finale

McLEAN — Lefors defeated McLean, 16-6, Friday night in a battle of winless teams.

Lefors finished 1-8 for the season and 1-4 in District 1-1A. McLean was 0-9 and 0-8.

Jeff Smith put Lefors on the scoreboard in the first quarter when he raced 14 yards for a touchdown. Russell Taylor ran the conversion to make it 8-0.

McLean pulled within 8-6 at halftime when Bill Billingsly broke loose on a 39-yard scoring jaunt in the second quarter.

The Pirates scored the winning TD in the third quarter on a 3-yard run by Richard Hernandez. Taylor ran the conversion again.

TCU survives scare by Red Raiders

TCU's Kenneth Davis (36) dives over the goal line for a touchdown while taking a hit from Texas Tech's Carl Carter (14).

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — And the beat goes on for Texas Christian's Cinderella Horned Frogs.

With Kenneth Davis rushing for 203 yards and three touchdowns, 15th-ranked TCU scrambled to a 27-16 victory over Texas Tech Saturday and will entertain Texas next week with the Southwest Conference championship and a Cotton Bowl invitation on the line.

"All the chips are on the table now for next week, and that's just what we wanted," said a jubilant Jim Wacker, TCU's second-year coach, after the Frogs' come-from-behind verdict.

"Unbelievable," he said. "We've done the impossible week after week this season. Geez, I didn't know Cinderella was a Frog."

TCU hiked its season record to 8-1 and its SWC slate to 5-1 while the previously unbeaten Longhorns were getting upset by Houston, 29-15.

TCU and Texas are the only teams in the conference with just one loss.

"This is the one we've been waiting for," said Davis, who set a new TCU rushing record as the Frogs set a single-season scoring mark of 318 points.

"It's going to be a dog fight. TCU deserves this type of game," he said. "It's been a long time since they've had a team with a chance to go to the Cotton Bowl."

"It will be the biggest game of my life."

Saturday was no slouch. Davis, the nation's No. 3 rusher, scored on runs of 2 and 39 yards and then broke the game open with a 75-yard romp in the fourth quarter as the Frogs won their sixth in a row after a 26-17 loss to Southern Methodist.

Besides breaking Jim Swink's rushing record, Davis moved within three yards of matching Swink's career mark of 2,618 yards.

The Temple junior scored from the 2 to cap a 68-yard drive in the closing seconds of the first half and his 39-yard TD was the finishing touch of an 80-yard march late in the third quarter.

In between, Gann kicked a 21-yard field goal.

With TCU nursing a one-point lead, Davis took a pitchout from Anthony Sciaraffa, cut down the sideline and blazed 75 yards for the clincher with 7:08 left.

The Raiders took an early lead on Gann's field goals, the first after a TCU punt into the teeth of a 21-mile-an-hour wind gave Tech possession at the Frog 41.

Fullback Freddie Wells raced 20 yards to set up the first kick and then, after Merv Scurlock's pass interception at midfield, galloped 25 yards to set the stage for the second.

The pivotal play of the first half came with Tech leading 6-3 but backed up to the lip of its own goal and looking straight into the chilly wind.

TCU, having failed to score on a fourth-down pass from the 2, forced a Tech punt that died at the Raider 37. But the Frogs were flagged for roughing the kicker, and Tech, given new life, proceeded to drive 97 yards for a touchdown.

Cougars shock 'Horns

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Gerald Landry threw two touchdown passes and cornerback DeWayne Bowden intercepted two passes — one for a 62-yard touchdown — as Houston capitalized on nine turnovers Saturday to upset No. 3 Texas 29-15.

The loss was the first in the Southwest Conference for Texas, now 6-1-1, and set up a possible showdown for the Cotton Bowl next Saturday when the Longhorns travel to Fort Worth to play Texas Christian.

The Houston victory broke an 18-game conference winning streak for Texas, which also was unbeaten in its last 24 regular season games. It was the Cougars, now 5-4, who earlier this season upset Southern Methodist.

Houston scored 17 points in the second quarter on a 79-yard pass from Landry to split end Anthony Ketchum, a 48-yard field goal by Mike Clendenen and a 7-yard scoring toss from Landry to tight end Carl Hilton with only 9 seconds remaining in the half.

Texas' only touchdown came on a 2-yard run by Terry Orr after the Longhorns recovered Landry's fumble on Houston's first possession at the Cougar 13.

Bowden intercepted a pass by Texas quarterback Todd Dodge in the end zone in the second quarter and pulled down a deflected fourth-quarter Dodge pass and raced 62 yards for the clinching score.

Before a fourth-quarter completion, Dodge, who had been closing in on Texas' passing record, was 0-for-13 and had four interceptions. He later was intercepted a fifth time, which tied a school record set 40 years ago. Boos could be heard from the overflow Texas crowd of 80,348.

Canadian wallops Boys Ranch, 28-10

BOYS RANCH — Canadian's Geoff Dockray scored two touchdowns and kicked four extra points to lead the Wildcats to a first-period TD, then scored on a 35-yard run in the second period and booted 4 of 4 PATs successfully.

28-10 District 1-3A victory Friday night. The Wildcats closed out the season with a 4-5 overall record and 3-2 in district play.

Shawn Wright also scored twice on runs of 10 and 19 yards in the second and fourth quarters.

Dockray returned a fumble caught in the air 93 yards for a

Greg Adams scored Boys Ranch final touchdown on a 10-yard run. Boys Ranch closed out with a 4-6 and 2-3 record.

Arkansas edges Baylor before bowl scouts

WACO, Texas (AP) — Fullback Derrick Thomas plunged 4 yards for a touchdown with 2:48 to play Saturday and the Arkansas Razorbacks kept their bowl hopes alive with a 14-9 Southwest Conference victory over the Baylor Bears.

Mark Lee recovered Bear quarterback Tom Muecke's bad pitch at the Baylor 33.

Arkansas improved its overall record to 6-2-1 with scouts from the Liberty, Sun, Bluebonnet and Independence Bowls looking on. The Razorbacks are 4-2 in SWC play.

Backup quarterback Danny Nutt, taking his first snap of the game, completed a 23-yard pass to James Shibest to setup Thomas' touchdown.

The Bears, playing before a homecoming crowd of 43,500 in Baylor Stadium, dropped to 3-6 overall and 2-4 in SWC games.

Arkansas seized a 7-0 lead by cashing a Bear mistake for a touchdown in the second quarter.

The game-winner came when Nathan Jones recovered a Ron Francis fumble at the Baylor 15 and five plays later Marshall Foreman punched across from the 2-yard line.

Arkansas ran the ball out of the end zone to give the Bears a safety so the Razorbacks could punt without the threat of a block.

Baylor threatened at the end of the game moving to a first down at the Arkansas 33. But Muecke threw four straight incomplete passes, and the Razorbacks then ran down the clock before Taylor took the safety.

The victory snapped a deadlock in the series, giving Arkansas a 31-30-2 edge.

The game was replete with big defensive plays with Baylor defensive end Ervin Randle making several.

Arkansas tried a fake punt from midfield in the third period but Thomas was stopped cold by Randle who smelled the play out.

Colorado State buries UTEP

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Quarterback Kelly Stouffer fired four touchdown passes and fullback Steve Bartalo bulled his way into the end zone three times from a yard out as Colorado State buried stubborn Texas-El Paso with 49 second-half points to take a 59-31 Western Athletic Conference football victory Saturday.

the WAC. It was the seventh loss in a row for the Miners, who fell to 1-8 and 0-6.

The victory pushed Colorado State's record to 3-7 overall, 3-5 in Colorado State's second-half torrent negated a strong first-half showing by the Miners, who rolled to a 24-10 halftime advantage thanks to two touchdown passes from quarterback Sammy Garza, a 1-yard TD plunge by tailback James Rose, and a 39-yard field goal from Hugo Castellanos.

34 passes for 308 yards, began the Rams' scoring outburst early in the third period when he hit Bartalo from 14 yards out to cut the Miners' lead to 24-17.

Garza — coming off an ankle injury but forced to relieve backup Kevin Ward when he proved ineffective in the first quarter — countered with a 5-yard TD stamper to make it 31-17. But that was Texas-El Paso's only tally after intermission.

Wichita State rallies past Buffaloes

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Brian McDonald ran for a first quarter touchdown and flipped a 25-yard touchdown pass to Albert Hundley with 1:12 remaining to lift Wichita State to a 17-14 victory over West Texas State in a Missouri Valley Conference game Saturday.

2-2 in the MVC, drove back to the Shockers 12-yard line, but Maurice Foxworth batted down a pass in the end zone with 5 seconds left.

West Texas State, 3-7 overall and West Texas State had taken a 14-10 lead on Randy Dean's 7-yard run. David Harbin connected with David Wood on an 18-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter for a 7-0 West Texas State advantage. McDonald ran 1 yard to tie the score in the opening quarter and Sergio Lopez-Chavero booted a 24-yard field goal for the Shockers, 2-8 and 2-2.

Warriors lose six-man grid finale

MIAMI — Chad Estes paced Harrold with 145 yards rushing and three touchdowns on 23 carries as the Hornets grabbed a 40-29 victory over Miami in District 2-A six-man football Friday night.

season finale for both clubs, boosted Harrold to a 3-7 season record and a 3-4 league record. Miami closed its season at 4-3-2 and 2-3-2.

Holmes wins by TKO

By TIM DAHLBERG
AP Sports Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Larry Holmes, bleeding badly from the first cut of his career, turned to his corner for help. Then Holmes went about cutting up James "Bonecrusher" Smith.

Holmes stopped Smith by technical knockout in the 12th round Friday night to retain his International Boxing Federation heavyweight crown.

Holmes had fleeting visions of losing his first fight ever after an apparent head butt in the seventh round opened a gaping wound over his left eye. But some expert work by his corner kept the blood from flowing into his eye and the fight was allowed to continue.

"I thought it (the fight) would be stopped for a second but then I looked back toward my corner and thought I couldn't lose," said Holmes, who won for the 46th time without a defeat.

Holmes, obviously troubled by the cut, was stunned by several Smith right hands in the eighth round and appeared to be in danger of losing control of the fight.

But he managed to regain his composure and came out throwing stinging left jabs in the ninth round. He finally finished Smith off in the 12th when ring doctor Donald Romeo stopped the bout at 2:10 as blood streamed into Smith's left eye.

"He hit me hard and shook me up but he never hit me twice in a row," said Holmes. "This is the only time I've ever been cut, but nobody's going to beat me as long as I'm standing."

The 35-year-old Holmes, who hadn't fought in nearly a year, showed some signs of age against Smith. Although he was leading handily on the scorecards of the three ringside judges, he seemed unsure of himself at times and his punches often missed their marks.

"I found Bonecrusher very strong, very awkward," said

Holmes. "I tried to get him out early but I couldn't. The only good punches I landed were on the inside. I couldn't land from the outside."

Holmes revealed that he had chipped a bone in his right thumb while training in July and said he went through with the fight anyway because he felt he owed it to the fledgling IBF.

Holmes went to the hospital after the fight to get stitches over his left eye and X-rays of the thumb.

"I hope to get it (the thumb) fixed and in six weeks be training for David Bey or Michael Spinks," he said.

Smith, a 31-year-old college graduate who was a 13-10 pick not to last seven rounds against Holmes, gave a most credible performance, stunning the champion on several occasions.

Smith was cut early on his left cheek and then again on his eyelid, but the cuts did not reopen until the 11th round. In that round, Holmes, still bleeding profusely from his own cut, ripped open a deep cut above Smith's left eye. The challenger managed to finish the round but the cut was reopened in the 12th.

Smith, whose previous biggest fight was a knockout of England's Frank Bruno, earned $175,000 for the bout while Holmes walked away with $1 million.

In a strange ending to a companion bout, former World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Mike Weaver, now top-ranked by the organization, was awarded a first-round victory when his opponent, Tony Anthony, was disqualified for hitting after the bell.

