Partial Clearing Seen for Friday

Sleet, light snow, freezing drizzle, fog and light rain raged over Texas today with Pampa and the Panhandle socked in with a light snow.

But the weatherman promised a partial clearing for Friday afternoon and a little snow Friday morning.

Hazardous driving warnings were out for the Panhandle tonight.

A high of near 40 degrees was forecast for tomorrow and tonight's low is expected to dip into the mid-teens.

Pampa's overnight low was 16 degrees after a high yesterday of 35. The temperature reading at 7:30 a.m. today was a cold 17 degrees.

The freezing precipitation was confined to Northwest Texas and a few areas along the Red River. Wichita Falls reported sleet. Amarillo had snow, and Lubbock freezing drizzle. Driving conditions were becoming hazardous. Dalhart reported the frosty reading of 13 degrees.

Evaluation Committee Due for School Study

Climax of the total evaluation program for Pampa public schools will come Monday and Tuesday of next week when a committee of 41 professional educators, administrators and specialists visit every public school classroom in the city.

The committee members from colleges, secondary and elementary school levels in Texas will arrive in Pampa Sunday afternoon and be the guests of school officials at a dinner meeting at 6 p.m. in Robert E. Lee Junior High School cafeteria.

Also at the dinner meeting will be the Pampa self-evaluation committee of 15, headed by Mel Henry Lane, curriculum director for the local schools.

The visiting evaluation committee will be headed by Dr. Emmitt Smith, director of research and program development at West Texas University, who is co-ordinator of the committee of 41.

Dr. Bertie Fallon of Texas Tech will serve as chairman of the high school section and Dr. Fred Stoker of West Texas State is chairman of the elementary section.

School Superintendent Jack Edmondson said the visiting committee members will spend Monday and Tuesday visiting each classroom from the high school down through the elementary grades. The committee also will study a self-evaluation report that has been under way in the Pampa schools by the local committee since last September.

The local self-evaluation during the past six months has involved all staff members in the school system.

The committee of 41 now delves into the report of the local committee and later will make its own evaluation and report back to the Pampa Adv. (See EVALUATION, Page 3)

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Space twins Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom and John W. Young returned today to the site of their spectacular vault into orbit to receive the accolades of a grateful nation.

The beaming astronauts, greeted by Grissom's mother and Young's stepmother, in separate planes on the Cape's VIP landing strip exactly 48 hours and four minutes after their near-perfect three-orbit space flight began just a short distance away at launch pad 19.

As the astronauts climbed from their planes, an Air Force band struck up the theme song of the musical show "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" in honor of their Gemini-3 spaceship, affectionately nicknamed "Molly Brown."

Betty Grissom and Barbara Young, flown here Wednesday night with their children to be on hand for today's reunion, waited for their astronaut husbands at a nearby medical center.

Grissom, smiling and kidding with backup pilot Walter M. Schirra, told a large crowd gathered at the landing strip that it "looks like we've been just about talked out . . ."

Taxi Service Back to Normal In New York City

NEW YORK (UPI) — Taxi service returned to normal here today following a one-day union-organizing strike marked by sporadic violence.

Several cabbies were beaten and more than 100 taxis were damaged and forced off the streets allegedly by roving "goon squads."

The strike, estimated to have been 87 per cent effective, was sponsored by the Taxi Drivers Organizing Committee of the New York City Central Labor Council to press its demand for recognition as bargaining agent for all of the industry's 33,000 workers.

It was called off Wednesday after a four-hour rally at Madison Square Garden attended by about 9,000 hackies and their supporters.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who addressed the rally to express his support for the organizing drive, was greeted with hisses and boos at several points.

Wagner told the assembled cabbies "three outstanding" men would be named to a committee to prepare proposals designed to get them the best method of representation. "We would have to come back in a certain period, one week, two weeks, or three weeks, the mayor added.

When catcalls and jeers followed, Wagner put up his hand and said, "this is not a stall. As soon as I can, I will bring the two sides together."

Harry Van Arsdale, Jr., leader of the organizing drive, followed Wagner to the speakers' stand and urged the drivers to go back to work and permit their representatives to meet with the mayor's committee.

"It is vitally important," Van Arsdale said, "that we do not allow our emotions to sway our judgment. We do not want to win skirmishes and lose the war."

Bobby Reaches Mt. Kennedy Top

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory (UPI) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, "feeling fine" after his pilgrimage to the top of the mountain named for his slain brother, hoped today to return to his duties in Washington before the day is over.

Kennedy spent his third night on Mt. Kennedy Wednesday night in a three-man tent at the 8,500-foot level base camp. Plans were for Kennedy and his seven fellow climbers to be flown here about 9 a.m. Yukon time (12 noon CST.)

A Royal Canadian Air Force twin-engine, turbo-prop plane was scheduled to take the New York Democrat to Seattle from where he would leave for the nation's capital.

Shortly before 1 p.m. Yukon time (4 p.m. CST) Wednesday, Kennedy became the first man to set foot atop the 13,900-foot mountain named by Canada for the late President John F. Kennedy.

The seven expert climbers accompanying Kennedy stood aside a few yards short of the summit and allowed the senator to proceed to the top alone.

As he reached the summit, Kennedy knelt and drove into the ice a black flag with the white Kennedy family crest upon it and placed down other personal articles.

Having given Kennedy a few moments alone, the other members of the party then joined the senator on the summit for congratulations and picture taking.

PHS Hires New Assistant Coach

Roy Lee Dunn, assistant football coach of the Borger Bulldogs, has been employed as assistant coach of the Pampa Harvesters football team, it was announced today by Jack Edmondson, school superintendent.

Dunn, who has resigned at Borger, is expected to take over his duties in Pampa April 12 in time for the spring training season.

The new assistant coach has been a teacher in the Borger schools for 12 years. He is a graduate of West Texas University who obtained his bachelor degree in 1951 and his master's degree in 1959.

Dunn is married and the father of three children.

Edmondson said Dunn will replace Ray Howard, who resigned recently to complete his master's degree at North Texas State University in Denton.

Dunn will join Head Coach Eural Ramsey in coaching the Harvesters football team in District 3-AAAA.

"So, if its all right with you, we'll wait until later on this evening to see you."

Grissom, the first man to twice venture into space, then introduced Young to the cheering crowd as "talkative John."

"I'm ready for the next flight," the rookie astronaut said.

The two astronauts, wearing bright blue National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) coveralls, then chatted happily with their parents, friends and fellow space pilots.

Grissom and Young each flew in the co-pilots' seats on the twin engine Navy S2 aircraft that ferried them from the aircraft carrier Intrepid off Mayport, Fla., to the spaceport. The 120-mile hop took about 45 minutes.

Grissom rode the co-pilot's seat alongside Cmdr. C. H. Rockcastle, of Virginia Beach, Va., and Young's pilot was Cmdr. S. H. Brown of Norfolk, Va.

The astronauts, both in good health and high spirits, spent about 10 minutes on the sunny VIP landing area before motorizing to the nearby base medical facility that had been set up to handle any emergencies that might have occurred during Tuesday's launch.

Grissom and Young were (See RETURN, Page 3)

of the massive column was Mrs. Rosa Parks, the Negro woman who nine years ago refused to sit in the back of a segregated bus, thereby touching off King's now-famous Montgomery bus boycott. It was this movement that gave the Nobel Peace Prize winner his start as an integration leader.

The marchers, stretched out for nearly a mile, walked at a brisk pace.

They raised their voices in the "freedom" hymn "We Shall Overcome."

Most of the marchers were Negro, although there was a heavy representation of whites, including clergymen.

Many of the marchers were waving small American flags. Others carried the colors of the United Nations and the state of Alabama.

King and his followers began the week at 9:30 a.m. CST. The final three miles of the march winds through residential and business districts to Capitol Square.

The march began five days ago in Selma as an outgrowth of a Negro voter registration drive in Alabama's black (souly) belt. It also became a memorial to the Rev. The number of marchers varied from 300 to 4,000, and included white clergymen, nuns and college students from around the nation.

King said the march could prove to be the "turning point" in the civil rights movement.

While today's demonstration did not approach the size of the Aug. 23, 1963, march on Washington, which drew an estimated 250,000 persons, it was viewed as more dramatic because it occurred in a Southern state, had met with violence in one of two previously unsuccessful attempts, was tightly or with the south Vietnamese people to annihilate the U.S. aggressors."

The bellicose position was made public in an editorial in the Peking Peoples Daily, official newspaper of the Chinese Communist party. It was broadcast in English by the New China News Agency.

The editorial did not specify whether the offer of military forces would take the form of regular Chinese army troops or "volunteers," the term Peking used to describe the Chinese soldiers who entered the Korea fighting in 1950.

Vague About Arms

Peking was also vague about the type of "arms" and all other war material it had in mind. The United States has charged that a large quantity of rifles, machineguns and mortars captured from the Viet Cong has been made in Communist China.

In Washington, the State Department declined comment on the Chinese threat. But U.S. officials gave the impression privately that there might be a considerable element of bluff in the Peking statement—at least at this point.

Some Washington officials said the Chinese offer may have been the result of a statement Tuesday by Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev that many Russian "volunteers" wanted to go to Viet Nam and help the Viet Cong rebels. Support of the Communists in Viet Nam has been a point of issue in the Sino-Soviet dispute.

Red Chinese Ready to Fight

By KIM WILLENSON

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China said today it is prepared to throw its "own men" into the fighting in South Viet Nam to "annihilate the U.S. aggressors."

Peking qualified any intervention by Chinese forces by saying it would act if asked to do so by the National Front for Liberation in South Viet Nam, the political arm of the Viet Cong rebellion.

China was more specific in promising Chinese military equipment for use against American and South Vietnamese troops.

The statement, pledging "all-out support and assistance," was the strongest Chinese commitment to help the Viet Cong to date.

It followed Wednesday's threat by the Viet Cong to bring foreign troops into Viet Nam to "wipe out and bury" the Americans if U.S. air raids continued against North Viet Nam.

Will Send Aid

"We now solemnly declare that we Chinese people firmly respond to the statement of the South Viet Nam National Front for Liberation and will join the people of the world in sending all necessary material aid, including arms and all other war materials, to the heroic South Vietnamese people who are battling fearlessly," Peking said today.

"At the same time, we are ready to send our men, whenever the south Vietnamese people want them, to fight together with the south Vietnamese people to annihilate the U.S. aggressors."

SAIGON (UPI) — American and South Vietnamese warplanes raked Communist positions inside South Viet Nam today. No new air strikes against the Communist north were reported.

A spokesman for U.S. military headquarters said American jet fighters planes and bombers flew upwards of 50 combat sorties against Viet Cong concentrations in a 48-hour period ending late today.

In addition, 20 American piloted propeller-powered skyraider fighter-bombers struck guerrilla strongholds in three provinces north and east of Saigon. Viet planes flew seven missions against scattered targets inside South Viet Nam.

U.S. headquarters has apparently decided to maintain secrecy about bombardment of North Vietnamese coastal installations by ships of the U.S. Seventh Fleet in the South China Sea.

Newsman raised the question of naval bombardments today but before a briefing officer could answer a high-level spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said: "The answer to that one is no comment."