Cowboys' Breunig injured

DALLAS (AP)—Dallas Cowboys veteran middle linebacker Bob Breunig, hampered since training camp with back problems, will miss Sunday's game against St. Louis because of lower back spasms, the team said Friday.

Breunig has been hospitalized once this season for his back ailment, which grew worse again this week, team officials said.

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said Breunig definitely will be sidelined this week and may miss two games. Rookie Eugene Lockhart will start in his place.

NFL roundup

Dolphins can clinch title

By The Associated Press

The Miami Dolphins could find themselves in the record book and in the National Football League playoffs if all goes well Sunday.

If the Dolphins beat the Philadelphia Eagles, they'll gain a spot in the NFL record book with the second-longest season-opening winning streak. The Dolphins have won 10 straight games, equaling the 1975 Minnesota Vikings' start and second only to the Dolphins' own 17-0 season in 1972.

Miami can also nail down the American Football Conference East title if they win and both the New York Jets and New England Patriots lose Sunday. The Jets host the Indianapolis Colts and the Patriots take on the Buffalo Bills.

Dolphins quarterback Dan Marino, meanwhile, is zeroing in on an NFL record himself — most touchdown passes in a season. He already has 29 and has six games to break the NFL standard of 36 set by Y.A. Tittle and George Blanda. The sophomore quarterback has amassed 3,094 yards while completing 208 of 320 passes, all top marks in the NFL this season.

In other games Sunday, it's Dallas at St. Louis; the New York Giants at Tampa Bay; Detroit at Washington; Houston at Kansas City; Minnesota vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee; New Orleans at Atlanta; Pittsburgh at Cincinnati; San Francisco at Cleveland; Chicago at the Los Angeles Rams, and Denver at San Diego. On Monday night, the Los Angeles Raiders visit Seattle.

Both the Cardinals and Cowboys are coming off losses — the Cards had a four-game winning streak stopped when they lost to the Los Angeles Rams at home last week and the Cowboys dropped a 19-7 decision to the Giants in Dallas. The Cardinals beat the Cowboys 31-20 in their first meeting at Irving, Texas.

The Rams-Bears game in Los Angeles is expected to center on the only two 1,000-yard rushers in the NFL thus far — Walter Payton of the Bears and Eric Dickerson of the Rams. Steve Fuller is taking over the Bears' quarterback position for Jim McMahon, out for four weeks with a lacerated kidney suffered against the Raiders.

In Washington, the 6-4 Redskins will be trying to stay in the thick of the NFC East race and provide another milestone for John Riggins — he needs 46 yards to become, at 35, the oldest man in NFL history to rush for 1,000 yards in a season.

The Giants, will be trying to beat the Bucs for the second time this season — they took a 17-14 decision earlier. Coming off victories over Washington and Dallas and with St. Louis coming up next week, the Giants will be trying to avoid a letdown.

The Steelers could all but lock up the AFC Central title at Cincinnati. Pittsburgh leads the Bengals, 3-7, by three games in the league's losingest division and have already beaten Cincinnati once, and a victory would give them a four-game lead with four games to go and eliminate the Bengals even from a chance at a tiebreaker.

San Francisco, 9-1, leads the Rams by three games as it closes in on the title in the NFC West.

Southern Methodist rips Rice

HOUSTON (AP)—Southern Methodist's Reggie Dupard led a 17-point first half surge with two touchdown runs and Don King scored twice in the second half to lead the 17th-ranked Mustangs to a 31-17 Southwest Conference victory over the Rice Owls Saturday.

The Mustangs ran their record to 7-2 for the year and 4-2 in the SWC to increase their chances of a post-season bowl invitation. The Owls dropped to 1-8 and 0-6.

After trailing 3-0 in the first quarter on a 40-yard field goal by Rice's James Hamrick, the Mustangs surged for 17 points in the final 5:48 of the second quarter on Dupard's runs of 5 and 1 yards and Brandy Brownless' 36-yard field goal for a 27-3 halftime lead.

SMU's first two scores followed punts into a 25-mile per hour wind by Rice's Steve Kidd and the third score came after Antonio Brinkley fumbled and SMU's Anthony Beverly covered.

The Mustangs' scoring drive went 25, 16 and 19 yards.

The two teams traded third quarter touchdowns with the Owls scoring on a five-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Kerry Overton to Melvin Robinson and SMU countering with a 23-yard run by King.

SMU started a 76-yard drive to King's second touchdown on a 1-yard run after Rice Coach Watson Brown received back-to-back 15-yard penalties for disputing an official's call.

Overton completed a 20-yard touchdown pass to James Givens with 3 seconds left to play for the final touchdown of the game.

Brown erupted on the sidelines after an apparent pass interference call against SMU's Reggie Phillips was withdrawn that would have given Rice a first down at the Pony five.

A flag was thrown on the play but a subsequent officials' luddle nullified the call.

SMU failed on three drives from the Rice one but on fourth down, King faked to Dupard into the line and trotted into the end zone.

The Mustangs started sluggishly against the outmanned Owls, gaining only one first down in the opening quarter and trailing 3-0.

Marc Scott's acrobatic 24-yard reception on a pass from Kerry Overton set up Hamrick's 40-yard field goal. Scott caught the ball on the sideline while falling backward.

The Owls' luck ended in the second quarter however beginning with Kidd's 16-yard punt to the Rice 25. Dupard capped a four-play drive with a five-yard touchdown run.

The Mustangs got the ball back on the Rice 36 following Kidd's 18-yard punt and drove to the Rice 20 prior to Brownlee's 36-yard kick. SMU settled for the field goal after a zig-zagging 24-yard touchdown run by Dupard was called back on a holding penalty.

Beverly's fumble recovery at the Rice 19 set up Dupard's second touchdown from the one after a 16-yard gain by Gary Hashaway.

St. Matthew's School celebrates 30th year

PICTURE OF CONCENTRATION — Nathan Alexander, 3, concentrates on working with clay.

In November 1954, the Rev. Porter Brooks, vicar of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church here, buoyed by the St. Matthew's Mission and the community of Pampa, began the St. Matthew's Day School.

The first grade class of 10 students was taught by Mrs. John Hessey in the basement of the church.

In November 1984, 30 years later, St. Matthew's Day School not only conducts classes in the church basement, but also in the adjoining church annex. And not only first grade students are taught, but also kindergarten and three- and four-year-olds.

Today the church is celebrating the school's 30th anniversary with a special church service at 10:30 a.m. followed by a reception at 11:45 until 1 p.m. in the church parish hall.

St. Matthew's Day School has undergone a myriad of changes during its 30-year history. A kindergarten was added in 1956. In 1958, a school building was built with funds raised by members of the parish and the community. A second kindergarten was added that year as well.

In 1959, second, third and fourth grades were added to the school and a pre-kindergarten and sixth grade were added in 1966. But in January 1968, the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades were discontinued. The second grade followed in 1970 and in 1973 the first grade classes were discontinued.

Three and four year old classes and kindergarten continued through the years and in 1982 the first grade was started again.

This year St. Matthew's has enrolled 32 two-day three-year-olds, 46 three-day four-year-olds, nine five-day four-year-olds, 46 kindergarteners and 14 first graders. The school maintains a student-teacher ratio of 16 students to one teacher and one aide so children can receive individualized attention.

The teaching staff consists of one full-time teacher, nine part-time teachers and 10 part-time aides. All of the teachers are college educated and several are accredited. However, "(teachers) are chosen more on wisdom than formal credentials," Administrator Bunny Nichols explains.

St. Matthews operates five days a week during the public school year. Day care is available for a Please see "School Seeks," page 18.

FIRST FIRST GRADE — Pictured is the first first grade class of St. Matthew's Day School in 1954. They are tentatively identified as Beverly Bulland, Elizabeth Fry, Linda Gilliland, Jerannah Faye Jenkins, Cynthia Osborne, Susan Plummer and Jeletta Swain. (Special photo)

LUNCH TIME! — St. Matthew's students open up their lunch boxes and dig in during lunch time. Teacher Glynis Meyer opens up a box of cloves for the kids to smell just for the fun of it.

ALL IN OUR PLACES with studious faces. Kindergarteners in Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Crocket's class work on Indian headbands as they learn more about the Indians and the pilgrims and the first Thanksgiving.

BLESS THE FISH and the children. The Rev. Jim Tolbert, right, curate of St. Matthew's Day School blesses a pet fish during "Blessing the maximum of 30 day school children from 7:30 a.m. — 5:30 p.m. including summer months. Three, four and five year olds have class from 8:45 a.m. to 11:45 p.m. and first grade meets from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Scholarships are available.

The philosophy of St. Matthews Day School is expressed in their Statement of Purpose: "The aim of St. Matthew's Day School is to establish and maintain a non-profit parochial day school with a definitely religious background and character, whose pupils will receive instruction in the Christian religion according to the teachings of the Episcopal Church. All education within the school will include the training and development of the whole child — mental, physical and spiritual — with the major emphasis placed on development of Christian personality."

Some goals of the school are to teach the importance of excellence; to emphasize the necessity of self discipline and to learn the consequences of behavior — how the way they act affects others. When a problem arises, the child will be asked to sit in the "think it over" chair, which is designed to remind the youngster who has to sit there that "you're not being punished, you're just being asked to reflect."

Each day, Monday through Thursday, begins with chapel. On Friday the school joins in Songfest.

In chapel, the Statement of Purpose says, "We emphasize that prayer is talking to God and listening to God. The stories are Bible stories appropriate to the seasons of the church year. We seek to help each child understand his relationship to God and to the people around him, and to develop attitudes and habits of behavior which will help him grow by grace and increasing wisdom into a mature Christian."

Then the children return to their classrooms where they begin with learning activities such as number readiness, letters, colors, seasons and shapes, followed by an individual work time using manipulative skills such as cutting, pasting, coloring and writing.

Music and motor development classes are believed by school officials to be as important as the standard curriculum.

"Sometimes in music or motor development a child will excel where he might not do as well in the academic classes," Nichols said.

Music classes meet one day a week, followed by recess, snacktime and storytime. Then half the class goes to motor development while the others stay busy in the classrooms. The next day the other half goes to motor development. Then the children listen to records, rhymes, finger plays and other "moving around" activities before going home.

Each classroom has interest centers where children can explore, experience and learn about many things. One classroom has a high-sided bathtub with pillows and a loft to read in. In a housekeeping center, children explore kitchen skills and play house. The listening center offers books to read and tapes to listen to with headphones. A block-building or carpentry center helps a child develop motor skills and finger dexterity. And a science center can teach a child about different things such as bugs, birdnests, magnets and water.