American authorities said Communist China's announced willingness to send military forces to south Viet Nam was more of a threat than a promise.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — More than 15,000 singing and flag waving demonstrators — guarded by armed U.S. soldiers and led by Dr. Martin Luther King and Ralph Bunche of the United Nations — staged an historic march today on the Alabama capitol.

King walked hand-in-hand with his wife Coretta, and was warmly applauded by thousands of Negroes who lined the early part of the march route six-deep.

Also marching near the front of the massive column was Mrs. Rosa Parks, the Negro woman who nine years ago refused to sit in the back of a segregated bus, thereby touching off King's now-famous Montgomery bus boycott. It was this movement that gave the Nobel Peace Prize winner his start as an integration leader.

The marchers, stretched out for nearly a mile, walked at a brisk pace.

They raised their voices in the "freedom" hymn "We Shall Overcome."

Most of the marchers were Negro, although there was a heavy representation of whites, including clergymen.

Many of the marchers were waving small American flags. Others carried the colors of the United Nations and the state of Alabama.

King and his followers began the week at 9:30 a.m. CST. The final three miles of the march winds through residential and business districts to Capitol Square.

The march began five days ago in Selma as an outgrowth of a Negro voter registration drive in Alabama's black (souly) belt. It also became a memorial to the Rev. James Reeb, a white Boston minister beaten to death on a Selma street two weeks ago after a Montgomery march attempt was turned back by state troopers. The number of marchers varied from 300 to 4,000, and included white clergymen, nuns and college students from around the nation.

King said the march could prove to be the "turning point" in the civil rights movement.

While today's demonstration did not approach the size of the Aug. 23, 1963, march on Washington, which drew an estimated 250,000 persons, it was viewed as more dramatic because it occurred in a Southern state, had met with violence in one of two previously unsuccessful attempts, was tightly

The number of marchers varied from 300 to 4,000, and included white clergymen, nuns and college students from around the nation.

King said the march could prove to be the "turning point" in the civil rights movement.

While today's demonstration did not approach the size of the Aug. 23, 1963, march on Washington, which drew an estimated 250,000 persons, it was viewed as more dramatic because it occurred in a Southern state, had met with violence in one of two previously unsuccessful attempts, was tightly of the massive column was Mrs. Rosa Parks, the Negro woman who nine years ago refused to sit in the back of a segregated bus, thereby touching off King's now-famous Montgomery bus boycott. It was this movement that gave the Nobel Peace Prize winner his start as an integration leader.

The marchers, stretched out for nearly a mile, walked at a brisk pace.

They raised their voices in the "freedom" hymn "We Shall Overcome."

Most of the marchers were Negro, although there was a heavy representation of whites, including clergymen.

Many of the marchers were waving small American flags. Others carried the colors of the United Nations and the state of Alabama.

King and his followers began the week at 9:30 a.m. CST. The final three miles of the march winds through residential and business districts to Capitol Square.

The march began five days ago in Selma as an outgrowth of a Negro voter registration drive in Alabama's black (souly) belt. It also became a memorial to the Rev. James Reeb, a white Boston minister beaten to death on a Selma street two weeks ago after a Montgomery march attempt was turned back by state troopers. The number of marchers varied from 300 to 4,000, and included white clergymen, nuns and college students from around the nation.

Edmondson Speaks
To Rotary Club

Pampa superintendent of schools Jack Edmondson discussed the local school system's evaluative appraisal program before the Pampa Rotary Club yesterday noon in the Coronado Inn.

Edmondson said that the program was instigated last May to serve as a guideline in meeting the school needs of the community. The study will be climaxed by an inspection of Pampa's school facilities Sunday, Monday and Tuesday by a visiting group of more than forty Panhandle area people headed by Dr. Emmett Smith of West Texas State University.

Bill Haler introduced Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, Community Concert service representative from New York, who congratulated the citizens of Pampa on their fine community concert program.

BUNNY BAN
BURNHAM, England (UPI)—Wives banned husbands from attending a men-only fund-raising dinner for the Churchill memorial appeal because a dozen scantily dressed bunny-style girls were to act as hostesses. Now the dinner may be called off altogether because the bunnies' boyfriends have protested about their costumes—or lack of them.

Scientists Study Ranger 9 Photos

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Scientists today began a hard-mosed study of lunar terrain photos obtained by three Ranger spacecraft to decide whether the moon's highlands or lowlands provide the best manned landing site.

Rangers 7 and 8 photographed the lunar lowlands—the Sea of Tranquility and Mare Cognitum or Known Sea—while Wednesday's Ranger 9 snapped pictures of the highlands—the crater Alphonsus.

The ninth and last of the Rangers was the most successful of the three in the $270 million program from start to finish. It had the most accurate flight path, required little mid-course correction and returned the best photos ever taken of the moon.

The pile of photographs returned by the three Rangers totaled a staggering 17,500 and is providing earth-bound scientists with more moon information in the past year than astronomers—starting with Copernicus, Galileo and Sir Isaac Newton—have in all recorded history.

Moreover, Ranger 9 gave America's armchair adventurers a vicarious thrill with their morning toast and coffee by transmitting history's first live television photos of the moon.

A hasty glance at Ranger 9's pictures led scientists to say that indications were the moon's surface would be hard enough "to support a landing vehicle," making a landing by astronauts possible by 1970.

"This is just a guess, one can't be sure," Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper of the University of Arizona's lunar and planetary laboratory told a news conference. "It looks like it would be sufficient to support a ton or two per square foot."

Scientists at the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) were cautious in evaluating the "marvelous" pictures.

However, some appeared to feel there is a difference to the lunar landscape that might make some areas better for landing a space ship than others.

scheduled to undergo detailed four-hour physical examinations by the same team of specialists that gave them their pre-launch medical checks.

Next on their busy schedule is a three-hour technical review of their mission—a "debriefing"—at the astronauts' quarters on nearby Merritt Island.

News Conference

The space pilots were scheduled to report on their successful mission tonight at a news conference in nearby Cocoa Beach.

Before starting the nationally televised conference, the astronauts will take a ride in a long motorcade from the south entrance of Cape Kennedy to Cocoa Beach. The motorcade was set to start at 5 p.m. CST with the news conference following an hour later.

Friday, the space heroes will fly to Washington for a meeting with President Johnson and a congressional reception. A traditional ticker tape parade is set for Monday in New York.

The seared Gemini-3 (Molly Brown) capsule that carried Grissom and Young on their four-hour and 54 minute orbital flight was also scheduled to be flown to the Cape today.

The astronauts were plucked from the Atlantic Ocean north of the Bahama chain of islands Tuesday afternoon and flown to the Intrepid.

The aircraft carrier arrived at Mayport, Fla., early today.

Concert Member Drive Nears End

The countdown was underway today in the Pampa Community Concert Association's annual membership drive.

Association officials announced that the drive is expected to end with the final check-up meeting of workers at 4 p.m. Friday in concert headquarters, 315 N. Ballard.

At the conclusion of a check-up session at 10 a.m. today it was announced that approximately only 300 seats remained to be sold at that hour.

Volunteer workers selling season memberships for the concert were urged to report in as soon as possible tomorrow in order to assure their purchasers of membership cards for the coming season.

This year's concert drive, despite the inclement weather, is running ahead of last year's campaign in the amount of memberships already sold. Two outstanding concerts already have been booked for the 1965-66 season. They are Arthur Fiedler and the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra and the Norman Luboff Choir.

All Pampa School Teachers Offered 1965-66 Contracts

All Pampa public school teachers yesterday were offered contracts for re-employment in the 1965-66 school term.

School Superintendent Jack Edmondson announced today the teachers were rehired at a lengthy meeting of the school board Tuesday night.

Edmondson said the personnel topic was the only business handled by the board at the four and one-half hour session.

The superintendent also stated that while all of the schools' 254 classroom teachers were offered re-employment contracts, there likely will be several changes in teaching personnel due to pending resignations which usually come each year.

The Tuesday night board meeting was attended by principals from the high school, junior high schools and all elementary schools.

Financial Gossip

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first quarter of the calendar year is about completed, and should bring a few fresh or revised forecasts on the economic outlook to the end of 1965.

They will crop up in public statements, in "market letters," in the correspondence of business advisory services, in the addresses of various governmental officials.

These reports on prospects ahead come in varying degrees of enthusiasm and over a year's time can present a wide range of views or information—or, of a lack of it.

Perhaps it was the approach of this quarterly outburst which moved Walter D. Fackler, associate dean of the graduate school of business of the University of Chicago to tick off in a recent address a list of his non-favorites in the game of economic forecasting.

Addressing a management conference sponsored by the school, in Chicago, Fackler, himself a business forecaster of prominence, listed several categories of "pet peeves." They included:

—The pretender. One who gears a futuristic recital of past events, but never really says much about the future. Thus, explained Fackler, he may scatter such phrases as "interest rates are rising," and leave it up to the reader to infer whether they are going to continue going up. And he usually ends by expressing in some form the idea "in six months we shall know."

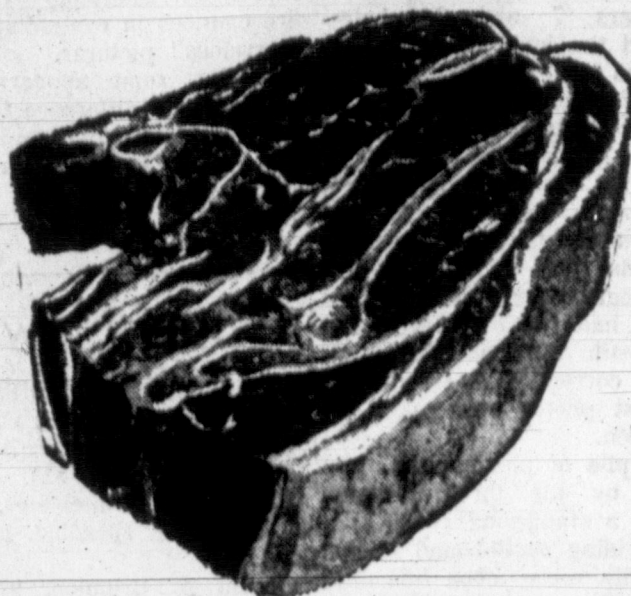

—The mystic. He may give precise numbers for the output and sales estimates, but he never tells "why," his predictions should come true. —The artful dodger. This one, Fackler said, tries to avoid a fundamental responsibility involved in forecasting: personal judgment. His coo says "certain analysts say," to the point, Fackler noted, where you want to grab him by the collar and ask him "what do you say, feel or think?"

Radio Show Due Jayne Mansfield

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—America's broadcasting industry sometimes moves in mysterious ways. For instance, casting Jayne Mansfield in a radio show.

Hardin-Simmons College Choir Has Pampa Stop

ABILENE.—The Concert Choir of Hardin-Simmons University will go on its spring tour Sunday and will present 14 programs in a seven-day swing around Northwest Texas.

The 45-voice choir, directed by Edward H. Hamilton, will sing in Seymour, Wichita Falls, Childress, Pampa, Phillips, Borger, Amarillo, Abilene, Hereford, Brownfield, Lubbock and Odessa.