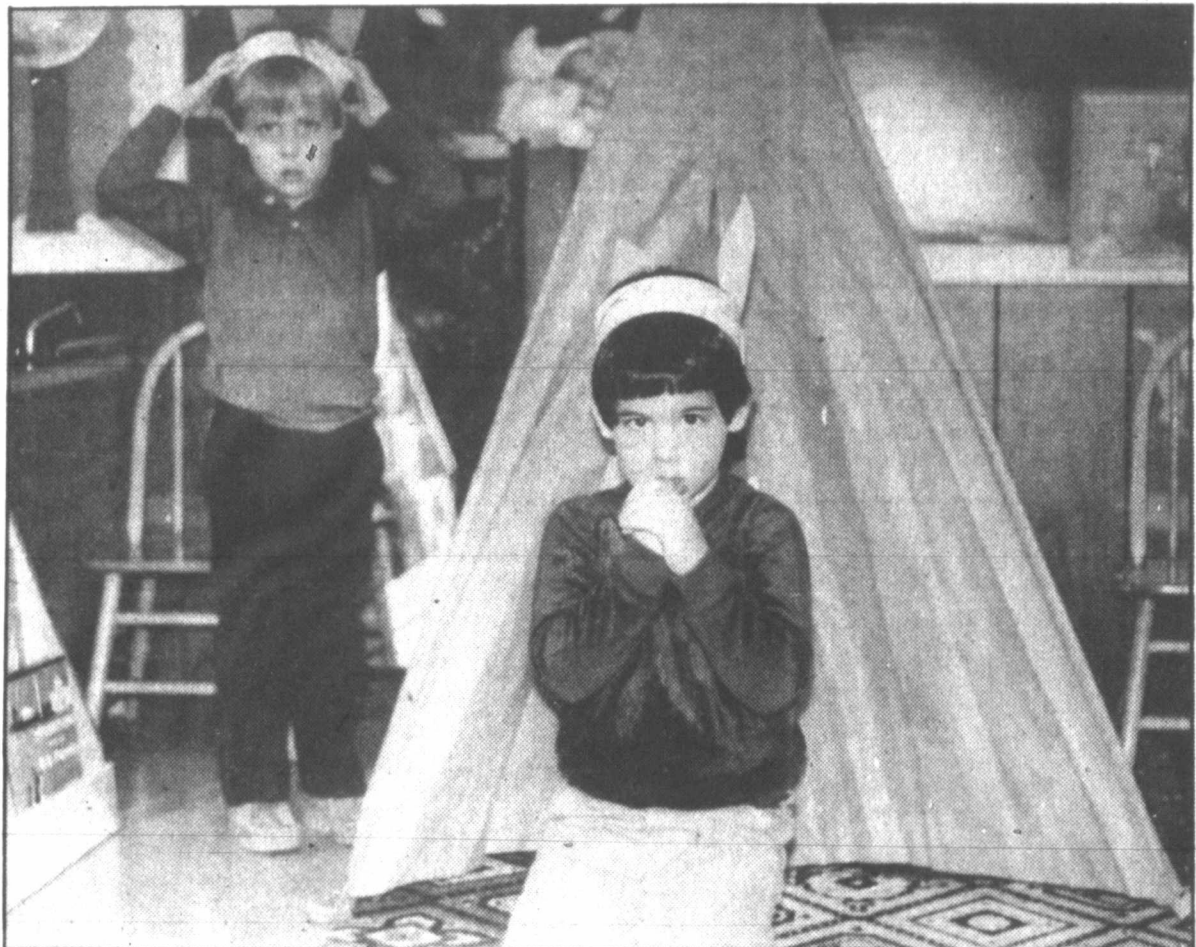

"Children at St. Matthews are given the opportunity to learn to share things important to them, to express their inner creativity," Nichols said. "We may not spend as much time preparing them for the next grade as some schools do. We really stress that what they do right now adds to their enjoyment of life."

During the year, classes go on field trips to farms; pizza parlors to make pizza; "Looking for Christmas" at the mall, at church, at the tree lot; to Amarillo to see the Discovery Center, "The Nutcracker Suite" production; and to local businesses like the fire

Dear Abby

Save holiday packages from dead-letter fate

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Part of my job as a postal worker is to deal with the letters and parcels that are undeliverable. With the holiday season approaching, I'd like to pass on some tips so that your readers can avoid some of the more common problems:

1. Remember to affix postage. This is the most obvious and yet the most frequently overlooked item. Use sufficient postage, and don't try to reuse canceled postage stamps.

2. Seal letters and parcels securely. Use wide tape for parcels, not string.

3. Pay attention to addressing. Most common errors: no address, address unreadable, wrong or absent town, state or ZIP code. Many people absentmindedly write their own ZIP code on the address. Your post office has national ZIP code directories, so if you do not know a ZIP code, ask. It speeds up delivery.

4. Do not write any other numbers—such as your phone number or Social Security number—under the address. With only a fraction of a second to look at each ZIP, a clerk can easily mistake these as the ZIP, and your letter ends up in Timbuktu.

It helps to write the ZIP near the state, on the lower right, not lower left, corner as many people write it. Use complete addresses, not abbreviations (except state). Write clearly. Don't write "City" or "Local" in place of an address; it's quite likely that your mail travels 50 miles or more to a processing center where the people there might not know the city you mean. Be sure to spell out the names of foreign countries in English, including Canada and Mexico.

5. Always use your return address. Unmailable items with no return addresses end up in the dead-letter office. (Don't use "Guess Who?" or similar substitutes.)

6. Never tape money to a letter in place of stamps.

7. The U.S. Postal Service does not handle returns for private companies such as UPS. To return packages delivered by these firms, use postage.

8. Breakable items can and will break without protection. Coins are frequent victims of our processing machines, as are small hardware pieces, candy hearts, lollipops and campaign buttons. If you must mail these, cushion them with tissue, or use a box.

9. Monitor your children's mail. It breaks my heart to see a carefully decorated letter addressed simply to "Grandma." (One exception: "Santa" letters are handled by the postmaster.)

10. Mail early in the day. Every business in town mails at 5:00 p.m., and we can't always process it all in time for the main dispatch. Our busiest days are the days after a holiday, Mondays and Fridays. Find out about our special services, such as certified, registered or express mail. We could save you time and money.

11. If you receive poor service, complain! Your local post office has official complaint forms. They're yours for the asking. It will make your local office sit up and take notice.

12. If you think we deserve a compliment, let us know. During the holiday season, we can use a kind word.

Thanks, Abby!

A POSTAL CLERK

DEAR ABBY: I want to pay tribute to my husband of over 25 years. He is a man who thinks enough of himself to keep physically fit, and thinks enough of me to support me in all my emotional and physical needs. He is man enough not to feel that his masculinity is threatened if he does "woman's work."

He is a man who has a responsible, full-time position, yet takes the time to help me run a small business.

He takes me out to dinner, walks with me, talks with me and is my greatest supporter.

He is a man who took fatherhood seriously. He instilled good moral values in our children and let them know that they were responsible for their own actions.

He is a man who always had time for his mother when she was alive.

He is a real man! He is my man. And I grow more thankful for him every day.

LUCKY

DEAR LUCKY: What a pity you didn't sign your name. On second thought, it's probably just as well; a man with all the above-mentioned virtues is probably modest, too.

station, library, Post Office and bank.

Special activities during the school year include "The Blessing of Animals" on St. Francis Day in October. Then on All Saints Day, Nov. 1, students dress up as different saints and have a parade with each child telling which saint they are. Later in November, there is a "harvest happening" when children participate in many activities with the time of pilgrims and Indians. They ride "The Cardboard Mayflower," make cornhusk dolls, string beads, make pottery, and dance Indian dances.

At Thanksgiving all the classes have a big Thanksgiving feast with each class making food, placemats and coming dressed as either pilgrims or Indians.

In the Spring, Dad's are honored at Dads' Night. Each child brings his or her Dad to show them their classrooms and various activities. Then, at the end of the school year children participate in another "happening" where they can do anything from painting a fence and wall papering to making cookies and playing in shaving cream with their bare feet.

St. Matthew's Day School is governed and administered by the rector, Father Ron McCrary; curate, Father James Tolbert; administrator, Bunny Nichols; and a school board of elected representatives from the parish, community and Vestry. The board formulates the school policies and controls school affairs, funds, curricula and property.

Members of the St. Matthew's board are David Martindale, chairman; Billy Hawkins, vice chairman; Vonnie Lair, secretary; Marge Penn, treasurer; Carol Fields, Mark Lang, Ginny Jones, Joe Curtis, Holly Burger, Tom Byrd and Ernie Wilkinson.

The school is affiliated with the following associations: Southwest and National Associations of Episcopal Schools, Texas Association for Education of Young Children, and Association for Children and Adults with Learning Disabilities.

When asked why they send their children to St. Matthew's Day School, one parent answered, "The love of God is planted in each child and is shared as it grows with their families and friends."

Bruce-Tolar to marry

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace L. Bruce announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Doretta Lynn, to Mark Douglas Tolar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy M. Tolar of Nederland.

A Jan. 5, 1985, wedding date has been set in the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Church here.

Miss Bruce is a 1983 graduate of Pampa High School. She attends Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene where she is working toward a degree in music. She is a member of the H.S.U. concert choir, Sigma Alpha Iota and Alpha Iota Omega.

Tolar is a 1981 graduate of Nederland High School. He attends Hardin-Simmons University majoring in music education. He is employed by the Mercantile Texas Bank of Abilene. A member of the H.S.U. concert choir, Tolar is also a member of the Kappa Phi Omega and Alpha Chi fraternities.

Toy workshop to benefit abused and neglected kids

The public is invited by Department of Human Resource officials to join in a workshop to make developmental toys for local abused and neglected children Saturday, Nov. 17, from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. in the Pampa Center Clarendon College cafeteria.

Glenna Graham, Pampa's caseworker for abused and neglected children in the home, plans to make 50 sets of six different toys for children from birth to preschool ages.

Simple household items donated by local businesses will be used to make the toys, Graham said. All she needs now is manpower — someone to help make the toys, she added.

"I just need ordinary people — they don't have to have any special skills — who can glue, cut, paint and do some simple sewing," Graham said.

The workshop will be a come-and-go event, she said, so that someone can stay for 30 minutes or the whole four hours.

Once the sets of toys are made, Graham will distribute them to homes with abused and neglected children. Graham and a case aide will teach the children and their mothers how to use the toys to help in the children's developmental processes. Graham said she feels the toys will play an important part in teaching the abusing or neglecting mother to play with her child, strengthening the mother-child bond and breaking the cycle of abuse and neglect.

"(The toys are) something we've needed for a long, long time," Graham said. "If we have a good turnout (for the workshop), I hope to make it an annual event."

The east door of the college cafeteria will be open for the workshop. For more information call the Department of Human Resources at 665-1863.

Christian Church sets bazaar

It's time again for the annual Christian Women's Fellowship Old Fashioned Bazaar, 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., Nov. 17, at the First Christian Church, 18th and Nelson, and the emphasis is on "quality."

Homemade cinnamon rolls will be pipin' hot fresh from the oven and hot coffee on the stove from 8 a.m. until they run out. At 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m., the women will serve stew and chili, homemade cornbread, home baked pies, tea and coffee.

"Christian Dolls" are to be featured for the first time in this year's bazaar. Christian Dolls are hand sewn, soft-bodied dolls with handmade clothes, bonnets and booties. Each doll comes with a certificate of authenticity, a name taken from the Bible and a scripture verse. Some of these dolls waiting for adoption include Esther Elizabeth, Hannah Miriam, Leah Dinah, Rachel Adah, and Sarah Priscilla.

The sewing and crafts booths will have a number of hand sewn and hand crafted items for sale such as cathedral window square pot holders, Christmas ornaments and decorations, painted china, tin punch items, baby bibs and hand painted tea towels. "Gas Gloves," cute and serviceable gloves to wear when putting gasoline into the family car, are also available.

Homemade jellies and jams, canned goods, homemade pies, oreads, candies and the like will all be ready for sale in the Kountry Kitchen booth.

And the men have not been forgotten. Men of the church are to set up and stock the Men's Booth with handmade wooden items.

This year's bazaar has been in the planning since early June. Planning committee members include Nancy Brogdon, Jo Love, Bena Quillen, Martha Boswell and Tiny Leonard. Proceeds will go to the Christian Women's Fellowship's local ministries.

PHS choir, drama join to present 'Annie'

Pampa High School concert choir and theater arts students are to join in presenting the musical, "Annie," for three performances beginning Friday, Nov. 16, at 8 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 17, at 8 p.m. and Sunday Nov. 18 at 2 p.m. at the Pampa High School auditorium.

"Annie" is a family show appealing to adults and children alike. In the play the title character, Annie, has been left at an orphanage years before. She believes her parents will return once again to claim her. Life at the orphanage is less than wonderful as Annie and the orphans are mistreated by Miss Hannigan, the manager of the home.

Annie tries in vain to escape in an effort to find her parents, but her luck changes as the secretary of the billionaire Oliver Warbucks, Grace Farrell, comes to the orphanage to find an orphan to take back to Mr. Warbucks mansion for Christmas. Annie is chosen and soon Warbucks decides that Annie's search for her parents needs some assistance.

He may claim to be her parents, but only to provide the one secret that verifies their rightful parentage, Ralph and Shirley Mudge. These characters prove to be only worse than the others. The musical does have a happy ending providing the most popular songs, "Maybe," and "Tomorrow." The Broadway musical is quite different from the movie version.

Orphans — Denise Chapman, Michelle Maddox, Mary Cross, Kim Damron, Kim Wilson, Shelly Cochran, Traci Potter; servants — Brent John, Amy Raymond, Rachel Dawson, Melanie Warner, Ann Duncan.

Tickets are available from any choir or drama student or at the door. All tickets are general admission.

Festival of Christmas trees to be even bigger

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Plans are being finalized for the Festival of Christmas Trees and Gift Boutique, scheduled for Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 and 2 to open the community holiday season.

The festival will feature decorated Christmas trees, wall trees, miniature trees, handcrafted ornaments, Christmas banners, Nativity scenes and creches, chrisma, handmade Christmas cards, live entertainment for children and various crafts at gift tables.

Bray said more entries are welcome. More decorated trees are especially wanted from individuals and youth groups, businesses and from residents or businesses in surrounding area cities.

The festival will open Friday evening, Nov. 30, in the lobby and Heritage Room of M. K. Brown Auditorium. The opening will be in conjunction with the annual Christmas parade and the lighting of the community Christmas tree and Nativity scene.

The annual Christmas Spectacular will be presented Saturday, Dec. 1, by the Pampa Civic Ballet.

An addition this year will be the decorating of trees around the auditorium with strings of lights to add to the Christmas atmosphere of the festival. Mayor Calvin Whatley is serving as chairman to arrange the outside lighting.

Background Christmas music will be played during the hours the festival is open.

Various sales tables will be set up in the lobby, offering crafts, ornaments and other Christmas related gifts and items.

Prize money will be awarded in each of several categories for the Christmas trees. First prize will be $60 and second prize will be $40.

A special chrismon tree will be decorated with chrisma being made by church women from First United Methodist, First Presbyterian, First Christian, St.

Matthew's Episcopal, St. Vincent de Paul Catholic and Zion Lutheran churches and from senior citizens at the South Side Senior Center.

Chrisma are mograms or symbols representing Christ. Coordinating the chrismon tree are Gail Heaton and Jane Wiens.

Puppet shows and story telling will be available at specified times in the lobby for the entertainment of children, allowing parents to view the various exhibits and trees.

Individuals already entering the festival activities include Audrey Huff, Per Stubbe, Peggy Cloyd, Violet Johnson, Tommy Henson, Eudell Burnett, Melissa Parker, Connie Ball, Judy Dehl and Thelma Waters.

Others are Jennifer Hancock, Pam Lowe, Shirley Clark, Debbie Douglass, Phyllis Laramore, Linda Williams of Mobeetie and Virginia Cloyd of Kansas.

In addition to the churches represented in the chrismon tree, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will have an entry.

Clubs planning entries are Pampa Garden Club, Las Pampas Garden Club, Lone Star Squares (dance club), Junior Service League, Heritage Art Club, Pampa Optimist Club and the Girl Scout Quivira Council.

Youth groups to be represented include the Travis Elementary School fifth grade and Brownie Troop 223.

Businesses announcing entries include The Hobby Shop, The Looking Glass, Lazy M Ceramics, Malcolm Hinkle, Meadow Fresh, Montgomery Wards, Pampa Feed and Seed Co., Sunshine Factory, Alco Discount Store, Chez Holiday, Lil-Oi-Paintin' Corner and Stanley Products, Loreta Waters.

The Salvation Army also will have an entry.

The new lights to ornament the trees outside the auditorium building are being made possible through funds from various contributors.

Association, Coronado Apartments, the 20th Century Club and the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

A related event will be the presentation of Handel's "The Messiah," performed by a choir organized from local residents. The performance will be at 7 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, at the M. K. Brown Auditorium.

The festival is being organized by members of the Festival of Christmas Trees Subcommittee, under the Civic Improvement Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Admission of $1 will be charged for entry to the festival events to help defray expenses.

TAG Association to meet

Pampa's Talented and Gifted (TAG) Association is to meet Thursday, Nov. 15, at 7 p.m. in the Pampa High School library.

CHILDREN'S STORY TIME - Barbara Craig, Lovett Memorial Library employee, reads a story to an attentive group of children during a children's story time held Thursday mornings at 10 in the library. The program is for preschool children ages 4 to 6. The library is wanting more children to attend the sessions to enjoy the stories, puppets and other activities for the children. (Staff photo by Ed Copeland)

Children needed for library story telling hour activities

Lovett Memorial Library again is sponsoring a story time for preschool children ages 4 to 6 on Thursdays at 10 a.m. Story teller is Barbara Craig, library employee, who reads stories to the children and provides other occasional activities. The sessions last from half an hour to 45 minutes. Dan Snider, library director, said more children are needed to attend to make the program a success. He noted attendance has been sparse at times, probably because more parents are not aware of the program. The story time was originally held on Tuesday mornings. But the library changed the program to Thursday mornings after more parents indicated that day would be a better time. In addition to using books for the stories, the library is acquiring a McGuff the Crime Dog puppet and tapes for use with the children. The Friends of the Library help the program financially by providing books and by having occasional parties for the preschool children, Snider said. Currently Craig is directing the story time. Snider is hoping to have another library assistant after the first of the year to also work with the program. Parents wanting further information on the program may contact Snider or Craig at the library.

Faculty member of the year to be named

The education committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce announces its annual reception to honor faculty at the Pampa Center of Clarendon College. The faculty reception is scheduled Thursday, Nov. 15, at 7 p.m. in the Rustic Inn. The hosts for this year's reception is to be Citizen's Bank & Trust and the Chamber of Commerce. Hors d'oeuvres are to be served with a program following. Highlight of the evening is to be the announcement of the 1984 faculty member of the year at the Pampa Center.

Soft sculptured doll workshop set

A workshop on soft sculptured baby dolls is scheduled Nov. 27 and 29 in the Gray County Annex. Instructor is to be Jackie Barrett. The baby doll will be similar to the dark-headed doll displayed at the Extension Homemaker Christmas in October. Those interested in participating in the workshop should register at the Gray County Extension office by Nov. 15. A supply list will be provided.

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK
I have a choice.
I can either do a funny column today on the couple in Dallas who ended a six-month divorce battle by granting visitation rights to the wife to more than $4,000 worth of toy trains...

Or I can do a report on the deluge of mail I got from grandmothers across the country on a column I did on the pain of divorce where they are left with "nothing but memories and longing" for their grandchildren.

Maybe the stories belong together.

Under the terms of the settlement in Dallas, the woman will get the right to visit the trains her husband received twice a year as long as she gives 24 hours' notice by telephone and the time convenient.

A grandmother in Iowa wrote, "I am enduring the divorce of my twin sons. One daughter - in - law moved to Florida and I get to see my grandchildren two hours at Christmas and take them to lunch in the summer for a total of an hour and a half."

The train enthusiast said the first train set was a Christmas gift to her son, who is now 22. However, their collection got more sophisticated as the years went on and they even owned a Z gauge that was so small you could lay it out in a briefcase. She would miss it.

A grandmother from Ohio wrote, "As a child growing up, I never had the warmth and comfort of grandparents. I always said that when the time for grandchildren came along, I would always be there if they needed me. My grandson is three years old. I had him for the first time on Grandparents Day. His parents are divorced."

The wife from Dallas was awarded custody of a tin-plated 1935 Comet aqua - and - silver engine, three passenger cars, a three-piece green bridge, a standard gauge tunnel, two streetlights, toy baggage men and baggage worth $500 to $1,000.

A grandmother from Georgia wrote, "We were given custody of our grandson for four years after the mother left and our son tried to 'find himself.' The new wife moved 2,000 miles away where our grandson could 'break the child's dependency on us.'"

The laws are very explicit about the custody and visitation rights of inanimate things like trains. When it comes to human beings, we're not so clear-cut. That's why groups of grandparents throughout the country are addressing the problem through Grandparents' Rights groups.

A letter from a grandchild sums this piece up pretty well. "After 35 years, when I found my grandparents, only my grandmother was alive. She welcomed me with love and kisses. Who else but a grandmother would welcome me on sight... no questions asked? Unfortunately, a few months later she passed on, but I choose to think God meant for me to know her, if only for a short time. For it was she who bathed me, fed me and loved me when everyone else had other things to do."

Exhibit features German immigrants

They came by way of package deal, one-way trip, and they came for political asylum. Some were noblemen, some were farmers. They had all left their native Germany for a better life in the New World - in Texas, to be specific.

An exhibit depicting German immigration to Texas is to be displayed Nov. 5-30 at Amarillo Public Library, 4th and Buchanan. The exhibit, sponsored by Friends of the Library, was created by the Goethe-Institut of Houston and funded by the Texas Committee for the Humanities.

Dr. Bobby D. Weaver of Panhandle - Plains Historical

Museum is to introduce the exhibit in a talk, "German Immigration Patterns in Texas, 1821 to 1915," at 3 p.m. today, Nov. 11, at Central Library. Dr. Weaver was consultant on the exhibit and has written extensively on German Folk Islands in the Panhandle of Texas.

Energy-saving homes cost less to run

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent
 A home that saves energy is worth more and costs less to run. Using the following home investment checklist, you can identify ways to reduce energy use and lower home operating costs. Select those that you feel will provide the best return. You will get your money back, you'll enjoy more comfort, and the value of your house will increase.

Attic insulation — Check to see if your attic has recommended levels of insulation for our area. If not, invest in additional insulation.

Heating-cooling system — Clean or replace filters as needed. Close doors and vents in unused rooms. Insulate ducts and pipes in heated spaces. When replacing a unit, look at the Energy Guide fact sheets on operating costs and select the efficient one with lower operating costs.

Install insulation wrap and flow restrictor shower heads and faucets. When replacing your water heater, look for the Energy Guide label and select the efficient one with lower operating cost.

Windows and doors — Consider installing storm windows, doors, or double-paned glass to keep in the heat and air-conditioning.

Appliances — Fully load clothes and dishwashers. Keep refrigerator doors closed. When replacing, look for the Energy Guide label and select the one with the lower operating costs.

Floors and foundation walls — Check for adequate insulation under floors, around basement, crawl space and foundation walls.

Thermostat — Consider a clock thermostat with automatic night setback. It will save you money. Keep temperatures at 65 degrees in winter and five degrees lower when sleeping or away. Higher temperatures are recommended for homes with sick, elderly, or infants. Set at 78 degrees in summer.

Weather stripping - caulking —

Locate air cracks around doors, windows, and other openings where outside air is infiltrating into your home. Seal them with caulking or weather stripping for quick payback.

Sunlight — Let the sunlight in during winter and keep it out during the summer. Drapes, shutters, awnings, shade trees, glass with reflective film, and solar screens help reduce energy costs.

After completing this checklist, you may want to obtain general advice on doing the job safely and correctly. The Gray County Extension office and the local utility companies have such information available. For information about energy-efficient products, contact building material retailers, contractors, fuel dealers, manufacturers, or appliance dealers. Shop for the best prices and values.

You may qualify for federal income tax credits for 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on insulation, storm windows and doors, double-paned glass, clock thermostats, caulking and weather stripping, glass with reflective film and solar screens. You may also qualify for tax credits up to $4,000 for approved solar devices. Tax credits are available to 1986. Consider energy saving improvements to make your home a better investment.

Center holiday cheer on giving

NEW YORK (AP) — Studies show that a sense of depression often accompanies the holiday season, says Dr. Philip F. McKean, cultural anthropologist, who suggests that putting the emphasis on giving rather than getting will avoid these feelings.

Many people have a deep desire to receive gifts at holiday time, based on childhood memories and expectations, notes McKean, director of Planned Giving for CARE, the international aid and development organization.

"But we're bound to be disappointed and depressed if that's the center of our holiday intention, because we never receive enough of the 'right' presents to fulfill our juvenile fantasies," he says.

"Grow up," he advises. "Learn to become a 'good giver' rather than a passive receiver. When we act out by making gifts to others, assert our maturity instead of our immaturity. Our culture emphasizes 'gimme and get' but each of us must learn to 'give and grow' for a deeper joy and satisfaction."