Various types of church music, special arrangements of folk songs which will be accompanied by native instruments and spirituals will be sung. A special feature, Hamilton said, will be Walt Whitman's poem, "Song of the Open Road," set to music by Norman Dello Joie. The H-SU arrangement will be accompanied by a trumpet obbligato.

Spring tour itinerary includes: First Baptist Church of Seymour 11 a.m. Mar. 28; Lamar Baptist Church of Wichita Falls 4:45 p.m. March 28; Wichita Falls High School 11:50 a.m. March 29; First Baptist Church of Childress 7:30 p.m. March 29; Pampa High School 10:35 a.m. March 30; Phillips High School 2 p.m. March 30; First Baptist Church of Borger 7:30 p.m. Mar. 30; Tascosa High School of Amarillo 11:30 a.m. March 31; First Baptist Church of Abilene 8 p.m. Mar. 31; Hereford High School 10 a.m. April 1; First Baptist Church of Brownfield 7:30 p.m. April 1; Lubbock High School 10:30 a.m. April 2; Southeast Baptist Church of Lubbock 7:30 p.m. April 2; and First Baptist Church of Odessa 11 a.m. April 4.

DISCUSS DIFFERENCES

GENEVA (UPI)—The Protestant and Roman Catholic churches are following their agreement to start a discussion of their differences with more closer contacts. It was announced Wednesday.

The new contacts will be two informal private consultations on social and missionary questions.

ARRIVES FOR VISIT
ANKARA (UPI)—President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia arrived Wednesday by plane for an eight-day official visit. He flew here from Iran on his extensive tour of the Middle East and Mediterranean countries.

meeting. But Miss Mansfield apparently feels that she doesn't need to be seen to be appreciated. Anyway, when the National Association of Broadcasters held a convention here this week, the delegates received an invitation which said:

"This is Jayne Mansfield with a new domestic comedy radio series that I'd love to tell you about—personally. I'm available for consultation in Suite R-510 at the Sheraton Park—all day today and tomorrow."

Disguising Self
Disguising myself as a network vice president, I stopped in to avail myself of the consultation service.

"Have a lot of people been consulting you?" I asked. "I guess that's what they are doing," she said, "but they certainly do ask some strange questions."

"Is this your first experience as a consultant?" "Oh, no," she said. "I'm also consultant for a mattress company."

Miss Mansfield said her radio series, called "Leave it to Jayne," also will feature her current husband, Matt Cimber.

"Do you feel you can express yourself fully on radio?" I asked. "Won't you be rather, air limited?"

"Not at all," she replied. "I feel that I can project as well in oral or printed form as I can visually."

Project In Any Medium
She may be right about that. I can't imagine any medium in which Miss Mansfield wouldn't project.

"Does this mean that from now on you are going to be heard and not seen?"

"Of course not. When I finish this radio series, I'm going to make a movie. Then I'm going to appear in a play on the summer stock circuit. Then, in October, I'm going to have my fifth child."

"After that, I'm going to make a pilot film for a television series. Or maybe, I'll make the pilot before I have the baby. Then I'm going to do a Broadway show."

"I have done two record albums and I am planning to write a book. I also plan to start writing a newspaper column."

Obviously, Miss Mansfield wants to have a broad career. Which in her case is tantamount of type casting.

Can Britons Shoot Craps With Their Traditional Reserve?

LONDON (UPI)—Abe Aronson is reasonably certain he can persuade the British to shoot dice but he isn't sure they will ever admit in public that baby needs a new pair of shoes.

Abe is the Minneapolis-born American who introduced the saxophone as a jazz instrument to Britain more than 40 years ago and stayed on to become a night club and gambling house operator. He modestly disclaims the word "tycoon."

Since gambling became legal a couple of years ago Abe has been running an elegant West End establishment in what used to be the historic town house of the Marquess of Curzon. It has been a happy and profitable time for him.

The chemin-de-fer table groans nightly under the weight of 100 sterling ($280) chips. The roulette wheels keep spinning. The newest innovation, Black Jack, is booming. But something is missing.

And Abe, harking back to his boyhood with a circus band, now realizes it is the hunting cry of the dice shooter.

So he is planning a trip to Las Vegas to try to tempt some of the craps experts back to Britain for his new gambling establishment — the Palm Beach Casino of the Mayfair Hotel.

"Dice," said Abe, "has been tried here before — and in Monte Carlo — but has never caught on. But now that the British have learned to trust hamburgers and hot dogs we'll give it another try."

"Of course one of the reasons for the lack of success in the past may be the calls."

"The British like to gamble quietly. I can't really see them pleading 'eighteen on Decatur' or groaning 'snake eyes' or 'box cars.' They're more apt to keep a stiff upper lip when the dice don't go their way. Can you shoot craps in silence?"

If dice does catch on it probably will be as big a game as there is on either side of the Atlantic if the scale of chemistry or roulette is any criterion. On a recent night a man dropped more than 20,000 sterling ($56,000) in a chemistry session at the Curzon House Club, a large but not unusual sum.

"I hope my friends in Las Vegas won't mind my saying so," Abe said. "But London is the gambling capital of the world today."

Mars Pictures Next for TV

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—The same men who learned by trial and error to transform Ranger from a space age weakling into one of the nation's greatest scientific achievements looked ahead today to another goal—the first closeup pictures ever taken after sending back almost 6,000 "miraculously" clear pictures, the Mars probe Mariner 4 was hurtling through space toward the red planet on a similar experimental mission.

"The lessons of the Ranger have been applied to the Mariner," said Dr. William Pickering, director of Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL).

"At the present time, we are a little more than half way on a long journey to the planet of Mars. By the middle of July, we hope we can show you photographs of the Plain of Mars—not as detailed as today, but good," Pickering said Wednesday at a news conference.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—So futuristic have been the live television events of the past two days — the two-man Gemini space ride and the Ranger 9 photographs of the moon — that it is difficult to imagine what video has next in store for us. The excellent coverage by ABC-TV, CBS-TV and NBC-TV makes it clear that little in the realm of human experience will be denied us.

Confirmation of this comes today in information leaked exclusively to me by the BEATS television network (BEATS-TV) which reports that, should the occasion warrant it, it is ready to provide the public with the biggest and best live coverage of World War III and any wars that follow.

BEATS-TV has been in contact with all of the world's military leaders who matter, and all have agreed that, like Project Gemini and Ranger 9, World War III battles will begin very early in the morning, when the viewing audience is still groggy from having to get up to watch, and is not in a state to care much one way or the other. It is believed that in this way, television can prove to the International Communications Commission that it is doing a public service and may help dim enthusiasm for future

Air Force Denies Officers Leaving

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI)—Air Force Academy officials Wednesday denied published reports of a Denver newspaper that its superintendent and two other top officers would be reassigned.

A spokesman said "there are no plans for reassignment" of Maj. Gen. Robert Warren, academy superintendent, or of Brig. Gen. Robert Strong, commandant of cadets.

The Denver Post, in a copyrighted story from Cape Kennedy, said that the two officers would be reassigned this summer. The newspaper said that Brig. Gen. Robert McDermott, dean of the faculty, also might be reassigned.

wars among viewers.

Likewise, World War III will end early each afternoon in order not to interfere with prime-time programs. The military agreed to this after BEATS-TV promised that nightly documentary wraps would be presented in prime-time and would give a fair shake to each side, and specifically avoid editorial comment — that might alienate any segment of the world viewing audience.

BEATS-TV has promised to keep its commercials at a minimum during war battles. At most times, it will wait until a battle seems to have a logical break before inserting a commercial. For the more important and significant battles, sponsors have agreed to limit themselves to a commercial at the beginning and the end.

Here's North Viet Nam's Formula for Victory

By RAY CROMLEY
(First of Three Dispatches.)

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If Mao Tse-tung's war strategy is being used, the North Vietnamese expeditionary army now infiltrating South Viet Nam by the thousands is a diversionary force, not the main game. This is the view of guerrilla warfare experts.

These 35,000 main line troops are intended to lure the United States and South Vietnamese forces away from protecting the hamlets and villages where the real guerrilla-political-economic-psychological war is being fought.

If the U.S. should fall into Mao's trap and lose sight of this main objective, it's believed the war could be lost even though these main line expeditionary troops were torn to pieces.

The major aim of the Viet Cong is to consolidate and expand the base areas where they operate their own governments, collect their own taxes and conscript their own local troops, while convincing the U.S. psychologically that it can't win.

These base areas now include about one-fourth of South Viet Nam — Some 4,000 out of South Viet Nam's 16,000 hamlets.

Another fourth of South Viet Nam is under government control. But fully half the country is disputed ground, held firmly neither by the government nor the Communists.

Many of the hamlets in these contested areas, guarded by weak and uncertain local militia, depend for their safety on the ability to call in government troops when under Viet Cong attack.

If South Viet Nam's government troops can be diverted to an endless string of fights with Ho Chi Minh's regulars, they will not be available to give protection to the villagers in the widespread disputed areas of South Viet Nam. The Viet Cong will be able to take over with greater ease.

Mao learned this strategy in his long fight with the U.S.-backed Chinese nationalist forces under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Communist China's Mao says conventional military leaders, such as those in command of U.S. and South Viet Nam's government forces, have a weakness. He says that even though it is well known that the main thrust of a guerrilla war must be to win over the people of the villages and hamlets, our commanders are easily distracted from that objective.

All the Reds have to do, reasons Mao, is to put a Communist army unit in a position to threaten a U.S. or South Vietnamese military unit. When that happens, Mao holds, we are literally unable to take our eyes off those Red troops.

We forget everything else — hamlets, psychological war, economic aid programs — and try to attack and defeat these Red army units.

Says Mao: "If the Red Army masses its main forces to annihilate one of the enemy's columns, his supreme command (will be forced to devote greater attention to and employ larger forces against the Red army."

Hence it is possible to wreck his plan of reducing (the Red) base areas."

The second aim of this main line force of North Vietnamese is to operate as a meat grinder to chew up the meat of South Viet Nam's army, killing as many as possible, in order to break the morale of the South Vietnamese government and its army leaders, as Dien Bien Phu broke the spirit of the French.

The small Red main line force — 35,000 — supplied by a long and tenuous supply line, cannot hope to overcome the much larger

South Vietnamese army in open battle. But these Red troops do have a military aim.

Says Mao: "A battle is not basically decisive that ends only in routing an enemy of preponderant strength. A battle of annihilation, on the contrary, will produce a great and immediate effect."

"To wound all 10 fingers of a man is not so effective as to chop one off; to rout 10 of the enemy's divisions is not so effective as to annihilate one."

The Communist main line forces will attempt to accomplish this aim by setting up situations in which the South Vietnamese regulars will be forced to attack Reds hidden in well-camouflaged, ambush-filled areas.

By Red design, these will be regions in which the Communists will have either temporary

Armed Moroccan Police Patrol Casablanca

PARIS (UPI)—Armed Moroccan soldiers patrolled the ancient city of Casablanca today to prevent a recurrence of rioting which killed 7 persons and injured at least 69, according to reports received here.

An official communique issued Wednesday night by the Moroccan Embassy in Paris said the government clamped a dawn-to-dusk curfew on the troubled coastal city to avert further violence.

Travelers arriving in Paris from the North African country said between 300 and 400 trucks loaded with armed troops and backed by columns of tanks and armored cars were rushed into Casablanca Wednesday.

Normal communications between Morocco and the outside world were cut following the riots, which began with peaceful student demonstrations Monday night.

The demonstrations were called to protest a government order slicing secondary school curriculums by a year to open up more classroom seats.

But the embassy statement charged "subversive elements" aggravated the situation on strations into full-scale riots Tuesday, fanning the demon-which resulted in the arrest of 168 persons.

"Agitators... set fire to city buses, long distance buses and private cars, sacked store display windows, schools, post office, dispensaries, nursing schools, the bank and the railroad station," the statement said.

Silver Posing Problem for Federal Office

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government faces a dilemma: Should it or shouldn't it take the silver out of its silver money?

The final decision will be up to Congress, but the Treasury Department has to decide whether to ask the lawmakers for authorization to begin making coins out of other metals.

The problem will probably be the first big decision for the new Treasury secretary, Henry H. Fowler, who is scheduled to take over next week from Douglas Dillon.

Behind the problem is a shortage of silver in the federal government's vaults at West Point, N.Y. Even if the administration decides to go on using silver for making coins, the percentage in each coin will be sharply cut below the present 90 per cent.

Rayburn Building Hard Place to Get Around In WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Peter H. Frelinghuysen, R-N.J., one of the congressmen to receive rooms in the huge new Rayburn House Office Building, may be considering hiring a guide to find his office.

Frelinghuysen reported this week in a newsletter to his voters that so far he has got lost twice in the cavernous building, both times when he was trying to rush to the Capitol for a floor vote.

The first time, Frelinghuysen said, he managed to get to the right floor, but discovered that the elevators he had taken did not lead to the subway which goes to the Capitol. The second time he walked through a door and found he was out doors in a blinding snowstorm.

World Trade Week Scheduled in May

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson Wednesday issued proclamations setting aside dates in May for the observance of World Trade Week, Small Business Week and National Maritime Day.

Johnson urged special ceremonies during the week of May 16 to point up the importance of international trade to the nation's economy. He designated the week of May 23 as Small Business Week and set May 22 for National Maritime Day.

No other car of its size offers more

No matter how you look at it, this car makes a lot of sense. If you're interested in value (and who isn't), the eleven features above give you a good idea why more intermediate-size car buyers are thinking Chevelle.

If you're looking for a wide power choice, Chevelle starts out with a standard 120-hp Six, an ideal city performer. After that you may order from a variety of engines that turn it into an even greater highway performer.

Room! Large door openings. Wide curved side windows for extra shoulder room. Great front and rear leg room. Those four, five or six passengers have it made. And so do you. Chevelle may seat like a big car but it handles like a smaller car.

Comfort! Thick wall-to-wall carpeting in Malibu models. Foam-cushioned seats. Easy-to-read instrument panel. The whole interior looks like those in cars costing far more.

Come on down to our showroom and take a drive soon. Chevelle begins to make even more sense after you've gone a couple of miles.

Ham-Macaroni Make Classic Casserole

LEFTOVER MEAL — Make a meal with macaroni and leftover ham from your Easter dinner. It's a classic casserole blended with a piquant sour cream sauce and topped with shredded Cheddar cheese. You'll want to make this one often!

Here's a recipe that's sure to become a classic dish, the way macaroni and cheese is. It's that basic and that appealing. Homemakers love its simplicity and the fact that the ingredients are mainly staples, foods available in your refrigerator or on your kitchen shelves. The name is easy to remember too, Ham-Macaroni Casserole.

If you have ham for Easter, plan to include that tasty casserole in your after-Easter meal plans. It's the perfect way to use up leftover ham. Right down to the last bite. There's Cheddar cheese in the dish, but it's mainly for garnish. The real flavor nest comes from the sour cream, used in generous amounts, to bind together the cubed ham and macaroni. A lively bouquet of seasonings goes into this casserole, too.

There's mustard, caraway seed, Worcestershire, and for extra goodness, mushrooms, stuffed olives and chopped onion.

Each ingredient adds its quota of zesty flavor to create a harmonious blend with lots of appetite appeal. And the method of preparation is as simple as can be: just mix the cooked macaroni, ham, mushrooms, olives and onions in one large mixing bowl, then blend the sour cream and seasonings in another bowl and combine them all. Cheese provides a tasty, colorful topping which melts as the casserole bakes.

No white sauce is necessary for this casserole, as the dairy dairy sour cream, used in generous amounts, to bind together the cubed ham and macaroni. A lively bouquet of seasonings goes into this casserole, too.

Go Ahead, Eat Oranges

By GAYNOR MADDOX, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—My sister says I should not eat oranges because they will make my rheumatism worse. Please tell me if she is right.

A—No. Your sister seems more concerned than informed. Lots of uninformed people have the idea that fruit acid is bad for rheumatism. What they do not realize is that fruit acid is converted to a base (that's the opposite of an acid) in the body, and that a base neutralizes acids from other sources. Eat your oranges or orange juice regularly and without worry. You need vitamin C (ascorbic acid) regularly in your diet and oranges are one of the best sources of it.

Q—What is a low-fat cheese? A—The fat content of cheese depends on whether skim milk, whole milk, cream or a combination of these is used in making the cheese. Plain cottage cheese is the simplest of low-fat cheeses. It is made of skim milk curd, is soft, uncurd and practically free of fat. Creamed cottage cheese contains four or more per cent fat.

Casserole piping hot, with a tossed green salad topped with half-slices of pineapple, and pour tall glasses of milk to round out the meal.

HAM-MACARONI CASSEROLE (5-6 servings)
2 cups cooked elbow macaroni
1 pound baked ham, cubed
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
1/4 cup sliced pimiento stuffed olives
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 cups (1 pint) dairy sour cream
3 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 tablespoon caraway seed
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup (1 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese

In a large mixing bowl combine macaroni, ham, mushrooms, olives and onions. In a small bowl combine sour cream, mustard, caraway seed, Worcestershire sauce and pepper; blend thoroughly. Pour into casserole and top with cheese. Bake 35-40 minutes; serve immediately.

Gray County Home Demonstration Agent Gives New Recipes for Lenten Season

Miss Lou Ella Patterson Gives Lenten Recipes

Miss Lou Ella Patterson, Gray County home demonstration agent, believes that often times Lenten menus become monotonous and dreary. With this thought in mind, Miss Patterson submitted the following recipes to help area residents plan different and more colorful main dishes during this season.

QUICK SAVORY TUNA LOAF (6 to 8 servings)
2 1/2 or 7-ounce cans, chunk style tuna, drained, flaked
2 eggs, slightly beaten
3 cups cornflakes
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 1/2-ounce package meat loaf seasoning
1 10 1/2-ounce can white sauce (or 1 1/4 cups medium white sauce)
Lightly combine all ingredients in bowl, blending well. Pat into greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake at 375 degrees, 45 to 50 minutes. Good served with Creamed Peas or Creamed Spinach and a crisp green salad.

BAKED OCEAN PERCH IN ALMOND SAUCE (6 to 8 servings)
2 1/2 to 3 pounds fresh or frozen perch fillets
Salt and pepper
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt

CRAB JAMBALAYA (6 servings)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced celery
1 cup sliced green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 clove garlic, peeled, finely chopped
1/4 teaspoon sweet basil leaves
1/4 teaspoon thyme leaves
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 to 2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 1-lb. can tomatoes (2 cups)
1 cup water
2 cups cooked rice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 6-ounce packages frozen crab meat, thawed
Heat butter in large saucepan; saute onion, celery, green pepper, parsley, and garlic until lightly browned and tender, 10 to 12 minutes. Add basil, thyme, salt, pepper, brown sugar, tomatoes with juice, water and rice. Simmer 15 to 20 minutes for flavors to blend. Add lemon peel and lemon juice, blending well. Break crab meat into pieces; add to rice mixture. Simmer for 5 minutes. Serve steaming hot.

Smoked Pork Loins
Smoked pork loins appearing in many markets should be cooked to an internal temperature of 160 degrees F. Place on a rack in an open pan, fat side up, just as you cook any other roast. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (350 degree F.) allowing 25 to 35 minutes per pound for roasts weighing 3' to 4 1/2 pounds. This amounts to about 1 1/2 to 2 hours total cooking time.

Ham Refrigeration
Ham, "fully-cooked," "cook-before-eating," or canned should be refrigerated as soon as brought home from the retailer. Plan to use the "fully-cooked" or "cook-before-eating" within 5 to 7 days after purchasing. Canned hams will, of course, keep longer, provided they are kept under constant refrigeration.

VARIATION ON THEME
This lunch main dish is a variation of the chipped beef in cream sauce recipe standard in many a household. Combine 2 cans (11 oz.) of condensed cheddar cheese soup and 2 cups of milk in a medium-sized saucepan. Cook over low heat to the boiling point, stirring frequently. Stir in two packages (3 1/2 oz. each) of dried beef, shredded. Serve as topping for 12 buttered and toasted shredded wheat biscuits. Yield, 6 servings.

When buying frozen food, make sure packaging material is not torn, crushed or juice-stained. Frozen food that is exposed or poorly packaged dries out and develops off-flavors quickly.

Meat stamped with the letters U.S.D.A., is meat inspected and graded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Leftover Ham Scores Encore In Sandwiches

Have you ever spread applesauce on toast and munched contentedly?

Here's a take-off on this old idea for a snack which home economist Reba Staggs thinks you'll like.

Ham, of course, adds protein to this sandwich. Thus, it's more nutritionally adequate than the first idea of applesauce with toast. Try it for lunch.

HAM 'N' APPLE SAUCE SANDWICH

2 cups chopped, cooked ham
1/4 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 cup applesauce
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/4 cup mayonnaise
4 to 6 slices bread, toasted
Combine ham, celery and green pepper. Mix applesauce, mustard and mayonnaise. Combine with ham mixture. Spread on warm, toasted bread. Yield: 2 1/2 cups.

Celery Snack

Like to nibble on celery as a snack? It's even tastier when the celery's stuffed with one cup of ground leftover ham mixed with 1/2 cup grated carrot and 1/2 cup salad dressing.

Food Buying Guide

The following guide to the nation's best food buys for the weekend was prepared by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Interior for United Press International.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A wide and colorful variety of fresh fruits and vegetables awaits this week's Lenten shopper. Red meat, poultry products, and fish are also available in good supply at attractive prices.

Eggs, canned pink salmon, and fish sticks and fish portions are in good supply for those Lenten meals. Beef roasts, pork loin roasts, and smoked picnics are abundantly available. Broiler-fryers are especially plentiful.

Asparagus, green beans, broccoli, potatoes, and tomatoes are top buys this week. Cabbage, carrots, celery, lettuce, and dry, green, and yellow onions are especially abundant.

The shopper will find plenty of apples and bananas at this week's markets. Strawberries are good buys. Oranges and grapefruit are especially plentiful.

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

The final responsibility for an individual's education rests on his own shoulders. Parents and schools can provide opportunities for learning but the student must do the learning.

Recent trends in solving behavior and educational problems seem to emphasize the parent or teacher as the cause. Although this may be true in various cases there probably should be more concentration on the child. He has the final say as to whether or not the problem will be corrected.