McKean has these suggestions for making gifts count:

—Make a holiday "gift list" to include at least one local, one national and one international cause that expresses your concern and compassion, and reaches beyond yourself.

—Examine the charity to be sure it is doing the bona fide work you want and expect it to do — whether in health care, education, religious leadership, the arts, social services or overseas development and relief.

—To be sure your funds are going to organizations that are publicly accountable, check with a Better Business Bureau.

—Make sure of the charitable deductions from taxes, to which all taxpayers are entitled, in order to make larger gifts. Every dollar of charitable contributions to qualified non-profit organizations is deductible for income tax purposes.

—Plan to make your largest gifts in the future — through a bequest in your will, or a charitable trust, through a gift annuity or a transfer of appreciated property. Consult a charitable organization for guidance.

HOLLY FOR LANDSCAPE
 Yaupon, a durable and abundant Texas evergreen, is actually a member of the Holly family and can be a useful landscaping shrub.
 Use Yaupon as a hedge, specimen or a multi-trunk small tree.
 Nursery Yaupon are generally superior to those growing in their native state. Compact growth, leaf size and luster as well as heavy amounts of dark red fruit are usually considered desirable characteristics.
 Only the female Holly plant bears fruit, so adequate pollen must be present from a male plant to set fruit if you are planting the Yaupon in isolated areas.
 Several Yaupon species can serve as versatile and attractive additions to a Texas landscape.
 Dwarf Yaupon is easily grown as borders, mass planting and specimens. It can be easily kept to a compact height of 1 to 3 feet with minimum pruning.

 Possumhaw Yaupon sheds its leaves in late October or November, and the bare branches of the female plant are laden with showy red or orange fruit.
 Not only are the native Hollies of East Texas, such as American, Dahoon, Hume and Inkberry, worth planting, but there are many oriental species as well. However, the oriental species are more susceptible to scale insects.
 Chinese Holly, Dwarf Chinese Holly, Burford Holly and Dwarf Burford Holly do well where soils aren't too alkaline. The Burford varieties will set fruit without having a male tree in the area.
 Transplant Yaupon during the dormant season from November to March. Container-grown nursery plants can be moved at any time with adequate care. Large plants should be balled - and - burlapped rather than bare-rooted.

 Water plants frequently and add a 2-inch mulch of leaves, straw or similar material, but withhold fertilizer until the second year.
 Consult your nurseryman or a good garden reference to select the Holly plant that will fit the space available when it reaches maturity rather than one requiring continual pruning.
HOME FIRE DETECTORS
 Imagine that the time is 3 o'clock tomorrow morning. You and your family are fast asleep. A flame flickers in the living room. Minutes pass and the fire grows. Smoke fills your home. At 3:20, you are awakened by the sound of a child coughing. You smell smoke and suddenly you are fearfully wide awake with the realization that the house is on fire! You shout, "The house is on fire!" and frantically wake your wife or husband. With the intent of waking the rest of your family, you rush to open your bedroom door, but the hallway is filled with flame and you are barely able to close the door again.

 What will you do now? What are other members of your family doing, each in a different room?

Are they awake? Have they escaped or are they lying unconscious from lethal smoke and fumes? Even if your family has planned and practiced a fire escape plan, it may even now be too late to use it!
 How does this story end? We'll leave that up to you. But keep in mind that this is just how thousands of family members die each year. Whatever the outcome imagines, this story could have been told differently had an early-warning fire detector sounded its alarm at 3:05 a.m.
 Your home is not exempt from fire. Fire destroys or damages more than 1,800 homes in the United States every day. It can happen to you.

 Fire kills over 12,000 persons each year in the United States (about 350 in Texas). The majority of fires are caused by smoking materials, heaters, electrical devices and wiring, and cooking stoves and appliances. Early warning smoke detectors provide inexpensive protection for you and your family. You should install a fire alarm system in your home to quickly alert occupants of fire, day or night.

Club News

Progressive Extension Homemaker Club

Peeking at Pampa

While old 1984 speeds quickly by and the sneezin' season changes to the freezin' season, busy Pampans spin around town in a whirl of activities.

Hattie Roche was seen picking her last rose of summer on a colder than cool morning last week.

Janie (Mrs. Joe) VanZandt made a slide presentation of her recent trip to China for the 20th Century Forum Club's guest day tea. Hancel Deaton was in town last week to gather information for a feature on Behrman's in Women's Wear Daily magazine.

Congratulations to Jane and Antonio Ramirez who celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary last week.

Spied Travis Lively Sr. on his way to the Rotary Club meeting last Wednesday.

Allan Buchanan sold enough Comfort Control Units from the Coleman Company to win a trip for two (Susan) to Acapulco, Ole!

Florence Cox hasn't hit earth since Oct. 21. That was the day she talked to her favorite soap opera star, Happy Hadley, who plays the role of a policeman on the Young and the Restless. With family members, he was having Sunday dinner with Florence's brother and wife in Albuquerque when the sister-in-law suggested the phone call to Florence. The opportunity to please Florence was built in!

Pat and Ab Conway set the stage for Halloween in their neighborhood by putting a whole string of lighted jack-o-lanterns across their fence.

ONE OF THE youngest trick-or-treaters was little one-year-old Megan Couts, daughter of Cheryl and Joe. She came on strong dressed as Annie with the red curly wig, pantaloons, pinafore and dress made by Cheryl.

Another cutie was Bear Ramirez, two-year-old son of Liz and Chico. Dressed as an Indian, he introduced himself with, "I'm an Indian!!!!" and immediately went into a war dance. Big brother Anthony was in costume, too.

Casey Owens, 2, of the George Owens family made the rounds as Casey at the bat in a baseball suit.

Moms and dads joined in the fun. Larry Forson escorted Kelly, Matt and little Courtney, so cute in a clown suit, while Cindy stayed home to hand out treats. Mary (Mrs. Tommy) Bowers stood on her front porch with treat bowl in hand. Nancy (Mrs. Bill) Harvill was captivated by each and every child.

Jean (Mrs. Dale) Ladd, Cora Mae Hood, Colleen (Mrs. Billy) Neal and Ola Mae (Mrs. John) Nunn had lunch together at a steak house 'way out north to celebrate Jean's birthday. Cora Mae had just returned from visiting friends in Gainsville and family in Arkansas.

The Thursday afternoon Bible study group surprised Sherry (Mrs. Jim) Olsen with a birthday party two days early.

Belated birthday wishes to McHenry Lane, the Rev. Joe Turner, Claudine Bradley and Julie Ann Noles.

Shari and Charles Langen hosted a birthday dinner and party for Shari's father, Ralph Dobkins of Borger. There was a big birthday party for G.M. Walls Jr.

Chad Ward was one of Pampa's busiest political campaigners.

HALLOWEEN CONTINUED: Have you heard that approximately 80 children brought their treats to the X-ray department of Coronado Community Hospital for a metal scan? Linda Haynes, Jana McKinney and Karen Gregory served refreshments to the little visitors. The respiratory department hosted a Halloween party for employees on the same night.

Last week Pampa's happiest citizen must have been Ruth Rice. She had eye surgery and two days later she was back on the job seeing well and typing away as usual.

Saw Paul Brown and two friends enjoying Mexican food for lunch.

Almost newcomers from Houston are Janis and Frank Brinsfield, Rebecca, Sheila and Billy. Frank is in sales at Ingersoll-Rand. Welcome to Pampa!

Marie Struffacher of Lefors was the lucky winner of the king-size afghan made by Ann (Mrs. Bill) Lytton to benefit the Lutheran ladies' kitchen fund. Eloise Woldt made small wooden Christmas ornaments that sold but fast at the Holiday Shop of the church bazaar. Betty Beyers' apron - turned - sunbonnets were big sellers, also.

Charlie Powell has trained Howard Price's dachshund "Old Pete," to hunt. Old Pete has tackled and conquered at least 15 skunks within the last year and treed a possum recently.

Carmen and William McCarley have built an underground house, perhaps on a do-it-yourself basis, in town. Jean McCarley has added some beautiful touches with her expertise in needlework, wall hangings and the like to make it special.

Vic Raymond would go out of his way any old day for his favorite cuisine, Chinese food. He has eaten in the best restaurants of China, only to say that the Chinese food prepared and served in the Peking restaurant of Pampa tops them all. That's a compliment of the best kind!

Heard that Josephine and Quentin Williams are doing well. They moved to Lubbock several years ago.

topped with a black broad-brimmed hat. Black shoes and a clutch bag completed the picture.

Best wishes for a speedy recovery to Allene (Mrs. Vincent) Langen who has been a recent hospital patient.

C.C. Wells offered beets and turnips from his garden to the Salvation Army. In no time at all Adrienne (Mrs. Milton) Wood and Lois Blocker picked the crop, enough to feed a crowd of Golden Agers exceeding 100 at their October luncheon. That's not all! Cassie Richter shared homemade chow-chow and Polly Hinson of Lefors shared blackeyed peas she had picked in Plainview and canned. Coronado Nursing Center hosted the luncheon.

Congratulations to Danny Pierce, who received a citation in September for outstanding work as a highway patrolman in the area.

Jo Scoggins and Polly and Bus Benton are happy to have family members back in Pampa. Jennifer, Terry and pretty Teryn moved home from Clarendon. Terry, who as a teacher at Clarendon College will commute to Clarendon and Jennifer sing beautifully together. Jennifer soloed at First Baptist Church last Sunday. Welcome home!

Happy retirement wishes to Harley and Brenda Madison, who were honored with a retirement dinner last Friday. For the last six years Harley has been an operation supervisor of the local Social Security office and an employee in the program for 24 years with no more than 10 days total sick leave time. A good record! A carload of administrative people from the Amarillo office attended. Retirement plans are indefinite.

When Katie and Lee McDonald made plans to attend the Soil and Water Conservation District Commission meeting in Corpus. Grandmother agreed to stay with the children. Only Grandmother became ill. No problem!

Kim stayed with Janie and Joe VanZandt as Becky Reed's guest, Kirk with Chris Poole, Stacy with Andrea Adcock and Sherry with Andra Going. Others on the same trip were Oma and Curtis Schaffer, David Bowers, Lois and Foster Whaley. Curtis retired from the board of 30 years service.

Last weekend Sara and Doug

Carmichael, Ramona and Bill Hite, Jane and David McDaniel, Ginny and Steve Jones were in Las Vegas. Cheryl and Don Lee and Sherry were there for fun and a family visit.

Another group to the same place: Lillith and Ed Brainard, Ruby McWhorter, Shanta and Dr. Vijay Mohan, Jimmie Kay and Tommy Williams.

Ruth Carter won the radio station's trip for two to Nashville. Her mother was the invited guest to her delight. Dr. W.R. Whitsell and his daughter Janet vacationed in Peru.

Liz Carr of Miami recently returned from a trip to California. She's Katherine (Mrs. Zane) Hall's sister.

A group of Cabot Corporation people went to Houston for a few days. The list included the Don Burns, the Tommy Bowermans, the Rodney Boyds, the Ray Woodriddles, the Joe Stewarts, the Ken Reeveses and the Brian Mitchells.

Condolences to Dr. Bob Lowerwald who was called to Mineral Wells because of the death of his father.

Frank Snow joined a group of out of town friends for an elk hunt in Colorado for the third annual trip. Sorry about your no-catch, Frank! The previous weekend, Frank and Sue, Jay and Dierk Milum trekked to Lubbock for parents day at Texas Tech and to visit Melissa and Ben Fallon Jr.

Hear Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Duck certainly have something to smile about. They're tremendously proud of their son, Tech. Sgt. Alan Duck who visited them recently while enroute to a new assignment at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio where he will be in charge of orthodontics. A 1972 Pampa High School graduate, he has just completed four years dental lab instructor at Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls. Before that his assignment for three years was Weisbaden, W. Germany. Every family needs a dentist!

Last names of St. Matthews members attending a Northwest Texas diocesan Council in San Angelo last weekend were the Revs. McCrary and Tolbert, Dr. Teague, Quattlebaum, Reeve, Hinton, Penn, Grundler and Whitten.