Parents have been made to feel guilty for every problem which their child has developed. Remember that the child also has contributed something and is bound to the cause of the problem.

Let's look at a problem which one reader has brought to my attention.

Question: My son, Charles, is a good student but he does not do his homework. He is now in ninth grade and I am sure this will begin to affect his work in class.

Good Study Conditions
I have provided ideal study conditions such as a quiet room, good lighting, comfortable chair and desk, no distractions, and reasonable amounts of time. In addition, we have discussed the problem. When he still did not fulfill his responsibility, I threatened various punishments which eventually have been put into action.

more more
I have discussed the matter with the school. The teachers have checked and have indicated that he knows how to do the work. The psychologist has not found any emotional problems. I am at my wits end. What am I doing wrong? How can I help Charles before he gets into serious difficulties?

Answer: May I reassure you that as a parent you have certainly fulfilled your responsibilities. You should not have any feelings of guilt.

Must Learn Responsibility
Naturally, you are concerned. Perhaps, the best move at this point is to place the responsibility where it belongs. Charles is growing up. He must learn to stand on his own two feet.

I suggest you take the following steps before letting Charles sink or swim on his own. First make sure that he recognizes the problem. Perhaps the teacher can accomplish this with a firm discussion. Then, either you or his teacher can provide an explanation of the possible consequences of his actions.

After these steps have been taken, let Charles make his own decisions. Refusing to do homework may be his way of showing independence. He may not recognize his mistake until he receives a failing grade. On the other hand, you may find that when the responsibility is given to him, he will begin to fulfill it.

Your continued interest in his welfare should be shown in other ways than concern for homework.

AGREE TO INSPECTION
JERUSALEM (UPI)—A United Nations spokesman said Israel has agreed to an inspection of Israeli-Syrian border areas, where there have been a number of recent shooting incidents.

Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, chief of the U.N. truce supervisory organization, requested the inspection to check whether weapons in the area violate existing border agreements.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Despite President Charles de Gaulle's efforts to streamline French politics, French elections still can be complicated affairs as shown by just-completed municipal voting in which the Gaullists had hoped to show impressive gains.

Instead, the Gaullists suffered serious setbacks, notably in Paris. The Communists, the second largest party in France, registered important gains.

And in Marseilles, France's second largest city, a Socialist won over the combined opposition of both the Gaullists and the Communists.

The complications arise from the fact that in 159 cities—those with more than 35,000 population—voting is by the majority system. If no slate wins a majority the first time around, then a second election is held. This time a plurality is sufficient.

Difficult Situation
Such was the situation in both Paris and Marseilles and it therefore became difficult to say whether Frenchmen were voting "for" or "against."

In Paris, for example, conservatives continue to hold a grudge against De Gaulle for giving away Algeria. Therefore, they do not vote for communism, but they do vote against De Gaulle.

Similarly, a French peasant may not know much about Marxism. But traditionally he is in protest against the established order.

With this as a background, Frenchmen this week were assessing the results of their latest voting record.

The first conclusion seemed to be that De Gaulle's Union for the New Republic (UNR) party would be in trouble without him.

This in turn was expected to reinforce De Gaulle's determination to run for a second seven-year term next December unless his health forbids it.

Gets New Statute
The second conclusion was that the election had given new stature to Marseilles Mayor Gaston Defferre, a Socialist who has run Marseilles for 12 years.

Defferre already is an announced presidential candidate and, while few other French politicians share his confidence, he really believes he can defeat De Gaulle.

He would maintain De Gaulle's costly nuclear striking force but he is pledged to much closer cooperation with the United States and NATO. He also would press for European unification even at the cost of some French sovereignty.

The French Communist party underwent a change in leadership last May in a search for a new dynamism. But its new strength as shown in the municipal elections is attributed more to opposition to De Gaulle than to any great rise in popularity.

The facts seem to be that the elections showed no great popular shift and that most Frenchmen feel they are doing pretty well.

The Week in Review

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The idea of March brought its usual burden of evil tidings on the business news horizon this week — and some good news.

The French hauled off, quite legally, another $231 million of U.S. gold reserves. This resulted in mutterings in Washington to the effect that Uncle Sam ought to present General de Gaulle promptly with a bill for the $4.5 billion defaulted balance on France's World War I debt to the United States.

But the newly appointed secretary of the treasury, Henry H. Fowler, was expected to turn thumbs down on this quickly on the grounds that it would be a useless and possibly dangerous gesture.

Not all the news about the balance of payments problem was bad, though. The syndicate floating the last batch of General Motors shares under the Du Pont divestiture decree disclosed that it expected foreign investors to take $50-60 million of the $284 million offering.

And the Agriculture Department said dollar earnings of U.S. farm exports have risen 80 per cent since 1950—faster than earnings from industrial exports.

The Commerce Department disclosed that personal incomes gained about half a billion dollars in an annual rate of $16.7 billion in February. Also in February, the industrial output index rose to 128.4 per cent of the 1957-59 average — a new high.

Big Name Stars Entertain Rights Marchers

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — A bevy of big name entertainers, laced with a name or so of men prominent in world politics and culture, poured out a three-hour spellbinder of entertainment last night on the eve of the civil rights march on Montgomery.

Singing stars such as Sammy Davis, Jr., Tony Bennett and Harry Belafonte shared a platform nailed together from coffee crates with other notables among them Dr. Ralph Bunche, undersecretary of the United Nations, Leonard Bernstein, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, and author James Baldwin.

The scene, incongruously set in the backyard of a Roman Catholic hospital and school compound, had a further weird touch of violently shaking massive oak trees — loaded to the point of splitting with children who climbed up to get better views.

The performers played to a sea of mostly black faces squatting, standing and sitting in a quagmire of mud churned by 15,000 pairs of marching feet.

The crowd whooped and applauded as the rally turned back and forward from comedy to revival. Many fainted from the closeness and had to be carried from the seething crowd.

Little children — and adults — who had never hoped to see Broadway and its glitter of stars — squealed with delight when Sammy Davis, Jr., accompanied by the twanging of a guitar and a drummer, belted out "I've Got You Under My Skin," and "What Kind of Fool Am I?"

They roared with Dick Gregory.

"That wasn't any scientific feat when the Russians sent a man into space last week and had him crawl out of his space ship," Gregory said. "What really happened was the Russians had trouble with the space ship and radioed the pilots they would have to land in Selma, Alabama, and one of those cats said he would rather jump out."

Gov. George C. Wallace was seen Gregory pulling a water of integration.

sking Governor Wallace with a "Integration, hell," Kirby said however, and singers had difficulties curled up and turned blue ski boat and that a bystander he told the bystander, "They're culty projecting without the under the floodlights."

George Kirby said he had had marveled on the progress trolling for alligators.

Some of the jokes fell flat. Smoke from thousands of cigar-ettes curled up and turned blue under the floodlights.

It's Spring! Everyone is anxious to go camping but it will take the cooperation of Mother Nature to get it done. Mrs. A. E. McLennan's Troop 14 has a sad story to tell about plans and weather! Better luck next time, girls!

A hearty welcome is extended to Mrs. T. M. Whitley who has joined the staff of Quivira Council as field advisor for District III.

Junior Girl Scout Troop 214 had their Family Banquet Friday evening of Girl Scout Week. The Troop's Crest, which is the three-leaf clover, was their theme for the green and yellow banquet. Each parent was presented a yellow corsage or boutonniere trimmed with a green clover leaf. Place cards for each member of the family had been made by the girls at a troop meeting. The 16 Junior Girl Scouts were at the head table. The centerpiece was a gold trefoil with green number candles of 214. Side tables were decorated with yellow tapers in gold "spray-can" holders with green clover leaves and yellow flower sprays on the green table runners. The dinner of baked ham, scalloped potatoes, baked beans, slaw, hot rolls, tea, coffee and fruit cobbler was served from a buffet table setting. The Girl Scouts stood and sang the grace, "Hark to the Chimes", and struck six chimes.

After dinner, the troop sang a program of art, folk, round, Negro spiritual and special Scout songs. A Sign-of-the-Star candle-lighting ceremony followed. One Scout read a requirement and her buddy told what the troop had done to fulfill it and a candle was lighted. After all seven candles were burning, the leaders, Mrs. O. C. Cox Jr. and Mrs. Archie Maness, presented each girl with the "Sign of the Star." It was a good get-together for Junior Girl Scout Troop 214 and 41 members of their families.

Dear Abby.... Membership Decision Is Up to the Veteran

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently joined a club in town. You have to be a war veteran to get in. You ring a buzzer and they open the door. Well, my husband and I were there one night and it was hard to find a veteran in the crowd. I saw several men who could have joined the service, but they hid behind a cow during the war years. Others I knew left good selling jobs to go to work in a defense plant so they wouldn't have to go. These men were let in just like members. My husband had to pay a big installation fee to join this club. He also has to pay a monthly membership fee. Don't you think he should ask for his money back and quit this club inasmuch as it isn't the kind of club we thought it was?

VETERAN'S WIFE: DEAR WIFE: That's up to your husband. Assuming he joined the club of his own free will, he has no one but himself to blame for not having learned more about the club and its "membership" before joining.

DEAR ABBY: What's the matter with people who move into an expensive house in a beautiful neighborhood and who don't even own a garbage can? This neighbor lady just sets her garbage and trash out on the pavement in boxes, bags and sacks. By the time it is collected, it has been dragged all over the neighborhood by dogs, or carried by the wind on to everybody else's property. This neighbor wears expensive clothes and drives a high-priced car, so we know she can afford to buy a garbage can. How can we let her know that the next time she goes shopping, the entire neighborhood would appreciate it if she'd buy herself one?

FED UP: DEAR FED: The next time you see her (and you can make it soon by calling on her with a batch of cookies) tell her you have noticed that she hasn't bought a garbage can yet. Then recommend the kind you use, and tell her where she can buy it. If you are really "fed up" offer to "order" one for her. You could solve your problem and hers, too, as she probably keeps forgetting to buy one.

DEAR ABBY: Ron and I have been married for four months and already we have a problem. I can't fall asleep unless I have the radio going. I keep it very low, but my husband says it keeps him awake. He says part of the reason he can't sleep with the radio on is because he keeps thinking of all the electricity we are wasting with the radio going all night long and nobody listening to it. I tried to tell him that it didn't cost any more than if we had an electric clock running, or even a night light, but he doesn't look at it that way. I even told him I would find out how much it cost to run that radio all night for a month, and he could take it out of my allowance. He said no. Should I tell him to go sleep on the couch? Or should I go?

TROUBLES: DEAR TROUBLES: If your husband is kicking about the noise, use an ear-plug receiver until you're ready to sleep yourself. But if he's squawking about the cost, your electric company can estimate it for you. (It will add up to only a few pennies a month.)

DEAR ABBY: Now you've gone and done it! All of us loyal, faithful wives are "agin" you for saying a husband can love two women at the same time. That's like giving them a license to steal! It may be true, but do you have to advertise it? Men get enough ideas without any help from you. Now I am wondering, will my husband come home tonight?

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Alexander Hamilton Institute says the continuing high level of general business is supporting the market at its present plateau and tends to obscure such uncertainties as the pending labor demands, the balance of payments and Viet Nam.