Eva Stevenson returned last week from a summer stay in Lake City, Colo. Doris and Robert Young report a wonderful California vacation.

Farmer back in fields for harvest, planting

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Sunny, dry weather over Texas in recent days has enabled some farmers to get back into their fields to harvest crops and to plant small grains.

Harvest operations are gaining momentum in the Panhandle and South Plains as open weather prevails, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Much of the cotton crop in those regions still remains to be harvested while corn harvesting is about complete and grain sorghum harvesting is well past the halfway point. Harvesting of sugar beets and soybeans is active.

Cotton harvesting also resumed over the Rolling Plains, West Central and Far West Texas, noted Carpenter. However, some loss of cotton quality has resulted from recent rains, with some cotton bringing out of bolls.

Peanut harvesting operations remained at a standstill in central and coastal areas due to wet fields although harvesting was in full swing in Southwest Texas. While early yields have been down and quality has been low due to the drought, the irrigated crop in Southwest Texas is excellent, Carpenter said.

Soybeans also are waiting to be harvested in coastal areas, with the recent extended wet weather causing some crop losses. Most small grains (wheat and oats) are off to a good start due to recent rains, noted Carpenter. Early planted fields are being grazed from the Panhandle into Central Texas. However, some farmers are still waiting for fields to dry to complete plantings.

Pecan harvesting continues over the state, with the crop generally short due to the season-long drought, Carpenter said.

Harvesting of some vegetables is active in the Winter Garden and Rio Grande Valley, where sugarcane harvesting is increasing.

With hay in short supply, producers in eastern, central and coastal sections are hoping for another cutting of hay, added Carpenter. Some hay was lost to recent rains in deep South Texas.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions:

PANHANDLE: Weather conditions improved to allow some harvesting early in the week. The grain sorghum harvest is well under way while cotton harvesting is just getting started. Last week's killing freeze should speed up cotton harvesting. Corn and peanut harvesting is about complete while some cabbage and carrots are still being harvested in Deaf Smith County. Wheat looks good, with early fields being grazed.

SOUTH PLAINS: Harvest operations are gaining momentum with open weather. Most of the corn is in while grain sorghum harvesting is well past the halfway point. Harvesting of sugar beets and soybeans is active along with a few vegetables. Wheat is making good growth and is providing some grazing.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton harvesting is increasing as field conditions permit, particularly in some western counties that had a hard freeze last week. Some cotton is stringing out of bolls due to recent wet and windy weather. Cotton prospects range from poor to excellent. Wheat grazing prospects are improving and that is bringing more stocker cattle into the area.

NORTH CENTRAL: Most producers are waiting for fields to dry to harvest the remainder of their crop. Harvesting of a short pecan crop continues. Most cattle are in good shape, with improved grazing due to recent rains. Some hay feeding continues.

NORTHEAST: Most fields remain too wet to complete harvest operations. Hay crops are making some growth and should provide another cutting if warm, open weather prevails. Livestock conditions have improved greatly in recent weeks. A light pecan crop is being harvested.

FAR WEST: Wet fields are still hampering cotton harvesting in some locations while elsewhere harvest operations are under way. Livestock are in excellent shape due to improved grazing on pastures and ranges following recent rains.

WEST CENTRAL: A little cotton is being harvested although most farmers are waiting for better drying conditions following recent rains. Wet fields are continuing to delay peanut harvesting; the wet weather has caused some yield losses. Cool season grasses are providing some grazing for livestock.

CENTRAL: Peanut harvesting continues to be delayed by wet fields, with 10 to 40 percent of the crop in. Peanut yields are generally down due to the season-long drought. Some farmers continue to wait for fields to dry to plant small grains; early planted fields are being grazed by livestock.

EAST: Recent heavy rains have delayed another hay cutting and have slowed gardening activities. Winter pastures and clovers are making good growth and livestock are in good shape. The pecan harvest ranges from 10 to 70 percent complete, with yields light to average.

UPPER COAST: Wet fields are continuing to delay peanut and soybean harvesting. Prolonged wet conditions have caused some yield losses. Recent wet weather has also limited the progress of fall gardens. Livestock are in good condition but mosquitoes are heavy and causing some problems. The pecan crop is poor.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Farmers need more open weather to complete cotton clean-up operations, to harvest soybeans and peanuts, and to make another cutting of hay. Small grains are making good growth but armyworms are damaging some fields. The pecan crop is fair.

SOUTHWEST: Peanut harvesting is in full swing, with the irrigated crop producing high quality, excellent yields. Broccoli also is being harvested. White rust and other diseases have increased due to recent wet weather. Small grain prospects have improved with the recent rains.

COASTAL BEND: Wet conditions are continuing to delay wheat planting and peanut harvesting. Heavy rains damaged some soybeans. San Patricio County was recently declared a disaster area due to extensive flooding. Grazing and livestock conditions continue to improve. A light pecan crop is about 20 percent harvested.

SOUTH: Some hay harvesting continues; recent rains caused some hay losses. Sugarcane harvesting is increasing and tomatoes, peppers and cucumbers are being harvested where field conditions permit. Cabbage and lettuce planting continues, with other winter vegetables making good progress. Livestock are in poor to good shape, with grazing improving.

Reagan urged to drop opposition to creation of youth conservation corps

By DON KENDALL

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservation group says it will ask Congress again next year to create an American Conservation Corps to put unemployed young people to work protecting public lands, a program recently vetoed by President Reagan.

Milton E. Meikelburg, president of the National Association of Conservation Districts, said "it is a great disappointment" to learn of Reagan's veto of the bill on Oct. 30. However, he said the association will work for its passage when the new Congress convenes next year.

Reagan vetoed the bill two weeks ago, saying that the measure was based on the discredited approach to youth employment that relies on artificial public sector employment. Reagan said the nation's unemployed youth could be better served by a reduction in federal spending.

The association said this week in a report to members that Reagan's veto was "a surprise move" against a bill that had "broad partisan support in both House and Senate." The plan was vetoed after the Civilian Conservation Corps of the 1930s.

"That earlier CCC put three million unemployed young men to work on America's farms, forests and streambanks in demonstration projects that were the beginning of a strong soil conservation movement in America," the report said.

Under the legislation, jobs would have been provided for thousands of young people on public lands at minimum wage, improving and conserving parks and forests. It would have authorized $225 million over three years.

Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., said Reagan showed "callous indifference" to high levels of youth joblessness, which has been estimated at 1.5 million. Hawkins is chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor.

The association said a number of states have developed their own conservation corps in the last few years. About 35 percent of the money authorized in the bill would have been available to state programs.

Meikelburg said the legislation, besides giving jobs to unemployed youth, would have provided a work force for maintaining and repairing public land, from national parks to neighborhood playgrounds.

"Erosion control on school grounds and work on watershed protection in coordination with projects on private lands are examples of much-needed work that could be accomplished by the corps," he said.

"Earlier, this administration had taken the position that it should not set aside additional lands for national parks, but should concentrate on maintaining and developing existing parks," Meikelburg said. "The American Conservation Corps would have been a good way to accomplish this goal."

Meikelburg said that Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., the vetoed bill's chief sponsor, plans to introduce the measure again in 1985.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The menu under an emergency program to help farmers and ranchers feed their livestock has been expanded to include government-owned sorghum, oats, barley and wheat as well as corn.

Emergency feed is available from supplies held by the Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corp. in counties designated as disaster areas due to drought or excessive moisture.

The feed program involves lower-grade grain owned by the CCC and stored in specified areas. The program allows grain to be sold to qualified producers at 75 percent of the current basic loan rate in the county where it is stored.

Loan rates are how much a farmer can borrow from the USDA by using a crop as collateral. For example, if the county loan rate for a certain kind of grain is $2.50 a bushel, the grain could be bought by a qualified livestock producer for 75 percent of that.

Officials said Thursday an estimated 94,905 bushels of oats are available in Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Barley, estimated at 599,971 bushels, is located in Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

About 758,639 hundredweight of grain sorghum is available in Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, South Dakota, Tennessee and Texas.

Approximately 11.5 million bushels of wheat are available in 33 states, which were not identified, but those were said to include the major states where wheat is produced.

To be eligible for the lower-grade grain, producers must show that their own feed output "is inadequate to maintain their foundation livestock and poultry for a 90-day feeding period, which begins the day a farmer applies for assistance."

FINANCE PLANNING SEMINAR

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Texas PCAs are cooperating on a seminar series entitled "Financial Planning '85". The closest one to us will be held at Amarillo Wednesday, the seminar will start at 8:30 a.m. at the Hilton Inn.

The program will be packed full of ideas for farmers to use in financing their business in the next decade. Leading off the program will be discussions of the ten-year outlook for agricultural credit by an Padberg, head of Ag Economics at Texas A&M, and Arsha Martin from the Federal Intermediate Bank in Austin. Wayne Hayenga, economist, will discuss "Merchandising Credit" to inform farmers how to develop more meaningful financial information for their lenders.

Looking at the near term will be a topic of cattle outlook by Ed Zacek and the upcoming 1985 farm bill by Ed Smith, Extension economist.

After lunch, "Your Annual Tax Check-up", a discussion of income and estate tax planning, will be presented by Hayenga.

TEN COMMANDMENTS

FIREARM SAFETY

Accidents with firearms don't happen. They are caused by ignorance, carelessness or disregard for safety rules. With hunting season at hand, now a good time to review firearm safety rules.

The following is a list of "Ten Commandments of Firearm Safety":

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.
2. Watch that muzzle! Be able to control the direction of the muzzle when you should stumble.
3. Be sure the barrel and action are clear of obstructions and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying.

4. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know identifying features of the game you hunt.

5. Unload guns when not in use. Take down or have actions open; guns should be carried in cases to the shooting area.

6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay with a firearm.

7. Never climb a fence or tree or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.

8. Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or water; at target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.

9. Store guns and ammunition separately beyond the reach of children and careless adults.

10. Avoid alcoholic beverages before or during shooting.

By following these firearm safety rules, your hunting trip will be a lot safer, both for yourself and your companions.

FARM ECONOMY IN BAD SHAPE

Texas farm economy has gone downhill steadily in the past few years, and farmers have found themselves in the worst economic squeeze since the Great Depression, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The adjusted farm income for inflation nationwide in 1983 was the lowest since the bleak years of 1932-33. Net farm income in Texas this year will be only about half of what it was in 1979.

This financial dilemma stems largely from depressed crop and livestock prices, steady increases in costs, adverse weather conditions and high real interest rates that increase costs and strengthen the dollar against foreign currencies.

Phelps Dodge names two new executives

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Copper-producing Phelps Dodge Corp. has announced two top executive appointments, naming R. Robert Durham as president and chief operating officer and Leonard R. Judd as head of mining operations in Arizona and New Mexico.
 Durham will succeed Richard T. Moolick while Judd will replace Arthur H. Kinneberg, both at the end of the year when Moolick and Kinneberg retire, the company said last week in statements released from its New York headquarters.
 George B. Munroe, chairman and chief executive officer, said Moolick provided "an exceptionally fine and lasting contribution" to Phelps Dodge, the nation's second largest copper producer and the biggest in Arizona.
 Durham, 55, now a senior vice president, "brings a proven talent to the office which should assure continuation of that tradition," Munroe said.
 Phelps Dodge said Durham's responsibilities have included management of the company's recent asset restructuring program, corporate planning and development and oversight of foreign manufacturing operations.
 Judd, 45, also a senior vice president, succeeds Kinneberg, 63, as the ranking Phelps Dodge executive at its regional headquarters in Phoenix.
 Moolick, 64, president since 1980, said his major accomplishments included redirection of the company's exploration program, efforts to reduce operating and overhead costs and giving greater emphasis to precious metals and foreign prospects.
 Phelps Dodge has laid off thousands of miners in recent years during periodic shutdowns of its Arizona plants because of the continuing slump in the copper market. Phelps Dodge and other producers have blamed foreign competition and low copper prices for the slump.

Phelps Dodge said Wednesday it would not pay a dividend for the fourth quarter of 1984, the ninth consecutive quarter in which the company has not paid a dividend.
 Using a workforce of non-strikers and new hires, Phelps Dodge has continued to operate its Arizona mines and smelters despite a bitter and sometimes-violent strike which began July 1, 1983.
 The strike began over economic issues, including the unions' refusal to accept the company's demand for lower starting wages for new hires, reduced fringe benefits and elimination of cost-of-living pay adjustments.
 Angel Rodriguez, president of the striking United Steelworkers of America Local 616 in Morenci, he did not know whether the executive appointments would change the company's attitude toward labor.

 "If it makes a difference, maybe we can sit down and talk about negotiating something again," Rodriguez said.
 Kinneberg said the executive appointments had been planned for some time, but Rodriguez said he thought the changes were made because of problems experienced by Phelps Dodge since the strike began.

Fish market stand-in for Ellis Island Greenwood's song is new national anthem

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the 60 years it was open, 16 million immigrants passed through Ellis Island in New York harbor. But the old immigration station is such a mess today an American filmmaker had to use a London fish market as a stand-in.

That was for the seven-hour CBS special "Ellis Island," a sort of melting-pot melodrama played against a panorama of America between the turn of the century and World War I. It tells the story of four fictional, penniless immigrants who arrived in America in 1907. One escaped a Russian pogrom. One had a price on her head. One was an actress' gigolo. The fourth was going blind.

"As soon as I read the script I went to New York and visited Ellis Island," says Jerry London, who was director and supervising producer. "It was in such a state of disrepair there was no way we could use it."

The solution came from art director Robert Laing, who had worked on "Gandhi."

"Bob said he could find everything we needed in London. The old buildings, the interiors, the costumes," London recalls.

"Billingsgate Fish Market in London stood in for the immigration building at Ellis Island," says London, whose own grandparents came through Ellis Island from Poland and Russia in 1900. "We filmed it on a Saturday and Sunday with 450 extras playing the immigrants going through processing."

"Ellis Island" is London's sixth miniseries, which may be a record for a director. He went to Japan to direct the 12-hour "Shogun," which gave the miniseries new life after the format began to sag after the breakthrough successes of "Roots" and "Rich Man, Poor Man."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Three years ago, country singer Lee Greenwood would hop in his pickup truck to go sing at just about any place that would hire him. Today he hides in Air Force One.

The 40-year-old singer-songwriter recently went to Texas with President Reagan to sing his song, "God Bless the USA," at two campaign stops.

The song was used in a campaign film by Reagan and has been sung at many sports events in place of the national anthem. It also has replaced "The Star-Spangled Banner" as the daily sign-off by many radio and television stations.

"It's timeless — there's no mention of a date," Greenwood said about the song. "It'll outlive me."

Greenwood was making $500 a week performing in Nevada piano bars when he moved to Nashville in 1981 to pursue a recording career. He played in "every club in the Southeast — any place we could draw a crowd."

At first, Greenwood went to his club dates in the pickup truck. But after three months he had worked his way up to a motor home. Three months later, he bought a bus.

Now, not only does he have three buses for his road tours, but he's had 11 hit singles — including the duet with Barbara Mandrell, "To Me," and "Fool's Gold" — and he's in such demand that he has to take the phone off the hook to enjoy quiet moments at home.

He recently was voted male vocalist of the year for the second straight year by the Country Music Association and won a Grammy award for his hit, "I.O.U." An with those awards, he's a strong candidate for country music's to honor — the 1985 entertainer of the year award.

"I'd like to win it," he said.

Greenwood's parents separate when he was 1 year old. He was raised by his grandparents on a chicken farm near Sacramento, Calif.

As a child, he was consumed by music, learning to play the piano, saxophone, trumpet, clarinet, organ, trombone and guitar. He performed in everything from symphony orchestra to drum-and-bugle corps. When he was 15 years old, he joined the musicians' union.

His other hits include "It Turn Me Inside Out," "Going, Going, Gone," "Somebody's Gonna Love You," "Ring on Her Finger an Time on Her Hands," "She's Lying" and "Ain't No Trick."

Barry Gibb won't rest on laurels

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Barry Gibb, oldest at 38 of the Brothers Gibb, keeps working, isn't afraid of failure, wants to write songs that will live and likes to try new endeavors.

Right now, he has his first solo album, "Now Voyager," on MCA Records. He says, "I was looking for a better direction than the Bee Gees' last album, 'Living Eyes.' That was done on purpose to get us away from falsetto styles. To some extent it didn't work. It did draw us away from the 'Saturday Night Fever' sound, which I think we needed to do."

He cut 13 songs for his solo album, Gibb says, put back on the shelf tunes he grew tired of. That was another first. "With Barbra Streisand we did exactly 10; every song went on the album."

Gibb wrote an album, as co-author of some of the songs, for Dolly Parton, Dionne Warwick and Kenny Rogers as well as Miss Streisand, at each singer's request. Each included a duet. Rogers asked for a couple of songs; Gibb said he was doing whole albums. Rogers said okay and the result was "Islands in the Stream."

Gibb says, "I think 'Islands in the Stream' was the biggest selling duet last year and I think it and the Police record, 'Every Breath You Take,' were the two most played on American radio last year."

Since the album with Rogers, Gibb has written a couple more songs "which would be great for Kenny."

"That happens; you write songs when it's too late."

"Now I'm at the stage I'd like to approach somebody to do an album, even at the risk of being rejected. I would love to work with Ray Charles. Every album Ray brings out should be top 10. I don't understand why that isn't happening."

Gibb cut a solo album in 1970 but the masters disappeared and the album didn't come out. He has some of the songs on cassettes. "The Bee Gees had split up. RSO Records in England was going public, on the stock exchange, and it was essential they display all their commodities. It was necessary for them to get the Bee Gees back together again quickly. I always felt in my heart, perhaps incorrectly, that there was a manipulation of sorts."

"Living Eyes," by the Bee Gees, Barry and fraternal twins Robin and Maurice Gibb, 34, came out on RSO in 1981.

"We decided after that it was healthier for us to pursue individual careers for a little while. We needed to be energized. Three people being one entity tends to de-individualize you. We probably won't break up, probably ever."

"We've been a group 29 years, since 1955. In 1958 the name became the Bee Gees."

The first hit record, in Australia, where the family moved in 1958, was "Three Kisses of Love," in 1963. The first hit in England and America was "New York Mining Disaster 1941," in 1967.

Robin is making solo albums and Maurice has composed the soundtrack for "Breed Apart." Barry recently spent three months shooting a 70-minute, nine-song, TV special, "Now Voyager," to be shown before Christmas. The video, with 11 songs, will be sold in shops. "It is a story, acted," Gibb says.

"Some of the songs are written with Maurice, one with Maurice and Robin and one with George Bizter, my pianist," he says.

"It's the beginning of a company formed to make TV specials and movies. I love comedies and scary films; I'm dealing with comedies first. I've got two projects I consider will be theater films with soundtracks. Another thing I'm going to do is a documentary called 'The Haunted Houses of Europe.' At this point, I feel claustrophobic in one creative area alone. If you're a creative person, you should be able to create in any medium."

"I'm fortunate that I'm not afraid of failure. I think failure creates hunger which brings success."

Asked what failures he has experienced, Gibb says, "Two really hurt. The 'Living Eyes' album came after a hiatus. It didn't work for us."

"The movie 'Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band' was the biggest disappointment. It was a terrible film and Peter Frampton and the Bee Gees didn't belong in it. I think if 'Saturday Night Fever' hadn't come out right after it, it would have buried the Bee Gees forever."

"I really think the secret of success is just to keep working. You cannot sit on your laurels." The soundtrack of "Saturday Night Fever" sold 30 million copies, Gibb says, but Michael Jackson's "Thriller" now has sold more.

"You can't sit back in awe of what you've done. You have to stay in the race and keep functioning."

"In 1978, four singles the Bee Gees wrote were in the top five, including our brother Andy's 'Thicker than Water' and Samantha Sang's 'Emotions.' You can think you'll be remembered forever but within five years everybody will forget you did it and somebody else will do it."

"I believe that everyone in show business is after immortality. It's not riches; you were doing it before you were ever rich because you loved it. We remember Duke Ellington; I think that is what he was striving for, to write something that was going to live after he'd be gone."

Gibb says, "From the age of 7, the only thing I wanted was to be a pop star or be famous. I could only listen that to people like Elvis Presley and Bill Haley. In Manchester, the only thing I could think of was living in America and playing rock 'n' roll. I never diverged from that."

"I still have the ambition today to be a famous pop artist and write songs that will be remembered."

Gibb lives in Miami with his second wife, Linda, and their three sons, Stephen, 10, Ashley, 6, and Travis, 3. A fourth child is expected.

He says he'll do more solo albums. "Next fall we'll do a Bee Gees album, to come out at the beginning of 1986. Then I think it's time for a Bee Gees' world tour. Our last touring was in 1979. I think we should go see people who've been good to us. We have a lot of thanking to do."

FIRST TIME ON BROADWAY—Charles S. August Wilson. Both the play and Dutton have received rave reviews. Dutton is making his Broadway debut in the show and only graduated from the Yale School of Drama in 1983.

Dancer becomes a teacher

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dancer Judith Jamison once said she'd never teach or choreograph, and if she had thought about it, she probably would have added that she'd never be a cook, either.

But this year she's started to do all three.

In January, Miss Jamison, once the star of the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, held her first week-long workshop. She taught scholarship students in Ailey's school, the American Dance Center.

"It was an invitation to... have fun, learn about my style and how I move and things I've learned," she said in an interview. "I don't want to sound like a humanitarian but I think it's important to get out this information that's inside of me."

She also went to the summer dance festival at Jacob's Pillow in Lee, Mass., this season to do another workshop — cooking.

"I've always cooked for friends and dancers," she said. "We'd feed each other on tour, if one didn't have any money. I fed a lot of dancers. Somebody would let me stay at their apartment if I'd cook in those rough days."

Liz Thompson, the director at Jacob's Pillow, asked Miss Jamison, whose name is pronounced with the first syllable Jam not Jame, to sell some of her food in the cafe there. "By the end of the week I had made 40 pounds of potato salad, 30 chicken breasts, two sweet potato pies and eight lemon meringues, all by myself," Miss Jamison said. "I had many bandages on my fingers."

Ms. Thompson thought of a name for the food business, Jamison's Choice.

Macy's heard about it and offered to sell the treats in the store.

But the towering dancer who starred on Broadway in "Sophisticated Ladies" hasn't quit dancing.

"Every now and then I'll kick up my heels," she said. "If somebody special that has been mentor to me asks, I'll dance." Last July, she appeared with the Ailey company at the Metropolitan Opera, dancing the third section of "Cry" and in two sections of "Revelations."

Alvin Ailey attended workshops she held in April and June and said he wanted the dance she was teaching for his company. Miss Jamison taught her dance, "Divining," to the Ailey company, which performed the premiere in Kansas City Oct. 5. The New York premiere will be Nov. 29.

Pianist discovered after 50 years

EDITOR'S NOTE — Cuban-born pianist Jorge Bolet is finally being recognized as a major talent after a frustrating career spanning almost 50 years. But, he says, "It could have been worse."

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Concert pianist Jorge Bolet, nearing his 70th birthday, is being discovered again by audiences and this time it seems to be taking.

Reviewers call him a giant. Concerts and recitals are selling out, and London Records is cutting more than his contracted 10 records in five years. Bolet is performing 150 times this season and has signed a contract to open a new hall in Cologne, West Germany, in 1987.

Bolet has been discovered a number of times before, as when he played the soundtrack of a movie about Franz Liszt, "Song without End." Even that didn't lead to sellout performances.

"I've had a frustrating career in many ways," says the Cuban-born pianist who turns 70 on Nov. 15. "It has come late but it has finally arrived."

Bolet, as they say, has hung in there.

"It could have been worse," he says. "What is very bad is to start a career very brilliantly in your young days and not have the ability to mature and grow."