The firm says it does not believe investors should not sacrifice the best quality stocks that may be undergoing temporary price adjustments for the lure of speculative profits in poorer quality issues.

Standard & Poor's advises a cautious investment policy with some judicious profit-taking.

Bache & Co. says the fundamental indications at this time are that higher stock prices may well materialize. However, the firm says, selectivity in this phase of the market cycle is an important key to success.

Purcell, Graham & Co. continues to advise both traders and investors to remain in long positions even though some more cross-currents in prices seem probable for the next few weeks.

James F. Hughes of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath says that since the stocks used in the Dow-Jones Industrial average have failed to confirm the recent upswing in secondary shares there is some justification for skepticism regarding the intermediate or even long-term outlook.

NEW COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson Wednesday formally established the Federal Development Committee for Appalachia provided in the recently enacted $1.1 billion assistance program for the area. The committee will coordinate federally drafted development plans for the 11-state region.

O'HARE BUSIEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chicago's O'Hare Airport was the nation's busiest terminal last year, according to the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA). The agency listed 460,277 takeoffs and landings at O'Hare last year. Next in line were Long Beach, Calif., with 422,620; Van Nuys, Calif., with 386,063; and New York's Kennedy International with 367,139.

Forms 1040 and 1040A Have Two Aims

Forms 1040 and 1040A are not only tax returns. They are also forms taxpayers must use to claim their refund check or savings bond. Richard V. White, administrative officer of the Panama office of Internal Revenue pointed out today.

White said many people believe that because tax withheld was more than the tax due, they will automatically get a refund without filing a return. This is particularly true among students or others who worked only a part of the year; had taxes withheld, but made less than $600. Although no return is required when income is less than $600, a return must be filed to obtain a refund of any tax that was withheld.

White added that everyone whose gross income is $600 or more must file except persons 65 or over. They must file if gross income is $1,200 or more.

RECOVERY AREA—The two-man Gemini capsule, with astronauts Gus Grissom and John Young aboard, was scheduled to make three orbits around the earth in four hours 52 minutes then land 69 miles northeast of Grand Truck Island in the Atlantic Bahamas chain, No. 3 on newsmap. Numbers 1 and 2 show landing areas where the capsule would have landed after first and second orbits.

National Window

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International
Next in line to put a pressure group political whammy on President Johnson is Big Labor with a demand for legislation. First in line were Negroes who demanded and got fast action on voting rights.

Big Labor demands amendment of the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act so as to provide federal protection for the closed and/or union shop system. This system now is outlawed in 19 states.

AFL-CIO doubtless has the political muscle to persuade the Democratic 89th Congress to repeal Taft-Hartley's section 14-B.

Taft-Hartley was enacted by the Republican 80th Congress. Section 14-B specifically withheld federal protection of the closed or union shop. It lets the state determine whether a worker can be compelled to belong to a union as a condition of employment.

20 Enact Law

Twenty states enacted right-to-work laws, protecting individuals from compulsory union membership. Indiana recently repealed right-to-work. AFL-CIO leaders believe the 1964 Democratic landslide produced a pro-labor congress. They probably are right about that. Labor has made repeal of Taft-Hartley's section 14-B its No. 1 legislative objective. Big Labor leaders helped put the Johnson-Humphrey ticket in office and helped elect many members of Congress. The labor leaders hold, in effect, a mortgage on the Johnson administration.

They propose to collect on it in terms of favorable legislation. But by bringing a Taft-Hartley amendment to the floor of House and Senate big labor opens the door to other amendment proposals of all kinds. Example:

Rep. Robert Griffin (R-Mich.) co-author of the (1959) Landrum-Griffin Labor Reform Act, has proposed repeal of 14-B with some added attractions. Griffin has introduced a repeal entitled Employee Civil Rights Act of 1965. Big Labor's leaders do not like it.

Griffin's Bill
Griffin's bill would make it unlawful under a union shop agreement for unions to discriminate against workers because of race, color or creed, unlawful to use union dues for political purposes or for any other purposes not related to collective bargaining and unlawful to fine union members for exercising rights guaranteed under federal laws or the Constitution.

The kicker in Griffin's bill is a provision that any violation would constitute an unfair labor practice and make the union shop agreement unenforceable.

The proposed Griffin bill is a pretty good example of what is wrong with the administration of the federal government. The bill does little more than repeat previous legislation which the president of the United States and their attorneys general have been unable or unwilling to enforce.

Law Not Enforced

There is plenty of law forbidding unions to discriminate by reason of race, color or creed. The law is not enforced. Federal authorities do not enforce the law in unions as they enforce the law, for example, on the state of Alabama.

Bunker Called On to Help U.S. Reach Agreement in Indonesia

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
The man being asked to make a last attempt at lifting the U.S. fat out of the fire in Indonesia, is, by now, used to lost causes. This time Ellsworth Bunker, a 70-year-old diplomat and retired businessman, is being sent to Indonesia to discuss what the State Department calls in a masterpiece of understatement "current problems in Indonesian-American relations."

The assignment comes "when U.S.-Indonesian relations are at the lowest and are subject to still further deterioration as a result of a Communist-conducted campaign of harassment to eliminate U.S. influence in Indonesia."

U.S. Ambassador Howard Jones' home has been invaded by demonstrators.

A U.S. Information Service library has been burned, culminating a series of attacks which led to abandonment of the U.S. program and withdrawal of U.S. personnel.

Electrical services to Americans have been interrupted.

Last week the Sukarno government announced it was taking control of the American-owned Stanvac, Caltex and Pan American Oil companies whose investments in Indonesia are estimated up to $300 million.

Subject to the same sort of harassment are the Goodyear and U.S. Rubber companies whose combined holdings are estimated at around $36 million. The publication Rubber World estimates that Goodyear alone supports from the cradle to the grave 25,000 Indonesians, maintaining for them schools, houses, hospitals and churches.

Had Previous Dealings

Presumably Bunker was selected for his current task on the basis of his past acquaintance with Indonesian President Sukarno, an acquaintance which Sukarno should remember with pleasure.

In 1962 Bunker served as U.S. mediator in the negotiations by which the Dutch gave up West New Guinea to Indonesia.

At best the deal was described as having averted a war between the Netherlands and Indonesia. At worst, it was called a sellout of Papuans from one form of colonialism to another. Theoretically, it bound the Sukarno government to grant the Papuans eventual self-determination.

No one really expected that part of the agreement to be carried out, but it was a face-saver for the Dutch.

Regardless of the success or failure of the Bunker mission, the United States does not want a total break with Indonesia. But Ambassador Jones has served notice he wishes to retire and his post could be left vacant.

Matson Takes Shot At Two Texas Relays Marks

AUSTIN — When Randy Matson is in the field, there's a mad scramble for second place. It's no contest when this giant of a man with the world's loudest grunt is displaying his talents as the world's best shot putter.

The Texas A&M sophomore, still growing at 6-6 1/2 and 253 pounds, will be one of the top attractions at the 38th annual Texas Relays at The University of Texas Memorial Stadium, April 2 and 3.

Although Matson doesn't hold the world record for the shot, he does own the world's best-ever indoor put — a 66-2 1/4 job done at the Dallas Indoor meet Feb. 13, and with the retirement of Dallas Long, Randy now is the world's best.

When Matson steps into the Texas Relays ring, stretches his great frame and gives forth with his mighty grunt, the Relays record of 59-9 will fall on the first shot. Bill Nieder of Kansas set that one back in 1956.

And maybe by the next grunt or two Nieder's Memorial Stadium mark of 65-7 (set in 1960 as an open event of the Relays) may fall. With two or three more grunts, even Long's 67-10 world mark could fall.

Matson shies away from 70 feet talk (that's the next barrier in track) but the 19-year-old business major has 10 more good years before reaching his athletic peak.

No less an authority than Stanford coach Payton Jordan says Matson is the best shot prospect in history, adding that he has "the speed of a sprinter and the strength of a mule."

Matson didn't waste any time hitting 60 feet after ridding himself of the 12-pound prep shot. A week after graduation from Pampa High School, Randy hit 60-6 at the US Federation meet in Houston. It took him eight more meets to hit 60 again but he's done it for 32 in a row now, including a whopping 66-8 1/4 in his first outdoor meet of the year on Feb. 27 against Baylor at College Station.

As mentioned earlier, there's a mad race for second when Matson is in the field.

Among these at the Texas Relays will be Gene Crews of Missouri, Barry King of Colorado, Roger Orrell of Abilene Christian, Jim Lancaster of Baylor, Russ Polhemus of East Texas, Gary Schwarz of Kansas and Toby Belt of Texas.

Relays officials are moving the shot ring to mid-field at Memorial Stadium where more fans can get a better look at the world's greatest action.

And even if they don't see the world's best shot put that day, they'll certainly hear the world's loudest grunt.

Philadelpha 76ers upset the Cincinnati Royals 119-117 in overtime in the opener of the best-of-five Eastern Division series at Cincinnati Wednesday night while the Baltimore Bullets upended the Hawks 108-101 as the Western Division semifinals got underway at St. Louis.

Included in the two games were two near fights, a rousing blast at a referee's decision and the nail-biting excitement that usually typifies NBA games.

The disputed referee's call came at Cincinnati and naturally enough affected the outcome of the game. With the score tied 115-115 and only 11 seconds remaining in the overtime period, Philadelphia's Al Bianchi shot a basket just as the 24-second clock expired. Despite protests from the Royals' bench, Referee Earl Strom allowed the goal and Wilt Chamberlain added two foul shots moments later to clinch the game.

"Strom's call was the ball game," Cincinnati Coach Jack McMahon moaned. "It was the play we couldn't overcome."

Philadelpha had trailed from the opening basket of the game until the closing minutes of the fourth period, but a basket by Chet Walker forced the game into overtime with the score at 106-106.

Hal Greer of the 76ers led all scorers with 37 points as Chamberlain, still bothered by a stomach complaint, was held to 26. Jack Twyman had 21 points for the Royals, including 15 in the opening period.

A field goal by Don Ohl and two free throws by Walt Bellamy in the final minute of play proved the difference for Baltimore. On two different occasions in the closely-fought contest players almost came to blows.

In the first period, Bellamy and Chico Vaughn of the Hawks were the antagonists while in the third period St. Louis playing coach Richie Guerin came out swinging after being fouled by Wally Jones. However, Baltimore's Gus Johnson held Guerin back.

Bailey Howell of the Bullets and Lenny Wilkens of St. Louis shared game scoring honors with 24 points each.

KELSO ON TOUR
LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — Kelso, five-time horse of the year, began a U.S. tour Wednesday at Laurel. He will appear at the track daily through Sunday.

The super southpaw of the New York Yankees, who has tied everyone else up in knots this spring, suddenly has become the favorite-punching bag of the Dodgers, who usually rely on a few wings and some prayers to get them through a season.

Ford had appeared completely recovered from an operation to his pitching arm during the winter when he breezed through his first seven exhibition innings without giving up a run. Then the Dodgers entered the picture.

Los Angeles, which pounded Ford six days ago to everyone's surprise, really teed off on the Yankee ace Wednesday to the tune of 11 runs and 12 hits in five innings. The Dodgers now boast 20 hits and 15 runs against Ford in nine innings this spring, which is not exactly what the doctor ordered.