Bolet entered the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia at 12. He was big for his age and many thought he was older. Now, his 6-foot-3 frame erect, his walk vigorous and his dark hair touched with white only at the temples, he looks younger than his age.

After he graduated from Curtis, he made a debut tour in Europe but nothing came of it. He returned to Curtis and studied conducting for two years, until Fritz Reiner told him that he was a wonderful pianist but would never be a conductor.

Today he is head of the piano department at Curtis, a job he started exactly 50 years after he walked in to audition. He has six students, the oldest 18.

He prefers recitals, where he plays solo pieces, more than concerts with orchestras.

"A recital is really the big test. It's not too difficult to be a success when you have 96 people making beautiful music with you. When you've got to do it all by yourself, that's another kettle of fish."

Bolet won the Naumberg Award in 1937 and the Hoffmann Award in 1938. New York recitals were the prizes, but a concert tour did not follow. "My career started very, very slowly," he says.

"There were many long years of what could have been near starvation if I hadn't had good friends who believed in my eventual success: I guess I must have, too, otherwise I wouldn't have kept on."

served a year and a half in the Cuban Army and a year and a half in the American Army. After the war he conducted the first "Mikado" performed in Japan, to show that Army forces could do better than USO shows being sent them.

In 1953, Bolet played Rachmaninoff's Third Piano Concerto with the Cincinnati Symphony and the next day the newspaper carried a Page One story saying the audience went wild about this pianist "who came from nowhere." The symphony immediately hired him for the next season and Bolet made his first record there, Prokofiev's Second Piano Concerto. But little else came from that.

In 1960, when the movie "Song without End," about Liszt, was to be filmed, pianist Abram Chasins was hired as music consultant.

Bolet says, "Naturally they asked him to suggest a pianist. He suggested me. They said, 'How about Van Cliburn?' Van was a pretty big superstar. Abram told them he thought he'd be wonderful if they could wait four or five years until he learned the repertoire."

"It so happens I was playing Liszt's E Flat Concerto with the National Symphony in Carnegie Hall. The music director of Columbia Pictures made a trip to New York to hear that performance. He said, 'Well, this is it.' I recorded the music before they shot one foot of film."

On Sept. 20, 1983, Dominic Gill began this review in London's Financial Times: "Four TV appearances can do for an artist what music critics fail to achieve in twice as many years. Since the middle of the last decade when Jorge Bolet's latest record and then the man himself returned to England after a long absence, we have been urging our readers regularly that Bolet is not to be missed; only now, after his TV master classes and rehearsals, was the Elizabeth Hall all but sold out as it should always have been. Bolet demonstrated once more his restrained and unflamboyant mastery of the Romantic keyboard."

GOP Sun Belt lock trouble for Demos

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — America is moving to the Sun Belt, and it may be time the national Democratic Party did the same.

Among the lessons hammered home to the Democrats last week by Ronald Reagan was that in presidential elections, they are a minority party in the states with the highest rate of growth.

The last Democratic candidate to do well in the Sun Belt was Jimmy Carter, and his success was limited to the South and to 1976. Four years later, when he ran for re-election, Reagan took every Sun Belt state but Carter's native Georgia.

The Sun Belt includes not only the South but the Southwest and California — a collection of states the Republicans see attracting people much more in tune with the GOP than with the Democrats.

Those states have 195 electoral votes out of the 270 needed for election. If the Republicans get a lock on those votes, it may be a long time before a Democrat moves into the White House.

Those states are not yet lost to the Democrats.

Arizona has a reputation as the land of Barry Goldwater, a state that has not voted for a Democrat for president since 1948. Yet it also has a progressive Democratic governor, Bruce Babbitt; a moderate Democratic senator, Dennis DeConcini; and also is the home of Rep. Morris Udall, one of the leaders of the party's liberal wing.

Another case is New Mexico, where Gov. Toney Anaya is an unabashed liberal. Yet, New Mexico last voted for a Democratic presidential candidate in 1964, when Lyndon Johnson buried Goldwater.

That pattern is repeated throughout the West and, of course, the South has a Democratic tradition, albeit far more conservative than the national party.

A problem that has been debated in the Democratic Party ever since Reagan was elected in 1980 was whether the country was moving to the right and, if so, whether the Democrats had to shift with it.

Accepting that assumption, the next question was how to do it without abandoning the party's traditional base — the working classes, city dwellers, blacks and other minorities.

To a degree, the party's base abandoned it. Sun Belt cities are less Democratic than the old cities of the North, which are losing population. The working classes have grown more prosperous and more willing to support Republican candidates, particularly those who talk about cutting their taxes and building up defense.

Organized labor's decision to jump in early and endorse Walter F. Mondale for the Democratic presidential nomination did little to reduce Reagan's appeal among union voters.

In fact, it may have hurt the Democratic nominee with other voters.

"I'm sure they're going to review their strategy carefully and closely," said Charles T. Manatt, the Democratic Party chairman, when asked if thought labor ought to have second thoughts about its endorsement.

The chairman was unwilling to alienate a major force within his party, but when asked if he thought the endorsements of various interest groups had helped Mondale, Manatt replied, "The evidence this year wouldn't suggest that."

Clearly, the traditional Democratic approach — building coalitions among unions, ethnic and religious groups and racial minorities — isn't paying well in the Sun Belt.

That is a growing, morning-after feeling among many party activists that the Democrats would be better off without their presidential candidates going before various unions, teachers, women and others to seek endorsements.

There also is a feeling that the successor to Manatt ought to be someone who has held elective office in the Sun Belt. Manatt himself is a Californian, but he never has run for office.

World Cup turns to gold for some

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — With the television audience for soccer's 1986 World Cup expected to exceed 9 billion, the sporting event is a promotional gold mine for companies worldwide.

It is even more for Glen Wesen, whose El Paso-based company, USA Marketing Group Inc., was selected to be the exclusive promotional agency for the tournament.

As the sole developer of products for sponsors to use in conjunction with the soccer championship, Wesen sees the tournament as an arena for his company to showcase its innovative promotional concept, which include talking soccer cards and an audio soccer game so sophisticated the outcome of the contest never can be the same.

Wesen, best known in the marketing world for his unique developments in the recording area, has designed processes that allow for long-playing records to be pressed into 7-inch rather than 12-inch discs with no loss of quality or fidelity of sound.

In the past, the miniature discs have been used with such products as cereal, comic books and ice cream.

At one time, Wesen and General Foods combined to use the Archie comic characters to sell Post Sugar Crisp.

When the characters became television cartoon stars and formed a singing group, Wesen originated the idea of placing a recording of the 1971 hit song "Sugar, Sugar" on the back panel of cereal boxes.

Consumers simply could cut the recordings out of the box and play them.

Wesen, along with a staff of six in El Paso and eight at USA Marketing studios in Boston, has continued to perfect the mini-disc idea, and many of the World Cup promotions play off the concept.

Talking soccer cards, a spin-off of traditional baseball cards, feature on one side the picture of such great soccer players as Pele and Franz Beckenbauer.

highlights of the players' careers are vocalized for collectors.

"It gives the kids not only an item to collect, but it gives them an actuality," Wesen said, adding that the highlights on the cards are the actual recorded events. "Nothing is re-recorded. They hear on the cards what everyone at the event heard when it happened."

Wesen's audio soccer game, however, is what he predicts will be the big seller in connection with the World Cup, which Mexico is hosting in two years.

The game — the result of six years of research — comes with a soccer field playing board, soccer player markers and a tiny record that takes 30 seconds to play, yet offers 30 different game situations.

The records tell game players which plays their soccer markers can make on the field, and each time a record needle is placed at the start of the record, a different play is announced.

"It's a random action game which plays over and over again with no predetermined outcome," Wesen explained. "We anticipate going through 30 million games around the world."

The games are to be produced in English, Spanish, German, French and Portuguese, he said, adding that along with the uniqueness of the product, cost is an advantage to sponsors who choose to use the games in their World Cup promotions.

Wesen said USA Marketing can produce one game for 26 cents. Companies already signing up for Cup records include Coca Cola, Canon cameras, Fuji film and the R.J. Reynolds conglomerate, Wesen said.

With USA Marketing providing everything from concept to produced product, Wesen said no two competing companies can have the same promotion for the World Cup.

That, however, should pose no problem, he said. "We have 12 concepts for World Cup," Wesen said. "We have enough promotions so that we can go through two years of marketing."

The World Cup, held every four years, is expected to draw an international television audience of more than nine billion viewers, more than the Olympic Games attracted, Wesen said.

Of-quoted economists talk about themselves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Listen, E.F. Hutton.

When Donald Ratajczak, Kathleen Cooper, Michael Evans, Allen Sinai, Donald Straszheim, Thomas Thomson and Edward Yardeni speak, people pay attention.

Their views are sought repeatedly and their names appear frequently in newspapers around the country, often on the front page.

Sometimes their words land them in a bit of hot water — when they're at odds with their bosses' opinions or too outrageous.

The seven economists work for banks, securities firms, investment houses and consulting firms.

They're routinely questioned to help put the daily gyrations of the economy into perspective for a public increasingly more sophisticated about business and finance.

Hundreds of private economists give advice to their clients and firms. But a relatively small number of names pop up regularly in economics coverage.

"Economics is not a dismal science, it's poorly marketed by economists," says Yardeni, 34, chief economist at Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. in New York.

These analysts can get as many as 20 calls on a day the government releases a major economic report like unemployment or inflation, or when an unexpected change occurs in the economy, such as banks raising their prime lending rate. On a day like that, they might appear on TV's evening news.

In talking to reporters, they insist they keep their political leanings a secret — even in an election year.

Straszheim, 42, vice president for U.S. services at Wharton Econometrics in Philadelphia, takes pride in having been accused, based on his printed remarks, of being both an extreme liberal and an extreme conservative.

"We are analysts, we are not advocates. It's the kiss of death to allow personal political views to contaminate your analysis," he says.

Sinai, 45, chief economist at Shearson Lehman-American Express in New York, says, "I absolutely and unequivocally stay out of politics."

Even discussing government policy can be touchy.

Thomson, 48, senior vice president and chief economist at Crocker National Bank in San Francisco, recalls dismissing former President Carter's anti-inflation program as a "marshmallow" — only to find out his bosses spoke favorably of it. "I'm much more cautious in policy statements than before," he says.

At least one found it can hurt be too quotable.

"I made a mistake early in the game — I confused notoriety with fame," says Evans, 46, who heads his own consulting firm here.

"After a while I decided that it just wasn't working out right," he recalls. "I really wanted to be quoted as an economist and not a comedian."

But in general they say they like giving out their views — "It makes my day," says Evans.

Some feel they serve an educational purpose. "I like economics," says Ratajczak. "I enjoy conveying it."

Ms. Cooper, 39, first vice president and senior economist at Security Pacific National Bank in Los Angeles, says it forces her to think about "what it all means."

They have few complaints, perhaps out of politeness, about being misquoted.

Straszheim admits to getting "disgusted and dismayed now and then because something is quoted that I thought was not so important."

Pharmacy Footnotes

CHOOSING GENERICS FOR SAVINGS

Not only does a pharmacist use his medical expertise to sometimes save lives, he can also save money for his customers. A pharmacist knows how to pick the best drugs at the most reasonable prices. Usually, that means picking a drug by the generic name of its active ingredient, rather than by the brand name given by a manufacturer. A drug's brand name is invariably shorter, simpler and easier to remember than its generic name. It was designed to be so. A generic name is generally an abbreviated version of a long, often complex, chemical description. About half of the most commonly prescribed drugs are sold under different brand names. Although the active ingredient in the various brands are identical, the prices are not.

B&B PHARMACY offers its customers a complete, professional and personalized prescription service. A registered pharmacist is on duty to serve your needs. We service your pharmaceutical needs with the highest degree of efficiency and professionalism. You will find us conveniently located at Ballard and Browning. We are open to serve you 9-6 Mon.-Fri., 9-4 Sat. Tel. 665-5788.