Bat Around
The 1963 world champions, who dropped to sixth in the tight National League race last year, sent 10 men to bat against Ford in a six-run second inning which featured triples by John Roseboro, Wes Parker and Tommy Davis. Rookie second baseman Jim Lefebvre sprinkled some salt in Whitey's wound in the next frame when he clouted a home run over the left-center fence.

Pitching, the name of the Dodgers' game, was not neglected either as southpaw Claude Osteen, who came from Washington in the Frank Howard deal, limited the Bombers to two hits and one run in six innings and picked up the decision. Osteen now has allowed only two runs in 13 spring frames.

The Dodgers weren't the only club to go berserk at the plate Wednesday, however. The once-powerless Senators rapped out 15 hits to bury Kansas City 12-2 as Willie Kirkland and ex-Dodger Ken McMullen blasted two run homers. Another former Angeleno, Nick Willhite, who is with Washington on a conditional basis, looked impressive in his debut, allowing but one unearned run in three innings.

Reds Beat Tigers
The Cincinnati Reds lashed three Detroit "B" team hurlers for 21 hits, including a grand slam homer by Mel Queen and a two-run shot by Tony Perez, in a 19-2 romp over the Tigers. Perez collected three hits for the day and drove in six runs while rookie shortstop Tommy Helms had four hits and three RBIs.

Al Jackson of the Mets handcuffed the Milwaukee Braves over the first six innings en route to a 5-1 New York victory. Jackson limited the Braves to two hits and a single run during his stint and Tom Parsons held Milwaukee scoreless the rest of the way.

Barney Schultz, whose clutch relief pitching was one of the major factors in the Cardinals' drive for the National League pennant in 1964, proved he still has what it takes. Schultz came out of the bullpen in the fifth inning with two runs in, two men on and one out and forced Al Kaline to hit into an inning ending double play, then combined with Bob Humphreys to hold Detroit scoreless the rest of the way and preserve a 3-2 St. Louis victory.

Loses Home Run
Elsewhere, Billy Williams hit one home run in the Chicago Cubs' 8-7 triumph over the Los Angeles Angels but was deprived of another when he passed a teammate on the basepaths ... Carl Yastrzemski socked two doubles, a single and drove in four runs to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 11-7 victory over the San Francisco Giants despite Willie Mays' first home run of the spring ... And the Philadelphia Phillies capitalized on five Minnesota errors to score four unearned runs and defeat the Twins 6-4. Vernon Law pitched seven strong innings and Bob Bailey, Manny Mota and Willie Stargell slugged home runs to pace the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-3 conquest of the Houston Astros ... Russ Snyder's two-run double in the 11th inning gave the Baltimore Orioles a 5-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox ... And the Cleveland Indians batted around in the first inning for four runs to score a 4-2 win over the Angels "B" squad.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Private Money for College

Right in the face of government promotion of federal grants to college students, there's a privately endowed, privately operated fund, entitled "United Student Aid Funds," which is expanding and doing the same job the government is trying to do.

United Student Aid Funds (USAF) as its offices at 845 Third Avenue, New York City. It was incorporated in 1961, only four years ago. And since that time it has been growing by leaps and bounds in a most successful effort to provide for college financing without government assistance or participation. As of the last report we had, this organization now has banks cooperating with it in 49 of the 50 states plus the District of Columbia. At recent count it had 623 colleges in its programs and 4,334 banks (including one in Pampa). It had endorsed more than 45,000 separate loans totaling more than $24,522,595.

Here's the general idea. Full-time undergraduate students who have successfully completed the freshman year in college, may borrow up to $1,000 per year and graduate students may borrow as much as $2,000 per year, but no student may borrow more than $4,000.

Interest to be paid by the student is six per cent simple. Repayment is to begin the fifth month after graduation and interest payments begin at the same time.

In the event a student drops out of college, repayment is to begin at once.

This program is working like a charm after only three years. Indeed, it was a success from the first. A key feature of the program is that the student doesn't borrow from the college or from the USAF itself. Rather, he borrows from his own bank and all he really needs to get this money is to have established a sound credit rating. The college does not have to keep records, nor collect accounts. This is banking business, and banks take care of this business. Yet the bank's loans are backed up by USAF Funds and thus banks are usually entirely willing to cooperate, as is revealed by the large number of cooperating banks.

What USA Funds demonstrates is this: A young man or young woman, wishing to go to college and willing to work for an education, can borrow reasonable sums of money at a commercial banking firm. The sums he can borrow are not large enough to weigh him down unduly when repayment time comes. Yet the sums are large enough so they can be decisive in making a college education possible.

Thus, a student who is willing and able to work part-time to secure supplemental income, by means of these private student loans, can put himself through college without help from his parents and without tax help at all.

The method employed is reasonable, sound from a business standpoint, and readily available to any reasonably ambitious student who is honest and will persevere.

Against this program, the federal government has whopped up a scheme that is going to set the taxpayers right back on their heels. Indeed, it will have them on their uppers. The federal plan would permit borrowing up to $10,000 at a rate of $2,000 per year. After the student graduates, he has a full year of grace before beginning to make repayments and then he has ten full years in which to retire his borrowings. The USA Funds require that the amount borrowed be paid back in from three to four years after graduation.

This idea is sound. The student finishes school with a minor rather than a major obligation staring him in the face. In three to four years he can retire it. And this is important, for he will have other credit necessities confronting him and an excessive burden of debt could be discouraging to the point of despair.

The USA Funds program is sound, reasonable and is working successfully. It is growing beyond the hopes and expectations of its founders. There is no necessity for the government to get into the student loan business and yet it is already there.

Keep in mind that government loans to students come from money that has been seized involuntarily from taxpayers. Keep in mind, further, that when a student becomes accustomed to the idea that Uncle Sam has money, the student may feel in later life that he can readily dash off to the government to get ready cash for anything he wants to do. Thus, the loan program itself is almost an invitation to young people to become government dependents.

We are favorably impressed with the USA Funds and hope that young people who must borrow in order to obtain their education will make use of this method.

Those Alternatives

Despite criticism from some staunch supporters, the Republicans seem to be continuing their policy of offering "alternatives" to Democratic proposals they disapprove rather than simply opposing unwise measures.

The first results are in. The Medicare bill — as unwise and deceptive a measure as has come along the pike — has been expanded by the Ways and Means Committee of the House to embrace features of the alternative as well as retaining all of the original provisions.

The effect will be to make the measure more costly than ever. But the Republicans now, if they want to vote against it, will be in the position of having to disavow their own handiwork.

No sooner did this embarrassment become evident than along came a Republican "alternative" to the proposed cabinet-level Housing and Urban Development Department.

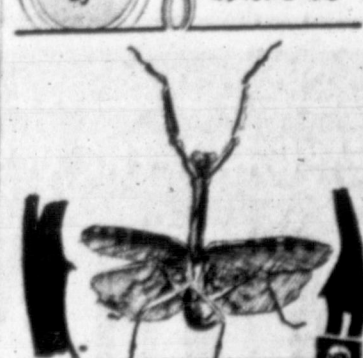

The GOP measure would substitute a White House agency to include not only housing functions, but all the other odds and ends of existing programs that the Federal government runs for the cities.

Most likely, the Democrats will treat this "alternative" as they did the Republican medical bill. They'll gratefully accept the opportunity to expand the scope of the proposed agency, and give it cabinet status as they wanted to do in the first place.

In all such cases, the Democrats — not the Republicans — will get the credit for such measures from those who support more powerful centralized Government. Those voters who do not want it will feel less compulsion to rush to the polls to vote Republican.

Matter of Fact

Orthoptera is the scientific name for the order of insects that in conventional classification includes cockroaches, mantids, walking sticks, grasshoppers and locusts, katydids and their allies. About 24,000 species are known. Most Orthoptera are large. Some reach a maximum of 13 inches in length.

Straight Talk

By TOM ANDERSON
Reply to the NCC—Part IV
Mr. Fletcher Coates

Dear Sir:

Is it true that in 1952, 95 translators, 30 of whom had been affiliated with pro-communist fronts, projects and publications, completed and copyrighted the Revised Standard Version of the Bible for the National Council of Churches? Is it true that among the many changes, Isaiah 7:14 removed the Virgin Birth from the prophecy? Is it true that in June, 1961, the General Board of the NCC voted 55-44 to support Martin Luther King in organizing Freedom Rides, sit-ins and demonstrations? Is it true that the NCC and the Communist Party promoted the March on Washington? Is it true that leaders of NCC ran a full page ad in the New York Times advocating that we get out of South Vietnam, as the Communists applauded? Incidentally, Mr. Coates, who paid the many thousands of dollars that ad cost? Surely not a bunch of "poor preachers"? Is it true that NCC has income tax exemption and that "contributions are deductible"? Why? The Internal Revenue Service regulations state that "contributions are deductible" to religious organizations unless the organization conducts propaganda or otherwise attempts to influence legislation. Is it true that on December 23, 1962, Langston Hughes was positively identified under oath by Louis Budenz as a Communist? And is it true that in 1957, five years later, more of his writings than any other writer had been placed on the recommended reading list by the Department of Racial and Cultural Relations of the NCC? Is it true that many Communists and leaders of NCC are members of the National Committee to Abolish the House Committee on Un-American Activities? And that the Christian Century, on whose board are Dr. Eugene Carson Blake and W. C. Parlin, President of World Council of Churches, editorialized as follows in its December 9, 1964, issue?

"The Christian Century has declared its opposition to the House Un-American Activities Committee as both an ineffective instrument and a threat to the nation's welfare." Is it true that the Christian Century in its June 3, 1964, issue called for J. Edgar Hoover's retirement?

Isn't it true that Walter Reuther, who was described as a Socialist by his predecessor President of the United Auto Workers and as a Marxist by John L. Lewis, works extremely closely with Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, Bishop James A. Pike and other NCC leaders? Reverend Cameron P. Hall, Executive Director of the Department of Church and Economic Life of the NCC New York office, states that Walter Reuther is a member of their General Committee and that he is held in high esteem by outstanding leaders throughout the church. Do you believe brother Hall? Is it true that Walter Reuther's brother, Victor, is the Department's Vice-chairman? Are you aware that this same Walter Reuther on August 20, 1964, reportedly told a Detroit newspaper reporter that he has no church affiliation? Are you aware that after a speech to the Young Socialist League in 1936, Walter Reuther, when asked, "Do you believe in religion and God or in science as a religion?" replied: "We do not believe in God, but that man is God." That is unadulterated Marxism and brings to mind these questions: Can Marxists hold office in the NCC? Is it necessary to believe in God to be an officer of NCC?

Isn't it strange how many aims and objectives the Communists and the NCC have in common? And particularly the Communists and Socialists and the individual leaders of the NCC? Isn't it true that the Communists and NCC leaders worked like Trojans to defeat Proposition 13 in California, which allows home owners to discriminate in the sale or rental of their homes? Where does your program for America differ from what that criminal conspiracy called Communism advocates for us, Mr. Coates?

Yours truly,
Tom Anderson

A thought for the day: German author Goethe once said: "The sum which two married people owe to one another defies calculation. It is an infinite debt, which can only be discharged through all eternity."

WASHINGTON:

Red Troops Now in Viet Real 'Pros'

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — It is necessary to be entirely clear about what kind of a Communist army we are now fighting in South Viet Nam.

The mainline Viet Cong troops engaged in the headlined battles of late are not the guerrilla forces that "occupy" much of the countryside.

They are, rather, conventional professional military forces. Half to three-fourths of their officers, sergeants, corporals and specialists are or have been regulars in the North Vietnamese army. Half to three-fourths of the ordinary troops themselves are North Vietnamese — regular soldiers and draftees.

These expeditionary troops have been coming south in large numbers the past year. Example: the entire 3rd Battalion infiltrated into South Viet Nam between February and May, 1964.

This mainline army is composed of five regiments, 49 independent battalions, 139 independent companies and 29 independent platoons.

These units are armed with 75mm and 57mm recoilless pieces, 75mm pack howitzers, 60mm and 81-82 mortars, machine guns, sub machine guns and grenade launchers. They are even acquiring helmets and conventional brown uniforms. They have medical, propaganda, engineer, transportation and quartermaster supporting units.

Ho Chi Minh is attempting as rapidly as possible to supply these troops with standardized arms and equipment manufactured in Red China and elsewhere in the Red bloc. Captured South Vietnamese arms are being turned over to the Red guerrilla forces.

The mainline units operate out of five major base areas. These are "safe" regions where the Communists are in complete control, with their own government, arms workshops, civilian and military training schools, dispensaries, arms depots and communications centers. Each base has direct communications with the over-all headquarters in North Viet Nam.

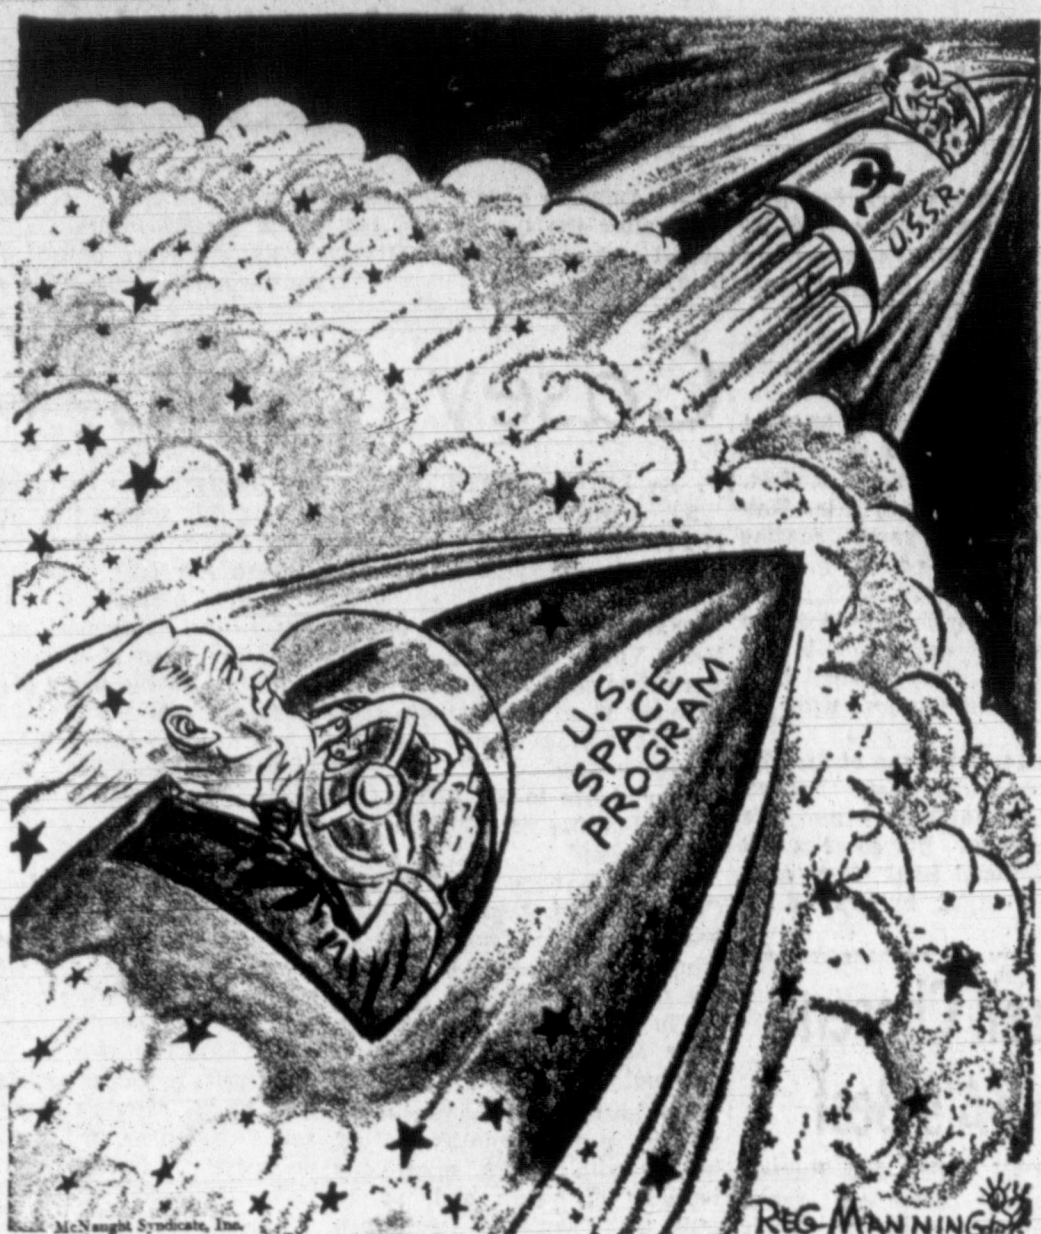

Each major base is under the local operating control (subject to orders from the north) of the Communist civilian party bosses of one of South Viet Nam's five Communist Military Regions. These bosses are members of the Communist Party of North Viet Nam.

Three of the five major base areas are located on or near the Cambodian border on supply lines leading directly from the big Cambodian Red trans-shipment depots. If close-to-Cambodia base areas are invaded, the Red troops slip into Cambodia under cover of support fire from friendly Cambodian forces.

Two of the major base areas are located on the coast, easily accessible to ocean supply lines from North Viet Nam and Cambodia.

In battles of the past few months the Communist mainline forces have been expanding these base areas and partially connecting inland bases with the

Star Dust

The American Way

By HARRY BROWNE

"The most basic American right is the right to vote!" How many times we've heard that cliché. Superficially, it sounds reasonable. After all, we live in a "democracy" — why shouldn't every citizen have the opportunity to participate in his "government"?

But let's hold up just a minute — before we get carried away.

What does the right to vote mean? What happens when everyone can vote?

IT MEANS...

The right to vote means the right to decide what will happen to the money someone else has earned. The right to vote means the power to tell another individual what he may do with his own property.

We're told, of course, that there should be virtually no qualifications for voting. Anyone should have the right to tell you how much of your property will be confiscated by the politicians.

Well, that sounds all right. But why not carry it to its logical conclusion? Why not lower the voting age to 12? After all, the youngsters are affected by the decisions at the polls.

And why not go into the prisons and register the thieves? After all, most of them are imprisoned for handling others' money in the same way politicians do.

But now let's talk sense. Instead of giving everyone the right to vote, why not deny everyone the opportunity to vote on others' affairs? In other words, why not simply allow each individual to do what he chooses with his own property? Why not limit the use of force to defending one's property — instead of using it to confiscate property in the name of the "public welfare"?

IF IT'S TRUE...
Won't work? Nonsense. If it's true that individuals are too evil or too dumb or too ignorant to run their own affairs, then how can they be trusted to elect men who will run everyone's affairs?

The "right to vote" is not the crucial issue of our time. It's a misleading phrase created to allow demagogues to acquire greater control over our lives. The great issue of our time — as in all times — is the need for men to develop ways to protect their property and their lives from those who would use politics as a weapon to steal their freedom.

Don't you agree?

All too often a clear conscience is nothing more than a poor memory.

He had hard luck fishing, and on his way home he entered the fish market and said to the dealer:

Man — Just stand over these and throw me five of the biggest of those trout!
Dealer (in amazement) — Throw 'em? What for?

Man — So I can tell the family I caught 'em. I may be a poor fisherman, but I'm no liar.

A man telephoned his doctor excitedly.
Man — Quick! My wife has appendicitis!

Doctor — Now, now. I took your wife's appendix out five years ago. I never heard of anyone have a second appendix.

Man — Maybe not, Doc. But did you ever hear of a man having a second wife?

He who never makes a mistake actually never makes a discovery either.

You can't solve any problem before it arises. Don't try to find tomorrow's troubles today.

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markey

Everyone has an opinion about the common cold, but it is really a virus disease. Children under five are more susceptible than adults and women have less resistance than men. Children are also the best "carriers" of colds. Tests have shown that persons subjected to chills and wet feet proved more resistant to colds than volunteers inoculated with cold germs, thus disproving a popular belief. However, doctors advise against getting a chill, wet feet or over-heating. A cold provides the sufferer with immunity from catching another cold for about a month. And any complications that develop are due to bacteria. The best remedy is a light diet with increased fluid intake and mild medication, such as aspirin.

Today's smile: A friend, recently returned from a motor trip out west, told of stopping at a motel that boasted a huge sign: "Free TV." When he registered, the clerk asked if he wanted a $10 or $15 room. He asked the difference between the two accommodations and the clerk said: "The $15 includes free TV."

President Andrew Jackson was a slick operator and pulled a fast one on the U.S. Senate. When they rejected his appointment of Martin Van Buren as minister to Great Britain, Old Hickory wangled things in the Democratic Party so Van Buren got the nomination for Vice President and he spent the next four years presiding over the body that had spurned him.

Thoughts while shaving: New Bedford, Mass., once the Whaling City, is now the scallop capital of the world. More than half of the world's sea scallops are landed by fishermen from that port. And whether you eat the ocean delicacies in Baltimore or Barcelona, the chances are good they came from New Bedford. . . . No less than 53 composers have written operas about the Faust legend, but the only one that really clicked was that of Charles Gounod. . . . The longest crossword puzzle ever compiled contained 2304 squares and ranged from 1 to 360 across and 1 to 351 down. It was published in the London OBSERVER in 1960. . . . One of the newer sciences is "Dendrochronology," the study of growth rings in trees. Scientists are now using such studies to determine when wet and dry seasons occurred in the past and thus be able to adduce future weather patterns, stream flow computations and even accurately date archaeological discoveries. Curiously, Leonardo da Vinci dabbled in such studies 400 years ago, speculating that the growth rings of trees are wider in years of plentiful rainfall than in drier years. . . . Don't tell your wife about it, but the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York says that if the country's housewives were paid for just 12 of their household occupations at the going rate paid other people for these jobs, they would earn $159.34 a week. . . . The Rochester (N.Y.) DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE reported: "The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture claims it has 'instant' powered eggs that are good." That's something to cackle over. Country Editor speaking: "The hardest part about buying on time is paying on time."
